- Livestock should not be allowed within city limits. If one wants to own livestock, they need to live in a rural area.
- Increased incidence of disease
- "Difficult for oversight
- Urban environment is not suitable for livestock - yards are often small, noise, smell"
- neighbour's should have no say in what animal i'm BBQ'ing that i rised on my land.
- This opens a possibility of all sorts of animals that could be offensive
- The noise and smell of chickens is inappropriate in an urban environment where neighbours are so close together. They would be a constant cause of annoyance and conflict.
- I personally feel that this shouldn't happen because I would be concerned that the livestock would escape they're enclosures and end up roaming the streets which would end up being a danger to them as they could end up being road kill. It could be a danger to humans because if the animal is on the street and the person is driving in order to avoid the animal they would have to move out of the way which could cause an accident. Another way they could be a danger to humans/pets is you just don't know if the livestock have some-type of decease which could mean that if you get bitten you end up in the hospital.
- Can the city ensure/commit to strict enforcement? We can't manage the number of free-running and surrendered cats. We don't need to add hens to that.
- Farmyard animals are smelly and city yards are too close together.
- Where is your list of "other" animals?

- I don't want chickens next door because of the noise and smell.
- With so much irresponsible pet ownership I don't see this as working in an urban setting- smells and well being of animals, possible disease are serious issues
- I feel it brings in an extra cost and more work for the city to manage
- I don't want chickens in the city.
- People are always pushing the envelope on these types of matters - this will just be another area of conflict.
- They don't belong in the city
- Calgary is an urban environment and chicken coops should NOT be allowed in the city.
- The city is not a farm. Noise and smells from farm animals are usually offensive.
- As urban density increases I don't think livestock should be permitted in Calgary
- Yes/no doesn't provide enough nuance. Animals can very easily create noise and smell problems for neighbors, and could potentially escape and become feral. I don't wish to see additional expense for the city to investigate yet more problems beyond the ones that already exist. It's possible that in some instances there would be no problem but I am absolutely sure that there would be plenty of bad cases. Cities are not farms.
- It would be too much to monitor
- Hens (restricted numbers) constitute little problem with the exception of noisy roosters crowing but larger livestock (pigs, sheep, cows should be confined to rural areas and acreages of 6+ acres).
- If people want livestock in their yard maybe they should consider moving to an acreage
- Afraid of diseases that livestock would carry and spread if owners are not responsible.
- Hens are noisy, and eggs collected need to be inspected before selling or eating for health reasons. They could also attract predators.
- Noisy
- Neighbor tensions would only be increased by allowing livestock in a backyard. Properties in the city (yards) are tight enough together that the smell and noise from livestock would impact neighbors.
- Neighbor support should not be required.
- I don't believe in keeping livestock .
- I don't think livestock should be kept in city limits, with the exception of hens for eggs, with a limit of say 2-6
- If you mean cows and pigs, I would say no due to the odour.
- Chickens stink generally the public try to be considerate of their having to
- There are many choices that already exist for people desiring pets, cats/dogs/rabbits/ guinea pigs/hamsters/birds/snakes etc.. Livestock should be in rural settings, where space is more readily available. More allowable species, translates into more work for spca and the city when citizens don't house or treat them properly. Feral cat populations, feral rabbit populations all over the city are examples of this.
- We don't need livestock and hens making messes and noise in our neighborhoods.

- I don't feel that livestock has a place in urban settings. Too much room for owner error.
- The noise complaints would distract bylaw officers from more serious events.
- We have significant wildlife in our community and believe this would lead to increased hunting behaviours in residential neighborhoods
- It is unsanitary and ridiculous to allow livestock in the city
- I do not support needing agreement from an adjacent neighbour
- Live stock belong on a farm not a home
- It shouldn't be up to the neighbour
- I think you need to clarify how many hens, I don't want an entire chicken coop next to me but one or two would be okay.
- Do not feel city is right place/home for livestock. Would it not just invite more problems, such as attracting coyotes?
- Chickens belong in the country, not in the city. Quit with the progressive nonsense and focus on delivering services in a cost effective manner.
- I don't want a chicken coop next to me...
- Hens and other livestock are rural entities.
- Farm animals do not belong in a city.
- I think hens would attract more coyotes into the neighbourhood.
- This would be fine except people would find a way to break the rules and we can't enforce the rules we have now. Accountability is important so if we can't afford to run the system with accountability then we shouldn't do it.
- Animals are not food. So many hens are abused and neglected and then abandoned once they no longer are egg bearing and/or being the wards of all ready over packed sanctuaries. No need to eat animal products or make it easier for people to do so.
- It sounds all lovely in theory, but in actuality, these animals can cause nuisance with smells (if pens not cleaned regularly) and noise. I cannot make comment on item below (pigeons), but I live inner city and two years ago had a horrible time with a neighbour who was attracting pigeons. I had to deal with multiple nests around my property, toxic feces everywhere staining my patio furniture and then their constant cooing. I love birds, but pigeons are rats of the sky and horrible creatures. I would be furious if these were permitted.
- Our climate is too cold to allow people to keep hens etc. as they will keep them for their own use, such as eggs and who is going to make sure the hens have a heated house that is in fact heated all the time in winter and kept clean etc. Farms have inspectors that check that. Some people do not care about the welfare of their animals. Also, it may be another source of an irritant for neighbours with noise. Our houses are very close together (in many new areas) and people have many different world views. We need to have a high standard for caring for animals and also for allowing everyone to live in a peaceful, quiet home without disturbance.
- Majority of people do not understand how much work taking care of hens entails....it's a nice idea ...but then comes the work.

- A benefit to the community will not be perceived the same by everyone and should instead be measured as an animal that does no harm and does not negatively affect other animals or people
- I can see the possibility of a very messy, noisy scenario. Not all owners will keep the area of, for example, chickens, clean.
- Farm animals don't have a place in the City. Livestock need space and owners are not always responsible with waste/food management.
- One person should not decide a pet's outcome !
- I strongly dislike the ability to involve neighbours and bylaw into someone's standard of living and chosen lifestyle. Only animal welfare should have a say.
- Chickens are smelly, noisy and dirty. Housing is too close in proximity to allow for adequate range for these animals.
- The City of Calgary is creating a problem by allowing urban hens. Wildlife and predatory birds which are struggling to survive as wild spaces are developed are moving into cities. Hens will become prey targets and angry citizens will respond by killing wildlife and predatory birds now headed toward extinction. The City of Calgary is missing the "big picture" of mass extinction of wild species , globally.
- If people want to keep hens or livestock they should be living on properties that are larger than what is available within city limits, in other words, acreages outside city limits.
- Properties in the city are too close together for livestock (including hens) not to be bothersome to neighbours. Most of the time such livestock are left outside and can be messy, noisy, smelly. It also makes areas look untidy and can substantially lower property values. I am not saying that one needs a full blown farm to have such animals, but it should be restricted to sizeable acreages outside the city limits. You would be putting more tension into neighbourhoods and between neighbours by allowing such a bylaw. I would be amenable to an exception for non-traditional support animals for those who actually need them.
- I support hens in yards - but I am hesitant to base this on my neighbour's approval. I think it's a case-by-case basis if there's issues - or when permits are issued. But I know certain ppl will just say no bc they're salty and old.
- These kinds of animals are meant to be on a farm.
- "Should not include support from adjacent neighbours. People have other pets without support from neighbours. It's not the neighbour's decision to make.
- I do agree on allowing backyard hens. They provide food, they are not really loud, they help maintain pests in the vegetable garden and they teach children about farm life. Where food comes from etc."
- Back yard livestock brings with it disease and ODORS!! Control of these 2 factors is up to the owner ,which in a lot of case they do not care or see it as a problem. Thus, the main person affected by the animal owners' incivility, is the neighbor. This makes for very awkward relations between neighbors... which in some cases is already tough these days. You are basically FORCING homeowners without pets, to endure the odor, noise, sight, smell of these animals! If i wanted livestock for neighbors I would have bought a house in the country on a farm! When you buy a house in the city, you have an expectation that you will not be woken up by squawking chickens and the smell of chicken feces or pigs and goats. IF we lived in a world where people generally had care and courtesy for each other, i would support this. But more and more I find neighbors very careless and self-righteous.

- People that are not trained or have experience with agricultural livestock should not be entrusted with their care. Instead encourage people to reach out to local producers that have the knowledge and the means to take care of these animals in the proper environment!
- increases attractiveness for predatory animals
- I don't like it
- Unless they are pets and not livestock! Backyard chickens for food (meat/eggs) is not good I don't want small slaughter houses in homes,
- I currnety live in Brentwood near Nose Hill. We have many more coyotes/hawks/bobcats hovering around already than in other areas of the City I have lived. Hens in a neighbors yard would be a real issue for me - I would likley move if this was ever allowed.
- Having urbwn animals requires larger yards and garden spaces which most people don't have and which the cuty is actively discouraging through densified development. Residential zoning doesn't support urban livestock.
- Animals get free and predators.
- Too many irresponsible owners already
- I'm on the fence for this - I'm sure some people would do great a be responsible, but I'm imagining smells and noise. People are bad enough at owning pets, I think on the average they'd do worse with livestock.
- Farm animals belong on the farm
- Livestock should live on farms, not urban areas.
- This has nothing to do with dogs
- Based on noise alone this is a very bad idea!
- [removed]
- I don't believe chickens or livestock should be housed within the city!
- The COVID pandemic has confirmed that animal husbandry in an urban setting is a danger to health and safety. Allowing livestock at/in individual homes will be impossible to safely manage with limited City budgets. Urban livestock ownership, if allowed at all, should be through a stringently designed, monitored, and enforced communal enterprise - like community gardens but with absolutely complete health controls to ensure that they do not become dangerous like "wet markets." Like keeping horses, this should be in rural areas.
- I can't imagine goats, pigs, sheep, mini horses in a yard. This is ridiculous.
- the city is no place for livestock, there's not enough room in most yards and honestly if you think there's a problem with dog bites just wait until everyone gets a goat because they can. Livestock is not trainable and therefore much harder to control. Small livestock (ie: goats, sheep, etc.) can and will bite, headbutt, climb which causes potential for escape and chew on +eat every thing they can get to including garbage. If you can trust people to properly care for cats and dogs there absolutely no way you could trust them with livestock.

- I don't feel livestock should be allowed in an urban area. People relocate and new neighbours may not be real keen on the smell or the noise generated from a neighbouring house.
- Hens would be too noisy in next door neighbour's back yard. Requires outdoor management of odour, feces clean-up.
- I think it will cause more problems than it's worth and if people want livestock, they should live in the country. I don't want to live next to chickens.
- Farm animals belong on a farm
- If you want livestock, you need to live outside of the city. I don't want animals waking me up early.
- we don't need anymore reason to attract wildlife into the city! It created unnecessary risk.
- Not in urban... acreage or rural yes
- One neighbor's sense of responsibility is not always equal to another. Neighbors change.
- Don't want all kinds of animals in the neighborhood.
- Absolutely do not support this. We already have enough issues with Dogs and Cats and there would be additional administrative costs
- All impacted neighbours should be supportive, not only adjacent neighbours.
- No birds! Dirty, disease carrying, and NOISY. People in the City are not collectively responsible or respectable enough to be awarded this privilege. Education will be lacking and you will have many people not following the rules. Birds will be neglected and there will be many, many issues. This is a terrible idea and I am vehemently against it.
- By law officers cannot keep up with existing complaints. I reported an Ava dined cat, in January, with evidence from the owner, and there was no diligence to support the abandoned car or hold the owner accountable. Adding More animals to protect on an existing overturned system (apparently) not only is illogical but also a financial burden to hire more officers to support. This is ridiculous.
- Difficult to keep clean and prevent odours.
- size of lot, like 5 acres for horse seems to apply to areas outside city limits: smell, extra noise. Arguments could/would occur after approvals - such as when new next door owner arrives. Could drive value down.
- Depends what the definition of "livestock" is
- People can buy an acreage if they want livestock. Livestock in the city carry risk of disease, nuisance to neighbours...and inappropriate living conditions for livestock.
- Based on personal experience of raising and caring for chickens in a rural setting, I am concerned about the noise and odor associated with such activity affecting neighbors.
- It's a matter of trust and the City/Bylaw has broken that trust. If the ring of properties around an urban farm, who have allowed permission for said farm, is later confronted by untenable odour: I have no trust the offender would be forced to stop farm activity. The City/Bylaw administration currently fails to resolve noise/barking dogs if they are not an immediate neighbor. How can they be trusted to protect complainants from the smell of feces along with noise?
- I worry about the cleanliness and noise of such an enterprise.
- So the City has an issue with pitbulls that don't have any higher instances of biting etc, but people don't like them so you feel the need to intervene, but you want to add access to animals that are equally as annoying and if not cared for bring a variety of different issues? Maybe the lesson here is that you are unable to satisfy everyone so adding more issues to your purview is not the answer.

- Move to the country if you want farm animals.
- Many people in this city do not look after their dogs or cats properly. I have no confidence that people would look after hens, plus roosters are a real problem with the noise they make. I have also seen chickens dumped on Nose Hill. I don't support this in any way.
- City is not the place for farm animals
- Livestock are farm animals not support animals and as such require space not "cooped up" in an urban environment
- It seems to me that this would just have too many shades of grey in its implementation not to be a constant source of contention among neighbours.
- I do not support any urban livestock, including hens, in the City of Calgary. I believe we have enough domestic house animals that can provide emotional needs to people living here. We have enough problems with people not looking after the animal we do allow, let alone adding more species to the list. There would be NO end to what is acceptable and what isn't if this goes through.
- Unless our city lots are made bigger having chickens in the small urban backward we have would be loud and smelly.
- I don't support the keeping of livestock (animals kept for the purpose of providing food) in densely populated urban areas. If someone wants to keep a chicken or a pig as a pet, that's an entirely different matter. I have concerns re: disease, noise, & husbandry particularly by amateurs keeping livestock in close quarters with neighbours.
- Livestock of any kind belongs outside city limits. Hen houses can stink and roosters are noisy. I would not want to live beside someone with any livestock whatsoever. Livestock needs room to roam, and our backyards are not big enough.
- Only if you are on a large acreage and the hens could have a full Co-op and were not close to any other homes
- Wuhan! What about slaughtering of animals for food or religious purposes. Arent abattoirs regulated for a reason?
- It shouldn't have to benefit the community
- The rights of people are clearly more important than those of hens. Hens are noisy and also smell horrible. They should be kept on farms not in residential areas.
- Hens are too noisy for city limits, and they cannot be trained to be quieter. This would disturb all neighbours. Keep hens on a farm - or have a large distance between where the hens are kept and the nearest neighbouring household.
- For the most part I am not in favour of livestock. I think it would be difficult to stop it from getting out of hand. Very limited numbers and enforced site and animal management would have to be enforced.
- There are specific rural farms that facilitate these animals and must not be permitted in an urban environment.

- ABSOLUTELY NOT ... Animals belong on land or farms not in urban city's. Mess, noise escape, luring other wildlife into the city NoNoNo
- A TERRIBLE idea!!! Wherever this has been tried, rescue groups, sanctuaries and shelters are forced to deal with the additional problems created, most notably the massive abandonment of these animals once people are "done" with them, e.g. when chickens stop laying eggs, etc. and these groups are left, unsupported by government funding, to rescue them. Male chicks - after chicks are "ordered" and (horrifically SHIPPED LIVE in boxes; many don't survive; some males used as "packing material"!), males end up being killed off (often gruesomely) since sexing of baby chicks is nigh impossible at the outset, and roosters are not usually allowed to be kept in cities. Most people are NOT responsible or caring enough to commit to "commodified" and exploited animals' needs or lifetimes. MUST READ: 1) <https://www.chowhound.com/food-news/104627/the-dark-side-of-backyard-chickens/#!> 2) <http://gentleworld.org/whats-wrong-with-backyard-eggs/> 3) <https://freefromharm.org/farm-animal-welfare/backyard-chickens-expanding-understanding-harm/>
- These types of animals are extremely noisy! The amount of noise complaints the City will have to deal with will skyrocket which will increase costs to the City and our Property taxes! As well I am concerned with the health implications to the public for these types of animals.
- livestock are usually smelly, sometimes noisy, eg. roosters
- Most city backyards do not have adequate space to provide appropriate care to these animals. Small crowded spaces will lead to smell, fights and disease
- Like cats, dogs and children aren't enough to get neighbours in a twist...now we want to add livestock?
- I don't believe farm animals belong or are necessary in the city
- No thx
- Too noisy, smelly and dirty. Property owners should look at acreages outside of the city, if they are interested in this.
- Concerns over size, cleanliness, and odors of pens.
- If I wanted to live out in the country I would! Having livestock/hens next door to me invites predators & the noise from the hens would be brutal. Strongly against this
- Animals deserve respect and treatment the same way humans do. We can speak/defend ourselves but an animal can not.
- it's awful
- The keeping of livestock should be restricted to rural areas.
- No
- the nuisance factor from hens, sound, smell, predators (coyotes) will outweigh the benefits. If semi-responsible dog owners can't keep their dogs from barking at all hours of the day, how will folks manage hens, who are a farm animal, and not easily managed?
- It's a city with many people. More animals is not the answer in an urban setting. It's not good for anyone or them.
- This is not necessary and would have a stench from lack of cleaning up after pets.
- Why do adjacent neighbors need to support the animal?

- These animals are often noisy and smelly. They don't belong in a city
 - I believe any animal can be a support animal but livestock raised as food or to provide food eg. eggs is for farms/acreages. People will push the limitations of this and set up a chicken coop on a balcony of apartment buildings.
 - I do not believe animals that are not pets belong in an urban environment
 - Don't feel like it's necessary in the city, and not fair to the hens
 - Dogs and cats cause enough problems as many owners are not responsible. All we need now is chickens and livestock. If someone wants to own these, they should buy property out of town.
 - Though I actually do support having hens, I think there are too many people who would abuse the situation and there would be a lot of hens that would be left in terrible situations.
 - Chickens don't belong in urban areas.
 - Livestock are not pets
 - these hens could be a nuisance
 - I would not like to be subjected to farm animals in my neighbourhood.
 - Although I like the idea in principle, the opportunity for abuse and nuisance issues arising from keeping livestock in the city would be overwhelming for The City to monitor and enforce.
 - I don't think we need farm animals living in urban areas. There is enough noise and air pollution without adding livestock to the mix. Farm animals belong in rural areas.
 - we are an urban center. Having livestock in our back yards is a nuance....you have got to be kidding.
 - Are those regulations aiming for the animals to be pets only? Those are animals who sadly are heading to slaughter, way different from what a pet is.
 - Our city is too urban to even consider certain areas that would be acceptable
 - [removed]
 - Because I see problems written all over this. Irresponsible owners. Odors. Cold winters. Not enough bylaw officers to monitor.
 - Livestock in the city would be a nuisance.
 - I don't support chickens in the city
 - Less laws
 - "Calgary is a major metropolitan city, not a farmyard. There are no shortages of organic food at our grocery stores. Why would you consider a bylaw which will only create problems between neighbours and reduce property value? In addition, who is going to police the welfare of these animals? Who is going to annually check on the quality of physical enclosures, food, water, and the feces in the yard? I would LOVE to hear the criteria for ""community benefit"".
- It is clear we already have a problem with vicious dogs in our parks, with zero response from police or animal control when called after an attack. As I am writing this, I am watching someone walk their pitbull along the river path, near Eau Claire, unleashed. No bylaw officers or police in sight. Any allowance of people raising animals in their yard will only put further strain on a system that already cannot do its job. As a taxpayer, there is no room for increased taxes. If someone wants to raise animals, buy a farm and move out of the city. How about creating strict rules to keep vicious animals out of the city and yards clean so neighbours do not lose property value because someone in the area treats their backyard like a henhouse, we stop wasting money on surveys like this and instead give this money to our already underfunded police and animal bylaw officers?"

- My neighbors don't follow by-laws for dogs or cats (barking, running at large), never mind properly raising chickens and pigeons. The lots in my neighborhood are very small and it would be very difficult to comfortably accommodate livestock. If livestock are allowed in Calgary, people will feel entitled to have them regardless of space requirements or the impact on neighbors.
- I am against hens or other livestock in Calgary
- Not appropriate for urban environment
- Hens / chickens belong on farms/ acreage not in the city
- It is hard to be fair and or consistent, for example if everyone on a street wants to keep hens.
- YYC council has elected to squeeze people into narrow lots, not sustainable by any definition because the sustainability model is anti-human. You can't have live stock next to neighbours this close to another's persons home. Bring back a wider lot factor keeping tax's low, then there is "room" for discussion. Not till then, discussion only, many other factors need consideration.
- In practicality, this would be very difficult to accommodate IMO.
- Livestock should not be in urban areas
- It opens up more opportunities for neglected and abandoned animals, and many city vets are not trained to treat livestock
- There is a pigeon breeder near us and cause noise issues, cleanliness issues, and are always in everybody else's yards
- No hens or livestock on residential property.
- Too noisy.
- Too much risk for wildlife to come closer to properties risking the safety of small animals and children
- Noise could be an issue
- If you own your home, your neighbours or the city shouldn't have the right to tell you what you can and can't have in your yard. Yes, suitable conditions should be mandatory as they should be with all animals. If so much trouble is gone through for people to own livestock why can this not be done for all pet owners?
- Livestock do not belong in urban communities.
- They can also do some damage
- The houses are too close together in Calgary for people to own most livestock, especially Chickens with the noise and smell. I'm sure some owners would deal with these issues respectfully but I'm also sure that some people would not and it would cause problems for neighbours and be a headache in getting bylaw officers to attend to deal with the issue.
- Livestock belongs on farms with room to roam
- livestock do not belong in city limits. Nor does manure. What next- ducks, cows, sheep, etc?

- I have lived beside a rooster that crowded at dawn every morning, if not earlier. Enough said.
- I would like to be able to enjoy my yard and not have to listen to hens clucking and smell their feces
- I do not see a need for livestock in an urban environment. Adjacent neighbours may feel pressured to give support, and may regret that decision later, once they realize the impact of their odour and noise.
- We have quite a few neighbours that have had hens and regardless of how they are cared for they make constant noise from sunrise to sunset disrupting the area. It's as disrupting as having a dog sitting outside all day barking
- I grew up on a farm. I don't think chickens or other farm livestock should live in the city.
- no
- Enforcement officer can ignore any and all complaints if they wish to do so. Leaving it up to them is not wise.
- I should not have to get permission from my neighbours to have chickens.
- This would cause problems for neighbours regarding odour and noise.
- Farm animals should not be in the city.
- "Hens in the city will draw other wildlife in ;coyotes, foxes, cougars, etc...)
- This will present a significant danger to the wildlife and (less so but still significant) people. Vehicle bs wildlife incidents would be one example."
- People can't look after their dogs and cats. Chickens are dirty, they shit everywhere. I don't want my neighbour to have chickens. What if a rooster is in the mix by mistake.
- A high density city would not be a suitable place to have livestock.
- You cannot expect dogs to not eat the hens if the come on to you're property.
- Y'all just wanna hate on animals
- Livestock doesn't belong in urban settings, loud, smelly and a healty hazard.
- I do not agree with animal exploitation in any capacity.
- Unsure about livestock and how they could be kept well. I would not like it if a neighbor of mine had livestock - why are they housing livestock?
- Proper cleanliness and storage of chickens isn't common knowledge and keeping them would create a lot of tension between neighbours who don't/do want them.
- I think someone property is someone's property and it seems like you are taking away
- [removed]
- There is no way to insure that people will be responsible and so why start something that can become a real problem in some instances
- No I don't think this would help anything.
- Livestock belong in the country or on acreages NOT IN CITIES. It'll bring down property values, saleability of adjacent homes and is absolutely ridiculous. Lots in the city are too small and will ruin the enjoyment of others in the area to the use of their property. Noise, smell. Could also increase predator species in the city, putting dogs at risk in their own yards.
- I do not want hens living next door tome, they are noisy and make a mess.

- I've said it 5 times already it's unjust
- Because it is cruel to animals who have dine nothing
- Absolutely not. If I wanted hens etc as neighbours I would have moved to the country. Please don't do this to us!!! If someone wants pets/animals then move to the country where you have an opportunity to have some space between you and the neighbour.
- Same as the answer before
- Farm animals don't need to be in the city.
- Livestock are breeding grounds for viruses and illnesses. The pens will stink and not everyone will have the same cleaning standards
- Some home owners will be responsible, but unfortunately many of those who want such things as chickens in their back yard will not adequately maintain the site for cleanliness, smell, poop removal, etc. I've seen it first hand at my relatives place in Nanaimo.
- I feel having chickens and other livestock in an urban setting could have the potential to be extremely loud and unsanitary.
- I don't want to wake up too a hen or roster.
- livestock do not belong in the city.
- livestock and farm animals of all types do not belong in the city
- I am concerned with people possibly not following the rules.
- No additional laws are required specifically for chickens. If the home is not in zoned for such activity then it isn't appropriate. Move to an acreage.
- City living is not small acreage living. Quality of life for the livestock and impact to the neighbours must be considered.
- I do not agree with keeping any animal in a back =yard(including hens).in the city proper i.e. city limits.
- I do not view this as appropriate. Potentially a bylaw to hear special permission for unusual pets would be appropriate where a case by case determination can be evaluated.
- Noise and smell will be an issue. And 'support from adjacent neighbours' makes no sense as neighbours move in/out regularly therefore would impact all neighbourhoods.
- we are living in close quarters in the city with fairly rapid turnover in neighborhoods. I can see this on acreages. This could also present a problem with coyotes; bobcats who generally don't cause trouble...why tempt them?
- Given the parameters stated above I think that the policing of this would become prohibitive financially for the city.
- I do not think an urban setting is suitable for rearing hens
- I don't believe a city is a good living experience for livestock
- I don't want hens in a yardhouse next to me. Perhaps you have a hidden area like you have with the communal gardens. Create a communal hen area.
- Many backyards in Calgary are too small to provide enough physical separation between one neighbour and another neighbour's hens/livestock. Smell and noise will be an issue in small lots.

- It would be nice to have livestock there so cute, they get tired then mistreat, abandon, there would have to be strict rules
- Hens ok. Livestock should be on farms. For their well being.
- I think livestock should remain in the country areas
- No hens or other livestock should be allowed in residential neighbourhoods. But if this bylaw gets passed, the entire neighbourhood needs to vote by secret ballot whether yay or nay.
- I just don't feel the need to have livestock in the city period. If you want livestock, purchase the land for it. There should be a minimum amount of land required within the city. Too many yards are too small and crowded. People aren't taking care of their cats and dogs what's going to be different with people taking care of livestock.
- I don't believe livestock belongs in the city in general, however, if all neighbors are supportive of the livestock being housed nearby and the animals can have appropriate space and care, then I guess it's fine.
- A chicken (hen) is classified as livestock. Livestock does not belong in the City. Also, if one allows hens, why not roosters? Roosters crow at dawn and this will be a big nuisance to people.
- I do not see the need for this
- The impact of these animals would be to more than just adjacent neighbours, Calgarians cannot responsibly provide care for dogs and cats while considering their neighbours this would be worse with livestock.
- Requires increased enforcement
- I don't want to live beside a neighbor who has livestock in his backyard. It is not healthy for my family that have multiple allergy issues that can be fatal to them. If a person wishes to keep livestock, they can move to an acreage.
- This would be difficult to control and may be unfair to neighbors.
- Depending on the yard, hens can be noisy and smelly and some cultures may start raising them for food then the neighbours are dealing with discarded parts etc- I lived in the Middle East and I did not like living next to farm animals in the city.
- This is ridiculous. I grew up on a farm and hens, pigs no matter how much "precautions" and preventative" measures the odour and noise cannot be mitigated. One of the goals of the city is densification, this would be at odds with that. Acreages that happen to be part of the city of Calgary may be the exception
- Clucking is annoying when your sitting in your backyard and no roosters at dawn
- This bylaw amendment is just stupid and you ought to be ashamed
- "These animals would attract the coyotes, bobcats etc to private yards . This is not appropriate to Calgary.
- We are surrounded by natural areas and wildlife"
- They are dirty animals. They are noisy and we have enough problems with magpies.
- Having chickens in the city will be a slippery slope especially if they are looking at other animals (pot bellied pigs, goats) all are noisy & don't belong in a residential area. Dogs you can train to be quiet - not chickens, pigs & goats

- Livestock have no place in an urban/suburban location.
- As stated previously I have 1 nasty neighbor - they would never support anything I would want to try. Should be majority of neighbors supporting...
- There is always noise and mess associated with farm animals. This is not appropriate when people are in close proximity.
- I believe allowing people to keep hens and/or livestock in the city would be a nuisance to neighbours.
- Livestock would attract more wild animals and cause more problems for cat and dog owners.
- "No livestock within city limits.
- Maybe special permits could be considered for hens with neighbor approval."
- "They attract vermin.
- They stink.
- They make noise.
- It's unnecessary. Buy eggs at the store or move to the country."
- If you want chickens move out of the city
- Noise and cleanliness. We have enough problems with rodents as it is, we do not need more attractants.
- No live stock in the city! we have farms for that! Too messy and too much trouble and potential diseases.
- Hens and other birds have common disease with humans and can transfer them to humans. It is dangerous and a threat to health.
- Are you kidding? Farm animals belong on farms. They stink, chickens are noisy and I can't imagine what would be in people's yards. Goats, pigs? Don't even think about this one.
- I grew up on a farm. There is no way to contain the noise and smell to the neighbours property.
- No hens should be allowed in the city
- Noise and smell needs to be considered. Smell cannot be managed.....ask a farmer
- It is hard enough getting along with neighbours. I grew up with chickens and would love to see more in the country, but city lots are not big enough. They are noisy and can be smelly. They will attract wildlife (coyotes, bobcats) to spend more time in the denser residential neighbourhoods (vs. occasional visits and remaining on the fringes.) Do you want people armed to protect their wildlife like on farms, too? Not a good fit.
- We bought this house in this area because of the quiet and lack of rental properties - since the city decided to approve rental suites (this property had been illegal suites up until a very short time ago - even then it was EXTREMELY problematic and we were actively pursuing the city to have this resolved.) We have been personally besieged by these BAD renters next door - 2 suites there. The property owner is beyond rude and difficult and has threatened to sue us if we don't stop harassing her. We have had to call the fire department, police and the city repeatedly with different renters to have these people removed. All the time there was LOUD MUSIC, drugs, alcohol, fights -- screaming, yelling, cursing, violence, fires, throwing cig butts ,garbage etc into our yard, smoking soo much marijuana that we couldn't even sit outside to enjoy our own property - Not to mention that when we step out our back door it looks right into a former laundry room that is now a bathroom only to see naked men & women who have no consideration at all - in fact even with the current upper renter we had the police come out to calm the man down due to a HORRIBLE violent verbal assault on his 16 year old daughter. This has affected us deeply and personally in our emotional and mental wellness. I have suffered with panic attacks and anxiety since this has begun that I am not able to manage. Chickens and other animals besides cats/dogs and small pets will be another nightmare again. A few years ago my son bought a house to remodel and live in - he didn't know there where chickens/rooster there. We helped him to remodel AND clean up the yard and garden - the mess was unbelievable there too. Dead things, mice, chicken residue, all matter of disgusting stuff WE had to clean up - not the neighbor who was breaking the law. So NO we are not open to this at all. I also believe that this change in the law WILL reduce the value of our property.

- We already have a rough time getting rest with neighbors dogs barking through the night, not to mention feces all over our lawn. We live in a city to not be bothered by having to deal with animals. Will all needs of neighbors be considered before hens are brought into neighboring lots? Unlikely. What about containment of scent, feces, mites from these animals and the health impact on my children if cops are just over the fence? Smell from the animals and their feces?
- This will just open the door to ridiculous motions to keep larger livestock. And who wants to hear a rooster crowing in the morning. And even if neighbors approved what happens when they move away and the new neighbors don't approve
- I grew up in a farm. I like chickens, but I would worry about farm odours from chickens or other livestock in an urban setting, particularly in neighbourhoods with smaller lot sizes. What about having a community space for raising chickens, similar to a community garden model, or in partnership with schools?
- No. I don't want the smell of the hen cage feces or the morning sounds from the hens/roosters crowing. I lived in countries where this is common in the city and it was terrible.
- Don't need livestock in the city
- I don't think that's necessary
- While I'm sure that some people would be responsible, many will not. The only way I would support urban livestock is if there was a mandatory course and license requirement.
- I don't think your outlook or attitude to animals is acceptable, way too much bias/exaggeration & therefore not qualified to organise anything for animal welfare fullstop.
- those kinds on animals do not belong in cities ..if I wanted to live on a farm i would live on a farm
- People living across from me in my back lane had chickens. I have trouble sleeping and did not like being woken up at dawn by the chickens.
- I don't believe hens should be permitted within the urban area. Additionally, a pet licence should be for the lifetime of a pet versus annual (or the option of fee increments). LESA pets - I am assuming these let's have been screened. I know of some families cheating and saying their pet is certified in order to bring it to all public venues. All they did was to complete a form but due to confidentiality the dog did not pass any certification process. I believe in service pets but assumed the certification process was more rigorous.

- No livestock in a standard city neighbourhood. However, if there are large, rural-type properties within the city boundaries, perhaps they could fall under an exception given distance from neighbouring properties, size of lot and animal enclosure, noise bylaw and health and sanitation compliance etc.
- Livestock of any kind are not needed in urban settings. Have we learned anything from this pandemic?
- I just don't want chickens in the city
- A large number of people can't even look after allowed animals responsibly - why add more animals to the list. Just look at the number of pets in shelters and rescue agencies already.
- Animals like chickens are great during good weather but suffer considerably if not properly housed and cleaned during the winter. Will their structure require a building permit? Will people use space heaters that have potential of starting a fire? Where will all their excrement go - into compost or garbage bin so increasing costs for all that?
- Livestock should NOT be kept in the city - if people want farm animals they should move to a farm. Most people are uneducated in the proper care of domesticated animals, let alone livestock! However, my biggest concern is over the smell of animal waste and noise (again - too many people can't even be bothered cleaning up after their dogs - let alone chickens, or sheep or pigs)! Also - what makes the Chief Bylaw Officer an expert in making decisions regarding livestock?
- Chickens should not be in the city. It could be a nightmare for a neighbor.
- Chickens are louder than dogs
- I am not sure if I would like my neighbours to have chickens next door to me. Mostly my consideration would be the noise of a cock crowing in the early morning hours! Otherwise, I don't think the hens themselves would be a problem as such.
- Don't want backyard chickens
- I grew up on a farm and if the chicken coop is not well maintained, there is smell and noise that I would not like to live beside.
- the city is no place for livestock - free roaming pets are enough of a problem; clearly too many people do not take responsibility for their animals now and "support from neighbours" can change overnight once a "for sale" sign goes up on a house -
- Hens DO NOT have ANY place in the City. They are farm animals and should remain there.
- Strong no. Smell and noise of urban hens and accompanying roosters is the reason I am not in favour of chickens in Calgary.
- Livestock is for rural properties and should remain that way
- We don't need urban birds. If you are going to discriminate against dog breeds because of poor information and outdated research, birds have contagious diseases (bird flu) and I am also scared of them and find it traumatising
- Livestock has no place within city confines, unless property is registered as an acreage or specified part thereof.

- There are many coyotes and bobcats in my neighborhood. I would be concerned that an adjacent neighbour with urban livestock would attract additional predators to my backyard and endanger my young children and dog.
- I don't want the smell or noise from livestock
- It will get abused by immigrants who think they can live like they did in their home country and turn into a clusterflop. Without mandatory inspections on a quarterly basis, and that gets expensive, people will try to turn it into a business.
- If you want to raise livestock you should be living on a farm, not in the city.
- Farm animals belong on a farm where there is space. Even if you try to make a nice space for a miniature pony in your house, this animal would still be happier in a real pasture. Hens (and other livestock) are noisy and territorial. We should not encourage these animals within city limits.
- You want to exclude wildlife feeding on private property and have stinking hens and barnyard critters actively living in the city instead. How bizarre is that?
- I don't want to live beside someone in the city who had Hens, or pigeons or livestock
- Go buy a place outside the city if you want that, if someone had a rooster next door, or three blocks away, it would be INCREDIBLY infuriating, especially how much it costs to live in Calgary... it's only worth it if there's no roosters, yikes
- Ridiculous if you want to allow people to have live stock in a city but set restrictions for people having loving pitbulls.
- What kinds of animals are we talking about? Other than hens and fowl, I cannot imagine other types of livestock in Calgaryans backyards.
- You are entertaining the idea of banning the feeding of wild birds in Calgary, which gives untold numbers of people great joy, yet you want to allow livestock to be kept on private property where many will ultimately be slaughtered for food. Calgary is an urban centre, not a farm. If people want to raise farm animals they should live in the country. The health implications alone are a great concern.
- People are dumb and will get sick and be gross
- I don't believe that anyone within the city actually has the property or space that would ensure that such animals don't encroach on the quality of life of surrounding neighbours.
- A city is not a place to raise livestock. Period.
- I am concerned about the decision making of the bylaw leadership
- I think it becomes a slippery slope, enforcement would be a nightmare and it would encourage more misconduct between neighbours. I don't want a stinky, noisy chicken coop next to my bedroom window, but one animal might be fine. You would really have to look at parameters and how much time you have to sort out disagreements
- high density neighbourhood and small lots are not ideal for livestock/poultry
- I think they are noisy smelly and wouldn't want them in my neighborhood- I was raised on a farm with hens and can speak from experience
- Risk of disease to other animals and humans is increased.
- Hens belong on a farm
- Livestock belongs on a rural farm to avoid noise and noxious/unpleasant smells.

- Ethnic groups would be killing fowl animals inhumanely. Living conditions will not be monitored by bylaw. Our standards for animal welfare will not be upheld.
- Livestock have specific requirements which are not always suitable for an urban area. Unless certain parts of the city have special zoning to allow this, livestock should remain in rural areas
- I don't think you can get people to look after and clean up after livestock in a city setting. You can't get them to pick up dog poop or keep their dogs from attacking other people or dogs.
- Why on earth do we need hens in a city? They (and their smell) belong on a farms.
- Do not support hens or livestock living in urban areas. People need to choose support animals and pets that can be happy and healthy and monitored properly. We already have problem finding, caring for abandoned, neglected and abused dogs and cats. We don't have resources to expand that care.
- I don't care about animals other than dogs
- "[removed]
- Maybe a payment to neighbours within a certain radius for inconvenience/noise/nuisance/property devaluation?"
- I wouldn't like the noise or smell
- Chickens stink. Livestock does not belong in an urban environment.
- This would be highly dependent on the neighborhood and size of lots, etc.
- The city is no place for Livestock/Farm Animals. There are already too many irresponsible domestic house pet owners living in the city, allowing them to have livestock/farm animals in the small city yards will only make the stray/homeless animal population worse.
- "No, hens are noisy, smelly and I would not be happy if my neighbours in these small suburban lots had hens. They carry disease and during a time when a world pandemic is suspected to have been transmitted to humans through animals, this seems a ridiculous allowance.
- The city already can't manage or ensure the safe living conditions of dogs and cats, how are they going to ensure hens are warm, safe and cared for. I suspect many people will just leave them outside or in an unheated garage in the cold weather. That is unacceptable."
- This is how covid and bird flu are created. City properties are too small and too close together. I don't want to smell horse poop
- It just doesn't seem right
- it's not fair to neighbours to have to put up with the noise, smell etc that comes from having livestock & urban chickens in the city. Not all pet owners are responsible and that's not fair to the animals or neighbours to have to deal with that. Some people just aren't good neighbours and adding urban chickens / livestock to the mix wouldn't be a great combination
- This looks like a very labour intensive process for City staff, with few benefits.
- I honestly struggle with this question - I love small livestock, and would love to have hens etc. and I thought I would answer "Yes" to this kind of question. But as a person who has adopted several pets from the Humane Society over the years - I can only imagine what might happen if people are suddenly allowed more than "traditional pets" in their yards. The city of Calgary doesn't even like people to have clothes lines - what are they going to do when roosters are crowing at the crack of dawn and goats are climbing on shed roofs!? Most people could probably be trusted to be responsible, but I shudder to think of even a small percentage of possible abuse and/or neglect of livestock because people who have seen it glamorized on the internet think they can have a little "homestead" in the city but it doesn't work out like they hoped. It sure would be a larger range of animalkind for Bylaw Enforcement teams to try and monitor citywide - and I would hate to log onto the Humane Society site in the future to check out animals for adoption and find that not only can people not be responsible enough to take care of a hamster or cat, but now there are abandoned goats and chickens too! Not to mention that with consideration to question 2 - like it or not, (I like it - I want to keep my bird feeder!) wildlife is a reality for the city of Calgary - moose have wandered downtown! Mostly, it is delightful to have so much nature right in our backyard, but "sketchy" encounters will increase between animals which people choose to have in their backyard like livestock and pets - and the wildlife of the Calgary area, and is difficult to control. Basically, put hen houses in the city - coyote, lynx, foxes and the like will be attracted into the city, how will that be mitigated by way of safety for people, pets and livestock? And we are doing those kinds of wildlife no favours by luring them into the city with fresh eggs, juicy chickens and vulnerable livestock in backyards; wildlife might needlessly be destroyed if animal control officers are called on to intervene. Please consider the safety risks from all angles - especially the vulnerability of livestock, and the fact that Calgary is naturally a city filled with delightful wildlife before allowing the amendment, thank you!

- Livestock should be in a Rural setting.
- Hens can contract and spread serious diseases.
- the neighbour cant even mow his lawn or pick his weeds, certainly isn't gonna look after chickens properly, he's lazy. Look how many people in city can not even look after the house or lawn, you cant allow these fools to have chickens. Then these hipsters when the Hen can no longer produce eggs don't have the fortitude to kill and eat the hen so all these chickens end up at the animal shelter.
- I do not want to live next door to chickens!! That's what acreages & farms are for.. I can't stand people who don't look after their yards & the city does nothing about that - I cannot see them bylaw enforcement in this case either!! My property value would soon be zero!!
- Hens do not belong in urban neighbourhoods.
- I don't support raising livestock including hens in the City.
- Farm animals belong in rural areas. Increased risk of noise, odors and disease.
- The city is not a place for any livestock. It is really bad for the neighbors and the neighbors should not be put in the conflict position of having to say no.
- Under no circumstances do I want hens in my neighbors yards. Hens belong in the country or on acreages.
- Not interested in living in a hybrid urban/rural setting. High likelihood that this bylaw would devalue property by limiting buyers with similar views.
- Not enough info. Are these animals going to be predators to the bird life? Ex: South Calgary hospital brought in Per Falcons to kill pigeons but it is my view they also are preying on the smaller colourful birds in our area. BE Careful about species!

- No farm animals should be in an urban environment unless the property is a quarter acre or larger.
- Not everyone will follow the criteria.
- Due to the wild animals in Calgary I do not think this is a good idea
- I don't think most yards are suitable.
- Urban farming is a bad idea.
- It would be too costly and difficult to regulate. Neighbours change. Livestock numbers increase. Such a rule would require us to become monitors of our neighbours' behaviour and to report on them, Stasi style.
- In the country you have to have 3 acres to have one animal. There is NO city lot that would allow sufficient space for these animals to live properly.
- Livestock is meant for farms and acreages.
- No, they shouldn't be allowed within city limits
- this is not a rural town it's a major city
- There is a real coyote problem in Calgary. Having hens in yards would end up a bloodbath and distressing to all neighbours. The noise of hens and roosters would not be pleasant as a neighbour.
- No barnyard animals on my street
- Livestock should be in farms
- Don't want farm animals near my home
- Livestock do not belong in cities
- No roosters re noise issue
- We do not need hens. They are annoying and loud and dirty.
- Sanitation and smell from livestock excrement If numbers of animals are not determined could be a problem.
- "1. Not being an expert in animal husbandry, I question needs of the livestock been met. They tend to be pack animals (ie sheep), the space they require to eat, roam,. Even the numbers. 1 or 2 OK.? Type of safety required. Also how would leaving it outside impact "teasing of other wildlife
- Human impact. Considering neighbours today may work, but if someone moves, is the process reinstated to ensure all concerns are addressed.
- 3.Assume they would be considered similar to pets, so Would they have similar requirements and "nuisance l(i.e. noise or smell Etc. become part of By-law. Would they be allowed in parks, ? Extension of "off leash " include any animal.
- If enclosures are required. Would there be building requirements required and permit system required. With coverage a criteria
- Where and how are feces disposed."
- I am doubtful that people can take care of hens properly. Oftentimes, animals used for food or food production are treated inhumanely. They are not seen as pets but only as inanimate objects that can be treated inhumanely.
- Far too vague as to types of livestock and numbers of same.

- Livestock and poultry belong on farms, not in a city backyard. Chicken meat and eggs are inexpensive, and available at virtually every grocery and most convenience stores in Calgary.
- Livestock belongs on a farm
- Not sure what the benefit would be. Noise, smell etc would be increased.
- Don't agree with the first condition requiring community benefit.
- I don't think mist lot sizes are big enough to consider having other livestock living in our city.
- I personally am not in favour of hens in the backyard, what about winter time and do you know just how dirty they can be?????
- If this is allowed then you have the problem of smell, removal of waste etc. If this is not done then you have to get bylaw involved.
- We have enough problem with pets in the city without adding farm animals.
- Don't want chickens next door.
- Odour. Disease. Poisoning. Animal threats.
- This is a slippery slope and irresponsible owners would mean more problems.
- Current pet owners are irresponsible with there pets as it is. They don't have them on leashes when they are supposed to and a lot of pet owners will not pick up the dog poop and if they do, a lot of owners just drop the bag when no one is looking so they don't have to carry it to a waste bin. Chickens do not smell very nice in confined areas and they are farm animals that should be kept on a farm. If people want chickens that should move to the country were the chickens belong
- If I wanted to live on/near a farm I wouldn't live in a city.
- I see too many loopholes that can infringe on neighbours in their homes/properties as well as health hazards.
- I can't believe that enough space could be provided for a healthy animal except birds that can fly.
- Yards in newer communities are too small to have hens and livestock.
- Too nebulous to support.
- I don't believe there will be follow through from Bylaw
- Livestock care would need to be regulated. The care and feeding of these animals would need to regulated. If the animals are kept in filthy, crowded conditions it can create chaos and a noisy nuisance in a neighborhood. I am not in agreement with having chicken coops in neighbourhoods. There's enough trouble with problem dog and cat owners already.
- Most urban yards are not very big, and I think all livestock should be raised where they have space to move around and have exercise and stimulation in their every-day environment. Therapy animals would be an exception. The other concern to me is that animal feed outside results in staggering increases in the rodent population.
- I do not support hens or other livestock in the city - especially one where the FOCUS is on densification.
- Livestock belong on farms. Who would be paying for the monitoring of this?
- A disturbance to neighbours who may not be in agreement
- Livestock, including chickens, are farm animals and should only be found on farms not in cities.

- I do not support chickens or any other kind of livestock in the city. Move to the country if you want chickens and other livestock. We already have bobcat, cougar and coyote problems, imagine if we start allowing our yards to support farm animals. Some people can't control their cats how are they going to control other animals
- I don't want any "farm" animals in the city or even homing pigeons. They are noisy and smelly and a nuisance.
- I think it leaves the door wide open for abuse and what livestock are allowed. Someone keeping pigs for example - the impact to the neighborhood is greater than just the adjacent neighbors.
- The classification of "livestock" is rather arbitrary, particularly when people are allowed to breed cats, dogs, and other "domestic" animals in urban environments.
- Concerns about attracting rodents.
- You don't have the resources to manage the animal population complaints and violations - as it is.
- I do not support having hens or any other livestock to be permitted in the city. The exception I would consider is if the animal is a rescue and is not being used for food.
- I would be concerned about the cleanliness of keeping hens or other farm animals in a small city lot.
- "This approval may have the support of the present adjacent neighbours but what happens if these neighbours sold their home and the new home owner now finds out that his/her adjacent neighbour keeps livestock. If they make a complaint to the city will the city withdraw the earlier permit issued to the livestock owner or will the city pay for the new home owner who is a neighbor inconvenience fees to relocate from that area?"
- When buying a home it is difficult to know everything about your neighbours until you start living in your new home."
- I choose to live in an urban area where physical distance between adjacent properties is generally restricted. If residents want to own livestock or chickens or bees they should also choose to live on an acreage/rural property where agricultural activities are not just allowed but expected.
- "This is the city. If you want livestock, move to a farm or rural area. Houses are too close, neighbourhoods are too busy and noisy and smelly already.
- This will cause lots of neighbour vs neighbour problems.
- Absolutely not necessary to add hens to our city. Adding urban hens - there is NO need at all and anyone saying they need it, need more help than they can get from a hen."
- No hens or urban livestock should be permitted. Coyotes are too much of a problem as it is.
- I was raised on a farm and fully understand the need for livestock of various types. That is why we have farms. Cities are not farms and as such are not designed or suitable for the raising of livestock. Many people are fearful of non-domestic animals, even including birds such as chickens, etc and no matter what you try you will never be able to sufficiently abate the odours from livestock. Neighbours should not have to tolerate that intrusion on their privacy and enjoyment of their property. If people want livestock, then move to an acreage out of the city.
- Livestock belongs in the country / farm

- The above offers no limitations on number of hens, their humane living conditions, sanitation and odour control of their coops and and no identification of other livestock under consideration. Insufficient information!
- "Waste management ie odour, noice ie crowing and space restrictions in an urban setting would pose problems not only for owners but neighbours .
- Health and animal wellbeing would be the Owners responsibility . However who would monitor this?"
- Concerns around the control of smell.
- If you want to own hens or livestock, move out to the country. I don't want the noise and smell and flies in my neighborhood.
- noise! and smell.
- Terms are too vague. "Community benefit" is an arguable term. What does it mean?
- If we are going to allow hens, why not goats, pigs and cows too and horses on the streets again? This is a slippery slope. If you want farm animals in your backyard , move out of the city to a farm. Farm animals are smelly and noisy.
- Most properties in Calgary are way to small. I can't imagine having a goat or llama in a tiny city back yard.
- Hens pigs and other livestock should NOT be allowed. Dogs and roaming cats are enough problems
- Hens belong on a hobby farm. They would attract mice and rodents to a community.
- I don't support hens either. Inner city is too densely populated and most of the yards in the city in particular the newer areas do not have sufficient space to properly provide for this. I believe it will be a significant nuisance to the neighbours. I think it will also lead to greater presence of predator wildlife in the neighbourhoods - specifically coyotes, coy wolves, and bobcats. I live in a densely populated area near the reservoir and often seen coyotes and other predators running down the streets of my neighbourhood and I think the presence of 'urban livestock' would significantly increase their presence.
- Hens and chickens and other livestock create unpleasant odours which could be objectionable to other residents and impact property values. Perhaps some farms or acreages outside of Calgary would allow the boarding of livestock for a fee.
- This is hard - not enough info to say yes 100%. A hen ok a dozen maybe not, a pig ok a dozen not. What happens when a neighbor who said it's ok, now moves and the new resident doesn't agree. There are a lot of considerations for noise and smell. A hen in a fenced back yard ok but a fenced back yard backing into a green space would likely be noisier due to the echo (we know living on one what the noise is like for a dog bark)
- Those that want livestock in their yard need to move to a farm.
- After visiting a community where chickens are allowed, the constant noise, smell & lack of owner accountability was distressing.
- We don't raise game in the city.
- Leave them on the farms.

- "Care of animals may not be done properly, resulting in problems
- Noise can be a factor as well as wild life coming into area for the hens"
- This is a city, not a farm!
- There is no need for livestock in city yards.
- Too many people in Calgary already cannot be bothered to pick up after their dogs. Are they going to be cleaning up after pigs and goats? I wouldn't want to be living next to someone whose garden stinks of manure.
- hens are noisy and smelly and would decrease the property value and enjoyment by the neighbours.
- Just as in the ownership of pets not everybody is or would be a responsible livestock owner.
- Keep livestock out of the city
- I appreciate that you say the animals need to have suitable living conditions but what are those conditions? They have been deplorable for dogs and cats for years, what will you change for chickens?
- "You would have Roosters that crow and how would you stop them from making their noise.
- This would also bring the coyote closer to your home and any other predator that has made the city their home. If you want to raise chickens move to the country."
- Farm animals do not belong in residential neighbourhoods.
- Why buy a home in the city if you want livestock? No, this will stink if living next door to them, just a like a dog owner who does not clean up after a pet.
- People can justify almost anything today. How long until a cow is in a back yard and the owner indicates it has a positive impact because kids get to learn where there food comes from so they stop eating meat? Cage kept animals are generally smelly by nature. Keep the animals to traditional pets.
- There are not enough bylaw officers to efficiently deal with nuisance complaints re noise, deplorable conditions, and loose animals as it stands now. Adding additional varieties of animals would only make this worse.
- Lack of the city maintain green spaces tells me that they have no time to police this bylaw and all we end up with barnyard smells from unkeptbackyards.
- Unless the city can guarantee that urban livestock being kept in a bakcyard setting will not affect the health (taking into account related allergies, fleas on the birds that can transfer to house pets, etc.) and safety (e.g., cleanliness of the environment), personal use and pleasure of their own spaces for neighbours, clean non-odourous air on the other side of the fence (as relates to the chickens poop/bedding or that of any other urban livestock) ... and those that are negatively affected in any way (e.g., noise, odour, 'escapees') by the urban livestock in a neighbour's yard have a no cost, immediate way of resolving any issues that arise ... I just think that the can of worms being opened will simply cost me, the taxpayer, more for city services. Livestock belongs in a rural area with distances between neighbours, not in a city trying in increase human accommodation density. What rules about space between livestock accommodations and neighbours' fence lines will there be?

- Chickens smell and can attract predators such as coyotes or bobcats. They are also noisy. Most yards are not big enough for other animals. Not all owners are responsible or clean.
- I am concern about the new issues that could arise. Look at some of the chicken and roaster problems in Hawaii. I live in an area where there is a lot of wild life coming through or close by. I do not want to see chickens and the likes in the back yards enticing these animals and then having the wild animal blamed for the harm caused. Some of my neighbours are already over reacting to bobcats. Yards are getting smaller not larger and I think if we are doing a survey for dogs and cats there is issues with some owners not being responsible. Take the issue of domestic rabbits. Check out the C-Train stop at 39th S. I think the city has enough to manage as it is.
- Livestock should have the benefits of being raised in farm environments that better support their specific needs.
- Hens and other livestock should be rural settings not residential neighborhoods.
- having hens in a yard sounds great but most people are not conscientious enough to keep these facilities clean and healthy for the birds.
- There is not enough space in some communities to allow livestock and I do not wish to see what little green space that is available be given up to allow livestock to live within the city proper.
- No livestock in city limits
- I don't want to be living next door to a zoo! Barking dogs is enough where the City does nothing about it anyways!
- Mess and smell...some property owners do not keep a tidy yard now..with roaming hens and chicken coops in their yard this would only worsen!
- People cannot properly take care of their cats and dogs. People have enough trouble with their neighbors without adding more animals to this list.
- If I wanted farm animals in my neighbourhood, I would have moved into a home situated in the country.
- livestock animals belong on farms not in city or towns. The cleanliness, smell, diseases, noise, they can bring to city should be a deterrent not have such animals in the city.
- as a previous owner of hens for the purpose of egg production in a rural setting I know how much of an offensive odor and noise they produce It would be an onerous job to police the owners to maintain a clean environment. A few chickens produce a large amt of amonia smelling waste. Also where is the waste to be disposed of and how will disposal of same be monitored and enforced
- We are not living on a farm.
- Foresee to many issues/problems with this
- Again, for what part of no do you require an explanation?
- Livestock are not appropriate to city living
- Hens are fine; not sure about "other" livestock.
- Smells and sounds from animals are not was Calgarians want in their city.
- The smell of poultry feces has no place in the city.
- There is no place for these animals in a city. They will inevitably often be in crowded conditions, be a nuisance to the neighbours and are disease vectors. We don't need any more Corona viruses.

- If a person wants to raise livestock, they should get a rural property.
- Exploitation of animals is not ethical and has a negative impact on the environment.
- Farm animals do not belong in urban environments .
- There's already too much noise in the city. Working machinery at all times of the day. More peaceful existence in the city is required.
- Not fair to neighbours i.e. buzzing bees and noisy chickens
- Farm animals belong on the farm
- it is a city, not a farm.
- I do not support livestock in the city.
- You'll have horses, cows and pigs in the city. They are not city animals but belong on farms.
- City backyards are not suitable to contain livestock. Too noisy and smelly
- Could encourage bob cats etc. Chickens. pigs can make a lot of noise. Food around could encourage mice. These are farm animals & should be in the country.
- A city back yard should not be able to have farm animals that stink and make noise.
- Agree to all but having support from neighbours, they might not be qualified to participate in this decision and the decision might be influenced based on their personal relationship with the neighbours.
- Needs to accompany some kind of noise or smell ordinance.
- Farm animals belong on a farm
- Noise, smell, predators. Bylaw infractions hard to impose when multiple livestock over any set limits.
- This is a city, not a farm.
- "By-law & SPCA are already stretched to the max, they do not need the extra work. Finding homes for neglected/abused domestic animals is already enough let alone having to find suitable homes for farm animals.
- If you want to own farm animals move to rural area."
- A city isn't a farm
- chickens perhaps but not larger animals such as sheep, cows, horses. a city lot is far too small for these.
- I don't believe private properties within the city is appropriate for hens
- Barking dogs are already a nightmare this would be out of control - you want to stop us feeding birds but you would consider adding livestock? what are you thinking
- Noise and odour would be inevitable
- Livestock should not be allowed within the city limits. Backyards are not farms.
- livestock is livestock, can't continue to make exceptions for a very few people. Someone could make the case they need a cow to support their dietary conditions...need to draw the line for the majority of the population vs the implied need of a very few people.
- Calgary is an urban center and not a location for acreage animal raising. Hens are enough, people do not need horses, goats etc. in their backyard.
- The city is no place for livestock. I love animals and would love to own my own little farm but livestock should not be in the city. They need open space and quietness.

- Noise and smell.
- Concern is neglect. We don't need more animals in the city.
- Do not support increase in allowance of urban livestock.
- There will be very few people who keep up with cleaning and maintaining the animals, and hens are very smelly.
- for noise reasons, shift workers will have more noise to contend with, early morning chicken noise. Livestock should be on the farm.
- You cannot guarantee they will not be used for food.
- It will get out of hand
- Hens/other "farmed" animals should not be allowed within city limits unless they are rescues and not being used for any type of food production. "Farmed" animals belong on farms, not in urban centres.
- Farm animals should not be in the city - move out to the country if you want this, dirty, disruptive, no.
- This could cause significant odor issues
- Almost no one knows what they're getting into when either wanting to have hens (or anything else), or potentially agreeing to have hens in the neighbour's back yard. It's a long term commitment, like any pet. Seems likely to be something that causes problems between neighbours, and not just immediate neighbours. Best to just not allow it all and avoid the possible and likely neighbour problems that bylaw and policy would end up having to deal with.
- This is ridiculous for an urban city center.
- There are no farms in the city livestock belongs on farms
- Not sure how this would work or be enforced.
- The potential for inhumane treatment/conditions of these animals is too great; the enforcement needed would be lacking or expensive; and the potential for problems between neighbours would be high.
- No farm animals in city, this out door market is what causes sickness
- I oppose allowing hens or other farmed animals in the city, unless they are rescued and not used for food.
- Too open to individual interpretation; not too sure re "suitable" means
- Due to the noise, lack of cleanliness, and potential of more wildlife incidents (e.g. bobcats, coyotes, etc). There are too many irresponsible pet owners that have dogs and cats, imagine the grief with hens.
- Farm animals do not belong in the city
- Chickens are super loud. Unless you live on an acreage, please don't have chickens in urban areas. Chickens cannot be tamed, yell at all hours, are territorial, and can attack. (Written as a person who has spent time with and been attacked by farm chickens). I support service animals (including ponies), but that's after rigorous training.
- I oppose allowing hens or any other farm animals unless they are rescues and only if they are not used for food.
- They are messy/potentially stinky if owners aren't responsible and many aren't.

- My only concern would be people mistreating or not understanding the full commitment of these animals before getting them and causing animal neglect or too many animal seizures for the city (humane society) to handle
- Livestock do not belong in city conditions.
- houses are too close together and yards are too small
- hens are noisy and messy, and attract predatory wildlife.
- Cleanliness, smell
- i dont need my neighbor support or permission for what i do in my house.. if i want a dog my neighbor has nothing to do.with it.
- If you want to keep livestock, move to the country. This should not be an option for city backyards I have lived in this situation in other jurisdictions, and it was a disaster for everyone except the keepers of livestock, including hens. Noise, smell and disease. NO Thank You
- I am not a fan of urban chickens, especially roosters.
- Too many people don't know what they are doing or how to care for hens. I suspect the result would be many unwanted or higher rates of abuse for these animals.
- Concern for the potential abuse and mistreatment especially if being used as meat or breeding not just eggs. Much like inability of the city to manage other animal abuse / lack of adequate care already.
- Livestock cannot have a sustainable and fulfilling lifestyle in the city. They are agricultural animals for a reason.
- Health issues and predators are drawn to the hens.
- I do not support any livestock, including chickens/urban hens. Goats need to be hired to take care of weeds in more areas of Calgary please! Imperial Oil/Esso is using them too at their plants.
- If people wish to own livestock, they should not live in an urban setting.
- Even with support from neighbour, the raising of livestock in the city will be problematic. Aside from monitoring these activities there will be considerable time and resources needed to police the activities and respond to problems,such as noise and smell.
- Livestock belongs on a farm that offers more space and humane housing.
- Smell, noise, general nuisance and reduced property values. If you want chickens move to a farm.
- Farm animals need proper room and care. A Calgary home/ backyard would not be enough. Exception would be fostering/rescuing an animal and nursing them back to health. Once healthy needs proper farm/sanctuary to live at.
- My neighbors have "urban pigeons" in a coop in their back yard. They are messy, loud, smell awful, and do not taste good. For the sake of the neighbors who can afford their own eggs, please do not move forward with this. Chickens are also loud, smelly, but taste good. That is the only difference.
- I do not want urban hens in my neighborhood due to noise and smell. They belong in a farm or rural area.
- I am concerned about the noise for neighbours and also this attracting wildlife.
- "Livestock come with diseases and smells
- This is a city not a farm / acreage"

- Too much risk.
- "Livestock specifically hens are loud and cannot be controlled under the residential noise bylaws. Livestock is also very odorous and owners most of the time will not put the effort required into cleaning them to keep the smell down.
- Even with the support from adjacent neighbours clause it has the potential to upset neighbour relationships if either a) a neighbour upsets the applicant through saying no or b) the neighbour as they state they are ok with it to not upset the balance even though they don't want the animals around."
- Livestock in urban living setting can draw in wild animals because the livestock such as hens are easy prey. I live in Inglewood and have issues with coyote / skunk and porcupine. Livestock such as chickens will draw these animals in and could create unsafe conditions for pets.
- Given all the viruses, do we risk an increase in transferable diseases by allowing the common individual to keep hens?
- Hens / livestock are a Farm animal and should not be in the city limits.
- City lots are not large enough to distance neighbours from the smell, noise and other impacts of having hens or other livestock within Calgary city limits.
- The effects of the livestock extend beyond the range of the owner's property. Such things as waste management, smell, and noise come to mind. Some livestock also present health hazards, temptation and hazards for other's pets and children, and a source of neighbour conflict.
- No, we have enough issues with domestic animals. We do not need to introduce the same issue with livestock (animal escaping, owner releasing animal when it is more work than expected, the smell, mess, and noise of hens....)
- Hens belong on a farm and/or in the country not next door to my city house. Our yards are too close together.
- A city is not a place for chickens.
- In addition, stray cats or outdoor cats could be a problem.
- "Farm type animals will bring in mice and rodents that will infest and feed on dropped and discarded grain/feed.
- I am not against hens but against irresponsible owners.... no doubt some one will bring a rooster and we know what noise they make."
- I would theoretically support it but NIMBY.
- Hens and roosters are too noisy and messy for urban settings. They should remain on farms away from neighbors. Allowing this would detract from the calm and peaceful nature of urban settings neighborhoods. Roosters (if permitted) can wake an entire neighborhood everyday at dawn! This would wreak havoc in neighborhoods and would create a new chaos/stress to deal with!
- If you want a farm- go buy one. LotS/yards are way too small to support this. Also chain link fence used in community design forces people to have no privacy or peace from those with animals.
- Animals belong on a farm or an acreage, not in a city. The smell & noise is too much.
- This bylaw can't be enforced effectively.
- Farm animals belong on the farm not in the city

- People would abuse this rule. There would be chaos, dogs attacking chickens, people not caring for their hens properly. Can the city keep up with it?
- Urban areas not farm areas, this is how sickness is spread in 3rd world countries
- There are already enough sources of noise and irritation within the city. Farm animals should stay on the farm.
- Permitting livestock in a city setting promotes nuisance noise, pests and diseases
- As we find out with Covid 19, Swine Flue, etc. that essentially living with non standard pets may have potential impacts that we may not be determinable.
- I would worry that people would take advantage of this at the expense of the animals
- At this time, I am unsure if I would support this amendment or not.
- Didn't we learn anything from Covid?
- It's a city not a farm.
- Don't want to hear a farm yard next door if I choose to live in the city
- No livestock of any kind should be allowed in the City . They inevitably brings with them , rodents and other cleanliness problems . Let the Farmers do the farming .
- Maybe you claim Pit bulls to be so bad but will allow farm animals? I grew up on a farm so really I probably wouldn't mind. But why are they allowed and not a dog? Regardless of breed.
- Livestock cannot be given the proper space in a city to thrive
- No place in the City for farm animals
- If people want livestock they should move to a farm. We have enough people that are not responsible for there dogs and cats does the city really have the resources to deal with chickens and goats as well?
- In my opinion, chickens (or pigeons) are dirty and I'd worry about the smell. There are plenty of local farmers growing them that we can support instead.
- Livestock do not belong in the city
- I don't think the city should allow hobby farming animals in city backyards.
- We don't need more animals in close proximity in the City. The City if Calgary does not do a good job now of enforcing bylaws.
- Needs no explanation. We live in a city close in some cases very close to our neighbors. There are enough uncontrolled variants in people's very small yards. Let's see we have trampolines, skateboard ramps, hot tubs (with no restricted times) , swimming pools again with no restrictions effectively imposed by the city (on paper perhaps that's all) what else oh yes rabbits, ducks already kept in a backyard near me and yes they quack very loudly And then let's not forget the numerous dogs which bark and are not controlled. SO NO NO NO no more animals in the city which you people will not hire enough by law officers to police . Stop getting us into more and more situations the city does not have the funds to properly police.
- Hens are not necessary nor is any other livestock
- Hens are noisy and smelly if not kept properly and people will neglect to keep them properly. People can not even keep there dogs quiet. How will they keep hens quiet!
- Livestock does not belong in a city.

- Farm animals belong on a farm not in the city
- suitable conditions is discretionary at the time it is determined, and has no future evaluation. Support from immediate neighbours requires "outing" neighbours who oppose such requests (similar to turning basement suites into rentals - I know of someone who had to file a police report, along with their neighbours, for the retribution they faced for opposing a house rental suite request).
- Livestock including chickens is a very bad idea! It will be impossible for Bylaw officers to handle all the complaints and very unlikely that the hens will have proper living conditions. The smell will be intolerable and how will Calgarians get rid of all the bedding waste? Eggs are cheap, let people get them from the store or local farmers' markets. Absolutely no need for people to have livestock within Calgary!!!!!!!
- There should be no requirement to have neighbours agree. It would be the same as requiring neighbour approval before you could get a dog or cat.
- I grew up on a farm with chickens. They are noisy, stink, and have no place in the city as pets.
- It may cause more conflict among neighbours
- Please maintain a formal differentiation between rural and urban property. Allowing farm animals, no matter what bylaws are in place adds to tensions among neighbors. Having dogs and cats already causes enough tension no matter how well looked after they are.
- Livestock should remain on rural properties.
- I grew up on a farm. Chickens need to be able to be free to forage.
- could negatively affect neighbors and community
- I have lived next to hens and pigeons. The noise is too much and hens cannot be controlled to obey time of day noise restrictions. This isn't a third world country our houses are not farms.
- Adding farm animals to an urban environment creates more waste and nuisance issues that may need to be addressed by taxpayers.
- We dont need more animals roaming the streets and bringing more predators into our communities.
- people can't even take care of their pets. I wouldn't trust that a neighbor would keep up the sanitation.
- owners do not follow the rules ever.
- Don't agree that farm animals should be within the city limits.
- city lots are too small for this. I have a single, detached home and can tell you what they are having for dinner and who's bedtime it is. Please, no.
- I oppose allowing hens or other farmed animals in the city, unless they are rescued and not used for food
- City kids do not grow up with same street farm smart and this can be dangerous. Also I don't want to hear animals around me except a dog that can be brought back in a house.
- Having chickens/hens in a backyard would both create noise that may disturb the enjoyments of others property.
- Hens are fine but what is "other livestock"? Clearly define what you mean when designing the survey. This is so unnecessary and inefficient.
- If you want to own farm animals, move to a farm.

- virus, disease, smell, noise
 - Not a plan that will succeed - houses are too close together, so noise will be a problem. Ensuring poultry is penned appropriately will need to be monitored. Perhaps a licence to own poultry as is required for cats and dogs.
 - "this is a CITY if people want these animals they can move to the COUNTRY and have them
- what are you thinking? slippery slope....."
 - Livestock has no place within city limits. This is a city. They are livestock. Ergo, they are meant for rural rearing. Oh, here's another idea though: piss off and leave people alone.
 - The number and type of animals can become out of control.
 - Farm animals do not belong in city
 - Farm animals belong on the farm not in the city
 - No, as it would be too difficult and costly to enforce the nuisance factor to neighbours. Chickens are noisy and smelly and have no place in an urban setting.
 - Most neighbourhoods have houses 8 feet or less apart. Noise, smells, and cleanliness issue are of concern as well as attracting predators into communities and yards (ie. coyotes, skunks).
 - Farm animals should be on a farm. With so many people advocating for animals' rights, what rights do we have to have such animals confined to such small spaces that being in a city would naturally apply. The size and space in a city would not qualify as enough for such animals.
 - Chicken can carry and spread diseases. Increase coyotes and lynks to come hunt.
 - We have enough issues with the animals we already allow in the city why add to the problem. Enforcement officers would be spread too thinly with additional issues to deal with.
 - Chickens and hens are not a CITY animal. They are for rural properties.
 - Hens are best in a farm environment and not in the City limits. If people want hens then they should get an acreage outside the City limits. Having hens would increase the population of foxes, wolf, etc in City limits.
 - Hens = farm = move to country.
 - Hens cause excessive noise and smell, which is already problematic in most neighborhoods.
 - I grew up on a farm and don't want to go jail for choking a loud cock.
 - Chicken make a mess, they stink & can be very territorial. If you're going to ban pit bulls from things, why wouldn't you treat this chicken issue the same way. If you want to treat pit bulls that way (which is fine) you can't just pick & choose the rules if the animals have the same behaviours. For the record chickens are WAY messier than dog
 - I truly don't believe that farm style animals have any place within the city. We have all kinds of access to eggs or milk through thousands of grocery stores. The people raising these animals will feel obliged to continue challenging borders and where will we draw the line? Pigs, lambs, goats, a cow...horse?

- How can the government limit this to chickens? What about other 'pets' that do not living in the home. Within city limits there should be enforceable guidelines to ensure that the animal is cared for as she do not live in that home.
- I don't believe urban settings are the right place for livestock
- We just don't think it is a good idea
- Passing the by law would leave neighbours vulnerable to noise and odour. After all, you cannot toilet train livestock, nor can you train them not to make their instinctive sounds/noises. The crows and magpies in Calgary cause enough disruption, interrupted sleep and annoyance.
- There is no need for urban hens!
- Other livestock attract flies.
- I only worry about the noise of livestock if they were next door to me.
- There would be no limit in what would constitute a service animal and it may be an animal(s) that could spread disease or should not be domesticated (exotic), or what conditions to keep the animal(s) people safe.
- there is already enough animal mistreatment and our winters are severe.
- I believe the feed attracts other pests like rodents which would likely spill into the surrounding area. I don't like the idea of disease/uncleanliness being introduced by fowl in the city.
- Most people live in the city for a reason. Livestock should be outside city limits or on acreage.
- The by-laws as they are now are adequate. If people want to raise hens and other forms of livestock, they can move outside city boundaries.
- We live in a city. Farm animals belong on a farm.
- Too much noise and odour.
- Won't they stink?
- There will be noise and smell issues and neighbors will not be happy.
- Really?! There is no need for hens to be in yards!! What is next, goats? Then cattle? We live in a city, where neighbours will be impacted by hens. If people want to raise livestock, they should move to the country and live on an acreage.
- If you want to be a farmer, go buy a farm
- THERE IS ENOUGH NOISE TO DEAL WITH IN A NEIGHBOURHOOD WITHOUT DEALING WITH THE NOISE THAT ANIMALS BEING KEPT OUTSIDE WOULD ADD TO
- If people wish to own livestock they can move to an acreage. Livestock require certain care and feeding and also their bodily waste needs to be managed, and I have no desire to live next door to anyone who doesn't clean up after their animals.
- I do not support allowing urban hens or other urban livestock.
- THE SMELL.
- Disease risk, for people and other birds
- Don't trust that animals would be keep in a way that wouldn't bother neighbors and create friction between neighbors. We already have a hostile/scary neighbor who thinks it's his right to have 4 large barking dogs.

- Too much potential for abuse. Neighbors should get veto.
- This will become a bylaw enforcement issue at great expense to the city. If people want livestock or hens please move to a farm.
- we do not need livestock in Calgary city limits - it just creates another point of disagreement between neighbours
- [removed]
- We live beside a wildlife corridor with bobcats and coyotes. I am concerned that urban hens would be an additional food source for the wildlife.
- It doesn't just affect adjacent neighborhoods. The noise and smell travels far. And allergies need to be considered.
- This is a city you want livestock move to the country i can thst bylaw being a nightmare
- I choose to live in a city to be AWAY from livestock.
- It's not really fun living next to chickens and hens unless you live on a farm where it's expected
- Hens and other livestock should only be allowed on property if rescued and NOT used for food.
- The city is not a farm
- If I wanted to be surrounded by livestock, I wouldn't live in the city. Current pets are already enough of a nuisance with fouling private property, noise and attacks. This would only worsen the situation.
- I support the amendment, but not the part of support from adjacent neighbours. If all criteria that are put in place so that the livestock is not a nuisance to the neighbours I don't think you need to get neighbour support. I can see neighbours withholding support for non-legitimate reasons.
- Nuisance -noise and smell
- Farm animals should be among other farm animals on a farm
- Go live on a farm or acreage if you want to keep animals. NOT IN MY BACKYARD>
- Some people will not abide by the rules and make the hens et al a nightmare to live beside
- No
- We do not need another city website, permit process, inspectors, and pages of bylaws to manage backyard chickens.
- Noise
- I would only support livestock in the city if there is a minimum distance of 100m from all neighbours dwellings.
- Don't want the noise that is associated with any animals!
- Urban does not mean "farm". If society becomes poor or communist, then yes!
- They stink. And people do not take care of them
- Urban properties are too small and close together for neighbours to have livestock. We do not have the resources to properly monitor the care and management of such animals. Odours and noises would be too disruptive in urban neighbourhoods.
- More noise, bacteria, odors and attraction of predators. While pet owners claim they are responsible or will be, they often let things slide, which penalizes others on adjacent properties.

- We're living in a pandemic world and the suggestion of bringing birds and potential disease into the city is an outrageous idea.
- I am concerned about smell, noise, and unsightly structures/pens.
- Criteria is too subjective and neighbours objections may not be suitably considered.
- it would be impossible to enforce. Owners don't care what the neighbors want.
- Livestock do not belong in the city
- There is no room for livestock of any kind in an urban setting.
- Chickens in the city?? Wake up please!!
- People "glamorize" having livestock, but often underestimate what is involved in their care. Animals that are not cared for properly risk passing disease to other animals or humans. In addition, they can cause noise or odor that disrupt the ability of their neighbors to peacefully enjoy their property. Livestock belong on a farm or acreage, not within the city.
- Hens do not belong in the city.
- Noise and smell issues.
- Absolutely positively not in favour of this. Animals belong on farms. Neighbours may agree that someone may have chickens. However, when those families later move out of the area, the new owners of the house will not be offered to have a say as to whether the neighbours farm animals, since they are already living there.
- I would be concerned about noise.
- chickens belong on a farm
- It is too complicated and there is the risk of a negative impact on the neighbours living beside people with livestock, such as smell and noise.
- Community benefit is too nebulous and a bureaucratic honey pot...Exceptions is a ridiculous, nebulous, bureaucratic money maker again. More civil servants for no taxpayer gain.
- Noise and door bylaws
- They attract predators to residential areas. Crows are a source of noise pollution.
- do not believe that livestock belong in urban environments
- The city cannot afford to take on more by law enforcement. The cost outweighs the very limited individual benefit.
- Want to live on a farm go there.
- it would increase the number of bobcats and coyotes in the city
- Animals like livestock require more space than what is available in Calgary. Smaller livestock is justifiable to keep in the city as they do not require a lot of space however larger livestock (if that is what the statement is referring to in terms of "other livestock") should reside on a larger plot of land outside the city for the benefit of their wellbeing.
- On acreages or other large properties but not sure any houses in city meet this criteria.
- No livestock within city limits
- Urban hens? Really? If you want to begin a farm, go live on a farm. I feel this would be a costly slippery slope to begin allowing "urban livestock" to live in Calgary.

- You are opening up the floodgates to other species, problems that arise from that and an increased burden for bylaw to address complaints. For bylaw to address complaints will put additional burden on tax payers to pay for these enforcement resources through increased fines and penalties to pay for bylaw existence. If a small segment of Calgary population want additional country in their back yard then move to the country... I do not want to head butt with my neighbours over noise, smell that naturally occur with the activities to maintain such.
- This is a make-work project. No livestock or hens should be allowed in the city. If a person wants them they should move to a rural area.
- How be we let the hens and what ever else you rocket scientists are considering stay in the country where they belong.. Even stupider question!!!
- There is enough city noise as it is dint need chickens or any other noisy animal or bad smells. We all know and have neighbours who don't clean up after dogs and let their cats go defecate in other people's property. Rude
- Having animals that must remain outside at all times will bring predators to the area, and increase the risk to all pets in yards and open spaces. Without means to eliminate the threat of a predator, owners of livestock will be putting their animals and everyone else at risk.
- I believe that people will abuse this new law & not follow the instructions. It will cause more issues, than creating a positive impact in the city.
- Livestock, and the associated smells that come with raising them, have no place in a dense urban environment.
- Hens by their nature can carry bad diaseases
- Smell and noise
- Unless there is an education requirement for applicants and a veto vote for immediate neighbours this will cost the city more to enforce than any benefit provided.
- Chickens are noisy and smell..do not belong in an urban setting.
- The city is not a farm.
- Would you want to live next door to the smell, noise and barnyard look of their enclosure? Would you want to sit on your next listening to the various noises created by barnyard critters? Would you want your property values negatively affected over chickens? If people want chickens they need to move to the country or to a smaller rural community. The city shouldn't be implementing or changing bylaws to satisfy the minority...those few people who want chickens.
- Chickens are not city pets.....they are farm animals.
- I do not support every/all species of livestock permitted in Calgary. The question does not include a short list of the animals being considered under the term "livestock". I may require more detail to make an informed choice.
- Hens are a relatively low impact livestock animal. I can't think of another example that is similar impact, and thus given the conditions of support from neighbors etc, I can't imagine this being anything other than a series of drawn out rejections and arguments, creating bad blood between neighbors and wasting city time, for what will ultimately be a very, very small number of approvals. I think time and effort can be spent better elsewhere.

- I think 'backyard' chickens would become an issue with 'trends' supporting this. This can become a 'puppy mill' situation, but with chickens/hens.
- If you want chickens move to a farm
- the early morning noise could and would most likely become an issue
- Benefits don't justify hazards like diseases , noise, etc
- Poultry are not pets. Backyards are not farms.
- I don't understand what would be the advantages for either the livestock or the community.
- Noisy
- u don't need other livestock in the city that may get neglected
- I don't feel they belong in the city and can be a nuisance for close neighbours. I also question whether they can properly be provided for in the size of most city lots.
- Poultry stink, even a limited number. If several neighbours decide to raise them, the quality of our outdoor living will be greatly harmed.
- I cannot see the benefit for both the animal and the people.
- I think it open up a can of worms and will lead to many issues with animal welfare and complaints within the community
- Noise, smell, those animals are not suited for city dwelling
- Livestock doesn't belong in city
- I am concern about people that would not take care of these creatures. Cold/ sanitation as well as some people doing cock fights.
- Chicken etc do not belong in cities. We have neighbors who have many pigeons and they poop on the cars, fences and decks around the neighborhood....a messy, unnecessary nuisance.
- I am quite allergic to birds and bird feces. Having urban hens next door would prevent me from being able to enjoy my own back/front yard and potentially make it a health risk getting from my house to my car.
- livestock do not belong in urban areas
- Hens would be fine but I have trouble imagining the effective keeping of larger livestock in Calgary suburbs
- "This bylaw allowing hens/chickens woud be a gateway, as you propose, for all other kinds of farm (or non-domesticated) animals to be housed in people's yards. It's just opening controversy with noises, odors, and creating problems between neighbors. The city is no place for any livestock. Please keep livestock on acreages and farms.
- You say one criteria would be 'support from adjacent neighbours' but what happens when new people move in after a farmyard has been set up? What if adjacent neighbours are a condo complex or a retirement home? And noises and odors from livestock can travel a long ways in a neighborhood so asking for permission from just 'adjacent' neighbors does not adequately cover the people affected by this. I think it is just inviting a ton of problems."
- I would be concerned about diseases spreading, much like bird flu and mad cow disease.
- In rurual areas this would be fine, but not in inner city communities where neighbours are close together.

- It would require too much surveillance and inspection if this amendment were to go ahead. This would be costly to enforce and funds could be better used in other areas.
- Hens have no place in the city. They are messy and noisy and will be disturbing to neighbours. I don't want them next door and I doubt nobody does except the person who wants them so why should the rest of us suffer because a few people want them.
- Let's maintain sanity within the city and respect our neighbors. Smell and some early morning noise that comes with this kind of animal is a concern.
- Noise and smell not needed in the city.
- People will not keep feces swept up like they do with dogs and cats. It will be disgusting, especially in NE Calgary. NE has many families living in one house and they will reinterpret the maximum as a minimum. They will abuse the "case by case basis" by overwhelming the one bylaw officer. They will also be selling chicken in unsanitary conditions. NE will be a chicken slaughterhouse on a scale that bylaw officers have never seen!
- Noise, plain and simple. Noise.
- Hens are too noisy and disease prone.
- Viruses such as Covid emerge from close human/animal (often bird) contact. We need less human/livestock interaction, not more.
- Raising and owning livestock requires experience and commitment. It is not a hobby.
- I've been attacked by a chicken as a child -- it was not pleasant.
- It's difficult to regulate and meet the requirements for many types of non-traditional species that haven't been traditionally "domesticated"
- Hens can be stinky!
- An urban setting is no place for "farm animals" and if allowed, there will be abuse. People living within the boundaries of a city like Calgary should not have to be subjected to living next door to someone who thinks it a good idea to own a chicken/rooster or two, a goat or two, cattle and horses. I cannot believe that such a program is even being contemplated but, then again, this is Calgary's council at work!
- I don't think livestock should be permitted in the city.
- This is a city, not a farm.
- They belong on a farm. It would attract wildlife
- If people wish to own chickens or any other livestock they should live on an acreage.
- No one needs to own livestock within the City
- Too much chance for bird flu.
- Livestock belongs on farms and they are dirty and they smell.
- Only domestic animals belong in urban environments
- City is no place for livestock
- Hens don't need to be in the city limits. If people want them, they should move to a farm.
- High risk of noise disturbance and create living condition and neighborhood appearance to be less desirable. Thus affecting property value

- They stink.
- The noise of hens is unbearable. They are a nuisance.
- Too hard to enforce
- We have trouble limiting the number of domestic animals; tackle that before opening it up to other animals.
- Do not support having chickens/hens and other livestock in city limits
- Chicken coups if not cleaned are very smelly. Should be kept on farms and not in the city!!
- No reason to change. Smell & noise for neighbours.
- if not taken care of properly, urban animals will start going into neighbours yards to forage and become a nuisance
- Noise, smell, they attract stray cats
- Maybe Chickens. No roosters. It's bad enough listening to the neighborhood dogs barking all day & all night long. Other livestock? Not sure about smell. Also bad enough smelling the neighbors cigarette smoke and having to keep the windows closed all summer long.
- Most of these would not be domesticated. Livestock should be on a farm.
- Calgary is not a farm. I don't want some mental case raising their emotional support animal as a neighbour. Too many sick folks already in this city. If you want to raise a pig or cow or cheetah because it helps you, move to a farm or zoo.
- because of hygiene issue
- The city is no place for livestock of any kind due to excess smells, noise, attractants to rodents
- My primary concern is the cleanliness of hens. There are a variety of diseases that can be spread by contact with hen droppings.
- Everyone knows the smell of livestock, why would we want that in an urban environment.
- If I want to live near farm animals I would live on a farm.
- Livestock don't belong in city dwellings
- Livestock creates odors and manure which attracts vermin and other pests. It is not healthy to allow livestock in crowded cities.
- If I wanted to live beside chickens I would move to a farm.
- This is a city, not a barnyard. If you want to raise farm animals go live on a [removed] farm.
- There are places close to Calgary where owning livestock is allowed. I feel like this amendment would be abused.
- I think this will bring more wild life in to the city
- Encourage wild life into areas where there could be conflict with humans/pets.
- Chicken feces is too smelly for an urban environment. I would need to be convinced that a neighbour could have a chicken next door without affecting our quiet enjoyment or property value.
- I don't think the city will be able to keep up with enforcing that all requirements are met.
- I don't personally see the benefit of having livestock in urban areas, especially as pets. Would it attract more predators to that area?

- Livestock requires more space than city living provides Feces would be a problem and it's not fair to the animals
- Keeping livestock in the city leads to abuse and disease. Too many examples of violations and taking poultry indoors during inclement weather. Please don't set the stage for creeping inclusion. Next it is goats, then sheep then pigs then miniature horses. Will there be rule enforcement for lot size, available space in the yard, crowded neighbourhoods.
- I feel he s are a farm animal and should be raised on a farm. I feel this could potentially get out of hand.
- The additional noise and smells associated with this in Calgary communities would bring increased neighbour conflict which could lead to violence. Some owners would also build very ugly home made structures in their yards being eye sores and possible fire hazards.
- Livestock should remain on farms or approved spaces not next door.
- This is a city, not a farm. Move out of the city if you want livestock.
- "I'm a farm gal, not every single person in the city understands what it takes to keep a farm animal.
- I studied infection control, avian flu is a concern with chickens in the city. Not a fan of this from an epidemiological perspective. The issue is the lack of genetic variation of the chickens that are available; if one chicken get avian flu, then every chicken will as well within a certain distance if it's virulant. Avian flu is often zoonotic.
- Not roosters, they really do crow at the crack of dawn every.single.day.
- We allow goats to eat weeds, why not allow lawn service companies goat trimming lawn services?"
- Criteria listed above are much to vague and give too much discretionary power to both neighbours and by-law officers.
- I do not support homing livestock within the City of Calgary
- City not congruent for hens
- Property values would decline greatly
- Psychologists/Psychiatrists is/are the most dangerous profession/people and do not/can not understand/see when people are using lies to achieve self centered goals.
- Again you guys are being to extra and extreme
- I don't agree with livestock in an urban environment.
- Some would take advantage of this and turn urban spaces into farms.
- No livestock should be permitted within the city. They belong on large areas of land
- No to pigeons they too easily can escape and become a feral issue in the community taxing resources and tax $$$$
- No urban livestock
- No.
- No livestock in city.
- This is a city not a barnyard.....these sort of things simply attract vermin and stink. No, no, no, not ever...no
- Sure invite more predators into our yards ... obtuse.

- The noise from these animals, smell from droppings etc, are an unfair imposition on neighbors living across the fence 10 feet away. If you want a farm animal, move to an out-of-city farm. Neighbors giving permission is not relevant; people move. Property values DROP where this is allowed.
- It seems that a bad idea never goes away, it just keeps coming up until people give up and relent. Chickens are noisy and dirty. They belong on a farm, as do other livestock.
- Noise, smell
- Allowing farm animals into an urban space would set a unfair precedent for neighborhood disturbances
- People will take advantage of it. Too much time and cost involved for complaint process to have animal removed.
- Don't want to be awoken by chickens
- Noise and sanitation.
- No hens. This is a city not rural Alberta.
- My Nona (grandmother) owned Hens. They are loud, dirty, and smelly. Hens can carry parasites which could be transferred to house pets. Would make neighborhoods noisy and smelly, especially in high density neighborhoods.
- Live in the country if this is what you want. Publicize this.
- Chickens and other livestock require large areas and the health risks to neighbours, if proper ventilation and cleaning aren't done as well as terrible smell is a problem.
- NEVER
- Chickens would freeze outside in Calgary climate with many not providing adequate conditions for them
- I don't want to live next door to a "farm".
- Noise concern
- Evaluation of all these conditions seems an unnecessary burden on the city for minimal benefit.
- The noise, smell, animals not properly cared for and neighbour complaints would be far greater than any benefit of allowing the above.
- I think many forms of livestock need more space than that supplied in an urban environment. As for chickens, they can. E noisy and disruptive
- I think that it is too cold in Calgary in the winter for a Calgarian to be able to support livestock on their property in a safe manner. A chicken coop shed should be considered part of property with a mandatory inspection(s). I think this goes beyond our city capacity or what I feel comfortable paying in taxes. Eggs are plentiful at supermarkets.
- Should support their own livestock
- We have country farms for livestock. if they feel strongly enough that they want livestock on city property or in their neighborhood, they need to explore rural living.
- My concern would be for the neighbouring community. Noise, smell etc. Also it could affect an individual's home value, both the livestock owner's and neighbouring homes.
- There are a lot of other things to worry/discuss about besides introducing livestock in the city.

- This just seems like a bad idea. If a neighbour moves out or it is a rental property The new owner or tenant would have to power to have the chickens removed.
- I would be pissed if my neighbor had a coop of hens next door to me, noise and smell. Its bad enough she feeds the damn birds and I have to cleanup up bird poop ALL THE TIME
- We do not have control over existing problems with dogs (being a nuisance or involved in an incident) or cats (roaming freely, not being spayed/neutered) and to add yet another potential for problems (smelling up neighbourhoods, animals living in sordid conditions, creating problems between problems) should not be considered
- Where does this end? First hens and then other farm animals. This is a city. If people want these animals on their property, they should move out of the city.
- A lot of "livestock" Especially birds are noisy, messy and I don't believe many urban dwellers understand their needs.
- This is city Living not a farm....
- This doesn't seem like a problem that needs to be solved
- Thry are noisy and smelly
- Since when is it ok to have hens and live stock in a city by doing this the wildlife is now going to more and more in the city this will not be good
- There's farms for that...
- Starts with hens and next we will have cattle in peoples backyard
- Livestock should not be premitted in the City with the exception of any existing agricultural zoned land.
- When will this end. I want a therapy giraffe
- Don't think these animals belong in small city yards
- Not sure what sort of livestock you are talking about. Horses? Goats? Pigs?
- Why have more animals roaming the city when it's not their natural environment
- "I lived next to someone who had peacocks. Never again!!
- Noise, smell, attraction of coyotes, are all issues."
- I love the idea of hens but I think if all adjacent neighbours have to approve there will be many people who don't like the idea and will be able to veto the hens before it is even tried. I think there should be an automatic approval with additional education and enforcement actions taken if problems with neighbours are identified.
- It's a city not a farm leave the farm animals at the farm
- Chicken stink and make too much noise
- I think it could lead to animal husbandry and/or public health concerns.
- Livestock does not belong in the city.
- We don't need livestock in the city.
- I don't live on a farm, if I wanted to live next to chickens, etc, I would have moved to the country.
- There's no need for livestock (other than a few small creatures like chickens and bees) in the city. If people want them, they can move out to the country.

- I feel like allowing livestock would create a large potential for noise, smell and other disturbances.
- Birds are gross, noisy and cause a mess that you know would end up effecting the neighborhood
- ...
- I feel they are farm animals
- I'm worried they would be loud/smelly? If they were intrusive, it may be okay.
- Live stock does not belong in a city setting
- Livestock should not be confined to urban environments
- Hens are incredibly messy and wouldn't want to deal with that if my neighbour had one. It's bad enough that they don't pick up their dog poop.
- Absolutely not. This is a city with a lot of people. If you want a farm move to the country
- No chickens, roosters are very aggressive and very noisy. As a person who has been on many farms, keep chickens on the farm!!!! They are extremely dirty, carry disease and can be very disruptive at early hours.... highly recommend you avoid these things.. keep them on the dinner plate.
- I think if the City of Calgary is having issues with Cats and Dogs, permitting livestock would compound the City of Calgary's present issues.
- Chickens are very dirty animals and can spread disease. they are livestock and should be left on the farm (I know, I grew up around them). Exception being a max of 2 or 3 chickens per household and being penned up!
- Livestock are noisy and also can be have odours
- Hens and other livestock will only attract wild animals. Bobcats, coyotes, raccoons, etc
- I would not want to live beside chickens in an urban environment. They tend to be loud and messy, from my experience of chickens that rural relatives have owned
- With how close homes are I think it could be a nuisance to neighbors.
- The city is not a farmyard, and I can see difficulties escalating between neighbours.
- I'm unsure about this because of the noise - will there be males on site? If so, will there be early morning calls? This would be terrible! However, if not, and the owner keeps the hens away from neighbours windows and keeps the area clean, then this is a possibility. I think there has to be enough space in the backyard so that neighbours aren't affected (ie tiny lots in high density areas may not be feasible).
- I am reluctant to want to see Farm type animals in an urban setting. i don't have confidence in the cleanliness of neighbours.
- Noisy hens are right up there with constantly barking dogs. Irritating. What does support from neighbors mean?
- Turn Calgary into a farm city? What happens when the animals get attached or bums decided they want food?
- Animals such as this increase diseases in the urban community.
- If you want animals, move to the country!!! Some people don't like/want/fear or are allergic. Animals should not be in city.

- Not interested in my neighbours killing for their food in their backyard
- Livestock is for farms, not a city. We pay high enough taxes as it is, we should not have to suffer with the smell and sound of livestock
- I don't see why my quiet animals don't need to be approved by my neighbours, but they can own the yappiest dog and I have to deal no matter what
- Mice, noise, stink, house values.
- Most residential properties do not have the space or equipment/knowledge to support non domestic animals
- Livestock in close quarters with residential properties would likely lead to unnecessary noise, smell, and disease.
- Rooster are too [removed] noisy early in the morning and every morning
- Conflict with coyotes and other urban wildlife attracted to the livestock. Conflict with neighbours. Noise and odours.
- the criteria for "other livestock" is too broad and includes too many animals that might not be suited for urban areas.
- Where would this end!?...cows...pigs!!!
- I am against allowing "farm" animals to live in the city. Only domestic animals should be allowed.
- Anticipated problems would include smell, noise, disposal of manure, disposal of animal remains, attraction of rodents and therefore predators.
- Too congested and noisy already in the city.
- If there are already issues with the animals allowed on private property, why open the door to more issues. If you want farm animals, purchase a lot large enough to provide a good home for them.
- I'm on the fence on this one. While for one we are providing a good place for the hens I'm not sure if some people would want livestock near the neighborhood they live in. As there are such factors as noise, smell and waste at play.
- Animals, such as hens, should have the room to freely roam.
- I do not think hens or other livestock should be allowed in Calgary.
- We are not farms, if you want a farm move out of city limits
- Not interested in introducing hens into the neighborhood
- I'm curious as to why this question emphasizes that the 'needs of the hens' are balanced with the 'needs of humans'. What is the nature of this proposed 'balance'. What is the definition of 'community benefit/positive impact', who gets to decide? Who resolves conflict if adjacent neighbours don't agree? What happens when a new neighbour comes into the environment, do they effectively lose all say? What is the purpose of putting in place a set of rules, but then including a back door for exceptions. What mediation process would be made available if a neighbour disagrees with the judgment of the Bylaw Officer. To my knowledge they aren't an elected official, what oversights would be in place to ensure that these judgments are fair?
- Unless highly regulated and inspected, I don't trust urban dwellers to properly care for livestock that are not pets. I fear that animals would be neglected and mistreated and not have appropriate shelter especially in winter. Once people realize how much work, expense and responsibility is involved the animals will pay the price. Bad idea.

- They're filthy, noisy, and in no way, shape, or form do I believe you'll enforce any rules around them. You'll cave to political correctness.
- Urban locations are not suitable for all animals.
- Livestock feces, noise and avian flus are not compatible with the small footprint of the average house lot in Calgary. Wildlife entering Calgary is already an issue, additional livestock will make this worse. Furthermore, adjoining lots would suffer all the disadvantages of livestock with no benefit. I have experience with a small scale poultry farming operation and know how bad domestic poultry can smell. Farms keep the chicken operation well away from the household footprint, which cannot be done in a city.
- keep livestock on farms
- You are asking about feeding wildlife in backyards, but want people to be OK with livestock, which could potentially attract wildlife. Most people have no idea what it takes to properly manage livestock, and a bylaw will only be ignored.
- we have a issue with coyotes taking stray cats and small dogs what is going to happen when a coyote gets into a back yard to take the chickens and a child might be in the backyard at the time also the noise level of chickens can be irritating and also the germs that chicken feces bring .
- livestock belongs on farms
- Noise & smell not welcome
- I don't have a problem with chickens because they are small and food producing. However, I have no interest in goats, sheep or pigs in my neighborhood. People already get away with a lot designating an animal as "emotional support". Get a dog or a cat not a farm animal!
- Health concerns regarding cross contamination with poultry related disease and illnesses. And general lack of trust in overall regulatory measures for urban hen ownership to satisfy the hen owners and neighbors.
- Livestock belong on livestock operations or in rural areas. Smell, noise, limited space for animal movement, in limited city lot sizes makes it impossible for this not to impact neighbors.
- I do not think hens belong in the city they are a farm animal
- I think it would require too much work/effort to enforce suitable and clean living conditions and I also think people would take advantage of this and it would become a nuisance to neighbours.
- We have rabbits all over the city that people have let go and are pests , chicken would end up the same.
- There are too many variables which tend to cause abuse of the process and exceptions to be "at the discretion of the Chief Bylaw Enforcement Officer" is too broad.
- We are not living on a farm. Hens can be kept outside of hearing distance.
- I do not support livestock in the city.
- I grew up on a farm and that is where farm animals belong. I think urban livestock is a ridiculous idea. People can go live on an acreage or farm if that's what they want. If this is passed, would sellers need to disclose this in the sale of their home? I certainly don't want to buy a home and find out there is a hen house or other livestock or pigeons next door!

- Even if you support your neighbour today having chickens, what happens if it becomes problematic and change your mind. What happens if you want to sell your house and is a deterrent to buying if your neighbour has a chicken farm. What if you buy/rent a house and the previous owners/renters supported it as they were selling the house but the chickens arrived after you took possession of the house. How will disease/illness spread by chickens be managed and who assumes the cost. (A friend owns chickens and it is a problem)
- The problem is that these livestock cause noise for neighbours.
- Inappropriate for such animals to be kept in urban settings. "Adjacent" neighbours aren't the only ones impacted - impact is wider. Damages property values - should not be permitted.
- city houses are too close together. If your neighbour has livestock it will affect your enjoyment of your backyard
- Unnecessary cost to city to control an unnecessary want of a few people
- Having backyard chickens that would likely not be regulated well, is a risk for disease transmission to the public food chain. If this law were to be amended, strict bio security protocols would need to be enforced
- I would prefer my neighbours do not get a say in what I do on my private property.
- To noisy
- Hens are messy, smelly & noisy, personally I wouldn't want to live next door to them.
- I think it would be very difficult to monitor/enforce any infractions including the animals welfare.
- People can't clean up after their dogs in their own yards never mind public lands, do you honestly thing we need the stench of farm animals when we all live in close proximity to one another as well as the health issues.
- Pigs, sheep, cows are not suitable for a city.
- Livestock belong in a rural setting.
- "Who will monitor this? Who will check in to see if animals are being treated well? How often will these farm animals be checked in on? What if a neighborhood moves and the next tenant does not want a chicken coop next door? Will you grandfather the coop in? If so, pretty soon you will have no control over this and all coop will be allowed.
- I am not in favour of livestock in the city!"
- Severe lack of knowledge for proper care, lack of veterinary services for fowl, high risk of abandonment, encourages backyard breeding for sales, and inhumane slaughter of roosters, spread of disease and parasites.
- Chickens would experience stress living in an urban environment and it would be inhumane. We cannot rely on lay-people to understand how to care for livestock and recognize signs of stress.
- Not many animals sre suitable as city animals. It should mit be encouraged
- I think it is going to cause a lot of problems, neighbor fights, stench, noise, etc. More than cats and dogs that overall stay inside.
- Regardless of promises made, they will not be kept and animals will suffer from neglect.

- Livestock that brings bad smells or noise with them and scare off or kill wildlife shouldn't be allowed under this amendment.
- Too much mess noise and quite frankly do not want to witness the murder of any animals
- Hens don't belong in a city unless people have an acreage.
- Do you want to be woken up at the crack of dawn every morning?
- Noise and odors resulting from livestock would interfere with my ability to enjoy my own living accommodations. I would live out in the country if I wanted that experience.
- Go buy a farm! What a stink they create!
- Livestock doesn't belong in the city - they need space.
- Livestock should be kept where there is enough space for them to roam, which I do not think will be possible in the City.
- This could become an issue for neighbours, especially if hens are pre-existing during move in.
- Chickens are loud, messy, and smelly. I do not want them kept in the city especially in the new neighbourhoods where lot sizes are very narrow
- I do not support allowing livestock in the City. There are too many complications that go along with it, and I believe it will be a drag on resources and ultimately be a monetary and well-being net cost to taxpayers and citizens.
- If the City cannot control the noise of dogs in a suitable manner I do not need other farm animals around.
- We are "city" people...if people want animals, move to the country. Chickens may be cute but they smell and carry bacteria dangerous to people.
- Calgary is a major urban center with a dense population. Livestock of any kind is inappropriate.
- "There are enough squawking magpies in Calgary - we don't need chickens too.
- If you want a chicken/pig/cow then live outside the city. If you want to live within the city then don't have a cow! "
- Livestock animals including hens are NOT PETS. You want farm animals, go live on a farm.
- I do not want to live beside a farm, or I would leave Calgary.
- If they are proven to be a support animal and are a house pet then I would agree ..but people that wanna keep a horse or chicken in yard ...no
- We live in a great neighborhood, but already have enough issues with the legalization of pot and now the ensuing and ongoing smell of people smoking. I would prefer not to add hens/chickens or other animals to this mix.
- Have seen firsthand the effects of loosening bylaws regarding other types of 'livestock' in an urban setting: noise, smell, increased fecal material, to name but a few!!!
- Chickens are noisy and smelly
- Dogs and cars are bad enough to deal with, we don't need the noise of other animals all day long.
- If not maintained properly the nuisance to neighboring properties is huge. In my area, pigeon pens often stink. Neighbors helpless.
- I would not want Chickens living next door to me.

- I wouldn't want the loud noises - one of our neighbours down the street had a rooster that constantly crowed; very noisy.
- Noise issues.
- Hens should only be living in large open farms
- Animal agriculture in any sense relies on abusing the life of another being. It is immoral.
- I used to have to clean the chicken coop on our farm. Chickens are noisy and smelly. Even if you enforce all items listed for pigeons, how much time, resources and additional money would it take the city?
- Are people crazy? The amount of dogs per capita in the city is more than a 1/4 of the population not to mention the amount of cats, all the other animals the city is unaware of plus hidden so called "exotic animals". Why is there a need to overrun the city with animals when Calgary is already infested by animal faeces. Taking a walk is no longer a pleasure, disgusting faeces are on our private lawns after spending hundreds/thousands of dollars because we civic pride, sidewalks, grocery stores, malls, liquor stores, bus stops, stop lights etc brimming with animal faeces. Yet people walk around as if nothing this is a huge health hazard. Sea gulls and crows already are too much will this become the "stinking city"? Look at the city already nobody wants to clean up, garbage bins are all over etc. What are you doing at city hall?
- These animals do not belong in the city where they have limited space. Also, the people don't properly care for their current pets, so would not do it for other animals. Also, cleanliness and odour control in the neighbourhood would be a problem.
- They are loud. People will complain
- What happens to the animal in the midst of bylaw infractions.
- Don't feel hens need to be in urban areas.
- Neighbours change over time. Creates unpleasantness between neighbours. Noisy. Smelly.
- Livestock belongs in farms, not in cities. There will potentially be noise, smell and disease. Thanks but no thanks
- "NO. Firstly, the discriminatory ban against roosters is a death sentence for them. For every hen, a rooster is hatched. Where do you think they go? Hatcheries simply kill them as babies or people who hatch eggs at home will dump them in a park somewhere. We just rescued a baby rooster last month from this situations. Are you willing to allocate funds to animal control to address this situation? I assume not. Rooster rescues are already bursting at the seams and these unnecessary bans only add to the tragedy.
- There is no reason to ban roosters if hens are going to be permitted. They are not that loud and hens can make just as much noise. We had a rooster in our house recovering from a health scare. He'd crow in the next room every morning and we slept right through it.
- Aggression is also a myth. Roosters can easily be trained. My four boys are teddy bears! They love to be cuddled and are full of personality. We had to say goodbye to one of our hens after a long health battle. Roo sensed I was sad and spent the whole evening at my side. He's so wonderful! I cannot imagine why anyone should think he not be welcome when hens are. It's ridiculous!

- Regardless, cities are NO place for chickens. Chickens are not egg machines. They are individuals who deserve no less consideration than any other animal family member. We have rescued hens from several godawful backyard coops whose level of neglect was so severe, many hens did not survive it. They often aren't given nearly enough space, their spaces are filthy, medical care is rarely acquired, there's little to no protection from predators, and hens are treated as disposable. There are so many reasons why this is the worst most shite godawful proposal that one can only wonder why anyone would propose it.
- If you want to have chickens, consider moving to the country. Leave it at that."
- My neighbour currently feeds any and all wildlife and has had as many as 4 large dogs in their home, I can only imagine the grief all their neighbours would suffer with this proposal. Property size in Calgary does not allow for livestock to not affect all those in the area. This survey mentions odour management, enough said.
- Most yards within city limits do not provide adequate environments for animals well being.
- Most urban yards/land are not big enough to support a suitable lifestyle for hens. They belong on farms with lots of space for them to roam and large coops.
- NO LIVESTOCK IN CALGARY, EVER EXCEPG PETTING ZOOS
- Why do you need chickens in a city?
- Perhaps in certain neighbourhoods this may be feasible. More details would be required.
- Keep farm animals OUT OF OUR CITY.
- With cuts to this department, there won't be enough infrastructure in place to check on the care of livestock in the city.
- Neighbours would have to contend with noise and odours from these yards. It would take quite an effort to get bylaw to agree with the complaint. Ever try to get a barking dog complaint taken care of? The puppy would die of old age .
- While i would support this amendment if it required the approval of neighbors, I could see this being abused.
- If you want livestock move to the country.
- Having much experience on farms and around hens they are not the type of "animal" that belongs in a small residential yard and it's not fair to neighbours to have to live with the noise and smell that accompanies them. Leave hens on farms and larger rural properties where there is the proper space for them!
- We already have enough issues with certain owners not being responsible stewards of their properties regarding property maintenance and other community standards issues. I don't support this idea for residential neighbourhoods. FYI - we have urban coyotes, bobcats & hawks already. They would probably love to add hens to their prey! This is not a "need" in our current economy.

Taxpayers should not have to fund this!!! People can move to the country if they want to have a farm.

- "The potential for unpleasantness for neighbours is considerable. While many people are thoughtful, many are not. This would be asking for - trouble."
- Hens and livestock in the city? Noises? Smells? Nowhere near by city lot please.
- Urban areas are built too small and too close together for this type of thing. It will have a negative impact on surrounding neighbors.
- I do not want my neighbours to have hens in their backyard. I'm not interested in any of the smell or noise these hens could produce. I'm not interested in the increase in other animal traffic that having hens would create. I don't need more skunks, squirrels or coyotes coming around during the day or night trying to get at the hens or at the hens food.
- I'd be afraid of noise and smell. Many people would likely be able to manage livestock responsibly, but many would not.
- We already have way too many dogs and cats in houses and parks. Pet owners are not cleaning up after their pets and we are seeing a lot more pet droppings and bad odours on public areas or backyards. More animals will only exacerbate this nuisance.
- Many newer properties have very small yards. Chickens are noisy, can be smelly if not properly cared for and cleaned out. I don't think many neighbours would like this. They would attract coyotes and other predators to an urban area too. There are currently no standards for chicken coops and poorly constructed coops would be a hazard.
- Calgary already has difficulty trying to enforce animal bylaws (shortage of officers?), so to add a whole bunch of other animals to the mix just seems ludicrous. I cannot imagine living next to pens of birds or animals that owners have allowed to exceed limits, neglect to keep clean, neglect to properly keep the animals free of disease etc. Not to mention the possible constant noise. With the tiny yards in much of Calgary, this just seems unreal!
- I do not support urban hens. There are enough issues with cats & dogs, why introduce another area of contention. If people want to own hens, move to a farm. People think it's a great idea until they have to deal with it. They lose interest and neighbours are left dealing with the problem. No urban hens!
- Livestock do not belong in an urban environment and are likely to cause problems for neighbours. Support from current adjacent neighbours does not ensure future neighbour support.
- I don't think we should start introducing livestock into city limits.
- Odours should also be considered. Most urban yards are far too small to prevent odours from livestock from bothering neighbouring properties.
- This seems like a Pandora's box of potential conflicts. There are already issues surrounding the care and maintenance of "normal" household pets, introducing livestock with their noise and smell seems unnecessary and with too much potential for neighborhood conflicts.
- Pigeons, hens, fowl, cattle etc. can be noisy and will be disruptive to an urban setting. There's already plenty of noise generated in the city. There's also the feces smell to consider.

- Hens and other livestock do not belong on private property within the city.
- Livestock should be in the country. There are too many irresponsible and naive people with good intentions for keeping livestock that could create nothing but issues. Lets focus on enforcing responsible and compassionate pet ownership before opening another can of worms with livestock.
- I am concerned that the welfare of such animals would suffer in urban areas
- Would be area dependent - would need to ensure appropriate space exists for the animal and neighbor separation. Also safety to keep in mind - ie. attracting coyotes into the area. Also the cleanliness of the facility - do not need stench in the neighborhood and therefore a way to enforce.
- With the surge in "emotional support animals" we are seeing people who are purchasing livestock and other animals without clear and solid skills, knowledge and infrastructure to proper care for these animals. If people want livestock they should buy a farm.
- Do not support livestock in Calgary residential areas.
- Livestock smells, can be loud and brings with them other critters.
- The City doesn't have enough staff to follow up on hen complaints. If anyone wants to have farm animals they can live outside the city limits...
- Farm animals do not belong in urban settings. Once you allow hens, what about turkeys, then ducks, then goats, etc. ?
- Many people's regular pets are a nuisance to their neighbors and the thought of many of these people and others now owning livestock animals sounds like it will come with even more problems and annoyances. The way I've seen people keep hens does not appeal to me as something I would want in my neighbors yard (mess, smell, runoff from cleaning out the hen house, etc.) Specific to pigeons, these are a pest and should be exterminated as they are already enough of a problem in Calgary (not only downtown but even in suburban neighborhoods). If people want livestock then they should live on a farm or acreage. I live in a newer community and I have enough neighbors that should go live in a townhome/condo because they cannot be bothered with appropriate upkeep of their detached home.
- I do not believe that any hens or other types of livestock should be allowed in the city. They are and always have been farm animals.
- "Humane society already overrun with cats and dogs, how would they be able to handle livestock?"
- Bylaw Enforcement can hardly keep up with cats and dogs, and taxpayers will end up paying for this on top of already very high taxes. It seems from question 7 that the city is already dealing with pigeons on owner's properties, how would the city be able to deal with urban hens? This would just adding to an already existing problem.
- P"
- Will hens bring more predators into the city limits? No.
- Livestock belong in a rural environment not in the city
- Livestock are not pets and do not belong in the City. They belong on farms and acreages. Hens and other livestock create noise, waste, and other nuisances.
- I like the idea of fresh eggs but I don't want my community to have chicken coups in small residential areas.

- Those types of animals do not belong in the confined space of an urban environment.
- There would be increased noise during all hours of the day. In addition, having farm animals in close proximity to other residences could increase the spread of viruses.
- I don't see a community benefit or the positive impact this would have.
- Hens are too noisy to be in the city
- Want a farm? Move.
- Excessive noise would have to be addressed and location and care of the animals. eg. it would be unfair to house some livestock animals in an urban setting. Unfair to the animals and to the neighbours.
- Noise of livestock, chickens, goats ect can be noisy and smelly.
- Caring for livestock is difficult and requires a great deal of space and time, it would likely be noisy and a business.
- We live in a city, not the country.
- This has been attempted elsewhere and has resulted in terrible welfare of hens and overloading of animal control and rescue facilities with unwanted chickens. Terrible idea.
- Certainly not in the form that you're proposing here. again you're giving a law enforcement officer sole discretion whether or not something happens. On top of that you would need the support of your neighbours when it may have nose impact on the neighbours whatsoever and Neighbors come and go. so you could get into a situation where today's neighbour says yes tomorrow's neighbour says no. Obviously Animal Welfare has to be the first consideration and if that is being met Then Calgary has enough laws to cover nuisance animals regardless of species. This whole survey is ill conceived.
- Animals are exploited, owning livestock is a form of exploitation. Resources should not be wasted on livestock.
- I don't think there's enough space between houses in pretty much any city neighbourhood to allow for keeping hens without disturbing neighbours
- hens could be a big headache for a neighbours so I do not think is a good idea to allow them in places that can affect other people in surrounding areas.
- Rural animals should not be in an urban setting, takes down property value and noise, attracts wildlife, people can't follow the bylaws for cats and dogs, not going to follow bylaws with farm animals either
- Hens attract rats.
- there's barely any room for some of these dogs to roam the smell from some of the backyards where people don't pick up is horrible if people what these animals they should move to the country. look at some of our rivers know where people don't clean up.
- Hens are loud and will wake up the neighbours as soon as the sun rises. I do not want to listen to roosters gawking at 7 in the morning we don't live on a farm.
- I just don't believe its necessary and I don't want to be the one to have to approach my neighbors if there is a smell or noise issue. There is enough issues with just the average pet that people to care for.

- Hygiene issues from raising hens, stench, flies, droppings, etc. Operating a day home home for kids and maintaining dogs and hens at the same time do not go together well.
 - In small city lots the last thing we need are chickens. Lots of diseases come from too close contact with poultry
 - I don't think livestock should be permitted within city limits due to noise and smells
 - We don't live on farms and I like a quiet community
 - I'd support it only if neighbours within smelling distance of these allow it. Chickens are very smelly and our urban densification would not mix well with this for some people.
 - "Move to a small town of you want live stock.
- The question below asking about lower fees for low income people does not make sense to me as if you can't afford the license I don't see how you can afford to properly care for an animal."
 - Why would we want this? Sounds like a hazard and good way to spread infectious diseases as many birds can carry various diseases. This is what we have farm lands for and we don't need it to become an issue in our city. Given our harsh climates I would think they wouldn't survive well unless given proper living conditions. I'm thinking they would be in the streets? We don't need a problem with them like in Hawaii.
 - I think urban hens and other livestock in my neighbourhood would be a nuisance.
 - Too noisy. Neighbors would get all the noise and smell.
 - Nuisance to surrounding properties
 - Personally I live inner city, but I would support it for people who had more space .
 - We do not need urban farmers. Proper agricultural practices are vital in insuring that the risk of zoological illnesses and their spread remains low
 - Within city limits there are such variation in neighborhoods and some are more conducive to livestock than others. To have a bylaw that allows livestock generally may place them in urban settings that isn't appropriate for the animals as well as attract other wildlife/predators.
 - Let them move to a farm or acreage where they belong!!
 - I could maybe agree with some small livestock (dog sized or smaller). But I doubt that the alot of people would properly take care of their livestock. If for meat, how many would decide to slaughter in their back yard? How many people would decide to start slaughtering/butchering their friends animals in their backyards as a side business? Will they be slaughtered humanley? How many amateurs will be killing their own livestock? I do agree with owning birds though.
 - My only concern is the spread of virus within urban community. I am a pet sitter. Every time I care for any kind of bird, my clothing must be immediately stripped and prepared to be washed before heading into another persons home. Bird viruses can spread incredibly fast.
 - Inadequate space to support livestock within the city.
 - No livestock should be in a person's backyard. Period.
 - Not enough room in the city for livestock

- The noise and smell would not be welcome. There would be an increase in pests (mice, etc) and predators (coyotes, etc) as a result.
- Chickens are noisy & messy - belong on larger properties
- Ridiculous idea. Give your heads a shake . Think of the coyote problem. Would you like to live next to a chicken farm in the city.
- I'm torn by this issue. I would love to have a few chickens but I can see too many opportunities for abuse and misuse. Too many dogs are misused and abused. I can't imagine what they would do to chickens.
- There's enough farms for livestock no need to have in your backyard
- The noise and smell do not belong in an urban area. If I can't keep a dog outside if it barks, why should there be chickens, roosters, etc. outside making noise all day long? We've had neighbours with pigeons. They were noisy and their cages stunk.
- The broad definition of livestock bring in all sorts of complications (noise, fencing, smell).
- City living, size of lots etc...it is unfair for the majority of home owners to be required to accept hens or other livestock living beside or within the vicinity of their home. If you want to own hens or livestock, purchase land that allows this. Ie: acreage
- I'm not against responsible chicken ownership, but am against too many bylaws and bureaucracy to handle.
- It's a struggle to keep up with current complaints, why bring more issues into play.
- You want to ban bird feeders and allow hens? Good grief. You guys really have some stupid questions here.
- Not necessary
- There is a noise impact, cleanliness, also the additional insects flocking to the neighbors and the smell.
- Hens are one thing (our neighbours have some), but goats and pigs are another. Draw the line. And no geese!
- not too crazy about having noisy chickens in my neighbors back yard lol
- There is enough noise issues with people letting their dogs bark and annoy neighbours. I cannot even imagine the noise or smell from hens or other farm animals. This is the city. People wanting farm animals should live on a farm.
- Who really cares about hens
- I would worry about this extending to people slaughtering animals in their yards, which I could very well see happening.
- Lack of resources to adequately and in a timely, investigate community complaints.
- I'm concerned about noise and illnesses that livestock can carry.
- Livestock belong on a farm or acreage, any others should be case by case and not used for food
- "Move to the country
- I live in the City because I do not want the smell and noise of a farm
- It is ridiculous how long it takes for bylaw issues

- le garbage etc"
- Most people will not know how to care for chickens or other livestock.
- I am concerned about owners of livestock not looking after the animals and meeting the requirements to keep their yard clean and mitigate smell going into neighbours yards.
- Livestock does not belong within city limits on small city home lots.
- Hens carry ticks and so do pigeons. Stop all together. None of this is acceptable.
- I do not think it is feasible for bylaw to monitor and enforce bylaws. For the safety and security of these animals I do not support this bylaw amendment.
- "I don't want my neighbour to kill a
- Chicken And pluck it in His back yard. I can tell you everyone would rather kill them outdoors than inside."
- Animals should not live in confined urban spaces.
- They should not be allowed within the city for health reasons
- The city is no place for livestock, too noisy, too messy and not enough room for animal to exercise.
- This is a deep dark rabbit hole to go down. With chicken ownership, there is noise, and alot of manure issues to deal with. How do you police citizens to be keeping their chicken coops cleans and their backyards from smelling up the neighbours property! Do not allow it!!
- "public health
- This idea is so poorly thought through to please the few. I will sue any neighbors with hens and farm animals. I will sue the City of Calgary.
- Damage from pigeon feces and property damage will be sued for also."
- I don't think livestock should be in the city limits, it would be too disruptive to neighbours and the community with regard to noises, odors etc.
- Livestock should not be permitted in residential areas. Noise and odour are problems, as is vermin that are attracted by chicken feed.
- Lots in calgary are not large enough for hens. Will certainly create nuisances for neighbours
- There is a place to keep animals and it is not in the city.... They are noisy, they are smelly I do not want them on the other side of my fence..We are also allowing too many dogs and cat per residence
- Wildlife doesn't belong in the city.
- Hens belong on farms
- Concerned about noise, number of animals getting out of control, cleanliness.
- People don't look after their yards why would I want chickens beside me. Move to a farm
- Absolutely not
- It is a slippery slope for agricultural animal husbandry in urban settings for the level of care. Poor animal husbandry through neglect, ignorance, or even treating them as family pets can lead to disease (zoonotic transfer from close habitation in owner of neighbor), Animal abuse and nuisance neighbour activities leading to unmanageable conflict.
- I'm vegan and do not support this.
- Noise and smell.

- Houses are too close together in the city to allow livestock. It will become a nuisance to all the neighbours. One person wanting livestock will impact many more people's enjoyment of their homes.
- Bringing livestock into close contact with people in cities is one way to spread disease to both people and urban wildlife.
- Encourages unwanted wildlife such as skunks and coyote to come in. Also smells and noise
- Just don't trust people to care for animals in an urban environment. High potential for neglect or unhygienic practices. Urban environments high stress for livestock
- Hens and chickens belong on a farm
- "It puts neighbours in an awkward spot trying to keep good relationships if you disapprove
- There will always be someone resentful and vindictive
- The smell and issuable disease that fowl carry
- The cost of monitoring- if not approved- no cost to tax payers"
- I dont want to smell my morning coffee with chicken poop.
- I would not like to have these anywhere near where I am living
- Livestock does not belong inside a city.
- Bringing hens into the city could further endanger wildlife as they may also wander in search of food also endangering children and adults and other pets. At present wildlife predators feed occasionally on wild rabbits which roam freely as well. I believe farm animals belong on farms.
- People don't know how to look after chickens. What happens in the winter?
- Could become very noisy and stinky
- This sounds like it would be more work, time and money then it would be worth.
- They are too messy and can be smelly.
- These animals draw wildlife.
- Never, allow live stock , hens of any kind in an urban area. There is no benefit for neighbors, that's what farmer's markets are designed to do provide fresh eggs to everyone.
- These are farm animals. Eventually they need to be slaughtered and that is not a suitable activity for the city.
- Unless they meets all criteria, they should not be allowed
- Would have been "yes" before pandemic, but now is not the time to bring a bunch of animal species esp exotics into close living with lots of humans in urban environment. We have farms. I would defer to a veterinary college opinion on this, however.
- Chickens never stop making noise
- Enforcement of rules for this amendment would be difficult.
- Calgary is not a farm. You want to raise livestock, move to a rural property!
- Livestock does not belong in an urban environment with small parcels, tightly packed houses: smell and noise that are common in a rural setting can be extremely aggravating in the urban setting.
- The neighbours who approved it might move. Animals may make noise that affects more than adjacent neighbours.

- We live next to bee keepers. Our life has been impacted considerably by their activities. No one seems to care, there are no by-laws and no recourse. We have been deprived of outdoor time for at least 3 weeks this summer because of this operation and the smoke that it generates. We are avid gardeners who are trying to put together another art show but on this the last warm day of summer I am filling in your form instead of being outside painting. We also have not ventured past the perimeter of our yard because we are high risk seniors so we can't even escape the smoke that burns the eyes and fills one's lungs. If you don't care about seniors, fine. What if there were little children with developing lungs? Asthmatic individuals? What about smoking by-law. This is way worse. Both Toronto and Paris do not allow beekeeping. They have looked at the research and found that beekeeping negatively affects native bee populations
- The city is no place for chickens, pigs and other types of livestock. A pet is a Cat or Dog!
- Unless rescued and not for eating. Otherwise, livestock should not be raised in the city.
- bringing in hens will also attract wild life causing issues in my opinion
- you want farm animals, move to a farm
- I would agree, but I don't think people would stick to the rules
- smell
- No need for more options in a city environment.
- They should not be pets. Plenty of other domestic options with shelters being filled without adding more "exotic" pets to the problems.
- There would need to be strict rules and enforcement. This can very simply get out of hand, and there aren't appropriate supports through local organizations for hens seized or needing rehoming etc
- Issues with excrement disposal, smells, etc.
- I do not feel that individuals living in an urban or suburban environment have the necessary space, time, and resources available to provide adequate care for the majority of livestock species. These animals often do best in the herd environment which requires extensive space and management. Additionally, livestock can carry zoonotic diseases which may not be adequately recognized or treated, as appropriate veterinary care may not be sought out by these pet owners.
- Smell like poop
- Don't want chickens
- "People who want poultry/pigeons/livestock have the option to move to a rural setting. The negative impact of bringing animals farm animals into urban life is so selfish and irresponsible. Disease, insects, neglect, cost of city inspections, odors, noise, feces run off in rains - spring melts, pollution of rivers ...
- Where is the common sense ?"
- I am concerned about noise from having a large number of animals on any property. It would affect more than just the immediate neighbours, also anyone behind, across or nearby. I am not totally against the idea, I would just want to see more information on how it would involve others.
- Even though I support allowing urban hens, I think this will cause a lot of conflicts between neighbors as they will definitely have to agree. My feelings is that many would not be happy about hens close to their backyards.

- No live stock at all should be allowed move out of the city buy a farm
- I understand a couple of hens, but if you want to have livestock don't live in the city limits.
- I'm not confident in The City's ability to ensure animal welfare of livestock, including hens. And I'm not confident that all Calgarians who keep livestock will care for the animals so it will increase animal suffering. People aren't even taking care of dogs and cats properly, why add more animals.
- Farm animals and wildlife do not belong in backyards or confined spaces.
- No if you condemn the breed of pit bulls I do not stand for this.
- Personally , I would not not chickens near me. What would ne next? It there were , a community garden setting , that would be ok.
- Balancing the needs of hens and Calgarians has to be a joke. The needs and wishes of humans have to come before the needs of chickens 110% of the time, every single time.
- In principle but lots in Calgary are generally too small so this is too likely to disturb neighbours
- "If you want to raise animals for food move to the area that supports this.
- If you want to raise pigeons move to an area that is one and the noise/ smell/ and visual appearance goes not affect the neighborhood."
- I believe it would be impossible to regulate to a point where livestock does not negatively impact neighbours and property Values of neighborhoods
- Why don't we try to fix the first problem instead of adding more
- "Common sense. The odours do not remain on hen/livestock owners property. Odours travel several blocks. Fecal matter run off after rains or winter/spring melts. This goes into our drains, pollutes rivers, kills fish. Disease, bugs, bacteria, mice problem, potential salmonella all outweigh one individuals desire for hens/livestock. Calgary is not a 3rd world city.
- I'm from a farming background/history and had to leave because of the toll of prolonged odours put on my body.
- I have COPD and would be forced to move if people in neighborhood started urban hens/livestock.
- There would/will be a law suit if this is started in my neighborhood.
- I will sue the City and I will sue the owner of hens/livestock.
- I have a right to breath."
- Majority of properties would not be able to give a suitable home for the needs of other live stock.
- Adjacent neighbours can change.
- chickens are noisy in the early morning and smell. I would not want that next to my home as I enjoy my outdoor space often.
- "People start off with the best of intentions (cleanliness), however, things can get out of hand easily.
- For example, there are people who do not look after their properties now, (do not cut lawns and back yards are full of unused items - the bylaw officers currently cannot do anything about. So putting livestock into the mix would be a bad idea."
- It is unfair to have to smell animal smells in my backyard. Having to smell the neighbours dog urine and faeces in the spring and on hot days is bad enough I can't even imagine a chicken coop. If it was allowed, they should have to keep it against their own house, not at the property line, which most of them would like to do. We actually enjoy using all areas of our small yard, this would be very affair to us.

- Keeping livestock close to human housing promotes pathogen jumps from animals to humans.
 - Livestock is not a good idea. Lots of people can't even be bothered to take care of their grass, let alone a coop of chickens.
 - I would support a case by case basis, however, one person's treasure can be another's annoyance. Who wants to listen to and smell animals 25/7. The dogs, cats and skunks are plenty thank you.
 - "No hens or other type backyard farm animals are required in the city. Eggs are pretty affordable as it is. Opens a problem that needn't be
- No good can come of this in a busy city"
 - "It will end up with more annoying situations.
 - Move to the country if you want farm animals."
 - Cleanliness and public health. As it stands we have problems with dog owners and cat owners.
 - I think it would be too noisy and potentially stink, especially in the summer.
 - Livestock belong in rural areas.
 - You need to explain exactly what what and all animals that would be considered livestock.
 - This is a slippery slope
 - Nah
 - Although a nice idea it is my impression that many of these animals will not receive appropriate care. Furthermore they will act as a vector for disease and can impact wild bird populations
 - chickens belong on farms not in peoples homes
 - If you want chickens and horses, then move out of the city. Neighbours should not have the peaceful enjoyment of their paid property disrupted by Animal noise and the smell of manure.
 - I am concerned for the well-being of the farm animals
 - Support from adjacent neighbours unnecessary and can lead to prejudice
 - I think hens are messy and would really need to be in a fenced in yard
 - Too much risk for error and irresponsible owners- we have people that cannot care for cats and dogs alone - also acrid with coyotes and bob cats too much attraction for wild life in rural communities
 - Hen's & roosters will lead to many noise complaints
 - Absolutely "would not" support allowing hens or any other livestock in Calgary. Hens and or other livestock belong on farm properties. City properties are too close to one another to allow for hens and or other livestock. Noise alone would be a major concern if a neighbour is allowed to have hens on their property. Offending odours from hens/livestock could also be another concern, if allowed. Why is city even exploring the feasibility of allowing hens or livestock? It just opens up the door for neighbour disputes if livestock of any kind is permitted on city properties. City has enough dog and cat complaints without adding hens or other livestock to the 311 list. Please reconsider this bylaw amendment.

- It does not feel fair to the livestock to be able to live in city living conditions. Allowing this bylaw would increase the amount of animals living in Calgary, and likely mean that some living situations are overlooked. Although this amendment has criteria, as we increase the limits available, some criteria may be overlooked.
- No livestock in city limits
- Nuisance
- I do not want to have the mess and smell of farm animals in my area. The wind blows garbage everywhere. Lots are too small to keep farm animals.
- Bylaw and the city shouldn't be involved in any way.
- No chickens, pigs etc. in City
- Absolutely not. I enjoy my yard and gardening. I am hyper-sensitive to smells. Dog urine in my Neighbour's yard is already unbearable. I couldn't even imagine a chicken coop against my fence, and near my garden. If you do allow it, they should have to keep it against their house, not my property. This is a big NO!
- They are often let go in rural areas to die after the novelty wears off.
- Not in favour of livestock within city.
- Hens / pigeons or any type of bird or livestock do not belong in the city. Having any type of livestock should not be allowed. The smell noise etc is not fair to any neighbor.
- The noise and smell
- livestock belong on farms
- Only in areas where property is an acreage. City lots are too small to have urban hens or livestock. They belong in the country.
- I feel like this could draw predator animals further into the city looking for animals to hunt.
- I grew up in rural Saskatchewan. Farm animals belong on a farm they are not pets.
- Farm animals have no place in cities if you want farm animals move to a farm
- I live in a lovely community. I do not want to hear chickens.
- There is no need for urban livestock. People interested in raising livestock should live in rural areas.
- Livestock should be only in rural areas.
- Noise and smell
- Chickens and livestock need to live in areas where they have room to wander. In a backyard, etc. in urban centres is cruelty.
- NOISE SMELL
- I absolutely do not support any kind of farmed animals living urban areas. They are not pets and their lives are not to be played with. Is the city going to regularly visit these homes and ensure the animals are being treated responsibly? There is way too much potential for animal cruelty here when it comes to allowing people to raise animals for food or profit. I am 100% against this and will still fight it if it's allowed.

- I have concerns about nuisance (i.e. smell and noise) and safety (like human Salmonella infections from home raised chickens). I am more supportive of non-traditional emotional support animals, but less supportive of animals used as livestock in a residential setting, particularly in narrow R-2 lots that are typically only 25' wide and don't allow for sufficient distancing between neighbours.
- Some animals such as laying hens do not belong in an urban area.
- Noise, smell, cleanliness. Given the close proximity of homes in the city, how would anyone contain hens noise, smell and/or runoff of waste in a house next door without implicating the neighbors?
- Some neighbours prevent this and want to control the decision too much
- Whoever is making these silly foolish questions needs to start realizing that they need to talk to the proper people when it comes to stuff like this. Reaching out to the proper humans like farmers, veterinarians, et... who can give you details on positive and negative outlooks. Realistically asking people who have no idea what goes into owning livestock is silly. You should be asking farmers, veterinarians, and other humans who understands the animals physiology, allowing you to get the proper ruling for what goes. Not simple humans who thinks chickens and pigs are cute.
- They stink and are loud. Unless they would add value to my property, I have no interest in hens or neighbours having hens as they will devalue my home. If you wanted a community coop like the gardens, I'd be open to that.
- I don't think the city needs hens within the city core or boundaries. I did not move into an urban environment to be bothered by a clacking hen.
- I don't believe that livestock belongs in the city, as they will likely end up with unsuitable living conditions.
- Sounds like the bylaw would result in bad neighbors very quickly.
- I've walked by homes in other communities where livestock and/or chickens are kept and they are a mess, as well as emitting feathers, litter, noise and smells onto other properties.
- I do not want hens living beside me. They are noisy.
- Noise
- I've lived next to chickens. Roosters wake up at like 4 am and wake everyone else up to. No thanks.
- Neighbours change. When approved, the adjacent neighbours will be consulted, but what about future neighbours?
- Without proper livestock knowledge chickens won't remain healthy. Without proper health standards it could spread disease. There should be a system to ensure the animals are properly cared for and kept.
- Hens are farm animals and should not be kept in the city.
- I do not support livestock in the city at all. This opens up a whole kettle of fish for disputes between neighbours. Bees as well. People are deathly allergic to some animals. Why make it worse.
- Sooner or later some owners will neglect maintaining cleanliness to prevent bad odour and some livestock will roam around neighbours' yards.
- I see no reason why anyone in a city needs to have a hen.
- Chickens belong on a farm, no exceptions.

- Livestock? Would they be running all over like all the cats? Would a rooster crowing next door wake me up? Seems crazy
- I don't possibly see how an individual household within the city limits would have the appropriate amount of space to house "other livestock". The only exception may be beekeeping (not certain if that exists currently or by exception)
- Livestock should be kept on farmland.
- too much smell and noise.
- livestock of any breed belong on a farm or acreage NOT in the city
- Livestock should remain outside of the city limits. If individuals would like to own livestock or hens, they should have property outside of the city. There is a high potential for odors, disease/illness, noise, and other complications.
- It could lead to other livestock allowed in the city.
- They are for a farm.. you get mites, etc., there has to be regulations for the excess poop, etc. its unhealthy if not controlled
- If I wanted to live near livestock I would move to the country.
- If someone wants these types of livestock animals, then move out of the city to an acreage. Also, exotic animals should be banned from the city. They are not natural to our location and should stay where they came from or isolated outside of the city to an acreage.
- Homes are too closely built to have hens in city.
- I think that this would lead to many issues between neighbours and a challenge to ensure the well-being of the livestock.
- Animals increase the risk of predators which would affect my family and me directly. Also there would be a marked increase in noxious odors.
- Urban livestock sound dangerous for the animals
- Possible noise
- Absolutely not!!! Hens are noisy and smelly. I have lived in the country and we had chickens. There is no way in the world I want hens in my neighbourhood!
- We live in a city which already has wildlife and domestic animal issues. We don't need to further complicate the existing issues with the addition of livestock.
- Noisy, unclean, problem with feces and diseases
- Everything starts out as being responsible, but over time can get out of control. As a person that uses their outdoor space all the time dealing with chickens stmh next door neighbour's would not be too pleasant. If you want chickens move to an acreage, that is what they are for.
- Most owners do not properly care for their pets, I think allowing livestock into the mix would cause further complications / problems.
- I don't need to hear chickens and goats at 5 am. Also this could create more "nuisance" dogs.
- I don't want chickens running around my city
- This encourages the local wildlife going into people's yards, namely coyotes. Also, spilled feed attracts mice, which would be a headache for the owner and the neighbours.

- Livestock belongs on a farm or properties that have sufficient space.
- Most yards in Calgary are too small for livestock.
- Those birds are not pets and don't need to be caged up things like chickens can provide eggs and stuff for family where as pigeons are just load and annoying for others
- Smell from animals may be too much
- Livestock should not be within city limits

Participants who did not indicate whether they would, or would not, support this bylaw amendment however provided comments, are listed here.

- No concern
- not sure how I feel about chickens or other livestock
- unsure, depending on what happens when someone slaughters in their yard
- No opinion
- I'm not sure
- Not sure how I feel on this
- I don't have enough knowledge on this subject to comment
- [removed]
- I have no opinion about urban hens and other livestock.
- As long as noise and smell are a consideration for neighbours and the timeline to deal with complaints is quick.
- I don't understand fully.
- Don't know enough about livestock to comment on it
- I have an issue with any breed specific bylaw. It punishes an entire breed for peoples prejudice
- Neutral
- I am not educated enough on this topic to answer appropriately.
- I have no opinion about this.
- I am neutral on this subject. I can keep a dog quiet at a predawn/dawn time. Can you do the same with a hen?
- I do not know enough to answer this question
- Unsure. Biggest concern is appropriate living conditions for the animal, second concern is that people abandon dogs and cats so what happens if someone abandons a chicken or a goat?
I like the goats eating weeds in parks and I think chickens would be a nice addition to places like Ft Calgary, backyard bees are especially great for community gardens when organized by someone with enough knowledge to handle their care. I don't believe most city dwellers can manage care of livestock animals.
- Hens that lay eggs should be allowed in Calgary. You need to be more specific about what additional livestock is being considered before proper engagement can be requested.
- Need more info
- How do we contend with skunks coyotes bobcats and other wildlife who will pursue them as food

- N/A
- I am in different
- No comment
- No BSL
- No
- I am not informed enough to answer this question
- Chickens yes. What other livestock - pretty open question.
- No opinion
- Unsure. Need more information
- I don't have enough information on "hens" so I cannot provide an adequately informed answer
- I don't really have an opinion on this.
- I don't know enough about this matter to give an opinion.
- Undecided, don't know enough about the possible impact.
- I'm unsure on this as it depends on the livestock and the size of yard, etc.
- It depends what criteria are used to ensure suitable living conditions for the animal
- I have no idea how this would work out. So am not giving answer either way.
- I'm not sure how I feel about livestock being permitted. I'm neutral because I don't know enough about what it's like to own them.
- Unaware of the issues and concerns
- Far more needs to be considered for me to make a yes or no answer. Canada has some of the worst animal transport laws in the world. "Suitable living conditions" is subjective.
- i'm neutral
- Unsure. Would be fine if current neighbours support but what happens if they move and the next one objects?
- No roosters.
- n/a
- I don't understand the question. Please make it easy to understand. We are not all lawyers.
- I need more info on the types of animals allowed and the conditions.
- Livestock carry with them potential for disease and pandemic. I do not believe any animal should be kept as livestock anywhere, but in a densely populated city is asking for another pandemic.
- [DUPLICATE]
- I would need to know more before answering
- I am in different
- I would prefer to have a more clear And specific definition of the term "livestock"
- I don't know enough about this issue to support or deny it
- High potential to cause issues with neighbours, for example noise caused by animals, smell, allergies, etc. [DUPLICATE]
- I don't know enough about the research to answer this
- I do not have enough information on this to base a decision.

- Need more information on the criteria.
- Undecided
- I don't have any opinion on this
- another yes/no question
- No I don't want livestock in the city
- I haven't really researched enough
- No! Bad idea - talk about attracting unwanted predators into the suburbs! And excessive noise and smell!
- I am not sure about the impact of hens in a city yard? Noise, Smell. If those are not a problem I support it if they are I don't.
- I am not sure - the question does not indicate what "other livestock" would consist of.
- Honestly my answer is I don't know.
- I do not have enough information to answer
- Uncertain.
- Let people own hens for their own benefit.
- Livestock belong on farms
- I don't know enough about pros and cons to answer.
- I do not support hens, pigeons, and other livestock in an urban setting.
- There does not seem to be any bylaw at the moment so not sure how one can amend something that does not exist!
- I love any movement that shortens the chain of food production and food consumption.
- Not enough information to offer an opinion.
- Birds should not be covered under this bylaw as far as feeding on a person's property.
- Again, the question includes too many issues. I would support some but not all of the criteria, and the question of hens should be separate from other livestock. Please, come up with better questions, some that are not potentially ambiguous.
- other livestock is too vague to make an informed decision to support this bylaw amendment. Please clearly define "other livestock".
- Hens do not belong in neighborhoods or the city.
- Uncertain
- I would need to know why people are keeping hens. Are they pets? Are they going to be eaten by their owner?
- Is it going to cost me more money?? Is it a new way for city council to fine and tax is?
- No i don't support fowl in urban settings. They are noisy and smelly. People can't even pick up dog feces in their yards without intervention of a bylaw. You would need more staff to deal with the complaints. City says it is looking to cut budget of excess community programs and involvement on a permanent basis, duh!
- You have not listed the amendment. How can I respond. You might as well be Dr. Hinshaw saying choose school or home learning and then oops we are changing the rules after you chose.

- Unsure
- Would need to understand what livestock would be considered and how community benefit is defined.
- Again, you have not provided a clear definition., in this case for livestock. Do you mean cows, horses, etc.?
- unsure of this
- I am undecided as to whether hens are a good idea.
- Whatever. As long as I don't have to smell the coop.
- I don't think Livestock has any place in a city. They need space and most people in a city don't have that.
- I need to read up on this issue before deciding
- I am not educated in this area so I do not have a valid opinion
- While I am not against this for property owners with sufficient space, I'm not in favour of having a rooster wake me up every morning. I think the amount should be limited to a small number

Pet limit

Proposed bylaw change:

A pet limit would be six (6) dogs AND six (6) cats per household. All of the pets need to be licensed. If a household wants more than 6 dogs or 6 cats, a special application will be required.

Potential exceptions to this rule could be:

- Dogs/cats under 6 months of age
- Temporary homes (fosters, breeders, pet sitters, daycares)
- Dogs/cats that are inherited
- Dogs/cats that are grandfathered in if the rules change
- Approved Excess Animal Permit
- Possession of a Dog Fanciers' License
- Service animals

I would support this bylaw change

For participants that responded yes, no explanation was required. Responses from participants that indicated they would not support this bylaw change are listed below.

- Too many - make it max 4 total
- 6 dogs are too much in a household. It should be capped at 4 dogs and 6 cats. The low income license fee waiver should be only for one dog and one cat. This will ensure better animal welfare and medical care and less abandonment of animals.
- are you kidding me?

- animal lovers should be able to care for as many as they choose, as long as they are cared for
- I think it should be 4 dogs and 5 cats maximum. If not less
- It's not fair to have to fill out an application for a pet that you may have owned before the bylaw change
- most owners are good owners, sometimes a household may result in multiple individuals who own pets coming together - you may end up requiring someone to give up a family member in order to live under one roof.
- if there are neighbors who don't take care of the animals they have the smell will bother the neighbors especially in the winter, when freeze and thaw of feces is just terrible...and on hot day the stink does emanate from the garages.....even when they open their windows, there is that stench of indoor animals wafting over the fence....
- Considering LESA only 2 pets should be allowed at max per household.
- Limiting the number of animals does not make someone be a better pet owner. Breeders, dog daycares should be paying business licences and fees
- Only fosters and rescues should have that many dogs.
- That is too many pets in one home to responsibly care for. I feel that a limit of three dogs and three cats makes more sense other than the exceptions
- No one should have the ability to own twelve animals.
- I think 6 dogs is way too many. I believe that we need to decrease the legal number that owners can have.
- I think people should be able to have as many animals as seen fit in the circumstance. If you aren't violating any bylaws, you can have as many animals as you'd like.
- This is how pet hoarding starts and often ends in the animals being poorly taken care of and being apprehended.
- A maximum of 12 pets is ludicrous for any household The number should be capped at a maximum of 2 pets (any combo of dogs and cats) There can be an exception for breeders & service animal trainers providing they get written permission from all immediate neighbours. We have a neighbour with 2 dogs and when they start to bark they feed off of each other. Imagine that with 6 dogs. We also have cats wandering through our yard at night because people let them out. Enough is enough. Put a cap on the number but much lower than what you proposed.
- Unless a hoarding situation. No number limitation
- You shouldn't be limited to the number of pets as long as you are able to care for them properly.
- 6 of each is too high. Should be 6 combined.
- Yes, because again it's about the practicality. We live in a city, few residence can support that many animals to be truly healthy. Go live on a farm. How can one person walk 6 dogs and pick up 6 dog [removed]? And stop it from biting a child, seems way to much to handle. Imagine I have 6 pit bulls because the by law says I can. These disease infected animals are a higher risk than corona.
- No one needs 6 dogs AND 6 cats. That's excessive for a normal residential lot.
- 6 is too many, do you want 6 dogs or cats living next to you?

- I'm not aware of any evidence to suggest there is a problem to be addressed, if there is substantial evidence to say there are a large number of people with too many pets I would consider it, but this extra legislation seems to create more complicated rules without good justification. It's not necessary for anyone to own any pets at all, so claiming it's not necessary to own more than 2 is absurd.
- No more than 2 dogs and 2 cats
- Some people may want 7 dogs. Let them.
- If they're not hurting the animals or anyone who cares how many they have.
- I think 6 cats and 6 dogs is too many already for city limits. I think 4-5 would be more appropriate.
- 12 animals in one house is absurd. Live on a farm if you want that many. If you train service animals get a license to do that and still restrict to 12. That's beyond enough.
- As long as the animals are properly cared for and registered and the owner is responsible, I see no issue with pet limits. If anything, limits should be placed on breeders (ie stronger rules, enforcement of proper living conditions, amount of litters per year etc) to help control the pet population and keep pets out of shelters off the streets and prevent unnecessary euthanasia
- I would like more information before supporting a law like this.
- Stop trying to control people.
- there house there rules
- Puts limits on dog boarders that do in home care. Put a limit on breeders
- my answer is no because I don't see pet rescues or places of the sort in there.
- Similarly to what I mentioned above, judge how the animals are affecting others, rather than the number. If there is noise, etc. manage that issue. I know people who have several dogs and great homes. I also know those with 1 and let them howl. Ban roaming for sure, no matter what.
- As long as the owner takes full care of each and every pet, as well as the property, I see no problem in having no limit to the amount of pets you may own.
- It doesn't make sense to have a limit of 6 cats and 6 dogs? That would be 12 animals in a household which is too much, I think it should be a total amount of any animal allowed per household.
- A limit of two pets is appropriate in an urban environment. 6 cats and 6 dogs is way too many and will certainly be a nuisance
- IF the exceptions were in place, I would be supportive, but not as a stand alone change.
- It's no ones business how many animals someone wants to own as long as they are taken care of.
- Retain the bylaw restricting the no of oets
- I agree to everything except the age of the exception. I don't think there should be an age limit, there shouldn't be more than 6 dogs and cats period unless an exception form was filled
- Nope, never support this bylaw. This is wrong. If a person can take care of more than 6 cats and provide a good home then why not!
- Six cats is probably excessive already. Six dogs is even worse. If somebody needs that many animals they should go out of town and live on a farm.
- I don't believe that indoor cats should be licensed but I do support the maximum 6 animal law

- This is a LOT of animals and isn't much different than no limit at all. Most municipalities with limits set it at 3 dogs and 3 cats.
- Just don't think it's necessary to control people like this.
- I don't feel the city should decide how many pets is appropriate for a household, so long as there isn't any issues from the neighbours.
- 6 is too many in town
- Three of any type should be the limit
- Suitability for ownership is recommended on a per case basis
- I think people will abuse this.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs allowed pet household is ridiculous. That is way too many animals for any dwelling in the city
- Too many animals could cause damages to property, people and to other animals.
- Maybe a maximum of four cats or dogs per house is more reasonable unless you are fostering animals. I think that having six dogs or cats in a home is too much and the welfare of the animals would be a concern. Especially six dogs in one home may not sit well with neighbors.
- I still do not believe the number of animals be restricted. Instead, the emphasis should be if a household accumulates enough nuisances or has evidenced they cannot take care of the animals, then they should be removed or fined.
- Government should not be able to dictate responsible pet ownership unless it is a hoarding situation
- If animals are well cared for and licensed I don't see the need for restrictions
- I have never had an issue with my dogs that have been 6 to 9 at any one time
- I think the entire premise of the Responsible Ownership bylaw is exactly that: based on sole responsibility of the individual that is responsible for those animals. If there is a problem with a specific household/owner, then that issue should be addressed on an individual basis.
- na
- There shouldn't be a restriction of how many dogs and cats there should be in a house hold. That's the decision of the house hold and as long as it's not disturbance for others.
- The vast majority of pet owners are responsible. They keep their pet waste cleaned up, don't allow their animals to roam freely etc. I personally have 8 dogs and 4 cats, my yard is clean, my dogs are not allowed to bark when in the yard, my pets are not permitted to roam at large, and my cats are on a leash when they are allowed outside under supervision.
- I do not agree with limiting the number of pets. However, there should be higher licensing fees for exceeding a certain number of pets
- 12 animals in a city dwelling is excessive
- It's nobody's business how many pets an individual has. Often times animals are less disruptive than adults or children.
- They should be able to have as many as they want so long as all the needs (food, shelter, medical, and psychological needs) are all being met as well as cleanliness in and out of home.
- Animal limits are not necessary if there is sufficient care for the animals and no negative impact on neighbours.

- The possibility of having 12 animals in a home is excessive.
- As long as the animals are being taken care of it shouldn't be an issue.
- This limit still allows too many animals
- No
- 6 is far too many. I would support a maximum of 4.
- No one should have 6 cats and dogs. Max should be 4 and 4 and insurance should be made mandatory as well as spaying and neutering. You should have to apply to breed.
- No
- There should be no limit to pets, if they are being kept in a responsible way.
- There are ton of family's who foster animals. And can easily surpass 6 dogs or cats. Not many people have the ability to foster animals. And the ones who do. Tend to foster many. I've personally seen up to 17 dogs at once.
- 6 each, that is crazy! This bylaw should be based on the size pf ypur property. No one household needs 6 dogs, quality of life for the dogs goes down. And 6 cats again, no,quality of life. Maximum of 4 pets per household, a combination of dogs and cata. Do not promote hoarding of animals! Stupis idea.
- That's too many animals.....
- It's difficult to manage 6 dogs or 6 cats at once.
- Some people can responsibly handle more animals. You are going after the good parents.
- Why should the city tell me how many pets I have
- Provided the exceptions above are truly enforced because of breeders, fosters, etc
- I feel it's not necessary to step in and tell people how many animals they may have, unless abuse is suspected. Don't change this just implement more resources to deal with abuse to animals.
- No one needs 6 personal dogs
- Why have a limit
- 6 is too many. ExceptionS cover the key areas.
- it's their own house/property. As long as they clean up after them. I do think you should change calgarys name to fine city. to
- We don't limit the amount of kids a human can have in a household why should an animal be treated any differently
- All some people have are animals. If someone can have more then six kids why couldn't they have more then 6 animals? If well cared for with a adequate space.
- Household should not exceed 4 animals, the infrastructure of the city can hold more then that in new developments.
- No pet limits
- I do not support strict limits. They ignore the fact that it is the responsibility of the owner that matters not the number of pets. Some people are able to have multiple pets with no issues and some can't handle a very low number responsibly.

- Limitations on the number of dogs will only affect the honest owners. If all the animals are well cared for and not a nuisance they should be allowed to own as little or as many pets as they choose.
- Scrap any and all biased/prejudice changes to pet ownership bylaws. Watching Beyond the Myth documentary mandatory for City Council members before voting. This documentary clearly illustrates the failure of similar laws in Denver Colorado.
- Too much government
- the city should not have this power.
- d
- You don't need to make an arbitrary limit. Fine people and confiscate animals if the welfare is in danger and problem solved.
- N/A
- too much noise, faces, in the country yes, not in the city.
- If the animals are well taken care of it is no one else's business.
- Feces/noise/abuse can happen with 1 or 2 dogs. Why count? What makes 6 the magic number?
- 12 animals are too many for the small lots and houses of Calgary
- no
- Some people are able to support more pets
- If they can be responsible than there's no problem
- Because it I believe depends on a person, some people are more responsible about cleaning up after there pet than others. Why do good pet owners have to suffer
- 6 still seems too high.
- Too many animals in one household. It would be extremely difficult to adequately and financially meet the needs of these animals.
- please limit to 3 cats and/or dogs total.
- That is too many animals. Maybe 6 total would be fine, but this allows for up to 12. People can apply for exceptions if they want but the bylaw should be lower for the welfare of the animals.
- I still feel that this is too many pets. I would like restriction to 3 dogs AND 3 cats.
- 12 permanent pets to one household is too many without a full assessment of the situation for an exception to be made. This is likely a stressful situation for the animals involved.
- If someone owns their property, pets are not a nuisance and are all registered it should be their choice
- Thats a lot of animals for inner city living.
- People who have more dogs and cats may not be able to care for these animals, they is costly, this can affect the animal's health. NO Increase for pet ownership.
- How would you ensure that pets are in safe conditions with that many pets in a home.
- That is too many for a reasonable person to own
- I am a pet owner and think that there is no need for one person to have 12 pets in their home to give each animal the proper care. I would support a total of 6 dogs or cats. If a person had 2 dogs they could only have 4 cats, or however it works (limit being 6)

- Considering average house sizes in Calgary. 6 of each animal is excessive and could lead to an overflow of shelter animals.
- I think as long as the animals are well maintained/happy it should not matter how many pets someone has.
- would think 6 total is a good number before a special license is required. 6 pets can end up being a puppy mill
- Deal with problem ones only. No bylaw needed.
- Way too many. People can't take care of them few they're allowed now...
- I feel as though nobody should be restricted as long as these animals are cared for properly. Some people most likely exceed these numbers and would we really make them give up family members if they're willing and capable of properly caring for them? Just get stricter on the cruelty cases
- I think this is bordering on far too much government control. Absolutly none of your business. I do think animal hoarding or mills should be addressed.
- If they are well cared for, spayed/neutered and licensed and indoor cats, no limit.
- More than five pets of any kind seems extremely excessive in the city. Once again, if you want more animals move to a farm
- I think that 6 dogs or cats is a lot for someone to take care of.
- If animals are cared for properly there is no reason they shouldn't.
- Each household is different, some cant take care of even 1 pet, some have 5+ and have zero issue
- A mix of cats and dogs not to exceed 6 total animals
- If they are in a responsible home and supported there should be no limit
- I might support it if it was more clear who would be able to apply for additional animals. Not everyone who has more than 6 dogs/cats is unable to care for them. In general I feel hoarding animals should be dealt with more severely on a case by case basis.
- No comment
- I think this needs to be a case by case basis. While some people may be equipped financially, emotionally, have the space, have the ability to commit the time to care of many pets, others won't.
- Unless a person has a large enough property, there isn't enough room for 6 dogs and/or cats in a household. Perhaps 6 pets total.
- Seems excessive.
- We have friends in Calgary who have a lot of land within city property. They have 7 animals they have rescued that live with them. They are well behaved and well looked after. What would happen to people like this who have rescued these animals and can no longer do so going forward.
- It's too many and would cause noise, damage property and isn't enough space in a city dwelling.
- I've known of people with one animal that couldn't handle the responsibility, and people with more than 6 animals that take good care of all of them, and ensure they are well behaved. If we are concerned about noise, feces/mess, and the welfare of animals, setting standards more directly related to those things makes more sense to me. Noise complaints are already possible regardless of the number of dogs. I would also assume that complaints can be made and addressed with regards to feces/smell. And the welfare and treatment of animals living in a household should be enforced regardless of 1 or 20 animals.

- Too much government interference. Stop telling people what to do on private property.
- Instead of restricting the animals a person can own, how about enforcing bylaws where people need to actually take care of their animals.
- 6 dog AND 6 cats seems too many. 6 total would be more reasonable
- Setting a maximum number penalizes responsible owners of multiple pets without impacting negligent owners
- The city should have no say, if animals are being cared for properly
- I feel as long as the animals are being cared for correctly, there is no reason to limit the amount or breed type!!
- I feel that this one is a very grey area for exceptions to the proposed bylaw changes and would have to be upheld on a case by case order. I own 3 cats and a dog and am a responsible pet owner. Grandfathered in or not stripping away my ability to have more than 2 of one or the other seems like an infringement on my rights. I'm sure there are many pet owners that would agree with me. However there are absolutely going to be cases where somebody is clearly hoarding animals or not providing for the welfare of the excessive amounts of animals. To some extent I agree with the proposed changes, but I also feel there is too much grey area for this to be an enforceable bylaw that wont result in massive backlash from pet owning community members
- I would like to limit the number of pets per household based on the size of the house. Having six cats or six dogs in a tiny apartment is unacceptable
- The max should be 3 AND 3. Also, the license fee for altered and unaltered dogs and cats should be there same
- Majority of people don't have the capabilities to support this many pets financially physically or emotionally. An increase in bylaw will allow more room for neglect, abuse and rehoming
- There's no guarantee that the exceptions listed above would be upheld in the final bylaw
- 2 pets are enough for any house.
- I know many, many people who have more than 6 dogs and they are better behave and cared for than people with just 1 dog. BTW I am a professional dog trainer.
- I dont think this needs to be a bylaw
- I dont feel anyone needs to have more than 6 pets in a residential home. If they have a business, or need for more than 6 animals, a rural location is better as it provides more distance for noise and smell issues.
- I'm fine with the bylaw change. I want to request the city stop using the term "grandfathered". The word is rooted in racist ideology and history. Please change to 'legacy', 'exempted' or other more respectful term.
- Irresponsible pet owners could take advantage of this and would lead to crowding of animals
- I do not believe a person owning 6 cats/dogs can adequately provide the necessary care, attention and quality of life those animals require and deserve. I believe 3-4 is a reasonable and more realistic limit

- Even 6 dogs and 6 cats may be too many to create noise and disturbance for neighbours
- There are people with one dog that can't pick up the pop and let their dog bark incessantly. They don't train it and let it bite people. Increasing the fines for infractions is better than limiting pet ownership. People that are concerned about number of pets are people that can't understand because they can't handle one. I have many friends with multiple pets that spend all their time with them. The. You see one person at a dog park letting "Fluffy" run around irritating people and dogs while "mom" talks on the phone. Start addressing the problem with the people first.
- 12 animals in one house is too many still.
- Dogs have puppies... cats have kittens. Your bylaw makes that not possible. I am pretty sure cats and dogs do not know about laws regarding these things. Some religions, like Jewish people can NOT castrate or alter a animal. You can't violate religious freedoms.
- As a foster-fail myself, I can say with great confidence that there are numerous highly responsible dog owners with more than six dogs. A limit on the number is not needed. Rather, accessible dog training would aid in reducing negative experiences. Dog training can be prohibitively expensive for some.
- If we are talking about 1 person/1family then depending on the size of the property of where the animals stay is a deciding factor upon how many pets should be allowed. In smaller houses with smaller backyards you shouldn't be having more than at most 2 dogs or 3 cats. Larger houses with more backyard room sure go ahead and have 4-6 dogs and cats. Households that would hold more would already be an exception household technically speaking.
- Not necessary to control this aspect of people's households
- That's not fair to in home daycares and pet sitters at all.
- Interfering with people's happiness and quality of life, the city should mind its own business and find another way of making money.
- The limit should be significantly less! 3 dogs OR 3 cats
- I don't think it's necessary to restrict pet ownership, as long as there are no issues. If there are issues, the owner can be fined/warned under that specific by-law.
- It's not hard to care for multiple animals when done right. If there is obvious neglect, then no. But the average person who has more than 2 animals takes care and cleans up after them. It's ridiculous to try to take away pets when shelters are so full and people are able to give loving homes.
- I agree to the exceptions. But 6 dogs AND 6 cats seems very high, especially if the animals are not neutered or spayed, that could quickly get out of hand. I think it should be 6 dogs and 6 cats IF the animals are fixed, but only 4 dogs and 4 cats if the animals are not fixed.
- If proper care and training can be provided no limit should be in place.
- 6 is already too many.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats in a household is too much and the welfare of the animals would be a huge concern.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats seem too high, it should be reduced.
- As long as there is a special application available for those that have more animals, I would limit this to 6 animals TOTAL.

- Unless you are a breeder or pet sitter etc, there is no need for that many animals in one house hold. Generally, in my experience, the people who have multiple animals like that (other than on farms) can't afford proper vet care or licensing and become back yard breeders at the expense of the animals health to make a few extra bucks
- I think that limit with those other exceptions is good for the city of Calgary. It limits the possibility of hoarding animals.
- If the person is a responsible pet owner, there should be no limit.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats? Give your head a shake people! Far too many animals in one house.
- Responsible pet ownership should not be penalized by having a limit places on how many animals one household can have, as long as there is adequate space and the animals are well cared for.
- 3 dogs/3 cats is enough unless there is an approved permit or a foster
- Fewer would be great
- I think 6 of each dogs and cats under normal circumstances is rather excessive. I would like to see this reduced to 3 each with the potential exceptions to remain as listed above.
- I don't believe the people who take care of their animals properly should have to pay the consequences of this
- I think a max. of 3 dogs and 4 cats and include all the potential exceptions.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is too many. Perhaps 6 pets (dogs and cats) total
- I support having no limit to the number of pets as long as good care standards are maintained
- Two pets are more than enough for any family. This will the owner to properly ensure the the family pet receives the best care, not only physically, but nutritional .
- Only breeders should be allowed to have this many animals for a short period of time.
- Restricting the number of pets is not going to fix the problem as the things listed above (excessive noise, defecation, and the well being of animals) is not determined by how many there are but by the person that owns them. It comes down to responsibility and not neglecting pets. The focus needs to be on addressing people that are irresponsible pet owners. NOT limiting the number of pets people can have as a whole.
- Six is too many for single family dwelling.
- Stop trying to nickle and dime us for you to make more money of us and always cry that's never enough. PUBLIC chools are ridiculously underfunded and it doesn't matter how much money you make, you never do your job. Always cutting public resources, charging more and blowing money in crap we don't need
- That's far too many animals on most city lots. Number should be based on lot or home size.
- 6 Of each is too many maybe 4
- How many animals I care for is none of your business. Your time and money would be better spent making sure people are on leash and picking up their poop
- Nobody needs more than two dogs or cats. Nobody.
- Na
- Unless there are concerns about welfare/fences/noise, I don't think limits of pets are necessary.

- Limits should remain what they are
- The city should only be able to limit pets to people who have recorded bad behaviour as owners.
- Backyard/illegal breeders.
- I think the city only needs to step in when the animals are being mistreated
- That's 12 animals per household? I think this should be based on square footage in order to encourage good animal welfare and healthy living. if you don't have enough room for that many pets you shouldn't be allowed to have that many pets.
- That's too many pets. People don't need more than 1 or 2 pets.
- Stop dictating the amount of pets we can have if they are behaving
- 12 animals on a property!?! in the city?! No. The exceptions I'm ok with but that is really excessive. I also think if you can't afford to licence your pet and care for it, you shouldn't have it and your fees shouldn't be waived.
- Daycares are a business, and should be licenced as such
- Six animals in one home is unreasonable. This is animal collecting or hoarding. There is no way that this is healthy for animals or humans to live like this.
- If pets are taken care of there should be no limit
- Six seems like a high number, especially for dogs. I don't feel as though any house in an urban setting is suitable for that many dogs, except perhaps small dogs. Consider having different categories such as 6 small dogs , or 3 large dogs (and if a mix, 1 large dog would be equivalent to two small dogs). I also think their needs to be some restrictions on number of dogs allowed for breeders.
- 6 dogs & 6 cats.... thats alot of animal crap, vet bills. It should be 3 cats & 3 dogs.
- 6 pets is too much. Limit to 2 or 3 max.
- This is a lot of animals in 1 home and should not be allowed
- This still seems like too many animals
- 6+6 is too many animals per household. Any exceptions should gave to apply for exemption under strict guidelines.
- Who needs that many animals?!
- I believe there should be a limit, there is no need to have more then 3 dogs and a couple cats, anymore and its hoarding and irresponsible.
- Why does it matter what other people do. If the animals are in a safe and healthy environment then it's up to the owner how many they want
- The number of pets I care for is not a city matter - this is my personal choice and very communist of the city to consider.
- Cuz that's stupid
- I know people who are animal lovers that have more than 6 dogs or cats and take great care of them. There are no issues.
- Breeders/ rescue should be allowed to keep more animals

- There is no reason to limit the numbers of pets someone has unless they are reported and proven to not be able to care for them all.
- So many exemptions there wouldn't be a limit in many cases. And 6 dogs is a lot unless they are well trained.
- there are so many loud dogs and zero enforcement in my opinion. It would be so much worse with 6 being allowed.
- 12 animals in a single home is excessive. Even 6 animals in a single home is excessive. Seems like it's borderline hoarding
- The number of dog owned should be irrelevant if they are properly taken care of. Many of the "problem dogs" that are not cared for properly live in single-dog households
- Excessive animals
- I think the current 2 dogs, 2 cats per household is acceptable and that additional animals should be applied for.
- Only exception would be for registered breeders
- No restrictions if the animals are well cared for
- I think the list of exceptions is too long. Daycares and service animal trainers sure. Other, probably not
- Potential of 12 animals in one residence is very concerning. Leads to hoarders, backyard breeders, unlicensed 'daycares'
- That is too many animals. Why would anyone need 6 dogs and 6 cats. Way too many.
- Homes are used for rescues and fostering with fluctuating numbers
- Because if I'm a breeder I can't judge on how many pups my dog will have
- It is none of your business how many animals I have if they are being cared for and cleaned up after.
- the limit is fine.
- I don't think there should be a limit
- no i do not support this if they wish to have more pets and can properly take care of them no bylaw to restrict
- People should have the right to own as many pets as they want as long as they are taking proper care of the animals.
- I believe the exceptions are reasonable to apply to the current limits of animals per household. Six each of both cats and dogs seems like too many animals per home.
- I agree with exceptions listed but those exceptions should be applied to the existing limit of 2 animals per household
- Having that many animals In a city dwelling is not fair to the animals.
- I would increase the amount if animals that can be owned but I would max at 3 or 4 each. But I believe 6 each is too many for any person. I believe the exemptions are okay.
- You did not explain what the current limits are. You mention suggestions. 3 is the right number and after that you have to have a permit for more than 3 animals.

- As is, this doesn't account for household size. A mansion will hold more animals comfortably as compared to a condo.
- No
- 6 is too many. Should allow no more than 2 with the stated exceptions.
- It is impossible to financially take care of that many animals for some people
- If the animals are properly taken care of and have access to food, shelter and proper veterinary care, the amount of animals owned in a home is irrelevant. It is their home, they should have the freedom to own whatever they like.
- 6 dogs and cats is way too many. The limit should be like 2 maybe 3
- Having 6 dogs and 6 cats in one household is too much! It should be 2 dogs and 2 cats seems reasonable.
- Two dogs is enough. I am concerned about their welfare.
- There is no need for a private residence to own 6 cats and or dogs. 3 cats or dogs maximum.
- The bylaw should be based on actions i.e. are the pets cared for & cleaned up after. Otherwise people will do it anyways and just not license the pets so nobody knows unless there is a problem.
- The number of pets doesn't define the responsibility of the owners
- 6 is too much!
- A household with 2 pets can cause noise and dirt issues and I know if multiple pet families that are immaculate. The number of pets isn't the issue - it's the owners
- quit trying to rule every facet of people's lives. If they are responsible pet owners. They can do what they want. If they are not, then laws should pertain to them.
- Keep it the same. No need to change this bylaw.
- 6 is too many.
- Why support a limit on pets that can be trained, but not humans that are disrespectful or grow up with no manners
- I don't know what the current limit is but 6 of each seems like too many.
- That number of combined animals, or any combination thereof remains excessive. 6 combined is pushing the limit in my opinion.
- That is too many animals to take care of their welfare. There is more chance of attacks between animals and people in house hold. Not enough room to keep dogs exercised unless the owners have an acreage, it's not a healthy environment.
- Keep it the same. Too many animals.
- You can be responsible for dogs and cats without a limit
- six cats and 6 dogs are way, way too many for a household!! Too much noise, feces, lack of proper attention to the individual animals I think a maximum of 4 pets in total would be very generous.
- There should be owner accountability on animals in the home. If unable to uphold then that family/person is subject to the 2 pet max. People who care for pets and their homes should not be subject to bylaws that are intended for those who don't take care.
- There should be no limit

- Agree with the 2
- That seems like a lot of animals for an urban area. Is there a way to enforce the amount of space these animals have?
- I think as long as pets are properly taken care of then you should have a limit.
- If the animals are well taken care of I don't believe there should be a limit. If complaints arise they should be investigated and taken seriously.
- I think 3 is a reasonable number of animals per household
- There should be no limit
- You don't limit the number of human children a household can create so why would it be appropriate to regulate the number of four legged family members.
- As long as the animals are cared for, their feces are cleaned up and they are not excessively loud, why should you dictate how many pets someone can own?
- The size of the household affects this
- 6 of each is too many for one household to properly care for, walk safely and clean up after...reduce to limit of 4, even if inherited.
- I have lived in a household with four adult people and between those four people there has been 7 dogs. Because there were four adults in the home the dogs were not only well managed but well taken care of.
- It is for the city to decide who owns what
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is too high without a permit
- If someone is willing and able to care for however many pets they choose to have then they should be allowed.
- 6 is too many for proper care. Maximum of 3 is more reasonable
- As long as the animals are well cared for it's not an issue, if neglected than yes
- I don't think there should be a limit to how many persons can own as long as they are being taken cared of.
- The current bylaws already address appropriate animal care. As long as the owner is caring for the animals according to bylaw, I see no reason to enforce limits on number of animals.
- A responsible pet owner should not have to limit their pets to a set maximum amount
- If the animals are well kept and welfare is not an issue. This should not change.
- It is too many for a residential household. It protects the welfare of the animals by having fewer not more on a property. I feel this proposed change is crazy.
- 6 + 6 is too many animals. Should be less.
- Even six dogs and/or six cats is far too many per household. Certainly would not want to see special applications allowing even more than this. It's the noise factor for me. There's enough noise in the city without incessant barking of dogs left in yards when people go out for a few hours at a time.
- I think a cap of 3 owned of each per house hold.
- I don't think there should be a limit on pets owned in one household as long as they are being properly cared for.

- I would support this change if the exceptions above were implemented. As indicated "potential exceptions" I would want a guarantee that the potential exceptions were absolute exceptions.
- Welfare checks should be done on any person who owns more than 6 of a breed, however if proper care conditions are clearly met (medical needs, etc) then a person who can properly provide for those animals not be penalized
- I do not support restricting numbers of pets.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats sound excessive and highly likely an issue for neighbors. This amount of animals generates very strong odors from relieving themselves.
- Presuming you are responsible and caring for each of your animals it shouldn't matter how many someone has
- I think its ludicrous to have 12 animals in a household who's going to monitor/ensure all household pets are licensed? Also 6 dogs or cats is excessive, most people wouldnt get a license for that many pets. the fecal matter on their property would be disgusting and most cat owners in this city allow their cats to roam at large, huge problem right now look at yyc pet recovery and other lost/found pet facebook groups, its staggering how many cats are let to roam free and the owners admit it.
- Why make more new laws that are useless
- Why 6? That seems ridiculously high. Two cats & two dogs is more than enough, with exceptions made for animals that are being fostered & need the care.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats in a household is too many. There is absolutely no way that someone could take care of that many animals properly.
- As long as they are taking care of the animals properly they are providing a healthy home
- there shouldn't be a limit as long as animals properly cared for
- The only exceptions I support are fosters and daycares (fully licensed).
- Licensed dog breeders that follow a code of ethics should be exempt
- 6 of each is waaaaay too many animals.
- I feel the limit should be lower than 6 dogs and cats. That still seems incredibly high and I am not confident a household could adequately care for 12 animals in a responsible manner - not to mention control them. I would suggest a 2 dogs and 2 cats limit. I would specifically be more concerned with 6 dogs as this evokes an image of a dog pack.
- Noone needs 6 cats / dogs, this is hoarding!
- If the animals don't cause problems, then there should be no limit
- Stay in your lane. This isn't a dictatorship and you have no right to tell someone how many animals they can own especially if they are responsible owners,
- Why do cats need a licence when they can't go outside?
- 6 is way too many
- For residential properties, there is no need for an increased pet limit as it. Space, noise, neglect and dedication issues would all be of my top concerns.
- If someone owning a large number of pets is causing any of the issues stated above then that should be handled on a case by case basis. People who are responsible pet owners and don't allow those issues to occur should not be subject to even more fines and lengthy application processes.

- I think there should be a TOTAL of 6 be it cats or dogs
- Too many
- If there is a bad situation happening with someone owning an excessive amount of animals that's a problem but how the hell is this going to help that? "Hey I'm abusing animals but like... it's legal to have more than 6 so guess I'm doing nothing wrong!!" (????????) you have the right intention but this makes no sense. Also who gives a [removed] that there's a bunch of dog poop in someone's yard? Get a life hahahahaha
- You would be penalizing the responsible dog and cat lovers out there. It's unfair to restrict what people are allowed to have if they are being responsible owners.
- Limiting animals on private property if they are being properly cared for is ridiculous.
- If people are responsible pet owners who pay for their licenses and care for their animals then I don't believe the City has a right to tell people how many pets they can have
- non commercial ownership should be limited to 4 dogs and 4 cats maximum
- 6 is too many
- Not all breeds bark. There's no proof that an increased number of pets will drive accumulation of feces on the property if those are picked up. This is a very discriminating proposal driven by an anti-pets agenda.
- That's too many
- As long as people look after and clean up after their cats and dogs its no ones business
- Governmental over reach
- I think the current bylaw is satisfactory.
- I believe that other issues (waste accumulation, noise, animal welfare) stemming from having a large number of pets would be better dealt with by having specific bylaws and/or laws in place.
- People should be allowed to run their property as they see fit. Though if complaints are made against the owner and the property regarding these issues Then bylaw can step in and make adjustments.
- Na
- Too much government regulation.
- Total of 6 cats OR dogs per property
- To many mixed questions that do not fit or are in conflict with each other. Support Dogs/cats under 6 months of age Temporary homes (fosters, breeders, pet sitters, daycares) Dogs/cats that are inherited Dogs/cats that are grandfathered in if the rules change. Not the rest. Backyard breeders are profiting off the abuse of poor breeding habits. Licenced breeders must be a certified breeder.
- 6 animals is too much within city limits
- Too many animals
- I think it should be based on the square footage and land availability of your current dwelling. For instance, 6 dogs in a 1000sqft house with a small backyard is way too many for that dwelling, but a 4000sqft home could accommodate that. I would keep the exceptions to the rule however.

- People may rent properties together and they may each own their own animals (renting a room in a house and sharing the house with multiple different people). As long as there are not complaints and the animals are well taken care of then it should be okay.
- Maximum should be lower, perhaps 3 dogs and/or 3 cats. With the exceptions listed, and an application/permit would be required for more animals.
- While I think this change sounds generous, I believe it should be decided on a case to case basis. Someone could have more than the allotted number, but are very diligent pet owners, or someone could have 1 or 2 pets, and not take proper care of them.
- I value freedom
- is causing poor conditions for the animal
- 4 is enough. And all pets in the city should be spayed/ neutered. No breeding so no need to allow a higher number of young animals.
- If you own or rent your own home, you should be able to do what the [removed] you like unless you are causing a nuisance or trouble
- People should be able to own as many animals as they want as long as they are properly being taken care of, if they own 6+ animals there should be a way for them to be checked on to reduce back yard breeding
- Too many!! I love animals and would own tons if I could. The problem is people don't know their limits. I say 3 dogs and 3 cats is plenty.
- 6 of each is way to much seems more like a puppy farm
- I think that encourages breeding and poor animal welfare due to the sheer cost.
- Long as people are being responsible why not give the chance for animals to stay out of the crap tasting shelters?
- As long as the person can take care of the sentient beings they have the bylaw shouldn't change
- I like the idea of a limit in the case is that it prevents animals from suffering in situations where the pet owners cannot care for all of them. But for a responsible pet owners I feel this restriction is unfair. More than anything I believe that there should be more authority to be able to remove animals in situations where they are not being cared for.
- A responsible owner is responsible no matter how many animals they have.. irresponsible owners can be a single pet owner. Deal with the problem person on a one to one basis
- It is not fair to judge that a quantity of animals will automatically result in the lack of care, irresponsibility of owner that this implies. Many breeders or enthusiasts can care for quite a few animals better than some individuals who only have one.
- This would add work and take resources to enforce, the calls for people "breaking" these rules would increase. If the rules stay the same the resources designated to implement this can go toward humane calls, the concerns listed this rule would alleviate are responsible pet ownership and an irresponsible owner would still have issues with odour, feces and noise.
- 6 dogs n 6 cats is way too many
- No more than 3 such animals per single detached home. One animal if you live in an attached home. Excess temporary permits can be available for additional $50/year.

- I think this is too many animals. I would be okay with a total of 6 animals maximum (any combo of cats and dogs).
- I believe a household should be allowed to have any many animals as wanted as long as all are treated properly, fed properly, has the room to do so, and licensed.
- That is too many dogs/cats per household. I would say 4 dogs and cats is enough and if a household wants more they should need to fill out a special application
- No one should have more than 4 dogs per household unless they are operating a rescue organization. Breeding should be illegal until stray and reservation dog numbers decrease
- Less government oversight is what Calgary needs. More by-laws and fines won't do anything to deter irresponsible people.
- I do not think there should be a set limit. If animals are being taken care of then there should be no issue. Perhaps imposed checks to check on animal welfare could happen. Or applying for a special permit to house x number of animals in one residency.
- To many animals
- The bylaw does not account for size of the home- 6 dogs in a small townhouse versus 6 dogs in a large detached home with a spacious yard is very different.
- Let responsible people be responsible
- yes but!!! Breeders should not be allowed to have more than 2 dogs or else someone will breed all 6 and run a puppy mill.
- |
- fostering animals, especially large litters is a good thing, it should be based on size of propertypropertyf properly
- I used to work in the dog industry and know many families with over 6 dogs. All well behaved and well taken care of. The limit won't stop the people that don't take care of their animals.
- I think 6 and 6 is too many. 4 cats and 4 dogs seems very reasonable within the city
- Lots of people are capable of caring for more than the above stayed number of animals, while there are others who struggle with just one. Welfare laws should be enforced rather than a specific number of pets.
- One animal per household is sufficient
- I don't think there should be a limit is the owner is providing a safe home, food, water, shelter, enrichment, and does Not disturb neighbours.
- I don't think there should be limit
- I think that the amount of animals in a home should also be determined by the size of the household. Having 6 dogs and 6 cats in a 600sq foot house would not be ideal. Say 1 dog 1 cat in a home up to 900 square feet. Licensing should be mandatory when you bring an animal home. It should not be able to leave the breeder, pet store, shelter without being registered so there is some sort of tracking for the animal. If someone is attempting to sell dogs for income this might be a red flag that maybe this person or people should be red flagged and dogs removed from premises if they are going against the law. People are sick and there are people that need to be held responsible in a higher protocol for animal abuse, animal neglect, etc. It's not enforced enough so people don't take it seriously.

- Calgary has done well with no restrictions. If Calgary chose to have a restriction I would like agree with all of the ones listed above. Rescues could even provide an ongoing list (quarterly, twice a year) with foster homes.
- 6 is too many
- The amount of animals does not determine the care they are getting. Some people can't handle even one pet, but many highly competitive dog trainers can handle many dogs and give them the best life.
- I have seen households with 1-2 animals be in terrible condition and filthy living conditions, where other households have plenty more and be in pristine condition. It all depends on the owner and how they care for the animals. As long as the animals have clean living conditions, shelter, food and water, there should be no restrictions to number.
- My moms neighbour has 6 huskies and she doesn't clean up their poop or urine that is on the deck. We can't enjoy the backyard or have windows open because it smells horrible and wafts into the house. in the winter time she leaves them on the deck and they bark and howl a lot. no one needs 12 pets at once unless they have an acreage. I feel like allowing that many pets would create issues especially with those who are not responsible pet owners (previously mentioned neighbour for example) its not fair for the neighbours or for the pets, especially if the living conditions suck. the number of pets should be based on the size of the land/house I think.
- If you can properly care for the animals, I see no need to limit the number.
- I believe the limit should be 4 cats or 4 dogs.
- No matter the amount of animals as long as they are properly cared for. Perhaps owning over 6 pets you are subject to an inspection to ensure their living conditions are adequate.
- You cannot limit the number of pets for great families
- Les animals per household.
- If everything is clean and safe... why bother?
- If animals are well trained, and owners are responsible why limit the number? There is a fine for noise and other complaints.
- I like the bylaw the way it is now. I strongly oppose changing it. As long as the animals are fixed, licensed, properly cared for and not running free there is no need to limit the number. It is not necessary to change this rule.
- people should be allowed as many animals as they are financially and timely able to care for.
- 3 dogs is plenty, not 6. I agree with your exceptions.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is to many
- The amount of animals should be less.
- That is a really high number of pets. I would suggest a combined total of 5 cats and dogs in one home.
- 6 pets is way too many. It should be no more pets than adult residents at most
- I would have concerns about husbandry of that many pets within city limits.

- The limit should be based on the SIZE (square footage) of the home and if there is a backyard. 4 dogs in one apartment/condo is too many. The only exceptions should be fosters.
- Only if God fathered in and doesn't impact rescues
- I don't believe this is a manageable number for a single household. 4 of each would be excessive. 6 would put the animals at risk.
- As long as the pets are properly cared for with ample space without intruding on neighbours quality of life then there's no problem. Location and living conditions / space are what really need to be assessed
- I believe to be allowed to have 12 animals in a household in the city is just asking for trouble, maybe increasing to 3 cats and 3 dogs? Or even have the exception that if you only have dogs you could have 6 and vice versa.
- If someone is a reputable home, it makes no sense as to why they should be restricted
- There seems no need for civil intrusion in this matter
- I think as long as the animals are well taken care of and all laws are followed there should be no limit per household
- 4 pets is too much. A fur family pet is there as a family member not to consume more than two
- Very few homes would have enough space to properly accommodate that many animals.
- I agree with raising the limit but not to 6 of each animal. Dog and cats are expensive to maintain with food, vaccines, supplies etc. I have seen in many cases that the increased amount allowed then lowers the quality of life for the animals due to not enough time, money and resources being available to the animals. I believe that 4 of each should be the accepted number and then if the owner would like more, added licenses need to be obtained.
- I think there should be no limit as long as animals are being cared for properly. I would like to see some limits and rules set for breeders thought I avoid puppy mill or hoarding type situations
- I do not think most people are capable of taking care of 12 pets. Even 6 is more than necessary.
- People can successfully care for large numbers of animals and do so frequently.
- 6 is way to many 2 is plenty
- 6 dogs and 6 cats seems an excessive increase. I would support 3 dogs and 3 cats.
- That is too many animals for one household.
- No limits as long as all licensed
- I have 3 dogs and I do not think this is excessive.
- I find 6 to be excessive 4 maximum seems more manageable.
- 12 animals is too much. I think it depends on the home square footage as well as the land size. 12 animals in a 600sqft condo is much different than 12 animals on an acreage. Also if license fees are reduced for lower income perhaps the limit should be lower so the animals care is managed reasonably.
- I support this law but it MUST MUST include temporary homes. We currently have a rescue that has people fostering way more dogs than they should. We must. Must regulate rescues.
- As long as the animals are well taken care of it shouldnt matter, if you are a responsible pet owner. Those that arent need to be adressed

- 6 is too many
- If the animals are being cared for it isn't any one else's business, and imposing a limit would impact people's ability to foster/ rescue, or cause people to get rid of pets. There's too many animals in needs of home already to limit
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is excessive for a typical home environment. 3 adult cats and or 3 adult dogs is plenty for any single family home.
- 12 animals (maximum) in one residential household is excessive, particularly as there seems no reference to unit size (condo v. single household dwelling v. size of yard)
- 6 Dogs and 6 Cats is excessive
- Max of 3 each
- because what if multiple people live in the house with multiple dogs, or people foster dogs etc
- Other bylaws and fines can address the issues. Cost of implementation for a small problem
- I think it should be the persons choice
- no limit on animals. As long as they are licensed and well cared for, there should be no concern.
- I believe 3 would be an appropriate limit of dogs AND cats per household.
- I'm not sure
- Having worked in partnership with by-law, SPCA, and animal protection officers in my professional life, I appreciate why a by-law of this type would be valuable. That said, strictly speaking, I do not feel that a by-law of this nature would differentiate between animals being abused and not.
- The limit should be kept at two unless owners are successful in applying/justifying a higher number.
- Six dogs AND six cats in a Calgary household? Unless the house is over 5000 square feet, that is too many animals. It does not benefit the animals, owners, or neighbours. I feel five animals per household is more than enough.
- For some people, it's their companionship
- Different sized properties can accommodate more animals. Shelters run out of households would not be able to operate and they save animals lives. There is no need to limit the number of animals a person owns, should we limit the number of children people can have? Talk about a dictatorship.
- This seems unreasonable, and overly controlling.
- As long as all animals have the necessities, there should be no limit or extra tax applied.
- As long as the animals are cared for properly, and not causing problems there should be no interference. Why only limit cats and dogs, why not reptiles or birds?
- 12 animals in 1 house is absurd. Nobody can properly care for than many animals. I think 6 animals (dogs and cats combined) is much more reasonable. I agree with the exceptions listed above.
- What happens if I have 1 dog and meet a girl with 2 dogs and move in together.. would that mean we have to rehome a dog? That would be unfair to owners and pets
- Holy crap, that's a farm! Even rural areas have lower limits on dogs. Add chickens and pigeons to the mix and Calgary would be a very unpleasant place to stay.
- I think the number of pets should depend on a size of the house/condo. If the condo apartment is 1-2 bedroom than no more than 2 pets allowed. And it must be calculated for other types of property.

- . It's about being responsible
- If looked after and healthy and happy what gives this counsel the right to tell people how to live their lives
- I support restricting the number of animals in a household, for all of the reasons stated above. 6 Dogs and cats in a household is a lot of animals to take care of and probably would be quite stressful for the animals (the owners have choices here, the animals don't)
- There should be no limit if the pets are taken proper care of.
- Every circumstance is different. No need to proactively enforce this.
- 6 dogs AND six cats is way too many animals
- I think owners with 1-2 dogs can have excessive barking and feces just as easily as someone with over 6 dogs. It's the knowledge and responsible owners that make a difference on training and cleanliness of their animals
- I have 2 dogs and 2 cats - all well cared for - limits should be. An excessive number
- As long as every animal has access to proper care and being looked after, without harm to the pets, people or property then no limits.
- If people can have an excess amount of kids which are more noisy and destructive than animals, then I should be able to have as many animals as I want. Once again, my house, my rights, I pay taxes. I prefer animals to kids. I hate kids and have to put up with excessive number of kids. I have no recourse when kids run through my front yard and flower beds.
- The restrictions on animal ownership should be based on conditions in the home, not on number of animals. If someone can keep noise, cleanliness, etc. standards then they should be allowed to have whatever they want.
- A change in the bylaw may be more applicable in a rural setting ie. Farms, acreage, however the average urban/suburban household certainly would not have the space for up to 12 animals and I can't imagine all pets would get the attention it deserves. A reasonable limit would be 3 dogs and 3 cats.
- Nightmare to enforce. Kinda like the bs mask bylaw
- I think 6 is too many. If people are already complaining about licensing fees then they shouldn't have more than 4 of each pet. 6 is something to be considered on rural areas.
- I think more than 6 cats & 6 dogs in one urban house is a recipe for escapees and further feral problems
- There are many people who participate in dog sports who responsibly maintain more than 6 dogs. Someone not picking up pet feces has nothing to do with number of animals but entirely with how someone cares for their animals. Limiting numbers will only encourage people not to participate in pet licensing programs
- As an animal welfare advocate, I do not support the idea of a single home having 6 dogs and 6 cats. I believe a more reasonable number would be 3 of each before special permitting be necessary for excess animals.
- 12 cats/dogs on one property is outrageous. There needs to be a limit. We live in a city with small lots.

- People who already have this amount or more will need to rehome
- Tons of breeders in Calgary
- shouldn't be able to limit what someone can own, impeding our rights as human beings, plus way to many variables to apply a standard across the city, property type, owner type, animal type etc
- Yes I would support a limit. Exception people who breed don't have a limit so long as the environment is assessed and said to be safe for the amount of animals that are owned and breed. I think with large numbers the environment should always be assessed.
- Depends on circumstance of household
- Some properties are large enough to accommodate more pets. Animals need a home.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is a lot! That's a lot of feces and a lot of smell and noise. If someone were to be a breeder they should require a special permit to have 6 dogs/cats which should be open to regular inspections
- Enough bylaws! I am not willing to sacrifice any more personal liberties.
- 6 pets total, 6 cats and 6 dogs is too much
- We don't need more government involvement where not needed. If people are following responsible pet ownership, you don't need to control how many pets they have
- I support increasing the limit; however, a maximum of six dogs and six cats (total 12 animals) is unnecessarily high for urban residential areas. Recognize that the City of Calgary is an urban area with generally high density housing. Proximity to that many animals is high. I would expect to see the suggested maximum quantity of animals in a rural setting.
- It is an owners responsibility to ensure their animals have proper care, access to proper vet, fed and waters, cleaned up after. It is up to the city to ensure the owner is following the by laws.
- people can do what they want to do in their own homes
- No one needs or can manAge that many animals
- No one needs that many animals in the city its not fair to said animals and would cause issues with neighbors
- What difference is a limit of 6 dogs going to make than say a home with 8 or more. It only takes one dog to create a nuisance or a mess or to be neglected. Responsible pet ownership has nothing to do with numbers; someone who collects animals with no regard to their care will do so regardless of what bylaw is in place.
- Too many
- If the person is responsible qnd dogs or cats are well taken care of
- Far too high a #. Encourages backyard breeding, esp given you're excluding animals under 6 months. No one needs 6 adult dogs or cats. If they wish to have that many, they should be forced to go the route of business licensing. Currently, how many backyard breeders report their income for tax purposes?
- I agree with all the exceptions, but do not agree with the limit of 12 animals, if none of the exceptions apply
- Too high of a number
- It's fine

- It is not the amount of animals a person owns it is how they care for them.
- maybe for: Temporary homes (fosters, breeders, pet sitters, daycares) everything else is too grey and 12 animals is alot to manage and not fair to neighbors
- The limit shouldn't be a maximum, but there should be a track record of instances where complaints or animals are abused so they can be removed after 3 strikes.
- 12 animals in a household is too many. I would say 6 pets total is more than enough.
- As long as the animals are licensed and cared for, vet care, food/water, shelter. I don't believe making a limit will change anything, people who hoard or have more than 6 animals will just avoid licensing them to avoid being caught
- I think the bigger problem here is irresponsible breeding, not the responsible owners who have enough space and money to have 9 cats and 7 dogs. The responsible breeders who actually keep their animals after retirement manytimes end up with quite a few dogs, but if they are responsible, registered, ethical and reputable then what's the problem.
- I have seen homes with one dog that you cannot see the grass due to all the poop and I've seen homes with multiple dogs where I would be comfortable walking barefoot
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many - period. Maybe max 4 pets.
- As long as the person is following the noise compliance and odour, while caring for their animals without being a hoarding situation where the animals are not being cared for, a person should have the choice of owning any amount of animal they like.
- As long as people are taking care of their animals, we shouldn't be allowed to tell someone how many pets they can have.
- No. Again, if the owner is responsible and the animals are in good shape, the city has no right to interfere.
- That's too many pets per household. 3 would be a better number.
- Many people are able to properly support and care for more than 6 animal on a property.
- You don't need that many pets in the house permanently
- Number of animals doesn't make you less responsible
- The city should have no say in how many animals I want to own
- If the owner is responsible should be no issue.
- There's different circumstances for each person and this is not a one size fits all situation some people shouldn't even be allowed to own one pet where is others are capable and care well for 8 dogs so I disagree with this
- This will not stop hoarders but could potentially punish responsible owners so it does not solve the issues
- There is no need for 12 animals in the home unless you are part of the exceptions.
- This is a decision that should be made by the individual not bylaw.
- Require owners to specify a reason for owning more than two dogs or cats. Breeders can get a license two on more dogs.
- Unless breeding or fostering dogs and/or cats, there is no reason to have that many animals.

- I cannot support this since the exemptions listed are "POTENTIAL". I know many breeders and people that compete in dog sports. Many of them have several dogs. It's not about HOW MANY, it's about: Are they under control? Are they cared for? I cannot support a limit on pets per household with nebulous terms such as 'potential exemptions'. ONE dog can create excessive noise, and accumulation of faeces, and not be taken care of... .
- The entire reason we have the APA and bylaw enforcement is to ensure people are caring properly for their animals. A person with 1 dog can be just as neglectful as someone with 10, and many people with a larger number of pets are pet professionals, trainers, breeders etc who hold themselves to the highest standards of care. If there is a complaint regarding the care of the animals, it should be treated the same as any other complaint. A hoarder is going to hoard, regardless of the bylaws. As someone who has a dog from a hoarder, the bylaws in that area did nothing to protect her.
- 6 and 6 is still a crazy number. Very few single family houses are large enough for that number of animals
- Lots in Calgary are too small to allow this number of animals, let others enjoy their private yards
- Who in the world needs to own 6 dogs and 6 cats in one house! That's a lot of animals!! If anything the limit should be lowered to a more reasonable number.
- Some households have many people in them and thus they can take care of many dogs if these dogs are personal animals.
- No reason too. Either people are responsible or they're not.
- As somebody that works in Veterinary Medicine, very few people can afford veterinary care for their animals. Very few people would be able to afford licensing, vaccines, food, etc for the allotted amount of animals described above.
- There is no reason to limit how many pets a household can have as long as the environment is appropriate.
- The only ones that need that amount of animals in their home in a city should be someone that's fostering animals
- The number of animals has nothing to do with responsibility of ownership. Bad owners don't follow the rules
- Opportunity for problems
- You can have 1 animal that is a problem or 6 that are not. Numbers are not the problem
- 6 of each seems like a lot of pets
- That is a very high number and I can see more complaints arising around noise, feces, etc
- The limit is too high at 6. I would support up to 3 in the city
- Some people are equipped to handle that many animals
- Calgary does not need a dog or cat limit period. A limit will not stop a hoarding situation, this is a mental disorder. Some people cannot look after one day, others can successfully care for 6 or more. I do not see a reason to fix something that isn't broken. Calgary is an example to the rest of Canada that limits are not necessary. You can have people with 6 or more dogs license them all for income to the city or they will conveniently not have them all licensed. Slippery slope. At what point does 6 turn into 4 and then 2??? Leave it be!

- This wouldn't be a fair bylaw, if you have the space and it's not crowded, there should not be a limit.
- It's a city, not a country acreage. 2 animals is reasonable, , with exceptions as noted above.
- If animals are not in danger or a danger to anyone else, and are managed in a responsible and respectful manner there should be no limit.
- There is absolutely no way that anyone can properly care for 6 dogs and 6 cats. People should be unable to have any more than 3 dogs and a total of 6 pets.
- There is no reason to have that many animals. They will not get the individual attention they require. This is a hoarding issue.
- There should be NO limit. If the household is providing and being responsible and taking care/following rules then neighbors should mind thier own business and his should not be a concern
- I support the exceptions but 6 dogs AND 6 cats per household I don't limit should be at 4
- People should be able to have as many as they can take care of.
- 6 is way to many. 4 max
- I don't support most of the exemptions that you suggest. They would make the bylaw useless
- If someone had 6 dogs and 6 cats that is too many per house. o support 6 cats or dogs unless one of those exemptions comes in to play
- That's still a lot of animals to a property. Should keep it to a total of 6 dogs and cats.
- 6 is too many I suggest 3
- No reason to change the current bylaw.
- That's too many dogs or cats to care for properly in one house.
- There are already plenty of existing avenues to deal with neglect of care and noise and what not. I don't believe my neighbor with multiple dogs (more than 6) should be punished because folks with mental illness like horders exist. I would rather live next to the 8 dogs, than the 4 kids in the home on the otherside of me. Also, those 8 dogs are better cared for on the whole. I don't think you should have the right to dictate how many pets folks can care for. Lots of animals need homes, including foster homes, and lots of lonely people have no other family. Don't meddle. Deal with issues if/when they arise as is your role. Lots of folks are too irresponsible for one dog, while other people adequately care for a dozen thriving dogs with no need ever for intervention. Don't restrict people's freedoms, because morons exist.
- I have 5 dogs and 1 cat. All are licensed. We do not have feces everywhere, nor do our dogs cause a nuisance. Number limits should only be imposed on problem households.
- That is too many animals for one household
- I own a pitbull and this is absolutely stupid
- Unless the animals are a direct issue and complains have been filed several times, let people own however many animals they want to own. This bylaw can result in an increased number of strays and shelter animals. Shelters are already overcrowded as is.
- Limits should be applied, anything over the limit should be subject to increased charges and require special permitting defining the reason.

- Special circumstances only
- As long as there are no complaints or breeding, I don't see a problem. Shelters/rescues are fine also.
- If the animal welfare is not compromised, then the owner should be able to keep as many as they want in their own property.
- It is not necessary to have hoards of animals when considering the well being of the animals. A 12 animal household within city limits is extreme.
- As long as people are being responsible they should be able to do have as many animals as they can care for.. There are already bylaws for noise as an example that can be applied if a person is being irresponsible.
- 6 is too many. It would be difficult to exercise that many dogs.
- If animals are well cared for there shouldn't be a limit.
- One dog can be more of a nuisance than large number dog homes.. you will find most your larger numbers are owned by responsible owners with no nuisance situations. set guidelines and expectations and fine when that doesn't happen NOT set a limit. I can name about 15 owners you have never had a complaint on that have 10 dogs... their neighbors also love them.
- 12 animals is a huge undertaking and most people cannot afford that many pets/proper healthcare/good food. People will take advantage of that number and we may see an increase in the already too high pet population because of irresponsible pet owners. Neglect may rise as well.
- Current bylaw fine, there is no significant reason to change.
- 6 is too many. probably used for breeding, hard to maintain health for that many pets
- There are very responsible people who have more and the opposite who have less, just enforce the bylaw that's already there
- 3 of each should be sufficient
- As long as they are not breaking any other bylaws and all pets have regular healthcare it should not matter how many pets one owns. Existing bylaws already deal with complaints about noise, welfare of animals, and feces.
- The wording given in this question: "A pet limit would be six (6) dogs AND six (6) cats per household" makes the ownership of other animals for the purpose of companionship banned. Please revise.
- There are a million other issues not regulated that cause significantly bigger issues. This is how you want to use my tax dollars? To police the number of pets people have.
- Specific wording around other animals, birds, exotics should be included with this. And / or a financial means test against income allowing more animals if you have the money / square footage.
- Most properties in town are not large enough for that many animals. I feel the size of home and property should be considered in this
- No limit
- Fewer cats and dogs per household
- They can have whatever they want as long as the noise and smell and such don't affect the community.

- I know of homes where one animal causes more noise and disturbances to neighbours than houses of more than 6 quiet and well cared for animals. Just enforce the noise, leash and defecation bylaws is what is needed,
- If you can care for and have the space, there should not be limits.
- Too many animals unless it is a licensed/approved breeder.
- It could lead to further restrictions against smaller animals such as reptiles, rabbits, and birds
- If a person needs more than 2 or 3 pets in a house they should be bound by a permit that is enforceable. I love dogs, have had dogs most of my life. Even with that I do not support 6 dogs. I have a friend who trains int'l winning dogs in multiple sports. She could provide enough support for being an exception to the rule.
- I think that 6 cats/ dogs is too many. 4 is a better number. I support all other changes stated above
- Responsible owners should be able to have as many animals as they can keep healthy and responsible for. That should only be diminished when they are no longer doing so.
- I believe no more than 2 animals per household whether it be 2 dogs , 2 cats or 1 dog and 1 cat. the exceptions listed above are acceptable. The welfare of the animals is of utmost importance and the attention required that an animal needs most likely cannot be met with more than 2 animals.
- That is too many pets for one household
- no limit to love
- Jjhgyhjk
- Pet owners rarely take pet ownership seriously, they do not understand the real cost of humanely catering for a pet and increasing this limit puts animals at risk of not receiving proper care due to financial restraints, including food, supplements, vet visits, surgeries, training, kennels and appropriate housing and supplies for picking up after pets.
- Everyone is different and should be looked at as such.
- Having many dogs does not mean poor welfare, accumulation of feces or excessive noise. Instead of limiting dogs, increase fines and enforce of those infractions, whether it's 1 or 10 dogs on a property
- There is no need to change the current bylaw. Simply enforcing the current rules would be adequate.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is too many
- I do support this bylaw change, although I think foster homes should follow the same rules. If it's a shelter then can have more but if it's a foster home in a residential house the number should stay at 6 per animal to maintain their health and well-being.
- There is no need for that many animals
- I support this change, but restricted to four of either animal per household, save for the exceptions listed above.
- Bylaw should allow for as many animals as can be properly cared for. Not a specific number.
- Limits should be set on an individual basis based on compliance with existing noise and waste bylaws. Those who receive multiple complaints should be limited. Those with well behaved animals shouldn't be penalized.

- Too many pets people don't take care of and causes problems
- There should be no limit if the owner takes proper care of the animals AND is of sound mind and body. Anyone with a physical, physiological or mental disability that affects their ability to properly care for any animal should NOT be allowed to own any animals.
- 6 dogs is way too many. The limit should be 3, 4 at most.
- I am unaware of enough circumstances where pet ownership of 1-20 animals is an issue. It's the 30-200 animal households that are typically putting animals at risk.
- Too many
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is way too many animals to be able to care for properly. Also, to have control of properly. If dogs from the same pick show up at a dog park this is going to be a disaster.
- Seems micromanagement
- You should be allowed as many pets as you wish
- There is no possible way a person can care for that # of pets in the City. It is cruel and inhumane to have that many animals on a small city property! Ridiculous!
- That'll cause a huge excess in dogs that go up for adoption. If they live on a ranch then sure, however in the city I think 3 is a maximum
- There is absolutely no reason that a normal residential household needs 6 dogs or cats. I agree with stated exceptions, but under no reasonable circumstance can I see the need for 6 dogs in a home. That is excessive and unfair to neighbours.
- Why does one need 6 dogs in the city ?
- Six is to many.
- What constitutes household? Many young folks live with roommates. Say each person has a couple dogs -- two dogs per person that's only three people and limit is met, some of my friends live with over 5 people and all have pets. As long as they're all taken care of it shouldn't matter.
- Doesn't the city have better things to do, than limit personal pet ownership
- I have met plenty of incredible pet owners with 6+ dogs plus other animals and never had a problem. Punish those who create the issues, not those who are responsible pet owners.
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats are excessive for almost any normal household. I would support at most a combination of 6 cats and dogs. Beyond that and it gets unmanageable for most people and that is where you end up with issues (behaviour, cleanliness, welfare)
- Rescue foundations take larger than 6 dogs. Also it's an arbitrary number. Every situation is different. Just stay out of people's lives.
- as long as the animals are cared for properly and kept under control, no issues.
- I totally disagree with any household having more than 2 pets. It's not necessary and in a majority of the cases where a household has numerous pets the pets are abused and/or malnourished. Plus it's guaranteed recipe for feuding neighbor's..
- That is too many animals per home. I find it hard to believe that homes with this many animals would be able to Cate for them properly and maintain all of their health.
- Foster programs

- The city determining and appropriate, allowable number of animals on a property is ridiculous. The concerns raised during the first phase of engagement were likely from residents that have problem pet owners as neighbours or in their neighbour hood. Enforcing the nuisance, at large and owner infractions is more important than the NIMBY Calgarian's.
- That seems like a ridiculous number of animals for anyone to have at a city property.
- That's a zoo! The noise and smell would likely be high. Again, people wanting this kind of lifestyle should move to a rural area. I would suggest at a maximum 6 pets period.
- That is entirely too many animals in one home in the city. Exceptions for new litters should be made. Exceptions for special circumstances such as flooding or property damage should be made for families forced to temporarily move or stay with other families or friends with pets.
- "It is important to note that while pit bulls are not involved in more bite incidents than other dog breeds, the reason they are listed here is because a pitbull's strength allows the potential for a more severe bite." This is completely false and who'm ever put forth these certifiably false claims on a government website should be let go. All I can say is, this had better be changed because it's 2020 and bigoted government wont be tolerated.
- If they are not causing harm to others it is no ones business how many animals one owns
- I think depending on how many people there are per Household that the current limits are fair for both
- Scale number of animals based on square footage of domicile. One shouldn't have 12 animals in a two room apartment but a 1500 sq ft house would be able to handle the # of animals
- If they're able to care for them fairly, people should be allowed to have as many animals as they want.
- 12 pets per household is too many. sounds reasonable until the apartment dweller or small yard owner is irresponsible owner
- Should be 6 animals total I still think that's high
- I believe this number is too high. Animal hoarding and lack of control are indicated with lack of responsible pet ownership. This number should be lower for normal non-business use urban pet ownership. (3 dogs, 3 cats reasonable or 6 animal total - why decide for people). Also in regards to LESA - one would have to have reasonable confidence that psychologists and psychiatrists act professionally and we are not seeing this. The cost of associated therapies for trauma cost more than a dog licence therefore if this is the prescribed option then the client is obligated to maintain the therapy fully to be compliant. Not having the resources to licence, feed, nuture and control the animal is not a therapy that can be reasonably followed therefore irresponsible of the prescriber. Low income should not be a reason to apply a therapy nor should someone unwilling or unable to maintain the therapy. There are other avenues for resourcing this type of support
- I think when you allow 6 or more per household, you are opening a can of worms. People who want 6 animals are not going to stop at 6! I cannot imagine 6 yapping barking dogs next door it is bad enough that I have to hear my neighbours 2 dogs everyday at 6:00 am and 10:30 pm, could not imagine if they had 6!

- That is far too many animals for a home. I believe a maximum of 2 cats/dogs per household is appropriate. I worry about behaviour issues and medical issues in homes with a greater number of animals.
- Six is a lot of animals- double the dogs allowed in Edmonton for example
- 3 of each per household
- Lots of folks in animal rescue have more than this in their home at a time and lots give homes to animals that nobody else will take. Why should they be limited because of a couple irresponsible people. Again, not the animals that are the problem but rather the people.
- 6 is too many.
- More than 10 animals would be excessive.
- How many animals can one household provide quality care? More animals creates a higher probability of neglect.
- That limit is way too high. 3 dogs max
- Nobody needs six dogs or six cats in one home.
- As long as a person is capable of providing sufficient love, care and nutrition for the number of animals they have, there should be no limit.
- So if the pet owner is responsible and caring for their animals, I am likely not to know how many pets a person owns as long as these animals are on and in their property.
- Who are you to control how many pets I have. I pay a mortgage for the freedom of choices in some areas. As long as my pets are being taken care of and there's no complaints, the decision should rest with me.
- 3 of each max, too many problems with more.
- I can't say I would ever in my life exceed that living in the city. But I feel that if they are responsible pet owners, can clean up after them litters cleaned poop cleaned up and dogs are under control and not disturbing the neighbours. Ie responsible pet owner. I don't see why you can't have more. I would be more interested in seeing something more pet per sqft. Like 12 animals in a 1000 sqft home probably not ideal living space.
- Although i agree 6 dogs and cats should suffice for most anyone, i do not believe there should be a limit on pets, PROVIDING, all the pets are well looked after, with proper housing, feeding and veterinary care. Additionally the pets cannot be a nuisance to neighbours.
- Its not going to fix the problem situations you are trying to fix. This won't help hoarders or make puppy mills more accountable. Government should be imposing limits of animals or children.
- Right now you have everyone imposing restrictions on all of Canada, if you restrict animals people will leave
- If my animals are all healthy, registered and not stinking or making noise, why should it matter. Make a bylaw for those who do violate. Shut down the puppy mills in Forest Lawn.
- I want the current data to show that this is a problem first.
- Too many pets allowed in a single family. Should be limited to two pets.

- No dog limit, some can have many and not cause problems whereas someone who owns 1 is not responsible
- It is unclear how many households are affected and the money spent on this could be better invested in education
- There should not be 6 dogs or cats in a house, too many unless a breeder with a license
- while the bylaw is intending to curb puppy mills and breeders like this.. there is many detrimental controlling aspects.. frankly there shouldn't be any limit.
- I would, in theory, support this bylaw change, but available space should be considered for the health and safety both of the humans in the residence and the animals. A 500sqft condo will not allow the free space for a dozen animals that a 500sqft single family home with yard will.
- How many animals I have in my large home, provided they're all cared for and health and happy, is none of the City's business.
- I think that is still too many animals in one household.
- Why restrict people. As long as the animals are not an issue
- I think this is an owner issue and should be looked at case by case. I know many people that have multiple animals, cats and dogs.....you aren't going to eliminate the issue. People that continue to have issues with the above, should be fined more.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs in one household? No way! That is way too many animals in one building. Our neighbour has 9 untrained dogs that bark incessantly at every dog that passes by and the stench of feces is too much, especially in hot weather. A maximum of 5 animals (mix of cats and dogs) seems more reasonable.
- Consideration for any neighbours
- If the owner is responsible then it shouldn't matter the quantity. I have been to many houses with one barking dog that is more disruptive than another with 10 well behaved dogs.
- There are plenty of people in Calgary who have more pets than this or want more pets than this that care for their animals properly. I feel like this would ruin it for those people even with the grandfathering of the rule.
- I have a hard time believing that most calgarians could afford to properly care for 6 dogs and/or 6 cats. This number is too high.
- Other bylaws should be in place to ensure the safety of people and animals that doesn't restrict the amount of animals on a property.
- As long as the animals are looked after, premises are clean and there is no disturbance of neighbours
- Six and six is unreasonable. Reduce the numbers of both!
- Some people are very responsible pet owners, why punish them?
- I think six dogs and six cats (12 total) is excessive. Properly certified breeders possibly but for individuals 6/6 is way too many to afford proper care.
- 12 animals in 1 house is atrocious. I support the exceptions but 2 and 2 is more responsible.

- Many ppl have 1 pet..or child they don't take care of. Don't penalize the ones who take great care of their pets bc some don't. Will you limit number of children ppl cna have next? Sounds absurd? Maybe..but that thought starts somewhere
- Because some people will take advantage of the change . Who needs that many animals in the city ?
- Just because someone has lots of pets does not mean they are bad pets or getting treated bad.
- 6 is way too many households should be limited to two dogs, two cats
- The limit should be 2 well behaved pets per household.
- Unless a person is a recognized breeder, I don't believe a person can control more than 2 animals. Maintaining control of more than 2 animals is very difficult and I was a licensed dog breeder.
- 12 animals in a household seems like too much based on the average square footage of a Calgary home. Something along the lines of up to six dogs and up to six cats but not totaling more than eight animals per household. My preference is for a lower limit (say 4 animals) and then some simple criteria to progress to a higher limit (say 8 animals) that would be permitted and then increased criteria for animals above that. If a potential owner isn't willing to spend the money or take the time to get a permit for additional animals they probably shouldn't own so many pets anyways. Animal ownership is not a right.
- I believe 6 total pets in house (any combo of cat or dog), not 6 cats and 6 dogs. 12 pets per household is an absurd amount to unless it is to foster or breed. The barking noise of one dog is more than enough. And cats that don't stay indoors ruin my garden.
- We live next to a household that breed Pomeranian dogs. They have 5-6 at a time. They bark non stop when outside. Owners yell at them to be quiet but they only momentarily quiet. There absolutely should not be any more than 2 pets so owners adequately train and care for them.
- as long as the animal's are in good condition then there is no need, many people have 10 healthy and happy cats/dogs
- There should be no limit as long as they are all taken care of. maybe there could be a registry if someone has more than 6 dogs/cats to check on them rather than banning them
- 6 is way too many
- It should be a maximum of two adults cats and/or two adult dogs per household. Six is WAAAY to many!!
- If the owners are able to responsibly care for their animals, they do not deserve to be penalized.
- that's way to many animals a lot of people can't take care of one
- No need to limit
- The bylaw should restrict it to 2 cats and 2 dogs per household.
- 6 dogs and cats seems very high except in the care is foster homes, breeders, and those that raise animals for the betterment of all
- Unless you approved the property and the person before hand, nobody should have 6 dogs on a property unless they are an approved fully certified breeder. The hoarding scenarios could be terrible as we have seen in the past
- I typed this out twice and it kept being deleted.

- People should be able to own as many pets as they want as long as they can care for them and licensed them
- This limits breeders and trainers.
- Some people can manage a larger amount of animals in their home quite well....others cannot. Those who cannot should be penalized not those who can.
- If the owners are being responsible and can afford it then they should have the right.
- Why does The City need to be monitoring this. Handle the welfare calls and deal with poor owners don't make citizens follow new rules bc of a few bad owners.
- 12 animals per household is still too many given the implications of that many pets to neighbours
- 12???! Really?!
- I think the law of 6 feline 6 canine is very good ! i agree with dog licensing how ever to me cat licensing is unnecessary and excessive .
- 6 seems high....maybe 4?
- that is too many in one space. maximum of 6 combined between cat and dog is fine. but 12 would be a smelly noisy gong show
- I don't believe that anyone needs more than 2 pets while residing in a City.
- if people can afford, more than 6 animals and maintain them. Its their choice to own more and should stay that way.
- I don't think anybody has the right to tell people what they can and cannot own. If the animals are being cared for properly there should not be a limit.
- Responsible ownership is not defined by number of animals. Please allow owners who keep clean yards, follow bylaws and provide good care to determine the number of animals for which they can care. Deal with bylaw infractions/ nuisance animals on a case by case basis.
- Can't limit animals if they're being properly taken care of. Not your business
- I think two dogs and cats is sufficient per household. Three animals in total at most. If people want half a dozen animals then they should move to a barn.
- I do not agree with licensing indoor cats that never leave the property.
- What about fosters in rescues? Maybe the rescue should hold the # of licences for their animals but what if the Foster has room for more than the limit in their house? No limits should be applied to houses. Maybe if a specific household is abusing the animals and they should be restricted
- SIX cats or dogs is too many!! I would support up to 4 cats and 4 dogs (not cumulative - so, a limit of 4 total dogs or cats)
- Again every situation is different.
- It doesn't matter how many animals someone has, what matters is how they are taken care of
- 6 is too many for a residential area
- manage the problem areas where and leave limits alone - Calgary is known for its reasonable animal bylaws and they should remain unchanged.
- I agree that there may be a want for more than two animals and I think it's very feasible to have all those animals taken care of but 6 is excessive. There should still be a limit on pets.

- Pets should be limited to no more than two per household.
- I think all dogs should be treated the same
- I just don't see a need for limitations. You can be irresponsible with one dog or six dogs. Usually people with more pets are better, more responsible owners anyway.
- Restrict to no more than two cats and/or two dogs
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats is a lot, 2 or 3 is plenty
- 3 dogs or cats excepting litters is enough.
- No one needs six dogs or cats in one household. Three pets max per household
- 12 animals is far, far too many due to all the issues listed above.
- Too many animals on property potentially disrupts the community and lowers prop values.
- It's not bylaws job to tell us how many pets we can or cannot have. Stop treating us like preschoolers. Regarding licensing and fines for at large animals - dog owners have been solely carrying this burden for generations. Sure you passed new regulations for cats - I'm curious when these will be enforced?
- I am personally aware of several families with more than two dogs they are all cared for, well trained and do not disturb neighbours (we were a previous neighbour to one family in particular so we know this very well)
- As mentioned above, why would any person need 12 animals in their house?
- Six of each is still too many.
- People should be held accountable to the behaviors of their pets regardless of how many they have or what breed they are.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many to be properly cared for unless on a ranch or farm. I think it would be important that the situation is assessed before approval is given to that many animals.
- How many pets should be an individual decision. As long as animals are properly cared for including exercise, veterinary care, etc. and do not cause issues for neighbors (noise, smell, etc.) then it should be up to the individual. Setting numbers on these types of things is a slippery slope.
- the number of exceptions make it impossible to fine someone who will be over the limit as they can easily use one of the exception
- One nuisance pet can create more issues than 6+ well behaved ones. Mind you own business and don't become a nanny city... Most people will not typically keep more than six pets anyhow.
- Its not necessary
- 6 dogs is too many
- As long as all animals are taken care of properly then it should not be an issue
- 6 pets total. I do not support any more than that. I do support some of the exemptions.
- For the purpose of fosters or responsible ownership this is not necessary. Anyone who owns an excessive number of animals but CAN NOT SUPPLORT THEM should have them removed from their care and placed with a foster agency until such time as they are able to or the animal should be available to adopt.
- No

- If animals are properly cared for and bylaws followed there should not be a limit
- Proposed limits way to high - except maybe for registered foster family
- If you can provide for the animals etc then don't restrict.
- 6 is too many to take care of properly. The animals wouldn't be taken care of the way they should if there were that many in one household. I think 3 or maybe 4 of each is more reasonable.
- There are plenty of dog owners who are more than capable of taking care of 6 or more dogs.
- Agreed, there is no need to own that many pets, it is unfair to the pets and the pet owners.
- I think that if people are taking care of their pets, that there shouldn't be a limit. If they receive more than 2 complaints that are validated, then fines and reduction in pets may be implemented.
- 6 dogs and or 6 cats per household is far too many
- litters are then 6, a restriction on animal such as this do not allow and force the sale of animals. Any amount of dogs is a manageable amount assuming the owner has the appropriate amount of time for them. I strongly disagree with this bylaw going into effect.
- Limit is way too high. The limit should be two dogs / one cat or one dog / two cats
- If you do this you may as well say people can only have X amount of children. That's insane it's none of your business as long as they are cared for!
- As long as animal rescues or fosters are exempt.
- 6 is too many
- The number should be 2 cats and 2 dogs and special license application should apply after that.
- 6 dogs is too much for any one person to handle outside of special circumstances
- Total "weight" of pets could also be a limiting factor ... having 6 chihuahua's is very different from having 6 bull mastiffs. There could be a maximum weight of animals allowed .. i.e. "maximum of 6 animals but not to exceed combined weight of 300 pounds"
- No approved excess animal permit. No dog fanciers' license. No to inherited loopholes.
- Other than the exceptions, there is no reason to have more than two dogs and/or cats
- I think it should be no more than six total, cats and dogs combined
- Does not take into account the size of a person's property. An average within city limits should have different rules than a single family home. I do not support any limits on number of animals
- I am a dog trainer and have witnessed and worked with many families with multiple dogs in the home that do well.
- Potential exceptions are the issue. To support, I would need to know for sure that this would not affect fosters, pet sitters, dog walkers, dog day care etc.
- Too many animals in a house.
- If the pets in the home are not causing nuisance to neighbors, a limit is unnecessary.
- Only an acreage could support this amount of animals.
- There should be no limit, as there is still the possibility that owning less animals does not mean that the animal is being well cared of.
- That is too many animals per household
- I think this number is too high. There is no need to own 6 dogs or cats in the city.

- There is so much 'grey' area to temporary homes. Who would be monitoring this? Little doubt the city would stay on top of it. There are too many loop holes.
- If people are being held to the bylaws there should be no limit
- Houses are too close together, yards are way too small and pet owners are way too irresponsible.
- Seriously? Stop with all this nonsense. Let's encourage responsible ownership and not be bylawed to death. This sitting is being run to the bare ground these days.
- As I mentioned earlier owning pets is a large responsibility and expense to maintain One pet let alone Six. There is no reason that more than One pet should be allowed, it creates additional issues to properly look after multiple pets.
- There is no need for city involvement if there is no issue. And an issue does not mean that a neighbour just doesn't like how many animals a person has.
- The limit should be lower. It should be 1 cat or dog per adult in the household
- Depends on property size and home size. 1000sq foot home vs 5000sq foot home w large backyard should be different
- If the dogs are well cared for and noise and feces are not causing issues then the owner should not be restricted. Noise, poor care and sanitation can be addressed under other bylaws or laws. As a preservation breeder and an avid participant in dog sports I often gave 6 or more fogs when you think about retired ones, young ones and current competitors. If they are not causing problems why can I not continue with my passions and interests?
- I see no reason why anyone needs more than two dogs or cats in one household.
- No limit to numbers. Enforce noise and health regulations that already exist.
- No limit. It not about how many animal it about how there cared for.
- A record should be kept on irresponsible pet owners. The people who had multiple infractions should have restrictions placed on them. 6 dogs seems excessive, but if your a responsible owner why should you be restricted?
- It's not the city's job to tell a person how many pets they can have if they are able to provide a safe and healthy home.
- I don't think there needs to be a limit on pets
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is an excessive amount for a typical household (not temporary, foster, pet sitter, etc). 4 dogs and 4 cats seems more reasonable.
- Some people are more than capable (in terms of space, financials and responsibility) of having more than 6 cats and dogs.
- If people desire excessive amounts of pets, they should consider moving out of the city to an acreage.
- I think it depends on the size of the home. If 6 dogs can be properly cared for then sure.
- Higher fines , no limits on pet ownership
- 12 animals is too much and excessive. Usually not good for the animals. Exceptions could include pet sitters, daycares, and nursing animals (under 6 months) but not breeders.

- A person can own one dog that barks all day and never clean their poop, or own ten dogs that don't bark and they get picked up after. The number has nothing to do with those things, the ownership does.
- Offenders of neglect because they have too many animals won't obey the law even if there was one. All this law does is punish responsible owners.
- Unless the pet owner is a breeder and has pups/kittens until they are weaned and ready to go to a new home, I can see no valid reason for 6 dogs and 6 cats in one home.
- way to high, should be 3 max
- More than two dogs and two cats should require special licensing
- No
- That's too many animals in one home.
- I support the bylaw but the limits are too high. It should be depended on the size of dog (3 for large) (4 for medium to small), 4 for cats.
- Responsible ownership is about education, not bylaws.
- That is way to many cats and dogs for one household in the City
- I don't think there should be any limits on numbers. It should be based on responsible care and following the rules (care, cleaning, barking, etc) not some arbitrary number.
- As long as the pets are licensed and well cared for there should be no limit
- Six dogs and six cats per household is excessive
- Limit should not exist, any issues that could arise due not caring properly for to many animals and issues that may arise are already covered by other bylaws such as feces removal and noise.
- Excessive
- TOO MANY the most should be 2 for this bylaw within city limits There is no need to have more then 2 animals per household
- I don't think it's necessary if the owners are being responsible with their pets, no matter the number.
- 12 animals per household is way too many.
- 6 total is a much higher limit than needed let alone 6 each.
- All the above but with a 3 dog and 3 cat limit.
- There should definitely be no more than 2 animals per house in the city!
- 3 dogs/ cats not 6 way to many
- No way for someone to have that many animals. The smell and trying to keep the area clean would be really hard and then when it isn't done then the neighbors will pay the price.
- People should be allowed to do what they want. You should not go in and limit what people can and cant do without there being an issue. If a problem arises, then do something.
- A person doesn't need that many pets. Maybe 1 or 2 max.
- I disagree that a restriction on the number of pets addresses issues like feces accumulation, excessive barking, or the welfare of the animal. These things are attributed to the ability or inability of the owner to handle on a case by case situation and should not be applied to all owners. There are plenty of examples where someone owning less than 6 animals is violation of the above conditions, and people with more animals not having any issues.

- on pets is unnecessary
- No exceptions, would you like this next door to your home?
- In smaller homes and higher density communities there just isn't room!
- some people can handle more than 6 pets (dogs or cats) without bothering others, whereas others can't even handle 1 pet. It should be based on a case by case scenario based on the evidence provided.
- I don't think the number of animals indicates an issue. It's the behaviour of the owner.
- You can't tell me what to do.
- 12 animals is a zoo
- 12 dogs & cats in a single home is too many to be properly cared for
- It's none of your business how many pets someone owns
- Too much government interference.
- Just plain no!
- There should not be a limit to the number of pets a person can own.
- It all depends how they behave
- People should be free to have as many animals as they wish, as long as they are responsible pet owners. People that own their own home should not have restrictions, it's their home which they paid for.
- I think 6 dogs in one home is too much but it all depends on how big the house, yard, and dogs are. If they're small then I don't see an issue but 6 big dogs might be an issue.
- Why does that matter- if there's an issue address it then. If not leave people alone to have as many pets as they'd like- as long as they're taken care of
- I think the number of pets per household is too high
- That opens too many doors for people not fixing their pets, not abiding by noise bylaws, and becoming smelly. 6 well behaved dogs are loud, 6 well behaved cats are smelly, that is too many pets and totally unnecessary for people within city limits. It is not a farm.
- It's more a yes but. I believe that there should be additional requirements needed if you want 12 animals on your property. Like not being considered low income.
- No more than 2 dogs or cats due to potential barking issues and irresponsible owners
- too many, should be 2 cat and or dogs, but ok with the listed exceptions
- If all animals in the house are being adequately cared for and loved, then it should not matter how many animals are in the house. The city should not have control over the number of pets in a private home.
- A limit is unnecessary if the animals are being cared for properly.
- No one should be able to tell me how many pets I can have on my property.
- There does not need to be a limit on the number of pets, there needs to be regulation and enforcement of people who are not caring for their animals. Someone with 10 dogs may care for their pets better than a family with 1 dog. The number doesn't matter, the ability to care for them does.

- As a volunteer at a rescue, there are several people I know with more than six dogs who take amazing care of them. Some are hard to place otherwise. I agree not everyone should own that many dogs. I feel that there can be a compromise. If 6+ dogs, I think it should require larger living arrangements to allow for adequate space, and maybe a yearly check to ensure the animals are not in distress.
- 12 animals in one household in an urban setting is excessive.
- Limiting how many dogs someone can have will only be a detriment to law abiding, responsible citizens. People who are mistreating and hoarding dogs will continue doing so regardless of what laws there are.
- It should not be up to the city to determine how many pets are allowed. Individual HOAs can make rules based on what households in that neighborhood want.
- I do not think any single family dwelling in the city needs 6 dogs and/or cats
- Limiting the number of animals won't fix the issues. I've lived beside people with one dog who never cleaned up after it or stopped the incessant barking. It doesn't matter how many animals a household has, it's being a responsible pet owner.
- Calgary has long been a pet friendly city with no pet limits and certainly no breed specific legislation and I absolutely believe it should stay this way. I would strongly support new/revised bylaws allowing for higher fines and or stronger reprimands for owners who's multiple or nuisance dogs are creating problems for neighbours. We need more enforcement of those bylaws though, otherwise they will never work.
- Too many!!!
- 6 animals is a large number. If someone was to have 6 cats and 6 dogs which is far too many to be able to provide the best care for. Three of each would be more acceptable. The exceptions should remain as above, even for three of each.
- 12 animals in a house is at too many. 6 is too many
- No household needs to have 12 animals while living in the city.
- That is too many animals in a household, six dogs could be noisy with all the barking, and feces pile up in the yard. Cats should be kept inside, we already have too many ferals, i would support 3 dogs max, 3 cats max kept inside and licensed.
- The number of animals housed in a property does not inherently correlate with more feces, animal welfare, or noise. One dog could easily be smellier, louder, and more neglected than 7 or more, and the onus should be put on responsible pet ownership instead. Also? The idea of considering limits because people think that owning more than 2 cats or 2 dogs isnt "necessary" is simply ridiculous. By the same logic, is owning even one animal "necessary?"
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is a lot of animals. 3 should be the maximum. How could anyone need 12 animals unless they are running a circus.
- As long as people are being responsible pet owners, cleaning up after them, etc there should be no limit.

- Too many animals will not get the care and attention they deserve
- 12 animals?! Why bother with a limit of allowing 12 animals?
- Unless the person is found to be a "Hoarder" In my opinion NO ONE has the right to say how many animals a person can have. If they can afford them and are keeping them healthy and happy they have the right to have these animals.
- Don't support
- The no limit has been working just fine and I see no reason to change it. I could possibly be persuaded to purchase a dog fancier's license if it was all encompassing of the foster dogs in addition to my own and I could pay one fee instead of individually license all the dogs.
- There should NOT be a limit. If an Animal Guardian is responsible and properly takes care of animals, they should NOT be limited to just 6. You are punishing the people who take good care of their animals.
- That is far too many animals in one residence. That's fine on an acreage, but not in the city.
- Ban backyard breeders!
- nobody can decide how many animals one is allowed to have
- Because there are multi family homes
- That's still too many pets in one household. Again, we live in the city not in the country or on the farm.
- If the animals are well cared for I don't think limits are needed
- Govt should not dictate how many pets someone should have. We are not a communist country
- Too many
- 6 is too many. I live beside 3 and it's ridiculous
- That seems really high. I'm a pet owner and I'm not sure why someone would need to own that many pets. I think it should be lower in urban areas, with an exception for people with property over a certain size. People who have acreage could keep that many animals without any issue. In the city I feel like 3 of each is more than enough
- This is too many animals for one household. Animal welfare needs to be priority
- 6 is way too many animals in one house. Dogs may start to exhibit pack mentality and become dangerous
- It has been proven that a responsible owner will be that no matter the number of pets they choose to care for. For some individuals that is a single pet, and others it could be many more. Putting harsher restrictions and additional enforcement on those that do not provide adequate care is more productive than limiting number arbitrarily.
- The current limit is adequate
- 6 is too many. I think 4 dogs including temporary homes is enough.
- 6 is way too high! Especially of each. In my experience the types of people who want that many animals are not the types that take care of them and the entire house becomes a huge nuisance. I agree with the statement that nobody needs more than 2 cats or dogs.
- I do not think controlling the number solves the problem. You must clean up after 1 or 12. It doesn't matter. Cat litter from one cat stinks. A single dog poops about 3 times per day, that's 21 in a week and 85 in a month. That's a terrible mess from one dog. One dog can bark and be a nuisance or be vicious. Deal with the problem behaviour not the number.

- The welfare of the animal should be the priority under all circumstances - the 2 cats and/or dogs limit is a reasonable compromise. The only exception would be temporary foster homes.
- I don't support limits when paired with responsible ownership.
- Ban backyard breeding, ban the sale of live animals in pet stores. I think the limit for pets should be 4 dogs or 4 cats total.
- There shouldn't be a limit. People should be cleaning their yards daily/every few days, animals should be well cared for and attempts to keep noise down should always be used.
- Instead of 6 of each make the total 12 combined.
- Citizens should have the right to decide the number of pets in their household. Having more pets does not equate to irresponsible pet owners. There are many people with several number of pets that they have raised and cared of, and are considered important family members. This includes being responsible for yearly licence fee, vet bills, food and daily needs, training and life long care and love for their pets.
- If I wanted to live next to a "farm" I would move to the country
- 6dogs and 6 cats to me is too much except for the exceptions noted. I think this is already approaching a hoarder type scenario and I think it would put more pets in the position of receiving low quality care
- 6+6is too many.
- No pet owner NEEDS more than 2 animals. SERIOUSLY....FORGET IT. For those who own more than 2 animals, grandfather those in, but do NOT allow for more. I do NOT support multiple "exceptions".
- I don't want to
- Why would anyone have 6 dogs in a small home!!
- A total of 2 pets is plenty, 12 is not even managements for most people.
- Your use of "potential". I am a dog breeder/fancier and I from time to time sit dogs. If your Potential exceptions were to change to exceptions to this rule would be, I would support it. I obedience and show train my dogs. But the general public do not necessarily do this. Any involved with breeding/showing/trialing their dogs should be exempt.
- The ability to care for that many dogs or cats is rare. No person should be able to have more than 2 dogs in a residential environment particularly with the compact residential housing currently in many communities.
- There are so many irresponsible owners. The noise and feces in the community. The city won't even clean the pool and can't catch the owners that allow their pets mess the playgrounds.
- Doesn't Works for me
- Some houses are larger and have more responsible adults living in it, with the capacity to handle several pets. Enforcing a limit might motivate people to not register all of their pets.
- 6 is too many
- 12 dogs/cats is too many for a city plot

- If I can't control whether my neighbours play the drums when they are attached to my house who is someone else to control how many animals I can have.
- Different people have different capabilities of handling animals.
- If my dogs are taken care of and behaved it shouldn't matter how many dogs Or animals I have
- No, as long as owners are not suspected or have been charged with abuse I do not think their should be a limit
- no legitimate need for these numbers
- It makes criminals out of citizens. Everyone I know brags about how great our current policy is. We don't want people to hide their animals.
- Some people can handle more dogs than others. Some people should not own any pets
- I support the current bylaw but with proposed potential exceptions: Dogs/cats under 6 months of age Temporary homes (fosters, breeders, pet sitters, daycares) Dogs/cats that are inherited Dogs/cats that are grandfathered in if the rules change Approved Excess Animal Permit Possession of a Dog Fanciers' License Service animals
- People already do not pick up after their pets and control noise so this would significantly add to the existing problem and increased complaints and anger directed at bylaw services. City should consider requiring DNA from all dogs and cats, then using companies like Pooprints that provide feces identification. Fines for owners should cover the cost of the service in order to reduce the amount of animal feces left in our parks, playgrounds and water runoff.
- This seems like it could open up legal animal hoarding and poor welfare of the animals.
- I don't believe feces accumulation, noise, or animal welfare is related to the number of pets in a household. Either people know their own limitations and take good care of their pets or they don't. Hoarders would just ignore the bylaw and carry on.
- 6 dogs=pack; which results in increases in noise. Support exceptions
- 6 of each is too high. Max of 6 of one type with a total max of 8 animals is more appropriate.
- In the city that 12 pets is way to many. 6 Total should be the max if financially able. Proof of financial ability should be proved when more than 3 animals are in a home.
- I truly think that's too many animals in a household to ensure they are treated properly and cleaned up effectively. 6 dogs or 6 cats are just too much and usually the cats are wonderers
- I think me answering no was specific enough
- I think some people can easily manage more animals while others can barely manage 1 animal properly.
- If someone has space, and is fostering animals, then why not let them.
- 6 is too many for someone to control.
- I know many people who own more than 6 pets. Perhaps the limit should be increased a bit.
- 12 pets per household is WAY too many. Ridiculous actually. Move to rural Alberta and have as many animals as you want but not in the City. Unfair for the animals also.
- Many people (like myself) participate in competitive dog sports and are responsible owners and their dogs do not create a nuisance. I have five dogs and my yard is always clean of animal waste, even throughout the winter. However, the suggestion of a dog fancier's license could be a consideration if the bylaw would allow people like myself who are involved in dog competitions (in addition to breeders and those who show at trials)

- this does not mitigate any of the issue above. The goal should be responsible ownership not limits. If someone is hoarding then the presence of a limit is not going to impact their behavior.
- /
- How would you enforce this - logistically ridiculous - let's hire another 100 city staff to keep up with these ideas. Have you heard there's a pandemic and people are without employment?
- 6 dogs or cats is way too many animals 2 should be the limit
- 6 is still too many
- There are several special cases: Ethical breeders, barn cats, those who are able to properly care for more than 6 animals, people who foster for rescues etc.
- There are plenty of people who can manage more than 6 dogs efficiently.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is too high a number.
- Would only support this with the exceptions listed above.
- its too high, and i have a lot of pets and im a foster house but you cannot own 6 dogs and 6 cats and care for them adequately which includes vet bills, exercise needs, food needs, insurance, change of life circumstance. I would support people being able to apply for a break in the rules if they are one of the above listed but NOBODY needs to own this many animals in city property. no way
- We shouldn't be limiting the numbers of animals someone can have if they are responsible pet owners
- I don't think that this bylaw will stop people who shouldn't own that number of Pete from doing it but punish those who followed the rules and were a good home
- This is a slippery slope that will lead to reductions in future. Issues are often not because of the number of animals it's the ability for the person to care for them. Many people have issues with only 1 pet and many people with multiple pets are responsible pet owners. A restrictive number won't actually fix the problems.
- The number of pets is not the issue. Humans are the issue.
- Totally against limiting the number of pets that a person can own providing that they are responsibly cared for and housed. A limit on animals is very artificial and arbitrary - some people can not realistically care for one animal, others can care for multiple animals. The City should not be involved in such decisions. Although not an accurate analogy, the City would not consider limiting the number of children or properties an individual owns, they should not have the ability or right to limit the number of animals owned if they are well housed and cared for. This limit tries to infer that anyone with more than a prescribed limit would be a hoarder and this is not the case. Hoarding is usually a mental concern that can be handled by current rules for the protection of the animals. The City of Calgary has been an example of how licensing and fair bylaws can lead to responsible pet ownership - imposed limits would seriously interfere with this reputation.
- 6 animals creates excess waste, smell, and generally bad behavior. That is too many. Also, what is the point of lowering license fees - if someone can't afford the pet license, they probably can't afford the poop bags or food for the animal.

- I do not think pet limits are the answer. Higher standards for animal welfare checks would be better
- If the animals are properly taken care of. But ban backyard breeders within city limits. Anyone caught breeding an animal and selling it for profit should face a $100,000.00 fine and 10 years in jail.
- for the wrong house owner that can get out of control quite easy. I am a responsible pet owner of 2 dogs and let me tell you, I hear my neighbours dogs barking all day and all night. their cats roam all the time, if they are not fixed they can become more than 6 of each.....not at all supported by me.
- There is no need to have that many pets in a home. Many people can hardly afford 2!
- Rule is fine for indoor cats but six dogs in the city can lead to excessive barking. Who needs six dogs in any case.
- Deal with problems case by case.
- Private home ...you don't limit the number of people that can live in one residence; why should you be interfering with the number of animals.
- 2 cats and/or 2 dogs so max of 4 animals of both.
- If the animal is properly taken care of let us have as many as we want .
- The number of animals is not a problem as long as they are adequately cared for. There are already by-laws in place to address issues of noise and neglect use those to address the problem owners instead of punishing the good owners with restrictions on numbers.
- I believe there should be less animals per property allowed.
- I do not believe there should be a cap on the number of dogs or cats.
- 6 animals is too many. That many animals should live in the country where there is property.
- 6 animals on a single property in the city is too high for most homes. Is there a way to restrict the limit based on space? For example, homes with no yard/limited yard space have a limit of 3 or 4 while homes with a larger outdoor space have up to 6.
- That's too many dogs..too much noise..smell etc. I don't want to slice beside someone with a pack of dogs.
- Any arbitrarily set number will negatively affect a responsible person/family who happen to exceed the number for reasons beyond the limited imagination of legislators. Problems should be dealt with case-by-case.
- The limit should be lower than 6 of each
- 12 in total is crazy, should at least be based on size of house and type of property (row housing etc)
- A total of 23 pets is too many for one person. There should have to be a person to pet ratio in addition to number of pets per household.
- I have had as many as 7 dogs in my house and have lived in the same house with no complaints in 54 years
- 6 is WAY too many animals. That's a potential of 12 animals in one residence. Yards aren't big enough to accommodate that many animals. 6 pit bulls in one home is just looking for trouble. I have 2 small dogs, yearly care is running about $3000 easy a year, that's with no injuries or health emergencies. What happened to 3, 4 and 5 pet maximum? Who pulled 6 out of their hat? Seems like too much of a jump with very little thought or common sense.
- Ok

- No pet limit
- 12 is way too many. 2 total is acceptable. Anything more than that displays mental issues/instability on the owner.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too much for one household. This is a bad situation for both the people and the pets.
- 6 dogs is too many unless temporary for breeding.
- Shouldn't be more pets than people in the house. The exception would be a single person can have a maximum of 2 pets.
- Arbitrary limits do nothing to solve problems.
- There should not be a limit on licensed pets in a home especially if there have been no reports in the home
- People should be free to choose
- We cannot have urban properties being overloaded with pets.
- Regulating how many pets a house hold has doesn't change the problem owners - some people care for 10 dogs better than their neighbours care for 1. I firmly believe animal bylaws need to revolve around RESPONSIBLE HUMANS and keeping people accountable for their choices.
- I don't see what this bylaw would serve. Is there any evidence that Calgary struggles with homes with excess numbers of pets that are causing a nuisance, where other bylaw or legal issues are not at play? (e.g. neglect, noise, nuisance, etc.) I don't understand from the information available here what problem is trying to be solved that is not already covered by other bylaws and legislation.
- Like the rule but how will it be enforced?
- No limit on animals within a home. If someone can provide adequate care for their animals they shouldn't be limited.
- As long as all bylaws for noise are respected and the animals are cared for (mental and physical health) there is no need for restrictions. Obviously all animals should be properly licensed
- if animals are cared for by the owners and are given the attention they require it should be up to the discretion of the owner. Maybe a limit could be explored on an individual basis if complaints have been filed about the animals on the property. Many folks within my circle have opted for dogs instead of children. They would never be instructed to have less children.
- Responsible pet owners won't allow any number of dogs to become a nuisance. Enforcement of this bylaw is likely by complaint only, which would be the same in a nuisance situation so there doesn't seem to be a need to limit the household number.
- it is arbitrary, why is 6 better than 7, it gives no indication of animal care or husbandry
- Again it's not what many of us heard in meetings - we stated that no limit needed - it's making sure dogs are cared for is the problem. Many people have multiple dogs and all are cared for. Some people have 1 dog and it is neglected.. limits do not make animals safe.
- Should not need a license for indoor cat. If someone can care for more than 6 animals, they should be allowed.
- If animals are cared for and not a nuisance then why should there be a limit. I know people with 11 dogs that are all well groomed, cared for, and their property is kept clean and tidy.

- Really, how could having more animals on any premises other than a farm be beneficial? I find this to be insulting and disrespectful to me as a tax paying homeowner who wants a quiet and healthy environment to live. Are you trying to run out respectful homeowners like me?
- Six dogs is a little much in a city of our size. 4 seems more reasonable
- Two is enough. I am sorry but it seems that those that cannot afford pets are the ones that have too many.
- Pet limits are not needed
- A total of 12 animals is too many. If it were up to 6 animals that would still be unreasonable but not ridiculous
- People should be allowed as many pets as they want granted they are responsible.
- No need for extra rules. You have safety enforcement rules.
- 6 is just way too many pets. The max should be 3 to ensure that each animal is being taken care of properly.
- There is no reason to limit the number of dogs people own. Calgary is the most forward thinking with this and if you change your stance, there will be a big pushback. I recall someone bringing this up a few years ago and it was met with huge backlash. Please do not limit the number of dogs people can have.
- I think that number is outrageous. The only exception to should be temporary homes. No individual should have that many animals in a city setting
- I am very happy to hear that the extremely restrictive 2 dogs is not going through and 6 dogs and 6 cats is much more reasonable especially with the exceptions but I 100% stand by that a limit won't have any benefit. I have 4 rescue dogs of my own, I foster dogs and cats and occasionally baby sit dogs for friends. I pick up poop daily, vacuum every 1-2 days and keep the dogs quiet; I know of people with 7 dogs of their own that do similarly; whereas a couple of my neighbours with 2 dogs constantly let them bark through the day and night. It's NOT about the number of animals, it's about the care they receive, a restriction is pointless.
- Haja
- Most pet owners take responsibility for their pets
- Too many pets.
- I have a dog. I love animals. Dogs are a huge responsibility. Should people want more pets they should live on an acreage. A maximum of three dogs OR three cats. We have had a budgie and a hamster as well. Please limit the animals. I don't feel people can take care of them properly.
- 2 dogs AND 2 cats is more than enough per household. The more pets in a house, the more noise and smell there is affecting neighbors.
- I see no reason to change it.
- 6 dogs and/or 6 cats in one household is excessive. Over 6 i.e. Puppies, temporary homes would be fine, but 6 dogs living next door would be too much to live beside in a city with smaller and smaller properties.
- The city cares only about money, how much extra money they can charge for extra pet so let people have as many as they want

- Number of dogs and good ownership are not codependent. If you can properly handle 8 dogs than you should be allowed to have 8 or as many as you want.
- I would be concerned about the reasons stated above (Accumulation of feces on a property, Excessive noise (eg. barking), Protect the welfare of animals) . I would support a slight increase to 3 animals.
- You're judging based on a preconceived notion. Many people with multiple animals do so with no issues. Some people with 1 pet are irresponsible pet owners. I say let people do what they do and judge should issues arise. Conformation breeders, people who compete in dog sports often have multi dog households and are the standard to which we should be holding the general public. People who foster for ethical rescues could be impacted. People who foster for service dog organizations could likewise be impacted.
- In my neighborhood 6 dogs would never work on these smaller lots. Folks would need a direct line to bylaw officers.
- I do not support a limit
- Keep the number of pets to the existing level. No one needs that many pets in one house. It is not healthy for the animals or the owners.
- Keep the limits off, when you tell people there is a max they will do such but if there is no max people tend to be more responsible and hide less
- This is way too many pets per household. 2 cats max and 2 dogs unless you are a trainer or breeder.
- Who is government to propose changes for any of this? Even the bylaw prohibiting licenced cats from being outside is not correct. Why? How much damage can a cat do to a yard? Not much. If anything, cats stop rodents from destroying properties.
- 12 animals is ridiculously high. Breeders should also be limited as animals are poorly treated and there are enough dogs and cats available.
- I do not believe in a pet limit. There are many people who shouldn't even have one pet. It is not the number of pets but the lack of care by the owner. Apply the current bylaws and deal with the issues first.
- if we want responsible breeding programs for both cats and dogs breeds need a viable breeding program and will be over the limit to do so
- a responsible owner can easily manage more pets....while others struggle to manage 1
- Lower amount, 6 animals total not each
- Numbers seem high and too many exceptions.
- I think 6 dogs or 6 cats is way to many for one household.
- I would need to know for sure what the exceptions would be before supporting the bylaw.
- I cannot support this whilst there is an exception for breeders. Breeders within city limits would be covered by the 6 animal limit with the litters covered by the under 6month exemption. Giving an exception to breeders would be only beneficial to puppy mill operations.
- 6 large dogs in a residential home is excessive. 6 small dogs would be acceptable.

- This will only cause people to have "illegal" pets. People would be discouraged from licensing their animals. How many households would this actually affect? We currently have bylaws to deal with hoarding and nuisance situations. Again, another unnecessary bylaw.
- 6 animals is far too many for one household. Taking into consideration, picking up of feces, noise control.
- Six is still too many. A limit of four of each would be more appropriate. Exceptions are valid.
- This should be monitored on a case by case basis. Some people are well equipped to handle multiple animal households, some people can't handle one single animal. We can't control everyone or take away from others. What would happen to households that already exceed the suggested limit? Would there be a grandfather clause. You can't rip people's family (even the furry ones) from them. Many of us need our pets to help us through life. I would not have survived cancer without the constant love and affection of my dogs. They give you strength to go on when no one else can.
- If a person can't take care of 10 dogs they aren't going to be any different than 1. It's about being a responsible pet owner not how many you have.
- I believe that 2-3 dogs per household and 3-5 cats. Concerns re animal welfare and barking happen with just one dog, bad owners not necessarily the number of animals.
- 12 animals is too many. 6 is too many.
- Some people are unable to manage a single dog while others effectively care for more than 6.
- If there are issues with the animals at a particular location, then other bylaws can be used to help solve the issue. An imposed limit will not stop the backyard breeders, or horders nor the irresponsible owners who will just not license their animals.
- A house with 6 cats AND 6 dogs is horrible. Animals are neglected, smell. Noise. I feel 6 animals total is a more appropriate number
- Unless it's an acreage or large space, I feel that's too many animals. (Exception of course for fostering)
- I would support the bylaw if the numbers were 2 dogs and 2 cats maximum
- 6 is too high, 3 max
- The number of animals is not the problem; it's the care given to the animals.
- I'm not sure what the purpose of a limit would be. As long as someone is not disturbing the peace, etc. and complying with other rules/bylaws, it shouldn't matter how many pets they own.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many for the average house/yard sizes inside the city, unless you have a mansion that is. A limit of 3 or 4 total is more reasonable.
- That could equal 12 per household! That seems excessive. 3 of each max.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is insane for residential areas. If people want to have a mini farm, then go live on an acreage. Our current neighbours have 1 dog and they don't even take care of it, it barks throughout the day and their backyard is a doggy toilet.
- Maximum of 3 dogs and/or 3 cats except at time of litters then they have until weening to reduce the number back.

- There are a lot of inconsistencies and unknowns here. With respect to the fine rates there's no consideration for circumstance, multiple infractions and definitions. Overall fines seem arbitrary especially if you compare to other bylaw fines. The number of total animals allowed seems excessive given the numerous types of 'households' - what if they have their own yard or no yard. Seems there are numerous by-laws without any enforcement applied and layering additional changes without consideration to the larger opportunities.
- Twelve animals? Our homes are too tiny and close together. Imagine being allergic to cats and your neighbour goes out and gets 6 of them and then lets them roam the neighbourhood, defecating and peeing in your yard. Imagine the smell of six dogs pooping twice a day in a back yard in a heatwave, right next to your fence so you can't even go outside and sit in your own backyard.
- I would support this bylaw change if it was 6 total dogs or cats, not 6 of each. 12 animals is just too much. This is a city. Not a farm.
- As long as animals are well cared for the city should not have a say.
- No home in Calgary city limits has room/need for more than 12 animals. Quality of life is not taken into account with those numbers.
- Some pets could be fostered or a large family, if the pet owner is responsible there should not be a limit.
- If the owner can provide adequate living conditions (clean up after animals and has enough room) than the city shouldn't regulate how many pets a person has on their personal property
- We live in a city that yards are getting smaller...we don't need to increase distress for home owners to live beside someone with more pets or animals that is unnecessary
- Lower number of pets.
- Why select 6? You data to support this number selection. And an option to say more or less. However I think the number should be 7-10. 6 is too low without more info.
- 6 dogs is way too many! Grandfathering the dogs already in the home but limiting the number to 4 dogs and 4 cats.
- I strongly believe our bylaws on responsible pet ownership regarding the number of dogs or cats allowed in a household work and shouldn't be changed if a household isn't complying i.e. not cleaning yard, not getting the animals the vet care needed not feeding properly not grooming anything along those lines then those individuals should be fined and if not in compliance by a set date then the animals should be removed
- A bylaw that addresses neglect is all that is necessary. An owner who is responsible, properly cares for their animals, and ensures they aren't a nuisance should not be limited if they want to have more animals. Limiting the number of animals does not equate responsibility - we have a neighbour who has single dog, the dog is never walked the owners never pick up the feces in their backyard which is very unpleasant for the neighbours, while others in the area who have multiple pets properly care for and clean up after them.
- 6 dogs is an excessive amount of dogs unless someone is a breeder and they should have a special license. If 6 dogs were allowed on a property that doesn't properly train their animals the noise and feces would be unimaginable. I believe a maximum number of dogs should be 3 per household. As for cats, 6 is a lot of cats, if they are strictly indoor cats, and were spayed/neutered, that is less of a problem than 6 dogs, but the number is still very high.

- I don't think anyone needs 6 animals. Three should be the limit.
- I would support the proposed bylaw amendment for no more than four (4) dogs/cats per household. 6 is too many but cannot understand how having some of the noted exceptions such as grandfathering, excess animal permit, breeders this just complicates the issues.
- Other than fostering an animal, I can see no good reason why anyone needs more than a couple of each.
- The max number is too high. How will you evaluate this with a condo vs a single dwelling - assuming smaller vs large floor space? Many owners seem to have real issues (or do not try) keeping their cats on their own properties. An issue in itself, how could this be enforced with 6 cats?
- 12 animals in a city home (not acreage) is excessive
- That's 12 animals per household. I think max 4 dogs, 5 cats or combination of the 2 not exceeding 5 animals per housee
- That number is too high - becomes unmanageable for most. 3 of each is plenty.
- realistically you should be able to have as many as you want provided you can look after them and they aren't in danger or causing issues with neighbours.
- Still too many pets per household in the city unless the household is a dog breeder or foster home
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is more pets than anyone could ever need. The likelihood of lower quality care and living standards would be great, and it's far more likely for the animals to be poorly behaved.great.
- No one needs 6 dogs/cats.
- If all animals are licensed, spayed/neutered, and properly cared for, I see no reason to restrict the number of pets to a household. I also worry that these restrictions would have an effect on the number of animals adopted from local shelters/rescues.
- My only concern is hoarding situation
- This is ridiculous. 6 cats and 6 dogs?! People with condos will then have 6 of each in the beltline. Many of these condos do not have air conditioning making pets sit in hot condos all day. 1 dog and 1 cat is plenty. And or no animals in condos. Only allowed if you have a backyard. The animals need to have a good life just not a cuddle animal for their owner.
- No family should have more than 2 dogs and 2 cats . One each for seniors
- Other rules deal with feces, noise, and welfare. No need to limit people who can manage their pets themselves.
- Once a bylaw gets into place, it just becomes more and more restrictive over the years.
- if the animals are causing problems then the situation can be addressed through other remedies
- 6 dogs is not equal to 6 cats, should be more cats
- It should stay the same
- In favor of a cap but I think 6 is way too many. Dogs and cats are different
- Maximums should be ONE dog, and TWO cats

- I think that's too many animals per household aside from daycares/kennels and fosters (businesses). However, some citizens claim they are fosters but still "hoard" animals. I also think there should be additional requirements that breeders can only have one litter at a time before breeding another animal on the property. And what about if someone want 6 dogs, 6 cats and then mice, gerbals, birds, etc...how is that being addressed?
- L
- People should be allowed to own as many pet as they want, as long as the pets are well cared for
- 4 is plenty with exception for inherited
- I think six is more than enough
- Yes, 6 of both dogs and cats is a high number and I'm not 100% against the bylaw, if it was to change I would support it however I think that it should also partially be on a case by case basis.
- Hard to enforce, takes time away from more pressing bylaw issues. Problem owners will not comply.
- I feel that 6 cats should be the limit but 6 dogs are too many for proper care. As well, dog breeders shouldn't have more than 4-5 dogs at a time.
- Animal limits should be based on property size and owners ability to provide appropriate care
- As long as the property is maintained whe cares how many pets they have
- People don't train their pets. Two is the right number of dogs. If they breed or there are other special circumstances, they can apply - but those individuals would be better prepared to obey the bylaw requirements.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is a LOT. Can it be lower (with some exceptions).
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is an excessive amount of animals and borders on hoarding. I do not support this many pets per household, and I believe it should be lower. The potential exceptions to the rules are fine, but the limit is too high.
- I don't see this as a problem, I don't see why anyone should be penalized for having multiple pets, especially in a large home.
- You need to regulate breeders, not exempt them from all the rules. If you want to burden people with extra regulations, the complete unlicensed and unregulated breeders should be the first point.
- Keep same.
- The idea that one household could support and care properly for six dogs and six cats is absurd. Six dogs won't be walked twice a day -- they will be let outside to a back yard to bark all day. I experience this with a neighbour already and it is making my life miserable. The dogs are miserable too. Please DO NOT increase the limit to six. Three maximum please!
- I don't feel it's the city's place to dictate how many animals someone can have. Different properties can accomodate different amounts of animals. A bylaw directed at cleanng up after them is sufficient. Whether you have 1 dog or 7 if you're not picking up after them it's an issue. If you are, and the dogs/cats etc are well behaved and cared for the number is irrelevant
- Many dog/pet owners are unable to be responsible with one animal, let alone multiple.
- Not necessary
- Too many animals under one roof
- Keep thw current bylaw , and enforce it !!!!

- Wasting taxpayers money by policing the number of animals in a house. Only go out if there's a concern about animal welfare
- You don't need 6 dogs and cats
- Allowing too many pets in a household seems potentially neglectful.
- 6 and 6, or a total of 12 animals, seems excessive and could encourage backyard breeding situations. Honestly, I don't see the need for more than 4 and 4.
- Unnecessary
- That's garbage
- Not city business what happened to cutting red tape?
- You cannot tell me what I can or cannot own if one is a responsible pet owner
- 6 cats or dogs is too many for an urban household.
- Sometimes we are put in a position to either surrender a dog(s) when a loved one can no longer care for such animal
- We live in the city 6 dogs require a large backyard for the family pack. Walking 6 dogs from one household together can create 'packing' that can mean negative connotations in an off-leash area where a pack is free to dominate a single animal or take on another household pack. Packs of dogs can be dangerous on or off-leash.
- 6 of each seems excessive in an urban setting
- Again. You people are mental
- The issue of noise, feces and welfare isn't solely based on the number of animals it's the responsibility of the owner. That's why people with one dog still manage to neglect it. Limiting the amount of pets hurts those responsible owners that can handle the amount of animals and are now no longer able to give more animals a home.
- I could see allowing that IF you could confirm that they could afford to not only feed all of these animals but also handle vet bills and that includes fixing them.
- 6 animals max, 12 is way too much.
- Na
- Breeding requires adequate space so a 'home' in the city is not suitable for a dog and 6 cats
- 6 is too many. I love pets but don't want to have a neighbor with possibly 12 animals. 3 or 4 is a better number. The exemptions seem reasonable
- I do believe in a pet limit to ensure that the pets are taken care of, but I would prefer to see the limit be TEN dogs AND TEN cats.
- That is too many animals
- As long as owners are responsible then no need to make limits
- It should be less than 6, 6 animals is too many.
- I worry that allowing that many pets could negatively affect their living conditions
- I don't think it's fair to ban a breed. My dog is one of the kindest dogs in the world she is full pitbull she has never hurt anyone but if you ban bully breeds I'll move. Hate the owner not the breed.

- I agree with 6 licensed pets but this should be assessed on a case by case basis, depending on how responsible the pet owner is. A blanket statement of 6 animals does not apply to everyone, considering some people can't financially take care of more than one animal.
- 12 animals per household is too high of a limit
- more than 6
- Too many
- Leave things alone and stop interfering where you don't need to
- If owners are being responsible there should be no limit on number of pets.
- I feel like no one can responsibly take care of potentially 12 animals at once. Some can barely properly and safely take care of one 1-5 animals and the animals are suffering because of this. I feel like it'll get out of hand and rescues will be even more full than they already are.
- I feel like people could really bend this rule at will by giving excuses or lying and saying an animal was given to them or they are just baby sitting the animal ect. Unless the exceptions are actually enforced, I think it will pretty much void the original limit.
- It is free country and as long as the owners are caring for the animals, and responsible for them it is not the city's place to dictate anything.
- Number of pets should be no more than 6 combined without special approval
- A special license needs to be obtained for more than 2 dogs and 2 cats
- No one needs 12 animals.
- Fostering ??? House sitting animals ???
- Stay out of my home unless there is a indefensible reason
- Number should be partly based on dwelling size
- 6 dogs/ cats are too many. 4 is a better number.
- I think punishing the whole as a group when there are a few bad owners isn't the correct way to deal with it. Punish the owners that are not following proper responsible pet ownership rules ..
- 6 of either animal is far to many in one residence. Especially depending on size of residence and yard.
- I think the limit should be raised but not more than 4 pets in total with the potential exceptions as mentioned above
- Concerns of overcrowding and the ability to meet animals need fully
- With the exception of a temporary case of a litter, no household should have six dogs or cats. I would support two.
- Let people be.
- I feel if a household wants a larger number of pets they should have to apply for special licenses so there is a forced review and the agency can ensure the living conditions are suitable.
- have that many.
- I am concerned about animal hoarding if the limit is extended.
- Let ppl have the amount of animals they want if they can provide for them properly

- It should be to a maximum of 6 animals based on the square footage of the owner's property. Furthermore, I can't believe you are considering lifting restrictions on vermin, and singling out a single species of animal in pit bulls, this is wrong.
- Backyard breeding would increase.
- Do not agree with the amount of animals
- 6 is too many to have within city limits, 3 should be the maximum
- Some people can have multiple pets and be able to care for them properly while others can have one pet and it receives poor treatment. It is the bad owners ruining it for others. If you put the limit but allow applications for more, how hard will it be for a loving home to have more? How easy would it be for a terrible home to get more? What is the vetting process?
- 6 dogs is far too many and may promote hoarding
- I think restrictions should be based upon situation. If a family is having a hard time caring for multiple dogs that should have a restriction on them. Due to their time or money.
- bsl is so hurtful and totally non effective
- 6 is way too many
- 3 and 3 for an urban area
- I would prefer to see 4 dogs and 4 cats
- I would be concerned about backyard breeding and animal welfare.
- Because I don't
- This seems too restrictive and not able to accommodate many possibilities that aren't problematic. I generally support the notion though.
- If people have the means to take care of more animals they should not be restricted
- In the city it seems excessive with 6 cats and 6 dogs. If people want that many animals in one household, it would be more appropriate for them to be on an acreage where they can roam freely and not be cooped up.
- No
- If the owners are able to support more than 6 they should be able to and placing a limit is government overreaching
- There shouldn't be a pet limit
- 12 pets in one home is way too much. I don't want a zoo next door. They can live in an acreage if they are so fond of pets
- No more than 3 dogs and/or 3 cats per household. Remove inherited and grandfather exceptions and rope those in with Excess animal permit.
- 6 of each is too many. I think if someone wants more than 4 animals, they need to pay for an exception and have a bylaw officer check their home and provide veterinary references.
- Not for government to decide.
- That is way too many animals to be allowed per household within the city. We are too close together, construction is not sufficiently sound proof. People who don't like noise would bear an unfair consequence to 6&6.

- With the exception for the above special circumstances, 12 animals in one single home would/could result in animal neglect. Licensing, vet bills, food, litter, etc. Is expensive. Not to mention space required to let the animals have room to roam and rest. Keep the blow the same.
- As long as they are responsible I am okay.
- The welfare of the animals is the most important thing that we can do for them, keeping them safe and healthy, I think we need to keep it the same.
- People are the cause of animal behaviours. If a dog has become aggressive or fearful it was at the hands of the owner. The owner has taught the dog to have behaviours through abuse, mistreated, neglect, animals are loving loyal creatures who look to us to show them love and their needs. I believe there should be stricter Applications, or laws for people to adopt animals.. to avoid abuse neglect and mistreatments of all animals. I know lots of "bully" breeds whom are amazing, loving, loyal creatures. To deny this animals love, family, and life is disgusting.. IT'S THE PERSON NOT THE BREED!!!!
- That is a lot of animals. Would bylaw insure that those animals are being cared for adequately?
- People should have the right to own as many pets as they like as long as they are responsible owners with enough income to care for all the pets.
- too many animals. Maybe 6 total
- If there is multiple compliants then there can be a number imposed on that person.
- 6 pets is too many in one home (except under 6 months of age). 12 pets is ridiculous. There should be no more than a total of 4 pets per household.
- re way too many - I would expect too much noise, disturbance, feces and just general chaos from a neighbour with that many animals. Stick with 2 per species.
- Over reaction How will you control all of this. It will be rules that are never enforced
- No more than 3 cats or 3 dogs in the city
- Responsible owners should be allowed as many animals as they wish
- If properly taken care of you should be able to have as many animals as your heart desires
- Feels like it's just an arbitrary number. Some people shouldn't be allowed any animals, and some could have 50 and take care of them. I don't like imposing a set limit.
- If there is no evidence to support that this change will help the issue.
- I think it is dependent on property size
- I am a responsible breeder and feel the number of animals should not matter if they are well cared for and not a nuisance. No limits for responsible owners
- Who needs 6 dogs and 6 cats the limit should be no more than 3. No house in this city is big enough for dogs to live comfortably
- we NOT a NAZI STATE YET....we are FREE PEOPLE.
- One pet per 1000 sq ft with maximum of 4 pets.
- I'd agree as long as the person can prove that they are able to financially maintain safety in both sections.

- Depending on the square footage of the property, the number could be lowered or increased. Having an excessive amount of animals should be monitored and require a yearly check in to ensure proper care is being given
- An urban home should NOT have 6 dogs OR 6 cats. The max number of dogs in one household should be 2. Cats should be lower than 6 as well.
- Six is unreasonably too much, two is plenty subject to proposed exceptions above.
- It should depend on the size of the property
- too many special circumstances
- Nobody needs 6 cats and 6 dogs in city limits. That's insane! Vet bills, food, basic care, that is so expensive! No way! Reduce it to 4!
- I do not believe there should be a limit to the amount of pets a person of household can have. But it is very important that all animals are properly cared for by the owner's.
- My neighbor has only one dog and they let it bark constantly. Its the owners responsibility to keep their dog quite.
- I feel the number is too high. I think no more than 3 dogs or 3 cats per household unless under special circumstances such as under 6 months or temporary foster homes
- I don't believe anyone has the right to restrict pet ownership as long as the animals are being well cared for, their living conditions are appropriate and and their needs are met.
- As long as all animals are cared for and healthy it shouldn't matter how many pets people have
- I think 6 each is excessive so I certainly would not increase the limit.
- I think this bylaw is too restrictive. And interferes too much with breeders, shelters and rescue organizations. I'm not a person that would desire owning 6 pets but I don't want to be to told or regulated. I also foster for rescue organizations and I don't want to be forced to obtain special permits before I am allowed to commit to taking in animals.
- If the owner have the ability of all the pets than the government should not be making bylaws regrading the number of pets a household should have. While the city of Calgary is working hard to eliminate puppy mills, the city should be working along animal shelters and pets store to reduce the production and the distribution of pets from unqualified breeders.
- It should vary based on the size of the home, the property, the animal care and the attention / exercise they receive.
- Max 4 of each
- No
- 6 and 6 is too many
- The more they have the more the pets would be neglected, and anyone that has that many pets or more can't even keep a clean or tidy home. Some of the mentioned exceptions could be accepted though.
- Too many people font look after their pets. Can't imagine living in between two people who each had six pets
- I feel the limit should be a total of six pets -- any combination of dogs and/or cats up to a total of six.

- I think the number should be lower, but support the listed exceptions. If someone doesn't fall into the exceptions, there's no need to have more than 3 dogs AND 3 cats, especially within some of the relatively small property sizes within the city.
- Six dogs and six cats seems like a high limit.
- It's their home
- I would suggest no more than 6 pets total.
- That is way to many animals to responsibly take care of.
- It's nobody else's business how many pets someone chooses to have. The problems that could arise from more (eg, feces build up) already has existing laws in place. If those are enforced properly then someone having 5 animals vs 2 should make no difference, as long as the owner is properly caring for them.
- In most cases, I don't believe there should be a limit on dogs or cats. If the number of animals in the household impacts the animals' health, then that would be a complaint under animal abuse or neglect. I don't think there should be a limit on the number of pets in a home as long as they are all happy, safe and well cared for. If I were to support this bylaw, I would at the very least require that Approved Excess Animal Permits be free of charge for all additional pets, whether it be one, four, or however many additional animals.
- no more than 4 cats or dogs unless offspring are under the age for safe adoption
- Six dogs AND six cats? Are you not sane? That person? They're a hoarder. Good Idea in principle. Six of any mix is more than ample enough. No exceptions. You want more? Buy a farm.
- no reason on why ppl should have that many animals in the first place.. One maybe two but up to 6 of each not
- This is too many animals to have on one city property
- To reduce household breeding
- if the animal and the property are maintained appropriately why should the number matter.
- A family can have more then 6 kids and to some families that can't have kids have dogs or cats and they are their children.
- Its not anyone else's business how many pets a other person has as long as they are responsible pet owners
- As long as all animals are registered and well taken care of, I don't see a reason for their to be a limit.
- 6 is an arbitrary number. A person could take care of 8 cats much better than another person with only 1 dog in severe circumstances. If the city wants to cut down on animal cruelty, excessive noise or mess/odour, it should target homes where these things have been reported to be a problem. Pulling a number out of thin air and fining people for violating it will capture too many good pet owners and will not capture enough poor pet owners to make the bylaw amendment worth it.
- Would rather reduce the number of pets per household
- Some people can handle many pets while others can't. You can't penalize others for horders.
- 1do not agree with limits

- No house is big enough to handle 6 dogs and 6 cats. Also, the owner should have to be able to walk/exercise the animals. I can not see one person being able to walk 6 dogs on a leash in the city and control them.
- As long as they are able to provide safe environments and proper care it should be fine there should be an inspection process.
- No one needs 6 animals in their household.
- I don't agree with interfering with peoples private lives.
- Too many for one house. Half as much is enough.
- The more pets an owner has, the likelihood of not having a proper behavioural training there is. In addition, the possibilities of affording specific target training decreases when having multiple pets and/or children in the family.
- It is not hard to train your dogs to be quiet. If you can pick up after 12 animals and you STILL want more, great. I feel the ONLY exception at this point would be after 12 animals, if you want more you have to have an inspection done to make sure they're not being badly taken care of and are actually in GOOD LOVING homes
- Pets are my children. Why would I be limited to a certain number of them if I can take good care of them.
- This makes more of a hassle for trainers and others in the animal business
- If the animals are not in duress, are being well kept and in good health, and not causing noise disruptions then it is not an issue.
- Let people love their pets. Sometimes it's all people have to live for in their lives.
- Should be no more than 4 pets total. Service animals should never have to pay anything
- 6 dogs is too many.
- There is no need for this many animals in a single household within city limits
- 6 of each is a wee bit excessive. Maybe 6 dogs and/or cats at the most.
- 6 dogs and 6cats are a lot of work and can be expensive. People should be able to prove quality of care for the animals before having so many. Breeders can be exceptions but I have seen too many animals neglected due to inability to care for them.
- I'm not familiar with the current rule, so I can't say whether I support the proposed change.
- To many animals in 1 place can be hazardous. Unless it is a foster I disagree it should be changed.
- This is not necessary and will only lead to more pets in shelters when they could have stayed in a loving home/or with their siblings. Also there are different house sizes and family sizes, there are some people with senior cats and a young cat with a litter, in that case they would be forced to put down the older cat. 6 is a terrible limit, especially when the average litter is 8. This will only cause more animals to be put down and overflowing shelters.
- I think if the owner is responsible and taking care of all pets there should be no limit
- If you are a breeder of PURE breed dogs and we pay to go by CKC rules pay them to do this
- 6 is excessive. The chance of someone with with that many animals providing quality care and training is low. At that point they are owning for the sake of owning.

- One should not be limited to 6 dogs and 6 animals. Rather I think 12 cats AND/OR dogs works better as it does not limit the number specific to each type of animal.
- As long as it's not a puppy mill and the owner is responsible then there shouldn't be an issue ... This has more to do with the individual and how they are maintaining the health of the animals
- People should be allowed to have as many pets as they can safety and responsibly take care of.
- I just don't see a need for a cap on this, we have for the most part had few issues this
- Nobody needs that many pets in a city. They will not be caring for those animals properly!!
- If the animals are well taken care of what's the problem?
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many unless it's a rescue. It's not pets.. it becomes hoarding. Unless someone has a dog sledding team.
- I don't think there should be restrictions based on numbers but based on issues if the animals are cared for and poop picked up fed proper care then why would the number matter. More about animal husbandry like old school farming its about the care and quality of life for animals and people. Not random numbers
- Instead of focusing on licenses and number of pets, the city should make it illegal to keep a dog chained. Also, should prohibit the sales to benefit puppy mills. Also restrict the number of litters that breeders can produce.
- There shouldn't be a limit as long as they can provide for them
- Getting a license for a cat is asinine. Also, you gonna limit the number of fish people can have in their ponds and aquariums?
- I think 6 is too low of a number for each I would suggest an increase to possibly 10.
- I do agree and appreciate the exceptions. Six of each seems excessive. I think yearly animal welfare checks on households with more than 4 animals and mandatory vet annual checks and approvals of Breeders.
- There needs to be a clause for fosters, etc.
- Because it is a violation of everything our country and city stand for not
- N/a
- Number should be less than 12 combined. How about 6 combined.
- Should be breed dependant, for example there a very big difference between 6 jack russle terriers and 6 newfoundland dogs.
- 6 animals is way too many for one household
- A total of 12 possible animals per house hold is excessive. Care and control of this many animals is difficult for all. This will invite unauthorized breeding.
- It is too many given the typical size of properties.
- No limit on animals as every situation is different
- 2 dogs and 2 cats are more than enough but the size of the home and land should also be a factor. 4 pets in a small house are too much. No exceptions for excess numbers or permits that allow exemptions.

- There should be a animal per square foot rule as 6 cats and dogs would be fine on a large property but not in a studio apartment
- It should be case by case. Individuals have different abilities to care for animals.
- No more than 4 total pets should be allowed in a household.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs in any one household in a city setting is crowded and jeopardizes animal welfare
- breeders should not be in the city.
- I think that 6 of each species is too many. Perhaps 1/2 that amount of each species would be more appropriate for an urban setting. Beyond that should require a special license and setup for breeding.
- You can't silence the masses
- No reason to limit if they are being responsible
- Too many
- Let people have their pets
- Total 4 in any combination
- Exceptions are all good exceptions, but allowing 12 pets in any household is NUTS!
- Unless the owners live on a farm with plenty of land, having 12 pets would cause too many issues for both the owners and adjacent neighbours.
- It depends. I do agree that this could protect the welfare of animals as I believe it would be difficult to give 6 dogs a great life at one time. If you live on an acreage this could be different as there is alot more space for the dogs to be outside.
- This should be dealt with on a case to case basis. Lots of people can take care of a lot of animals in their house. Other people cannot. Those who can't should be dealt with accordingly
- I think that 6 cats and 6 dogs in a household within the urban area are way too many. I do agree with the exemptions
- That's too many dogs/cats in one household in the city. I'd support a maximum of 4.
- Sometimes people can't feed all the animals. As stuff happens 2 pets is enough
- That's too many pets for anyone to care for properly
- more than 6 animals on a city lot is noisy, disruptive.
- I think unless the number of animals is proven to be a problem for neighbors or the animals are in danger, it shouldn't be up to the city to determine how many animals a family can house.
- Six dogs AND six cats is too many for most homes in Calgary. I think if six is the number there needs to be conditions met such as a certain size yard for the number of dogs you own. Six dogs is too many for a condo but may be okay in a house. Not all situations are created equally.
- If the pets are well cared for, people should be allowed to have as many pets as they want. Some people I know have 10 cats and take the best care of them that I have ever seen. As long as the pets are kept clean, and their yard is kept clean, you should be allowed to have as many as you like.
- We should should not change anything because someone else thinks a person doesn't "need" something.

- I think it should be a total number kind of thing. If someone wants to own, say, 12 cats or 12 dogs, that should be allowed (not just 6 and 6). Also, it may be worth it to specify an amount of animals per square footage (i.e. 6 animals total in residences less than 500 ft squared, 8 for 750, 10 for 1000, etc.
- People prove to be careless all the time. The last thing this city needs is irresponsible people getting more animals. Who needs more than two dogs or two cats anyways?
- No human needs to have that many animals
- Having 6 dogs is far different than having 6 cats. I have 7 cats. They are all licensed and vetted every year. They NEVER go outside except in their Catio that we have built for them. We are very responsible cat owners and I know others that are the same. I also have a dog, who is licensed and vetted every year. I walk her twice a day and she does not go to off leash parks. I don't trust a lot of dogs in these parks. I feel my dog is safer not going. I do feel 6 dogs is way too many for a household. If anything that should be reduced.
- People can have as many animals as long as they're responsible
- I think 6 of each per household is too many, it should be based on the size/type of home/property and the owner's ability to care for the animals
- If pets are properly cared for and licensed there is no need to put a limit
- [removed]
- If people are responsible it's not up to the city to restrict. Other bylaws such as licensing already exist.
- There should not be a limit
- How to enforce
- If someone wants 40 cats it's not the city's job to tell them they can't.
- I think it depends on the size of the property that the pets will be living in. Some places inky have enough space to fairly accommodate one animal whereas there are other properties with ample room to accommodate more.
- It's no one's place to pass bylaws in my home
- 6 dogs in a house, that's nuts. The bylaw should be: allow up to 6 dog, but 1 person must be able to manage all 6 dogs at one time. aka, 6 Chihuahuas pulling on a leash I can handle, 6 German shepherds chasing a deer I'd have to let 3 dogs go to gain control. So perhaps after 3 dogs, owner needs to prove that the 4th, 5th, and 6th dog can all be handled by a singular person.
- It's too many dogs and cats for anyone to properly take care of. Three dogs or cats, with the only exception being when one of the animals gives birth to puppies or kittens, should be the maximum number allowed. Once again, the safety and care of the animals MUST be the top priority, and three is more than enough for any household.
- That seems like too many animals to care for.
- Kick rocks city of Calgary [removed]
- I'm not strongly opinionated on this one but there's not "I'm not sure" option. I'm not aware of other municipalities doing pet limits... everyone's different - as long as they don't cause damage to my property I think people should have strong rights for what they do on their property.

- I agree with all said except the number, I don't believe any general (non of the above listed exceptions) within city limits home needs more than 4 dogs and 4 cats, exempt foster animals and inherited. Anything about the 4 limit should require extra licensing such as a kennel license.
- Not fair to the animals.
- No need for more than 2 pets per house! The noise and smell would be unbearable!
- 2 adult dogs or cats is sufficient. Only more if it involves birth of litter or fostering young animals.
- Except for special circumstances, 12 animals is A LOT. I think 3 dogs and 3 cats, with the opportunity to apply for permission for more would suffice.
- No one in this city should have that many animals unless they are a professional breeder
- Should be a way lower limit. 6 animals? Who in the city has room for that many. I'd support a limit of 2
- If a house fold is responsible with caring for each pet, I believe they should be allowed as many pets as they'd like
- I believe that is unnecessary
- that is a lot of waste and noise. raise a little ok but 12 pets is too many for a city property
- The risk for fights in animals living in close quarters is greater and you would be doing the animals a great disservice. On top of that, with the already small spaces and limited movement in winter, it would be chaos. Having pets is expensive, taking care of them takes time and money. The more animals you have the less attention and care they get
- People should be allow to own as many pets as they want as long as they are responsible and the pets are well taken care of
- What about animals on large properties? such as a farm.
- As long as the pets are well taken care of and the faeces is picked up and removed then who's right is it to say I can't have 8 dogs.....
- Numbers are too high. Waver for puppies and kittens up to 8 weeks old. Then excess permit required.
- Stupid
- 12 animals in one house hold as the pet limit is too many
- Unnecessary
- Why the over policing. If the animals are treated well, what is the issue?
- Personally, I don't believe it is necessary to have more than 2 dogs or cats in a single family dwelling based on the fact that a lot of homes are built quite close to one another, fecal matter and noise would prove to be big factors in not living next to people who have more than the aforementioned amount. I do agree that a special application process should be implemented. Reason being that there could be a special circumstance such as animal fostering, breeding etc. But for the purpose of having in a home, 2+2 is more than enough
- I think a limit of 6 dogs or cats total ensures that each animal can be properly cared for.
- Charge owners and not the breed. Bully breeds are not the issue, owners are. Do not discriminate against bully breeds

- The proposed and increased limit is far too high. There would be no need for an average household to ever own and be expected to properly care for twelve animals. Twelve is far too high.
- Limit of 4 cat/dog per individual living at the residence
- I think If the animals are well looked after and housed properly why should there be a limit? Continue to penalize those people who are irresponsible pet owners.
- This doesn't seem necessary to enforce, if the owner is responsible it should not matter.
- As long as there is responsible ownership, you should not need a limit
- When this limit goes up, some households will have excessive amount of animals and increase the risk of potential animal abuse or neglect.
- It is private property. Use other bylaws to deal with nuisance complaints related to large numbers of pets.
- Efforts should be made towards shutting down back yard breeders instead. People who are unable to care for their pets and everything that goes along with it should not be allowed to have pets, regardless of the number. People who are responsible should not have those restrictions.
- Let people have as many pets as they want as long as they are cared for properly!!
- if a person can care for their animals there is no need for a limit
- I think it should potentially also depend on the size of the property
- A blanket rule of 6 dogs and/or cats should not apply to everyone, but rather should be determined on a case-by-case basis, respective of the owner's income and space available. Thus low-income households and smaller households should be allowed fewer animals while higher income households and larger households should be allowed more animals. If such a system could be implemented it would allow those with the resources to provide good homes to more cats and dogs, while those owners without the resources to properly care for multiple pets cannot accumulate more animals than they can support
- Only allow this for breeders. No one needs 6 animals in there house.
- I don't like how much "pit bulls" are being singled out pit
- I don't believe there should be restrictions on responsible pet owners
- Go from 2 to 6. That's a big increase. No one need that many cats. Buy an acreage.
- multi family households WILL become more common during the economic situation we're heading into. Three households combining into one could cause problems with this.
- The only exception that should exist is the approved excess animal permit otherwise there is literally no point in having a limit, several of the other "exceptions" will be easily abused. The onus should be on the pet owner, not on the neighborhoods to tolerate.
- Depends on the size of the property the animal is being kept on
- Unless you are a breeder, 6 of each is very excessive. 3 of each should be maximum. With regard to previous question for low income, vets charge the same and having an animal is a choice. If you can't afford to care and look after the animal then don't get one.
- I support the proposed bylaw change for most cases although I believe it should make exceptions for households that exceed the proposed limit but have provided a safe and suitable living environment for the animals (especially in regard to households that rescue and adopt animals)

- Limits are redundant; will you take away animals already in homes? Sorry, pick your least favourite dog so we can take it
- Six animals or even up to 12 in one household create a huge amount of feces and huge dedication by the owners to ensure that there isn't nuisance barking and other disturbances to adjacent neighbours. I believe a lower limit with the exceptions listed above would allow dedicated trainers and breeders to have the requested numbers they desire.
- Responsible owners that are capable of providing vetting, care and a stable home that nurtures the animals should be allowed to have as many animals as they would like as long as the above are provided.
- Fines should be used to penalize owners who aren't being responsible for their pets.
- I work as a vet's assist. Aggressive dogs are not breed specific. It all depends on how they are trained and their past. It is never the dog's fault. It's the people who raised the dog. I would like to see more enforcement with aggressive animals. I think that known aggressive dogs should not be allowed in public spaces without a muzzle. I believe that you should not be allowed to own more than 4 cats or dogs (both) per household. No person should own more than that (not including small animals) as financially it's hard, but there is always neglect with them. I think that if we judge a breed based on its bite, there is something seriously wrong. I think that a German Shepherd or a husky has an even worse bite than a pit bull. Pit bulls can not lock their jaw and its bite is just as bad as the next dog. I have been bit by french bulldogs and small dogs and its bite is just as bad. Please for the love of God, if we ban or discriminate against bully breeds, I will be incredibly sad for the state of our city.
- What is the need for 6 animals? Doesn't this seem unsanitary and unhealthy for the animals? Would it depend on the size of property?
- An owner should be allowed to have as many animals as wanted, as long as their living conditions are good.
- There is no reason for that amount of animals in one household in residential property. If a person is a breeder they should be in a commercial area.
- With exception to fosters, pet sitters etc., 6 dogs AND 6 cats per household seems excessive.
- There should not be more than 6 pets per household
- 6 dogs or cats in a single city home is ridiculously high! Who can properly care for all those animals!
- too many animals in one household to be considered safe for an animal or human
- 3 is already more than enough. You can't provide quality care unless you are a shelter
- I don't think it's needed
- 6 is extremely excessive. I believe 3 of each would be acceptable and I believe it should be dependent on the type of household (ie. Apartment vs house vs acreage etc.)
- This would impact foster pet parents, potentially putting more animals in kill shelters. Allow people to be adults and make a decision on how many animals they can handle.
- There is no need to have six dogs and six cats in a house. This is not fair to the animals who should have room to roam.

- That seems like too many animals to properly care for and manage. Excessive barking and animal waste.
- Low the limit
- Nobody without emotional issues needs more than 2-3 dogs or cats. Nobody! Inherit one? Give it away! I have 2 dogs. That's more than enough. Fostering? Get a farm if you have more than that...
- 3 dogs and 3 cats is more than enough
- As long as the person takes care of their responsibilities then they should be able to have as many animals as they can care for.
- 12 animals (6 cats + 6 dogs) seem too high in the city . On a farm they need lots but not in the city
- I think a good dog or cat owner who is responsible should have as many as they see fit. This will eliminate homeless animals. Also neuter/spading more then 6 on premises should be a requirement. This way we can lower homeless or shelter dogs.
- As long as there aren't problems with any of the animals. Why limit the amount at all
- Let people make choices. This bylaw is unnecessary and fines are irrelevant
- If they look after their pets who cares
- I like it the way it is now. As long as you look after your animals well, then you can have a maximum of 10.
- I don't believe there should be a pet limit as long as the owner is able to take care of the animals they own as well as keep them licensed
- I believe 6 cats AND 6 dogs is too many pets to have in most Calgary properties. I would support a lower limit, and anyone requesting more could apply for it (with things like neighbour consultation, proof that they can support more pets financially, etc)
- It should be no more than four animals in total in the city.
- Too excessive. Three.
- Houses are too small,
- no one requires more than 2 animals
- Seems arbitrary
- There is a house in Sundance that has 14 dogs. FOURTEEN. I need a licence to babysit 5 children but these people don't have to do anything? The stink must be horrible especially if she hoses the poop under the fence onto the alley? 6 animals per household? That's way too much. Even on the farm we never had more than 3.
- Again. If someone wants 10 dogs and takes care of them properly what's the issue? If they don't you guys have plenty of other rules. Like????
- Changing bylaws for owners who are responsibly owning their animals shouldn't be changed if the environment is a healthy environment you should not take people's pets away
- Should be based on size of household land size and distance between neighbors.
- Too many animals.
- you would have to show that you can care for (exercise, mental and physical stimulation, and that you aren't backyard breeding)

- how would this be enforced aside from monetarily penalizing the groups such as fosters and daycares. I would support it if it was free to those groups.
- Another money grab by the city
- Who needs that many animals in the city. Buy a farm.
- I just don't want to see limits. I consider Calgary a pet friendly city. Right now with Covid, I see many people out walking their dogs, enjoying their animals.
- If a person is taking care of their pets and they are not disrupting those around them, they should be allowed to have what makes them happy. Some people get their happiness from taking care of their pets and not interacting with people.
- More info to support change ie: size of dwelling, income suite exceptions, per family or per home (multiple families per household)
- with the exception of hoarding , you should be able to choose for yourself if you want another pet.
- Why worry? Stop taxing people unless they're a problem.
- Different people, different life styles. Regardless of number of pets those that currently don't care for animal needs still won't. This punished those who actually care
- That's a bizarre number of animals for one household. I could see 2 dogs and 2 cats in a household, but 6 of each is ridiculous.
- Should not dictate how many animals if they are paid for and are able to take good care of all the animals.
- Having a neighbor with 3 large dogs and at least 2 cats I find that excessive barking is a concern and lack of control over the animals when they are outside.
- the number or pets isn't the issue. The issue is the pet owners and their irresponsibility. Fines and animal seizure should be strong enforces. 1st time fine. Second time seizure. No exceptions.
- Do not punish responsible owners with greater numbers of pets
- We have 135K licensed dogs in Calgary; if we consider all on small size ~20pounds each this will be equivalent with ~15K human adults using the street as public toilets daily. Think about ! Love pets but owners have no respect for streets or properties or parks
- if a civilian believes they are capable to take care of more than 6 then i dont believe the city should intervene. The city should intervene if they break the existing bylaws.
- I support limiting the number of pets however, 6 cats and 6 dogs still seems like so much. I think 2-4 is reasonable. Maybe 6 in certain circumstances.
- This is government over reach.
- 6+ is excessive in any urban setting
- Nobody needs that many animals no one should have more than 3 animals at there house.
- An individual should be allowed to own however many animals they want as long as they take good care of them and they are not bothering anybody else.
- Pitbulls are not problem animals there are only problem owners. I do not at all support this bylaw change. Pitbulls do not deserve this they are only dogs and should not be held accountable for having bad owners

- If people have the money and time and proper love to provide to these animals, they should be able to express that to as many animals as they want.
- I think that 12 animals in one household is so unnecessary! How can you maintain a good quality of life when you have hypothetically, 12 animals, a lizard, a snake.. as well as maybe children in the house, and your partner?? I think a cap of 5 animals TOTAL per household or even maybe even 6 is appropriate.
- Because there should be a law for mistreatment of animals instead of limiting numbers of animals
- No if a person has the space and means to care for their animal there should be a more flexible number.
- It groups all individuals into a group but doesn't fix symptoms of problems. Worst kind of bureaucracy that only pads pockets to city officials
- I support this change as long as the above potential exceptions are included. It might also be beneficial to animals if breeders are registered, licensed and certified as to prevent Puppy Mills and Catterys that are dangerous to the animals.
- A person could have 20 animals and be the best caretaker in the world and respect the community and neighbours, or a person could have one animal and be disruptive. It is owner dependent, and not animal dependent.
- animals need their space too. The current number of pets allowed is more than enough already. I would support higher numbers outside of city limits on farms and other large properties, but not within Calgary city limits.
- I think a more appropriate pet limit would be 4 cats or dogs. I agree to the excepts above, or the need for a special application to be required. Some people will just have more pets than allowed and not get them licensed anyway.
- Depending on the case. You would know if there is too many. But don't limit how many fur babies someone can have if it's manageable
- Individuals should be allowed as many as they want.
- In my opinion, more than six animals in total is ridiculous. Six should be the max.
- Too many
- If people can support more animals and not cause harm or lower quality of life they should be given that option.
- I don't think 1 limit can apply to all
- There is no way the animals would have a decent quality of life if someone owned 12 pets at one time.
- Depends on the area where the owner lives. If property is large enough and not close to other homes they should be allowed to have more pets.
- No limit especially for rescues or foster homes
- You do not have the authority to control peoples lives, that's not the purpose of the government.
- 6 of each is still a large number and promotes hoarding. Owners should have to apply for a permit for any number over 6.

- We are a free society. Stop interfering. We already know that people who hoard animals are going to do that anyway, and are usually doing that because of a mental or emotional need of some kind.
- Should be a limit of only 2 pets per home. Too many pets infringe on the neighbourhood with noise, feces smell, and increased of black flies. My current neighbour has licenced 15 dogs and 9 cats. Not enjoyable in my own backyard & feel devalues my property.
- NO ONE, NO ONE needs more than two dogs and / or two cats. Please apply some common sense here!
- Leave things the way they are. Fix other issues ..work on more fenced dog parks or bathrooms. Quit be so discrimatative ..this is step backwards
- There is no need for 6 dogs or cats in a single city home.
- Given the seven exceptions listed why bother? Anybody who wants more animals will be able to figure out a way to get around the bylaw.
- Keeping large amounts of animal is cruel and leads to excess noise and fecal matrrr
- Too many animals on one property in an urban setting
- N/a
- If the owner(s) of the pets (let's say 6) is taking care of the animals properly and all their needs are met, also if the animals are not causing a nuisance. If owners are found to be irresponsible, then limit it case by case.
- 6 dogs/cats per household seems high. I would set the upper limit at 3 cats/dogs per household.
- No more than 2 pets
- Some people are able to raise and care for more than 6 pets. We aren't limiting people having more children than this.
- No one needs that many animals, plus the care for them would definitely go down.
- 6 dogs or cats (or mix). But it also depends on the size of the house/dwelling. If someone in a 7000sq ft home has 6 dogs there is lots of space for them. But it someone's living in a 700 sq ft home with 6 dogs it would be cramped.
- I'm opposed to the limits period. I have 7 cats. Many people I know have more than 6 cats and they're all cared for responsibly and their environment is clean.
- I feel three dogs in the city. Indoor cats a maximum of 3-4
- Foster families should never have 6 animals (dogs or cats) at one time. A lot of animals in foster care come from traumatic life experiences and need a chance to recover before moving onto a forever family. Recovery is necessary to assist in reducing "nuisance" animals and dog attacks/bites.
- There are always going to be unique situations that fall out of these suggested exceptions. The only priority is making sure the well being and quality of life of these animals are held in high regard. Increasing regulations of how many animals per household doesn't actually protect the welfare, its the conditions that animals are housed in and the treatment from owners whether it be 1 or 10 dogs is the only thing that bylaw should be considered about. If there is a situation where there are too many animals and their not being treated fairly or responsibly then yes action needs to be taken, but the same could be done for a home that only houses a couple animals. The focus of these bylaws needs to be on the welfare of the animals in the city and holding owners accounting for irresponsible care or mistreatment. With that being said, do your research and just because other municipalities have these regulations in place does not make them effective or accurate.

- People can be responsible pet owners for multiple dogs.
- I don't believe in pet licensing
- This is ridiculous. People will find a way around this and it would be a waste of resources to monitor/enforce.
- Each to their own. If they have the funds to support animals then they should be allowed as many as they want
- Its not up to the city, its up to the owner!
- As a life member of ckc and a breeder for over 40 years I have numbers of dogs which are bred at different times Restricting the numbers could impact my ability to breed quality dogs They are always well cared for and maintained
- I don't see a need to limit so long as animals are well cared for
- Way too many pets for a normal home
- 2 pets are sufficient.
- If they have the space and means to provide then they should be able to have however many they want. People need to stop trying to dictate others lives
- I think this is too many - I believe this would not be good for the health of the animals.
- As long as that person is able to keep more than the suggested amount mentioned above and those animals are thriving I don't think anyone especially the government/ city should be allowed to state how many one household is allotted.
- This is ridiculous , no one needs more than two animals
- 12 animals in a normal home is outrageous. Special circumstances obviously apply and those could be made on a case by case basis.
- Outside of the above exceptions, I do not see a good enough reason why a person requires that many animals
- The number of dogs and cats per household that would be acceptable varies too much based on house sizes, backyard space, behaviour of pets, behaviour of owners, etc. so restrictions would not address the issues stated in any meaningful way
- I would support a Bylaw that would limit the animals to 2 per household. Be it two cats, two dogs or a dog and a cat etc, it is absolutely unnecessary for a household to have more than two pets. It's sometimes bad enough with only one.
- As long as it not a problem who cares
- Some people just want animals
- That is too many pets per Single family household in a city.
- It is cruel to pets to have 12 of them in a house, and likely a nuisance to neighbours (smell, noise). Limit of up to 4-6 cats OR dogs OR combination thereof is fine, with exceptions for in-house adoption services or temporary pet housing (such as an in-house pet daycare)

- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many for any house in the city. I think it should be more limited. More like 2-3 of each max
- No person should ever need either two dogs or two cats. Nobody needs 4 animals in their household.
- 12 animals seems like a lot more than is necessary unless you're running some sort of business. I think 4-6 total animals for cats AND dogs is a bit more reasonable.
- It is against our rights to tell us how many pets we can have
- A pet limit of 12 animals? Nobody but someone training service animals needs anywhere near this many animals. I don't think any animal is in safe hands if they are sharing space with 11 other animals inside the City limits of Calgary.
- doesn't make sense
- Everyone should be the judge of how many animals then can take care of
- If someone can support the animals and is aware of the responsibility they are taking on, there should be no need for a limit.
- Cats and dogs need to be separated you are grouping them and they are not the same kind of animals, you can have a ton of cats and keep up with them keep your place clean and there are no neighbor issues if you don't let them out, dogs need to be let out which can cause all sorts of issues if you have more than 6, this whole survey needs to separate dogs and cats.
- 3 dogs 3-4 cats seems like a manageable number.
- d
- If they can be properly cared for there should be no limit
- if the owner is responsible and takes good care of the animals then I don't see I problem. Only when it becomes a neglect issue and also not cleaning up feces
- If manageable there should be no limit.
- There are several dog owners in Calgary that have more than 6 dogs and take care of them extremely well. There should be no limit on the number of pets someone is allowed to have, but in the event that person isn't able to care for them properly, fines should be implemented.
- Too many animals for one house, I would prefer if that's reduced by half. There is no reason anyone needs to have that many cats and dogs in one home unless they are hoarding, buying and selling or breeding.
- Don't put limits on the amount of pets
- There needs to be some sort of limit. I would say each case needs to be evaluated on a case by case basis. If it's a condo now way! If at an acreage then maybe.
- bylaw remains the same, no limit of animals.
- A large number of pets in 1 house could alter the peace of neighbours due to excessive noise, odours and waste created
- 6 is an excessive amount of animals outside of a professional business (breeder or trainer etc). I fear for the welfare of animals as well as impacts on neighbours and communities.

- In the past I have had seven cats at one time. There were no adverse consequences of having this many and having to give one up would have been traumatic. Three of these cats were strays which were rescued; the restriction would have prevented a rescue.
- I don't think any of this is necessary or worth the tax dollars.
- Our a person is responsible then it's wrong that the city can tell you how many animals you can have in a house. People pay ALOT of money to own their OWN home. Stop trying to control every aspect of a person's life!!!
- Nobody needs more than 2 cats or dogs in an urban environment. It is different if you live on an acreage outside of the City.
- No one should be allowed 12 or more animals per household. This is why homes and yards are destroyed. The limit should be 2 dogs and 2 cats max.
- The limit on number of animals permitted is too high in the proposed change. For residential properties within the city, 12 permitted animals is excessive, when considering noise, waste, and proper maintenance and care. Properties operating as a business (daycares, pet sitters, etc) should have their own restrictions and licensing, of course, but for private family residences, 2 dogs and 2 cats are reasonable.
- 6 dogs or cats is far too many. Should be limited to 2 dogs or cats. Have you ever lived next to a house where people leave dogs home all day barking?? Its no Fun...
- For the average person 6 of anything is a lot of time and money. More noise, mess. I worry with that many animals mental and physical needs of the pets will not be cared for correctly. Anyone needed more is likely a breeder or into dog sport and should need to obtain an extra license. In my opinion 3 dogs and 3 cats as a max per household
- Volume should only be limited on case to case basis
- 6 of each pet sounds excessive, that is a potential 12 dogs and cats living in one home. I see no reason why it should not e limited to 6 total cats and dogs as full time residence with special permit for temporary homes.
- six is too many, unless they are from a litter - timeline to bring number back to a more reasonable number, like 2-3
- If people are adequately taking care of the animals then no problems. There should be an investigation or interview to make sure the pets are taken care of
- it is none of your business if a family wants 3 dogs or cats. Ridiculous.
- Normal house holds can be fine with 2 or 3 max in total. Breeders I understand but they should be apply for extra animals so the city can inspect to make sure they have the correct means to look after that many animals
- Can't stop someone from wanting to adopt animals that have no home. There shouldn't be a limit. "My home, my rules"
- I don't feel anyone, outside of the exceptions, is capable of managing that many pets without causing a nuisance.
- There is no need for that many dogs and cats in the same home. That many poses an issue to the welfare of the animals.

- Bylaws should be changed on a case by case basis (Foster families, ect. Who are funded and trained in handling larger groups of animals). Not granted to the general public.
- There should be no limit as at times there are unforeseeable circumstances that change families and the number of pets that must be accepted to keep family together times there can be unforeseeable circumstances there
- seems clear enough that far too many current owners can't intelligently manage one or two
- Maximum number of pets allowed should be 3 per household.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats in one household is too many, it should be reduced to 3 dogs and 3 cats. I agree with the listed potential exceptions.
- it is common for pets to receive poor care and being ornaments
- Increases risk of hoarding situations and animal neglect.
- Items too vague
- People should be able to own as many pets as they want if they are fit to do so
- Should be able to have as many pets as you can take care of
- This is an absurd proposal. I know many people with over 6 animals and have no issues. To many, animals are family and to restrict how many pets you can have is ridiculous. No one says you can't have more than 6 kids, and kids are often far more problematic than a cat or dog.
- My cats are my children. I can't have children. They are not allowed to roam. They are all licensed. They do not make noise. Limiting certain animals is ridiculous for responsible owners. I would agree with anything more than 5 cats or 3 dogs. There should be no other kind of outdoor animals within city limits.
- Pet amounts should not be restricted
- As long as they take care of the animals, why should it matter ? If someone is having them in unhealthy conditions then that's a different story. I do not support this at all
- Seems like an unnecessary change that hurts pet owners to make non pet owners feel more comfortable
- 6 and 6 is way too many animals per household. 4 and 4 should be maximums.
- people should be able to make their own decisions on how many pets they have. It is their property not the governments!!
- Different properties can accommodate different pet numbers. Not for the city to arbitrarily decide.
- If you are going to set pet limits, you would need to do so for all pets, not just cats and/or dogs. If you will allow people to own as many bunnies, birds, guinea pigs, reptiles snakes, etc as they want, then you cannot mandate limits on only cats and dogs. If we are going to be setting limits on pets, than those limits need to be set on all pets.
- Pitbulls are not aggressive dogs
- Maybe size of household could help determine these numbers, but pets are family ... can't put a number on family.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats? 11 animals in a household seems a bit excessive. I think 6 animals in total, for typical city sized residences is more acceptable. It's healthier for the animals and for the people. If a citizen has a larger property that can safely support more, they can request special permission.

- a random number what if person wanted 7 cat no dogs. what if they want rabbit or hedgehog... what if it is a small condo or a 12,000 square foot home it seems strange to have same limit. Would make more sense to have numbers based on square feet and best interest of animals.
- No one needs to have that many pets. That's definitely overboard and will be nuisance to neighbors for many reasons. I would support a maximum of three adults dogs / cats
- As long as the animals are properly taken care of who cares how many animals a person has.
- no
- should be able to have more pets
- 3 animals of each should be enough per household unless the home is a rescue or foster home for animals. Special exceptions
- 6 of each is way, way too many
- If i can afford more animals i should be allowed. Stop telling me what i can and cant do!
- Why do we need this??? Who is asking for such a thing?? Why does the city want to be involved in these decisions??
- People should have a choice on how many pets they have, as long at the pets are well taken care of
- Let people have however many animals they want SO LONG AS they are being correctly cared for and ensured to be safe and healthy
- I don't think there should be a limit to how many pets are in each household.
- Unless the special circumstances are met, people do not need to own more than two cats or two dogs.
- So long as an animal is cared for its non of your business
- Slippery slope.
- thats a ridiculous amount of animals to have in the city. Should be based off housing type (duplex, 4 level splits etc) neighbour's, and amount of yard.
- I feel like 12 animals on most properties within Calgary city limits would not have sufficient space to have a good lifestyle. I support the proposed exceptions.
- I think the limit needs to be 3 dogs and 3 cats. There is no need for 1 household to have 6 dogs and 6 cats. We shouldn't give them that option either. Lower the better.
- This number should be based on the size of the living space... even 6 small dogs/cats is a lot of animals for a small living space, let alone 6 large dogs in a small living space.
- As long as pets are healthy and happy, you should be able to have as many as you want
- The limit of 6 dogs and/or 6 cats is too high. Who could possibly need that many pets? Dog or cat breeders? And what's with the bias shown towards "pit bulls." There are a lot more other breeds or mixed breeds that bite than "pit bulls." Like they say in court, "i object to counsel leading the witness."
- Some people can handle more dogs with no problems
- No need to have that many pets. Don't think it is a healthy environment for pets or people.
- There is no need for more than 2 dogs in a household.
- STRONGLY DISAGREE. just because one dog bites does NOT mean they are all bad

- Let people do what they want
- this is meddlesome, if an undesirable situation arises it can be dealt with on a case by case basis
- I don't think there should be restriction if they are taking care of the animals properly
- 6 dogs and or cats is far too many in an urban setting
- Some people can have 12 dogs that are well trained and well behaved and some can have one that is poorly trained and aggressive.
- I support parts of this proposal and not others. Putting limits on young dogs (under twelve months) would discourage backyard breeding.
- Too many animals to handle properly. No chance
- You should only own 2 dogs, but at least make it 4 cat limit
- 6 dogs is absolutely insane! This is supporting animal hoarders and back yard breeders
- Nobody needs more than 6 of anything
- As a multi dog owner, the responsibility is with me to adhere to the bylaws irrespective of the number of animals. Given proper space and care is provided.
- I believe it should be upped but not to 12 pets per home there is too many irresponsible pet owners they don't treat them properly and this is a huge factor in that. But then again the city doesn't own everyone's pets
- if the animals are properly cared for and don't cause a disturbance to locals then it should be allowed
- I don't think six (6) dogs or cats is appropriate. Four (4) is a better number, with the potential exceptions staying the same
- Case by case basis only
- I know many of the rescue group volunteers for more than 10 dogs who are responsible..where would these dogs go..back to the shelters?
- I don't know what the current bylaw is. But I don't think we should limit numbers.
- 12 animals in one house is way too high. I do agree with exceptions
- Having 12 pets is ridiculous.
- I might support if there were automatic exceptions based on lot size. Six cats in a downtown 1 bedroom condo is a lot, but 10 cats in a 4 bedroom house on the edge of the city seems fine.
- Because it's no one's business what happens inside my property that I pay for.
- I can't locate what the current bylaw is regarding this, but 12 seems excessive. Unless you are a temporary home or shelter you should not have that many animals. I cannot ascertain how the living conditions would be for that many animals. At most I think 3 of each is more reasonable.
- Pets are better taken care of when there are not so many.
- The potential of 12 animals in a home is alarming to me. Unless in the case of fostering a litter or something, there is no need for a home to have that many animals.
- The exact reasons listed in the question. Why does someone need more than a few pets if they're living in the city? That many pets need space to run around. Even with two pets in the house (dogs) most houses that's more than what is comfortable for the home, especially if there are kids in the household as well. The more busy a household is with kids, the louder it gets, same could be said for dogs. For cats, yes they often don't make noise if they're house cats, but if outdoor cats are involved...cat fights around a property are louder than dogs barking. Not to mention fecal matter that know for a fact gets spread in flower beds and gardens. I don't own pets and this has happened to me with cats on numerous occasions.

- Noise and smell from urine and feces
- I am not sure anyone need 6 or more service animals What is a Dog Fanciers Licence? and do they need more than 6 of them? I would for animals that may be inherited and pet sitters (certain time frame could be applied for) same for foster homes
- An arbitrary number to limit pet ownership does not make sense. Deal with problem animals and owners under already existing bylaws.
- It is a right to have pets, this should not be determined by the city.
- I support some of the above but do not support other amendments. See above responses.
- You cannot paint everyone with the same brush. This should be assessed on a case by case basis. There are TONS of responsible pet owners. I do feel that 6 of each is plenty - but that would depend on available space and breeder requirements.
- [removed] out of our lives, get your own money, I mean you [removed] just print it any way. [removed]
- I think six dogs in one household is too many.
- I think 6 is still too high... 3 is what I feel is adequate in an urban environment.
- People think they can care properly for more animals but often they can't
- There is no need to have more than 2 dogs or cats per household within city limits. Poor ownership, pet training and animal control will result. There will also be a larger margin for stray/feral cats and dogs resulting in more issues. On rural properties (outside of city limits) that may be an option for criminal deterrent's (more than 2 dogs) and mouse control (More than 2 cats). There is absolutely no reason to own 6 dogs or cats within city limits. Maybe have special licencing for breeders to be able to have an exception for the current bylaw.
- 6 is far too many. 4 should be maximum. If you need more, move to an urban area
- I don't think it's up to anyone else to determine how many animals a household can have. As long as there's not a case of hoarding and the animals are well taken care of by responsible pet owners - it's no one else's business. What right does someone have to limit the number of PETS someone has? What's next? We limit how many kids can be in one household? To some people, their pets ARE their kids.
- Limit should be based on square footage of house/yard.
- That's way too many. I could see maybe a max of 3 cats or dogs - there should also be a COMBINED max of 5 animals
- Cats should be treated differently from dogs. they are less nuisance and don't have excessive noise.
- I don't think any household should be allowed to have more than 2 (two) dogs and 2 (two) cats, except for the conditions listed above.

- it should be 6 TOTAL, not 6 of each. Nobody needs that many animals with the exception being breeders
- 12 animals is unrealistic, animal welfare will suffer, most pet owners do not have the kind of space needed to have that many pets nor do they have enough money to properly care for those same pets
- 6 animals of each breed is too many. 6 animals total is more than enough, unless special circumstances where a request can be made for above purposes.
- These bylaws do not seem to be based on any evidence-based arguments but rather on some arbitrary emotional argument. "Comments say that it is not necessary to own more than 2 cats and dogs"?. What an unprofessional way to present a bylaw. While ownership is not considered necessary, it can be very beneficial, something that was highlighted during the pandemic and stay-at-home orders. Furthermore, many cats and/or dogs will thrive in multi-animal households, while others won't, legislation won't change that. Some families can take care of 6+ without issue while others might struggle with a single animal.
- I think the size of a home and once income should be considered. More importantly home size
- Owning the maximum of 12 animals would cause the animal quality of life to decrease. Most owners are not trained to handle 6 dogs at once, meaning poorly trained, less socialized dogs which is one of the causes to animal aggression
- I believe 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is far too many. The pet limit should be appropriate for the size of household. For instance only 1 dog and 1 cat allowed in apartment/condo buildings. The maximum should be 3 cats and 3 dogs in single-family households.
- there should be no limit on animals. they are the same as children. you don't have a limit on how many kids you can have. Pets should be the same. unless they are in an abusive home and are not properly taken care of
- Stay out of people's living rooms. Problems will rear themselves; then deal with it. Other than that, leave people alone.
- I think there should be a limit of 6, or maybe 8, TOTAL animals in a residence, be they cats, dogs, or a combination. 12 animals is too many for one residence to house safely, and without disturbing neighbours.
- If someone wants to be Dr. Doolittle and just surround themselves with a bajillion animals, let them. Hold them to the same general cleanliness and animal welfare standards as anyone else though.
- We have a lot of dog breeders in town. This restriction could be broken with one litter. Changing the bylaw goes after those that have been breeding within the law.
- I think this limit is too high and would promote hoarding/mistreatment of the animals.
- You should be allowed to have however many dogs you want
- too many animals at 6 each
- I think 6 dogs AND 6 cats is still too many. That is 12 animals. Even 5 of each would be better, with the same exceptions.
- As long as the animals are healthy and there's adequate space it shouldn't matter how many pets a person has

- Your complaint stats regarding multi-animal household issues are not justified. Calgary does not need limits!
- I do not think that anyone needs more than 2 cats and/or dogs per household within the city.
- As long as all requirements are being met, there is no reason to legislate this.
- I think the term household should be more specific. A 1 bedroom apartment would be not appropriate for that kind of number. I think the sizes should also be considered and again how much space this household has.
- Few people have the time or resources to provide proper care, diet and obedience training for more than 2 pets.
- Two is enough. Most people can't look after more animals properly. It is not fair to the pet.
- The city already has mechanisms in place to handle homes with issues. Its called neighbors rapping out neighbors. Through complaints houses are already identified to have issues.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many imo. Would be more comfortable with 4 per.
- That's excessive for urban living.
- 12 animals in most homes is excessive for any animal. The limit should be a combination of 6 cats or dogs.
- Good animal guardians will license and take appropriate care of their animals, bad animal guardians will not, but a bylaw limit will not stop their behaviour. How about you find a way to deal with the problem of hoarders and animal abusers instead?
- Dogs become packs after 2. The behaviour of dogs change when they are packs.
- Excessive noise, feces, We already have too many dogs and dog problems. One is enough, maybe two to serve as a companion animal.
- I don't believe anyone needs that many pets.
- A maximum of 2 cats or dogs per household.
- I agree but also know there are people who's life revolves around their pets and spend great time and money on ensuring they're trained properly and behave in a proper manner. Not to mention they are incredibly responsible human beings. Others, would not be in this position and I do believe they should be assessed and upon investigation, would or wouldn't be granted this.
- I believe that 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive.
- people who breed animals should have exceptions or those who foster large amounts of animals.
- Some people love animals
- 6 dogs and 6 cats in a urban house sound
- Number of pets should be limited
- I believe that there should be no limit of pets owned within a household. As is, should it be found that the owners are not properly caring for their animals, there are fines or even removal of the animal. I think as long as people are taking care of, licensing, and cleaning up after their animals effectively, it makes no difference how many they have.
- If you can take care of your pets there should be no limit!!!
- 6 dogs and/or cats is excessive. Unless you are fostering or animal sitting.

- I think 4 is a fair number
- 6 is too many. 4 or 5 max.
- If you have more than 2 dogs in a household you are creating a pack of dogs. The animals no longer bond with humans as much. Also six dogs or cats creates an crazy amount of noise, feces and more likely that the animals will be neglected.
- As long as the pet owner is responsible, the animals are taken care of and the neighbors have no complaints there should be no limit. Hoarding situations are never okay.
- People should be allowed as many pets as they want proved they a) can provide enough food and water b) provide enough space and enrichment c) financially support themselves and the animals d) license them all with the city
- No one needs more then 2 dogs or cats.
- I think 4 and 4 would be a better base if there is going to be exceptions to allow more. If you're allowed to have 6 dogs but they're all females and end up having litters of puppies that end up being hypothetically 6 puppies EACH. That ends up being over 40 dogs in one home. That to me is not humane at all. If that were to happen to 4 dogs / cats, it's still a lot of animals but substantially more humane and manageable. Additionally, fewer animals as a whole are easier to manage to prevent hoarding and nuisance animals.
- 6 is to many 3 is a more realistic number
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is very excessive. 3 max per household is sufficient. I agree with the above potential exceptions
- I think if you need more than three cats and dogs you should have to apply for a licence
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are too many animals to manage in a city house.
- 6dogs and 6 cats in a single household is far too many, I feel proper care and love would not be able to be give to all
- Unless pets are insured. Financial responsibility for 12 pets is not easy, should be demonstrated.
- If you cannot limit the amount of kids human can have, why do it to animals.
- More help provided for stupid people
- Not necessary
- Enough with all the rules folks!
- I would support a smaller increase, but 6 dogs and 6 cats is too much in an urban setting. exceptions can be made for foster facilities and breeders.
- if a person is able to care for the animals in their care and control and there are no contraventions of legislation, i see no reason to place a restriction on the amount one may own. there are other avenues in place that can deal with this concern should it be required.
- In feudal Europe peasants and serfs we're not allowed to have dogs or weapons as it prevented uprising this tactic has been used multiple times when communism thinks it's disgusting teeth in and make no mistake in the short 38 years I have been on this planet and in Alberta I have seen nothing but my freedoms torn away I don't have six dogs or cats but I do have friends with property who do have a lot of animals they also have a lot of children no you don't have the right to start restricting everything down to number of pets. And leave the pitbulls alone I live with one he is the biggest whiner I have known many pit bulls even large ones well over a hundred pounds they just want the couch and a blanket an aggressive Pitbull is an abused pitbull in the fault lies with the human not the dog the deal with that on a case-by-case basis don't just assume that most people who have a pit bull are bad people my landlord with the pit bull is a lawyer and the lady he rescued the Pitbull from Ontario where they have a similar ban to what you are trying to implement

- Should be no limit. As long as properly cared for.
- There should be no limit. If they are being taken care of and loved.
- That is too many pets! It should be based on square footage of premise as well.
- Limit is too high. One household cannot take care of that many animals.
- No
- Let people do what they want.
- It is only an issue if all the other requirements are NOT met such as “noise infractions” , animals neglect, smell from unsanitary. If these issues are adheres there is no problem
- 6 of each seems like way too many for one household to care for responsibly. I would lower to 4 of each.
- As long as the pets are being taken care of by the owners, there is no need for a limit.
- How can you ensure all animals have the necessary space
- I live in an attached duplex and the neighbour has 3 dogs that bark constantly and their yard is only 10'x14' and the dog feces smell is unbearable in the heat of summer. Dogs should have a large space.
- Li.it should be 2 cats and 2 dogs per household
- There is no reason to have up to 6 dogs and 6 cats per household. I think most people are not responsible enough to look after that many animals. The smell and noise would definitely be a problem.
- Need more info
- Who are we to decide how many pets one household can have. To some households pets are their children. Until we can decide how many human children one household can have it is No ones business unless the animals are abused or under threat.
- I consider 6 dogs or cats per household as excessive within City limits. I think 3 dogs or cats per household is a more reasonable limit.
- No household should have a pet limit.
- 6 of each seems a lot. However 2 of each seems low.
- So many people want pets but don't provide adequate veterinary care. If they have up to 12 pets, 6 of each I think most will mean well but won't actually be able to afford care.
- Cats and dogs require different levels of attention, setting a limit on them the same as dogs does not make sense.
- The bylaw change will extend the bureaucracy.
- I think 6 is too many unless a fully licensed breeder. The maximum should be 3 . No one can properly look after train, care for 6 animals in one city house on a small lot.

- I think this should be on a case by case basis. If people have the space, are responsible and train their pets then there should not be a limit
- People should be able to have all the pets they can take care of. We don't put restrictions on children.. so why let's?
- That's too many dogs and cats to have in one place
- Agree with personal exceptions, but those must be renewed each year (or applied for when circumstances change.) 6 dogs and 6 cats are too many animals on one property! Limit the number of dogs to the number of adults resident, but not to exceed 4. Perhaps cats could be more than 2 (but NOT as many as 6) as they are likely indoors. I support an exemption process for the number of dogs or cats (for example, when households combine due to relationship changes, emergency or hardship). The exemption must be renewed every year. NEVER as high as allowing 6 dogs. That is too many dogs!
- If People can safely take care of more then 6 animals (ie on a farm or larger property) they should be allowed
- You can't limit this. If the animals are being abused or in bad conditions of course that needs to be examined. But dogs and cats deserve homes. Some people can handle more than 6 and there shouldn't be a reason to limit it if they have lots of experience with animals.
- Other than the potential exceptions I think it's ridiculous for one household to own upwards of a dozen animals in a single household and I don't believe it's possible to own that many and still properly care for them and their individual needs and training. I think limiting total amount of animals in a house to 5 or so is very fair.
- No limit. More enforcement of safe and clean conditions for all animals.
- I support the bylaw change, but I put no because I think the potential exceptions should be actual exceptions.
- Never limit them.
- Six cats and six dogs is disgusting. I can't imagine the state of a person's home/yard and the noise if I was living next to someone with that many animals in their home. Yuck.
- DONT DO IT [removed]
- Six dogs AND six cats is too much. I agree with most of the exceptions, but six dogs in the same house is a lot
- No should have/need 6 cats or 6 dogs, these animals be destined for the shelter, as the family/individual maybe will not have the time, money, or cleanliness for it.
- If an owner is responsible enough, then there should be no issue. If owners who are I responsible are brought forward by their neighbours, then incur fines there. Don't punish the many for the ignorance of the few.
- Should be 6 cats and 4 dogs
- There should be no limit of how many cats/dogs a person can own.
- As long as pets are cared for they shouldn't be restricted to a certain number

- 6 dogs is a lot. Dogs need space and territorial. Most people can't even be responsible with one dog let alone 6. People can't even control Or be responsible for 1 dog so many lose dogs attacking people and pets I can't imagine how a person who can't handle one dog could handle 6
- 12 animals in one house seems excessive. 4 & 4 unless they apply for exception, and if any of the animals are declared nuisance, the cap for the owner reduces to two of each max, once the household naturally reduces (as in once the animals die of natural causes, they cannot be replaced unless it is to maintain the 2/2)
- Six dogs and 6 cats is way too many for city sized homes and yards. No one wants to live next door to people who have that many pets! The exceptions seem reasonable.
- There should be no limit put on how many companions a person wishes to keep. Maybe ensuring that the pets are all taken care of and trained properly, will work better. It's about teaching the owner to maintain and Raise the pet.
- than 6. Possible support if it was longer than 1 year.
- As long as the animals are well taken care of and not causing issues to neighbours, people should be free to own as many as they want.
- 6 is too many. 4 is more than enough
- Honestly, some people's entire lives are about pets. If Somebody wants to adopt 15 dogs/cats rather than have them sit in a shelter, that's fine by me.
- Size of the property should be considered.
- It doesn't matter how many animals reside on a property if they are properly cared for.
- I suppose it would depend on how large the family is.
- I kind of support it, it should just be 12 animals, whether it be cats or dogs.
- 6 dogs is too many
- In cases of hoarding animal rescues need help with fostering no matter what the animals are.
- There is no reason for a household to have more than 2-3 pets. Up to 12 animals in a home is absolutely ridiculous.
- If acceptations are being made, the owner should have to prove they can physically and financially provide for the animals.
- I don't think any household should have the ability to have 12 animals in their house. I think 2 dogs and 2 cats should be the limit.
- It's none of anyone else's business who does what
- Why does anyone need that many animals. It's now a case of collecting/hoarding
- 6 is too many
- This regulation is not necessary.
- Responsible pet owners generally can manage their animals however many they have. This is an other over reach on the part of the city. Deal with animal hoarders who are problematic but leave everyone else alone. This survey is insulting and makes me wonder why I am forced to pay taxes and support silly individuals who think these by-laws will make life better for most Calgarians. Shame on you all!!!!!!

- No one needs more than 3-4 dogs or cats in a house IN THE CITY.. Anymore and your giving backyard breeders too much room to bend/break rules.
- Having more than four animals per household is unwise and leads to illness amongst animals
- I see no logical reason why one household should or could look after 6 dogs and 6 cats. It is too many.
- I should be able to have however many animals I want so long as they're taken care of
- Excludes responsible owners, breeders and multie families in a household.
- It's not necessary and waste of enforcement animals time
- No one household that I've been to could maintain proper living standards with 12 pets in their house. At that point the animals are suffering. If not then a special application can be done to get up to that. I'd suggest no more than 3 AND 3.
- Outside of a rescue, I don't think anyone can take care of 6 dogs let alone 12 entire pets.
- Let people own what they want if they can take care of them
- I see no reason for someone to have 6 or more dog AND cats. Seems excessive within city limits.
- No one except for breeders should have that many animals on the premises!!
- It needs to be a case by case basis, as some people live where more than one dog is not much for them and the well being of the dog where some people can have up to ten dogs with no problems
- seems like overkill if there is already legislation in place to deal with problem issues.
- I feel it's too hard to take proper care of that many animals and properly control the odor that comes with all the feces
- Pet restrictions help to ensure animals are cared for appropriately. Exceptions should be allowed but an application should be required. There are not many residences that allow for 6 cats/6 dogs to live appropriately.
- Should be fewer than 6 and 6
- Get better by laws that focus on back yard breeders as this make exceptions to the problematic over breeding and mistreatment of animals.
- You can own more animals responsibly (maybe up to 4)
- I believe there should be a pet limit based on the SIZE of the household. It is not fair for 6 cats AND 6 dogs to live in a small condo or townhome. On the other hand, if they live in a large detached home, it MAY be suitable. I don't believe anyone needs 6 dogs and 6 cats in one household. The majority of the time it will not be proper living conditions and animals will be neglected.
- There should certainly be a limit for residential pet owners. It is unlikely that someone with six cats and six dogs would be able to care appropriately for each animal.
- I don't believe anyone needs to own 6 dogs and 6 cats at one time. That's just crazy.
- As long as the animals are treated well it's not up to the city to decide, maybe just stop making so many rules
- I do not support this change, however I do support that there are further guidelines for animal welfare when specifically pertaining to households with multiple animals to ensure that no pet is neglected.

- Responsible pet owners with more than 2 pets can be more responsible than people with one!
- Animal hoarders and backyard breeders are the problem and won't care about a bylaw. Responsible owners are not the problem.
- It's such a high number, why bother
- If all dogs & cats are licensed & the city is aware there are more than 6 dogs & 6 cats on a property, I believe an annual check up should be done on the outside of the property for feces, ensuring no animals are being kept/caged outside indefinitely, exposure, etc. A house check in annually could be warranted if the outside of the property gives reason to believe the animals may be in unsafe or uncomfortable conditions as well as the people in the home.
- Multiple family households may exceed these limits. Pets are often incredibly emotional support for family members and as long as they're properly cared for I don't see an issue with owning multiple dogs. Especially if you have the space.
- I believe that the current maximum numbers should be decreased. Under this circumstance, only one exception is needed - "approved excess animal permit" - there can be many specifics under this one by-law.
- I believe if a owner has a dog that's a issue. They should be responsible for the dog and the dogs actions.
- I think it's ridiculous to limit the number for responsible pet owners.
- I believe the exceptions are appropriate
- I dont think there should be a limit.
- No one needs that many pets in a house
- The number of animals is personal choice. I have 17 dogs - and they are cleaned up after daily.
- Anyone wishing to own more than 2 cats/dogs should be required to apply for a special application. They should be able to show the ability to properly care for the animals financially and emotionally.
- Don't see the need for any person or persons to own more than two pets. Lets think about our neighbors, we are all looking for peace and quiet lives. Don't want to be listening to barking dogs all day and night. And looking at an accumulation of dog waste in your neighbors yards. Should be a by-law on noise associated with having animals. Who needs to be listening to that noise all the time. Just want to come home at the end of the day to some peace and quiet. Be able to enjoy one's property, we pay enough taxes. Lets me considerate of all people and remember we have enough issues without extending the amount of pets allowed on one's property.
- i think if the person who has more than the 6/6 and follows all of the other by laws (noise, feces, etc.) there really should be an issue
- people are entitled to owning as many pets as it makes them happy
- Because proper pet owners need to take responsibility with their pets. There's shouldn't be laws forcing them to do what they should already be doing.
- This should also consider the square footage of the property, for many homes, allowing up to 12 pets at any given time could result in an unhealthy environment.
- People should be responsible. If they cannot - then they should have these consequences.
- As long as these animals have a loving home who cares how many is in the home

- 12 pets seems excessive, unless in a foster or rescue situation where it's temporary. 12 feels like it's heading into a hoarding situation.
- People should be severely limited on the number of pets. 6 is too many. Fewer animals.
- This could influence people to simply not register their extra pets, or any of them, in order to have the pets they desire which would outlet be creating/worsening an adjacent issue.
- Responsible pet owners are different than irresponsible pet owners
- Dogs are not to be judged based on breed.
- People can have as many pet they want. Leave them alone
- 12 animals in one house is too many
- I don't think people should be given a limit if they're able to afford to take care of the pet and give it a loving home. There are too many animals on the street and in shelters.
- There would be more strays roaming if people can't own them. Plus doesn't the city make more money with residents paying to licence their pets?
- if a pet owner is responsible for the number of pets they have, there should be no limits on the number
- I would say that owning more than 2 dogs or 2 cats in a City environment constitutes urban farming and I would not agree to this.
- We shouldn't have to limit this.
- I do not believe we need to place a limit on a household with responsible pet owners
- Not many owners or homes can reasonably support that many pets. There is very likely to be negative impacts for neighbours and even the neighbourhood
- The pet limit is too high, if you want to help address accumulation of feces, excessive noise, protect the welfare of animals, the limit of two dogs and two cats is sufficient.
- I think six cats and six dogs are to many for most people to handle, the numbers should be lower
- This is excessive government intervention in the private lives of citizens. People should be free to have as many pets as they like provided they are adequately cared for. Fines should be applied if it is deemed owners are not caring for their animals properly
- So long as the pets are appropriately cared for and trained I see no problem with more than 6 pets.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats permanently at a home is way too many. How can you properly care/train/feed/vet/provide attention to that many pets???
- I think that it's reasonable to have a 6 dog limit /cat limit, Second Other than the exemptions I don't think there should be a reason why one person should have that many dogs or cats
- I prefer a limit of two adult dogs or cats per household with all of the above exceptions other than a "dog fanciers' licence". The limit should be the same for everyone as should the licencing fees.
- It is not appropriate for the government to legislate one the individual actions of pet owners. While I do understand the concern for animal welfare, and for the consideration that must be given to neighbours, the reality is that most people do not have more than that number of animals already. It is unnecessary and heavy handed to create a bylaw targeting a very small demographic while also subjugating the rest of us to its terms, costing the city money in its oversight. The bylaw should stand as it is.

- Less dogs
- Potential exception? If I say yes it leaves room for you to add at delete any of the above so NO! Be more specific!
- If there's a farm or acreage this is a silly rule (like springbank or a farm within city limits). Otherwise I support it.
- Its private property, we have bylaws already for people causing disturbances.
- I support the exceptions, but 12 animals is a lot for one property on a permanent basis. It seems like it would enable animal hoarders.. Maybe 4 of each?
- I don't believe there should be a limit. If it is a large family home with room to have more than I believe they should be allowed to own how many they want. They have to be able to provide for them and give them a good life though.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too much for one household. The more animals people are allowed, the higher likelihood of neglect, abuse, etc. While rules and bylaws can be in place to protect animals, I fear that enforcement of these bylaws might not always happen, thus exposing animals to potentially bad situations.
- I think the limit for cats should be different than that of dogs. Someone could comfortably have more than 6 cats.
- I think more than 3 dogs and/or cats in a household is enough. 6 is excessive, and most people are unable to care for that many properly. If it is a Foster situation, I think a special license needs to be applied for
- I do not believe anyone should need to own 6 dogs and 6 cats. Nobody needs that many animals. I would suggest a total of 6 animals that can be either cats or dogs.
- Laws such as this one is infringing upon people's right of ownership. As long as the animals are being taken care of, there should be no "limit" as to how many animals they are allowed to have. On top of that, the majority of people don't have an insane number of animals to begin with so I don't personally think there is a need for this to turn into a law.
- Individuals can have 6+ pets and properly care and clean up after them
- No one needs more than 2-3 pets n total.
- Let people be
- Too many
- Responsible dog/cat owners do not need a limit on the number of dogs/cats in their home because they are Responsible Owners.
- I don't know what the limit is, but think about this. 6 dogs in a 3600 sqft home with a yard, and 6 dogs in a 1000 sqft home with little or no yard. Maybe apply as per animal over 3 in a household to determine faintness of lifestyle and space for the animals.
- There should be no restriction on how many animals some can own. If you are interested in having more than 6 and can handle it then I think you should be allowed too
- 12 animals seems like an excessive amount.
- People should be able to do what they want

- Its a freedom of right. As long as the animals are well cared for in all ways it is not a govt choice for a household number of pets. Very opposed to this.
- You're limiting responsible pet owners, there are already laws on the books to fight animal abuse, noise, etc.
- Yes I agree with this law... but the early dog warning i do not kids need to learn to ask before not just look at a rag what if the dog doesn't have one... people need to take responsibility for their own actions.
- You can have two cats that have babies at the same time and then boom you have 12 cats until you can find homes for the babies
- That's too many. You want more, open a zoo.
- 6 is far too many.
- Too many animals in one house b annoying to neighbours.lower the limit to3
- Far too many pets for one home
- There should be stricter limits on numbers of animals in a home.
- Being able to own 12 total animals under one roof is bordering on animal cruelty.
- I adopted an overweight cat from a household with too many animals. It is difficult to properly care for that many animals at once.
- I know people with many more dogs and it's their choice how many they have. You wouldnt like someone telling you how many kids you can have. Why tell someone how many pets they can have?
- Limiting in this way is a blanket solution that restricts all pet owners, to penalize some.
- In my humble opinion, People who has more than 6 dogs/cats need to have their head check especially they live in an urban setting. It is not just them, think of what their poor neighbors have to put up with, we can't just cater to a few people with special needs. There are always people with special needs, but the interest of the majorities should be the overriding consideration.
- This is a blanket bylaw that is based on a house, not the type of owner. I live in an apartment style condo and my neighbour has 2 large dogs. She takes these dogs out for 4 walks a day and is a VERY good dog owner. Then there was another owner who had one small dog and let his dog poop on his balcony instead of taking the dog out for walks. I don't think animal limits should be dependent on a household.
- I'm not sure how else to respond other than this; why on earth would someone need Six dogs and Six Cats? It should be 2 and 2.
- To many for someone to look after. More noise, mess etc.
- Silly rule.
- You should be able to have as many animals as you can take care of. If your animals cause a disturbance or you are mistreating them that individual should be barred from owning more pets but don't take away the option for responsible pet owners
- Still too many animals in a house. If the person fosters or has some other reason to have that many pets, then they can apply for an exception

- If one needs a breeding right, they need to move their business to a business not within a city's neighborhood.
- 12 pets per household is nonsense. How about 4.
- The limit should be no more than 2 cats AND 2 dogs, then exceptions could apply.
- If the owner is responsible, let them be. Maybe someone has 7 dogs.
- 12 pets is bound to get smelly, noisy and unless you have a large income the pets quality of life would suffer
- If the owners are responsible, let them decide how many pets to have. If intervention is required, then impose limits.
- No, 6 dogs and/or 6 cats is far too many animals in a single household.
- There should be no limit on how many animals a person wants to take off the streets to love and give a safe home. If someone can't be a responsible owner punish those owners. Not the entire society because a few people don't know how to be a good pet owner. We are all suffering for a few people's mistakes.
- Although I wouldn't ever want this many animals on my property I do not believe the city should have the right to decide how many pets an individual can own and care for
- Pet limit should be less than 6, and limit should be nullified if you're planning to have bully breed
- be
- Too many pets in the home, at some point it becomes detrimental to the animals.
- Understandably there are people who develop hoarding situations with animals, but there are also animal lovers and people who want to have 6+ cats or dogs. I think that number is too low for some people and I don't think it's fair to them to implement that.
- I do not agree with the amount of approved animals. 6 per household is incredibly high.
- You are wrong about the pitbulls. No reason to think you'd get this one right.
- You should not have a limit on the amount of pets you can have. As long as you have adequate space and they are not bothering anyone.
- 6 Dogs & 6 cats is excessive for any urban home
- People can do what they want when they own the property
- 12 animals in a house is far too many.
- That is WAY too many animals for a household. 3 dogs max same for cats.
- You should be allowed to have as many pets as you want
- These limits are way too high. Commercial and registered temporary homes/inherited animals or approved permits makes sense as exceptions however.
- As long as you can apply for a permit to have more I agree with the system in place.
- That is too many pets in one house
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is a ridiculous number of pets in a city house and yard. Maximum 2.
- The city shouldn't be making any more rules than it has to. All three of the reasons behind this proposed bylaw change have remedial measures under the existing bylaw. There is no need to restrict someone until something goes wrong.

- RESPONSIBLE pet owners should be permitted to have as many pets as they wish. All animals should be licensed. There should be licenses for the household rather than each individual animal
- Most households are not big enough to adequately care for 6 dogs and 6 cats. There is also a big difference between 6 large dogs in an apartment and a suburban house. Animal restrictions should be based on house / yard size.
- unless you are on an acreage 6 of each is too many 2 & 2 is enough
- That is too many animals to be healthy
- People should be able to own as many pets as they want and can take care of
- Na
- Other people have no business telling others what they can and can't do when it doesn't matter to them.
- I would support A pet limit of three (3) dogs AND three (3) cats per household. Special considerations taken for larger land owners
- I feel most are responsible and those that aren't need education and support.
- There's no need
- There's no need for 6 dogs and cats. I would support a limit of 6 total animals per household
- In a city I don't believe people should have more than three cats and three dogs, plus potential other animals, especially considering that some breeds have high energy and are already living in a restricted atmosphere, having six dogs and six cats and then also potentially having litters it could get out of hand very fast and be a danger to the animals.
- Six dogs and six cats are way too many for a household like come on how bad are we trying to set these people up I get you know two or three dogs maybe one or two cats but 6 + 6
- I would support the by law if the limit was 4 dogs and 4 cats
- That limit is too high within the city limit.
- Having 2 cats and 2 dogs is more than enough, anything more will sacrifice the animal's wellbeing
- # of pets does not dictate level of care
- As long as all of the animals are cared for, I think a decent number would be to keep it under 12 per household
- Maximum two dogs per household.
- 6 is too many animals unless you live in the country.
- May encourage "backyard" breeders who do not have sufficient knowledge of breeding animals.
- If the animals best interest is taken into consideration and they can abide by the issues listed above I don't see why they should be limited?
- There should be no limit to the number of pets as long as they receive equal and adequate care
- Limits should only be in place if the number of animals in a home is causing problems. Many people are able to properly care for 3 + dogs and cats with no incidents.
- As long as the animals are healthy, feces are managed, I don't feel the City should be able to limit the amount of animals in a house.

- Existing bylaws for nuisance and feces should be adequate to curb large numbers. If someone has large numbers and are responsible, there is no issue. If there are issues, then other bylaws would be invoked and enforced.
- Dogs require daily exercise (at least twice a day; Germany has recently implemented a law requiring twice daily walks) and I don't believe a single person can safely walk more than one dog at a time therefore 6 dogs would require 12 walks a day.....plus the noise has the potential to be very disruptive in a neighborhood.
- As long as these issues are not a problem and the animals are well cared for, there should be no limit. For those that are causing a disturbance or not well-cared for fines should be higher.
- I don't believe that people should be allowed to have too many pets. Especially too many cats, and people who allow their homes to smell like cat urine- should be fined and have the pets taken away if they can't keep the kitty litter clean. Toxoplasmosis is real! And some people have half a dozen + pets in some places and all you can smell is animals. Homes like that should have the pets taken away, and owners should be put on a watch list!!
- Many people have more than 2 pets, and take care of them fine. This is an overreach.
- As long as the animals are well taken care of, I don't think it's the government's responsibility to limit the amount of pets in a household.
- My concern is animal cruelty and hoarding I do not believe number of pet restriction solves the problem. Stronger fines and jail time is needed to deal with these offences.
- I believe that a person potentially owning 6 dogs and 6 cats is unreasonable. In most situations owners would be unable to effectively provide for all the animals mental, emotional and physical needs, let alone the financial costs associated with proper pet ownership.
- I believe if the owner is responsible, and has the lifestyle and income to be able to properly provide for all the animals, there should be no limit of animals that are allowed to open their home to and love.
- there have very very little issue with people having multiple pets, regardless of how many. Hoarding is not an issue. Puppy mills need to be shut down. We have multiple dogs, and we foster etc so we help take strain off the shelters and help to rehabilitate the dogs in a safe stress free environment. If you limit the amount we can have, many like us would be unable to foster. We are also quite active in dog sports, so we have retired, competing and future competitors making the limit of 6 not fair to us that can take care of more than 6
- Many have lots of animals but are responsible
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are too many for a basic house in Calgary. This number would only be acceptable on a farm or larger home. Having 12 animals would mean the animals receiving less quality care.
- Who can properly look after than many pets in one location both financial and emotionally. The noise associated for neighbors.
- Pet owners should be allowed to own as many pets as they please
- 2 dogs or cats is plenty, I sure would not want to live next door to 6 dogs and all the associated noise and smell, especially right after the snow melts

- Do better at enforcement and expectations of proper behaviour; this doesn't always mean fines, it can mean seizure of pets or something else. Fines have clearly not been enough of a deterrent or we wouldn't be discussing raising them.
- 6 is a lot of animals. Rockyview county only allows 3 dogs and that's on acreages, not a small city lot. There is no need for more than 4 cats either without approval (with the exceptions above).
- 6 seems excessive. It should be based on a household to household basis. Is:square footage, yard space, income. Case by case basis
- Dogs yes, cats no. There are responsible cat owners out there with more than 6 cats
- For someone who has a large house and yard within the city, having 3 dogs and 3 cats does not have the same effect as someone who has the same number in a small house with no yard. Furthermore, the difference in training, animal temperament and ownership duties such as picking up poop etc. changes with each owner/animal. I think it is unjust to set a low restriction like this just because of a few bad apples.
- I don't think anyone should have a limit on animals just like you wouldn't put a limit on how many kids one has. All that matters is that a person takes care of them.
- I think there are plenty of areas and homes in Calgary and surrounding area (acreages, shops, farms) where more than 6 animals would be considered normal (shop cats) for mousing. Would they need to go into the city to be approved for an Excess Animal Permit? This legislation seems unnecessary in a lot of cases.
- 6 is too many!!!!
- As long as noise and fecal matter are controlled...as per by law....there is zero reason to limit the number of animals. Well, maybe party animals . Breeders should be licensed and monitored. As should in home businesses that involve animals. Dog walkers should be paying a high fee. Other businesses buy/ lease buildings and land...not using what the tax payers pay for..red...lol
- 12 animals in one household is FAR too many for one family, regardless of the number of residents living at the property.
- 12 animals in one house is too many
- That is too many dogs or cats per household. Limit should be 3
- This is wrong
- I think the only time owning many animals could be an issue is with hoarding, which a bylaw isn't going to fix so this would be useless.
- Maximum of 6 total combined cats and dogs within one household, not including lizards, fish, guinea pigs, etc. Exceptions allowed for inherited animals.
- If issues arise, the animals can be removed. You would be limiting responsible pet owners rather than removing the animals from the unsafe ones. Focus on the latter issue.
- As long as there are no complaints, I don't think we need to limit what people can have on the personal property. Thanks
- Limiting the number of pets a household is allowed will only cause shelters to become even more over crowded and cause more animals to be on the streets.

- You're basically saying they can have 12 animals if it is 6 dogs and 6 cats. Just say 12 animals that can be a combination of cats and dogs
- Unnecessary
- There may be cases of abuse, but that is not every case for every household. Creating a limit for those who are caring for their pets and doing what they need to is wrong. Fine the people who are not caring for their animals and then take them away.
- Too many animals! Less than 6/6.... maybe 2/2
- That's too many animals in one household
- 6 and 6!? Not in a city.
- Not necessary.
- Personal opinion, six of each is unnecessary (especially considering the exceptions list appears pretty forgiving). Personally I would prefer that limit down to four of each (two if I'm being honest but I understand some people like having their pack).
- I don't agree because a lot of foster owners for pets have more than 6 animals on their property which include their own pets and the foster animals. And also some breeders could end up have 6+ puppies born per litter.
- I am on board for everything but this would be a slippery slope for puppy mills not breeders... I believe wording should include that the breeder is licensed and can provide proof that they are a reputable breeder with standing.
- 6 animals is way too many in one house.
- Noone has any right to dictate whats in a home! We should not have to pay more to license our pets or be told what and how many pets we have! Dogs and cats are family members!!
- It's nobody's business how many pets someone has in their house if they are well cared for and not causing problems. Obviously a hoarder situation would be different.
- Unless you live on a farm, then in the city pets should not exceed 2
- Why are we placing an arbitrary number instead of looking at how the owner is and the welfare of the animals? Useless update.
- 6 dogs in one house is way too many. It should be limited to 3.
- Freedom of choice
- 12 animals (6 dogs AND 6 cats) is excessive for one household within city limits. This number should be lowered to max of 8 (4 cats AND 4 dogs or a mix of whatever but 8 is a big number and should be the max)
- Living in the city, there is no need to keep 12 animals in a house. This may allow hoarding situations to fly under the radar, encourage backyard breeding programs and will likely result in lower quality of life for the animals
- This would mean someone could have 12 animals in there home. Even six owned cats or dogs is verging on animal hoarding and is not good for the animals well being. Especially if the law isnt dependent on the size of the home the animals are living in.
- want as long as they are taking good care of them

- I honestly believe I should be allowed as many pets as I so choose, I bought this house I pay my taxes I'm sick of rules for the sake of rules, be responsible give people education, if someone is hoarding animals in an abusive way then deal with it. If I want 7 cats, you shouldn't be allowed to tell me I can't have them, grow up [removed]
- Unless those are very large houses and yards 6 is too many.
- If a pet owner wants more than 6 pets and they are responsible and caring then they have every right to more pets. Why should they have to get a special application in order to do so?
- 12 animals per house in the city? That's a joke. If you cleaned litter box and yard waste, you'd be nearly 8 pounds of fecal matter stinking up waste bins and neighbourhoods.
- Who needs more than two cats or dogs??
- Too much of a process. Punishing responsible owners.
- I have more than 6 cats and there is no issue.
- If the owner can responsibly care for those animals, just let them have them. If issues arise then action should be taken against that owner but not before.
- This is too many a woman's for someone to take care of. How would that many dogs get out for walks and socializing.
- As long as people are taking care of their pets I don't think there should be a limit
- Not applicable to everyone.
- If the animals are well cared for and not in danger, and the property is kept clean, there is no reason to limit how many pets can be in a household. There are many circumstances that could lead to going over an arbitrary number of animals in a household.
- This would potentially allow people who hoard animals legal rights to possessing more animals, putting this animals at risk of abuse/neglect/health concerns for them and the people.
- I think in very tight knit neighborhoods that 6 as a limit is fine, maybe inner city. But as you move out to more spacious properties, it makes sense that more pets can be on a property at one time. Maybe rings of valence starting at the inner city leading outwards to define how many pets you can have?
- My animals are my children. If my government were to tell me I can only have a certain amount would that be okay? I grew up in a family of 9. Im sure we cause more noise then our 3 dogs and 4 cats at the time
- The number of animals shouldnt matter. The care and treatment of the animals is what matters. Who cares if someone has 10 cats if they are taking care of them?
- As long as the individual is responsible and hygienic they should have as any animals as they'd like.
- i think if people are caring for 50 animals properly and they are all healthy and granted the correct space and atmosphere for what they need to be healthy and happy a person should be able to do so at their own discession. if these animals are being neglected because there are too many than that is an issue.
- 12 animals in a small house?? That's insane.
- Would support a max of 3 dogs AND 3 cats
- Lower the amount of animals
- 6 dogs and cats are too many to properly handle

- Not unless measure to protect the welfare of the animal are put in place.
- 12 animals in a household in the city is way too many - there will naturally be more noise and it's not fair to the animals.
- 6+6 is too high, particularly if you will allow for special applications for certain scenarios. Suggest 8 animals total, no more than 5 or 6 of any one kind.
- Should be based on if issues arise and dealt with on case Eby case basis
- I think 6 animals is too many under most circumstances, I would like to see no more than 3.
- I feel that six dogs AND six cats is excessive. Maybe six animals combined would be sufficient.
- I agree with the current bylaw
- T
- People can have as many or as little pets as they damn well want too.
- I think the problems that arise from too many pets (excessive noise, feces, etc) are address with existing bylaws.
- Multiple pet homes can often be mitigated by the use of bylaws that are currently in place, ie, excessive noise, cats at large, dedication. It is not the role of governments to dictate what happens inside my home.
- if a family has the space, ability, and money to manage more animals, I don't see why they can't own as many as they can take GOOD care of.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats. No!!! Are you out of your mind? 6 dogs is a kennel. Go ahead and try living next to this kennel. limit of 2 and 2.
- Too many bylaws and regulations now.
- People should have the opportunity to have this many animals but they should have to show after a certain limit that they have the means to care for them properly(food and vet care). Animals are a luxury not a right to own and need the proper care
- I feel that is too many animals in one household.
- Too many animals. 6 pets in household max
- Private property you can have as many animals you want as long as they do not disturb
- People should be free to own as many pets as they want if they are responsible and do not engage in any type of abuse
- It doesn't matter how many you own. What matters is that your animal is taken care of properly. Does not live in unsanitary conditions and has lots of food/water.
- Dog fighting and puppy mills should be banned - perhaps that's where more effort and funding should be going instead of punishing law abiding citizens who pay for their dog license(s). More restrictive laws and fewer people buy licenses. There are already laws against hoarding animals. Pass this law and the animal haters are one step closer to banning dogs altogether. Most of the multi dog owners I know have rescued dogs at high kill shelters or older dogs that no one wants and take good care of the animals. What gives you the right to tell them they can't have 7 dogs.
- There are many great homes that own multiple pets!

- It depends on the household. A normal sized apartment couldn't possibly have this many, but there are many houses that could. There can't be a blanket number, maybe a certain number per square footage instead.
- It's interesting that you only ask for respondents to justify a "No" answer to this question. So, why do those who answer "Yes" not have to also justify their position? I am firmly in the camp that there is no reason for any normal member of the public to own more than 2 dogs and 2 cats. There are too many examples from around the world and Canada where animal abusers own large numbers of "pets" which simply magnifies the suffering and abuse they inflict to even more animals.
- If people are responsible, having 7 small dogs isn't necessarily inappropriate or worth city resources to inspect. However, there is no doubt more risk. I lived in a city once that had a restriction to 2 dogs. Well I had two and then I met my Husband who had 1. It was very uncomfortable to feel that moving in together means breaking bylaw. We sure weren't giving up a dog. The 3 together were fine and then we moved back to Calgary. Since then I have not appreciated any form of ownership restrictions.
- No one needs 12 animals in their home. This will lead to hoarding and improper care of animals.
- perhaps dog limit but no cat limit
- none of your business how many animals i have
- This is a large number of pets to have in a house hold. I agree with the exceptions to the rules however, the space and time required to probably care for and clean up after and for that many animals is a full time job and requires much more space.
- Too many pets in one house!
- City should just deal with individual problems.
- 6 of each seems high. 6 total would be appropriate.
- I have 6 animals now, it's because I dont have kids. You can tell me how many I am allowed to own when I take cre of them better then myself
- I think the amount of pets you are allowed should be based on how much yard and living space you have
- an average residential home does not provide adequate space for good living conditions for that many pets
- As long as there are no complaints there's no need to restrict the number of pets per household. If a household is repeatedly complained about there could be cause for a restriction but that would likely be difficult to enforce.
- 12 animals is still way too many
- I think we have limits for a reason. People tend to take those limits too far and have more animals then they can support or care for. We have a neighbor who definitely is in that situation and his dogs just sit in the window and bark all day because they are never stimulated or taken for walks. I think if you want more than the limit a permit and permission should be obtained and you should need to prove you can support and take care of more than the limit

- I think there may be some pet owners who can have multiple animals although I dated someone who could not properly care for them and had over 10 cats. There should be a limit only if neglect is not enforced in bylaw.
- I feel 6 is too high. 4 might be acceptable.
- As long as the pets have a good home why limit the owner? The number of dogs doesn't automatically mean the nuisance level; it's the individual pets/owners behaviour. Putting too many restrictions will increase the number of abandoned pets.
- Case by case
- Many people in the dogsport community may have more dogs than the limit but all dogs are well trained, taken care of and owners are responsible.
- some people have the time to take care of more. seems like too much governance here as a negligent owner is a negligent owner.
- I believe that number is too high, and opens the door for puppy mills or poor treatment of animals.
- If the owner is financially able to take care of 6 animals. Who is to say if they can or can't have it? If everything's paid and taken care of I see no issues.
- If all the animals are well cared for and healthy there is no need to limit the number in a home
- 6 seems high, I think 5 is high enough
- The only way I would support this change is if there were guaranteed methods to obtain a kennel license for example, ie for a breeder, without being put through excessive hassle and arbitrary decision making
- Too many, should be lower
- I think that is way too many animals for the average person to adequately care for properly
- There is not enough room in a house or yard for more dogs or cats! A lot of people are not responsible to have 1 cat or dog! People in our neighborhood allow their cats to roam all over and they come and urinate and defecate in my flower beds or urinate on my doors. They are not responsible enough to have more than 1 animal!
- No one needs 6 animals in an urban setting. I do support the exceptions, however.
- This is too many pets to safely keep at one location
- As long as a person is taking good care of the animals, it shouldn't matter. Anyone who would report more than 6 dogs could just as easily report poor conditions of any number of dogs.
- Again, train the dog properly.
- to put 12 pets in a small dwelling. Increased risk for incidents.
- It's not fair to animals
- That's an excessive amount of pets for any home. I believe a maximum of 2-4 is ideal
- If the owners are responsible and the pets are well cared for as well as not causing a disturbance to the community then there should be no limit. The only change that should happen is that if there are a large number of animals on a property and their needs are not being met, those animals should be removed immediately
- 6 is way too high

- 6 seems like a lot for the city with someone whom has limited property size. 3 or 4 would be more reasonable
- I feel like it's too many animals under one roof.
- If someone wants to own more than this limit, I don't think it should be there
- It doesn't matter how many you have. It matters how they are looked after
- I should be able to have as many animals as I want
- If I am taking care of my animals and they are not seriously disrupting the lives of my neighbours, then there is no problem with owning more than 6 dogs and/or cats. This bylaw would only place more restrictions and paperwork for pet owners and supports those individuals who dislike animals.
- 6 animals is WAY too many
- Responsible pet owners can manage the number they choose. Bad pet owners could be fined with only 2 animals. It's about quality of care, not number of animals
- I support a limit but those numbers are too high. I believe a maximum total of 4 animals in any one home is workable: 2 dogs AND 2 cats should be the maximum. Even that number of animals in one home is high density. There are 4plexes in my neighbourhood. What if all 4 homes could have 6 animals? That would be unworkable. The density for people in Calgary is increasing and lots are smaller. The demand on parks right now is the highest we have ever witnessed in this city and we all have to share the space.
- Confirm that this would apply to only cats and dogs not other types of pets
- Is there currently a limit set? If not, then yes, I would support this. Ideally though, 2 is enough per household.
- Imposing a maximum penalizes all owners, not just problem owners
- Very situational
- IF a household is capable of providing a high standard of living for the animals and does not cause problems for the neighborhood let them have their family. If they cannot maintain the home then the current bylaws should be enough.
- Not fair
- Limits to two of each with exceptions for puppies and fosters and special circumstances only.
- You should not limit the animals on the property. You need to do your job and as long as they are being properly cared for, mind your business. 50 dogs receiving great care should not be your concern. One dog in danger and not receiving appropriate care should be your concern. Neglect is the issue not the numbers of animals. Get it right please.
- 6 dogs is excessive, you cannot properly care for them & ensure non nuisance. I think could increase to three but 6 is ridiculous
- Nobody should decide how many pets are "necessary" so long as they are all well cared for and not a nuisance.
- 12 dogs and cats in one household is ridiculous. There is no way that a single family house is sufficiently large for that number of animals and that you are not seriously impacting your neighbours with that number. Should be no higher than 3 of one OR the other

- 6 dogs and 6 cats are WAY MORE than any household should have. If you want to have a farm, go live out in the country! I think a MAX of 4 animals per household.
- 12 animals in one house is too much!
- No limits. Let people live. Responsible people deserve it. The few reckless will pay for their tardiness of care for their animals.
- That's too many animals in the city. City lots are too small.
- The people who own that many animals typically don't take care of them all very well. I think 2 dogs and 2 cats per household would be sufficient for any family.
- I think these proposed limits are way too high. I believe a maximum of 2 cats and dogs would be more appropriate.
- Each dog is different, typically I find single dog households that bark way more than households with multiple dogs.
- I know people with multiple large breed dogs who are quite and clean, and I also know people with two small dogs that are allowed to be yappy, snappy and undisciplined. I have seen a person with one dog, with a feces filled yard. It comes down to conscientious pet owners, not volume of pets
- Move to a farm if you need this many pets
- Are you kidding me? How does this reflect on 'peaceful enjoyment of others homes?' Where does this come from? A home should have a restriction of no more than 2 dogs or cats per household. So are you saying that in an apartment I could have 6 dogs and cats - no the City is nuts.
- no limits
- More than two pets is excessive other than if your pet has just had a litter and you intend to rehome them.
- I believe that as long as the animals are being taken care of as well as the property is kept in good condition that you should be able to have as many animals as you want. As long as they stay on your property and are not causing problems.
- Six dogs - why? That's a lot of animals to care for physically and financially. They can start to act like a pack. Noise would be a concern. Six cats that are indoors only - not so much a concern, however, in an apt that could result in an odour issue.
- I don't think anyone should have a limit on pets
- The limit should be two. Noise. Feces.
- A pet limit is an unnecessary piece of legislation, most residents do not keep more than 6 dogs or cats regardless. This also should reflect the size of the property of the owner.
- Im
- That's excessive - 6 pets!! 2 is enough - for the sake of the pets. 6 dogs will NEVER be walked by the average owner, who will have the will or the inclination or the time?? Would lead to poor quality of life for these dogs
- 12 animals in one home is unreasonable. 6 total even seems a bit much.
- Depending on the home, income, size of property and distance to neighbouring properties these guidelines do not reflect the individualistic nature of the issue being outlined.

- 4 dogs and 4 cats should be the limit. The exception being licensed breeders who have dogs/cats under 6 months only, foster homes
- There should be a limit to how many animals one can have in a home, but saying two maximum is a stretch. One can easily take care of 3 cats.
- A person can have 10 dogs. If they clean up and you can't tell how many dogs they have why punish them ?
- I do support but would like the exceptions to be clearly explained. Foster homes and care are extremely valuable to caring for animals.
- Limit if 6 cats and 6 dogs is ridiculously high and borderline hoarding. I would support a bylaw if half that.
- I think 12 animals in a NORMAL household situation is extreme! Thats a lot of pets and a lot of poop. I dont think any animal can properly get the attn it needs when there are THAT many pets
- How would this be enforced?
- I have had 7 dogs in the past mostly rescues and they were all cared for properly. As long as you can care for and clean up after it should be no ones business how many animals you can love and care for
- It is not healthy to have that many animals in a home.
- It's a case by case basis, you can't make this a hard rule.
- Unless there is enough room for these 6 pets to be comfortable without any kind of restriction to the animals well being, I would have to say no.
- There should be no limit to what someone wants in a house that THEY own. it is THEIR property.
- I think the rules are great, but a lot of the hoarders or people who stole dogs classified themselves as dog sitters. You'd want to be careful on definitions so you don't allow that to happen
- A person should be able to have as many pets as they can provide for properly.
- Why are you looking to restrict people's rights and freedoms. If the owner is responsible and able to properly care for the animals then that's all that should matter.
- 6 in a household is quite a lot
- Breeders should not require city permission or have to sell their animals before 6 months old
- If all the animals are cared for, why does it matter how many animals a person has?
- No one needs that many dogs or cats
- I don't agree with a limit.
- The current rules are appropriate.
- It is not a good bylaw
- If a responsible pet parent wants more animals why restrict that?
- I believe 6 dogs I to many for one household in Calgary I think four is a reasonable number. Cat I would say 5
- A person should have as many pets as they want as long as all animals are being cared for adequately.

- There should not be a limit on the amount of pets but instead increased support in hoarding situations, subsidized spay/neuter surgery and increase in education resources.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats? Who the hell needs that many animals and why? I'd think that a limit of 4 in total animal would be more than sufficient. Of someone needs that many animals then it's time for them to move to an acreage or farm.
- I don't care how many pets my neighbours have. Let people do what they want. The other nuisance rules already cover this if their pets are being a nuisance.
- Some people need more than 2 or 3 support animals and this bylaw may prevent them from getting the help they need
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is ridiculous. Nobody should have that many animals.
- I agree to the list of changes and exceptions, but having 6 of both cats and dogs is excessive for a regular household. I believe the maximum should be 3 each.
- 6 pets is too many
- I don't feel that the people who might need this bylaw would follow this rule.
- You shouldn't be limited on the number of dogs and cats you own IF they are living in good conditions and are being taken care of properly.
- 12 pets is too much. 4 seems reasonable.
- While I agree with the potential exceptions to this rule, I feel that having to go through the process of getting approval for these exceptions etc. would cause challenges for those attempting to help animal welfare. As someone who volunteers with animal shelters, it is already hard enough finding foster homes for pets. Less people willing to foster means less room in the shelters and more animals on the streets. This could create more problems than it solves.
- The city shouldn't have a say on how many animals I should have in MY OWN HOUSE
- No
- No limits
- No limits
- Quality of life should be the key factor in assessing the number of animals in a home. A large, clean, house/yard with a responsible and financially secure pet owner can take care of more than this number of animals, while some people can't even care for a single cat properly.
- It's just not a big enough issue to need to make this change
- As long as they care for and license the animals then no harm done
- The exceptions are wonderful, but the amount of 6 cats and 6 dogs I think is high. Maybe a lower amount such as 3 and 3 would be something better. This way the animals are taken cared of, the property can be cared for and inside their home is kept up for both the humans and pets.
- The limit should be no more than 4 total animals. 6 of each is too great a number.
- As long as a owner can handle and control the companions, they should be able to have as many dogs/cats as they want. How is a breeder supposed to abide by this?
- This is [removed] don't make a by law because of a stereo type that people have created dogs and cats just need to be loved and trained properly but not by abuse
- Way to many, at least half. This will be abused, and to many issues arise with this.

- 6 is too many
- Keep it the same pets are like people id be sad if you ever had ro take a pet away
- the pet limit should be 2, anything larger denotes a breeding operation.
- Yes in special circumstances. Large yard, properly taken care of ect.
- Because I dont support the change
- No one needs this many animals in one home. That seems cruel to the animals.
- Noisy
- that's too many.
- As long as the animals are under controll and being taken care of appropriately then their is no problem. If the animals are out of control or living in sub standsrd conditions then their is a problem.
- I support all but inherited. Anyone can say they inherited an animal then
- I kind of support it.. but the way you have listed a person can have 12 animals.. (6 cats AND 6 dogs). Just make it.. 6 of any kind of companion animal.
- People should be able to own as many animals as they want as long as they take care of them
- 4 dogs and 4 cats per household
- All above however I do not support breeders
- If you have that many pets you require proof the property is large enough to sustain them.
- 12 animals in a home is excessive.
- 6 of both cats and dogs is very high. 6 cats and 4 dogs.
- There is no need to add legeslationwhere none needs to exist. Most poeple don't have more then two cats and two dogs... buyt for those who do and are responsible pet owners, there is no need to make life harder then it already is.
- Number of animals does not mean better care or less nuisance. I have neighbours with dogs that bark all night sometimes. 2 dogs in the household. This doesn't mean that having a limit would change that. It is my experience being in the animal industry that (for the most part) people with multiple animals... 6 or more, take better care of those creatures than others with fewer animals
- This question doesn't explain what the change to the bylaw is as it doesn't state the existing bylaw.
- If the animals are being cared for and are licensed that's all the matters to me.
- Some places are too small for that many and bigger places could hold more. I think it is dependent on space and ability to provide a happy functional home for the animal.
- houses can not safely house 12 pets of varying sizes. This is excessive
- Other: As long as animals are behaved you shouldn't limit how many a person can own.
- Other: As long as people are caring for their animals safely and appropriately the city shouldn't be able to regulate the amount of animals someone has in their home.
- Other: This is just an animal and the people who are taking it should be investigated more if the animal attacks or does something wrong because a dog isn't born mean it's the environment it was raised in.
- Other: I believe three animals would be manageable but more than that is getting to be too much.

- Other: I am not strongly opposed to this but it would be a hellhole owning 12 pets at once. There would potentially be a lot of noise complaints which will be even more work for you guys
- Other: Six dogs is excessive for an urban or suburban residential property, excluding a licensed breeding pair and a single litter of puppies. Six cats is enough for any home,
- Other: I feel the number could be slightly higher
- Other: 12 animals in a household, apartment, small condo, townhouse,,,,,plus the people that live in the house, no..1 cat/1 dog or 2 cats/2 dogs that is enough,
- Other: No limit as long as pets and property are being maintained. Potential for people to not license pets to hide going over limit.
- Other: Dogs company are the best, no need to limit it
- Other: 6 dogs or 6 cats would be excessive
- Other: No one needs to hoard animals
- Other: 12 animal on a single property? That's too many unless you are a responsible breeder or shelter. To many for the average person. 3-4 dogs and 3-4 cats would be he max I puke consider acceptable.
- Other: Enforcement problems
- Other: Some people help to rescue animals in need and may temporarily need to house more animals
- Other: I do not believe any household needs 12 animals. I think a cap of 6 total pets regardless of dog/cat
- Other: No one needs that many animals in one household.
- Other: Too many animals for a home in a large city; 5 total animals seems high, but reasonable.
- Other: People should be allowed whatever pets they want on their property
- Other: 6 is way too many. Even in the country you have a limit, usually four. If you are breeding and have a litter of puppies that should need a different license, otherwise 3 is enough.
- Other: Allowing 12 animals in a household is asking for issues. Many cannot follow the current bylaws so why make it easier to obtain more animals in a home.
- Other: If I own my home, take excellent care of my pets then I should not be punished for those who do not hold the same standard. I licence, have insurance, regular vet visits, ensure a clean home and I will not live in a city that mandates my number of pets. We don't restrict people from having babies - it's the same thing!
- Other: All pitbulls should n9t be put in the same category as a white person should be with to Ted bu dy. Calgary you are a [removed]. I hate you now
- Other: Still too many animals. Unless it falls under the exceptions, the number should be a total of 6 (not 12) animals.
- Other: would not support and shouldn't even be on the table to try and enforce this.
- Other: I think 6 dogs & 6 cats per household is too many.
- Other: If you are not fostering or inherited animals above the current limit of 2, I feel a limit of 6 is excessive and could question the quality of life provided for the animals.

- Other: Dog hoarders such as dog walker [personal information removed] should have their dogs removed. 10 plus dogs in the city is wrong. But someone having more than 2 is not an issue.
- Other: No need for excess pets, 1 or 2 is fine
- Other: A dog is a dog. A pit bull is no more threatening than a German shepherd. I don't see any police force having a pit bull or like breed on their force. Please explain that!
- Other: As long as the animals are cared for in a organized manner I don't see the need to restrict the number of animals per household
- Other: Owners need to be accountable. Educated and fined.
- Other: I think alot of people are adopting older dogs to give them a better life (vs a shelter). And therfor I will support more dogs in these types of cases (older and adopted dogs)
- Other: Before I could support this, I would need to know more about the Approved Excess Animal Permit requirements and the approval process.
- Other: No one needs more than 4 animals
- Other: The maximum number of dogs and cats total per household should be four, and should depend on square footage of the household space.
- Other: Please limit to 3 dogs and 3 cats per household
- Other: Number of animals per household should be based on a number of factors rather than one number across the board. The living conditions (both physical & emotional) for 6 animals in a 2000 sq ft home on an acreage would potentially be completely different than 6 animals in a 1000 sq ft condo with no yard.
- Other: The current by law works if its enforced
- Other: We should not be able to limit the amount of animals within a house-hold (with the understanding that all animals are being treated properly and are well maintained).
- Other: 6 is too many. 2 or 3 is more reasonable.
- Other: The number of dogs per house should be determined by the square footage of where these animals will be living. All pets should always be licensed.
- Other: The yards in Calgary aren't nig enough for 6 dogs.
- Other: Depends on the location - someone who lives on a farm should be able to have more animals than someone who lives in a downtown residential neighbourhood
- Other: Just leave them the way they are.
- Other: People should be free to have as many animals as they want and can afford
- Other: That many animals can lead to animal abuse and not being taken care of
- Other: Because the amount of pets one has should not matter
- Other: As long as the pets are taken care of, leave people alone.
- Other: 6 dogs/cats is too many for majority of people. 4 at most
- Other: 6 dogs does not make sense unless it is a kennel. If you put these changes in people will just say they are inherited or grand fathered in.
- Other: 12 animals on one property is way too many. 2 dogs and 2 cats is a completely acceptable number.

- Other: A limit does not change a persons ability to be a responsible pet owner. I deal with hundreds of people with a single pet, who can't/don't take proper care of that animal. I know many many people with many many animals, and each and every one is impeccably cared for. The focus should not be on numbers, but having more indepth, stricter guidelines and protocols on what is required of a pet owner. If a person can provide proper care for 25 animals, that is their prerogative. Owning an animal needs to stop being a social right, and become a privilege that people need to earn. If you can't prove you have the ability to care for any number of animals, you don't get the privilege of keeping one (or more)
- Other: Maximum 2 pets per household is enough.
- Other: Too many
- Other: 6 dogs or cats would be better. 12 total seems excessive
- Other: Need more checks on people with more animals
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats is too high
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats? Good. Lord. 6 total would be more than enough. If they are acting as a rescue foster home, that is different. Yes, people will try to scam the system but that is legitimate.
- Other: It depends on the houshold
- Other: 6 is too many
- Other: If they are well taken care of, people should be able to have as many as they want.
- [removed]
- [removed]
- Other: I feel that the number of animals allowed in one household should be dependant on the size of the dwelling. What is reasonable for 300 square foot property would not be the same for a 2000 square foot property.
- Other: This is a step on a slippery slope towards not being allowed to have pets at all.
- Other: That's to many animals in one household
- Other: Private property is private. So long as the animals are healthy, no one else's opinion should matter.
- Other: Right now our neighbours have 12 dogs and 6 cats and they don't clean the feces. We can't sit in our backyard anymore due to the smell
- Other: You can't and would not put a limit on the amount of pets a family or owner decides to have, it's like putting a limit of how much children a family can have.
- Other: People are barely taking care of pets now. Why allow them to have more.
- Other: It's too many. Two of each should be the limit.
- Other: There would be too much noise allowing up to 12 animals on a home. That is excessive.
- Other: 6 each is much too high. Perhaps 2 dogs and 3 cats max. I agree with the exemptions listed above.
- Other: The city doesn't need to decide how many pets someone can take care of.
- Other: No one family needs to have more than 2 dogs and cats, the noise levels, chaos, feces, and smells just can not be contained. Please DO NOT increase any limits. Already, people have a hard time controlling, training, and picking up poo for one animal, let alone 6. So many times on paths and sidewalks, the animals that the lane and humans are, even with stroller, are forced to the road and or grass...this is with only 1, 6 is ridiculous.

- Other: That is way too many pets per one household and I would be worried about the welfare of the animals.
- Other: There is no reason any house needs 12 animals in it. That is absurd
- Other: t nbr of animals
- Other: Treat as a nuisance, disturbance or health issue if it arises
- Other: Na
- Other: I think 4 dogs and 4 cats are more than enough for any household...
- Other: No limit
- Other: Sounds a little excessive. 4 seems more reasonable
- Other: I believe there should be no limit on the amount of cats and dogs one should have. Also this law supports breeder who are contributing to the overpopulation of these species, which defeats the whole purpose of managing the population. If the population was managed more than rescues wouldn't be so overwhelmed which animals. As long as the owners are responsible in having the amount of animals one wishes then there shouldn't be issues
- Other: Most people don't have the means to support that many animals and should not be given the opportunity to potentially neglect animals
- Other: Let people take care of their animals without government intervention. Is this the most important issue in a time such as this?
- Other: WHAT THE FRICK WOULD YOU NEED 12 ANIMALS FOR? No I don't support this. It should be lower. 2 dogs and 2 cats are plenty!
- Other: Some people take on animals that need an emergency home because their living situation is not safe and they need to live with them for awhile.
- Other: I support everything except the limit. Within city limits 6cat and 6 dogs I consider "overcrowding". I'd expect a lower limit 2-3 at most
- Other: I agree, I don't think anyone needs more than 2-3 dogs/cats in total. Having 12 animals is ridiculous in my mind; you can't possibly be taking adequate care of all of them and it requires a lot of money to maintain them.
- Other: We should limit the number of animals in a household to max 2
- Other: If a multiple animals household has never been a problem why should they punished for those that cannot be proper responsible animal owner
- Other: License requirement is not necessary
- Other: Responsible people can handle multiple animals.
- Other: Keep the limit lower
- Other: no one needs that many pets in their home. Considering how many pets get dropped off at the shelter we should not be encouraging higher numbers in households where animals are potentially re-homed or abandoned.

- Other: I am not agreeing to this on the possibility of an exception for puppies/kittens rather than an express certainty. If you want to allow chickens or pigeons you have no grounds for this.
- Other: This allows for 12 animals in an urban setting before a neighbour can even make a complaint. This is a recipe for animal hoarding and a living nightmare for neighbours. If there are some individuals who need to possess more than 2 dogs or cats the bylaw could allow an application process for an exemption. This should require agreement of neighbours as well as proving that the applicant has the financial means to both feed and provide veterinary care for the requested number of animals.
- Other: No
- Other: 4 per household is more reasonable than 6
- Other: 6 pets per house is a ridiculously large number. The number can be amended to 3 per house.
- Other: It should be lower. There is no reason to have 6 of any animal.
- Other: The total amount does not seem reasonable for a household as it's too many
- Other: While I think a limit is necessary, I also think the limit should be based on square footage of the home. A large enough space is healthier for the pet. Having a limit is necessary as someone should not hoard pets since the environment of the household will not be sanitary for both pets and human. Also, if the pet isn't going outside, for example house cats or even tiny dogs, I don't think they need to be licensed as they're remaining on private property and not roaming public grounds.
- Other: Who in their right mind can care for 6 dogs at the same time? Let alone 6 dogs AND 6 cats!
- Other: Why do you need to control this? If the animals are taken care of and there are no issues, I see no reason for a restriction
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats in a residential home is far too many
- Other: I think it is inhumane and irresponsible if people want to have more than 2 dogs or cats in their houses.
- Other: 12 animals in one house!? That seems excessive
- Other: A typical owner does not need 6 cats and 6 dogs and likely cannot properly care for this many animals within city limits. The limit should be lower for typical owners.
- Other: 6 and 6 for a in city setting is astronomical. If you have that many pets move to an acreage for them to enjoy their life. 4/4 would be better
- Other: Who wants to live next to that many animals. It will really impact the neighbours. Way too many animals on one property.
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is insane. 2 dogs and 2 cats, or any combination up to a total of 4 animals should be the maximum acceptable limit. Unless the city is attempting to legalize puppy and kitten mills. Is that the goal?
- Other: Being a veterinary technician, I find majority of homes with average 2 dogs and 1 cat cannot afford appropriate vet care, including dentistry and appropriate food. I personally have 4 cats- all insured, however do not believe the average household can provide financially, or the appropriate mental stimulation for the animals. I would suggest an option of an additional "licenses can be purchased upon approval from bylaw after house evaluation.

- Other: No to an extent. The idea I like however I don't see an issue... let's say someone has 12 dogs and 30 cats and there are no complaints for noise, the owner takes proper care and can maintain the animals, what's the issue?
- Other: No limit
- Other: Doesn't help with keeping nose and feces accumulated on the property in check.
- Other: It seems all concerns would be better taken care of via animal welfare regulations. 6 large dogs + 6 cats in a small apartment would be excessive, while a larger number could be handled in a larger foster home setting. Keep it situational, no need for a numeric limit.
- Other: Pet limit of 6 dog AND 6 cats is quite high
- Other: We don't need more government interference
- Other: That's too many if each animal in a household
- Other: That is excessive unless you are fostering or a whelping home. 2 dogs and 2 cats is plenty. With an exception that babies can stay up to 5 months.
- Other: I think that's way too many animals in a household, there could be special exceptions for breeders
- Other: I believe that if you can honestly provide a safe loving environment for more than 6 then you should be allowed to. But I don't believe trusting someone's word is good enough for that.
- Other: I think the limit is too high for a city. I am ok with a higher limit (but still a limit) to dog/cats under 6 months and fosters. I don't understand why a day care would be included on this list. Or service animals? why would a person need that many service animals?
- Other: Way too many pets to person ratio. All off-leash parks should be a 1/1 ratio or you simply are not able to watch for feces/behaviour safely and appropriately.
- Other: Allowing a maximum of 12 animals (6&6) in one household within city limits is excessive and it then becomes an issue of the animals being properly trained whether this be by the owner or another individual.
- Other: If it is more due to babies and is temporary then fine. However, potentially 12 animals in one house is excessive. That puts a neighbor in a bad situation. People don't need that many animals in a city.
- Other: 6 dogs and six cats in one home is too many. Half that amount would be more reasonable and less likely of animal hoarding or harmful environment for all animals.
- Other: This promotes animal hoarding
- Other: Most people aren't taking care or being responsible when they have 3 or 4 dogs.
- Other: How can you put a limit on the amount of animals a person has, as long as they take care of them
- Other: Unless you're living out on a farm there is no reason that any one household has 6 pets. That's incredibly excessive and there's no way those pets would all be taken care of appropriately.
- Other: No one needs 6 dogs and 6 cats on the property. At most 3 dogs and or 3 cats but 6 is excessive and many people can't afford vet bills for 1 pet alone 12 pets.
- Other: 6 of any animal is WAY TOO Many!! 2 should be the limit for dogs and cats

- Other: A pet limit of 4 would be better (6 is too high)
- Other: There shouldn't be a limit on how many pets can be kept as long as other nuisance bylaws are respected.
- Other: Limit seems too high
- Other: no larger pet limit
- Other: Stop sticking the government nose in people's business. This was supposed to be a free country.
- Other: Some people will take advantage of this
- Other: Far too many.
- Other: No one needs that many animals, which can become a problem for neighbours
- Other: Limit shouldn't be a number but once they reach that number do a house check to see if all pets are being cared for properly
- Other: it's too many pets in one home, I don't support a bylaw potentially allowing 12 animals next to me. I support 2 max.
- Other: 6 is too many. You cannot guarantee there enough space for all animals.
- Other: Limit pets to two of each
- Other: A household should have as many number of dogs or cats in a household as long as they have adequate living standards and the residence is clean and having that many animals is in no way a disturbance to surrounding residences.
- Other: 6 dogs AND 6 cats 12 in total is a lot for a household to manage. Suggestion would be to do six pets in total between both cats and dogs.
- Other: I don't believe it's necessary to have that any pets in a household. After a total of two pets, it becomes an issue of proper care. The only time having more than 2 would be if the person was licensed to breed them .
- Other: 12 animals in an apartment? Seems crazy.
- Other: Ff
- Other: It is not a difference of opinion at all as the question states. People don't want a government imposed limit on pets, they also don't see the purpose in having more than 2 cats/dogs. These aren't mutually exclusive.
- Other: I think that with 6 animals on a property there will be accumulation of feces
- Other: Most people can barely handle the care and maintenance of 2 or more pets. 6 would only exacerbate noise, odour and control issues, as well as condone hoarding situations.
- Other: I would propose an amendment to the bylaw noting that there is a limit of dogs and cats per household as many individual own both types of animals.
- Other: To much control from big brother. If people are crazy enough to live with 20 cats or 10 dogs. Let them get sick. Lol r
- Other: That is 12 pets in one house, that is way to excessive.
- Other: That is too many pets! Maybe three of each or a max of 6 total.

- Other: It can be costly to adequately care for that many animals. Some people want more than necessary and who goes in to check that 12 animals in one household are adequately taken care of?
- Other: I constantly seeing owners who NEVER EVER walk their dogs and open the door for them to relieve themselves and never pick up, the smell is sometimes bad so why give people the added benefit to fertilize their yards even ore if they can't handle what they have. Oh I know you expect the neighbors to police this and contact 311 which just doesn't make sense.e
- Other: I believe that as long as the animals are taken care of properly an individual should be able to have as many pets as choose. It is not fair for individuals who are caring for animals that could potentially be homeless to be told they can only have a certain amount.
- Other: I would support the change if there was an extra fee for breeders.
- Other: I think this is very case dependant and would vary on household situations.
- Other: Bylaw remains the same with no limit of animals in home
- Other: I agree with the exceptions but 6 and 6 is too many. I would say no more than 4 and 4
- Other: 6 dogs or 6 cats is a but excessive in my mind . Let's think of the welfare of the animals first and foremost .
- Other: The current limit is not an issue if the new limit is 6 I donâ€™t see a large difference
- Other: Too much noise and smell
- Other: Too many animals in the city. Feces and/or could not be adequately handled. I am experiencing that problem with only 2 dogs next door.
- Other: Everything comes with cost, you guys have hidden agenda and cant be trusted! majority said no limits so stick with that!
- Other: 2 per house is enough
- Other: No need for this. The reasons you provide are weak and there should already be bylaws in place to deal with welfare/feces/noise. Many people have multiple animals and do not live gross lives in feces neglecting their animals welfare and being obnoxious to neighbors. People can decide for themselves just fine how many animals they can be responsible for.... you can't even figure out what a pit bull is, so maybe just calm down here..
- Other: laws are ineffective
- Other: No breed specific bylaws should EVER be allowed
- Other: No more than two pets unless for fostering purposes
- Other: 12 cats and dogs in total seems a bit excessive; I would be more comfortable with a total of 6- more than that I think you should need a special permit that requires you to verify you can appropriately care for them (pay vet bills, food, exercise, etc)
- Other: 6 dogs/ 6 cats per household is too much. The limit should be 2 and 2 and you have to apply for a special permit. Exemptions for under 6 months old (litters)
- Other: 6 cats and 6 dogs seems excessive for properties within city limits. 3-4 would still allow for people to have multiple pets and ensure their safety/health.
- Other: I feel 6 is too much and should be limited to 3 or 4 per household for cats and dogs

- Other: Needs to be smaller number as there are too many that don't license their animals. Let alone the smell cause people don't clean up after them properly.
- Other: people should not have to limit the amount of animals in a household. It's their choice, not the city's.
- Other: NA
- Other: What about a household who responsibly houses rescue dogs who will be killed?
- Other: The number of pets you should have should be determined by the size of your property
- Other: As long as they clean mess, I don't care how many they have
- Other: 6 dogs and or 6 cats is excessive - in a smaller home or in areas where homes are close together that is ridiculous. Should be dependent on home size, space between homes
- Other: Too many animals to feed, take to the vet, etc
- Other: Problem situations are not related to the number of animals it is a problem of not being a responsible pet owner.
- Other: a total of 12 medium to large sized animals in one house is too many. if you want more than 4 total cats/dogs in a house, you need a permit.
- Other: 6 is far too many
- Other: Increases risk of animals being neglected/abused. Increases risk of breeding and more animals in shelter
- Other: Too many
- Other: This number of pets is grossly excessive and considering the cost of maintaining pets (veterinary fees for example), allowing 12 pets per household would put the animals at risk of neglect. The risk of nuisance to neighbours would also be significant.
- Other: Too many animals in one home
- Other: I agree with the vast majority of this bylaw, excluding banning the "pitbull" breeds. Owners need to be held responsible for their pets.
- Other: It is not necessary to have more than 2 cats and/or dogs per household within city limits. The space for free roaming within private property would potentially contribute to the animals defensive behaviour
- Other: No person needs more than 2 dogs, yards are too small to allow more than 2 dogs, unless you like the smell of shit...
- Other: Not your house not your choice
- Other: 6 is RIDICULOUS - that's way too many. Maybe 3 TOTAL (like 2 dogs and a cat, or 2 cats and a dog). Again, more animals puts more animals at risk of abuse or neglect. (Exemptions aside). Or if you HAVE to expand it, make it based on square footage of house and yard space accessible to the animals.
- Other: Up to 6 cats and 6 dogs is ridiculous. That is too many animals. I say in total up to 5 animals. Even that is too much. The noise, animal feces would be terrible.
- Other: I would make the limits lower. No one needs 6 dogs &/or 6 cats in one household. That's ridiculous.
- Other: It's good as is now

- Other: No
- Other: People don't look after 2 animals let alone 6
- Other: you take away personal choice
- Other: I feel that due to the issues listed above, 6 cats or dogs is still too many. 6 combined is too many.
- Other: To many animals
- Other: stop dictating number of pets and enforce responsible pet ownership.
- Other: X
- Other: No one needs to have that many pets. That is why we have such problems now with neglected, abused animals.
- Other: You have no right to dictate what someone with passion and love for animals can do with them or how many they may have. It's a lifestyle not a crime.
- Other: 6 animals is too high
- Other: This will undo strain on rescues who rely on volunteers.
- Other: 6 dogs and cats is WAY TOO many, no household needs that many. Understand that there is a difference of opinion, but in what situation is more than 4 dogs or four cats needed.
- Other: None of the city's business
- Other: are you fffen crazy ,, thats a kennel ,, next to me ,, constant barking every day ,, cat shit in my yard ,, enough ,, people are unable to look after one pet at best ,, if able to prove ownership of enough land to care for 3 pets total in a residential neighborhood ,, re think the above ,, way -way off ,, s
- Other: Excessive oversight and rules.
- Other: No household should have more than 2 animals. Certainly not 6
- Other: That is too many animals in a city on residential property !
- Other: 6 is way to high
- Other: Potentially 12 animals/house hold? The only time I could see 6 dogs in a house in Calgary is if the pet had a litter of puppies. Perhaps a licence could be offered to people who are fostering, aside from that absolutely not!
- Other: What we oen is no business of the City unless a case of neglect or puppy milling abuse or abandonment can be proven
- Other: That number is far too large, I would support up to three animals per household. Six is too many.
- Other: If the animals are trained, taken care of and cleaned up after there is no issue. There are enough animals in shelters already.
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats are way to many pets for a person to have and own, yards and houses are not big enough for these animals to have a good environment to live in
- Other: People are allowed to have as many animals as they would like no matter the type or breed
- Other: The average Calgary home cannot support such a large amount of animals.
- Other: I don't think there should be a limit on how much pets people have

- Other: To many animals in to small of space. I think the exceptions are very good ones.
- Other: Too many
- Other: Two dogs ,four cats
- Other: You shouldn't be able to tell anyone how many animals they can have.
- Other: If you have someone breeding dogs you could end up with 6+ dogs in a house. My neighbour at one time had 22 dogs/puppies in her house. She was/is a breeder. Breeders should have higher license fees and a more frequent inspection system.
- Other: 6 is too many
- Other: Look at the owner before you look at the animal. Get your head out of your [removed].
- Other: Up to 3 should be the minimum 6 is crazy! And unnessaserry number
- Other: I think surprise home visits would be more beneficial. If a household can care for an "excessive" number of animals in a manner that is humane and loving, we shouldn't be able to dictate what's best for them.
- Other: That is too many animals per household. Every time there is a down turn in the economy, pets are the first thing people give up. The cost to properly care for that many animals (annual vet bills and vaccinations) is more than a second mortgage.
- Other: 6&6 is way too many and should be lowered.
- Other: Way too many animals. Max of 3 animals total.
- Other: Except for the reasons listed above the potential for 12 animals in a family dwelling is too many.
- Other: there should be no limit to how many dogs or cats you can have... there isn't one for people right?
- Other: 2-4 total number of pets per household is enough.
- Other: as long as no complaints shouldnt be an issue
- Other: Our shelters are full and people should be able to take in as many pets and they want
- Other: 6 dogs and/or cats is too many in the city.
- Other: I support a lower number of pets, 6 of each is Way too high!
- Other: No
- Other: It is not the governments role to decide how much property or animals are necessary .
- Other: I believe that 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is much too high (this could be up to twelve animals in total). I would think that a maximum of 5 or 6 animals combined is high enough (I.e. 3 dogs and 2 cats are hard enough to properly care for).
- Other: I think it should be 6 dogs OR 6 cats, 12 is to many animals
- Other: 4 animals with the proposed exceptions would be preferable
- Other: Stop with your busy body work....
- Other: That's too many animals.
- Other: 12 dogs and cats seems excessive unless the owner operates some sort of animal care
- Other: Why should walkers. Daycares and fosters not have limits

- Other: How would you ensure 12 potential animals are being well cared for and not neglected?
- Other: I think the possibility of having 12 animals in one residential property will come an increase in the number of complaints
- Other: 6 is still too many and unacceptable within city limits. 2 should absolutely be the limit
- Other: 6 is too high. I would support this at 4 with the relevant exceptions
- Other: I would Not support bylaw changes targeting nuisance dogs and pit bulls. My pit bull was the most sedate and loving dog and feel it's up to the owner to get proper training for that breed. They are very smart and do well with training
- Other: 6 animals is way too many to safely care for
- Other: If it is my property and I take care of my animals it's not your place to determine how many animals I have. Bylaw or government should have no reign over how many pets I can own period.
- Other: You know why , NOISE, and defecation .
- Other: I would limit to 3 of each
- Other: N/a
- Other: No consideration for neighbors living next to that many pets
- Other: Two is more than enough!
- Other: Nobody needs 6 dogs, limit to 3 adult dogs 3 under 6 months. Unless fostering.
- Other: It's up to the owner how many pets they want. As long as their abiding by the rules then no harm no foul
- Other: I think if a family is willing to take in 12 dogs and love them and look after them properly then it shouldn't matter. I would say that some families could do a better job looking after 12 dogs than some families with 2 dogs. Lots of people have big yards etc. And take in rescue dogs. I don't think it would be fair to tell these people no. With that being said I would approve a home inspection from a rescue foundation if a family was looking to have that many pets to make sure they would do an adequate job and their space is large enough to accommodate that many pets.
- Other: 6 animals is far too many
- Other: The limit should be MUCH lower than this. This is an excessive number of pets and, while there are some responsible pet owners, many are not. This number not only increases the chance that they are not going to get the attention they deserve due to sheer number of pets, but also the associated risk of substantial vet bills discouraging the owners from going to the vet at all. I would think that some exceptions are reasonable, such as having appropriate space for additional pets (living on an acreage, for example), but otherwise 12 pets in total is absolutely excessive.
- Other: 12 total animals is too high. 3 Dogs AND 3 Cats is more than enough unless it is a breeder, shelter or service animal trainer.
- Other: Too many animals
- Other: Unsure what current limits are.
- Other: Why would anyone need 6 cats and 6 dogs. This is far too many! This number should be lower
- Other: I think 3-4 dog should be allowed while 3 cats should be the maxed allowed. If having 3 or more dogs there should be inspections on owner property incase of illegal dog fighting or bait dogs, if owner has more than 4 dog on farmland near city limit should be inspected due to possibility of a puppy mill operation. Fence height should increase so dogs can't escape.

- Other: 6 is WAY too many. Two of each at the most.
- Other: Households should not be micromanaged.
- Other: Number of animals should not be restricted especially pitbulls.. humans fault not the dog.
- Other: I do not like this bill specifically because of its hate for pit bulls
- Other: All the crazy cat ladies will not like this.
- Other: To each their own. Mind your buisness
- Other: QUIT TELLING PEOPLE WHAT THEY CAN AND CANNOT DO IN THEIR OWN HOMES.
- Other: 6 pets is excessive, for noise, mess clean up and the owners ability to adequately care for that many animals while not having a negative impact on their neighbours.
- Other: I think if someone can pay for as many animals as they want and have lisences, and the animals are all taken care of and loved why can't they have a home
- Other: Limiting pets does not change accumulation of feces on a property, noise, or welfare of animals. If owners don't pick up feces for 1 dog, 2 dogs or 10 dogs, then neighbors should file a complaint. 1 dog can warrant a noise complaint if the owners aren't responsible.
- Other: BSL does not work
- Other: People should be able to own as many pets as they want given they can provide safe, clean and adequate living environments and can fully provide for all animals in the home
- Other: Unless an animal has given birth, there is no reason to have six cats or dogs on a residential property.
- Other: If animals are being cared for properly there is no need to impose a limit.
- Other: No more then 4 animals total.
- Other: I donâ€™t believe we have the right to tell good people how many animals they can or canâ€™t have. If someone has to many and is reported it should be delt with on a case by case bases.
- Other: Age of the cats or dogs nor inherited not really mutter. The number of them in one household should be strictly remain small/limited and if any case the number of animals exceed the limit then the owners have to report/update.
- Other: If someone is apply to responsibly take care of more pets that is their own decision. The city should not be dictating how tax payers live their lives.
- Other: I think 6 is too high. 4 is better.
- Other: 6 is way too many in the city and not necessary. Those numbers are ridiculous.
- Other: The last thing we need in urban areas are more cars, dogs, livestock etc.
- Other: There is no need for anyone to have 6 dogs or cats!
- Other: Unless you are fostering, breeding, or inherit these pets, 6 animals could be a huge nuisance for the neighbours, especially if the pets are trained improperly.
- Other: In many of these cases 6 is too many. One needs to be responsible and recognize their limitations. If you live in an apartment 2 cats at the most and that's if your responsible and dont let the litter build up and attract bugs to your environment. Just for example. People need to just wake up and take responsibility for the animals they have or don't have them at all. There need to be more regulation around adopting pets. as too many end up going back or on the street. Fix that issue and this one will solve itself. Last Cats that are indoor, fixed and shots up to date with registered tattoos with the vet should not have to buy a license. They can already be traced back to an owner.

- Other: As long as they can care for them they should be allowed as many as they want. Better to save 8 dogs let's say from the shelter and give them love then let them suffer in a shelter. But if there is mistreatment I believe in giving them a fine.
- Other: It's hard for me to understand how someone can live in the city and be able to properly take care of more than 12 cats and dogs.
- Other: Most people disagreeing will be none pet owners which obviously have a bias. If you can properly maintain all animals there should be no limits
- Other: This is not fair to people that have pit bulls that are well behaved.
- Other: It's not the city's business to regulate pets inside the home. If problems arise they can be dealt with as their own violation. (I.e. noise or odour). Pet number should not be cause.
- Other: This is an excessive number of pets for any household.
- Other: Restrict the OWNER!!
- Other: Agree that there should be a limit, but 6 and 6?? Based on what?
- Other: I don't see this as a problem. It is a solution in search of a problem.
- Other: Does this only apply to cats and dogs?
- Other: If a person can manage more than 6 dogs and cats and keep their yard clean and quiet, then they would probably do so with more than that. One dog could be unacceptable if the feces is never picked up and the dog is constantly barking. Enforce the rules you have already, regardless of the number of pets.
- Other: Still too many pets in one house
- Other: I have heard of issues with people walking too many dogs at once (mainly with professional dog walkers) but have never heard of problems with people owning too many animals. If it is a matter of living in an apartment where there is not enough space for the animals, condo boards already have the ability to restrict the number of pets that may reside there.
- Other: I am not an animal lover. There are currently 16 dogs living in my general vicinity. At most times there is some dog barking! Dogs bark when their owners are not home to silence them. And if homes were allowed to have six dogs can you imagine the noise that they can make! Where is the fairness to the people who enjoy the peace and quiet. There are already 135000 dogs in Calgary - we don't need more barking dog!! one or two maybe but not six per household!!!!
- Other: You [removed] are just looking for more money to toss away
- Other: If all animals in the home receive proper food, shelter, and veterinary care and the property is maintained in a hygienic matter and does not cause problems for neighbors, there should not be a limit on the number of pets someone can own
- Other: Totally unacceptable like having a dog kennel or pet rescue in residential

- Other: 6 of both is far too many animals for most residences to contain. 3 of each should be the limit. The other consideration is the size of the animals. 6 large dogs in a small back yard could be very problematic for neighbours.
- Other: I'm sorry but it should be lower. 4 or less - combined
- Other: people should be allowed to have as many animals as they wish. if trailer trash folks can have 12 trashy children then classy pet owners should be able to have as many as they want also.
- Other: This is supposed to be a free country and taking one person right away because the government wants to make more money is not the way to go. If the person can afford to have multiple pets it should be their freedom and right to do so without laws that take this very freedom away from us. Currently there are laws that makes no sense and some are out of fear mongering.
- Other: Taking care of 6 dogs or cats is an enormous responsibility especially, both financially and socially. Very few people would be up to this task without causing either potential neglect to the animals or being a nuisance to neighbours
- Other: Owners should have the right to decide how many dogs &/or cats they are able to maintain & walk - a responsible pet owner would know their limit. This bylaw would encourage people to not register their pets (especially cats), and be onerous on the engagement officers.
- Other: THERE SHOULD BE NO RESTRICTION WHO ARE YOU TELL US
- Other: ...
- Other: No one person needs that many animals - you will increase animal hoarding, back yard breeders, and issues with neglect
- Other: I don't agree with breeding of animals for sale as it is basically puppy mills. All dogs and cats should be spay or neutered.
- Other: I believe if someone wants an Animal and can take care and love them, there shouldn't be a problem here
- Other: no thank you
- Other: Six is too many except in the exceptions listed. I would suggest no more than 3 for the general public.
- Other: Too many.. max 6; exceptions listed make sense
- Other: No one in their right mind needs 6 dogs or cats. ((% of the time when people do have numbers this high....there are severe issues.
- Other: 3 cats, 3 dogs per household aside from the above acceptions. More is a LOT of animals to have in town
- Other: I only have one cat, but love the fact calgary does not currently have a limit on number of pets in household. If the amount of animals becomes a hoard type situation, CHS can follow up with those cases.
- Other: I feel this number is far too high under most circumstances. One possible solution would be a scalable number based on home/yard square footage.
- Other: 6 dogs and 7 cats? Seems excessive
- Other: If it's a responsible owner than the a our shouldn't matter
- Other: We shouldn't change it

- Other: There should not be an arbitrary head count. Noise and nuisance bylaws are sufficient.
- Other: Six of each is excessive. I would say that typically two of each is reasonable, but three of each would be the upper limit.
- Other: Unless it includes all animals not just dogs and cats. (Chickens, pigeons, birds, snakes, etc)
- Other: If you can afford to take care of them and give them a good home that's all that matters
- Other: Less than 6
- Other: If on acreage no limit. In town 6 is good limit.
- Other: I don't believe anyone could properly take care of 12 animals at one time. I agree about the following exceptions: Dogs/cats under 6 months of age Temporary homes (fosters, breeders, pet sitters, daycares) Dogs/cats that are inherited and Service animals.
- Other: Because as long as it's a clean and safe environment for animals then a limit shouldn't be needed
- Other: Do not use terms like "potential exceptions", say what the plan is.
- Other: Singling out one breed is ridiculous there are more bites and injuries from small dogs and off leash dogs. Then you should go after Rotties Shepherds Doberman's Great Danes the pitbulls that we have in our community are well behaved and the gentle dogs. I will never support this
- Other: Too many - special license should be needed for a smaller number
- Other: No house can safely and comfortably take proper care of that many animals. There should be no more than 3 dogs in a household.
- Other: I think owning more pets should be based on the size of house, yard and income.
- Other: 6 cats AND 6 dogs seems excessive. I would suggest limiting to 3 of each, or perhaps 6 pets total (dogs & cats)
- Other: The city is crazy to have 6 dogs in a household. That's the beginning of hoarding
- Other: 2 dogs 2 cats
- Other: I support the bylaw but I think the # of animals per household (6 cat, 6 dog) should be lower (6 total). Special circumstances/exceptions can always be provided but it is concerning that any one household could have 12 animals under control at one time.
- Other: People will claim all the animals are fosters or temporary and get in way over their heads
- Other: No
- Other: I do not think it is necessary to increase the amount of pets that a household can have.
- Other: I'm so sick of this city dictating every aspect of our lives. Fix the economy instead of worrying how many animals a person has. This is a joke.
- Other: Responsible pet owners should not be penalized. We don't limit children who can be just as disruptive
- Other: Do not believe in Dog Fanciers' license. No one needs 6 service animals. Am in agreement with temporary homes/inherited as long as living conditions are good. Have questions for the excess animal permit.

- Other: 3 seems reasonable. 6 makes one wonder about mental health issues and we have had a number of hoarding animal situations in our province. A large number of animals could result in poor care. Yards offer limited space.
- Other: Drug crime is up, property values or down, the budget is blown up and insane [removed]
- Other: It is not necessary for anyone to own more than 2 cats and/or dogs. As a person who lives beside someone with an excessive number of dogs, the noise and smell are awful.
- Other: limitations should be based on ability of individual to provide adequate environment for the animals
- Other: Too many animals. Lived on acreage and would never have had this many animals.
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats is way too many animals. They won't get the proper care. It should be 4 combined either cats or dogs
- Other: This could easily create hoarding situations and increase seizure of dogs or cause shelters to fill up. Quality of life for animals with more than two in the household is low creating a dangerous situation for the animal.
- Other: the amount of cat/dogs proposed is excessive
- Other: Too many pets - number should be lower
- Other: Your 3 children are 100% louder, and more disruptive than my dogs. Why does it impact you what happens in MY house if my dogs are well cared for, trained and not in your home?
- Other: Are people going to start door to door inspections to verify how many animals people have? How do you plan to enforce this?
- Other: No one needs to have more than 2 cats or dogs in their home. Obviously, if they produced offspring, that would be a temporary situation until homes were found for the puppies or kittens.
- Other: Stop trying to make money off unfortunate situations.
- Other: who needs 6 dogs? Usually people who don't take proper care of their animals and cause noise and feces complaints
- Other: It is not unreasonable for a home to properly care for >6 animals. Focus should be on negligent owners, not responsible owners with many pets.
- Other: I only support the following exceptions: Temporary homes (fosters, breeders, pet sitters, daycares), Approved Excess Animal Permit, Possession of a Dog Fanciers' License, Service animals
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats is way too many to responsibly care for in the city inviting potential conflict with neighbours. The limit should be 2 pets per household.
- Other: That is way too many dogs particularly if they are pitbull types or large breeds such as great daines. Maximum 3 dogs over 50lbs at the very least. 6 dogs is way too many
- Other: I don't see any reason why 6 was chosen. I know several people that have multiple pets and no-one I know has more than 4 so I don't see why the limit isn't 4.
- Other: If the pets are being taken care of I think this is an overreach of government.
- Other: All of this breed specific legislation is absolute nonsense. This kind of ignorance doesn't belong in 2020 - you would think Calgary knows better as a self touting progressive city but here we are. Absolutely disgusting.

- Other: 6 dogs or 6 cats is too many animals.
- Other: Six is too many
- Other: The way it is written someone could have 12 animals in the house. That is crazy in a city environment.
- Other: Some people are responsible pet owners despite having more than six pets
- Other: are you kidding?? If you have that many pets in your home, you shouldn't be living in the city! That's not fair to those animals!
- Other: 6 dogs or cats in a household is beyond reason
- Other: I think 6 cats/dogs per household is too many for most households to manage. Special permits for exceptions to the limit should suffice.
- Other: I think 2-3 pets per household is enough. But exceptions could be made for some situations.(fosters, inherited)
- Other: 6 animals is way too many in my opinion. I would limit at 2-3.
- Other: Responsible pet owners - regardless of quantity on animals - are that...responsible. Hoarding situations are very different in nature - mental health concerns. If a citizen has registered their animals, are cleaning up feces, their animals aren't being a nuisance (that's cause for interpretation) and they are responsible then I see no issue.
- Other: I think 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many animals to be properly looked after at one time, with the exception of dogs/cats under 6 months and temporary homes.
- Other: Let people own as many pets as they would like.
- Other: 1 or 2 pets is LOTS! Exception pups but pops weaned must be sold or given away within a month.
- Other: I feel like 6 cats and dogs is too big a jump from the original bylaw. I would support maybe 3-4 but not 6.
- Other: Would lower the number to total further to a combined total of 3 pets per household.
- Other: There should be a required sq/ft per animal depending on their size. Having 6 dogs in a townhouse for example can be a negative impact in the animals wellbeing.
- Other: I dont think it is your right to say how many pets one household has
- Other: people should be able to have what they want as long as they can provide properly for those animals
- Other: It is not necessary for anyone to own more than 2 cats and/or dogs.
- Other: If foster homes and temporary homes are an exception, then I don't understand how a household would need 12 animals. This number is way too high for a residential property that keeps all the animals (i.e. isn't breeding them to sell). It should be 6 in total (i.e. 3 cats and 3 dogs, or 5 cats and 1 dog).
- Other: That amount of animals within City limits amounts to hoarding.
- Other: No one needs 6 dogs and or cats. That means a neighbor, that is only a few feet from your own house could have 12 animals. How could anyone think that 12 animals is acceptable. No one needs to own more than 2 cats or 2 dogs.
- Other: Too many animals in one space. Lower limits

- Other: People do not need six dogs or six cats.
- Other: 3 is enough unless it is necessary to take in a pet with no other option of a home
- Other: 12 animals per a house is a bit much unless it's a trainer/training facility or fostering
- Other: It doesn't matter how many animals someone has if their house...they are either responsible or they are not...fine and charge and punish the people who do not follow the rules or clean up after their dogs/cats/animals. Change the laws in regards to the people who violate the rules. Don't punish the responsible pet owners because you group them all the same
- Other: No i would not support this bylaw
- Other: Owners and children need to be taught and shown how to work with dogs. We need to stop blaming dogs and hold owners more accountable.
- Other: these numbers are crazy, I have had a neighbor with from 6-3 cats that were on the loose to defecate in their neighbors yard
- Other: Calgary currently has a great system
- Other: Limit of 6 is too high. Two is lots
- Other: If a problem arises, then deal with it, but stop trying to control everything.
- Other: 12 "large" animals is excessive and complaints would draw unnecessary resources from by law enforcement
- Other: where do you get off telling me how many dogs or cats i can have . You are not my Mother or Father. you do not own my property .maybe start with limiting the number of kids people have . Kids are more dangerous that dogs. some kids do become criminals , get your hands and face out of my places.
- Other: 6 is too many. Less is better.
- Other: 6 cats and 6 dogs is too many the size of the yard and house should restrict the amount of pets you can have
- Other: some poeple dont look after the 1 they have so to have 2 or more just adds to the problem
- Other: This is only the business of the pet owners themselves. This will do nothing to stop illegal breeders and it will only harm those wanting to save animals.
- Other: For the livelihood of the animals and people houses would be too crowded with possibly up to 12 pets, it would also be extremely hard to manage cleaning up after the pets.
- Other: If the person is able to take care of said animals without any complaints, then let them. a lot of people look at animals as children, and i don't imagine well get told how many children we are allowed to have.
- Other: 6 is too many 3 is a perfect number
- Other: Deal with individual situations instead of trying to regulate everyone
- Other: You should be allowed to have as many pets as you want as long as you were responsible.
- Other: Its too much in a city - if people want to own that many animals they should live on a farm. When you have neighbors within 50 feet of you - or less - its too much. You have to make concessions on what you perceive as your rights when you have neighbors all around you.
- Other: NO ONE needs 12 [removed] animals in their house

- Other: 12 animals in one home still seems too many.
- Other: Depends on the size of yard/space
- Other: Too many
- Other: There is now way people should be allowed to have that number of pets!
- Other: 6 dogs can be very loud and cause problems with neighbor, maybe it should be reduced to 4 dogs (except exceptions mentioned above) cats on the other hand can stay with 6 cats per household as they are normally quiet, causing less issues with neighbors.
- Other: 12 animals is a farm
- Other: Thatâ€™s a lot. Maybe for exceptions is ok. But really. 2 dog and 2 cats is a lot of pets for the average person to support and take care of responsibly. Who needs 6 dogs or and 6 cats. A bit much and expensive.
- Other: I would support a restriction, but that number is to high
- Other: Not necessary
- Other: Stop trying to control how many animals a person can have. It is really none of your business.
- Other: If a person has the ability to care for more dogs or cats why should they be restricted? I mean to say, that if a person has the income, space, time and fair ability to provide for these animals why should we prohibit them and inevitably allow more dogs to stay stray or sheltered etc. I think there should be rules regulating the number of animals per space of a persons home.
- Other: 6 is far too many pets for one household.
- Other: I think 12 animals in one household is still too many.
- Other: If the animals are provided clean space and good care, who gets to say how many animals a person can have? Thatâ€™s ridiculous
- Other: nobody needs six dogs or cats -- unless they're running a puppy mill, which shouldn't be allowed at all
- Other: pet limit is WAY TOO HIGH for very responsible people (we have 1 pet and the cost of proper nutrition and medical care is way more than we had anticipated). Until breeders are more stringently regulated, breeders should not be allowed in city limits, and this should include accidents breeders.
- Other: unless you live in a mansion thats too many animals
- Other: nobody needs more than 1 dog or cat in household
- Other: Some people only find happiness in their pets, are great owners.. why limit them cause people are stupid.
- [removed]
- Other: That many animals in one home cannot possibly be good for the health and welfare of the humans or animals in that home. I would question the mental competence of anyone who felt it necessary to have more than 2-3 animals in once home.
- Other: There is no real reason to need so many animals. A person could not feasibly address the needs (training included) in that number. More pets in a single location will only serve to exponentially compound the number (and severity) of existing issues. Let's not enable hoarding, please.

- Other: I feel that unless you are a foster for animals having that many animals is quite high. I would go with 4 dogs and 4 cats. Having more dogs/cats is a problem if we have small yards, feces leaking into neighbors yards, clean up. Leads to neglect.
- Other: they are a lot of work and too many are not good as in proper care per animal.
- Other: I don't believe there should be a limit
- Other: That's too many animals in one house and can possibly damage the house for future renters/buyers. Plus the fact with all the feces and noise they would create.
- [removed]
- Other: If it's on their own property you have no right to limit anything or introduce laws unless you are going to start paying my mortgage
- Other: No
- Other: it's not right
- Other: Stop trying to control everyone
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats is too high. A combined total of 4 dogs and cats should suffice with exemptions as listed above.
- Other: 6 dogs or cats in a house hold seems to be a lot
- Other: 6 is too much!
- Other: Similarly to the question regarding hens, I feel people should be entitled to however many animals they can maintain and adequately care for, which is different from person to person.
- Other: I agree with the reasoning to keep numbers restricted.
- Other: The limit should be 3 with the addition of exemptions for fostering and puppies
- Other: Way too many pets that would not receive care, training and companionship
- Other: Agree with the exemptions but 6 dogs and 6 cats is a lot. 6 combined would make more sense. With exemptions if two households came together (marriage, etc)
- Other: Too many.....may lead to neglect, inbreeding, unsanitary conditions, noise. Two cats and/or two dogs - Max. per household.
- Other: People should have as many pets as they like
- Other: Unless there's a huge nuisance of feces; smell; noise or neglect, leave it. Some ppl should limit the amount of ppl living in one dwelling
- Other: It is unacceptable that you would tell me how many animals I can or cannot have on my own private property if I want 10 cats I'll have 10 cats
- Other: None of their business how many I have. Especially if they are being properly cared for
- Other: If the pets are kept in good health and animal waste is dealt with properly the city has no right to tell it's residents how many pets they can have
- Other: TOO MANY. MAX 2-3
- Other: Rule should be no more than 4 dogs/cats per house hold. Total pets no more than 4. Except for new born puppies with their mom for a period of 6 months.
- Other: I think 2 animals at most is reasonable. 6 dogs in one backyard is excessive no matter the breed of dog.

- Other: As long as people are able to take care of their animals they have the RIGHT to own as many as they would like.
- Other: No
- Other: 3 of each animal should be more than sufficient for owners unless the fall under the exceptions rule
- Other: 6 dogs is quite excessive and would require tons of attention and training which would be quite hard for 1 family to do. 3-4 dogs would be a better limit. 6 cats is much easier to maintain as long as they are indoor only cats.
- Other: 6 dogs and cat in one household in the city seems excessive
- Other: It's ridiculous to tell people how many pets they can have. We don't do that with children and they can be way more of a problem/noise factor or not cared for properly!
- Other: 6 is excessive
- Other: Animal hoarding is already a problem.
- Other: The exceptions are agreeable but having 6 dogs AND 6 cats is an excessive amount. 2 dogs AND/or 2 cats is more reasonable; special applications for more than the 4 limit can be addressed for those that are capable and can provide suitable living conditions.
- Other: The limit should be significantly lower. 2 cats or 2 dogs
- Other: A maximum of 2 pets per household.
- Other: Unless this is directly related to the exceptions, why does anyone need six dogs and six cats? I don't think without substantial income these people would be able to afford proper care for these animals. Animals can have health issues and can cost a very large amount to ensure they are getting the proper care. I honestly think beyond two dogs and two cats for normal purposes (not breeding, temporary placement, on an acreage etc.) is very excessive.
- Other: Homes in the City of Calgary do not permit enough space to properly care for that number of animals. Indoor cats is one thing but dogs require ample leash walking and socialization. The common pet owner can not walk 6 dogs at once or provide the ability to control that many dogs alone at the off leash parks. Putting a limit on the number of animals will help ensure owners are responsible and their pets get the care, attention and training they require to prevent bites.
- Other: 6 dogs and cats is ridiculous
- Other: The bylaw is fine. The neighbors are the problem.
- Other: six dogs and cats is ridiculous.
- Other: 6 dogs or cats per household is too many. 3 is a much better number
- Other: I don't think it's necessary for anyone to own 12 pets or take care of that many pets in one home. I don't believe that they would be properly cared for.
- Other: Should be lower than 6 of each (12 animals total!)
- Other: Who in their right mind can take care of 6 dogs and 6 cats.
- Other: 6 dogs/cats is too many. 3 dogs/cats should be limit
- Other: Not necessary
- Other: As long as they are well taken care of there shouldn't be a limit

- Other: Way too many animals in a house. like 2-3 max
- Other: How can a person or family properly take care and maintain the health of more than 2 cats or dogs apart from the above exceptions.
- Other: If people are abiding by rules this seems ridiculous
- Other: The City should not have the power to tell citizens how to live their lives, and who to live their lives with. If people want to live with 10 dogs, they should be allowed to as long as the animals are being taken care of properly and are not creating issues for other neighbors
- Other: I think as long as the animals are well taken care of and the house is well maintained that people should be able to have as many dogs and cats as they like.
- Other: 6 is far too many. 3 - 4 makes more sense.
- Other: Don't think a normal household needs so many pets. It may cause environmental issues for the neighborhoods.
- Other: How many people have more than 6 cats and 6 dogs? I'm guessing it isn't very many, and as long as they are paying the fees and registering the animals and picking up after the animals then they should be free to do so. I would like to breed dogs within Calgary, I don't want someone to complain to the city that I have 3 or 4 dogs and have to deal with the city on top of trying to focus energy on finding a proper home for the dogs.
- Other: How is this enforceable?
- Other: 12 animals in one home is ridiculous and excessive. That's borderline animal hoarding.
- Other: If someone's wants 13 dogs and 11 cats they should be allowed that many pets.
- Other: Limit should be based on welfare - 6 is too many for many properties/owners, while there is not good reason to limit someone who is capable of handling more, other than for the sake of demonstrating the ability to regulate (Napoleon Syndrome/Narcissistic Personality Disorder).
- Other: too many dogs & cats. No one should need 6 dogs OR 6 cats.
- Other: I think the number should be lower, 4 animals total, combination of dogs and cats.
- Other: There is no home big enough in city limits with a big enough yard to accommodate that many animals. I would decrease the limit per household.
- Other: 12 pets in one property is too much
- Other: There's no reason for a family in the city to need 6 animals in their home. MAX 3. No exceptions aside from being legaced in.
- Other: Why should anyone have any right to determine what another person "needs"? This is ludicrous. If the excessive amount of pets is causing issues to their neighbors, THEN enforce the necessary bylaws. Limiting people just because others feel they don't need something is pathetic.
- Other: Out on an acreage (17.5 acres) the maximum amount of dogs allowed is THREE. That is on an acreage with lots of land and space for the animals. Twelve animals total sounds like a horrible idea, I can only imagine that many of those animals would be neglected.
- Other: It still allows for owners to have more than what is necessary. Remove the other clauses that allow people to have more. They can apply for every circumstance where they want more than the 6.
- Other: As long as the animals are being properly cared for and owner can afford them, I don't see a need for a limit

- Other: 6 of each is way too many. 3 max total would be appropriate
- Other: The limit should be lowered from 6 and 6. No one needs 6 dogs and 6 cats. Limit should be 3 and 3.
- Other: Six is way too many. Only two (2) animals per household.
- Other: Six is stupid! No more than two and you have to own your property. Zero animals if your in a rental
- Other: 2 cats and/or 2 dogs should be the limit.
- Other: No thank you
- Other: 6 is too many
- Other: I personally think that so long as you can properly care for your animals it shouldn't be an issue with how many you own. I also think its ridiculous to limit and dog shame pitbulls. Its NOT the breed that's bad its sometimes the owners!!!!
- Other: Infringing on the rights for pet ownership
- Other: Whats the point of changing it?
- Other: Too much regulation. Good owners who comply with the existing bylaw are capable of keeping many animals without disturbing neighbours.
- Other: I support tax paying citizens having as many rights as possible.
- Other: No reason for someone to own that many pets. Its absurd. Max 4 in any household.
- Other: You can't responsibly walk 6 or more dogs at an off leash dog park and control them and pickup their poop. I've seen way too many dog walkers not being responsible.
- Other: It's different from case to case. My friend has 3 bigger dogs and none of them bark. Another friend owns 1 that is so anxious that it barks constantly.
- Other: I should be able to have as many pets as I want as long as I have proper space and provide proper care
- Other: Should be no more than 6 animals of any type
- Other: this city doesn't control the number of children a house can have why would we control number of pets?
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is excessive. This rule does not encourage responsible pet ownership and can lead to animal neglect.
- Other: I would not want to live next to this many animals
- Other: It's a very high limit compared to cities of comparable size throughout North America, I don't see a need to have more animals than that in a household unless one is rearing puppies (who will eventually be rehomed) or running a kennel which should require a licence.
- Other: Unless the condition of the home is horrible. I don't see why there needs to be a cap on the amount for animals
- Other: No one needs up to 12 pets. 2 dogs and 2 cats should suffice.
- Other: 2 dogs and 3 cats as a maximum just do to the accumulation of feces. i support the potential exceptions

- Other: Maybe not dog or cats maybe 4. But if the animals are safe and taken care of and off the streets it's better for everyone
- Other: I have seen first hand that having more than 12 animals on one property does not end well.
- Other: Let people do what they want. And if people can't afford to live off what they make they don't need a pet or animal. Do not make special fees for poor people. That's embarrassing
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is still too many
- Other: 6 animals meaning cats and dogs is still too many per household. Should be limited to square footage of yard and/or house based on city taxes. ie. 900 sq.ft. house or single lot should equally 2 outdoor pets. 1600sqft house on double lot equals 4 pets.
- Other: Dogs should be limited to 3 or less
- Other: 6 is too high for dogs should be 3; ok limit for cats.
- Other: My house my pets,
- Other: Honestly I do not agree with hoarding animals as they are not getting the proper care that they deserve. I believe in fostering as this give the animals a quote more normal life and gets them adapted to living with other animals and socializes the animal with different breeds.
- Other: As long as the home is good I don't think there should be any restrictions on how many animals one household can have
- Other: he
- Other: pitbulls are great dogs and shouldn't be punished just because they are stronger than other dogs.
- Other: Why put a limit on it? That's like putting limit on how much food a family can have in their house. If people want more pets then why stop that?
- Other: No evidence that policing the #of pets in a home increases their welfare.
- Other: People shouldn't be told what they can and can't have in their own home. This isn't a communist country
- Other: As long as the owners can properly care and tend to all the animals why should we restrict the amount they choose to care for
- Other: I don't like over-regulation. I owned 3 dogs for a time and was very responsible. I don't want to be told I can't have them.
- Other: I think more work is needed here as this is now currently saying I could own 12 animals that's 12 license, 12 animals to feed and care for and can 12 animals really have enough love and space in the average home especially with most people needing to work most days.
- Other: This is getting very out of hand. I am so disappointed with this city
- Other: 6 is to many, 2 should be the maximum allowed
- Other: If the bylaws are followed and enforced - no barking, no nuisance, the limits should not be necessary
- Other: Because in my opinion, it is wrong. Some people have more than six as they provide homes for unwanted animals. Stop trying to add more control tactics.
- Other: As a pet owner I feel this is extremely judgemental, the amount of animals is not the problem if they are being taken care of. I have many animals all in outstanding health and upkeep and to have them removed from me or myself fined is extremely rude. There are already so many pet restrictions already set by rentals, condo associations, and homeowners itâ€™s unnecessary to make it a BYLAW

- Other: The limit is too high. Should be 2 pets per household.
- Other: 12 pets is too many pets in one house
- Other: Mind your own damn business.
- Other: You guys shouldnâ€™t make a big deal for dogs and more for pitbulls,
- Other: The limit should be determined by the area the pets will be kept in. Small yard = fewer dogs or smaller home = fewer cats, etc. will
- Other: I support everything with the exception of the pet limit being 6, it needs to be lowered especially for dogs. I would argue a person with 6 dogs not all of them are being properly exercised every single day as someone who had 1-2.
- Other: Too many pets for one household.
- Other: there shouldn't be a limit in my opinion if you have the space and the money then all pets deserve a loving home
- Other: With vet bill having 2 is more than sufficient
- Other: There are many responsible breeders
- Other: Six dogs and six cats in one home is excessive! I would support about half of that as an upper maximum. The potential for inadequate living conditions and disruption to neighbours is too great at a potential twelve pets per property.
- Other: I think 12 animals per household is to many. I would think 3 and 3 would be the max and depending on the size of the home. 12 pets in 700 sqf would be ridiculous
- Other: Those that have that many likely won't disclose how many are at the residence anyways
- Other: The pet limit should be far less per household, e.g., maximum 2 total (dog or cat or both).
- Other: 12 potential animals in a house is too many! are the needs of the animals being looked after? too many issues could arise.
- Other: Too many dogs means more noise. I have neighbours with noisy dogs and also a neighbour who's cats roam free all the time.
- Other: 6 is too many animals in a house
- Other: Professional high end breeders require more dogs
- Other: 12 animals in one residence is far too much even it comes to hygiene and noise.
- Other: this bylaw should be scrapped altogether .
- Other: Again, situational
- Other: None of your business how many pets are "necessary". Will you then want to determine how many children I can have?
- Other: The focus should be on meeting animalsâ€™ needs regardless of numbers
- Other: Dog sitters have more than 6 dogs in a household
- Other: no exceptions maybe except for breeders cuz the dogs are usually gone after 8 weeks. 4 should be the limit for most household, period. Who has more than 4 or 6 service animals??

Inherited?? that's BS too. dog rescue will take the animals. what are the criteria for excess animal permit? If you want more than 4 dogs, buy some fish instead!

- Other: L
- Other: There is no reason to own more than the current by law. 6 dogs is way more noise and feces.
- Other: This is insane. People should be allowed to own as many pets as they want as long as the pets are properly cared for. What is next, restricting the number of children people have? Come on!
- Other: NA
- Other: Have as many animals as you want as long as they are taken care of
- Other: 6 cats AND 6 dogs in one house is ridiculous. Do they all stay inside the house at all times? Of course not. The dogs can be outside barking and the cats use my garden as a litter box. One or two are bad enough. Allowing up to 12 animals next door is asking for trouble.
- Other: 3 dogs and 3 cats should be the limit. Unless approved. No one can handle 6 of each animals in a single family house hold.
- Other: 2 pets is enough in the city. Move to the country if you want more pets.
- Other: Higher chance of negligence and abuse. Obscene amounts of noise. People can hardly manage one dog.
- Other: Noise, feces, irresponsible pet owners, ineffective by law enforcement.
- Other: I'm an adult and I can decide how many pets to own. You can't assume more #s of pets make me irresponsible
- Other: There should be a limit.
- Other: I do support limits and the exceptions for fosters but don't think we need as high as 6 cats and 6 dogs.
- Other: That is a total of 12 animals in a household for an unlimited amount of time. That is too many. If it is for a temporary purpose that is ok
- Other: No more than 6 pets altogether per household. As it is, cat owners in our city are EXTREMELY irresponsible, neglectful, & abusive towards their cats. Roaming cats is a bylaw that is STRONGLY ignored. Too many pets equals less attention & love given out, because there's too many to care for.
- Other: As long as the owner is responsible, and not abusive. They should have any many dogs or cats as they want
- Other: As long as the animals are cared for there is not reason why you should not have any number of animals. I'm just not sure why you would have that many.
- Other: 12 animals total is excessive. Vast majority of people cannot adequately care for that many animals (financially and emotionally).
- Other: 2 is a good number.
- Other: 12 pet total limit is ridiculous!! No one needs more than 3 pets TOTAL!!!
- Other: I have seen people with one animal struggle to take care of them properly, and people with more than 6 do such a great job that you would never know there were more than 6 animals on the property. The issues are related to the people, not the animal(s). How hard would it be to get a

Fanciers' permit? And what if there is a household with less than 6 animals with these ongoing issues?

- Other: The point of responsible pet ownership is to be responsible those that are not should be able to be addressed by the officers in alternate manners in varying bylaws . Property a mess they can issue a fine for that instead of warning after warning - how many homes are actually potential issues in the city that have more than this proposal? I thibk a strategic count of verified complaints need to be looked at to ensure that this is not a rule for a few that affect the large majority of good pet owners
- Other: Within city limits 3 animals is by far enough. If breeding dogs a special license should be required of 3000 or more to prevent abuse
- Other: For the pets' sakes, the number should be reduced to 6 pets IN TOTAL.
- Other: There is nothing wrong with it. Stop singling out breeds, single out bad pet owners
- Other: You have NO right to limit the number of animals. We are "FREE" try to remember that before you keep trying to crush us under a militant police state designed to derive fines out of daily life. This is a pathetic attempt to let us have input on your racketeering, fine for the sheep but not for anyone with a brain which excludes you. (I want to charge you all with Racketeering)
- Other: No one needs 6 damn dogs or cats. Nothing but grief for neighbors to satisfy some pet fetish
- Other: We might need more by-laws to deal with mills and horders not some lonely widow with 7 little dogs. I would support a higher limit than 6.
- Other: 6 is too many!! Max should be 3 of each
- Other: I like the 6 cats and 6 dogs rule but there should be no application to allow more.
- Other: Because it's rediculous
- Other: I am not sure why -unless you were a licensed breaded- you would need 12 animals in your home. Our neighbours have 4 dogs and 3 cats currently. None are spayed/neutered. They can barely afford to feed them and have the bare minimum of care. I do not live in a lower income community in our city. I believe if we increased the amount of pets allowed there will be an increase in abuses and neglect.
- Other: I currently own 7 dogs myself and am a responsible pet owner. I pick up my feces, do not allow my dogs to bark to disturb my neighbours. I don't want to penalized for people who don't do these things as I will not be forced to choose which dog goes and which dog stay. Calgary is one of the only cities that doesn't have this caveat on it and it should remain this way. This could also affect foster based rescues if there are more hoops to jump through in an effort to find foster homes for the animals they rescue.
- Other: Restricting the limit of animals per household is not addressing the cases that really need to be looked at such as hoarders, back yard breeders,etc... These cases will continue to be an issue. These types of households will not care what the bylaws are. Responsible pet owners and reputable breeders are already doing the right thing and following laws such as registrations, CKC membership, registration of dogs bred with the Canadian Kennel Club, proper raising of puppies and adults, etc. Don't hurt the people who are already responsible and following correct practices by limiting the number of dogs. Implement and enforce stricter bylaws for the hoarders, puppy mills, animal abuse cases instead of the current "slap on the wrist" bylaws.

- Other: the issue shouldn't be how many pets, but rather how well they are cared for. there are plenty of one pet owners who mistreat their animals and plenty of multi pet owners who treat them very well.
- Other: No need to limit if the animals are being properly cared for. If all pets are licensed the city can send inspectors.
- Other: The more pets one has, the more responsibility of not just keeping the home clean, but ensuring proper health care for all the animals. Vets are not cheap.
- Other: Six cats and dogs in one household is ridiculous. Two pet of any species maximum. My experience is that those with large numbers of pets are those who can least afford to keep them.
- Other: multiple pets are not a problem for most people, especially if show animals
- Other: 6 cats and 6 dogs in the city is too much opportunity for a hoarding situation. The majority of large intakes to rescues are from hoarding. Why increase a bylaw allowing this to be more likely?
- Other: if a person is able to provide quality care animals then they should be allowed to have more, within reason
- Other: I'm not sure why it has to go from 2 to 6. I would support a bylaw change from 2 to 4.
- Other: If you have dog(s), clean up after them, keep them in a fenced in yard it should be fine.
- Other: While I can see that someone might want more than 2 dogs/cats I feel that 6 is too high. Dogs can feed of one another's energy and can be quite a disturbance is there are 6 noisy dogs.
- Other: As long as the animals are being taken well care of there should be no limit to the amount of animals a person may own in there own home
- Other: That's too many animals in one residence
- Other: I agree but add in if the owner lives on a property >5 acres and can demonstrate the ability to safely and properly take care of the animals.
- Other: I dont think there should be a limit on the amount of pets you own as long as you can properly care for them.
- Other: 12 animals in a home is too many.
- Other: This should only be for special circumstance like fosters for approves rescue agencies. And these home should be inspected on a regular basis to ensure animal are being cared for. It's a red flag to own that many animals.
- Other: 1 pet per house
- Other: more than 6 animals in the city where we are squished together is too much. One dog barks and they all barks. I lived by a lady with 5 dogs constantly in the yard and constantly barking. It was horrible and I had to move.
- Other: very few homes or yards can properly accommodate needs of 6 dogs. Owners have little control when dogs convert to pack mentality and pursue or act aggressively to people
- Other: 6 is too many
- Other: I agree that a rule limiting the number of dogs and cats on a property would be beneficial, as many people who own a multitude of pets do not take proper care of them and many animals end up living in hoarding conditions. I do not however feel that "breeders" should be exempt from this rule because the majority of breeders in Calgary could be considered irresponsible in the way that they breed animals. If Calgary could figure out a way to require licensing and inspections for people who call themselves breeders, than maybe they could be exempt from this rule. As of right now, not a single breeder in Calgary is doing it for the love of animals, it is all about the money.

- Other: I think the bylaw should be less than 6 animals! I would say 4 max.
- Other: Are you going to introduce bylaws for misbehaving kids?
- [removed]
- Other: 6 is too many for a city home. Acreage/farm maybe, even then not necessary. Limit to 2-3 per household.
- Other: This number is too many. 3 of each is more reasonable
- Other: I think it should be no more than 3 of each pet....
- Other: I would like it to be lower. No one needs or should have up to 6 dogs and 6 cats. If there were a limit I think it should be closer to 3 or 4 of each with the same exceptions. Anyone that does have valid reasoning or resources to care for that many animals would get approved through special Approved Excess Animal Permit, and it would also help cut down the "side shelters" that mean well, but don't understand what their getting into by trying to start and run a shelter and in turn do not achieve any positive mission statement or add to the problem.
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive. Reduce this to 2/2
- Other: We foster cats for a rescue and occasionally have over 6 in the house.
- Other: No need
- Other: 6 should be the exception not the rule.
- Other: No One needs to have a dozen animals in a city home. If they are breeders, then they need a different license.
- Other: 6 dogs or cats is excessive no more than 4 cats and 4 dogs on premise
- Other: As an experienced handler, the limit of 2 cats or dogs if the maximum amount that one house hold can feasibly handle.
- Other: 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many.
- Other: These exceptions could be the applied to the current bylaw
- Other: 12 pets is a lot of animals
- Other: I would support a bylaw that reduces the number to 4 dogs and 4 cats
- Other: The limit must not simply be per household, though that should occur as well. The limit should be per neighborhood. There are far far too many dogs in the beltliner. Are parks are effectively dog toilets now, with grass damaged. Seen from above you can see how the dog toilets have evolved. The smell in the spring is overwhelming. Memorial park is being used as a dog toilet. It is unsustainable. All parks in the beltliner are now treated as de facto off leash parks as many dog owners simple disregard the bylaws. There should be a long wait list to get a dog in the beltline.
- Other: 6 is ridiculous
- Other: Six is too many. That number should be halved at least. Better yet, two of each.

- Other: That is too many pets in one house. Limit 4 total. Breeders should be required to get a special license and neighbors need to be consulted
- Other: If all the animals in a household are taken care of, properly- who are we to limit how many animals a person has? This bylaw could end up overcrowding our rescues and SPCA's more than they're already overcrowded.
- Other: If someone can properly care for animals and has the finances to do it, who cares how many are there.
- Other: 6 of each is still way too many. The limit should be 6 total animals or up to 4 of each unless there's special circumstances which you would apply for approval for. Or perhaps a ratio of animals allowed per sqft of property? Or number allowed based on building type? Someone on a large property should be able to own more than someone in a small apartment
- Other: Should not have a limit
- Other: Again, don't need that many pets in a household
- Other: The limit should be 4 animals (dogs, cats combined) per household for the well-being of the animals.
- Other: 6 pets is enough
- Other: It's excessive and I worry about the wellbeing of 12 pets in one home.
- Other: No one needs that many animals as pets in their home. This is just the making of neighbours flooding the bylaw system due to excessive barking, roaming cats. The list is endless.
- Other: Move to a rural property if you want a herd
- Other: Rescuers
- Other: The amount of bylaws in this city is beyond ridiculous. I'd love for the city to start minding their business. Maybe take care of the damn roads and alleys? Maybe spend your money on properly taking care of the homeless and people in need. Stop wasting my time and especially my money for your stupid bylaw proposals
- Other: Who needs this many animals?
- Other: 12 animals within city limits on a residential property is too many based on notes above, feces accumulation, noise etc. I feel a lower limit on the number of animals is warranted. For example 4 dogs and 4 cats or even a total of 6 dogs or cats is sufficient for household pets.
- Other: 12 animals plus people in a home is crazy. Max total of 10 so a combination of cats and dog with no more than 6 of either.
- Other: There are already bylaws for feces accumulation, noise, etc. All pets should be licensed. The number of animals doesn't matter. If you are a good and responsible pet owner then the number of animals should not matter.
- Other: 6 dogs or 6 cats is too many for any household in a city. County housing is fine. Cats & dogs should not be a necessity for low income peoples. I've been there & low income money should be focused on getting out of a low income situation but a limited pet per household might be ok.
- Other: If they're meeting all bylaw requirements why limit how many they can have?
- Other: there is no reasonable reason for any household to have this many animals at one time in the limited space a city property has. It would be animal cruelty.

- Other: 6 dogs/cats per household is too many, the maximum should be less 2 maybe 4
- Other: A lot of owners lets their cats run at large. Their arguments are 'cats are outdoor animals'. More pets allowed, especially cats, means more cats at large.
- Other: Our homes are small and how can an animal have any space if there are more than 2.
- Other: Outside fostering there is no reason for someone to own 6 dogs. Limit it to 4
- Other: Let people have as many animals as they want. Itâ€™s not hurting you
- Other: I'm not sure how I feel about this. If the parent of the dogs n cats is responsible why should there be a limit. We gonna start limiting how many kids some people have ?
- Other: 6 is too many
- Other: I would support it so long as the exceptions listed above remain in place. Fosters play an essential role and sometimes need to have many animals to prevent shelter overcrowding. Additionally, if multiple people share a home (eg rental situation) and both are fostering/own animals, this would restrict their housing options in a city where pet friendly housing is challenging to find
- Other: So long as the owner looks after his/her pets it should not matter how many pets they have!
- Other: I believe it would believe it would be too hard to manage the exceptions
- Other: no one needs 6 dogs and 6 cats. You cannot properly care for that many animals.
- Other: I think 6 is a high number, nobody needs that many pets. the only exceptions should be for breeders when there's litters, and rescue foster homes
- Other: it says potential exceptions for fosters, rescues, it should say they are exempt
- Other: Some people can not handle more animals, some properties can't. Some people can have 10 dogs and be able to handle it and so does their property. You cannot create one rule for different circumstances. Start having serious consideration towards assessing PEOPLE (such as people who buy pets and expect children to look after them full time). After every question there should be an ability to comment! !
- Other: Too many issues at the current number already
- Other: There is no need for that many animals. That's a breeder.
- Other: If someone can help animals like this regardless their number why not? Is it better to leave them in shelters or on the streets?
- Other: I believe 6 total either dogs or cats or a mix. 6 total animals in a home is more than enough for city living.
- Other: Nobody needs 6 dogs and 6 cats for pets for all the reasons stated above. I would support 2 animals with the potential exceptions listed.
- Other: This is encouraging for hoarding
- Other: I dont think there should be a limit as long as the animals are being cared for appropriately, are licensed, are not nuisance animals and are not causing issues for others in the community. If I want to have 7 cats, I keep them in my home, I have them licensed and they are well taken care of, I do not see an issue with having that many.
- Other: For the reasons above. There are people that breed, foster, run daycares, etc.. If someone can responsibly have that many pets on their own property why limit that?

- Other: I think there are responsible pet owners that can have more than 6 pets
- Other: By law enforcement has a job to check on these properties with more than 6 animals. If laws are broken THEN restrict that household. Not the entire population based on a few bad owners. Many owners can look after 6 or more animals.
- Other: I do not believe anyone needs 6 pets, let alone 6 of each. Foolish!
- Other: Unless the number of adults in the household is taken into account, 12 animals is too many for any one person. The max should be 2 dogs and 2 cats unless a permit or exemption is given.
- Other: No one needs six dogs. If you allow it, someone is going to have six large dogs in their backyard howling all night and making a mess. This is a terrible idea.
- Other: Some litters have more than 6 animals. But 6 and 6 is quite high especially for how small homes are becoming in Calgary.
- Other: I am a pet owner, but do not want to live beside someone who has excess number of dogs/cats.
- Other: More than two is too much.
- Other: This will lead to potential hoarding situations and I personally do not feel that the animals would get the vet care that they require because of the cost. There is no need to own that many pets
- Other: 6 is too many. 2 or 3 max.
- Other: the number should be less than 6, 12 potential in one house is way too many
- Other: Not necessary
- Other: 6 of each still seems very high... 4 maybe would be more reasonable. Even still.. who needs 4 dogs and 4 cats?!
- Other: If there is a need for more than 1 cat and 1 dog a special license should be required.
- Other: I can not support something that takes away from my freedoms and also puts me up for potential fines and penalties. It's a dog council.... Open your damn minds and think about things properly before coming up with these ridiculous laws. 100 years ago this wouldn't even be up for debate. Your request to instill a bylaw would be shut down immediately
- Other: Responsible pet ownership should be the main ruler here. If someone can care for the animals and the animal living conditions are appropriate then the person should be able to take care of however many animals they want.
- Other: There is no need other than temporary homes to have that number of pets
- Other: This should be case by case and only imposed if there is an issue with animals not being cared for properly
- Other: City overreach
- Other: there is no reason for an individual to have 12 pets in a household. The max should be a combined limit of 6, not 6 of each.
- Other: There is no need to own this many pets in one home
- Other: Many people foster or rescue dogs or cats for various organizations. Do not limit the number of animals one household may have as the foster care programs will see a drop in public help
- Other: Nobody besides breeders needs that many pets. It's excessive.

- Other: edmonton has a rule of 3 pets. Which I think is a fair number. 6 opens up the possibility to unregistered breeders
- Other: Endangers the welfare of animals to have too many to properly care for, too much feces, too much noise, too much smell!
- Other: It would make the city very dirty
- Other: Let people make their own decisions
- Other: people don't need more then two animals, their big responblity.
- Other: Too many
- Other: I think having 12 pets is too many
- Other: Some people rescue and foster animals out of their homes and they should be able to continue to do so. In lieu of limiting the amount of animals people can have, welfare checks should be done on homes with, say, 8 or more animals.
- Other: If the animals are being properly looked after I don't think the city has the right to limit.
- Other: Way too many and the exceptions will allow noise levels to be high
- Other: I think that is too many animals
- Other: 2 is enough
- Other: Government should not be regulating what is inside my property. There is already nuisance laws on the books to deal with issues.
- Other: I think it should be no more than 6 total combining cats and dogs. 12 animals in one house is to many
- Other: 12 animals per household is alot of pets, especially in the city. Typical yard are not that big.
- Other: The government should have the right to determine the number of pets we have.
- Other: That is too many animals to be properly and safely taken care of in a household. I find it hard to believe that most households could provide enough room and maintain a clean safe environment for humans and pets for an extended period of time. I would like to see a cap of 4 animals except when there is a new litter involved.
- Other: Unnecessary
- Other: There should be no more than two pets per household as there is limited space in the city for so many animals. There are a surplus of animals at the Calgary Humane Society alone due to negligence. People need to have fewer animals and be more educated in obedience training and animal care.
- Other: I like the bylaw that we have right now
- Other: Some people can't look after one dog and some people with 12 have the best dogs ever. There are so many other sections to deal with issues if the number of dogs is higher than the homeowners can handle. Barking? There's a section for that. Too much poo? Section for that. House a mess? Section for that (different bylaw)
- Other: The limit is still too high. Should be lowered
- Other: I think it's fine the way it is.
- Other: 6 and 6. Are you out of your mind. That a kennel. Try living beside one.

- Other: Mo
- Other: the number of pets per household should be determined with consideration for the animal's welfare. it does not make sense to have a predetermined max number.
- Other: 6 is excessive. Can lead to unsanitary conditions, poor life for animals, hoarding along with many other issues. 2 cats and 2 dogs or a total of 4 pets is plenty.
- Other: would actually like to see the lower number of animals per each household in the city. No one needs 6 dogs or cats in the city.
- Other: 6 dogs or cats is outrageous! Way too many. 3 max.
- Other: Why limit animals if they are cared for properly
- Other: I would support 5 pets, but not 5 dogs, or 5 cats. more than 3 of either type can potentially become a nuisance to neighbours. I did not see the option for increased fines for destruction causes by cats. There continues to be discrimination against dog owners, and leniency for cat owners.
- 12 animals in one household is way too many!
- I would support a cap of 10-12 cats and/or dogs total
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many pet household. I support the exceptions.
- That should be our right/choice.
- A maximum of 4 dogs and 4 cats per household is enough. Exceptions to the rule by permit and additional fees for licensing.
- How big of yards do you think there are left in the city?? Six dogs is way too much. I would say 3 or 4 is acceptable. Anything more than that should be by special application.
- Management should be the focus. Many responsible pet owners foster and rescue animals and shouldn't be restricted to a limit. Instead, better manage the poor pet owners.
- That's too many animals !
- Too much interference with peoples property. Enforce noise bylaws instead.
- 6 cats and 7 dogs are way to many for one household. The number should be lower to prevent hoarding and bad pet ownership situations in which pets are at risk.
- There are already laws in place to deal with the problems. noise, feces, neglected animals, etc. Enforce the law. Another bloody tax of a small minority.
- 12 animals in one property is way too many.
- No
- Although 6 dogs and 6 cats may seem like a lot, on an acreage it is much more feasible to have more pets
- As long as they are registered and remain up to standards, it is not necessary to limit the amount of pets.
- Nobody needs 6 dogs or cats
- As long as there's not a crazy amount of pets in a house they should be allowed as long as it's safe and the owners can afford it
- It is your personal property, you should be allowed to own whatever you want.

- As long as other rules are being abused by (feces clean up, no excessive noise etc) there is no reason people should not be allowed to have as many pets as they please!
- Number of dogs does not protect against the issues. The issues themselves need to be addressed instead (eg excessive noise).
- Two is an acceptable number within city limits. If individuals want to own more than two then move out of the city
- You're making people get rid of their pets if they have more than 6
- 6 dogs? Unless you're a breeder there is no reason to own this many.
- bylaw be Grandfathered?
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is way too many. It should be 2-4 of each max.
- As long as animals are not inconveniencing anyone, it is no one's business how many pets you have
- Can own however many animals as you want within reason. As long as you keep a clean house and animals are cared for properly you should be able to have as many as you want.
- You didn't explain how the rule is now for comparison. Or what the cons to this change are.
- No one needs to own that many pets. Pets should be limited to 2 per household.
- Adding more levels of enforcement to an existing issue will not help solve the root problems. If the animals are being properly cared for then the number of animals shouldn't matter as the same conditions can arise regardless of species in question.
- There should be no limits.
- I think 6 of each is way too many for an urban property. Limit should be 6 total regardless of which species.
- I don't like the idea of a limit on animals. Some people can manage multiple animals, others shouldn't be allowed to own any.
- I think it's unnecessary for anyone to have 6 dogs.
- Most people are reasonable. A number law will not prevent someone living with multiple animals. Duh.
- I would say no more than 8 animals, of which no more than 6 may be dogs
- Breeders should be removed from the list
- If a person is a GOOD pet owner, then as long as all pets are well taken care of then there should not be a limit.
- I would say yes but also add exceptions to take into consideration if a potential buyer backs out of a sale
- If its a house they rent sure, put a limit on the amount of animals they have. If they own their home, I don't think you should be able to limit how many pets they have unless of course they aren't being properly taken care of.
- I just don't like arbitrary restrictions. if someone takes issue with something someone else is doing it should be dealt with on a case by case basis that way no one is deemed to be in the wrong simply because they did not follow a rule and it will be easier to see past any stigma having a rule would create. as well, people will be more open with their dialog when issues do arise if they do not feel they must hide as they have broken a rule and we can get to the root cause of any problems easier.

- Excessive
- Six dogs is too many to manage. Four seems reasonable.
- To some pet owners, these animals are like children. If the human is a responsible pet owner, there is no reason to restrict the number of pets they have. We don't restrict the number of children in a family but there is intervention if the children are not properly cared for. Same should apply to pets.
- Multiple pets does not mean irresponsible ownership.
- As long as the owner is taking care and being responsible for their pets, why do they need to be limited in the number. We have bylaw and fines for the issues listed above. That should be the recourse not limiting those who are responsible.
- Most households can't handle one.
- way too many animals. In some circumstance people would be neglectful of fewer animals
- discrimination
- As long as the pets are treated fairly and safely then more pets should be allowed.
- 6 cats AND 6 dogs?! That's way too many to begin with
- Larger families or multiple people living together could easily manage many more animals than a single person
- The amount of animals in a home should be based on the size and type of home as well. This would be too many animals in a townhouse in my opinion.
- 2 dogs or 2cats is plenty. No one should have more!
- People can make their own decisions
- There should be no limit as long as they treat animals well
- city of Calgary needs to keep their nose out of this. As long as the animals are cared for why would the city need to be involved.
- If they're taking care of them all properly let them
- As long as people provide the proper care for their animals there should be no limit on the amount of animals they can own. I'm not sure who could possibly support taking animals from loving homes and putting them in a shelter to suffer or even be murdered because of a bylaw.
- I don't want to. Thanks.
- So but no way does someone need more than 6 dogs and cats. Are you f-big serious
- So long as people are paying their fines and are keeping their animals healthy than it should be of no concern.
- 4
- why add more rules that you can't enforce
- There needs to be a limit on how many cats/dogs people own. Two is reasonable six can be seen as hoarding depending on the size of the living space
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is way too many.
- Only with respect to protecting the animal's welfare would i support this change
- The owner should be held responsible for their actions

- 12 animals to a household is too many unless certain conditions such as space for animals to roam and conditions are checked on a regular basis.
- Maximum 3
- People should be able to have as many animals as they wish as long as conditions are good and pets are happy.
- 6 is too many
- 6 of each is still too many
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is quite excessive. I believe 2 dogs, and 2 cats is reasonable.
- Use common sense. Things are fair now
- If the owner is demonstrated to be unable to care for their animals, then it makes sense to restrict the number. If they are well cared for and not disturbing the neighbours, there is absolutely no reason to place restrictions on responsible pet owners.
- If the animals are taken care of, the number doesn't matter.
- I think the number of animals should be determined by the size of the property, type of animal, etc.
- As long as the animals and property are being taken care of and all needs/ requirements are being met then there should not be a limit however I do not think people should be hoarding animals. If a person is unable to properly take care of or maintain appropriate accommodations for an animal then they should not have one.
- I think it is significantly more difficult to be a responsible pet owner as the number of pets increases. Any combination of two licensed animals should be enough. The only exception should be licensed breeders.
- Six is a lot, a maximum of four each with the above noted exemptions seems more reasonable in the city.
- It's not the governments place to determine the limit of pets a person owns.
- As long as the owners can provide evidence that the needs of the animals are being met and there's no other problems, there shouldn't be a limit on pets
- Not enough households in Calgary that are big enough to support this amount of animals
- As long as the animals are well taken care of, I see no problem with having more than 6 pets
- Such be much lower than six
- There should be no limit
- Pet limit laws are hard to enforce and a waste of tax dollars
- We live in a supposedly "free country" where we should have the freedom to own as many animals as possible, as long as they are cared for and not causing harm to anyone else.
- As long as the dogs/ cats are properly cared for and appropriate husbandry is kept I should not have the power to say how someone chooses to live their life. Exception being if their lifestyle has a direct provable adverse affect on affected said person.
- I agree with an increased limit, but the implementation of a special authorization should begin at a lower threshold. Many people are incapable of properly caring for animals, and this would be exacerbated by incapable owners taking on many animals at once. Prospective owners wishing to keep animals in larger numbers should be able to prove they have the resources to do so.

- Its now how many its how responsible the person is
- There should be restrictions based on space not a blanket number.
- Deal with problems as they arise, not by blanket legislation
- They should have as many animals as they want if they are taking care of them
- I think the limit should be much lower than that. As someone who owns 2 dogs and 2 cats, I understand the huge time commitment just 4 animals makes. I think anymore than 4-6 TOTAL animals should require a specific permit.
- I would not support any limitations on number of pets in a household. Existing laws already address any concerns that limiting the ownership proposes to.
- I do think that it is a very sensitive subject that should be considered on a case by case basis.
- If animals are well cared for & not a nuisance no need to limit #
- As long as pets are well cared for, there should not be a limit.
- People live in houses, not barns
- Keep the limit low for listed issues
- Responsible pet owners should not be restricted
- 6 permanent dogs or cats is way too many . they need to be taken care of . That includes lots of exercise and playtime
- You have no right to tell citizens how many pets they have. If any there should be guidelines on the resources to care for an animal to ensure the animal is in a safe environment
- We have a neighbour with 7-8 dogs and they bark all the time. There should be less dogs per household in city limits. 4 and higher amount of dogs creates a pack and you will have more attacks in the city . Too many to be taken care of properly.
- Perhaps the size of home should be considered. An animal could be at risk in a small home with too many other animals, but a large home (farm etc) could safely house 6+ animals.
- So if a household can have 6 dogs & 6 cats all at the same I would say no to that. What kind of loving conditions world 12 animals have in a city dwelling, an acreage or farm is different. If the bylaw is for a total of 6 dogs & or cats than I would say yes to that. At least the animals have room to grow and be healthy and happy.
- Owning 6 of any animal is hard to do.It could be overwhelming at times for the owner. That's when the pets start to get neglected and that should never happen.
- Could be or will be? Support only if language is definitive
- 12 animals in a house? I have a hard time believing they're getting everything they need. If they want that many pets, they should have to deal with monthly checkins
- No limit is required
- As long as the law is being followed, I don't believe these restrictions should be made.
- Control people. Not animals
- 12 animals in a household is too many.
- That's a lot of animals for someone to control.
- No one needs 6 cats or dogs in one house

- I think there should be a limit of 2 dogs and 2 cats with the exceptions of the above, I think 6 is ridiculously high for the average person.
- This is not clear enough to support
- I think the 'if a household wants more than # of dogs or # of cats, a special application will be required' statement should apply but the number of pets within a household should not rise to 6 per cats and dogs. 12 animals per household is excessive, unsafe, expensive and should only be accepted after assessment of the household owners.
- People can have as many cats and dogs as they want
- So long as the animals are loved and well taken of I believe it is okay.
- If there is more space, you should be allowed to have more animals. To compare cats to dogs like this is just fricken insane. They are completely different in what they require for space. They only poop in your own home, and make no noise AT ALL that your neighbors could here. This is outrageous and these animals should be looked at separately. One human could EASILY own 3 cats and 1 dog. This is impossible to compare/ limit in this way. One could have 2 dogs, 2 cats VERY EASILY. THIS IS A RIDICULOUS BYLAW
- That many pets can lead to hoarding situation
- Seems like more work for bylaw enforcement and completely unnecessary. Just deal with the few households who do want over 12 pets AND are doing a bad job caring for them. Why have more red tape? Dont intentionally prevent good people from caring for as many animals as they can. Also all pets need to be licensed already so why specify all of the pets need to be licensed if you have 6 cats and 6 dogs.
- I think its fine the way it is
- Breeders, pet sitters, day cares all should have business licenses, that's entirely different.
- to many animals period ots not necessary unless its a rescue
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is much too high, this is often not good for animal welfare. Make it 3-3, with special permissions. As a vet it is unlikely an owner could care for the individual needs of 6 of one species of animal in one confined environment
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats per household? With exceptions allowed? Are you crazy?
- The number of pets in a household should be restricted if there are complaints about excessive noise, accumulation of feces, or any other reason that would lead people to believe the animals aren't receiving sufficient and proper care.
- A combined total of 12 seems very high. I would say a combined total of 6 is mire than reasonable
- Unless you pay the rent or mortgage, you have zero say in how many pets are allowed in a home. Get a grip. Stop being a dictator with your hand in everyone's pocket
- There are many responsible owners with more than 6 animals at any given time. Do not punish those owners!!!
- What happens if your pet has a litter, most dogs have a large litter that would put you over the 6.
- That's a lot of animals for one house if you want that many you should have to have a good reason and apply. To protect animal welfare.

- If a responsible pet owner has the space and means to properly take care of multiple animals that should not be governed.
- If the pets are well cared for who are you to judge???
- No. Animals are some people's ENTIRE lives. Some people have whole packs, they take care of these animals, love these animals, these animals are their everything. When animals are not being taken care of is the concern.
- You can't properly care for these animals when there are large numbers in the home
- I support limiting the number of animals a person can own. 6 is way too high!! Even 4 seems excessive.
- That's too many animals for one household
- How big is the home in question. How many people are caring for the animals, I think a rule in regards to square footage would be more fair than setting a specific number as it does not take into account those with very large homes and many family members living inside the home.
- Free country
- Just no
- 6 animals total would be more sensible
- N/a
- As long as pet owners are responsible and can properly care for their animals, there shouldn't be an arbitrary limit. Problem people will always be a problem, no matter the legislation.
- People that are not responsible will go "underground"
- I don't feel that anyone in the City needs that many animals if responsible. 4 of EITHER seems reasonable, or else exceptions should apply.
- 4 animals per house is more than enough.
- The proposed pet limit is large.
- Nothing needs to change
- If someone wants more than 6 dogs and 6 cats that is their choice. As long as they are responsible pet owners, it really shouldn't matter.
- I think it would have to depend on how well taken care of the animals are. Would this include "urban" hens?
- A home with 6 cats and 6 dogs is too many animals. Fear of neglect and ability to control all animals at once.
- This enables poor pet ownership in most circumstances and makes hoarding situations less identifiable and less likely to be remedied.
- If all laws are met there is no reason for a restriction
- 12 animals would be far too many. How will all of them get the adequate care that they need.
- I don't like the government restricting people who have done nothing wrong
- That is an excessive number of animals for a single family dwelling. Also most people can not afford to care for this many animals.
- It should be a max of 3 pets

- that's just too many animals in a residential area.
- No BSL
- shouldn't necessarily be a number. All cases are different
- [removed]
- Too many
- Decrease the amount to 2 dogs and 2 cats
- Unless the outside property area supports multiple pets, this could be considered unhealthy for animals to be cooped indoors, unhealthy for the humans sharing the space, and potential for abuse of these animals.
- The amount should be lowered to 4 dogs and 4 cats, because animals are not only expensive but also dirty.
- Unless they are a licensed rescue or fosters, there is no reason why a person would have 6&6. This would eliminate animal neglect & poor living conditions for the cats/dogs.
- Most Calgary homes do not have the room to have this many animals and this can be hard on the animals' welfare. Animal limits should be subjective to property size.
- Still not pets fault. They are family members
- I think the amount of dogs and cats should be LESS than 6 of each. That is way too many animals per household. Coming from the vet industry not many people could afford that many animals and i think that is half of the problem we see at the vet. Not being able to afford the animals you have! If there are restrictions to LESS than the proposed amount I think that would greatly benefit a lot of people.
- No one needs that many animals. It is unfair to the animal. Hoarding animals is wrong. Unhygienic
- The only exception should be registered breeders. People who hoard animals are often not able to provide for their welfare. Who needs that many animals in a house??
- if the pets are well taken care of there should be no limit
- number of pets should be based on ability of owners to adequately care for them, not an arbitrary number
- Majority of pets want attention from there owners and a 2 dogs/cats per person is manageable. If you have more then that and the animals get in a fight with each other or other animals how is more then two managed. The city is crowded already and lots of pets... the possibility of 6 per household is simply unreasonable.
- There should be no limit to the number of animals
- What if people have pets that give birth and they have a large littler but are responsible pet owners and don't want to sell or give their pets up for adoption out of fear they might be harmed or not taken care of properly.
- As long as the animals are cared for (sufficit funds for regular and unplanned vet visits), and there are no aggression/noise/smell issues them there should be no limit. It should not be the cities job to police this, unless issues/complaints arise.
- Licensing is a cash grab. It is recessive tax against the poor and an insignificant cost/annoyance to more affluent members of the community. There is an abundance of literature on this subject and I, among others, will be opposing these “revenue tools” in the Calgary herald and other local publications.

- No limit
- The people that ‘need’ this many animals should not live in the city
- I feel this is excessive for urban areas
- There are responsible pet owners capable of multiple pets
- That is way too many pets. Should be per person as well as household. 1 person can’t properly care for 6-12 pets. But maybe 4 could.
- Cap should be higher so that it is only reached when the safety of animals is at risk
- Having 6 dogs in a home is not a good idea. Just having 3 is a huge responsibility, especially if they are all large breeds. That would be 12 animals in a home at one time, then if you make an exception for fosters, that foster animal will not get the attention it needs for rehab and cause even more issues.
- As long as the animals are well taken care of and it is not causing a disturbance to others there should be no limit. If the animals are found to be in a situation that does not permit them a high quality of life the pet owner should have the licenses revoked and permanently ineligible for future pet license.
- The problem isn’t owning too many animals. The problem is when people don’t take care of them. Further/harsher action should be taken against animal neglect and abuse instead of number of pets
- If people provide, care for and license pets and the pets are healthy, the city has no right to tell people how many dogs and cats are allowed. THIS INCLUDES LEAVING PITBULLS ALONE
- 6 dogs is way too many for one household.
- 12 animals in one home is excessive
- I don’t think anyone should own 6 pets.
- I am unsure of the current limit. I think if we are to truly consider the environment, pets should not be allowed at all, certainly not 6
- Six pets in a residence is too many. Doggie day cares should be in commercially zoned areas not residential areas. Dog breeders need to be limited as well.
- Dogs bark because it’s their nature, to be upset about this is just purely wrong. The only limit on animals should be for a given space. the amount of animals should not matter, the only thing that matters is the health of the animal.
- N/a
- Should also take into consideration, the size of property to house the animals + the number of caretakers there are.
- I don’t see the purpose of limiting the numbers of pet. The circumstances is greatly differentiated with the knowledge, skill, time, and experience of the owners. One pet might be too many for some but ten pets may not be a problem to some people.
- That’s far too many animals in a home. You are asking for animal hoarding to increase, avpbuse and neglect of the animals, likelihood of animals not being spayed, neutered or obtaining necessary vaccines. That number of animals would be excessively expensive and few people could afford proper veterinary care, or feeding, or cat litter for that number of animals. Very bad idea.

- That's too many
- No limits
- No limits [DUPLICATE]
- That number is too high in the city
- The care of all pets falls on the owner. You should be focusing on good pet ownership. Its up to the owner to clean up feces and prepare for their pets no matter how many they have. If they can't take care of their pets properly then it falls under animal neglect and is chargeable under the provincial law.
- Responsible animal owners should be able to have as many as they want. Perhaps yearly check ups if there over 6 animals to ensure animals are safe and healthy
- As long as they are responsible and there are no issues of it impacting their neighbors.
- I don't believe this is a good idea. Backyard, mixed breed and small dog breeders will produce more.
- 6 is too many without exceptions. 3-4 would be more appropriate, increase the exception list
- Just have appropriate bylaws and then actually enforce standards for feces clean up, excessive barking, and welfare. I've have known people that take amazing care of 10 animals and I've seen other people neglect 1 dog, never clean up feces and let it bark all day. This limit does nothing to stop irresponsible owners and it may punish responsible owners.
- This is a lot of animals per household in an urban area. I would support a lower number per household with a list of exceptions including temporary homes, breeders, service animals, under 6 months, approved exception permit, grandfathered / inherited animals etc
- Should be max 5 animals either cat OR dog
- 12 animals in 1 household is far too many.
- Just like the government shouldnt interfere with the number of children I have they should not interfere with the number of pets i have. If i cant care for them then bring up issues but if i can reasonably take care of several animals I should be allowed to.
- That's too many animals to reasonably take care of. It should be max of 2 each
- City should not be deciding arbitrarily how many pets a given household should have.
- If there are exceptions and permit available the need to raise to 6 seems excessive. 3 is a more practice number. With 6 you can introduce small breeding operations, excessive feces build up, noise etc. The rural areas don't have a limit that high.
- Shouldn't arbitrarily limit the actions of lawful citizens.
- Six dogs and six cats is a bit excessive. Perhaps limit to 4.
- There should be a lower limit to number of dogs and cats
- I think that regulating the conditions animals are living in is more important than a hard and fast rule of how many cats/dogs can live in each household. The size of homes varies greatly, some homes may be of suitable size for x number of pets while another home is only suitable for y number of pets.

- Number of pets shouldn't matter as long as there are no issues such as excess feces, loud barking etc. 6 or more well behaved dogs is much better than 1 ill behaved dog
- Limits are really not indicative of how well people care for their animals. Some people can't even care for one dog, whereas someone with six or seven can be excellent caregivers. One dog can cause more disturbance than 10. The current bylaws need to be enforced in regards to nuisance or abuse. Ensure bad owners are fined/charged and good homeowners rewarded.
- there should be no limit providing animals are taken care off
- It should be lower than that. If your living in the city you do not need 12 animals in your home!
- More explanation of special circumstances that would qualify, but in general support these changes
- No one in a single family home needs that many animals.
- People should be free to have as many as they want.. yet again you don't own there property
- The pets needs won't be well maintained
- up and should be fined if those standards aren't met
- As long as the animals are cared for properly and well kept there should be no limit. If a pet goes outside why is there a need for a license. Why should I be limited to how many animals I can have on a property I purchased. There should be no limit if the animals are animals well well looked after (happy, healthy, etc)
- The limit should be higher. Some people only have their pets. Or people should be able to go above the limit with an application of sorts and should ONLY be denied if there is good reason to believe they cant care for more.
- what gives someone the right to limit how many pets someone can have
- No one needs 6 dogs as "service animals". This should be removed. If it is a service dog training program, than it would apply under "temporary home".
- mind your business.
- Unfair treatment of citizens
- I think this bylaw ammendment should be more strict than presented. I think 6 pets total (of any combination) is the highest acceptable. This is primarily to ensure that ALL the animals are cared for.
- The current limits are reasonable, for the safety of the animals and reduction of noise and feces.
- Too many animals and jeopardised their health.
- Get real
- So long as the owner is responsible, they have the monetary means to care for them and the property is large enough to accommodate the number, I do not believe the problem is with the number of pets. The problem is with the owner them self, making this quite circumstantial.
- dont limit animals for people
- That's far too many pets for one household. Six total (dogs, cats, other) would be better.
- It seems kind of dumb that you could have 6 diss and six cats but not 12 cats. I think there should be an overall limit of 8
- 12 adult animals in a home is not necessary.

- 12 pets is enough in 1 house. In the case of fostering an animal 6 may be adjustable but still keeping the number under 12
- Limits are only good if people are being honest about the number of animals. Many are not so honest.
- Worried about the level of care the animals would receive if so many in one home
- I don't think it's fair or supports a free society to put a limit on this for people and families. There are some people that have a lot of pets and take care of them well and it's not an issue. Obviously we are referring to cases where people have numerous pets and are not taking care of them or the area, then I think by law has an obligation to step in for safety and health. But I don't think there should be a black-and-white rule on this. concern should be reported and investigated with integrity and handled on a case-by-case basis.
- Should be 6 animals total not 12.
- I don't think it is right to tell one person the amount of animals they can own. I do believe that their needs to be a standard that needs to be met and a quarterly or bi annual inspection of the property the animals reside, only to make sure animals are being cared for the way they should. I can't tell someone who is going out of their way to adopt an animal in need to give them a better life that they deserve. If the animals are not being taken care of properly then there needs to be a consequence.
- Exemptions would have to be more clear, not a potential for me to support this
- Way to many pets fr one household in my opinion.
- If a person can afford and properly cares for their pets, there doesn't need to be a limit.
- I believe these numbers should be lower. 6 cats and 6 dogs is too many
- No limits. If there are considered to be "too many" it would be an animal abuse issue, would it not? Then that would be a case-by-case basis.
- All of the above issues come around to the owner. One person may have 4 dogs, but keeps their yard immaculate and tends to their needs fine. While the other person down the road with one small dog has a yard full of poop because they are simply too lazy to be a responsible dog owner. The number of animals should not be limited. Only if an intervention is required due to the environment for those animals or the people with in the home / property is considered a hazard for what ever reason.
- There is no real reason why the government should be mandating how many pets a responsible pet owner can have.
- I support a pet limit, but feel that six dogs and cats is still too much within Calgary.
- 6 seems way too high!
- Unless you live out on an acreage , sure have more dogs. But I think it's a bad idea if you let people who love in smaller houses keep more animals where the animal doesn't have space.
- too many animals in one home; 12 altogether, ridiculous
- 12 animals combined is too many in a standard sized home. Instead of placing a limit on each specific animal (6 dogs AND 6 cats) perhaps consider placing a limit of a combined max of 6-8 animals. Any house with limited yard space such as a condo or an apartment should have a lower limit as well. Whereas someone who perhaps has an acreage or larger yard would be better able to keep proper care of multiple dogs and/or cats.

- I disagree with a limit, i think this should be a case by case basis depending on the household.
- 6 is way to many I think two is plenty
- You don't need that many animals in the city. Rockyview county has a 3 dog max.
- More BS bureaucracy, more taxes. Dog breeders will pay the price and it will do nothing to stop pet hoarders
- If the household is taking care of all animals appropriately I do not see an issue with owning more pets. I'd rather see a home with a lot of animals well taken care off then strays on street or in shelters.
- So long the owner is responsible, the animals are fed and in good care in a clean and healthy environment the limit could be a bit higher.
- Town/city limits should be 3 cats 3 dogs. More than that is excessive and not fair to the animals when living in a city.
- I don't believe there should be a limit on how many pets a person has
- I support the concept but it is unclear how/if this applies to households in rural subsets of Calgary who may have space or need/reason for more pets.
- That is too many animals for residential. People requiring that many animals should live in a space where the animals have sufficient room (acreage type property)
- Nobody needs a maximum of 12 animals in their house. It's not possible to provide optimal care to 12 animals.
- It's each persons right to choose
- 6 animals in one household is too many unless you have a very large house and price of land.
- Not the city's place unless a problem actually exists
- There is no need for anyone to own more than 2 dogs/ 2 cats at any given time aside from fostering dogs, or if you're breeding dogs and that should be done only with a permit.
- Other by-laws cover responsible pet ownership. Who makes the decisions on "Potential Exceptions"
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is too excessive and won't help the problem. Maximum of 3 dogs and 4 cats is more reasonable to deter excess noise and feces on property.
- I would like to see the number of pet limit lower than 6. I feel that this is matter of well being for the animals. In addition I feel this borders on hoarding.
- I believe the limit should be 3 of each
- The need for that many animals in a household is ridiculous
- I think a limit of 3 dogs/cats would be ideal. 6 dogs or cats is a lot of animals. Too many to have in a single family home in a city.
- it is not necessary and should not be acceptable to have that many pets and the limit should be far lower
- As long as you have a home where they are taken care of properly and no one is bothered then there shouldnt be an issue

- No because not everyone can afford that fee
- A pet limit of six (6) dogs OR cats. Not six of each, that is out of control and likely there is not enough land and space for that many animals. It is unrealistic.
- Multiple families living on a large property
- Over-regulation by city is difficult to follow already. Reduce all fines and invest in public education
- That is way too many animals in the city. 6 dogs? Serious noise, feces. No owner can walk them all on leash. At the dog park, too many to keep under control
- I think that is too many pets per house house and 3 cats and or 3 dogs is more than enough
- Animals can be very helpful for mental health and I think it's a person's choice on weather or not that have 10 dogs or 2. There should be more servailence of homes to see if dogs and care are being cared for
- I think the limit should be less, no more than three dogs and three cats, same conditions for any household that would want more than that. Backyard breeding is a real problem and this could help control that.
- Less blanket regulations deal with individuals cases and those neuances
- I think that the number of pets one can own should be determined by the size of their home and property and the distance between surrounded houses
- the pet limit is too high! Reduce limit to 3 and 3 with special application thereafter. Also include a bylaw for exception based on square footage of home and yard so that you cannot have too many animals in a small apartment or home
- A numbered limit is not a good indicator of animal welfare. A bad owner could have 1 dog and be more of a nuisance than a good owner with 10. Also, this question states that there is a large difference of opinion but then only lists the "Pros" to one of the options. It is worded unfairly and is leading.
- 6 of each is too high, that's 12 animals!! 4 (cats/dogs) TOTAL. City lots are small and getting smaller.
- Don't think there should be a limit as a responsible pet owner
- Implementing a limit on cats and dogs will not resolve any of the issues that were listed.
- A pet is a family. You wouldn't charge someone for having a kid.
- Given the exceptions... 6 dogs and 6 cats seems way too high!
- I think cats and dogs should not be treated as the same as dogs have much more requirements than cats do. I would support no more than 2 dogs and no more than 2 cats. Ie one household may have 2 cats and 2 dogs. But i think no more than that. Cats and rabbits could be interchangeable.
- If you can care for it it shouldn't matter.
- If the owner has means to tend to as many pets and provide them with quality life, I don't see why there needs to be a limit.
- Citizens are smart enough to assess their pet needs and the government should not get involved in dictating yet another facet of Calgarians lives.
- don't restrict peoples rights

- There should also be an exception for farms and ranches. Property size, size of animals, and space requirements of dog breeds should also be taken into account
- If the person can safely and properly care for the animals that's fine. Don't punish them cause some people can't, go after those people
- Already have fines for feces and noise, and bad behavior, and there are laws for animal welfare. Those who dislike pets should not dictate who can own what etc.
- It all depends on written contractual agreement that I would like to see put in place to affirm, insure, and also validate by-yearly how this person can support financially, and attend to the physical, emotional, psychological, relational needs of each dog as walking them, for example, does not mean sticking them in their backyard for a day or less. Their lives must matter in all weather conditions. And a plan of action for medical needs, too!
- The city should not have the ability to limit the amount of pets someone may have. It's an infringement of personal freedom, unacceptable.
- 12 pets is a ridiculous amount of animals in a house. Number should be reduced. Maybe 6 maximum total for cats and dogs. I'd support 4 maximum even. Yes I have both cats and dogs.
- There's no reason to own more than 2 dogs and/or 2 cats
- So long as they are not breaking other laws (such a puppy mill prevention laws) responsible pet owners should be free to own however many pets they can handle and give great care to
- 6 is too many dogs/cats in City limits. 3 or 4 would be more reasonable
- 4 cats; 4 dogs in city limits. Increase numbers for rural and farm properties with working dogs, and/or barn cats
- 6 is too many. 3 is a reasonable amount of pets
- A limit of 6 is ineffective and obscene. There is no need to have more than 2 dogs on most properties. There is simply not enough room in most yards in Calgary to take care of that many animals
- Less animals. Max 4 animals
- 6 dogs is too many without a kennel licence. Would for sure lead to neglect
- I think 6 dogs or cats is too many. Perhaps 4 with with the exceptions being OK.
- I think that it should be dependent on the size of house they have. Larger house = more animals. Smaller house = less animals
- I see no reason why anyone needs so many pets. How do they receive adequate care? Vet fees are expensive.
- 6 dogs or cats seems like a lot. With the exception of temporary homes, service animals (but 6+?) I don't see the need.
- Why would you possibly need 6 dogs or cats? Get some friends.
- Current limit is good - how do you care for 12 animals appropriately given the current economic situation
- Wouldn't support a change until the exceptions were more than hypothetical possibilities. Would need to see approved by-law wording before supporting.
- If their needs are met, what is the problem?

- If you take care of them and they are safe it's ok
- Unless they are a breeder, I feel 12 animals in one house is unfair to the animals
- 6 dogs and 6 cats it's too much. I think this number should depend on house and property size. If you can house that many fine, but you can't be cramming 12 animals into a single family home that just doesn't feel right.
- As long as the person has enough room on their property to properly take care of all their animals then it should be ok. They just need to train their animals and clean up after them. If the owner is capable of doing this then there shouldn't be a problem.
- It's none of anyone's business how many pets someone wants to own. As long as they are taken care of properly.
- I just think we will see increased hoarding situations. I'd like to see the stats for other cities on how many they allow (cities we want to emulate - which may mean looking outside of Alberta). It also costs a lot of money to properly care for animals. I work with many people who do it out of love and compassion but then can't feed them or fix them or get medical attention for them and the animals suffer. I also think puppy mill. Bad.
- Farms and acreages should be exempt as felines in a properly controlled environment desiccate rodent populations and ensure farm animals remain healthier.
- I would say 3 or 4 pets. Unless there's more than enough room
- No more than 2
- Excessive paperwork, no need for any of that.
- If I can look after my animals then you shouldn't tell me how many I can have
- How would you guarantee that people won't just call themselves "breeders" to waive this exemption? And letting "breeders" have more dogs and cats could lead to less people responsibly spaying and neutering their pets, backyard breeding (which often results in animals with severe deformities and health conditions). And limiting numbers does not guarantee good welfare. I am a veterinarian and I have had clients with 20+ pets in amazing health and received amazing care, and sadly many people with only 1 or 2 pets kept in horrible conditions and badly treated.
- It should be up to animal owners to make their own decisions on the number of animals that they have.
- Let people do what they want as long as they're looking after their [removed] pets. How about worry about something important - like animals being abused.
- We are a democracy not a police state. Most people are responsible pet owners. For those that aren't, limiting the number isn't going to change them.
- Not mutually exclusive to believe one does not "need" more than 6 pets but also not want government to arbitrarily intervene on peoples lives.
- 2 animals is enough
- I think there is too much potential for accumulation of waste and odour as well as less ability to provide adequate care (who can afford proper veterinary care for potentially 12 animals?). I think there should be the ability to apply for an exception but I think the current number of animals allowed is adequate

- The number of pets in a household has little bearing on those 3 points. A responsible pet owner always cleans up after their pet so feces should not be an issue. The dog should be trained to not bark and separation anxiety issues should be addressed. A dog's wellbeing isn't determined by whether or not it lives with other dogs as long as the owner insures compatibility.
- There should be lower limits. 4 dogs and 4 cats. This would deter backyard breeders.
- The muzzles on dogs is a [removed] move
- I oppose any part of this bylaw that allows people to breed animals.
- 6? More like four is more than plenty. Agree with the exceptions
- 6 dogs and/or cats is a lot! 6 animals total in a single family home is more reasonable.
- I feel like if the animals are well behaved we shouldn't be able to tell a person that they aren't allowed the animals that they want
- Not everyone is a dirty animal hoarder!
- 6 dogs & 6 cats full time in a house is too many unless it is a temporary situation like fostering for a short period
- As long as people are being responsible, there should be no limit on how many pets a person can have, especially if they're a breeder.
- While I don't find it necessary to own an unlimited amount of pets, there may be responsible owners who may not be able to provide healthy and happy lives for pets because the rules don't allow them to.
- There should not be more than 3 of each animal per household. And it needs to be based on size of home and yard to play in
- Should be less than 6
- I personally have two cats and one dog in our family. I don't feel The City should be involved in personal family matters which includes the # of pets. If you were to increase the fees I feel people would reconsider the number of domestic animals they would bring into their family.
- why should there be a limit? if we are going this path then limit the number of kids and family member in a household, kids are a much higher nuisance than dogs any day, so since there are no limits on humans why do we need a limit on dogs/cats, if the owner can feed and care for all of them then by all means
- 6 dogs or cats or both in one household is not responsible pet ownership. other than professionals in the animal industry (foster carers, vets, vet techs, rescue centre owners), the current maximum is appropriate.
- it is important to consider the property you are located on. For larger lots of land it would be more acceptable to have more animals.
- No one can effectively look after that many animals. If they can, they are probably outside the city. A dog sled company, for example.
- 6 of any animal is a lot.
- I would not want to live next door, or even within barking distance, of a house with 6 dogs. Chances of a pack of dogs not barking are extremely high.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is way too many for anyone but a registered breeding kennel

- Depending on the breed of dog. 6 big dogs should not live in one house
- People with a large enough property and tools should be allowed.
- lot of dogs and they are extremely well behaved.
- Perhaps 3-4 animals, 6 is excessive
- Two dogs max and 3 cats
- As described in the previous 3 points above
- Some people's animals are their life
- A total of 12 pets in a household at a time is ridiculous. There is no way any owner would be able to responsibly care for that many animals. Six total(both cat and dogs) while still very high is better.
- its dumb like this survey
- I don't think pet numbers should be limited.
- I don't believe it's responsible to keep 12 animals in one house. It's disgusting for both the animals and the human
- Although I agree with rescuing animals and helping them get into homes, 6 dogs and 6 cats in the same home can lead to unclean environments for the animals. I think 8 animals in total is fair, not 12. To own more I think drop in checks should be made to uphold a healthy environment for the animals.
- 6 cats AND 6 dogs?! That's too many
- Too many dogs
- 12 animals in 1 household is ridiculous. We will inevitably see an increase in mistreatment and malnourishment of animals. It's a city. Not a rural property
- No harm no foul. Punish if they break the rules or if there are complaints. Who cares how many pets someone has, as long as they keep it clean and safe, they should be free to do as they please
- The number shouldn't be that high. 6 animals are way too much on a property in a city
- Nobody needs 6 dogs or 6 cats
- 12 animals in a single home is way too excessive. I believe that 3 is a reasonable number..2 dogs, 1 cat, or 1 dog and 2 cats.
- Stop being nazis.
- there should not be a limit to the amount of pets you can have as long as its not a reasonable disturbance to those around you
- asfd
- The 3 reasons listed are all something a responsible pet owner can address. By laws should be put in place to help enforce the rules not limit the number of animals.
- NA
- If owners are responsible, it should be up to them how many animals they keep.
- no limit on number if no other issues
- As long as the pets are safe and they have apple space, their should not be a limit. Shelters and breeders should be educated on proper living space for animals and should be the ones making the call on if a household has the space for another pet.

- No One needs that many animals in the city. Way too many. Limits should be 3.
- Regardless of the stupidity of owning more than a couple pets, it is programs like these that lead to a bloated city budget and perpetual public debt.
- it shouldn't matter as long as all the animals are being properly cared for
- Too high a limit. Needs to be lower like 3 or 4 total (combined cats and dogs)
- 6 is still too excessive.
- Too many pets allowed per household.
- Foster homes should follow the limit.
- Animal limits can be effective for some people, it does not prevent hoarding, as that is a mental illness. All of my cats (6) and dogs (2) do not roam. I have an enclosed cat run in my back yard. Limiting the # of cats a person has is nonsense if they are not free roaming. They are not impacting anyone else. For dogs, there can be other issues like barking and build up of poop in yards. But that can happen with one dog and may not happen with 10 dogs. There are already bylaws and measures in place to deal with these behaviours. Increase enforcement - don't make new rules.
- I do not understand what the current bylaw is, but 2 dogs and 2 cats is enough. 6 is not manageable, not healthy for anyone.
- Why is it necessary if they follow all other bylaws? If your dog or cat has a litter you will not be in compliance? This makes no sense. The concerns should be about proper ownership not blanket statement of numbers.
- I would like to see the number decrease, 12 pets is a lot in a home. 4 pets total seems much More manageable. I would see this 6 as above on an acreage with a minimum square footage requirement.
- I can't see how having a total of up to 12 animals would make it possible for responsible ownership. Would people with that amount of animals have the means to provide care and food for all of them? Will their income allow it? I think 3 cats and 3 dogs max is a more reasonable number, and exceptions can be made in a case by case basis. I feel like this would protect not only the animals, but also the owners and the community as a whole.
- I feel 6 dogs and/or 6 six cats is too much for any household. I feel 3 and/or 3 is plenty aside for the exceptions mentioned above.
- I think 3 dogs or cats are plenty for a single residence.
- Same rules apply regardless number of pets
- That is an insane amount of animals. Limits should be 3.
- The introduction of this rule has the potential to prevent people from being able to foster/care for additional dogs even with the potential exceptions in place
- it should be lowered to 3 pets per house hold
- It's unnecessary
- Focus on responsible ownership not maximum quantities
- Only if the pitbull related bylaws were changed to all large breeds
- There should only be a limit on households that do not have the proper means to care for multiple animals. ie: money, space, cleanliness.

- There absolutely should be no limit, very few times does the average person have more the 6 dogs. Is it really a problem, do you truly have law enforcement going out to calls where 15 dogs on a property cause a problem? This currently isn't an issue at all. So why label it, why put a restriction down just to make it even harder for places like doggy daycares, breeders, etc. No need to keep taking away freedoms.
- Support everything except the number, six is too many, it should be no more than three
- This does not take into account different sizes in households nor does it take into account individual owners ability to care for their pets.
- Owning and taking care of pets shouldn't require any special licensing or extra fines, if the owner is providing a good safe environment they should be allowed as many pets as he/she sees fit.
- As long as the animals are well taken care of, there should be no limit. It is better to have a household with many dogs than to have them euthanized.
- Unless there is an actual problem, the city shouldn't be dictating how many pets home owners can keep on their property.
- Nobody needs that many animals within city limits. 2 and 2 is more than enough.
- Very few people have the space and ability to care for that many dogs. Of course there are always exceptions...
- Due to many people not being able to spay/neuter their pets for financial reasons they may have a number of pets in their home. If they cannot find suitable homes for these pets they may end up being forced to drop them in the wild
- as long as animals are being cared for and no other bylaws are being broken there should be no limit to number of pets.
- Some people rescue pets and thats their passion is to give many animals a safe home
- Aside from the exceptions you have listed above, I see no reason to allow as many as 6 dogs or cats. I think the maximum should be no more than 4
- If a person can properly care for their animals, then they should be allowed to have as many as they want but spay/neuter should be an expectation
- Anyone can own as many animals as desired. If complaints are issued, action should be taken by the pet owner.
- You would need to remove services animals from the exceptions. No one needs more then one/two service animals. If it were an exception it would just open the door for people to horde animals.
- I think this limit is too low. Some people can't have. 1 dog without excessive feces, barking etc and other people could have 12Dogs or cats and not have any issues. It should be determined case by case if there are complaints.
- We have a neighbor across the street from us that owns 16 dogs (8 of the dogs are very large) and 9 cats. The neighbor's on each side of them and behind them are not able to enjoy their backyard when the 16 dogs are out in the owners backyard. The owner has artificial turf and the dogs do their business back there. It smells, and the bylaws have been called numerous times, and because there is no bylaw there is not much that can be done. I think even 6 dogs and 6 cats in one household is too much. Every other city in Canada and even Airdrie have bylaws for smaller animals per household. Why not Calgary?

- A total of 12 animals in a household is too much. A total of 4-6 animals per household in a city would be manageable for people/families. Including being fosters.
- To much government
- 4 should be the maximum, not 6.
- As long as proper care is provided no one should be able to mandate what another person has on their own property.
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats being allowed in every house is too many, perhaps a similar change but of smaller scale? I think it's very case by case
- If all animals are properly cared for and the property is maintained without a disturbance to the neighbours there is no need to limit the number of dogs and/or cats. It's necessary that households with multiple pets maintain a clean, healthy home for the pets and the people who reside there, this is not determined by the number of dogs and/or cats reside in the property.
- It's tough to believe many people with 12 animals would take care and provide to the needs of all these animals. Feel like we would be increasing animal neglect. Just do max 6 cats/dogs can be any number of either.
- As long as all the animals are cared for properly then what is the problem?
- Your dog one on Block head dogs is stupid
- Some people foster pets. Some of these foster pets would be euthanized otherwise. Sometimes it's necessary to have more than two pets.
- Limit to 4 with special arrangements granted to 6
- I think Calgary has managed this without a pet limit. If they are well taken care of, who cares how many. If they are not, one is too many. Backyard breeders should be stopped!
- If a person is a responsible owner of animals then why punish them with limits of ownership? Start cracking down on the PEOPLE that are RESPONSIBLE for NOT taking care of the animals in their homes. This Limiting of good owners is not a good idea! We have 8 dogs and our neighbors have said they wouldn't know we a dog let alone 8. Responsible people are responsible. People with mental issues will hoard animals regardless of laws.
- I don't believe there should be a limit as long as the animals are cared for.
- That's kind of a disgusting amount of animals for one urban residence.
- 12 animals is enough!!!!
- Good owners are pushed because they will be the ones who listen to the law
- 6 dogs in the City is way too many, 4 maxium. 6 cats okay if all indoor cats. Exceptions as listed above are okay
- It is people own property and they should be reasonably allowed to do with it as they please. We should not restrict people but enforce proper management of the animals they do have. Use the noise bylaw amd other bylaws we already have. no need to create new ones and complicated things.
- aaa

- A person should be allowed to have as many pets as they want so long as they raise them responsibly. Don't penalize people for others bad behavior.
- discriminatory
- if people are breeding dogs or cats, they will need to fill out a form every time when it isn't needed because of the licensing for breeding
- I don't think you can tell people how many pets they can have. If you must, 6 or each is low
- There is no reason why 1 house hold would require that many pets. Dogs or cats, would create unmanageable condition, especially in a low income household unit. There should however be more regulations for doggy daycare, or pet care sitters, caring for that .any pets..
- The number is high already. 6 cats or 6 dogs is high! There are a few of the good people that can handle this number and take care of them and then there are those that can't and without the cut off line you will always have problems !
- That is too many animals.
- I don't care for the 'Potential Exceptions COULD be" as it is not clear. If one answers yes, the exceptions may not be part of the decision process.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is far too many! Given the average home size and lot size, I feel 3 pets in combination of both species should be the maximum. Otherwise, the average home owner is not providing the animals with suitable space. Also, the average income would only support upto 3 pets regardless. Any more would potentially stretch feeding expenses beyond a pet owner's means of supply.
- 6 dogs is too much.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is excessive! How would you define household? So in a duplex you could potentially have 12 animals total on the lot? I personally feel that 6 dogs and 6 cats is too much.
- No more regulations....we should have a far more relaxed attitude towards, pets, pet owners. Also should be far more off leash areas in Calgary
- 12 animals total for someone not running a rescue/daycare is overwhelming. I'd lean more towards 4 cats and 4 dogs.
- People can responsibly own multiple pets higher than 2.
- It's none of your business how many animals people own unless they're not being taken care of.
- 6 is too many. Other jurisdictions have 4 (Manitoba) and that is plenty.
- If animals are not a problem people should be free to own however many they choose
- Thats allt of animals in one house
- Animal ownership limitation should be based on space available for the animal. sq ft = # of animals allowed.
- It should be up to the home owner to determine how many pets they have!
- Nobody needs to own 6 dogs in town unless the above conditions and need a permit!
- Someone is going to regulate the exceptions??
- As long as the animals are taken care of, I should be allowed as many as I want and can afford

- Too many resources will be spent updating and tracking the bylaw. Grandfathering in dogs requires compiling a database. STOP WASTING TAX DOLLARS
- The amount of pets should be evaluated on a case by case basis in accordance to property size and environmental safety.
- Would the licensing fee be the same or if someone was at max capacity would they have a reduction on license fees? Why are license fees not implemented with vets more being that is where our money goes to take care of our animals? Why don't license fees come with a microchip? Otherwise I think 6 and 6 with exceptions seems like a fair cap on animals per household.
- The number of animals should be lower. Breeders could get a separate license & require a business license. The stated exceptions are ok.
- This is so dumb
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is TOO many. The exceptions are okay.
- There should not be more than 2 cats/dogs per household and a special permit should be required if there are more. This would be applicable to household pets and not coops.
- The amount of animals on a property should not be restricted unless it involves poor living conditions
- If all animals are licensed and well cared for there should be no limit. If any bylaws are abused or broken then the city can step in.
- No limit please
- this could make it hard for people who rescue cats
- I think that we don't need to dictate to people the number of pets they can own and I feel that a bylaw change like that is an gross infringement on personal freedoms.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are way too many. The limit should be 2 or 3 of each and an application should be made for more, the potential exceptions are OK.
- Some people adopt multiple dogs that spend a lot of time in shelters otherwise. The quantity of dogs in the house doesn't matter as long as there is quality care for the animals.
- I don't think restriction on number will change irresponsibility pet ownership. The bylaw should deal with the issue that is related to the owner (i.e., feces, noise, welfare) and apply universally to all pet owners regardless of how many animals they chose to have as pet owner. On an unrelated matter - maybe part of Phase 1 - at Nose Hill Park in the off-lease area, the garbage containers should be moved to within 500 m of the entrance of the park on the main trails, that way there would be receptacles for placing feces. The current container is way to far into the park and the ones in the parking lot are not helpful once a pet owner is already 500 m into the walk. Thank you.
- as long as the owners are caring for their animal, they should be allowed to have as many as they can afford.
- that sway too many in the city
- If animals are deemed to be in good health, having access to proper food, water, attention, vet care, and are cared for by responsible people, there should be little control on the number of animals. There are plenty of people who have one animal and can't manage, and plenty who have several and do an amazing job. Assigning a number is a lazy way to manage this. Each situation is unique.

- Today I learned there's an actual bylaw for this, but I think it's more than reasonable as is. Maybe increase the limit to 3 or 4 since couples exist who had their own dogs before they met and once they moved in together now have a house that's technically in violation of this bylaw. 6 dogs and 6 cats in a household seems like it would be quite the mess and noise problem in any case. I don't have really strong feelings one way or the other, but 6 of each sounded a bit excessive to me. I'm no expert though so if you all feel this is a better way forward then that's fine. Putting aside this BSL bs, the dog management program in this city is absolutely top notch and I know it will continue to be this way for future generations.
- This is called responsible pet ownership . Let's let responsible owners decide how many animals share their home . If your not responsible other bylaws should be able to cover any problems that might arise .
- It's none of anyone's business if someone wants 8 cars and can responsibly care for them. Same being said for 8 dogs. Perhaps do an animal or home welfare check though for people who exceed 8 dogs or 8 cats
- I think the total number of animals should be 6, not 6 of each dog and cat for a total of 12. The ability to care properly for that number of animals may be diminished at those numbers which is detrimental and unfair to the animals.
- Having a limit on animals with people who have more space and ability to care for animals is unfair.
- If a household containing a large amount of animals is causing disturbances or where the care of the animal(s) can be questioned then it should be investigated. Implementing a blanket rule like this seems to be a punishment for large families.
- Unfair to police people for the number of pets they wish to own, but it's totally fair to police them for responsible pet ownership, or their inability to care for them properly. Better to administer fines for noise, excessive feces and potentially confiscate animals if the irresponsible owner has repeated violations.
- 12 pets in a single home and average yard is excessive. Should be lowered and allow for puppies or kittens.
- Let lonely people have their pets so I don't need to talk to them
- It isn't the number of pets that is necessarily the issue. It is whether you are a responsible pet owner. We have had people in our area who only have one dog and it is noisier than other dogs who are living as one of multiple dogs in one home. Dogs are social animals and are very often happier, able to socialize better with people and other dogs, if they are not living in a situation where socialization is too restricted. The key is that owner's continue to introduce there dog, to other people and dogs on a continuous basis in a positive way, and interaction. The problem isn't the number of dogs or cats necessarily it's whether the owner is responsible and able to maintain control of the dogs or cats they own. If the dogs or cats are healthy, happy and not allowed to be a nuisance, then six is a pretty low number. For some people one animal might be too much.
- That's a lot of animals, I think the number should be lowered aside from pet boarding and services or rural homes
- If the living space is proper and they are well fed and in good living conditions, LET THEM BE.

- 6 seems too high of a limit to me. 3-4 would be the Max I would support
- 6 animals is excessive number, should be limited to 2
- I do not feel that a household needs more than 3 of each unless out on an acreage
- That's a lot of animals at that point
- As with the tribunal decisions should be made by an expert (s), without this caveat none of this will matter.
- Still too many, should only be 3 of each with special acceptations in fort Mac. They are only allowed 3 animals period
- I feel 6 dogs might be excessive for most home. Especially if they have 6 cats. That would be 12 in one residence. I would say 3-4 dogs and 6 cats. Also allowing special licensing for foster dogs in a home. Making it transferable to a new owner as well would be nice.
- There should be no limit as long as the owner is responsible
- A total of 12 animals doesn't make sense and the bylaw number of animals should be reduced.
- Increasing the limits could potentially lead to poor circumstances for animals and legal hoarding. Maybe the city could consider some sort of reconsideration application for those wanting to appeal the bylaw on a case by case basis. For example: someone with ample space, needing barn/shop cats while still within city limits - they should have the opportunity to explain the situation and request an exception - said individuals should also be responsible for all fees associated with this process and if one cannot afford the fees of a process like this can they afford 6 dogs & 6 cats?
- No one needs that many animals. How can they be properly taken care of? Limit should be three
- No one should be allowed 6 dogs for example. 2 or 3 I understand, but anymore is a nuisance. More noise from dogs barking etc. Same for cats. Max I have had is two cats and that was more than enough.
- Why does the city think they have the right to tell people how many pets they can have? If a person has space and knowledge to reasonably raise pets they should be able to do so.
- Cats live in large clans up to 50. They don't take a lot of room.
- In most cases these animals are being bred. Sometimes not treated right
- Each dog must be regarded as an individual and assessed on its specific behaviors... This comes straight from our own Calgary Humane Society. Please do not use your personal bias to force pit bull owners to mistreat their dogs. By muzzling and treating Pit bulls differently we are doing nothing to help the animals. Please leave your personal bias out of this and instead look at scientific facts/studies which show that Pit bulls are no worse/different from other dogs.
- There should be no limit on the number of pets a person can own on their private property. There are already plenty of bylaws to ensure that pet owners are respectful of those around them. Neighbours should not have a say in what a person does on their privately owned property.
- As long as the pets and homes are cared after, it shouldn't matter. I support penalties if the animals welfare via at risk.
- There are many very responsible pet pet. Again direct your energy to the bad owners do not make all suffer for the few who wreck it. [personal information removed] pitbulls and they are all amazing dogs her home and yard are spotless so why punish individuals like her and her family. [removed].

Perhaps more laws about WHO can own pets. Make it so nuisance owners have their rights taken away. Focus on individuals not the whole

- 6 is too many, make it 3 or less
- 6 dogs and cats is a lot of animals for one household. I feel like a better limit might be 3 or 4 of each.
- 12 animals in a home is way to much for a house in the city. They should have a maximum of 6 animals total or household with no restriction on type.
- Promotes backyard breeding and poor care of animals
- 2 pets is sufficient for anyone to own
- Some owners take great care of their animals and help out rescues
- Cats live in the wild in colonies of up to 50. To give them the best life possible they need a family.
- Sometimes accidents occur and if you have a pet who had puppies or kittens you would most likely have more than 6 at a time. I believe this should be added as an exception.
- I'm not sure what the bylaw currently is in this area. So without comparison, I find it difficult to support or oppose a change.
- Six is far too many for any regular person to be allowed. Permits should be required for anything over 3 or 4 at most with the exception of a litter. 6 cats might be acceptable but 6 dogs is excessive for everyone to be allowed to have. If I have six dogs I should require written consent by neighbors on both sides of my dwelling before being issued a permit.
- 6 is excessive, I would support increasing to 3 not including puppies or kittens until 6 months of age
- I think that if the animals are all very well taken care of then they should be allowed more then 6 dogs or cats.
- 6 is too many. For the welfare of the animals, dogs should be capped at 3, and cats at 4. Exceptions made for breeding and for multi family households. A single family or person can not care for 6 dogs and 6 cats.
- If the pets are being properly cared for and not being a major nuisance to the community then I see absolutely no reason to implement EVEN MORE administration and cost on something which should be determined as reasonable to an owner to have in their care. Hoarding is a separate issue though and if the needs of the animals are not properly met or the owner is not maintaining the feces etc. then it is valid for bylaw to intervene
- too many animals- should be limited to 3
- A residential property cannot support kennels or a multitude of animals without creating a nuisance. Try to find a reasonable number, such as three, and if this is to exceeded the neighborhood should be consulted.
- Thats yo many pets for 1 home
- I feel that number is too high. I would suggest the number of pets (dogs or cats) be limited to 2 per adult living in the given household.
- Im on the fence while im okay With the numbers 6 dogs is a lot there should be something in place to protect animals rights! It is so easy for people to abuse and neglect animals how many pwople really have the space And TIME for 6 dogs i also feel this number encourages small breeds owners who think small breeds dont need As much outdoor access and exercise as large breed dogs which is unfair to the small breed dogs.

- If they're responsible pet owners as covered by other existing bylaws, I don't see a reason to impose an arbitrary limit.
- As long as animals are taken care of who are you to tell someone how many they can love/take care of???
- Who the hell needs 6 dogs or 6 cats within city limits. Way too many animals. Maybe 4 of each but 12 animals is just hoarding.
- I am a pet owner and believe the number of animals per household should be limited.
- Most properties within the city cannot accommodate the size of property requirements for 6 of each. Along with many people would not be able to keep up with the exercise requirements of the animal... if the wish to have more than 2-3 of each then they should require a special liscense as in breeder, boarding facility etc
- I am not sure how much of an issue this actually is and whether it would address potential problems it is trying to solve.
- If all criteria is met with responisble pet ownership, such as , training, vet care, suitable housing and food, noise reduction, cleanliness , cleaning up of feces, then the owners have proven they are capable of looking after their pets
- Multiple animals, no matter the scenario, can lead to the issues listed. The only exception should be under 6 months.
- I like the exceptions to the rule and it would be great but 6 is too high. I am thinking 3 or 4 is a more reasonable number, especially considering the size of most properties in Calgary. Most are not big enough to support that many dogs. I think an Approved Excess Animal Permit which would require a property visit from Animal Control or the Humane Society to ensure that the pets interests are at heart and not a backyard breeder who is looking to make a quick buck.
- Should only allow 1 large dog per household. And up to 5 smaller dogs and up to 3 cats per household
- Backyard breeders are a dangerous group that cause severe harm to animals. 6 animals is too many for one household to adequately provide care for 4 animals total is more resonable
- 6 each is too many. I feel the physical and mental needs of the pet would be compromised in most cases. Perhaps a total of 6 animals would be a compromise.
- Why 6. It's just some [removed] number that has no research behind it.
- If someone is able to care for more than 6 dogs they should be permitted to without application for exception
- I think that 6 dogs or cats per household is too great a number. It should be reduced to half.
- 2 cat and dogs is more than enough. 6 is too many
- I don't think 12 animals in a residential setting is appropriate unless it's an acreage. I would say no more than 8 animals would be more appropriate.
- From 2/2-6/6? Big jump. How about 4/4.
- 6 is a very high number, 3-4 sounds more reasonable

- their pets, cleans up their mess and has them properly trained, I believe they should be able to have as many pets as they want.
- Calgary need their Government to back off as much as possible. If your looking for something to do, solve the spending issues of your department.
- With that many animals in one home, it is hard to train and watch all of them. They are like kids. If they are not disciplined or watched they will get into trouble.
- As long as the pets are healthy and cared for, there should be no limit. Responsible owners maintain their property and safety of the pets in their homes.
- People should not be legally required to have only a specific number of pets, as long as they are properly taken care of, it's nobody elses business how many animals someone chooses to give a loving home to.
- Six dogs AND six cats? I think the number would have to depend on the living space of the owners. Putting that many animals in a 600 sqft space is far different than a 3000 sqft space.
- If the animals are well cared for what gives you the right to limit that family?? Nothing
- Its not about the number of pets, its how they are kept.
- I feel like the appropriate number of animals is best determined on a case-by-case basis.
- I think a general limit should be a total of 4 dogs or cats but allow for permits to increase that number based on good responsible ownership
- Depending on the terms in of the dog fancier permit. In addition backyard breeders are not stopped by animal limitations. Nor will the bylaw stop poor pet owners from obtaining several animals and keeping them in poor conditions.
- There may be extenuating circumstances not considered.
- No one needs 12 pets. I think a general total of 6 dogs/cats should be more then enough, not 6 of each. The exceptions are reasonable.
- You cannot control my house. I may have as many pets and whatever I want ON MY PROPERTY
- As long as the animals are cared for then it's no ones business
- Less. 6 Dogs AND 6 Cats?? 12 Animals??? Might as well live in a barn on a farm. I Believe no more then 2 cats And Dogs, unless the animals have given birth or they are fosters/service Animals
- I would only support a maximum of 3 dogs and 3 cats per household
- 12 animals in a h e is too many. There should be no more than 5 animals of any type
- there should be no limit
- If an owner is responsible, why make them accountable for the ones that are not
- I think this is far too many animals per household. In other municipalities, the limit is far less. RE lower license fee for low-income households: I do support lower fees for low-income households, however, I worry that this would mean they might acquire more pets. I believe animals are soothing and healing and everyone deserves to have one if they choose, so long as they can adequately and responsibly care for it. If the limit is six dogs and cats, plus lower license fees, this could put the household in distress.
- People should be allowed to have as many as they want as long as they are properly cared for

- People can have as many pets as they want or need. The city should have no control on what animals one has on their property
- Enforcement of existing bylaws should be adequate to ensure pet owners are responsible to their pets and their neighbors. Adding a new bylaw doesn't help if the existing bylaws aren't being enforced.
- I think irresponsible pet owners might take advantage of this. I think four dogs and four cats would be realistic.
- I don't believe in limits to pet ownership. I do believe in limits of 5 for any one type of animal
- I think this has to be looked at on a case by case basis. I don't think it's good for even a temp home to have to many animals.
- Putting a limit of the number of pets will ultimately result in people not registering animals to avoid the inconvenience of extra licencing fees and paper work. Making it difficult to know exactly how many pets one owner may have. Emphasis should be on owners cleaning up appropriately and focusing on proper training of pets in their care.
- With more than a couple permanent adult dogs in the home I think it should raise concern over the welfare of the home and humans residing. Is the home clean and safe for all parties living in it? I also think the more let's you have the less likely they are to be well cared for. The cost of quality food and supplements plus veterinary care to one dog is high. I doubt people maintain the same level of care for six dogs as they would for one or two.
- I do not believe that this ammendment helps in many cases, especially those that rescue or take in animals on short notice from bad situations. It hinders them with a lengthy approval process first which could delay necessary rescues
- They shouldn't limit unless it's overabundance of animals that cannot be fully taken care od
- I dont think a mandate on the number of pets allowed should be implemented. Instead perhaps limits should be enforced on problem/ irresponsible pet owners.
- 6 dogs or cats in a house in the city? Come on! That is ridiculous.
- I don't think people should have more the. 6 digs or 6 cats.
- No need for a household to have this many animals. Usually this would be a breeding situation. Breeders should have more restrictions to be authorized to sell animals.
- 6 is too many. 4 maximum
- 6 dogs is too many - three dogs, and 5 cats seems more realistic
- As long as a loving and caring home is provided, no limit should be upheld.
- No is no shrug shoulders
- As long as all animals have the care and necessities of life, there should not be a limit.
- I thin it depends on the type of residence and how big or small it is. If it's large enough to have more animals then there is no reason to restrict amount of animals.
- These situations should be looked at on a case by case basis. Animal welfare, property sanitation and noise can be a concern with any number of animals in a home or on a property (ie: I know people with 4+ dogs in the home and their yards and homes are pristine. And I know people with 1 dog with a much lower standard of care overall, which could result in the above noted issues) then address the particular home in question accordingly no matter the number of animals living there. These standards also allow for those who have an abusive quality of care to keep a certain number of animals even after being fined and with bylaw services involved when they should not be caring for any at all.

- As long as the welfare of the animals is maintained there should no limit.
- Again, I have no right to tell other people how to use their land. [removed]
- Keep the bylaw as it currently is
- having 12 animals in one home that is not a business is still too much. Having that many animals in a small place is not a high quality of life for the animals, and isn't sanitary
- 6 dogs And 6 cats is kennel numbers. If this is the case they should be paying for a kennel license. If this is approved wellness checks of the animals should be completed monthly.
- If the owner is responsible and can take care of the animals it should be their right to choose how many animals they have. Free country remeber.
- In any residential home not supplied with a proper kennel licence, there is no reason for the total number of quadraped pets to exceed 6 in total. That would include lizards, rodents, equids, canids and felids.
- If I read this right you are saying 12 pets is ok, I think it's too high. Maybe six total any combination of cats and dogs or something of that nature
- Think people over 6 dogs and cats should need to get an approval. Not limited to the list. If they have issues with dangerous dogs, or multiple nuisance calls they should be denied, or if not caring properly for animals in their care
- It needs to be a lower limit of total cats & dogs in one the household
- 6 is a lot of animals. I've lived in places where the limit was 4. I personally think that's a better number. With the exceptions included.
- Yes I support this bylaw change, however there should be a special application for breeders i.e: the dogs and cats under 6 months of age.
- The addressed issues are all already covered under bylaws. If someone is able to responsibly attend to 14 cats all the power to them, but this data should be used for enforcement to do wellness checks to make sure the issues are addressed.
- If the rest of the bylaws are properly written and enforced a limit seems unnecessary. I do agree that there are limited situations where one home needs more than six dogs or cats but placing a limit on pet numbers seems like a lazy way to define acceptable responsible pet ownership.
- I think there is an issue with owning up to six dogs and six cats depending on the size of property. I support condos and apartments being able to limit this number based on size of the overall property and units. Having up to 12 animals - plus unlicensed animals such as rabbits or birds - will cause more significant noise disturbances and bylaw issues. I do believe that there should be exceptions in place to any bylaw restricting the number of animals for temporary homes and service animals.
- Noise is my biggest concern.
- As long as the animals are being properly cared for. It should not be anyone's business how many they have

- If a person is able to take care of their animals, they should not have a limit.
- responsible breeders keep their dogs/cats in good living conditions
- So long as the animals are well cared for, licensed and not a nuisance, it's not the city's business how many animals are in a home. Similar to children...so long as the kids are properly cared for, it's not the city's business!
- Yes, but I feel that the amount of pets per household should be based on a variety of factors such as type of animal, for example someone having a pet snake, some fish, a cat and 3 dogs would be way more reasonable than someone having 15 cats and 5 dogs in a single home, or like myself, having more than two dogs, but since none are able to breed, and all are tattooed, keeping a lower level fee for licensing because there's more opportunity for identification, and if a person is not able to maintain their pets needs to be vetted and housed appropriately, there should be a bylaw in place to allow seizure of the animals in the home by a bylaw officer and the ability to offer them to adoption to a better suited home.
- There should definitely be a limit to the number of pets, not good for neighbors regarding noise, nuisances, pet feces on lawn. Plus, anyone owning more than two pets at a time needs to live on acreage or farm. City lots and house sizes doesn't accommodate more than two pets comfortably in average house size in the city. Lets try to make our city more noise free, nuisance free, and promote the getting along with our neighbors, than, adding things that we potentially can cause problems with our neighbors. We all want to come home at the end of the day to a quiet neighborhood. We don't need the added stress of having such neighbors, we need less stress, not more stress in our lives. Lets consider those people that are sensitive to noise, and those that don't want to look out their windows to see a pile of dog feces all over their neighbors yard.
- Would encourage poorly trained animals, and backyard breeding.
- 6 is way too many. Maybe increase to 3 or 4
- Anymore willing to provide an animal safe environment and Home should be able to house as many as they see fit as long as they're giving them a good life
- It's not your decision on what we have for animals in our household
- It depends on the situation. If they have a big enough lot/ space that can keep that many properly, then it shouldn't be an issue.
- 6 and 6 is enough, unless they live on a huge property.
- Depends on the size of the home. If it's a farm, they would likely have more animals, and potentially the animals might not belong to them (ie. barn cats, strays). They are likely to get a greater number of fines for just providing a home for an animal who doesn't have one. How is that fair?
- Too many allowed, should be 2 and 2.
- The exceptions are good but the limit before special permit should be lower at 3-4 cats and 3 dogs
- I don't know how someone is properly caring for 12 animals in one household unless they are breeding them.
- I think the limit should be 4, regardless of the situation. There are rescue groups in Calgary right now that are placing dogs in homes where there are 10-14 dogs already. This can be detrimental to any dog. PLEASE limit the number of dogs to 4 and cats to 6

- I would support a limit of 5 total dogs or cats
- I would support, if there are exceptions, like for farms, and SOME temporary homes, like they need to be screened and scrutinized prior and have several check ups throughout the year to ensure proper care and treatment, and what not. However, a limit cuts down on backyard breeders and pet hoarders, and ensures that they can all be cared for to the highest standard.
- If it's 2 cats AND 2 dogs or four of any combination I think that's plenty for in town. Six of each or any combination is excessive.
- because i disagree with it
- Yes and no. The numbers seem fair at a dozen animals but maybe do not divide it half dogs half cats some people don't like cats or dogs and only want the one type but are restricted due to that. Make it a total living animals allowed situation based on square footage of home. Example. You could have 6 poms in an apartment but 6 Saint Bernards wouldn't be feasible . Just numbering animals isn't specific enough and doesn't ensure the animal is safe it just touched the superficial ideal of hoarding animals or the idea that of you have less animals you'll be more responsible vs identifying bad lazy pet owners regardless of number. Also consider some people have disability's or have other restrictions that could complicate this. This by law cannot be this black and white .
- Unnecessary
- If you're a responsible pet owner And have the space for all of them. There should be no problem.
- Going to extreme. There could be two dogs and two cats but more than that is excessive.
- I would suggest the limit on dogs to be 4. Keeping the exceptions in mind and the ability to apply for an excess animal permit, having to take 6 dogs outside multiple times a day and exercising them sufficiently would be a challenge that most people wouldn't be able to handle long-term. Any exceptions should be evaluated in person by someone who is experienced in dog handling and behavior. In the case of cats, some situations would be fine having 6, but most would become stressful to the cats depending on their temperaments and the size of the house. I would also suggest 4 or 5.
- As long as pets are being taken care of
- Given the average size of property in Calgary owning 6 dogs isn't safe for the dogs. Unless it's a special situation the average household shouldn't have that many pets.
- These things depend. I don't think it's fair to judge what is necessary for pet owners.
- No household, no matter how big, needs 6 dogs and 6 cats. That's way too excessive. I'd lower that limit to 3 dogs and 3 cats.
- Depends on how the owner takes care of their pet. There are people with 10 cats and can responsibly still feed and care for them same as someone with 1 or 2
- 2 dogs/cats is enough per household
- Indoor cats should not need a license. From personal experience, six dogs and six cats in a household is a LOT of animals, the amount should perhaps depend on the square footage of the home, and the number of adults in the home able to care for the animals.
- no one needs 12 animals in their house. 4 dogs and 4 cats sounds more reasonable.

- That is a really high limit. I would definitely support a lower limit. It is hard to provide properly the needs of that many animals in one household. Breeders should also require to be licensed as well as monitored to prevent puppy mills type behavior.
- 6 dogs is too high. there is no way you can possibly train that many dogs
- shouldn't be based on a set number
- That is simply too many pets with homes being so close together and the issues that we already see with public nuisance, feces not being picked up and general lack of care of animals (abuse, running at large, neglect)
- If someone has the means and ability to keep their pets safe and cared for without bothering neighbours, they who is the city to tell them they can't have as many animals as they want?
- You haven't stated the exiting bylaw so I can't judge the necessity for the changes but I think any exceptions should fall under category of Approved Excess Animal Permit and be examined/granted on a case by case basis.
- As long as someone is able to provide a good home and lots of care to the animals, no one should be aloud to tell them how many they can own. If the proper care is not being given to these animals, then they should be seized. But anyone should be able to own as many animals as they want, given they're providing the proper care.
- People have the right to their animals as long as they're cared for.
- That is far too many animals on one property. I would say that a family cannot properly care for more than 4 animals total. 12 is way too high and can easily end up in a hoarding situation where animals are not cared for properly.
- 6 is far too many in one household. 2 is more than enough
- possibility of neglect of animals, and possible presence of mental illness of the owner.
- No limit to responsible dog owners. Some people cannot manage one pet... others can and do manage multiple pets efficiently. Why punish responsible owners that provide a multitude of positive life experiences for a multitude of owned pets because of the inabilities of a few? Do you also limit the number of children people can have? As many are incapable of that yet seem to keep multiplying!
- A normal family household does not even need 6 cats or dogs! I think it should be lowered to 3 pets. I agree with the exceptions except for Dogs/cats under 6 months of age should be licensed.
- I would not want to be a neighbor to a house that has that many pets, for many reasons. Noise, feces in backyards etc...
- Who is the government to tell me how many pets I can have? What's next? Children??
- I would support a bylaw that enforces a limit of pets based on the size of the home and the households ability to financially maintain the health and wellness of all animals on the property.
- Grand total of 6 dogs and cats is plenty for one household. I support registered day cares fosters and breeders (breeders should only be breeding to health standards and testing and should be registered stop back yard breeders who are breeding outside of best interest of pet health and temperament
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per house is too many. Would suggest maximum 4

- I think it should depend on the home. On an average or farm if the conditions are there, great. Within residential areas it should depend on the size of the home and yard and income.
- No one needs six cats or dogs, forget six of each
- Can't restrict what someone owns, one individual who only has one pet may not take care of the animal as well as someone who has more than two.
- Cats are fine at 6 but I wouldn't allow more than 4 dogs except for the circumstances you listed as dogs are louder and require more space than cats. I have two and a larger back yard than most and I wouldn't feel comfortable with more than 3 at my house/ yard let alone trying to walk 6 dogs. Or even have a limit of 3 per adult in a home and 6 maximum. Or two per adult if larger breed.
- I think 6 is pretty high thinking more like 3 or 4 dogs are a lot of work I could not imagine more than two.
- 6 is too high. 4 and 4
- keeping 6 chihuahuas or pomeranians on a property is a lot different than keeping 6 German Shepherds or Newfoundlands!! and why are you combining cats and dogs!! Again 3 cats and 3 little dog a lot different than 4 cats and 3 big dogs!! Should be more relevant to size and situation ie single family home/apartment/ semi detached etc ...all are different
- I agree with potential exceptions. I do not agree with a maximum of 6 dogs and cats to a city household. 4 dogs or cats maximum (besides in the case of litters/young pets) would be more appropriate.
- That is far too many animals for one home. The noise that would be needed to have enough space would have to be quite large. It's also likely they aren't properly being taken care of. I agree with the no more than 2 of each.
- 6 is excessive. 4 is acceptable.
- The limit should be 2 cats and 2 dogs, no matter what size/breed. The reason being is noise, the care of the animals, and if you want more..move to an acreage.
- Will NOT stop hoarding and penalize those that can support multiple animals.
- Should depend on property size. That many pets in a small apartment seems excessive, but on a large lot with no near by neighbours would be less likely to cause concern
- Potential poor breeding, puppy mill initiatives and animal hoarding
- To blanket all people like this does a disservice to responsible pet owners.
- I don't any one needs to have that many
- That would be ridiculous to tell people how many animals we can own.
- Nobody needs more than 2 pets. Anything more leads to problems (noise, cleanup, etc)
- If you limit, then there are no exceptions, many problems stem from those who foster
- as long as they are looked after there should be no limit, just like children
- I believe over 2 animals is crazy and I think the more animals you have, the less care they get. 2 dogs and 2 cats MAX
- 6 and 6 is excessive. More like 2 dogs and 2 cats except in the case of the mentioned exceptions.

- Why should people complain how many pets you have? I'm sure we can't complain how many children they have. Or how many family members live in the same house. Or how many cars they have on their drive way and around the neighbourhood
- 6 is just far too many in an urban setting. 3 would be more reasonable in my opinion, but not 6. I agree with most expectations, exception the excess animal permit and dog fanciers' license. These are appropriate in rural not urban settings.
- 6 animals is excessive. I'd support 4 total
- Not everyone can afford to get their animals licensed.
- 12 animals is a lot of animals. I think there should be a special circumstances bylaw but I would think 6 permanent pets should be enough.
- 6 dogs in a house in the city is NOT a healthy environment for the dogs, and leads to neglect and lack of exercise.
- No limit should be put on pets as long as they are cared for appropriately
- I think a total maximum of pets including dogs and cats should be 4. 6 is way too many unless you are breeding or another reasonable excuse for having that many larger animals in your home.
- just because someone has over 6 dogs doesn't mean they are not providing proper care
- regardless of type of animal, 12 is excessive per household and I highly doubt people are able to properly care for this many animals.
- How the hell can you provide adequate care? Unless your worth millions and have the land for it - no. These animals deserve a standard of life too.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is an excessive number of animals within a home. The noise and smells likely to come of that could be considered a nuisance
- If someone has more than 6 dogs and 6 cats it is going to be an issue with all neighbors
- I feel 6 dogs AND 6 cats are in excess (unless they are the exception, such as fosters and breeders). Many people cannot even responsibly take care of the single animal they have, let alone multiples.
- 12 animals in one house in the city of calgary? I would be supportive if the total amount of animals was to increase to 3 or even 4...but 12 is way too high unless they are fostering/adopting animals on an acreage.
- 6 dogs or 6 cats is way to many...at that point you are creating a pact-and increase chance of attacks. Max 3
- Why limit
- As long as people are following the rules (cleaning up feces, keeping noise under control, etc) who cares how many animals they have? If someone is a responsible pet owner they should be allowed to do what they want. Restricting this to a specific number seems unfair.
- Are you kidding me?? 2 dogs, 2 cats is sufficient!! Or go less!! You are asking for trouble if you increase the number of pets allowed!! Stop creating issues Calgary!
- Potential for hoarding is increased greatly. 12 animals in a home is too many

- It is the responsibility of the owner. I've been in homes that have many pets and never knew how many or types. I've been in others where you can smell a single pet before you walk in the house. Fines for irresponsible owners
- Residential? Rural? Depends on property type, even in residential areas as some have larger property spaces.
- Unless you're a breeder or animal shelter, you DO NOT need this many animals. Then there's no time for proper exercise, attention and training. Limit should be 3 dogs or 3 cats or combination not exceeding 3 animals. This is how problems start when animals learn more from their packs than their humans.
- No need for more than 4 animals without approval/special circumstance.
- The number of animals/household should not allow 12. That is excessive and does not promote responsible ownership
- The limit should be 2 dogs and 2 cats
- Conventionally yes but the max should be 5. It should not be AND. It should be 4 in total. The exception list is good
- That's too much. I could see a minor increase but to 6 is excessive.
- There is already too much unpicked up feces, no one in the city needs this many animals in their home. It impacts neighbours in so many ways.
- I do not think anyone needs to have 6 pets in their home.
- 6 pets in a home will be too many. Regardless of people's wants, there is no way someone can properly care for 6 pets. How could you exercise 6 dogs?
- That's a huge limit I think it should be lower 6 dogs and or 6 cats on a property is a lot I would support 4 .
- If the pets are cared for, I see no reason to limit
- Pet owners need to use common sense and know their limit, with action taken against them in egregious cases. The city should stay out of people's business, unless there is a real problem
- If the dogs are maintained well and the feces picked up I don't see why they can't have more than 6
- This seems excessive. Limit pets to 2 dogs and 2 cats per household with the option to apply for an exception.
- Who needs 6 dogs & 6 cats, unless you are running a kennel/boarding. The average person will not be able to manage this in a responsible manner. A dog trainer, maybe, but even still that is A LOT of animals for one household in the city. Also, people have trouble keeping one cat on their properties, how are they going to keep 6?
- We have a cat and a dog. Our cat is not allowed outside to roam freely. Our dog will soon have another dog companion. I think I'm a small condo or townhouse yes this makes sense but we have a large backyard and decent sized home 2400 sq ft without the basement included.
- Pets are a luxury and a privilege. If the animals are used for breeding then it is a business and needs to fall under business rules. In my experience too many pets leads to poor health outcomes for the pets, poorer living conditions, and can lead to extraneous breeding. Plus there is often more noise and property damage.

- That is way too many animal in one house and most people can not afford the veterinary fees associated with taking care of this many pets.
- If you want responsible pet owners then less dogs means higher chance of them engaging in proper behaviour
- Noise, smell, accommodation for these animals would require a fairly large enough space if twelve animals were housed there
- Dogs specifically require a certain amount of space for the size of the dog. Number of dogs allowed should be determined by the exercise requirement level of the dogs breed in correlation to the applicants lot size.
- People abuse this. Then you have a household with 12 cats and 12 dogs because the 2 people are "roommates". Or they work the system.
- No one needs that many dogs/cats. It's not fair to the animals in a city. It's cruel.
- No
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is just too much for any household.
- 6 cats or 6 dogs, 6 max on a property
- You can't properly care for that many animals at once
- There is no need to have more animals
- This should be dependent on the owner and their circumstances. How they handle the situation may be assessed but to automatically limit the number seems unfair.
- People should have the right to have as many pets in their home as they choose. People should be addressed on a case by case basis
- Too many animals at one location
- Well kinda support, 6 toy poodles are much different than 6 Bernese Mountain Dog's, toy poodles are louder but with smaller poop. 6 cats seem discriminatory for a crazy cat person but for the average cat person enough. Oh and if on low income no fee waved for 6 animals
- That is a rediculus number no more than the cats it dogs
- That is too many animals for one property in my opinion. Worry about welfare of animals.
- Not necessary to explain. Do not support it!
- We have plenty of laws fines and rules.
- If there is a serious issue (such as abuse or neglect) with too many animals in one residence, they residents are unlikely going to abide by a bylaw. If there is a complaint, investigation should go into the welfare of the animals, not the number of them.
- That is enitrely too many animals - the noise of 6 dogs alone would be a nuisance even if the owner tries to stay on top of it. I would support 3 and 3.
- NOBODY needs that many pets in town...move to the country if you want to hoard animals. This is the dumbest thing I have ever heard. Who wants to live next door to 6 barking dogs.
- As long as the peta are being cared for appropriately I think there is no reason to put a limit. Only if neglecting conditions apply
- Let people have as many as they want. It's a freedom thats unnecessary to take away

- it sounds as though the issues are not that there are more animals, rather feces and noise complaints. If these are the problems than enforcement can deal with those issues specifically.
- To hard to police
- It's not necessary to make unnecessary laws. If you can't afford to take care of the animals, then you shouldn't own as many. There are already adequate rules in place for this.
- I think it should be a total number of 6 cats/dogs. If someone had 6 dogs and 6 cats, I believe that is a bit much and can lead to problems. This is how hoarding starts.
- Not necessary
- If people can already get these exceptions, there is no need for the uneducated masses to have so many dogs. I'd say 3 dogs is plenty for the average household.
- You cannot make a one size fits all rule. People can easily look after correctly to small breeds vs large breeds, and numbers of animals should be looked at on a case by case basis.
- I would support an increase, but not that high. 6 pets total cats or dogs. Having 12 animals allowed will lead to more issues such as noise, mess, and more potential back yard breeding operations.
- I believe 6 is too high for the limit. Most households can handle three at max.
- I feel that you can not adequately provide care for 12 pets in one household on a full time basis. Expectation being foster animals as they are short term house guests.
- We should not limit how many animals a person can have. It should be more based off of their home size. If someone is in a small home, there should be limited animals. But if someone has the space for lots of animals, then that should be up to them.
- Should be less than 6 dogs, perhaps max 3 dogs and 6 cats as cats
- Not all pet owners live in small restricted accommodations. If there is an issue address it. Don't paint all pet owners as irresponsible because of numbers.
- NO. Six is TOO MANY. It will create far too many problems.
- is there a distinction between a home or apartment in this? Not all dwellings can adequately have 6 cats and 6 dogs. I would suggest putting a limit on apartments vs single dwelling homes.
- I think 6 of either animal is to many, but I agree with the rest of the changes
- I think owning 6 dogs and/or 6 cats within city limits is excessive. This would be difficult to meet the needs of the animals appropriately. If someone wants this number of dogs/cats they should purchase or rent a larger property such as an acreage or farm.
- There are people who would go out and get 6 dogs and 6 cats, and the household would be very overrun. Also it makes it harder for people the [personal information] ladies to be questioned on the amount of animals they have.
- As long as the animals are being cared for, you shouldn't be allowed to determine how many someone has.
- If pets are being a nuisance or mistreated then a limit should be imposed
- If property is kept clean why again bother the property owners?
- I support everything except the drastic jump from 4 to 12 animals.
- I think a limit of 3-4 TOTAL

- This would affect good, responsible pet owners. Not fair to limit them because of others who don't follow rules or care for their pets properly
- If the owner is responsible and has enough space and income to provide for the animals in a safe, ethical and hygienic way, its not the cities place to determine how many animals can be owned. That is ridiculous.
- I think if a person wants more than the proposed amount 2 dogs and 2 cats then they should apply for a special permit. No need for 6 and 6. That's excessive.
- I think the current limits are reasonable and help ensure the welfare of the animals
- Six of each is far too many animals for one house. I do agree with the exceptions for temporary homes and under six minths
- The one part of this I support is foster homes and daycares. Sometimes fosters take in entire litters which could easily exceed 6. There is no reason the average person needs six animals. At the point the welfare of the animal is at stake.
- Other than a registered breeder, no household needs to have 6 pets. I would suggest having breeders obtain a license and then make the maximum allowed number of pets 3.
- I don't know enough about the downstream effects of this decision to support it.
- I think the number of pets specifically dogs should be determined by square footage of the property
- Again the government should be leaning toward liberty not fascism.
- More animals in a city house will create a nuisance. On an acreage it can be higher.
- 12 pets is too many
- I think 3 should be a max the more dogs the more a pack mentality
- Six seems a bit high. Four seems reasonable.
- Get out of my house. I can't have as many pets as I can properly care for.
- 3 permit pets is plenty in one home, I do support the exceptions being added for a 3 pet home
- I should be allowed to own as many animals as I want as long as I can properly care for them.
- As long as the animals are being properly taken care of, I don't see the problem in having multiple dogs. Especially in a rental situation.
- I would support 6 in total with the exceptions listed but 12 animals in one household causes undo stress
- What happens with responsible owners who currently have more ? Do they get grandfathered in. OR do they have to chose which pets they get rid of..
- We don't need it
- 6 is too many, I think a limit of 4
- Don't tell people how to live
- Unless they can't take care of the animals proly don't tell people how many they can have.
- Owning that many dogs and cats is excessive. Being the neighbor of a person with 6 dogs means you will deal with louder noises. I think 4 is a better number.
- Perhaps we look at the square footage of indoor and outdoor space available to the animal? 6 dogs is alot in a 10x10 yard?

- That's a lot of animals in one location and I would be concerned about hoarding. Some of the exceptions - pet sitters - make sense as it's on a short term basis.
- There should not be a limit on the number of dogs or cats a person can have, if there is an issue then that person needs to be reported and investigated, a responsible owner will not have issues with the number of pets they have and will know what their personal limit is. For me that's 3 dogs and for someone else that could be a team of 10-12 sled dogs. And I'm sure there is someone who can be responsible with a combination of 30 pets in their home.
- I don't think a person needs to own that many animals. Of course if there are exceptions like fostering or something like that. If you have a litter of puppies/kittens. But I don't feel there is a need to own 6 dogs/cats there will most definitely be lack of exercise and potential lack of care
- Increase limit to 8 dogs or cats per household. If pets are well taken care of, not bothering neighbours and abiding bylaws for being a responsible pet owner.
- Limits responsible breeders and forces them underground
- I don't know what the current bylaw is. so don't know if this change is an increase or decrease, but 6 of each is WAY TOO MANY
- Anyone should be allowed to have as many animals as they can take care of
- I am not in support of people being allowed 6 dogs and 6 cats. Nobody needs that many pets to take care of or possibly not take care of. Hoarding could become an issue. Pets livelihood and well being be of utmost importance.
- Breed specific laws are absurd. It's not going to lower bites/fights. It's untrained dogs.
- This hurts rescue organizations? Unless they are an exception.
- I think this is appropriate, but there should be a grandfather clause. If you own more animals at the time of legislation change, you are not forced to get rid of any, but you can not buy more above the 6 restricted.
- only if exceptions were guaranteed, I foster both cats and dogs
- 3 should be the max, 3 of any kind all together
- 12 pets per property is ridiculous, way too high
- Some people do not care well for one animal. Number of animals owned does not reflect on how well they are cared for.
- The number has nothing to do with it as long as the animals are looked after properly.
- Responsible owners should not be held to this. That can be up to 10 pups, a mother and my 2 dogs
- 3 should be the max. After that there should be a permit.
- Nobody needs six cats and/or dogs. 2 of each per household is plenty.
- fosters breeder and daycares are the ones that need more control
- So arbitrary. Case by case preferred. How many pet hoarders do we see? Incredibly rare. Stop being so controlling.
- Some people take in stray or feral cats and dogs to nurse them or care for them permanently
- I think 6 cats is feasible but 6 dogs in a household seems excessive to me. I would recommend 3-4 dogs as the limit.

- 6 is a lot of animals to properly care for in an urban setting.
- That seems like an excessive amount in town. Gives way to animal hoarding.
- Animals in large groups are more likely to have pack hierarchy that supercedes human training. Dogs are more likely to be aggressive to humans.
- A responsible owner who is demonstrating they are capable of providing an appropriate home for multiple animals by not having complaints or concerns and having well cared for animals should not be limited until such time as they fail to demonstrate the ability to care for multiple animals. Responsible animal ownership is the basis for Calgary bylaws so expect people to be responsible.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats limit is too big and could be taken advantage of
- You are missing dog sledding as well, houses with larger farms should be exempt
- That seems like a lot. In a society where so many people are working I think that is unfair to the animals to allow that many in one household.
- If some households have difficulty controlling and providing a safe home for two pets, how will they possibly do better with up to 12 animals on a property?
- I dont agree that anyone should have that many dogs, as its difficult for one or two people to be able to properly handle and train 6 dogs, my feelings are that having more dogs in one home increases the chance that those dogs are not trained properly and/or cause excessive noise. I dont feel any responsible pet owner would ever have that many on a property in the city. I think that many cats is fine though, as cats are low maintenance and generally kept inside.
- 6 of each is too high. 3 of each max.
- I would support THIS AS LONG AS it would not target only one type of dog breed
- 6&6 is too many still. If you're going to limit, again it should be based on square footage to ensure pet is being taken care of responsibly. We will need pet welfare workers soon.
- Number of pets should be determined by square footage of household to ensure safety and comfort for pets
- There is no need to have 6 dogs and cats in your home at one time, no more than 3 and you have to put in a request to have more
- Yes I support under condition: grandfathering current owners
- 6 dogs and cats is too much for the average person. I think the current bylaw is too low but allowing 12 dogs and cats would lead to lower support for these animals.
- Honestly, 12 animals total is too much for one person to fully care for in a humane way.
- If the property is maintained and there are no issues then no problem
- Should include competitive dog handlers to exception as they have multiple dogs at different training stages at once resulting in more than 6 dogs
- If the owner has proper insurance, is responsible and all animals have their welfare taken care of, there is no reason why not. I would say that if the City would invest in education as opposed to enforcement of new laws and upholding them, we would be on the right track as a society.
- A lower limit within city limits is more than feasible, excluding the above exceptions which if proper care is being given should not be an issue so long as the conditions the animals are living in is monitored or regulated.

- This limit is way too high. The logistics of even walking 6 dogs doesn't add up. Dogs are required to have two 15-20 min walks twice daily and I would suspect these minimal needs would not be met. Multi-cat households often pose problems for the cats in the house as there is rarely enough territory or resources to support the number of cats in the home.
- 6 is too large I would support 4
- Should be the same across the board, and some are taking in rescues permanently to provide a home which is nice. Should not have to spend more money.
- Should be fewer animals per household.
- Leave it as it is
- No home requires 12 animals, though I support the exceptions.
- There is no need for anyone to have more than two dogs and two cats.
- We don't need more rules and regulations in our lives, less is better.
- If people are responsible there is reason to limit their number of pets- if people are a problem deal with them one on one rather than punishing all for the actions of a few
- Who needs 6 animals? If people are over visiting it gets loud enough. Not every day all day
- 6 of each is too many. 2 of each per household is far more reasonable. Consideration has to be given to neighbors.
- That's too many animals period
- I would support having people go to classes if they want to have more than 6 dogs and/or cats.
- People can do what they want!
- That's too many pets to properly care for.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too much and sounds like the beginning of animal hoarding. The exceptions above should be if you want more than 2 or 3
- no one needs 6 dogs that's excessive
- That is an insane amount of animals. How would you even control noise with that many
- Unless you are on an acreage or a farm, there is not enough space to for someone to comfortably house 6 cats and/or 6 dogs at one time
- People can have 1 dog/cat and create problems, and others can have 10 and create no problems. The bylaw should focus on responsible pet ownership and not arbitrary limits.
- Only if laws lol licensing were being strictly enforced
- I don't think the government should be collecting money for a dog barking? How come we the people don't collect money when you the government bark [removed] all the time. How come everything is money money money! No one owes you the government money cause an animal decides to bark you're ridiculous
- There are many homeless cats, having over 6 rescue cats keeps them off the street.
- 6 dogs is way too many. 3 dogs and 3 cats per household is a much more manageable number.
- I do not think anyone needs 6 pets in a home.
- 6 of each sounds high, 4 in urban and maybe 6 in suburban with 6 each in rural
- Absolutely no reason to own more than two pets of any species.

- be allowed more.
- 6 is too many
- Enough
- I don't think people need more than 3 animals per household. 6 animals is not only expensive but it can lead to lack of training, and unclean conditions. No one needs 6 dogs living in the city
- Having a neighbour not know how (or be willing to) manage one or two pets is incredibly frustrating. As the number of pets increases, the problems grow exponentially. Everyone deserves a loving pet, but nobody needs six of them.
- 12 animals in the city is a lot for one household
- Who cares. Two seems pretty low. Maybe three or four? Lots of families have two dogs and a cat
- You will need to consider that many people can have more than 6 dogs/cats and responsibility take care of them. If you want to limit, pick a higher number such as 8 or 10.
- Less animals
- I support the bylaw change but there needs to be less potential exceptions.
- 12 pets in 1 home is outrageous
- This isn't China with a 2 child rule, it's Canada.
- As long as the animals are cared for, it is a person's right to have as many animals as they can afford to take care of.
- As long as people are able to provide proper care (housing, feeding, cleaning & vet fees), there should be no restriction on how many dogs they can own.
- It should be based to the size of the property. Larger home can accommodate more or larger animals, smaller properties or condos would not be suitable for such a large number of animals or dogs of a larger size.
- I think the limit needs to be based on the home 12 animals in most city homes is too many. There is not space needed for them.
- N/A
- 6 dogs or cats? How about 2. Anyone I've ever met with 6 dogs or cats is bonkers. Therapy for the socially odd equals a nuisance neighbors
- If people can properly accommodate their animals, they should not be restricted to what they can own and how many.
- Stop focusing on these NON ISSUES. Leave people and their animals alone. Ridiculous and disgusting
- If they have like 25+ animals on the property and it isn't SAFE OR HEALTHY FOR THE ANIMALS then remove them from the home. Otherwise why does it matter?
- I think a limit of 6 is good but only need licensing if you wish to exceed the pet limit or to breed.
- No one needs that many animals. Too hard to keep them well looked after
- I think that when people own more than 3 or 4 dogs, they are not caring for those dogs as well as they could and should be as they have a lot of them to care for. When a dog is one of few or alone, it is better treated and cared for.

- Common sense really. You don't want out bulls but let people have up to 6 dogs
- Are you kidding? City by law enforcement is toothless. And the folks who want to run a small pet farm are the same folks that care not for their neighbors. Yet the city still wants their property taxes. Here's a bylaw change for you. If city allows permissive pet ownership of a dozen or more animals then affected neighbors should unilaterally be able to withhold or cancel their entire property tax bill when this situation inevitably becomes a nuisance. Calling bylaw does nothing to dominate a nuisance once it is established. Having to live near a nuisance such as what's being proposed puts the onus on affected neighbors to repeatedly call the city to deal with it. Which city may or may not even do. And if it does the pace will be glacial because the city doesn't care. Meanwhile months or years go by at a reduced standard of living for neighbors. Put your skin in the game - if you wonks think this is good policy allow affected parties to withhold or cancel their property tax in full when the situation goes to pot and the city does nothing.
- I agree with the limit, however, the exceptions should NOT include breeders. Breeders should be banned from Alberta.
- As long as the animals are being cared for and are safe and healthy people should be allowed as many as they want!
- If a responsible person can support more than 2 animals, providing adequate care and nutrition than why not?
- 12 four legged animals seems excessive, but I don't know what the current limit is... If it is 2, as implied in the question, then it should be higher, maximum 6- 8 total, not 12.
- That's 12 animals, in a large multistory residence that might not be as much, however in an apartment or townhome that's a lot. Restriction should be based on home type, or number of bedrooms. Additionally a total of 12 animals is excessive. 6 total, would be more reasonable.
- If the animals are well taken care of what business is it of anyone how many they have. There's no restrictions on how many children someone can have. Pets should be considered the same.
- 6 of each is way too many for one household
- I do not think the bylaw will address the issue. Many people will not follow it anyway.
- Remove the word potential from the list of exceptions
- I don't think a limit is necessary
- I was recently given a service dog from an agency working with the legion. That dog has severe health conditions due to poor breeding practices. No service dog trainer will be able to train more than 6 dogs at once.
- Four and four
- 12 is too many animals at one residence.
- I highly doubt that anyone can appropriately care for 6 dogs as well as 6 cats. I think if anyone wants to own more than 4 dogs OR 4 cats, they should be required to attend a mandatory dog or cat handling course.
- Four max of cats and four of dogs. It is expensive to feed and take care of animals. They are living beings and must be properly cared for. I do agree with suggested potential exceptions

- I think most people are able to self govern with the number of pets they have, and the people who aren't would not necessarily follow a bylaw limiting how many pets they could have anyhow.
- There should be no animal limit as long as they are receiving proper care.
- Unless there is an issue with the pet owner not taking care of the animals or not cleaning up feces ect, I don't see why there should be a limit! If there are cases that animals aren't being taken care of, address them on a case by case basis
- I do not believe it is necessary for a person to own more than 6 cats and 6 dogs at a time as this can encourage pet hoarding situations and this number of animals is likely too much for the average person to handle
- I don't think any household needs more than 6 pets total (not including recent litters not old enough to leave mom) Pets need space and attention, 12 is too many for anyone to properly care for full time.
- It's fine
- A normal home should not have to have more than two dogs or and or two cats, except your exclusions listed above. Then I believe that those exceptions should have the max 6 dogs or six cat rules applied to the exceptions unless or course a animal has given birth to more. Then the owner would have a three month grace period to sell or adopt out those puppies or kittens.
- This should be assessed on a case by case basis. If the living conditions for the animals meet or exceed bylaw, any amount of animals should be allowed.
- Number should be smaller. Hard to control that many animals
- I require more details as to the exceptions
- Shouldn't need a license to own a dog/cat. No limit asking as the animals are cared for.
- I think people should have the freedom to however many pets they want
- Stop with the blanket law laziness. Responsible pet owners should not be lumped into this type of "cut and dry" , "let's make it easy for our bylaw officers" type of policing. If an owner has 3 dogs and 4 cats and nobody has ever complained, why do you even care?! On the other hand, deal with jerk humans who have jerk pets and educate them to be better when complaints are received. Regardless of how many are in the household...as long as they are healthy and happy. Geez Louise...5 year olds could take this type of survey. It's called decency.
- 6 total animals would be more than enough. And then have the applications for special situations.
- That's too many animals to properly care for. I would say 4 dogs or 4 cats max.
- I believe that as long as someone properly takes care of X amount of dogs should be allowed to have them
- That's not fair, a person should be allowed to have as many let's as they would like as long as they are responsible!.
- if there is something reported or fishy then go investigate it but sled dog teams have 6+ dogs and some people rescue cats that one else helps
- Dog racism
- Let ppl be. If they want 7 cats. Let them.

- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many. I also think if your a breeder you should she required to hold a breeder business license
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is still too many; I would suggest 2, maybe 3 dogs and 2, maybe 3 cats ... particularly if puppies/kittens under 6 months are exempted.
- Limit should be 4
- I think it is unacceptable for anyone in the city to own six dogs I feel that it is very unlikely that they are able to control all six dogs end it is damn right scary to be at the off leash Park with someone who has six dogs because you know they cannot keep them all in control and I know someone who's dog wasn't victim I'm just such thing! I don't believe there should be allowed to have any more than four dogs maximum cats I'm not so worried about because I'm not worried about them attacking me or my dog or a child 6 Dogs together can act like Pack mentality and attack!
- I'm on the fence with this one
- Too many animals
- I don't support a limit on dogs or cats. If a nuisance arises this should be dealt with.
- Freedom of rugshts if the animals are well behaved!
- If the person has both the space and means to care for multiple animals properly then they should be allowed but in cases of large numbers of animals in possession of one person or family/group possibly checks should be completed by trained and knowledgeable professionals to ensure this.
- Only if that list of exceptions was actually implemented then I would support the change.
- Too large of an increase
- There should be no limit of pets regardless. What if they are all rescued? Why do we need to make it harder for them to rescue all these animals?
- That is an absurd number of animals for anyone living in the city to own.
- Without taking the size of the property or home into account this is arbitrary and an overreach
- Government is too big as it is. Also how often is this a problem?
- These rules exist to protect the animals
- I dont think we need to control number of pets but the noise, disturbance fines should deter any issues from having a large number of pets
- I think the limit should be four: 6 is too many in the city
- We need to also include Registered Non Profit Animal Rescuer
- I support it other than the number - no one needs to have 6 of any pet let alone 12 total.
- There should be no more than 2 dogs or cats per household. We have a woman on our street than currently has 6 dogs and they roam the neighbourhood as she cannot care for them all.
- So long as animals are well cared for and provided for, I don't support a limit. But there should possibly be inspections for those households with more than a dozen animals to ensure they are being well provided for, and is not a hoarding or back yard breeding situation where animals are not safe, healthy or happy.
- I think 6 is too many.
- 12 animals in a residence ..? Really ..? Unnecessary and greedy. No.

- No animals should be kept indoors against their will.
- That is way too many. 3 cats, 3 dogs maybe but even that seems excessive
- Six dogs is too large of a limit. Toronto has a limit of 3 dogs and 6 cats. The impact on the neighborhood is different when it is six cats vs six dogs.
- 6 is too many animals. I think 2 is plenty.
- Please leave it the same.
- If you want any pets move to the country where the animals can run free and bother nobody but their owners.
- 6 dogs, or cats in a city home, especially if owners are working is CRAZY. Way too many, reduce the number to 2, unless it is a short term foster situation.
- 6 is way too many. 2 is more reasonable.
- I am sick and tired of your authoritarian in-your-face domination. Enough!
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats are excessive
- limit is too high but support exceptions
- Should be no limit
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is way too many. 6 dogs and/or cats in total would be more reasonable.
- As long as the animals are well taken care of, don't infringe on neighbors
- Should be up to the pet owner and the property owner on how many pet they are allowed to have
- This limit is vastly different when applied to someone living in a condo to a large single family home with lots of room for pets. Again I think we should be able to trust people being able to regulate their own lives.
- Go after poor quality owners. If they have a problem and are creating a nuisance deal with them, don't arbitrarily just make a blanket rule to avoid doing your job.
- Cuz no
- Absolutely silly to be able to have 12 animals in a city residence. Perhaps 2 and 2 max.
- Stay at 2 max.
- There is no reason that anyone living in the city needs should have this many animals in their home. If this bylaw change comes into effect it will promote more animal hoarding, poor animal welfare, disturbance to neighbour enjoyment of their own property, even worse littering of feces and bags with feces in parks and more feral cats. I strongly oppose this change. No one in Calgary should have more than 2 dogs or 2 cats per household.
- Numbers are too high, should be 4 not 6
- Limit should be one dog or one cat
- actually should be less animals
- No one should be governing how many animals one individual has, that is absurd. Grandfathering an animal in.. jeeze.
- Animals need a certain amount of space, and I think that number of dogs and cats is above what those animals need for their health and well-being.
- You can't limit people to owning animals if that's what they want to do

- The proposal is fine but there should be no exception for breeding.
- If they are well cared for no restrictions
- I support this but not for breeders in residential homes within the city limit
- 2 is a pretty small number: Maybe 4-6 would be more reasonable
- I suggest a maximum of 3 dogs and 2 cats.
- Who cares how many pets someone owns as long as it remains to be their own problem
- I feel that in absence of neglect people have the right to have the number of animals they choose to.
- 6 dogs AND cats is far too many animals for one house within city limits to care for. 6 of both (total) is still too much to adequately care for.
- The only concern should be the welfare of the animal
- Should be less than 6 dogs and 6 cats.
- Six is too high. Three is more than enough.
- I think people will keep as many animals as they want regardless of the bylaws. In order to get revenue just sell licenses to people instead of spending money on by-law officers hunting them down. Those people that end up hoarding pets that they are not able to care for will be weeded out eventually because they won't be able to care for them properly.
- A person(s) have the right to have as many pets as they want, provided all the animals are properly cared for
- Far too many animals for one person to own and properly take care of.
- Should be lower than 6, no more than 2 or 3
- Unless living on a larger lot/acreage, that is too many animals in one household
- No one can take care of that many animals. Insane.
- No household should have 6 cats AND 6 dogs. 4 animals per household MAX is reasonable.
- If my animals are well cared for and housed, and I pay for their care, medications and quality of life, who is the city of Calgary to tell me I can only have 6 cats or dogs? I am not in support of this legislation at all.
- This bylaw isn't doing anything to help dog owners. All this by law does is feed into people's fears and lack of knowledge about breeds. I think In order to have a by law that will actually work and help everyone dog owners and non pet owners alike is if laws were made specifically for dogs not breeds. There needs to be more fines and rules for anyone who owns a pet. It's not a big dogs fault that there not actually causes damage when a small dogs (eg: Pomeranians, Chihuahuas, pugs, etc) bite doesn't. I've had more bad situations with little dogs or owners that don't control there dog. I've had to save my big dogs from little dogs or rude dogs so that my dogs don't defend themselves (bite another dog to tell them to leave them alone or protect themselves). It has stopped me from going to most dog parks because it gives people an excuse to not pay attention to there dog. This is not a bully breed/ bad dog issue this is a bad owner/ responsible issue and perhaps having cameras at dog parks or some form of security to in force rules and make sure that people are actually controlling and paying attention to there pets.
- The number isn't as much of an issue, as is the responsibility of the owner.
- pet limit should be 4, this is in the animals best interest

- No need for More than 2 animals.
- Depends on situation, if a large property with no near neighbours then no restrictions should be in place. If downtown area then restrictions could be in place
- 2 pets per household should be the limit.
- A limit is pointless and achieves no purpose. There is no difference in owning 6 dogs or 7. It's an arbitrary number. If you have the space to have 10 dogs and they are quiet, well behaved and owed by responsible owners then it shouldn't matter.
- 6 dogs is too many unless they are on an acreage. Could lead to more puppy mills!!
- We need to Support rescues without being penalized
- if someone wants to own more than 6 animals then I should be allowed as long as they maintain feces and noise
- Shouldn't be a limit. There are massive houses and yards in the city with room for way more than 2 dogs etc
- Not really necessary.
- Love does not have a limit.
- 6 of any is too many!
- These numbers are way too high. No household should be able to have 12 pets! 3 should be the maximum allowed.
- The limit should be 4 animals (dogs and cats combined) with the exception of temporary homes as defined above.
- In a city setting there is no need for anyone to own that many animals. I believe that the limit should be 3 animals per household.
- I do not support this change
- Number is too high per household
- Way too many pets in one household
- Too high a number
- I don't believe that any normal household needs 6 dogs/cats except if they are within the potential exceptions listed above. Both species should be licensed.
- If someone wants to own 7 dog and 10 cats, let them. Who are we to say where the limit should lie if all animals are well cared for?
- Please limit it to 2 cats/ dogs
- Limiting the number of pets does NOT address issues like noise and accumulation of feces. Proper training and cleaning up after your pet does.
- 6 animals person is too many. Amount should be lower. There should also be a limit to how many dogs a 'Dog Walker' can take for a leash walk or to a dog park.
- I think if the person is able to care properly for the animals then have at it, if they can't and have shown multiple times they can't then they should have a lower animal limit. Don't punish everyone just those that disrespect animals.
- No more than one 1 animal per household ... breeders should be in business or industrial area ...

- I think it should be allowed to have any number of animals as long as they are properly cared for.
- Nobody needs that many animals... i agree to the exception for animals under 6 months
- I only support parts of this. Question needs to be broken up more. Otherwise I don't support it at all.
- That is way too many animals. If a person wants to own that many animals they should live in an appropriate location (ie an acreage or farm) outside the city. The animals can have more freedom there.
- Too many animals in one home. Unless this was a registered rescue with licences and accredited persons
- No reason for more than 2 dogs or cats
- I said.
- One female dog can have more than 5 pups which need to stay in the house for approx 6 weeks
- It would depend on the size of the home
- 6 is too high. 4 seems more reasonable.
- People should have the right to have as many pets as they wish
- That is too many animals per household. 6 dogs is a pack, they win how can anyone look after 6 dogs properly. Cats are more self sufficient but they do tend to urinate in a home when they are claiming territory. That just does not work, its not in their nature to live with that many other cats.
- No one needs this many animals in a home within city limits.
- This depends on the owner not the number of dogs
- A regulat pet owner doesn't need to have 6 dogs or cats. What is the purpose of this quantity of pets? That's too much unless the person is a registered breeder and the offspring are eventually sold. Six pets in a household also leads to waste and noise (especially dogs) issues and pets (cats) roaming at large.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is too many die any family in the city limits, even if someone owns only 3 or four of one of those animals they shouldn't have a difficult time applying for a special permit to justify that amount .
- Max 3 animals a household with the exceptions
- This is ridiculous
- Live and let live. This is what the noise bylaw is for.
- 6 is way too many, 12 is just stupid
- Limit of pets in a home should be decided based on size of property instead of a fixed amount. It doesn't make sense if a one bedroom apartment unit is allowed to have 6 dogs and 6 cats.
- Many people can own multiple animals with no concerns or issues over welfare, or disturbances with neighbours. However I would support a limit on unaltered animals in the home which would hopefully encourage spay/neutering and decrease the number of unwanted litters.
- Three total in any combination. Six is way to many I agree with the exceptions
- Responsible breeders sometimes have more than 6 animals at a given time. I stress responsible registered breed etc not back yard breeders
- I think 3-5 animals total is more than enough unless the above criteria are met

- 6 of each in an urban setting is ridiculous. There's no need for that many pets.
- Six dogs is too many. As is six cats.
- 6 dogs and or 6 cats in a household/home is too many for a single household. Exceptions as listed above are reasonable. 3 or 4 pets per household is more reasonable.
- Totally depends on how the number of animals are cared for. If there is great support for food/water/shelter for more than 6 animals then that should be allowed.
- Sometimes people can't have children so their pets are their children's and they take care of them like their children. I have 3 dogs and I couldn't imagine someone telling me I couldn't have one of my baby's . For what reason?
- I find 2 of each seems too low. But 6 of each? That is much too high to allow just any person to have. Most people can barely care properly for 3 of each. 6 is too much.
- Why should a pet limit be in place? If a household has the financial means to own more than 6 dogs/cats and they are able to, then why not?
- Allow people to have as many pets as they want. Restrictions on breeding and treatment.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is a large number of animals that require a great deal of financial support, attention and responsibility. The allowable number of animals in a home should be assessed based upon a person's income, size of dwelling/property, and general ability to care for the animals..
- It's not the number that's important it's the care the animals receive. You cannot legislate common sense
- if they are cared for them properly then let have a zoo
- I think it should be stricter. Less animal max. 3 and 3 instead of 6 and 6. Grandfather existing exemptions so no animals are pulled from their home (if loving and adequate for needs.)
- Having so many animals prevents the ability to properly care for their needs
- I feel having that many animals prevents the ability to properly care for each animal and their need
- excessive restrains
- If the living conditions are monitored and the animals are healthy and well cared for and not breaking any nuisance bylaws it shouldn't be an issue
- Dictating how many animals one can have is like telling someone how many kids they should have. Just doN't go there.
- Animal care (health, food, water, medical treatment, socialization, etc.) and living in an appropriate stress free environment for the animal.
- The current by-laws are not enforced, increasing the number will just make the problem worse.
- If they are being cared for and not causing issue then it is no one else's business but the owner.
- If the animals are being well cared for, are healthy and behaved why does it matter how many animals are in a private residence. Again, this should be reviewed on a case by case basis. The restriction should be placed on people, not households. If a person is convicted of animal abuse or neglect; that individual(s) should be restricted.
- I support alimony for owning animals, and it should be lower -4. They MUST also be a limit on the number of dogs a dositter can have, and they should have to have a license. There must also be a limit on the number of dogs dog walkers can have in public. They don't pick up after all these dogs and it's gross. They can't control all the dogs either in off-leash areas. No way can you properly control 10 dogs. This is a disappointing oversight in your review.

- If the owners care for the pet and property there should be no problems with several pets
- Next to impossible to enforce
- 6 dogs or 6 cats???? yikes. Most people can't even properly take care for one animal. Vet visits, food, litter all cost lots of money. Having a pet is a huge responsibility both financial and time.
- 3 and 3 should be the limit...with exception for animals under 8 months of age to allow for litters.
- this is too many animals. max 6 of mixed would be more than sufficient
- Do not increase the amount of animals that can be kept in the city.
- I shouldn't have to license my pet.
- Good animal keeping is going to be based on Responsible pet owners, not a limit which would be extremely hard to enforce, regardless of enforcement
- Should be a maximum of 4
- 2 dogs and 2 cats per household is more than enough. Even that is a lot. A special application could be put in place if they want more but then they should have financial backup and training documentation to support these animals. You talk about animal aggression but then you want to allow people to have 6 dogs. I can guarantee a vast majority of these people don't and can't afford to properly train or properly care for that many animals.
- The limit should be lower
- Arbitrary pet counts have no bearing on the responsible behaviour of pet owners. Where owners are failing to provide healthy environments for their animals or are negatively impacting neighbours, the city needs to act on a case by case basis.
- If you want more than 2 animals of the same species, move to an acreage. I'm also against anything that makes it easier for people to breed animals. We still have too many animals ending up unwanted and in bad situations.
- animals are like children for many people. responsible ownership practice should be the goal not bylaw enforcement
- Number is excessive. Total of four animals is plenty for anyone!
- The government should not have any right to decide how many animals a household can take care of. There are other bylaws in place to ensure the animals' wellbeing and that of the community around it.
- 6 and 6 is extremely high. It's hard to imagine a city property that could accommodate so many animals. Would limit to 3 and 3.
- There is no need for anyone to have that many pets. If they fall under financial hardship their animals would struggle first.
- 6 dogs is too many for any single family home much less denser housing. How would one walk and exercise that many dogs? There are already problems in off-leash dog parks where dog walkers are walking multiple dogs. I have seen many instances of inappropriate dog behaviours which are ignored due to the # of animals the walker is handling. Also less poop scooping as no one can possibly observe that many animals. Changing the bylaw to allow more animals leads to only more problems in my opinion and lends itself to animal hoarders and abusive or negligent situations.

- Maximum of two animals per household that is it
- I think that 6 dogs and six cats is completely unreasonable and should be reduced significantly.
- Pets are companions, not a business or a hobby which I think having anymore than 2 becomes.
- I believe it all comes down to how responsible the owner is with the animals. Some might be able to take care of 10 cats and others can't even take care of 1 cat, case by case basis
- People can't take care of 1 or 2 animals why would we then allow up to potentially 12 pets. Are these people running a zoo or a farm that a single home has that much room for that many animals. What about the noise, smell, urine and feces? How horrible would that home be?
- 6 of either is way too many
- [removed]
- 6 animals is too much
- 6 dogs is too many for one household. Maximum should be 4.
- Limit should be a maximum of 3 except as stated in above circumstances.
- If animals are cared for properly, no one has the right to say what is the right amount. If people are not taking care, then they should be punished with far greater fines and imprisonment than we currently have
- I have five dogs, all purebred and four of them bred by me. They seldom if ever bark whereas the two dogs behind me bark constantly day and night. Most people in the neighbourhood who have known me for many years ask me whether I still have a dog; that is how quiet and obedient they are. I would be very surprised to learn if there are many households in Calgary with numbers of dogs sufficient to warrant such a bylaw.
- No limit should be put on animals as long as animals are well taken care of and monitored well by owners
- This seems like legislating for a problem that doesn't exist. By putting limits on something where there wasn't before, it's intrusive. Sure there are some cases of hoarding that pop up once in a while, but 99.9999% of people within the city would have under 12 animals on their property.
- We don't limit children so as long as all animals are taken care of it's fine. 1 animal that is not taken care of is too many so the issue is with the owner not the number
- There is no need for that many animals in one house
- I don't support this 6 animal limit. I think 4 is a more realistic number.
- that's too many dogs. 4 dogs max - or 6 cats.
- The targets above that this is trying to address can happen with one pet and not happen with 6. It's the people who own them who are the problem. Make the targets what is enforceable no matter the number of pets.
- The possibility of 12 pets per property is way too many unless it is a foster program. I live next to 4 dogs and it drives me crazy. Can't imagine what it would be like if someone had 6.
- 12 animals are too many but existing excesses should be grandfathered.

- Allowing a total of 12+ animals on one property seems excessive. Toronto has a pet limit of 3 dogs AND 6 cats per household - given that dogs are larger and often louder than cats, it seems logical to me that there should be fewer of them permitted in one household.
- I don't believe in (a) licensing an animal and (b) imposing unusual/unnecessary limits on things.
- set limit to two, you want more buy a farm, go rural.
- That's way too many animals for one house. I would question the well being of all those animals i
- As long as they're cared for, who are you to say how many pets somebody has?
- Too many. Limit to 4 eAch
- Too many issues when owning many pets, including but not including the costs.
- I will always support safe and supportive animal fostering with competent foster parents! They should have the ability to keep more then 12 animals
- I don't think that many animals in one house is reasonable for the safe my of those animals and the mental health of owners
- Six of each is far too many on a small property.
- People should be allowed to own as many pets as they please.
- I support no more than two cats an/or dogs per household
- Everyone should have the freedom to have any amount of pets they want, as long as they are being well taken care of
- limit should be 2 dogs and 2 cats per household. Exceptions require an approved excess animal permit regardless of the exception.
- Reduce limit to three. Unless you are a breeder why do you need six. If you are a dog breeder move to an acreage.
- Can't see how 1 household could properly care for that many pets. This is a city not a barnyard.
- i dont like idea
- This needs to be seriously looked at and either an application or review needs to be submitted. I lived with 4 dogs at one point because I fostered and adopted the most recent one (who conveniently is the blockheaded' dog) I was able to care for the amount of maintenance and cleanup required but I know with absolute certainty that not everyone can.. this shouldn't be a rule that is blindly allowed. Approval will need to be given. I dont think you realize how much work 6 dogs is. I have 8 currently and that's a handful.
- no need to have the number be so high
- Pets are like children to owners. We don't limit the number of children someone can have. Discrimination. If they are cared for and healthy there should be no limit.
- As long as owners can provide & care for their pets, I do not feel there should be no limit
- This is way! too many animals for anyone to care for no matter the situation. The stress for the animals would be very high living amongst 5 other animals. Please start the maximum at 2 pets so that animals are cared for properly.
- This is too many animals and could result in excessive noise and smells for neighbours
- 6 of each seems very excessive in one household. 2 or 3 of each seems like more than enough.

- if it is not harming the animals or others, there shouldn't be a limit on a person's number of pets.
- Limit of animals seems high. I would bring the number down even lower! 3 dogs and 3 cats per household.
- Limit of two pets per household.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many except if breeding. limit it to 3 and 3
- I think six is reasonable in most circumstances, but I think there should be an application for more, to be granted based on living conditions and quality of care.
- I do not believe anyone needs more than 2 pets.
- I support limiting 1 dog / 1 cat per household.
- 12 pets is absurd. There is no way to attend the needs of each animal. Excessive noise and roaming would be an issue.
- 4 pets in total is surely enough—exceptions as listed except Dog Fanciers (need to cut down on dog breeding), and no Excess Animal Permit, and Service Animals (surely a person doesn't need more than 4 Service Animals).
- I don't think there should be a limit as long as there is proper care and space.
- The need or even desire to have an exemption that allows one to keep more than six each of cats or dogs on a single property (especially a residential one) is based solely around the desire for profit. While foster homes or service animal training centres could benefit from being exempt from the limit, allowing breeders to also operate under this exemption only creates conditions that let puppy mills and backyard breeders proliferate.
- I would be okay with 3 of each animal with the same exceptions applying
- I would say four cats and four dogs per household would be more than adequate.
- If there foster for shelter of some sort or medical shelter dont see why people need that many animals
- Special application is suspicious and poorly explained
- This is a democratic society, we don't live in a dictatorship that government controls how many pets we keep...what's next kids.
- I would support a change to a household Limit of 2 cats and 2 dogs. No one needs More than that.
- Enforcement of bylaw is more necessary. A home can have 1 pet and still have excessive noise, accumulation of feces, and poor welfare of the animal. While those with 6+ pets can still have all those requirements fully addressed. Number of animals owned doesnt ensure proper care.
- Each circumstance is different. I've seen places with 3 dogs that don't make a sound and you have one household with one yappy little toy dog
- 6 dogs or cats per household is way too high. a limit of 2-3 is more than enough.
- The number of pets shouldn't matter here, focus on the living and care conditions instead. If a person can house any number of animals in safe, sanitary and well-managed conditions, then what's the harm? Most households likely wouldn't be able to meet those living standards for huge numbers of animals. Some households can't provide those standards of living for just 1 animal..

- I would support this idea as long as special application is free of charge. As long as animals are cared for well, not mistreated and not bothering anyone, why cause more expense. I think animal hoarding should be examined on case-by-case basis by people qualified to assess the said owner.
- Too many animals reduces ones ability to provide proper care. Limiting the number of pets not only helps address nuisance but also may improve the welfare and conditions for pets.
- Any restrictions on the number of pets should be on the basis of living space/property size, rather than a one size fits all number.
- I think this is based on a case by case basis and should be handled as such.
- I think in most cases aside from those where hoarding etc occurs, most know their limit. Better to fine if day feces etc not picked up versus limiting animals per home.
- No one other than an association accredited fancier in a suitable non residential home should have 6 no one with out income means or location should have more than 1. We had 1 AB licensed service dog who has more? Same for licensed medical dogs only people using fake designations would ever try
- Unfair, likely to reduce Number of licences Purchased
- Less city oversight
- 6 dogs, or 6 cats, is too high of a number for most households. A limit of 2 dogs or 2 cats should be explored. Breeders should not be within city neighbourhoods, and household pets must be 'fixed' to prevent accidental breeding. Permits beyond the limit should not be allowed, whether a 'fancier' or not. Animal daycares need to be in commercial space only, not neighbourhoods.
- Up to 12 animals in one household seems excessive. Maybe only under special circumstances
- Would not stop bad breeders or puppy mills.
- This is too much to have 6 dogs for household.
- Unrealistic & unfair
- Six is too high a number. Smell, noise, safety and welfare of the animal as is difficult to manage. Two is a good limit
- As long as the animals are well taken care of, both inside and outside. It really shouldn't matter how many pets a household has. This includes regular vet appointments and licenses for each animal
- I support the limits, but the exception regarding "dog fanciers licenses" should not be included. It would just be a way for wealthier pet owners to keep more animals. In fact, given that the proposed bylaw contemplates exemptions by application, the categories of automatic exemption should be eliminated altogether.
- 6 of each is far too high
- There should be no limit
- Case by case basis. Some people are fine with having more animals and take great care of them. Others, may not be.
- 6 is too many
- I believe that 6 is too many of any animal in a household, unless it is part of any of these above exceptions. 3 of each (3 cats AND 3 dogs - all licensed) seems more reasonable.
- If there are fines for noise, dedication, etc. It's not fair to punish responsible pet owners

- How about you go after backyard breeders? There are trash people breeding 2 random pitbulls and using them as a paycheck. It's not fair. There are so many pitties already without homes. Go after backyard breeders. There is no such thing as bad dogs, only bad owners. You are not making choose which of my pitties to give up. They are everything to me. Over my dead body will you ever touch my dogs. I am a good responsible owner. I don't even take my dogs for walks anymore because I'm scared of stupid pro BSL people. This is like the holocaust. You are branding pitbulls and trying to take them away and kill them. You will not touch my dogs.BSL
- Not your business
- Needs to be way less. In the City 4 dogs and 4 cats is enough.
- The numbers should not be an issue, so long as the owners adhere to all bylaws and guidelines that coincide with owning pets. Perhaps in-person assessments of animal living conditions should be executed with the purchase of a seventh (or whatever the limit is) pet.
- Pet limit per household is too high. 2 dogs & 2 cats is a much more reasonable#. It would help to prevent people from having puppy mills in private homes & hoarding pets when they cannot afford to ensure the animals care (ie: vaccinations, spaying/neutering & feeding. The potential exceptions listed above are agreeable.
- People that are breathing once they have that letter there over there 6 not fair
- Limit should be lower than six dogs or six cats. No more than 3 dogs - exception when a dog or cat has a litter until animals are placed in other homes.
- 6 is too many
- I don't believe any household should have more than 2 pets total. The only exception being a mom with puppies or service animals.
- Should be the same.
- The limit should be 2 dogs and 2 cats per household. I agree with all the exceptions listed above.
- If a person wants more animals and has the means and space, as well as the accountability, why should they be prevented from having more than six? My issue is with people who don't properly care for their animals. I'd support a limit if it's set based on size of home, for example. But even then, little dogs don't require the same amount of space as big dogs. Putting an arbitrary limit on everyone really isn't fair. Most people are responsible pet guardians and don't require restrictions.
- Excessive number. A property/home could have up to 12 animals.
- max of 2 animals
- 6 cats or 6 dogs is a nuisance in dense neighbourhoods - no household should have more than 3-4 large pets (cats, dogs). They should apply to get more and only be approved if there are no complaints in the past 12 months.
- 6 is too many, especially for dogs.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats seems excessive, perhaps a total of 6 (cats and dogs combined) I would support the change and all the special accommodations
- if you want more animals, move outside the city where the animals have space to have a decent yard and explore.

- Over stepping again. If a person wants 6 cats and 6 dogs that should be their choice. Where you can take a stand to take away animals is if there are children in the home and it is not maintained and becomes a health hazard. Those situations need intervention, not all, so stop taking away people's freedoms.
- So long as the property is large enough for the animals to be happy, and the owners clean and train their animals there is no issue in having more. I believe we should crack down on irresponsible ownership
- If the person is able to properly care for and maintain their animals there should not be a limit on it.
- I have responsible family that has 10 very well behaved dogs who love everyone.
- You can have 12 animals in an apartment!? The limit should be four total; any breeders should apply for a business licence and one time accident per pregnancy should apply for a permit exemption
- I do not agree that someone can not have more than 6 animals
- Too many animals in this city. I've lived in every quadrant and have to deal with dogs barking all night everywhere. My neighbor has at least 4 dogs, they are noisy and their yard smells like shit. I also see people struggle to control even 2 dogs when they are taking them for walks.
- I agree with the 6 dog and 6 cat limit, but the owner should have to prove the living conditions are suitable for the animals after 6 animals total.
- six dogs or cats is an excessive number. No one needs that number of pets. It's just allowing for the potential of abuse of the neighbours.
- People who usually want this many animals fail to clean up after them, or train them properly, which leads to a substantial amount of noise and feces
- Foster and pet sitters should be limited to 6-same as household
- Putting a hard limit wont really help. If the animals are all well cared for, not causing disturbances, etc then the limit isnt necessary. This should be situation dependent. Perhaps have a requirement that anything over 2 and 2 and you have to provide proof of your ability to care for and control them while also and maintaining your yard to prevent odours, etc.
- It makes no sense to limit numbers; the issue is not how many or the size of the animal, but how the owner cares for it. One dog can cause tremendous disturbance and sanitation problems, if the owner fails to act responsibly. Calgary has been a stellar example for decades of responsibility households with multiple dogs; many of which are hobbyists or single people or elderly people who benefit emotionally due to the demands of maintaining a clean, quiet and sanitary animal husbandry hobby. This is not something to arbitrarily limit with any number. Requiring people to apply for fancier licenses has failed in other jurisdictions because of zoning restrictions. It is deceiving to offer such an option, then have applications denied because of zoning issues. Let the hobby breeders continue to function well, as the vast majority are doing; without limit. Put again the onus on ownership to be responsible: clean, quiet and safe - that is a value that all Calgarians can support without restricting the joy that owners of multiple animals have, while living in this city.
- Often pet owners can not afford vet fees for these animals and they end up in the shelter or euthanized so no we should not be increasing the limit to dogs/cats in the city.

- I say it come down to the size of the animal and the size of the property. It makes a difference in the ability to care for the animal. That should be the number one factor no matter what.
- Too many animals in a household
- Once again this only addresses the law-abiding people. This becomes a paper complex situation that cannot be investigated or enforced. Animal hoarders will always be found in any city, and should be dealt with as each requires. Policing this would be exorbitant and could create many more neighbourhood conflicts. Am I required to show by permit to every neighbour? This is intrusive and unnecessary.
- I feel like being able to own up to 6 dogs and cats at one time is a bit excessive. I think 3 of each is a more reasonable number. Any more then that I would be questioning if a person would be able to financially take care of the pets wellbeing, between feeding them, licensing for all of them, keeping up with vaccinations and just regular vet visits. All that can add up pretty quick without adding in if they happen to get sick or injured.
- As long as the animals are being taken care of and there are no complaints it shouldn't matter how many animals they own
- I'm not convinced that anyone needs to have that many pets (dogs and cats) at home given that I don't think that a reasonable amount of care can be given to that many dogs and cats within the same household. The exception of course would be for a litter of puppies or kittens.
- I suggest a lower number (3 dogs and 3 cats) with the above mentioned exceptions or special approvals.
- No one within city should be allowed more than 2 pets, if someone needs or requires more than 2, they can move out of city to an acreage and go nuts.
- There's is no need for more than 4 licensed animals in a home, unless the restrictions are in conjunction with property size.
- 12 animals in one household is way too much. It's too hard to ensure that people are caring for them adequately. I don't believe the city has the resources or the desire to enforce this.
- The limit should be lower by 50% of the proposed bylaw change (3 dogs and 3 cats).
- I think a blanket limit based on household would be unfair to the animals, and should rather be based on environment. The limit should be based on property size, i.e. a single story house should be allowed fewer adult animals than someone who own many acres where the animals have room to live comfortably, and the animals' access to social contact. This could be assessed based on the animal in question (ex: dogs need more space than cats), and could be calculated based on size of dog as well (large dogs need more room than small dogs), and after a certain number of animals has been reached (ex: let's say 6 animals) an assessment of their time spent socializing with humans and other animals should be considered. I have no issues with the proposed exceptions, except for Dog Fanciers as that seems like a way for the wealthy who want ignore the rules by possessing purebreed animals. Given the unlikelihood of my proposal being accepted, I would support the change over no change; however, I do think a small house with 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive and detrimental to the well being of the animals, and it would be better to assess based on space available.

- It's circumstantial.
- 6 is too many, maybe set limit at 3
- Pet owners should be responsible for their pets and the pets actions. If they cannot properly care for the animals then they should not be allowed to have them.
- The number should be max 2 and 2 with the exceptions
- Unless there is evidence of animal hoarding, I think people should be able to have as many pets as they like. Providing they are able to care for them.
- 6 is way too many! We are already getting overrun with pets.
- This is an unreasonable intrusion into people private homes and property. Cats are indoor animals and their numbers should not affect those in adjacent homes
- Just more pointless bylaws we need to follow that only apply to really a select FEW people. Aren't there better things we should be worrying about?
- 12 animals per household is way too much. It is unfair to the animals. I believe 4-5 is more than enough.
- Poses the potential for animals to be neglected. Living in the city would not allow for appropriate room for animals to roam -i.e. backyards
- Too many animals. Not sanitary.
- 6 is still too high. I have two dogs. That is reasonable. I would agree to a max of say 3. (Cat OR Dog - NOT BOTH)
- If owners are responsible and able to care for their pets there should not be a limit
- Unless they live on an acreage or farm, there is no reason that any owner should have more than 2 dogs and/or cats. Any more would become extremely disruptive to neighbours and, especially in the case of dogs, greatly reduce the probability that animals will be properly cared for, exercised, and feces picked up. It's upsetting to hear that so many dogs and cats may be permitted per household, plus pigeons and hens allowed. This is the CITY... not the country, not a farm, not an acreage. Allowing these bylaw changes will reduce property values and increase noise, unsightly premises, irresponsible owners bylaw complaints.
- No one should have 6 pets.
- Don't like this.
- Within a dense urban environment 2-3 dogs/cats should be the max.
- I don't believe it is city councils right to tell someone how many pets they can have
- People love collecting animals. Very few people are able to behave responsible enough to have 6 dogs or cats. Eventually most people who own more than 2-3 pets fall behind in cleaning litter boxes or clear yards of dog excrement. In my experience often people who hoard animals have mental health issues and it's very hard to come to a positive resolution if there are bylaw infractions, because they simply do not understand or choose not to.
- again basic [removed] the city needs to focus on real issues
- 6 is too high 2-4 max. No exceptions.
- Cats are not social creatures (contrary to common opinion). They need to be engaged in life (yes, that is different), whether that be toys, human interaction, or daily exercise. The increase, as proposed, will increase stray cats, as owners generally watch over their cats less as the numbers in a house increase. This should not be allowed via special application. Dogs vary greatly. 6 dogs is very reasonable in instances of behavioural excellence, and large yard area. 6 dogs should only be allowed via special application. The current limits do well.

- 12 pets in one household is a lot to care for. I agree with the exceptions noted. Suggest lowering pets to 4 in total of any domesticated species (cat, dog, bird, iguana...)
- It is none of anyone's business how many dogs/cats someone has - as long as they are well cared for.
- Limit the number of animals in a household. In most instances numerous animal homes are not responsible for them ie: training, exercise and health care.
- I think that 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive. I support the no more than 2 each group.
- Limiting people's rights is the opposite of what government should do.
- Do not impose limits. If clean, responsible home, and animals are cared for LEAVE IT ALONE
- I typically support this because I believe it would be unreasonable to have more pets than this but also I support letting people do what they want to do. Plus with smaller breeds of dogs, I would feel comfortable having more than 6, depending on the size of my house/yard.
- I would want less dogs and cats per household ie 3 total
- As long as the situation isn't a hoarding situation and the animals are all licensed and properly cared for and not becoming a nuisance to the neighbours, have as many as you want.
- The increase amount is too large a jump (from 2 to 6 of each) to allow for adjustment of bylaw officer enforcement or owners costs and responsibilities. In addition, I believe the by law limit should be totally number of animals in a home, not for each type of animal. I would support a limit increase to 3.
- I don't want to live beside someone with 6 dogs or cats. I would be worried about the excessive feces and noise!!
- Higher fines domcumulation of feces on a property Excessive noise (eg. barking
- You want six dogs get a farm
- I would support an exception for grandfathering in if the rules change, but having an excess. Umber of animals creates unnecessary noise, mess, and unhygienic conditions so should not be allowed in circumstances other then when grandfathered.
- I expect there would be exceptional circumstances and I don't trust the City's responsiveness to deal with exceptions.
- No more than 4 total animals (dogs and cats) is sufficient
- Six is too many as it is.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats in one residence in the city is way too many!
- 6 is too many for a household
- The limit should be 2. Exception for a litter for a period of 12 weeks
- 12 animals in 1 house is too much!!!
- 1pet is enough

- you have no right to dictate the amount of animals someone wants to rescue/foster as long as the animals are all well cared for.
- Case by case basis when problems arise is far better than arbitrary limits.
- No
- Far too many animals for one urban household - too many chances for abuse (of the rules, animals, neighbours, etc.), hoarding, illegal breeding/selling operations.
- Limit is too high. Should be 2 per household
- bad pet owners are bad whether they have 1 or 10 animals
- 3 dog limit and 3 cat limit. 6 of each is WAY too high.
- I'm not sure if I want the city determining my ability to care for my animals and restrict numbers. I wonder if this is being raised because of hoarding situations which is a whole different cause vs. responsible pet ownership issues.
- As long as all other laws are followed and the animals are taken care of there should not be a restriction
- That's way too many dogs/cats!
- As long as there is care for the animals on all levels there should be no restrictions.
- I think 6 dogs and cats are far too many to take care of responsibility
- The numbers of pets does not determine their behavior or their owners behavior
- Maximum number of 6 is too low. Raise to 10
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many for one home, 3 dogs and 3 cats would be a good maximum
- If they can properly take care of said animals, there should be no limit
- Too much under one law change some need to be singled out
- 6 pets per household seems too high of a limit
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is outrageous, unless you have a large property. I think the bylaw should be based on property size.
- A limit of 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many for a person to handle. And the barking!!! and the cats wandering!!! A lot of low income families have animals and can't afford to feed them. I've had clients to know this statement is true.
- 6 is too many
- too many still
- As long as can care adequately for animals and surroundings, should be allowed
- G
- What worked well in our townhouse complex was limiting a household to 2 pets. A pet limit of 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many. I suggest 3 and 3.
- 6 dogs is excessive and unless they are fully trained and managed by a responsible owner, the potential for attack and injury is high. Limit of 4 is reasonable. 6 cats is also excessive but far more manageable if kept clean and healthy.
- That's too many animals for a lot of properties in the city. It would not be good for the animals welfare or the humans if there were that many in, for example, an apartment. Making the limit 6 cats and 3 dogs or around that but having those exceptions listed above seems a better option. Then, for those in situations where they can provide the space and environment for more than that number can apply for a permit. I think this would help limit the situations where people end up with more animals than they can care for

- Pet limit is too high should be a maximum 3 or 4 pets (dogs or cats) per household.
- No more than two dogs or cats per property
- It doesn't seem necessary to limit numbers of animals so long as other bylaws (noise, safety etc) are being followed.
- 6 dogs is FAR too many for a healthy environment for humans. 6 cats is not as dangerous biologically, but there is no reason to have that many. The ONLY exception to this should be made for LICENSED breeders, with NO other exceptions.
- 6 is outrageous. The limit should be lower.
- As long as the pets are cared for the city should not decide what happens in someone's house
- i think only under certain circumstances like a rescue or such should have that many animals. it is not fair to the animals in any way.
- Pet limit should be 2 pets total per household.
- There should be no enforced limit on pets
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is too much. I would support 3 cats and 3 dogs. I agree with the exceptions listed above.
- 6 is enough
- Limit 2 dogs per household
- There is no reason for anyone to have 6 dogs and 6 cats in a household. I think the number should be no more than 2 dogs and 2 cats per household.
- 2 seems much more reasonable
- There is no need for a limit if there is no issues with the well being of the animals. Also licensing is a waste of time and money
- That is alot of animals they require alot of space, only on a larger plot of land would so many be feasible
- 6 is too many in a city. Two maybe 3 tops.
- I'm absolutely certain that most pet owners have no idea of the environmental impact pets have. We are telling humans to eat less red meat, while their six cats and six dogs are chowing down on other animals.
- It can become a hoarder thing and not all pets are emotionally and physically cared for.
- Six dogs is called a pack and can be dangerous on itself unless it's a breeder
- People do not need more pets as they cause excess noise and smell
- Six is too many.
- 6 is still too many pets to care for properly.
- People should be aloud what they want

- I don't believe responsible owners should be punished/limited because of problem owners. Problem owners who own multiple animals that have feces/noise/welfare issues should be dealt with through enforcement of those specific bylaws. A problem owner with one dog could create a higher nuisance than a responsible owner with 10 dogs.
- If they are being taken care of properly, there should be no limit and if the animals aren't bothering anyone there should be no limit. I don't agree with charging an owner if the animal doesn't go outside either.
- The 6 dogs & 6 cats is already too many
- I just don't see why?
- as long as people can afford to keep these animals healthy they should be able to have animals
- Nobody needs to be limited unless they are unable to properly care, excessive noise, unmanageable
- The limit of 6 is too high. To ensure proper care, nutrition, health, and property concerns (barking, feces) this limit should be reduced.
- No
- Animal neglect and lack of training is too common as it is.
- Maybe limit to 10 but 6 seems to low
- I think 2 dogs and 2 cats should be the limit within an urban environment. A house with up to 12 animals in it would be challenging to keep clean, keep quiet, hard to re-sell.
- Under normal circumstances, I believe the limit for animals in a home should be 3 or 4 only. I agree with the exceptions.
- I believe 6 of each is still too high.
- Limit is too high
- 6 dogs in one house in the city is too much. Animals need room to run to thrive and burn off energy. Limiting to 2 dogs in the city
- 6 dogs and/or 6 cats is too large a number to provide adequate home care, attention, and vet care
- I strongly believe a maximum of 2 dogs and 2 cats, with exceptions for foster pets (1 foster animal per household). I have 2 dogs and 1 cat. I would not have the time to optimally provide proper attention to more animals, especially dogs. Daily training, walks, and play are important for dogs. More than two dogs and it becomes increasingly difficult to provide this care and attention. Although cats don't require the same high level of care, they do still require attention and litter boxes are hard enough to keep odour-free with one cat, never mind six!
- Owners can have as many animals as they want as long as they are responsible and take ownership of properly caring for the animals
- Too many animals leads to disputes between neighbours
- I don't support State intervention in a person's right to choose their pets.
- 12 animals simply cannot be controlled by anyone, period. limit 2 animals per property.
- I understand you could have 6 dogs and 6 cats but not 8 cats or 8 dogs. If I understand that correctly then that seems wrong. If it were like max 12 or 10 combination of cats and dogs that would make sense to me more and I would support it.

- I don't think people need to have so many animals.
- j
- No one needs that many dogs or cats. 2 of each is more than enough. Exception is for newly born pups/kittens and the owner should be allowed 2/3 months to find new owners.
- That's too many animals on a city lot. Maybe there should be different rules for the size of the animals and the size of the lot? Like say, 1/2 acre lots can have more, under 1/2 acre are more restricted. Also, 6 Chihuahuas is a lot less poop than 6 Labs (or Danes), however those 6 Chihuahua probably make more noise!
- I know a lot of people who have one animal and can't take care of it and I know people who have six animals and take care of them just fine
- That is way too many animals in one home. Should be based off square footage as well. That law opens up to dangerous situations
- no limit
- I do not support animal limits. Owner responsibility and quality of care are key criteria
- Takin take of a pet is big responsibility, effort and cost. I have no faith that one household can take care of 6 pets. Allowing a home owner the opportunity to have 6 pets shows no regard for neighbours, or neighbourhood.
- I object to this limit as arbitrary.
- This seems like it could unfairly target some responsible pet owners who could be unfairly targeted
- The number is too arbitrary. Limits and restrictions should only be implemented in the case of an established problem. There is no reason to bother anyone who isn't causing trouble or harm
- This is ridiculous. As long as all of the animals are well taken care of, why is it anyone's business how many someone has on their property? Some people throw birthday parties for their animals or have family gatherings where family members bring their pets too, would a fine be given in this situation because there are more than 6 dogs/cats on the property? As long as the yard and the animals are well taken care of, it is no one's business how many animals a home has.
- There should be a land size consideration. For example, acreages, etc.
- I believe there should be no limit
- I do not support animal limites. Owner responsibility and quality of care should be criteria, not the number of animals.
- There should be no limit, by default, with limits only imposed on those who show irresponsibility or continually have problem animals.
- I would support this ammendment if there was an exemption or high voluke per licence for those rare occasions where peolpe hqve many animals AND adequately care for them
- There should be no limit to the amount of pets you can own. You can have 1 dog on your property and create excessive noise. Putting in a limit per household does not solve anything. It's up to the owner to ensure the noise level and cleanliness is under control.
- 6 is very high, not something that would be typical in a normal household, a limit of 3 might make more sense with the exceptions in the bullet points listed.
- 6 dogs or cats per property is too much (unless there are puppies)

- six dogs is an insane number of dogs for one household. the limit should be lower, maybe 4 dogs. six cats is also a lot but more manageable but I would reduce that to four as well.
- A
- There should be no limit
- I agree with everything except in case of new born animals or foster homes with licensing. To license puppies before they are sold seems silly, as is with foster situations where they are fostering for a rescue licensing seems difficult.
- If the home is capable of taking care of the animals, there is no reason to remove them from a loving home and family and force them into a place where they will be desperately sad and alone and dependant on a system.
- 6 is too many max 3 of each
- Nobody needs 6 unless it's a foster home.
- I feel like that's too many. Maybe 4 cats and 4 dogs is more reasonable.
- I don't think the number of dogs equate to quality of life for a dog/neighbours. One dog can be a nuisance and 6 dogs can be well behaved.
- The government should not restrict someones right to own animals it should be dictated by the land lord.
- Infringement on our rights within our own property
- Doing this allows for officers to "bandaid" every situation, sometimes people with only one pet abuse and neglect them. As long as animal needs and happiness are a priority and the living situation is not dangerous, it shouldn't matter.
- I support dealing with any issues that arise from animals at a house instead of trying to prevent them through restrictive laws. If my neighbor has ten silent well behaved, odourless dogs this makes no difference to me
- I think it should be 3 dogs & 3 cats.
- I don't think it's necessary. Based on housing size. And if there are animals being mistreated there will be more than just the AMOUNT of animals that will be an issue.
- It's not up to the government to decide how many animals a person could safely manage
- If you can properly care for your pets you should be able to have as many as you want. Some people cant have kids so they get pets. 6 kids is alot worse than having 6 pets and there's no limit on how many kids you can have.
- If people are responsible it shouldn't require rules
- it is irresponsible and ridiculous in most cases to allow more than 2 pets. You are also encouraging a reduced quality of life for the animals
- Let people live their own life
- I think this goes back to responsible pet owners being allowed to make responsible pet decisions. If a persons dwellings are large enough, clean and safe enough to accommodate a certain number of pets, then they should be allowed to make their own decisions. Calgary needs to step up their animal welfare game. Start going in and checking on the bad seeds more. Responsible pet owners are not on your radar because they are raising their pets well and their neighbours are content. Start going after the bad seeds. The folks on your radar are the ones that need the restrictions, not everyone across the board. Repeat and or known animal hoarders should be banned from owning pets for life. People that cannot afford their pets and known for having neglected, sick, or starving pets should be checked upon often and they too should be banned from owning pets for life if they cannot get it together, not simply limited in number.

- It would depend on the situation. Ie if u live on an acreage etc
- I do not support more regulation and pet licensing fees should be significantly reduced
- I agree to all of it except for the number of pets in the household. Six cats is too many as cats win and high numbers tend to become more feral. I would suggest no more than four cats. And I see no problem with having multiple dogs of any number on a property if it is multiple units on the property with different owners. But being a multiple dog owner myself three dogs should be the limit for one person.
- Most cities and towns only allow 3 pets per household.
- In general I support the bylaw change just with a different limit of animals. The potential of 12 animal in a house is too many. Unless you are a breeder you should never have that many animals in a house. And a breeder should not be allowed in a regular city property. Animal foster houses shouldn't be allowed to have that many animals either.
- 6 cats or 6 dogs is too many. There are already avenues that allow people to have large numbers of animals and we don't need to make it easier.
- While 6 seems like a reasonable number the broad definition of household is an issue. Some households based on size and number of occupants may be able to care for a greater number of animals. Dogs barking should not be a reason for a fine. It is more important to ensure a standard of well being for animals than enforcing numbers or noise levels.
- some people already have more then 6, and if have to move would be unfair to have to get rid of one or more
- More restrictions like annual household inspections to ensure living standards of the animals are adequate. Grandfathering should not happen, too much leeway. Everyone should be made to follow this and get proper licensing as well.
- I think 6 adult dogs or cats in a home is excessive in the city. Cats aren't allowed to go outside so 6 house cats...?! Quality of life for the animals would not be great. Does the size of dog come into consideration? 6 small dogs vs 6 labs is a big difference as well.
- Extra animals mean more potential conflicts with neighbours
- 6 is too many. Would you want to live next to six pit bulls?
- Numbers should be reduced if complaints are received.
- The number of dogs per household should be less than 6.....maybe 3 dog limit
- 6 cats is excessive. The urine can cause health problems. 6 dogs could also be excessive as well due to pack mentality. If this is approved I would suggest buy early home checks to ensure animal and owner health and safety. For dogs I would also suggest yearly dominance training to maintain order. This must be proven at time of licensing
- I would support it if it was easy for people to get exceptions

- this is a waste of time and paperwork for all of the exceptions that there may be. I do not think this many animals can be properly cared for and would be a unique circumstance anyways.
- A persons property is there's to choose how they want to live. Limiting will only cause grief and mistrust.
- No one needs to have 6 animals within city limits, this should be handled by special exemption
- Not necessary to have 6+ animals in a household
- People can have as many animals as they like.
- So long as pet owners are following the rules and their animals are well cared for then it's their own business. If suspected abuse/neglect/rule breaking is occurring then the individual should be subject to restrictions/bans on pet ownership
- potentially 12+ animals in one home could be unsafe for pets and cause for concern for noise and feces
- Three dogs in a high-density community.
- If the potential exceptions were actual exemptions than maybe
- Breeders have not been considered in this proposed bylaw. Ordinary families should be allowed 6 dogs and 6 cats, which are spayed or neutered.
- There needs to be actual exceptions to the rule not potential.
- Why limit at 12? That's a lot of animals
- Should not be a limit on amount of pets a person can own provided they can provide acceptable living conditions for the animals
- I believe it should be based on property size and ability to care for the animals
- There needs to be an assessment to ensure that animals are being properly cared for not basing solely on number of animals in a home.
- Way too many animals for one house unless it's an average.
- It's to many animals. Concerns for the care of the animals. Is there adequate space for these animals to exist in.
- Allowing 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many. The bylaw limit should be a maximum of 6 dogs/cats total. The bylaw of 6 dogs AND 6 cats makes it a farm. If you want a farm move out of the city.
- People should be free to have as many dogs as they like
- I support limits based on nuisance, odor, noise, and animal welfare, not by number of animals..
- A 3 dog maximum with exceptions is fair.
- Not necessary
- Absolutely no one, other than rescues/shelters, need that many animals.
- animals don't have to pay these [removed] price tags they have no idea what they're doing half the time. what are u gonna do huh? charge a dog? [removed]
- leave well enough alone
- There should be no limits on responsible owners
- Limit to 4 not 6
- 6 is too many.

- We have 2 dogs and frequently bring in a third as a temporary foster. I like the list of exceptions, but I think setting the limit at six dogs and six cats is excessive.
- I believe it would depend on the size of the property and what the circumstances are it is reasonable for 6 dogs and 6 cat limit or is this one or the other?
- i think its over regulating and government overstep.
- No household needs that many animals
- 6 dogs & 6 cats is excessive in one home, however I do support the extenuating circumstances listed above.
- Government should not control a person's ability to have a pet if the pets are taken care of. People should not require a pet license at all because having one does nothing for anyone other than alienate the poor.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is an awful lot of animals for one home. It would be unlikely that appropriate medical care for 12 animals would be affordable.
- Case by case basis. I am doubtful that just homes with pets have excessive amounts. If there is noise of other bylaw issues or complaints they need to be investigated and Possibly changes be made. A responsible owner is responsible.
- As we live in an urban environment people should not have more than 2-3 dogs or cats. There is not enough space to properly care for or maintain higher amounts safely
- If a family has 6 dogs and 6 cats in the home there are a total of 12 animals. There is no need for that many animals in one home or even more. Having that many animals is almost hoarding and I am very concerned about the care that these animals would get.
- To me six dogs AND six cats, in the city, is getting into a bit of a "pet hoarder" situation. I think it makes sense to increase the limit but to 6?? That is too much. Maybe to like 3-4 of each.
- While some people can take care of this many animals, the average person cannot and that does not give the animals lots of space. This is not fair to the animals.
- I believe we should be stricter on people who break the bylaws for animal noise, welfare and living conditions but if people can meet those requirements, there shouldn't be restrictions.
- Pet limits should be kept within reason ie maximum 6 pets per household wether it be 4 dogs and 2 cats etc, caring for animals shouldn't be limited to how many of each species, but how many in total
- I think 6 is excessive, especially in the city.
- If a person is able to properly care for the animals, and they are not creating issues for neighbors, there should be no limit on how many animals a person can have.
- Less laws, more personal responsibility. If someone is intent on having that many animals, a Bulawayo will not stop them.
- No one needs six cats and six dogs unless you live on a farm. You are asking for trouble allowing an unreasonable amount of animals per property. I am a foster and I agree that you could temporarily have up to 4 full grown dogs and maybe 4 cats but that's a lot of food, faces, and noise.
- If someone had a large property and can accommodate more animals, then they should be allowed to have more.

- 12 animals in a home is WAY TOO MANY!!!there should be 3dogs and 3 cats, any more would require a kennel Licence
- Too many pets for 1 house
- If the owner takes care of their animals and they aren't a nuisance to neighbors then why not
- 4 is plenty, the more animals in a household the less care and attention can be given to the animal.
- As long as animals are behaved, people can have as many as they like
- 6 animals total
- That's too many animals.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many pets for an average household to provide good care for. Good care includes good training and there are many dogs that are already not well-trained. Increasing the limit of pets per household will undoubtedly contribute to the problem of poorly trained dogs. I support a 6 pet total limit. That is more animals than anyone needs. I support the exceptions provided above. Ownership of pets should be a privilege based on the quality of care than can be provided to the animal, not a right to own just because some think it's a civil freedom.
- We need less government not more
- Instead of (6 dogs, 6 cats), 12 animals total, can be cats or dogs
- 12 animals in a household is excessive. The limit should be smaller with approval required to exceed the limit.
- Nobody needs 6 of each pet unless the pet has babies.
- Calgary is too dense, perhaps 2-3 dogs and cats maximum
- I think the max should be 3.
- No one else's business what I do miles I don't follow the rules
- I believe the number suggested it too high. 2 animals per household is sufficient.
- A person should be able to have as many pets as they want as long as they are taken care of.
- The government should not be involved in personal decisions unless there is proof that violations of common decency, pet health or dangerous situations exist. We have too much govt intervention now.
- Let people have as many pets as they want
- 12 animals in one house, excepting newborn litters, is far too many for it to be a healthy environment for the animals.
- I hate that our freedoms are being taken away. Some pet owners do t give proper care to even 1 pet. Responsible pet owners give proper care and love to several animals. This should be on a case by case
- 6 dogs or 6 cats is too many unless you are a sanctuary a rescue a foster with a large property or a farm.
- allow people to have as many pets as they want.
- Exceptions could be made for temporary homes as it would be for a shorter period of time. Any home with 6 dogs would be very unclean and near impossible to manage. To maintain a healthy living space for owners and animals I would say a maximum of 4 full time dogs and cats living in one home.

- 2 pets should be the maximum
- That is too many animals
- As these are "potential" and not for sure I'm very leery that these will make it into the bylaw.
- I don't think city should regulate how many pets an owner has. They can regulate conditions but not numbers.
- Again why does someone 'need' 12 pets in their home. 3 is more reasonable. Reduce #s so people can financially take care of them. Special permits required for breeders.
- If the animals are happy, healthy and being cared for I don't see it as a role for the city to limit what can be in a household. There isn't a limit on children one can have for "concern for their welfare"
- Breed specific legislation is ineffective.
- Should be no more than four out of consideration for neighbours
- 6 of each is too many. Edmonton does 3.
- Too many pets
- There should be a limit of cats and dogs, not cats or dogs. The proposed change appears to allow up to 12 animals in one household. I feel that limits should be set up based on property size and access to exercise area. Additional animals would then be approved based on individual cases as listed above.
- Case by case basis not flat rule.
- Do you limit how many kids people have? If they are good pet owners and it's a home that is large enough why would you buy I limit?
- 12 animals within city limits is excessive and does not address the health of the animals in question. Square footage of residence/yard should be considered for more than 2 of each
- Theoretically a person could have 6 dogs and 6 cats per household, that's 12 animals. Someone could have 6 dogs in a small townhouse, this is not appropriate and/or safe.
- That is way too many animals per household. I see a lot of irresponsible People purchasing animals possibly for the sake of fighting and breeding to resell. Terrible idea.
- If some one can support 6 dogs all the power to them. There just need to be bylaws in place to make sure they care for them.
- I feel that the potential to have up to 12 animals in a home is too much for the average home. I believe that this can lead to poor conditions for the animals. I believe the maximum should be lower than 6 and 6. I could understand 8 animals maximum in total (except in special circumstances such as an animal having babies resulting in more in the home temporarily).
- why lump so many options in one question? your survey is poorly written results will not be accurate
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is still too many. I think a maximum of 4 dogs and/or 4 cats to a maximum of 6 animals is reasonable. Exceptions should apply for those on large properties such as farms or acreages.
- A lot of pet owners don't provide the necessary stimulation for them to thrive which leads to problems.

- People can do what they want as long as they aren't disturbing others
- people never need 6 dogs more room for neglect
- As many people foster animals restricting number of animals does not help
- I agree with the exceptions however, 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is too many. I would be in favor of lowering the number of both dogs and cats per household to 4 each.
- 6 or each is excessive
- Unless it harms the quality of life for the animals or residents there should be no limits. Imposing limits should be the exception, not lifting them.
- Every family and household is different. The City should not be dictating the max number of cats or dogs.
- the limit is too high
- Because the number isn't the problem. You can have two animals and them be loud and disturbing and poop everywhere. And alternatively you can have 10 who are all angels and don't make a peep and are completely respectful. I don't think it's a number problem, it's a case by case. So putting a bylaw in enforcing a number just serves to anger people who love animals and want to take care of them.
- More animals means people are more likely to say no and take on too many animals. Their quality of care would go down. The number of animals should depend on housing circumstances ie acres of land, a fence or not, proper housing for all animals
- Leave as is
- That's a lot of animals for one household, 12 animals in a suburban home depending on the size is too many. I think if you can prove you have enough space for that many animals like 1+ acreage then ok, otherwise 3 dogs and or cats would be appropriate
- If animals are cared for properly and comply with existing bylaws then shouldn't be limited
- Responsible pet ownership shouldn't limit how many pets a person can have. Regulate cleanliness and odor and make sure they are being treated by a vet
- I have 4 animals, 1 of which is mine. Lots of roommate situations include 4+ animals at a time, plus if the owners are responsible, they shouldn't be restricted in the number of pets they can take in. I am curious what this would mean for foster homes for animals.
- I believe this same rules with slightly reduced #s would make sense. Perhaps 3 or 4 of both cats and dogs. 6 is too much. (I do not know what the current limit is)
- No one should be limited to how many pets they have on their own private property.
- If the animals are well taken care of, fed, loved and cleaned up after I don't think it's the city's concern how many are in a household
- If the home is large enough For the animals to be cared for properly them there is no concern
- 6 dogs is extreme. 3 dogs is manageable. 6 cats is manageable.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many for a small one bedroom apartment, but you could easily have 6+ cats and dogs on a large property with more space. The restrictions should be done by square footage of a property. Also 6 small dogs and very different to 6 large dogs so that should be considered as well.
- No

- It should be less than 6 and 6. Like 4 of each is alot.
- .
- I don't think you should police what Pets people have in their homes, it's pretty disgusting- also if someone already has this amount what do you plan to do about it? If you make the give up their pets that's awful and will gain a lot of bad media attention
- If someone already has more than 6 of each and this law is imposed, it's highly unethical to remove a pet, but then there's already people breaking the rule.
- Way too many pets for a single household in an urban setting
- It's stupid why do y'all care what people do so much? This is why we dumped all your tea in the river
- You have no right to tell people how to live and some of it your way outside of what you can do and if you try that on me I'm going to sue you for thousands
- I see no reason why the City should be implementing maximum numbers of pets.
- Let people own what they want and do what they want, it's nobody else's business as long as they take care of them all.
- There are so many circumstances that would lead to someone having more than 6 cats or dogs. It would lead to more work for the city if they required special approval for more than 6 animals
- People don't need an excessive amount of dogs and cats. Limiting the number of cats can help prevent hoarders from over accumulating and help prevent puppy mills from developing. No one needs six dogs or six cats and you will find many people with 12 animals in one house or apartment. The smell.
- People should be free to have however many pets they like
- animal hoarding could become an issue
- If someone wants 8 dogs let them have 8 dogs.
- People should have the freedom to decide how many pets to own. Should they fall into neglect then the owner should be challenged.
- No one needs 6 dogs AND 6 cats, especially in city limits.
- I don't think we should have a limit how many animals we have but if animals are mistreated then there should be a big fine
- Start limiting children then
- because it harms rescues -- You need to support those finding homes for unwanted animals and do everything in your power to make life easier -- including tags .
- It is not the cities business what a person has on their property. It is an individuals choice many pets one owns, can afford, and wants to have.
- The limit should be less than 6 each, more like 3 each, with the same exceptions.
- That is way too many animals in a home within city limits.
- Six dogs or cats is excessive for one household in an urban setting.
- The city interferes too much in everyone's lives already. Reasonable people have what they can handle, the thoughtless will be and remain despite rules.
- Licensing fees are silly. You do nothing for cat owners why should we pay the city

- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is too many. i think it should be limited to 2 of each. if you want 6 of anything then move to an acreage. there is not enough room in town for that many per household.
- If they are being looked after and healthy I see no change
- 12 animals in a house is not necessary
- Address the nuisances behaviour instead
- More than needed in an urban area
- Limits on pets is too much restriction
- no limit. Variances in property sizes would allow a responsible handler to continue their life in private.
- 2 is too. Lots of families have 3 or 4 dogs or cats. A limit yes, but at least 4.
- Ordinary people really only need 2 cats or dogs. More cause the animals not to be cared for properly. Exception would be breeders who would need to apply for license and follow regulations. The other exception would be foster homes and carers but that would need to follow regulations as well. Its not just about licensing animals need to be microchipped, vaccinated and wormed. Housed and feed properly. It all very well to love animals and want more but the animals welfare needs to be taken into consideration. There are alot of people out there they claim to love animals but should never be allowed to own them.
- Could result in more backyard breeders. Also more noise complaints, etc.
- Each circumstance is different
- Would create too much of a headache for the responsible people who own many animals and solve nothing of the people who are problematic.
- 6 is too high of a limit
- .
- 12 animals in a home is too many
- 6 is too many pets for anyone, especially in the city.
- 6 are too many
- I support the suggested change but think it could be more general ie: 12 animals total (ex. 4 dogs, 2 cats and 6 hens)
- There's so many other dogs more dangerous than various types of pit bulls/staffys. I've personally been bit by a German Shepard before. So to call out one specific breed of dog does not seem just.
- If you have a farm then you should be able to have as many as you'd like
- To a point but 6 dogs on a small lot size of owner is not cleaning up can be an issue.
- 6 pets is too many for a household.
- Too many pets which lead to excessive noise, fecal matter, and dust/ dander.
- There should be no limit on animals in the house hold as long as they are trained right.
- 12 animals in a household is ridiculous. It should be half this number (or less) with exceptions for the above listed items.
- 2 is more than enough. The noise alone would be awful.

- I feel that this should not be a blanket issue. Different sized living areas should reflect a different amount of animals allowed. Someone in a small apartment with no backyard shouldn't have the same amount as someone with a large backyard and ample area inside the house for the animals to live.
- These numbers are still do high. The maximum number of total pets should be 4. Unless someone has a license to own more (fosters, breeders, daycare,sitter...)
- It's no one's business how many pets they have. don't go around adding more laws for no reason. what if someone had puppies?
- Why does this matter? Let people have pets, we are not to police other people. This is ridiculous.
- the other rules are sufficient to manage pets kept, if they are enforced. Let good responsible pet owners have as many pets as they want. Go after the bad owners with existing bylaws.
- unless the owners are not properly caring for their pets, there should not be a limit
- A middle ground would be more appropriate. No one needs 6/6 - potentially 12 animals. Perhaps 4/4 could be considered as an alternative.
- There are few households that could hold 12 animals and not have issues of territorial behaviour, excess feces and urine, noise and still be safe and comfortable for those animals. 3 dogs and 3 cats is much more reasonable. I would support the potential exceptions for a limit of 3 dogs and 3 cats.
- I do not want a limit for responsible pet owners.
- 12 animals is excessive
- If a person or family is capable of taking care of their animals outside and inside their homes, it shouldn't matter as to how many they own. If both humans and animals are living perfectly healthy and fine lives, that should be it.
- Way too many animals for a single household
- Six dogs and six cats is far too high a number. At the most, it should be 3 animals.
- I would support it if there was rules around noise bylaws for 6 dogs noise and cats must be inside cats and not roamin. Feces need to be monitored to assure folowwing rules for the aftey and conformt of other animals and people enjoying thier dogs.
- People do not need more than 2 pets
- Nobody needs 6 dogs and/or 6 cats in a single house with a few exceptions
- bylaw reasonable but for infractions I would rather see support to re-home/education compassion used
- There is no reason for a common household to have more than 2 cats or 2 dogs
- Too difficult to enforce. Good people could be affected negatively.
- This is ridiculous and has no basis in cat owners being responsible. This is targeting the wrong types of pet owners.
- The number needs to be lower. Perhaps 2
- No one needs 6 animals in the city limits. It gets to noisy and dirty. I feel 3 would be right.
- If animals are taken care of, not your concern
- The existing bylaw regarding the number of pets per household is adequate

- An owner should be able to have as many animals as they want as long as they are taking care of them effectively and providing good living conditions for the pets.
- It's not up to the city to decide how many pet a responsible pet owner should have
- It's a free country, if I want 7 cats then I'll have them.
- From what I researched, I could not find a specific limit on pets per household. I think that should stay and if there is a concern for the pet safety then someone can be tasked with doing wellness checks on pets and making sure their living conditions are proper before deciding on any limit. If anything it should be a case by case basis and based on the owners ability to take care of them rather than how many animals.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats seems excessive. Ok with exceptions to the rules, but really how many pets does a person need in town, on a town lot.
- Should limit the number of Pets as homes are generally not big enough to accommodate more than a couple
- Contain the animal and noise appropriately and there aren't any issues. Do you limit the amount of kids you can have ? They're noisy and messy as we know. Don't be ridiculous.
- Leave pet owners alone
- Too many! No more than 2 dogs or cats are necessary. Seriously, please do not give people such opportunities to harm animals by negligence. Max 3 cats or dogs for average household, exceptions are okay. I would support bylaw change but with fewer animals allowed.
- The way this question is formulated is very deceptive. I support this bylaw change if the pet limit is one (1) dog - not a Pit-bull AND one (1) cat per household. If the owner says his income is enough to support more pets, then Canada revenue will increase that amount on this pet lover person's taxes to support the beaten economy of this country.
- Too many animals together!
- I support a limit, but I think it should be less than 6
- The city should not be enforcing animal restrictions unless someone has a troubled past. Many people like to rescue animals and have the ability, space and funds to do so. They should not be penalized because someone arbitrarily decides on a number that is "ok".
- I think 6 of each is way too high. I think a limit of 2 each except for the above restrictions makes more sense. So many animals in a neighbourhood may cause problems with neighbors due to possible noise or other problems depending on the owner.
- Feel as though 12 animals is excessive and could impede on the animals welfare
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many
- No one needs 6 dogs and 6 cats
- Three pets max
- 6 is far too many.
- Just noted above. Animals can be taken care of with thorough care, and a lot of people have litters of 6 puppies/kittens without making a big deal out of it
- Why does any household need that many animals???

- Breeders should need additional permits to own more than 3 or 4 pets, to reduce instances of pet mills.
- Noise. Feces. Crazy people. Feed your family
- Amount based upon size of the property owned
- That is way too many animals in one spot unless special circumstances. (Ie: RESPONSIBLE breeders or a kennel)
- No.
- This is excessive.
- I would support a maximum of 5 and 5.
- 2 dogs or cats per household should be ample in this city. Anything else is hoarding.
- Why is the number of pets such a concern if they are licensed and properly cared for
- 6 dogs and 6 cats in one house. Come on. That is just wrong on so many levels.
- More than 2 dogs/cats in a household is excessive, except in the exceptions listed above
- You should have to prove that you are financially as well as responsible enough to have that many pets.
- Stay the same.
- People can have as many dogs and cats as they want
- Pet limit should be less. People are not able to care for that many animals properly.
- No more then three dogs and two cats.
- While these things are important to think about, I don't believe numbers themselves are the issue. The issue is welfare and training of animals. Solve this problem by creating bylaws for the welfare and training of animals. You can have 10 well-behaved, taken-care-of dogs. You can also have 1 viscous, mistreated dog.
- 6 seems high (with the exceptions highlighted). 3-4 maximum
- If the pets are safe and in a good environment it shouldn't matter how many animals a home has
- If people can take care of the animals they have then they should be left alone
- Six animal limit is excessive. Two animal limits OK. If more animals are wanted, then special application and excess animal fee to be applied to a max of 3 animals of any type per household.
- This is way too many pets for one household. 2 max
- If it's indoors, it should not impact others. Hoarder situations are different and should be handled seperate without good owners being affected.
- Implementing further bureaucracy will cost more than the value it provides. Many people have the ability to care for pets in excess of the proposed number, increase individual license costs if the worry is too many pets.
- I feel like 3 dogs and cats would be acceptable
- Placing limits on animals kept will not address the underlying problems. Well kept animals will not be a nuisance, no matter if there are 2 or 10 in a households. Neglected animals, be there 1 or 100, are the problem I assume this bylaw wishes to address, yet people capable of inflicting cruelty upon animals in any way are people who also do not abide by bylaws. So, nothing is solved by setting such a limit.

- 12 animals per household is a ridiculously high number! All animals living within the city limits should be neutered. An unneutered animal should require a breeding licence and the cost of said licence should be hefty enough to deter and control the number of kittens and puppies being bred and marketed.
- Keep it low numbers!
- Really? Six dogs on a property!?!? What is this a zoo? Or farm?
- 6 of each animal is too much already.
- 2 pets total maximum for reasons stated above.
- As long as all animals are healthy, licensed and up to date on vaccines, there should be no limit to the number of pets in a household.
- 12 animals per house is ridiculous
- I wouldn't want to be the neighbour to six dogs! Two is good, four is encroaching on too many.
- Maximum of 3 dogs and/or 4 cats
- 6 is excessive. 2 of each is more than enough
- No one should have more than six dogs or cats unless they live on a multi acre land/home. Animals need room and no one can keep tracks of that many animals. It's for the let's welfare and to make sure there isn't hundreds of dogs in a house
- 4 dogs, and 4 cats. 12 animals is too many, there will be neglect.
- Number should be much lower. Anything above 2 should have a special application.
- There should not be a limit if all animals are loved and are in a healthy state, cared for and are not being used to breed.
- 2 and 2 with exceptions for a litter of puppies or kittens, or if someone has to take care of someone else's because they died or are sick.
- It is not reasonable to have 6 dogs and 6 cats. I support a limit of 3 in aggregate.
- 12 animals in a household is too many. I support a lower number and an application for exemptions.
- Numbers if pets are too high.
- Too many pets more concerns. Two per household unless more approved for certain circumstances
- In the city there is no house/yard big enough to accommodate 6 cats and 6 dog. There she limits
- Welfare, feces,
- If pet owners have more than 6, and cannot keep proper standards, follow bylaw rules at that point for infractions.
- That's is too many pets within the city limits
- Deal with problems. Don't create them.
- 6 dogs a pack. A pack can go to wild. 6 cats is too many for one person to clean up after.
- 12 animals in a house is like having a zoo at home. Not good for animals or neighbours.
- Nobody should need 6 animals UNLESS for the specified the above exceptions
- I have the right to own as many as I want as long as I take care of them and they are licensed

- It's not the quantity of animals that matters, it's the quality of care for the animals that matters
- 12 animals in one residential building sounds not only loud but unsanitary and unnecessary.
- 6 and 6 is way too much. I support 2 and 2
- This proposal should be for lower numbers of animals allowed. Perhaps 1 dog & 2 cats. This city is overrun with animals & parks, school yards & sidewalks are littered with feces left behind by irresponsible pet owners.
- I support it if the exceptions for dogs/cats under six month of age, and the exception for temporary homes (as above) are included.
- That number of animals is excessive for any household.
- 12 animals in a home is ridiculous. Two of each would be more than enough. If they want to breed and raise animals let them get a breeders license.
- There should be no limits of cats and dogs on property. It is up to the owner on how many they have
- If space and care is taken a priority I dont see a problem. With the exception of downtown maybe
- There should be no limit if the animals are properly cared for
- no one in the city should have more than one pet! in bearspaw the limit is 3 dogs and the yards are 10 acres on average, the city of Calgary yards are fractions of those in Bears paw and the limit should be ONE
- Too many animals to safely manage
- Would affect breeders and people who own sport dogs that compete.
- If they're properly taken care of and not causing a disturbance to others then it should not matter and the city shouldn't get involved. Also since there's no box for comments on the pit bull section it's absurd that you're attempting to put in restrictions for a specific breed because of the "potential" for stronger bites. It's the exact same as if a muscular person stabs someone and the city decides that anyone that attends a gym isn't allowed to own knives. It's not the breed it's the owners and how they're raised. Don't punish good dogs and owners because of other bad owners!
- The limit per household should be 2 dogs and 2 cats
- There should be no limit.
- Not sure how much of an issue this is
- Too many animals. Too much feces. 6 dogs and cats is an insane number unless in rural areas.
- Anything beyond 4 animals total should be considered a business, and would only be allowed in correctly zoned property.
- The number of 6 plus 6 is excessive. The only fair consideration would be breeding and that should require a permit and/or license. It would be more appropriate to require those to be out of the city (such as a farm).
- I think 6 is too many dogs, 4 is a better number. There should not be breeders in the city limits.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are too many animals. Should start with 3 dogs and 3 cats
- To many animals in a house a most two dogs or two cats
- No one needs a zoo in their house/yard

- If someone wants 100 dogs and takes care of them well it's none of the cities business, unless you guys wanna pay people's mortgages.
- One animal per household is just right. If every house in Calgary had one animal that would still be way too many animals in the city.
- It should be only two cats and two dogs
- Too many. Should be four max!
- People should be able to have as many pets as they want as long as they take proper care of them
- As long as animals are properly cared for and the owner is being responsible I believe there should be no limit to how many animals they wish to own
- Nobody needs more than 1-2 dogs or cats, more should be exception and not norm
- Inability for owners to have impact on animals behaviour when this many animals in their care.
- 6 is 3 too many
- Living next to a house that has that many animals would be a problem if I was the neighbour, the smells, the noise, the look of the yard etc etc etc. I don't care if there is any fines etc, would you have anyone to check these locations and enforce this on a regular basis. I believe when you allow theses many animals it would be very hard to change it back if this is not working. I am not sure why there would be a need to have that many pets in an urban setting.
- The limit should be lower
- I think 6 dogs/ cats is too high a number per household. I think 3 of each is more manageable with the potential exceptions listed above still in place.
- I feel that 6 dogs/6 cats per household is too high. I think 3 of each is a more responsible number - with the exceptions listed above still being in place.
- 1 pet per household there are already too many pets in Calgary
- Allowing six is excessive. No one needs more than two, just as the pre-ample to this question reads.
- Excessive
- 12 or more animals is obviously excessive. Who wants to live next to a kennel.
- Unless on a large property, 6 cats/6 dogs is too many for a single household. 4 would be a more reasonable number.
- Quality of care is far more important. Some can manage to care for larger number of animals and some fail to care for smaller numbers. This implies care is affected by number of animals in home, which isn't always true. Quality of care should always take priority.
- I do not support animal limit.
- 6 animals is too many. There is no reason to have that many.
- There is no acceptable reason for a home to have that many dogs or cats unless they have an animal that has had a litter.
- 12 animals is a lot for any household I'd like that lowered to 4 then a special permis is required the 4 includes all dogs or cats or any combinations of both up to 4
- That is too many animals in one household. Maybe 3 dogs and 3 cats.

- The pet limit should be two pets except if they fall under the Potential Exceptions Rule.
- Lower the limit. 6 is way too much. If you have low income and have 6 kids they will not be able to manage and take care of the dogs. Limit should be 3 pets period.
- I feel like 4 dogs and cats is a sufficient amount for one household, with the exception of inherited pets and litters from breeders. I also feel the fosters could have litters but not adult pets.
- 6 and 6 is far too many for 1 household
- 3 bedroom space is less for more than 5 humans now that you say they can 6 dogs and 6 cats at a property. Poor animals. Please restrict to a mix of animals like max 1 dog and 1 cat or 2 dogs at a time or 2 cats at the time.
- it is not the city's business to tell people how many pets they can have, what's next birds? fish? if I have too many flowers in my yard will that offend someone?
- I would need more information on the exceptions for breeder before I could decide, I support responsible breeding
- I agree with most of this but breeders need to be watched in how many animals they have. Just wanted to add that in.
- People should be able to have as many animals as they like, provided they can properly take care of them.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive on a city property
- Licensing for indoor animals is a cash grab for the City of Calgary.
- What if they wanted 12 dogs and no cats? Or 11 and 1? Some people spend their lives rescuing shelter animals. If they have the means, and do everything properly, why restrict them?
- My position is in line with the Calgary Humane Society. "Calgary Humane Society does not support a companion animal limit within Calgary city limits. As an enforcement agency, CHS believes the term "responsible pet ownership" incorporates the expectation that pet owners demonstrate the knowledge and training required to ensure the proper welfare and well-being of their companion animals. This also includes adhering to all provisions of the Animal Protection Act. (For complete details on the Animal Protection Act, see <http://www.qp.alberta.ca/documents/acts/a41.pdf>). CHS believes limiting the number of animals in a home does not address the core issues demonstrated in cases of over-crowding and/or hoarding and may result in otherwise responsible pet owners not licensing their pets or seeking veterinary care if the household is in excess of an imposed limit. "
- Pet limitations should be on a case by case basis. As long as the animals are cared for and the owners are responsible, there should be no reason for the city to dictate how many animals someone can own. Use the resources to persecute animal hoarding and abuse cases, instead of people who just want to help animals, there are enough animals in the shelters that need homes, if someone has the means to care for them responsibly, there should be no reason to restrict this resource.
- Noise, lack of adequate hygiene, smell.
- 6 dogs is sensible. People should be allowed up to 12 cats. Also newborn animals should be exempt for 1 year.
- Those numbers are too high. 6 dogs and 6 cats? NO

- I don't believe a city home and yard is of sufficient size to humanely/sanitarily house 12 animals at one time.
- That's too many
- That is way too many pets in one household within City limits. That's ridiculous.
- As a huge animal lover, I still think 12 pets is plenty.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats limitations are still too much. o much
- 12 pets for a non breeder household? Too high
- 6 is too many
- No household should have more than one animal. Houses are too close together. Barking dogs disturb several neighbours. 6 animals is a recipe for neighborhood distress.
- Six of each would be excessive and unnecessary. The welfare of these animals needs to be taken very seriously and not many households can afford the veterinary care annually on two dogs or cats let alone six! Excessive. Barking and feces will be excessive. Roaming cats, excessive.
- I don't feel there needs to be a limit as long as the animals are being care for and there is enough space for the number of animals.
- No one needs to own more than 2 dogs and/or cats, period!
- 6 dogs allow for pack mentality to set in, only experienced owners can handle maintaining control. Exemptions can be made for responsible breeders and temporary homes including rescue organizations. 6 cats require large amounts of space to be happy and healthy, which most Calgary homes cannot accommodate, and 12 animals cannot be adequately cared for.
- 6 is too many! 3-4 should be the absolute max
- Sometimes people can't take care of one pet and you want to give people the right to own up to six pets. Who would be monitoring these people to ensure the animals were being treated properly?
- Address the issues not the number. There is no limit on children which can cause many of the same issues/concerns.
- Some of the most responsible owners have more than 6 dogs.
- Large number of pets is not necessary, and there are too many problems resulting from numerous pets on a property.
- 2 dogs is good any more than that is a pack. And two cats is plenty
- 2 dogs or cats max, oh and nose hill is a dog faces ridden disgusting place. It should not be a dog park.
- No more than 2 dogs or cats per property
- It's companionship that pet owners want not pet shops
- I know lots of older women who have up to nine cards and treat them very well and care for them very cleanly
- No one needs 6 dogs or cats, 2 is enough
- Limit to 3 pets total.
- This is excessive. There is no need to have six cats and six dogs. A total of six pets including both cats and dogs would be better.

- 2 cats and/or 2 dogs are more than sufficient!
- Personal Choice
- As long as animals are being well cared for and not being a nuisance it doesn't matter how many pets are in a household.
- 6 dogs/cats is why to much in my view. Some people can't affor to feed themselves.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive
- 6 animals are 4 too many
- Some people take good care of more
- I used to work for a shelter as well as foster animals, except for the above listed grounds this is very high. A total of 6 sounds much more reasonable to me, for animal care / hygiene and nuisance claims. The only additional exception I would provide for is where the home / shelter is much larger to accommodate more animals. But otherwise an application for more animals seems fair
- who are we to tell someone whats excessive we have the other laws for this
- There needs to be limits. We are not a zoo.Six dogs and six cats is over the top and not necessary. Pets are fine. Huge amounts are not fine.
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats is completely crazy. Again move to a farm if you want that many animals.
- not necessary for anyone to own more than 2 cats and/or dogs
- Stop being big brother in our lives You'll put in your own rules anyway regardless of how this faux "survey" turns out.
- Too many pets.
- If you require more animals then you need to live in the country!
- Why limit? I have five rescue cats. If I could afford to take care of more I would.
- I think having a lower limit like 2 dogs/cats per household is more than enough
- Too many people just collect animals without the income or ability to provide adequate care and vet services. More than two pets per household should be based on income.
- I agree with everything but the licensing. 0$ licensing is all I would support
- There are too many "pets" in Calgary that are not looked after properly in addition too many people buy pets then recognize they should not have made that decision for what ever reason.
- The only exception to this should be those that can not care for the pets !!!! Or hoarders who can not clean up after them
- It shouldn't be per household as some households are on acreages And have the space for more animals.
- Limiting number of dogs and cats does not correlate with responsible pet ownership. I work at a vet in Edmonton. Proper education goes a long way. I've had owners with nuisance dog of one and j have owners where they live outside of the area with 5 dogs and are wonderful owners
- 12 animals is way to many. Suggest increase to 4
- 12 animals in one household is too many unless you live out of the city

- 12 animals in a home is a lot for one person to care for- exception breeders, rescues etc. Potential for hoarding situations is possible, along with inability to properly care/feed that many animals. I would think a MAX of 10 animals per household would be fair.
- Unless the bylaw had a specified size of house. 12 animals cannot fit in a 1 bedroom home could easily lead to a less than healthy lifestyle for them and hoarding is always a possibility.
- We don't need these types of limits. Go off the condition of animals, cleanliness, and home safety instead. Allow people to have as many animals as they can as long as they can keep a clean/safe house for them. For some people, it's all they have. Do you limit how many people we can have over? How many people we can have living in our homes? Do you restrict us on children? Some of us treat animals like that and it's clear that council doesn't.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs are way too many in a urban area.
- I think the number should be reduced to a total of 6 pets max.
- If the animals are well cared for, stay out of peoples homes and leave their pets alone.
- Perhaps a limit based on home size. 6 dogs and cats could be allowed in a eg. 3000sq ft home but would not be suitable for a 700sq ft home.
- I think this is ridiculous. There is already a mechanism to handle not cleaning up after one's pets no matter the number and a mechanism to protect the welfare of animals no matter the number. I know many responsible pet owners with more than this. I don't think municipal government has any business restricting how much one can have of any property.
- No-one needs to have more than 2 cats and/or two dogs. The only exception would be a breeder's puppies and kittens awaiting appropriate age for adoption. Temporary circumstance only.
- I believe that is way too many pets for one house and would be a nuisance to neighbours.
- other then the stated exception...one or two dogs per household is more than enough in the city
- While I do agree with the exception for animals under 6 months (as would be the case in breeding) I do not believe there is any situation where someone needs to own 6 adult dogs AND cats at any given time.
- 2 cats or dogs max per household based on the above exceptions
- People should be able to have as many pets as they're able to properly care for
- There is no need to have more than 3-4 animals per household. Any more than that is ridiculous.
- Stop infringing on people's freedom. Use the existing bylaws for enforcement of complaints
- Irresponsible pet owners
- Six animals are too many -should be limited to two.
- No one need to have 6 dogs or 6 cats.. 2 dogs the most & 2 cats no more
- This has been one of the hardest years Alberta has ever seen.I feel like it's very discriminatory against a breed When will Chihuahua Get their day
- People should have the right to have as many animals as they wish as long as they are well taken care off, well trained and obedient, not being used as a pet mill or money making operation.
- no household should house more than ywo animals
- Six dogs Or cats is too many. Thats ridiculous. How would that be clean or sanitary or safe? Dont be silly!

- Maximum of 2 dogs and 2 cats per household is appropriate
- 6 is too many
- Why does anyone need as many animals would be my question. No more than two would make sense. I already have problems with my garden having dogs use the garden as a toilet and owners not clearing feces. Please do not allow so many animals in a household.
- Who needs six dogs/cats except maybe a breeder
- 3 of each is enough.
- A pack of six dogs can be dangerous
- Reduce the number from six to three/four.
- That is far too many dogs and cats per household. The only ones that need that many are animal hoarders and backyard breeders.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is excessive for a household
- 12 animals?!?! That's way too many!
- I don't think the city needs to dictate how many animals people can have.
- Not within city limits.
- You can't lump cats & dogs together. Cats are not allowed outside. Dogs can be dangerous. 6 dogs are too many, 6 cats are not.
- Barn cats, breeders,
- as long as they're cared for it's fine
- I feel that is too many pets for one household. Should be about 3 or 4 of each type.
- If an owner is responsible and spays and neutered their pets and keeps their yards clean and ensures their animals are not a nuisance to neighbours and take good care of their pets, I do not see why they should be limited to the number of pets they have, especially where they are providing a home to rescue animals that would otherwise be strays. Not all multi pet owners are bad owners.
- That is too many animals, potentially 12. Way too many.
- 2 is more than enough
- There is no need for anyone to have 6 pets, recipe for hoarding animals.
- Who needs 6 dogs or 6 cats in the city. People having this many animals is simply asking for trouble.
- 6 is too much.
- You do not need more than 2 registered pets. I do believe most people still do not register their pets so the more they have the less likely they are to have them licensed.
- It is not fair to the animals or neighbors to have That many pets in a home.
- 6 dogs in one home is too many.
- 6 is way too many for one household.
- 6 is too many
- That's too many animals for a household.
- Six is too many - 3 or 4 of each breed with 6 in total is about right
- 6 of each still sounds like a high limit

- If taken care of properly there should be no limit
- No need for change
- by increasing the limit of each pet, I'm concerned with the possibility of pets being utilized in activities such as dog fights etc.
- Six and six seems a bit high. I think the number should be three and three, four and four at the very most.
- Calgary does not need another tax grab. Owners of dogs that bite can be sued by the victim. Why should the city profit???
- Yes to all of the exceptions. No to owning so many pets...that has proven a difficulty in some cases and animals have suffered.
- I don't think there should be more than three cats and or three dogs per household to a maximum of 6 animals. The noise, potential for feces, problem cat wandering behaviour.
- Not possible to properly look after 6 dogs or cats.
- That is a ridiculous number of pets for a single household
- Too many to be necessary.
- We need to lower the number of animals in a home to 2 dogs and 2 cats at a maximum; there is no need to have anymore than that. Ever!
- Its not the number of animals as long as they are taken care of and loved. Numerous people are unable to feed/water/exercise, clean up after and provide affection to only 1 animal.
- 6 is far too many - 12 total ? Not reasonable - I would support 4 animals total
- Having more than 2 dogs or cats in a household should cost more incremental to the number applied for.
- Responsible owners should be allowed to have as many pets as they want
- As long as they are well looked after it doesn't matter to me
- So long as they are cared for appropriately the number of pets you own should be your business
- City has no legal right to limit people's freedom. We do not live in China (as maybe our mayor would wish us to).
- 12 animals is way to many pet one household. Max 4 combine is more than fair.
- People should be free to care for their pets without the government choosing to dictate it.
- If this policy would be to help reduce hoarding of animals, the number of animals in the home does not matter when it comes to a true hoarding situation. Additionally, if all animals are properly cared for and provided with veterinary care when needed, there is no reason to limit the number of animals a person can have in their home.
- The city should not regulate this.
- Only some current owners are doing an adequate job of taking care of their pets. Increasing the number of animals per household would exasperate the existing issues.
- Hoarding and puppy mills could be easier to do
- Let them keep animals.
- 6 dogs is still too much in a single household

- 3 or 4 dogs or cats is what I think is a reasonable limit.
- No one on earth in a city needs more than two animals. This 6 idea is stupid
- 6 dogs is a lot. I'd question how you could properly care for that many animals given their size and needs.
- Too many rules. If a person can afford it and is taking care of the dog properly the city should not be involved. If there is proof that doing this is creating problems such as negative impacts towards the animals welfare then I would support
- If you have exceptions, it should apply to all.
- Reduce the limit to 2 dogs and 2 cats.
- No house needs to have that many animals in the city
- This is still far too many pets.
- 6 pets is more than enough for in the city
- That is far too many. Even in some rural areas they restrict to 3. City lots do NOT support that many animals.
- I think 6 is still too high. 3 is a reasonable number. I dont believe that all the needs or the animals can be taken care of if you have more than 3 animals. Also what do you need all those animals for?
- Way to much flexibility - these limits are much to high
- In the urban environment, with very few exceptions, it is completely unnecessary to have so many animals.
- The limit should be 3 dogs or 3 cats not 6 with the above rules/exceptions.
- The number of dogs and cats per household should not be increased to avoid excessive noise and feces and for pets welfare
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many for a person to properly care for. Should be reduced to 3 of each.
- That is too many for one person to care for. The animals would suffer.
- I, myself think, only my opinion someone would abuse this system. More insurance, that this would not let people who do not give the correct information for their own quote unquote sleezy be checked out with no prejudices. People, always will try to play the system, and for their own reasons, no pun intended..
- So many animals is joke. It is horrible for the animals and for anyone living near by
- 12 animals is a joke. It would be terrible for the animals and all neighbours.
- Good pet parents should be able to care for any amount if animals that they can safely afford and keep the animals safe
- No more than 2. Having 6 is ridiculous and will result in negative effects on others.
- I agree that more than 2 pets per household is not necessary.
- As long as animals are properly cared for & pet excrement is taken care of who are we to place limits
- Needs an exception for dog boarders/day care/dog walkers
- Six dogs or cats on the vast majority of urban properties within Calgary are way too many as the properties are (a) not large enough to support so many animals and (b) too close together for the peaceful existence and enjoyment of neighbours. No one needs that many animals in a home. A total of four (4) animals/pets (to be clear, that is a TOTAL of four in any combination) would be the maximum appropriate.

- NA
- I would recommend no more than two pets per household. Exception would be pets < 6 months old.
- people don't need more than 2 dogs or cats. its an urban community.
- I believe that absolutely nobody should have more than 2 cats and/or dogs unless they are home and caring for them full time. Anything more than that should be considered animal abuse...
- More pet means more noise. Limit to have pet should be reduced
- I would like to see that number lowered to 3 or 4. Anyone who can have up to 12 animals (max 6 dogs and 6 cats) can be seen as a hoarding situation and not allowing each animal to the five freedoms. Furthermore, few people can appropriately afford more than 2 dogs or cats at once. 6 of each is too excessive.
- 12 animals per household is too many. Reduce the number to 2.
- Still too many. Three is better.
- The more pets a person has the more chances the pets can cause to other people.
- Unless the animals are not well treated, why does it matter?
- Less government
- A restriction such as this does not take into account size of property.not
- No one needs to have 6 dogs and cats in one house, that is excessive. The noise and smell would be awful. The limit should be 3 of each, unless you are a dog/cat sitter, foster care person, or breeder.
- Special exceptions may be needed for volunteers of animal rescues
- limit of 2 dogs and 2 cats all requiring licensing
- If you can afford to look after the pets you should have as many as you can afford.
- Whether its one dog or multiple, it should be the owners responsibility to address behaviour. No matter how many animals they have. The focus should be on behaviour and management.
- more animals involved more chance of neglect
- I believe that 6 animals per household is to many, & that the limit should include both, ie: if you own cats & dogs they should be included in the same category as 3 cats & 3 dogs would be the limit for 6. I do believe that 4 is a more responsible and realistic # for a limit
- No
- I don't think it is the city's place to restrict responsible pet owners from owning animals. Let people have as many animals as they would like in their house. If their are issues such as noise, smell, abuse, neglect, etc.. then maybe the city can impose a restriction.
- It's too vague
- This should be based on ability to care for animals properly and not an arbitrary number. Make it about animals wellbeing

- 6 cats and 6 dogs in one house is very excessive!
- There should be less animals. No more than 3 dogs and 3 cats, so 6 animals total per household.
- 1 should be the limit. Anyone multiple by-law infractions should loose right to have a pet. Consider instituting pet-free neighbourhoods - no pet ownership.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is Way too high of a number. There should be no more than three animals total. No need for that many pets (especially dogs) in the city.
- If the owners are capable of properly caring for these animals and they are not a nuisance to neighbors then I don't see why limiting them would be necessary.
- the threshold is already too high
- That is far too many animals for an urban residential area. I think the most I could support is 3 dogs and 3 cats, which to me seems plenty.
- its not the city place to tell a person what kind or how many pets they can have.. if you have 20 cats there is most likely a mental health issue that is way more serious and needs to be addressed.
- why would anyone need 12 animals 6 is plenty
- No. No one should own that many pets in the city.
- 12 animals in a home is too many
- No one needs that many animals.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats within the city seems like far too much. The animals would not likely have adequate quality of care. The number should be lower ie 4 dogs and 4 cats maximum. Size of dogs could also be considered.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too much. I would support an allowance if 3-4 for cats and 3-4 for dogs.
- 6 is to many
- No one needs 6 dogs in a city.
- Numbers are not needed on limits but ability to provide proper care. 2 dogs in too small of a space is too much but with space 10 could be fine it needs to be based on ability to provide care.
- if those exceptions listed above are included I would support it
- If there is no problem. Butt out!
- That's still too many pets. I think the cap should be 4, not 6.
- Because if the animals are sweet loving animals why can't we have any amount that we would like.
- Six dogs/cats can be too much and can create an insanitary environment. The city cannot monitor every household anymore. This can be a huge problem to lessors.
- If a person is a responsible pet owner, it shouldn't matter how many pets they have.
- 6 seems high, maybe 3 each.
- 6 dogs or cats is still too many- suggest 3 maximum. exceptions are reasonable and i agree w/ them
- Because we need less bylaws
- First I believe this should be based on the number of people in the home. A house with 7 people to care for 7 animals is much different than one with 1 person to care for 7 animals. While I do support a limit, 12 total dogs and cats is excessive. I would be much more supportive of 3 or 4 as a "house" rule with the restrictions outlined, or a rule that considers people in the home (or a combination - is one per person up to a max of 6)

- too much government interference
- To jump from 2 to 6 is way too much. And realistically it depends on the size of home they are living in. 6 dogs in a 2 bedroom condo, or 6 dogs on a large property in cougar ridge. I think it should be a max of 4 animals (cat and/or dogs any combination just 4)
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many.
- No more than 2 animals per household. Who needs 6 dogs, 6 cats? that 12 animals in a house. Place would be like a barn & barn yard. People cannot look after the animals they have now with dogs barking & dog poop not picked up.
- Six adult animals is still too many. Max 3 dogs.
- I do not know what the current limit on animals is, however I believe that no household needs to have more than 3 pets, except in certain circumstances such as breeding or fostering of animals.
- 6 dogs in a city is too many
- I feel that number of pets shouldn't be dictated.
- Who needs six dogs and six cats in the city?!
- You guys just want to control everything, creating huge, bloated bureaucracy and a feeling of helplessness where everyone comes to the government for things they should work out on their own. No wonder our taxes are so high.
- 6 is too many. I would suggest 3 cats and 3 dogs plus the other exceptions.
- As long as all animals are properly taken care of and property is kept clean, I don't believe a limit is necessary.
- No one should need more than 2 cats and/or 2 dogs. Bring the limit down, not up.
- Not unless the potential exceptions listed above are automatically included and not "potential".
- There are other mechanisms and fines that are in place. If an owner is unable to take care of their pets responsibly then further action should be taken at the and costs should be charged to the delinquent owner.
- I'm quite sympathetic to the reasoning, but I'm increasingly concerned about the government mandating all of these things rather than communities dealing with them internally.
- Owner responsibility and quality of care are key. A person can be a terrible pet owner with 1 pet or a great pet owner with 20. A number restricting bylaw wouldn't change the quality of care for pets.
- I want to say yes for those responsible animal owners but feel that is way too many animals for one house
- I support the proposed exceptions, but I don't support the increased limit.
- Proposing that someone can own 6 cats AND 6 dogs will increase the potential for illegal sale of "rescue" animals or "non-profit" style animal rescues. Increase noise issues and hygienic issues.
- 3 dogs or cats is more than enough for any city dweller. Cats should NOT be allowed to roam free they do major environmental damage and are a public nuisance. The same rules as dogs should apply a leash outside or locked in.

- There should be a pet limit - however SIX IS FAR TOO MANY. this will create huge problems for city. Limit should be NO MORE THAN 3 per household
- 6 of each is to many, there should be a limit of only 2 of each per household, unless your pet just had babies.
- Pet limit does not equate with uncleaned property or more noise. People with one dog or cat could be horrendous owners - focus on having bylaws that tackle poor ownership. More importantly, it is impossible to implement. Better issues to put man power on than going and verifying number of pets in a household.
- I am a dog owner and I cannot see any circumstances (emotional or physical) in which anyone would need to own more than 3 pets in total. If people want more than 3 pets, they should only be permitted to do so if they live on a large acreage (fenced) far enough away from neighbours that the animals' noise, defecation and activities are not noticeable/audible.
- Six is too many for health of animals and safety for animal and humans
- As long as the animals are properly cared for and cleaned up after it's not an issue
- Stop backyard breeding. No one needs more than 6 dogs or cats at a time
- six (6) dogs AND six (6) cats per household is too large of a number of pets. I think 6 pets in total is a more realistic number
- If people want a larger number of pets let them as long as they are responsible about it.
- 12 animals in an household is to much.
- can neglect it as well
- 6 of each is way to high
- No one should own 6 dogs within city limits. cats create little noise and are not a threat when in packs, so cat owners should be able to have up to 6. The dog limit should be 2, tops. Imagine living next to a house with 6 dogs?! No thank you.
- This should be lowered to 3 dogs and 3 cats per household unless the person is a licensed breeder.
- 6 cats or dogs is too many
- As long as the animals are being cared for probably and not a nuisance to anyone it shouldn't matter how many you keep in your house or property
- It should be up to an individual how many animals they can care for. Unless there is an animal care problem or a property care problem or a mental defect on the ownership part.
- Because
- I find it a little hard to understand why people would need up to 12 animals in a regular home. One can be a nuisance if they bark while owners are or in some cases are not home to control. If one barks, it triggers an increase in barking in the house. I have listened to a dog bark all day long for many days while owner is not home. I am concerned for the dog as well as the fact that I have to close my windows and wear ear plugs.
- No one needs that many animals. A limit of 4 dogs/cats per household would be plenty
- cannot say i like this idea as any good pet owner would only own the amount of animals they can properly care for. The problem is those who want a dog or cat or any animal to breed it and just be making money from it, no good owners just constantly breeding them and selling those should not be allowed.

- Rescues and foster homes for dogs and cats are needed. To limit household amounts would limit space in the SPCA. Property owners should ensure their yards are clean from large amounts of defecation.
- I support the concept of a upper limit on animal ownership and the proposed exemptions, but the number of animals should be lower. I think three dogs and six animals in total would be a more appropriate limit. For example the cities of Edmonton, Medicine Hat and Toronto all have a limit of 3 dogs and 6 cats. In Morinville the limit is 3 dogs and 3 cats. Please look at other examples like this to inform your bylaw development.
- Legally limiting the amount of pets someone has won't eliminate hoarding. Hoarders will still have more animals than they can care for, as this is once again a PEOPLE PROBLEM. Many people who work in rescue find themselves with more animals than the average person, sometimes as long-term fosters. These people (along with people who adopt a large number of animals because they can care for them) shouldn't be punished. Let people keep as many animals as they can responsibly care for and offer assistance to those who need help due to personal issues like hoarding.
- Two is enough, any more than this there should be special applications and fees.
- I think the number of pets allowed is too many. Unless they have a special application to be allowed to have such a large number of pets, people should not have more than 3 dogs and 3 cats in my opinion.
- Having 1-3 dogs is a lot of work. It takes a huge commitment of time. Many people already struggle to financially provide accurate medical care to animals they have. Raising the limit of animals they can have in their home, would raise the amount of animals that don't receive proper medical care. Feeding one big dog is expensive enough, imagine feeding 6. In the past year we have spent over $1600 in vet bills for regular health issues (one injury, bladder infection, daily medications for thyroid issue, accidental litter of puppies). Now imagine if we had 6 dogs, that all needed medical attention. Majority of people can not afford that, so the animal would end up suffering. We spend about $200 a month in dog food for one black lab, times that by 6, who can afford to feed that many dogs properly? Then you have to consider space. Would it be in the dogs best interest to shove 6 dogs into a house? No.
- 3 of each is plenty for anyone and probably too much. Too many bad owners, that's how you create hoarders.
- There is no need for anyone to have that many animals in one household, if there are to many animals per household I worry that they wouldn't all be receiving proper care
- Yes to everything except the pit bull part
- The ownership of animals if NOT up to a city, a province or a country. It is up to a person. Limiting the number of animals one can have is an infraction upon a persons rights. If other people have an issue with how many animals one has, that is a personal issue and should not be considered reliable information and should also be seen as bias feedback. If the amount of animals becomes a problem to the ANIMALS than a limit can be set on the owner, however it should be a case by case ruling ONLY

- owner behavior isn't determined by how many pets a person has. An irresponsible owner will be irresponsible with 1 or 10 pets.
- Too many animals. Move to a farm...
- As long as they are responsible pet owners and keep their property clean, the noise under control and their pets are healthy and well taken care of, there should not be a limit.
- 6 is too high of a number. I'd support 4, tops.
- It may contribute to a higher volume of abandoned animals.
- I think things should be just left alone
- 4 and 4 would be more acceptable
- Some people can take care of more pets than others. There should not be a limit unless the welfare of the pets are at stake or they are a nuisance to those living around. People who work with animals often have more than one dog or cat. Ex dpg groomers may have multiple dogs due to different coat types for showi dogs and or retired oets. Also people who work with animals often take in pets that ththeir owners can not for whatever reason yake care of them. Also people who work with animals, ex at Petstores, Veterinary hospitals, grooming salons etc often get discou ts on service and products making it easier for them to take care of these pets.
- 6 is a very high number of animals. I would suggest 3 of either with an option to apply for more.
- A responsible pet owner is aware if their duties regardless if how many animals you have. Look at how how many hoarding situations there have been when they were supposed to be breeders.
- the numbers should be lower. perhaps a total of 6 dogs and cats (not up to 12 animals, that's still a nutty number). The potential exemptions are good.
- I bought a house so I could have control of what animals I own and how many. This is not something that should be dictated, and if it is then procreation of humans should be dictated as well.
- Having more pets can be beneficial to the owners mental health as well as the animals needs.
- If a person can care for all animals properly there should be no limit.
- 12 pets is to many in one household
- Limit of 4
- I do not believe that there are is adequate space within city limits to house such a large number of animals. Additionally, I do not understand the necessity of owner such large numbers of pets without having them for some industrious purpose (ex. Breeding, dog sledding, etc). My personal opinion would be to restrict animals to a max. of 6. This could be a mix of animals, or all one type of animal (2 cats and 4 dogs, or 6 dogs).
- Bully breeds should not be overpoliced
- I think six each is too much, two each is enough. The exceptions sound reasonable.
- Too restrictive
- I agree with the second part. But the no. Of dogs I disagree with. Especially if there breed is aggressive. 2 dogs per household should be enough
- 6 dogs or 6 cats is plenty in a city property. Most breeders are located outside of the city.

- 6 dogs and/or 6 cats IS excessive! I do agree there could be some exceptions but it should be dealt with in a case by case basis.
- I think having 12 animals in a household is too many. It would be tough to give all these animals proper veterinary care. I think 6 animals total would be the maximum, not 12.
- Multiple pets are not taken care of by owners. More noise, more potential for danger.
- 6 total combined is more than enough
- Given the the close proximity we live in I feel the the number of pets should be regulated by Size of domicile and size of lot.
- 6 should be the max; it will stop the potential for hoarding. 6 is still slightly too much. The more pets you have the less care you can provide for them.
- Why does extra animals hurt everyone else?
- Stop meddling
- There is no need for the city to police how many pets a person owns if the pets are kept responsibly.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive. It should be limited by the space available. Small home and yard, less animals. Removal if not taking care of feces and excessive noise
- A total of 12 dogs/cats in one property is excessive. Maybe a total of six animals would be more reasonable
- If an individual can provide necessary care and maintain more than the allotted amount I see no problem. The issue comes up with those who are irresponsible in which case I support higher fines
- I do not think that there is any reason to have a numbered limit of pets in a residence. However, if a level of sanitation or nuisance behaviours can not be mitigated than there should be the ability to assess and reduce the number of pets that that one household can keep. Broad and wide sweeping bylaws are not the way to go.
- That's way to many animals in one household (just to have as a pet). There is no way 6 dogs and 6 cats in one household can be properly taken care of.
- Should be less, unless fostering.
- If the property and the animals aren't interfering with other people mind your own business.
- There Should be a limit, if they want more they should move it off the city
- There should not be a limit as it is there own property and they should be allowed as many pets as they want. The most that should happen is just behavioural classes for the pet
- would these restrictions REALLY help ensure animal welfare and limits nuisance? It sounds like just another thing to track, and fine.
- You could have 12 animals. Maybe a maximum of 6 would be fine
- There is a wide range of households (condos, houses, etc). Each situation is unique and should be considered.
- It's too many and will no longer address the issues identified above
- Edmonton has these laws, and I know of multiple homes who exceed that. I dont think simple number determines whether or not problems exist, and bylaws should address problems, as well as be clearly enforceable

- As long as the animals are cared for properly there should be no issue on the amount of animals you can own.
- Keeping pets should not have a legal limit unless the numbers put animal and human health at risk. Otherwise stay out of my house and life
- No one needs this many animals and neighborhood disturbances would be significant with anyone having more than 3-4 dogs or cats.
- With all the exceptions it makes no sense
- 6 dogs or cats is too many for a single household
- City vs country is different. Not all kittens get adopted out by 6 months. Same with puppies. I appreciate the 6 animal limit but it would need to be 6 dogs and 6 cats, not either/or. However, permission to own more is not unreasonable. I rescued 2 dogs and a cat, so I'm already halfway there. I would have more but work on the road (they travel with me).
- If a household can responsibly care for all of their animals, regardless of the number, they should be able to do so.
- Quantity doesn't determine quality of care.
- Less than six. I would feel 3 is enough.
- Prefer no limit on number of pets
- The existing limit of 6 dogs and cats per household is way too high in the first place. Having any more than this number, for whatever reason will definitely run into issues around care of the animals, excessive noise, feces. What about the people who live in the neighborhood who are trying to live a pet-free life? Do their voices factor into this discussion?
- Depending on the home/family situation, any arbitrary number may be too high or low. It should be based on the ability to maintain welfare of the animals and avoid nuisance to others which will depend on circumstances.
- There should be no limit, as long as animals are taken care of and not causing damage or threaten others
- I do support the limit in regards to every day homes in order to avoid hoarding situations however would need more information on the special application before I could fully agree. I have fostered and yes, when you receive a litter of kittens or puppies, it's easy to exceed that number for a short period of time.
- No maximum. All that matters is the care an animal receives. I know people with 20 animals which are all well-cared for, and people who cannot care properly for one animal. The measure should be care, not an arbitrary number.
- 6 is too many in my opinion. I would say 4 should be the limit.
- Sounds like government job creation/increased cost to tax payers that will have little impact
- no one in the city needs to own more than 6 dogs at any one time
- As long as the animals are being treated humanely and kept in good order.
- I would support if there were exceptions for dog/cat rescues who meet certain requirements in animal care.

- Bad pet owner are bad pet owners. It doesn't matter if there's one dog or 12 dogs. Fines don't effect [removed] pet owners. This questionnaire was clearly written by someone who has no interest in actually solving problems. This has been a colossal waste of time. Have fun assigning monetary values to arbitrary situations.
- The number seems high. I don't think people will pursue a special application, they'll just do what they want. At 6 dogs and 6 cats, I think it would be difficult for a neighbour to notice/report any infractions.
- Its outrageous that people like to control what everyone else does
- As long as all pets are taken care for then there shouldn't be a limit.
- I don't think any home should have 6 dogs unless you have an acreage, I don't believe it's fair for the animals and I don't think you can give them the level of care needed. The limit should not exceed 3 or four.
- The city should not be in control of people giving loving homes to animals as long as the animals are happy and healthy and the living conditions are clean and suitable.
- Way too many- if you want that many pets go live on a farm
- It really depends on each individual case. Some people are better pet owners then others. Some people can not even clean up after on dog let alone several. But some people are really good at taking care of multiple animals. Also the size of the house/apt/or yard should come into effect. I do think restrictions in apartments should be held as that is quite unfair to the animal to not have enough space. If you need 2 litter boxes per cat and live in a bachelor suite but have 5 cats... Thats not healthy for anyone...but if you have a large house and yard and have the time and money 5 cats are less likely to be an issue...
- I think the number of 6 dogs and 6 cats is significantly too high for permanent pets in the home it should be 3-4 total. And then allow for special circumstances such as fostering rescues, puppies under the age of 6 months. But 12 dogs and cats in a property is unrealistic unless it's a special circumstance.
- Having 12 animals in an urban household seems very excessive. Would the animals have enough space? Food? Training?
- No one needs that many animals near other people's homes
- this should dealt with on a case by case situation
- 3 dogs Max 3 cats max
- If a child acts out in school, is it the child's fault or the inattentive, irresponsible parents, who failed to teach their kids? A chihuahua with 'little dog syndrome' can cause injuries and show aggression towards large breeds. Breeds have NOTHING to do with it!
- I think anyone could home as many dogs as they want, However, they must provide ample space for the dogs to live (not having 8 dogs in your house) buy a farm if you have the desire to have that many dogs. This allows for animal lovers to rescue tons of dogs and home them
- Households should have no more than 2 pets at any given time. The more they have, the increased likelihood that they will be a noise or other nuisance to neighbours.
- That supports animal hoarding

- ^ cats and 6 dogs sounds very much like small puppy/kitty mills. Temp homes okay (with a time limit) and all must have Excess animal permit. We have to stop hoarding of animals
- I am concerned about too many loop holes. An owner has 6 dogs ... demonstrates that they will live with any number of animals. So an easy mark for "inheriting" more dogs. Bylaw needs fewer exemptions to me.
- No, people who want to own a dog should go through a screening process before owning one. Not be reprimanded because their dog decided to do something out of the ordinary, not according to the owner. It doesn't have to do with the dog, it has to do with the owner.
- two dogs or cats is plenty and not added together
- 6 is too high. 4 should be max, with option for exceptions
- That is too many animals for a residential home within City Limits
- The licensing is a cash grab already.
- 6 is wayyyyyyyyyy to many. it is 2 cats 2 dogs where i use to live and you never heard of any attacks or even bad behaviour
- There's no need for fee, Dogs are already chipped or tattooed
- Exceptions for responsible breeders who show their dogs then I would support.
- Pets can help a person keep their mental health in check. Some people need more.
- Two animals per property is plenty. Please note, a lot of people only have limited space today and it is very difficult to keep a dog quiet, let alone more than one.
- No license fees.
- Allow people to be responsible. If they become public nuisance or abuse the animals then step in.
- You don't need a license to love animals.
- no one should be limited on how many animals they can care for humanity is lucky to have someone take care of our animals. Its not fair so many of them already have to spend their life in shelters this rule will only increase the number of those poor animals suffering. Its not right to be taking away our freedoms. Its also not right to discriminate against pitbulls its racist. My two pitbulls are no stronger than any other dog their size and thats been scientifically proven. Anyone who discriminates against pitbulls needs to be better educated and stop the hate. They are literally some of the best dogs. Look at the score they get on their temperament tests compared to other dogs they score better than retrievers. It blows my mind how people can still be so brainwashed when it comes to pitbulls. STOP BSL.
- There are already bylaws in place to deal with such situations should they become problematic.
- That's too many. I would suggest 4 and 4 with special exception for pets under the age of 6 months.
- 6 is too many
- I think as long as the noise levels and smells are kept to a decent level, people should be allowed to keep as many animals as they like provided they are caring for them properly. If the animals are not kept for properly, or begin to be a nuisance to the public, then we can talk about restrictions.
- Not necessary

- individuals should have the right to choose how many pets they have. if it becomes a problem in terms of animal care or a disturbance to neighbors then intervention should happen. most pet owners are responsible and should not be penalized for the negligence of others.
- 6 dogs is way too many depending on the size of dogs and home. 2-3 large dogs is much better. 6 small dogs is okay.
- As seen from past practise, bylaws regarding pet ownership are seldom enforced in Calgary.
- some households have more then one unit it them. Such a upper and Lower suits.
- I would say max 4
- Who and why does somebody get to decide how many animals a person can have?? If they are being looked after, cared for, fed and cleaned up after why does somebody get to say you can only own a certain number?
- i will not explain
- Six seems very generous as a base. I would support more like three.
- I believe this number of animals is too large!! Obviously there should be some exceptions but I believe that within city limits there should be no more than three dogs and four cats within one home
- Dogs licensed - yes. If the cats are indoor cats - they should not have to be licensed
- The pet limits are too high; a maximum of 6 (3 dogs and 3 cats); the only exceptions should be pets under 6 months.
- six animals are too much. Two should be sufficient
- people should be allowed to have as many animals as they are able to care for. Animal services needs better communication. I learned about this survey from a temporary billboard. Why not send it to all registered pet owners? Develop a system that when buying dog/cat food you have to provide your pet license number to ensure the animal is registered. No license, buy one on the spot.
- The number of animals doesn't make a difference in the care. It's the owner that either looks after the animal or doesn't. I've had neighbors with one dog that couldn't be bothered to clean up after their dogs or stop them from incessantly barking.
- A total of 6 animals per households would be better. (Dogs/cats)
- 6 is a lot. 4 maybe
- 6 dogs??? Too many (unless they are fosters for an animal rescue). I would say 2-4 max dogs per household. No more than 4 cats per household (unless it's a foster home).
- Six cats AND dogs is to high of a number especially in a city. Not fair to the animals and realistically that many animals in one household would not receive the care and attention they deserve and require.
- Six is enough for anyone household to manage. Even as a foster, unless it was a mother and baby's it was
- 6 cats or dogs seems excessive for a single household unless they are breeders, fostering or trainers or some special service that requires them to have more dogs or cats. That then should require special licensing.
- I think 3 of each is enough. Unless you are living on a farm or acreage

- 6 is too many animals... Then if someone has 6 cats and 6 dogs in a house.. yuck. it's just too many.
- 12 animals on one property is too many. Perhaps the proposed change should include the size of the property the animals will reside. A condo with no outdoor access is very different for animals to live than a property with 1/2 acre of yard space. The accommodation should also be a factor in determining how many animals can appropriately reside in the space. Service animals should be exempted.
- To many animals for one house hold
- Stop regulating good dog owners. Stop requiring pet licenses. Lower income people do not deserve cheaper fees. Things need to be the same for everyone which should be the city keeping out of people's private business until it becomes a problem to the community, other people or property. Heavily fine the bad and irresponsible owners and stay out of everything else.
- That's too many animals
- Not necessary for more than 2 without special exceptions
- That is waaaaay too many. A total of 6 dogs and cats, whatever the ratio, it's much more reasonable
- Not more than pets = to adults
- 2 pets per household is plenty.
- Should be no more then 2 dogs and 2 cats !! It will be more problems when there is more animals and noise.
- No more than 3 dogs or 3 cats per household with the exception of nursing puppies or kittens.
- I think six pets are too much and should be lowered to 3.
- 2 dogs and 2 cats is more than enough for a household.
- Mind your business. If you're a good care provider shouldn't matter. We don't ban families from how many children they can have
- I know many people who have more than 6 dogs who are given the best care and have no complaints from neighbours. If the animals are licensed and cared for properly then why limit them?
- 12 animals per home is way too high. I think it should be limited to no more than 4 per household, except for the potential exceptions listed above.
- I see it unreasonable to think that a home (with the exception of an animal foster) capable of giving the love and attention that 12 animals would require on a property.
- Probably with working and raising 6 animals in a home. To many to handle. Should stay the same.
- That is far too many animals for a city environment. I would be happier with 4 or less.
- The limit should be lower than 6
- I feel 6 of each is too many. Maybe just 6 animals total.
- The potential of 12 animals (6dogs & 6cats) could increase the likelihood of noise complaints, feces concerns, and animal welfare. Perhaps lowering this limit to 3 each with the ability to apply for additional animals.
- Way too many pets for one household in the City

- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is excessive. I support 3 dogs and 3 cats maximum with the same exceptions listed.
- Not in the city limits.
- The pet limit should be 2 dogs, 2 cats , I agree to the potential exception listed
- That is too many animals
- Still far too high. Limit should be 2.
- 12 animals in a urban setting such as Calgary is too much. It allows more room for people to not be in control of their animals
- I don't think all pets should need a license.
- 6 dogs and and 6 cats is far too many. I think a limit of three total is enough. far too many people cannot take care or control the animals they have. living near bowmont park, I have seen far too many dogs out of control and threatening people walking by, including children. not too mention dogs off leash in soccer fields or playgrounds. perhaps spending more money on animal bylaw officers to actually enforce three laws and keep people safe.
- There should never be more than two pets.
- Leave me alone on my property
- Difficult to ensure 6 animals are being properly cared for - no oversight
- People should be able to do what they want on private property
- I think 6 dogs would be be noisy to live next to when they are barking and the smell of poo when sporting melt comes. And 6 cats is too many if they are allowed outside to wreak gardens and hunt wildlife.
- Six is too many.
- There is no reason to have that many animals in a single home ; move to a rural property if you want that many.
- I think there should be a maximum of four dogs and four cats.
- no one needs 6&6 animals.
- No limits
- Not for dogs/cats that are inherited or grandfathered - could be under special license.
- 6 dogs is a pack - Having encountered them in a family neighbourhood can be terrifying & dangerous - packs including with dog walkers should NOT be permitted
- 12 animals is far too many in a city household. The limit should be six animals.
- Not sure why the limit is the same for cats and dogs. I don't think it would stop hoarders and may just make it more difficult for rescues. If people have the space and time they shouldn't have to jump through additional hoops to take care of their pets.
- It is always the owners responsibilities to tend to their pets. If they can't take care of one why would they get more.
- The whole thing is stupid
- No need for more than two
- A pet limit is not acceptable.

- 6 dogs/cats is excessive, 2/3 is more than enough in the city - go live on a farm if you need more
- No limits.
- People should be allowed to have as many pets as they want as long as they take care of them.
- That's a lot of animals in a household.
- 6 is too many
- The limit should be lower.
- Who needs 6 cats or dogs at once? Rescues, fosters, farms, averages etc., could accommodate this. But a home in the city??? 2 or 3 is reasonable. More than that could become problematic.
- Too much regulation already.
- Should be two dogs and two cats. Your numbers are too high
- I would support a pet limit of 4 dogs or 4 cats. A special application necessary if a household wants more.
- This provides too big of a loophole for animal hoarding.
- Six pets in a household is excessive and is likely to create undue burden on neighbours
- Six dogs per household is just not what I would want to listen to in my town house. Two dogs or cats maximum owner or rescue homes no exceptions.
- The rules as stated above are fine but the limit is too high - maximum 4 of each would be more reasonable for a multitude of reasons.
- Two dogs or cats per house maximum is enough. No one needs more than one actually.
- There is no rule that stop parents from having more kids. Why should this be in place for animals?
- There should be no limit.
- This wouldn't stop people who are irresponsible pet owners. Only inhibit those that are.
- 12 animals? Way too much
- 12 animals in one household! We don't live on farms here in Calgary, three dogs, three cats is plenty to disturb the neighbours! No to temporary homes, they may change over the animals as they are sold but there is still going to be a constant stream of the same number of different animals being in-house. I lived 8 blocks away from a dog daycare and we could hear them barking the whole time they were there, 8am-6pm M-F, I had to make a complaint to get them to muzzle the pooches! Just because they are a breeder or a Fancier's does not mean they care about the people around them. Many are irresponsible pet care givers.
- Absolutely too many pets per household. Noise disturbance, hygiene and animal welfare come into play here.
- no use in a limit if the problems are not caused by the amount of pets but rather inability to provide proper training/cleaning.
- I would not support animal limits. As a foster home, my number of animals varies constantly and I would never go above a number that I am comfortable providing excellent care for. Every animal limit would have to be totally based on the household, are they able to provide a high quality diet, daily enrichment, annual and emergency vet visits, appropriate housing, clean water, etc.
- 6 dogs or 6 cats is way too many. 2, or max 3 animals in total is sufficient.

- To most these animals are family like children. Would you limit the amount of kids someone could have
- We don't limit kids, if the animals are well behaved and cared for who cares how many
- as long as the animals are cared for and aren't an issue its not right to restrict the responsible owners for the actions irresponsible owners.
- It would depend on the size of the house and conditions for animals.
- I would live with as many dogs as I could if I could. If you're a RESPONSIBLE pet owner you should know your limits of how many you can handle.
- I'd say yes but only if managed properly and lets face it when was the last time any government body handled anything properly. If it was ensured that any of the bodies who qualify for the permits were guaranteed to be able to receive said licenses in a guaranteed amount of time I'd say yes. As a guy that subcontracts for an Alberta regulated board and have to work within city board limitations and can see the beaurcracy... No
- 12 animals in a single home is ridiculously high, and the sanitary conditions in regards to the home and neighbourhood must be taken into account. Also noise and nuisance issues...
- No one follows up with people homing many animals
- don't target pit bulls. Aggressive dogs are a result of bad dog owners. Manage owners better!!!rs
- If the animals are well cared for and not disturbing neighbours, there is no need for a limit.
- If they can afford the animals and theyre not neglected or mistreated let them have as many as they want.
- There should be no limit; not all large pet situations are guaranteed to create those issues and should be handled on a case by case basis
- That's just taking away peoples rights , if the animals are not being taken care of properly then the bylaw should be doing something about it anyways
- I don't agree with this bylaw only because we already have bylaws to deal with the problems like excessive noise. And feces is a symptom of a lazy owner, not necessarily quantity of animals
- That's too many pets to one dwelling.
- People should be allowed what they want
- 12 animals seems excessive in one household.
- 12 animals on one property is a lot- I can see 3 and 3 being more reasonable - with the exceptions listed
- No limit
- I would support 4 animals per household. 6 is a lot.
- The problem behaviours are more appropriately dealt with by the fine structure when they arise. If there are no problems we should mind our own business
- 6 is still too many. 3 of each is feasible.
- The number of animals in a household is not the issue. The issue is how responsible the owner is. I do not feel there should be a restriction, but that being said, animal hoarding should not be tolerated. The number of animals in a household should be assessed on how well the owner is taking care of them. I know many responsible cat owners who have more than 6 cats.

- There is excessive noise, digging around fences or jumping against them. The pets need to be in a large open area for their health and safety and not confined to small properties. Pets are often left alone while the owners work and they bark at everyone passing which scares young children.
- I think 6 dogs or cats is sufficient for one house hold (exceptions to be made for circumstances listed above)
- 6 is more than enough
- 6 of each type still seems excessive. Should have even lower limit
- In rural areas surrounding Calgary a special Development Permit is required for a number of dogs / cats / pets / livestock in excess of (x). I would support such a system in the city provided that a person could not be denied having the animals without first having an opportunity to prove, over a trial period, that there would be no harm to affected stakeholders, like neighbours.
- A number of reasons, the city would have to find other ways to make up for lost revenue, no one should be able to decide i cannot have more than 2 pets
- 6 dogs is too many for a household
- 6 is too many.
- The amount of pets allowed in a residence should be based off of occupants and square footage of the home.
- Depends on the situation. If 100 animals are kept neat and are not a nuisance no problem. If one animal is a problem then concerned.
- 6 is too many. 2 of each max is enough.
- No restriction is necessary as this does not seem like an issue that is excessive in the city.
- If owners are responsible it shouldn't matter
- There should be regulations depending on house and property sizes to how many animals can be on the property. Example: small house/apartment=only 5 pets total
- I think 12 animals is too many for 1 house hold. Unless they can prove they're equipped to handle it. At most I would say 6 animals per household.
- if it is a large property with multiple people with dogs should be able to have their pets, people that foster animals from rescues should be able to do so to prevent more animals on the streets, breeders as well
- The last time I checked we live in a free country. If people want to have a million pets then so be it. But they are responsible for those pets.
- Six dogs, in particular, is too many dogs. I can only imagine the noise 6 barking dogs would cause. Three should be a maximum for dogs and cats.
- Should be fewer.
- [personal information removed]
- If the animals do not pose an issue, it is my choice to decide how many animals to share my home with and care for. If my property is large enough to allow, it is my property.
- The only limit should be health related. A response owner with a large property can support more pets than a bachelor apartment dweller could. A simple 6 animal limit is not the answer.
- I would support it, but limited to 4 dogs and/or 4 cats

- Limits imposed on private property are unlawful
- If an owner is taking care of their own pet no matter how many there is then it is fine.
- I don't believe all individuals should be subject to this bylaw. However I feel that in certain cases where problems are arising they can be dealt with on a case to case basis. I know many animal lovers, one in particular who after her husband passed she found companion in her 8 labs. This individual doesn't live within city limits. however I do believe that if someone wants to have a home full of animals they should be able to, as long as the animals needs are being taken care of.
- I think 6 dogs is too many. Max should be 4 with those exceptions
- Excessive animals per property is better addressed through general animal welfare legislation. 6 is too high for some properties, but not inappropriate for others. This proposal is legislation for the sake of writing legislation, which is an abhorrent practice.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is a lot of animals for a home in the city
- I don't think anyone needs 6 cats AND 6 dogs. But I don't think that's anyone's business outside of that household as long as its not a disturbance and the well being of the animals are kept up.
- 4 is a reasonable number for a city property and to ensure proper animal care. Exceptions should be made for legitimate breeding or fosters situations where there may be more puppies or kittens for a period of time.
- The question suggests that the current limit is two cats and two dogs. That is sufficient.
- People should be able to make this decision themselves, if the pets are well cared for and not disrupting the neighbours there should be no limit. Alternatively, if someone can't control 1 dog, they shouldn't be protected by a limit
- There are people who can look after more cats/dogs very well. And are responsible owners.
- I think that if a person wants more then 6 they should be allowed. I think that if the volume of animals a person has is an issue it needs to be addressed with that specific person. Not punishing the general population for a few bad owners.
- Less animals. 6 is basically hoarding unless you're a breeder w pups
- Don't need that many animals. 2 is reasonable.
- i don't think limit should applied to responsible pet owers that have the space for more pets.
- the total should be way lower
- As long as the animals are being cared for properly then I do not care if you want 15 dogs. The city already has many bylaws in place to fine owners for a list of violations. I believe this is further over reach from a city council who has already taxed and regulated its citizens into a near constant state of depression. Enough.
- 6 of each is still too high for certain properties. Definitely the size of yard, house and location if property should influence the amount. Appartement or acreages can't be treated the same, nor infill vs suburban.
- I suggest the number of pets be limited by the owners property size. A 10 foot backyard cannot provide enough space for 6 dogs and 6 cats the same as a 30 foot yard.
- Too many animals to provide adequate care, training and exercise.
- It should be much lower, 4 dogs and cats as a combined number total

- This doesn't work. It is going to force people to go underground.
- I think a pet owner should be able to have as many pets as they want as long as they can provide for them.
- If a person is able to take care of all animals (feed clean and have space) then there shouldn't be restrictions
- Too many!
- E
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive, except in exceptional circumstances
- This is unnecessary and impossible to implement and manage. A huge waste of time and a bylaw.
- Depends on the size of property. A 800foot apartment can handle one cat, 3 is excessive. How much room is there for the animals and people to be living comfortably together?
- Because if you are a responsible pet owner there should be no need to limit the amount if all are taken care of.
- as long as all animals are cared for it isn't anyone's business
- Too many
- There are too many exceptions here. Other than having a litter of puppies or kittens, 6 and 6 is far higher than necessary.
- how have these numbers been determined. should it be the same for someone living on a acreage vs. a condo? the animals well-being should be the determining factor.
- as long as owners are able to care for the animals in all factors, then they should be able to own as many as they please. if the owner is causing issues for the community then i believe the situation should be dealt with.
- if a person has the finances and proper environment to own and care for several dogs and/or cats, they should have every right to do so
- Some animals need the support of another animal in there life so they don't go crazy or lonely
- 6 dogs per household is way too much
- I think less per house hold, or ut should be regulated based on the size of the household.
- calgary is a city with an abundance of animal lovers. Anyone commenting there is no need for more than two liekly does not even own one. As long as each animal is being cared for, the yard is well tended and the noise is only sporadic and not incessant, tehn what is the problem? There are no bylaws about number of screaming childrfen per household, number of children per household blocking the streets by playing in them, number of teenagers throwing parties and talking at loud decibels at three in the morning, so what is this about targeting dogs and their owners? My neighbour has zero pets and makes more noise than the entire block. Live and let live. Again your questions are only about restrictions and punishment for regular per owners. Quite terrible.
- Why should the city dictate how many cats and dogs one has in their home. As long as the animals are properly cared for what does it matter?
- Change the number to 4 I think it's more appropriate and higher than that can apply for special permit

- I know a dog-walker that at any given time has in excess of 20+ dogs (of her own) on her property that she manages impeccably. Very much unlike my neighbor who has only one dog that he has little control over.
- You shouldn't have more than 2 pets
- everyone pays taxes and should be allowed to have as many pets as they want on their property should they not be a nuisance
- I know a person who has 7 cats. Taking one away from her would be very cruel. May inspect he homes that have more than 6 pets, but take them away only if they are suffering from neglect.
- I support the exceptions but being able to have 12 animals in one home is excessive regardless. If people want, say more than three of each, they should apply for an exemption and be able to appeal their case on various grounds.
- There needs to be a clearer definition. 12 animals on a 5,000 SQ. FT. property is too small of a space for them. 10 Acres could be suitable for much more than 12 animals. Can't apply the same law across the board.
- I don't see it indicated what bylaw, if any, is current in place. 6 seems very excessive. I would support limiting to a lower number than 6 of each animal. I don't even think that's healthy or safe for 12 cats and dogs to be roaming a house together!
- How does a person care for 12 animals if they live alone. They can't give hyphen all the attention and love they deserve
- Some people love animals and would like to have more than 6 dogs because they have the means and room to keep them
- Good and responsible owners are good and responsible regardless of the number of pets they have. Punish those who are not responsible, not those with a high number of animals that are well loved and looked after.
- That is too many animals for household. The restrictions should be based on the individuals income , space to care for the animals . There is a difference between holding 6 dogs on an acreage vs a backyard the only exception should be dog rescuers, fosters. Dog breeding should also be banked as there are too many animals in shelters requiring care. Pet stores should also be banned from selling animals. Animals should only be fostered or adopted.
- Six seems like a lot of animals. I think four would be reasonable.
- 12 animals is too many. Maybe consider a limit based on home size (# of bedrooms or something?). For example, having more than a couple animals in a one bedroom apartment would be unnecessary, and could impact the wellbeing of the animals. (Not enough space). However, if someone had a large house or property, then this wouldn't be an issue.
- too cut and dried
- I think there are too many factors for a flat rule to apply. if someone has a large property for example. I think there should more be a bylaw around the conditions animals live in - provided those conditions are met, then the owner is responsible and the number of animals shouldn't matter. I am happy to see that the number is at least quite high. Also - a household may be large and consist of a number of families. If a house with a basement suite has 2 families - is that 2 households or 1? if 1, then the number of animals is low.

- just no
- None of my business what other people have for animals. As long as there is no neglect.
- No one should own 6 cats or dogs that is ridiculous. I think a person should be limited to three dogs without cats and 3 cats without dogs. Or a combination of 2dogs and 1 cat or 2cats and 1 dog
- I support the potential exceptions as listed above, however, I do not support increasing the number of dogs and cats allowed per household. The reason for not supported is based on the potential increase for more noise (barking dogs), increased amount of animal feces. All too often we see and hear of households that have more than already allowed animals live in deplorable conditions. No one needs to own so many animals. If people want that many, they should move out of the city to an acreage or farm.
- If it is someone who owns property, with a certain amount of land, 6 dogs/cats is fine. However, I would not want 6 dogs living in a condo in downtown Calgary, large or small!
- Limit to 3 pets
- Still too many.
- I would support as long as the exceptions were implemented and the additional caveat would be that the number of animals is not limited to a specific number, but is actually based on the sq ft of the property to ensure hoarding and inhumane keeping of pets is mitigated. Pet licence fees should be lowered and multi year or lifetime fees made available. Also fees to licenses could be adjusted if the owner has had multiple legal or bylaw breaches relating to pet ownership to reduce the possibility of them owning too many future animals. .
- You guys do too much where it's not needed and not enough where it is needed. Stick to screwing us over over on taxes and less on how many cats Auntie Therese has.
- People should be able to care for as many animals as they choose.
- It will make it more difficult for caring people to give deserving animals a home. Unfortunately the animals hoarders will always find a way
- People should be able to own as many domestic animals as they like. More community engagement would see people with psychological conditions (e. hoarding) being supported and assisted, not arbitrarily punished.,
- The number of pets in a household does not directly affect the care they are provided. This by-law will still protect the back yard breeders and others that are of more concern. The conditions of the household should be what's taken into account
- It should be 6 animals total, per household not 6 Dogs AND 6 Cats. That's far too many for any responsible pet owner to properly take care of, especially given most of the population in the city don't live in mansions.
- I do not agree with the discrimination to the pitbull and adjacent breeds. As a city we need to be better than that. More regulations to proper dog knowledge and behaviours could be a requirement for bite risk dogs but to just single out a whole breed because they have the potential to bite and cause damage should include all dogs. I am a proud pitbull owner who has spent thousands in training and an in countable amount of hours training and I guarantee my pitbull is better behaved than most other breeds. I would not live in a place that singled out my family member based on a potential of bite and her appearance.

- Providing the animals are well taken care of, there are no bylaw issues, then people should be able to have as many animals as they want.
- no more than 2 animals should be permitted
- Number should be lower like 3 or 4
- Every home is different. 1 bedroom/2 bedroom -6bedroom. There needs to be more included in the bylaw change. It should be going how large your home is compared to how many animals you should have in your home. I grew up with 9bedroom home vs my 2 bedroom home now. So in order to properly agree with this, I beleive there should be a house sizing that should be included.
- There should not be one rule for all - limits should be placed on a case by case basis
- Leave limit open
- Responsible pet owners don't have issues with their property and shud not b penalized by ridiculous laws like this
- Responsible pet owners should be allowed to have more than 6 dogs or cats. There are thousands of animals that need homes so it seems shortsighted to restrict the number. There are current bylaws in place to protect against excessive noise and poor animal welfare circumstances.
- Because for many pet owners animals are becoming more important than the people living near by
- People shouldn't have to have a limit to how many pets they can have.
- As a responsible pet owner, it is my responsibility to care for my pets. If I choose to have 3 or more, it is equally my responsibility to ensure that the pets are well cared for, cleaned up after, and we'll behaved..if I am unable to provide care or train them properly, then there should be fines.
- If a person is a responsible pet owner I don't think it is anyone's right to limit.
- I live in the Beltline and in spring or any given time there is a lack from dog owner picking up after their dogs. The trees and grass are dying from dogs constantly urinating. It smells walking in the spring!
- 6 dogs is too much given the small lot sizes in calgary. Not fair to the dogs or neighbors.
- It's nonsense to treat cats and dogs the same way here. if cats are confined to the owner's property then they present no nuisance to anyone - two of the three issues you list simply don't apply to cats at all - they're not going to defectate on sidewalks and lawns, and they're not going to create a noise nuisance. And frankly, without doing home inspections how are you even going to know if someone has 10 cats in their house? I had 7 of my own cats at one point, and during a brief period when I was fostering overlapping litters there were 21 cats in my house (mostly the size of guinea pigs....) and I guarantee you none of my neighbours were aware or inconvenienced. Cats and dogs are NOT the same.
- It's not necessary for anyone to own more than 2 cats or dogs.
- This very question raises the issues that would be exacerbated by allowing more pets per household - accumulation of feces, excessive noise, and the very welfare of the animals (and their neighbours). It seems impossible for the pet owner to ensure 6+ dogs and 6+ cats are well-behaved and trained.

This is completely irresponsible, mostly to the pets themselves that will not receive the training and attention they need to maintain good behaviour.

- Limit numbers need to be lowered. 6 cats & 6 dogs= excessive
- The only issue is with hoarders, who are generally already breaking bylaws. This would only serve to punish responsible owners
- I agree with all of the "exceptions" above but do not see a need for more than 2 dogs or 2 cats per household.
- There are exceptions to this such as if a person has 8 puppies and homes that are suitable may take more than 6 months to find
- I dont think people should have this number of pets. I cannot imagine a scenario where that many animals would be treated well and trained properly.
- I dont
- This city has never needed a limit. If all animals are licensed this isnt needed
- If the person is responsible and has room they should be allowed as many pets as they want
- 6 is way too many dogs for one person to control and walk. Options should be explored such as pets per registered residents (ie you can have 3 dogs per adult resident). 6 is a ridiculous amount of dogs and there is no way that the average person would be able to walk, clean up after and keep quiet a pack this size. 6 Cats is fine because they do not interact with the outside world the same way as dogs do.
- Everyone should be able to own as many dogs and/or cats as they please. I feel like 95% of people wouldn't even own 6 pets but if they do then who cares.
- Keep bylaw as is - no limit
- I feel 6 dogs AND 6 cats is reasonable, however I do not feel it is realistic to require all pets to be licensed UNLESS the licensing fees are lowered.
- Too many animals in a location
- if a person can provide for the animals why shouldn't they be allowed to have more than 6 animals on their property. I feel like this should be approved on case by case basis
- What are the instances of people owning more than 12 animals? What is the reasoning for having a restricting bylaw?
- I support fining the behaviours/issues, number of animals is at best an imperfect proxy for problems.
- I think the limit of animals should be less than 12.
- 6 dogs and / or cats is far too many for a residential property in the city limits, the only exception should be for licenced breeders
- 12 animals in a house in Calgary?!? This must be a mansion of a house or else this is not fair to the animals. I think it should be based on the square footage of your home, which would be way too much work. So people don't need more than a total of 5 pets all together (cats or dogs) unless they fall under the "potential Exceptions to the rules."
- If the owner can properly care for the animal (monetary and otherwise) they should be allowed to. Re. Q10
- Sounds like "Red Laws", ie report your neighbor that you don't like laws.

- I think 4 cats and 4 dogs would be a more reasonable number.
- This is more nanny-state garbage.
- It is a health concern, noise concern, and personal safety for children. People cannot responsibly care for 12 animals.
- There should be no limit on private ownership of animals, so long as they are responsibly kept. We already have bylaws for this. Stop infringing on peoples rights because you are lazy
- 6 animals is too much, maybe 3 or 4
- Again, law abiding citizens are most likely following these guidelines. Is there really a problem in Calgary with people owning excessive numbers of animals? In these rare cases, do the owners actually register all their animals? Probably not.
- I support some points of this bylaw change. There are definitely some great pet owners but there are also some lousy ones. The pet limit of 6 dogs AND 6 cats is rather high, BUT, I feel it should be case by case. Each animal MUST be licensed and NOT a nuisance. This is a harder answer to put in print as opposed to a verbal answer.
- Other reasons
- This current bylaw is fine. No need to change. The proposed change is also blunt discrimination against certain breeds.
- So what if someone doesn't want cats, does that mean they can have 12 dogs? Cause why does someone that only likes cats or dogs not both be limited to 6 pets while other people can have 12? I don't know who the hell even needs 6 pets, let alone 12, but you get what I am saying. What about the real crazy pet people that have birds and other animals too? So they can have 6 dogs, 6 cats and who knows how many birds and rodents in their house but someone who only likes dogs are capped at 6.... ? Back to the drawing board
- I do not think up to 12 domestic animals is an appropriate amount. Given the size of most Calgary yards, I think 6 animals total, any combination is sufficient given the attention and care each animal requires.
- This is a city not an urban area. We live here to be with people not animals
- Too many, that's 12 pets
- I need more information. There should be a ban and fine against those who harm animals or hoard animals but ppl like licensed breeders or responsible owners shouldn't have limit.
- Because I dont
- I do not believe one can financially care for that many animals.
- Need an exemption for qualified rescues
- If there are special circumstances/exceptions they can apply for those, but realistically there is no need for more than 3 dogs and 3 cats in a household at one time.
- A person who is keeping animals responsibly should not be limited by numbers. This would make things difficult for reputable breeders as they often have more animals than 6, but maintain them appropriately. More information on a "dog fancier's licence" would need to be provided to change my answer.
- 12 animals per household is a high limit and expensive

- no more than 2
- I think people who wants to own more than 2 cats and 2 dogs they are breeders who want to make more money . They will not concern about the animals ' welfare and they will not care about the noise they will create to their neighbors.
- Numbers are not the issue, the level of responsibility of the owner is where the problem lies. I've lived next to responsible owners who have had well above the proposed limit, and they were never a problem. There were never any behaviour, noise or odor issues. I've also lived near dogs who never shut up. In once instance it was a single dog household and the dog barked almost constantly and the owner showed little to no concern or care for their neighbours and seemed somewhat disinterested/oblivious with regard to the dog and its barking. In the other instance, the owner left the 2 dogs out all the time - even while away at work all day, and the dogs barked constantly.
- The care of the animals should be the main concern rather than the number. I've seen people who take better care of 6 pets than another person takes care of 1.
- I believe people can buy however many pets they want. It is not their fault that dogs and cats express themselves by barking or meowing and they cannot stop them.
- People should be able to have as many pets as they want. There are already fines available if pets become a nuisance
- If the pets owner is responsible and have a good economy, then there should be no limit to the number of pets.
- 3 cats and 3 dogs is a lot and we should protect the wellness of the animals
- One dog could be a complete nuisance and 7 dogs could be very good. Property sizes are also very different. Having 6 pets in a small apartment is unfair to an animal but having 10 dogs on even a small acreage is plausible. It really depends and a better rule would be responding to disturbances and if over a certain number (ie. 6) then some form of action could be taken.
- Only for rescue and foster.
- Feces noise and welfare
- There should be a limit on fosters and breeding, that I would reduce, however 6 dogs/cats to a household works for larger homes and is still maintainable for the above listed reasons of keeping. Additionally - there should be fines given to those who invoke an attack or aggressive behaviour. The problem does not always limit to the animal - we've had personal experience asking people to not touch our animals and have been ignored, dismissed or given the excuse that animals love them. We've also had animals that have been teased and cornered. Anyone doing this to an animal should receive a large fine.
- You're goal should be to educate people on why they should be self limiting themselves. People use pets for compaionship and staples for their life. Some houses and families can care for and have the space for more pets, that should be the limiting factor. I understand the desire to limit others for them looks good on paper however suggestions like this simply leave less to desire in your city. Rules such as this simply label our city as a scared quick to label control freak. I would not move to and would rather move away then live in a city with no direction but to piss away their time with discrimination against breads and the illusion people will respect a pet limitation on just cats of dogs.

Please utilize your time more effectively, like perhaps developing some systems to help educate new owners and low income families so their dogs don't randomly attack (but what do I know I just live here)

- because of the pit bull part
- 6 is a very big responsibility and people might not have adequate space or more to provide for that amount of animals
- Six Dogs and Six Cats seems way too much. Four pets is the most I would be comfortable with.
- I don't think there needs to be a rule around this. Increasing dog and cat license fees should deter most people from having many dogs and cats in their homes.
- Bites from animals are the cause of the owner. Not animals are the same and not animals should be treated the same. Keeping livestock on private property is also wrong because of the cleanliness.
- 6 dogs seems excessive to have in one house. Unless they were living on an acreage I cannot see how 6 dogs will be able to remain quiet and the owners deal with the amount of feces on the property.
- If families join together in one household who have more than 3 animals each this would not be right to have to give up any of their pets
- I think people should have less than 6 of each animal as I have witnessed first hand how terrible life can be for the animals when there's that many in one household-maybe reduce for 3 or 4 of each unless on a farm/acreage or fostering or inheriting.
- IT'S NONE OF YOUR BUSINESS WHAT PEOPLE DO IN THEIR OWN HOMES. I'M REALLY HAPPY TO SEE MY TAX DOLLARS BEING WASTED YET AGAIN. WHAT MAKES YOU SO SPECIAL AS TO DECIDE WHAT BREEDS ARE OKAY AND WHAT AREN'T?
- rescues need exemptions
- This will not matter to the ones that chose to keep more.. no point
- Limit the number to three animals unless they are a licenced breeders
- Two of each is enough unless you live on an acreage
- I feel that 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive for anyone. 6 animals total I feel is more than enough while keeping in mind a typical persons capacity to care for and train the animals properly.
- People should have the right to choose how many pets they have, freedom
- A lot of people already have to many animals, and because they have so many animals they get Licenced because the owners can't afford it.
- Freedom. Stop stepping into our lives. You're the municipal government, act like it.
- It is up to trained professionals to assess whether or not the conditions are suitable for the animals. By law officers are not qualified
- Six animals is excessive for one household to have. Realistically, the animals are not receiving the care they are entitled to: time, training, cleanup etc. Who could possibly afford and care for six dogs and their needs
- Current bylaw adequate
- You don't state what the previous limits are, if no limits then use the other rules to govern if there is a problem, if lower than this proposal then use the proposed amounts

- 12 cats and dogs is too many for a single dwelling. An exception could be temporary or grandfather clause.
- Sounds like hoarding
- Its not up to you to tell people how to live!!! They can have as many of whatever they want!! If a problem shows up....deal with it then!! You shouldnt charge anyone anything for pet licence either BTW, if thats something you want....YOU pay for it.
- That means a potential of 12 animals in one household all of which could conceivably require new homes in short order should a crises arise in the home. Potential for excessive noise, odor and damage to the property is greatly increased making the home an eyesore and source of irritation to the neighborhood.
- Two per household is sufficient. Six is excessive!
- Should be limited to 2 so there is adequate supervision for others and dog care.
- There are many people within Calgary that take on animals that have been mistreated/ are without a home and I would not want to discourage this work.
- 6 of each is excessive. Unless an adult is at home 24/7 those animals are not properly cared for. I would half the amount of pets allowed per residential property
- 6 cats and 6 dogs can not be properly taken care of and loved the way they need to be, no matter who you are.
- No
- 6 animals total. Not six of each.
- A blanket bylaw is not required, rather cases should be evaluated on a case by case basis if complaints arise
- I think this requires more thought, what is the size of home. A farm is large, an apartment is small, etc. Further review is required in this area, it is not one-size fits all. Also what about rescues, I note they are not listed. Fosters are not listed. There may be the odd time where puppies or kittens are present that number is going over 6. Again, more thought is needed on this topic. You can define this better.
- I think the size of house/property needs to be a factor as well.
- Because it's not for the government to dictate how many animals I can have as long as they are taken care of
- The exception would be hoarding.
- all dogs and cats must be spay/neutered unless they are holder of a breeding permit
- There should be no limit. Calgary has great dog bylaws already, and I fear they will become as bad as other cities have become. What a terrible year. If animals are well cared for, not excessively crated, yard cleaned up, vet and grooming care, then there shouldn't be a limit.
- That is still too many animals. I think a total of six animals, dogs, cats or livestock type birds is more than reasonable.
- It is not healthy for a person to own six dogs and cats. Imagine the noise, feces, ripped up yards, noise. It sounds like hoards

- No one requires more than 2 pets period. If you are a licensed breeder and have paid the additional fees to hold this designation then an allowance for the additional animals for a period of 6 months is provided. Any of the animals not sold during this time the breeder will be assessed a fine for each month over the 6 month limit. Euthanization is not an option. For a regular property owner, two pets maximum.
- Should be a limit of three, people will not properly care for 6
- 6 + 6 is extremely high for anyone not requiring a special permit. Most household families can adequately care for only 2-4 animals at a time. Anything more would compromise the well-being of the animal and make it almost impossible to meet other bylaws related to noise.
- The pet limit should be a lot less than 12 animals per household is way too much. You can not take care of that many animals per household. Noise and feces are also a problem.
- That's stupid
- There should be no limit as long as licensing is enforced.
- I might support this change if more information was provided regarding the ability to access the Exceptions. None of these proposed restrictions will stop the hoarders and real problem households.
- 6 is too many
- Why would there be a limit on pets unless something previous has happened to deter
- As long as people are responsible why limit them.
- This is still too many pets for in the city. The number should be lower (3-4)
- Special application for more than 2 dogs/cats. To ensure accurate residential space for care, etc. Avoid hoarding risks.
- You dont limit how many kids bad parents can have. My two dogs are more behaved then some of the neighbourhood kids. So this rule is garbage.
- People foster more than this, I know multiple people who have more than 6 currently. If they're not an issue, why make it one?? You guys are stupid
- People should be required to maintain their property and be aware of noise. This is not going to change how loud 1 dog is compared to 6
- You cannot tell someone that they don't have the right to own and take care of multiple animals
- It could penalize people who have several animals they care for well (people moving to Calgary wouldn't be grandfathered in, I assume). Also, what if someone has 7 cats and 5 dogs? Still 12 animals, so is that allowed? Why does it have to be 6 and 6?
- owners of purebred show animals and competition animals often have far more animals than 6 of one species. There should be an option for a permit for more animals of one species. There are MANY many many purebred breeders in Calgary that this 6 animal per species limmit would negatively effect.
- Unless I read it wrong. I think 6 is way too many pets in one home. Max of 2 is good.
- No person needs to have that many animals in a residential property.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats, unless you have hired help, or lots of help in general, a massive home, and lots of space, is unrealistic. All you are doing is encouraging hoarding and poor animal ownership. People should know their limits on how many animals they can reasonably have.

- The city people don't need to own more than 3 animals
- six dogs and six cats is too excessive per house hold. Max should be 1 dog and 1 cat...or 2 dogs and cats...total max of two pets per household
- Stop controlling people's lives
- A responsible owner should have the right to determine how many cats and dogs he or she is able to responsibly care for.
- 12 is too many. Thus I'd not dogpatch. .
- Maybe focus on enforcement. Not all multi family pet homes are bad. Take care of the burdensome ones. This would prevent responsible breeding, adoption hosts, etc
- Limit is fine as is
- If, there are no other issues or concerns why limit the number. Deal with the problems.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is way too many to have in a household, unless they are on a farm or lots of land for the animals to move around
- Limit the people in houses then too
- As long as pets are licensed and kept in good living environments there should be no maximum number of pets a household is allowed
- If they're picking up their waste and keeping their animals quite. It's non of my business
- I don't think you should try to put a limit on how many pets somebody should own as long as they can support them and give them everything they need I don't see an issue with it
- Unless the person is trained in animal behavior most people have trouble with one dog. All dogs and owners must have to pass a test like the CKC Good Neighbor test within two years of ownership at their cost.
- 6 of each animal is way too much. Often people get these animals and dont consider cost of care. If 1 cat gets fleas you are now paying to treat 6. Problems like this happen often. I think it should be 3 and 3.
- 6 dogs per household in the city is too many
- 12 animals in a family home is excessive
- Our neighbor's on one side owned 10 dogs of 4 breeds (all were licensed), not one issue with smell, noise or activity. The neighbor two doors down the other direction owned just two dogs, however never gave them the attention, care or time they needed and those two were neighborhood problems. If the owners give proper care the dogs are no issue.
- If they are being taken care of then there's no need for a limit.
- As long as animal owners (caregivers) are responsible, there should not be limits on the number allowed per household.
- Like children, people should have the right to choose how many pets they want. They would need to follow the responsible owners bylaws but households should not be limited.
- 3 dogs/3 cats
- It would take an incredibly special circumstance for the average pet owner to be able to give 12 pets the needed attention they would require. That's excessive except in special circumstances.

- That is way too many pets for a single owner to treat them all well. Can 6 dogs actually be walked for the amount they truly require every day? I doubt it.
- How many circumstances does this really happen in in order for it to be a bylaw? If someone has more than 12 animals, either they know what they are doing or they probably require some other sorts of help/services
- No exceptions
- Please keep the limit to the number of pets to no more than 2 cats and/or dogs
- If the animals are cared for, then no limit.
- The number should be based on the welfare of the animals.
- I see no reason to restrict numbers as long as noise clean up etc. Is being observed.
- 2 is already too much. More just means more I re trouble and more mess.
- Animal shelters should be exempt from the limit as well. Also 6 of each is far too many. That means a single family home could be responsible for as many as 12 animals at a given time. It should be 6 animals period (not including caged animals)
- 12 of anything is far to many. If the average household contains 2.5 children then 2 is more than enough. As is right now there are too many animals with too many owners who are not good at taking care of their pets. A household should not be a replacement of a zoo! Your statement above says 12 in total between cats and dogs. How about more than 2 requires you to have an income of X and prove that you have not claimed EI in X number of years. Most people who have numerous pets cannot afford them and end up claiming assistance, or they allow these pets to have offspring who are then abandoned or left at adoption shelters... unless it is medically necessary this has to be controlled somehow. Even when fines are enforced they are not necessarily paid as the owners cannot afford to pay the fine. This proposal is crazy! You are permitting the increase in population of cats/dogs when our shelters are already full!
- As a breeder I am very responsible and due my due diligence in keeping things clean and try to avoid excessive noise My dogs get better care then some children in this world
- I do not believe a bylaw would deter a person from having more than 6 cats or dogs, it's a cash grab. Fines for not cleaning up a property is a better idea.
- I know many trainers within the Calgary city limits who have more dogs and no issue. My suggestion is that over 6 dogs be assessed on a case by case basis.
- I think 6 is too high of a number. 3 seems more reasonable to me for someone within City limits.
- NA
- If someone is a responsible pet owner if they want and can care for more animals we should not restrict that. Someone who is not a responsible pet owner may not provide adequate care for 1 dog.
- If these pets are on private property and the area is kept quiet and clean then why should the law be involved ? How much intrusion should a free country push onto any homeowner
- How many pets a person may have is their business, it is only an issue WHEN THEY DON'T TAKE CARE OF THEM.
- Six is unnecessarily too many! Two must be a maximum per household!

- I feel like that is an excessive number of animals and could be detrimental to the animals health and well being.
- It is just another excessive restriction
- 6 of both is way too many, again houses are getting closer together and you need to consider the neighbours of people who go ahead and get 6 dogs! Would you want to live next door to that? A limit of 2 seems reasonable in order to maintain a clean yard and care for them properly.
- It should be about responsible pet ownership and that has nothing to do with the number of pets
- 6 cats and 6 dogs per household seems to be an excessive amount of animals. That number potentially would require a significant space. I would think a total of 6 combined would be a better number
- I would like to see the number of allowed animals to be lower. No more than 4 animals per household, but that could be made up in any method. 4 dogs or 4 cats, 1 dog and 3 cats for example
- I think 4 should be the limit. Care is not just defined by space, I don't think 1 person can appropriately show the love and attention required to 6 dogs. The caveat to this one, would be temporary homes, a home with partial, yet trained love is better than a shelter.
- should be reduced to 2 dogs and 2 cats
- I think it should go by property size. As I don't think you should have 5 large dogs in a 1000 square foot apartment.
- I believe these changes should be in place but I don't agree with the restricted number (6 or any number) as I have had eight dogs at once and they were well cared for and quality citizens. I also have worked with a number of people how work closely with many animals and they are cared for. Putting a limit only makes people hide or not license their animals. It's cracking down on those who are not caring for their animals wether it be one or 20 who need to be penalized or limited.
- a smaller number.
- Unless there are specific issues with the animals and they are under control, there should not be a limit.
- what there is a family of 8 or more in a home and each of them have pet? what if your pet has a small litter and you would like to keep her babies? I believe as long as you have the space and time for each pet there should be no restrictions.....I would support something like x number of pets per person. I've seen a woman with 8 dogs that she can't care for and they are all cramped in a car when travelling. I believe that's wrong.
- There should be no more than two cats and two dogs per household.
- Putting a limit of allowable pets is the same as putting a limit on allowable children. The concerns of someone having too many pets (mess, noise, well-being) would be the same concerns of somebody with too many children. Child Services are called IF there is an issue, but there are no laws (to my knowledge) limiting the amount of children people may have. Pets should be treated the same.
- Who are you to decide whether someone has the means or space to accommodate more animals.
- 6 per kind and 12 total is too many pets and can lead to dangerous conditions for animals within the city like hoarding. Farms are ok.

- I believe that it is far beyond normal expectation for an individual household to support more than two of the stated animals without creating additional pressures on the neighbor properties with regard to noise, smell etc. How do owners expect to take proper care in exercise and everything else other than a few select owners. Also this is another way to control pet hoarders who unknowingly create hardship to the animals in their care. How many service animals does a person require? The rest is just excess - if you want to run a kennel/breeding operation move out to a rural area. Voila!
- No home should have that many animals in it. I think 4 animals total would be reasonable except under the exceptions 1-5 above (not Dog Fanciers or Service Animals)
- .
- 3 animals per house TOTAL should be the maximum. The exceptions listed make sense and are good.
- As long as the house and property are maintained I don't see an issue with the current limit
- I think we are able to make our own call on what we can handle.
- Seems like it is too many animals to properly take care of them.
- I think all animal fees should be free if you have under 2 animals.
- There should be max 2 cats and / or 2 dogs at the most.
- 4 animals are enough, any more are difficult to keep sanitary and contained
- How can someone possibly manage taking care of 6 cats and or 6 dogs? That's not fair to the animals or the surrounding community who will likely be dealing with the nuisance when the owner can't take care of the animals properly.
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive and basically animal hoarding.
- Most families likely could not afford appropriate veterinary care for 6 dogs and 6 cats - veterinary standards and costs are steadily rising. As an example, untreated dental disease in companion animals was typically ignored historically, but is now considered a humane issue - it is unlikely that most households with 12 pets could afford even just basic dental care for all of them.
- Hard to say how many 1 home can handle. Maybe this should be based more on land/home size vs steadfast hard number. Too many grey areas. Puppy mills and homes unfit for human or animals to reside in should have higher fines and such. Jail Time
- Don't agree
- Should depend on the size of property. If its a farm with the room and they are taking in rescues, why limit them?
- .
- No one needs 6 dogs and 6 cats in one household
- 6 cats & 6 dogs is way too many. A max of 2 of each will make sure they are properly cared for and a hoarding situation wont occur.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive, under any circumstance. I agree with a special application...but a limit of 3 animals should be imposed (in the interest of animal welfare).
- It is not the city of Calgary's place to tell people what animals they should or should not have, nor dictate the number of them. Your role should solely be enforcement and education.

- Number of animals does not determine their welfare standards or potential level of disturbance to neighbours
- 12 animals is too many
- While I like this proposed change, I would suggest that a restriction be placed based on the square footage of the property. For instance, if a house is on an average, 6 dogs would be reasonable, compared to 6 dogs in a townhouse with no yard. Similarly, there is a difference between owning 6 cats in a 1800sq ft house vs a one bedroom apartment.
- The maximum should be two dogs, three cats.
- Keeping this many animals in a household could impact their welfare poorly
- 6 is too many. Limit 2
- I agree in principle in this but I find it so arbitrary. If someone is a good animal owner, leave them be. If they aren't, let's deal with that specifically.
- Let's put limits on the number of children a household can have (for the same reasons of noise, protection of children, and accumulation of junk on a property).
- Provided all animals are well cared for and behaved, I don't think there should be any restrictions.
- 4 max cat or dog combined (2 cats or 2 dogs)
- There are other ways to address the issues mentioned.
- The limit needs to be lower - maximum two of any combination of dogs and cats.
- If a household can prove that their animals are well cared for and healthy, there shouldn't be a limit.
- It's irresponsible to own more dogs than for in my opinion. It becomes increasingly difficult to manage their behaviour and properly trained them and give them the attention that they require
- No one needs 6 cats and 6 dogs in one household. Limit to 3 dogs and 3 cats
- The amount of animals is fine but I don't support having to pay a license to own an animal
- Not necessary
- I dont think people should be allowed to have that many animals, they need lots os attentiom and raising the limit would mean decrease in care and well fare of the animals.
- 6 animals in an urban setting is intrusive to neighbours who otherwise have nearly no recourse when disputes arise. In my experience pet bylaws are not enforced enough to discourage poor behaviour or resolve problems.
- i should be allowed to have as many pets as i like, asling as they are being taken care of properly
- Who cares as long as they have the space to live happily
- This By-law for pitbull did ridiculous.
- I agree with all potential exceptions but I believe the pet limit is still too high for regular owners, I believe a max of four (4) dogs AND four (4) cats is more reasonable.
- A household should not be limited providing they are responsible owners that take care of the animals properly!
- Welfare of animals would be degraded with 6 dogs and cats. I think this should be lowered to 6 licenced animals total in the household
- If the person can control 6 dogs and 6 cats why put in a limit?

- 3 dogs and 3 cats per household is more than enough to ensure the welfare of the animals is protected
- 2 per household. 6 is ridiculous.
- as long as everyone is taken care of it shouldn't matter how many animals you have
- If someone has the space and financial resources to care for excess animals, then that is their business. As long as they do so properly and without disturbing those around them, who are we to restrict them.
- this is ridiculous. let people get what they want.
- I think that is an excessive amount of pets for one household and could lead to neglect or too much pack mentality amongst pets.
- While I do think that there are special cases where people are loving and giving and generous and amazing and have the best intentions when it comes to having that many animals, I feel as though there's more structure needed to this by law amendment as I would be worried that there are animals being neglected and I would be worried for the safety of some. I am pro people being able to adopt six dogs and cats but I think there should be some sort of special license given out to prove these are good and capable caregivers.
- Other than breeders and foster homes, nobody needs to have 6 pets
- Potential for over a dozen animals in a single home seems untenable
- 2 is a low number, two dogs and a cat would be a normal household count in my opinion.
- Two pets per household is plenty in the city. If you want more move to an average.
- It is not for the city to decide how many animals a person should have, the city should only be involved in the case of neglect, hoarding, or nuisance.
- Should be limited to 2 pets. Not necessary to have 6 pets.
- Limits should remain the same.
- This is unnecessary given that laws/bylaws already exist to mitigate the negative effects of too many animals. It also appears to give permission to have 12 animals in one house, which is also excessive.
- 6 dogs or cats is unreasonable. The noise and feces would be an issue. 2 pets per house in the city is enough.
- Make it fair to all animals
- Some dog breeds are known to have large litters therefore making it a possibility of the owner having more than 6 dogs of over 6-months of age until all puppies have found new homes. What is the breeder to do in this case? Kill the extra puppies? Penalizing these owners by making them pay for an extra permit is not an answer. If the dogs/cats are well-cared for, there should be no reason for artificial limitation placed in numbers.
- Because it will never end here. Soon it will be a one dog max
- Let me have as many pets as they want. This is a bloody shake down.
- I don't think it's enough of an issue to force everyone to comply... only if it would help with animal hoarders, but they are not likely to abide by the law anyway.
- There are people with 1 animal that are terrible owners!

- City cash grab
- Only in cases or animal welfare concerns should a limit of ownership be applied
- I would agree to no more than 3 pets. 6 pets could be unmanageable and too noisy.
- 6 of each is too many. We are not talking about farms or acreages here. Limit should be 3 of each.
- too many
- I think 3 would be a better number
- I'm not supporting any new changes
- I think 6 dogs in an urban setting is excessive. As housing gets closer and closer, noise and disturbances to neighbours is increasing. We have problems now with one or two dogs. If it was increased would there be more By Law individuals hired to react to complaints as now there are not enough.
- Too much bureaucracy...
- People should have the right to make reasonable decisions
- It shouldn't be a limit, each person should be responsible for their own choices, unless those choices affect others then action might be enforced
- N a
- This is too many animals to be located on a city property. Noise and accumulation of feces is a nuisance to neighbors and an unreasonable use of a private property.
- That is an excess of animals and has the potential to increase animal hoarders or unsafe situations for animals.
- That number is too big I would say no more than 3 or 4 for both dogs and cats
- Too many animals under one roof, currently enforcement of clean up is problematic at best.
- We are adults enough to figure this out
- We are adults enough to know what our limit is; if we don't that's what the job of the city is to do is intervene.
- There would be a lack of attention that each animal needs which can cause animals to act out and then you have a whole separate issue on your hands.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many for in the city! Try a lower number
- I think we are able to make our own call on what we can handle.
- I think that for the average person 6 dogs would be too much I think that 3 would be a good amount maybe 4 for a 2 or more adult household and or larger family.
- People who would have a very large number of pets have a disorder and would keep the animals anyway. We need to be realistic about what is enforceable. Blanket statements are not useful or realistic
- 12 Adult pets in one house is not fair to the well-being of each pet
- The number of pets allowed should be reduced further
- This is a free country. As long as the animals are well taken care of and the owner is a responsible owner, I don't believe in limiting the number of family members a family can have.

- Each situation is different, i think it appropriate to have an officer make a judgement call if the conditions arent sufficient for the amount of animals.
- Should be 6 pets total. 12 pets is absurd.
- worry about more important things
- The people who consider a limit necessary are not the same people who are on the ground trying to ensure quality of life to all animals. I am currently in the midst of a home renovation that took in to consideration having 100% vinyl flooring for animals. My goal is to start taking in senior dogs. Having 10 low key senior dogs that get to spend their last days in a home well loved is the goal. Responsible ownership is the key. If I have dogs that are barking, that's a problem that needs to be addressed but the focus should be on FIXING PROBLEMS WITH BAD OWNERS regardless of animals. Bad dogs don't exist. Have any of you lived on a farm? Have you seen how scary a mad hen can be? I can assure you that if you get picked by one of those things on the back of the leg, you're gonna know it. I don't want to be hearing about methods to deal with bad hens. I want to hear about what we do to bad owners of hens.
- Too high. I would support no more than 3 with the exceptions above.
- Sometimes its bad pet owners? Tough guys want tough looking pups. I own a 4 yro pit he is too kind even to strangers
- 6+6 is too many! lower threshold required
- Owning 6 cats and 6 dogs is way to excessive. If you have that many animals than chances are you are not taking care of them properly, and they probably don't have enough adequate space inside the home.
- 6 seems too high
- That seems like a lot of animals in one house. A condo verses a house, would you still be allowed the same in each?
- Urban dwellings are rarely large enough to allow for the comfort and cleanliness required for 6 indoor animals, let alone 12! Max of 3 cats and 3 dogs seems more than reasonable with the option for exemptions listed above
- There should be no limits
- 6 of any type if animal in a home is far to many to, dogs being in tight quarters will be more prone to dog fights which in turn may end up hurting a person without knowing
- It is not necessary at any time to have that many animals in one household.
- I'm still a strong believer that if all animals are properly cared for the number shouldn't matter. One or two animals can be neglected and create the same problems if not cared for. It is NOT about the number of animals it is about how they are cared for and managed.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is an unnecessarily high number. I think 6 cats OR dogs total is still high but more reasonable.
- Let people own as many pets as they want.
- I do not feel it necessary to have anything close to 6 cats or 6 dogs. The number of people who have one pet and cannot afford to properly care for their vet bills is already high, let alone being able to afford proper care for up to 12 animals.

- We've all seen what happens when too many dogs and cats are kept. Who needs six dogs!? I work with dogs every day, i have two myself. Thats enough. I cNnot under any circumstances imagine why anyone would need more. As a dog lover, i say definitely not.
- if you own your house or even rent, unless your landlord states you cant have them then that should be your decision..
- People should be allowed to have multiple pets if they are being cared for and aren't being a disturbance to neighbours
- Feel it is pointed at only one or 2 breeds unfairly
- City needs to stop telling people how to live their life. If someone wants 8 dogs and can afford to license them and take care of them then that is up to them. We live in a free country lets keep it that way.
- 12 animals in a city lot are too many in my opinion
- 6 cats or dogs in an apartment would be too many. I think case by case review would need to be necessary for me to agree to the proposed bylaw change.
- You can't limit well trained animals, I have 12 just dogs myself all husky's, they are my mushing team. With good behaviour a strong routine these nuisances would not be a thing.
- As long as these animals are being treated well it's none of your business
- It should depend on the size of the house/property
- people should be allowed the freedom to own as many or as few animals as they would like. If someone gets out of hand they will get reported and then they can be dealt with. There is no need for limits from the government.
- six is to many pets in one house. this is not fair to the pets or the neighbors, I believe that a total of three pets is more than enough.
- As long as a person is able to care for the amount of animals they have there shouldn't be a limit on number of pets
- Impacts rescues
- Government interference in how private citizens govern their affairs. More rules do not make a better society. Thin edge of the wedge....only way for the limits to go is down.
- Fines for lack of care would be more effective in reducing the number of pets citizens are keeping.
- if you can financially take care of more animals it is acceptable.
- It's fine how it is.
- If someone can properly take car of more than 6 animals, they should be allowed to
- I think it should stay to 6 total- a city property is not large enough for more than this.
- Everyone should be able to have As many in their household as long as they are not bothering anyone
- 6 of each is too many
- Animals make people happy.
- I support the maximum number of species per household mentioned above and the need for dogs to be licensed but do not understand why cats that are not allowed outdoors would require the same type of license. Could they be registered and owners pay a lesser fee instead? This would still allow the city to see the number of animals living in each home.

- Let me have as many pets as I want. Yes if there is a welfare concern take the animals away from the people harming them, but there are MANY people with several pets who all get treated like family
- Number of animals in a household does not matter. The only thing that should matter is cleaning up after the animals and ensure good quality of living for said animals.
- 6 dogs in home is way to many
- There are very few owners and properties that appropriately house, exercise and treat their animals well according to the space living in an urban setting if you have an excess of animals. 6 is ridiculous.
- somebody always finds a way to manipulate a law in their favor.
- Keep them limited
- In many cases, this would result in the unnecessary rehoming of existing animals, causing trauma for the animal and owner, and potentially putting the animal in a worse situation. This should be assessed on a case by case basis as concerns arise.
- The number of pets isn't a problem as long as they are following regulations and not causing problems for neighbors. Similar to that we currently don't restrict the number of kids a household can have.
- If looked after properly, no limit needed
- If they comply with all the existing rules I see no reason for a specific limit.
- There should be no limit. Each scenario is situational.
- 12 potential animals seems excessive for a regular household. How about 6 animals in total; any combo of cats and dogs with those 6
- It should depend on the property size and the amount of care provided to the animals
- It's great how it is.
- too many
- I guess if someone has more than 6 and they can afford them, they have space, and the pets are cared for it doesn't matter how many they have
- In order to answer yes, I would need to know just what are "special circumstances", it needs some definition.
- That's too many animals for someone not fostering or in rescue.
- How did you arrive at six? What if the property is quite large or the animals are quite small? It seems completely arbitrary.
- That's too many animals per household
- If the people can afford the animals, and clean up after them and train them properly it shouldn't be an issue.
- As long as all animals are cared for let people have as many as they want.
- I think 4 should be the maximum animals

- No
- if the house is big enough to care for them then there is no need make this a law
- all pets need to be licensed and kept in good health or severe fine/jail.
- I feel 2 cats and 2 dogs is enough in a city home
- Nobody should need that many animals in one house
- NO
- Why license an indoor pet? That is a ridiculous money grab.
- That is still too many. No one needs up to 12 animals in one residence. 3 max is enough to take care of properly.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats! That's too many! 6 animal units is enough. A dog or cat with a litter should count as one unit until the puppies or kittens are 4 months old.
- Provided the animals are cared for properly and follow all guidelines there should be no limit on how many cats or dogs a person has.
- This would depend on the space available for the pets, the larger the property the more pet that can be able to safely inhabit the area.
- no
- It is the right to an individual to decide how ever many animals they can appropriately take care of.
- Some people have 12 well heaved/ care for animals and some people only have 2 nor behaved / poorly cared for animals so numbers do not matter
- Does this include people living in larger properties? Acreages?
- I think limits on pets also depend on the type of dwelling (.I.e condo vs detached home as well as square ft of the property) not just an arbitrary number
- Unless you have the right amount of space for excercise then it should be based on household size. An acreage can have more dogs then an single apartment.
- I love animals, but that many (upto 12) in a residence in city limits is not good for any animal. On an acreage or farm is a different situation
- There should definitely be a restriction to the number of animal someone can have in their home. This is in the best interest of the animal, the neighbors and to ensure people aren't hoarding pets.
- If the animals are well taken care of and the home clean, it seems excessive to not allow someone animals.
- As long as the animals are being treated well, and a healthy environment, if someone wants 30 cats and dogs. Who are we to say no.
- 6 of each is too high.
- A household should not have more than 2 animals
- It's evident that some people can't even take care of 1 never mind 6 and some people are to lazy to keep their yards clean. And with all the wondering cats there will be even more cat crap in the front of my house . That .. I... Have to clean
- I have concerns that 12 animals cannot be properly taken care of. I would support 7 animals total.

- One pet is too many when owned by an irresponsible owner. Responsible pet owners should not be limited. More severe punishments for owners of neglected and abused animals. Penalize the irresponsible pet owners, not the rest of us.
- There is no need other than if they are working dogs (sled dogs) to have more than max three per house. Same with cats, no more than 3
- it is not necessary for anyone to own more than 2 cats and/or dogs. Our neighbors own 3 dogs and their backyard is covered with feces, there is smell, and they don't care about that. Imagine them having 12 animals... I would support an exception for breeders/pet sitters/daycares though.
- Six is too many.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is WAY too many animals under one roof
- 6 cats and dogs is too many for most areas in Calgary. yards are too small and neighbors are too close.
- Temporary would be the only one I support for this.
- If a person can maintain and keep the animals well cared for, there is no need. If they cannot, they should be fined.
- People should be allowed to own however many pets they want
- I mostly agree but if the animals are in good health condition and are being looked after correctly there shouldn't have to be a limit
- 6 dogs and 6 cats/household is TOO Many..potential exceptions seem reasonable.
- People assisting with pet rescue should be exempt
- 6 dogs.
- No - should not be more than 3 cats / 3 dogs.
- Current bylaw is not commented but I assume it is lower than 6. I do not think 6 animals are needed as pets. Exceptions would include breeders with pups which should be under different licensing.
- Not clarified enough. One household could include but not be exclusive to an acreage within the city limits compared to a single bedroom apartment, size and type of animal vs quantity. 6 Chihuahua vs 6 Burmese is a significant difference
- Limiting the number of animals will only increase the number of dogs surrendered and increase the number of dogs needing adopting
- Too many animals to care for. No reason for that many in the city limits.
- Only for cats their numbers should be limited by the size of the residence. Six cats in a very large house is not the same as a small apartment.
- As long as it's a big enough space for the animals have what you want
- I don't need to explain anything! This is bs as well.
- 6 dogs or cats is somewhat excessive when living in the city. Most property sizes do not allow for the proper space needed for them. I do support the exceptions listed, except for the "dog fanciers permit" and the "excess animal permit".
- If they're well taken care of, they shouldn't be restricted
- It doesn't go far enough - I would limit to 4 of each and remove several of the exceptions as people may exploit them.

- You don't specify how many dogs are currently allowed in the bylaw, therefore I won't vote to change it.
- reduction to three
- I believe that is too many animals in one house hold and that it would be difficult to care for that many animals in a normal single family home.
- Not if POTENTIAL is not removed from exception. All listed would be required
- Excessive waste of time and resources to go check up on animals
- Restrictions such as these could lead to an increase in numbers of a) euthanized animals in shelters per year b) an increased number of animals in shelters c) a decrease in the number of adoptions from shelters.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats seems like an unreasonable number of pets. I would support a 6 total and allow the same rules as above. This wouldn't stop anyone from having those pets just having to apply for an overage license
- More than three dogs in a small house is unfair for the animals. If the backyard/living space is not acceptable, a household should be limited to 2 dogs.
- There are many people living in roommate situations, oftentimes each person will have at least one pet. Other situations would include having a senior animal with a younger and getting another animal to help cope with the eventual loss. As long as animals are well taken care of, with regular walks, good food and veterinary care I don't think there should be a limit. I do think it should depend on the size of the household. If you live in a small home and have 3+ dogs obviously that may not be the best decision
- I could easily care for up to 4-5 dogs or 4-5+ cats with ease as a single person, this is all dependent on how responsible the owner is.
- instead of having a set number, create a number per square feet of space. The number of pets allowed in a 1,000sq ft home vs a 2,000 sq ft home should be different
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is completely unreasonable within city limits, move to a farm if you want that many animals. I think max capacity would be reasonable at A total number of 4
- What animals people own in their homes is their own business.
- I believe the household limit should be 4 animals total.
- People can have what they want as long as they can afford them and treat them per current standards.
- Rental housing allowing pets may exceed the listed amount
- I think a household in the city, most with limited space should not consist of more than 6 feline and/or canine pets in total. If you allow 6 dogs and 6 cats, that's 12 animals. In my opinion that's too many for most to be able to care for properly.
- I think the max should be 4 dogs and 4 cats. 6each is too much!
- People should be allowed to have as many pets as they like, and pay fines that they don't take care of.
- This restriction is overbroad. There should be distinctions based on the available space, such as square footage of living space or outdoor space.

- people in the city should not have more than 2 dogs or cats (3 if fostering or one is near end of life). Even rural AB has these limits and bylaws.
- Animals are a choice, and it's nobodies business if the animals aren't causing trouble
- Should have that many animals to be cared for properly. Take good care of the one you got not take ok care of a lot
- [removed]
- I believe that number is still excessive.
- 6 dogs or cats per household are too many. Will increase likelihood of causing problems within neighborhoods.
- Unless there are concerns for the welfare of the animal or neighbors people should be able to do what they want in their own homes
- If my animals are well cared for and safe, no one is going to dictate how many I can have in MY home. Implement welfare checks for animals instead.
- I think this should be done on a case-by-case basis. There's no need to punish the responsible dog/cat owners.
- I feel that's too many animals. I think 3 dogs and 3 cats is plenty.
- 2 animals per house is more then sufficient unless it's hens etc
- This would prohibit a breeders livelihood, or a person who has the time and space to take care of this many animals.
- This should also be handled on a case by case basis depending on the amount of room they have to accommodate each animal.
- I do not support animal limits. Owner responsibility and QUALITY OF CARE are key criteria
- Dont agree
- The bylaw is good as it is on this issue
- A potential total of 12 cats and dogs is far too many animals in a city household.
- You cannot tell someone how many children they are allowed to have. As pong as they are able to take care of the animals, they should be able to. I'd rather see every house full of cats and dogs than the shelters
- Six is more than generous
- 12 is too many animals in one home. I would support up to 6 animals in a household — dogs, cats or a combination.
- I feel the number proposed, 6 dogs and 6 cats is too large.
- In a city 6 animals is too many and it effects an animals quality of life
- 6 dogs and cats is exponentially high.
- I agree with the idea of licensing pets but there should be no fees associated with owning pets aside from the costs required to care for that pet.
- What about animal rescues?
- As long as the pet owner is responsible they can do as they please. Overpaid public servants should not have the power to dictate private life. A-wads.

- If people can finically and properly keep that many animals that's their business.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is enough for any household
- As long as they are taken care of no limit should be placed
- its bot the cities business how many animals a household has.
- People have problems with ONE PET.
- A blanket rule applying to both cats and dogs is unacceptable. Dogs require their owners to walk them and pick up their excrement. Cats do not require to be walked. Dogs bite when provoked or in some cases, just because. Cats do not harbor the same aggression. Cats are primarily kept inside the house where dogs like to be walked, taken to the park etc. As long as the house which houses the animals is large enough to accommodate all the animals an owner chooses to keep, then restrictions are unnecessary.
- I agree with the exceptions but do not feel households need 6 dogs or cats. 4 dogs or cats should be enough.
- You need to look at the square footage of the home. If it is smaller, then the number of pets should also be restricted.
- 2 cats or 2 dogs is plenty. 6 dogs or cats is ridiculous. Those people with more than 2 have psychological issues, or are eating them.
- 12 animals seems too high. I believe 3 & 3 is more realistic.
- If someone is a good pet owner and has enough space they shouldn't be limited to how many animals they can care for.
- I don't see any reason for 6 dogs or cats to be on a single property within the city.
- Puppy mills can still operate under this bylaw
- Residents who want many pets should live in the country on larger properties, for the sake of the animals and other residents
- I don't believe that many animals in one household will be properly taken care of.
- In an urban setting this is far too many animals, resulting in more of the problems mentioned in this survey. A total of 2 cats/dogs would be my recommendation. The rights of Calgarians who do not own animals need to be taken into account.
- i, who have owned pets my whole life, personally feel that that number is still too high. 3 and 3 is more than enough. anymore as individual or team that is not doing it as some form of livelihood cannot be a responsible pet owner with that many animals living within city limits. too much!
- Stop controlling people that are not doing anything wrong. Penalize the people only that are irresponsible/negligent pet owners. . pet owners.
- More than two dogs and two cats is absolutely unnecessary, a complete nuisance to the neighborhood, and ridiculous.
- There should be no limit for how many animals a person is allowed to have in their own household
- If you're gonna put a limit on how many animals can be in a household then put a limit on how many people per household to... oh wait, you won't.
- I feel increasing the amount of pets allowed in a household would just allow irresponsible pet owners to continue being irresponsible without any accountability.

- The bylaw shouldn't determine what a person decides to own
- I'm not sure
- I don't agree with restricting the amount of animals someone can own.
- if someone is happy and can take care of 12 dogs and both the person and animals are living comfortably then i do not see any issues
- 6 dogs is far too excessive. This is not safe for the dogs, the owners, or the neighbourhood. A 2 dog limit should be enforced. 6 cats is a reasonable limit.
- I think we have enough rules regarding behavior of animals.
- I don't think pets should be restricted. It will increase the amount of dogs in shelters.
- People should be able to have as many dogs/cats as they want as long as they are properly taken care of
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats?! No one can adequately care for that many animals. It would encourage breeding and hoarding.
- 6 dogs is too many dogs for an urban household, 6 cats is too many cats for one household. If people want to own that many animals they should live on an acreage or a farm. It's not fair to the animals to have them cooped up in such a confined space.
- If an owner is willing to put in the work to look after multiple pets there's no issue with them having multiple pets.
- Should be based on square footage of home and ability of owner to be a competent caregiver to said animals.
- Who are you to tell me how many animals I can have if I am able to take care of them?
- That's way too many animals in a household at once.
- Let people decide how many pets they Can care for
- Different circumstances
- 12 animals in a single household is too many!!
- There is no reason for people to own any more than 2 animals unless a breeder.
- 12 pets is still too many
- I think that if animals are being properly cared for why are we limiting the amount anyone can have?
- Overall I agree with the number, but could perhaps be raised based on larger property sizes.
- that is too many animals in one location
- That's too many. Too much chance of noise, smell, etc. problems. Again, hard to enforce bylaws.
- Six of anything including children is too many
- This will lead to further un registered breeders
- I would support going up to 3 but anything more should require a special application.
- No one needs 12 pets
- 6 of each are way too many, 4 of each should be the limit
- 6 is too high
- A limit of 2 dogs and 2 cats without special permission and permits

- The system in Calgary has functioned well. Limiting now would stress current pet owners who are over the new limit.
- Especially with cats, six is not necessarily too many for a single-household to manage. It is more about the care that the animals receive from owners than an arbitrary number.
- It should be less per house hold. No one needs that many animals
- That is way too many animals for anyone in the city to own or manage.
- Should be more stricter! Limit pets to 2 per household! Why does any one need 6 dogs or 6 cat? Make special licenses for people who want to breed dogs
- If someone can comfortably and responsibly care for 20 cats or dogs who are you to tell them they can't?
- I think the limit of licenced dogs should be lower. It is in other municipalities. 6 seems too high
- I think having more access to animal welfare check or having applications for more then 6 animals could be beneficial.
- We have an issue with strays, abused animals, inadequately cared for animals, everywhere! If we start creating limitations, the influx of animals being stray or improperly cared for will only increase. However, those obtaining large quantities of animals (Whatever that # is...) should thoroughly screened to ensure they have large enough facilities, adequate cash flow, proper training, ALL other fronts such as love, vet, etc. & perhaps this would call for unannounced visits by authorities to the premises to validate they're adhering to EVERYTHING.... Above it states 'it is not necessary for anyone to own more than 2 cats and/or dogs', I believe in some cases perhaps... BUT that's really a judgmental, uneducated opinion, that is not statically proven from justly sources. To the best of my knowledge anyways. I feel that many cases are not black & white. I have witnessed an became friends with people whom have well beyond 6 cats/dogs & the animals, are very well cared for on ALL fronts. Better than my wife cares for me. Lol. In this case or example, isn't this much better then limiting people & having those poor animals on the street, in facilities such as Humane Society(s), or euthanized...? I'm not saying any random person should have sufficient quantities of animals however, if a person(s) passes or are approved after undergoing thorough regulated screening & training, why not?... In addition, I do feel people with significant animals should undergo unannounced thorough inspections of their animals & facilities.
- This is too many pets per household
- More than two dogs in an urban setting is not appropriate other than the above exceptions. Currently there is almost no time in the summer when I don't have to listen to a dog barking. I see no reason I should have to have this increased.
- Why would you need that many u less you plan on breeding them.
- I'm saying no today because you talk about potential exceptions. What would happen if I agree and then say the law gets changed and no my breeder who is amazing can't breed any more dogs.
- There should be no limits on the number of pets
- The gov/city doesn't need rules for everything. If they're in a good home that's a good choice no matter how many animss as L.A.

- Some people have the means, time, and room for a lot of animals and controlling how many animals someone can have is like controlling how many kids someone can have. I've seen people with 2 dog or a couple cats have worse noise and mess than people with 10 dogs or more cats.
- Two cats and/or dogs is a bit vague but I understand it here to be a total of two pets. I think it should be 4 pets.
- Too intrusive. If an individual or home can manage their pets without the accumulation of feces, excessive noise and protect the welfare of the animal this should not be an issue. Base on results
- You can't limit
- There are many reasons why someone owns multiple dogs. Restrictions would be unfair to those that can properly care for them, like those involved with dog sports.
- No one needs that many pets
- Deal with individual issues. Don't regulate something that doesn't need to be because of a few "comments". Cut the red tape don't drape yourselves in it.
- There are many good pet owners out there that are educated and can take care of more than six of any type of pet, requirements is animals need to be trained
- Who needs 6 dogs or 6 cats?!? Even if you're fostering. Momma and offspring is one thing but as soon as those offspring are ready for rehoming they need to go to new homes. No home needs 6 of an animal.
- If a person wants to own more than 6 cats and 6 dogs they should at their own risk. No one should be limited to how much animals they can have especially if they're helping another animal go to another home.
- A person with 1 dog can be less clean than those that keep multiple. It is up to the owner to be responsible enough to take proper care of the animals in their care. I for one have 3 large dogs and I guarantee I have the cleanest pet yard around.
- I agree with the structure of the proposed change, but think that 6 dogs AND 6 cats are still too many. I would suggest a lower limit -- maybe 6 animals (combined total of dogs and cats).
- 6 per household is a lot. No one needs that many pets. Please save our children from Dog bites by limiting the number of dogs as pet and all dogs should be muzzled except the tiny ones.
- Again, we do not need government intervention in something that is easily handled by responsible pet owners
- I love dogs but no more than two. Some people may think having 6 dogs is okay but your neighbours may not. The cities efforts to control the noise is feeble and toothless. Potentially six or more cats roaming at night, yeah the city can not prevent that either. Easier to prevent the potential problems that you know will come is limit the potential problem.
- I think 6 is still too many. I support a maximum of 2 dogs and 2 cats per household with the potential exceptions to the rule as above.
- people should be allowed to have however many pets they want providing they take care of their pets properly. If someone wants 15 chihuahuas and they take care of them properly then hats off to them. Who are we to tell them they can't have their companions. I only care that the animals are taken care of properly

- Really don't like being told how many I can or cannot have. The bylaw can cover topics on responsible pet ownership. People can have a lot of pets and still be responsible.
- I believe this amount is still too high
- If animals are properly cared for the number of animals shouldn't matter.
- Excessive oversight by government. Better use can be found for limited enforcement resources.
- You shouldn't be allowed to control this.
- No
- Limit is too high. A maximum of 6 animals is enough.
- This is far too many animals to keep in the city. Nobody can properly look after and care for that many physically or financially. Vet bills etc.
- too many
- We currently have no limit to the number of vehicles someone owns (potential neighbourhood parking issues), no limit to stereos (potential neighbourhood noise issues), no limit to number of children/residents per household (host of issues). There's no reason for an upper limit to pet ownership, as our enforcement agencies (Calgary Humane and CPS) are able to use provisions under the Animal Protection Act and the Criminal Code to deal with poor living conditions. The Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw can be amended to address possible nuisance issues from large numbers of pets (feces smell, noise, etc...) but shouldn't be tailored to explicitly ban larger numbers of pets if the owners can show competence and good standards of care for the animals as well as respect for their neighbours. Someone who has 8 indoor cats in their 2500 sq ft house with adequate litter facilities shouldn't be barred from the last two cats arbitrarily because the other [removed] down the street has 16 dogs who live in an unfenced yard and crap on their neighbour's properties.
- Like the idea but 6 still seems like too much. 4 total?
- I do not support a hard limit as a universal rule.
- Way too many animals in one household. Would suggest an accumulated total of 4, regardless of the mix of cats to dogs. .
- If there are issues bylaws can deal with them
- 6 is TOO MANY
- I would only support limitations on pet numbers in relation to lot and house sizes. The size of the pet matters as well.
- 12 animals in a house seems insane - it should be 4 to 6 total and then special application will be required
- As long as the pets are fine, property is clean. Who are we to say how many animals someone can own?
- 6 dogs is way too many animals on a urban property. That's unfair to the animals not having sufficient space.
- I think the limit should be less.
- 12 animals? Are you running a zoo? That's ridiculous. No one needs 12 pets.
- I think people should be able to choose how many pets they have based on the amount of space they have and what they can afford.

- 12 total animals is a lot. I don't know how common this is. I would agree to these limits if there was animal welfare checks in place, with enforcement as needed.
- The pet limit should be 4 dogs and/or cats, meaning a combination of them as long as the maximum is 4. I agree with the "potential exceptions".
- not needed
- I think people should be able to have as many as they want as long as they are clean and not a nuisance to others
- 12 animals plus the exceptions above is a lot. 6 (combination of dogs or cats) seems more reasonable
- Too much noise and stink in yards from lack of picking up feces. People should be content to care for a small number of pets well.
- Too many animals in one household for companion purposes.
- The exceptions suggested here may render this bylaw change impracticable.
- No I do not agree
- 12 animals per household seems like too many.
- That number of animals is not necessary
- I don't support any limitations on any animals. It's a slippery slope for us serious pet owners, breeders etc.
- The limits should be four of each kind per household.
- It is not necessary for anyone to own more than 2 cats and/or dogs. Responsible pet owners recognize that this is reasonable.
- People who have additional animals will not license them making it harder for them to be returned in case of an escape. They may not seek vet care for additional animals in fear of being penalized for having more than the permitted amount of animals
- They should be allowed to own as many animals as they are willing to take care of. Some people only have 1 pet and cannot take care of them whereas some people have 10 and do a great job. It should be specific from person to person
- I disagree with points 3,4 @ 7 -
- There needs to be a cap of 1 or 2 at most. It is cruel to animals to not have anyone there for them.
- No more than 2 animals total. Otherwise it is cruel to the animal.
- I would support a total of 6 animals per household. 12 in house animals plus potential for livestock has a drastic number of potential animals.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats??? Really??? I would support a greater number of cats than I would dogs, as cats should be kept indoors, however dogs require outdoor activities. Again, I would not want to live next door to any household that has 6 barking dogs outside all at the same time!!!! Keep it reasonable, please. How about 2 dogs, and then owners would have to request a special licence for the 3rd (at a higher cost). I see no need for anyone to have more than 2 or 3 dogs, other than if they are a breeder, and even then, that should be a temporary situation. Service dogs should be included in the total.
- 6 animals in a household is too many! Limit to 2 or 3

- deal with problem animals and owners using the already existing bylaws. the tools are there to deal with problems without introducing an arbitrary limit on the number of animals one can own.
- One per person for dog and two per person cat
- My answer is ultimately yes however not sure how this extends to rural areas if at all. Possible properties that are within the City of Calgary limits could have barn cats, and livestock protector dogs that could go over this limit.
- A limit of 1. One. Only one.
- There does not need to be more than 6 dogs or cats in a household. If so, they would need to provide evidence of spaying and neutering, vaccine status, ability to pay for veterinary care etc
- Limit should be way lower, perhaps for Animals per household. This would exclude mother animals with small puppies or kittens.
- It dosent matter
- I do not agree with any household needing 6 dogs and 6 cats. That number should be significantly less. I would support a maximum of 3.
- Six dogs AND six cats is a lot of animals on a city lot. A lower limit of 2+2 or 3+3 is sufficient, subject to the types of exceptions noted.
- 6 dogs is a lot-might as well have no limit.
- Six cats AND six dogs is a huge number of animals per household. Three of each would be more appropriate. Individual exceptions could be made if, for example, one inherited a parent's pets.
- Should be a limit of 3 or fewer animals in total with the exceptions above.
- So longs as people are responsible pet owners they should be allowed to have as many as they want with the exception of obvious hoarding
- There should be no more than two animals in a household, within the city limits.
- Decrease the number of allowed pets. 6 of each is too many, especially dogs.
- I am in agreement with these types of exceptions but I think the regular limit should be 4 or fewer not 6. Unless you are a registered breeder in which case you could be exempt and get a special breeder license.
- 6 cats or dogs per house hold is way to many for the city.
- Six of each car and dog seems extreme. I agree to the exceptions of the rules (like when a litter is born), but 12 medium-large animals on one urban property is far too many.
- If animals are properly cared for, it's no ones business. Until yyc gets a far better spay neuter program in place, we need good homes which may mean multiple pets. If there is an issue, heavy fines and imprisonments for those who abuse animals and hoard. You are not doing your job so don't lay the blame on good people. If there were stronger punitive enforcement then that would be a better deterrent
- Six animals in one household is way too many the neighbours have to put up with it all
- It's resonable
- I don't think it's possible to provide a proper level of care for this many animals. I don't see why this many animals would ever be necessary
- Stop controlling people

- No limits please
- Five is good
- How does the city plan to control the number of pets if owners do not obey the rules.
- Rather than a limit I would suggest a number above which a permit is required (with application and review.process as for a building or development permit and you can out all your rules in that process. license is required
- No limit
- Excessive and unnecessary- most people cannot control that many animals. More dogs loose in nondog parks
- There could be multiple families living in one dwelling and each pet belongs to a different person
- No one should have 6 dogs or cats. 3 MAX How do you walk them?Speical licence for Breeders
- It is never about the amount of animals owned, it is always about how the animals are treated and if they are dangerous or not.
- This is too many and could lead to hardships and cost challenges on the animals
- as long as the owner has the means and space to care for the animals properly I don't think there should be a limit to the number of large pets allowed on one property.
- thats far too many animals for anyone to manage adequately
- Doesn't take into account size of the household
- It is up to the person how many pets they want not up to the nosey neighbor
- that is WAY to many animals. if someone has that many it will 100% be unclean. there is no way those animals are all being properly fed and walked 2 times a day. The TREATMENT of the animals needs to be more of your focus. Also, if low income people have dogs, are they paying a dog walker to walk the dogs while theyre at work? Probably not.
- People should be allowed to own however many animals they want. So long as they can care for them.
- The number could be higher for cats.
- none of the exceptions would justify having more than 12 animals in a home.
- Noboy needs six cats and six dogs in there house. I would say a total of 4 - any combination of the two.
- Government has no place in people's house unless there is a issue.
- As a dog owner and previous cat owner, six (6) of each is too many for a household to properly and safely manage, except under specific circumstances. If the limit increases, it may promote more people purchasing additional pets, which may result in poor animal care (e.g. lack of resources) and increased nuisance and risk to others. If someone feels the need to have more, they should be required to request an exemption. All individuals and addresses with exemptions should be made publicly available.
- Way too high ! No-one should have to live next door to ANYONE with 6 dogs or cats . 2 cats or dogs per household , max .
- Unless potential exceptions were guaranteed

- 6 and 6 is too many. No one needs that many animals in the city, and they will inevitably be a nuisance.
- I believe six dogs and six cats are way too many, owners may enjoy them but neighbours won't, noise and odour will be a problem, the number needs to be lower
- There should not be a difference between cats and dogs. It should be a max of 6 cats and dogs together
- 6 dogs is a lot of dogs is one household.
- It is not the number of animals that is important, rather HOW they are being managed. I know a lady with over 30 dogs and she can manage those better than many people do with a single pet.
- No one needs this inside city limits
- Similar to previous answers. My neighbor can keep as many pets as they want so long as their noise and aroma do not degrade the quality of life for me and my family. Again, very subjective. I may be more tolerant of noise and smell than someone else.
- It matters more that the number is being cared for properly and not a nuisance to anyone else.
- People should be able to have multiple pets as they desire for their own happiness. Should not be dictated by others opinions.
- Personally, six dogs AND six cats are way too many for a household. If people already cant afford the afformentioned licences, how are people suposed to afford that many pets.
- No sane person needs 6 dogs and 6 cats in a household. I would support limiting pets to ONE per household.
- The limit should be 2
- That is way more then should be allowed
- Twelve animals in one home is too many. The health and well being of the animals could be at risk with numbers that high.
- I will have as many as I want. MY HOUSE MY LAW
- If the animals are taken care of it's no one's business
- I would only support a rule such as this if it actually went after owners who neglected their pets. Otherwise this would be just another rule to prosecute good pet owners.
- Personal liberty is valuble
- Do not change the by-law.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are too many in one house. I feel the max limit should be lower
- A total of 12 animals seems excessive for the average pet owner. I support the exceptions, but would like to see the total number reduces to a total of 6 cats and dogs.
- That is too many animals per property. I dont support that at all
- I think people should have the right to keep their pets.
- No need to have that many pets
- m
- I would like to know what the bylaw limit is now before I support or not support this change.
- Animal Hoarders

- 6 is excessive. 4 would be enough. Maybe 6 IN TOTAL. But, from my understanding, that's 12 pets per household. Also -evaluate the size of the home and size of the animals!
- It seems unnecessary to limit, and an infringement on freedoms— what about those living within city limits on massive properties? Who have the space?
- People are responsible and can have as much pets as they want
- Again, restricting people is not the answer. Maybe there should be a review, does the person have space, can the person financially take care of more than 6. Are the current animals healthy. No additional charges but a review of the home this is how you keep animals safe. I can't think of any scenario where someone living in a city would have more than 2 pets especially 6. If the special application included a review than I would support it.
- I would support a limit of 6 cats but not 6 dogs. I had a neighbour who had 3 dogs, she rarely walked the dogs, and just left the door to her home open so they could come and go as they pleased, they were constantly barking, attacked the landscape crew, she rarely picked up after them. I would support a two dog limit.
- Six each is too many. I would support maximum of 3 each
- Its no ones buisness if they are being taken care of!
- limits on pet ownership should not be mandated but stringent requirements regarding feces removal, animal welfare as noise should be stringently enforced regardless of the number of animals owned.
- Max three dogs per household.
- Limit should be no more than 2 or 3 , unless you are a licensed Breeder. Temporary homes like Fosters/Breeders/DayCare/etc are Businesses and not permanent residence of animals and should be licensed and regulated to ensure proper health and safety of animals in their care. Baby animals should be an exception until they reach the age of being adopted.
- I don't believe we should place restriction on the quantity of residential pets that a person may have. Most people are responsible pet owners and there are generally already rules in place to ensure an animals welfare.
- Should be fewer than 6. Suggest 3 max of both
- There should be a limit to animals due to noise and feces maintenance.
- I think any house owning over 3 dogs should need to apply for a kennel permit so that the house can be assessed so the animals are being cared for properly.
- There should only be bylaws for things like noise and smell and those enforced. It won't matter how many if these bylaws are adhered to.
- There is no reason for anyone to have that many dogs and cats. People should be limited to no more that 4 animals. The way it is written it encourages puppy mills.
- Would you restrict how many children someone can have?
- 6 cats/6 dogs are a large amount of animals. Unless you have so much square footage this shouldnt be allowed for the animals well being.
- People should not be allowed to own more than 2 pets. Those that do are usually hoarders and/or mentally unstable. There was one on our street like that and the stench for her place was revolting.
- There is no need for an individual household to have that many dogs and cats.

- I don't believe it is the number of pets that matters, it's the owner's capability to care and manage their pets. More importance should be placed on the EDUCATION and TRAINING of pet owners, which would reduce the number of problem animals in the first place.
- The number of animals per household should be much lower. 12 animals in a household is opening the door to neglect and abuse of these animals.
- I feel that 6 to 12 animals is still too many. [personal information removed] a woman who owns 12 dogs. She breeds these dogs illegally. We have dealt with excessive barking (over 1000 noise instances inside and outside our home over the course of 6 months in 2019). Also the smell of her 12 animals defecating in her backyard often wafts over to our yard on a daily basis. We have been dealing this noise issue since 2018, filed complaints with bylaw in 2019, and also in 2020. When we moved into this house she had 7 dogs, and then a few years later she inherited 7 more dogs. With this proposed bylaw change, and the proposed exemptions there is nothing that guarantees that I will ever have a quiet existence in my own home. She will continue to be allowed to have her 12 dogs and I will have to file complaints year after year because her 12 dogs continue to bark inside and outside as well as stink up our backyard. Every other city in Alberta and probably across the rest of the country limits the pets to 3/4 per household. Anyone that I speak to about this issue I have been dealing with is flabbergasted that Calgary doesn't have this same bylaw. People that think that pet numbers should not be regulated have never had to live next to someone that allows their animals to bark, howl, squeal or yelp for hours/days/weeks/months at a time. Maybe my experience is not common but because the lack of regulations it has allowed this woman to get away with this for years, wasting valuable bylaw officer time, as well as degrading our neighbourhood relations. [personal information removed]
- bylaw remains same - no limit
- People have their own rights to how many pets they should have. Just impose fines for noises and feces.
- The limit should no greater that 2 dogs Or 2 cats. With the exceptions listed above.
- maximum 2 dogs/cats allowed, for birds could more.
- A household can potentially have 12 pets without special application - I highly doubt noise and feces will be managed properly in this case. I would support a much lower number of 2 dogs and 2 cats.
- No household should have more than a dog or a cat.
- If people can take care of their pets then there should be no limit. Hoarders are already breaking bylaws and this amendment would only serve to punish responsible pet owners
- If you said exceptions to the rule would be: Then I would say yes.
- 6 cats and/or dogs Mac
- To allow 6 dogs and 6 cats in one household is excessive and a person would need a substantial income to support proper treatment of that many animals. I think the exceptions make sense for people running businesses and people that currently have that number of animals.
- I think six each is a lot. How about 3 and 3?
- Six and six is too high. A total of four seems very reasonable.

- I have two dogs and two cats and I run a rescue. The issue isn't in the number of animals someone owns but the level of crate and training those animals receive.
- Don't think so
- Limiting amounts of dogs will not work as people will just not register and bylaw will not go door to door. Make the guideline 1 dog per adult in the household.
- pet limits should be reduced to 4 dogs and 4 cats, with all of the exceptions above.
- Of animals are well cared for. The owner shouldn't have a cap on the amount of animals they have.
- I believe 6 is still too high - there should be no more than 4 animals in any home.
- If owning more than 6 dogs/cats doesn't become a problem (eg barking, pets at large, etc) I don't believe there should be a restriction on the amount of pets owned
- I don't think there should be a limit. But there should be some kind of application to apply for to show that you can maintain the cleanliness and support to own multiple animals.
- If someone is a responsible pet owner and animal lover and would like more than 6 dogs/cats, they should be allowed as long as the animals are well cared for and they are maintaining the property (regular cleaning of feces and no excessive noises). A limit of 12 or so makes more sense as that gets crowded and harder to maintain decent living conditions for all that is involved
- There is NO WAY I would want to live next to 6 dogs. That's insane. (And I'm a dog owner).
- no limits as long as its safe for the animals
- 6 cats or dogs would be too many. two is enough. Kittens/puppies stay for 8 weeks.
- People should be free to have as many animals as they'd like. If it becomes a problem, sure, but there doesn't seem to be evidence presented to show that people having an excess of animals have more problems than those that do not.
- If there are multiple pet owners in one household 6 pets doesn't seem reasonable. If a potential roommate has three cats and I have 4 we would be beyond a 6 pet limit. My cats are over 15 years old and went outside before your bylaws were imposed. How can I tell a cat ...hey you can't go outside anymore?
- It is not the business of others or the city of how many animals one may possess. However it is the city's responsibility to ensure that these pets are not being mistreated
- Should be no limits, but fines and removal of animals for poor care
- 4 dogs 4 cats
- Six animals is very expensive to maintain and a lot of animals for one property. Six is too many.
- This can be compared to limiting the amount of kids people can have. We should encourage responsible pet owners and irresponsible owners should be reprimanded.
- Does not apply to birds or other pet / hens/quail
- No more than 2 (two),
- 6 dogs is fine but the number could be a bit greater for cats. They need less space and aren't as loud as 6 dogs. Maybe a maximum of 8-10 cats
- No.

- The number should be much lower. No one needs have 12 animals, that is ridiculous! I would put a total cap of 6 animals with any mix of dogs and/or cats that the owner wants. No more than 6 total though!
- 6 still seems quite high. I would support a limit of 4.
- I dont think the city should be telling people how many pets they can have.
- 12 animals in a household is too many. It must be reduced
- Unless they are legitimate, humane breeders, there is no reason anyone should have 6 dogs and 6 cats! No more pets per household than there are people!
- I feel 4 animals are enough per household.
- People should be able to have any number of pets, as long as they're cared for.
- i think 6 dogs and 6 cats allowed is way to high for a house in the city
- I am mostly supportive except where the exceptions are considered - especially the fostering and daycares, as well as the fanciers.
- Let people have their animals.
- Far too many animals to be housed in most dwellings within the city.
- The numbers should be lower than that. No one needs to have 12 animals before needing a special application. 4-6 animals combined should be the maximum.
- People may foster which can put them over the limit.
- If a person can take care of more than 6 of each, then let them.
- Why?????????!!!!
- A pet limit seems like an unnecessary thing to monitor and enforce. If all the animals are licensed, vaccinated, and have a good quality of life, then no external intervention should be necessary. We should prioritize enforcing current licensing regulations and laws and not create more "make work" projects.
- if I own my house what gives the city the right to tell me how many pets that I can have in my house if I rent that is a different storyhav
- 6 is a ridiculous number of pets! 2 -3 maximum would be more reasonable there's no way that even a responsible pet owner could take care of 12 animals total! Potentially in a farm setting would be the only way I could see more animals being allowed.
- There should be an exception for the options listed above but otherwise no one needs that many animals in the city.
- I grew up in a farming community NEVER did I know anyone that owned 6 dogs. There is absolutely NO need to be owning that many animals and coop them up in a house. Is that the MOST inhuman thing you have ever heard!
- Why do you need 6 dogs or 6 cats in 1 house hold.
- As long as the welfare of each animal is ensured an owner should be allowed to have as many pets as they want.
- I believe 2 dogs or cat limit is good I also like the exceptions limit so no to more than 2 animals with yes to the exceptions

- Impossible to care for 6 pets in a household!! □ No increase
- I do not think a single family home should own 6 dogs or 6 cats
- I expect bylaw officers to use their brains and common sense when enforcing rules
- Blanket restrictions don't always solve the problem. Address specific issues with specific policy points.
- We think 3 is probably more reasonable in the city.
- It should depend on the size of the house/property the animals are living in
- I do not believe there should be a limit on how many cats and dogs a person has as long as those pets are in a good home.
- I feel putting an exact lower number such as 6 would only end up in people obtaining more pets than 6. Especially if they are more cat people or vice versa and they can only have 6 but if it's mixed they can have up to 12 pets in the house... Doesn't seem fair.
- 6 is already too many unless in a licensed and controlled breeding or shelter facility
- No one should have 12 animals in their house at a time. The most the city should be allowing is 6 animals in total. Three dogs and three cats and that's even a lot of animals.
- No household needs to have six (6) dogs and/or six (6) cats. If they wish to have that many they should perhaps think about moving to an acreage where there is adequate space for these animals. Yards are not big enough, some people do not take care of the feces in the yard for one or two dogs now, what happens with more. The limit should be one (1) dog and one (1) cat.
- People should be able to do what they want on their property so long as no one is harmed.
- 12 is WAY too many animals for them to live comfortable in an average Calgary home. The city needs to ask vet experts what they recommend given the average sq ft of Calgary homes
- Unless they are a kennel, why would anyone need to have that many pets in a city household. There is definitely a higher risk for issues with more dogs in a house, such as barking and disturbing neighbors. As well, 6 dogs in a household will establish a pack mentality and be aggressive in defending the pack and property.
- Too many in one house
- The limit should be 3 dogs or cats. I do however support the exceptions listed.
- I think 12 animals is too much for a household. I would support 3 or 4 cats and 3 or 4 dogs.
- Six dogs and cats is far too many. Three dogs and cats makes more sense.
- Everyone should be able to choose
- 2 cats or 2 dogs seems like a reasonable maximum number of pets.
- six dogs AND six cats is a lot - pet ownership is a luxury that requires time and money and should be done responsibly.
- 12 animals in one household is an incredible amount of responsibility.
- 6 each of cats and dogs may be fine in a large home, but not in a smaller one. I can see an exception for temporary homes
- Pet limit should be 2
- No point as you have so many exceptions to the bylaw, it will be abused. Just leave it alone.

- The only by-law change I would support is banning "backyard breeders". We all know that people do it for quick cash and no other reason.
- Let people make their own decisions
- Six is too many, especially if they have 6 dogs AND 6 cats. Lower the number per household to 3-4 in total. No one needs that many animals at one time except if you foster, breed, pet sitter, or have a pet daycare. IN which case you require a special licence and larger fee.
- Not your business
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are far too many for in town, it's a lot for neighbours to have to deal with and how do you know that all of these animals are being taken care of
- 6 is to many
- If animals are well cared for and cleaned up after. You have no business interfering in how many people have if they are under control
- More than 2 pets is excessive with the exception of them having puppies which must be sold or removed within 3 to 4 months.
- I think having 12 pets in one house is a lot. It should be 6 and then anything above that needs to have special permits.
- The proposed changes, are a infringement on personal rights.
- Restrictions should be related to problems caused to neighbours and environment, not to number
- I think 12 cats & dogs total is too much. Many people also have birds, gerbils, hamsters, etc. I think 3 cats and 3 dogs is a good limit IF the household has additional animals that aren't listed under the cat/dog category.
- This puts a strain on the already taxed animal rescue and humane societies; responsibilities should focus on the person(s) overseeing the care of the animals, regardless of number in a household.
- Less government control. If I can care for numerous animals it should not be governments concern
- I have had up to 6 animals in the past - it is a large responsibility and really a couple of cats and a couple of dogs is plenty.
- Having more than two pets will cause issues caused by the close proximity in which we live.
- To ensure proper care for all the animals and avoid hoarding of animals animals
- If the animals are taken care of and not creating an issue I don't agree that there should be a limit.
- No need for that many animals in one house
- 2 dogs and 2 cats
- The number should be lower. Six animals in TOTAL Would be more appropriate.
- Allowing a total of 12 cats and dogs sounds unreasonable to surrounding neighbours due to noise and feces and also not humane to the animals in an urban setting.
- There is no home in Calgary that should have a need to house 6 dogs and 6 cats, this is excessive.
- You said "and" and then your said "or" in the next sentence. Which is it?
- I fail to see how so many animals can be properly trained, managed and cared for.
- If someone has room to take in multiple dogs(pets), especially senior pets that are abandoned or surrendered, then why not let those people take the animals that otherwise would not make it.

- It's already illegal to damage public property or cause a nuisance, there no reason to arbitrarily limit the number of animals, just enforce existing rules.
- As long as the rules (noise, feces accumulation, animal welfare) are enforced and all animals are licensed, I don't think the number of animals should matter.
- 6 dogs is way too many for any household especially in a city. Too many
- If it is someone's private home, they should be allowed as many as they want
- I cannot think of any good reason why a household should become a zoo. Honestly, the limit should be three (3) each.
- 6 each is too many animals to properly care for. Should stay at two eachre for
- 6 cats or 6 dogs is too excessive unless they are breeders
- No one needs up to 12 animals, this is a major city, not a farm
- No
- Because a pet owner could have 10 dogs or cats and still manage the situation well. I think the city needs to focus on pet owners who aren't ensure their animals are being respectful to the community by ensure the dogs a relatively quiet. They should also ensure that the feces doesn't get to the point where it's out of control. I feel a good dog owner could do this with more than 6 dogs.
- If a pet owner is an irresponsible one then they will be irresponsible with one or with ten pets in their care.
- Owner responsibility and quality of care are key criteria
- Do not agree with limit on number of animals in household.
- I think it is unreasonable to think that people could actually care for that many animals in a way that's fair to those pets.
- Not necessary for more than 2 dogs/cats
- this amount is way too much, I suggest 2 pets max (any combination of cats and/or dogs) or mix
- I support a limit on the number of pets per household, however 6 dogs AND 6 cats it too many. An owner cannot responsibly manage and care for this number of pets.
- Nobody can care for that number of animals properly. Just leads to abuse
- I support limiting the number of pets per household. The limit should be a maximum of 6 pets, cat or dog. There should be no exceptions to this limit.
- I believe that it is very difficult for most people to manage that number of animals. I do agree that there should be an exception if the animals are inherited from family members not able to care for them (ie elderly parents). If people have the need/desire to house more animals there should be special inspections completed by the city to ensure the animals are safe and being cared for properly.
- Why would we limit animals to a household when they are treated good in a loving home instead of making large populations suffer in the humane society?
- If the no. of pets is a nuisance that should be dealt with on a case by case basis not a set no.
- Don't need additional regulations in this regard. Impose the above $100 fines for noise and $250 for excess defecation if complaint from a neighbour is lodged.

- 6 of each is too many. I wouldn't want to live near anyone with 6 dogs. Not in a million years.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats seems like an excessive number of pets without special application
- If they want to have that many pets it's time to move to the country.
- I think the numbers should be lower. No one will invest the time and effort to properly maintain that many animals
- I agree that the limit should be 2 cats or 2 dogs, not 2 cats and/or 2 dogs.
- That's way too many animals for one household
- Service animals should qualify for a $0 license.
- that's way too many
- One only
- Under special circumstances more than 3 of each would be sufficient. But realistically more than 3 of one kind of animal is excessive in the city.
- Should be able to have as many animals as you would like.
- 6 is too many. Reduce to limit of 3. All breeders licensed as this is a business.
- If you are a responsible owner you should be allowed to have as many animals as you want - within reason. I don't think anyone in a city needs 6 dogs and or 6 cats!
- In order to protect the welfare and proper maintenance of these animals, a resident should not possess more than 6 dogs or cats on their property
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats (total of 12 animals) is way more than is necessary or safe for one household. This is not fair for the animal's quality of life. I propose a limit of 6 animals total per household, with a special application/exception for private animal shelters/sanctuaries.
- Pet owners can't care for and control that many animals within a city lot.
- Nobody needs six dogs or six cats, That's ridiculous
- I think that's too many.
- 6 of each pet is FAR too many per household
- Pet limit should be much lower
- Unless it is a rural or acreage property, numbers of animals beyond 2 is dangerous for all of the reasons listed above.
- That is FAR too many animals to be able to control and properly train.
- 6 is too many
- while I can understand why limits could be needed this really isn't up to the city to decide.
- If a homeowner has the space and time to properly train 6+ dogs/cats and they are well taken care of, I don't think it's fair that they should be limited.
- Who are the city to tell people how many pets they'd can and cannot take care of. As long as the animals are healthy and well cared for, it's really none of your business.
- That many animals on one property is excessive
- You should be allowed to have what you want on your own property
- Per household only one pet should be allowed. House hold has to made adjustments and decide the priorities who actually need the pet.

- Temp homes such as fostering should be allowed to increase the limit - but 6 animals in one home is too many animals.
- someone with 6 dogs and 6 cats doesn't sound like a responsible pet owner. I would only support this if the price per animal exponentially increased and covered regular (quarterly?) home inspections that the owner would agree to if they had over the current 2 limit we have today.
- Let people have as many pets as they want
- There should be no limit on the amount of pets one can have
- 6 dogs are too much. They don't permit one dog per two person in household so in absence of one another can take care of animal.
- No one needs up to 12 pets in one house.
- Is there any evidence to support a restriction? Where are the feces and noise and welfare problems arising? Likely within single dog households or ones with a couple of dogs. Unless one is dealing with a hoarding situation, the # of animals is likely not linked to additional problems like noise, feces, or welfare issues.
- six seems excessive... I think you have more of an issue with breeders who hoard and over breed their poor pets- why is that not being addressed here? should you have a check in system to ensure this doesn't become problematic for dogs and cats. - What about changes to the bylaw around people hurting animals- in any way. Why to increase those fees? Or, expedite the court system? It seems there is a lot missing in your review, about the welfare of animals. I get the penalty pieces of a dog that is aggressive- what about its owners?
- No change needed
- 6 dogs and 6 cats way too many. 3 dogs and 3 cats would be more appropriate
- As long as the animals are well kept, and looked after responsibly, it is not the city's concern.
- I feel 6 is to many. People could have 6 of each which means 12 total?
- Unless they have an 2 acre property
- The proposed number of pets is too high. Two cats or dogs per household should be the maximum.
- This is government overreach. Stay in your lane.
- 6 dogs in 1 house could get very messy and loud and create a noise violation for themselves.
- If you're not enforcing how many children someone can have, don't even bother trying to enforce a limit on pets.
- The number of animals allowed should be lower and if you want to be at 6 you must prove you have the means and space for them. 6 dogs and 6 cats are too many unless they are fostering or rescuing strays
- should be fewer than 6
- Its too many. 2 Maximum.
- I would prefer a stricter per limit change - e.g., to no more than 2 per household.
- Current Dog bylaws are some of the best in the world - keep them as is. It's what makes Calgary stand out from other cities in a positive way.

- Again, due diligence is all that is necessary. No limit should be put in place but all animals should be Well cared for. If somebody isn't getting their six dogs they're yearly shots, they probably don't need six dogs. This is situational.
- So long as the pets are being properly taken care of there should be no limit as to how many a home can have.
- That's an insane amount of animals in one home - I don't support the increase but I do support the exceptions
- It should be a tighter cap like three and three.
- A total of 6 animals per household with the potential exceptions Service animals not included in count of animals.
- There is no way to care for this many animals, it lowers property values and is a health risk for people living in the house.
- I think 6 (dogs) or 6 (cats) in ine household is to many. Unless you are fosters, breeders, or a daycare.
- Lower limits should be in place. A 6 dog & cat limit (12 total) is too high unless it is a licensed (& monitored) breeding establishment or a in larger Home located in a rural area with more space for the animals to roam within a properly fenced area.
- This number is too high.
- I don't think they're should be a limit if proper care is given
- 6 cat? Dogs? That's a lot!
- That is too many animals in one home. 2 cats. 2 dogs is a reasonable number.
- Too many animals at the single house
- Just too many in a household at 6. Not necessary as pets and that many almost becomes animal hoarding.
- They are many many people who can adequately take care of multiple animals. A couple bad apples shouldn't ruin it for everyone.
- It should stay as is
- rescues need exceptions
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is excessive and should not be allowed.
- .
- need an exception for rescues ... dogs come and go in that situation some times they could exceed that number easily
- City overreach! Not every aspect of our lives needs dictation from city hall!
- 6 is too many
- I would support this by law only if it could prevent animal hoarding.
- not needed
- Unless it is in some way disturbing others, it's the owners choice.
- N/a

- The limits are set far too high at 6 of each. Crowded animals results in sickness and despite an owners desire to have them most people can hardly care for more than 2. large amounts of animals in small spaces poses a legitimate health risk.
- In my opinion 6 is an excessive number of dogs/cats. I would be concerned for the welfare of the animals. Six dogs in one residential household would pose a significant noise concern.
- This question is poorly worded. There should be limits to the number of pets allowed.
- 6 is too many
- 6 is a lot. I love pets and I think people who are great should be able to apply for free or low cost to have more and with a good plan in place it should be allowed. But a lot of people who shouldn't have 6 pets would do it if the rules permitted. 4 might be more reasonable.
- I don't think it matters how many pets someone has. Fines should be given if the owner does not take care of their animals.
- The number of dogs does not correlate with the wellbeing of the dog or surrounding individuals
- I think 6 is a very large number of pets to have in a city. 3 of each is a good amount when it comes to cleanup etc so just not 6. Do agree with the potential exceptions.
- I think 6 dogs for the majority of urban and suburban residents is way too many. Perhaps a max of 4?
- There is no need to own that many pets.
- 2 large dogs and 2 cats per household unless they are a non profit organization who takes care of rescue dogs.
- It's fine the way it is.
- Except for the exceptions listed above, no household needs to have that many animals in one household.
- Dog breeders should be able to have max 12 animals. Max 3 for the rest of us. Exceptions are all good except dog fanciers. What are dog fanciers?
- If household is in city, then yes. If household is on more land like an acreage, then no
- 6 dogs or 6 cats per household is way too many
- are you kidding me? who the hell wants 6 cats or 6 dogs? That is to much for an apartment. The limit should be 1 dog or 2 cats!
- A large number of pets are a financial stress, and calgarian are already complaining paying property taxes, how can they afford more pets.
- As long as the animals are not a issue the city doesn't need yo be involved.
- 6 dogs it's too much, if they are big they make a mess and smell, and barking distourbing neighbours
- What people do in their own homes is not the City's Business. If the animals are kept outside in kennels or runs, and become a noise problem, then there are other avenues the City can use.
- 6 is too high, 2 is sufficient
- You are taking away a person's freedom to make their own decision.
- 6 dogs or cats is too high. No more than two.

- 6 dogs AND cats is too high, I could get behind 6 cats OR dogs (or a combination) in total but the average pet owner cannot properly care for a total of 12 animals
- 6 is too many in one household, cats will be roaming in neighbours yards, dogs will excessively barking
- It's nobody's business how many pets someone owns as long as they're cared for and aren't a nuisance.
- 6 is too many 3 dogs and 3 cats as long as they do not create noise, smells, feces etc.
- leave it
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is more than the average pet owner could easily care for. Special cases can get special approval but 6 is more than the average can handle
- the amount of 6 seems enhesttt
- 12 animals in one household seems like a lot of animals. However if exceptions could be made when people can prove they are a responsible home (for ex volunteers from animal rescues) I would be more comfortable with conditional exceptions than anyone that wants to being able to have that many pets in one household
- I would support the change if all animals were spay/neutered by 6 months old to prevent pet overpopulation, if breeding of any animals required kennel/breeding licences and registration.
- If this bylaw is trying to stop people from hoarding animals it's not going to stop this. I person that hoards animals is mentally sick and following a bylaw will not stop them
- I have lived, in the past, with 8 cats in our household. Very cleanly. The number should depend on particular circumstances..
- I would support a lesser number like 3 or 4
- If the person has the means to take care of the animal properly and provides a nice home there is no reason to limit.
- Unnecessary to limit if the animals are being cared for and are healthy.
- Six is ridiculous in the city. Three seems a much more reasonable increase from the two suggested. See how that works.
- over the top, animals getting out, faeces buildup, noise levels
- This is an unnecessary regulation. Nuisance animals are dealt with through other regulations - we ought to stay out of mandating what happens inside of people's homes
- Limit should be 3 dogs and 6 cats, with the exceptions listed. But also with some restrictions, less than 3 dogs and 6 cats, based on the square footage of the household and/or the property.
- The number of animals does not dictate standard of care. AllOf these items should be managed on a case by case basis.
- Segregation of animals is unfair to the animal
- Too many animals. Lower amount
- There should not be a limit on the amount of pets provided they are being reasonably cared for.
- No limit!!! Absolutely pointless restriction. Number of animals does not have any correlation with quality of care. I have 7 mid-large sized rescue dogs, they are very well cared for - I pick up poop and vaccum/mop daily, keep them quiet, take them for 1-3 hour walks daily, brush their teeth and their fur every couple days, trim their nails every week, feed them high quality food and my neighbours adore them! Paying for their care supports the local economy and adopting them has helped with Alberta's stray dog problem (on reserves).

- Not sure what the limit is right now for number of pets. If there is no limit then yes I support this bylaw to limit it. However I personally do not support one household owning 12 animals for reasons stated in the question. It's not necessary, becomes excessive noise & likely increased feces/smell depending on how well the animals are being cared for. Owners should have to pay a special fee if they want so many animals to cover the cost of bylaws to come check at random. This should not be a fee passed onto other taxpayers.
- If someone is a responsible pet owner they would be that for 1 dog or 8 dogs, a bylaw should not decide how many they can have.
- Twelve (12) is too many animals for a city property.
- I feel that this number is too high. I would support 4 animals in total, with exceptions as listed.
- The only way I would support this if it was to stop puppy/kitten mills
- The limits should be more reflective of pet size
- This opens up the possibility for animal hoarding, perhaps alphabet a special permit for those fostering numerous animals, for special circumstances.
- 6 of each is too many, if they have both that's 12 animals...that's too many
- 12 animals on one property is ridiculous. Most people can't afford 1 animal and the vet bills associated with that animal.
- Foster family's should be exempt.
- Animals reproduce just like we do. Gate keeping the amount they do that is outlandish.
- Clean environments and healthy animals are more important than the number of animals.
- If you can financially and physically able to care for and maintain multiple dogs or cats you should be allowed to do so. As long as the animals are healthy and cared for the number owned shouldn't be limited.
- It's not about the number of animals! It's about the way they are kept. How about prohibiting the sale of dogs and cats in petstores like so many other progressive municipalities have implemented. That will help with reducing backyard breeding as well. Also focus on educational and spay neuter initiatives instead of these silly changes that won't address the underlying issues.
- Increased administrative expense
- That's far too many at the the maximum
- No one wants to live next door to a home with 6 dogs and/or 6 cats.
- I don't think anyone needs six dogs and six cats. The limit of pets allowed should be 6 in total.
- Hoarders would still exist, and responsible pet owners would be punished
- It's your personal property you can have however many animals you would like as long as you are responsible.
- 6 dogs OR 6 cats but 12 animals in one house is too many
- Limits are restrictive. Should be a case by case basis.
- 12 animals total is excessive

- If someone has more then what are they supposed to do? Put them down? As long as the animals are taken care of that should be up to the owner of the residence.
- 6 animals per dwelling in the city is cruel to the animals, particularly dogs. Cats, not so much.
- The City should not control private residences except in cases of commercial use (i.e. breeders who are operating for profit)
- people can be responsible regardless of their number of pets.
- Since you have included several exemptions, (I was thinking about breeders), I think that 6 cats AND 6 dogs is too high a number of animals. Perhaps any combination UP TO 6 would be more reasonable, along with the other details you have here.
- That is a lot of animals on one lot or in 1 house. It could get out of hand very quickly.
- That is way too many animals for one household in any circumstance
- We don't need to allow a higher limit - this encourages hoarding and would be to the detriment of the animals' well being.
- Animal welfare is at stake with large numbers of animals in one household
- Give your heads a shake. Too many animals in a city environment. 3 should be a max and for animal welfare that is even high in some circumstances.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is waaaaayyyy too many animals in one household. The exceptions listed above make sense, but for a normal household... no one needs that many animals!
- 6 is way to many
- I believe a limit of 6 dogs and 6 cats is far too high. The limit should be 2 dogs and 2 cats as most of us live in city dwellings where yard space is limited. Dogs and cats are expensive to keep. Noise of six dogs no matter how wonderful they are would be excessive if right next door to me.
- It is not necessary for anyone to own more than two cats and/or dogs. Any more than this should not be permitted.
- Depends on owner, property size. Though by enforcing existing bylaws mitigates the need for this.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is way too many. I support a maximum of 3 pets total per household. I would support exceptions as outlined above if the pet limit was set at 3 or below.
- Animal hoarding is an illness. It leads to disease and property damage. People cannot look after 1 pet let alone a legal herd.
- There is no need for someone to have that many animals in one house regardless of the size of property and amount of people occupying it.
- Have a neighbor with five pets, has not been great experience.
- 12 pets in a household is too many in a city environment. There is not enough room. 6 dogs barking can be very disturbing & feces may be a problem.
- won't
- As long as the animals are properly cared for, The City should not interfere with citizen decisions on # pets
- I think limits won't stop people, more time should be put into welfare of pets that are already in homes.

- 6 dogs & 6 cats is too much for one household. Breeders should be in a different category & should pay higher licensing & have insurance. If a pet has a litter of puppies or kittens, there should be a temporary allowance for the parent to raise the litter & give time to find homes for the young ones.
- Six dogs AND six cats seems excessive.
- 6 dogs is a lot where as 6 cats isnt. Cats are small, quiet and sleep alot, so up to 9 cats is doable, anymore is excessive. More than 6 dogs is excessive for anyone outside of a farm.
- Six dogs or cats is far to many for one household unless the person is a registered breeder.
- 6 of each is excessive I don't know if there is a limit now
- The absolute maximum limit should be 3 dogs and/or cats per household.
- City of Calgary does not need control over how many pets a family in Calgary can own. Instead do this. Increase fines for neglectful owners, poor living conditions, and create fines for puppy mills found in Calgary.
- i think the current #'s are acceptable as a 'standard' but that the special application should be developed further for those expectations that you have listed. As a pet owner of 2 dogs, I would find it a challenge to properly care for an manage any more than that at one time and would worry about the welfare of all if there were too many. However I support a special application for exceptions so that if it is deemed acceptable for more....but this should be an exception, not the rule.
- What if they can't find a home for the animal? What if they live on a large enough property that can take care of more than 6 pets? I would approve if they allow more in those scenarios.
- Unless the animals become a nuisance or cause health/safety issues regulation should not be required.
- Because people will lie and not register their dogs. I rather know theres 10 dogs in a home that the max limit suggested.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are far too many. I am good with the exception list
- No more dogs or cats per household. It's too much for a lot of people to handle and keep up with all costs especially vet bills. It would increase problems with bad dog owners
- Na
- As a breeder it can be hard to have only 6 dogs in a breeding program. I'm not opposed to a limit, I believe it needs to be 10 dogs or there abouts.
- The average citizen does not have the resources to care for that many animals. The monetary cost of care and time to care for that animal would be extensive and as a result, pets would likely receive insufficient care. Most homes also do not have adequate space to care for these animals. I think this would only result in more complaints from neighbours, as well as more conflicts between animals and people, as pet training is very time consuming.
- We do not live in a dictatorship so the city should mind its own business. It is not up to the city to decide how many pets a person can have.
- Six dogs and six cats per household is too many. As you heard in phase 1, two dogs and/or 2 cats should be adequate.
- Maybe go after the bad animal owners inside of going after the animals

- With six pets, you would be sanctioning commercial/backyard breeding operations and that is not acceptable. NO, NO and NO. Anything over 3 pets of either species should require an application.
- Let people have their pets
- For the most part I do agree but to me there are some errors. I think 12 pets per household is too many and I think that when purchasing or adopting or someone has found a stray or such that their house should be assessed to how many animals they can cater ethically within their household and how much attention can be given to each. So I believe in a reduced number of pets being allowed but being a case to case situation. I think there should be checkups on everyone with a pet to see if they are taking care of their pets. I don't think an exception to the rule should be dogs / cats under 6 months of age because then people will get cats and dogs and after their 6 month stay is up and after their phase of being cute is done they will be throw out on the streets or be hastily given away to people who are not investigated for being a suitable pet owner. I don't think there should really be an approved excess animal permit if my suggestion is taken into consideration, if you do not have the room you simply cannot get excess animals unless it is in the case of an emergency and for example a stray is found and it is being kept temporarily till another home can take it. I don't think that you should be able to get more dogs if you have a license, I think it should be based on the space you have available and the resources you have to take care of it/them.
- No everyone has the right to own as many dogs as they wish
- Six is too many. Three would be more acceptable.
- Keep the bylaw the same why change.
- Up to 12 animals on one property is absolutely ludicrous (even on a large piece of land). I believe this new bylaws will be abused and put animals at risk. I believe more than 2 cats or dogs is low though. I believe the new bylaws should allow for up to 3 cats AND dogs. 6 animals in total on a property is absolutely plenty. I agree with all the above stated exceptions if the new bylaw's allowed animals were cut in half.
- For that many animals in one home could we do welfare checks? I pay high taxes but would support a specific amount increase to monitor the welfare of animals; for safety, abuse, disease. Children get welfare checks why not animals?!
- It would depend on the circumstances
- It would not prevent backyard breeders or hoarding situations from occurring
- Too many
- too high, six dogs and 6 cats in one household is in my opinion far too many. I would support a special license for more than 3
- I think 6 is too many. Within city limits it seems 3 or 4 would be more reasonable. I agree with the proposed exceptions noted above however.
- might be too many factors to be cut and dried and the special applications can be too subjective
- People can be responsible pet owners with over six dogs
- We are living in an increasingly dense urban environment. To increase these limits would place undue stress on non-pet owner neighbors. You cannot regulate and enforce noise and animal excrement issues efficiently.

- 6 dogs+6 cats are too many. I support the change if the number were reduced to 4 dogs+4 cats
- I feel that if a person has 6 dogs and 6 cats, there's no point to a limit. I feel 3 of each is reasonable with the same exceptions listed above.
- Animal limits should be based on safe and healthy living space for each animal.
- We wouldn't restrict how many children one can have...
- No license requirements
- There should be a limit of 2 dogs or cats, with above exceptions by special application.
- Bylaw should be removed
- People are responsible for the welfare of animals, we need to review individual cases.
- I don't know what the limit is right now. Absolutely no more than two.
- I think this would or could put rescues at risk, particularly given the dangerous and misguided BSL legislation that is currently being proposed and the potential number of abandoned terrier breeds that may result
- Too many animals
- The dog and cat limits we have now are good. More per household only increases problems with bad owners. Costs more for vets etc. so owner would not give as good of care to all the animals.
- 6 in a small space doesn't seem fair to the animals
- The cost of care is too great and many of these animals would be not taken care of properly. Also, many people fail in managing their pets. Would this mean a person could now own 6 pit bulls?
- If you are restricting the number, and there are all these exceptions, why allow six of each rather than a lower number, say 3 or 4?
- This is a ridiculously high number for the average house size and family's ability to care for the animals. This would encourage poor animal care in my opinion.
- 6 pets per household seems excessive
- I own two dogs and am aware of the value this brings to the dogs (in having a canine pal). I have owned dogs all my life, but never more than two at a time. Without understanding why a faith would want to own multiples, I cannot support increasing the number of pets per household, e.g. I love dogs, but have zero interest in living next door to a family that had 6 dogs and 6 cats. Animals cost time & money, and the more you gather, the less time you will spend with each pet. I'd like to understand why someone would want more than two dogs or two cats. Running a doggy daycare in a home would introduce multiple dogs into one home, but I would expect City ordinances governing sole proprietor businesses to apply to that situation.
- You are saying increase the limit to 12 pets per home... this is excessive isn't it... is this so the city makes more money? Please keep in mind dogs and cats live in homes unlike wild birds, squirrels and such...
- 6 animals is excessive
- If they can care for all the animals properly then they should be able to choose how many they like
- No need for more laws.
- 12 animals is crazy come on

- I would support a max of 3 Dogs and 3 cats. Anything beyond that is excessive and obnoxious to neighbours.
- I support this except pet sitters or daycares should not be allowed to have more than the limit. I cannot see why having a dog fanciers license should allow more than the number specified, nor why so many service animals would be needed.
- Owning more than 2 of any animal is excessive unless the person is an acknowledged/certified trainer
- Although I feel like that number is fine, there will be no way to enforce this and it will encourage citizens to not license any pets that go over that number. As a homeowner I wouldn't like that the city can tell me how many pets that I can have inside my house. Perhaps if a homeowner has repeatedly violated the responsible pet ownership bylaws then maybe this limit would have merit.
- If they can be properly cared for who are you to tell me when I can and can't have.
- Limit should be 4.
- The time and effort to properly care for that many pets seems non sustainable. The walking, feces pick up, noise control, training, a monumental task and the health issues for residents of a home with that many pets should be considered.
- Limit should be 2 pets per household
- Some people can deal well with lots of animals and some can barely deal with one. It should be case by case if there are complaints
- Two pets is enough.
- If said own can safely care for the animals then there should be no limit. Maintenance of the safety and health of the animals is priority
- This puts a limit on the people who help all the neglected animals. I believe that if there are complaints, then address. But to make this a blanket bylaw, is unfair and judging everyone at one slate.
- It's ignorant beyond comprehension.
- That's too many pets in 1 household
- 6 of each is WAY too many! 3 or 4 at most and that still seems like a lot
- Should also take into consideration the size of the home; 6 dogs and 6 cats is a huge amount for most homes
- number of animals is too high
- Pet limits have not been an issue before. Target people who are an issue
- I support it for new pet owners but not for existing family pets, you should not have to Re-home your pets.
- Freedom and liberty
- Six dogs and six cats is already a large number for a city home. It is a lot of mess that is rarely cleaned up.
- 6 is too many. Limit should be 2. This would provide company for the pets and is a reasonable number per household.

- in the circumstance of excessive pet ownership, anyone who is going to be a problem will not jump through these hoops, so in the end all they do is punish the responsible for being responsible
- One of my neighbours has 3 cats, 1 dog and 1 rabbit. 2 years in a row now I have had to dig up all the fury in my flower beds and haul it to the dump/compost. I then had to purchase more dirt to replace. There is NO reason for more than one pet per household. There are more cats than I can count in my neighbourhood and they are always running free.
- Cats perhaps - but six dogs needing walking outside and pooping outside - increases the interaction of humans with others pets - I think in the case of cats it is contained in the household so would support but not dogs unless the exceptions apply and include CKC registered breeders maybe?
- 6 pets is too many for one household
- It's much harder to take care of 12 pets. The limit should be 4 dogs and 4 cats
- no way people need more than 2 dogs or cats
- That's WAY too many. I love dogs and properly trained mine. It was a TON of work to do properly. Couldn't do it with 6. No way.
- There are too many cats in our area.
- The numbers of allowable animals should be 1/2 of what is proposed with a maximum of 4 in any single household. Twelve animals in a household is unacceptable.
- People's capability to care for animals is drastically different - some could barely care for 1, while others could care for many. What needs to change is the general public's knowledge on what it means to be a responsible pet owner, when something is a problem, how to report problems, who to report problems to, and the assurance that it is truly anonymous. I have worked as a Peace Officer in this city; my training was poor. I learned to not take papers in the house with me after someone grabbed my clipboard from me to see who reported them.
- That is far too many dogs and cats to be in a household. Quality of life of the pets would be of concern, cleanliness of the property and proper health and hygiene of the pets
- There should never be as many 6 dogs and 6 cats allowed on any property. A maximum of 3 or maybe 4 cats and no more than 2 dogs. Most owners cannot take care of any more than that number of either. There is not a reason that I can think of where this many pets should be necessary, especially if one were to have 6 cats and 6 dogs, that would be a dozen pets. Neighbours should not have to deal with the noise, smell and devaluing of their adjacent properties.
- Who needs or can manage 6 of either let alone 12
- Animals need to be looked after probably 3 of each is lots
- again, our lots are too small for this many animals per household, if everyone had the max, this would creat massive issues
- I don't think a person needs 6 dogs and 6 cats. That is difficult to watch after.
- 2 cats & 2 dogs is enough to properly care for the animals
- I know some people like this and their animals and not a bother to the neighborhood
- Again this is infringing on people rights. You have the right to own as many pets as you can care for. If you fail to care for those pets you must face the consequence. By no means should we have any right to tell another person how many pets he/she should have.

- 6 dogs or cats is far too many to have in the city.
- That's too many in one household.
- Who has the time, resources and space to properly care for 6 dogs and 6 cats in a household? The pets' welfare comes before that of the owner's desire to have more pets. This section needed to state what the current bylaw limit is.
- You are making assumptions the anyone not being care for. The wording is too vague
- Except in cases of fostering, 12 animals in a dwelling is a large amount. Animal and human welfare would be a concern
- Not up to government to decide this.
- 12 pets in one household seems excessive. The more animals to care for, the more likely the owner may not have the financial means to be able to provide adequate food and medical care, if needed.
- Unless the animals are neglected i see no reason why there should be limits.
- I object to 6 adult dogs AND 6 adult cats in any one household.
- 2 pets per household is reasonable.
- I would only support in certain cases. For example inherited one animal and a household already has two. Temporary foster homes provided there is no excessive barking and cats are not allowed to roam freely. And how many service animals does one really need certainly not 6!
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats in one household? That is far, far too many! My suggested ABSOLUTE MAX would be 2 of each.
- Take out the inherited. One may claim animal inheritance without legal paperwork. Add a length of time that a household can have more animals, like 10 weeks.
- If owners are responsible and diligent then the city should not have the right to restrict animal numbers within reasonable limits.
- I think the majority of households fall beneath the pet limit so I don't see a need to implement a limit
- 6 is too many
- I am concerned about the ability to adequately care for a large number (greater than two) animals
- As long as the owner takes care of the animals I think they should be allowed however many they want.
- Depends on the situation
- I think 2 animals in a house is enough. Except for breeders. Breeders should be licensed and periodically inspected. As would fostering.
- In my neighbourhood I've observed that most households are challenged to responsibly look after a single dog. This includes walking, barking control and feces pick-up. Permitting more pets per household will worsen this problem.
- I support the concept of this bylaw and exceptions. But I suggest that the number of dogs or cats should be based on the size of the home and/or property. Space is needed to protect the welfare of the animals. Some properties may not even safely accommodate 6 dogs and 6 cats while larger properties may be able to accommodate more without detriment to the animals or equal impact to neighbours.

- The increased amount of animals in a household may cause problems for the animals, owners & for neighbors. It would be difficult to monitor this.
- There is a problem already with amount of pets people have in the city. They are not obeying to the bylaws in place and worst they seem to feel they have the authority above their neighbors and can do anything without consequences because they are pet owners. Homeowners would like their properties back. The city knows that people live in close proximity key word city why are animals being allowed to surpass the human population? When there is little control over what's already there. It stinks, it's gross around the city because people leave feces on people's lawns, sidewalks, outside grocery stores where people stepped in to it and tracked inside the food places. Outside restaurants people are sitting inside while there's load of feces under the window. This doesn't alarm anyone and the city is considering additional animals? The city need laws, strong laws that result in hefty fines because it is getting out of hand.
- We feel that 6 dogs or cats in a household is a bit much. We would suggest a limit of 4.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs per household??? this is excessive!
- That is way too many animals in a community environment, small yards, close quarters, already have trouble with noisy dog and inability to have bylaw interfere.
- Too many exceptions might make the rules difficult to apply. I don't think limiting the number of animals is right. Just need better enforcement of current rules.
- I believe that's still too many animals too be able to give the proper care, I think a limit of 4 dogs and 4 cats
- 6 cats or dogs cannot be properly cared for. This may put a stop to puppy farms. 2 dogs and/or cats is plenty
- There is no need to have 6 dogs or cats per household. There should be a graduated fee - the more animals you have above you should pay a higher licensing fee.
- I believe 6 dogs and 6 cats is way too many pets for one household
- I believe that this is too many pets for one household in an urban setting. Would suggest 2 dogs and 2 cats.
- I don't think that anyone can properly pay for and maintain health for 12 animals in their home. 6 of each is a little excessive.
- to easy to add other pets after bylaw changes. Other bylaws will fine nuance pet owners
- This question is tied to other questions... Low income - what if they have 6 dogs and 6 cats and get a reduced license fee? What if noise and smell accumulates in a yard because of 6 large dogs versus 6 small dogs? The number 6 for any animal poses a question.
- ^ is too many per household
- It's more important to ensure owners are accountable and provide good care than to count the number of pets.
- Others than breeders, why would anyone need to have more than 2 animals in a city home.
- Nobody NEEDS more than 2 animals of ANY kind. 1 pet and a companion for that pet, so that makes 2
- Too many pets- no one needs that many animals within the city of Calgary

- 6 is too much!! how about 4
- I have 5 animals and am responsible
- if a person is irresponsible, it would not matter if they had 1 pet or 20 pets. Same for responsible pet owners. Responsible pet owners could have more than 10 dogs and would ensure feces are picked up, pets are cared for and provided for. Limiting the number will only hurt responsible owners and their pets. Instead of limiting pets, how about look at the possibility of inspections for those with more than a certain number of pets? This would perhaps weed out the [removed] back yard breeders and dog flippers who are only in it for the money.
- I don't believe in limiting people in this manner.
- 12 pets is too many, 6 total
- Many people rescue unwanted and abused animals and give them loving homes. Restrictions on numbers of animals in a home would reduce the amount of rescues getting permanent homes.
- No one needs more than 2 pets : 2 max
- three should be the maximum otherwise you are operating a zoo
- How on earth can anyone properly care for and control so many dogs and cats on a residential property? This is a ridiculous number. 1 or 2, sure but 6 of each? Where is this absurd idea coming from? If people want to have many pets, they can move out of the city and get a large property where their decisions won't affect anyone else.
- I feel like people should have the right to choose how many animals they have as long as the pets needs are taken care of and there are no issues for the community. If this bylaw is passed then people will push to have the number lowered.
- Six dogs and six cats is far too high of a number unless the person is a registered kennel.
- Prefer to have limit as 4 dogs and 4 cats
- A single unit dwelling can be small in size. This does not seem to provide appropriate living conditions for potentially 12 animals (6 dogs + 6 cats).
- I honestly don't see how a person could care for 12 animals adequately. That is excessive.
- I do not think more animals than people should be on a property to give fully appropriate care to an animal.
- 6 dogs AND cats is too many. Seriously doubt a person's ability to care for all these animals properly.
- 12 animals is too many for in the city (the proposed bylaw is not strict enough) and there are too many exemptions.
- do not limit animals
- I do not support this bylaw for people who can afford to take care of the pets. I think low income families should maybe have a limit on pets.
- Because
- I know that it can be difficult for non-pet owners to deal with all that can come with having pet neighbours, and i also know that restricting the number of animals per residence without the pet owners having done nothing to deserve this restrictions seems arbitrary to say the least. I also know that we do not live in an ideal world where all pet owners take exceptional care of their pets and only have the number of pets that they can properly care for. I would be more supportive of a measure that would require the reduction of the number of allowable pets in a residence if there were incidents where this would be appropriate. Perhaps a partial measure that states that complaints regarding the welfare of these animals and the ability for the pet owners to care for them would mean a reduction in the number allowed. Some type of defined care standard and ability to care for the animals would have to be established. One of the main problems with restricting the number of pets per residence, besides punishing responsible pet owners, is that once a limit is in place, it can be continually argued that this new limit should be reduced, again and again. This has happened in many communities and I know we can find a better solution. It comes down to only restricting those pet owners that actually require it.

- 6 is too many. So many people can't afford vet care already.
- quantity of pets has no bearing on quality of care for the animals or bylaw compliance. Another potential exception, should be for animal shelter workers, that may have more pets than the average household(work in high euthanasia facilities)
- other than fostering, or a pet having a litter, I don't see it as necessary to allow up to 12 animals in a home
- 6 is too many animals.
- I honestly believe that is too many animals for the average person. I think the animals would not be receiving a good quality of life. I think foster homes and different situations like that should be exempt with providing a good reason to having so many dogs and cats.
- Support all, but include exception for those who board animals
- Not the change I want. I want freedom
- No one needs 6 dogs or cats. It's too many in a house
- Should be able to prove income can support animals
- 6 dogs and 6cats/household limit is liable for abuse
- Should be allowed to have as many pets as want
- Too many animals to care for properly.
- There is no need for that many pets. The proper care of an animal decreases as the number of animals in household increases
- It isn't uncommon for pet owners to have 3-4 of a pet - 2 is too low a number - especially if a dog has a litter and the owner can't adopt them all out so the owner keeps the litter of up to 6
- Less dogs in high density housing. Dogs can't sleep outside.
- 6 is already a ridiculous number...7 doesn't matter if you have 6.
- I don't see that this addresses the issues the best way. I believe more stringent rules on the specific issues would be more appropriate.
- I would not want to live next to a house with six dogs and six cats. That is just insane. Why can't people be reasonable and have only one or two dogs?
- No body needs that many pets in a city and I believe it is irresponsible and unrealistic to care for that many.
- I do not want to live next door to 6 dogs.....for any reason!

- There is no reason to have that many pets in an urban area. Too many issues with noise, odours and insufficient room to keep or maintain that many pets.
- Existing bylaws are poorly enforced, licencing fees do not help my pets.
- This limit should be lowered to 2 dogs and 2 cats per household.
- All things in moderation
- I support all of the above with a limit of 4 cats and 4 dogs.
- Enforcing a pet limit would punish responsible owners. Focus of this bylaw should be irresponsible owners.
- So long as an owner can maintain proper care and training on their animals why limit the amount.
- I do not think there should be a limit of pets, if the pet owners follow responsible pet ownership that is more important consideration.
- I feel like this is potentially opening the door to animal hoarding. This could be detrimental to the well-being of these animals if so many are allowed in one residence.
- Depends on the size of the house to appropriately house all of those animals. Animals are expensive to care for.
- I think that as long as there are no other issues and the pets are being managed responsibly then it should not be our place to introduce a specific number. If it is not responsible ownership then other parts of the bylaw would then apply to them
- We don't need more regulations, we need less.
- Ownership should be limited to two (2) dogs and two (2) cats.
- I would not support assigning any number of pets to a household even though your exceptions are great. If a large number of pets are within any household and if there is a problem, then a bylaw officer should be on the scene to help and advise the person so that the care of the animals are at the forefront. Many rescue groups assist large animal households.
- I do agree with the change but wanted to be able to state my opinion as well. I currently own 4 dogs. I clean poop up daily(sometimes 2-3 times a day), they get walked daily and if they are barking I stop it. However lots of multiple dog owners do not do the same things and I think consequences should be steeper for not providing a good quality of life for the dog and for your neighbors. I think there should also be stricter application process for multiple dog owners, if they choose to get another dog, when licencing their dogs(ie; house and yard checks, talk to neighbors, require dogs to have proper amount of training, given proper amount of space/ there shouldn't be 6 dogs in a tiny house or apartment). 4 large dogs is a lot and I put lots of time into training and socializing them and again many people do not do this. It's a privilege to own the amount of dogs I do but too many people take that for granted and the dogs end up suffering. I think this also all applies to cat owners. Cars should be inside or outside in a secured place(catio) or leashed. No cat should be wondering outside unsupervised.
- Restricting animal ownership to a set number is overkill and doesn't address the cause of the problem. Some people can't properly take care of more than 1 animal, other people can properly take care of a dozen or more animals. The problem is proper care and control, not the number of animals in one household. As long as the owner are providing sufficient care of the animals, and have proper control over those animals, they should not be restricted to a set number. While I do not support such a bylaw, should one still be implemented, I STRONGLY support all the expectations listed above being included in such a bylaw - PARTICULARLY the inheritance exception.

- 12 pets in one household (that isn't a business or "professional" foster situation seems like a lot. I know some people who'd look after their pets to a standard that's good, but I think it might encourage hoarding.
- People can have as many animals as they want
- It's not sanitary. Also dogs become a pack mentality which can make them more ferocious. If there are more pers allowed this may make some pet owners less likely to neuter or spay.
- There is no reason for a person to have 6 dogs or cats! This poses serious health issues, and is financial cost to feed and walk all these animals. I would like to limit to be reduced to 3 dogs or cats MAX.
- It depends on the space you have I don't believe animals should be Hoarded, but I don't think it's the city's business really
- 6 of any animal is too many. We watch walkers failing to pick up after a group of dogs (and owner/walker is frequently on phone) and misses some.
- The care the pets received is far more important than the number of pets
- it's nobody's business how many animals you keep, as long as they are humanely treated and not a nuisance to others
- B
- 6 is too many. 3 or 4 at most
- The exceptions appear to prove the rule. Otherwise 6 of each is excessive unless there are several responsible owners in the home. Two or three of each is plenty unless the exceptions apply. 6 i
- Higher risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- It's not good some animals are sweet and good but y'all are judging them just by the way they look and putting them in bars and cages and muzzling them just because of the way they look
- Only 2 cats and dogs per household
- It was not stated above what the current limit is but i'm assuming its unlimited. I think the limits should be much lower than 6 dogs AND 6 cats. If everyone owned that many animals in the city, it would be mayhem. 2 dogs AND 2 cats seems reasonable.
- It's their property
- No one needs more than 6 animals. There should be a maximum of 3.
- If someone lives on a larger property with a larger home? Square footage of indoor and outdoor space should be considered.
- Stupid
- A person should have as many animals as they please AS LONG AS THEY TAKE CARE OF THEM
- No need.
- rescues excluded

- There should not be a licensing fee for animals that won't be going outdoors unless it's an accident. This is unreasonable gouging and the fee funds nothing that is a benefit to society. While we're at it, Calgary, the terms "grandfathered" and "grandfather clause" have racist origins. Stop using them.
- 12 animals seems too high. I would support up to 6 total animals. An exception would be for under 6 months
- I think it should be lower unless the person is a responsible breeder. Like 3 of any combination of cats or dogs. Or maybe 1 per each person old enough to be responsible for a pet. Maybe 12 or older. .
- 6 is too many. It should be fewer.
- As a dog owner I feel that 6 animals is too much to reasonably provide quality care for
- All dogs and cats must be neutered. The number of dogs and cats should be limited to two each, with only an exception for those who temporarily take in kittens or puppies from the SPCA to help nourish and socialize them. Well-behaved excess animals currently owned should be donated to low income households. Animal breeders should relocate to rural areas.
- should be 3 and 3
- I support the exceptions however I do not support the idea of anyone having the ability to potentially own 12 animals(6cats 6dogs) that seems like borderline animal hoarding and creates high chances of poorly cared for animals (basically abuse)
- This would make it tricky for fostering, etc. I don't support it. As long as the animals are exercised daily, in a clean living environment, and behaved, who cares?
- The number of pets should be dealt with on a case-by-case basis. There are many situations where one pet is too many (not being appropriately cared for) whereas someone could have 6 or 7 pets that are well-kept and you never hear complaints about them.
- Limits are too high. Perhaps three of either would be appropriate. Preferably fewer.
- There is no reason why someone should have 6 dogs and 6 cats on a single property. The noise and mess would be excessive, not in the animals best interests and not reasonable. If they want that many pets, they should live in the country.
- Higher risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- No need for limit. Use existing bylaws to deal with problems.
- 6 dogs are a lot...4 dogs is plenty in the city. Only One or two pitbulls from Canada.
- Dog daycares are businesses. They should be excluded from this discussion entirely;
- I feel this is excessive and may lead to hoarding , and who can afford that many unless living on an farm or one or more acres of land
- Responsible owners will only have as many animals as they could afford. Animals fill a void for Seniors and lonely people .We don't need more rules , more fees.
- Unfair
- There are already bylaws to be enforced if the number of animals proves to be too much for a property such as noise, feces, etc. Enforce them.
- If you can afford to care for them then there should be no limit.
- I think bylaw should have to have final say on each individual case

- Limit should be 2 dogs or cats
- It would be hard for many to keep up with vet care. So the animals well rung suffers. Also costs of licensing and general care. Plus the ability to keep control of all animals. Makes it hard to walk all of them. Too many irresponsible owners would have more nuisance dogs at one time.
- Unclear what processes and support are in place to protect the well-being of the animals if the limit is exceeded (for example, if a cat has kittens)
- There is no reason whatsoever that anyone within city limits needs more than 2 cats and 2 dogs. There is already more than enough dog defecation in the City. It borders on a public health issue. All owners say they pick it up....so where does it all come from?! When the snow melts the stench is disgusting. We do not need more domestic animals in the City. 12 animals per household is ridiculous. If you run an animal business, you get a business permit AND all the necessary licencing. Calgary does not need to make it easier or cheaper for anyone to pollute the City and/or terrorize citizens with their poorly socialized animals.
- 2 cats AND 2 dogs should be enough. 6 is way too many
- 6 of each is too many on one property due to noise smells etc
- Excluding exceptions, a total of 12 dogs/cats per household is beyond excessive. The neighbourhood suffers from noise and outdoor cats are uncontrolled for neighbours. Calgary already has a zoo.
- Too many animals in one house, difficult to provide adequate care for animals and greater chance of problems for neighbours
- Current limit is sufficient, if you want more animals move out of the city
- a good owner can take care of multiple pets of differing species. exceptions are ok
- I personally know multi pet homes who's animals do not break any of the above mentioned guideline and I know of single pet homes who break all listed. Number is pet does not have a direct correlation with nuisance behaviors
- Because
- I do not support hard limits. Restrictions based on abuse / neglect seem appropriate, but there is no magic to the numbers selected. There are possible unintended consequences. Learn from impaired driving law where people assume being below the .08 "limit" is equated to being safe to drive. This proposal seems to do nothing but add a layer of bureaucracy.
- That's too many pets, gross
- There is no need to have 12 animals. Chances are these people do not train or properly care for these animals. The only people that this may apply to are temporary homes or rescues or farms, but that is already an exclusion. Opening it up to this many animals drastically increases risk.
- Dogs & cats are totally different animals and different bylaws should apply. For eg. you most likely won't have a complaint about cats meowing, like you would dogs barking. Cats are not taken for walks to go to the bathroom. How does limiting the number of cats/dogs protect their welfare, if the own is being responsible?
- Six cats and six dogs is too many, except for puppies or kittens. Please reduce the number.
- This would lead to more animals being left in shelters

- 6 Animals are too much. More than 2 would require excess animal permit. I agree with most exceptions except inherited or grandfathered clause. They should have to comply within a extended definitive time frame
- That is too many animals. I think 3 at most of each animal, or 6 animals total.
- That is way to many animals in a houes
- I think responsible petownership and follow through in enforcing bylaws rather than number enforcements
- If someone can provide a home for more than 6 cats or dogs they should be allowed to do so.
- Two seems to low possible you could set a limit at 5
- I support the proposed change for a maximum amount of pets. I believe the amount of pets should be based on number of adults In the home, square footage of home, square footage of yard space, training; cleanliness, amenities for pets (kennels, walks) as well as financial abilities of the home. 6 cats and 6 dogs permanent in a home is a lot
- 6 doges is too many for one household I would be concerned about neglect. Unless they were used for LESA and were trained as such.
- what are limits now? 2? 12? i have owned pets f0or most of my life but i would never want to live near someone who owns 6 dogs and 6 six cats AND maybe chickens AND maybe pigeons? what are you thinking? please keep in mind that i^m not answering yes OR no because i dont know what the change actually is! i can guess its 2 but its only a guess based on the vagueness of the backgrounder.
- I think this creates more bureaucracy without addressing any problems. What really are the problems and let's deal with those eg. excessive barking.
- I would support a bylaw that limits pet ownership to one cat and one dog
- There are currently many households that have 3+ pets and they are not getting proper care. I do not see a need to increase the limit within the City of Calgary, if the limit were to increase there should be a minimum acreage associated with it.
- Some people want more
- There is no need to have 6 dogs and 6 cats in any household within a city. There is already many problems that the city are not enforcing with current bylaws and this bylaw would promote animal neglect.
- can we remove the term "grandfathered"- it has negative racist origins. Also, does the limit to number of pets only fall to dogs and cats? clarification is that would include all pets in the household
- Licensed breeders only all other maximum of 3
- I think it's fine less would be better but there has to be exceptions as stated by the bylaw
- Fundamentally disagree with tax-grabbing licenses in the first place; does little to nothing to help the animals themselves. Don't believe in placing limits on compassion toward helping/having animals, when so many are killed off in traditional 'shelters.' You will end up with even more abandoned animals than now. And animal BREEDING of any sort should not even be allowed, period, until all homeless animals have homes!

- Some people consider their pets family and that's all they have, as long as there is no danger to the welfare of the animals leave them be to be happy.
- As long as all animals are cared for and healthy, and the property is cared for, and there is little to no excessive noise, pet owners should have as many animals as they want. ALL pets should be registered with the city AND a vet.
- People can have 1 pet and be irresponsible-- letting it be destructive, creating messes, barking. someone else could have 12 and be super responsible. Irresponsible people will break the bylaw irregardless. So this again punishes those super responsible pet owners, and will not stop irresponsible owners or animal hoarders.
- you can't control how people live their lives. stop trying to force people to do what you want
- The current bylaw is sufficient for an urban area. Six is CRAZY. A special permit depending on situation.
- I don't feel anyone needs more than a couple dogs or cats. Six seems too many.
- It wouldn't help
- Should be 6 TOTAL. All cats, all dogs, or any combination thereof.
- Can not believe you are thinking of allowing so many animals in one place !! A hoarders paradise !! Please please keep animals to a maximum 3 dogs/3 cats
- In my Shawnessy area we don't seem to have many problems.
- a person should be able to police their ownership of their animal unless they are being neglected
- Some families simply have the room and resources to have more than six dogs or six cats (foster fails as we call them in particular, folks who foster animals who can't find a home, and inevitably end up keeping them!).
- [personal information removed]
- I would keep the maximum numbers at what they are now.
- Would support WITH the exceptions listed
- I would have concerns about logistics about fitting up to 12 animals in some housing.
- Up to 12 animals in a house seems hugely excessive to me unless there are specific reasons as stated above or the home is a large acreage.
- It is not up to the city how many pets someone can have. If they are properly caree for there is no issue
- Unless it is a situation where a person is hoarding many cats and or dogs, it is no ones business how many animals a person has.
- Pet limit reduction per household.
- There should not be a limit on animals in a household.
- No
- let people have what pets they want if it doesn't bother anyone
- There shouldn't be a limit to the amount of pets
- 6 dogs is still too many, especially if large, barking or outside a lot; 6 cats inside would be fine
- .

- Six dogs AND six cats seems excessive. I support a limit but a lower one.
- I have no opinion on this.
- Limits should be much lower, six of each per household is ridiculous!! Two of three of each is plenty!
- Some people have 1 dog that's excessively noisy and others have several that make no noise, it shouldn't be the number of pets but the impact. Every time my dog barks once, even in mid-afternoon my neighbor shouts at swears at me, but he's making far more noise than my dog ever does and is way more threatening than any bully breed. (No my dog is not any kind of pit bull)
- TOO MANY PETS! Why does someone need 6 cats? Seriously?
- I hate dogs and think their number should be as limited as possible. The amount of urine and feces that are left on grass, away from the owner's home, but on grass which other homeowners are responsible for taking care of is ridiculous.
- There should be no limit to how much cats or dog a person can own as long as they are being responsible for their pets and Caring for them properly.
- 12 animals is WAY too many in a regular sized house.
- I believe that 6 dogs and 6 cats is much too high and unnecessary, unless puppies or kittens under 6 months.
- Way too many!
- The proposed changes allow for far too many animals.
- Unless they have a business license for a business specifically related to animals breeding etc there is no reason anyone should have that many pets
- As long as the household is able to maintain and take care of animals with reasonable living space and the health of the animals there should be no issue.
- There is no direct relation ship between the well being of an animal and the number of animals in a property. A single animal may be a bused, or may cause annoyance if not receivng proper attention and care from the owner. That is why the fines, the fees and the regulations.
- The property along with house size should determine if the people can have 6 animals. If you have a 1-2 bedroom house and it's less than 1200sq feet you should not have 6 dogs or cats. BUT I agree with allowing from the potential list, but again I think having the city going to those places to make sure that there is enough space for the animals.
- A person should have to meet certain standards and it should be up to the city and neighbors whether someone is allowed a large number of pets. I do not think someone should be allowed multiple cat or dog if the ones they currently have are running at large, causing excessive noise, or the yard is a messy state. Perhaps a home in the large city is not the place for a cat breeding or large breed dog breeding operation.
- Stay out of my personal life
- Nobody needs more than two dogs, and/or, two cats. Per comments above, if people want to raise animals such as pigeons and other animals, or have numerous pets, the city is not appropriate. The only way these ideas should be feasible is if the city is responsible for decreased propey values for tax payers who have to put up with citizens who decide they need a animal farm in their backyard.

All of this very eye opening what the city is considering. And to think I was considering moving from a downtown condo to a house with a yard, to only one day have to deal with a neighbour who decides they want to raise pigeons and who knows what else in their backyard, and maybe six dangerous dogs in the house.

- Irresponsible pet owners are undaunted by fines apparently; whether it's because fines are rarely handed out, the money doesn't matter or the fine is never collected, I don't know. So instead of two barking dogs, I could now be faced with six barking dogs. Not to mention even more cats running at large, killing birds and defecating in my garden.
- Limit of 6 is much too high
- As long as they are looked after properly there should be no limit.
- I believe there should be no limit if animal welfare is being upheld.
- Why six of each??? Why not four? Three?
- Honestly? Keeping pets is cruel to animals. In future years society will look upon keeping pets the same way it now looks upon keeping humans. I realize this is an extreme opinion but it should be recognized as one of the opinions you receive.
- People can be responsible pet owners with more than 6 pets
- The wording "potential exception" when referring to the list is not enough reassurance. In order for me to agree, the word potential must be removed from the list of exceptions.
- If someone is taking care of them, picking up after them and they are not loud, what is the problem?
- I don't agree
- 6 is to many to start. Animal welfare and waste. Calgary is now famous killing jobs with your globalist mentality. Who's going to do the affording of looking after animals when people loose thier jobs or become under employed even more? Certainly not accepting my taxes support the problems that council self elects into place.
- Pet limits should be based on square footage of the home and backyard. Perhaps tiered systems could ease understanding of how many pets someone can own without knowing exactly how big their property is. Special circumstances could be reviewed and made exempt.
- This would still not stop hoarders, and would punish responsible pet owners who are capable of caring for an increased number of animals
- You can't put a limit on how many animals someone wishes to have.
- People have a right to as many animals as they want.
- It should be based on sizing of home and space for the safety of the owner the pets and the neighbors
- Reduce the number to 2.
- this depends entirely on the ownership being responsible and if they aren't then they should be fined
- If someone needs this many animals, they are bordering on animal hoarding. Having that many animals in a home would be nearly impossible to control (other than a temporary litter of young)
- 6 MAX (dogs AND cats TOTAL)is sufficient, barring the above mentioned circumstances (except breeders/fanciers- should give them a limit too)

- You do not say what the current limit is. I think two of each pet is plenty, with the possibility of an approved permit under special circumstances.
- In Airdrie the limit is 6 why would you want 6 of each. You are creating hoarding situations
- I believe that 6 cats and 6 dogs are too large a number for one ordinary household. A reasonable limit would be 2 cats and 2 dogs in my opinion.
- That is way too many pets per household, no need
- As a professional dog trainer and behaviour therapist, I believe the number of adult dogs in a household should be limited to 5. Puppies need to find new homes during the critical period of socialization between the ages of 8 weeks to 16 weeks.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats seem far too many to me. I prefer a 2 dog/2 cat rule with exceptions above.
- Let people live how they want to but restrict them if they can't control it
- if you tell someone not to do something they're gonna do it
- 6 is too many and the exceptions could still be the way people sneak through the # of dogs they have.
- Lets focus on enforcement of current by laws and education for responsible ownership. No one needs to own a pack of dogs besides if you ban bullies we'll see an increase in popularity of other breeds. You are just growing the dog population outside of manageability.
- I think 12 animals in a single family home in most urban settings is too many for animal welfare, noise and feces.
- not to have, enough of government intervention in our lives. Mind your own business
- Who are we to say how many animals a person can own.
- There are responsible multi-dog households that do take wonderful care of all of their dogs. Perhaps a welfare check on dog homes above 6, to prevent neglect.
- 12 animals on any property is insane. Limit of 6 seems more reasonable and apply the exceptions
- Yes if you invoke the potential exceptions.
- Should have no limits as long as it's safe
- Six is way too many - two would be fine unless licensed as a breeder
- That number of animals would never be looked after properly.
- I would agree to this if the exceptions were more clearly defined and not listed as "potential"
- Banning breeds then increasing numbers per household of all other breeds? Other breeds will emerge to also be discriminated against. Italy ended up adding 92 breeds to its ban under these conditions by 2009 they reduced that to 17 breeds and in 2013 dropped breed specific legislation. Don't allow people to own packs of dogs very few people have the skills to keep that under control.
- I would need clarification of exceptions such as responsible breeders and pet owners who may have more than 6 dogs that are well cared for, healthy, and in a good home. Problem dogs are often in homes with only one or two pets.
- Let people live
- If one can take care of many animals they should be able to have many animals.

- The city does not get to determine how many pets someone can have. An argument based on need is not logical nor can need be accurately determined.
- The other people who say there should only be a total of 2 pets. Need to grow up. [removed]
- Shouldn't be the governments choice
- Too many - lower number - 4
- 6 seems too many. 2 is too low.
- I don't think there should be a limit
- [removed]
- That is too many pets in one household. There would be hygiene and disease transmission risks.
- if all the animals are properly taken care of, the owners should be able to have as many as they want/ can maintain or afford.
- They are very unfair. There are no search that proves that muzzling dogs and stricting them will decrease bites. Instead there are studies shown that they increase!!
- Cause
- People should be able to have as many pets as they want.
- As long as the owner is taking care of them it's ok
- If I want 17 dogs and I treat them all ver well I should be able to have all 17 dogs.
- Unless there is neglect, the animals are safe
- idk really
- Six dogs and six cats allows people to have 12 animals, which is excessive, difficult to manage and take care of, and expensive to feed , licence, train, and maintain health. Six animals total is more realistic. I do however agree with exceptions.
- No one needs 6 dogs or cats, it is unfair to the animals
- If the owners can show responsibly having more than 6 pets then they should be able to
- As long as the animals are treated wqually
- It is unconstitutional to limit someones ability to have a pet it is restricting of their right to the pursuit of happiness
- Because wearing a muzzle and being banned from dog parts is cruel especially to animals that have done nothing wrong
- Keep it the same
- I think the number limit should be set at two or be based on the square footage of the house and greenspace available. Too many neglected animals at the hands of hoarders
- The city should promote animal welfare, not arbitrary max numbers of pets
- Six is a lot of dogs or cats and in the usual pet situation seems almost hoarding. I would think a lower number, with the exceptions listed.
- That's irresponsible, and unethical to allow. It would make it easier for hoarding situations to occur, malnourishment, etc.

- To have animals remain healthy it should be allowed only if they have a oversized back yard/side yard and prove animals have sufficient space to roam per their size - for example 6 dashhounds vs 6 huskies...dashhounds could have a smaller back yard - but huskies would need larger.
- I think the numbers of pets one should have should be based on breeds and square footage of property inside and outside. There is a different amount of space needed for 6 Large Breeds as there would be for 6 small breeds. Also certain large breeds need less room than others.
- Twelve animals in a house is a lot especially if the dogs are big. Also, six dogs is a bigger “load” and more of a potential nuisance than six cats. Cats don’t generally bother neighbours at all.
- I feel responsible pet owners should continue to be allowed to have many pets. If an issue arises when an owner shows they are unable to be a responsible owner then an approach of education and offer of assistance should be the first course of action.
- 2 Cats or 2 Dogs is plenty per household and if not obeying the bylaws no such pets allowed
- 6 is ridiculous. 4 of each
- 6 animals is too much for any home...
- 3 dogs and 3 cats should be the limit. I do support the potential exceptions though.
- six is a lot to care for responsibly; responsible breeders and people training service dogs could have more dogs/household
- Too many animals under one roof. If they abided by the bylaw a household could potentially have 12 animals in one household and they could live in a very small house
- I would support a limit of a total of six (6) dogs OR cats per household, or any combination totalling no more than six.
- max 6 (dogs and/or cats)
- I don't think that there should be a limit on responsible pet owners if they are following the bylaws
- Lower the allowable pet limit to three (3) dogs AND three (3) cats. Exceptions can be applied for through the city
- No one needs 6 cats or dogs
- 2 pets per home should be adaqet.
- People who are not fosters, inheriting animals, or weaning puppies/kittens really don't need more than a couple.
- I think it is unnecessary and a government overreach to limit the number of animals.
- If people take good care of their pets and they aren't bothering the neighbours (noise, smell) then they can have as many animals as they want. I don't see many people having this many animals, and if they do, then problems should be investigated. Hoarders who neglect animals aren't going to follow the law anyway.
- No more than 4 animals in total per house. Period.
- 6 of each pet is too high. That's potentially 12 animals in a house.
- It's too much! And the exception doesnt avoid the abusive breeders!
- Let me make the number of animals does not properly addressed the previously discussed issues. A person May have many animals but as long as they are properly managing in maintaining them those issues won't arise, likewise a person with only one animal can cause more issues if they don't properly manage and maintain them. Rather than placing a limit we should be addressing the issues at their source, which would be bad ownership, inexperience, incapability, etc. Rather than placing a limit in general and allowing exceptions, you should place a limit on people who have proven they cannot maintain proper standards.

- 6 dogs and 6 cats in one house is unmanageable. 2 is too low. I'd support a 6 pet total of any combination.
- No
- That total number for an urban residential unit is too high. Perhaps a ratio of pets: adults in the home so that there could be more confidence the animals are receiving necessary care?
- That is a completely unreasonable amount of animals in a residential setting. Get a farm if you want that many animals
- Do not support anyone having so many pets in one household unless they are living on an acreage.
- Honestly, if the reasons you suggest as a reason to limit numbers are legitimate then having up to 12 animals in a household is not going to address those. Limits would be broken, you would be better to increase enforcement if the bylaws already in place (just sit in any neighborhood and watch people walk dogs off leash in leash required areas and not pick up their dog poop. Those are much bigger issues you should be focusing on. This City has degraded so much and is full of dog poop everywhere you go now!
- I would support 6 dogs OR 6 cats, or 6 total for private household with 6 & 6 for the above exceptions.
- Ability to care, control and afford an animal depends on the owner regardless of the number of animals. An owner who does not have the resources, knowledge or commitment in maintaining current standards of basic animal care would not be able to care for one animal, let alone multiple. Capacity for multiple animals is case dependent. Comments such as "it is not necessary to own more than 2", is a subjective response. You need to look at ability, not necessity.
- I would support only if litters of babies are excluded.
- I should not be limited to animal ownership if I'm responsible. Make fines steeper for those who don't licence and get caught.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is an insane number of pets.
- Being able to provide quality care for 6 animals is a tremendous responsibility. The limit could be 3 maybe 4 but beyond that the animals well being is put at risk no matter how well intended the owner. If they want more than say 4 then need to get a permit that requires a plan on how they would care for the animals. As for low income it is a harsh reality but in order for them to provide quality care including veterinarian pet ownership is a costly venture to preserve a healthy pet. Community service dogs would be a more viable program.
- I think that is too many. I think 2-4 animals in a house is more than enough, especially considering how close houses are to each other.
- I support the exceptions but feel that 6 cats and 6 dogs per household is too many. I would support a higher household limit if it was tied to the the number of adults in the household (eg. two cats/dogs per adult member of the household) to ensure that adequate care can be provided.

- Too many still - 4 per household, pets are a privilege to own and have similar expenses to have children (food, vet, yard mice, proper bed, fencing
- This bylaw change is stupid. Please go back and relearn your facts! It is npt the dog its the human look at that!
- Number of pets does not make someone a better owner
- Again 1 bad neighbor. Has lodged noise complaints against me after their children instigate my dogs over the fence!!! I have no recourse with their 3, soon to be 4, children screaming!! Each case is unique and a chance to explain/defend against charges!
- I don't think it's necessary for any household to have up to 6 dogs and 6 cats. If the licensing fee is an issue, then the other costs to having animals should be enough of a deterrent from having more than two pets in a house.
- There is no way that people can successfully manage more than a couple of cats and a couple of dogs. Both from a financial and emotional perspective.
- Freedom.
- A
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many in one household in a city home.
- Too much regulation. Not everything needs to be regulated. If animals end up at risk, deal with that, recognizing that not everyone who has more than 2 or 6 animals neglects them or causes problems in the community. Deal with problems as they arise if they arise
- Some people would be able to properly care for 12 animals, while some are not able to care for 1. The variable is the ability of the owner to provide proper care for them; the number is irrelevant.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too much for a city household, unless it is a breeder or one of the exemptions listed above.
- I think it is still too many. Three dogs or cats is more than enough.
- Stay the same
- I think more thought needs to go into this before restricting pet ownership
- Allowing 6 (or more!) cats or dogs seems excessive, and likely to result in more neighbour complaints and uncared for animals.
- Personal freedom to choose how many pets you can own is key providing you can properly care for all animals in your control. If you can't keep one pet safe and healthy than one is too much
- Six is too high
- I don't support limits to animals, but I do support criteria involving quality of care for the animals and responsibility of the owner.
- Six is too many.
- 6 dogs or cats in a home is way too many. I can't imagine the noise and the smell with that many animals
- More than two significantly increases the problem of noise, smell and other issues related to pet ownership in an urban area.

- total of 2 pets per household is manageable
- Maximum of 4 animals TOTAL, including snakes, birds, etc. (excluding fish tank.) Exception for inherited animals, fosters of senior animals. No exceptions for businesses in non-commercial (residential) areas. No exception for breeders. Pet sitters need to have an overnight average total within this limit. Exception for under 6 months.
- Again we ended up having to involve the city. Next door decided she wanted to have a variety of dogs so from a chihuahua to a great dane. EVERY day there was constant barking, attacking me at me at the fence when gardening or painting the fence. I asked several times for her to please control the animals. Never listened - finally ended up with a mediator who was not impartial at all. She finally moved out several weeks later. We are done!
- We have too much noise from neighbors dogs and too much feces on own lawn from neighborhood dogs that people don't clean up. We have not had the experience of responsible dog owners in our neighborhood. We don't need more stress from more dogs. We deserve to have a decent life in our house too, free of nuisance from animals with irresponsible owners.
- No one needs this many animals on their property under any circumstances. You cannot properly care for this many animals
- 6 dogs & 6 cats! Way to many for city housing!
- That is way too many animals at one residence. I would support 4 each maximum (as long as the cats were indoor only cats).
- Having up to 12 cats/dogs in a house seems excessive. I would cut that number in half, apart from the exceptions listed.
- I think that the limit should be lower. No more than four adult animals. The exceptions are fine.
- Six dogs or cats for most city properties and most city dog owners, is too high, most city dog owners have issues with 1 dog or cat!!!!
- That's too many damn animals on a single property!
- Not if changes are to a breed specific.
- In my opinion if you are not a temporary home then having 6 cats or dogs in one home is to many. In my opinion a typical household shouldn't have more than 3.
- I think a total of 6 pets (cats and dogs combined) would be sufficient.
- There is no reason to have more than 6 dogs or cats. If you leave a loophole, then everyone will start saying that their pets were "inherited"
- a few animals
- PROPER care and love CANNOT be given equally between 6 cats and 6 dogs in 1 house collectively
- I believe the numbers are too high. I agree that 6 cats is realistic, but 6 dogs is outrageous. I would potentially be more inclined to agree with 4 dogs AND 6 cats as the limit. I believe having 6 dogs and up to 6 cats would result in neglect of some of all of the animals, and higher behavioural issues due to lack of attention from the owner(s).
- I think that people should be allowed to have as many pets as they want provided they are properly cared for and they have a high quality of life. However, I ALSO very strongly feel that the laws around what environment a pet owner is allowed to keep their animals in must become severely stricter. For example, dogs should NEVER be kept in kennels for more than a couple hours per day at maximum, and kennels should not be a long-term solution. Additionally, a good relationship with a vet must be established in order to ensure emergency vet care can be provided in the case that owners don't have immediate funds to cover the costs.

- This is a violation of rights. Each person has the right to have as many children, same goes for pets, they are the children/family of many people. as long as they are well cared for the city nor anyone else has the right to say how many are the right number in a household. There are legal pathways for neglected children and there are legal pathways for neglected pets. There is no need for further recourse or mandating of an "alotment" per household.
- No
- 6 and 6 is too high. 12 animals on a property is too many. 6 of one type would be understandable.
- If care of animals is provided, their shouldn't be a limit
- Surprise pregnancies of animals will easily push people past this number. It should be owning the animal for a period of time. So six animals for over a year. For breeders, yes other application is fine.
- I have seen too many people with 3-4 dogs and if they are not appropriately trained they are a nuisance.
- Leave people alone as long as it isnt effecting the neighbours
- It is not the number of animals that is important, it is the standard if care and housing that is critical.
- I don't think anyone needs to to have a total of 12 dogs and cats. Unless they were very wealthy, it would be difficult to feed and get veterinary care for all those animals. It is better to have fewer animals - say 3 of each- and see them very well cared for. I do agree that there should be room for exceptions for litters, inherited animals or temp homes.
- I think the numbers should be lower. 3 or 4 max.
- It really depends on the dogs. If you have 2 dogs that bark constantly it's 2 dogs too many. If you have 10 dogs that are all well behaved and don't bark and the owner picks up after them no one is the wiser. It's really about the owner of the pet and if they are caring for their animals properly and training them so that they don't bark or get agitated all the time. It's really about owners, not the animals.
- As long as people have the means to care for their animals, they should be allowed to own as many as they wish on their own property. When the needs of the animals are not being met, that is when by-law can come in and issue fines/ charges. Keep it the same as it is now. The city is currently doing a good job.
- 12 animals in a normal city household is ridiculous - the feeding, cleaning and exercise needs alone would not be met
- I feel like 6 is too high - no one can adequately care for this number of dogs. 3-4 would be upper limit in my opinion.
- 6 of either animal in city limits is excessive (even with a special permit)

- I own my own home and I pay taxes. You should only intervene and propose restrictions if there is an incidence or my pets are becoming a nuisance.
- Number of animals is not always an indicator of quality of care. Homes with potential concern should be effectively managed on a case by case basis.
- I think 6 Adult cats or dogs is far too many. How would you enforce licensing? Dogs bark and one is plenty but adding up to five more would create too much noise. How can you guarantee that the animals will be properly cared for? I think you need to look at the income of the person as it costs a lot to feed, house and care for an animal. I think two of each other that the exceptions is more than enough.
- I can see people living in apartment buildings thinking they should have 6 dogs & 6 cats. I do agree with the potential exceptions.
- While working at a vet clinic there are clients who have more than this and they take amazing care of their pets. I do realize that there are others out there that don't, but those people shouldn't ruin it for those who take proper care and love for their pets. Other laws should be in place.
- I would prefer not more than 2 dogs or cats without a special application; and the pet limit should be stated as OR rather than AND ... 12 animals is way too many for any household!!
- I think having up to 12 animals is extreme (unless there are litters). I think 4/4 should be maximum.
- Far too many animals in one location. No one needs 12
- Why? Do not over populate our city with animals
- Beyond 2 or 3 animals is unnecessary. If people want to have large numbers of animals they should live outside of the city.
- I am concerned about the idea of a "Dog Fanciers' License" and the fees associated with that. And what will the criteria be for a DFL?
- rescues excluded
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many. If the current limit is 2+2, that seems reasonable to me.
- I get that someone would have more than 2 cats. Cats are neglected, starved and abandoned so often, that people like myself often rescue them. A limit of 4 owned cats is max in my books. As for dogs, we have enough people breeding and selling dogs that it's time to limit the ownership to a maximum of 4 dogs. The exceptions make good sense to me as well. All animals should all be licensed, provided the money is used for the care of abandoned, sick and ferrel animals like the SPCA, and not to line the city administrators pockets. There also should be a break for the seniors in licensing as well, they get so little breaks from the city as is.
- That's WAAAAYYY too many dogs.....
- In my opinion, up to 12 animals is a large number of animals to be considered for the by law. I would recommend up 4 animals per household. With anything more to be considered under exceptions.
- Six is way too many. 3-4 is appropriate. The exceptions are more than adequate.
- A grand total of 13 animals in one city house hold is not sanitary for one. I would say max 6: 3 dogs AND 3 cats
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive. Perhaps no more than 6 total of dogs and cats
- Six is too many, a special application should be required for that many pets.

- 6 dogs and 6 cats seems like an unreasonably large number to retain within city limits for a private household. Raising the number would complicate the management of animals and create annoyance to neighbours.
- Fewer pets per household dependent on type/size of dwelling. Larger places could have the proposed limit, but smaller places/apartments/condominiums should have a much lower limit, 2 cats and 2 dogs.
- 2 cats and 2 dogs is more than enough for one city lot.
- Pet limit could exceed 2 only if household is a licensed breeder.
- Make it based on home size and square footage.
- It's your personal property and if you are able to provide to all of the animals and give them proper care, it's nobody's business but your own.
- I think that there needs to be a limit to the animals based upon the size of the house and backyard. If someone wants 10 dogs on a couple of acres, that's fine. But if they want six dogs in a 600 sq ft. townhome, that is excessive and detrimental to the animals and neighbours.
- Only for people fostering etc but not average households. To me that's extreme and
- I feel that the limit should be set lower- 4 large animal per household; this will help ensure that all animals will hopefully receive the care (Vet), food and love they deserve.
- The number of pets does not determine the welfare of that animal or animals. Responsible ownership is based on the individual owner. If there is a problem, it needs to be dealt with. A home with one or two dogs can have an accumulation of feces or excessive noise and the limits in no means protects the welfare of an animal. An owner is responsible or NOT. Numbers have nothing to do with it. I have had neighbors with one dog that is left outside all day and night and it is a source of excessive noise. This is a head in the sand approach.
- Reduce the number of pets
- I agree with the overall limit of six animals, from a combination of dogs and cats
- 6 dogs or 6 cats are too many in city limits unless the person is fostering animals.
- People can do their own thing
- People should be allowed as many pets as they like, as long as they can support proper care, proper vet care, be licensed and properly trained (dogs).
- More regulation
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats !!! 2 dogs or 2 cats or 1 of each maximum makes more sense.
- P"
- Problem owners should be dealt with on a case by case basis, animal safety and quality of life being the larger concern.
- Along with the above rules, I think that the number of animals should also be controlled by the size of the apartment, house, yard that they would be limited to. I.e. I live on a 25 foot lot and there is no way that I should have more than two dogs.
- Regulating pet ownership is already inconsistent and difficult. The increased number is HUGE while also making it far more likely that the quality of life of the pets is lower, and with the difficulty of enforcing regulation, it's also difficult to make sure that those with that number are in fact taking care of their pets fully.

- There should be no limit
- 6 is ridiculously high limit for many properties/circumstances. In those cases where more than 6 can be kept without undue issue, the limit need not apply at all. Way too situational. It has been observed that desiring control for the sake of control is indicative of several diagnosable and treatable mental disorders - has the proposer of this been seen by a psychologist? I ask out of concern, not insult.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats? Do you live on a farm? I would look at poundage instead. No more than 6 animals combined or 400 pounds total weight.
- Owners should have the ability to have as many pets and options they want for them.
- I think a person can have as many pets as they provided they are cared properly in terms of medically, physically and mentally.
- It's no one's business how many pets a person owns. It should only become a problem if it is a health hazard or impedes the community on some way.
- Maximum 3 dogs and 3 cats. No exception.
- Unless there are other fees like a homeowners association would provide, it truly is no ones business other than the people who are in the home and should be allowed however many they would like.
- As long as the animals are properly cared for and not causing any issues, people should be allowed to have as many pets as they'd like.
- if you have more of these animals, you should be considered a breeder
- I feel like you shouldn't be limited to animals like you can't be limited to friends
- The limit should be less like 3 dogs and 3 cats unless the exceptions.
- If I has 6 cats and a stray showed up at my door and I save it from the elements etc. and to keep it why would that be a problem when just bsaved an animal.
- Two cats and two dogs is more than enough. Six of each is just plain stupid and excessive
- None of your business how many pets a person has if the animals are not a problem stay out of peoples lives nose Nelly
- One or two pets is plenty. Six is too many.
- I don't believe it is necessary to own more than 2 dogs or 2 cats per household.
- 2 dog 4 cat max
- I feel very strongly about this. There should not be a limit. It should be about care. Anyone who mentions hoarding as a reason to change the bylaw does not understand what hoarding is. The issue is responsible pet ownership. Some owners let feces accumulate with only one dog, while others are out there scooping responsibly. I STRONGLY disagree with the idea that any level of government can dictate what happens in my private home. (Legal and Safety issues excluded - no meth labs, smoke detectors, etc.) If the animals are cared for, and outside bylaws are followed, it is no one else's business how many pets are in a household.
- No limit to number of animals

- 6 dogs in small city lots too many especially big dogs. Its not fair to the dogs. Plus the barking & feces clean-up would be an added issue. 6 cats indoors are fine but how do you keep 6 in your yard. I don't want them pooping in my flowerbeds.
- We can't make bylaws for everything, there are other bylaws on the books to deal with nuisances, noises, garbage whatever related to the by-products of having too many dogs or cats. If someone had 20 cats and they were doing no one any harm - let them.
- Once again, it isn't what people WANT. It is about the welfare of the animals. I have dogs and know what goes into their care, time wise, but more importantly financially. Proper care is expensive. And can be VERY expensive. 2 cats/dogs are plenty.
- The city shouldn't have a say on the number of pets people have
- Limit should be 2 pets total.
- We dont need more bylaws
- Because irresponsible owners will continue doing it
- Responsible pet owners should not be burdened with extra applications and hassles
- I think that people should be able to choose how many animals they own. Yes, those numbers are high but there are certainly people out there that can effectively own many animals. We should crack down on the ones that can't rather than punish the ones that can.
- rescues need exemption should have free six month license to pass on to new owner
- I feel in this economy that having 6 of any animal is to much I would say 3 is plenty
- It should depend on size of house and property
- 3 of each should be the maximum
- As long as animals are cared for people should be able to have as many as they like
- Property sizes and personal responsibility differ so much that this should be a case by case basis and not a bylaw.
- Limit of two is more reasonable.
- I think it's robust enough and fair.
- Too complicated to enforce
- 6 is too many
- I feel that the noise, cleanup, chaos, cost etc. In a household with this many animals would be detrimental to the health of the owner and their neighbours!
- Six is too many.
- Why would anyone need to have 12 pets in a household? This would seem to be abuse of the animals.
- I think the limit should be 3 dogs and 3 cats
- who needs more than two animals of one breed in a household Crazy
- Bylaw restrictions for number of pets for problem owners is a better idea for me
- I support what you are trying to do but I do not like the limit of 6 dogs or 6 cats that is too many, I think 2 or each would be enough as some people can not look after one animal properly.
- No one needs 6 cats and/or dogs

- The limit you suggest is far too many.
- I think 6 dogs OR 6 cats per household, in an urban setting is excessive. Call me animal bigoted(?) but anyone who has that many animals in a city swelling is likely irresponsible. It is also highly likely that the neighbors would bare the brunt of such a menagerie, in both noise and smell & inconvenience to their own enjoyment of their property.
- I don't see this as a major issue. Edge case scenario
- We shouldn't cater to the problem people, we should deal with them on a case by case basis
- None of my business as long as those dogs and cats are being responsible, taking care of all of them and loving them.
- I live next to someone with 3 dogs and 2 are small and noisy. I wouldn't want to live next to someone with 6 dogs.
- I think anyone that has 6 or more pets can't properly look after them
- Two pets per household is sufficient
- 3 cats maximum
- potentially 12 animals is too much. Six animals TOTAL is more than enough.
- The potential exceptions need to be included in the bylaw
- It should be based on level of care / suitable living conditions, not an arbitrary number. Some people cannot properly care for a single animal, some give a great home to many.
- Six is too many pets per any household. The number of pets per household should be restricted to 2.
- Manage the problem owners.
- We can address problem owners without creating more restrictions for everyone.
- I would like to see fewer legal restrictions and more community engagement and supports. Foster positive communities as opposed to adding more rules to follow, that has a negative connotation.
- Limit to 2 dogs or cats, more than that requires special licenses and periodic inspections
- I think 6 is too many. I live next to 6 dogs. Instead of a quiet cul-de-sac, it sometimes sounds as if I live beside a kennels.
- I don't think we should place restrictions to everyone to address some problem people, we should address the problem owners.
- Do not want to increase the limit on pets
- I think a problem owner should be handled on a case by case basis.
- 6 is an arbitrary number. there are too many reasons that people may have/desire more.
- I am a member of a "Dog Rescue Organization" and my personal experience is that 3 dogs (our family dog, plus 2 dogs in care awaiting adoption) is my limit to being able to do a good job of each animals needs - grooming, feeding, walking, training, yard cleaning etc. Six dogs belonging to one family seems too much to handle everything that needs to be done to keep the animals exercised, groomed, stimulated, trained as noted before; not to mention the Vet expenses. Six cats belonging to one household seems too many for the same reasons as mentioned regarding six dogs.

- If the city is not allowed to tell me how many children I can have, then the city should not be allowed to tell people how many animals they can have.
- Six is way too many - ridiculous! Four of anything please.
- As long as the owner is being a responsible owner and is not causing problems with neighbours etc - everything should be fine.
- no limit if the animals are properly cared for
- Max 3 animals of one kind with exceptions for fosters/temp homes. 12 animals is way too many to own.
- No home should have six dogs and six cats in it. The exception would be birth (under 6 months) or pet sitters but only for either dogs or cats.
- There should be a maximum of two dogs or cats in a household.
- Mostly of someone has indoor cats and can provide adequate care why would they need to pay for a licence , sounds like a cash grab
- This introduces more administration and reduces the freedom we all like to enjoy. Rather work on specific cases that create a problem and do not impose restriction for everybody. With this approach you add additional burden to compliant people.
- I think unless the home is very large no one should have more than 6 dogs and 6 cats and be able to care for them properly
- 12 animals sounds like a LOT to me as a base figure with MORE requiring a special permit as there are many situations where such numbers would overwhelm the space.
- I believe 6 is too high. The noise and smell of 6-12 animals is ridiculous.
- In city , why does one household need 6 dogs and 6 cats too many for household
- I think 6 is an excessive number unless you are a licensed breeder. 4 would be a reasonable maximum in my mind. If someone had 6 cats and 6 dogs that is 12 animals in one household. So max per household combined should not be greater than 6.
- I think 6 is too large a number unless they are puppies and kittens that will be adopted out
- A dozen pets in a typical urban home seems excessive. Perhaps a TOTAL of 6 would be more reasonable.
- Twelve (12) Dogs and Cats is preposterous!!!!
- 6 seems like an excessive amount of animals, for the same reasons that the limit is currently 2. Animals could be 2 per person living in a household, or 4 if only 1 person lives in a household. Households consisting of roommates or blended families may have more animals pre-existing than a single person household.
- I agree with the exceptions, but to allow up to twelve animals in one home is not a fair animal to urban home size ratio.
- Responsible pet owners need no limitations
- Six dogs at one residence is too many in an urban area. The total allowed should be no more than 3.
- fewer pets per owner please!!!

- No one needs this many pets. I am an animal lover, and it is not reasonable in the city to have that many cats or dogs. No more than 4 (rescue groups can be exempt). We don't want backyard breeders or hoarders in Calgary.
- I think that 6 cats or dogs on a residential property is too much
- 6 animals per household is excessive. There is no need for that, unless it is a temporary situation of kittens/puppies being born. Excessive animal permits does not solve the social problem of noise, odours, animal hoarding, etc.
- I would support the premise you speak of but what happens when a pet has a litter? Invariably there may be more than 6 dogs or 6 cats and I don't think that someone should have to apply for a special licence in this instance. I think it should be rephrased to 6 adult cats and 6 adult dogs (greater than 1 year old). Most pet owners will home new pups and kittens and they are not the problem.
- What is "approved excess animal permit".
- Yikes – 6 of each??? Who needs more than 1 or 2 – after that a special licence s/b required for circumstances described above
- No one should be allowed to own 6 dogs and 6 cats. A limit of 3 dogs and 3 cats is plenty.
- Be responsible.
- Justification is needed for more than the minimum number of pets first. Why 6? Why not more than 3?
- 12 animals at one urban property is too many. If you want to have this many animals move to a larger property, outside the city where there is room to raise this many animals in an environment that can be healthy for both the owner and the animals. 6 cats are going to overcrowd any typical city residence.
- 6 too many. 2 and apply if more wanted
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive. We used to be a foster home and owned a home in the country with acreage. Even in that case, it was a full time job. I can't imagine what it would be like in the city/suburbs with neighbours so close.
- 6 and 6 seems too many. Would limit to 4 each.
- 6 seems like a reasonable # but don't think the focus should be on a specific # # in a home. This may lead to people not licensing, and trying to hide the # of animals. Focus should be on education, spay and neuter programs and ensuring animals are licensed, cared for and trained. There is no general comments section but: while I'm not supportive of lower licensing for low income - would consider city supported spay and neuter program for low income. I am supportive as well of the multi-year or lifetime licence program
- I do not see why indoor cats require licensing.
- The limit of 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive, and adding more would be wrong. Why not look at limiting the number of dogs and cats first before allowing exceptions.
- quit with the gov. over-reach
- A lesser number would be better. Like you earlier said, 2 dogs and 2 cats.
- Any more than one cat OR one dog is ridiculous.

- there is no need for more than 2 per household unless there is special needs eg, training hunting dogs when one is starting to get old or service dogs for the same reasons
- Size of property should factor. Regular inspections to determine living standards and possible illegal breeding. 6 each seems high for city property
- No way! That would give someone permission to have 12 animals on site?! That's inhumane for the animals, and not respectful of neighbors.
- Reduce pet limit to 2 dogs and/or 2 cats.
- Number of pets should be reduced. Suggest 2 cats and/or dogs to be in alignment with Phase 1 feedback.
- Unless an animal has babies there is no need to have more than 2. Breeders should be restricted to proper zoning (away from residential) as pet sitters and daycares.
- A person should be able to own as many animals (within a certain number) as they want as long as the animals aren't causing problems and they're having their needs met properly including living environment and veterinary costs
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are far too many--I would recommend 2 each unless they are fostering rescue dogs.
- Too many animals in one house. Problems will arise.
- It depends on the household. A larger house might be able to handle six animals where a smaller one can't. The limit of six might be okay, but there should also be a minimum amount of space required per animal.
- I think a limit of 4 cats in a household and 2 dogs is a better number. I don't appreciate seeing someone with 6 large Rottweilers or Huskies walking their dogs in the neighbourhood. It's scary even thinking of the amount of feces that may or may not be being picked up. Also, I don't like the idea of someone with 6 pit bulls!!
- It is not the number of animals it is the engagement and education of animal owners.
- I used to own 5 fully licensed purebred dogs that I took for daily off leash walks. Occasionally, perhaps once a year, we would have a litter of pups, usually ranging from 5-10. Under the bylaw proposal I would require a dog fancier's license, which I am opposed to. I already pay enough for current licensing (I now have 3 dogs - 2 purebreds and a neutered mix-breed)
- i think owning 12 pets is way to many for any household, two and two is plenty.
- I would say it doesn't go far enough. There needs to be massive fees. There can be special rules for breeders or pregnant pets. But if anyone wants any more. They get it on a case by case base only with the full approval once the vet signs off on spay/neuter
- 12 animals on a city property is way too many. Should be capped at 3 total.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats are too many to have in one household. Absolutely no more than 2 of each per household.
- 2 cats and dogs sufficient
- have more animals than currently allowed
- There shouldn't be a limit. How you house, and care for your animals is what is important and you can abuse 1 just as well as 13.

- x
- Six dogs and six cats per household is too many. Should be two max.
- That is too many pets per household. Limit the total dogs and cats to 6.
- Enforcement of existing rules have been spotty and subjective. None of these changes address that problem.
- Limit should be lower
- I think there is a big difference between 6 dogs and 6 cats. I think the number for cats should be higher and the number for dogs should be lower. I do agree that there should be limits on animals in a household.
- Less number of animals in a city house. Rural areas can/need more, but a city home impacts many neighbours around them. No more than 4 of any animal.
- 6 dogs or cats is too many. The limit should be 3 -4. If the limit is allowed to be 6 then I would agree to all of the potential exceptions.
- I think that unless there is a problem, the city should stay out of our houses!
- 6 are too many. Maybe 2, unless a licensed breeder.
- I think that it is dependent on the owner if they can manage the door, faces, noise etc. If they do, I do not see the issue with having multiple pets.
- potential exceptions?
- responsible owners don't need the restriction, non responsible owners should have no animals and this is covered by multiple laws, bylaws provincial, federal and municipale
- A maximum of 3-4 cats and 3-4 dogs is more reasonable unless people are fostering animals. More than this amount is excessive.
- Do people really need to have 6 animals! I would support a maximum of 2, maybe 3 per household.
- for a regular household, there is NO WAY that you can keep your home clean with that many cats and dogs. if you want to be a breeder, that's one thing. but for a regular person to own that many cats and dogs is excessive
- This is an arbitrary number, the definition of enough pets is a personal opinion. As long as the animals are being kept responsibly and safely, no limit is needed.
- I think 3 dogs and 3 cats per house is plenty.
- The number should be smaller than 6, it should be around 3 or 4.
- It should be up to the owner the amount of animals they have. As long as they are in good living conditions it shouldn't matter.
- Don't limit
- That is a whole lot of everything, in the city is it really necessary?
- Keep it at 2 per household
- Too many animals. 3-4 at most.
- How would a household in the city provide a suitable quality of life for that many animals!?
- Investigation of each individual case is required.
- Limit two dogs and two catss

- Max should be 3 dogs and 3 cats
- that is way too many pets and the owner is likely not going to be able to afford proper care. 6 total animals sure, but not 6 of each
- It should be 6 pets total. Not 6 cats and 6 dogs. That could still be 12 animals in a household which is too many. 6 pets total.
- Animal hoarding issues, also cost associated with pet keeping are so high. How can anyone afford 6 animals or even 12 if they have 6 dogs and 6 cats
- I think 6 is to large it should be 3 - 4
- If you are irresponsible with several pets, you will be irresponsible with one.
- I'm concerned 6-12 animals in one home is too many I support the bylaw but feel like that's an unreasonable high number that will likely not impact enough. I would say a limit of 4 is more conservative and then the application process will be better used to stop animal crowding/quality of life.
- All fine except for breeders
- I think the number should be higher
- That's way too many animals in the city for one residence. If you want that many, get a farm
- Two pets are enough
- Lesser ownership responsibility and liability
- Bylaw need to be changed. The limit needs to be lowered to 2 Dogs and 2 cats. Temporary homes should also have a lower limit.
- Too many to handle, afford, clean up after.
- Higher risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- 12 animals in the household is too many. If you're exempting temporary homes, it's not right to animals to have that many in a city home. 6-7 animals (dogs and cats combined) is a generous number to have. All those animals also have potential vet fees, and health matters. 12 animals isn't going to let them get the care, attention, time, space, and focus pets deserve from owners.
- 6 is too many. 4 is plenty within city limits. Move to the country if you need more than 4. 6 is hoarding. Unless puppies ect under certain circumstances.
- 12 pets is far too many for one household. Approvals after 2 of each is sufficient.
- I am unsure if I support this. If the additional permit for animals is inexpensive and simple to access for those who are helping animals then I would support this change
- 12 animals is too many for one household. 4 dogs and 4 cats would be more appropriate
- No one needs more than 6 of anything.... dogs/cats
- Again, this comes down to responsible pet owners. This is where the focus should be, not on volume, breed, or pet type. I can appreciate the need to crack down on animal bylaws, but the focus is going on all the wrong places.
- Too many animals per house, they tend to have a pack mentality

- 6 dogs and 6 cats is way too many animals in one house/apartment. My opinion is that there should be a maximum of 2 dogs and 2 cats. This number is far easier to manage as far as care and attention, excessive feces and noise.
- that is too many animals in a household.
- excessive noise, feces problems
- Number of animals on a property can be dealt with through enforcement if issues such as noise complaints come up. I would be more supportive of limiting the number of dogs than the number of cats.
- 6 dogs is far too many to care for in one household.
- Nobody needs more than 2.
- There are many rescues doing amazing things for animals. If you limit the number of animals in a home, it prevents these organizations from saving these animals lives.
- I think it's individual how many animals someone can be a responsible pet owners of.
- Not sure if you mean that a household could have 12 animals - six dogs and six cats or that there is a limit of six animals (dogs and /or cats). Support a limit of six animal dogs, cats for a mix of both.
- I don't feel anyone needs to own 6 cats or 6 dogs. 4 should be the max.
- B
- 6 of each is too much. No need for this.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per house is a lot.
- 6 animals (dogs and cats combined) total would be a good number with application required for more animals and exceptions for households that are temporary homes
- No house should have more than 4 animals of any kind 2dogs and 2 cats or 3 cats 1 dog. Etc
- I think 6 is too many. Let's face it most properties in Calgary are not that large and 6 is WAY too many for most homes and yards. The noise and feces would be difficult to manage and typically the people with more pets are less likely to keep a clean yard. I think anything of 4 of any 1 species is excessive. 6 pets total per household would be better IMO.
- There should be no limit
- Animal protection laws are already poorly enforced. I do not see why anyone needs 6 dogs or cats.
- I believe a household should be limited to 2 dogs or cats due to excessive noise, accumulation of feces and consideration for nearby neighbors.
- Too many animals in a limited amount of space.
- Can't control or care for that many animals in one house.
- Responsible dog owners who clean up after their dogs with 10 dogs are less of a nuisance than irresponsible owners with 2 dogs. The number of animals is really irrelevant.
- There is no need for anyone to have 6-12 animals per household
- Again the city cannot enforce the current bylaw system.
- I believe a total of 6 animals should be considered, with the exception of foster animals.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats within city limits is still too excessive.
- Two pets only to one household

- No one needs to have that many pets. It is difficult to give that many the care they need.
- Way too many animals. This is animal hoarding and not in the best interest of the animals or the community. Only exception is a breeder- and that should be something you need to apply to do
- The amount of dogs and cats allowed should remain at 2 unless the owner obtains a license for more, this should extend to breeder (to reduce the number of "home breeders or irresponsible breeders) and animal foster homes.
- I support the opinion that it is unnecessary and potentially irresponsible to own 6 dogs or cats.
- Two dogs, and two cats max
- I think no more than 4 dogs and 4 cats is more than reasonable.
- I believe even 6 cats and dogs is an excessive number for most people to handle and train properly. I would support 4 as a maximum.
- Bechase
- As long as dogs are kept clean and are not a nuisance and no laws are constantly being broken, there should be no limit.
- It shouldn't matter. It's your own private property and you should be able to do as your please. If someone wanted 13 children then why not
- No more then 2 cats or 2 dogs should be allowed in any house hold. Unless approved by excess animal permit.
- I am a dog owner (large dog 80+lbs), have engaged in multiple training classes, and understand the diligence it takes to responsibly care for a pet. As the number of pets increases the time available to spend with each pet decreases leading to a higher probability of issues. A maximum of 4 pets (dog or cat) per household should be allowed under the normal pet bylaw and licensing fees. Any household having more than 4 pets would fall under a "kennel" category requiring a more stringent set of rules for noise, cleanliness, health etc.
- Nobody needs to keep more than 2 pets.
- More animals increases the risk of neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- Its would be taken to the max. Already is, capping out at 6 of each animal. Should be lower 4 of each.
- what if dog has litter of puppies and puppies turn into "dogs" while owner is finding homes....
- 6 is too many it should remain at 2 maximum, the noise and feces is too much
- People with a high number of pets are not pet owners, they are hoarders or breeders. No thanks to either.
- Not necessary
- We currently have 10 dogs living beside our home and the noise is extremely excessive; 2 dogs should be the maximum
- 6 is way too many dogs unless it is an outdoor/farm situation.
- It depends on the dog/cat owners. There are people who can take good care of more than 6 animals and others who can't take good care of one
- Citizens should have total autonomy over the amount of pets they choose to have.

- It should be based on criteria as opposed to just being a number. Consider square footage of home/yard, proximity of neighbours, etc. Then include your list of exceptions on top of that. The number "6" just seems arbitrary.
- 6 is way too many. 3 is much more reasonable
- I think that 12 animals in a household is far too many and unfair to the animals
- Unless you were breeding (and then re-homing)" fostering or running a licensed business, 6 cats and 6 dogs is far too many. Especially with how close homes are in new neighborhoods.
- No need for more than 2 total pets
- If your dog give birth to 10 dogs, what is it going to happen with the puppies? They need to stay with the mother for at least 6-7 weeks. What is it going to happen to those puppies?
- 6 or each is too many..
- More than 3 dogs in the city is not appropriate
- Six dogs and six cats is WAY to high , and should be reduced to two .
- I think 12 cats and dogs is too much for one household in the city. I would support 6 animals.
- Cause
- Would support, but with fewer exceptions
- Shouldnt have sny mote than 2
- It should be up to the homeowner.
- That number of pets within city limits is way too large. Our properties do not support that number inside nor out. Costs of keeping that number of pets generally make those numbers unsustainable increasing the likelihood of the pets being neglected.
- Depends on how many people live in the home, as each may own pets; responsible pet ownership should be a consideration
- More dogs and cats brings more dangers and problems to other people and neighbors. The life of the people without dog or cat is also important.
- Six dogs or cats is ridiculous and excessive. The maximum should be two pets per household, i.e. one cat and one dog.
- 2 pets are more than enough.
- Is an urban house a kennel or a cattery? Remember most houses are built very close to each other, consider feces, smells, noise and general hygiene. We have two and sometimes three dogs opposite my house. There are times the barking is very loud. Do you have enough by law officers to deal with households with multiple dogs that bark as soon as someone passes their fence???? No! So dogs and cats is a ludicrous idea!
- The current limit seems sufficient
- might support the exceptions but would limit the number of dogs and cats to 3 of each per household without a special permit.
- Maximum of four of total cats and dogs
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is excessive. I would suggest 3 dog and 3 cat limit
- 6 is too many

- Too many rules
- Larger pet limit increases to risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- Only licensed breeders should be allowed six dogs or cats. Animals in city limits should be limited in the household. Acreages and farms are the exception.
- If you are allowing 6 dogs in one household, why are pitbull-type dog owners only allowed one? This makes no sense as none of your BSL is based off of science and fact.
- There shouldn't be allowed more than 2 pets per household allowed unless they meet the exceptions listed above.
- Too many animals to control or clean up after
- I agree that it is not necessary for anyone to own more than 3 cats or 3 dogs Period! 6 of either is ridiculous and very likely that pet of that number are not being cared for properly i.e. exercise and veterinary care
- For a pet household 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many. This needs to be capped at 4 of each.
- There is so much noise from dogs in my area as it is, there is no reason anyone should need 6 dogs in one house.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is far too many for one household. We have 2 dog and our back yard can be smelly enough at time through the year. Special exceptions for fosters, Fanciers, breeders, sitters and daycares should NOT be allowed.
- If emotional support needed , it could be earned by owning one or two pets (two dogs and two cats the most)owning numerous pets will cause neglected behaviour, lack of space , odour problem and lots more.
- 6 is too many in the city if additive. Limit should be 3-4 dogs or cats or a total of 5 or 6.
- I agree to limiting the number of Dogs/ or cats to 2 is fair.
- If the dogs are trained correctly and don't bother anyone then what right does the city have in telling someone how many dogs or cats they can have?
- 6 of each is excessive for an urban center. 4 would be a more reasonable cap.
- I do support the introduction of a limit, but would like to see a lower limit of 2-3 dogs and/or cats per household. I have seen instances where there are higher numbers and have heard animals crying through the night and barking through day. I do not believe many residential homes are suited to large numbers of dogs/cats and feel it is in best interest of pets to have a limit of 2-3.
- I think that it's not the number but the individual owners that have the problems.
- It should be lower
- I think the limit is too high and should be 3 or 4 not 6 - I agree the exceptions
- Should be case by case and living area should be a factor in determining the number. Also with a clause that could revoke multiple animal numbers if owner is not being responsible and following guidelines
- 6 cats and dogs is too many still. I would prefer no more than 3 of each because how well managed are these animals truly going to be?
- 12 animals? plus pigeons? plus chickens?
- The limit should be much lower for safety of pets and the neighbours

- You have breeders in the list of possible exceptions.
- Don't we already have a pet limit? Isn't less? Don't increase this population while looking to add livestock options too.
- still too many cats and dog for a household. limit to 2 dogs and 2 cats
- You should be limited to the amount of animals you have as long as you can provide safe and clean housing for them
- If a person has adequate space and the means and abilities to care for more pets they should be allowed to without having to jump through hoops.
- 12 animals in one household seems too high. 3 dogs and 3 cats per household is more reasonable.
- I think total of 6 as a maximum for dogs and/or cats is more reasonable
- I support all the potential rules with the exception of the Dog Fanciers License. Another fee.....we are already taxed and fee'd to the max.
- hoarding. look it up-research the topic. along with illegal breeding ie puppy mills-
- Nobody needs that many pets... 3 dogs is plenty.
- Piss off and leave people alone. What is with you people and this nanny-state [removed]?
- The number of pets per household should be reduced.
- More risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- To much risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- 6 of each is too many. 6 total split between the two species is still too many but would be tolerable if the owners are responsible and have the space and resources
- 6 is too many
- six is WAY too many!
- There should not be an arbitrary limit. Some people can take care of more than that, and many struggle to take care of one or two.
- So much talk about animal rights and humane conditions for them. There is nothing humane about 6 to 12 (6 cats + 6 dogs) in one household. Even farmers DO NOT have that many cats and dogs on their farms - they know it is not good for the animals. Also, people cannot take care of that many animals well, either financially or time wise. Ridiculous! Anyone wanting the limit to be this large should be investigated right now because they do not have a clue about looking after animals.
- I think there needs to be a limit. But 12 animals for one person seems too high, and even for six (adult) people seems high
- 2 dogs/ cats to protect their welfare
- No one needs 6 cats or dogs. I would support a 3 cat or dog limit. I agree with the exception above.
- 2 dogs and/or 2 cats should be the maximum
- Six is too many pets in one household. How do you keep 6 dogs in a 1 bedroom apartment? Where do the dogs do their business? On the balcony? What do landlords do when the 6 dogs destroy the property and the tenant does not clean up the feces? Rules are for all pet owners.
- 6 is too high a number.
- 6 is a crazy high number of mammals in a single dwelling, 12 is ridiculous. It needs to be lower.

- A maximum of six COMBINED dog and cat ownership. 12 animals in a single family dwelling in the city isn't reasonable.
- I support unlimited animals of one sex. Animals cannot express gender. This reduces the risk of non consensual intercourse.
- Pet limit should be 2
- If animals are licensed, properly cared for and have enough spaced and behaved there shouldn't have to be a limit.
- Where does the number come from? 6 animals in an apartment or small condo is excessive where as on an acreage 6 can be too few (especially if the animals are working the land)
- So long as people are able to maintain their pets and not create issues for neighbours then they should be able to have as many pets as they want. There should be a strong system in place to investigate and enforce issues that arise from households where a large number of animals is causing distress to neighbors or the animals.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is too many in a city
- In my view, six animals in a household is ridiculous and an intrusion on the lives and comfort of neighbours. With that many animals in a household, the animals are at risk and might not receive the care and attention that they deserve and require.
- 6 animals is too much. Limit to 3. Beterinary care is super expensive. People with many animals will not keep up with vaccinations(rabies) as its too expensive. Animals may be neglected and not receive the care they deserve.
- As long as the animals are safe, fed, have enough room, vet visits. And are not noisy and not at large. I don't see an issue
- I think 3 pets by household is enough to have and be able to take care of them in a responsible maner.
- 6 dogs and cats are 12 total animals that's not acceptable in urban living
- Maintain the current bylaws of no limits
- 1 to 2 pets is enough and prevents neglect
- I would support 3 dogs 3 cats
- No need to limit number of animals. Would support bylaw limiting number of children ... particularly for those of the view that it isn't "necessary" to have more than 2 animals. Ridiculous comment.
- 2 dogs OR cats maximum
- Seems like a lot. Could it be based on size of property
- 6 cats and dogs at one house is WAY TOO MANY!!! Max 2 dogs and 2 cats. Any more than that you better start hiring more bylaw officers now.
- Way too many animals in a neighbourhood with small lot sizes and close neighbours.
- There should be limits on pet ownership and the numbers should be very limited.
- If clean and quiet yards - don't limit. Limit only if complaints or conditions not satisfactory for animals.
- The limit should be lower than six.

- There should be no increase to the number of pet allowed.
- Private property needs to be left alone
- 6 animals within a household is too many.
- Too many animals in one household
- The limit should only be one dog because you get more smell of the urine and feces. Also the feces should be picked up when ever they are let out. Not just once a day.
- .
- 1 or 2 dogs should be the limit due to noise and large amount of defecation. Residential dwelling should not have more than 2 pets. Residential area should not be allowed to have doggy daycare of more than 2 dogs.
- If it is your home and you take care of/clean up after your pets I don't feel that there should be a restriction on the number of pets you can own.
- While there may be irresponsible pet owners that will amass animals, there are those that taken exceptional care of their pets and I don't feel the city has the right to dictate how many pets is reason in someones own home
- This is absolutely unfair to neighbors! We now have 4 large dogs next door in a small space. Why on earth would someone need that many pets in the city? This would also put strain on the parks. We live near the Botanical Gardens of Silver Springs and it is already overrun with dogs since it's an off leach park. The city created an off leach park across the street but dog owners swarm to the gardens instead. This has lead to conflict between walkers and dog walkers. I daily encounter dog feces and out of control dogs. It's hard to even enjoy the Bowmont Park with all the dogs there. When did it happen that the city respects the rights of dog owners over those who aren't dog owners? Many people are afraid of dogs, allergic to dogs and cats or simple want to enjoy our parks with being run over or disturbed by dogs. Dog owners don't get it.
- max should be 3 cats and 3 dogs per house
- 2 is more than enough.
- Limit should be 2 dogs and 2 cats for 4 total (not 6 dogs and 6 cats for up to 12 pets per household), with the potential exceptions you have listed.
- There is no reason to have that many animals!! It is impossible to properly care for that many pets - I've had 4 dogs for a short time and it is not possible to properly train/love/care for that many.
- Nobody needs 6 dogs or cats except for temp homes or businesses
- Too many animals can be causing troubles regardless how trained they are.
- Maximum amount of animals in total should bit exceed 4.
- Two dogs and two cats are enough animals for one house. We have too many running around loose.
- This type of bylaw should take into account the income and the size of the property.
- Too much risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies. Also do not support backyard breeders
- Do support the bylaw, but should be less than 6. Maximum of 4 dogs and cats.
- Six is way to many! The number should be reduced.
- This is totally unacceptable! No end of diseases and accountability.

- Encouraging puppy mills and nuisance noises and smells
- It's unfair.
- The city does not need to be visiting peoples homes and counting their cats. If the animals cause a problem there are existing bylaws to fine them with.
- 12 pets in one home is too many
- As long as the pets aren't a danger, or a nuisance to others, I don't think such a restriction is necessary.
- The limit should be 1 pet per household. There are too many already!
- A litter of puppies/kittens would contravene this stupid law.
- Nobody needs 6 dogs and 6 cats. I think exceptions should be allowed in some circumstances such as temporary homes or inherited pets only.
- again, the city infringing on civil rights, I don't have a solution
- I would support a limit of 3 pets per household along with the exceptions. 6 dogs and cats are far too many for the average residential household.
- Simply too many animals to support properly...financially, physically, and if one wishes to raise multiple animals they should reside on a private acreage, where adjacent neighbors are not penalized by over population of animals and the additional problems they bring.
- If my animals don't cause any issues and I'm able to properly take care of them, I shouldn't be limited.
- If a pet owner is responsible, the limit makes little sense.
- There should be no limit
- Six dogs or cats are too many.
- 6 dogs and cats is too many in an urban setting where there is not enough space for them.
- No more than one pet per household should be implemented.
- Six dogs and cats in a household is way too many.
- One pet per household.
- Limit is too high. No more than 2 or 3 animals should be allowed.
- That number of animals in a household is ridiculous. It should be much lower with the exceptions listed above included.
- limit is way too high. No one can possibly need or properly take care of 6 dogs and 6 cats in one household.
- There is no reason for anyone to have more than 2 dogs or 2 cats within the city. On a rural property more animals is totally fine. But a home within the city limits should not house more than two dogs or two cats.
- No one house needs 6 cats AND 6 dogs. Also, I am in favour of lowering the price for low income Calgarians, but only for one animal. If they want more than one animal they should pay the full price everyone else pays.
- 2 per household is adequate

- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many. I would support 3 and 3, but I already live next to a family with 3 barking dogs, and I cannot imagine 6.
- Having 6 dogs in a single family dwelling is not fair to the animals as dogs require sufficient space for exercise and play. Also living in a smaller house is not fair and adequate space for dogs as larger breeds require more space to live comfortably.
- too many!
- 6 seems like too much already
- 6 of anything is 3 to much
- Too high—the max number allowed should be reduced
- No more than 2 pets per house should be allowed. Regardless of the pet type, only two pets should be allowed within city limits. No animal hoarding allowed because animal welfare declines significantly when more than 2 pets exist.
- 6 and 6 is far too many to begin with
- Too many
- Really SIX !!! >>>> THATS JUST RIDICULOUS!!! One barking dog is too much now you want to have 6 JEZUS!
- No person needs more than one pet. Horrible pet owners. Rey irresponsible. They never pick up dog poop let them poop on others property. Rude. Should never be allowed to own pets in a city. Animals are not meant to be locked up in tiny yards and owning more than one pet is irresponsible. Who has time to properly look after more than one pet or clean up after them.
- 6 animals is too many to manage. I would propose that number is lowered to 4.
- 6 is too many in residential neighborhoods
- I think 6 is too many. Dogs exhibit pack behaviour more commonly at 4 and above, and 6 cats just produces exponentially more noisy cat fights.
- The limit should be lower, in my opinion 2. Except for special cases such as temporary homes.
- No one needs to have six dogs or cats - I would suggest two of either would be sufficient
- 6 cats is pushing the limits of reasonable because they can be very self sufficient as long as food, water, and litter are adequately addressed, but 6 dogs is too many for a household that takes proper, responsible care of them. 12 animals in total is just entirely too much as well.
- Should be three dogs or cats Other exceptions are in agreement
- I agree that it is not necessary for one household to have more than 2 pets at a time. For the welfare of both animal and people. The potential exceptions are acceptable. The size of the home and number of occupants should also be taken into consideration when exceptions are being considered.
- I think owning that many animals is close to hoarding. 6 animals per household makes more sense. People could apply for excess animal permit, but have to pay higher licensing fees and bylaw officers should have to visit those households on a yearly basis to ensure all animals are properly cared for, have enough room, food, water to live healthy lives
- 6 is still too many
- Who needs 6 dogs or cats.

- There needs to be a limit of pets in a household.
- Deal with problems on a case by case basis. I find it hard to believe that owning an excessive number of animals is such a problem that we need a new by-law.
- Stop intruding on people's rights and freedoms
- Too high. 6 TOTAL. No need for more in the city
- 12 animals in one city household is too many.....way too many.
- if you limit the amount of dogs a family can have, why don't you limit the amount of children too? to many, a pet is like a child. the fact that the government gotta ask this question is crazy. i feel like the government needs to take a step back from our personal lives
- Having up to 12 pets in one household is over excessive in my view and this is way to much as it could cause too much noise and other issues.
- 6 is too many
- Too
- I feel 6 cats or 6 dogs is far too many to take care of and give the love and attention they deserve.
- Max of 3. Dogs or cats or combination of dog(s) and cat(s) but no more than 3 per household.
- I think the limit should be lower; closer to 4. Any more than that should require a special permit. I am assuming that most working people living in an average sized household cannot give more than 4 dogs, for example, all of the attention and care that they need. Owners need to show that they are able to care for their pets' wellbeing if they have more than this.
- A total of 12 pets is way to many for a household to maintain a healthy environment in a city property.
- No one needs this many animals at one time. Most lots in the city are not large enough to provide a healthy environment for the pets.
- 6 dogs or cats is too many. Two of each is more than enough with exceptions for temporary homes and dogs/cats under 6 months of age.
- Way to many, 4 animals total is more than enough
- Who decides that 2 dogs are enough? Why not 3? 4?
- you do not need more than 3 animals per household
- No house needs 12 pets. 6 cats or 6 dogs or a mix would be sufficient. (like 3 of each)
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is way too many.
- Should be dependent on size of home, size of animals.
- I believe the limit of 6 per household is too many. I believe the limit should be 2. I also would like to point out the fact that I just learnt that Calgary has the highest abandonment rate of animals in all of North America. Pretty disgusting if you ask me.
- I have 4 toy poodles and that's my cap. Six dogs large or small would be to much for me. If a person was fostering dogs perhaps 6 should be the cap.
- There is such thing as too many animals. Noise would be an issue.

- That is still way too many animals and there is a difference between six chihuahua and six Great Danes. Vet bills and food for that many animals to ensure proper care and prevention would be unimaginable. Recommend two dogs and four cats maximum
- As a pet owner, I believe that allowing 6 of each (cats and dogs) is far too many for one household. The time, money, and commitment is enough for one or two animals let alone 12 animals! I fear that the owners would not be able to exercise them appropriately. Also, many owners already have a hard time training and controlling a single pet, so I am not confident they could properly manage 6 dogs! Also, because of the cost of owning pets, I am concerned many would not license their pets if they have that many.
- I'd be fine with not counting under a certain age of animal, completely exempting licensed service animals, and temporarily going over the limit (or a fixed higher limit) for breeders/petsitting/licenced daycares. But for Joe Citizen, 12 total animals is way too high.
- 6 and 6? Should be 3 and 3.
- 12 pets per household seems excessive unless the house is on an acreage or somewhere with lots of space. The maximum should be far, far less than 12. For the good of the animals, surely.
- Responsible pet owners should be allowed to have as many pets as they want!!! Do your jobs and tackle the real issues. Stop wasting everyone's time over this
- no need
- No limit, providing they can provide adequate care
- Dogs and cats should be limited to 2 perhousehold
- people should be allowed to have how many animals as they want as long as they maintain them
- 12 animals in a single home is excessive- caring for 1 properly is difficult enough for most people.
- Too many pets
- 6 dogs and 6 cats sounds excessive within city limits.
- If problems arise then action should be taken if changes are not met.
- No Sane person needs 6 dogs and 6 cats. To even suggest that number as being appropriate is madness.
- 2 dogs are acceptable. No more. Too much excrement in the environment. Service dog trainers should be exempted.
- Get serious. Two dogs and/or cats is absolutely sufficient. My one exception would be for service dogs.
- Less Animal per house
- I feel once a person is over a certain number they should have to apply for a kennel or catery licence. and if someone makes a complaint bylaw needs to enforce the law no warnings.
- It's not about the number of pets it's about responsible ownership
- too many pets
- Too many
- I think there are specula circumstances where responsible people are helping multiple animals or can care for them in large property. I think people should be required to fill out an application to own more pets beyond what's legal today.

- 6 animals total.
- There is no logical reasoning behind potentially owning 12 pets. There is already an overpopulation of pets, and the more you are able to own, more are bred to fill these, only for a lot to end up in shelters and abandoned etc.
- Why so many
- na
- 6 is too many. Fostering situations should be exempt. No one need 6 dogs.
- Maximum of 2 dogs and 2 cats. No one needs 6 of them.
- No one should have 6 dogs or cats. Perhaps 4 maximum
- 6 of cat or dog pee household is excessive
- Six dogs and six cats is too many
- concern would be care of these animals, affect on human living quarters, affect on neighbours whether apartment or house.
- That's too many animals at one home
- No one in the city needs 12 cats & 12 dogs. With the exception of a dog/cat that just gave birth, more than 2 each per household is ridiculous!!
- 6 is too high. 3 or 4 is more reasonable
- People don't need that many pets.
- six animals per household is way too many. I think it should be a maximum of THREE only. Again, I don't want to live by a zoo.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats it's still a very high number and would in many circumstances lead to problems with cleanliness of property/unhappiness from surrounding neighbours
- 6 is too many to have in a home
- Limit of 2
- Six animals in a city household is too many.
- No need to specific change for "pitbull"
- Unless the person is a breeder or animal rescue I think that number is too high. I would say 3 of each is sufficient.
- Too many dogs or cats per house. Won't be properly maintained
- six is too many. no one needs this many animals in a home.
- 1 pet per household no exceptions
- Yes. With exceptions.
- If I am permitted to have 6 cats and 6 dogs, why can't I just have 12 cats. A house can easily accommodate more than 6 cats and as a responsible owner, I don't like this restriction.
- Because this is ridiculous.
- Freedom of choice within existing/amended bylaws.
- Pet limits penalize responsible owners. People who accumulate or hoard animals are typically NOT responsible owners and typically do NOT license their animals. Such a rule would do very little to stop those types of situations. It doesn't protect the welfare of animals, it just pushes people to be secretive and hide their animals.

- That's too many pets
- According to your proposed By-Law change I could have a total of 12 animals in my house. What difference if they are all dogs or all cats? Many of us are breeders and we do right by the dogs/cats we produce. Often we have more than 6 animals in our homes due to not finding the right owner for the offspring or one(s) we plan on keeping and exhibiting at shows. The City perhaps needs to take into consideration a Kennel License. Why are dogs and cats being targeted? What about birds, rodents, reptiles, etc.
- I don't think there should be a limit.
- That seems like an excessive amount of animals, maybe on a rural farm setting that's fine, but I would not be happy to have a neighbour with up to 6 dogs.
- This needs to be decided on an individual basis. Number of animals, space, care being provided.
- I'm fine with the exceptions. Other than the exceptions, not sure why someone would need a possible 12 animals in their house. Kind of feels like a hoarding situation. 6 dogs can make a lot of noise. Suggest 3 dogs and 3 cats maximum.
- 6 animals are too many for one household the law should be 1 pet per adult in the household Sanitation and animal well being should be a main criteria
- People cannot look after 1 let alone 6. In Europe many jurisdictions are looking at more responsible bylaw changes. Do you restrict LESA owners to less animals? If you can't afford the license fee you sure as heck cannot afford pet care (food and health). Shake your head people. Do you legal want people to live in filth.
- I don't like the term "Potencial" exceptions. Either it is or it isn't
- I support all of the above but would change the limit to 4 as I'm concerned about borderline animal hoarding situations.
- The term household is misleading...6 dogs and 6 cats in a condo scenario is unacceptable but is currently happening. A condo environment needs to be regulated for number and size of dogs and cats.
- A responsible pet owner can determine how many animals they are able to care for. Imposing a limit will not address the issues of people who hoard animals or irresponsible pet owners.
- I think 6 of each is too high. I would support a bylaw that limits owners to 3 of each animal, with those exceptions.
- I do not think there should be exceptions. If you wish to own more than 6 dogs or cats move to the country
- Limit should be 3 unless it's a registered shelter or facility.
- I think this is very difficult to manage and maintain. The city would then require additional resources which would drive additional costs. The city can't manage the current processes so why make it more complicated and convoluted for residents to understand.
- If someone has the room and can afford and care for them they should set the limit.

- A household in a city should not be able to have 12 animals in it.
- To me if you have up to 6 dogs and/or cats in a home are they being treated right? If there is that many animals in a household I'm quite sure not all those animals are given proper exercise regimes to release any daily stress and maintain a good health. Let alone the lack of discipline/obedience for all 6 dogs and/or cat. I know quite a few with more animals than bylaw requests in said household and they just run free with the owners not caring at all. I find the more pets you have, the less control you have over behaviour, cleanliness, proper eating schedules, exercise. So a limit of 2 cats and/or dogs to me is decent. If you want more animals than that, move to an acreage where they can roam and have fun without the city or neighbours getting ticked off.
- The proposed limits are ridiculously high. Housing up to dozen animals on a residential lot (especially the tiny lots that are characteristic of Calgary neighbourhoods) is abusive to both the animals and the neighbours. Limits should be placed at two of each. Exceptions could be made for litters, but there should be a time limit on the length of time that the pups/kittens can remain on the property. Anyone who wants to keep more animals than this is a professional animal breeder/handler, not a pet owner, and should be required to operate in an appropriate commercial or agricultural zone and be subject to appropriate (enhanced) public safety and health standards.
- Dogs aren't harmful if given the proper training. Why can't the city focus more on giving people the right resources and investing in a better dog culture rather than completely shut everything down? Because a person can have 10 dogs and raise them better than 1 dog.
- The limit should not be so high, 6 cats or dogs? There are so many pets in Calgary, we need to decrease these numbers.
- Six of each is too many animals. Two of each is enough
- Nobody needs 6 cats or dogs this number is excessive.
- 6 is too high. 4 cats and 4 dogs would be reasonable or 6 total.
- Who's to say which individual can handle a certain amount of animals.
- That is too many animals to have in the city. Two dogs seems reasonable. Perhaps six cats since they stay on their own property.
- Cost.
- 4 cats, 4 dogs
- Proposal of 6 dogs and 6 cats per Household is ludicrous - WAY TOO MANY!!!
- Why allow more. Let's get our house in order first.
- A normal sized home should not house more than 5 animals (dogs or cats in total) the size and proximity to other homes should be taken into account.
- Current rules are good.
- If some one wants more pets and provide proper care why not
- As long as the animal and feces isn't causing any problems there shouldn't be a limit
- No more than one dog or cat per household
- Should be 4. Six is too many!
- People should be able to own as many pets as they wish so long as they abide by the bylaws.

- Would an apartment be considered a household? I believe that would be a yes. Then I believe this is insane. You don't frame the question for the intent. It's provocative.
- As long as the dogs or cats are safe and being treated good, we should we now have a limit? I own 6 dogs and my house is cleaner than many people who don't have any pets. My dogs are also safer than some kids I know. So we have to be fair. What will happen with people who already own more?
- A more reasonable limit would be two or three animals per house. Six animals is akin to a zoo.
- Please look around the city. There are lots of homeless people here. Do we want homeless pets running astray because the owner wasn't allowed to give them a home?1
- Yard stinks too much.
- Too many. Should be maximum 2 pets per household
- Too expensive. Too high a limit
- Could exempt for foster homes. Maybe.
- City council needs to stop micromanaging every area of our personal lives.
- There should be no limit to how many pets one can own. Don't take away our freedom to decide that.
- Live in the country if you want that many.
- Limit to 3 per household 6 animals in total. 12 animals in a house would be a health hazard.
- That just punishes responsible pet owners
- The # of animals should be based on the living space and property size. An apartment should have less animals than a house on 1 acre
- 6 is too many. Limit to 3 dogs and 3 cats
- 6 is too many. 4 is more reasonable.
- Sounds like a violation of my personal rights
- As long as pets are cared for the city should stay out of it
- 6 is too many. 2-3 is more than enough for one house inside of a city.
- 6 dogs/cats is too many on the city. I suggest 2.
- The number of pets should only depend on responsible pet ownership. Some people can manage multiple pets very well. There used to be one such family on my street, but they seem to be way down now in the number of dogs. For others one dog seems to be too much to manage. All cats should be spayed or neutered unless used for breeding. Unaltered cats should be removed from owner after a warning period. unless they can breed them responsibly.
- Why introduce BSL at the same time increase the number of dogs permitted per household? All dogs are capable of a bite. No to BSL No to increased numbers per home. Please better regulate businesses that pose as rescue centres and bring in animals from out of country with unknown histories.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is simply way too many! I agree with the rest with the rest of the exceptions. Please limit number of dogs to 3 per household. Limit of cats should be 3 per household.
- A limit of 6 dogs AND 6 cats per household is much too high for a regular homeowner.
- Some individuals cope with this number of dogs and cats
- special exceptions list is too onerous. deal with more than issues etc as needed or reported

- Not fair to the animals to be that crowded.
- I would only approve if the 'potential' exceptions are all approved exceptions.
- Some people may have more space and time to look after more animals. I'm concerned a cap would increase the number of animals in shelters and being euthanized.
- Six dogs in a residential property in the city?! Please consider the stress this would download onto neighbours without highly effective, zero-tolerance enforcement. Our last neighbour had just one large Great Pyrenees that woke our children and rattled the windows of our detached home with its barking. One of our current neighbours has two dogs that make your heart stop every time they launch out the door barking hysterically. And the smell in spring when a winter's worth of feces from them begins to thaw is more than enough to tolerate. We like dogs, but positive experiences with dogs as neighbours has been the exception rather than the standard. Please, please do not allow six dogs or cats. Max two, maybe three. And as part of the licensing process, maybe there should be a required online tutorial that reviews key aspects of the Responsible Pet Owners By-Law that every owner must complete. For example, the city requires all residents interested in the Branching Out tree-planting program to complete a tutorial on needs for different tree species, including planting and maintenance.
- Usually I've seen these limits suggested as a solution to address irresponsible pet ownership. However, an irresponsible owner shouldn't have 1 animal, 2 animals, or 10 animals. An owner is responsible or not, regardless of the number of animals. Irresponsible ownership should be addressed directly, rather than via this simplistic "count how many animals" proxy.
- No body (other than a breeder or daycares) should have six dogs or cats - that is a huge burden to support what with costs today. You may be able to afford it today, but if you ever reach a point where you cannot, who then picks up the animals support and welfare?
- I would support 2 of each. then the potential exceptions rules
- Honestly I think that having 6 pets in a house is reasonable, but I can think of many different situations where this is not feasible. There needs to be accommodation for situations where this may occur. I do want to discourage hoarding of pets. However fosters, breeders, sitters are all examples where there will be more pets in a location. I would not want to make it difficult for people to get temporary lodging for animals when required.
- Unnecessary to limit if the animals are being cared for and are healthy.
- 6 of each is too many.
- Incomplete information provided. Changing from what? And great you offer more red tape and more interference.
- 6 is too many. Nobody needs this many animals it is smell costly and noisy the limit should be maximum 4 of each and that's pushing it
- Leaves the window open for hoarding situations to occur more easily. 3 and 3 seems more reasonable.
- 6 is way too many. I would agree with 2-4, but definitely a limit
- Anyone who wants 12 animals in their house should go through an application process. Visit the house. A condo stuffed full of cats and dogs?? That's horrible. People would do it though.

- People should be able to enjoy however cats or dogs they are able to take care of. No one should have the right to tell another person what they can have. What is next, telling people they can't have more than two children? City is turning into a prison with no freedom with far too many bylaws that are out of line
- 2 pets in one house are more than enough.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many.
- 3 dogs and 3 cats
- No person needs this many animals plain and simple
- That is way too ,any animals. I would support 2 and 2 unless they are nursing babies.
- Restriction to maximum of 2 cats, 2 dogs. Only exception: inheriting a cat or dog. The exception would only pertain to that specific animal. No other animals would be allowed.
- 6 is too many for any animal in one home located in the city
- The proposed bylaws change sounds reasonable but I was not presented with the current bylaw to compare
- This seems like a cookie cutter solution that wouldn't be appropriate for all situations i.e. 400sq ft studio apartment vs a 3,000sq ft house with an enclosed lawn. I'm not so sure it would be fair to allow that many animals in a small space all at once.
- There are lots of responsible pet owners and limiting them would only hurt the animals looking to be adopted.
- If the owners are reasonable they should be able to own as many as they like
- if someone wants more than 6 dogs that's none of my business, plus it can reduce the amount of pets in systems like the humane society. i'm all in favour of allowing more than 6 dogs or cats, as long as the person has no record of animal abuse, no pet related offence and can provide food and care for the animals
- Yes except exceptions for those with Dog Fanciers License not Service Animals - neither warrants an exception allowing the person to have more than six animals.
- If the pet limit increases, so will all associated problems. This will not be healthy for the animals or the community.
- The city should not have input on this matter. I believe incidents involving excessive barking, animal well fare and the accumulation of feces will not change depending on the amount of animals on a persons property. If there is a problematic homeowner (in regard to this question), they will continue to be a irresponsible pet owner even if there is a limit on the amount of animals allowed. Having a limit on the number of pets individuals have will not all of a sudden make people responsible pet owners.
- Some people will abuse the number limit
- The exceptions I am fine with. But 6 cats and 6 dogs = 12 animals in total is too many animals. I would be fine with someone owning 3 cats and 3 dogs for a total of 6 animals in a household. But to me 12 animals in a household is too many and sounds close to hoarding
- if the house is really big, they should be entitle to have more than 6 of the same kind

- I fully believe it depends on the size of your living situation. If you live in a smaller living space, you should have less pets. Otherwise you're mentally and physically harming your animal. If you have a larger space to accommodate more animals, then perfect. I think it's subject to your house size.
- There are better ways to protect animal welfare than arbitrarily limiting the number of pets kept in one home.
- limit should be 2 dogs and 2 cats per household. if someone wants more than that, they should move to acreage. licenced breeders could be exempt
- I do not believe owners would be able to properly care for that amount of animals
- 6 dogs is way too many! Make it 2. Exception for litter of puppies up to 6 months age. No need for exceptions like inheritance, grandfathering, "fancier", etc.
- A good Pet limit would be 3-4 animals for owning with exception to the following above.
- I cannot agree with out the potential exemptions being a gaurantee
- 6 dogs and 6 cats seems like WAY too many animals for one household unless in exceptional circumstances such as dog breeders, dog rescues and dog fosters. I would want to limit it to maybe 4 and 4 at most.
- If I am a responsible pet owner and I follow all rules and bylaws I don't think the city has the right to tell me how many animals I can have
- The limit should be lowerd to 3 dogs and 3 cats
- As long as the animals and property are taken care of, and there is no neglect, there should be no limit.
- I don't approve of limiting how many animals a person has as long as the person is able to provide proper care (medical, nutrition, shelter, exercise, attention).
- If you have the space and money why not more than 2 animals
- I would support this once they have been visited and been deemed a nuisance house. Then they should be restricted for a probationary period of 2 years.
- while I do believe 6 cats and 6 dogs is far more animals than someone would "need," I don't believe it should be a law. I think hoarding situations should be handled accordingly, but I believe that putting a limit on the number of animals a household can have will lead to people not licensing their pets in fear of losing them if they have more than the legal number.
- Six is excessive. My neighbour has 5 and they are unable to control them. Again, this is a city not a farm
- Accumulation of feces, excessive noise, and welfare of pets is not a function of number of animals, it's a function of a responsible adult. Laws of this nature do not properly address the root cause, which is irresponsible behavioiur.
- the amount of cats that can be properly taken care of in a house should be higher than the amount of dogs
- Not everyone can afford these silly fees
- On initial read, this sounds reasonable; however, it doesn't sit well with me. I think efforts should focus on animal welfare, clean and appropriate living conditions and noise..

- Owners are to pick up feces always, no matter how many dogs. Excessive noise can occur with any amount of animals. Welfare of animals is Calgary Humane Society. Leave bylaw as is with no restrictions.
- There is no need to have more than 2 dogs/cats per household. Exceptions as listed above
- I do not support 6 dogs and 6 cats per household, but I do support the potential exceptions.
- Pets are family. There are no limits on how many kids a family can have. I personally would not have more than 2-3 dogs but if the owner is responsible there should be no limits.
- even 6 is to many for one household
- I feel that there should be a lower pet limit than 6, with the exception of puppies and kittens born to the parent animal. Then there should be a time limit for adoption purposes.
- 6 dogs per household within the city is a huge number. It will encourage puppy mills. I am not convinced that anyone need more than 2-3 dogs in house unless they are breeding them
- I do not agree with the exceptions to this rule - there should be no exceptions. I also feel that 6 and 6 is too many for the city. Please do not remove this limit - there are so many animals already that can't be cared for properly. Perhaps when we put better bylaws in place for better education and responsibility and see how this works, then we could revisit the per household limits in the future.
- Too many circumstances that this law would be hindering owners
- Six and six is WAY too many. Besides the feces and cleanliness/hygiene, how could someone afford to license that many animals anyway?
- Some people rescue animals that other don't want.. most cases are in excess of 10 animals.. I respect those people cause the shelters won't step up for certain animals! If you want 15 cats and dogs.. fine.. take care of them, love them and control them! No different to families having more than 6 kids? We going to put a limit on that?
- There should be no limit.
- 6 is far too many for grown animal. Why would any home need more than 2. If you want more animals, MVE to the country!!!!!!
- The other Bylaws provide adequate control for problem animals and owners.
- Too many animals to take care of properly higher risk for neglect higher risk for unwanted pregnancies
- I live next door to very irresponsible pet owners who are at the limit. I don't need more of their animals barking all day long, and more of their cats coming into my yard and destroying my gardens
- That is still TOO MANY ANIMALS in one home!!! No way!!!
- Go further. 3 dogs max and 3 cats max is enough for anyone.
- There should be zero breeders zero pets sold in stores
- Any more than two pets is a business and should follow business regulations.
- Way too many animals on a city lot. That should be maximum 3 dogs as it is in many small towns. And three cats, for maybe a total of six animals on a property and even that can be too much if causes disgusting living conditions in small spaces.
- There are too many homeless and neglected animals and you should be allowed to care for as many as you are able to as long as you don't cause problems for anyone else and the animals are well cared for. Some people should not be allowed to have any animals while others are capable of caring for many. Also, societal views about animals are changing and my pets are my family. I don't get to dictate how many children others can have (way more annoying than pets in my opinion) so why should an arbitrary number be imposed on me? While 6 dogs and 6 cats seems like it might be at the upper limit of what one household can handle, it depends on the person and the animals. 7 cats or 7 dogs might be easier to take care of, or 8 cats and 2 dogs etc. It depends on the situation.

- Having that many pets in an urban household would likely lead to excessive noise, smell, feces, and disease.
- Let people use their own judgement. If they can support more animals, and want to give animals a loving home, let them
- This is a bad question. Is there a current limit? 6 is way too many. I do agree with exceptions listed but a dog fanciers license is ridiculous idea and totally bypasses the by law limit.
- 6 Dogs and 6 cats are too many for a household, and there are higher chances of increased nuisance with this many animals in a single household.
- Limit of 2 makes sense.
- Twelve dogs/cats total seems like too many animals to be within city limits. I like the exceptions, but I think it should include a clause about dog sledding/mushing as they can have 10+ dogs. I think changing it to a total number vs. having it specific to the type of animal makes more sense. Some people might want 7 dogs or cats, but not 6 of each.
- I support the potential exceptions - But 12 animals in a home? That seems very excessive! 2 dogs and 2 cats seems a little more feasible
- I don't think it's the number of animals that's the problem. I've met people with a lot of animals and yet they take good care of them compared to people with only one. Again I go back to the argument of responsible ownership. We need to educate people better that when they are owning pets that it is a responsibility. Let's use common sense in all of this.
- I think six of each is too many. Six per household of any kind
- I do not think anyone is able to tell someone how many pets they can have, as long as the animals are taken care of who cares. If a hoarding situation is happening and the animals are in danger, a concerned citizen could get the Humane Society involved.
- It should be even less. 6 animals per household?? That's insane. How can they have good lives?
- I agree with a maximum of 2 dogs OR 2 cats in one household.
- Need to control the number again want a farm move outside city limits
- 6 is way to many higher risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- I'll start with a caveat, the following comments are written with the intent of offering constructive criticism. They are not a criticism the individual(s) who wrote this survey form and I hope they can be used to build faith in whatever the final decision becomes. I have many concerns given the implications of some of the ideas presented in this survey. To start, phrasing such as 'we heard many comments' or 'quite a few comments' are misleading to the layperson and several false dichotomies occur among options. If phrasing such as this is carried forward to later stages I worry that proposed changes may reduce the clarity and enforceability of impact bylaws. The fact that the profile pictures of the project team are all of pets alone makes me question if there is an inherent bias in this consultation process and that voices of non-pet owners are equally present within the team. I hope that is not the case. When it comes to specific points, I am not aware of any evidence that suggests that a total of 12 animals (6 dogs and 6 cats) living in a household is beneficial to animals or humans. Infectious disease epidemiology is clear that indoor crowding increases health risks to both animals and humans. I also worry that as written, the proposed change communicates to pet owners that having this number of animals on a city lot of any size is justifiable regardless of context. The voluntary 'bandana' suggestion also appears to contain several inherent assumptions that I am not sure can be relied upon. First of all, it suggests that the onus should be put on others to complete a risk assessment every time they see a dog and trust that the owner has objectively rated their dog correctly. I also question the benefit of this program for individuals with vision impairments. A dog owner may assume that an individual who cannot identify the color of the bandana has made a decision to interact with the animal even if they are flagged as a risk. Based off my background, I know that there is evidence for the use of LESAs as a mental health treatment support. However, they are only one of several non-pharmaceutical therapies available to patients. The mention of the DSM-V to add a 'scientific/medical' basis for obtaining a LESA is an inappropriate use of that tool and is misleading to any layperson who is not familiar with the DSM-Vs limitations and intended use. Other questions I had when filling out this form were: what bearing does the age of an animal have on animal crowding? What is the rationale for setting up an exemption system on an animal limit when the justification for a '12 animal limit' is not presented? Why not 13 animals, why not 11?

- the pet limit is far too high, 2 at the most. It's impossible for most to properly care for more
- 12 animals in one household is too many as the standard.
- too many animals for city living. 2 is more than sufficient. Should be mechanism for person to apply for exception which involves consult with neighbourhood and ability of person to control large number e.g. animal trainer etc
- I think there should be adequate enforcement if excessive pet ownership is problematic, but if someone wants to own many pets and they look after them and they aren't problematic I see no reason to limit their numbers.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is far too much. Limit it to 3 of one, 4 in total. Exceptions listed are reasonable.
- City lots are too small to accommodate than two animals per household. The concept that up to 12 animals are living in a small city lot makes me question if the proposed changes promote animal neglect.
- The limit would be better if it was 4 dogs and 4 cats, not 6 each. Apart from that, I agree with the rest
- 12 animals total is too many
- mind your bees wax if the animals are well care for then numbers shouldn't be an issue
- 6 each is too high. Should be a combined total of 6.
- Too many animals
- I think 6 pets already sounds like a lot. However, if a household can support and sustain the well being of that many pets without negatively impacting those around them I think it is fine. Perhaps we need a process where, after there is a complaint, an assessment is completed to review the feasibility of the household to maintain/sustain the wellbeing of the pets. Also, I don't like the idea of voluntary dog early warning system, as soon as, we start 'marking' animals it puts the onus onto the animal. People have tried doing this to people and it is a way to discriminate and make certain behaviours acceptable. I believe that we should focus on increasing awareness that not all small dogs are puppies, that dogs deserve to have their own personal bubble just like humans, that dogs in off leash areas should have been taught to behave respectfully, that dogs in non-offleash areas should remain leashed and respect the people around them, that owners should take responsibility for educating, properly cleaning, and maintaining their dogs well being.

- Case by case you can't lump all people together and rescues are a big factor!
- I do not think a household in the city needs to house more than 2 pets.
- Although it is more work, I think there should be individual evaluation on the situations that require attention.
- Number of animals should be based on size of apartment/home/lot; 3 dogs in a one bedroom apt or bachelor suite is too many. Suggest one animal per 1000 sq ft.
- I believe that 6 dogs and 6 cats is excessive. The limit should be lowered and if the household wants more, then they have to submit a special application for the excess.
- That is too many animals for one home and ignores the needs of this many animals.
- I would suggest 6 is too many, except for your exception list, which is very good. Perhaps 3 instead of 6.
- Six is too many unless it is a licensed business
- 2 pet limit maximum per home.
- This proposed change does not take into account the relative SIZE of the animals in question. Where a property may be able to support six yorkies, it could not support a great dane. May I suggest that a cumulative size limit of all animals as a ratio of available yard space be considered? Eg., one could have (3) 5-pound dogs OR (1) 50-pound dog in a typical residential yard, up to a maximum number of dogs.
- Six of each is WAY too high!
- I think the potential for 12 pets (6 dogs AND 6 cats) is too many for a city property. this number is more appropriate for an acreage
- I think that is too many in one household. I would support 3 cats and 3 dogs per household.
- That is FAR too many dogs and cats in a household. I'd say 6 total, be it all dogs, all cats, or some combination thereof.
- na
- No limit to number of animals
- I don't feel that a single household would give 6 dogs the proper attention and care. ie walks, grooming, etc. 3-4 dogs, max. maybe the same for cats?
- Too much paperwork with exceptions. Hoarders are a different matter and for some unknown reason are never discovered until too late!
- Six dogs and six cats is an outrageous amount of animals. Max 4 dogs and 4 cats

- 6 dogs or cats is excessive. Given the small size of Calgary lots that is not enough space for that many animals.
- Don't tell people what to do in their own home as long as they upkeep it
- 12 animals per household?! There are very few households where these numbers would not be a problem for the neighbors and the animals would be cared for properly.
- Farms and ranches often have many many dogs and cats. As I noted above, so long as animals are being well taken care of, I see no reason to limit a person/family's enjoyment of those animals.
- No need for more rules. Agree with your argument, I just don't see the need for all this costly bureaucracy..
- I agree rescues and foster homes should be allowed more but there is no reason for anyone to have up to 12 pets in a home
- 6 dogs is excessive. 3 or 4 should be the maximum. I also don't believe a home would need 6 service animals. This really confuses me. You would allow 6 Great Danes but as of right now deny a person a handful of chickens. This makes absolutely no sense in my mind.
- Hoise sitters should be held to the same standard in terms of number of permitted animals.
- To many animals for one home to responsibly care for. Higher risk for neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- People should be able to keep as many pets as they are responsibly able to care for... the number would be different for each citizen.
- Six is just too many for most to provide proper care, vet visits (bills), control in public, cleanliness.
- This would be detrimental to those that own animals but also want to help foster them. Limits should not be applies on foster homes.
- Why does my freedom of how many animals I want become monitored
- Increasing numbers of pets per house hold will not help the system manage. Looking for better regulation on "adoption" centres that import dogs of all breeds for adoption. Please stop this practice.
- Reduce the number of pets per household. 4 total.
- As long as the owners are following all the rules it is fine.
- I think it should be reduced to a total number less than 10
- That is way too many animals to reasonably look after in one household. I would only support this if all of the animals had pet insurance.
- I dont think it is simply numbers causing the problem. An equal number of owners of one animal cause nuisance
- 12 animals is too much for any household unless there is a litter to be there until they can be moved to other homes
- I think this will cause severe disturbance for neighbours.
- No one needs to own that many animals more animals leads to higher risk of neglect and unwanted pregnancies
- logically it does not matter if someone has six cats and six dogs, or twelve cats . Human children make more noise , and people can have 8 if they so please. So why limit pets ?

- Too many - make it 4 dogs and 4 cats
- I have more than 1 dog and my dogs make minimal noise while I know of many neighbours with 1 dog that have very noisy dogs disturbing the peace. Luckily it is during the day primarily.
- I don't know how often this comes up but why create a whole new set of rules for something that is probably not a significant problem in the city.
- 2 max per household
- Anytime someone has more than 6 animals, if they are not taking care of their yard, feces, house, etc - that should be reported and fined. If they want to have many animals they need to keep it clean. But as responsible adults we should be able to manage this without a bylaw in place. This is a slippery slope to reduce the numbers down even further.
- As long as the animals are taken care of there should be no limit.
- 2 dogs or cats maximum. I would say 50% of dogs I come across are not trained.
- The limit should be 2 cats and/or dogs with the exceptions listed above.
- 2 is more than enough, noise and smell
- If the dogs and cats are receiving proper care and attention, there is no reason to limit the number of dogs and cats in a household. So many dogs and cats won't get to go to good homes if this bylaw is implemented.
- I don't think many households have more than 6 cats/6 dogs right now so I don't think this change would have any real impact.
- What percentage of pet owners have more than 6 dogs or cats? If the city was being honest and open it would provide a breakdown of how many pets per household there are. The fact that a breakdown these numbers have not been provided is telling. This again seems like a simple way for the city/politicians to claim they are doing something whilst allowing a slow steady ratchet of "no one has more than X dogs so lets reduce the limit to x - 1"
- No more than two pets per household. In the instance of a "fostering" situation, a special license would be required and a limit placed on the total number of pets (perhaps no more than 5 with time restrictions).
- There should be a lower limit on the number of cats and dogs allowable per home. As you have indicated, there is no need to have in excess of 2 animals per household. The increase in quantity directly results in additional noise for neighbours and frequently, additional feces in the surrounding areas.
- This is meant with good intentions but feels like a misguided over reach. It potentially allows one household to have 12 larger pets (6 cats and 6 dogs) yet penalizes others who would perhaps have far less say maybe 7 house cats which could be mostly older rescues etc. that are well looked after and never go outside etc. If there is to be a regulation on the number of licensed pets allowed to have a number of 12 in general or whatever is settled on instead of specific species. I would much more regularly support something of that nature.
- The limit should be less than six. No more than two dogs or two cats.
- Need to engage with citizens PROOF of why limiting number of dogs/cats is beneficial to Calgarians. MUST be proven before implementing this bylaw.

- 2 dogs per household would be better. Yes, get a permit if more than 2.
- Some people can have multiple pets and keep a clean house and yard as well as take good care of the animals. The city of Calgary only has a right to investigate issues both limit what someone's has in their home.
- I think this number should be lower. Maximum 6 cats OR dogs or a combination. The exceptions make sense and should remain in place.
- I don't feel that limiting the number of animals in a household will change people's behaviors, only drive the ownership of animals further underground. This is the opinion of a local small animal veterinarian.
- no need to make this a paperwork exercise
- Good for preventing hoarding, but shouldn't make arbitrary distinction between dogs & cats.
- Unless they're a breeder no one in the city needs 6 dogs or cats. If they're a breeder they need a business license and a higher pet license.
- A maximum number of 2 for dogs or cats seems to be reasonable!! Whereas 6 seems inherently excessive!
- 12 pets in one household is too many
- Unless living conditions are suitable for both animal, human and property. Eg. acreage or large property. This should be a case by case bases.
- Too many
- Really? Do we even have enough by law officers to enforce all this? Enough is enough with noise and nuisance of these animals. We have a couple with 3 little dogs which they pen on their porch daily. They bark at everything and anything.
- That is an excessive amount of animals for one house. Totally ok on a farm but too much for the city.
- Six dogs on a property is too many. Six indoor cats would be okay. Six large dogs, not so okay. The numbers need to be smaller.
- Too many animals in a home is a type of hoarding behaviour, as well the animal likely isn't getting the attention they need. An exception would be if a person had a acreage which then you could apply for more animals.
- Managing that many pets so that the community is not negatively effected is challanging for most people.
- 6 animals is nearing what should be called a kennel. I've owned 3 dogs at a time, that was enough. How is it to be measured that the animals are all cared for properly? 6 animals has significant costs associated with them (food, vet, etc)
- 4 maximum
- Reduce the number of dogs and cats from 6 each to 3 each.
- It is absolutely unconscionable to own 6 dogs + 6 cats in an urban setting! THIS IS RIDICULOUS, DANGEROUS AND POTENTIALLY CRUEL!
- Households should have more than 6 pets. Any more would require prior approval.
- No household needs 6 dogs & cats at any given time, who would be able to live as a human being in such a state. All the pseudo-science using animals as a fix, burdening these poor animals with these humongous responsibility. They want to be running around chasing cars or rabbits but they are imprisoned 24/7 or 1 hour or less outdoor. People need to check themselves because if we can't function as humans what's the purpose of getting out of bed at all? Human beings need human beings and people are too busy being suspicious of one another instead of forming human relationships.

- People don't take care of or clean up after their pets now. More animals would make this much worse and be a problem in the neighbourhood
- As long as all pets are well cared for no restrictions need be placed
- I feel like that's too many. Granted, if the owners had the square footage (ie: acreage) then there'd be an exception. I just don't know that there's room in home within the city for that many animals in one household. Let alone ensuring they are properly taken care of.
- Current rules are fine. If there are problems there are already bylaws covering those problems.
- Way too many animals in a household! Max 3 total
- Quality of care and health and wellbeing of the animals should be a priority, not the number of animals in a home.
- That is far too many animals on one property. The suggested 2 of EITHER dogs or cats is ample. We have a lot of issues on our street with animals allowed to run free and limiting the number of pets per household will go some way to reduce the problems resulting from irresponsible owners.
- 12 animals in a house is too many
- Do not encourage breeders!! We do not need to be breeding animals when shelters are full. If you must have a limit, the main benefit is to prevent breeding and hoarding. So do not under any circumstances give them an exemption. Six dogs is plenty.
- if the existing bylaws are being enforced it should be able to deal with any issues regardless of the # of animals
- This is far too many pets in a house. Even if well trained, one dog barking starts a howl, and this will greatly affect surrounding neighbours. The City today has very little ability to combat bad owner behaviour, issuing a ticket rarely stops a dog from barking.
- no need to limit
- 6 is still far too many in a household.
- As many as the person wants as long as they can be properly cared for and are cleaned up in a decent amount of time (weekly)
- This sets up hoarding situations. Think of the animals welfare, please do not allow that many animals.
- No more than 3 cats, 3 dogs, unless a licenced foster parent. No one needs 6 cats and 6 dogs . Exception being a licenced, vet-approved breeder. Make all breeders have to be licensed and veterinarian approved!!! NO MORE BACKYARD OR ILLEGAL BREEDERS.
- It is different in every situation. If you have a large dog have a litter you already are breaking the bylaw
- Six is still way too many. In my opinion 4 should be the maximum with exceptions for breeders or boarders, service animals, grandfathering, inheriting

- I believe situations must not be reduced to mere numbers, as every situation is different.
- This number of animals in a household is excessive and inevitably leads to nuisance problems with neighbors.
- City houses/lots are not big enough to support a dozen animals.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many for one household.
- This is still a lot of animals. How did you arrive at 6? What about 3 animals, unless the owner is a breeder, foster, or there is an inheritance issue, etc.
- Six dogs and six cats is far too many. Two of each maximum. No special permits.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats already sounds like too many in the city. I would say 2 of either and 3 total for city living..
- Needs to be case by case. If someone has 7 cats but is fully taking care of them and it's not causing an issue to anyone else there is no problem.
- still too many of the animals,, there is no need for those volumes in a urban environment...
- As long as all animals have a good place to live, and they are receiving everything they need to survive: yard/ food/ fresh water/ shelter then it shouldn't be anyone else's business how many animals someone owns.
- It seems like too many. I would support a lower number. Twelve pets in one household? Yikes. Too much risk that the animals are not being well care for.
- The City should limit the number of pets to 1 or 2 max. If someone feels he/she needs more pets, they should move to a rural area.
- 6 dogs or cats is too many already: 2, maybe 3 are fine.
- I think 6 of each is a lot. Perhaps 4 of each would be a more manageable number.
- I love animals and realize others do also. However I cannot imagine why any household would need more than 3, perhaps 4 dogs or cats. The responsibility of ownership increases with each addition of an animal and unfortunately many whom tend to want more animals are the very people who possibly cannot afford that expense and thus the animals could be at risk or neighboring residents have to put up with the increased noise/smell or danger. Already the playing fields I live adjacent to have everyone walking thier dogs there everyday even 'tho the bylaw says this is not allowed. It is a disgrace! And may do not pick up. And now the city is considering allowing more animals per household? Really. We cannot even mangage what we do have.eer . I n n
- That is still too many animals. Nobody I've ever met can tend to 12 pets properly. That's at least a part time job.
- I agree with 1 dog and 1 cat per household maximum
- Cats I don't care. However dogs much more of a nuisance for those without dogs. Especially untrained dogs.
- 6 of each? ... maybe 3 or 4 of each, with a total of 6 animals allowed.
- I think people should be allowed to do what they want. If an issue arises they can deal with it then
- A limit of 3 dogs AND 3 cats is plenty, not sure why anyone would want more than this.
- Too many exceptions that this bylaw change would be unenforceable. I would remove the inherited and grandfathered exceptions.

- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is definitely too many, how can you properly walk, care and feed for so many pets. Can you truly give 6 animals adequate care and attention? I personally don't think so
- I would support this ONLY if the potential exceptions were put in place for breeders. I would also make it a 6 PET limit meaning only 6 animals no matter the combination of types.
- Six dogs AND six cats per household is too many animals. Limit should be two (2) dogs and two (2) cats, with the potential exceptions you have listed. Too many dogs and cats on one property is opening the door to conflict. Also, licensing should be kept annual, to allow for regular education on bylaws -- (1) dogs must be on-leash at all times, except in designated off-leash areas; (2) dogs are not allowed in school yards, sports fields, playgrounds, golf courses ...; (3) dogs must not bark, howl or disturb others, etc. People need regular reminders of the key bylaws.
- I am not really sure what limits should be imposed or if it is appropriate to do so.
- Nobody that is not a pet breeder should be allowed more than 3 pets per household.
- There is no need to have more than 6 dogs or 6 cats per household unless they have had a litter.
- It takes money/time/commitment to be a pet owner, and I can see how somebody can look after more than 2 dogs at a time. I'm a pet owner of one dog and it is a commitment to properly care for your animals.
- I think owning 6 dogs is too much. No one needs to own 6 dogs. What about a 3 dog limit? Same with cats. A 3 cat limit sounds more reasonable to me.
- Less regulation. Case by case if a problem arises
- I think we are able to make our own call on what we can handle.
- 6 pets is already too many for one household
- Six is way too many in the City. No more than three, maximum.
- So long as it doesn't get to a hoarding point, and the animals have enough room & attention there should not be a limit. Let people have pets
- People, if they can handle their pets should be allowed to have a maximum of 10 of either dogs or cats however they choose.
- All the exceptions I agree with. However I feel I can't fully answer yes or no to this question without knowing what the special application would entail, and how many pets would be allowed within that.
- It isn't 'necessary' to own more than 2 animals but limits shouldn't be imposed as to maximums.
- The number of pets in a household does not determine responsible ownership behaviors.
- We don't need more government involvement here. Address problem pet owners and let responsible people live their own lives
- People can have more than six dogs or cats and be responsible pet owners. This only punishes responsible pet owners.
- Too much risk for unhealthy animals, unwanted pregnancies and more risk for neglect
- Too many animals runs the risk of animals not being cared for, unwanted pregnancies and possible aggression of any animal
- Too many animals per property.

- Again there is enough by laws to support nuisance animals Regardless of the number of them. if a responsible owner wants to have a dozen dogs and they're not barking and the owner is cleaning up then the owner should be allowed to have a dozen dogs. on the flip side one dog can be a nuisance and the owner doesn't look after the animal the knot owners shouldn't have the animal. you can't put a number of animals in a while that's arbitrary that doesn't even consider the responsibilities of the owner. further the owner should be innocent until proven otherwise.
- I would want the law to lower the amount of owning animals under six. Six is still high and I don't think people have enough time to focus and teach each animal individually properly. Also what happens with people who have a cat or dog n move in with someone who also has animals.
- Do you limit how many children someone can have?
- As long as every pet is cared for correctly and has what they need to be happy and healthy, who cares how many people have?
- 6 is too high. 4 at the most is reasonable for cats , 3 for dogs. Potential Exceptions seem reasonable.
- Honestly it has been one of Calgary's highlights is that there are no limits on pets. 12 dogs can be quieter then one, loud, obnoxious dog. It's about the owner and if it's over run, the neighbours call with a complaint and the conditions would be assessed then anyways. I say leave well enough alone.
- I can have as many pets as I damn well please. I own property I own what to do with it.
- People should be allowed to have as many pets as they can reasonably care for.
- Two dogs allowed should be the limit.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs are way to many in a city lot. 3 of each maximum
- I agree with the exceptions. Though, not in an increase in dogs and cats in general. Because it would bring more issues with noise, feces, animal welfare problems and control of the animals. Also, more animals makes it harder for people to afford licensing all of them on top of the other expenses. Animal welfare is more of a problem for the same reason owners will have a harder time providing vet care. Even just teeth cleaning and removal for infections. So many animals can't even get that care right now and suffer malnutrition from the pain of eating and infections that cause other health problems. Just not being able to keep proper mouth care leads to long term suffering and death.
- There are so many animals that need loving homes; as long as food, shelter, water and medical aid as required. Responsible pet owners usually are on top of picking up feces.
- Sounds like too many cats or dog in one dwelling
- If you can afoord to license and care for your pets you should be able to have as many as you want
- Although the above sounds reasonable I would fear that some of these changes might not work. Please explain what a dog fancier's license is? Is that designated to someone who actively enters performance events and is a member of the Canadian Kennel Club? Or would this be available to all people who would claim themselves as a "breeder"? This would be something that would need to be looked into and cross checked. There are some "breeders" in the city who are known to breed for profit, many are of cross-breeds and thus in many cases not eligible by CKC to have a dog fanciers license. Please describe further what that licensing is.

- I agree, only if it doesn't cause disruption, then the fines continuing until the issue is resolved would suffice.
- 6 of any animal is an excessive number; I do not believe anyone needs to own more than 2 of any type of animal.
- All dogs need to be treated equal
- If people need more than 2 cats or 2 dogs than they should have a special application to fill out.
- That many animals need lots of space. I fear the 6 and 6 is even too much
- That allows way too many animals in 1 home. I would suggest a maximum of 6 cats and/or dogs in total. I have been a 2 cat plus 2 dog home/pet owner and there were no problems. However, when one household starts to have 8, 10 or more animals in a single home, that becomes more like a farm, not a home. Perhaps properties over one acre could be allowed more than 6 animals in total.
- Six and six is a very big jump from two pets total- why not increase to two and two?! Instead of being exempt, those who are breeders, fosters, sitters, fanciers, etc should actually be required to have additional licensing to look after more pets. It takes more skill to take care of more dogs. That should be something that is regulated through monitoring.
- 2 is plenty!!! More animals than humans is too much!!
- I agree with all the conditions, but 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many. There was a time where my grandmother (in Calgary) had 13 cats and one dog. That was manageable with their cats, considering the general temperament of the cats, their yard and the 3ft of chicken wire above their fence. Their house was clean (as it could be) and all the litter boxes were downstairs and changed frequently. Dogs are another story. Their loud, needy, and are more violent when they become aggressive. (Everyone in our family has a dog)
- I don't think we should eliminate how many dogs and cats are in a home of a responsible dog owners
- It is none of anyone's business as long as their pets are being appropriately managed
- 2 cats or dogs is enough
- I would rather see the law framed to address hoarding and puppy mill type situations rather than responsible pet owners
- No one needs more than 2 pets per household
- I worry about the welfare of the animals in homes that reach this new proposed maximum (6 cats and 6 dogs). It would be extremely difficult to ensure safe and sanitary living conditions for this many animals in one house.
- There are already too many neighbours that have too many dogs. This week a guy was walking 6 dogs in a park. He could not and did not control them as two chased and barked at me.
- 6 dogs OR 6 cats or combo to make a total of six should be plenty, except for when a breeder has recent litters, or if it is a pet daycare situation.
- I do not think that a prescribed limit is necessary. Responsible pet owners are more than capable of looking after more than 6 animals. Those that aren't responsible will take as many pets as they want without adhering to any limit anyway. By restricting numbers, you are simply preventing an animal from getting a living home while not targeting the small minority who will do whatever they want irrespective of any rules.

- 6 is too many as a permanent number
- People own their property and they own their animals, if the animals are being treated poorly then the animals should be removed and kept in a safe place until the owner is able to care for themselves, their property and the animals
- I don't believe it is up to the city / bylaw to determine; there are many exceptions and specific circumstances that would not be included.
- Would agree but details should be released regarding special application for more - what does this involve, are there increased fees, what do you look at to provide approval?
- 6 too many ... That is potentially 12 pets. I support 6 total
- No one needs more than two dogs or cats in a household. They are not locked after properly then.
- because if someone owns their home they should be able to adopt the animals they want. There is a problem in this city with stray animals that need to find homes.
- No one should restrict the number of animals that are comfortably kept on a property
- let people have their pets, and address mistreatment as its own issue.
- There is no need for 6 dogs and 6 cats I think 3 should be the limit. Anymore Than that one should have to make application to increase this number. That number is just not sanitary and gives too much opportunity for disturbances and dangerous situations.
- What a person does on their own personal property and does not harm or affect others should not be regulated by the city.
- I think 6 of each dogs and cats is too many. There should be a total of 6 pets.
- The amount of animals could be made dependant on size of residence /yrd. For example on a per square footage basis.. larger spaces can have more animals.
- Limit of 2 cats and 2 dogs per household
- Although I support a change to the bylaw limiting the amount of animals in the home, with the proposed stipulations, I would support lowering the number of animals in the house. 12 animals seems excessive.
- soze of property should also play into this rule, there should not be more animals if there is not enough space.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is too many. Unless there is a special circumstance such as fostering animals there shouldn't be anymore than 5 animals in total (dogs and cats)
- I would reduce the limit to six animals (dog/cats combined) total.
- 6 is to many. More risk for lack of care. More risk for unwanted pregnancies . More risk for aggression.
- Again, the people/family need to be vetted prior to ownership of even one pet. I'm not fussed in the slightest as to how many pets a household may have so long as the owners are a) able to afford to properly care for the pet ie. Food, licensing, etc, b) clean up after their animals and c) are qualified through some sort of process to determine if they should be pet owners in the first place.

- Twelve animals is excessive. Three is each would be a more acceptable number.
- That's too many animals doe the city.
- I assume other rules re animal welfare should apply where needed. Duplicate rules???
- I support the limit but the limit should be 4 for animals deemed as pets for the household.
- Living conditions for large numbers of pets in a household can deteriorate quickly if the financial, physical or mental situation of an owner changes.
- Reduce it to four
- There is no reason, other than hoarding or milling, to have so many pets. A reasonable number of pets would be 3 or less in total.
- This encourages animal hoarding. Who would want to live in a town home next to 6 dogs and 6 cats. It would be hell
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is to many
- Noise
- If the family is able to afford to care for more than 6 dogs and cats, and there is ample space for them, I do not understand why there would be a limit.
- Depends on size of the property and pet, plus level of care by owner
- Noise from the dogs/ cats, feces, cleanup.
- If you can support a higher number of animals, good on you!!
- There are too many people who don't walk their dogs enough, who deprive their animals of fresh air and interesting smells. Allowing a higher number of pets will in too many cases reduce the care for the individual
- as long as licensed and provided for there should be no limit
- Do NOT agree with bylaw change to allow for 6 dogs and 6 cats. Completely unclear why anyone within a city should have up to 12 pets! Agree with limit of 2 dogs and 2 cats. Compromise might be 3 and 3, but not more. Instead I would Agree with all the proposed exceptions. It is by application for exception that large numbers of pets may be justifiable under specific circumstances.
- Some owners can handle more animals.
- 12 animals per house? That's crazy! Too many. Three cats and three dogs should be the MAX
- I don't believe there should be a limit
- As long as the animals are healthy and happy it doesn't matter
- I'm still concerned that 6 dogs and 6 cats would not be in the best interest of the animals and would be very noisy
- i think a maximum of 4 dog and or cats total would be reasonable, unless they are licensed breeders or have a business of boarding animals, or as the exceptions indicate.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too high an amount. I think it should be 4 of each at the most. exceptions would be if it is a foster home, a home with a litter of pups or kittens and finally if approved excess animal permit. Which can only be given to owners that have no previous violations of noise or other.
- 12 animals is a crazy amount if animals in any house within Calgary.

- It would be a case to case basis, size of the property and level of training of the animals should be considered.
- allowing 6 dogs and 6 cats to a household would be too noisy to neighbours and it is unlikely the pet owner could sustain cleaning all of the feces.
- Six dogs and six cats are far too many for one household in my opinion.
- I don't think we should restrict how many dogs or cats people can own.
- The limits of animals maybe considered depending on how much space the owner has. 12 animals in a small house or app art menu would be excessive but permitted under this rule.
- I don't think there should be restrictions on the number of pets in a home. All pets should be licensed and Well cared for and all of the property should be well maintained.
- 6 dogs per household is far too many. 2 maximum should be allowed.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many in my opinion in the city. Live in the country if you want more.
- Why should the choice of increasing ones family require an application? Pets aren't just animals, they're family.
- ENCOURAGES irresponsible animal owners to own more animals and disobey the law and homes around them. NO MORE RESCUE ANIMALS MUST NOT BE ALLOWED INTO ALBERTA(VERY BAD).
- There's not enough room in the city for so many animals in one house
- 6 seems to high a number of both cats and dogs. I would support a limit of 4 dogs and cats.
- 6 of each is too high. You must take into account the size of property and how well they are looked after and affecting surrounding properties.
- I think that is still top many animals for any random pet owner to possess without some sort of special exception.
- Some households act as rescue organizations for dogs and/or cats. As long as these people would receive an approved excess animal permit, I would support the change.
- 6 animals is to much for most households financially. Higher risk for unwanted pregnancies. Higher risk for neglect
- Limit of 2 animals spayed or neutered
- There is no need for this many pets and they will; not be trained and cared for appropriately above two max.
- I agree with the need to license all animals in your care, and with special applications for situations outside the limits of the bylaw. The number of cats and dogs, seems like it should be dependent on the size of your home (and/or the size of the animal, and/or the activity level of the animal, etc.). It is hard to see how six dogs and six cats would have a high standard of care if they were all living in a bachelor suite, for example?
- I think people shouldn't be allowed to have more than 2 dogs unless they have a huge backyards and appropriate space.
- 6 and 6 is WAY too high. Houses and lots in calgary are not big enough for that number of animals. Number should be restricted but limit should be lower - like 3 max

- I think its ridiculous to license cats . Get them chipped or tattooed so of they get lost . But cats don't take alot of space up..
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is aggressively inappropriate and unhealthy for those animals.
- there should be no more than 2 pets (of any kind) per household
- Households who are able to take care of more than 6 animals should be allowed. There are so many animals out there that need help and support
- Too many pet animals would be allowed.
- 6 of each could be up to 12 animals on one property. I would support 3 of each maximum, with the above exceptions.
- To many animals
- If I want to be a crazy dog owner and have 10 dogs, how is that fair to me to have to put in a special application and pay for that application. If all my 100 dogs are under control, feces is picked up, they dont bark excessively, they are well behaved then why should the city be allowed to put a limit
- Six animals is way to many for one household. I agree with 2 dogs and I suppose + 2 cats but really think having three pets in one house is enough for reasons you listed above. 6 is way to many!
- Again it's about the people not the animals. Animals will do what they do. If an owner wants 4 dogs and is responsible enough to maintain the Oder the health and well being for each of them then so be it. There are irresponsible owners that should be fined, trainees and checked up on and refined with more severe consequences.
- I think 6 + 6 is too many. I would suggest 3 dogs and 3 cats.
- It's too many. Maybe 5 animals in total
- do not pick it up! Cats in gardens too!
- No one needs that many dogs or cats. If they do, they need to see a mental health specialist.
- I fully support this change with a limit of 6 dogs/6 cats, but only if all the potential exceptions are implemented except for the grandfathered clause. If someone has more than 6 when this change comes into effect, then they can get a special application.
- Too much government interference
- not necessary to own more than 2 cat/dog is absurd
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats is too high for most regular families. I believe 4 and 4 is the maximum unless given permission.
- Under 6 months allows for excessive "basement breeding".
- n/a
- People should be allowed to have as many pets as they can take care of.
- I support if exceptions are included for certain
- Depends on size of house and yard.
- Pet breeding should be banned if you want to actually stop the problem with irresponsible pet ownership, stray or feral animals, or unwanted and under trained pets. BAN BREEDERS!!!!!!!
- There should not be more than a total of 6 animals per household

- 12 animals in a household (excluding puppies or kittens under 10 weeks) is excessive. Dogs have pack mentality and six dogs is definitely a pack. If there is concern around dogs biting and/or attacking people or other dogs, a pack will definitely increase the potential for these to occur. As for cats, if they are strictly indoor, then no issues. If they are allowed outside there will be issues with damage to neighborhood flower and vegetable gardens. Cats are predatory animals and will deplete bird, rodent and insect populations.
- It just ridiculous
- Should not have a limit
- I think this should be entirely the owners' decision.
- Unless you are fostering or breeding - who needs 6 dogs and 6 cats. That's excessive, no more than 3 of each unless you are fostering or breeding. Then you should have to get a special license. My neighbor has two small dogs that literally never stop barking when they are outside. I can't imagine someone who doesn't understand how to train a dog with 6 pets. Set a firm limit.
- I don't think the city of Calgary should mandate how many pets someone should have in their household that should be up to every individual.
- The exceptions would have to be in place. No "potential" about it. As a dog breeder for over 35 yrs there are those times when I have a litter of puppies, as well as one or two really old dogs. As for cats, I have a friend with seven licensed indoor S/N cats. I have a neighbour who can't keep one cat indoors! 35
- If a family has more animals than this but takes care of them well, who are we to judge? If it becomes a problem, address it then
- i dont think within the city having that many animals on one premises is needed. i think it should be reduced to 4 animals total. i agree with the potential exceptions ruling these out.
- Depending on the size of accommodation involved, 6 animals is too crowded. In urban settings 2 should be plenty.
- I do not believe that a person needs to own 6 dogs and 6 cats in one home, this is far too many. The only exception that I would accept would be foster homes.
- I don't think anybody needs 12 animals! The limit should be much lower. Dogs/cats that are inherited should be found another home if limits are exceeded. You only need one service animal and unless there are 6 people each requiring a service animal that exception is not necessary. There should be no exception permits. Grandfathering should only apply until the animals pass away, they should not be permitted to exceed limits by replacing animals as they die.
- It is not the place of government to limit ownership of private property.
- Surely the number should depend on the size of the dwelling. Six cats and six dogs in an apartment would be too much
- 2 is enough.
- Limit the number 2 dogs and 2 cats per household.
- 6 is a very high number 2 or 3 is plenty. Also with that large a number, pack mentality comes into play and the animals can be more aggressive.
- Too many animals

- The bar should be set by standard of care not number of animals per property. ALSO - A COMMENT ON ABOVE QUESTIONS ABOUT FINES - FINES SHOULD ESCALATE SHARPLY WITH REPEAT OFFENSES.
- 1 pet should be adequate!
- 12 animals per household is too many. It should be limited to three total for all, whether cats or dogs.
- 2 pets per household is sufficient more than this amount will become a nuisance to neighbors
- If someone has the capacity to care for the animals in the way they need to be cared for, there should be no limit to the numbers they look after
- Deal with the non-responsible pet owners as needed. We have 6 licensed dogs and there is less mess in our yard than our neighbor with 1.
- Think limits are too high for city living; acreages or space between neighbours support #'s; exceptions ok but slippery slope.
- If properly cared for number should not be a problem. Better to look at regulations around proper care. However, if a limit is put in place all of the potential exceptions should be approved
- There is no reason any person should have 6 dogs or 6 cats in their home. I think 3 maximum would suffice
- unless the animal(s) health is at risk or is being neglected.
- Owner responsibility and quality of care are key criteria
- 2 pets max. My neighbor has set up a puppy mill selling them on kijiji. There was just 16 dogs next door. There are 5 now.
- 6 of each is FAR too many per household within city limits
- I think 12 animals in a household is just too many. I think 3 of each or less would be more appropriate. However, obviously for newborn animals, foster families, breeders etc. that is different as they have facilities and awareness.
- As long as the animals are taken care of (and this could mean random or scheduled checks) and are not a nuisance to neighboring residents, a person should be able to have as many animals as they would like. The person should be responsible for cleaning up after the animals, feeding the animals, ensuring they have enough exercise, and are registered, and just generally kept well.
- An application should be needed for more than 6 total dogs and cats in the house
- 1 dog 1 cat only per household
- There are already provisions in place (noise, nuisance bylaws for example) to address the potential negatives of a large number of pets. If the existing laws are utilized and enforced, there is no need for this excepting people who want a reason to complain about their neighbours. I can't imagine having more than 2 dogs at a time but if someone wants 16 cats, how is that my concern or problem? Seems rather unnecessary.
- 6 dogs is too many dogs. Even if they aren't always noisy, the amount of noise from 6 dogs on a regular basis is a lot. I could support special applications and exceptions but for more than 2 dogs, additional requirements should be in place (training, noise expectations clearly defined, cleaning, etc)

- We live in a free country and a limit on pets shouldn't exist. Trust the person who owns them to make a good choice for themselves about how many animals they own. Even if they own 12 pit bulls, if they can handle it that's their prerogative
- It is problematic for one family to have more than 6 animals per household. It is harmful to pet wellness for owners. And for breeders, it is highly problematic and costly to be reproducing animals at the rate we are and perpetuating the overflow of animal shelters.
- I think animal wellbeing depends more on the owners care and the property's abilities. If a house has multiple floors, if animals get along, if a pet owner is attentive, there is room for more than such a limit to be cared for. Many houses with more animals belong to those who also care emphatically for them and may even be rescue homes or animals found that were unclaimed or strays taken in at cost to the owner as is. Especially cats could be cared for well in higher amounts, and debatable small dogs versus large ones could be easily cared for.
- I think more important than the number of animals in a home is the condition and care given to the animals. There are people with 1 animal that don't provide proper care while others with many do.
- Too many animals can be dangerous. They could injure someone, it's hard to take care of that many animals, they could make noises and disturb others, there could be a lot of feces on a property, it's filthy, other people buying the house won't know how many animals lived there, and those animals could have a disease maybe. It could also be: about a compulsive need to acquire animals that reaches an overwhelming state, resulting in unintentional animal neglect or abuse, could be hoarding.
- I would support this bylaw change with the exceptions that were stated above.
- It doesn't go far enough. 2 animals per house maximum.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is far too many for a single household.
- I believe six is too many and would recommend a limit of 4. I do however support a nuke that limits the number
- Too many
- I believe 6 dogs/cats is too many per household. There are too many small private breeders only trying to sell puppies on kijiji. I know this as a neighbor is selfishly and rudely doing a urban puppy mill.
- People should be able to own as many as they want so long as they have the means to care for all of them and each pet is kept safe, fed and healthy.
- 2 cats or 2 dogs is enough. Let them apply if they need an exception
- No reason to own that many pets. Bigger risk to the animal not being cared for properly. Focus should be on mandatory spay and neuter unless you are a registered breeder. Mandatory spay and neuter may also reduce the bite risk.
- That is too many animals.
- I agree with only 2 or 3. There is no good reason for more. Breeds should be shutdown as well
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is ridiculous. Half of that is much more reasonable without a special quantity permit.
- 12 animals is way too many. That should require a special request.

- [removed]
- Cleanliness and public health. Define household. As it stands now I see people who live in condos with no yard who own two very large dogs. Even for a home owner with a very large yard six dogs (and six cats) is too much. Who needs this many animals? I'm guessing there could be special circumstances, but I think the pet owner should have a valid reason and the city should review each case. Two dogs (and two cats) would probably be a better number if the owner can look after them properly.
- 3 Cats&/or dogs is enough to properly care for the animals
- I think 6 dogs and 6 cats is far too many for a person to reasonably manage. Unless the caregiver is running an adoption or foster service, the limit should be two of each. Fosters and shelters should have a limit considering the means to take care of the animals in the service's care.
- That's way too many animals in a house. Most people don't live in a property large enough to give that amount of animals the space they need. Also, how would these owners have the time to walk and care for each one? They wouldn't.
- Possession of Dog Fanciers license is only going to allow for more breeders. Not all people that fancy dogs (or any other animal), care for them properly
- I don't believe in breed specifics
- Its not your business
- 12 personal seems excessive and likely to have a negative impact on animals welfare
- Unnecessary to limit if the animals are being cared for and are healthy.
- The number of animals does not directly relate to quality or standard of care. Homes causing issues should be dealt with on a case by case basis.
- should be a choice to have as many dogs as manageable. Licencing is a must, for those that are responsible breeders through the Canadian Kennel Club, some of us have more than 3 dogs for our dog showing and breeding programs.
- needs to be case by case some people have many animals and aren't a nuisance
- I think it is unnecessary for households to own more than 4 animals and should have to apply for permits to have more within the city
- Proper care and training should mean you do not have to limit the amount.
- 6 per household limit is still way, way too many. If limit was 2 per household I would support grandfathered if rules change.
- Could result in neglect
- I don't feel this would solve anything so why necessary
- Six is too many.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs is far too many for a single household.
- People should be able to have more than 2 animals if their space is sufficient for them
- Leave as is. Calgary has too many confusing rules already.
- 6 animals of any kind per household is too many!
- 6 dogs and cats is too many for one household.

- I agree with the current number. Anything more seems for a residential property.
- I think the number is too high. 6 cats is ok but 6 dogs might be too high. 4 maybe 5 is reasonable. It all depends on the owner and their responsibility. Some could have 10 dogs and you'd never know. Others could have 1 and this dog becomes a nuisance.
- None of the city's business how many pets a person has.
- Max 3 dogs or cats
- 6 of each seems like a lot, I think 3-4 max and then special permit to ensure they are able to care for all animals adequately
- Should be 1 dog and 1 cat. The more dogs creates for noise etc..
- 12 animals in a house hold is to many
- I don't think it's necessary to own more than 2 pets. I also think it's not good for more than 2 animals to live in the city in one house.
- Should be lower 3 Dogs and 3 cats.
- It seems excessive.
- 2 animals per household max
- This should be based on the private property size not a one size fits all scenario.
- No
- Too many
- Unless there is a terrible reason and the animals are being Injured, no one has the right to tell a person they cannot have pets. It's no one's business. Unless of course, their is an animal abuse situation
- That is way too many animals per household. The limit should be revised to 3 animals TOTAL per household. It can be a nuisance to surrounding neighbours with so many animals (excessive pet waste, possible allergies, noise, etc.)
- If the animals are well taken care of, I don't see a problem with owning more. What I do strongly object to is having to pay the same fee for licensing INDOOR cats as people who allow their cats to roam free. There should be an incentive to keep cats indoors (only outdoors occasionally with human supervision, on your own property). Paying the same rate means responsible pet owners are subsidizing irresponsible pet owners.
- not necessary. very few cases.
- I think there could be a higher chance of a pet being a nuisance animal when care is to spread out across multiple pets. Time given to each animal, and space may be too limited unless there was guidelines that determined minimum space required.
- Because
- In my limited experience, the residences that create these problems would either be subject to one of the potential exceptions (particularly breeders, pet sitters), or would be in a situation where mental health / animal welfare is the primary concern, and the City's ability to regulate this behaviour is limited. As such, why have the expsense of the regulatory regime to control the actions of population that doesn't exist?

- I agree with the reasons for restricting the number of dogs and cats, as listed above: Accumulations of feces on property, Excessive noise, & Protect the welfare of animals.s
- I am not in a position to judge whether my neighbour owns too many animals. There are already adequate measures for those who do not look after their animals (no matter the number)
- People with large amounts of land have the ability to house more animals than those with a small home.
- Seems like too many animals for 1 household.
- I don't think breeders should be an exception to this rule. Breeders can be part of the problem for not getting animals spayed and benefiting off animals as an income.
- The human should be at fault for feces and excessive noise, otherwise, if a human can control those two issues then there should be no issue to how many animals a human has if they can take care of them.
- So long as the animals are on the property/in the house, cleaned up after, taken care of properly, and not a nuisance, people should be free to have as many as they are comfortable with. Should they have an excess of animals, perhaps spot checks for animal welfare.
- I think 3 or 4 animals is okay. Obviously an excessive amount could be problematic. But, it also depends on the size of the household
- It is private property and you can not tell me how many animals I am able to adopt. You don't do that with children and you shouldn't be allowed to do that with pets when pets are most peoples children.
- Calgary's no limit is a significant selling feature for the city, particularly for responsible purebred breeders. It would also depend on requirements for a Dog Fancier's Permit.
- An owner can be irresponsible with 1 pet or 20 pets. Number is not the solution; education and enforcement are the solution.
- Keep bylaw as is - no limit
- 6 in total seems appropriate. Plus the size of property should determine the number of pets. You can have more animals on an acreage vs an apartment.
- 12 animals in one house is too many for neighbours to tolerate
- the size of residence/lot, etc would have to be considered in the number of animals one could 'house'
- I think six animals is too many.
- As a responsible pet owner, I feel that most ppl know their limitations as to how many pets are manageable for them, not the authorities.
- 12 critters is way too much, but 2 is too restricted. Total of 4 or 5 reasonable.
- Should depend on the size of the property. Total of 6 should be limit.
- People who collect animals do not have the income or the time to support the animal needs. My neighbour has three dogs and a parrot and there is so much dog feces accumulating in the yard. The dogs are also never walked. Unless someone is running a licensed rescue, hoarding should not be legal.
- It should be dependent upon the size of the house. 6 dogs plus 6 cats cannot have the same high welfare in an apartment as compared to a large home with outdoor space.

- Unless someone is a breeder(responsible breeder) doggy day care, watching pets for a friends or family member no one needs 6 dogs and 6 cats. Even in a large home that is a lot of animals for one home. I think the most should be 3 dogs and 3 cats. Also I am considered low income and I register my dog every year. If you are getting dogs and cats that is a cost that you need to be able to pay just like food and vet bills.
- I feel that it should be even lower. I can't imagine many people responsibly caring for that many animals.
- 4 would be my preferred limit
- A limit on house typs would be better, for example 1 small to medium sized dog for a n apartment or two house but if someone owns some land inside city limits then they have more space trust allowing more animals
- Limit should be 3 of each. The amount of feces in public spaces is out of control at this point.
- Excessive noise and cleanup. Our parks are already filled with tossed aside bags of animal feces.
- 6 dogs AND 6 cats seems too high. I know many people that don't have the time for just one animal. Could be changed to 6 dogs OR 6 cats
- I think that the limit could be lower than 6 cats and 6 dogs (but could keep the above exceptions in place)
- 6 seems very high. 3 of each seems more reasonable.
- It's a free country. You should not be able to limit pet quantities arbitrarily. Some people thing more than two bathrooms is too many. Or more than three children. Should we limit those as well?
- That number is too high per household
- I think if there is enough living space for all animals to live, defecate, eat, and have daily exercise I have no problem with people having more animals.
- 2 dogs and 2 cats is plenty.
- 6 is far too many
- 10 well-behaved dogs are less of a problem than 2 badly behaved dogs -- number of pets is not an indicator of issues, pet training is.
- What about dog breeders? And a litter of puppies? Would they be limited as well?
- six dogs or six cats are too many - the cats NEVER are confined to the owners house and the more dogs the more barking. I wish my next door people had several less dogs.
- Exemption are fine but 6+6 is way too high. Max 4-6 total animals
- If someone has paid to purchase a home and paying property tax in this city, then noone has the right to tell them how many pets they can have. There needs to be rules on the care of the animals and nuisance to neighbourhood, but if those are met, then a bylaw restricting how many they can have is over stepping our freedoms.
- As long as all the animals are well taken care of, and they aren't bothersome to neighbors, it shouldn't matter how many are in the home.
- Up to 2 dogs and or 2 cats should be the limit.
- Peoples homes should not have more then 2 pets, unless you live on an acreage. Don't treat your home like a pet farm.

- i do not license my cat anyway. make me.....
- pet limit of 6 is to many to start with - all pets need to be licensed
- It will cost too much money to enforce
- That is too many animals for one household unless the conditions above are met. Meaning there should be a lower restriction but still based on same conditions. Or perhaps a look at size of residence.
- There should be no limit to number of pets
- exceptions are good, but how about a special licence fee of multiple animals over 6 total would require additional controls of inspections, could also be used as breeder operations licencing
- Thanks
- I think that is too many animals for any home. I think 2 at most is great. Especially if big animals.
- Six is too many.
- The restriction should be limited to a combined total of 6 dogs or cats. Also, significant changes need to be made to restrict people from starting up their own so called "animal rescue organization" in residential areas. Far too many dogs, cats, rabbits and exotic animals are entering our city from other cities, countries and locations (ie reservations). There should be significant fees/penalties paid by these groups/individuals if they to bring these animals into the city. They are not addressing the core issue with animal over populations. They are just bringing that burden into our city.
- the bylaw needs to enforce owners reparability to protect the welfare of their pets like the same way they need to provide to their children, or we need to put a limit to the number of children we can have?
- Six (6) is too high. I think four (4) is an appropriate number with the exceptions listed above.
- there's no limit to how many children someone can have. why limit what else people can have?
- Breeders, could be a requirement that they have a CKC kennel name.
- I know many people that have more than 6 dogs, they are great responsible owners. They do not deserve to be punished for arbitrary rules.
- I find that people don't take proper care of animals when they have more than 2 due to high cost. Ex vets, grooming, pet food, etc so having that many dogs or cats if they don't have a breeding license it's not ok. Also breeders need to be inspected regularly to eliminate puppy mills. I owned a grooming business in Canada for 14 years so I know what I'm talking about when I said people won't take care of that many animals due to cost. Many dogs already only get groom twice a years and by the time they get groom their fur is Often a solid pellet.
- Megh to controlling on people ... should limit the amount of kids too
- My neighbour has 2 great danes and 2 cats that roam at large. Their backyard is ankle deep in dog poo. It stinks and is terrible. If they were allowed more dogs, this would just be worse.
- too many factors play a part in how many dogs should be in a "household" and household needs to be defined as well
- Limits are a red line that once crossed will continue to be reduced in subsequent reviews.
- I would support the above if all the potential exceptions were actual exceptions
- People have the right to decide how many pets they can own

- i think responsible pet ownership is key to keeping properties clean, protecting the welfare of the animals and not having excessive noise. 1, 6 or more dogs can accumulate feces on property IF owners not being responsible as well as one dog can cause excessive noise IF not properly cared for while 7 or more dogs well trained and cared for can be good 'neighborhood citizens'
- people have the right to own as many animals as they want
- 6 seems very excessive. Maybe 3 dogs and 3 cats
- Animal hoarders would increase
- How can anyone look after more than 12 animals in a city? Kind of a no brainer. Better yet, introduce a requirement for owners to pass background checks before getting an animal. Be forward thinking calgary, not backwards thinking.
- City is no place for a large of amount pets.
- Owner could not possibly take care of all the animals needs, or surrounding area, makes for puppy mills, and animal neglect.
- that's an insane amount of pets in a house, and not realistically manageable.
- I personally think it should be lower. Maybe like 8 animals total. Have 12 animals is a LOT for 1 personal person. After that there should be reviews, breeders need to be looked at WAY harder and have more punishment for backyard breeding vyou guys are going after the wrong problems. Go after irresponsible pet owners, people that can't afford to take care of their pets, animal abusers and backyard breeders. Having 12 animals in a normal house is outrageous.
- No one needs to own any dogs. But they can so they will. I personally think the government shouldn't be meddling.
- I have only ever had 1 animal, however, appreciate that Calgary has no limit. If a concern was raised for hoarding animals, puppy mills, etc., CHS can deal with those concerns.
- I believe a person should be able to have as many pets as they want and are capable of properly caring for. One must be able to maintain the health and safety of all animals and clean up after them. Any and all noise and/or disturbances must be dealt with immediately.
- Freedom
- As long as the welfare of the animals is intact there should be no limit on number of pets you can keep. Many people can house large numbers and frequently use this space for adoption and training and growth of their family. People who own large numbers of pets tend to be more educated on them and more likely to take care of them. Houses with single pets are more likely to rehome dye to destructive behaviour, barkig, ect. It would be more worthwhile to invest in rescues than to restrict private homes pet population.
- The limit of animals should be 2, nobody needs more than that.
- Responsible owners shouldn't have to feel restricted
- Too many animals ... I support 4 of each
- I should be allowed to own as many animals on my private property as I want so long as they aren't being abused and they aren't causing significant noise or odor problems.
- Thwn
- rescues need an exemption

Responses below include comments from participants when asked if had an idea about something that was not covered in phase 1 or phase 2 engagement.

- More enforcement of barking dogs and owners not picking up feces
- More enforcement of people with their dogs (and cats) off leash on sidewalks and in communities (e.g. not off leash areas)
- I really, REALLY, want to see better enforcement of nuisance barking, along with actual fines. There is no excuse for excessive barking.
- More enforcement of licenses for cats - whether they be inside or outside.
- We need far better enforcement of barking, including staged fines. i.e. each additional complaint has higher fines.
- I am against breed specific bylaws and lowering the bar for pet ownership. Can't afford caring for a pet? Don't own one.
- "1. Mobile app to report issues (ranging from not pooh scooping to excessive barking)
- 2. Complaint-based enforcement
- For cost-efficiency"
- An easier process to report excessive barking and have it fined, and the fines must be strong enough to deter further neglect of the dog.
- Pitbulls in Calgary are responsible for nearly all dog attacks on children requiring reconstructive surgery. This is a serious issue.
- More enforcement of barking dogs. There are zero consequences to keeping ones neighbours up all night. Limiting to only two dogs / home too
- The city should limit the number of dogs that dog walkers can have at once. Limit to 3? Hard to control lots of dogs, and remove feces.
- No fines for the first offense, and possibly second occurrence, of canines who are inadvertently at large. Fines could escalate if required.
- More enforcing of all fineable offenses.
- A pit mauled an 8 year old in front of my house 2 years ago. Guy took off with his dog. There needs to be a law that says you have to stay.
- Higher fines for not cleaning up after your pet, but also more availability of free pet waste bags and garbage cans in off-leash parks.
- Limit the number of dogs OR cats to three per household.
- Fines for a second or subsequent offence need to be high enough that people will actually do something to avoid another fine (i.e. training)
- There are areas in the NE where I live that have so many dangerous pits that you can't even walk a normal dog safely.
- Please include foster homes in the limit. Temporary has no bearing on the level of care for that many dogs.

- Banning pet ownership from those who behave irresponsibly. A pet license should be earned through testing or screening rather than sold.
- "Fines increasing with each offence.
- Fines for encroaching in environmentally sensitive areas. (wetlands, streams, native prairie)."
- Many cat owners let their animals out. This is such a threat to our songbirds and also increases the feral cat population. Better education?
- Keep the livestock on the Farms, we don't need chickens and the smell, noise and additional problems with it's natural predators.
- like to see more positive than punitive rules. Reductions for licensing with proof of training. Assistance for lower income training
- I believe that there need to be some restrictions put in place that limits the number of breedings and /or private sales of pets
- If I report a dog barking it is enough to give address but I should not have to give my address and name. Most won't report for this reason
- The number of irresponsible pet owners is countless. There should be a short quiz/test that is required to pass for a pet licence.
- licensing, liability insurance (minimum $250k) and RF tagging should be mandatory for "large dogs"
- We need to monitor and fine in parks and walkways that do not allow off leash dogs. Cougar Ridge always has a high volume of dogs off leash
- No
- There should be a way to report irresponsible pet owners. I think 311 app would be a great tool for monitoring and reporting from public
- Given the overpopulation of dogs and cats, and numbers in shelters, there should be more measures to restrict breeding and importing them.
- Limiting # of pets doesn't = better pet owners i.e. people with one neglected dog whose feces aren't picked up vs responsible multipet homes
- Instead of breed-specific legislation, there should be mandatory training included with licensing all dog breeds
- N/A
- A problem pet is due to the owner and they should have the ability to either take the pet to a professional trainer or adopt it out
- Increase enforcement and fines for dogs that are off-leash in non-designated areas. Even dogs that are "friendly" are becoming nuisances
- Too many people let their cats roam freely and this needs to STOP! Higher fines and education and ENFORCEMENT!!
- nothing
- Small dog owners need to control their dogs. I have been attacked multiple times by small dogs and nothing happens other then I am injured
- Just because 2 dogs are fighting does not mean both are to blame. Every dog has a right to defend themselves against attacks.

- Breed- specific legislation DOES NOT WORK, it penalizes responsible dog owners without holding owners of actually dangerous dogs accountable
- Breed- specific legislation DOES NOT WORK, it penalizes responsible dog owners without holding owners of actually dangerous dogs accountable
- We require more education and communication on how to be a responsible pet owner, and not just more fines or punitive rules.
- There are a number of irresponsible rescue agencies in Calgary. I would support some sort of city accreditation to hold rescues accountable.
- Please enact a bilaw for leaving 'dogs in hot cars' and include a significant fine for unattended dogs in parking lots!
- City of Calgary should be encouraging people to do more with their dogs. Earn a title and get a reduction on licensing
- How about educating citizens instead of condemning or singling out pitbulls/bully breeds. Punish owners not breeds!
- Stop using pit bulls as the example of bad dogs. There's plenty of dogs who are bad, it's not breed specific. Re home dogs from bad owners
- Don't ban dog breeds. That's idiotic. Ban bad owners, I've never met a mean pit bull in my life
- I would love to see more fenced in dog parks - completely fenced in like the one in Auburn Bay
- Much higher fines for nuisance barking (each complaint) and off leash dogs in residential "on leash” areas.
- increase fines to people who antagonize dogs while the dogs are in their own yards
- Discriminating by breed is tantamount to racism, the fact that this is even being considered makes me ashamed of this city.
- Licensed cats reduce the rodents in yards. REMOVE the bylaw prohibiting cats from wandering.
- Why does bylaw have the right to tell people how many animals they can own? Isn't the bylaw prohibiting fences over 4 feet enough?
- I find that folks do not understand the the off-leash rules and allow their dogs run around the parking lots and on the public pathways.
- Little dogs need to be controlled in off leash parks. A little out of control dog bite causes stress and a long term damage in big dogs.
- Consider a dedicated agricultural district to support landowners that wish to keep livestock. Current S-FUD treats agriculture as temporary.
- This is a meaningless exercise. A single person can click like or dislike hundreds of times.
- Please consider for dog owners who do not wish their dog to be approached by children or strangers - no bandanna whatsoever.
- Breed Specific bylaws are based on unsubstantiated fears. I DO NOT support introducing any breed specific bylaws.
- No

- Mitigation for exploding feral rabbit population. More rabbits means more coyotes, and coyotes also snatch up cats. Rabbit feces everywhere!
- Need to educate: do not pass on sidewalk at high speed in a scooter/bike/skateboard grazing by owner+ dog; tease dog or stare down menacing.
- The pit-bull breed is a dangerously strong animal. They are capable of causing significantly greater bodily damage in less time than others.
- Restrictions on # of pets/household are pointless and unconstitutional. It's not the # of animals that matters, it's the care they receive.
- Increase enforcement, don't make things harder for everyone else who is following the rules because a minority don't.
- I do not support breed specific restrictions.. the breed is not the issue..
- Need increased enforcement of bad behaviour (eg leaving waste). Maybe a system to take a pic and report, since bylaw can't be everywhere?
- No
- No
- I don't see the point of looking at increasing fines when I have very rarely seen them enforced i.e dog waste.
- Why are Rottweilers not included in your "Pitbull" definition? They are even stronger than a pit bull. This is just plain ignorance
- Leashing cats at all times should be mandatory. No roaming cats, period!
- Licensing tags issued immediately once an animal identified as unlicensed and the bill sent in the mail. Problem solved, money later.
- "People should be licensed to own animals.
- Cats that get let out by their owners fines need to be higher"
- I do not agree with breed specific legislation, this is not the direction i would want to see Calgary go in.
- "I just wanted to address animal
- Limits. I would be in favour of limits of 6. But special consideration should be given for vets."
- The city needs more designated off-leash areas. Okder neighbourhood like Varsity and Hawkwood have many off leash areas, the city needs more
- Please use evidence not un-informed opinions when creating by-law regarding "pit-bulls" livestock and other issues discussed above.
- No
- Not once in any of the meetings or in any of the paperwork submitted did I ever see anything regarding pit bulls now I see it. Why???
- Increase fines for repeat animal at large / unlicensed pet offenders
- I do not support breed specific bylaws. I do support license costs and higher fines. If you cannot afford 67 per year then no animal
- Separate areas for large and small dogs. Bylaw officers to visit offleash parks

- no
- Ban Pitbulls
- Need to take all dog bites serious! Small dogs should be treated the same as large breeds. I don't agree with breed specific!
- No breed bans.
- In 61 years, I have never met a mean/aggressive "pit bull" though I have met over 100 "small breed" mean/aggressive biters.
- Pitbulls kill more kids every year in the U.S (where they track fatalities by breed) than all other breeds combined. This is a fact.
- I do not support Breed Specific Rules and Laws as Pitbulls are not recognized by the CKC. Incorrect ownership and not training are the cause
- Not all obedience classes are created equal. Punishment based training is shown to increase aggression in some dogs.
- Unregistered cats need to be picked up by the city so that owners can be fined and animals not returned to owner until registered
- I would like to see areas designated private off leash areas to be rented out by the hour for people who have reactive dogs or for training
- I would love to see some more off leash areas. Maybe for only those pets who are licensed? So getting a license pays for access.
- Cats need to be able to roam. They are not like dogs and you can't put them on a leash. Their quality of life is affected if they can't.
- Wow. Breed Specific Legislation, Calgary? Come on. Not impressed.
- Do not even entertain the thought of breed specific legislation. Its breed discrimination and its disgusting.
- I will never support BSL! Proper education and enforcement of already existing bylaws should suffice for any breed.
- Say NO to breed specific legislation. It's bad owners NOT bad breeds.
- "We need more bylaws and controls for cats at large.
- It is not okay to open the door and let your cat wander.
- Need better enforcement."
- Needs specific exemption for on lease animals to be exempt from liability to injury to off leash animals
- I like the bandana approach and it should be used on dogs who do not want to socialize, not just in dog parks. People could be more consider
- Off leash dogs in on leash areas has become a very dangerous problem and is impacting many dog owners enjoyment of their own dogs
- BSL never works. Read about it

- You need to issue refunds on the unused portion of dog licenses. You have collected twice for the same dogs. Should be transferable.
- I DO NOT support introducing breed specific restrictions or bylaws. The behavior needs to be addressed equitably regardless of the breed.
- Folks need to keep their dogs leashed in all non-off leash parks. You should be fined if you don't
- All owners must acknowledge in writing, current pet ownership by laws, licensing, picking up poo, all fines associated every license renewal
- NO BSL! Small dog attacks to be treated the same as large. Take in consideration what is currently being worked on with a dog ie training
- It's not just Pit Bulls. Responsible ownership is for ALL breeds and ALL owners need to be accountable!
- heavy fines for mistreatment of animals....plus removal of the animal and a ban on having another animal (lifetime)
- Na
- Please create some secure, private, pay per use off-leash dog parks to give people with non social dogs a place to exercise and play.
- Breed-specific legislation is NOT supported by research and is not endorsed by the SPCA or veterinary bodies.
- Enforcement and fines for offleash dogs needs to be increased, particularly in parks with playgrounds and/ or near schools.
- N/a
- I would suggest for a complaint about a dog barking to be investigated rather than taking the word of the complainant for it.
- Animal licensing should be the same price no matter the type of animal.
- "Need more control.
- My dog was attacked by neighbours dog, and that dog also attacked another dog. Was reported to bylaw. Dog is still there"
- Do not mention specific breeds. What if a dog is 1/10 of that breed? What about dobermans, rottis, akitas, chow, corso, husky, malamutes?
- No breed bans. Restrictions requiring ANY dog that has shown aggression towards other dogs or humans to wear a basket muzzle in public.
- Dogs are licensed , so should bikes. Would help pay for their paths, identify unsafe cyclist behavior and help trace stolen bikes
- Go after the individual dog (and/or owner) that is problematic, not the breed!
- I believe putting BSL in place for any breed would be a serious mistake. Keep the responsible pet ownership bylaw
- Why are licensing fees different for cats and dogs? There are way more cats that are reported missing and at large than dogs, yet dog owner
- "Owner rehabilitation for a nuisance dog. Not the dogs fault.

- Many people don't pickup feces.
- Enforcement of these bylaws would be great."
- Breed Bans are Wrong and cruel! Also animal limits punish the good animal guardians who rescue more than 6 and provide a good life for them!
- As with feral cats, and spay and neuter program for feral rabbits.
- Enforcement and fines for offleash dogs needs to be increased, particularly in parks with playgrounds and/ or near schools.
- I have no new ideas but I think enforcement is the most important part. Fines can be raised but if not enforced it does no good regardless.
- Education of the public is the key issue. Mandatory levels of pet (animal, bird etc.) behavior should be demonstrated or attained by owners.
- Science and history show us breed specific legislation doesn't make communities safer. Stick with breed neutral bylaws!
- "Investigate Fully before charging stop destroying innocent animals.
- Fees of licensing should stay the same for either animals."
- Pitbulls should be labeled as a dangerous dog any dog can be dangerous not just that specific breed As a service dog handler with a pitbull
- The fact that the city is targeting pitbulls specifically is unethical and completely misguided. Please don't let BSL happen in this city :(
- Leash requirements need to be more specific for on leash areas. A specific max leash length and owners need to be holding the leash!
- People should be licensing their animals only after they take a test of how to be a Responsible Pet Owner.
- Instead of fine, owners should have to pay for mandatory training sessions. Paying for an injured dog's vet bills is part of the "fine"; too.
- We need large dog and small dog separate dog parks.
- Management of pet sales and higher fines for puppy mills or abuse cases.
- BSL is an unsuccessful approach for preventing dog bites. Stop perpetuating this myth. Continue YYC's leadership in RPO, and scrap any BSL.
- Use of area between neighbouring houses as a "doggy dump zone" should be forbidden if neighbour's furnace air intake is also present there.
- Any type of BSL put in place will be a huge mistake, I will personally move as I will not have my family member discriminated against
- Do not isolate or single out a breed because of the fear the media has installed. We need to educate more people!!!
- i would like to see discounts on licensing fees for dogs that have passed a standard test, like the Canadian Kennel Club's CGN.
- Pitt bulls are good dogs. You guys bending to breed discrimination is really cowardly.
- Maximum number of pets per aware feet of home space in addition to total quantity of pets

- I do not agree with breed bans-an aggressive dog is an aggressive dog period regardless of the breed
- There is more evidence that supports the inefficient nature of breed specific legislation than in support.
- Eliminate or reduce licensing fees for each year a dog takes a training class through a CPDT credentialed trainer.
- I don't have any
- Stop going after certain breed. All breeds can bite. Especially the small breeds, as they are the most common culprits!
- Please add a question that asks about one nuisance dog per home, and have a separate question about one Pitbull per home.
- Puttin measure in place against pit bulls is stupid My neighbor has chihuahua whos ALWAYS off leash and trying to bite my dog but that's ok?
- I feel very strongly that nuisance dogs regardless of breed should have to follow bylaw. Restrict the individual not the breed.
- I'd rather see more preventive education provided. Example people who want to pet a dog they don't know should ask the owner if it's Ok.
- Responsible pet owners will answer this honestly.
- Breed Specific Legislation does NOT work. This has been proven over and over again in other municipalities.
- BSL should not be a thing. Educate owners, don't punish dogs for bad owners.
- None
- Enforcement is key. Increase in fineas but more patrols by by-law oofers in off lease areas. Too many infractions not being addressed.
- A person shouldn't have to pay for a license when the life expectancy of a pet is less than a year.
- I would like to see more enforcement with those providing inadequate care to animals including seizing if they're neglected indoors or out.
- It really bothers me that pit bulls are included as nuisance dogs. They are not nuisance dogs.
- I believe each community should have a fenced in off leash area for small/medium dogs. This would help with small dogs/owners being attacke
- Cat owners need to be held more accountable when a car is picked up. Also up the license fees to match dogs as many cat owners let them out
- Cats and dogs should not be purchased without a license, just like you cannot drive your new car unless you have registered it.
- No breed should be band but owners should be penalized for any aggressive dog . Also there should be a public registry for animal abusers
- Breed specific laws do not work, are not based in fact, fail to address actual problems, and is morally wrong.
- Licensing of pets should help pay for the upkeep of off leash parks and responsible pet ownership courses.

- cats are Outdoors animals and they should not be mandated to be indoors, are way less nuisible than wild rabbits in Calgary.
- Breed specific bylaw is NOT acceptable in the city of Calgary.
- Waive fees for fosters and low income persons, everyone willing to put in the work of being a responsible pet owner deserves an animal.
- I recognize they this will not be popular but I feel that there should be a ban on dangerous dogs.
- All pet stores must state name and location of where they bred the animal
- Luxury dog park: poodles only, no pooping.
- There should be an easier way to report stray animals so that they have a chance to be adopted. Also animal bylaw should be made no kill.
- Education for your bylaw officers. Seeing all the BSL garbage you're asking about solidifies they know nothing about behaviour.
- Don't spend a ton of money on studies and implementation, this city cant afford it
- People may need training "how to approach" CHILDREN taught and the child's parent is responsible. Dog's at large attacking is different
- Bark complaints should not be anonymous. Anonymity encourages over-exaggeration of the complaint.
- Condos shouldn't be allowed to limit the size of a persons dog.
- The breed specific bans are not covering the issues. Any dog, if not given the proper socialization and training can become threatening.
- breed-specific prejudice only harms those with well natured pets, The city would be restricting the freedoms of many innocent dogs and owner
- I support a ban on pitbulls; there are too many aggressive dogs of these breeds and they're the breeds of choice for negligent pet owners.
- Stop targeting a specific breed of dog??? Target the irresponsible owners. I'm so disappointed with how this city has turned out.
- "1) increased education for pet owners regarding dog training
- 2) NOT breed specific, ALL dogs should have this requirement"
- No breed specific legislation should be pursued. When the city's justification for exploring it isn't fact based, it shouldn't be considered
- "More waste receptacles in parks for dog waste.
- Splash fountains for dogs in off leash parks."
- Bandana idea is flawed- will give kids a false sense of security. Green bandana or not, a child should not be approaching strange dogs
- Owners who dont control vicious dogs, who severely abuse or beat dogs or train them to be vicious should be banned from owning any animals
- People should be fined for letting their cats roaming, on a slow day I see 6-12 different cats around my home They drag trash around outback

- How about creating a program to educate people about the proper behaviour around animals and recognizing dog signals and body language.
- I feel that BSL is a mistake. Any dog can bite and cause damage. This is an issue with the owners, not the specific breed of dog.
- Responsible pet ownership key. Shut down unethical pet sources
- Rescue agencies need looking into. Amount animals they bring to Canada as well as medical needs tended to
- Penalizing people for not licensing your dog or cat is counter productive. People will just choose to not register their animal.
- stop euthanasia of animals involved in bites. I think a more intense investigation needs to be done to see if the attack was unwarranted.
- N/a
- Dog /cat breeding should be done by people who complete a licensing program to breed responsibly only. Backyard breeding should be illegal
- Don't penalize "pitbulls". There's so much research that shows how expensive and non-effective BSL is. It costs cities hundreds of thousands
- Make sure all pets are microchipped. Thus if you lose your pet it is easier to find owner.
- Increased licenses only work for people who license their pets. Bylaw needs to be more active at offleash parks etc to enforce the laws.
- No animal should have its life taken from it, full in-depth review on par as if it was a human on human attack, owner accountably.
- I hate that the city is singling out a specific breed. I have no dogs but have met many good natured bull dogs. This is ignorance.
- Whatever you do, do not make any bylaws that are breed specifics. Owners must be held responsible for their animal. Training is key !
- Parents need to educate their children on how to safely interact with dogs they don't know
- Offering free training material for people on how to interact with on leash or off leash dogs (with or without their dog).
- Why was French language option not included in engage.calgary.ca ???
- Open a web portal equipped with photo upload protocol for citizens to report violators . As part of licensing, get a picture of the dog.
- Limit pets wondering around in neighborhoods, I have to collect my neighbours' pet's feces off my grass everyday. 311 contacted, court as op
- Breed specific bans are completely unnecessary. Not all dogs belonging to a certain breed behave in the same way.....
- We have a neighbor that started bee keeping in their backyard and now we have so many bees. We should have been consulted first.
- Allocate funds towards educating parents the correct way to teach their children to approach dogs. This will decrease negative interactions.

- Reduced registration fee for having a) non nuisance animal with no complaints b) spayed/neutered pet
- American Pitbull breed has a average bite force strength of 235 psi beaten by most other common owned dog breeds.
- We educate kids and adults about all kinds of safety issues, so why not animal safety?
- BSL is not effective.. don't waste more of our money
- Pet stores should be banned from selling baby animals, especially cats, dogs, ferrets n rabbits. There are too many pets going to shelters.
- Nothing against cats, but spay, neuter and release of feral cats programs are humane for cats, not necessarily for birds.
- Feedback is completely useless. Literally anyone can reply multiple times. Complete waste of time and resources. Going to get false results
- Base this on behaviour, not on breed. If it's not ok to treat people different based on skin color, it's not ok to treat pitbulls different.
- none
- Why are pit-bull "type" dogs even listed separately? Issues can arise with ANY dog.
- How ignorant was the person that brought BSL forward?
- We need designated off leash or dog parks for small dogs only.
- Starting an awareness campaign about HUMAN behaviour in off leash areas. People often will picnic or play games in these areas creating issu
- Make sure when neighbours or anybody makes a complaint about an animal that it is looked into before you send letters out to pet owners.
- Fines for not cleaning after pets is mostly useless if you Can't monitor the area. Our community is filled with feces.
- Stop demonizing pitbulls. It is unfair and biased.
- Dogs Bark, it is part of life. Most owners with barking dogs are doing training. Waive fine if owner can provide proof of training
- Disgusting that you're targeting a specific breed of dog
- Pet injury and property damage should be their own categories. Pet injury should incur very high fines to help with vet bills. >$1000
- Calgary needs to put more onus on the owners and actually enforce it. BSL has been proven to not work. Target bad owners!
- How about people being more responsible for their kids behaviour ie: don't hit someone's dog, don't pet or feed w/o asking etc .
- "Owner assessment to license and own animals exceeding 20lb.

- It is proven that breed is not the issue, but training and environment."

- Treat the animals right. Humans are the problem. Every case is subjective. Hold owners responsible. Not the animal. Also no BSL. It's BS
 - The inner city's has a big problem with off leash dogs in locations that are not off leash. -please put an on-leash sign at the Flames arena
 - a
 - Stop putting the blame on a specific breed of dog. It's not just 'bully' breeds that attack people. Other breeds attack if not trained properly
 - Na
 - Every dog that barks should have a shock collar at owners expense.
 - Bias against Pitbulls by this administration, along with mis-information, Dobermans and G.Shepards have higher bite force - just google it.
 - Calgary has the best pet facilities (off-leash parks, etc) of any city I have ever lived in, I hope this is maintained
 - No comment
 - Stop the tattle tailing reporting to bylaw. Noise is noise whether it's dogs or people.
 - Don't ban breeds. Owners and their dogs need to be trained. If the owner doesn't pass basic dog behaviour and body language, no dog allowed
 - See my response to the chickens
 - There's no point in changing any byelaws if you're not going to enforce them, we need more enforcement
 - Stop discrimination on pitbull dogs
 - I think talking to owner
 - Bylaw decisions should use bite statistics to inform decisions around pit bull breeds (not a higher risk), not community misconceptions.
 - Make it easier for violating bylaws to be dealt with . Example , cats in your yard , using your garden as a litter box
 - Limit number of dogs walked by dog walkers . Also monitor number of dogs in off lease park under the supervision of dog walkers
 - "Regulate back yard breeders.
- Also don't bully the breed, bully the Irresponsible dog owners and back yard breeders!"
 - People who make false complaints about pet owners or their pets constantly, should be fined for wasting the time of our public workers.
 - Breed-specific legislation is not cost-effective, it leads to higher rates of euthanasia, and it is unethical and unfair.
 - Breed specific legislation must be removed from the list. It's improper training not the breed that creates issues.
 - Reduction in dog licensing fees upon proof of dog obedience class taken and passed.

- No
- Children need to be taught not to approach a dog without asking. I've seen dogs go after a child who was tugging at them without permission
- I do not have further input.
- The city is imposing too many mandatory rules. Time to get out of this city and into the country where we can still have some freedom!
- Please do away with the notion of breed specific bylaws. It's the human who makes or breaks what a dog does, not it's lineage.
- BSL is not the way to go. All dogs can bite, so all dogs need to be trained. People need to step up and take responsibility for their dog.
- So disappointed with the breed specific language without evidence supporting why these breeds are singled out.
- I would like to see a bylaw to limit many dogs a dog walker can have. I believe 6 is a safer and more manageable number than 8-10. Not safe!
- Fine the owners for not responding, and restraining, or training the dog.
- No
- All pet owners must have liability insurance- like cars.
- Make bylaws that fine repeat offenders. Offer city-run dog training classes, just like swim lessons. Hens eat insects, yes.
- I do not understand why this is breed based. Isn't a nuisance dog just a nuisance dog? Naming a breed enforces stereotypes.
- Pet per sqft rule, known aggressive breeds need behavioral certificate / license to own, with yearly or bi yearly re-licensing.
- Something should be done if people go away and leave barking dogs alone in the house for a day or even a couple of hours.
- I think it should be mandatory for owners to attend Dog training. In all honesty, it is the owners that are the issue not the animals.
- Please put something in place to not allow pet stores to sell live animals. Like [personal information removed]. Shut that place down!
- bandanas WONT help at dog parks, if your dog needs to wear a "red” bandana Indicating unapproachable, why would you bring it to a dog park!
- Why No have more officers in neighbours dealing with off leash dogs... people walking their dogs off leash - deal with that! Fine that!
- Please, please do not make ownership breed specific. I have met so many lovely, gentle Pit Bulls. Make them attend force free training
- Pitbulls were responsible for 67% of dog fatalities in the U.S. last year. Most of them children. They make up about 4% of dogs...
- Offer a one time, no-fee reuniting of pet with owner (eg cat or dog gets loose) for pets that are licensed and permanently ID (tattoo/chip)

- I think you're forgetting golden retrievers, labs, etc. can be aggressive. Not just pitbulls. What an awful thing to discriminate against.
- I would like to see more Bylaw officers at the dog parks. In 11 years of regular park attendance, I have never seen Bylaw.
- Low income fees should be similar to a arrange income. If you can afford a let you can afford to support it along as everyone else.
- Keep licensing for cats the same. But impound fees should be $25-50 more if they are unfixed. May cause owners to be more responsible.
- We need more off leash parks that have water features. There are some parks that need some city maintenance
- Refund money that was spent for the full year if an animal has died!
- Unfortunately the very very small group of pitbull owners will hijack this debate. Pits were responsible for most serious attacks last year
- No further comments
- Nuisance dogs - 3rd offence, the dog would be removed from the owner,evaluated by an animal behaviouralist and owner gets temporary pet ban.
- Public education is key, training for pets/ kids early, often to ensure accountable behaviours for self and pets. Advertise "ok" behaviours.
- No
- Don't target specific breeds. There are no bad dogs-only bad owners. Kids should be taught how to approach dogs. Fines for not picking up waste
- I am actually disgusted that you are targeting certain breeds, when it is the owners that are the issue. It is a form of discrimination !
- I don't support breed specific bands as they have proven not to work. Focus should be on training.
- Grouping "pit bulls" is a very bad idea! SBT, AST, APBT and mixed bull breeds are very different in temperament!! Do your research!!
- cat owners should be allowed to have more than 6 if safe. huge problem w/irresponsible cat owners and resp. Ppl. W/many cats adopt/save them!
- No
- I think it's disgusting to blame the dog for their upbringing and negligence on pet owners that don't know their responsibility.
- There should be rules and limitations for dog walkers and dog daycares in residential areas. Where are these posted?
- all pets should be required to have a chip for identification purposes.
- I'm so tired of seeing all the dead and hurt cats daily due to irresponsible owners. We need to provide cat owners better education/solution
- Stop using breed specific legislation and start offering better resources to educate people are proper training measures. Punish the owner
- Singling out pitbulls because of jaw strength implies that other dogs don't have the jaw strength to do serious harm which simply isn't true

- More off leash parks, especially in the deep south of Calgary! (by the river would be great too - so many dogs love the water!)
- My pit bull is the sweetest little dog and is amazing with kids and people. It's not the breed, it's the owner and how the dog is raised
- Mandatory spay and neuter for people without a breeding license.
- Multi year licenses
- Singling out "pit bull" appearing breeds is wrong. No BSL. Nuisance dogs come in every breed and are the result of bad owners.
- If bully breeds need training so do the small dogs that attack on site.
- More large dog breed friendly off leash areas.
- Unless the current by-laws are enforced, there's little point in giving input. Want to see by-law talking to habitual irresponsible owners.
- Punish bad people not bad pets. Pitbulls are not more aggressive than other breeds and in some cases are less aggressive than other breeds
- There should be large license fees for breeders. Discouraging backyard breeders and breeder must be a member of a reputable dog association.
- Bylaw officers need to be more visible. If people are confident they'll never be given a ticket there's no point changing any of the rules.
- Don't have BSL in Calgary. This is a reason a lot of people live here. Free choice on the dogs they get. If BSL happens we will be moving.
- I think it would be a good idea for Calgary Animal Services to trap cats that are found at large rather than relying on citizens to do so.
- "Fines should be increased exponentially for repeat offenders.
- Bylaw officers need to respond quicker when a complaint is filed."
- Have a bylaw officer visit any park in Calgary, early in the morning and they will encounter off leash dogs. Random visits will solve this.
- Human error resulting in injury to human. Person should be charged. Not animal being euthanized.
- Provide more low income spay/neuter resources for house cats. TNR is great but there are many irresponsible cat owners.
- breed should not be a factor. off leash pets outside of designated off leash areas should be a heavier fine
- N/A
- COVID is encouraging rash decisions to get a pet. There is a potential for a massive population increase at Shelters when regret sets in.
- Barking dogs should be treated the same as the noise bylaw - no noise between 10PM and 7AM M - S on Sun and Hol 10PM and 9AM. Dogs bark!
- The city should take responsibility for our feral rabbit population: implement a neuter/release program. Ban sale of rabbits in pet stores.

- We should not allow "pet rescues" to bring large amounts of dogs from other countries to be adopted out. We have more than enough strays
- "Regulations for inner city cat and dog breeders. Fines for back yard breeders.
- Also the breed is not the issue. Bad owners are the problem"
- I am very disappointed that the City of Calgary is considering BSL and targeting Bully Breeds. Dog Owners need to be equally responsible
- Nothing to say
- Any changes to bylaws and programs need to be 100% user covered. Increase fees for nuisance/aggressive pets to provide more bylaw officers.
- Focus on the behavior before the bite!
- Providing MORE lower income spay/neuter options is a great idea. We need to control the already high pet population.
- YES support your citizens in being grown adults with continue Education programs and continuing to be the best city to live in across Canada
- I'm aghast that Calgary would even consider breed-specific legislation. The absence of BSL is one of the reasons I'm glad to live here.
- More enforcement of barking dogs. My lawn should not be dogs toilet. Follow up with a visit when excessive barking is reported for months.
- Yes. Impose higher fines for people that use leashes in excess of 6ft when walking their dog. Except when in formal training situation
- A licence should be required at the time of a sale/purchase of a pet from a breeder, shelter within Calgary.
- Higher license fees for unaltered pets
- Remember our Animal Control numbers are already infamous with success, by not choking people's freedoms. Don't stray too far from that premise
- Restricting "pit bulls" and "dogs that look like pit bulls" because they're stronger than other breeds is absurd.
- Animal welfare needs to address all needs of an animal. Currently as long as a dog outside has potential access to shelter nothing is done,
- Disturbance of the peace bylaw involving dogs barking should be reassessed. Neighbors complain with no good reason, not fair for dog or us
- I'd like to see rescue organizations required to test for diseases such as brucellosis and heartworm before entering the county.
- Existing bylaws enforced more often - we still see lots of feces, barking dogs, roaming cats, etc. Bylaws should not be breed specific.
- I have none
- If you have a pet that is strictly an indoor animal, there should be no need for a license.
- "No to breed specific legislation!!
- Calgary has always been above this ridiculous bylaw.

- Spay and neuter release program for feral rabbits"
- If proof can be provided fines for failure to clean up after ones pets should extend to private property.
- People need to be educated about dogs, too many people assume they know what the breed is. German Shepards used to get the bad rap
- Breed specific legislation is unacceptable. Provide resources for training for responsible pet ownership.
- The terminology around pet ownership and animal bylaws references animals but not people. This can create a disassociation from human resp
- Increase fees for dogs off leash in on leash areas. Nobody should be punished for an off leash dog approaching theirs and causing a fight
- Don't punish the animals, deal with the owners.
- Bandana idea seems bad. What happens if an owner labels their dog green and then it bites? Increased liability for false labeling?
- No
- None
- It's not uncommon for a cat especially to be excited by the great outdoors. If a cat happens to escape or leave its property, no fine please
- Implementing restrictions on "pit bulls ” and "dogs that look like pit bulls” is ridiculous and absurd. ITS NOT THE BREED, ITS THE TRAINING.
- Licensing should be required immediately at time of purchase/adoption. More needs to be done to ensure spay and neuter.
- No
- All dog owners must attend basic training class covered by Lisence fee
- "It is the owner - NOT the breed!!!
- Unbelievable, that the finger is still pointed at ""the breed"" itself. Sad!!!"
- Breed specific bylaws terrible idea. Behaviour based evaluation of dogs from trusted dog trainers who use positive reinforcement needed.
- More fenced-in dog parks. Enforced fines for people who bring more than 2dogs. Education re: dog behaviour, dog park etiquette
- Regulations for dog rescue organizations. Far too many dogs are coming in from Arizona and Mexico without proper vetting.
- Feral cats should be euthanized. They kill more birds that other direct mortality source by humans. Cats outside need higher consequences.
- Putting restrictions on breed specifics and dogs that look like a "pit bull” does NOTHING to improve responsible dog ownership.
- I have an American Bully and he is the best dog, to have him lumped into a dangerous breed category based on his looks is beyond ridiculous

- it should be mandatory to spay/neuter your dog/cat unless a breeder, and there needs to be special licenses/checks in place to become a breeder
- I don't believe that pitbulls should be singled out. There is no science saying a pitbull is stronger than any other large breed dog.
- There should be bylaws covering stray pet rabbits the same as stray cats. Pet rabbits should require licenses too.
- No by laws
- Any person that has repeated issues with vicious dogs, or found hoarding/abusing animals should be banned from owning animals indefinitely
- The city require a business license and inspections of anyone claiming to be a breeder w/a limit of 4-6 adult dogs excld puppies on property
- A rebate, or maybe waiving the license fee, for dogs who have been through obedience training.
- No euthanasia of any animal for being a "nuisance"; Only if a case history of repeated biting is established. Appropriate re-homing is prefer
- You should have to take a course to own any animal. Topics covered: animal welfare, obedience, care, vet care, enrichment, etc.
- Lots of comments on cats impacting wildlife. Cats also kill mice and other rodents. Cats should be allowed to roam freely.
- I disagree with the implementation on pitbull dogs it's the owner not the breed.
- If an animal is not being used for the purpose of breeding, they need to be spayed/neutered.
- Any breed can be a problem deal with the individual dog and hold the owners responsible and people keep your cats inside, too many are dying
- No
- No
- All off leash park should be fenced and not within the community.
- Some dogs naturally bark a lot. Maybe instead of a fine, offering education about how to deal/control the barking would be more effective.
- I could not enter a + or - on the question of fines. If a dog bites another dog the fine should be much higher than $250. Think vet fees.
- Free bands are ridiculous. Owner education and breed education should be the priority
- More accessible training programs - particularly for offending dogs.
- Singling out Pitbulls as a breed is ridiculous and not useful to the conversation. Many other dogs have strong bites, but were not included
- More off leash areas. Why can't a dog be off leash in a provincial park such as Fish Creek? There is way more space in these types of parks.
- No
- If a home owner can prove with photo or video of person not picking up after their dog on a person's private property should be fined.

- For dog noise calls, that the fine should include training sessions as the dog barking is usually due to separation anxiety or poor welfare
- I don't think a single breed should be singled out.
- I think it's a bit prejudiced to have laws against pit-bulls specifically...
- Increased Penalties for owners who consists
- Cats should be able to go outside and be just that, cats. Especially in areas where rodents, mice and voles are fiercely destroying lawns.
- How do you single out specific dog breeds as being dangerous? This is ridiculous. The city's lack of knowledge in this area is a joke
- Service animals should have their fees waived.
- Ban retractable leashes. They do nothing but cause problems, reduce control of the animal and cause injury to person using it.
- If an dog park is listed as off-leash, please add gates at all entry points...even obedient dogs will run through an open entryway
- Please Calgary, let's not start discriminating against pit bulls. Any problem dog, no matter the breed, should be managed promptly.
- It has been shown in many other cities that breed specific legislation does NOT work.
- I would like to see a limit of 8 dogs per dog walker. That's the most you can walk and still have the proper insurance as far as I know
- There needs to be accountability and regulation from authorities on the Animal Rescue Industry.
- Please stop discrimination against bully breeds (pit bulls). Your information about bite severity is incorrect and unfair
- Better off leash areas with full fencing and lights . Can't use them most of the year when it's dark out at 5
- Should be a licensing process to breed; far too many irresponsible individuals doing this for profit.
- Off leash parks need vastly increased controls to ensure nuisance dogs (owners, really) are not jeopardizing safety to begin with.
- I think owning a chicken would be nice, it's helpful to be somewhat self sufficient.
- faster bylaw officer response to calls and more presence of officers at parks (not just sitting in their car in the parking lot)
- Mandatory training classes REGARDLESS of breed. Do some research into bite strength. Pitbulls are not top of the list. And I own Maltese Xs
- Consider a reduction in licencing fees if owners can submit proof of some sort of training or obedience course, or owner education seminar.
- There should be no restrictions on breed as there are no bad breeds or animals and just irresponsible owners. At no fault of the animal
- The pit bull lobby is out in full force. Don't cave in; These are dangerous animals. Just ban them already and save a life.

- Where there are feral rabbits, there are Coyotes. When the rabbits move on, so do coyotes. If hens are allowed in backyards, EXPECT Coyote
- "Bike paths thru offleash parks need rules for bikers vs dogs.
- Sledding at off leash parks should be banned. Unsafe for kids and dogs."
- There should be a one time life time license fee per pet
- PLEASE fence the dog parks all the way around and have bylaw officers do education regularly.
- The pit bull lobby is well orchestrated. You are not going to get a fair view of public opinion by reading comments on this issue.
- Singling out one "breed" is uncalled for. Problem dogs should be addressed when they are just that problem dogs
- Actual enforcement of penalties for aggressive, antagonistic small breed dogs.
- N/a
- Limit the amount of dogs/cats that can be in an apartment/condo or attached house. There's many apartments filled with 5-6 pets. Not kind.
- More off leash areas in the future south area of S.W. Calgary are needed. The farthest south one is in Southwood!
- There is no need to focus on the bully breeds. No the strength of the bite is not a good enough reason, and no I don't own one.
- Killed by a pit bull. <https://globalnews.ca/news/4464233/dog-attack-langdon-alberta-victim-identified/>
- its ridiculous that pitbulls are still being singled out. your misinformation about bully breed bites is irresponsible and disgusting.
- Calgary - please do not go down the road of breed discrimination. It is an uneducated approach.
- No mention of noise-some bark for hours in early am.
- Include expert opinion and research data on making some of these decisions.
- na
- There are other breeds of dogs that are much stronger than 'pitbulls'. Why are you not considering implementing restrictions on them?
- Fines need to increase for Animal Owners receiving the same fines repeatedly fines increase for not removing snow!
- More lower-cost spay/neuter options to reduce the homeless pet populations as well as more funding support for the Rescues trying to help.
- Higher fees for loose cats (considered outdoor) ie brought in multiple times
- Stop isolating pit bull incidents when its propagated by bad pet owners. Enforce mandatory training for all dogs over 40lbs.
- the bandana early warning system is a good idea, but does not currently take into account colourblind individuals
- Please do not include breed specific rules or exceptions.
- This survey should require some sort of verification of People completing it to reduce bias or spamming from various groups/people

- I think the city should consider a ban on apartments and condos enforcing a weight limit on pets. This is ridiculous.
- More accessible reporting and investigating of suspected animal cruelty.
- Increased penalties for neglecting dogs, abusing dogs, etc. Breeds should not be singled out. The owner should be held responsible.
- N/a
- More enforcement against owners who use school yards as off leash areas.
- No ideas
- I agree with more readily available off-leash areas in and around the city.
- Dangerous dog breeds have no place in a modern city.
- "Please consider the racist and classist roots of BSL
- <https://www.nathanwinograd.com/the-ugly-racist-underpinnings-of-pit-bull-laws/>"
- Dog owners (regardless of size) should have mandatory training sessions ensuring they know how to properly handle and train their dogs.
- Excessive noise violations should be met with mandatory training for dogs before a fine is issued. I.e a warning and training must happen.
- Fence all off leash parks.
- BSL doesn't work it has been proven time and time again. I believe we need strong pet regulations that apply to every breed !!!
- A well trained dog is well trained, regardless of breed. No need for discrimination.
- I would appreciate higher fines and more potential enforcement for dogs who are being emotionally/behaviourally neglected.
- Just google "pit bull death alberta". Nuff said.
- No
- Please don't single out Pitbulls and go down the road of breed discrimination. Very disappointed that this is even being discussed.
- I like the idea of having small dog only off leash parks. < 25lbs.
- No idea at this moment
- BSL is not the answer! My "pit bull" is not a threat to a single soul. Some dogs are dangerous, but that has nothing to do with breed.
- None
- Improvements to offleash parks like fencing and lights. Also, better management with shared off leash and bike path areas
- Increase funding for animal rescues to help with spay and neuter programs
- Increase screening process to own an animal and
- Treat dogs as individuals. Just because it's a pitbull doesn't make it more dangerous/ vicious then any other breed
- None

- The complaint process for continuing barking dogs really must be changed the idea of documenting barking dogs is total nonsense
- Mandatory pet owner training for those who obtain pets for the first time and for those who have bylaw infractions. Better enforcement of a
- Legislating pit bulls specifically won't reduce the frequency of bite incidents. Address problems as they arise, don't act on prejudice.
- Target the real problem, Pet owners, not the pets.
- I feel that discriminating against a particular breed is considerably narrow minded - lots of dogs can cause harm. Train the owners!
- Better enforcement of infractions, more neighbourhood patrols...
- Stop condemning "vicious" dog breeds. These are dangerous to animals and specific breeds causing increased panic and unnecessary euthanasia.
- Why should non-pet owners have to subsidize pet owners when considering additional facilities?
- Penalties for people who antagonize animals (approach/touch/hurt without asking) who then get hurt and blame the animal.
- Breed Specific Legislation never works!!! It's 2020 discrimination of any type against people, gender or anything should not be allowed.
- Animal limits should be based on size of house / enclosed yard space.
- Off leash areas w/o a fence should be fenced. It's the most stupid idea I've ever seen. All it takes is a single puppy chase a bunny.
- Breed specific legislation does not work.
- Lower fees for spay and neutering
- I am VERY against any breed specific legislation and I am ashamed that Calgary is even considering it
- Why is there discrimination against pit bulls? There is no scientific proof that a pit bull bite is any different than any other dog.
- If no problems caused, then it shouldn't be illegal.
- A breed ban is not an answer. It does not work. Owner education is the key.
- Pet friendly homeless shelters
- There are not enough off leash areas being included in new developments. Increase the number of off leash. Charging a small amount to use
- Please don't single out pit bulls! I would like to see higher fines for people that mistreat and neglect animals.
- No
- Singling out any breed is awful. I dont own Pitbulls but I know a few and they are wonderful. Why does anyone need 6 dogs? Limit that
- Regulate the pet training industry, promote and enforce the use of positive reinforcement training only
- My idea is to take breed-specific legislation and throw it out the window.

- I disagree with breed specific legislation. Pit bulls are not the problem, aggressive dogs and bad owners are.
- Better training and responsible owners goes along way to
- The best way to reduce outdoor feral cat populations is TNR (trap/neuter/return). Sterilize then return them to live their lives.
- Breed specific biased bylaws are not the answer. Manage incidents based on the animal and its owner, not its appearance.
- Concerned about the limit of dogs one person is allowed to walk at one time. Multiple dogs should be allowed if they are in control.
- Stop being prejudiced against pit bulls. The problem is not a dogs breed but the hand that raises and trains it.
- Bylaw for animal hoarding. Track of pet history and frequency of adoption to prevent abuse (i.e. cats adopted every winter, freed in spring)
- So many off leash parks aren't fenced in and should be. It can prevent so many dogs from chasing a rabbit or other animal
- I think the less the city is involved the better. People should have more freedom on the properties that they own!
- Offer [removed] let owners mandatory classes
- I don't own a bully breeds, but I know first hand that it is not a breed issue it's an owner and training issue. Stop BSL!!!
- Introducing goats/sheep as "pets" in same category as chickens to allow grazing and weed control both in private and public property.
- I do not support breed-specific bans. The issue is poor training and care from negligent dog owners, which can affect dogs of any breed.
- None at this time
- Penalize irresponsible pet owners, not the animal. Hire more bylaw officers to assist with backlog. Have them visit dog parks.
- Concerned about the narrow mindedness of breed specific bylaws.
- I think all of your suggestions regarding Bully breeds is highly discriminatory.
- N/A
- Breed specific bylaws do not work. They are being reversed in major cities. One breed is not the issue - real research needs to be done!
- breed specific rules and regulations is stupid. It has nothing to do with the animal and everything to do with the owner!!
- Breed specific legislation is abhorrent. Education, training, and enforcing rules regardless of breed is what's important.
- Breed discrimination does not work and is not based in fact. Stick to dealing with animals that are proven problems rather than breeds.
- Not to the bandana idea. I feel children should be taught to approach every dog with extreme caution and care. This may cause confusion.

- No
- I whole heartedly disagree with breed specific legislation. It's ridiculous, there is no such thing as a bad breed, only crappy owners.
- A breed of dog does not determine whether it is dangerous to the public - that is a result of training and appropriate management.
- Stop judging "pitbulls" as bad dogs. There is no such thing as bad dogs. Only bad owners who do not properly train there dogs!
- Honestly, you CANNOT go down the road of profiling "nuisance" dogs by breed. Pit bulls are amazing dogs. Bites should be case by case basis
- It's not right to single out Pit bully type breeds. From a Animal foster/vet tech, there are more cases of bites from Labs and small dogs.
- Stop breed specific legislation and maybe make an incentive for proper pet training. Cheaper licensing with proof of training program done?
- Please put "No Dogs Allowed" signs back up in parks/playgrounds. Soccer fields are not toilets. Winter is not an exception. Pickup feces!
- Create standards for what an "aggressive offence" actually is because people who are afraid due to their past make stuff up.
- Amenities and updates to certain off lease parks.
- Higher fines and more severe consequences for animal neglect, abuse and cruelty.
- Breed specific legislation is bad for everyone and doesn't work.
- Owners of dogs who bite should be able to report and start the process of investigation--not just the person bitten
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work. Any dog can become aggressive through trauma or bad owners.
- Pets bylaw shouldnt be breed specific. Fine the owners. Dont punish the animals.
- Breed legislation does not work and shouldn't even be considered!
- Encourage (or even require) pet owners take a course on responsible ownership, training and pet management prior to ownership.
- Renewal of annual licenses should include a mandatory short video on dog care, dog communication and practical dog training.
- It is proven that a German shepherd has a stronger bite than a pitbull. Creating laws based on myths and fear mongering helps no one.
- Nuisance dogs should not ever in any way be breed specific. There should not ever be a bully breed law. Make training a requirement for all
- Pit bull dogs are normally sweet and there are lots of dogs and people who can inflict damage on another. Penalty goes to the person.
- Balh
- Nope

- I really like the idea of animal ownership limits to be determined by the owner's abilities to manage and handle the animals appropriately.
- There is no need to single out any breed (specifically the bully breeds). This legislation would be most fair and effective if it was unbiased.
- Na
- Need to step it up on animal hoarding and unfit pet owners
- Bylaws shouldn't just be based on breed, any dog can bite. More focus on responsible ownership and training for dogs and their owners.
- I would appreciate giving housing and travel rights to those who have been prescribed an Emotional Support Animal.
- no
- I work with dogs, and BSL is bull. It is not a solution; it's a distraction. Provide low-cost, accessible dog training for license discounts
- There are a number of dog breeds that actually have a stronger bite than pitbulls. German shepherds, Dobermans, and Rottweilers. #EndBSL
- I believe that proper animal ownership should be enforced, and training should be mandatory.
- Discrimination against breeds and color coding with bandanas? Seriously Calgary, give your heads a shake.
- Dogs can chade/bite because they are scared. People (and their children) need to be educated about approaching dogs.
- Mandatory training for dogs of all sizes, like Obedience or the CKC Canine Good Neighbour program.
- Before you drive, hunt, or teach you need a license proving you know the risks and how to keep people safe. Do the same for a pet license.
- protection for owners that have nasty neighbors who lie that their neighbor's dogs are a nuisance in order to get them evicted or pets taken
- N/A
- I would like to see dogs over one year need to be spayed or neutered before they can use an off-leash park.
- Designation of some "small dog only" and "large-medium dog only" off-leash parks throughout the city to increase safer options to Calgarians
- I am disheartened by the suggestion of breed specific legislation. Appropriate training of animals should be mandatory no matter the breed.
- Nope
- Leave pit bulls out of the discussion.
- Breed Specific Legislation is NOT THE ANSWER to anything. The responsibility lies with the owner NOT THE BREED.
- Hire people to work the off-leash areas to fine people not picking up their dogs' feces. Would pay for itself.

- Barking dogs are not the problem, bad owners are. Lets focus on ensuring all animals have a safe healthy and appropriate environment to live
- BSL DOES NOT WORK!!
- You can't stereotype a dog due to its breed. I wouldn't muzzle my dog in public. Stick to dogs who have a history of abuse or issues.
- I am honestly disgusted by the fact you guys have the audacity to come after specific breeds. Remove that and you might get more support.
- It's needs to deal with leash length for dogs. Should not be allowed to walk / urinate on private lawns. I am constantly repairing grass.
- This is ridiculous and unfair!
- Microchips mandatory for cats and dogs, then lower the licensing fees as owners will be easier to locate/fine. NO BREED SPECIFIC BYLAWS.
- A separate off leash license should be considered with proof of training required before animals can participate at off leash parks.
- Breed specific legislation is absolutely ridiculous. Educating owners and the PUBLIC is most important! And we need to ENFORCE the rules.
- No idea
- Stop singling out pitbull breeds. It is incredibly discriminatory and only contributes to the myth they are dangerous.
- Fines for off leash pets in on leash areas.
- -
- I personally think it is ridiculous to have a cat bylaw that keeps them indoors. Totally ridiculous!
- The dogs aren't the problem the owners are, don't penalize everyone by generalizing "pitbulls" because they "might" hurt someone.
- Suggestions regarding pit bulls are discriminatory. Penalize problem owners, not the breed. Offer nuisance owners mandatory obedience class.
- I think enforcing Breed Specific Legislation is ridiculous. It's not the breed it is the owner. Owners should have to go through training.
- "City of Calgary should take more responsibility in fully fencing designated off-leash areas.
- Remove discrimination of pitbulls."
- I don't agree with the BSL. People with bad ways of raising any animal can cause them to lash out. Not just bully breeds.
- Regulate dog trainers based on modern industry standards and evidence based studies. Ban the use of shock, prong, and choke style collars.
- I feel there needs to be more power for by law officers to intervene when it comes to calls of animals in distress or neglect.
- Education programs for anyone who wants to own any animal. Breed specific legislation is [removed], and doesn't reduce the # of incidents.

- This "proposal" is [removed]!! "Bulls" do NOT have a stronger bite than some other breeds!! Shepards, etc! They are loveable amazing pets!!!
- Breed Specific Legislation is absolutely ridiculous and does not belong in Calgary! We need rules that foster responsible owners, not BSL!
- Keep breed specific language out of this. There are no bad dogs, only bad dog owners!
- super unfair your asking so many negative questions about pitbulls. I've worked in the industry for 20 years, chihuahuas are more dangerous
- Breed specific legislation is wrong! Pitbulls/terriers must NOT be treated differently than any other breed!
- I would like there to be an incentive for dog owners that enrol and successfully complete obedience training with reputable licensed trainer
- Do your actual research city of calgary on pitbulls and pitbull breeds. Stop being discriminatory to a single breed. Get factual evidence.
- Calgary Humane Behaviourists be on the Tribunal and assess animals prior to return to home and recommend training.
- OWNER HISTORY, WHO is taking care of the animal WHO is the animal surrounded by. BAN those who have failed to take care of an animal.
- Yes, dogs biting a person trespassing or committing a crime on a private premises should not be a offense to be fined over.
- In order to renew license owner must do an online course. Giving them all the bylaw information. If they pass the class 100% get a discount
- It is embarrassing that breed specific legislation is even being proposed here. Look at the facts, this is ridiculous.
- The idea that pitbulls bite harder than other breeds of a similar size has no scientific founding.
- I feel we need higher fines for irresponsible cat owners that let their cats roam and not burden the the neighbor that has to deal with poo
- No breed restrictions!!
- Breed Specific Legislation does NOT work! Punish irresponsible owners, not specific breeds or types! #endBSL #dontbullymybreed
- Reduced licensing fees for animals who complete registered training. No matter breed type.
- There are many pit bulls without aggression problems. Decisions should be made on the individual dog's behaviour and not based on breed.
- Breed specification is absolutely discriminatory, against our freedom, and totally absurd !
- The owners should be held responsible for the animals actions. They should be required to do certain things such as obedience classes
- No
- Small dogs are considered more of a nuisance and are more likely to bite humans and other dogs. I don't understand why the focus is on pits.
- Breeds have nothing to do with nuisance dogs. Calgary is better than that. Owner's carry the responsibility of a dog's behavior, not the dog

- I think we need to educate cat owners about allowing cats to roam at large. They defecate in people's vegetable gardens
- No comment
- A breeder should be licensed and held responsible to spayed or neutered animals they sell, to control homeless pet population.
- Bylaws shouldn't just be based on breed, any dog can bite. Focus more on responsible ownership and training for dogs and less on the stigma.
- No one likes yellow grass caused from dog pee. Perhaps people should be encouraged to have dogs pee on mulch or other instead?
- Could bees be part of this?
- There needs to be fines for those who tease/ antagonize pets on walks as well as those who go to dog parks to annoy pets. This is unsafe
- I am absolutely disgusted but the wording in the phase 1 survey. The wording seems completely uneducated. Pit bulls are not a type of dog
- Pitbull rules are discriminatory and not based on sound science. Everything should be discretionary. Nuisance breeds and animals dont exist.
- The city needs to invest in more off leash areas. Possibly making areas designated for large breeds and small breed dogs.
- who came up with the attached breeds to pitbull, who came up with pitbull being problematic, staffordshire bull terriers are not dangerous
- no
- All animals should be treated equal unless they have proven to be a "risk" to public. I do not support segregation of certain species.
- As proven in other large cities, restricting breeds or essentially punishing a specific breed DOES NOT WORK. It is an owner based problem
- Teams of volunteers educating dogs owners in dog parks about basic community rules and commands (recall, behavior, etc)
- [removed]
- How about the welfare of pit bulls? They are dogs, dogs bite when provoked, especially if an owner does not train their animals properly.
- Targeting pitbulls or dogs that have pitbull like traits should not be considered. Owners of nuisance dogs should be trained.
- BSL is developed on the concepts of the misinformed society.It talks about bite force being specifically high in this survey, which is false
- There should be signs at the entrance of each dog park stating and explaining dog behaviour. Along with ok and not ok play etc.
- Breed specific legislation shouldn't effect those with service dogs of these breeds/breed characteristics.
- Don't target dog breeds

- Bylaws should not include breed. Any animal breed/species can bite and inflict injuries on people. Focus on responsible pet ownership.
- Sue Higgins off-leash is phenomenal esp. large, multi-fenced in areas. An equivalent in NW would be great. (Coyote-free)
- Fines for dogs off leash on the bike path.
- Don't single out Pit Bulls by name. People need to be aware that any reasonably sized dog can do a lot of damage. Its not the breed.
- The bylaws in place are already INCREDIBLY poorly upheld. What's the point in doing all of this review without addressing that?
- It's outrageous that there is such a stigma about one specific breeds. Perhaps the city should look into more affordable training for owners
- I believe cats should be allowed to roam free outside. They instinctively return home and are happier they are also great pest control.
- Please don't fall into the breed trap. Owners are responsible for raising dogs. Stereotypes of dogs are just as harmful as they are of humans
- No
- More enforcement of off leash dogs in the city that are not in off leash areas
- That this is Discrimination against pitbulls it's disgusting any dog can be aggressive and this singles out them
- I think that it would be extremely helpful for reduced-fee programs for rescued animals or reactive animals to receive training.
- I just want to add that focusing on particular breeds is counter productive. Don't buy into myths. Focus on humans taking responsibility.
- Become more educated on dog breeds. What you are currently suggesting with "pit bulls" is genocide- this is discrimination/racism
- what a waste of time, really sad that the city has to refer to certain breeds of dogs as a nuisance. Pit bulls aren't inherently bad dogs.
- Stop the breed specific nonsense, ignore the vocal minority who are scared and rarely interact with dogs.
- None
- Stop supporting the current pit bull type hysteria and start focusing on specific problems with individual animals and their owners.
- There should be zero breed specific conditions to a bylaw - any breed of dog can be a risk if they have been mistreated/abused.
- Do not single out Pit Bulls. Issues with dogs is the owner, and how they treat the animal and how they train the animal. Ban the owner.
- See my comment under limiting animals permitted on a property. Breeding licences/approval, mandatory insurance, mandatory puppy/training
- The public should be educated on dogs and their behavior. The bite force of a dog is determined by the size of the mandible not by its breed.

- Roaming outdoor cats. Owner gets a letter from bylaw, Many complaints later nothing changes. City never enforces the bylaw. FIX IT
- Any dog can bite. And most often it's bc of the way they are treated or if someone antagonizes the dog. Don't discriminate based on breed.
- Breeds are not vicious or mean, humans make them mean. To ban pitbulls is the same as banning a race
- Discriminating a dog by a breed is irresponsible and ignorant. Each dog needs individual approach and trained appropriately, but not banned.
- None
- If Licenses are available through vendors - I support this initiative providing the cost of the licenses do not increase.
- Please stop using pit bulls as your example of a nuisance breed. I've been bitten more times but a small dog. Blame the owner, not the breed.
- Pit bulls should have to be neutered/spayed by 6 months old within the city limits.
- Breed discrimination should never be an option for educated and responsible pet ownership.
- Stop going after a "specific" breed of dog due to biased bullshit stereotypes. I'd rather have a pitbull than a chihuahua
- I know its AHS, but allowing well behaved dogs into pubs/restaurants/stores that want to be dog-friendly would be great.
- I think in dog parks there should be certified training signs for owners about dog behaviour and reminders to always remain calm in dog park
- I think this is a discrimination to bully breeds and if you are going to own one u should have to know how to raise one.
- I think this is ridiculous that breed specific policies are even being considered. Lets keep things science-based and not on myths.
- I oppose any and all laws that are breed targeted or breed-specific.
- STOP SELLING ANIMALS IN STORES. SHUT DOWN [personal information removed]! STOP BLAMING DOGS - BLAME THE OWNERS
- Increased education and fines for dogs off leash outside of off leash parks including in the owners front yard or in residential neighborhoods
- BSL will not help the fact that people are not responsible for their pets. Nor will fines. We need to support community education.
- dog viciousness is not always due to the animal so look at the human and start there. And do access the dog and see if its still trainable.
- It is incredibly disappointing to see the suggestion of breed specific language being added to a bylaw. Shame on whoever wrote this nonsense
- It is wrong to single out pitbulls specifically. The note that pitbull bites are stronger is false and not based on any scientific fact.
- Actually making cat owners responsible for their wandering cats, implementing huge fines for owners who allow their pets outside.

- Stop picking on pit bulls and bully breeds. They make great pets and companions.
- There are many rules but minimal enforcement. Fines could easily pay for a bylaw officer to ticket dogs off leash, owners leaving waste etc
- "Please do not introduce any BSL guidelines.
- We all know pit bulls are often a product of their environment."
- Look up the history of Pitbull breeds and understand that smaller dogs are more aggressive and have worse temperaments than big dogs. Bi
- Breed Specific Legislation is wrong. It's cruel and it does not work.
- Pit bulls are not the problem. Stop doing this.
- Don't restrict Pitbulls. Other "acceptable" bully breed types such as German Shepherds and Dobermans also have exceedingly strong bites.
- Limiting the # of animals someone lives with is wrong. A person can dedicate their life to multiple animals and provide a great home!
- no
- There should be hefty fines and enforcement for dogs off leash on bike paths. Many cyclists are injured. Owners need to teach or leash.
- It's atrocious that you would consider signalling out the pitbull breed. It's an owner and life events that make a dogs behaviours. Not a bree
- .
- Prohibit the sale of dogs in pet stores. Calgary is the last city in western Canada with a store that sells dogs, it's archaic.
- Ban terrible people not pit bulls. People should undergo a screening process before getting a bully breed. Stop dog fighting rings!
- I would like to see a commitment that there be no restrictions of any kind based on breed. Breed based restrictions are fear mongering.
- Pitbulls should not be singled out. I have have many more issues with small breed dogs than I have with pitbulls. Blame the owner.
- Allow dog owners to reduce fines by attending obedience courses. Owners need to be held to a higher standard, not the breed of dog.
- I'm appalled at the singling out of pit bulls. Attention should on owner accountability and responsibility and not breed blaming. Shameful.
- "Bylaw should be put collecting cats the way they do dogs.

- Do you know how many birds/fledglings die because cats roam free? Too many!"
- Definitely higher fines for irresponsible cat owners. Cats do not need to be outside, people only think they do. Too bad we can't trap them.
- Encourage dog owners to take training/socialization classes by providing free classes or incentives to enroll (such as discounted fees)

- I believe dog owners should have to take training., understanding the breed and natural behaviours and potential risks they are assuming.
- Breed specific legislation? If you give a [removed] about animal welfare you'll remove this from your descriptions.
- I really think our city needs to look and what they are going to do to protect animals. In the majority of cases humans are the cause...
- seriously, don't make owners of pit bulls pay for having them. A lot are rescue dogs. Stop targeting certain breeds!
- Stores should not be allowed to sell animals. They are living beings and not products! Take away business permits to places like [personal information removed]
- Stop discriminating against pitbulls
- "pit bulls" are not more powerful then MANY other breeds of dogs that are far more common. It's factually incorrect.
- "Need more access 2 spay and neuter programs
- Stop discriminating against breeds - a dog is a dog."
- Educate people about dog behaviour and stop breed bullying. Bite strength is about jaw size, and pits aren't the strongest either.
- Enforce more: people that walk their dogs off leash in public spaces and when asked to leash up always respond "oh but he/she is friendly"
- Owners can be a bigger problem than the animal, education / medication (sometimes needed) and training can help resolve a lot of issues
- Can't believe this city is dumb enough to think about introducing BSL and punishing responsible pitbull owners. Huge disappointment.
- "More enforcement of off-leash dogs on community sports fields.
- More enforcement of leashed dogs on sports/ school fields."
- More enforcement at city parks AND city waterways where people let their dogs off leash in the Bow to swim near kids. Not off leash areas!
- "Stop singling out one breed. Yes they are strong but so are other breeds.
- I have more fear of the tiny yappy dogs biting me."
- the city needs to address pets in stores. I respect service animals but many stores are allowing more than service animals. I have allergies
- Are you kidding me?! VERY sad to see the city singling out Pit bulls. They make amazing family pets.
- I have always been proud of Calgary for not engaging in BSL. Please don't let us down! Educate and enforce bylaws.
- There is nothing wrong with pitbulls. Doesn't matter if you have a pitty or a chihuahua if you can't raise it that's on you. Blame the owner
- Please don't single out pit bulls! I would like to see higher fines for people that mistreat and neglect animals.

- "Stop the sale of animals in pet stores! Higher fines and jail time for animal abuse.
- Have much stricter breeding bylaws and enforcement."
- Someone said dogs shouldn't be off leash on bike paths. That's already a rule but there should not be bike paths in off leash dog parks.
- Stop stereotyping a breed!! The breed is not the problem it's the crappy owners!
- Non cat owners: Need support to keep cats out of gardens and spraying my house please!
- Pit bulls are not bad breeds
- Rescue, rehoming, breed rescue organizations should be licensed and regulated and annually inspected by SPCA to ensure animal welfare.
- Hens for economic household sustainability
- I'm so disappointed in these potential Pit Bull restrictions. Calgary had one of the best reputations for punishing the deed not the breed.
- Stop singling out pitbulls.
- I don't agree with banning specific breeds, however owner screening and mandatory (affordable and mandated) training must be completed.
- I think singling out pitbulls and all other bully breeds is absolute [removed]!! Very ashamed of you Calgary. Very.
- owners accused of abusing any animals should never legally aloud to own an animal again
- Educating the public (especially children) on how to behave around pets in shared public spaces ie. never approach an animal without asking
- [removed]
- When you purchase your dog license, you should be able to buy a second tag with the same registration number for a small additional fee.
- More enforcement for owners not picking up feces. Many parks have repeat offenders. A system where other park users can report them.
- Punish the owner NOT the breed, heavily fine ALL owners of dogs that bite, are aggressive or nuisance. This will eliminate bad dogs.
- Based on the phase 2 questions, I am guessing phase 1 did not include anyone from the Northern Hills because you missed the issues here.
- Do not allow stores to sell pets [personal information removed]. No reputable breeder would give their puppies to them. It's a disguised puppy mill.
- Pit bulls should not be written in the bylaw specifically. There are lots of dogs that can be aggressive. This needs to be re-assessed!
- There should be no breed bias at all. There are many reasons for dogs being an issue and almost all stem from owners. Need to have education
- Higher fines for outdoor cats and make it more publicly known that there are fines for "Outdoor cats"
- Don't blame the breeds. Owners need to train their pets properly. Big dogs are more gentle than small noisy dogs (like mean chihuahua)

- Start subsidizing humane societies so they can hire trained professionals at an appropriate pay to train the excessive amount of shelter dog
- Nuisance barking is allowed too much leeway. By law officers should be able to ticket after 3 complaints.
- If you researched dog breeds before making this pit bulls would not be singled out. End the stigma behind bully breeds. I'm disgusted.
- Licensing fees should not be reduced for "low income" households. It should be the same for everyone
- No.
- O
- Any dog has the potential to be aggressive in the hands of the wrong owner. The breed bias here must be reassessed.
- What about the small dogs on retractable leashes attacking pitbulls and their owners? Banning a breed isn't a solution.
- Singling out a certain breed due to them being "stronger" in any way is not okay in any circumstance. Any dog can have a strong bite.
- Instead of simply always taking a dog with a problem enforce something like training instead, maybe even require behaviour classes
- Any dog can be aggressive if brought up to be. It is ALWAYS on the owner and how they train their dog. Stop singling out pit bulls.
- So a pit bull is here because they are strong... what about a Great Dane or an Irish wolfhound? Don't see them being discriminated against.
- Pitbulls are the most abused, euthanized, and abandoned breed. They're born with the stacks against them already because of biases like this
- A number of offences in the current pet bylaw are sufficiently broad to allow over-reporting by neighbors angry about something else.
- No breed specific legislation!!! All dogs can be vicious and attack don't single out one certain breed or any dog that has these characteristics
- Don't let [removed] neighbors get out of control with their numerous calls.
- I would like to see more enforcement in natural park areas where dogs shouldn't be off leash but are.
- it is very disappointing to see you single out a breed. Do you care about animals or [personal information removed]?
- The city should be embarrassed that BSL is even being considered. Complete ignorance! Punish irresponsible owners, not breeds!
- People need to be educated. Behaviour issues almost always stem from the owner, not the breed. BSL does not work and is ignorant.
- Creating an online resource which is Endorsed by the city to have quick access to information about breeds, breed history and temperament f
- I don't believe that pit bulls should be treated any different than any other breed

- More awareness and fines for dogs off leash - many pet owners of large dogs seem to think it's not a problem even when not in offleash park
- Dogs do not belong in stores, restaurants or shopping centers. People who experience anaphylactic allergic reactions should come first.
- Chs: "deterrents to dog aggression are responsible breeding, responsible homing, responsible and humane training, and responsible ownership"
- Please do not in act BSL. it is completely ridiculous to target out a type of dog .
- NA
- BSL is completely ignorant. I'm embarrassed to be in a city that is even considering this after thinking we were better than that.
- I do not support breed-specific legislation. Stop trying to vilify pit bulls. The scientific data doesn't support these claims.
- Steeper penalties for people who abuse/neglect animals and more support for frontline workers. PTSD. Don't single out pit bulls
- "Breed specific banning or restrictions is barbaric and cruel:
- Focus on irresponsible pet owners and repeat offenders"
- A ban on retractable leashes would be nice. They reduce the ability to affectively control dogs.
- No idea
- Extremely disappointed that Calgary officials still believe in BSL enough that it would even be mentioned.
- Thought this was about responsible pet ownership so why are you punishing a breed and not the irresponsible owners?
- Nope
- Your officers need training on when to take animals from people who are abusing them!
- Absolutely disgusted by the attacks on pitt breeds. Bad dogs are products of bad owners, and no one breed should be demonized.
- Intervention or fines for unwanted behaviours need to be assessed on a case by case basis. There are many factors involved.
- Free roaming and feral cats are a threat to wild birds and their babies. Calgary should set a good example as a progressive city!
- "Please support spay neuter programs! Wait lists are
- months long for low cost and way longer for no cost options. Please support shelters!"
- n/a
- Leashes should NOT be retractable as you don't have even half the control you do as normal 2ft leashes. It's to easy to have a dog take off
- If you actually want input, you should provide a form with a recaptcha that doesn't break every time. Lost an hour to this across 4 attempts
- Judging a dog by breed is like generalizing people by the color of their skin

- Standardized testing and certification for service dogs. Too many untrained dogs running around with "service" vests.
- I don't understand how you can specially separate and segregate a certain breed-pit bull as its own question
- You mentioned 6 dogs and 6 cats but that is ridiculous. I would limit it to 2 dogs OR 2 cats ONLY!
- Totally discussed with this survey, whoever wrote this is uneducated and perhaps should spend a month working at the local SPCA!
- Disgusted that BSL would even be considered. There are plenty of breeds with the potential to cause a lot of harm NOT just Pit breeds.
- This kind of deliberate demonization of a specific breed is despicable. I thought the City of Calgary was better than this. BSL DOESN'T WORK
- no.
- What about the little dogs that run up and "nip" big dogs and then the big dog gets punished for biting back??
- More education put out about why we shouldn't let cats roam free and maybe an easier way to report them? No fine on the 1st offence though.
- Dog breeds should not be singled out in any way. There needs to be harsher penalties for animal cruelty, abandonment, and owner neglect.
- Don't degrade one type of breed, any dog is capable of being aggressive or abused if not trained or taken care of or properly controlled.
- No
- I would like to have high fines for stealing, fighting and using dogs as bait
- No bylaw should be breed specific - pit bull terminology should be dropped in all cases The breed is not the problem the owners are-
- Just keep the same by law.
- Pit bull lives matter
- Absolutely no breed deserves to be singled out due to any reason whatsoever. Get educated and cut the [remove].
- Shock collars should be banned
- na
- A bylaw restricting the amount of dogs that dog walkers are to walk at one time. Also must hold a city business licence and insurance
- Breed should not matter! Pet owners who have multiple violations or history of aggressive animals shouldn't be able to own anymore
- pls don't be mean to pitbulls :(
- "license with no fees - just mandatory register your pets
- Grace period for nuisance violations for new pet owners allowing time to train"
- Breed specific rules are archaic! Let dogs who are bad be punished, not dogs who have never done anything wrong :(

- No
- No
- No breed specific rules!
- "- I have concerns over breed specific language."
 - more could be done about outdoor cats who leave their property"
- Rules should be based on all breeds and not specific to one... any animal has the potential to harm not just one breed
- No BSL. Period. The end. Those who think it's always "pitbulls" have no idea what they're talking about.
- I would feel so much safer if pitbulls were restricted and used in public.
- Breed specific legislation is horrible, cruel, and an unacceptable means of addressing the issue.
- None
- Just ask the ex mayor of Montreal if breed specific bylaw is a good idea: he lost his job over it.
- Nuisance dogs and pitbulls need to be held accountable and restricted accordingly before they hurt someone.
- Breed specific rules are not a progressive way of thinking. The owner is more responsible for a dog bite than the dog is
- NO BSL! It is completely unfair to single out any one breed over another. It is an absolutely uneducated legislation.
- "All dogs need to be kept on leash everywhere that is not an off-leash park.
- Pit bulls are no different from any other dog breed."
- catalog owners of biting dogs and restrict their ability to own dogs without professional training. Have them face jail for noncompliance
- Used to be okay with pit bulls until we were attacked by 2. There needs to be accountability for people who get aggressive dogs.
- I'm 100% against cat spay/neuter/release programs due to the disastrous effect on wildlife/birds and native species.
- End breed specific legislation, it's not fair. There should be better ways to ensure pet safety than being breed specific
- Stop breed specifying. Dog racists
- For dog and cat per household maximum the square footage of yard and house should be an important factor. 6 cats in a tiny 1 bdrm apartment?
- Raise the yearly fees. Use this extra money to pay for enforcement of behaviour training for dogs that bite. No BSL and no euthanasia.
- The problem most generally comes from training-- not from breed. Let's move away from BSL and into a more progressive approach.
- Leave pitfalls and pitbull types alone. I have been bit by small dogs and owners don't care. Maybe along with licensing you have training

- Pitbulls should not be singled out as a dangerous breed. Every dog should be treated the same until there is a legitimate reason otherwise.
- Have you ever been bitten by a Rottweiler? A German Shepard? They are just as strong as pitbulls, and just as likely to bite. BSL is [remove]!
- Pigeon holding bully breeds is unfair to the dogs, and is misguided
- BSL is outdated!! Its the owners responsibility to train their dog. Everything else is case by case, breed legislation should be too.
- Pigeons are nuisance animals. Not pets. Color identifiers on pets are discriminatory, how about just educate your children to not touch?
- I am disgusted that the city is exploring Breed Specific Legislation. Everyone I have ever met that agrees with BSL is extremely uneducated.
- Someone periodically handing out fines to those who refuse to pick up after their dogs at off leash parks.
- If "No problem breeds only problem owners" then owner's of dogs that bite should not be allowed to own again for 10 years and do training
- No
- BSL Is not ok, you can't single out a specific breed.
- I feel cats should be able to roam outside so long as they are licensed. I feel strongly that there would be fewer mice in neighbours' homes
- BSL is ineffective. Restricting a breed does nothing to prevent people from messing up another breed. Education is key.
- I do not agree with breed specific legislation. I do however think there should be lifetime pet bans for irresponsible owners
- More garbages in OL areas, more enforcement in OL areas, more education re off leash parks, easier access to rpt nuisance pets
- Reduced fees for attending training as in most instances, since many of the issues are caused by ill informed pet owners.
- BSL doesn't work!! All dogs need to be leashed and owners need to be responsible for them at all times! It's the owners not the dogs!!!
- None of this works if there isn't bylaw enforcement. Local parks - Bowness, Bowmont for example - should have daily patrols by bylaw officer
- I do not support any form of breed specific legislation.
- Pitbulls are amazing and it is directly related to the owner if an animal is aggressive. Stop blaming the dog and take a look at the owners.
- BLS HAS BEEN SHOWN TIME AND TIME AGAIN THAT IT DOES NOT WORK. IT IS DISHEARTENING THAT THE CITY IS CONTEMPLATING EVEN A WATERED DOWN VERSION
- "Stop stores from selling dogs and cats.
- Make extenda leashes against the law"
- BSL is insane. Especially when backed with false info. GSD's and rotties both have more bite psi but we never hear about wanting to ban them

- Fines for barking
- Train the owners. Provide better help program. Provide the solution when people see the problem. Provide them what they are doing wrong.
- No breed specific anything it is not the breed that is a problem its improper training/care
- Start enforcing the current bylaws! What's the point in changing the bylaws with no enforcement? ie. Off leash areas, picking up feces...etc
- The breed is not the problem. It's the owner
- BSL does not work to reduce dog bites. A 2010 Toronto Humane Society survey found no change in the number of dog bites before and after BSL.
- Please reconsider singling out pitbull types.
- It's not dog breeds that are bad, it's bad owners
- No to bsl
- BSL fails to address the real problem of harmful owners who breed and raise dog to encourage violent qualities. We need education, not a ban
- i think there should be more coverage at local dog parks. Theres alot that happens there without any officials being near by.
- There is only one true American Put Bull terrier. The dogs you are condemning with BSL are overwhelmingly mutts and not actually "pit bulls";
- Breed specific laws are outdated and have proven multiple times that they do not work. It's archaic and completely ignorant.
- There needs to be a time where a dog barks but can be outside. Such as 20min. Right now there is no specified time and it is confusing.
- There needs to be patrolling of on and off leash parks .In 22 years, I have seen one By-Law officer.Need a Bark Watch Program.
- Electronic noise radar available for rent to record and validate noise complaints of nuisance pets and assist in fines and court cases.
- I agree. If it's problem owners not problem dogs then the owners should need to get certified and not be able to own for ten years.
- I think the specific restrictions on pit bulls is disgusting and if that law is passed Calgary should be ashamed.
- No breed specific bans or special treatment! Any breed of dog can be aggressive, owners should be held accountable to do mandatory training
- It's very hard to tell if it's a bad owner until an incident occurs. Then in most cases, it's too late. The penalties are much too lax.
- Pit or bull type dogs should not be part of any bylaw discussion. Somewhat disgusted that my city would consider this. I do not own a pit.
- BSL doesn't work.
- I watch the news everyday... Twice. I saw nothing on this and missed phase 1. I feel that breed specific legislation is abhorrent.

- There should be no BSL. The problem lies with the owners, they should impacted, NOT animals.
- Disappointed the city is considering BSL in the bylaw. The reasoning that pitbulls have a stronger bite is absurd. It's also discriminatory.
- No ideas
- No
- strict rules for private pet sitting businesses. Often causes distress to neighboring pets. Strict rules and regulations
- Breed specific bylaws do not work (as seen in other provinces). It's bad owners that need to be addressed and educated. No to BSL!!!
- "Outdoor cats" should be banned unless harnesses and leashed in a backyard. The fine should be $1500. A cat unleashed is never going to stay
- Training for humans is important. Children must display appropriate behavior around animals. Small dogs instigate a lot of fights in parks.
- Livestock should be clarified. Hens/ducks/pigs what is and isn't allowed for urban areas.
- More patrolling of parks/off leash areas by By-Law officers, not only to enforce regulations, but to connect with the public.
- There are no problem dog breeds, just problem dog owners. Please stop picking on pitbulls.
- There needs to be a time where a dog barks but can be outside// More garbages in parks for owners to put dog's waste....
- No
- None
- Remove any mention of pit bulls or specific breeds. What an absurd thing to have to suggest in 2020. Targeting a breed does not work.
- Increased rents for those larger dogs that do not have a history of bad behaviour should be looked into
- 2016 calgary choose not to implement BSL and still managed to reduce bites. "Pitbulls" are NOT the problem.
- I think we need to offer more resources to pet owners instead of taking their rights away.
- If the animals are in a persons yard, contained and not causing a disturbance then no fees to the animal owner.
- The pitbulls bylaw idea is crude and disappointing to read, as it all stems from how the owner is NOT the breed.
- Feces cleanup is an issue and I do not see it being enforced. Fines are only relevant if enforced.
- I don't understand why we are still singling out pit bulls and bull breeds as different from any other dog. No bad dogs, just bad owners!
- Some type of financial assistance for lower income pet owners, who wish to get their dog obedience training.
- Mandatory training to obtain dog license (like with driver's license).
- No

- ...
 - Require an obedience refresher and a behaviour analysis in order to keep a pet license valid. Not breed specific.
 - stop villainizing specific breeds and focus on owner responsibility and training
 - More enforcement to deter dog owners that always have off leash dogs in on leash parks or areas . This problem is actually become way worse
 - Please stop discriminating against pit bull type dogs. You have a system in place that has worked wonderfully, there is no need to change it
 - Cats at large are a big problem I would like to see cat fines at $250
 - Spaying or neutering a dog should not be enforced as it staves off cancer in certain breeds
 - Human brutality to animals is not being covered. Restricting a breed is the wrong move , it owner require training not the breed
 - Rather than focusing on a specific breed for aggression why not crack down on bad owners and breeders?
 - Education is always better. When a pet is registered they should get a voucher to a force free training facility. Or when a fee is issued
 - Remove the pitbull wording from this, the dogs are NOT the problem, the owners are , they should NOT be labelled .
 - I don't think cats should be licensed. They are cats..... unless they are outdoor cats. No licensing for indoor cats
 - "Mandatory and free pet training for all first time pet owners.
- Fine for humans who touch dogs without owner permission"
 - Do NOT make breed specific laws, it's completely unnecessary. If a dog has a history of aggression then deal with that, not the breed.
 - Before making bylaws regarding animals, City Council should have to consult with wildlife experts, Certified Dog trainers and Veterinarians
 - Look at the bylaws / rules for off-leash parks. "No bicycle riding within the off-leash park" including children "walking" their dog.
 - TNR of the rabbits that roam Repsol Sport Centre. As cute as they are they're becoming invasive to the area.
 - Placing limits on how many dogs per handler while walking. Dog walkers with a pack of 3 or more dogs either on leash or off is unacceptable.
 - Breed specific legislation is not acceptable or necessary. Owner legislation for problem dogs with problem behaviours is!
 - People claim an animal is an ESA and demand the same treatment as a service dog. They are/should not be the same. Clear guidelines are needed!
 - Higher fines and quicker responses for barking dogs

- In addition to a low income pet licensing option, I would like to also see either lower impound fees for low income Calgarians.
- Do not discriminate dog breeds, deal with aggressive/nuisance or not obedient dogs with higher penalties.
- There should be a license implemented to pet owners. Just like we need a license to own guns or fish.
- "At my non-profit dog rescue, we offer free training with every single dog despite their breed.
- Dogs are individuals, BSL does not work."
- Pitbulls should not be singled out!
- Stop singling out pit bulls and instead focus on the people who train them to be mean
- No Breed Specific Legislation! Leave pit bulls alone!
- We need reps at offleash parks to educate and mediate where necessary, and we need a law against "outdoor dogs" - esp in winter. Not okay!
- Please look to progressive practices that respect all dogs as dogs rather than target specific breeds. I am so disappointed Calgary.
- Training, not breed bias. Many small K9s instigate attacks due to poor training/socializing but end up hurt due to responding K9's size.
- Pit bulls make amazing companions and have many myths surrounding them. Do your research!
- Pitbulls are sweet, beautiful animals and it is NOT fair to ban the breed because of bad owners!
- An education program to teach people about the dangers of approaching wildlife and domestic animals alike.
- Breed specific laws have been shown not to work and any dog can be aggressive. Mandate better training and hold negligent owners accountable.
- Do Not agree with Pittbull specific laws. That's terrible and discrimination against the dog and the responsible pet owners!
- Please do NOT implement a breed ban or any special restrictions based on breed. Any dog can bite and poor trained dogs exist in all breeds.
- Cyclists -of any age- should not be allowed in off leash areas
- STOP BREED DISCRIMINATION!
- Breed specific legislation makes no sense.
- Program to teach people to ask owners if ok to pet dog and not get upset when owner tries to show correct way of approaching!
- Focus more on providing resources for owners to train their dogs properly. A dog's behaviour is more due to their owner than themselves.
- Echoing what I already see in the comments. Pit bulls aren't the issue. Speak to animal therapy groups for insight (PALS)
- Why are we still singling out Pitbulls and bully breeds. Focus on responsible owners and training regardless of breed
- Focus on bad ownership and not specific breeds of cats/dogs.

- Please stop punishing animals for stupid people, pit bulls and bigger dogs aren't aggressive or the problem, it's humans doing a BAD JOB
- I would like to see that if a dog owner and cat owner takes a class on pet ownership they get their dog or cat license-free the first year.
- BSL only gives old people and [REMOVE] something to talk about. It would be nice if you could stop other people's cats from craping inmy yard
- na
- Let's get chickens approved.
- "More enforcement
- /reporting for ticketing people not picking up after their dogs. This is becoming more of a problem."
- Ban the sale of puppies/kittens in retail stores - only 1 location exists in Calgary
- place boxes of litter bags on walking paths , like the town of Canmore does.
- You need more bylaw officers enforcing leashing rules on in-city walking trails.
- N/A
- pit bulls or any bully breed dog SHOULD have the right to use off leash parks freely, AND WITHOUT muzzles unless owner seems neceasry
- License fees. Buy only once and its registered for the life of the pet. You get an online registered number on your account plus the tag.
- bylaw officers should be regularly be patrolling off leash dog parks and enforcing the bylaws.
- You are discriminating against dog breeds. That is unlawful. Focus on the real issues. Dogs off leash everywhere, feces everywhere etc.
- Breed specific legislation does NOT work. To introduce it now is taking a major step backwards for society.
- Pet ownership is expensive and a massive responsibility. If you are struggling to pay the standard licensing fee, how are you going to feed.
- Discrimination against specific dog breeds is a terrible idea. If a dog has been declared a nuisance then, yes, apply penalties.
- Liability insurance mandatory for dogs that have bitten. Higher fines. Dogs that have no obedience training banned from off leash parks.
- We should not discriminate against a certain breed, Pitbulls are not inherently dangerous. It all depends on how the dog is raised.
- No breed specific legislation. Deal with irresponsible owners don't punish dog breeds based on misinformation and fear mongering.
- No outdoor dogs. Huge fine
- Where is a review of the face covering bylaw? So much bullying and discrimination thanks to creating so much hysteria.
- I don't think it's fair to single out pitbulls. They are not dangerous unless someone trained them to be dangerous.

- Breed Specific Legislation is not the solution to problem behaviour in ANY dog. Education is the solution. Education keeps everyone safe!
- People with small dogs that are not trained should be looked at just as closely as large dogs.
- Focus on deterring bad owners, and not on punishing breeds due to bad owners. Calgary has been the rolemodel for responsible ownership.
- Stop picking on pitbulls. You literally said they do not have a higher number of bite incidents. Focus on training and resources for owners.
- No
- Discriminating against pit bull breeds won't solve dog bite issues. There are other more aggressive breeds, regardless of "bite strength"
- No
- I don't think it's fair that a licensing fee is charged for indoor cats. I'd support a bylaw that mandates a chip identification program.
- Bylaws should be focused on training and education rather than breed specific restrictions. Rarely is the breed the actual issue.
- Focusing on pit bull specific by-laws is wrong, small Breed dog bite more people than pit bulls combined
- Pit bulls are not the issue the stupid people with dumb dogs that are not trained are . Saying pit bulls are bad is [remove]
- Please no dogs inside shops!
- Anyone proposing a BSL hasn't done any research, it's about the owners. As a pitbull owner I will no longer be able to visit my family
- I am absolutely against any breed specific legislation. Over and over again studies have proved pit bull (and type) are not the issue.
- Education programs through schools in the city would provide a world of good. Children are too apt to run up to animals they don't know.
- "animals left in cars
- animals left outside year round in all kinds of conditions...
- retailers selling animals under the guise of adoption"
- There is an owner who allows his pit bull loose along the green space in Evergreen. Behind Evermeadow Avenue SW. Not acceptable.
- I have none.

- I don't anymore ideas to offer.
- Do not discriminate against certain breeds!!
- The questions were to subjective based on how a stranger perceived the interaction. Colour coded identifiers-awesome but personal accountabi

- Please stop pushing new bylaws we do need more laws and we already hate the by law officers why the heck is this even a debate?
- Mandatory training for all dogs, especially small breeds, that goes beyond ONE class. Training is lifelong. More focus on small breeds
- Livestock emotional support animals should only include certain species.
- There are no dangerous dog breeds there are dangerous dogs with irresponsible owners who have not trained or socialized their dog properly.
- Higher fines for dog bites. No breed specific rules.
- Breed specific by-laws are a huge step backwards!
- "I am 100% against breed specific laws!!
- Any dog can be aggressive, its how they are raised/raised, its not the breed its the owner"
- DO NOT discriminate against dog breeds .It's ALL on the owner to be responsible with there pet.
- No ideas
- Focus more on suppling resources I.e. cheaper/free neutering programs, cheap/free training programs, breed education programs. Educate.
- It is disgusting that you have tried to implement a bylaw targeting the pit bull breed. Police the owners not the breed.
- Stop punishing dog breeds for things that humans do. Bully breeds are some of the sweetest dogs!
- Do something about back yard breeders! Implementing licensing or registration would help ensure they meet standards and protect animals
- No
- Don't single out pitties. Maybe all dogs should have to pass socialization training before being permitted to go to the dog park.
- Breed-specific legislation is discriminatory, and fosters an environment of fear around bully breeds. This is a step backwards, not forwards
- Pit bulls should NOT be discriminated against!! I think it should be based off the animal behaviour not breed!
- No
- Outdoor cats (owned, licenced, not feral) should not be allowed. There's simply no reason for it. It's dangerous for the cat and disruptive
- "After 3 complaints against an animal owner they should have to attend behavior classes for both the animal and owner.
- A parenting class."
- Education for responsible pet ownership instead of creating BSL that are based off of a persons discretion as to what is a pitbull or not.
- Encourage teaching kids not to run in off-leash park dogs have a prey drive and running in a park.
- Provide obedience training as part of the system for addressing nuisance dogs. And offer it free so that low income owners have access.

- I think the city should do research in how to EDUCATE children on how to interact with dogs. A huge push to LEAVE them alone.
- I strongly disagree with the targeting of bully breeds in this survey.
- When multiple complaints have been received for a pet owner the authority should look into it further for the well-being of the animal. Also
- "Allow chickens and bees for residential keepers.
- Nuisance pet owners are worse than any particular breed. Keep an eye on them."
- I would very much support some type of program that makes access to training easier and more affordable. Pitbulls are not the problem.
- "Free dog bags dispenser at parks
- Only 3 cats max.
- barking if it's your own dog: higher fine
- Dog is a fostered rescue: no fine"
- I'm really concerned about the tone around breed specific legislation. This is morally and legally unsound and will undo so much
- Obviously anyone with a pit bull isn't going to be happy about the proposal and I have mixed feeling so would like to see more information
- The concept of "pit bull type" is archaic. Responsible pet ownership and training should be the standard not breed specific
- Responsible pet owner classes and seizures of animals if the owner are unable/willing to care for animals
- Pit bulls are not more dangerous than any other dog breed. Pit bulls have a bite force of 235 pounds, Rotties and German Shepherds have 238+
- Limit the number of dog and cat licenses per neighbor. There should be a long wait list to get a license in the beltline for dogs.
- BSL is a harmful stigma to the "pitbull";, other breeds are far more a risk and nuisance than a pitbull. More bad owners than bad dogs.
- "1. GET [Removed] WITH SINGULARING OUT PITBULL GET RID OF IT.
- 2. What about fining children who don't listen and pet my dog?"
- Mandatory training for fist time pet owners
- A breed ban is an awful idea and it simply doesn't work. Owners a bigger determinant of dog behaviour than the breed of the dog.
- Breed Specific Laws are a good way to show your ignorance.
- What is being done about backyard breeders? Would the maximum 6 dogs allowed partially help with this?
- The license fee for a cat or dog should be either reduced, waived or refunded when a dog is in a temporary foster home for a short period.
- Stop picking on pitbull breeds. First it was Dobermans, then Pinchers, then German Shepards, now Pitbulls. IT. IS. NOT. THE. BREED.

- The city and adoption organizations should prioritize and support dog obedience training more.
- Dogs should have to pass a behaviour test in order to use the dog parks. Stricter enforcement of dog parks.
- There is a need for more offleash parks in central north Calgary - Country, Panorama and Coventry Hills
- When animal licenses are paid, owners must sign an agreement to the bylaws regarding pet ownership and off leash park rules/etiquette
- I find it disgusting that the city would consider discriminating against a dog based on breed or appearance
- Covers a lot
- Targeting pitbulls specifically as a problem breed is the worst thing our city could do
- Bylaws should target the homeowners and pet owners, we need responsible ownership and people need to take accountability for their actions.
- n/A
- The notion of breed specific legislation is prejudice and unethical.
- more education on dog behavior and there body language should be the most important thing we focus on. off leash parks are a mess.
- Bully breeds should not be singled out. Many other breeds are of equal strength and just as likely to bite. No to BSL!
- None
- I do not support breed specific legislation that discriminates against specific breeds
- More education and enforcement is needed in regards to off-leash dogs in non off-leash areas.
- No new ideas
- No
- None
- Responsible pet ownership: mandatory spaying/neutering. Not for profit clinics help First Nations communities with this, City can do this to
- I strongly believe that charging high fines for problem behaviours reduces the ability to afford programs to train and rehabilitate
- Pets offer a lot of comfort and companionship. My dogs have been very important to the family during Covid and keeping our spirits high.
- Stop punishing bully breeds
- it has been proven that breed restrictions do not work, maybe actually consult veterinary professionals before making assumptions
- Focusing on one specific breed of dog is [removed]. It's not the dogs, it's the owners. BSL is horrible and better not pass.
- not too sure
- No
- Breed specific laws are a bad idea. The problem is nuisance animals with bad owners.

- "Breed specific legislation is not the answer.
- Stiffer consequences for repeat offenders. Including removal of animal if habitual offender."
- Breed specific legislation has been proven to not work time and time again.
- Breed specific legislation does not work. Education and access to training support for ALL breeds and dog owners keeps everyone safe.
- There should be more legislation for breeders. Some of them really don't treat the animals well and / or have way too many on a small space.
- Bylaws should be focused on training and education rather than breed specific restrictions. Rarely is the breed the actual issue
- Outdoor cats should not be allowed to just roam and use the world as their litter box. Cap on animals needs to be lowered. With exceptions
- The BSL will not help Calgary. Many breeds have stronger bites than Pit Bulls and you aren't worried about them. Blame the owners instead
- If any of these new by-laws get approved I believe it should be for all dogs no matter size or breed. Breed discrimination is not right
- I strongly believe a bsl will not do anything but cause issue, bylaw should focus on proper education of specific breeds.
- Pit bulls or dogs that look like pit bulls are not the issue. Whoever is supporting these ideas needs more education on the matter.
- Cats should be treated exactly the same as dogs on a leash at all times. Fines should be the same as well
- Responsible pet owners with licensed pets should not be fined if their animal escapes their property. Unless it's repetitive or aggressive.
- No breed specific by laws should ever be passed.
- Mandatory attendance at a behavioral animal session before purchase or adoption of an animal.
- Rules should not be breed specific, it shows a political reaction rather than an animal smart thought out law.
- animals should NOT be euthanized for aggressive behaviors. Instead they and owners be required to complete intensive behaviour retraining
- People living in a condo apartment that have approval for their cat(s) should not have to license the animal in addition to board approval
- Please stop singling out "pitbull" type breeds. More enforcement should be for ALL dog breeds that are aggressive.
- I do not agree with lumping all pit bulls and treating them as nuisance animals. Focus on actual nuisance animals not breeds.
- Bylaws should be focused on specific issues not specific breeds. The fact is ALL dogs can bite. ALL dogs can cause injury.
- "Why don't we focus on increasing fines for animal cruelty/abuse/neglect?"
- Stop stereotyping against certain breeds...humans ruin everything"

- The C of Calgary needs to crackdown HARD on owners who continue to walk dogs off-leash in residential areas.
- Don't discriminate against pit bulls. They aren't involved in more bites than others, and there are PLENTY of dogs that have "great strength";
- Breed-specific bylaws are a terrible idea. Please reconsider this terminology.
- Selling animals in retail stores should be banned.
- Indoor dogs and cats should have a lower licensing fee.
- N/A
- no
- increase in fines for barking dogs, more explicit wording that dogs who are barking need to be brought inside and not left in the yard.
- People need to learn that if a dog bites a human, most of the time it is the humans error. Not watching warning signs from the dog ect
- If people aren't comfortable with "pit bulls"; being in off leash parks - designate a FEW that are pit bull free, while allowing them in some
- Breed specific laws are outdated and show a lack of knowledge on the governments part. Focus on mandating responsible ownership
- For life pet licence
- Dont punish the breed, look at the owner and how they can grow and learn to do a better job
- Limited "farm"; animals on property with a city permit and city approved housing for these animals
- Your focus MUST remain on behaviour of owners, not the breed of dog.
- Bylaw officers need to respond faster and with less red tape paperwork. Owners are the problem - Not the dog. How to ENFORCE laws?
- None
- Barking dog complaints need change. Right now if someone complains about barking dog they have to be identified and go to court in order for
- Focus on owner awareness and training, not breeds. If you can't control your dog, don't let it off leash.
- Breed specific legislation has proven not to work in other cities. Consider incentives for training courses/cert (e.g., reduced license $).
- Stop with the specific breeds laws. Any dog can be aggressive.
- In case you missed it- BSL doesn't work. Claiming it's because the dogs are bigger and can do more damage just shows your lack of education.
- Due proper research before you sounds completely ignorant. Pit bulls and pit bull like breeds.
- Golden retrievers have the most reported bites. should we have special laws for them ?? What about cat scratches ? Leave pitties alone.

- Extremely disappointed in the inclusion of BSL (Breed Specific Leg) in this survey and the absolute lack of evidence based language. DO BETTER
- Don't discriminate against dog breeds. More damage is possible but not a guarantee will happen. Fear mongering isn't helpful.
- Increased bylaw presence to manage off leash dogs in on leash areas.
- It's not the "pit bulls"; fault it's the other end of the leash.
- The discrimination against pit bulls is ridiculous. Shepherds, Rottweilers and Great Danes are all equally strong and don't have a bad rep
- There should be mandatory pet training for new pet owners or repeat "offenders";. It's never the breed.
- STOP FEAR MONGERING! please. Its already impossible to rent a place if you have a pitbull. This could've been a convo on ownership. Ugh,WHY?
- Pit bulls are not the problem. It's the owner. Quit discriminating against the breed
- Absolutely no Breed Specific legislation, it is not the breed that is the issue but the owners of said animal.
- No breed specific legislation!
- No breed specific rules. Animal behaviour is the owners responsibility.
- A bylaw for residents who refuse to control or have removed pigeons that have taken up resident on their rooftops, under solar panels, etc.
- you're doing this against pits for their "strong bite" but there are many breeds with strong bites quit singling out pits.
- review status of Silbmer Springs Botanical garden as being an off leash area when the city built exactly that option just across the street
- Higher restrictions for dogs who have been aggressive, not based on breed. And address backyard breeders/puppy mills more effectively.
- Laws that single out pit bulls specifically is CRUEL and disgusting. Fear mongering. This will only result in more animals in the shelter.
- Bylaws should focus on training and education, not on breed specific legislation. Pitbull breeds deserve to be at dog parks as well.
- Landlords, especially corporate owned condos, should have to allow pets especially if pets have no history of bad behaviour.
- Fines for animals bites should be put into a fund for helping other animals/families with animals(spay neuterprogram/ licensing for LIF
- excessive barking at odd times 4am. Also dogs off leash one of whom jumped on a kid. People not picking up after their dogs ALL THE TIME
- "Pit bull"; breeds are not the issue, it's the lack of education towards reactive dogs and neglectful owners that cause more dog bites.
- Mandatory spay and neuter of pets by 6 months-1 year old besides registered breeders who must be assessed and obtain a license to breed.

- Fines higher for people who have their dogs off leash in an on leash park. These irresponsible dog owners cause incidents between dogs.
- Do not punish owners for having certain breeds, punish neglectful and irresponsible owners of any breed!!
- BSL is not, and is never a good option. Poor dog behaviour should reviewed on a case by case basis - not based on the breed.
- Target good dog ownership, don't punish a dog for being a pit bull.
- The city needs to be involved in the control of the urban feral rabbit population.
- Do not target the bully breeds. Classifying a dog by the shape of his head is wrong. Every dog is different and should be treated as such.
- I'm surprised there is no discussion on number of dogs allowed by dog walkers! In my opinion, no more than 6 is manageable.
- Careful condemning dogs that bite, some bite as a reaction to another dog's aggressive behaviour. This needs more of a holistic approach.
- No
- Please have more visible signage in on leash only areas that dogs that are off leash owner can be fined.
- Breed specific legislation is wrong! It will not stop bites. The owners should be held responsible
- Pitbulls are not the issue it is BAD OWNERS! Shame on the city for trying to implement BSL.
- Licensed breeders only. No retail selling of animals. Limit ownership per household to 2.
- Breed specific legislation is not the way to address nuisance dogs
- No more wandering licenced cats. Leashed in yard kust like a dog. I am sick of finding dead birds and mice on my property from the cat nxtdr
- No
- please put more enforcement/larger fines on animals at large (specifically cats). Huge nuisance having to clean up after other's cats
- Certain breeds or mixes should not have more rules in place than other breeds.
- Install cameras in off-leash parks so a complaint can be properly investigated. Many owners do not call their dogs from jumping on others.
- Behaviour training needs to be more affordable and accessible. Dog racism is not needed and won't solve anything!
- This is terrible. Pitbull breeds are the most loving and affectionate dogs I've ever encountered. It's the owner, not the dog!
- Pls increase fines for people who don't pickup after their pets ..as well as cats at large not everyone likes to clean up after others pets
- Breed specific legislation is a bad idea from the very start. Any breed can harm, any breed can be friendly.
- We're awfully focused on the negative - why can't good dogs have more off-leash privileges?
- Please actually have bylaw show up when there is a complaint.

- Additional bylaw needed for dogs being walked off-leash in on-leash areas.. There are too many owners that think it's okay..
- It is clearly stated that Pitbulls have no more bite offences than other dogs. Stop breed discrimination!
- Definitely against breed specific legislation, this is essentially dog "racism". Its more about owner responsibility than it is about breed.
- actual enforcement from by-law officers would be great. I've only ever seen them sitting in their trucks around the city
- Breed specific laws are not a solution to non responsible pet owners. Having a lifetime license would be very convenient and a great idea.
- Why are pit bulls a focus of this and discriminated against ? The wording should be changed to nuisance dogs nothing to do with breed.
- Bylaws should be focused on training and education rather that breed specific restrictions. Research has shown breed isn't the issue.
- I fail to understand why fines are not substantially higher. It cost more to enforce than fines generate.
- I'm concerned about off leash dogs in on leash areas. As a mom to 2 small kids I don't like strange dogs approaching me and my kids.
- No
- More opportunities for education, both for pet owners and children. An understanding of animal behavior would help everyone, especially pets
- The insurance idea is [stupid], if you worked in insurance you would know it's not that "easy" to get extra liability insurance for a dog
- None at the moment!
- Stop focusing on specific breeds AKA Pitt bulls, any dog is capable of biting. Focus on proper training and resources.
- N/A
- The breed of a particular dog is not the problem, the owner and home environment are. Training is key.
- I am against breed specific legislation. Target the owners who are unable to properly train their pets.
- Changing bylaws based on public consensus is wrong. Get the facts, talk to experts. BSL is not the answer. Educate, don't fear monger.
- The "pit bull" breeds are unfairly targeted in this survey.
- Should not be held liable if you give a fair warning not to come near your animal, and someone gets bit. That's on their own[remove].
- I do NOT support breed specific legislation. The "Pit bull type" definition described in this engagement is worrisome to say the least.
- "Please stop overgeneralizing an entire breed.
- A multi-year licensing program would be very helpful."

- no licensing fees. Get people to licence their animal is more important than fees. free licences and then fees for animals found outside
- There needs to be easier ways to report barking dogs, and quicker/more effective response. Higher fines only work if they're actually issued
- THE PROJECT TEAM- Do any of you own a (Bull Type Dog)?? Seems one sided!
- People leaving when their dog has bitten is high. number of people who don't pick up after their dog is terrible. Don't know what we can do
- Cats at large are a significant issue in this city and need more attention.
- no BSL. DO not punish an imaginary breed idea because of some dogs. Punish owners.
- There are several breeds that include SMALL DOGS that can be aggressive and this should apply to all.
- There are dog breeds with the jaw strength equivalent to a "pit bull", especially when heightened or in a stressful situation. Unfair.
- Pitbulls deserve respect. Harsher punishments for those found abusing their pets including at puppy mills.
- Don't be [Remove] about pit bulls. You are being irresponsible even suggesting it, and this will cause more harm than good.
- NO BSL Breed Specific Legislation Solely on breed. It should be based on owner awareness and ability to train/attend training.
- I would like to see more enforcement and education of pets on leashes in non off-leash areas.
- Would like to see the city enforce the current bylaws instead of spending $ on this ridiculous survey to micromanage citizens even more!
- If a dog owner has their dog off leash in a 'on leash' park, but the dog is well managed and not bothering anyone, it shouldn't be a fine.
- Animal cruelty and neglect laws. Anyone found guilty -includes hitting an animal, should be heavily fined/jailed, pet removed and counselling
- You should have some kind of protection against puppy mill breeding practices, especially if you are raising the animal limit.
- Make it more accessible and affordable for dog training for all breeds of dogs. Pit bulls and breed specific type dogs are not the problem.
- It would be nice to have small dog off leash areas where big dogs are not allowed to be in. Dogs under 30 lbs
- It is unfair to set standards and laws against one specific breed (pit bulls in this case) when more often than not it is the owners fault.
- There are fines for people not picking up after their animals but no one enforcing these rules so it does not deter people
- Instead of archaic BSL legislation, start reviewing dog trainers and ensuring all dogs have access to positive reward based trainers.
- It is not about the breed it's the owner. Even with private sales of animals there should be a process so people can be screened.

- Any dog can cause a severe bite. There is no reason to single out a "pit bull type" and doesn't benefit anyone to think of dogs in this way.
- Seriously, targeting one breed of dog is shortsighted and disappointing.
- Fine individuals for false reports of nuisance pets, all too often owners receive complaints that based on hatred for an animal, not on facts
- "BSL IS NO BETTER THAN RACISM.

- You said yourself, pitbulls arent more likely to bite. It's not the breed!

- Wake up its 2020"
- I think bringing pitbulls into this is a joke considering i have been bit by dogs in the community before and not one was from a large dog.
- I wish obedience training wasn't so expensive.
- STOP picking on pit bulls! IT IS NOT THE BREED. ridiculous....
- Pit bulls are no more a threat than any other dog. Offer rebates on approved obedience classes to incentivize people to learn and train.
- Why are there considerations being made to specifically target pit bull breeds? This is disgusting and makes me ashamed to be Calgarian.
- It's been proven other dogs are more aggressive than bullies. As stated in THIS agenda ...bullies have less incidents of aggression.
- Bikes in off leash dog parks should not be allowed.
- Leave pit bulls alone. Penalize owners for not taking responsibility with their dogs. Incentivize obedience and training.
- .
- More bylaw officers at off leash parks and more smaller off leash parks that are fenced in
- No
- Breed specific bans are ridiculous - owners are the problem and they should be penalized
- "Unless it is a puppy or if no effort has been made
- To stop the noise, only then should a fine be issued but only after a few warnings."
- I do not support anything that discriminates against any particular dog breed. Owners who are repeat offenders should also be restricted.
- The fact that Calgary is considering breed specific legislation is horrific. It is not the dog, it is how they are raised.
- use fines to start a grant for low-income pet owners to help with obedience costs if required.
- BSL is [remove]!!!
- Calgary has great off leash parks, but their needs to be me off leash access to water in the city
- No breed specific legislation.

- Have you thought of allowing the family horse to come for a birthday party or gathering?
- DO NOT make restrictions based on the dogs breed as it is not the breed. It is the way the owner trains and raises them
- Discrimination towards an specific breed of dogs isn't a good idea. Proper training For the owners is what you guys needs to be enforced.
- A license should be required to own a pit bull. They are not a bad breed, but too often have bad owners. This would address the issue.
- T
- Mandatory obedience training for dogs of all breeds and sizes. Perhaps increase the license fee to include a class provided by the city.
- Laws targeted against specific breeds is NOT the answer. Proper training of the owner is what's needed. We're the problem not the dogs!
- I believe that training should become mandatory.
- There should be no breed-specific policing of dogs. All breeds can be considered "dangerous"; not just "pit bulls";.
- Waive pet licenses and charge to get into off leash dog parks instead - keeping aggressive and irresponsible pet owners out of the dog parks
- no
- No
- Requiring a course before allowing people to own a pet and purchasing a license
- Breed Specific Legislation will negate most animal rescue organizations in Alberta. This is unacceptable.
- Any dog can be good if it has the right house and training. Including Pitbulls. Please dont make me muzzle my 2 babies when i walk them.
- There needs to be more regulation to address backyard breeders. Perhaps requiring a license to breed and sell dogs/cats or any live animals.
- I'm thankful that the City is taking the lead on doing something about vicious dogs. Too many dog owners are not in control of their animals
- Breed specification against pitbulls is ridiculous and wrong!!! If this were between human race it would be considered racism!! Shame on you
- Targeting pitbulls is extremely wrong and misguided. I am extremely angry and will fight this 100%
- I believe that if every dog owner understood dog behaviour/language they would know what is/isn't healthy play and learn to manage it.
- There needs to be more off-leash parks (south). They have a right to exercise and the closest park is a 20 min drive. Ridiculous!
- I would be very disappointed if the city puts in a breed based laws. It has been shown that it does not work
- A reduced licensing fee for low income households is ridiculous. If you cannot afford the licensing fee you cannot afford to be a pet owner.

- No
- Neighbours should be able to use dog silencers to control barking in their neighborhood. As long as it does not harm the animal
- I think that spaying and neutering should be mandatory unless the owner applies for an exemption in order to intentionally breed the animal.
- Licenses for animal breeders and fines for backyard breeders. Help cut down on the amount of animals in shelters and euthanization.
- If an owner receives a disturbance of the peace (aggressive barking) fee multiple times, they have to get obedience training that they attend
- You cannot put all "nuisance" dogs under the same umbrella...noise complaints and biting are very different and need to have different rules
- Make it a city law that condo/multi-residence buildings that allow dogs for any time length supply a area and maintain a marked pet area
- More education for non dog owners about expected dog behaviour and behaviour around dogs (speeding past them on bicycles etc)
- Breed specific laws are ineffective and punish good dog owners.
- It should be considered animal abuse to take pets into stressful situations where there are too many people and too much stimulation.
- I have no dogs but my four adult kids have 5 dogs between them. All large breed dogs: pitbull, bull terrier, shepard. Train the owners!
- Pit bull type dogs should not be unfairly discriminated against.
- I would like to see a discounted licensing fee for multiple dog homes, where both pets are spayed and responsibly cared for.
- I feel that large breeds and bully breeds of dogs are being harassed through misinformation. The dogs are not the problem, the owners are.
- Yes, please raise fines for feeding birds human food in yard that attracts nuisance animals (such as crows, ravens that tease domestic dogs)
- How about we stop vilifying certain breeds of dogs (especially pitbulls) and base changes to our laws off accurate information instead of fear
- We should not be allowing any type of farm animals or exotic pets in the city regardless if they are deemed emotional support animals.
- Do not set limits on one breed - it's the owners that need reminders and training and fines. It's their fault, not the dogs.
- N/A
- Pitbulls should not be singled out, there are many larger breed canines that can cause severe damage from a bite or attack.
- A rule requiring an owner to stay at the scene after their dog has bitten would be impossible to enforce...found this out firsthand
- Please do not make separate legislation against pit bulls, it is unfair to the owners and the dogs.

- There must be more proactive visits and inspections to the dog parks and pathways. Why go during the slow periods? Visit in the winter too!
- Dog parks and neglectful owners that don't supervise their dog etc. Letting them run out of sight, hyperactive dogs
- I think you should have to have mandatory obedience training when you get a dog to be able to licence them. And you must licence your pet.
- The breed shouldn't be singled out. I know of a few attacks on other animals that WERE NOT pitties/crosses - all dogs treated equal
- Pit-bulls and other Bully Breeds are not by nature more dangerous than any other dog breeds. Bad owners not bad dogs.
- Mainly stop getting on the bandwagon of breed specific rules. Stop trying to label pit bulls it really is ignorant.
- Needs to be more fenced off-leash parks in the city to reduce over-crowding at current ones. Not all dogs can safely go to unfenced parks.
- No
- The city acknowledges that there are no observable increases in breed-specific bite frequency but continues to support a fear-based approach
- I think overall the laws and fines need to be enforced based on the owners behaviour not the dogs. Dogs learn from humans so why punish them?
- "- look at the owner and how they trained the dog."
 - Look at what the victim did. the victim sometime provoke dogs."
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work and is discrimination. Calgary needs stricter enforcement of responsible pet ownership, not BSL.
- Please do not punish the animals for poor owners. Breed specific legislation does not work and does not hold the proper offenders responsible
- DOGS SHOULD BE ALLOWED ON PATIOS!
- Breed specific legislation has not worked before Singling out pitbulls is not the answer.
- Breed specific legislation is wrong. It's the humans who need to be held accountable. You could offer responsible pet ownership training.
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work, I have had more problems with poorly trained rat dogs acting aggressively towards my dog
- I find it completely ignorant that the city discriminates dogs on their breed and/or appearance. Guess we should discriminate people too!
- If you want less and less people to live in Calgary because you are trying to discriminate against a dog breed, this is the way to go.
- Define how long a dog can bark before it's considered a nuisance. In most cities it's 20 minutes.
- Breed specific bylaws are NOT the answer. These bylaws should look to enforce responsible pet ownership.
- I hate the idea of labeling an entire breed of dogs as unsafe. The attitude of the animal is %100 based on training and treatment of animal

- BSL is NEVER the answer. Absolutely any dog can be dangerous and cause injury. We need heightened accountability/fees/requirements for owners.
- I think your current approach to pit bulls is unfair and uncalled for. Pitbulls aren't a breed, it's a look to a dog.
- Stay out of our lives. Your job is infrastructure. You're over reaching forcing of absolutely everything is tiresome to the silent majority
- Dog parks meant for only small dogs/puppies, and separate for large dogs. Same size and amenities (river, trees, etc)
- Can you look at small aggressive dogs as an issue?
- Proper enforcement for pet owners that have animals off leash in non-off leash areas
- I agree that breed specific legislation is not the way to go, we need higher penalties for irresponsible dog owners.
- The city bylaw group is thinks you can force people to agree. It really is none of your business how many domestic pets I need.
- The fact that your considering breed specific legislation is infuriating.
- Breed specific targets animals not the owner. Nuisance dog owners need to be more accountable.
- Allow home owners to destroy unwanted pigeons on their property!
- Cats who kill another animal aren't mentioned in city fines. I would expect that this should be the same for both/all species.
- I do not agree with a city wide bully ban. Tons of Bully breeds are sweethearts. It sometimes comes down to a non-specific breed that isn't
- One person posting pro pitbull gibberish over and over. Pitbulls killed more kids in the U.S. last year than all other breeds combined.
- Breed specific legis'l'n is ineffective and shouldnt be introduced in Calgary- many municipalities are elimiinating it.Dont single out pitbulls
- ..
- Breed Specific legislation is ignorance in it's truest form
- Off leash dogs parks having a separate fenced in area for smaller dogs; I have seen this in cities in Vancouver/Fraser Valley, BC area.
- Fines - breeding without license, increase with each offence, MUCH bigger fines/jail time for animal abuse and database
- Bylaw officers at high traffic dog parks during popular movies weekend hours would help tremendously. Skip the BSL, we know it doesn't work.
- Do not single out a breed. The dogs actions are a direct result of the owner, no matter what size or breed. It's the owner, not the breed!
- Stop singling out specific breeds. It's not the dogs, it's their owners. Dogs do what their owners train or condition them to do.
- Education is needed for all pet owners. Pets are animals not family members, the cost of management need be less than income of license/fees

- I think we should have a bylaw officer at dog parks to aggressively check how dogs recall to owners when distracted. A fail means you leash.
- The breed isn't the problem! Let's educate owners and enforcement officers instead. NO BSL
- "Pit bulls" do not have the highest bite force. There are MANY breeds with more bite force than "pit bull" breeds. Get educated Calgary.
- I do not support Breed Specific Legislation. The problem is with bad owners!
- STOP singling out certain dog breeds! Treat ALL breeds the same! Singling out Pitbulls is like singling out 'black' people. STOP DOING THAT!
- N/a
- Breed shaming legislation doesn't stop bad owners. We need more legislation to hold owners accountable for their animals.
- Do not introduce breed specific legislation. Perhaps provide more training for authorities to deal with dog issues.
- most of these questions were nothing but self serving to your bureaucracy, add a "none of the above" option and comment section to each
- Breed specific laws are NOT OKAY!
- Problematic dogs are usually a result of owner negligence. Hold the owners more accountable for their animals behaviour.
- "BSL is not the answer. I believe training with certified dog trainers should be utilized wherever possible.
- More support for TNR programs."
- Breeds are not the problem. The problem are irresponsible owners who know nothing about training or treating a dog properly.
- We should be more focused on how the owners raise specific breeds, we shouldn't be blaming breeds for what their owners can provide/prevent.
- Stop focusing on the pitbull. increase fines for bad owners and let the rest of us be.
- An easier way to report roaming cats. Preferably on the Calgary 311 app. There are over 7 in my cul-de-sac alone. Too many in the city.
- Breed specific rules are ridiculous it's nuisance animals that need to be regulated more. It's essentially just a different form of racism.
- Breed-specific should not be the focus of these bylaws. It should include any dog and focus on the responsibility of the owner.
- Many other dogs have stronger bites than Pit Bulls. Singling out one specific breed when you should be paying your attention to the Owners.
- Focus on ownership and proper owner education and not on the breed of dog. Bully breeds are super lovable dogs, any breed is!
- Do NOT identify particular dog breeds (ex. Pit bulls) this will only increase negative stereotypes. Instead, educate breeders and public
- For myself, people letting their cats roam is the biggest issue I have faced in Calgary. It's not ok that they use my garden as a litterbox

- By law needs to follow up on noise complaints- the current methods are a hassle and course of action from by law isn't really enforced.
- Breed specific legislation is wrong. Every dog should be judged on their own behaviour.
- I am ADAMANTLY AGAINST breed specific rules or rulings. "Bullies" can not ALL be treated as the same. This is blatant discrimination
- I do believe in increasing fines and restrictions for dogs that are proven to be a problem. BSL has been shown to not be effective.
- More regulations for roaming and unattended cats.
- N/A
- Stop with the breed specific legislation. It has been proven not to work. Pit bulls and other bully breeds are just like any other dog.
- There is severe erosion on some parks and others (not off leash dog parks) are unused. Suggest rotating parks that are for off leash use.
- Nothing
- I would be horrified to live in a city that supported Breed Specific Legislation. What an archaic and uneducated way of thinking. No!
- Targeting a specific breed is incredibly problematic - the owners are the problem. Leave pitbulls alone!
- To some, animals are our children. Don't be so slack on animals the roam the streets but don't restrict breeds.
- I would be in favor of a fine being canceled when the owner or responsible person then attends a remedial training program-requires proof
- Provide more clarification on the difference between dog bite, dog attack, dog causing injury. As the current fines are all over the place
- It is not the breed but the owner that causes the problem. Also responsible pet owners need access to more pet handling courses.
- I really think education for pet owners in Calgary is key. I see far too many owners who do not understand their animals' needs.
- Incentives for keeping cats indoors. Subsidize the construction of catios (enclosed cat patios)
- Absolutely disgusted that breed specific legislation was brought up. It's sad you'd put this out without any real research on Pit Bulls.
- Perhaps an alternative to City taking fines could be to offer owners the option to take that money and it be used for behaviour training
- Pitbulls should not be singled out. It is not the breed that is the issue, it is bad owners. Please reconsider.
- DO NOT make "breed specific" legislation. All dogs, and cats, and animals deserve equal rights and rules. Owners need more legislation.
- Personal home insurance will not cover a repeated nuisance dog FYI. They will cancel high liability risks or risks with too many claims
- No

- BAN pitbulls in the city limits. I just had a friend save a 2 year old old from the jaws of a pitbull and both suffered life altering injuries
- A dogs breed should NOT be taken into consideration. Irresponsible owners should have to pay an insurance fee regardless of breed.
- Should include other dog breeds that can cause severe damage outside of "pitbulls", ie, German Shepherds tend to latch and shake
- Pets in retail stores should not be allowed. As well as a better monitoring system/registration for rescues. NO BSL in YYC. Ridiculous.
- Instead of looking to increase fees, increase education of what the by-laws are. Better compliance will follow.
- Lowering the cost of licenses for low income families will just increase the amount of families who own pets that can't afford them
- Education for people and children on dog etiquette. Petting a dog you don't know is like a stranger petting you!
- Focus on animal cruelty instead of discriminatory breed legislation. It is on the humans, not the animals.
- I'm shocked to see the breed discrimination against pit bulls. My dog is NOT a pit bull but he is the most aggressive dog I have ever met.
- Stop feeding into the concept that Pitbulls are bad/aggressive dogs. They shouldn't be discriminated against because of preconceived notions
- Do not add Calgary to the list of breed specific law cities, this is grossly unfair to the animals and the people that share in their lives
- There needs to be more enforcement in on leash areas of dogs being off leash!
- People should have to have licences to breed and sell animals such as cats, dogs and large birds.
- No
- No BSL! That is absolutely asinine
- It's absolutely absurd that these questions were even in here. There's so much research easily debunking YYCs bully breed myths. Smh.
- Pets should not be euthanized/ caged away from their owners. If owners are deemed unfit, engage with a rescue to rehome/rehabilitate the dog
- There are no bad dogs. Only bad owners. Please do not make breed specific laws.
- Don't blame the dog's breed. Little dogs are the worst. Fund mandatory dog training and socializing. Let cats roam.
- I think the idea of segregating pitbulls is absolutely disgusting and wrong. Every ten years it's a different breed. Calgary, you're wrong.
- Lower income ppl should not get breaks on licensing etc im sorry but a pet is a privledge not a right. If you cant afford a pet dont get one
- Stop punishing breeds and blanket targeting "pit bulls”. Require owners to take training and background checks to reduce ignorant owners
- City run training programs (at lower then average cost) is more reasonable then BSL.

- Disagree with stereotyping pit bulls, there are several breeds that bite, any dog can be aggressive.
- Indoor cats and dogs should have a much lower licensing fee.
- Sometimes animals accidentally get out or lost, and owners are actively looking for them. In these cases, so long as an animal hasn't harmed
- It is not appropriate to identify a dog as a pit bull at any time. I do not agree with breed specific laws. The owners are at fault
- Breed specific bylaws are not okay. Please reconsider having these as options.
- Put the responsibility on the owners, not the dogs. Stop targeting certain breeds of dogs. It's unscientific and biased.
- Instead of worrying about feral cats, can we do something about the feral rabbit population? Feral domestic rabbits are everywhere.
- Nuisance and dangerous are TWO very different things and there is nowhere to put feedback on that.
- Nothing
- No
- Why not offer affordable or free pet training seminars for new owners with lower income households
- BSL is not a solution.
- Individuals whose dog attacks another dog and refuse to give their information should have their dog taken away.
- Bylaws should focus more on the owner, ensuring there is no cruelty/neglect/abuse. and a bylaw for dogs off-leash in on-leash areas.
- This survey has been tagged on an America pro pitbull website. You will have hundreds of American pitbull fanatics voting on this.
- No I do not
- There should be a license for breeders, and fines for those selling puppies and kittens without said license.
- Online complaint location on website for repeat offenders.
- Licensing fees for neutered or unneutered dogs/cats should be the same
- Owning a pet is a privilege not a right. If a license or basic care is not affordable a pet should not be owned.
- Every single park in Calgary is a dog poo dumping zone. I propose a DNA register and fecal DNA testing. Then put the owners down.
- nothing to add
- There is multiple cats allowed to roam, killing wildlife, and leaving feces. Resume stray cat trapping and increase those fines
- Why start bsl now, when other places are reverting their bsl laws? Bully breeds are amazing dogs when raised correctly. Focus on education.
- No

- A single pitbull owner is posting over and over and over. Pitbulls killed more kids in the U.S. last year than all breeds combined.
- Breed-specific legislation should not be considered. Responsible ownership could include training, etc. for all dogs.
- Fining irresponsible dog owners is a cash grab for the City. Consider mandatory training for both dog and owner following an incident
- Do NOT create a breed ban! There are no bad dogs, only bad humans!
- Fine people who walk their dogs off leash in a non-off leash environment.
- Bylaws should not be breed specific.
- I'm disgusted the CALGARY HUMANE SOCIETY has singled out bully breeds in this survey. I thought we were leaders in fighting this stereotype.
- Nothing
- no
- BSL has been shown to be ineffective. Education regarding pets and harsher consequences for irresponsible owners of any breed is key.
- Do not agree with labelling pit bulls as a nuisance breed. Have seen small dogs that are more aggressive than pit bulls. All about training
- This survey is being posted on American pro pitbull forums. Hundreds of American pitbull fanatics are posting. This is not an accurate view
- No
- None
- No
- Fence all off leash areas!!!!
- Mandatory obedience and behaviour training for all new dog owners (not just first time dog owners). This would greatly reduce attacks.
- Breed-specific bylaws should be banned - they're unreasonable and discriminatory.
- Bylaws should be based on behaviour of the animal rather than specific breeds.
- BSL Does not work! All you are doing is condemning an animal for the actions or negligence of an irresponsible pet owner.
- N/A
- Each issue should be judged on a case by case basis by a panel of educated animal specialists in consultation with local rescues and rehabs.
- Pitbulls and other specific breeds should NOT be singled out. Responsible ownership is key, regardless of the breed of the animal no bias.
- No breed specific legislation!!!
- More education for picking up after your dog
- The focus shall be kept on the OWNER of the pet, not the pet itself.
- If there are issues about dog bites etc it needs to be understood that children under 8 shouldn't be out of arms reach in off leash areas.

- Breed specific legislation is a horrible idea. Why are we even thinking about this outdated approach??
 - I just wanted to say that there shouldn't be any bylaws for specific dog breeds. Pit bulls are not bad dogs. They usually have past trauma.
 - Pitbulls are responsible for more attacks requiring reconstructive surgery than all other breeds combined. Ban them please.
 - All dogs that are licensed should have to do some kind of training that is approved by the city. There shouldn't be a breed ban.
 - People with many registered pets should receive periodic wellness checks. We should have no breed specific laws.
 - Stop with the communism and leave us alone. This is just a cash grab, and a waste of taxpayer resources.
 - DONT bully my breed. BSL just shows how ignorant people are. This is a joke. If anyone supports this, YOU are a bigger danger to society
 - This discussion should be on responsible ownership not bully breeds. Calgary this is pathetic!
 - No breed specific legislation. It is an uneducated approach.
 - The rules/fines for pathway walking should be dismantled inside an off leash park. Dogs should be allowed to be off leash anywhere in park
 - "No breed specific legislation!!
- Have ""reactive” dog parks with rentable space. Where owners can have the space privately for a fee."
 - Breed is not the problem. The owner is. Pit bulls and other bully breeds are just as, if not more, sweet and kind and loyal as any other.
 - Excited for backyard chickens!
 - Animal welfare is important! Let's focus on that first
 - I'm saddened that our city is even considering breed specific regulations. The owner is responsible of ensuring their pet is well behaved.
 - Would like to see bylaw officers monitoring communities where owners are not cleaning up dog feces and pathways.
 - Judging a dog by its breed is no different then judging a person by there race. It is wrong in both circumstances and needs to stop.
 - Don't target pitt bulls, any dog is capable of harm depending on its human. Most Pitts are more docile than chihuahuas.
 - Stop discriminating certain breeds of animals.
 - No
 - Stop with specific breeds. You're just punishing dogs that don't deserve it and the owners who have worked hard to train them properly.

- "END BSL!
- Sincerely, a certified dog trainer who is bit more often by small dogs with major aggression and temperament issues."
- Breed bands do not work! Look to educate and train not focus on type of dog.
- Do NOT penalize 'nuisance' breeds. I.e: pitbull 'looking' breeds. My German shepherd has more biting force per pound than mentioned above
- PLEASE DO NOT discriminate on Breed Specific legislation. Mandatory FORALL people who want dogs Professional training by a certified trainer
- No
- Pet owners that rent must present a lease showing permission to have pets on a property before city allows pet license; like temp. park pass
- Funny thing, police will tell you to get a dog to deter criminals. You're looking to take this away because of a complaining neighbour.
- Not on this topic.
- Owners who leave their pets alone all day and they bark constantly, should be fined higher
- Stop the pitbull stigma, any dog breed can be reactive and have bad outcomes
- Owners walking their dogs off-leash on school grounds is way more dangerous than a properly controlled pitbull. Please enforce this.
- "I am disgusted with the inclusion of Breed Specific Legislation.
- Breeds are not the problem. Owners and proper training are."
- Perhaps signage at off leash parks or parks with mixed purposes (such as rotary park) about proper dog etiquette/how kids should approach.
- No.
- Absolutely no breed specific legislation. Pit bulls are not the problem, it is the owner.
- In addition to the 'nuisance dog' designation, I suggest a 'dangerous/aggressive dog' designation for serious offenses with restrictions.
- Remove the specific breed and stop putting down animals as the easy way out. Small dogs can be more dangerous than large. There are variables
- Absolutely no BSL, my girl is 6 years old and has never been a problem to anyone. I've had landlord praise me for turning their outlook over
- "Breed specific laws are awful
- The law should target bad owners, not specific dogs"
- I found the Engagement Questions by accident and as a pet owner I think all pet owners should have a chance to have a say in this matter.
- If owners continuously receive similar fines, start increasing the fines to those liable owners over time.
- None
- Even proposing specific restrictions on Pit Bulls perpetuates fear and a non-evidence-based prejudice. Focus on issues, not breeds.

- I don't think there should be breed restrictions but I do think for all dogs that obedience training should be required to prevent problems
- No breed specific legislation.
- Stop focusing on breed, in particular and focus on the owners. Subsidized training, assessing the owner with the dog .
- The dog should not be punished for being improperly trained. It is the owners responsibility to train and care for the dog properly.
- Ban pit bulls within Calgary City limits immediately.
- Breed specific laws are not founded in evidence and should not be considered. Full stop.
- I have never had a negative experience with a pitbull. I think making breed specific rules is unfair.
- Dog/pet behaviour and body language should be a mandatory unit in schools. It would help reduce bites.
- Breed specific legislation is not science based and leads to unnecessary suffering and suspicion. Many dogs today are a mix of multiple breed
- Stop focusing on the breed(s) of animal and start focusing on who owns the animal!!! No animal should pay for the mistake the human made!!!
- No breed-specific legislation. It isnt the breed, but the owner that's the problem.
- If you own a dog, you should have to do a mandatory obedience/training course.
- Please ban dogs from being close to playgrounds. This is due to anaphylaxis allergies and potential dog bites.
- Pitbulls are not the problem! They where used as "nanny Dogs" because they're patient and gentle. A bad Pitbull is made from a BAD OWNER.
- The breed of the dog should not matter. Its the owner that should be held liable and responsible for anything their pet does
- No breed specific regulations! Pit bulls are not the problem, it's the owner. Stop discriminating the breed!
- SAFE citizen dog designation for dogs who are obedient and community friendly.
- breed specific bans are simply not supported by evidence. the mental/psychological trauma to the animal/owner is the same.
- Definitely no special breed bans! It is not the dogs fault, it is the owners! Please do not make this happen.
- More bylaw officers being a presence at off leash areas. People behave poorly when things don't go perfectly on their walks.
- N/A
- Pit Bulls have KILLED more people than any other breed.Ban them from Canada. This is a fact not discrimination.
- Target owners for bad dog behaviour, not just dogs and certainly not specific breeds.
- Small dogs are a bigger issue than large dogs, they are more often than not the dog to start the fight, or a bite a person.

- I don't believe in the breed specifics. Any dog can be bad. I have met far more chihuahuas that are more aggressive than bully breeds
- Some dog parks (like in NE) don't have an adequate number of garbage bins for pet owners to properly dispose pet waste.
- Breed-specific bylaws are a terrible idea that stigmatizes innocent dogs.
- How shameful to single out pit bulls. The ones I've known are the most passive, sweet dogs. Any breed can be vicious. Disgusting discriminat
- Breed specific legislation should not be implemented. It is up to the owners of both large and small breeds to properly train them.
- Pit bull breeds are strong, no argument there. But many other breeds that are large and strong as well. No breed specific prejudice.
- "apply a requirement for training for all dog owners through vetted trainers.
- Either through existing companies in Calgary or a City program"
- Pitbulls should not be targeted at this. Calgary is better than that.. BSL is ridiculous. How about better charges for animal abuse?
- "No breed specific legislation!!!
- Parents should be teaching their children proper manners for around dogs this will hurt more kids!"
- Pet Training Courses should be mandatory when a household acquires a new pet. No time for training the pet then don't own one.
- Breed specific laws are ineffective. If a dog is aggressive it should be trained there should be no breed specific laws.
- Please reconsider the ban on pit bulls, it's not the dogs themselves but it's how they were raised. Ban people from having pets instead.
- Breed specific legislation is not the answer. Provide education, support and training for ALL dogs who display aggressive behaviours.
- BSL is a wholly negative approach. Limitations should be imposed on owners based only on knowledge and experience, not breed.
- Remove breed specific legislation. How is this still a thing? We know that the problem is the owner, not the animal.
- putting in any breed specific laws is absolutely ridiculous.
- Calgary bylaws should continue to focus on the demonstrated behaviour of individual dogs rather than the breed.
- Breeds aren't the problem its owners.make an owner education class based on breed specifics(prey drive) high power,how to handle in events
- A bylaw or enforcement for small dogs and small dog owners to keep their dogs under control and be mannered and trained
- Cost of licensing pets is very high
- I think the city should stop increasing restrictions on pet owners. The suggested amendments are mostly doubling down on existing bylaws.

- it is usually not the dog that is the problem, its the [removed] owners that don't know what they are doing, which has potential ripple effects
- Increased education/awareness about the dangers of outdoor cats to the cats and to the ecosystem, and how to provide enrichment indoors
- The focus on bully breeds is wrong. The survey itself concedes there's no higher rate of biting, and we have tiered fines for severity.
- I don't support licenses being sold at vets, etc as they'll probably add a service fee and licenses are expensive enough as it is.
- NA
- All dogs need to be trained and loved. However there needs to be consequences for poor behaviour.
- re: low income fees. If someone has a pet and then becomes low income, that is very different from being low income and acquiring new pet.
- Signs explaining why it's harmful to feed wildlife posted in places where people often feed them, instead of just saying not to.
- Pitbulls were responsible for 83% of dog attacks requiring hospitalization last year in Calgary. Labs which are more common were 0%.....
- Smaller breed dogs tend to be more aggressive and more likely to bite people, their should be a training requirement for dogs under 20lbs.
- Breed-specific legislation has been shown NOT to reduce bites/injuries. Don't do it.
- Pitbull owners are the problem and requiring training and liability insurance will make it more difficult for irresponsible owners to have one
- Increased education about animal welfare and responsible and compassionate pet ownership
- N/A
- Judging an animal because of its size and muscle mass does not make it a bad animal. Bad owners do!
- I am against licensing indoor cats! Why should I pay for keeping my cat indoors while others allow theirs to roam the neighborhood?
- If an owner cannot train an animal they should have that animal rehomed.
- No
- Dogs shouldn't need bandanas as an early warning system. Kids should be taught to ask before approaching or petting dogs. See body language
- Please do not imply extra restrictions to pit bull breeds, every dog should be looked at the same and by a case by case basis.
- Nope
- Please refrain from BSL. It's not the dogs' fault, it's the irresponsible owners.
- Much tougher rules for barking dogs and a better or different system for making/proving a complaint of a barking dog.

- ANY nuisance pet should have identical consequences. Negligent owners need consequences. BSL is nonsense.
- Multi-year or lifetime licencing is a great idea! Also, if there's BSL for pitties, there should also be for chihuahuas. They're vicious!
- Anyone who wants to be a breeder has to apply for a breeder license that is renewable every year and have to provide vet records
- None
- There should be a view a complaint, some neighbors call 311 even if my dog barks 1 time. I want to know who is making these accusations.
- Some of the nicest dogs I've met are Pitbulls, and some of the meanest I've met were shitzu's! You shouldn't discriminate against Pitbulls!
- Off Leash license.. Dogs that pass obedience training with a certain grade can walk off-leash on their neighborhoods
- Measures taken against specific breeds is prejudicial and unnecessary - you clearly state that pitbulls are not more likely to bite.
- Regular check up on owners/people who are abusing the system. Stealing/Breeding irresponsibly. Stricter enforcement on bad owners.
- Dogs bite/attack because of bad owners. There needs to be more than just fines for bad dog behaviour to the Owner.
- Breed specific is not the problem! People are the problem and most dog fights I've witnessed have never been a bully breed at the dog park
- BSL (Breed specific legislation) is bullshit.
- Increased fines for dog owners walking dogs off leash in onleash areas. It is dangerous and results in more reactions from onleash dogs.
- I feel like fines and or situations need to be differentiated between circumstances a dog in pain can and will bite as will a fearful dog.
- Training needs to be more accessible and affordable. Low income families should not have to kill their dog when it shows bad behaviour.
- All off leash sites to be managed by private enterprise for a fee. Pet ownership should be considered a privilege, not a right.
- breed specific bylaw = no. Its ignorant to think one breed is more aggressive then another. Its the owners that create bad behavior.
- I believe there needs to be more focus on bad pet owners rather than bad pets. Attacking a specific breed and not the bad owners is foolish
- N/A
- Pitbulls are not inherently vicious. Breed specific legislation is unnecessary. All dogs should have the same regulations.
- No
- On top of fines, how about mandatory dog (owner) training for any repeat offenders? And how about laying off the breed discrimination?

- It's not the breed fault, it's the Owner! Stop being racists..
- Mandatory spay/neuter, or apply for licence to breed. Minimizes back-yard breeding, encourages adoption, better health for animals.
- Nothing
- no Breed Specific legislation
- No
- "A definition of nuisance is required.
- A dog running to get into a car should not be considered as being off leash."
- It is not the dog it's the owner.
- Stop breed shaming. I've been bitten by a golden retriever and a black lab before. People raise bad dogs. Learn how to train and educate.
- I do not
- I don't agree with targeting a specific breed of dog! All dogs can be aggressive and all dogs can bite. Provide accessible pet training!
- Focus less on breed specific restrictions. It basically racism against animals! A dog is only a 'bad dog' due to bad ownership!!!
- Pitbulls are very sweet and loving dogs, people got to get over their inane phobia of them!! Bad owners can own any breeds..
- Stop BSL, this is ridiculous.
- Install cameras in off leash parks to properly investigate all incidents. Stop deeming the larger dog defending themselves as the problem.
- as Cats are one of the leading causes for the decline of bird populations, feral cats should be dealt with.
- I am appalled that specific breeds are even mentioned in your survey! All dogs have the potential to bite! No BSL!!!
- Leave pitbulls alone! Labs and Huskies are more likely to bite people and or in the same tier level for bite strength. Skewed survey thx yyc
- Obedience training and vet visit fees should all be in sliding scale based on income!
- I'm curious if the training that animal catchers receive is public knowledge?
- The idea that a Pitbull has a stronger bite than any other breed is absolutely ridiculous disinformation, and should be removed immediately
- restrictions on one breed open it up for further breed restrictions later.
- Any dog can be raised to be aggressive, not just pitbulls. Make the bylaw more generalized for all aggressive dogs, not a specific breed.
- N/A
- N/A
- If you actually make it so 'bully' breeds of dogs can't go to dog parks then you should make a dog park specifically for them.
- ENFORCE MORE ANIMAL CRUELTY/NEGLECT LAWS. AND ACTUALLY ENFORCE THEM.

- As we see in so many countries, and provinces, BSL does not help. Breeds are not bite specific. They're dog specific.
- Bi laws shouldn't be breed specific. It should be purely based on the behaviour of the animal. I've met more aggressive small dog than pitty
- BSL has no place here! Deal wit the bad pet owners, don't paint us all with the same brush.
- EVERY dog owner should undergo some training/license that shows they know how to properly train their dog. Pitbulls aren't the problem
- BSL has proven ineffective in other communities and is difficult to enforce. Address concerns with owners rather than breed.
- Singling out a specific breed just because of the stereotype that people have put on them is beyod ridiculous. Any dog can bite a person.
- Its people that are the problem. I have had pitbulls around me my whole life. I have never had an issue because I have trained/control them.
- Please don't be like the rest of the world and institute BSL!! Rather focus on OWNER training education.
- Having separate fenced areas for big dogs and small dogs in all off leash dog parks.
- There needs to be bigger fines for people the miss treat animals and more done to protect them.
- I believe Calgary would be taking a step backwards if they were to ban specific breeds.
- No.
- Can we just make it mandatory for people to train their pets? Banning "pitbulls" is ridiculous, I have met many that are super sweet.
- I do not support any policies that are based around specific dog breeds.
- I think it's absolutely disgusting that the city of Calgary is attempting to make a pit bull ban.
- "Dogs should be allowed in more restaurant patios and in small stores.
- The YYC Airport NEEDS MORE PLACES for animals to 'go'."
- I do not want BSL to be a thing in Calgary. Instead we should have training / awareness programs required for problem dog owners.
- There are a lot of laws targeting pit bulls when no evidence exists that they are more likely to attack.
- By generalizing the behaviors of dogs that look a certain way, innocent dogs and pet owners suffer. I do not support BSL.
- Absolutely NO breed legislation, poor training and bad owners are the issue NOT the breed of animal it is!!.
- Any animal that is a nuisance, without targeting certain breeds, should be controlled better and enforced.
- Breed specific bans should never even be mentioned let alone debated about. It's all about the owner and how the dog was raised.
- No
- Breed-specific policies are not based in science and are discriminatory. Also make an easier way to report animal noise disturbances.

- Golden retrievers have the most reported bites, should we have special laws for them? This is an OWNER problem not a breed problem.
- There should be a fine for people who antagonize dogs or approach animals wearing a warning collar or vest.
- N/A
- End breed discrimination. If a MAN is capable of punching harder, should he have his arms tied up etc? Potential does not equal threat!
- Discrimination towards bully breeds is not the answer. Hold bad owners accountable not the breed.
- I don't support BSL. Any breed can be a problem. Focus on punishing problematic owners and push for better access to training courses
- No breed specific legislation.
- Do not ban my sweet baby girl because of people prejudice, I have seem more damage done to people by little dogs than any big dog, ever.
- I don't think pitbulls should be treated differently or have separate rules. It is up to the owners to ensure they are raised properly.
- "All of the comments here speak volumes. Listen.
- Do NOT put restrictions on bully breeds."
- no
- Lower fees for indoor cats. Ban selling of animals in pet stores! Enforcement and penalties for dogs off leash/unsupervised in residential.
- Breed-Specific Legislation is like gun-control - mostly promoted by those with the least knowledge of the subject. Also, no urban chickens.
- No breed specific legislation! It's been proven ineffective many times over. Target irresponsible pet ownership and disregard breed.
- We need more off leash parks. No reason I should have to drive 15-20 min to let my dogs run off leash.
- Do not single out pit bulls. Many dog breeds are strong and can cause serious injury. Individual dogs are problems not whole breeds.
- Do not discriminate against pit bulls or other what you term as attack dogs! Pit bulls are much more docile than believed.
- Lol
- I do not believe it is fair to have the "pitbull breed" treated differently then other dog breeds.i have been bite twice, both by little dog
- Please end this silly idea of BAD BREEDS! Make pet owners be responsible for their pets/ pet behavior regardless of breed.
- Please do not allow people to keep pigeons in coops on the city. If people want animals that live in coops they should not live in the city.
- Pit bulls and bully breeds shouldn't be singled out. Any dog can be aggressive, it's not fair that they are being attacked with these bylaws

- There should absolutely be no bylaws singling out pitbulls. Pitbulls are very loving affectionate dogs.
- Voluntary bandana system is stupid. Children should be taught to never approach animal without asking. Bandanas will invite animal attacks.
- People who want to become dog owners should require proper training.
- We should not be forced to muzzle dogs that have no concerning behaviors. Not fair to the dog, and gives others the wrong impression.
- Breed specific legislation should not be supported. Invest more in education and training opportunities. It is not the dog, it's the owner
- I absolutely disagree with restrictions on breed specific dogs. As a bully breed owner I frequent dog parks and it would be so unfortunate.
- If you increase the fines for bites/attacks, can a portion go to the victim?
- Breed specific legislation isn't the way to handle issues with bad owners. All individuals need to be held equally accountable for their dogs
- Any type of discrimination is not okay. We are above that. Blame the owner, breed has nothing to do with it.
- Only here for the [remove] bully stuff. That is unreal
- Anyone producing puppies (regardless of breed) from unhealth tested dogs (OFA/pennhip, genetic disorders) should be fined. Microchip mandatory
- Stop singling out Pit Bulls. There are many other breeds that are far more aggressive than Pit Bulls. This is archaic and ridiculous.
- Register/license pet breeders and restricts what can be bred to ensure animal welfare and raise awareness on adopt don't shop.
- Licenses for breeders and fines for people mistreating and over breeding their pets.
- Let's start enforcing the existing bylaws before start making up new ones. BSL is WRONG and cops aren't even enforcing picking up feces yet.
- There should be no breed specific bylaws. A bad dog is almost always a result of their environment. Focus on the owner!
- NA
- I think one of the things that are being missed by the city is the sale and resale of dogs or puppies. Licenses should be required to sell p
- I believe more public knowledge in animal behaviour, and proper care is needed. the public should be taught how to greet a strange dog.
- Don't judge a dog breed when any dog can be aggressive.
- Regulations need to be applied equally to all breeds of dogs. A smaller dog is more likely to be aggressive and bite than many larger breeds
- No I do not
- Pit Bulls should not be targeted, It is up to the owners to make sure any breed of dog is trained. targeting them is completely wrong.

- In regards to stop light bandana idea There is a company www.safepettags.com - book for kids available too.
- I am loving the idea of the 6 dogs per household because some people have rescue animals. It would be heartbreaking to have to let them go
- Bylaw should be going around the city and catching cats that are roaming. It shouldn't be a home owner's responsibility.
- Increasing controls around dogs is important. But targeting ONE breed is uncalled for, pit bulls are the same danger as golden retrievers.
- No
- i agree with lifetime fees for licencing. every year is a cash grab.
- A pitbull ban will not change the number or severity of bites. Subsidize and incentivize training for puppies and nuisance animals instead!
- Pit bulls should not be singled out. The breed doesn't matter it's all about the owner.
- Off leash parks should be fenced and clearly marked, to discourage children from playing there making it impossible for my pup to play there
- Singling out pitbull-breeds is ridiculous. They should have the same treatment as other animals until deemed a 'nuisance' as described above
- Golden retrievers are just as dangerous as pit bulls when untrained. Stop trying to blame the breed, blame the owner.
- Na
- It's not the type of breed that can cause violent behaviour it's the owner themselves who create that image of them.
- It would be a start if By-Law showed up when called or actually issued tickets instead of sitting in their trucks in parking lots
- N/a
- PLEASE stop targeting pit bulls and focus more on negligent, ignorant people. THEY are the real problem here.
- Quit dog-shaming the "Bull" breed. The focus needs to be on the owner, not the dog. Educate yourselves before you make any decisions.
- I think owners should have to take obedience tests and attend classes with their so called "nuisance" dogs because it's not always the dog.
- I support urban chickens, ducks, goats and sheep in Calgary. Increase the budget and enforcement for the protection and wellbeing of animals
- No
- Misinformation on pitbulls is whats causing panic. I think singling them out, and dogs that look similar to them, is incredibly wrong.
- Chickens!
- Can we STOP attacking the 'pitbull', there are many other breeds that have strong PSI bite force (equal or higher). Stop the fear mongering!

- You need to get rid of the stigma around pit bulls!!! It's not the dogs fault if they are aggressive it's the owners fault!!!! Not dog fault
- I'm not even a pit bull owner and I'm surprised by how much they're singled out here. Our encountered nuisance dogs have never been pitbulls
- "When you say all of a particular breed are bad dogs, you have now polarized your community" - [Personal information removed]
- No exceptions for breeders of pit bulls.
- A specific license for specific breeds as well as mandatory obedience classes as well as owner education
- Pitbulls and related breeds shouldn't be singled out - owners of ANY breed should be responsible for training and any fines.
- Please do not discriminate against large dogs and bully breeds. This legislation will only hurt public safety.
- NO Breed Specific Laws (BSL) should be considered. Instead of targeting dog breeds there should be more available education/training program
- N/A
- No
- It's not the breeds, it's the owners that need to be restricted. Make owner specific legislation instead of going after/targeting specific breeds
- The breed specific legislation is unfair and ineffective. What needs to happen is greater accountability/fines for irresponsible dog owners.
- People should be told to put their animals in puppy training when they get it because a lot of behaviour problems happen because they aren't
- In the use of common spaces where pets are likely to be, cyclists MUST notify of their approach, ringing bell, Help reduce surprise reaction
- Do not single out pit bulls. Punish the owner not the breed
- Love the idea of bandanas to indicate if a dog should be approached. All animals should be registered and owners hold a training cert.
- I would love small off-leash areas where a group of dogs who have grown up together and already play well with each other can be off-leash
- Please do not single out pit bulls breeds/types. I have had more problems at the dog park with huskies and German Shepherds than with pitbulls
- BSL is being rescinded in US counties/municipalities and internationally because IT DOES NOT WORK. Do your research, Project Team!
- Instead of placing a limit on the number of pets (of any species), I would be in favour of more focus on prevention of neglect and abuse.
- Breed specific bylaws are not acceptable. All dogs of all ages and breeds need to be held to the same manner of restriction and consequence.
- Targeting specific dog breeds resolves nothing. Instead, restrict the breeds that bad owners can own.

- This agenda itself mentions that pitbulls are no more likely to bite than any other dog so why the need for BSL? BS.
- Breed specific laws do not help anyone. With proper training, any dog can be a model citizen, and the reverse of that is true as well.
- Pit bulls do not have stronger bites than other dogs. You have presented a falsehood in this survey. Shame.
- No I do not.
- Instead of blaming animals for the behaviours, the owners should be responsible. It is never the animals fault, look at the owner first.
- There should be additional fines for nuisance outdoor cats that attack other pets, spray homes, and dig up gardens.
- Really appreciate the limit to households. I have 4 dogs and love them with all my life. I would die without them. Theyre all rescues.
- Its not the dog that's the problem, its the owner. All breeds of dogs should be treated equally and not specific to Pit Bulls.
- You all need to better educate yourself when it comes to dogs and bull breads.
- Be fair to all breeds
- No
- Consequences for bad owners! Too often animal abusers are constantly repeat offenders because nothing is done about them and the animals suffer
- Some people have more than 2 dogs or cats. It would be devastating to let them go. 6 is understandable and responsible. Thank you!
- It is ridiculous to even consider a bylaw that is against solely bully breeds. ANY DOG CAN BE DANGEROUS! Why is that so hard to understand?
- Pinpointing on pitbulls as an aggressive breed is really wrong. It isnt only one breed. Every owner is responsible for their pets actions.
- BSL is not the answer. the Emphasis should be on pet ownership reform. It's careless and scared citizens that ruin it for us all.
- When dogs exhibit aggressive behaviour it is almost always the owners fault for not meeting the needs of the dog. Hold owners accountable.
- Do not single out pitbulls as it is wrong. For the owners that have pitbulls, it is really hurtful. They are not all like that.
- Any dog that is triggering can provoke other dogs. The responsibility should not only be on pitbulls
- More dog parks in the NE. The current ones are way too crowded especially with COVID going around, more parks the better.
- A one time fee for animal licenses. Paying yearly is ridiculous.
- BSL is a poor way to treat symptoms, and will never address the actual problem - which is a lack of education and awareness.
- Volunteers that are willing to clean up dog parks. Add water stations for dogs and possibly more trees for shade and protection.

- Install more trash cans in parks with many dogs and offer biodegradable bags for picking up after them. THEN raise fines to compensate.
- Water stations would be absolutely helpful. A lot of owners do not bring water with them, and some dogs overheat or get thirsty.
- BSL is inhumane and will end up in more dogs being in shelters and, eventually, euthanized. Dogs can be dangerous regardless of their breed.
- I will move out of this city so fast ! If you try and take my dogs away from me !!!!! This is absolutely [removed]!!
- Breed-specific legislation is not the answer. There needs to be higher penalties for nuisance dog owners.
- I do not support BSL!
- There should be no ban on any breed of dog. Period. At the end of the day, it's the person that created a monster, not the dog's fault
- "stop blaming specific breeds of dog, when the real problem is poor ownership and training.
- Screen the owners, not the animal"
- I would like an avenue for anonymous complaints for irresponsible dog owners, who do not control their dogs barking.
- Maybe a drop off bin for people to donate waste bags for owners to pick up after their dogs in parks. Some owners do not have waste bags.
- Change the idea of "pit bull" bylaws and instead the human behaviour and how they control their companion. Fine the human, not the dog.
- Should not have any BSL going on. Educate first time dog owners. Educate staff. Educate child. Disgusting to have BSL.
- Would really appreciate water stations at parks for all the animals to enjoy while visiting the parks.
- Please deal with off leash dogs in public parks. We have many off leash areas, but many irresponsible owners who don't follow guidelines.
- You obviously not serious in wanting ideas with the character restriction of this box. Label the owner as a nuisance instead of the pitbulls
- If [remove] can't handle marginalized breeds, implement a breed specific TRAINING program at time of animal registration.
- The approach towards pit bulls is unfair. Calgary should not have BSL.
- No
- The reality of it is - aggressive breeds have that in their nature, and no matter how good an owner you are, one day they will snap.
- If people want to have lower license fees then they should have to prove that their animal is well behaved. Signed off by a behavioralist.
- I would like to see education for off leash dog park owners and their children. I'd also like to see bikes not allowed at off leash parks.
- Use some of the money from licensing and fines and host free obedience classes so it is accessible to all pet owners

- Please have fines for people leaving bagged up dog feces on park trails "to pick up later";. They are litter and rarely collected!!
- I do not support breed specific legislation. The problem is with the owners not the breed.
- The idea of pinpointing pitbulls is so heartbreaking. Stop perceiving them to be vicious. The animals are outcomes of the owners actions.
- Treat all dogs equally. I've been bitten by more small and tiny breeds, been woken by the Yip yap of small and tiny breeds than any other.
- PITBULLS are NOT the issue. The issue is owners that cannot train or properly take care of their dog.
- I am set on the fact that you cannot treat breeds of animals differently. It is all about their environment and how they are raised/trained.
- Breeds are not the problem. Irresponsible owners who do not know how to treat an animal or knowing how to properly train/handle.
- Increase education for children on correct way to approach dogs that do not reside with them. No running up and trying to hug dogs etc.
- Please explain how you'll enforce that a dog owner doesn't leave the scene of a bite 'accident'.
- "For this law [X] is defined as... anything that looks like or has the features of [what we are biased against]" big ethical red flag there.
- I live in Parkland which borders on Fish Creek Park. I would like more signage stating the ridge and Fish Creek is not an off leash area
- I've had big "strong" breeds my whole life and have never seen an issue. I've been attacked by yorkies and poms. STOP breed discrimination
- Separate "large breed" "small breed" and "mix" off leash dog parks. This would reduce incidents and injuries to small breed dogs.
- Dogs barking in a yard is a welfare issue. When my dog barks, I bring him inside. I couldn't imagine leaving him out to bark at people
- I feel that there should be a screening process and a in home visit for anyone who owns a dog or cat not just a specific breed.
- There should be absolutely NO bylaws in place which target specific breeds (ex. Pitbulls).
- Do not implement ANY breed-specific bylaws! Pitbulls have a bite force of 235 psi while German Shepherds have a harder bite force of 238 psi
- It would be cool if by-laws actually enforced things. Then maybe we can talk about these STUPID BSL's some Boomer/Karen group is all about
- Never should any specific breed be legislated and discriminated against. Smaller dogs bite more often and are never called out like bullies
- No
- how important is creating a bloated system for pets - do more with less or significantly reduce this program - euthanize all lost pets
- Banning pit bulls and the other dogs you listed is unnecessary and unacceptable.

- Supporting breed specific legislation is such an uneducated and ignorant way of thinking. Adamantly against this. Pitbulls are not the issue
- All off leash dog parks should be fenced, some of them are right beside roads and I'm scared a drunk driver is gonna hit my dog sometimes
- Animal abuse fines/ offences need to be increased.
- I'd like to see you stop discriminating against bully breed dogs if my dog has to wear a muzzle in public so should every other dog
- I do not agree with singling out pit bulls !! This is not fair !
- Mandatory pet and pet owner training by Licenced Trainers.
- Stop singling out specific breeds. It's the owners, not the dog.
- BSL against pit bulls is just plain wrong. Stop fear mongering against pitties! If your going to make bylaws, make it for all dogs.
- There are many breeds that have a high bite force. We need to evaluate OWNERS, not specific breeds. It's almost always a people problem.
- Bully breeds should not be discriminated against!
- No breed bans - it's bad people, not bad dogs by breeds.
- More dog parks in the NE. Or parks like the placeforpaws to book "appointments" to bring your dog to, for those dogs that like being alone.
- Breed specific bylaws are extremely unfair and instead of focusing on breeds, you should be focused on the owners
- Cat bi law is a waste. Cats roaming keep the mouse population down. I'd rather clean up cat droppings than have a mouse infestation.
- Breed specific by laws are stupid and ineffective as has been proven by other communities that have tried this. The same goes for pet limits
- Educate ppl instead of pointing out specific breeds. Every dog has their own personality it's the owners responsibility to pay attention.
- Temporary homes (doggy daycares, kennels, etc.) should have a limit (for example, 6 dogs at a time in a residential doggy daycare)
- Shared spaces (parks/wetlands). More off-leash near water and in communities (TUC lines). Dogs just want to play fetch without the drive.
- Policies should not include breeds. Aggressive or problem dogs are not always pit bulls, nor is it more common for pit bulls
- "Mandatory license fees that cover costs of Mandatory training for ALL dogs.
- Too many ill behaved animals running around."
- People should have to have a home inspection before being aloud an animal
- Breed specific legislation is disgusting. It doesn't work.
- In minor offences, I believe that requiring mandatory training (instead of fine) would be better for the community as a long term solution.
- I don't agree with a city wide bully ban. Any kind of discrimination is extremely shameful.

- Fully support the spay/neuter program continuing and no kill policy.
- Trying to be breed specific is NOT the answer. Even a small dog can do damage
- What about the large number of domestic bunnies that are in Calgary communities destroying gardens, flowers and killing trees.
- Seize nuisance pets for rehabilitation from convicted criminals. Allow but limit the amount of livestock (chickens) a lot.
- No further comments
- Don't just spay/neuter feral cats, take them off the street into shelters to either be adopted or euthanized. Protect our native wildlife.
- Breed specific discrimination shouldn't be brought in.
- I don't have any right now.
- No
- As a veterinary professional, breed specific legislation is wrong. Every dog should be judged for its own behavior.
- BAN CYCLISTS IN DOG PARKS. I'm tired of almost having my dog run over by some idiot who refuses to use the 2500kms of bike paths in the city
- NO BANS OF ANY SUCH SHOULD BE A CONSIDERATION. All animals have their behaviors based on how they were raised. Punish the owners instead.
- I am completely AGAINST any and all Breed specific bylaws! Don't judge/punish an entire breed for the actions of some irresponsible owners.
- The Pitbull thing is absolutely ridiculous. You should take that out of everything, there are a lot of big dogs with big bites.
- please try to change the attitude of "outdoor" cats as okay... Its not okay for wildlife, cats, or people. Yet cats off the streets
- Breed discrimination is absolutely wrong in any circumstance.
- how are you ensuring that the people responding to this questionnaire actually live in Calgary and are not part of a lobby group?
- Pitbulls are not the only ones that "bite". PLENTY of other breeds do as well. So not single pitbulls out as it is inconsiderate and wrong.
- Pitbulls are a dangerous breed. Breed-specific legislation is way overdue in Calgary.
- bandannas for temperament traffic light system are unsafe a park. Collar is less Likely for another dog to latch onto.
- Animal cruelty should be a main focus. So much goes around that is not being seen. Dont ban pitbulls, focus on all forms of animal cruelty
- Unsupervised feeding in outside spaces should not occur. This would help decrease the skunk issue and deter feral cats.
- Leave pitties alone- they are amazing, smart, sensitive, loving dogs. The people are the problem- not the dogs.

- How is stating that pitbulls are aggressive going to help at all? For those that have them, this is like an insult to them. It is so wrong
- Create a Program to educate kids in schools on how to approach dogs and dog safety. Many families do not do this at home!
- Discriminating the pitbull breed is disappointing. I will move cities if it comes down to this. It is unfair and wrong to look down on them.
- Just leave Pit bull breeds alone, target bad owners not great breeds. This is just another way to cost the tax payer more money.
- I'm hearing lots of, "small dogs can be dangerous too". Key difference: a small dog attack fundamentally less vicious than a pitbull attack
- Pitbulls should not be singled out in bylaws. They are no more of a danger than any other breed. The responsibility should fall on owners.
- No
- Na
- Breed specific regulation should never be a target. As a paramedic I've been to more dog bite calls and be bitten by many more small dogs.
- It's time Calgary catches up to other forward-thinking cities. It's time we bring breed-specific-legislation to Calgary!
- People who do not clean up after their animals should not be allowed to own animals. I am sick and tired of seeing dog feces all over
- I know a caring, responsible owner of a loving, kind pit bull. It's not the breed, it's crappy owners: punish them, not the dogs.
- Fines are not as good a deterrent as good pet education and training that is accessible and affordable. As targeting pit bulls is a new low
- Please remove any reference to single out pitbulls. I've never had an issue with a pit bull in a dog park, but have with golden retrievers.
- Pit bulls were selectively bred for aggression. Stop acting like they weren't and are innocent. They will resort to nature over nature.
- Pit bulls are dangerous and should be banned from city limits. If you want to own one, move to an acreage.
- Stricter punishment for irresponsible breeders
- There is no reason to single out a specific breed. Statistically more dog bites occurs from golden retrievers than pitbulls.
- please don't judge dogs based on their breeds. I have a pitbull mix who is super gentle. We are responsible owners and this feels very unfair
- People who are pro pitbulls are probably the same people who haven't done the proper classes and training. Limit them = Limit the hazard.
- Focus on negligent owners It's not the animals fault for biting someone running loose or barking obsessively it's the owners who are at fault

- I do not support breed-specific bylaws and would focus on encouraging responsible ownership and accountability.
- Stop pinning everything on "pitbulls" when there are more aggressive breeds out there. Some of which are smaller so people brush them off.
- There needs to be more regulation regarding responsible dog ownership. Animals are not the problem, people are the problem.
- No
- More involvement and consequences for roaming, unsupervised cats.
- No comment
- As a certified trainer and employee of humane society it is disappointing and upsetting to see Pitbulls targeted. Education is needed here
- It would be wonderful to add a few enclosures for aggressive dogs in the dog parks so they can run safely, with a private walking path
- Comparing BSL to racism? Come on. We're talking about dogs that are documented killers. Not the same. They are dangerous. Support this.
- We should be focusing more on the owners involved and responsible in these situations over the specific breeds involved.
- Regulate pitbulls like we regulate firearms. Ban them!
- More severe stray and roaming cat control.
- I am AGAINST breed specific rules or rulings. Instead we should offer inexpensive assistance programs to ANY or all animals who may need it
- The city shouldn't lower animal licenses for low income families, if they can't afford the cost they can't afford to take care of the animal
- Higher fines for leaving pets outside in the high heat or freezing snow, or out all night
- Control for nuisance cats in the city.
- Follow high rivers example where pet fees are used to put poo bags and garbages on paths. Calgary fees are just a cash grab
- When a small dog attacks, the result is usually not life-altering. When a pitbull attacks, the result is usually life-altering. Why risk it?
- More accessible reporting for roaming and nuisance cats.
- Targeting Pitbulls (who you state do not have higher rates of aggression) is wrong and overly aggressive. I would protest that bylaw.
- N/A
- BSL is the only answer. It's time Calgary adopts this legislation.
- A dog that is labeled a "nuisance" for barking needs to be treated differently than a dog that bites or escapes - there needs to be nuance.
- DNA sampling of pets to fine irresponsible owners for leftovers on streets.
- More strict guidelines/laws and consequences for cat owners. No free roaming.

- It's time for BSL. Existing pitbulls can be grandfathered, but the city should immediately ban future pitbulls from it's public spaces.
- The approach to pit bulls is short-sighted. It's not a specific breed. And there is no evidence that it will make the city safer.
- Let's make out off leashes safe for our pets and families. No pit bulls allowed.
- No.
- You should have to actually be a Calgarian to fill out this survey, it makes no sense to be getting opinions from all around the world.
- I have no idea how to stop a dog from barking when a owner is not home.
- No
- Stricter bylaws and increase in fine for unsupervised cats.
- Pit bulls should definitely be banned from all public spaces and certainly from off leash dog parks.
- "Breed specific discrimination should not be allowed.
- It's the irresponsible pet owners that cause the trouble for the rest."
- One thing that wasn't covered is educating your staff and the people who wrote the phases they clearly know nothing about actual dog behavior
- Increase in cat traps and fines for roaming cats.
- For all individuals that have domestic abuse or abuse in their criminal history, they should not be able to own any type of animal
- Please don't ban bully breeds ! They're amazing dogs.
- Owners of animals need to be held More responsible for the actions of their animals
- Increased fines for outdoor off leash felines.
- People should not be allowed to vote for ideas here more than once. Same with the survey.
- Water stations within the dog parks would be very helpful for all dogs and owners!
- Easier way to report nuisance felines in the area.
- The need for stronger legislation to help bylaw officers investigate abuse/neglect and ban abusive/neglectful owners from ever owning pets
- Breed specific bylaws deserve no place in the world. Its not the animals fault ever. Its the lack of training. BSL is not needed.
- Do not euthanize stray animals as they could be put into shelters to become adopted. It is wrong to euthanize just to "control" the numbers
- Better way to report and respond to roaming cats that people own. They are out of control.
- Perhaps (some) fine payments could go towards training services that could be provided at a reduced cost .
- Breed specific laws do not work. Many pitties are wonderful, loving dogs. Focus on behaviour!
- I think fines should be smaller in cases where the money could go towards aiding the victim. That should be a requirement - not higher fines
- No
- None

- Waste bags beside every garbage can in public parks and dog parks would be helpful to those that do not bring their own or forget theirs
- If dogs are required to be supervised and on leash outside.. Then why are so many cats running free in the city and less is being done?
- Banning breeds does not work - it is on the owner to train their dog appropriately. Once the dog has public issues then enforce training.
- Why is there any naming of "pit bulls" the blame falls on owners who haven't done their due diligence and trained their pets properly
- How is it 2020 and people are still stating that all pitbull breeds are dangerous? How about we charge those that abuse and neglect them
- breed specific laws are ridiculous. Enforce the laws on the books and things will be fine
- We have cats and have added measures to keep them in our yard. They want to be out front for the chance to catch mice. mice #will go up!!!
- I have 4 amazing dogs. They are mannered and cared for every single day. It would be heartbreaking if they were being looked at as vicious
- I don't agree with having breed specific by-laws or legislation. A dogs bad behavior is reflection of their owner's bad behavior, not breed
- Pit bulls are not the problem it's owners singling out one breed is discrimination just like singling out one race of humans
- Bylaw considering the massive amount of wild rabbits damaging protect and herders in Kensington needs to be addressed.
- Do not discriminate against any particular breed.
- If an animal is exhibiting dangerous/ aggressive behaviour dog and owner should be required to attend a course to improve the training
- All animals have the capability to be mean. But the owners hold the most accountability for their pets actions.
- Breed specific regulations are outrageous, target the owners, not the animals.
- More spay and neuter programs, and then put strays up for adoption and put into shelters!
- It is up to owners to train their pet. Restrictions/fines should only be applied to those who are unfit owners. One breed is not The problem
- The jaws of a pit bull function the exact same way as all other dogs' jaws. Leave Pitties alone!
- DO NOT make "breed specific" legislation. All dogs, and cats, and animals deserve equal rights and rules.
- breed specific discrimination should not be in effect. how horrible would it be to let go of your companion animal due to that?
- Do not descriminate against breeds. Remove from careless owners when necessary.
- Breed specific legislation is such a joke. It's bad owners, not the breed itself. Power tripping council - not a surprise.
- Breed bans are useless and misguided. Focus on animal welfare, including animals in pet stores and private sales, and education for owners.

- I am a rescue Foster. many people do not realize that their cats are not allowed to freely run around the neighborhoods. educate fine
- another animal rescue centre should be in NE calgary. most of them are in the south and not easy to get to or are far for some.
- Pit bull breeds need muzzling in public and a ban from off lease parks, they are inherently dangerous dogs
- No
- Restrictions on Specific breeds (pit bull type) outlined in this survey are ridiculous and unproven. Do not muzzle docile dogs.
- Support mandatory education for all owners with nuisance pets.
- Cats that are let out to wander should be removed from the home of irresponsible pet owners-
- Why not do Breed-Specific Legislation for owners, too? Eg, must be BIPOC to own a pitbull, must be Latinx to own chihuahua.
- For those that are dumping bunnies that they no longer want should be fined for neglect
- Quit discriminating breeds.
- Breed-specific discrimination is wrong. You say it why right here: "pit bulls are not involved in more bite incidents than other dog breeds"
- Please, please, please, do NOT name specific breeds in any bylaws. Calgary has been a great example of good legislation so far.
- north east calgary needs another humane society or rescue. all of them are too far down south and not easy to get to.
- Breed specific regulations is not the answer. Stricter requirements for pet ownership are required. The owner needs to take responsibility.
- Breed specific regulations are based on bias misinformation, no dog is more dangerous than another.
- Lower licensing fees, to make pet ownership viable for all, but greatly increase fines for violations and infractions.
- Stop discriminating against specific breeds- Pit bull breeds are NOT more prone to aggression over other breeds!
- Breed specific discrimination shouldn't be the backbone of this engagement. Be better.
- love the idea of 6 dogs per household or 6 cats. i have 4 dogs but theyre always taken care of and loved. couldnt imagine life without them.
- Pit bulls aren't dangerous. The owners are the real danger. Don't make dumb rules cause people don't know how to be a pet owner
- Make dog and cat licensing cheaper and available online with e-receipt and tags available through mail delivery.
- Breed specific discrimination is just the same as discrimination with humans. How wrong is that. It is 2020, we should all know better.
- Funding should be discussed for proper rehabilitation programs, training and spaying and neutering programs.

- Bsl does not work. If the dog or owner is being assaulted then the dog should be allowed act in self defense as easily as a human
- Please revisit your definition of nuisance dog and their requirements. Requiring insurance for a dog that barks a lot does nothing.
- Why not just bring in more affordable options for pet owners instead of trying to dictate what animals/number of animals someone owns?
- Fines for people who attack animals or attempt to attack animals
- Breed bans are not helpful at all and all your fines should be based on circumstances for the infraction.
- I think the city should not be promoting or even considering BSL. It's PROVEN in Ontario already that BSL does NOT work.
- license fee per household rather than per pet. Start at your base fee and just add 10$ for each additional animal. Be affordable, easier
- I think it would be helpful if a set of bylaws was posted.....Ferne has such a set and I applaud them for shedding light on gray areas. EG
- STOP bullying the bully breeds. It is inhumane and so wrong. How could you support that? How as humans we support this nonsense.
- If you allow animal suchs as chickens, there should be a list of 24 hour vet clinics who can help these animals
- BSL does not work. More educations for owners as many do not understand their pets body language and needs.
- More rentable space at parks for certain time slots like placeforpaws in rockyview. Should be placed in the NE calgary area.
- introducing bylaws that are breed specific should NOT be done! I am extremely disappointed in Calgary.
- Another dog park. But with rentable space with a fee. Like placeforpaws in Rockyview County Area.
- breed specific laws are not fair, and are unrealistic. Bylaws should be for ALL dog breeds with teeth.
- BSL is so wrong. It isnt meant for anywhere, especially not Calgary. Why are we discriminating against breeds? That is wrong.
- Specifically discriminating against a breed of any kind should not be permitted and should be the owners responsibility.
- Please do not discriminate against certain breeds. I would suggest comparing the numbers between ownership or pit bulls v.s actual attacks
- I do NOT support Urban Chickens, and am appalled that this is being considered seriously. Livestock belongs in rural areas.
- Scrap any breed specific legislation. They are based on unwarranted fears and not facts. Many jurisdictions are reversing their bylaws too
- I cannot believe the City is still trying to implement this (remove) against pit bulls. Shame on you. Hold responsibility on the owners!

- We shouldn't be punishing dogs just because they are a "pit bull" nor should we be punishing good dog owners for having them!
- I feel that everyone who gets a dog should be required to attend training. There are many many bad dogs out there due to owner negligence.
- EG: Females in heat should not be in off leash park. Children often interpreted as "prey" for many animals so kids must be controlled.
- Pet education as part of elementary school (how to approach/pet; when not to). Onus should be on humans to be responsible (owners/others).
- Breed specific legislation is ineffective and not supported by the evidence. Punish bad owners not the dogs they don't know how to handle.
- I have a friend with a pitbull and it is the kindest dog I've ever met. Please don't punish dogs for bad owners.
- responsible pet ownership, absolutely. Responsible public awareness also. This is a community.
- Punish the deed not the breed. Breed specific legislation is discrimination and fuels the fear and stigma attached to "bully" type dogs.
- People need to be able to afford the pets they take in. That means also attending pet training sessions. Dogs are not magically well behaved
- There is no evidence that pitbulls are a dangerous breed. The ASPCA expressly opposes breed-discriminatory ordinances and legislation.
- Use feral cats for rent in mouse infested areas, or give tax breaks to business that house and maintain feral colonies if the city neuters
- Animal breeds should not be discriminated against. It is how the animal is raised. It is disgusting that you would consider this.
- No breed specific laws
- Not discriminate against pit bulls and bully breeds, as their behavior is a result of their training and life experience, not their breed.
- This breed specific stigma is nauseating. Check the facts, consult with specialists. ANY animal of ANY size can cause harm in the wrong hand
- BSL has been proven to not work. The fact that the City is even considering it is extremely concerning.
- The bylaw focuses on enforcement of poorly correlated metrics. Focus on prevention and the actual issues; improve outcomes and compliance.
- Things should be brought in to support owners with 'unique' dogs that punish those that ignore warnings and engage with the animal.
- BEING RACIST IS NOT SOLVING ANYTHING!! Stop blaming pit bulls and "vicious" big dogs. Blame the owner not the dog! Fix the abuse charges.
- Breeds are not the problem. Pitbulls are not the problem. Owners who do not properly train or care for their animal are the problem.
- "BSL won't solve anything!!
- You can't ban a breed because of human ignorance."

- No pitbull discrimination. More issues with misbehaved labs, retrievers and small snappy dogs.
- Do not discriminate based on breed. You're blaming the wrong end of the leash.
- There needs to be more clear, calculable limits on barking. Like "more than 1 hour with no breaks"; to reduce # of disputes and prioritize neglect
- Breed specific legislation is ineffective and perpetuates a ridiculous stereotype
- I have had a number of altercations with dogs over the years, both off leash parks and on leash. Never once was the issue with a pitbull.
- Bad dog owners are the problem, not a breed. Enforce that and we will see a reduction in indecent
- Calling my dog out because of how she LOOKS is discriminatory! Isn't this what we are trying to eliminate in our society?!!
- The inclusion of breed specific legislation is abhorrent and has no place in this city. Base things off behaviors not physical traits.
- No letting your dog out before 7 in the morning if it barks the whole time
- I believe it's unfair to categorize Pitbulls as a problem dog. My own dog is loving, affectionate and would do no harm to any human or other
- "Trying to be breed specific is NOT the answer. Even a small dog can do damage"
- License fees should be for the lifetime of the animal and owner contact information / pet name should be on the tag.
- I do not believe pit bulls should be singled out as dangerous. It is a misrepresentation of the breed. Any dog can be dangerous
- No dog based on their characteristics should be judged
- BREED SPECIFIC LEGISLATION WILL SET AN UNFAIR AND DANGEROUS PRECEDENT
- I think all dog and cat owners should take a class on how to properly take care of an animal. For sure large dogs.
- No dog should be muzzled due to appearance! Muzzle the uncontrolled dogs of all breeds and make muzzles more positive light.
- No breed specific discrimination
- DO NOT put restrictions on pitbulls. It's not breed of dog, it's owner. It is ridiculous that Calgary is naive enough to think it's breed
- Pitbulls are no more dangerous than other dogs it's disgusting that Calgary is considering discriminating against them
- More dog parks
- Being breed specific is not the answer. Responsible ownership is the best way to mitigate all of these.
- "Bad owners are often a reflection of a dog's behavior.
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work it's been tried in other provinces."
- can we just end BSL? it is 2020 and it shouldn't be the priority over here. Let's focus on animal cruelty and to put these people in jail

- Breed Specific is discrimination! You can't judge a book by the cover. Small dogs are just as aggressive. Penalize owners not breeds!
- Breed specific discrimination has been proven detrimental across jurisdictions. Do not introduce it in Calgary.
- Breed specific discrimination is unacceptable
- this is all a joke. and even if "pit bulls" get banned from parks ill still be there with mine letting her run and play with all dogs.
- Maybe the City should be concentrating on cleaning up the city, fixing out roads and providing value to our city taxes. Stop wasting my $$$$
- breed specific discrimination is not the priority over here. it is about all the irresponsible pet owners that neglect their animals.
- I've been severely harmed by a small dog. I had to get a bunch of stitches. breed specific bylaws are not the answer.
- Breeds should not be discriminated. Encourage adoption through shelters versus breeders.
- BSL does not work and is costly to try to enforce. Saying all "pitbulls" will bite is like saying all racial minorities will be criminals. N
- I disagree with breed specific legislation. Dangerous animals should be evaluated case by case and not by breed.
- Biggest challenge I encounter is off-leash dogs in areas that are for on-leash dogs. Suggest higher fines for repeat offenders who do this
- Please remove all breed specific language + consider the harmful impacts of fining for minor infractions could have on lower income people.
- no
- The conditions about dogs that are "pit bulls" are absolutely ridiculous. You are catering to uneducated public instead of educating them.
- For those that dump domestic bunnies anywhere that used to be pets, should be fined for neglect as that is so wrong and not responsible.
- Please do not make any of the bylaws pit bull specific. Calgary has been above this and it needs to be focused on nuisance dogs not breeds
- stop saying pitbulls are bad. talk about the owners and people that neglect them and abuse them. they need to be in jail TODAY.
- I don't believe all pit bulls are bad it's all upon the owner and training. If a dog is vicious it should be at owners fault.
- I think the pitbul restriction is not correct it could be any dog, my dog got attacked by a Rottweiler
- Training/cert. for owners by reputable trainers. I get my pitbull assessed yearly and he's not aggressive but he is still a dog.
- people complain of cats in flower beds. Dogs stop peeing on others property during your walk time!!
- All dogs are capable of damage. Heavier fines for irresponsible owners the right solution.

- Not reallu
- The sub-parks within dog parks where a dog can be off leash without risk to others should be accessible without going into the dog park.
- Make the fine for biting a child LOWER than biting an adult. Also consider finding the parents of children caught teasing dogs.
- we should look more into the owners of the aggravated dogs. dogs end up being a reflection of the owner, the dogs typically dont know better
- There is no good reason to charge for pet license. Registering online should be mandatory but not charge. This is a Cash cow
- Get rid of nuisance dog definitions and specific breed targeting. The definition is too loose and all dogs bite.
- Breed specific polices are not effective or sustainable. They are not supported by logic or evidence based practice.
- Breed specifics was addressed a few years ago there is no need to bring it back to the table. It doesn't work!
- The use of extending leashes should be banned altogether.
- It doesn't matter on the breed of dog you have. They shouldn't be banning pitbulls because of the " name" they are the most loving caring.
- There should be no dog breed discrimination. All and any type of dog can bit and become aggressive.
- It should always be a curdious manner to speak with the neighbours whom they are having issues with prior to involving the city.
- Just as border collies are known to be intelligent and require stimulation, pitbulls are known to be dangerous. Ban bully breeds immediately
- BSL has been proven not effective time and time again. Focus on pet laws that target irresponsible owners, not the pets!!
- ALL animals should be treated the same. Any animal can be dangerous due to their ownership/training. We should never single out one breed.
- Breed specific bylaws are not necessary, nor are they appropriate.
- Breed specific legislation is truly disappointing to see from the City of Calgary. Discipline owners with bad dogs. Not breeds alone
- N/a
- I think introducing the direct relation to pit bull breeds is ridiculous
- Engage in a information based program on how only a small % of Pitbull type dogs are dangerous and owners turn can turn any breed vicious
- Pit bulls should not be discriminated against as a breed and not be banned. All dogs have the capability to learn proper dog behaviour.
- My 6yr old pitbull served as a therapy dog for two low functioning autistic children with 0 incidents. Breeds don't determine aggression
- Fire [remove].

- Discriminating against a dogs breed is the same as discrimination against humans for being of different ethnicity, that is not acceptable.
- "No pitbull bans
- Higher fines and jail time for people who abuse animals including but not limited to dog fighting and aggression training"
- Leave pit bulls alone. It had nothing to do with the breed and everything to do with the owner.
- Not sure but the Bylaw about cats no being allowed outside to roam is ridiculous. It should be removed. It is unenforceable
- I feel that if a dog barks alot there is a solution u can buy collars that make the dog not bark or take the dog in the house
- Breed specific legislation is not supported by evidence and should be rejected.
- There should be NO discrimination towards certain dogs breeds seems like animal racism to me
- Take the idea of euthanasia off the table completely. Support and fund a training program and more appropriate care if necessary
- There should be a by law no long periods of barking between 11pm and 7am
- The owner should be accountable and they should be made to put their dog or cat threw any training. The animal should never be blamed.
- No breed specific legislation! This only hurts the animals and doesn't address the real issue of dangerous dogs in any breed.
- breed specific or similar looks is profiling, what happened to don't judge a book by it's cover. If this happens I will leave Calgary
- N/A
- I feel like there needs to be rules made for people trying to obtain a pet, they should not be classified as 'property' but a family member.
- Specific dog breeds should NOT be targeted. I love my pitbul
- There should be no breed discrimination. It is up to the owner how the dog behaves.
- Off leash should not mean out of control. Dog must have recall, be in sight of the owner, should not be a danger to other pets or people.
- Higher fines for dogs off leash friendly or not in non off leash areas Must be enforced. BSL breeds ignorance and enforces It as factual
- This is step one on the way to a pit bull ban. Breed specific rules are not alright. Stop being discriminatory and change the survey!
- Citizens have a right not to want dangerous animals in their parks, and to have more rules about owning them. This is a good thing.
- n/a
- Breed Specific Legislation should not even be considered
- Don't be like Ontario!! Realise it's the sog owner, not the breed!!!
- BSL is a horrible thing and should not be done. Maybe talk to experts because that obviously didn't happen

- so many variables to consider in regard to the dog related proposal. There are a lot of uninformed dog owners, these rules won't fix
- Breed specific bylaws should be thrown out. Bad dogs are a direct result of bad owners. Plain and simple.
- The bully breed specific items should be dropped. Nuisance/aggressive animals should all be treated the same regardless of breed.
- Do not discriminate against breed types. As you stated Pit Bull Breeds do not bite more often, take away the stereotype.
- If your dog is not ok with other dogs or people, don't bring it to a busy, public offleash. Training/socialization are needed not bandannas
- Specific breed discrimination should not be included in a bylaw. Behaviour is the result of treatment/upbringing not breed.
- I highly disagree with the bully breed ban. Any breed discrimination is disappointing makes me ashamed of this city for debating it
- No breed specific laws! Hold all pet owners responsible, with reminders for small breed owners that they too have to train their dogs
- I take offence at the idea that the city is targeting pit bull breeds. I see more large dogs on leash/ under control than small ones.
- Do not consider breed specific legislation.
- Breed discrimination is ridiculous. Y'all have some bolts loose if you actually do that.
- Offer training
- No breed specific bylaws.
- I'd like to see stiffer fines, jail time or penalties to those who harm animals. These changes may fall under different bylaws etc though.
- The feral bunny problem at Lindsay Park needs to be handled.
- Shame on you. I am furious that you have made this breed specific. It is not the breed but the owner who should be held accountable.
- Dogs should not be seized when waiting for "trial" of an incident. Have a behavioral specialist come and evaluate them in their home setting
- A noise complaint should not be acted upon by the city unless the complainant has tried to engage the owners first. Low level resolution.
- Do not penalize specific breeds. Enforce the bylaws and treat all dogs the same.
- The main issue around bylaws and animals is not the nature of the rules, but whether they are enforced. Please enforce the rules!
- Breed Specific Legislation has been proven ineffective, identifying a dangerous dog based on presumed breed or appearance is primitive.
- Breed specific discrimination shouldn't be brought in. All dogs can bite.
- A requirement for training for larger dogs over a set size or weight since they are capable of causing greater harm if they attack.

- Education to all regarding the number of bites from small dogs, and the frequency of dog bites as result of instigation
- Any erratic animal should be provided with a training class, provided at lower costs
- BSL is horrible. I am a veterinary nurse and I think you should speak with veterinary professionals to get their educated opinions!
- I understand some dogs have issues but this shouldn't be specified to one particular breed
- Seize nuisance pets for rehabilitation and rehoming - not euthanasia
- Better training for by law officers, more ppl skills and less disrespect to the public
- We should not be discriminating against pitbulls. My sister has 3 young children, and her pitbull is the best dog when it comes to the kids.
- Leave people alone to live their lives. We don't need the government involved in what kind of dog we own.
- Lease laws that don't appear to be enforced. We invest public dollars in off lease areas - great but increase enforcement of lease bylaws
- Specific special licensing for aggressive dog breeds. Too many irresponsible owners gravitate towards pit bulls.
- Stop breed discrimination and hold owner's accountable not the dog
- Focus on real issues in the city. This is an absolute waste of tax payer dollars and I am ashamed to call you my city councilors.
- Dog control and temperament classes should be mandatory for any owner fined for having an uncontrolled dog regardless of breed.
- Please remove breed-specific language from your proposed bylaw. This discrimination is wrong and will not make the city safer.
- Discriminating against a breed on "strength" is invalid. If true all large dogs should be under this advisement. Hold owners accountable.
- Fees for indoor cats should be lower than outdoor. Owners should be held more accountable for their pets if they bite.
- Stop criminalizing a breed of dogs. It's the owners not the dogs that are the problem.
- Sometimes a dog is teased or mistreated by children or adults which causes it to be nervous and scared. Authorities do not allow for this
- Pit bulls should not be subjected to unfair treatment by by-law. Any dog breed has the potential to cause harm
- Don't discriminate against certain breeds
- As a responsible dog owner, I strongly oppose any Breed Specific Legislation toward pit bulls.
- Pit bulls should not be singled out or targeted in this specifically. They are not inherently aggressive, this is learned behaviour
- Please focus on funding training, education, and prevention rather than funding people to handle dog attacks, bites, etc. after the fact.
- There should be no breed specific bylaws of any kind, it's just wrong

- The owner should be penalized and the dog should be trained if a dog is aggressive. Aggressive dogs are like that because of the owners
- Breed Specific penalization is [remove]. It is never the dog, or the breed, it is always a crappy owner.
- Mandatory specialized classes for problem dogs. Many owners are ill equipped to deal with problem dogs as they lack experience in training.
- No
- Nothing to add
- No
- Education for parents to discourage children from approaching dogs (whether on or off leash). A constant problem as a dog owner.
- Like many rescues mandate, mandatory obedience training should be part of licensing.
- Pit bulls are not more dangerous than other dogs!! How about we implement stronger penalties for animal abuse!
- Dogs should not be discriminated against, much like how we don't allow human discrimination.
- Off leash areas that are adjacent to residential streets/alleys fenced to avoid harassing animals in yards. eg: West of south end of Blkfoot
- A limit on the number of dogs that dog walkers can supervise at a time. I constantly see one walker with over 10 dogs (on and off leash)
- A fenced-off section in the off leash parks where unpredictable or nervous dogs can take turns running (sniffing) around by themselves.
- People should be charged more for leaving dogs in hot vehicles.
- Fine policy should be 2nd incident, not 1st but should also be accompanied with compulsory training for offence. Also leave pitbulls alone
- Breed specific legislation is not the answer. Target bad owners. Don't punish good owners for bad owners mistakes.
- The humans should be held responsible whenever fit, not the animals. Dog specific by-laws do not decrease the instances of issues.
- It should all be on the owner, breed specific discrimination shouldn't be brought in. Any breed can be dangerous if not trained right.
- If cats "at large" are not causing specific problems or complaints from neighbours, let them be!
- No breed specific bylaw! All animal owners need to be more responsible.
- Making restrictions based off a breed (pitbull) is not fair. You can make fines for biting or threatening higher, but don't restrict breeds.
- Not allowing dogs to socialize with humans or dogs can make them more aggressive. I do support putting a muzzle on specific breeds in public
- Weight and Size limit for pets on retractable leashes, enforce retractable leash length limit to comply with bylaws
- Less restrictions and more education! Stop labeling bully breeds as the villains in this narrative.

- I dont think a breed specific ban of any type should be put in place. Eg my dog got attacked by a shihtzu at a dog park not a 'pitbull'
- Owners should be held responsible for the actions of their dogs. Breed bans have been proven to be ineffective.
- None
- No breed restrictions.
- I feel like with cats that are outdoor cats it should be mandatory to have them fixed
- Reduce licensing fees. They are still too high for the average income earners. Especially if you allow 6 pets per household?
- A breed specific legislation isn't the answer. Promote responsible ownership and responsible breeding. Training mandatory for all dog owners
- I strongly oppose any breed specific bylaws. It takes away from the true problem which is responsible pet ownership in general.
- There should NOT be breed specific legislation and it should be no longer even be discussed. Focus on things that are needed!
- Breed-specific is NOT the answer. Even a small dog can do damage, Owners need to be held accoutable, what about domestic bunnies problem.
- It must not be mandatory for certain breeds to wear a muzzle and be banned from dog parks.
- Breed specific discrimination is equivalent to racism. Racism is taught, and bad behaviour in pets is also taught.
- No
- Set up seminars to educate individuals on the different kinds of breeds of dogs, cats and what would be more compatible with the individuals
- Please do not bring in breed specific bylaws, all dogs are capable of biting and injuring. It's the owners, not the dog.
- Breed specific bylaws should not exist under any circumstances. They are based on myths, misinformation, bias, prejudice, and discrimination
- BSL=DEATH SENTENCE. This is shameful that Calgary is considering this. Do more non-biased research on the breeds!
- None
- Some Pit Bulls are actually the nicest and most well behaved at the dog park. It's not fair to their owners to be discriminated against
- Those enforcement officers dealing with dogs and cats, have they taken behavioural courses to understand the animal? this would be a must.
- Stop making breed specific rules. Start punishing people not breeds.
- Breed specific legislation is not the right approach. Requirements should be based on "actual” behaviours/risks not hypothetical ones.
- HOW ABOUT [removed] DONT BAN PITBULLS,,
- no

- There should be some sort of warning/fine for dogs off leashes in leashed areas.
- Maybe try owner specific legislation? If you can't train your dog, you don't deserve one. But the dog shouldn't be punished for human error.
- Stricter enforcement to prevent cats from free roaming, threatening their own safety as well as wildlife.
- Training and rehabilitation should be priority for an pet animal labeled a nuisance. As well as for any dog. No breed discrimination.
- Is there a neighbor that constantly complains just to cause issues they should go to Mediation
- First time owners should have to go to a course to learn how to properly care for a dog. Reckless owners are more dangerous than any breed
- Further leeway re: small livestock such as goats should be considered in the amendment for hens/laying animals (limited #s)
- Encourage responsible cat ownership by promoting harness training, catios, and indoor enrichment as an alternative to outdoor cats.
- Protection training on Opitbulls
- this misinformation about pitbulls shows how [remove]and uneducated calgary by law is, they are such a nice breed, dont discriminate!!
- No BSL in Calgary!
- Breed specific discrimination is wrong.
- N/a
- Breed specific legislation should not be considered.
- What shocked me was the signaling out of dogs based simply on appearance. Calgary has been world renowned for its breed neutral policies.
- Are we going to start limit the # of children a family can have? Little kids are noisy and a nuisance and destructive
- Having animal by law worry more about the animals then writing tickets.
- BSD is [remove].I am a pit bull owner and my dog is loving and caring and a huge part of my household. It is not fair to single out my dogs breed
- I think it is ABSURD that there is even a mention of BSL for pitbulls. Do your research! This has been proven over and over and over again
- Strangers and kids should be fined for harassing and provoking pets
- Breed specific discrimination should not be enforced. When licensing breeder/sellers information should be required to track potential crim
- Need more "wild" areas in the city that are not off-leash. I'd like to walk on an unpaved path without a dog running up to me.
- n/a
- Reduced license fees for spayed/neutered animals, or higher license fees for intact animals to encourage fixing animals/discourage breeding
- Please make bicycles walk through off leash dog areas. Or at the least limit to 5km/hr.

- Breed specific discrimination isn't the answer - encouraging and mandating (when appropriate) responsible dog ownership (eg training) is.
- "There should be no breed discrimination.
- The welfare of all animals should be equality protected."
- Increasing fees is one thing, but I think enforcement is really what can be improved upon.
- Licensing breeders - if no license, spaying/neutering are mandatory
- I really think you should consider the idea of public warnings regarding nuisance and dangerous animals.
- Breed discrimination is outdated and perpetuates the exploitation of pit bulls.
- There needs to be a way for a dog to pass a test to be declassified from 'nuisance' to 'nice pet.'
- Please do not do breed-specific laws/discrimination. Bad owners are bad owners regardless of breed. Keep spay/neuter feral cats.
- There's no reason to specify pit bulls - they can fall under the "any aggressive animal" category ONLY if applicable
- "Support the spay/neuter program, no kill shelters!
- I like the idea of having pet licenses at reduced costs and available in more locations."
- N/A
- No
- Give your head a shake. Breed specific discrimination should not be a thing. Ask yourself, is it okay to discriminate people based on race?
- Breed discrimination should not be implemented but animals who attack should be fined and have to complete training to keep the dog
- Breed specific legislation isn't supported. All animals can bite.
- Provide affordable training classes, so that more people can train their dogs. There are no bad dogs, only people who don't take the time
- It bothers me that this seems to be a bylaw specific to certain breeds of animals. Train the owners not the animals!!!!
- n/a
- We absolutely 100% do NOT need to discriminate breeds in Calgary. It's frustrating reading this section of the changes.
- Separate areas for lg and sm breeds (by weight) at off-leash parks . Sm breeds often charge at my lg breed = faultless retaliatory reaction
- Education for responsible pet ownership is most important. Absurd fines right off the bat help no one except the money-hungry city.
- No
- Pick up your dog's business. Not everyone wants your dog walking all over their front yard.
- don't muzzle the " pit bulls" ; .
- provide spay and netuer programs to everyone. This would prevent males from roaming and siring litters

- There should be a bylaw to limit/restrict dogs in multifamily buildings. The building in which I live even allows large dogs.
- Any breed specific legislation is discriminatory and fails to address the actual issue which is irresponsible owners. I
- Don't bully pits just bc they've got a stronger bite than other dogs, discrimination not needed
- Breed discrimination is absolutely ridiculous. Do better City of Calgary.
- Breed specific discrimination is a big step backwards and completely unfair to the owners it's not the dogs fault it's the owners
- Training for walking cats or other domestic animals that aren't dogs. Parks also designated for leashed cats, etc.
- I think the breed specific legislation regarding Pitbulls should be completely removed from the engagement for phase 2. We are not "racists"
- Bully specific legislation (BSL) is discriminatory and has no place in today's society.
- Proof of vaccinations should be a requirement to get a pet license. To many unvaccinated dogs at the parks.
- Pit bulls should not be lumped together with "nuisance dogs"; "Nuisance dogs" should also be more specific as to the behaviour shown.
- Banning selected breeds doesn't work. I would also like to see higher fines and /or sentencing for people who abuse animals.
- Breed specification should not be brought in. Mandatory education for all dog owners should.
- Any dog, regardless of breed, that has a bite history should be muzzled and leashed in public at all times.
- It has nothing to do with breed it's all to do with the owner and training.
- The fact that pitbulls are being singled out is absolutely bias. The history of these dogs are to be working farm dogs and nanny dogs!
- Targeting specific breeds its absurd. Especially the ones listed above.
- Let's worry about actual issues instead of what people are doing in their homes, thank you.
- More needs to be done about outdoor cats, different licensing and fees should be required as outdoor cats are not monitored and defecate
- Mandatory bite liability insurance for all dogs
- Breed-specific bans and discrimination are NOT acceptable nor rooted in fact.
- No ideas - there should be no breed specific bylaws - the bylaws should apply to all breeds.
- Waiving the period license for in door cats. Why would anyone need a license for a cat that never goes outside or is on a leash
- Na
- Punish owners who have a track record of problem animals and leave the rest of us responsible owners/bully breeds alone
- I don't know
- DO NOT ALLOW BREED SPECIFIC LICENSING.

- I think cats should have a one time registration fee, considering they stay inside for life.
- Why single out a breed and not put ownership on owners. I was shocked to see the bully questions and you are promoting discrimination.
- Pit bull type dogs should not be singled out in the survey. This sounds like it is leading to breed specific legislation which doesn't work
- Stop the attempt on making breed specific rules.
- please don't discriminate against bully breeds. why does no one talk about the little ones? THEY BITE TOO!!
- When pit bulls bite they do a horrifying life changing amount of damage, so much more damage than a retriever or a poodle.
- Dog warnings- when a person has been warned to stay away from dog by owner-person ignores and gets bit. Not the responsibility of dog owner
- No
- I don't believe in breed bias in any shape
- Pit bulls should not be treated differently from other dogs. It is bad owners who raise bad dogs, dogs are not inherently bad.
- Targeting pitbulls is NOT the answer! Rottweiler, German Shepard, Doberman, Husky who's next? Govern the behaviour and owner-not the breed!
- Breed-specific discrimination is not a safe and effective way to deal with nuisance animals.
- breed specific bylaws are insane and so wrong. small breeds can be just as mean.
- Breed specific discrimination is ridiculous. It's not the breed that's the problem, it's the owners. It is NOT the answer.
- I am against breed specific legislation. It is the fault of the owner not the dog.
- This should NEVER be about one specific breed. I've seen Huskies and German Sheppard's be more aggressive than Pit Bulls. Train your pets.
- Breed discrimination is unfair
- Hens should be allowed with a limit of 12. No roosters
- There are no bad animals, only bad owners.
- FACTS about BSL and how IT DOESN'T WORK
<https://www.torontohumanesociety.com/pdfs/Ontario-BSL.pdf>
- Restricting children from entering offleash parks and other parks
- Breed-specific legislation is NEVER the answer Calgary!
- If people of lower income can't afford a pet licence, they likely can't afford proper veterinary care for their pet and shouldn't have it.
- I don't think any type of breed discrimination has anything to do with the "nuisance" of an animal. It has to do with conditioning/training.
- Give some warning before issuing any noise violations. You can't train a dog to stop barking over night.

- Create a new category to distinguish between potentially dangerous and non-dangerous nuisance animals so that laws can be better targeted.
- If you're banning Pit Bulls because of bite strength, you should probably look at all the dogs with greater jaw strength than pitties.....
- Barking is a result of something agitating the dog. Owners with barking dogs should be forced to take training in order to stop the barking.
- There should be pet ownership classes, and they should be mandatory for problematic or first time pet owners.
- Bylaws are useless when not enforced. eg. Dogs in sports fields and playgrounds. Leashes > 6ft. Currently owners can easily ignore the bylaws.
- I love a lifetime licensing fee. Yearly fees are a cash grab for us owners with homebody, nice pets.
- Stop proposing breed specific legislation. The information shared about Pit-Bull type dogs in this survey was false and based on myths.
- I don't think the breed specifics are helpful. There are many small dogs that bite and their owners think they are cute doing it.
- Lay off animal discrimination. All animals are equal regardless of size and color. Start training owners as well.
- There's also needs to be protection against people who antagonize a dog, ie. Blow an airhorn at a dog. There are no rights for the dog owner
- Dogs kill people every year. Ban all dogs.
- Breed bans are inappropriate. Many breeds can cause significant damage or death if not raised/trained properly.
- -
- Would like to see more dog parks open in the Southwest area of Calgary
- I would like to see a reduction in the number of animals being sold online for profit. Higher licensing fees for unfixed animals
- Branding one type of dog dangerous is ridiculous. I have had more issues with small dogs than medium or large dogs.
- I don't think BSL is the way to go - it's an unfair bias against a breed. There's far too many studies done discrediting "facts";
- Stop targeting Pit Bulls as an aggressive breed. German shepherds used to be used as guard dogs and got a bad reputation too. It's owners!!
- No
- Trap and release programs are a great way to limit feral cats in cities without hurting the cats
- Fees and licensing to city for breeding animals, must be regis. Strict and unforgiving rules for cases of animal cruelty, neglect and abuse.
- None

- This is an absolute joke. The fact that you are being breedist of the specific "bully" breed is disgusting. ALL DOGS CAN DO TERRIBLE DAMAGE!
- Animal behaviour is entirely based off of the owner's training, handling, and bonding with the animal and incidents are as well.
- No breed discrimination in my city
- Please don't punish bully breeds. My dog's sweet spirit will be crushed if he's forced to wear a muzzle and not give kisses to everyone
- Breed specific legislation should NOT be mandated but more education and knowledge for the public would be ideal
- Liability insurance for dogs should be mandatory. To ensure injury to another persons pet is financially covered if the dog does attack.
- Ban people with extensive violent history from owning dangerous breeds.
- Do not breed target animals, a German Shepard can be just as dangerous as a bully breed. Owners need to be held responsible for their animal
- Don't breed or buy while shelter pets die. Adopt don't shop.
- Focus enforcement on owners, not pets. I support an increase to licence fees if the money goes directly to rehabilitating confiscated dogs.
- I don't think responsible cat owners should have to purchase yearly licences. My cats have not left the house in 17 years.
- I think if we focused more on the owner of the dog and less about the breed there would less issues
- On-leash areas need to be enforced, I leash my dogs for a reason and hate when an unleashed dog comes at us in a leashed area.
- STOP signaling out Bully Breeds. Make everyone take a course/classes for ownership. Everyone wins if we are all held to the same standards.
- BSL has not been proven to be effective and it is discriminatory. Training given by the owner is much more important.
- Breed means nothing, it's the owners and how the animal is treated that will reflect how it acts in public places.
- I find it frustrating that they don't have a separation of aggressive vs nuisance dogs. And breed shouldn't be a factor at all in this
- Absolutely NO to Breed Specific Legislation. If anything, enforce adequate training. There are no bad dogs, just bad owners.
- A No kill policy should be in place. Living animals should not be killed because they are homeless.
- Breed Specific Legislation is ignorance and bully breeds do not deserve to be lumped in with nuisance animals. SAY NO TO BSL!
- No idea why pit type dogs are singled out. I have personally been bit by more Chihuahuas and dachshunds then any big dog.
- Pet owners should be licensed similar to how drivers are. Owners caught breaking rules have their license taken away.

- Breed specific legislation is a terrible idea. The onus is on a good owner not a bad dog because of its breed.
- Higher fines up to 1000$. If no action is taken the landlord be contacted about reducing quality of life of neighbours.
- Breed specific legislation should not be considered. All dog breeds have the potential to cause harm. Punish the crimes, not the breeds.
- Discrimination against a specific breed of dog is retarded. Bad behaviour is taught by bad owners and can be any breed of dog.
- I do not agree that there should be any rules based on dog breeds. The issues are not caused by breeds, they are caused by bad pet owners.
- If you have more than 1 incident of attacks that's on the owner and they shouldn't be allowed to have any more pets
- Bred specific discrimination should NOT be allowed in Calgary! This is beyond degrading for the animal and the owner.
- Pitbull's are not bad breeds we need to start focussing on bad owners who are with these dogs instead of always attacking the dog we should
- No farm animals should be allowed including for emotional support. Those designations are being abused. Farm animals devalue property.
- Separate aggressive dogs from non-aggressive problem dogs. Their circumstances/restrictions shouldn't be the same.
- For minor offences, requiring mandatory training (instead of the fine) could wind up to more beneficial to the community and the animal.
- N/A
- Bully breeds and other dogs considered aggressive and dangerous should be banned
- how animals who are left outside and/or in built habitats outside the main household will be taken care of in cases of negligence.
- Review the off-leash designation for parks that are multi-use. The one out my back gate has a bike path, a playground and over 100 dogs p/d.
- Pit bulls should be banned on calgary
- [removed]
- purchasing a animalnor buying a barn cat should be hard and there should be more requirements to care properly for them and reduce shelter#
- Dealing with problem wildlife in the city that poses a danger to pets.
- Owners of nuisance dogs should be required to complete education classes or lose their dogs. Bad owners = bad dogs
- I don't believe that breeds should be discriminated against. I have met many of the "aggressive” breeds that were sweethearts
- Breed specific descrimination shouldt be brought in. People who raise aggressive pets should have them taken and not be allowed to own pets

- Find the owner if the dog was left abandoned or outside for long periods. Teach the owner how to engage with her pet so they're not bored.
- No
- Limiting the number of dogs allowed by dog walkers to 5 per person. Too often dog walkers will be at dog parks with 10+ dogs with no control
- I do not believe in breed specific bans, i also think mandatory training could be an effective alternative to fines
- House cats should be allowed to roam outside as long as they have a license. Also, certain dog breeds should not be discriminated against.
- It's not about the breed, it's about proper training and responsible owners.
- No
- Breed specific legislation is nonsense. Shouldn't even be asked about on the survey
- The park out my back gate was designated an o/l park with no input from us who literally cannot step off our property sure of our safety.
- Reduce license fees for all, middle class people need help these days too. stop re inventing the wheel as a way to justify over spending.
- discount on license fee if pet has own medical insurance
- Fines for dog owners who let them bark constantly when left outside.
- n/a
- Please make it mandatory if you own a pet to have a home for the pet. Take animals away from homeless people!
- Instead of coming down on specific breeds maybe start putting together teams that check on welfare's of animals. That's not a police visit.
- Don't discriminate against pitbulls.All dogs can be dangerous, it is all based on how the owners train or treat them.
- No
- Discrimination against certain breeds of dogs is unethical. This will be a stain on Calgary's reputation if they go through with this.
- Breed discrimination shouldn't be brought in
- -
- you need to do more to explore the role that the victim played in a dog bite. I.e children running rampant up to an unknown dog
- owners that leaves the scene of an attack against another animal/human should be held to the same level as people who commit hit and runs.
- No
- n/a
- Breed specific discrimination is unacceptable; I'm disgusted its a topic of conversation. Maybe get people who work with dogs on the board?

- Very disappointed the city would even explore breed specific rules. There are no bad dogs, there are bad owners.
- Let pets become dependents for tax purposes
- I cannot express my disappointment and disgust with such a dog friendly city considering Pitbull specific discrimination. SO WRONG!
- Open an off leash park where children under the age of 15 are prohibited
- Targetting specific breeds is unnecessary
- Water stations would be excellent. there isn't enough water in this province and it would encourage people to leave their yards more.
- I think a different dog licencing program should be explored. Promote education on different dog breeds and their traits.
- No idea
- It would be very beneficial if The City had a free online training program for basic cat/dog ownership and training.
- Breed specific discrimination is absurd. Do research!
- Breed-specific bylaws are not the answer here.
- Do not pursue BSL.
- I own English Bull Terriers and I am fed up trying to defend this breed from ignorance and bias. They are no more aggressive than other dogs
- Breed specific discrimination is ignorant and causes fear of otherwise harmless dogs. Owners create "nuisance" dogs no matter the breed.
- Need a more of a clear definition of excess noise. As it stands now, one bark can be considered breaking the bylaw if it disturbs anyone.
- Hold owners accountable for creating a bad dog. Don't take this out on innocent animals when the behaviour is a direct result of bad owners
- The owner is the problem if the dog is aggressive, NOT THE BREED. Also, the Trap/Neuter/Release program is ideal for handling stray cats
- Colored bandanas is a must for me. Kids need to learn they can't approach every dog. Some rescue dogs can be triggered by things like a hat
- Giving dog owners annual fee discount if a proof of obedience training by certified trainers is supplied
- When a pet owner is accused of having an excessively barking dog, the accuser must have and provide proof before any action is taken.
- Colour coded bandanas aren't the answer. If you suspect your dog may create an incident at an offleash park, don't take it to the park.
- Livestock in the city is great but should be restricted to properties of a certain size or type. Chickens do not belong in tiny apartments
- Lower or remove licencing fee for indoor cats.

- A pit-bull should not be listed as a nuisance or have rules similar to a nuisance dog unless proven as one. STOP THE DISCRIMINATION!
- I am against breed specific discrimination. Hold the owners accountable, but don't bully the breeds!
- I don't support breed specific legislation. Increased education on dog and animal safety with youth.
- Stay out of peoples lives
- Colour codes bandanas aren't the answer for on leash areas. Educate people to not approach strange dogs, and to create distance between dogs
- Pit bulls should not be singled out. Fines should depend on situation ex. if dog is being bullied or teased.
- No
- Do not single out "pit bulls" from other dog breeds. All breeds should be equal, breed is not the problem, its the owner.
- This is completely ludicrous if you think banning pit bull "looking” dogs is going to stop dog attacks, ignorant and ill-informed
- Feral cat should be brought to shelters for rehoming or euthanasia. They cause ecological damage and are a nuisance to neighbour's.
- No
- You should not be directing this a bully breeds. It should be generalized for all breeds. I have friends with bull dogs that are friendly
- The questioning/suggestions around pit bulls is breed specific discrimination and disappointing that it's even being considered.
- Judging an animal based on a breed is not right. An animal behaves based on how the owner trains them.
- Feral rabbits should be brought to shelters for rehoming or euthanasia. Life on the streets are short, and painful.
- Breed specific discrimination should not be brought in.
- All dogs should be allowed just because their breed looks aggressive doesn't mean they are naturally like that unless raised like that
- None
- Nothing breed specific should be applied. Providing training courses that animals owners of all ages and incomes could attend for reasonable $
- There should be a by-law about teasing / harassing dogs in yards. Children down the street tease my dogs and I have to keep them quiet.
- Excessive barking in yards should signal the owner to check on their pet and bring indoors if necessary to calm the dog down
- Breed specific discrimination shouldn't be brought in. The issue is not the breed but the lack of training education of the owner.
- Make dog training for prospective dog owners mandatory.

- Non spayed/neutered pets licenses should cost more. Breeding at home keeps causing the never ending rescue problems. I have two rescues.
- N/a
- Pit bulls should be banned
- No need to ban specific breeds. Provide spay/neuter/housing options for feral cats - as many do not adapt and are euthanized in shelters.
- Public/city funded/vet student practicum animal training/behavioural hotline. Animals act how they are raised and treated by their owners.
- STOP BULLYING PITBULLS
- This is [remove] dogs do their job
- Let's not blame the breed. It's the owners that are to blame for aggression. It's not just pit bulls or the like. A lot of breeds
- Nope
- If barking is causing disturbances for neighbours and can't be resolved, heavier fines should be laid.
- N/A
- Register the person who has history of problems animals and work to restrict their access to animals.
- Do NOT discriminate against specific breeds.
- I think it should be required to bring your dog to a proper obedience program. Too many people don't train their dogs.
- Trying to be breed specific is NOT the answer. Dog owners need to be responsible for the animals they have
- No restrictions on breeds. I.E. pit bulls.
- Dobermans, Rottweilers, and German Shepherds all have a stronger bite than pitbull's. BSL is proven to not be effective effective
- Breed discrimination is ridiculous. I support using a high visibility bandana or leash that indicates on ALL breeds friendly/unfriendly.
- I have an idea about you singling out pit bulls. They are not vicious in any way unless the owner makes them that way. That goes for any dog
- "PIT BULLS DO NOT DESERVE EXTRA PUNISHMENT OR RESTRICTIONS!!!
- pit bull is not a breed
- if anything restrict ownership, not breeds"
- A pitbull ban sounds like a wonderful idea! Much safer for children in Calgary.
- I would like to see more investigations into the owners of aggressive dogs rather than focusing on breeds. Paying more attention to owners
- Stop blaming the animals and start blaming the humans raising them.
- This will make many, including myself, very furious.
- Haven't we agreed as a nation that discriminating against someone because of how they look is bad? No breed discrimination!

- Breed specific legislation is completely unfounded and a deplorable option for the city to consider. Shame on you!
- Blaming one breed of dog is not the issue, it is the owner that is the issue when it comes to singling out pit bulls. This bylaw is TERRIBLE
- Breed Specific Legislation should not even be a consideration. Also the bite force myth you have written has not been scientifically proven
- Breed specific legislation is discriminatory and ineffective. Punish the deed, not the breed.
- None
- There is no reason someone in the city needs a dog bred for fighting.
- The city needs to focus on bad pet owners instead of focusing on pitbulls. They are the problem, NOT the dogs!!
- None
- Na
- Banning a breed (I.E pitbulls) should not be a characteristic of this bill.
- Stop discriminating against pit bulls. This is unfair.
- indoor cats should not require a license
- No breed specific regulations. Have prospective pet owners be required to take a test before getting a pet to show that they are responsible
- Could we consider a chip for dogs that are aggressive to show where they are at all times
- Lets focus on owners and not breed (BOL) Let's look at situations and not base this on breed. BSL includes more breeds than pitbulls, [remove].
- X
- I would support a pitbull bread ban.
- STOP THE HORRIBLE DISCRIMINATION AGAINST PIT BULLS AND BULLY BREEDS ITS ABSOLUTE GARBAGE
- Breed specific legislation is equivalent to racism. It should not be present.
- Breed-specific legislation does not work and the thought that our Council would even consider it is appalling. It is equivalent to racism.
- Breed discrimination is wrong . And should never be brought in
- I am not ok with the city trying to ban certain breeds of dogs.
- Fully fund spay and neuter. Make licenses and fines for intact animals significantly higher. Fund rescues. 99% of problems will disappear
- N/A
- [remove] and your hockey team
- I think off leash dog parks needs to be split into sections - a section for large dogs and one for small dogs.
- Backyard chickens help to bridge the disconnect with our food system. They're one part of battling the obesity and other health crises.

- Ban retractable leashes on the pathways. It is impossible to control a dog that is at the end of a 10 - 20 foot leash.
- Breed specific legislation should be banned. I support the spay/neuter program continuing and no kill policy.
- Education works better than fines. How about hosting a series of free webinars and training sessions on common problems like barking?
- breed specific discrimination is a risky step, you should keep it generic and evaluate on a case by case basis..
- [removed]
- I do not support discriminating against pitbull breeds.
- There are no bad breeds, just bad owners. "Pitbulls" are amazing nanny dogs. You're much more likely to be bit by a chihuahua or a poodle.
- Mastiffs, German Shepherds, Rottweilers, and Bulldogs all have stronger bites than Pitbulls- I don't see them on the list. Targeted garbage.
- I'm extremely disappointed in the BSL legislation proposed. This was NOT part of the initial discussion. It is absolutely reprehensible!
- I lived through BSL against Pit Bull dogs in Ontario, and it was a heartbreaking time. These dogs are NO MORE dangerous as pets than others.
- Do not target one breed (pitbull s) they are such sweet dogs they are just stereotyped so badly
- TNR works. Any animal found running at large should be spayed or neutered before it's returned or adopted.
- Education over fines, especially for first time offenders.
- Breed-specific legislation should not be used.
- I love the idea of voluntary bandanas. A lot of incidents could be prevented by having a clear indication of a dog's approachability.
- Breed-specific discrimination causes stigma and leads to a reduction in adoption rates of those breeds. Punish the human, not the animal
- Breed specific legislation is unjust and cruel. Is is a ridiculous reaction to the latest "target breed”. Very disappointed in Calgary.
- Don't bully the breed.
- N
- PITBULLS ARE NOT THE PROBLEM. THE OWNERS ARE. MAYBE A CLASS SHOULD BE HELD FOR PEOPLE WHO WANT TO OWNA PITBULL AND HOW TO CARE FOR THEM
- Where is the protection for dogs and their owners from someone with an ax to grind? Complaints coming from 1 source should be discounted
- Discriminating against pitbulls is bullshit
- Eliminate all licensing for dogs and cats. Do however, require that all animals carry a secure and legible ID tag that includes owner contact.

- Fund mental health services to combat hoarding. A bylaw won't prevent a mental health issue and will make it worse because they have to hide
- Don't discriminate against specific breeds of dog, people are the problem.
- breed specific legislation fails to reduce bites or target poor ownership/abuse.. strengthen Calgary's existing RESPONSIBLE pet legislation
- Human training required and lessons for history of poor behaved pets
- No way I'm muzzling my well behaved PITBULL because some lady didn't know how to train her Yorkie, figure it out
- Breed specific laws should not be allowed.
- Up fines for owners not caring for their animal properly; (If they let the pet howl for hours it's probably the owner being negligent).
- Clean house in Animal Services. A bylaw officer told me "the only good chow is a dead chow" while picking up a stray from a vet clinic.
- Nuisance barking needs to be more clearly defined. What one person deems a nuisance may not be the same as others.
- Many cities and small town through B.C. supply receptacles with poo bags throughout all city parks and green spaces. Use my licence money!
- As someone with a bully breed that was attacked on leash by a GOLDEN RETRIEVER, I refuse to believe in breed specific discrimination.
- Stop blaming specific breeds for incidents. There are no bad dogs, just bad owners.
- Bring dogs into schools to teach kids not to fear and to react properly, especially in demographics with cultural fear of dogs.
- The consequence if an animal attack should be on the animal's owner, as it is the owner's responsibility, and not the fault of the animal.
- Please avoid Breed Specific Legislation. The focus should be on the owner to properly train and care for an animal of any breed.
- Using money obtained from fines/fees could go to training programs for new and experienced pet owners.
- Occasional monitoring of pet defecation needs to be addressed. Bylaw officers actually need to walk neighborhoods to find offenders
- There should not be outdoor cats. Cats killed by neglect is out of control. Cat owners should have to keep cats indoor and leashed outdoor
- My biggest concern is around the impound fees for cats and dogs. I wonder how many pets were abandoned due to the owners personal finances.
- If BSL for pitbulls is appropriate, then CPS should arrest white males because they're "more prone to be a serial killer." BSL is racism.
- I do not support breed specific discrimination. I've seen many people and animals attacked and none of them were by a pit bull, still severe
- I believe shelters/rescues need to be more diligent in who they home animals to and what they require from first time dog owners.

- Breed discrimination should be removed. Any breed can show aggression.
- N/A
- More funding for TNR (trap, neuter, return) from the city.
- BSL is NOT the answer. It is being removed from other cities because it doesn't work.
- No
- I think cats should be indoors only. But if cat is allowed outdoors make it a LAW to be fixed. Also judge fitness of owners not breeds
- We need to make Calgary more pet friendly - From rental units to stores and restaurants.
- Use license $ to subsidize emergency vet care for low income Calgarians.
- Encourage training for both dog and the owner specific to breed. Wrong dog for the wrong family could be a disaster
- Obedience or other types of training should be mandatory on the first offence of the dog. Give dog and owner a chance to fix behavior
- the "look" of a dog should not be a factor. the "pitbull" looking dogs should not be singled out- it needs to be about RESPONSIBLE ownership
- Muzzles and lack of access to parks will reduce socialization and training opportunity, therefore increasing bites and attacks. BOL over BSL
- Make fines based on income. $100 is nothing to someone with a $100K/yr income, but could mean food to a single parent working 3 jobs.
- There should be no breed specific bans.
- Hard no on breed-specific legislation.
- This survey made me submit before I finished phase 2. Regardless, threat indicators are not fair. Putting bans on a breed of animal is unfair
- Develop and implement specific criteria and a basis of evidence for dogs that are "disturbing the peace".
- What is proposed to address people that don't like pets and/or chose to provoke reactions and consequences from pets and owners?
- Allow dogs in more public places so they don't need to be left home to cause barking or property damage issues.
- "It's not the dogs it's the owner, you can have two dogs from the same litter turn out differently.
- Pitbulls are not to blame!"
- Support rescues to do their job via funding, bylaw supports for foster homes, etc. so they can deal with the messes the city doesn't want to
- Removal of euthanization for dogs who bite replacing it instead with intense obedience. If owner can not comply not enforce obedience rehome
- Promote shelter adoptions. Licensing fees should be reduced significantly for shelter adoptions and pets that are spayed/neutered.
- Mandatory spay/neuter program for the various pitbull breeds. These dogs are a menace, and should not be sold or bred.

- Instead of making issues breed specific, make them based on the dogs temperament.
- No
- Similar to the wildlife suggestion, implement a bylaw where people aren't allowed to tease dogs. Most barking and bites are because of that
- Making bylaws breed specific is not fair. It should be based on an animal's nature and history
- I believe that breeds of animals shouldn't be discriminated against because the owners are still at fault for not training properly.
- As a former owner of a pitbull and rottweiler, breed specific discrimination is wrong. They were both great dogs and never hurt a fly.
- Backyard chickens can help reduce food insecurity and poverty issues.
- Stereotyping breeds is 90s. Dogs are a product of their environment, just like kids. Its 2020. Lets be accepting. Ownership is the problem.
- Breed specific discrimination is unscientific and unjust, as well as ineffective. I'm horrified it's even tentatively under consideration.
- Please consider banning nuisance breeds.
- There is no reason to single out pit bulls
- I would like to know where abuse to animals falls because those laws or bylaws need some major updating!
- .
- Breed specific legislation is demonstrably counterproductive and should be removed from bylaw language.
- This Is Not An Off Leash Area postings along transport corridor south side of the Stony Trail by Cranston. Peeing on fences and defecating.
- Breed specific bylaw is abhorant
- If there is breed specific laws, they should focus on small breeds that are noisier and more aggressive.
- No
- No BSL. Banning pitbulls based on strength is like limiting the rights of certain men just because they have large muscles - it's not fair.
- Allow 1-10 chickens, but not roosters due to nose pollution.
- Thanks for including calgarians (especially pet owners) the opportunity to share their opinions!
- Breed specific is not the right call, please take this off the table. We don't do that with people anymore, we shouldn't do it with animals
- all ideas of breed specific bylaws should be eliminated
- I do not agree with the breed specific discrimination, and confining a dog to it's home will just exacerbate the behaviour issues
- no
- Licensing for foster pets is a barrier. It takes manpower to administer, and often the animal is adopted before the license even arrives.

- Judging dogs merely on their appearance is completely unfair. A dogs behaviour is direct result of the owner, not the breed.
- N/A
- BSL is not acceptable and will not provide the solution you are looking for. Disgusting proposal Calgary.
- "I have met many pit bulls in my life, and every single one was gentle and sweet."
- They should not be forced to wear a muzzle."
- n.a
- Mandatory training of dogs and people.
- More fines for at large cats
- There should be no breed specific programs. Pets are a product of their environment.
- Breed specific bylaws are [remove]! It's the equivalent of racism in dog form! I refuse to support it.
- NIL
- Need a form of history of aggression/bite check for dogs being brought into Canada from USA kill shelters or not allowed to import.
- Dogs that are off-leash in clearly marked on-leash city wildlife refuge areas should be subject to a higher fine.
- I think that instead of fining pet owners there should be mandatory training for owners with nuisance dogs or dogs with behavioural issues
- be clear for kids (And adults) that they should never approach a dog without consulting owner. Bandana idea is great but please Be careful
- When pets get annual check ups/shots, they also renew their annual license through the vet. All off leash parks should be fenced.
- "Ban anyone convicted of causing animals to be distressed from owning them/require regular vet checkin to deter
- No breed specification laws"
- Breed-specific discrimination will do nothing to solve the problem and will only further the harmful stereotyping. Please reconsider.
- Amend the pitbull distinction to include any aggressive animal. Should be "Nuisance animals" and "Aggressive animals".
- [removed]
- Pi
- "how about no fee's or regulation for responsible pet owners.
- Fees' and regulation for irresponsible pet owners!!
- Seems logical"
- Repeat offenders of any bylaw violation should be followed up with to ensure they actually follow the laws they break.

- pet licensing - a tag is multi year with number officers could look up, and for re-registering an existing dog just make it available online
- Pet re-housing program if pets taken away from no responsible owner. Non kill shelter. Pets lives matter.
- BULLY BREED BANS DONT WORK The city of Calgary should be ashamed for perpetuating it. Encourage responsible ownership/education for all pets
- License fees for cats should be reduced and pet owners should have to vaccinate unless contradicted by a vet. Allow all breeds
- I do not agree with singling out Pit Bulls. Most of the time it is the mistreatment from the owner that is the major problem.
- No longer euthanize wild life who wander into residential neighborhoods, implement better policies for this situation
- TNR programs for feral cats should be implemented. If a cat is deemed friendly, it should be fostered to adopt.
- People need to learn how to properly deal with animals. The answer is not punishing the animals based on breed etc.
- The deadliest dogs by statistics in canada are huskies. Get rid of this pitbull [removed]. Just Calgary trying to stay relevant and newsworthy.
- BSL is [removed]and shouldn't even be a thought. Sounds like a lot of BSL tossed into a bunch of other garbage to keep it hidden from citizens.
- I disagree with implementing BSL. It is not effective, and is discriminatory to our community and their families.
- Legislation against specific dog breeds should not be implemented.
- well behaved street people dogs should be given a special no fee exemption to an animal license.
- Non native species in city parks/green areas are more damaging than any dog or cat. A city initiative against them would gain more support.
- Read my other comment in section 3 please
- Making bully breed specific bylaws has been proven in many other municipalities to be ineffective in reducing dog bites/attacks.
- I hope the city of Calgary is able to see that this prejudice towards pit bulls is absolutely an insult. Unacceptable in today's climate.
- Breed-specific legislation has never been show to be effective in reducing dog bites. It's difficult to enforce and more $$ than other options
- Breed specific discrimination should not be brought in.
- Certain dog parks require dogs be vaccinated and pass a behavioral test, and no puppies or children inside. Small membership fee.
- Maybe you should offer classes or incentive to attend classes with your dog (puppy) to learn some skills to make them better citizens
- Discriminating against pit bulls is horrible, and any dog that 'looks like one'? What garbage. Leave them alone.

- Support more accessible dog training courses so that good dogs stop getting blamed for bad owners. BSL is a dangerous joke. Stop it.
 - "Pitbull" breeds should NOT be targeted more than any other breed of dog.
 - Breed discrimination is wrong and unfair. I am actually so ashamed my city is considering this. Disgusting.
 - Fines are a poor solution. If you are rich = don't have to care. Dog bites should result in the owner/dog going through education/training.
 - Treat all breeds equally as they all have equal potential to become dangerous as a result of poor training. Small dogs bite far more often.
 - Do not discriminate based in breed. Make owners more accountable for the training of their pet!
 - Ownership classes for new pet owners, fines for pet abandonment, education for kids on pet care/behavior
 - Everyone knows the animals are never the problem it is the owners. Pet owners need to take responsibility if they want to keep their pets.
 - I am not sure I have an idea, however I do feel that it is unfair and not justified to single out the 'pitbull' breed as 'dangerous'.
 - "Don't single out breeds. Make owners more responsible for their dogs actions.
- It's not the breed that is the problem."
 - No.
 - Calgary's ideas for leash laws are working and should be enforced for ALL dogs, not just big dogs.
 - No, but I will be extremely disappointed if BSL is approved, to the point where i would potentially move
 - Breed specific discrimination shouldn't be brought in. It is up to the OWNER. It is NEVER the dogs fault.
 - dogs I have seen 'fight' at offleash parks are not 'bully' breeds but typically other large breeds or small yappy dogs. don't discriminate
 - Not totally related, but I would just like to see more off leash areas in the city and an easier way to find those places.
 - Give more discretion for officers to be REASONABLE, and enforce REASONABLE laws focusing on animal well being. That should come above all!!!
 - I do not agree with BSL. Nuisance dog concerns are fine but pin pointing pit bulls is inappropriate
 - There needs to be an easy way to catch and turn in cats that are at large. Currently we have to buy our own traps.
 - Off leash, aggressive, and poorly trained animals are a problem.
 - Requiring all dog owners to have their dogs trained, offering tax benefits for them being trained.
 - It's never the breed, it's always the owners. First it was Shepard's. Then Doberman's. Then Rottweilers. Now pitbulls.

- Every animal should be treated as an individual, the same way we expect humans to be treated as an individual.
- The government has no place telling people what pets they can or can not have. Singling out pitbulls is shameful.
- Lifetime licensing options would be amazing! Please implement this!!!
- #10. Licenses should be renewed annually. It is more likely that people will then remember to keep their contact info up to date.
- n/a
- No
- NO Breed specific legislation
- Please no breed-specific legislation. It has no basis statistically or scientifically. It is a backwards step in a city moving forwards.
- Get rid of all/any ideas related to any breed specific guidelines, breeds are not the issue, owners/background and training are.
- Right now the City of Calgary bureaucrats should be busy looking after a City that is fiscally is tough shape not wasting time like this.
- BSL is not acceptable. This city should be proud that we hold owners accountable for their dogs' behavior, no matter the breed.
- Any dog regardless of breed can be a danger, singling out a breed is not addressing the problem. Deal with the problem not an innocent dog!
- Keep things the way they are now. It has been working. BSL does NOT work.
- Breed Specific Laws should not be made. If you're going to create a law, it should include "ALL" breeds.
- There needs to be more policing of city trails by by-law officers to encourage owners to keep their pets on a leash
- Do not ban any dog breeds, dogs learn from their owners. I have met many well behaved pit bulls, and many more tiny dogs with attitudes.
- We love our Pit Bulls, throw those by-laws out. It's the owner, NOT THE DOG!!!
- Please make this decision based on data and not public outcry/anecdotal stories.
- In order to purchase a pitbull, a background check should be done. Also, the owners should be required to attend training classes with them.
- More focus should be on put on irresponsible pet owners. Eg. Mandatory training for both pet and owner. More strict for multiple offence.
- Not targeting specific breeds with addendums to bylaws as there is plenty of misinformation in the above that is promoted.
- The fact that specific breeds like pitbulls were singled out in this draft is despicable and outrageous. I am not okay with this. Do better!
- Fewer sticks, more carrots. People need help, not punishment, if they're having trouble controlling their pet. Provide affordable training.

- I don't think it's fair to categorize pit bulls as a more dangerous breed for the purposes of bylaws. Subsidize training programs instead.
- Pitbulls should not be singled out in this. The issue is the people who raise them. There is no scientific evidence to support this claim
- "the reason they are listed here is because a pitbull's strength allows the potential for a more severe bite." this is inaccurate, remove it
- There should never be breed specific legislation, this is discrimination and unjust.
- Pitbulls shouldn't be singled out the issues are with the people who raise them not the breed
- Please remove specific breeds from the bylaws. All animals have the ability to become aggressive so this is unfair for "pit bull" breeds
- Focus on making training for both dogs AND humans more accessible to all. Many don't know how to act around dogs. Also, BSL is awful!
- I don't think the definition of "nuisance dog" is accurate enough. It should be for aggression not barking or getting out of the yard.
- There is no scientific evidence that proves pitbulls are more aggressive than other breeds
- Any type: pitbull/staffordshire etc etc ANY breed should not be subjected to being considered dangerous or an immediate threat. Shame on you.
- Train owners more. Make them take mandatory classes.
- Leave the pitbulls alone, it is not the dogs it is the owners who raises them. There should be NO breed ban on dogs.
- "Bully" breeds were actually raised to be nanny dogs because they are naturally affectionate. Rescues could offer training in adoption fees.
- The definition for animal neglect should be broadened to include inhospitable environments. Trash covered yards and houses for example.
- Any dog breed can be aggressive. It is the owners that are the problem and there should be more regulations for that.
- Do not target specific breeds. Take a moment and think about that.. it is no different then doing that to races of people.
- No
- It is sickening to hear the parts about pitbull breeds. If a human goes to the gym and becomes stronger then the average will we ban them 2?
- No
- I think the bylaw that makes it illegal for cats to leave your property should be removed
- Don't make this all about Pitbulls when there are other dogs with equal aggression. It comes down to proper training. Putting a dog down
- I believe that dogs should have quite free will and freedom has a human but does that are aggressive should be trained and helped instead
- Waste of time and taxpayers money, the city should stop trying to regulate people's lives, and focus on fixing the drug problems in the core

- There needs to be a lot more responsibility put on the owner. Not on the breed of dog.... I know some pit bulls sweeter than the little dogs
- Pit bulls should not be mentioned specifically. It is the owner's, not the dog's, responsibility to ensure a dog is well trained
- Yes education programs not muzzles that doesn't fix the problem long term. You guys are ridiculous with that idea. It's the owners NOT the dog
- Indoor cats that have tattoo's for identification. and are fixed and have their shots should not have to be subject to a license.
- I think specific breeds should be required to complete mandatory obedience classes and be educated on pet etiquette
- There should not be breed specific rules! It is the people who raise and train the animal not the breed!
- I do not support breed specific legislations. Rather than focusing on the breed, turn efforts towards education and accountability.
- Children should be taught in schools how to approach animals. Obedience training should be strongly encouraged for new Pet owners.
- Completely disappointed that Calgary is even considering BSL. Most of these pit bulls that you want to ban are loving family pets.
- I AM AGAINST BREED SPECIFIC RULES AND RULINGS. END BSL. 4 year old boy has his arm ripped off by husky in 2019..ban huskies?? No! END BSL!!
- No
- I do think unfortunately pitbull breeds often attract irresponsible owners and therefore may require specialized bylaws to prevent this.
- Educate yourselves. It is not the breed! It's disgusting that people think this way towards pit bulls!
- Pitbulls are not more aggressive! Its a misconception due to dog fights. They are loving protectors of children. They should not be targeted
- Again, if your going to make more bylaws for dogs dont make it breed specific. All dogs have the ability to bite.
- Judge a dog, and the owner, based on the behaviour of the dog not their breed. Any breed of dog has the capacity to be dangerous to others.
- Please do not target pitbulls. The owners are the problem, not the animal. If they can't train their dog properly, give the dog a new home.
- city of calgary is a joke. you single handedly singled out pit bulls (which isn't even a real breed) and any dog whom looks similar. stupid.
- "If an animal bites a human causing harm.
- That animal should be put down..at the expense of the owner. Plus a fine."
- I think all breeds need stricter guidelines at off leash parks. I have never felt safe at an offleash park thanks to irresponsible owners.
- END BSL

- The selling of animals, stores should not be allowed to sell puppies or dogs, they should facilitate adoptions from shelters. STOP TOP DOG
- stop singling out one dog breed. there are no bad dogs, bad owners yes. some of the most gentle dogs i've met are pittys or pitty crossed.
- No dog should be banned based on breed alone. All dogs (owners) should have a level of obedience training and socialization to go to a park
- Breed specific regulations are 100% unnecessary. Punish bad owners not dogs.
- It is the owner whose responsibility and liability should be increased, not innocent dogs. Any dog can bite. Sad to see such outdated views.
- BSL is not the answer. Banning the ownership of pitbulls would be a death sentence to hundreds of good natured, loving pets. It's not fair.
- NO to breed specific bylaws! Pit bulls have a bad rap already, they are no better or worse than many other dog breeds
- It is a shame the city is targeting a specific breed of canine in an attempt to sway the public towards how specific council members feel.
- BSL doesn't work. There's so many data that show that it doesn't work. I'll move my family if you go ahead.
- Breed discrimination is unacceptable. It is the duty of pet owners to be responsible, and to train themselves and their pets at any cost.
 - Child behavior education for dog parks. 2. It's not the dog (Pitbull) it's the owner, better education less discrimination.
- Coloured bandanas may not be visible due to size of dog, fur length, etc. Coloured leash and collar combo can be seen at distance.
- I'm so over the pit bull thing, it needs to stop. Start educating the people who don't understand them instead of punishing the people who do
- I do not support any Breed Specific Legislation at all.
- All pets should be spayed or neutered unless their owner is a certified breeder. This is the reason we have such a large feral cat population
- This entire thing is completely mishandled! There is no way to verify anyone's address or identity who is completing the survey. Shame CoC!
- Breed specific restrictions are never necessary, stricter rules for problem behavior is. Don't villainize pit bulls and bully breeds!
- Breed specific questions don't reflect the issue of aggression. This happens in all breeds. It is the owner's responsibility for training.
- The rules should not be breed specific. There are other dogs just as large as pit bulls it makes no sense.
- No
- The breed of dog should be completely irrelevant to the investigation following a bite/attack. The focus should be on what led to the attack

- Regarding pigeons, there was no option for limiting pigeon numbers based on location, breeders, racers, other factors. Too narrow on choices.
- Putting in breed specific bylaws should be criminal. You don't know my dog how can you sit there and tell me that because he is X he is bad.
- Breed specific language is inappropriate
- For people with badly behaved animals, I feel that they need mandatory education even more than the animal.
- .
- None
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work. It's the bad owners with no responsibility. Don't punish good pet owners, educate on body language.
- pitbulls should not be discriminated against
- Unfortunate\ disappointing that BSL is being put out there. We have enough division right now we don't need more, we need to stand together
- Breed specific legislation is not appropriate ever. It is more of an owner issue so if anything owner legislation would be more appropriate.
- Breed specific legislation has been proven to be completely unaffactive. Blame poor pet owners, not breeds.
- Pitbulls shouldn't be discriminated against and singled out. As long as pets are being cared for/good quality of life that's all that matter
- I will stand up for pittie breeds until the day I die. It is absolutely ridiculous that anyone is still stuck on the idea that they are bad.
- Problematic animals should be forced to go to training with their owners instead of repetitive fines. Dont ban the breeds.
- Increasing charges and punishment for owners of animals who abuse their animals and no return of abused animal to owner.
- Owner and dog undertake mandatory training at the expense of the owner> Portion of the fee rebated if behaviour changes and is sustained.
- stop targeting specific breeds.
- No
- Do not put bylaws in place that discriminate a specific breed. Breeds are not the issue, animals that are trained to be violent are.
- We shouldn't put bans on any breed. All breeds can be aggressive it is the owner who needs to take responsibility for their dogs action.
- Breed-specific legislation is not the answer. All nuisance pets should be trained, and owners fined.
- A lot of these proposed bylaws directly infringe on a lot of fundamental freedoms, to enforce these would be authoritarian
- the rules on the dogs should not be about breed they should be about behaviour

- The focus should be placed on behaviour and training. Stop putting negative attention and blame on pit bulls just for their breed!
- Please do not target "pit bull" or bully breeds. It is a well known myth that these animals can cause greater harm.
- BSL is not the answer, responsible ownership is.
- If an owner is unable to control their animal then they shouldn't be allowed to own animals
- Do more research as the bias against so called bully breeds is extremely inaccurate and done by unqualified people
- "Options for smaller city tags for harnesses
- Is there any consequence or education for the person or child who got bit?"
- Even the most well-trained animal will bite if it is being harassed. consider lighter sentences for people who brought it on themselves.
- Na
- BSL should never exist, any dog breed can cause problems.
- Breed specific legislation is a waste of time and money. Put the money and effort into enforcing pet bans on bad owners.
- Make sure every breed is well represented and is specifically given credit until proven guilty. We cannot judge a dog by breed.
- Please stop braking judges ruling against the city and bylaw services but u don't care so good luck keeping your jobs
- The ability to enforce existing laws more quickly. I was twice attacked by a cat off its property and it took a month to hear from by-law.
- At the off leash parks I have seen many different types of dogs be aggressive it is not based on breed. Focus on behaviour - not the breed
- BSL has been proven ineffective. Leave it out of our city.
- No
- Stop charging money for everything.
- This is not going to solve anything. BSL will never solve anything. Ban owners, not breeds.
- N/A
- I have a comment, banning a specific breed is no different then banning a specific race!
- Large signs at park entrances outlining proper etiquette.
- The problem is with owners - not breeds. Focus on ensuring good owners have dogs, not limited specific breeds! Not everyone should have pets
- No idea
- Working in a petstore, the pitbulls were lovely. The chihuahua's and german shepherds were nastier. BSL makes no sense.
- Too many animals and different species on properties will cause problems for neighbors.
- I do support stricter rules/fines for pit bulls. I do not think pit bulls should be a breed that exists anymore.

- No
- Less focus on public opinion, and more focus on expert opinion. The experts know more about best practices.
- PITBULLS SHOULD NOT BE MUZZLED CONSTANTLY. THEY SHOULD NOT BE THE ONLY DOGS GOING FOR TRAINING OR BEING BANNED !!! RIDICULOUS !
- In addition to fines given to owners of dogs that injure or kill a person or other animal, vet costs should be covered by those owners.
- Do not prohibit all pit bulls or dogs that resemble a pit bull breed in Calgary. A dog's aggressiveness depends on its training not breed!
- Focus on behaviour rather than the breed. I have never met a Pitt Bull with bad behaviour.
- Going against pit bulls is so stupid. You said yourself they're not the highest in bite incidents, why would they be punished the most...
- Dog training requirements for dog licenses at reduced costs. Even an online course or in person.
- Follow up on cases of animal cruelty where the owner has been fined and prohibited from owning or living in the same household as animals.
- Don't put breed specific bylaws as they do not work and is not fair.
- If a dog is declared a nuisance, the owner should be required to attend a dog training course with the dog.
- The fact that the bylaw for pitbulls is even being reviewed is a waste of money and a total joke.
- If a person dog attacks property, a person, or another animal, the owner of said animal should be fined and pay for the damages caused.
- animal rights need to be raised, as do the fines on owners pertaining to neglect, abuse, and liability of animals actions.
- Breed specific laws are pure discrimination based on something's looks. There is no place for it in our day and age. Focus on bad owners.
- I think having breed specific legislation is ridiculous. Closer look should be taken at owners and their lack of knowledge in animal behavior
- I think that all animals should require copping and licences require an up to date picture of animal and owner
- I don't believe owners with pitbull type breeds should have to do anything different than other dog owners. If a dog is violent then sure
- Pet licenses should have a multi-year option. Reminders can be sent for change of address or phone number.
- I think the city should be in charge of removing skunks from residential areas! It's almost a pandemic with them in the city
- The amount of dogs dog walkers can walk needs to be regulated to no more than 6 at a time. Problem dogs need to be banned from off-leash.
- More should be done about people letting their cats CB off property

- survey will not be accurate.No limit on how many times you can fill this out,there is a guy whos against shepherd pitty taking it overand over
- On breed specific legislation- it is discriminatory and not supported by data. It doesn't save lives, it kills innocent dogs.
- Having the owner's trained on how to have a dog. Encourage those that have a fear of dogs NOT go to a off-leash park.
- "Cleanup municipal spending!
- Stop trying to milk the pet owning TAX PAYERS for your budget shortfall!"
- I would like animals owners to simply take responsibility for their animals especially in the case of aggressive behaviour.
- Engage with academic peer reviewed research to demonstrate need for breed specific legislation. Breed specific legislation is unnecessary.
- No
- ppl should not be allowed to vote for their ideas more than once, not accurate at all
- There is no need to select a single breed to restrict. I have trained absolutely lovely dogs of all breeds and terrible dog of all breeds.
- [removed]
- Breed specific bylaws are based on rumors and false claims. Pitbulls aren't more dangerous than any other dog. These should be removed.
- Education and awareness campaigns for responsible pet ownership.
- Do not I force these laws because YOU feel a pitbull is a threat. It's the owners NOT the dog.
- pitbulls ans dogs like them are not the issue. owners are the issue. more mandatory obedience training, seizure and rehoming of problem dogs
- dog owners that allow there dogs to bark outside all night or all day should be fined the first time and then the second time a huge fine
- No
- Breed specific bylaws take the responsibility of bad behaviour away from owner and should not exist. Implement training for all dogs.
- To ban pit bulls outright is wrong. You're looking at causation vs correlation. Bad pitbull = bad owner, not bad breed.
- Focus on the people owning the animals not the breed. Enforce training on people especially first time owners.
- We do not put restraints on humans for being stronger than others, Pit bulls are no where near the highest bite strength either.
- Off leash parks should not be accessible to dogs that are reactive or untrained to be polite around other dogs.
- Breed specific laws are awful and targeted. The government needs to stop meddling in people's business.

- Breed specific laws are an abomination supported by ignorant people. Creating many problems for countless dogs, owners and shelters.
- I don't think targeting specific breeds is fair. Honestly, some of the nicest dogs I met were pit bulls. It's all about the owner and training
- I think that categorizing dog licenses into size (S,M,L) rather than breed could help more than breed specific laws.
- ambassadors at dog parks able to ticket people for not picking up dog feces.
- Perhaps train the owners as well as the dogs.
- Maybe once a cumulate fine amount has reached $2000 (or whatever amount is determined) then that owner is not allowed to have pets for 5 yrs
- I think bylaws based on breed specific dogs is irresponsible and perpetuates the stereotypes of these animals
- To encourage more spay/neuted pet. Make the cost for spay/neutering
- Breed specific bans are ridiculous. It's not the dog, it's the way it was raised.
- n/a
- N/a
- Stop targeting pitbull breads. Any dog can bite, any dog can be a danger, so any dog should fall under the same rules as every other dog
- why does everyone have problems with the pit bull breed. The breed has nothing to do with attacks. Any dog that attacks always has a reason.
- Please show links to peer reviewed studies that show BSL works, and that show these dogs bite more then other breeds.
- Education for kids on how to approach or when to not approach animals. Classes on proper dog park etiquette. Online or in person
- Waste bags in dog parks would be helpful
- I do not agree with any type of BSL. Perhaps offering a mandatory course for owners of offenders would make more sense
- I absolutely do not support having breed specific laws or legislation.
- I don't think pets should be licensed.
- euthanizing shouldn't be allowed; i believe "high risk pets" is caused from neglect, abuse, and bad training. Send them to rescue societies!
- Breed specific legislation further victimizes dogs that are more likely to be abused and exploited. Legislation should apply to all or none!
- If a dog has a medical reason for not being spayed/neutered (Eg a heart murmur) Then should pay the reduced fee.
- Mandatory spay and neuter programs. Make backyard breeding illegal.
- I do not support any of the pit bull laws. Most of the people I know with dog are pitbulls and they are not cruel at all.

- There should be no special rules based on breed. It is up to the owner to be responsible for the behaviour of their pet.
- N/A
- Remove all the Breed Specific proposed amendments. If you think larger animals pose greater risk, do it by size, not by breed.
- Breed bans don't work and the evidence is there from other municipalities - suggest mandatory obed training, canine good citizen etc
- The fact that pit bulls are singled out in this survey is terrible. Dogs reflect the competence of the owners nothing to do with the breed
- We're looking at the wrong end of the leash here - we need to target and train the pet owners so they can responsibly train their pets.
- There should never be a breed specific law. It's the owners responsibility for to train the dog. It's not the breed
- From the Oatmeal: Colour coded collars for cats- orange collar = indoor cat. See an orange collar, it's an escape artist and should be caught!
- I am disgusted with the parallel between nuisance pets and pit bulls. There is clearly a discriminatory bias within your organization.
- Stop the breed discrimination! So terrible! we have entered a world where we are supposed to be supportive of everyone so why not dogs!
- Pls do something about the asinine trend of picking up ones dog feces and then leaving it behind for someone else to properly dispose of.
- I do not support breed specific legislation.
- Who needs more than 10 pigeons?
- .
- Focus should be on education and not fines. Training classes should be considered before fees.
- Abolish the breed specific laws. A breed has nothing to do with an animals aggression that is due to the the way the animal was trained
- I think the pit bull breed being targeted as an aggressive breed is ridiculous. The owners are at fault for how their dog behaves.
- No
- I would like to see the allowance of small numbers of domestic ducks being allowed in appropriate urban settings
- Allow for more characters in this space so we can provide a well thought out idea as opposed to a clickbait idea.
- Why do we need to keep bringing up ONE specific breed? It's unnecessary. It is the owner's responsibility for a well behaved animal
- none
- Please don't target specific breeds and only penalize breeds that exhibit problem behaviors
- "Breed bans don't work.

- German Shepherds and mixed breed dogs are high up on the bite breed index and you didn't mention them."
- It's lovely how people find greater importance in keeping a dog created for bloodsport over the safety of other pets and their fellow humans
- Disgusted at the discrimination against pit bulls. This is not okay. Like any other breed, they can be raised aggressive or as sweethearts.
- Small dogs are more frequent biters.
- Please don't discriminate against pitbulls. They are the sweetest dogs given the right owners. I think it's so wrong how much hate they get
- Pit bulls are not threatening! It's the owners responsibility to train them, therefore they are the ones who should see the consequences!
- Singling out a breed (pitbulls) vs stupid owners? Come on Calgary, smarten up.
- Do more to provide public with training and prevention instead of resting to reactionary or blanket breed specific rules.
- stop labeling "pit bulls" as bad, there are other dogs that have worse temperament test scores than "pit bull"; do the research properly.
- ????(
- I have a golden who is reactive to dogs (a rescue). The breed is not the problem ie: Bullies. Early warning Δ is key to coexistence.
- If your dog is aggressive you must obtain training for both the dog AND the horrible owner that raised it to be aggressive
- I am wholeheartedly against breed discrimination. Disappointed that this is even being considered in our city.
- Breed specific laws are unfair. How can a city claim to be a melting pot of races, yet discriminate against certain animals?
- Na
- Reduce licensing fees for pets, and they should be for up to 5 years at owners request. Also make this available for order online/ via mail.
- Ridiculous by the city claiming dogs that bark a nuisance. Aswell as claiming all pit bull dogs are harmful.
- Dogs are a reflection of their owners- Implement a mandatory training/education program for owners of nuisance/aggressive animals.
- Stop discriminating breeds, it's not the animal, it's the owner. The owner needs to take responsibility and train their animal properly.
- STOP bullying the bully breeds. So just b/c my dog looks like one your going to punish her??? So wrong on so many levels
- Nuisance animals are most likely subject to neglect. Problem animals should have owners looked into to see they are being well kept

- Breed specific laws do not achieve anything but causing more animal to die unnecessarily. Any big dog breed can be dangerous if not trained.
- Problem dogs are not usually the problem, it is usually the owner and lack of training. Please stop targeting specific breeds i.e. pit bull
- I do not agree with breed discrimination. Please don't put bylaws in place that encourage this. Stricter laws on owners not dogs.
- Please don't make breed specific legislation, it enforces unwarranted fear of those breeds. Dog behaviour is dependent on training not breed
- There needs to be greater enforcement against pet owners who cannot keep their dogs quiet Perhaps a portal where neighbors can easily report
- No
- How many dogs will become homeless and have to be euthenized due to a short-sighted breed specific policy? Policies like this fail!
- NO urban chickens. NO breed-specific legislation!
- Breed specific rules are unrealistic and make zero sense. Every dog is different, it has nothing to do with breed.
- "All dogs and owners attend training
- Situations evaluated - not always dogs fault"
- I think people that use extend a leash should have train their dogs as many of them with small dogs think that they do not bother other dogs
- "9B. Should fines for bites to children (17 and under) be:
- Should be lower than for adults. Children should be under supervision of adults."
- I don't support the lower license fees for lower income families. If you struggle financially, maybe a pet isn't the best fit.
- "NO BSL!

- It does not work. The issue is with small untrained dogs. Or bad owners"
- Banning repeat offenders from owning pets. offences like neglect, attacks etc. multiple offences, remove pet, fine and monitor, repeat
- Owners are bad not breeds. Any dog no matter the breed can be dangerous if they aren't responsibly trained and cared for.
- NO to breed specific fines and legislation - shame on Calgary
- I don't think any body other than people registered with racing pigeon clubs should be allowed to house or own pigeon as they're pest animal
- I think it would be great if the city could partner with a dog training facility and offer reduced class prices for people on fair entry
- Dogs with previously reported and verified aggressive behavior must not be allowed in off leash areas.

- It is ridiculous that you suggesting certain dog breeds be restricted. Focus on fining or banning irresponsible owners from having pets
- There is way too much room for bias in what dog is considered a "nuisance" or "dangerous".
- I don't agree with breed-specific legislation, I have heard nothing but horror stories from the places that have enacted this.
- No breed specific legislation
- It's not about the number of bites, it's about the severity and fatality. I would rather a chihuahua bite me 1000 times than a pit bull once
- Trying to pass legislation due to breed specific biases is beyond ridiculous. I thought Calgary was better then this.
- To lessen bites of strangers, don't worry about the breed but make sure all dogs are LEASHED in public spaces. EDUCATE about leashing.
- Some off-leash dog parks need better signage. I use a park with a bike path going through it. Many cyclists don't realize there are dogs.
- If a stranger approaches a dog and the dog gets defensive, punish the stranger, not the dog. It is not the dogs fault.
- Some sort of one time test or course for humans to go through, to show if they are responsible dog owners or not.
- Pit bull breeds should not be singled out.
- The city is wasting time with breed specific bylaws. NO dog is born vicious, they become that way from terrible owners and lack of training.
- How dare we use breed focused rules like this. Absolutely not acceptable. This is not fair and needs to be removed from this survey
- Educate owners with training classes especially with large dog breeds. It's not just training the dog but training the human
- Any dog can be dangerous. There should be required education and training to ensure there are responsible dog owners.
- Muzzling a dog anytime it goes in public will only make the dog more aggressive!! This will NOT help anything!!
- I do not think that strictly indoor cats need to be licensed.
- "12 animals per house is lots
- Fines determined by damage done"
- prevent shelters/ animal rescues from not clearly disclosing pet's history and behavior when advertising. No sugar coating or omitting allowed
- I would love to have urban hens. I've always wanted a flock of chooks. Before you judge urban hens, do some research and learn about them.
- The fact that you call out any breed that has the characteristics of a pit bull makes me believe you know nothing about dog breeds.
- Numerous studies show the ineffectiveness of breed specific legislation and the discrimination and divisiveness it causes. - veterinary prof

- "Here's an idea:
- Stop punishing the dogs for the behaviour of had people.
- You guys are following suit of every other [REMOVE] place."
- Singling out a breed that CAN cause damage is not the answer. This is discriminatory. A dogs actions are based on its owner/training,
- Do not implement BSL! Today's "most vicious breed" is just a flavor of the week and not rooted in fact but only conjecture.
- Pitbulls shouldn't be singled out. There are dogs like german Shepard's that have a more severe bite and there are many stronger dogs
- Breed specific legislation is discriminatory. No one breed is more dangerous than another, and this perpetuates stereotypes.
- I really like the idea of waiving low income license fees
- We should focus our efforts on providing more training and education then muzzling our beloved buddies without cause.
- Feral cat colonies is a ridiculous idea. Feral cats will kill at least as many song birds as mice. Feral/off lease cat have no place in city
- Please do not put breed specific legislation in. It did not work in Ontario and won't work here. I am a veterinarian.
- Quit bullying the pit bulls! My girlfriend's pit bull attacked me this morning...with kisses and affection! Penalize bad owners not breeds.
- You know, I used to be proud to say that Calgary was not the kind of city that would consider nonsense like breed-bans or urban chickens...
- Don't discriminate based on dog breeds!
- BSL in any way does not solve any problems. Ban "pitbulls"(not a breed) and people go to breeds like Presa Canario, Dogo and Cane Corsos.
- no breed specific discrimination!
- Cats that are kept indoors should still have to buy a license. There are many dogs that are more house dogs and they need a licence.
- "Pit Bull" mixes are common and dont bite anymore than any other animal. Responsibility to keep control of your animal should be paramount
- Licensing should be a one time fee for the duration of the pets lifetime, and no dog should be judged based off breed.
- Dog and cat licensing should cover a two year period instead of every year.
- If it wasn't already touched on, the issue of it being socially acceptable to allow your cat to wander the neighbourhood.

- Banning "pit bulls" and bully breeds is a HORRIBLE idea and I'm embarrassed that I live in a city where that would even be considered.
- Don't discriminate based on breed, educate those who might need it! Not everyone knows pit bulls have prey drive or can be dog selective.
- Breed specific rules are [REMOVE]. I grew up with a pit bull terrier and have known many. All are the sweetest dogs ever and aren't dangerous.
- Breed specific discrimination is disgusting. Leave pit bulls alone. I am beyond disappointed.
- No bad dogs just bad owners, please if possible deal with that issue
- If this notion that Pit Bull type dogs bite harder has come from animal services I would suggest they all resign as they have no idea.
- Would like to see more emphasis placed on owner's bad behaviours that lead to problem animals regardless of their species.
- License discounts for pet owners that participate in formal pet training programs.
- No dogs should be muzzled for their appearance! Muzzles should be for aggressive dogs with past reported issues only, with any breed!
- No
- My dogs have been attacked by a lab and a sheltie but we have never had issues with any bully type dog. Owners are the issue not the breed.
- Low income obedience training for dogs would be a nice idea for people who own dogs but can't afford training. Also affordable shots program
- Check in's on pet owners after a dog has been charged to ensure the dog is being treated and cared for properly. Bad owners create bad dogs
- Quality pet education program for a decrease on insurance. Why shouldn't the good pet owners be rewarded?
- "1. Pit bulls and their breeders should be banned.
 - There should be 0 tolerance for biting by dogs that have the potential to kill or maim"
- Please reconsider BSL.
- None
- Fenced off leash areas should have 2 gates to enter, with a holding area. Young children should not be allowed in fenced off leashed area
- No
- Offering people with pets a subsidy for support during these tuff times. Pet food is expensive and some people can't afford it right now
- Bites/attacks have NOTHING to do with the breed, and EVERYTHING to do with the owners. Don't discriminate against breeds.
- Fines for people who approach a dog without permission. Dogs are not communal property.
- All breed specific language should be removed. Offenders should be punished by behavior, NOT breed, of dog.

- Owners need to be accountable for behaviour regardless of breed - mandatory behavioural class for any problem dog. BSL is not acceptable.
- The pit bull specification is one born out of ignorance and should be removed from the conversation. Stop furthering the narrative.
- The only idea that I have and that everyone should be open to listening to is to quit stereotyping "bully" breeds. These rules are ridiculous.
- Maybe new owner training being available for people getting their first dog/cat/etc would be useful in getting more responsible owners.
- What about cat-parks with catios for cats?
- I think dogs should be able to pass a test to be offleash at all times. Some dogs are much better behaved than children. A very hard test
- No
- No
- stream line reporting process for barking and loose cats , focus on mandatory schooling and training with followup
- Dogs with barking complaints should not be permitted outdoors without active supervision.
- Do not put restriction a on "pit bull type dogs" they are the sweetest animals I know. It comes down to the owner/training of the animal.
- Educating and training people to be responsible pet owners is key. Specific breeds are not the problem it's the owner that needs disciplining
- Stop singling out a specific breed such as pit bulls. Start addressing poor ownership. A bad dog is not breed he is taught.
- "Cat owners need to be held responsible for their cats roaming at large.
- It's not a neighbours responsibility to catch them"
- It is both absurd and lazy of the city to attempt to impose breed specific legislation. Quite disgusted with our city council.
- Pitbulls are scientifically proven to not be any more aggressive than other dog breeds. Aggressive dogs are usually anxious or badly trained
- Pit bulls should not be discriminated against!
- It's all about ownership. A dog that attacks either has not been trained properly or has been trained a certain way. Owner responsibility.
- There is lack of public education around animal safety. When a person is bit they should be mandated to attend a course on animal approach
- Breed-specific restrictions have proven ineffective around the world, and it is ridiculous to see it brought up here. Do not go backwards.
- I think your question about nuisance dogs was very biased against pitbulls. Pitbulls do not in fact have stronger jaws than other dogs.
- Using " pitbull" is petty and education is better then doing a blanket statement for a breed of dog.

- Apply fines to pet owners who discard plastic bags containing their dog feces in the grass and bushes instead of the garbage.
- Dogs shouldn't be banned by breed, all breeds can be dangerous without proper training and discipline. History of owner should be considered
- Do. Not. Ban. Breeds. A small dog can be just as vicious as a large one, behavior is reinforced from the owner.
- There are other dogs with higher bite forces than bully breeds. Behaviour is based on how they are trained also.
- I would like the rule amended to allow for me to go for a bike ride with my dog while on a leash. It is up to the owner to ensure for safety
- X
- Please don't bring in breed-specific bylaws of any sort. It increases fear around these animals which is unnecessary.
- Breed specific bylaws are discrimination
- Subjective complaints such as noise should not be considered when designating "nuisance" animals.
- Dogs are not the problem, people should control and make their dogs learn. Lower the fees and licenses
- I am offended about the pit bull questions
- Banning specific breeds is a horrible idea and not necessary. Focus on the irresponsible pet owners. Pitbulls are loving and sweet
- "Nuisance dog" should not exist. Not the same as "dangerous" and it's too broad of a definition for this survey.
- The bandana idea is a good one.
- Don't discriminate due to breed. Imagine if you tried to do that to people. Disgusting
- The problem doesn't lie with a specific dog breed. The problem lies with people.
- BSL just breeds segregation and separation. That translates into human interaction too and perpetuates racism, etc.
- Please Calgary no breed specific banning of any kind! We are better than that - all dogs deserve the same chance at life :)
- Please ban pitbulls and pit bull cross bully breeds.
- Set up community times for people and kids to meet friendly dogs and learn dog safety. Most dog bites are provoked by fear responses, etc.
- Would be nice if people face fines for having dogs off leash in on leash only places like parks, off leash should be on off leash area,
- Education is the way to prevent bites in your community. Knowing the dogs in your community will prevent bites and improve community safety.
- "Do not separate Or punish dogs by breeds. Only by behaviours.

- Also, the fines for biting a human, pet, etc need to be on a case by case"
- Male owners of incessantly barking dogs should be neutered. Female owners should be muzzled and made to collect faeces in off leash parks.
- Educate your city of Calgary team members on these subjects. Taking the views of the city is not education.
- Bully breeds are the most loving dogs around and any attack by any breed of dog should only be fined instead of a dog being euthanized.
- breed specific legislation absolutely should not be considered
- Bully breeds should not be singled out. All dogs bite. Also, create questions that include if a dog is provoked, for example.
- Dog breed is not the issue. Irresponsible ownership is.
- None
- Don't make it breed specific. And don't limit amount of pets
- Owners that allow roaming cats should be more heavily penalized. Harmful to ecosystems, pet population, and the cat itself.
- Pitbulls should not be categorized, at all. There are dogs like German Shepards that can be even stronger. It depends on training.
- Nothing to add
- No input
- To lessen bites of strangers, don't worry about the breed but make sure all dogs are LEASHED in public spaces. EDUCATE about leashing.
- Having a BSL puts false facts and fears into people's minds. Each 'attack' or misbehaviour should be specified for that dog not the breed.
- Please, no breed specific bylaws.
- Pit bulls - or any dog breed for the matter should not be discriminated upon.
- Ownership bans for pet owners that repeatedly let their pets roam at large. It's already against bylaw and encourages coyotes.
- My concern is you just specifically picked one breed of dog to Target there are more dog attached with huskies Chihuahuas shepherds ect
- You can not punish pitbull owners biased on prejudice. Rules should be the same for every breed and every owner period!
- Penelziation of owners of nuisance dogs rather than the dogs themselves are more likely to encourage responsible pet ownership
- The designation of a sectioned-off small-dog (
- Banning certain breeds of dogs doesn't make anyone any safer. Banning people that refuse to care for and manage their dogs does.
- Mandatory training classes after violations, and proof submitted that class was completed.
- Breed specific bylaw is not the answer. Owners are responsible for the dogs behaviour. Plain and simple

- BSL will not prevent bad pet ownership. What needs to be heavily reinforced is appropriate/adequate ownership.
- People running through dog parks tend to leave the gates open that opens a can of worms. Those people should be fined.
- Breed specific legislation/bylaw enforcement has historically not reduced attacks or bites.
- No
- No
- Not sure about the warning system, I think it will label dogs.
- Stop consulting the Public and Consult will [remove]. You people don't seem to know enough to leave your Responsible Ownership Bylaw alone.
- Dogs SHOULD NOT be discriminated against. Switch out "pitbull" with any human ethnicity and you'd have massively racist questions here.
- NA
- Fencing around off leash parks near busy roadways. As well as additional waste receptacles in parks.
- "No BSL!!!"
- Declare it a nuisance for behaviour not the breed"
- Im not sure.
- Enforce existing rules.
- Dog walkers allowing their pets to walk in, urinate, and/or defecate in private property. Regardless if they pick it up after?
- Educate Pit Bull owners on the severity of their dog's bite compared to other breeds. The potential new rules are for everyone's safety.
- No
- No
- Breed specific bans or fines is totally unacceptable and unethical.
- I am very disgusted you are considering breed specific legislation. Golden retrievers have the highest bite rate. Do not discriminate.
- NO breed specific bylaws ! The problem is owners not the breed. If you want training for one to be mandatory it should be for all
- circumstances of first-time or repeat offenders need to be considered as well as mental stability of the owner
- NA
- I have nothing more to add
- Breed specific legislation is an absolutely archaic approach to managing aggressive dog behaviour - do your research.
- In 2020 everyone would have thought the year would have expanded minds not shrink them. Don't discriminate a dog based on the owner.

- Please do not punish the dogs. Put more restrictions in place for owners. Follow up more. Make them report more often/educate more.
 - Abolition of breed specificity. Do you treat black and white people differently? No? So stop doing it to dogs
 - All dogs can be a problem should not be deacriminating against pitbulls or other terriers because of past. all dogs can be bad if taught.
 - The fines section should take into consideration circumstances of the incident. Ie a leashed dog injures a nonleashed animal that approaches
 - Breed legislation is not the answer, education is. Please don't move forward with breed banning.
 - More use of warnings for first offences/complaints to allow owners to address the problem (noise, feces, upset neighbors)
 - Punishing dogs for people's bad behavior is ridiculous. Banning a specific breed isn't going to stop people from not training their dogs.
 - Dont ban dog breeds, make stricter rules for all dogs. Plus a pitbull is a single breed, not any dog with a square face
 - The pit bull should not be discriminated against. If any change to bylaws against this breed should apply to all breeds and not zero any out
 - Disappointed to see breed specific language. Don't lower fees if you can't afford them you can't afford the pet.
 - This article states pitbulls do not have a higher bite ratio, therefore no BSL should be instated
 - N/a
 - Breed specific laws are not scientifically sound. They should be thrown out all together.
 - "Allow cats to be outside provided they are spayed or neutered. It is inhumane to force them to be inside creatures.
- Allow urban hens."
 - Fine dogs for miss behaving but dogs should be allowed off leash in all city parks otherwise
 - Quick Picking on Pit bulls. Start focusing on their owners/breeders. Pit bulls are truly the sweetest dogs around.
 - No breed specific discrimination. How an animal is raised is the problem. Breeding controls to help control population no puppy mills.
 - Owner education is needed. Poor training and lack of exercise are not the fault of the dog. Indoor cats shouldn't require a licence.
 - No breed specific bylaws!! It has been proven they do not work.
 - The statements made about "Pitbulls” are very wrong, not even top 10 strongest bite, and are nicknamed nanny dogs because their love of kids
 - All dog breeds should require a baseline amount of training (ie. obedience training) to be owned, not just breed specific legislation.

- No
- I challenge anyone afraid of pitbulls to go out and meet one, in a proper home they're loving and gentle, undeserving of this stigma. So sad
- People who have pit bulls shouldn't be punished
- Don't punish the breed. Enforce owners require either further education or not allowed to own a dog.
- Great that we are reviewing this! We should review animal abuse laws as well!
- I've owned hamsters that are more dangerous than many pitbulls I've known. Punishing breeds that look vaguely like pitbulls isn't a solution
- No
- I am extremely disturbed about the discrimination against certain breeds. I will not support the spread of misinformation.
- One time lifetime license for pets.
- Hilariously immature to even propose restrictions on pit bulls. Ashamed of this city.
- Animals should be treated equally. If any breed were to attack/bite, the animal should be assessed and extra training should be required.
- Breed aggression doesn't exist. It's all the owner's training rather than the breed
- NA
- More off leash parks need to be created to allow pets and owners to practice social interaction. This aids in having better adjusted dogs
- Stop debasing the intellect of your enterprise by promoting lore such as the magical strength of pit bulls. How embarrassing. Read a book.
- I think it should be mandatory all animals are chipped.
- Discriminating against dog breeds when there is no data showing more bites/attacks only results in more dogs being euthanized/unwanted.
- Stray cat charges should be higher. You can't control cats, At my house alone I am fighting with 3 outdoor neighbour cats shiting in my yard
- Please make spay/neuter programs actually accessible. Your outreach game is weak and unreachable by the demographic that most needs it.
- do not ban pitbulls. How could you target them? That's racism towards dogs. BSL has been shown to be INEFFECTIVE in other cities.
- It is discrimination to say that "pitbulls" should have restrictions. My certified emotional pitty is better than any chihuahua.
- Be more proactive and less punitive. Want to curb roaming cats have actual accessible outreach tonspay/neuter. And promote ideas like catios
- Breed specific legislation is not a good plan. The dog is not the problem the owner is
- People need to be properly educated to be around dogs, alot of the issues not only surround bad owners, but also very uneducated people

- Targeting one breed of animal is unfair to said breed. If it applies to all animals it'd be different but you are singling out a few breeds
- Bylaws should apply to all breeds, not be breed specific.
- Small dogs can attack big dogs, and the big dogs typically get punished...focus on repeating offenders with higher penalties.
- No chickens, no chickens, people are not educated about their needs or care.
- I believe in keeping aggressive dogs away from public but I am 100% against breed specific legislation. Owners should be held responsible to
- s
- I am very opposed to breed specific bias. And generally speaking, it is not the breed causing the bite, it is the owner and bad training.
- People should be held more accountable for there animals not the animal. They are still wild animals
- Please do not discriminate against dogs based on physical appearance/ breed
- Fines for parents of children that torment/ tease or abuse an animal. Higher fine if the person provoked the dog to bite
- I don't think specific breeds should be singled out in any bylaw. Base things off incidences If they occur
- Pet license fees should be included on the sliding scale with the Fair Entry program. I cannot afford to renew my dogs license at this time
- I would like to see Calgary make it easier to keep chickens and goats as pets
- If a pet owner wants a pet then they should complete a course on responsible ownership not every one deserves a pet let alone six.
- No
- In regards to bites and nuance dogs, all breads should be treated equally. Chihuahuas after responsible for more bites than any other breed.
- Breed specific punitive action is not the way to go. It is irresponsible owners that are the issue Education is key. Do not punish animal!
- A large discount for multi-pet homes. Cheaper licensing fees would make multi animal homes wantand be able to easily register
- There should be NO breed discrimination. BSL is faulty logic and ineffective. Innocent dogs die.
- no dog breed should be discriminated against.
- No to BSL.
- There is no evidence that breed-specific policies are effective by ANY metric.
- You cannot target or punish one specific breed. The issue stems from bad owners.
- More off leash areas - they do not need to be fenced, responsible owners don't need boxes.
- Ban owners not animals
- [removed]
- More trash cans close and in dog parks-not just were it's convenient for city workers to empty them.
- More goats needed. Ravine behind our house (Panorama Hills) is overgrown.

- I do not believe it is right to discriminate against Pit Bulls. Calgary should be aiming to reduce discrimination
- Increased fines for owners who abuse pets and removal of the animal(s) from the home while a complaint is investigated. Also no breed bias.
- Not to discriminate against certain dog breeds because they could potentially cause more harm!
- Please do not implement any kind of breed specific legislation for canines
- More education on where dogs are allowed. many people take their dogs to schools to do their business. School fields are for KIDS NOT DOGS.
- Fines for repeat offenders of continual barking after 11:00 pm.
- "Post behaviors and accompanied fine values at entrance of on leash and off lease parks.
- When licensing a pet a list of bylaws supplied."
- Mandatory training sessions required for nuisance owners and their animal for first offence.
- My pitbull is much gentler than bichon. Pitbulls shouldn't be discriminated against. Irresponsible owners are the problem not a specific dog
- I do not support dog breed specific legislation but I think ALL dog owners should be required to attend some sort of mandatory training clas
- Reduce pet licenses for ALL Calgarians, not just low income
- Banning any one breed of dog because it has the potential to be aggressive is absurd ! So many study's proving this wrong !
- Why punish a dog for having a shitty owner? Make it impossible for shitty people to get dogs. No backyard breeders and more application review
- Enforce a Maximum amount of pets per household.
- Stop branding specific breeds of dogs, it's not helpful and just perpetuate misinformation. Waiver licensing fees with proven obedience class
- Owners are the issue here
- Parents need to be accountable for children when their actions . le a child runs up to a dog in a fenced/enclosed yard
- Thanks
- Please don't single out piltbulls. It should be large breed dogs!
- Apartment buildings/Condos should not have the right to turn away citizens who own pit bull type dogs.
- The fact that you single out pit bulls and pit bull breeds offensive, it either applies to all or none.
- The makers of this survey do not understand Pitbulls and highlighting a Pitbulls bite force is redundant, as a bulldog has a stronger bite.
- Immediately stop attacking bully breeds and mixes thereof. There is no science that proves banning any specific breed has EVER worked , ever
- Focus more enforcement on owners not thepets I do not agree with breed specific bylaws all fines and rules should apply to ALL breeds.

- There shouldn't be breed discrimination. We need to have harsher laws on bad pet owners as they are the ones who create an aggressive dog.
- They shouldn't discriminate against certain breeds of dogs, just because of how a dog looks, such as pit bulls.
- I believe that breed specific legislations are unfair and unnecessary. Pet behavior is affected by owner treatment of animal, not breed.
- I believe that there should be more traps and enforcement on at large cats and dogs! People who like to let their cats roam deserve a ticket
- The breeds aren't bad the training is don't make a law be breed specific
- Licensing fees for dog would be dropped if they have passed a Canine Good Neighbour test.
- "Too many cats roaming freely! Charge owners.
- And please don't pick on the bullies. Focus on owners!"
- [remove] cash grabs, [remove] [personal information removed]
- There needs to be a focus on owners rather than the breed. Bad owners need to be fined and educated.
- The bylaw should be for all breeds of nuisance dogs not specifically pit bulls.
- Do not reverse your current views/laws on "Put Bulls"
- Please don't ban specific breeds! Seems not supported by data.
- Dogs should be given a 2nd chance through professional training after all incidents. Including bites.
- WHERE ARE CHIHUAHUAS ON YOUR [remove] LIST?!? I've been attacked by several, even required stitches a few times. #dontbullmybreed #savepittys
- MUCH more by-law presence and enforcement. In 15 years in my present home I have not seen ONE by-law officer in the neighbourhood to patrol.
- I have nothing meaningful to say.
- If you have a disabled pet (blind, deaf, diabetic, amputee, etc.) there should be a discount on fees for registering/licensing
- Better enforcement for barking dogs, and cleaning up dog waste. No one seems to care about barking, or bagging waste and leaving it in parks
- Make it so that someone with violent/hoarding tendencies has to be approved to have an animal of any kind. Don't breed discrimination.
- There is no need for people living in a city to own a dog bred for fighting. The city should not be licensing these vicious dogs.
- Discrimination against particular breeds of dogs is completely unacceptable.
- The fact that you guys are singling out pitbulls is terrible Its 2020 and racism is already a problem. Pitbulls dont have the strongest bite
- My neighbor owns two German Shepards both are/were aggressive to my dogs and kids. My pitbull is calm/balanced dog. Its not breed! Bad owner
- No

- What about businesses that use dogs but are not considered pets? There should be less restrictions on how many dogs they are allowed
- No
- Non breed specific bylaws
- Breed discrimination is wrong. I like the idea of colors on the dogs when out and about so others can look and see if it is okay to engage.
- Re: max number of pets per home. Hard to impose fines or animal seizures as animal 'hoarders' often do not register animals with the city
- Enough with punishing owners of breed specific dogs. Punish owners that aren't controlling or training their pets correctly.
- .
- It has been proven multiple times BSL is ineffective. Focus on ALL aggressive dogs on a case-by-case basis.
- Leave the sheltering and care of stray and unwanted animals to Humane Society. They are specifically set up to do this work. Stop the waste.
- Do not target pit bulls. They are no more likely or able to cause damage than any other large breed. The problem is irresponsible ownership.
- Do not lower the pet fees for low income, if you can't afford the license fee you can't afford the vet costs. No BSL
- Breed specific legislation is not effective. Dog owners are the problem, not dog breeds. Punish irresponsible owners, not breeds of dogs
- Pitbulls and other "bully breeds" are not inherently bad or evil, just like every other dog out there it comes down to the owner.
- Noise violations are from 11pm-7am (I think) it should be the same for barking dogs
- My dog is trained and responsive, why aren't others? If you can't afford lessons in the first place, you shouldn't have the pet
- Please do not impose breed-specific legislation - this is discrimination. The focus should be the animal, not the breed.
- Breed specific legislation is absurd and only causes more problems. Pit bull type breeds are not the problem. Bad owners are the problem.
- Pitbulls should not be exclusively listed as they are no more dangerous than any other dog
- Do not single out "pit bulls" All breeds should be treated equally.
- Breed-biased discrimination isn't disgusting and the City of Calgary should be ashamed for even bringing it up.
- Including a brief pet ownership guide/course/refresher prior to initial licensing would aid in reducing overall offences.
- Bulldog breeds are not the issue. There are negligent owners for every breed. Penalize the owner, not the breed.
- Should be higher fines for dogs off leash in any non off leash areas.

- Add mandatory and large fines for animals left unattended in vehicles in hot or cold weather or riding in the back of vehicles (trunk)
- All dogs should be properly trained and socialized, I do not support breed specific legislation.
- Breed specific laws are absurd. In your statements you've shown a lack of knowledge on animals, dogs specifically.
- I've seen more aggressive small dog breeds than pitbulls. every pitty i've known is just a big baby who wants love.
- Mandatory spray and neuter, fines if they animals isn't (unless they are a registered breeder). Fine for aggressive dogs in off leash areas
- Why target pitbulls but not mastiffs, or Rottweilers? What about a dog that always bites passer-bys?
- The breed discrimination for pit bulls is not acceptable
- Dog temperaments are majorly based on how they are raised, bad owners typically raise poor acting animals,
- I don't support breed targeting legislation. A lot of these animals act due to improper training. Don't lump them together.
- Please consider a category separate from 'nuisance' for dogs that have harmed people or other dogs and consider muzzle, etc. bylaws for them
- Stop identifying "pit bulls" as problematic . They're not a specific breed of dog, and any animal has the potential to be dangerous.
- A dog that is misbehaving just requires more training. The owners might need some education, and funding for obedience classes.
- I am totally against Breed Specific Legislation. It should be situational, not the condemnation of an entire breed
- Restrictions on "Pit bulls" are not a solution to dog bites it is the owner's responsibility to properly train their dog of any breed
- An untrained chihuahua is more dangerous and more likely to bite than a trained pitbull
- N/A
- Breed specific legislation is an absolutely horrible idea for the city to adopt
- we are blaming the animals/owners whilst nothing is said about those antagonizing an animal ex fence running. That needs addressing
- I just want to reiterate that I will never support any breed specific bylaws.
- Na
- dont be breed specific please, the faults lie with the lack of training, and small dogs are just as much of a problem.
- There should be regulations on pet trainers, daycares, kennels, "rescues" who operate in calgary to uphold animal welfare standards.
- If you single out a specific breed make your data proving that they are the most vicious readily available for viewing. Otherwise, Don't.

- Breed specific bylaws are not the answer and are not going to help or solve any problems because pit bulls are NOT the problem
- Owners should be held accountable for bad dog behavior. It is about how they're raised not the breed of the animal.
- No
- Pitbull apologists/owners are their own worst enemy. If only they would've respected their dog's genetics and tried to mitigate the risk.
- Do not have questions about breed specific by-laws. Be better than the provinces who are discriminating against breeds.
- Those breeding dogs or cats, or selling litters of either, should have to be registered with the city as a licensed business
- Nuisance pets should have mandatory training and higher fines for repeat offenders.
- All dogs at public off leash parks should be neutered/spayed after 12 months of age.
- The BREED of the animal DOES NOT matter it is all in how the OWNER decides to TRAIN the animal. Pit bulls are NOT the problem, the owner is.
- Responsible dog owners should not let their dogs do their business on front lawns. There are plenty walkways/green spaces/lanes available.
- Cats need to be on leashes not allowed to roam free
- Provide public funding for private animal rescues or trap, spay/neuter, release programs.
- Genetics matter-they're why pointers point, collies herd, robins build nests, and why fighting dog breeds fight. We need these law changes.
- Hens are quieter than dogs. Appropriate sized lots should accommodate a small number of hens.
- Breed specific legislation is DISCRIMINATION. That's basically racism, but for dogs. All dogs can pose as a threat if not trained properly.
- I do not stand for breed discrimination. no dog is born vicious. I can't believe we even have to fight about this. DO BETTER, CANADA.
- More enforcement of off-leash is needed. Also dogs should NEVER be allowed on school property. Consent is not given by other parents! Bites!
- We should focus on education of responsible pet ownership and dog behaviors for owners and the public instead of punishing a specific breed.
- Make harsher punishment to animal abuse or animal theft
- I am so disappointed in this city, with all this talk of racism recently and here they are doing the same thing to our dogs.
- Breed specific bylaws are understandable to an extent but also not fair on the other hand. These animals are powerful yes, but not all mean.
- It's not the dog, it's the owners. Short of inbreeding, dogs behave in a manner reflective of their training and treatment by their owners.
- no

- I think that we are doing a good job of honouring pet owners and neighbours. I do like the idea of being able to have a few chickens.
- I support BSL in Calgary to make communities safer. A pitbull mauled a young boy outside Edmonton recently, I don't want it to happen here.
- Revisit restrictions on cats staying on your property. Most people don't follow this and I find it unnecessary, also causes many arguments.
- Nope
- People should have to prove they can own and train a dog before they are granted a license.
- I believe breed discrimination shouldn't be in these phases. It's just as bad as judging someone's skin colour
- No
- It is not the pit bulls that are the problems. It is the owners problem. It's a bad pet owner not a bad pet. Stop the discrimination !
- Do not base any legislation on specific breeds. The science doesn't support it.
- Ridiculous. Majority of it is how they're raised. Some people shouldn't have pets. Any dog can be taught to be aggressive. Not just pits.
- Pit bulls should not be the only dog listed that's not right p
- Breed specific legislation will cause more problems than it will ever try and solve. You are now working against every rescue/shelter.
- I have been attacked/ my dog attacked by more chihuahuas and Yorkies than bully breeds. It's all about the owner and the training.
- Don't agree with Pitbull being the only breed to have more restrictions. German Sheppards can be vicious, they are trained to be police dogs!
- The owners or past owners make the dog. How about we focus on some real issues. IM PISSED.
- I have no ideas
- Animal licensing should be available online for anyone within the regular limit. Tags can be mailed with receipts.
- "I do not agree with breed specific legislation.
- There was no mention of the complaint or fine process for loud or abused animals."
- na
- Na
- Make pet insurance mandatory?
- I do not support BSL. It unfairly targets dogs that look like a certain breed rather than keeping responsible pet ownership
- LOVE the bandana idea! It would be a great education tool and foster better communication and respect between dog owners and dog lovers!
- Given the huge impact that outdoor cats have on birds and other wildlife, I would really like there to be more education and enforcement.

- Tribunal should be made up of experienced pet owners. Pit bulls aren't the problem. The solution is better dog owners and better education
- Breed specific legislation fails to reduce attacks and doesn't support responsible pet ownership. We can do so much better as a city.
- Don't be a breeder! Any dog has the potential to bite and cause harm not just a pitbull.
- Breed specific legislation is unfair to the animal. Responsible owners have responsible pets..of any kind!
- I incur costs to replace grass killed by dog owners whose pets urinate on my property. Recover costs through increased dog licensing fees.
- Breed specific legislation is ridiculous! Humans are to blame and should always be held accountable. Not all people should own pets.
- No
- I've been told when calling 311 that officers won't come out for cats at large if owner unknown - would be great if this could change
- Breed specific laws are inherently flawed. Visible ID of breed is faulty and can result in undue prejudice.
- What is the total Max animals and livestock per household? Limit overall chickens and pigeons and cats and dogs to something more reasonable
- BSL (breed specific legislation) is ineffective and often targets dogs based on their appearance rather than behaviour.
- BSL has been proven not to work. Why, because any breed of dog can bite and cause harm. Therefore all breed owners need to be held responsible
- Put more garbage cans in all parks for dog-feces bags and have machines in parks that offer the bags for free.
- A dog attack can impact your life forever. There shouldn't be second chances for irresponsible pets and owners.
- If an off-leash dog is CLEARLY under control it should not be a fine.
- Increase the fines for dog feces not being picked up to $1000 per offence or 100 hours of community service picking up dog feces.
- Focus on nuisance animals instead of breed specific legislation! Leave the pit bulls and bully breeds out of it!
- Provide parents with resources to teach their kids how to approach dogs in an on-leash/off-leash areas. Stop criminalizing pitbulls
- "- more enclosed off leash areas
 - No personal cat traps. All traps must be city owned traps with a numbered medallion. Private trap=$fine$."
- It is well known that in terms of animals temperament it is a nurture based issue. bad pet owners shouldn't be allowed to own more animals
- Some people have real fears of animals. We should be considerate of them.

- Any dog can have aggression and "a strong bite".it is the neglect of training and care that allow dog(not just pitties)to develop aggression
 - Breed discrimination is ridiculous and uneducated.
 - Education system about different dog species for a better understanding how to care , restriction for dog breeders .
 - Stop bullying the breed! They are adaptable and smart, and are more caring than most humans!
 - I don't think that cats that are indoor only should have to be licensed.
 - "Making a responsible pet ownership course might avoid help animal abuse.
- Having more severe penalties for animal abuse"
 - Breed specific laws are like racism in humans. It shouldn't be acceptable.
 - Ownership to dog/cat owners when issues arise it should not be based on breed.
 - Yea not change anything its discrimination to dog breeds
 - do not ban or discriminate specific breeds. 20 years ago a toy poodle offleash ripped my pit bull puppy's testicle off.
 - Stop looking at breed specific legislation. Instead encourage owners to train (or restrain) their dogs properly. No euthanasiation.
 - Problem dogs are the result of owners, not the dog breed
 - As a RESPONSIBLE pitbull owner.I'm extremely disappointed and upset that pitbulls are begin targeted and generalized based on their breed.
 - Small dogs yap and charge at my bully every day and he ignores them but HE should wear a muzzle? Yeah...how about no
 - Bandanas are a waste of time. Teach children to not run up to a dog whether or not they look friendly instead of all onace on owners
 - Pitbulls are NOT the problem!! Bad owners are. It all comes down to proper training, doesn't matter the breed.
 - DON'T BULLY THE BREED, THE OWNER IS 100% OF THE TIME RESPONSIBLE FOR THE BEHAVIOUR OF THEIR PET. THERE ARE NO BAD DOGS, JUST BAD OWNERS.
 - I do not believe that focusing on pitbulls is necessary for the city. More dog bites are caused by smaller dogs.
 - The city shouldn't ban a dog because of the breed. PITBULLS are the most emotional, smart and strong dogs and lots of people take advantage
 - NA
 - Dissagree strongly with breed specific bylaws and it needs to be taken off the table.
 - I'm DISGUSTED that this city would even be considering bsl
 - Euthanize all pit bull type breeds.

- instead of categorizing dogs based on their breed you should have a screening process for owners. Pitbulls are not bad dogs just bad owners
- N/a
- Could you explain why only pitbulls types are being targeted?
- There needs to be more responsibility of owners for barking dogs. Yes, I understand dogs bark but when owners show no means for stopping it.
- BSL is discrimination... Legislation and restrictions should be based on an individual animals behaviour NOT a based on breed
- Discriminating against a breed of dog is just as bad as racism to humans if it's bad to be racist to people don't be racist two animals
- Rather than putting biased surveys on citizens regarding pit bulls aka nuisance dogs, target the owners of aggressive dogs and not the breed
- Breed discrimination is an insult. I know pit bulls that are more well behaved than most small breed dogs who yap like no tomorrow.
- Do NOT bring in breed specific legislation. Read the pitbull placebo.
- No
- There is way to much bias towards pitbulls in this bylaw and honestly it should be looked at to remove the bias but keep the points
- Quit punishing dogs based on how they look! Pitbull's are some of the kindest most affectionate and loyal dogs, quit discriminating!
- NO BSL
- Don't not make bylaw about pit bulls. Other breeds are just as dangerous
- More enforcement options for nuisance dogs.
- No
- Pit Bulls and others that may resemble Pit Bulls should not be treated any differently than any other breed of dog.
- Do not attempt Breed Specific Legislation further
- How about city administrators making these changes learn more about a breed before discriminating on hearsay and media reports!!!!
- I do not agree with breed specific discrimination. A dogs behaviour is a direct reflection of the owner and the training they have given.
- "BSL is not the answer, education is.
- We will only be going backwards with ideology that targets one specific breed or type of dog."
- Breed specific legislation is not a solution, dont discriminate. Penalties for those who abuse animals, regular vet visits required.
- It's proven that certain breeds attack more then others. The city is responsible to mitigate risk knowing these statistics.
- Breed specific laws punish the dog rather than the responsible party. Punish bad owners and restrict them from owning pets going forward.

- "Don't single out breeds. Make owners more responsible for their dogs actions. It's not the breed that is the problem. ”
- "It's bad owners not bad breeds"
- Banning/punishing a breed of dog does not fix the problem the bad owners will get other breeds"
- I do not support additional budget for these changes. Up the fees to pay for increased enforcement.
- Mandatory training for humans wanting to rescue, own or foster bully-breeds to help ensure the human knows how to properly care for the dog
- Pit Bulls should not be singled out, animals can be labeled as aggressive or nuisance regardless of breed. No breed specific legislation!
- Bully breeds aren't the problem , irresponsible owners are. Breed specific legislation is unfair
- BSL is terrible and proven ineffective. Create a program to license and care for pets of homeless folks. I know vets that would volunteer.
- I would like to see more active involvement from bylaw officers in trapping roaming cats. This is a huge problem in SW calgary
- Training for all dogs should be required
- The early warning collars will be useless unless everyone agrees to use them which they won't. I am absolutely against BSL
- Pit bulls are obviously an enormous problem and it is inherent in the breed, whose genetics incline said dogs to kill/maim other animals.
- Not right now
- It used to be German Shepherds and Rottweilers. Now the Pit Bull is the demon dog of the day. Dog racism is real and has been for decades.
- Dogs are not the problem - their training is. Give new dog owners free or low cost training courses and everyone benefits
- Banning a breed is not going to help at all. It is the person raising the dog, not the breed itself.
- Remove specific breeds from bylaws but be stricter for all signs of aggression in any breed
- BSL has been shown to work. Imagine if 85% of all auto fatalities were due to 1 type of car. At what point do you face the facts?
- No
- Don't discriminate against pit bulls and large dogs. Tiny dogs are some of the worse behaved dogs and vicious but can't do much damage.
- I have no additional feedback
- I think dogs should have to go through an assessment even basic before fines are issued. They are still animals and sometimes unpredictable
- There is a desperate need for a well maintained off leash (with the same quality and path system as Sue Higgens park) in the north west
- I believe that the owner should be investigated before the animal itself. Any breed can be aggressive if treated poorly or trained to be
- All pets, one

- Stop assuming pitbulls are the problem. Smaller dogs are much worse.
- No
- Another way for the city to take money out of my pocket. Small dogs bite way more. But no one cares about that
- Do not do anything that revolves around breed specific legislation!
- BSL not needed. Owner education is by far most important
- How about not calling out pitbulls as being deserving of special fines, conditions, training, etc.
- Breed-specific bylaw does the city a disservice by punishing responsible owners
- I strongly object to Pitbulls being singled out. There are smaller and larger breeds that have worse behaviors and cause more damage.
- Make off leash rules more clear, dogs can not be off leash on any paved paths
- I do not believe in breed specific legislation when it comes to dogs. I do not agree with the pitbull negativity out there.
- Signs in Off-leash areas do not mention owners responsibilities. Or that on a path within the area, a pet must be ON leash.
- Breed specific rules are not the way to deal with problem animals/owners
- Animal Services needs to work on its image to make it more positive. Animal welfare seems secondary to punitive actions.
- Breed specific bylaws should be removed.
- Nope
- I don't believe in breed specific legislation/restrictions for 'resembling a pit bull'. Too open to interpretation + misidentifying breeds
- None
- The breed of should not matter BSL does not work. Currently nothing is done with nuisance dog because there is no one to police it
- Breed specific bans and language is inappropriate and not productive to the conversation.
- More human regulation, rather than animal. All dogs are good dogs, it's a few owners who are bad. Focus on improving ownership of dogs.
- Breed Specific Legislation is useless
- Judging a dog by it's breed and forcing a family to get insurance on that dog is not acceptable. I have never met a pit bull I didn't love
- Pit bulls and pit bull mixes should be banned. No one needs an animal that is bred for and used in the illegal blood sport of dog fighting.
- Ban retractable leashes. They already violate standard leash laws but lead to increased issues with a lack of owner control of their animal.
- Stop blaming the breeds and start blaming the owners. 100% against BSL!!!!
- Stop targeting pit bulls specifically. No animal or person is genetically predisposed to violence. Any insistence otherwise is false.

- I don't agree with the breed specific bylaws. Any dog can be a nuisance dog if not socialized or trained properly.
- Put a stop to targeting specific breeds. Disgusting and unfair.
- After reviewing the current legislation, there is nothing with regards to vicious animals and how to identify them if the owner takes a walk
- Should a person have multiple infractions, they should be ineligible to own an animal for a specified time frame or forever.
- It is disappointing that pit bulls are being targeted by these potential bylaws.
- Punish people who abuse animals, not well-intentioned pet owners who make mistakes.
- The fact that BSL is suggested at all is extremely disappointing... it has been proven that IT DOES NOT WORK!
- The pitbull people need to calm down. It's not a ban. Just measures to mitigate the risk of having fighting breeds around.
- Need to recognize not every animal attack is animal fault, sometimes the person attacked has knowingly ignored owner or been aggressive.
- Not all breeds are bad. Basic training should be required for all dogs.
- Focus on behaviour and how an animal is raised- don't judge and discriminate based on breed alone.
- Breed specific laws are unfair. It's how their owner has trained (or failed to) train them. Anger is not a trait found in puppies.
- Barking excessively and dogs not being on leashes when not in off leash areas
- All dogs should have to register in a mandated obedience training course.
- Pit bulls were bred for fighting. You can't train out that instinct.
- A breed specific ban is ridiculous and breeds are not the issue, people are and their treatment of animals, people need to be held accountable
- a better psychological study and assessment is needed that acknowledges the aggression of substantially smaller dogs.
- Defer to actual animal experts before enacting breed specific legislation, going forward only shows you're unable to follow science
- MORE BYLAWS / LAWS, FINES, RESTRICTIONS, ETC - FOR IRRESPONSIBLE PET OWNERS!! NOT THE ANIMALS! NO LAW SHOULD BE CONSEQUENTLY USED TO PETS.
- Signage in parks about keeping dogs on leash with a bit of explanation (for wildlife, for those afraid of dogs, for those rehabbing rescues)
- Stop targeting specific breeds - small dogs who's owners think it's cute when they snap/bite is far more worrisome!
- Dog breeds have nothing to do with a dogs potential of being vicious; many large dogs have lockjaw, include all or include none.
- None

- Triple the fine for dogs being off leash outside of designated areas, enforce it and MAKE IT KNOWN. There is no reason to let a dog wander
- "Pitbull" type dogs are not the problem, bad owners are the problem.
- Lower licensing and discounted spay/neuter programs. Complaints, multiple offences have enforced obedience classes, training for owners!
- Can't believe the use of breed specific language. All potential dog owners should have to pass mandatory training before they buy/adopt
- Introduce a responsible breeder license. Require all pets to be spay/neutered unless the owner holds a breeding license.
- The bandana system is a decent option but in the past I've seen it as an excuse for poor behaviour in dogs and no responsibility from owners
- I would be very upset whether city puts extra condition to my Staffordshire terrier. Dog racism. NEVER AGREE
- The Pitbull restrictions are AWFUL. Maybe make it mandatory that dog owners need to take training class for themselves and their pet!
- I'm surprised there is still discrimination against pitbulls these days. Responsible owners will raise well-mannered animals, even pitbulls.
- Instead of targeting specific breeds of dogs, there should be more emphasis on how they can be trained to prevent incidents from occurring
- Number of dogs and cats per household should be way lower than 6 of each
- I believe there should be exceptions regarding dog bites. Self defense. Protection . Very disappointed in reading about the breed prejudice.
- none
- No
- I feel that City Pet licensing should actually be free and barrier free. It will increase compliance.
- Breed specific legislation is basically dog racism, dogs will behave how they are trained to behave.
- Pit bulls are not the problem and do not deserve to be punished. People need to be held responsible for their pets behaviour. No BSL!
- Cats should be allowed to roam free with no problems. Specific breeds shouldn't be singled out.
- [removed]
- I do not agree with any breed specific bylaws. I support education for kids and adults on how to interact and approach dogs.
- Banning breeds is just "legal" genocide of another creature, it's wrong! Focus on implementing laws that holds ALL dog owners accountable
- Breed specific legislation is unnecessary esp. re pitbull-these have been proven to be gentle, loving dogs. Its the owners, not the dogs
- No discrimination against breeds. Any breed can be aggressive!
- Breed specific laws are [remove]. It'll only cause problems for shelters and the owners of pit bulls or other dogs.

- There is data to show that the German Shepherd has a more powerful bite force than Pitbull. Thought Calgary was progressive beyond BSL.
- No
- Breed specific bans are ridiculous
- I do not support any bylaws with respect to specific breeds. Pit bull are subject to unnecessary stigma and unjustified fear.
- There would be no special rules for breeds. Though I think attending a training course should be mandatory with all dogs.
- breed specific legislation or bans are not supported by any legitimate statistics, and thus make no sense
- I am strongly opposed to all breed specific bylaws. They have not worked in other municipalities and prevent good dogs from finding homes
- The rules against pitbulls are flat out misinformed and you should be embarrassed to even present these rules as options.
- I would like a bylaw that deals with odor.
- This is ridiculous. I am not worried about the beagle down the street. I can't believe we're still debating this. And +/- votes? Are we 12?
- N/a
- There should be more care put into regulations that ensure the health and safety of an animal instead of just punitive measures.
- Make more puppy areas to play! 1 per neighborhood would be nice. A small, closed off area for 2 months - 9 months pups to play off leash
- Bylaws should apply to all breeds of dogs. A training course for owners and problematic dogs, once identified should be mandatory.
- None. Thankyou
- No
- Laws against "pit bull's" are useless
- Give whoever came up with this title a big high five - that is some excellent punmanship!
- Just please ban pit bulls. Thank you.
- Licensing fees for strictly indoor cats should be a very low amount and good for life.
- The breed has nothing to do with the way the animal behaves. You can have the sweetest pit bull and the most aggressive beagle!
- categories for fines to be too open to interpretation leaving room for the category to be more severe if the victim is overly emotional
- Keep your hands off my well behaved pitbulls! No to BSL! Ban bad owners. Limit numbers for dog walkers. More dog education in schools.
- I think there needs to be more education for owners that have trouble controlling an animal. I also think more needs to be done about cats

- Breed specific restrictions do not work. Education and community support are the best tools we have to help owners and their pets.
- Reduce the licensing costs if people have more than 1 animal.
- I have none
- Small Dog only parks
- memorial options for pets, sponsoring a waste bag dispenser for park garbage, or mailing back licenses to go into a dog park art project
- The city needs better tools to vet pet owners upon their purchase of a license.
- Breed specific legislation is ineffective and only serves to encourage people to use those animals for illegal activity and abuse them
- The survey doesn't ID why pit bulls are held to account for all dog behaviours. Therefore I think this survey is designed to be discriminat
- Pitbull bans are the [remove] thing the city has come up with
- If a dangerous dog is roaming at large the fine should be HUGE. Living next door to a dangerous dog is like being held prisoner.
- No just no this is dumb.
- LEAVE THE BULLY BREED ALONE!
- I do not support any of the pit bulls laws. The owner has to be on control of his dog behavior.
- Na
- Remove the ability for rental properties to refuse you based on you having pets.
- Stop killing animals like pit bulls for owners bad training and aggressive behaviors. Its not the dogs fault, they should be trained
- Can aggressive behaviour be defined in signage in dog parks because some owners think biting, stalking and body slamming are perfectly fine.
- Targeted a specific breed is unfair. I have seen far worse dog fights and attacks on children from husky's, terriers and retrievers.....
- Please do not have special laws for pit bulls. Any pet can be dangerous and aggressive if abused or not trained.
- The city needs to look at adding more off leash areas to newer suburbs on the outskirts of the city.
- I think that targeting certain dog types is unreasonable. Not all pit bulls are mean and not all chihuahua's are nice.
- Can the fines levied for dog bites go to the victim? I was stuck with $1200 vet bills when a pit bull attacked my dog. Owner declared guilty
- I love the idea of educating kids on dog "green,yellow, red light" bananas. Kids need to be more educated on how to approach dogs.
- Deal with all dogs on equal grounds. BSL has proven nothing in other jurisdictions other than people who don't train dogs pick other breeds
- Breed specific discrimination should not be supported. Owners are almost always the source of the problem (improper care/training/etc).

- I would only recommend to consider an entire situation for a dog bite. Generally speaking, normally they will not attack unless provoked.
- There should absolutely not be any breed specific legislation. Mandatory obedience training before registering a dog would be better.
- Yes. How about stop bullying the bully breeds. When raised properly, they are more likely a lapdog than a dog to be muzzled. Disappointed
- Please do not target specific dog breeds, you are sending a misinformed message to the public.
- Dogs should not be allowed off leash when not in a dog park.
- big thumbs down to all breed specific legislation and shame on you City of Calgary for promoting it
- Anything that promotes spay/neuter programs increased!!!!
- Pit bulls should not be being categorized from other dog breeds. All dogs have potential to be vicious. The owner of the dog is responsible.
- I only said yes to the proposed bylaw regarding the # of cats and dogs, bcuz of the proposed exceptions to the rules. Otherwise no support.
- Focus on regulating pet industry. Ban aversive training that makes dogs aggressive. Ban prong and shock collars to start.
- Stop picking on certain breeds because they "could be a threat";. Punish bad dogs/owners; don't ostracize breeds because you're misinformed.
- Do not punish a breed. Punish the owners who raise their dogs to be aggressive
- N/a
- I do not support breed specific legislation. It's the owner not the breed! This is 100 % prejudice and discriminatory. Disgusting
- If you can't afford a license how can you afford other pet care such as vet visits, food etc. Pets aren't cheap, why decrease fees?
- No
- Ban aversive training methods. Science shows prong, choke and shock collars only increase aggression and fear in dogs.
- Stop scape goating bully breeds as aggressive dogs.
- Please do not blame the dog breed, blame the owners! Make the owners accountable for their pets.
- I do not have any ideas everything I wanted changed was already in the questions but I do hate how you have to have 140 characters to move o
- I believe that Breed specific restrictions are rather insane. I have been attacked by many small dogs in Calgary. Never Large breed. So..??
- My pit bull has been attacked by a Shepard and I know of a chocolate lab who attacked another dog as well. So you gunna ban those breeds too
- breed-specific bylaws do not reduce the incidence or severity of dog bites, penalizes responsible pet owners and kills innocent dogs!!!
- Strict regulations for off-leash/unsupervised outdoor cats please, too many cats injured and lives lost.

- First of all I take great offence at the "Internal expertise" term used to describe your committee because you have shown none here.
- Please stop targeting specific breeds. Irresponsible owners need stricter and higher fines. People are the problem not animals. Please don't
- Dog breed is not the issue. Training should be mandatory for all dogs.
- breed specific legislation does not reduce dog bites/nuisance dogs. please focus on RESPONSIBLE PET OWNERSHIP irregardless of breed or type
- Nope
- All aggressive pets required to go through obedience training prior to any euthenization.
- No
- Definitely no breed specific laws. Put more ownership and responsibility on owners
- Any dog will bite; Any breed, any size, any mix. Any dog can become dangerous. Stop punishing dogs, because of bad owners. Know the truth.
- More enforcement and fines for ppl who let there dogs off leash in undesignated areas.
- pitbulls are wonderful dogs. the behavior of the dog does not depend on the breed of the dog, it depends on how the dog is trained.
- Ban extendable leases. They should not be used ever.
- Enforce the current bylaw more. Calgary has one of the better pet ownership bylaws in canada. Why go backwards, BSL does not work.
- It is not the bread it's the envioument the animal is brought up in!
- The dog is not the issue, the owner is. Please do not pass this as it will punish good owners. Any dog can be aggressive not just pit bull's
- I am VERY opposed to breed specific bans of any type. I own a boxer. All breeds can behave badly if not well trained.
- Responsibility should be put on pet owners rather than breeds. Outdoor cats have negative environmental impact and indoor cats live longer
- No
- Banning a specific breed will not help. Some dogs are nuisances, but that's not about breed. If there's a problem dog, deal with that case.
- Disappointed in discussion of breed specific bylaws/restrictions. Info and obed training for all breeds is better that punishment for some
- Ban the owner not the breed . I will never support banning or treating pit bulls differently . Calgary is better than that .
- its ridiculous and appalling to be breeed specific when looking into any bylaws at all.
- breed specific legislation shows lack of research and use of a scapegoat.. grow up.
- Online page to send in complaints about neighbours dogs.
- Being an owner of a bully breed I am disappointed that this is still a topic.
- You should regulate Animal rescue organizations because a lot of them are corrupt and don't disclose health info to adopters.

- My Pitbull is already always muzzled and leashed under my control and I don't use any public parks why should I pay more fees?
- For point 10 (licensing fees) perhaps waving the fee with proof of spayed/neutered and up to date yearly vaccinations.
- It all come from the owners. Leave dogs out.
- People get reduced license fees for attending and passing basic obedience training with dogs.
- Stop furthering the stigma around specific breeds. The owners should be ensuring their dogs are trained appropriately - no matter what breed
- Breed specific legislation is absolute garbage and I can't believe the city is even humouring such a [remove] baseless plan.
- Treating all dogs the same, punishing the owners and avoiding to surrender the animal.
- Dog breed legislation is antiquated, archaic, and reprehensible. Punish the owner, not the breed
- Make people be able to pass a skill testing set of questions on canine behaviour and body Language to get a dog license
- Na
- Consider pet resort and pet sitting services exempt from special licensing with regards to more than six dogs.
- Implement heavy and severe fines for backyard / hobby breeders who sell dogs to anyone carelessly
- Im curious how much of the pit-bull driven questions are from data driven numbers or public concern. Onus should be on the owner not breed.
- None
- Let residents vote on banning pit bulls completely. My dog almost died after an attack. Since then, another pit bull charged him as well.
- Banning dogs is wrong
- Do not discriminate by breed. I have only even been bit by a little dog. This needs to be an owner problem not a breed problem.
- give your officers more power to deal with things rather than have them tell you to call the police.
- No
- Not in support of breed specific legislation.
- Na
- This isn't right. Many breeds attack, Examples including Rottweilers, Doberman's, Shepherds etc. Please don't single out one breed!
- More dog parks - ie the green areas between roads and houses could be fenced and safely provide better use of these areas, and spread people out
- Targeting Pit Bulls is placating a loud vocal minority at the expense of everyone else. We deserve a better answer, ie, target bad owners!
- No breed specific laws

- Make all dog parks offer free bags if you're going to fine people for not using them. Sometimes my dog goes five times and I run out!
- Feel free to amend the bylaw, but there's no need for it to be breed specific. A dog's obedience depends on its owner's diligence
- Do not put restrictions on pit bull breeds
- Stop targeting large pet breeds. Start looking at the vicious small dog breeds; Chihuahuas and miniature Doberman pinchers.
- There should not be a licensing fee for pets.
- Please share stats on all dog breed bites.
- do not introduce breed specific banning . Any animal can be bad or good. Pit Bulls are not bad dogs. All large breeds have big bites.
- The discrimination against pit bull simply because of the breed is unacceptable. Don't punish the dog; punish the owner if it becomes a problem
- People need to be held responsible for their pets. Show proof of obedience if an issue arises or pay a hefty fine
- Don't label dog breeds, when sometimes it's the owner's problem. and rather than putting a dog down, maybe make behaviour classes a requirement
- No
- There were many questions where I disagreed with all options but couldn't provide a reason. Poorly designed. survey.
- Please don't ban pit bulls. I think stricter rules on how people have to go about getting licensed is a great idea. Vet the OWNER, not pup.
- 6 dogs is still too many for the average person who doesn't fall under the exception list. 4 should be the limit for the average citizen.
- Breed discrimination is uneducated and quotes on the "strength of certain dog-bites"; need to be evidence-based (which it is not).
- BSL is one of the dumbest ideas out there, a dog can not be held responsible for how it is raised, regardless of genetics.
- Calgary needs Small Dog Only Off-Leash Parks or fenced sections in existing parks. This would help reduce aggressive incidences.
- Pitbull attacks account for nearly all dog attacks and I fully support legislating and controlling the ownership of these breeds.
- Please don't single out pit bulls. The owners are the problem, not the breed.
- Owners should be responsible for properly training their dogs. The dog should never be held fully responsible for their actions.
- Disappointed to see BSL language in survey. Responsible ownership shouldn't differ based on breed. Shame on you Calgary. A bite is a bite
- Restrictions on "Pit bulls"; are not a solution to dog bites it is the owner's responsibility to properly train their dog of any breed

- You'll kill a dog for the irresponsible actions of people? Get a grip. I've seen more chihuahua and dachshund bites.
- A flagging system should not be necessary. NO ONE should approach a dog and expect that they are entitled to touch it.
- Ban unneutered male dogs in offleash parks. We are dog owners and have witnessed them cause most altercations in offleash parks.
- I will never support a breed-specific law. Any dog, in the wrong hands, can be aggressive.
- If you bring in bsl you are saying it's ok to be racist. A dog doesn't choose its breed just like humans dont get to choose there color
- Do not discriminate against dog breeds. Putting a target on a dog aka pitbulls allows unfounded fear in people and misunderstanding of a breed
- More off leash dog parks
- I do not support breed specific legislation.
- Tiered licensing fees based on household income. Or raise the low income cut off to a realistic number
- I think that the color system is a great idea. I also believe that dog awareness should be taught by parents and possible in schools as well
- No
- DO NOT JUDGE PITBULLS OR ANY SPECIFIC BREED OF DOG JUDGE THE OWNERS THAT TRAINED THEM JUDGE THE SITUATION NOT THE BREED.
- Ban pit bulls. They are a nuisance. Our children and animals are not safe with them around.
- Pitbulls is a misused term used by many to call their mixed mutts. Disappointing to see the City single out dogs with certain appearances.
- I think each dog attack has to be looked at individually. Why attack?? Why that person??was the dog being teased or attacked first??
- It's much more effective to manage problem pets rather than specific breeds since the issue is about training and owner treatment of the pet
- Dogs of any size are capable of severe injury. Please do not discriminate based on breed or size, the issue is with the owners.
- So disappointed that the city I love is trying to remove pit bulls because of a few bad animals when most pit bulls are great dogs
- Don't believe in breed specific bylaws. Especially to muzzle just because they are a certain breed!
- It has been proven that breed specific laws do not work and cause an uproar in the community by upset people.
- "Stop with this pitbulls are dangerous nonsense. It's just not true.
- Go talk to any local veterinarian they'll probably say the same."
- Why do I have to pay the city to own a pet. This is ridiculous!
- No
- Holding people accountable for harassing animals that are on private property ie through a fence.

- STOP targeting PitBulls!!!
- None
- Trying to place limitations on specific breeds is a suggestion based out of fear and ignorance. Let's be better than that.
- People who scream hysterically and run from a dog who shows no aggressive trades and on leash should also be fined.
- Don't just target pitbulls! Target irresponsible owners and any dogs with a history of aggression
- Targetting breed va behaviour is ineffective and inappropriate. No data supports the need for such biased bylaws.
- No
- Breed specific legislation is discriminatory and defeats the intent of "Responsible Pet Ownership"
- No breed specific legislation.
- Persons convicted of animal abuse are never permitted to ever own another animal in the city.
- stop targeting 'pitbulls'. They have the same chance of attacking as any dog, so stop singling them because of what past OWNERS have done!
- I can't believe that in 2020 people are still so ignorant about the nature of dogs. Pitbulls are amazing, bad owners create bad dogs.
- There should be zero breed specific rules. All responsibility should be on the owner.
- More casual off lease areas required
- not at this time
- I don't understand the obsession with regulating pit bulls. All dogs can be dangerous if their owners are ignorant jerks. FYI, I don't own 1
- Muzzles, b
- The onus should fall on pet owners of any breed or type - not just those who own pitbulls - to ensure their pet is well behaved.
- I support the idea of a lifetime license for cats and dogs with a one time fee non transferable to another pet for $150
- Nothing really. I did this because I own a pitbull and he's truly sweet and I wouldn't want him muzzled when he isn't dangerous.
- The responsibility should be on the owner and not the animal. It should not be bread specific. Humans are by far the worst animals there are
- If people believe their dogs are reactive or aggressive, and require a leash or muzzle, they maybe shouldn't be allowed at off leash parks
- Removing the specification of pit bulls and involving more consequences focused on the training of owners.
- Love to see heavy fines for cyclists who illegally ride on on sidewalks and go out of their way to scare leashed animals and wildlife.

- Breed discrimination shouldn't be a thing, discriminate against bad owners - no more dogs, high fines
- Use the findings and listen to the people that were involved in phase 1. I've read on social media that you have not been.
- don't agree w/ breed specific bylaws Bully Breeds not only dogs w/strong bites and scary looks. Small dogs bite more. Online license needed
- "I do not believe you can single out or ban a certain breed of dog (Pitbull)
- ""Pitbull lives matter”"
- Breed-specific legislation is a dangerous and unproven slippery slope. The City of Calgary should under no circumstances deem this.
- Licenses should be a one time payment, shared for all pets in house. Charge an additional reasonable fee, per pet added to license instead.
- I disagree with singling out pitbulls. Bylaws should address dangerous or aggressive behavior regardless of a dog's breed
- Don't put restrictions on specific breeds.
- No additional comments
- Do not define a dog by their appearance or physical characteristics. Define them by their behaviour as a result of their owner.
- Provide free pet registration for anyone who takes a pupstart/obedience class. The more we have engage through education the better
- Bylaws discriminating against certain breeds should be terminated.
- Education to adults and children on how to approach pets
- No
- Any breed can be aggressive. My mom was recently bitten by a golden retriever. Breed specific bylaws aren't necessary!
- license fees should be on a sliding scale ie. certified obedience training (would allow a lower $), frequency of nuisances calls (higher $)
- No
- Stop the breed discrimination! So terrible! we have entered a world where we are supposed to be supportive of everyone so why not dogs!
- Do some actual research as to the breed of dogs that attack children, not pitbulls!! Then the breed of dog that attack adults, not pitbull!!
- Provide incentives to owners who take their dogs to obedience classes, such as reduced license fees.
- Breeds aren't an issue, the owners are. Breed specific bylaws are obtuse.
- Do not restrict or punish out bulls. That is so ineffective and will make people fearful of these friendly dogs.
- No

- Exceptions to Lsa should be waived in special circumstances but low income may not be the primary driver. Stop thinking breed, think aggress
- Ever heard the phrase "Dont judge a book by its cover"? Breed specific legislation is a perfect example of judging a dog based on a look.
- No support for any version of BSL. To enact bylaw changes does the panel not have to use evidence based practices? BSL contravenes that.
- I do not agree with having specific bylaws for certain breeds of dogs. It is just feeding into the stigma already about pit bull type breeds
- All peace officers and law enforcement should take annual training to improve their encounters with potentially hostile animals.
- More fenced in dog parks. More parks designated for small dogs ONLY (20 pounds of less, for example). Or even fee-based private parks.
- No
- any dog can harm other animals or people. The person taking care of dogs should be taking lesson on the care and expentations
- The bully ban is succumbing to stereotypes. There are other more effective ways to address dangerous dogs (of all breeds). Do better Calgary
- Breed specific legislation should NOT even be considered! Dogs are not born vicious. You CANNOT label a breed as such and make rules for it!
- Non owners should also be accountable for their actions if they provoke or abuse an animal who will naturally try to defend itself.
- It's time to limit the number of dogs a single dog walker walks at one time. Max 4. I often see Some with 12 dogs. Ridiculous.
- Pit bulls are not the problem. BSL has not worked anywhere. Why do it here.
- Anyone breeding should have to be licensed, pay a fee to keep license, and be regulated help stop mill operations.
- Can't say this enough, it's not a breed problem, it's a handler issue. Please get animal behaviouralists to help with some of thesedecisions
- Irresponsible breeding and over breeding is the major issue. Breeders need to be licensed.
- My idea is to not discriminate against breeds. Thanks.
- Please don't single out the pit bull breed. Any dog can be aggressive.
- Leave the pit bull breed alone. Do NOT discriminate against the pit bull bread!
- Offleash areas should be fenced off. This makes the boundary clear to dog owners and keeps dogs separated from other park users.
- Not all nuisance dogs are pitbulls; not all pitbulls are nuisance dogs!
- It is the breed and the owner
- Do not punish a breed. Punish the owners who raise their dogs to be aggressive. Disgusting! Shame on you City of Calgary for promoting this.

- breed specific legislation does not reduce dog bites/nuisance dogs! please focus on RESPONSIBLE PET OWNERSHIP irregardless of breed
- Focus on RESPONSIBLE PET OWNERSHIP. It is THE OWNER that affects the dog. It does not matter what breed, ANY DOG become aggressive/bite.
- no other ideas
- Breed selective bylaws do nothing but punish and dissolve the animals potential quality of life. It creates an unrealistic phobia and stigma
- No every thing was covered I believe
- BSL is descrimination, punish the bad owner, not the dog. Higher fines to people that don't pick up after their dogs in public, and enforce!
- Animals are not born aggressive, it is all on the owners and how they are trained. Banning curtains breeds isn't going to fix anything!
- Please stop feeding my dog pizza. He doesn't like it. He only eats it to be polite. I taught him very good manners. STOP TAKING ADVANTAG
- Have signs posted at dog parks in regards to Not all dogs play with the same levels of energy some play rougher than others.
- It should not be a requirement for households to license indoor cats.
- I do not understand how someone can claim a support dog and request reduced liscensing but afford care and essentials for pet.
- City-wide review of the location of offleash dog areas with consideration given to environmental impact of roaming dogs and other park users
- The 'pitbull' points addressed in the survey are disturbing. Breed specific legislation is not proven to work - remove those points!
- Singling out pit bull breeds is absolutely ridiculous!!
- Better restrictions on cat owners to spay and neuter.
- I've had bad experiences with German shepherds and huskys, not pitbulls. There should be more responsibility on the owner.
- BSL is not effective,expensive to enforce,and adds extra stress and expense to animal shelters. Liability should be on the owner not the dog
- Breed specific legislation does not work. If you want to improve pet behaviour, then make a specified number of training classes mandatory.
- No
- Signs need to be put up in on-leash parks. Many owners think that any park is the appropriate place to run their dogs offleash. Not true!!!
- Stay out of peoples lives. You are not gods.
- Breedspecific discrimination only escalates things when education/training of PEOPLE is ignored. Say No to pit bull -targeted policies.
- no (:

- aggressive dogs (ones who have shown aggression) would either be put down or muzzled But can do extensive course to be cleared of allegation
- A dogs behaviour is only directly linked to how it is raised. A specific breed has nothing to do with.
- Instead of punishment for letting cats outside, I think there should be some reward/initiative to entice people I.e. lower registration fees
- It's embarrassing that breed-specific legislature is even being considered. It's ineffective at best and punishes the wrong people.
- Punishing an animal based on its breed is equivalent to punishing a person based on their race, which we all know is called racism.
- More enforcement of dogs offleash in parks. Kids should not be afraid to go to the playground or walk to school because of offleash dogs.
- Ostracizing pitbulls just because some people are misinformed and too ignorant to fact check or allow themselves to be educated is appalling
- Cats should be able to roam. Removal of this bylaw.
- Circumstances and canine nature should be considered in bite cases (like if the bitten person was trespassing, threatening the dog, etc)
- I was really shocked to read some folkx have pigeons on purpose. We can't get rid of them.
- No discrimination against "pit bulls.”
- Penalizing '‘pit bull type breeds' for their potential to do harm is dumb. You don't make a strong person wear handcuffs out of fear do you?
- Restricting ownership of a dog breed is a poor way to go about this. Make obedience/socialization classes mandatory or something instead.
- I don't get why pittbulls were singled out. This should apply to all dogs and not be discriminatory. A lot of pit bulls are the nicest dogs.
- Clearer guidelines on what is considered at large or a nuisance. People have their own thresholds and it should not be a matter of opinion
- None
- Charging people with a fine for assaulting a pet. not paying attention, making it fearful, uncomfortable etc that leads the pet biting etc.
- People need to know that not everyone likes dogs While most dogs are good they are animals with instincts and will bite. Cyclists Rock !
- I would like to see the implementation of permits for pet ownership, and especially for breeding. Make mandatory courses.
- By-law officers need to make an effort to look for a dog that they have been told is running loose. Not respond with well its a very big are
- "Bandana idea is terrible. Already hard enough to teach some kids not to approach
- strange dogs. Putting a green/go cue on a dog doesnt help"
- We need more enforcement officers present at the bigger off-leash dog parks.
- Mandatory training programs alongside fines for both animal and owner when offenses occur.

- I think off leash parks are for any dogs. You can not tell people one breed has to be different. That is wrong. The dog can be super Frindl
- Pitbulls should not be banned, that's the most biased and stupid bylaw I have ever heard. Think of how many sweet and innocent dogs will die
- No other ideas
- it's a dog. it's gonna bark. people need to get over it
- If you are going to judge based on of 'strength meaning more possible threat' charge for large vehicles then too. This is silly and a waste
- Teach them not to bark when you say so ... and done
- Stop looking to make breed specific bylaws. Any bylaws proposed for 1 should apply to all breeds. Hold all owners accountable
- No
- Dog breed legislation is antiquated, archaic, and insulting. Punish the owner, not the dog
- All dog owners adopting a pet should require some form of owner and pet together training, subsidized of course.
- Muzzles are safe, humane and the only way to 100% stop a bite. For dogs that are aggressive or reactive i think it's fine, as a big dog Owne
- If training needs to be mandatory for pitbull owners than it should be mandatory for ALL dog owners.
- There should not be breed specific legislation.
- Ability to fine nuisance neighbors that tease pets through a fence or otherwise harass dogs/cats. This is an ignored form of animal abuse.
- No ideas- don't single out specific breeds but addresss the handlers mistakes instead
- Obedience training should be required of all dog owners to obtain a pet license. Onus on owners to train their dogs properly to not be mean
- Increased fine/enforcement/awareness for violating on-leash rules
- Breed specific discrimination should be minimized. I know some pit bulls that are very friendly and well trained.they can be Very lovely dog
- Ruling out only a pitbull when any dog can be aggressive is absolutely absurd. Disgusting to even think of making this into a law.
- .
- "Animal damages another animal or property" property and animal should be separate.
- Ban the deed not the breed!
- Dog owners should not be able to be fined, nor any consequences if an at large cat (or other pet) enters a private property.
- .
- I'm confused about not allowing "outdoor cats"... Shouldn't cats who come back be allowed to live free?
- If the owner/caretaker is able to properly look after (house, feed, clean up after) the animal there's no need to limit types or numbers

- a hotline for insurance companies to access for reports of banned breeds and nuisance animals on a property
- More enforcement for off leash dogs where not allowed.
- "Breed specific legislation will not work.
- Additional training for owners with animal offences should be necessary for additional animals."
- Pitbulls should not be singled out. This shows an ignorant lack of care or understanding of the breed. This may hurt rescue organizations.
- Breed-specific legislation falsely shifts blame to the animal, rather than on irresponsible pet ownership which is the real issue.
- Breed isn't the problem. It's the training. I would love to see opportunities for Calgary to work with trainers to offer affordable programs
- By putting colour coded markers on dogs you are cutting out 1 in 12 men and 1 in 200 women that are colour blind.
- Cost to keep a city record of an animal is ridiculous. Also, fines for spay/neuter cats for roaming and discrimination against bully breeds.
- Dogs must be on leash at all times except in off leash parks, in homes, fenced yards or vehicles
- In a Dog Lover's world it would be considered "RASCIST" to single out "PITBULL" breeds. Section 3 should only pertain to "NUISANCE DOGS".
- There are no bad dogs, only irresponsible pet owners.
- Targeting pit bulls is not ok. I've been bit by a poodle and shih tzu..... but never a pit bull..... it's all about training.
- Do NOT introduce Breed Specific Legislation. Doing so would be a step in the wrong direction.
- Breed specific legislation is a terrible idea. Shame on you for even considering it.
- Please ban pitbulls in Calgary.
- Stop allowing petstores to sell intact rabbits! How bad does the problem have to get before it is stopped.
- none
- I do not agree with labelling a breed and putting restrictions on that breed. It's uneducated humans that raise or put dogs in bad situation
- Stop looking to make breed specific bylaws. Any bylaws proposed for 1 should apply to all breeds. Hold all owners accountable
- Increased restrictions for pet owners found to be incapable of proper animal treatment. Increased fines/removal for leaving pets in vehicles
- It is the owner's responsibility to have knowledge of the dogs breed. Dogs are like children they don't know any better unless they're taught
- Creating breed-specific bylaws is ridiculous and not based on evidence. Please read the research on dog bites and do not single-out breeds.

- All dog owners should have to take training classes when they first get a dog and socializing classes when an owner gets a puppy.
- There is no bylaw for leaving a dog outside the house confined in the backyard if they are left without a leash even for hours
- .
- After a certain amount of infractions from a certain owner , they should be banned from owning pets until going through a rehab program.
- Breed-specific bylaws have zero research behind them. Labeling breeds as "harmful" does nothing but encourage bad ownership.
- Please BAN pit bulls. I don't need idiot pit-mommies unleashing their dogs in a park to attack other dogs and then claim the dog is so sweet
- A higher percentages wolfdog allowed in Calgary and less fees for those dogs
- "Program to have Vets lower cost for low income families , persons.
- And for emergency situations."
- "Unfair to label a breed or to ban certain types.
- Responsibility falls upon the owner of any animal to have it properly trained."
- No
- I dont think Breed discrimination should be allowed in this byla. It comes from uneducated people and encourges ignorance. C
- A $500 fine should be issued to anyone who doesn't license their dog like the Richmond, BC Model and Dangerous dogs owners pay $300 license.
- there should be any breed specific rules. pets that cause harm should be required to attended behavioral training to correct the behavior
- I don't like the negativity towards pit bulls, any dog can be dangerous if improperly trained. They should be innocent until proven guilty
- Treat each animal as an individual instead of lumping them under umbrella terms. Appearance doesnt increase likelihood of bites.
- Breed specific laws are unjust. The government should not punish, but educate. Problem animals should be trained, not euthenized.
- Spay/ neuter surgery should be more accessible to low income households.
- Problem animals should not be taken away from owners. It traumatizes both animal and owner. Education and training should replace punishment
- Mandatory basic training for all new dog owners including new puppies, rescued dogs, adopted dogs, breeder bought dogs, pet store bought dog
- Realize it is the owner of the animal who is the problem and get your head out your rear.
- Nothing to say
- Toys and other items that could facilitate resource guarding should be prohibited in off-leash and on-leash parks. It leads to fights.

- Make bylaw against touching/handling dog/cat without owner's permission! Exceptions for lost pets of course.
- I know you love your dog but that doesn't mean that your neighbour should have to listen to him bark for 15 years.
- "Make a change to question 1 by offering a choice d.) neither.
- That is my choice."
- Allow reasonable roaming for outdoor cats as long as they are spayed or neutered.
- I don't agree with having just one breed has scare breed. If want to control any thing have spray programs and training programs for breed
- Singling out pit bulls is unacceptable... there are plenty of large dog breeds that could do damage if they were dangerous. Why pitbulls?
- A dog should never be deemed dangerous based on the breed they are or their physical characteristics.
- Poor ownership and a lack of training is what causes dog bites/attacks. One breed or an opinion on appearance do not make a dangerous dog
- Public education on dog behaviour, communication and proper approach is what should be focused on. Not coloured bandanas
- Discrimination against pitbulls is completely ridiculous, inappropriate, unfair and EXTREMELY embarrassing coming from our city. Shame.
- Training classes for owners. Maybe discount fees. That way you promote healthy dog ownership.
- bylaw picking up at large cats. This is a significant issue all over the city and cat owners are held to a lesser standard then dog owners
- I do not agree with singling out pit bulls. It's the owner that is the problem not the breed.
- pet owners need a pet owner certificate as proof they know how to look after a dog. Keep dog leashed in City when not in the off-leash area.
- You should be able to report a cat owner who let's their cat run loose on a daily basis. Bylaw fines should be given out immediately!!!!
- people who let their cats run around outside in other peoples yards do not really care about their cats health and should be fined heavily
- no
- Dog daycares and kennels need way more structure and rules in place. Currently it's a free for all in these environments making it dangerous
- Breed specific restrictions are closed minded and fear based. These do not act in the best interest of the owner or animal.
- Problem animals are the result of problem owners, an uneducated or apathetic owner that fails to provide the proper care/training.
- Special circumstance forgiveness for animals triggered by others ie. Do returning barks from others or defending owners when being attacked
- Very against breed specific bylaws

- no
- N/a
- BSL (breed specific legislation) is NOT EFFECTIVE - overwhelming majority of studies done on BSL concur. Regressive and draconian laws.
- Please stop using stigmatizing pit bulls. Especially since your survey admits that there is no evidential reason to single them out.
- Bad owners not bad dogs
- BSL is uneducated and ineffective. Ontario saw an increase in bites of 57% between 2005-2014. Don't discriminate!
- A prohibition against a breed is silly. It is the owner that should be held accountable.
- None
- Very against lower pricing for low income people. If you are struggling to get by, why would you want another mouth to feed?
- Why focus on pitbulls and not all dangerous breeds? Dogs physically capable of permanently injuring or killing a person need extra rules
- YYC has done such an exceptional job at enforcing responsible pet ownership up until now. Bringing BSL to our city is outdated and uneducated
- "1) Fine for allowing urination on someones lawn.
- Trained dogs allowed off-leash public green space areas when no one else is around"
- Outdoor cats continue to be an issue. Fines should be higher for cats repeatedly found outside.
- Do not impose any breed restrictions. It is cruel and Bree has no bearing on dogs behaviour, it or the owner who determines how the dog is
- Na
- Buying multi-year pet licenses, mandatory dog training for ALL breeds (subsidies available for low income), stricter rules on spay/neutering
- I love the Bandana idea to id your dogs right away. Green = friendly, yellow = Caution, Red, stay away
- Stop discriminating and attempting to implement bylaws that are clearly fueled by feelings of extreme prejudice towards a certain breed.
- Implement mandatory pet ownership training or no animal license will be given. Ignorance shouldn't be allowed as an excuse for bad behaviour
- horrible that the pit bull breed is singled out, when Chow Chow, Doberman Pinscher, Dalmatian, Rottweiler, German Shepard have more incident
- Stop discriminating against a dog before they do anything. Their colors and shape dont mean they're bad.
- Stop signalling out pitbulls. Even with the statement that they don't bite more, specifically naming them increases stigmatization.
- Stop using breed specific language. Pitt bulls are not bad dogs.
- No

- Na
- No
- Education of both pet owners and the general public would be far more effective in improving safety in people/dog interactions. Not BSL.
- Instead of fines for loud or aggressive dogs how about a in-depth wellness check for the dog to ensure it has good living conditions
- How about no fee spay and neutering and stricter rules around breeding
- No
- Speaking as a veterinary professional, pitbulls should not have any additional rules or regulations placed on them.
- Stop using breed specific language. Pitt bulls are not bad dogs.
- Breed-specific legislation not only does not work, it harms dog owners whose pit-bull type dogs are perfectly behaved. It's just wrong.
- "For disturbing the peace (i.e. barking)
- If the complaints come from one sole house or person. No fine should occur. Complainer be warned"
- Bad owners not bad breeds.
- Again, only Pitbulls mentioned when rotti's, shephards and dobermans are bigger and stronger? Small aggressive dogs need training too!
- No
- Do not target specific breeds.
- Clamp down - and I mean prevent sale and use of those green "slow down" figures residents place in the roads. Increase fines for those
- V
- Vffffg
- There should be no breed specific legislation
- I do not support any breed specific legislation, owners are the issue not the dog breed.
- do not target specific breeds - adds to stigma. There is nothing wrong with the breed, its all about the owner keep a track record for owner
- "People who abuse or fight-train animals should be jailed.
- No breed-specific legislation. It's on the owner not the breed of dog"
- Breed specific legislation against pitbulls MUST be REMOVED from this engagement. DO BETTER CALGARY! Public education instead.
- Ban vicious breeds
- None at this time.
- Don't be a Montreal. Breed Specific Legislation is disgusting and inaccurate.
- Don't target specific breeds.
- Ban irresponsible people or repeat offenders from owning more animals dont punish a particular breed. Any dog can be bad without training
- Specific breeds should not be targeted. Why is a pitbull's bite dangerous, but larger breeds are fine.

- Dogs have no place in our communities. They pose evident risk to human health and safety, and stunt human development via relationships.
- Please keep the bylaws as is, however enforcement is not present when needed. Having active enforcement will provide effective enforcement.
- The "pit bull" thing is just outrageous. You cannot target one breed backed up with absolutely no evidence. Every bred can bite hard
- Responsible pet ownership education
- No
- No to BSL
- You should not be targeting specific breeds. It especially concerns me when it states "looks like a bit bull."
- BSL is outdated and has been proven not to work because it targets specific breeds instead of irresponsible owners.
- I don't believe that the target should be focused on pit bulls and bully breeds to be banned. It should be covering ALL breeds.
- Pit bulls aren't the issues, the owners are.
- Not sure if this is already available here or not, but offer free socialization classes for young dogs with purchase of a license!
- "Do not target specific breeds."
- Owners should attend mandatory (if possible free) dog owner training."
- Target responsible ownership, regardless of breed or species. Education always works better than legislation.
- Mixed use parks with off-leash areas that are adjacent to children's play areas (eg Rotary Park) should not be permitted.
- Please stop BSL - bad owners not bad breeds.
- Can we really not see how this is just a ridiculous inquiry based on someone's anecdotal experience or preconceived idea of bully breed?
- BSL are the worst, we have bigger problems
- I own a pit bull/black lab mix and she is absolutely lovely. I am worried that these rules would apply to her and are not necessary.
- What does the city feel the need to ban specific breeds? We should be banning repeat offender owners.
- Seriously, pit bulls are not more likely to harm others and it is unfair that they are judged as so.
- Once dogs are allocated "bandannas"; maybe designated areas could be an option as well.
- Breed specific pre- punitive measures do not address the actual issue of anti bite measures. This is antiquated thinking.
- Do not go through with the breed specific legislation!
- I have notice domestic rabbits near LRT stations, parks and communities. We need a way to curb the releasing and spread of domestic rabbits.

- Indoor cats should have no license fee or reduced fee.
- ...
- The fact that Calgary thinks muzzling pitbull breeds is disgusting. It has nothing to do with them. Muzzling a friendly dog is awful.
- Regardless of breed. If an animal is aggressive then owner and animal should be required to attend and pass a behavioural class.
- None
- Do not create breed specific legislation. I've met more aggressive dogs which are nor bully breeds than are.
- Stop taking it out on one breed, it's the owners that make bad dogs. Pit bulls are the happiest nicest dogs.
- Implement, monitor and enforce good living conditions for pets
- If your calling this "Responsible Pet Ownership" then make it about the "ownership" of the pet and not the breed! Same applies for ALL dogs.
- Instead of fining people the amounts listed or even more why not look into helping them find trainers or rehabilitation for their pets.
- Pit bulls were first created to bait bulls. Aka maul bulls to death. That's where the name "pit bull" comes from. They are not nanny dogs.
- Stop trying to increase the amount of government control over our lives. government need to be cut in half at least.
- at large cats of owners who clearly do not follow the law and are repeat offenders of allowing cats outside should have their cats seized.
- Richmond, BC's BSL is a great example of city legislation that keeps everyone safe without restricting ownership.
- Walking dogs off leash on public sidewalks should not be allowed and enforced. This can be dangerous for other animals and people.
- Focusing on pit-bulls is unnecessary and discriminatory. Any focus towards a specific type of animal breed should be categorically removed
- I believe there needs to be more laws and restrictions to the OWNERS of nuisance dogs, and dogs with bite/ attack history.
- It is the owners that are the problem. Have a database that tracts them. I have met more aggressive Chiuwawas than Pit bulls.
- Don't make laws breed specific. I worked in a shelter and was bitten by a chihuahua and a Sheltie..not the big breeds! Small do bite more
- dogs chained outdoors without adequate shelter, food, water or socialization.
- I'm in favour of a pit bull ban, with currently-registered dogs grandfathered but neutered / spayed
- For emotional support animals there should be a clear badge or vest provided by the city if they are expected to pay an additional fee.
- Free Owner Education=bigger impact rather than banning "bully" breeds. Do not allow inexperienced people adopt difficult/abused dogs. :(

- English and French Bulldogs should be exempt given temperament. Owner should produce AKC or CKC purebred paper work to be exempt.
- I disagree with the breed specific bylaws. Pitbulls are not the issue, poor and irresponsible dog ownership is. Training is more important.
- BSL not okay-focus should be on owners and people around them. In the past huskies and german shepards were targeted. Is biased and harmful.
- Rules about children in dog parks. Children have their own parks to play in. My dog gets stressed with children running around and yelling,
- These by-laws are ABSOLUTELY DISGUSTING! I am so disappointed with our city. Stop blaming the dog and start holding the owner accountable!
- Pit bulls deserve no additional attention. Those who raise a dog to be vicious (beyond appropriately protective) deserve major fines.
- law is too lenient on dog owners regarding, attacks. muzzle or one and done law, should be put down
- Dog and cat licenses should be offered as a lifetime license to remove the admin needs
- Lifetime pet licenses for an affordable rate would be a better option than yearly.
- Also, please stop making calgarians register cats and please remove the bylaw that cats have to remain on owners property. It's barbaric!
- Enforcing rules based on BREED in dogs is the same as enforcing rules based on COLOUR in people. Read that again. Now do better.
- What can be done about dog owners allowing dogs to run off leash in areas that are not off leash parks? The owners think it's not a problem.
- I had ranted in my submission about how you guys are singling out bully breeds and how its arrogant. So please read in my submission.
- "Dog behaviour training mandatory.
- A dog in control =called once
- Owners taught to engage with animal prevent incidents
- 4 per dog walker"
- Don't allow retractable long leashes on shared pathways. It is dangerous for people on bikes or skates.
- Pit bulls are not the problem, statistically, smaller dogs tend to bite more frequently. This is too prescriptive.
- I am EXTREMELY disappointed in seeing that pitbulls are being singled out. NEED MORE SPACE TO WRITE MORE
- "Limit dog walkers - 8 dogs on a foot path, off leash on an onleash area totally unacceptable.
- Occurs in Bowmont Park.
- more space please"
- No I don't

- Pitbulls have more fatal attacks than all breeds combined. Different breeds have different traits. Pointers point, labs retrieve, Pits kill.
- What about people/animals that tease my dogs at the fence....we deter our dogs from barking, a neighbor doesn't and gets our dogs going
- Any dog can become a problem without adequate training from irresponsible dog owners. PEOPLE require the training.
- 311 app needs to have an easy way to report nuisance animals - there is no section under "New Request" to enter this.
- "feces picked up and CARRIED with owner. do not leave on trail
- more wildlife/bylaw officers needed!!"
- BSL is very biased and doesn't target the overall problem....its not usually the dogs, but is the owner
- There should be NO restrictions on breed ..the issue is not the dog it's the owner! Any breed can cause severe damage or infection to humans
- The biggest issue is that an enormous number of people ignore on leash rules!
- Pit bulls are not born being aggressive or dangerous, they are not being properly trained if that is the case. This applies to any breed.
- Bylaws should be placed same for ANY and ALL dogs big and small. As any dog can bite or attack, not just one breed of dog.
- "NO vicious dogs allowed within city limits.
- Creates intimidation for people who fear pets, and will restrict human activity."
- It should be mandatory that people pay other's vet bills if their dog bites. Levy incremental fines for it not being paid.
- The BSL language creates bias and shows the ignorance of the team in charge of this project.
- I am disappointed in your breed specific language. Owner education needs to be mandatory to address dog issues.
- being breed specific (pitbulls and staffys) is straight up discrimination. Imagine if you applied that to people? disgusting.
- STOP BULLYING the bully breeds. They are loyal and the sweetest dogs I've ever met. Its the tiny ten pound dogs that are dangerous.
- Bylaws against certain breeds or dogs that "look like certain breeds" are discriminatory and archaic. Provide education not discrimination.
- I have heard of DNA kits being used in condo complexes for identifying ownership of dog feces and implementing fines for not picking up.
- I am whilst against singling out any breed. It is not the breed that causes these issues it's the owner.
- "Emotional support" animals need to be verified by a professional and strictly regulated.
- Teach your kids to stop petting a strangers dogs. You would teach your kids to not approach strangers, teach them the same for dogs.
- I highly disagree with the breed specific bylaws. You will never know what animal will bite you! It's all about how they are trained!

- Breed specific laws have no place. Focus should be on owners learning and all nuisance dogs in general.
- Breed specific laws are not okay. Dogs act as they are trained. Small dogs are aggressive and bite more, but don't get trouble due to size.
- No
- There should be a more intensive vetting process for potential dog/cats far too often it's the owner that is the problem.
- I just want to stress that condemning certain breeds is ignorant, bias and so harmful. Dogs are not the problem, people are.
- Mandatory micro chipping for pets in the Calgary Area to reunite pets with their owners quicker. Yearly reminder to update contact info
- Do not target specific breeds. Humans should be held responsible for their dogs. Make training mandatory for all dog breeds.
- I think all LARGE breed dogs should be required to have certification of behavioral training. Bully breeds should be banned from Calgary
- No bylaws should ever be breed specific. The hateful rhetoric against bully breeds is getting so old. Responsible pet ownership over BSL.
- Pitbull and bully breeds are not the problem and people need to figure that out!! It's how you train your dog not the breed.
- Idk
- BSL is a joke and the fact that this is supposed to be about pet ownership not pets I'm disappointed in the city bringing this forward
- No
- No
- None
- I find it disgusting that people walk their dogs in other people's yard and let them use them as toilets, and don't pick up after their dogs.
- no
- Need to keep track of owners. If one owner has had multiple dogs that bite or are at large multiple times, restrictions on ownership needed
- Spreading awareness of dog safety for children (and adults) through a public campaign.
- Breed specific legislation is wrong. Monitor owner issues, not breed specific
- No ideas
- Fine for cats roaming from properties that are not neutered/spayed. Disagree with breed specific bylaws as it is irresponsible pet ownership
- Breed specific bylaws are ridiculous. Focus should be on training and responsible pet ownership.
- I am appalled at the suggestion of breed specific bylaws. There are no bad dogs, just bad dog owners.

- Breed bias is unacceptable. If one breed is to be muzzled in public, all breeds must be muzzled in public. Owners are the real issue.
- NOT ALL pit bulls are bad. It's all in how they are raised and should fall back onto the owner not the dog.
- N/A
- Upgrade off-leash dog park gates - each entrance with two doors instead of one. Change or tighten door latches i've seen dogs open them
- Owners need to take responsibility for their dogs actions. It's not always the dogs fault or it's breed.
- Don't discriminate against pit bulls, if raised by good people they are great dogs! This is so wrong! Like labeling indigenous as drunks
- nothing
- BSL is straight up dog racism. There's no need for the fear / hateful prejudice.. it's 100% on the owner to provide proper training and care
- No making money off of pets!! No license fee no restrictions on amount! Make humans be trained and tested before allowed so they be responsi
- No.
- Singling out breeds does not solve any problems. Hold the owners accountable, not the animal.
- I disagree with breed specific by-laws. The focus should be on the owners and the people around said animal.
- None.
- I unfortunately have to agree with BSL. I've met different yet aggressive pit bulls who actually had decent owners. I didn't feel very safe.
- Nothing. Watch your wording. It should not be responsible for owners but irresponsible as well.
- I think the bylaw related to cats specifically "Remain on the owner's property." is ridiculous - cats are extremely useful in pest control
- Education and communication is key. Hire more officers and volunteers to implement changes and blitzes where problems exist
- BSL IS NOT OKAY!
- Bad pet owners is a problem. There should be no focus on breeds. With a good owner, pit bulls are gentle breeds.
- Mandatory harness on dogs (for their safety) when exercising them via a bike. Fines when only a collar is used.
- .
- You only addressed licensing for special individuals ie low income. How about a reduced cost for people who have multiple pets?
- I 100% disagree with breed specific bylaws. Pet owners should make sure their dogs are trained well. If you can't handle a dog, dont get one
- You shouldn't need a permit to build a catio, cat owners that build catios are being responsible by ensuring their cats are safe

- I would support doggy do-do bags being available at all off leash and walkways. This is the case in Canmore and most BC municipalities.
- PLEASE do not bring in BSL. It is counterproductive and unnecessary. Pitties are the sweetest dogs. I have more park problems w/ retrievers
- You need to focus less on "bully" breeds and more on the ALL breeds. Small dogs are just as at fault for bites/attacks/threats.
- Breeds specific laws don't work. Needs to be all encompassing, or not at all. Its about the owner, not the dog.
- Do not implement breed-specific legislation. If anything, promote free or lower-cost training and education for all dogs.
- Focus on the individual animals that have the issue- don't target a specific breed. That narrow-minded thinking is harmful to everyone.
- No ideas
- Leaving an animal in a hot car is $100, pee in public is $300, an animal life is worth a lot more than urine. Add another zero please.
- Don't discriminate against dogs. People are usually the problem. Some rehabilitated dogs can't handle other people or animals approaching them
- The whole thing is being done backwards. The issue is education, and shouldn't be about restriction
- BSL is not the answer. It is the owner's fault.
- I think toys at off-leash parks should be reviewed. An alternative would be allotted parks that allow toys.
- Breed specific bylaws are terrible. Irresponsible dog owners are the problem, not specific breeds.
- Owner training for owning pets. Owners should know the signs a dog is giving off to stop an incident before it ever occurs.
- Having pet owners restricted to a certain quarter of the city, and permits to have them leave that quarter for work, play, or any reason.
- I do not believe the Pitbull breed is an issue. What is the issue is the owner and how they train and treat their animal.
- I disagree with the specific breeds bylaw, certain breeds should not be targeted
- No
- I disagree with the breed specific bylaw! No pitbull is at fault for how their owner trains them.
- I find the pigeon questions to be misleading. Having a coop for let's say 10 birds does not guarantee 10 birds on the property.
- Na
- BSL should not be a focus. Aggression is learned from human induced trauma. Not inherently from one breed. Humans should be held accountable
- A dog attacking or biting someone is not its fault, the fault should be put on the owner.
- Education of pet owners of acceptable behaviours/expectations within city limits is necessary to help coexist with neighbours.

- Off Leash parks are parks for dogs, not small children. Limit access to off leash parks to those 10 years and older.
- no
- I don't agree with breed specific bylaw. No dog breed specifically pit bulls are born bad it's the irresponsible pet owners. Training is key
- TNR programs (trap, neuter, return) are proven to be the most effective method of controlling feral cat populations. Please support TNR!
- Legislation regarding animals should be breed neutral. The issue is not the breed. Do your research YYC.
- how many people and animals have to suffer before we admit that pitbulls are NOT FURRY PETS. get real people! their fighting dogs!!!!
- I disagree with the breed specific bylaw. The breed of animal is not the issue and never has been. It is the care and training of the owner.
- Take into consideration feedback from online comments for #3; The presumed bias on pitbulls is appalling - also im not a PB owner
- Pitbulls should NOT be singled out and forced to wear a muzzle or be subject to higher fees. Training is what matters, not the breed.
- lets be careful people. Racism applies to people NOT animals! There are unfortunately some breeds not compatible to living in cities
- Breed specific laws are the same as racism. Looks do not determine temperament. Training is key
- I think breed specific legislation should not be included in this discussion. It's discriminatory and unfair to responsible pet owners.
- Do not create breed specific bylaws. Chihuahua's are more aggressive and dangerous than any pit bull I've ever met.
- Not allowing animals in parks where there are schools. People are not responsible to pick up their dog waste and control off leach dogs
- I find it ridiculous and insulting to hear this great city go after pit bulls. Instead of going after the breed, go after the owner!
- No breed-specific bylaws. This goes against the most current research around dog behaviour. Trust the experts!
- Breed specific legislations do not solve the problems. Training/ educating owners to encourage and support responsible pet ownership is key.
- Stop blaming pitbull Its not breed specific. Shows how ignorant City of Calgary is to have this in 2020 in a survey Im disgusted in our city
- Please stop allowing people to own too many cats, more than three cats is too many for any household.
- Please never punish the pit bull always punish the OWNER. Yes of course they can do more damage, training is number one!
- I do not support breed specific bylaws. I do not believe fines discourage unwanted behaviours from pet owners.

- Are pigeons tag like any other animal? I have a couple that had made my house a home, but I think they escape from their lofts need by.
- Pitbull specific legislation is ineffective - there should be more focus on training "nuisance" animals
- NO BREED SPECIFIC BYLAWS/LIMITATION OF OWNERSHIP. Issue is the owners. STOP BLAMING THE BREED .
- Breed specific regulations are not fair and specific breeds should not have stricter regulations simply because of the breed.
- Breed specific bans have not worked in any jurisdiction that has implemented one. Its insane to think that Calgary would support one.
- One dog should not be treated different than another. Also before handing out fine, look at the why first? Is it vicious or did it protect.
- Pit breeds are not the problem. Dogs make mistakes too. Poor ownership is most often the problem.
- No.
- Not so much of an idea, but pit bulls are not necessarily the most aggressive breed. German shepherds are more aggressive than Pit bulls.
- Do not implement BSL. Our dog has been attacked by multiple little dogs, but never by a pitbull. Implement the bandana system, do not muzzle
- Ban pit bulls.
- "Pitbull" regulations need to be directed to all dog breeds sized medium (25-50 lbs) to large (50-100 lbs) instead.
- Hold people responsible for pet ownership. Stop being selfish, pick up animals waste, don't leave it so others can walk on it or fall on it,
- 7% of all breeds are Pit Bulls.They have KILLED more humans than any breed,most of them children.IT IS THE BREED!
- There is no evidence that Breed Specific Laws have any benefit, prejudice based on appearance is unethical in humans as it is in pets.
- By law officers need to give cat owners warnings or tickets if they allow their cats to run free and bother neighbours.
- These breed specific bylaws are ridiculous. Pitbulls are the nicest dogs you will come across. Any problems with them comes from the owner.
- Any dog can bite/be a nuisance. It's time to end breed specific legislation worldwide. Increase education and owner accountability! #endBSL
- There are too many people ho have large dogs in small apartments. They get bored and bark all day.
- Muzzling friendly dogs and restricting their access to properly socialize with other animals and people will create problematic dogs. NO BSL
- There is absolutely no way that you will ever get ahead by enforcing BSL. Calgary is a success. Don't target innocent families/dogs.
- More education for those with infractions, like cats wandering free

- Provide evidence and rationale for changes to pitbull, because without it seems misleading to the community, Disgusting "leadership"
- Calgary - do not add to the stigma around "pit bull" breeds. This is an outdated and expired view point. Be better, say no to BSL!!!
- n/a
- Pitbulls are not the issue. When trained properly they are the biggest sweetest babies out there. They dont need muzzles.
- No breed specific bylaws! It's the people at fault not the dogs or cats or other animals. Also definitely no endangered or wild animal pets!
- Disagree with the BSL in this. It is very biased, and discriminatory. Mentioned a lot of myths with no evidence backing it up. Ex: Bite Strength
- I used to be a dog groomer, been bit by border collies, huskies, chihuahuas, basically all terrier breeds. But never any "pit bull" breed...
- Enforcement of the current bylaw would be more effective than adding BSL. BSL does not work, its sad to see the city even considering this.
- No breed-specific bylaws! Hold humans accountable for improper training and pet ownership.
- Breed is very rarely the problem. Lack of owner training/education to properly control/train their pets is the main problem.
- Please please please do not introduce breed specific legislation. Bad dogs can be any breed and it's the owners who should face consequences
- We lost a beautiful dog due to his being tormented daily by people walking along the pathway beside his yard, and also workmen nearby.
- BSL legislation is not the answer! More focus should be on training and responsible pet ownership for ALL BREEDS.
- Mandatory training with approved dog trainers at owners expense vs euthanization. (help with cost for low income individuals or families)
- No
- I do not agree with breed specific bylaws. There are good and bad dogs in all breeds
- "High fines for IRRESPONSIBLE owners, disallowed owning pets, jail time if they disobey.
- BULLY breeds are NOT the problem PEOPLE ARE!!!!!"
- BSL is deeply troubling, especially when the breed definition has a vague catch-all for "physical appearance" which is highly subjective.
- BSL is essentially canine bigotry. Not only is BSL unjust, it just doesn't work. Anywhere. And the stats prove it. Look it up.
- NO breed specific by-laws
- Legalized discrimination, much? BSL laws are based on nothing more than misconceptions, misinformation and fear.
- I think there need to be equivalent fines for parents who allow their kids to run up to an unknown dog or chase a dog

- There's No Evidence That Banning Breeds has Any Impact on Dog Bites. Period.
- I think big dogs and small dogs should have the same penalty as I find small dogs bite more than the big dogs
- No pets allowed in school areas, playgrounds, green spaces, soccer fields, or ball diamonds. Dogs roam around while people participate.
- DO NOT discriminate against pit bull breeds. BSL is not okay. Smaller dogs are much more aggressive and bit more often than big dog breeds.
- License fee should be abolished. Registering with the city is completely reasonable, and should happen, paying to own an animal is BS
- Breed specific legislation is not appropriate to add to our bylaw, we need to focus on education and training - owners bystanders and dogs.
- More education about responsible off-leash behaviors for people and dogs.
- Veterinarians and animal professionals MUST be involved. One specific breed is not causing these issues, uneducated/abusive owners are.
- "Pit bulls" rank fourth highest of the 122 breeds tested for temperament. Better than collies, golden retrievers, and beagles.
- Please avoid breed specific legislation.
- I think all your pitbull by laws are completely awful and unfair to all of us and pitbull like dogs.
- Focus on owner behaviours, not the pets. Require education instead of big fines.
- No
- Please do not enforce BSL. Responsible owners and innocent dogs get punished. Please go after irresponsible owners and rid them of owning
- All dogs have the potential to do harm, don't be breed specific.
- Ban All pit bull breeds. This is a city and the needs of the city need to be put ahead of personal wants.
- I like Red Deer's fees. Owning an animal is a financial commitment. Either train your dog well or don't have one.
- Breed specific bylaws are horrible. It is the owner not the dog that causes the problem. Encourage better training!
- The large breed law is complete BS! Husband has been attacked by spaniels and poodles multiple times, never by our friends pitty or mastiffs
- Breed specific laws are why people associate problems with these breeds. It is bad owners taking advantage not the dog
- Na
- I'd much rather the city invested money in behaviour training, and in adoption campaigns rather than to satisfy a bunch of Karen's.
- My husband has been attacked several times by golden/ labs. We have never had an issue with Large head breeds
- It is continued ignorance or stupidity that is pushing the breed specific laws.

- BSL is not okay. Discriminating against breeds of dogs does not make the city safer.
- Magpie control? Collectively, they're nothing but a sqawking garbage-eating nuisance, and this is coming from an orin-thusiast.
- BSL create environments of hate which get taken out on the dog! Stop this now! Areas where these have been implemented has not helped.
- Breed discrimination is wrong. Targeting breeds and banning them will bring shame to this city. We can do better. We know better.
- Why are you trying to make money off people owning pets? They already pay a lot of money early for vet check ups. Hopefully training.
- My dog has been attacked by poodles and Labs at the dog park but never once a pit bull or bull dog breed. Muzzling creates hate
- Let us have chickens!!!!
- Leave the pitbulls alone! No dog is worst then the little ones! Yes it happens. But really we should be looking at the owners. I
- "How many chickens per address??
- Next time describe your idea of nuisance is it case by case or all of one breed"
- Remove the breed specific language. It's unnecessary and it perpetuates a stigma that often ends in harm coming to these dogs!
- Completely disagree with breed specific bylaws (i.e. bully breeds, pit bulls, etc.) The responsibility lies with the owner, not with the dog
- Breed specific laws are unnecessary. It encourages fear and biases towards breeds when the problem is generally the owner not the dog.
- don't believe the fine should be different for children bitten but I do believe the guardian of the child should be fined as well
- There should not be breed specific laws but more accessible and affordable training for all breeds as it is the handlers responsibility
- Plenty of dogs I've encountered that have a vicious temperament that aren't pit bulls. Irresponsible owners are the issue.
- Do not focus on any specific breed. This is not a breed issue.
- Please do not make breed specific bylaws.
- Roaming cats should be handled with neuter and release programs. They don't cause problems as long as they're not breeding.
- Yes please do not force dogs to be muzzled.
- I disagree with breed specific laws. Owners should be held more accountable for their pets behaviour, the breed should not be punished.
- There should be no laws that target certain breeds of animals. It is up to the owner to care for and train their animals.
- OWNERS identified with nuisance dogs should be required to go to therapy and take training courses. Dogs are like children - vulnerable.

- Regulate breeding w/permit! No hobby breeders should be allowed. All dogs/cats should be spayed or neutered unless for breeding
- We live near a park that is used for recreation - soccer, baseball, etc. and includes a playground. No dogs should be allowed.
- I disagree with the breed specific bylaws. Pitbulls are not the issue, poor and irresponsible dog ownership is. Training is more important.
- Breed specific legislation is an archaic level of thinking. More focus need to be on educating pet owners and not prejudice towards a breed.
- Do NOT restrict breeds. Get the pit-bull specific restrictions out of the discussion. It muddies the water. The term nuisance is enough.
- Creating a pitbull specific category of laws further promotes the outdated stigma of the breed, We need to talk training and resp. ownership
- Euthanize stray/at large animals. Penalties need to increase for both animals AND owners. Only increased spending should be enforcement!
- I wish we could enforce obedience training for everyone considering owning a dog, the more powerful dog the more training required.
- Aggression is not breed specific. Bylaws that deal with aggressive dog behaviour should be consistent for all breeds.
- Eliminate BSL. It is discriminatory, antiquated, ineffective and proliferates the inaccurate villainized stigma of bully breeds!
- I have serious reservations on who made this survey and their qualifications. Most of the questions are leading and vague, very poorly done.
- I disagree with the breed specific legislation. The owner is responsible and it's biased to ban an entire breed of dog.
- Post suggestions for how to address complaints peacefully with pet owners before having to involve animal bylaw control officers.
- A city wide ban on Pitbulls. Once they attack, they cause so much damage to others and are incredibly hard to stop compared to other breeds
- how about not banning an entire dog breed due incidents that owners should be blamed for not the dog. city of calgary needs to analyze thing
- Focus on educating owners and less on fines and bylaws. Stop trying to regulate every aspect of pet ownership
- N/a
- no
- It should not be legal to place a bag of feces to pick up later (i.e.: lovely bags dotting the path like ugly flowers!!)
- I think cats should be on leash if they're outside unless being supervised on the owners property.
- Offer more support or links for support to help low income people take care of their animals.
- Do not ban pitbull type dogs you morons
- No

- If dogs were humans, BSL would be a racism issue. Training is important with every breed. Pitbulls are not the issue, owners are.
- There needs to be a place for dogs just dogs. No all off leash but domethrough out the city so dogs can be dogs
- I am actually disappointed that the city has brought up regulations on different breeds such as pit bulls.
- I dont like how you target the bully bread In this survey you make it sound like the bully bread are the only one with the problem
- Breed is not the issue, irresponsible dog ownership is. Owners should be fined and the dogs should be rehomed in a stable home and trained.
- More regulations on breeders.
- No I do not
- BSL IS NOT OKAY. You should be ashamed. As a pitbull owner in Alberta, I will never visit calgary if this happens.
- "Powerful dogs should need paperwork. Like a gun owner.
- Then no crappy people turn sweet dogs to killers."
- Dogs sufferer from mental health problems too.. and I feel that bylaws for barking shouldn't be a thing. As that's how they communicate
- OWNERS ARE TO BLAME FOR THE DOGS BEHAVIOUR!! If you are gonna label pits. Label all dogs the same.
- Mandatory large breed dog classes for first time large breed owners to take to understand large breed dogs. Humans need to be educated.
- DONT BULLY THE BREED
- I wholeheartedly disagree with breed specific legislation. A dog's temperament is dependent on the OWNER. Not the breed. Simple as that.
- People letting their cats roam is an extreme nuisance. Please educate the public. Even a couple billboards.
- I Believe a system should be in place for problem dog owners Who lack the Ability or the wheel to train and care for their dogs in a proper
- Training is the main issue here! Dachshunds and chihuahuas remain as some of the most aggressive breeds but no one talks about BSL for them.
- The issue with increasing fines for bad on her behaviour is that many owners counter won't pay them. The city needs to have more ability to.
- Fine and sentence owners with dogs chained outdoors without proper shelter, food, water and in extreme temperatures. Remove dogs and rehome them.
- First we blamed the Rottweilers, Dobermans and shepherd's and now its the pits. BSL is not okay, ALL dogs should require obedience training
- nuisance dogs should not include running at large, sometimes a dog leaves the property momentarily but is still under control at all times.

- BSL is not effective and is also extremely discriminatory. I would never support such bylaws here in Calgary.
- I think the city should have a dog park specifically for small breeds only. This way small breed dog owners feel more safe.
- Stop being breedist. No breed is more aggressive than the other. If a pet were to become aggressive take a look at their environment
- Pets should either come with a mandatory training or in order to own a pet, you have to pass a pet ownership course. Bad owners not bad pets
- Big fan of the colour indicator for different dogs behaviours. This, along with keeping dogs leashed in on-leash areas would be so helpful!
- How about lifetime licensing? seems like a cash grab to me. Then again it is the CoC. Gotta blow as much on art as possible...
- The enforcement of these new bylaws should not be able to be abused by disgruntled neighbours.
- A lot of aggressive animals in Calgary, very lax bylaws here.
- Pit bulls aren't the issue!!! Owners are! It's so unfair.
- I disagree with BSL. Pitbulls are not the problem. Investing in more affordable training for dog owners would be a better direction.
- Entitlement is what I feel pet owners have. They let their dogs off leash, pretend they don't see them poo and just keep walking.
- If you believe it's all how they are raised/trained, read first hand accounts of victims and their families, who treated the dog as family.
- I do have a dog that is a pit bull and she has been raised properly if she bit or attacked unprovoked, 0 hesitation to be put down
- Just because a dog has the ability to do some thing doesn't mean they will, just like humans. BSL is not the right move.
- Breed-specific laws are abhorrent. They are NOT dangerous animals. Untrained animals are. If they require training EVERY breed should also.
- The focus needs to be on the animal owner having responsibility for the treatment and care of their pets. I am against euthanasia.
- Breed specific is not the answer - the owner should be held responsible regardless of the breed. It is the owners responsibility
- breed-specific restrictions assumes every animal is the same. Don't punish the dog, punish the owner. Get the dog training.
- No
- Make training more financially accessible so all dog owners are able to train their dogs properly (no matter what breed.)
- Not discriminating against specific breeds when the science doesn't support it. Small bites can be just as bad. Pitbulls are good
- I think the city needs to be very careful when make decisions based on emotion. Do your due diligence prior to bylaw changes.

- BSL does not work. Dog behavior is not based on the breed
- There should be no breed specific bylaws. There are no bad dogs, only bad owners.
- BSL does not work, it does not make an area safer. It wastes money and dogs are more often than not mislabeled as a bully breed!
- I've never been so embarrassed to be a Calgarian. BSL is Not a solution it is a problem. There are many powerful large breeds out there.
- Breed-specific legislation is not an acceptable proposal. This will unfairly target many well-behaved dogs. Training is what matters.
- A rule regarding feces on private property .
- I am not in favor of banning pit bulls, focus on training.
- To ban a specific breed is an uneducated proposal. In this day and age are we seriously still discriminating based solely on appearance? Sad
- Treating pitbulls differently doesn't make sense. There are other breeds with similar bite strengths that don't face the same scrutiny.
- Do not implement breed specific regulations. There is NO supporting evidence indicating that they have stronger bites than same sized dogs
- I think that off leash dogs should also be penalized as harrassing wildlife as I have seen them chase deer, squirrels and birds
- NO BSL! Bad owners cause problems, not bad dogs!! Do not penalize 'Pit-Bull' type dogs!!!!
- We don't place restrictions on people based on their genetics and we shouldn't do it to dogs either, it's discriminatory!
- What about the parents who don't teach their kids to ask before petting a dog. These kids need to know not all dogs are friendly!
- No
- I do not agree with the breed specific bylaws. Do not punish the animal for the owners neglect, laziness, and lack of responsibility.
- Visible ID for service dogs and emotional support animals with a description of rights. People seem to think think are the same thing
- No
- BSL shows bias of chief bylaw officer. Calgary animal bylaw used to be progressive but now going backward.Full of misinformation on staffies
- No
- If we can focus on education on other matters, why levy large fines against dog owners whose dog slips up? Less fines, more training!
- All dogs over 1yr dog owners must provide proof from a reputable trainer or training facility to get license. BSL is not the answer!!
- People who have never been around a bully breed have absolutely no right to have input here. If they knew any they'd know better than this.

- Please stop the discrimination against bully breeds. My children have learnt so much on how to care for such breeds. Don't stop the progress
- [Personal information removed] government is supposed to be non discriminatory. These breed specific laws are no good. It's a solid no for my support
- BSL is antiquated, uneducated, and fear based. We are a city that doesn't support discrimination in any form!
- Focusing on a breed is the wrong approach, period! The by-law needs to focus on owner education and enforcement on cat owners.
- Higher fine for animals at large that are not spayed or neutered
- It's about the owners. Also, there is a problem with unjustified complaints from constantly complaining neighbours, no defence from this!!!
- Mandate that dog socialization and obedience training is required from a City accredited/listed training business as part of licensing.
- Fines for adults who bring small children to off leash parks and are allowed to run at any dog they aren't familiar with.
- Not in support of breed specific laws. Pit bull families should not be split up because of a 1 pit bull per household bylaw.
- no i do not
- Pit bulls are not the problem, bad owners are. Offer government funded obedience training or courses for inexperienced dog owners.
- lifetime licensing.
- Don't single out specific dog breeds if there is no quantitative evidence they are more dangerous. Chihuahuas bite more people!
- Dogs bite or attack only when they are threatened. Investigate the actions of the "victim" before taking action against the dog or owner.
- It is the owners that encourage or discourage a dog's behavior, not the breed.
- I would like to see a restriction for cats... who are allowed to roam the neighborhood and poo in food gardens and kill birds!!!!!!
- Pit bulls and other large breeds are not the problem, the owners are. The city should be focused on the owner's abilities and awareness.
- Breed Specific by-laws should not be a thing. Every incident should be dealt with based on each situation. Not based on breed.
- More off leash parks. Something with trails. Nose hill is good but the signage is not clear. All of nose hill should be off leash.
- It is very important to me that owners keep their pet on a leash if it is not an off leash designated area.
- excessive barking from a neighboring property should be more easily dealt with. I should not have to make the same complaint 3 times.
- We don't need dangerous animals to be more heavily fined or monitored. They need to be taken away and euthanized.

- Please alter the term "nuisance dog" and separate it into different questions. I.e would you support muzzling a noisy dog in a dog park.
- Don't [removed] mark breed that "Look” like pitbulls as dangerous. What a load of [removed]
- Some breeds are more dangerous than others. It is not discrimination to take preventative measures against dangerous dog breeds.
- Solutions don't come from creating more problems. BSL is archaic like prejudice. It divides communities, fosters unfounded fear and loathing
- Biases towards Dogs should not exist. Start teaching the little yappers how to be around children/adults AND medium/large dogs.
- Way to much attention to pitbulls! Quit picking on the breed! Any dog can bite and kill!
- Increased number of off leash areas
- I thought Calgary was a more progressive and thoughtful city than one that targets specific breeds. It's disappointing to see.
- I completely disagree with how this bylaw will discriminate towards one breed. I think any specific breeds should be taken out of the bylaw.
- Who started this breed specific talk? Is this 2020 or 1980s? Calgary is better than this.. we have greater issues to worry about in our city
- No
- Breed Specific bylaws and regulations are so misguided. If it's suggested that certain breed owners have training, all owners should!
- Owners should not use extends leashes, they have not control over their pet whether is animal is large or small. They should be banded.
- N/a
- Why won't bylaw follow up if you know who is letting their pet roam at large? Why do we have to trap the animal risking catching skunks etc?
- It is disappointing that Pitbulls/Staffys are singled out. There is no evidence to show they are the dogs that attack/bite more than others.
- Bylaws and increased fines against certain breeds is discriminatory. This shouldn't be a conversation in 2020 anymore.
- The animal at large fee should be different from cat to dog, cats don't pose much of a risk to public. Dog should stay at $100, cats $30
- It would be nice to see more educational programs and resources accessible to all public about pet ownership and interaction.
- none
- "End licensing fees.
- End persecution of dogs defending home property: as bounded by nearest street just like grass mowing and weed control"
- Stop Targeting "Pit-Bulls" Put more ownus on the owners.

- I firmly believe that it's about the owner, not the breed. Therefore, the consequences should fall on the human, not the pet.
- Something needs to be re people who do not control their dogs barking.
- Strongly against (and disgusted you'd try) singling out any breed. Licensing should be a pay once thing with yearly confirmation of life
- "Please don't discriminate on breed of dogs. Any breed can bite.
- Also please educate children not to approach strange dogs."
- So called "pit bulls" can be any short haired mutt with a broad snout. Will you be comfortable licensing your dog if targeted by appearance?
- There needs to be more responsibility put on the owners and not breed discrimination as all breeds can be dangerous with wrong owners
- no
- Congratulation on being ignorant lemmings!
- I'm not really sure owners have to be held accountable and mind their animals
- Not really
- None
- Roaming cats need to be addressed. I've scooped too much out of my gardens. They are not litter boxes! My hard work and money is being ruined
- I think animal owner licenses need to be revoked if someone puts an animal up for adoption without a valid reason
- Escalating fines, linked to dog's tattoo id, for barking after 10pm or before 8am, not picking up poop and not having a dog on a leash.
- It's not okay to punish dog breeds for owners IE pit bulls, there need to be better measures in relation to the dog theft in Calgary
- Everything should be based on a case-to-case scenario. I've met some nasty Chihuahuas but they don't get singled out, not should pitbulls!
- Any dog can be vicious it shouldn't be specific breeds not all pit bulls are vicious
- "no BSL
- More laws surrounding puppy mills and home breeding."
- Discriminatory practices based on breed are ignorant. Punish bad owners not breeds! I've seen more bad small dogs than pitbulls.
- No
- To discriminate against a breed and any dog that may resemble a certain breed is ridiculous.
- Do something with owners that do NOT pick up after their dogs, dna testing and a big fine, owners on green belt just use it as their backyard
- Bylaws should not be singling out specific breeds .
- I do not support breed specific legislation. Dog training certification before obtaining a dog licence should be required.
- No BSL, just reasonable, fair, enforceable laws

- Breed specific bylaws are unacceptable. It fails to address irresponsible owners who raise dogs for violent qualities or don't train at all.
 - Don't discriminate against certain dog breeds. Negative consequences should be against an owner, not the dog.
 - Along with a fine for Aggression And/or biting both dog and owner would attend mandatory behavioural classes before being titled Aggressiv
 - Pitbulls are not the issue, bad owners are the issue. You said it yourself "pitbulls don't account for more dog bites than any other breed."
 - Please provide a dog park in the area in the south west quadrant past canyon meadows for the newer and growing communities.
 - na
 - It's not the breed, it's how they are trained. Proper pet ownership is KEY - no mater what kind of pet you have; bird, cat, dog, hen?
 - All pit-bulls should not be discriminated against as a nuisance w/o incident. Shame on the city for perpetuating fear against this breed.
 - Would have to think about it more
 - I do not support BSL at all.
 - BREED SPECIFIC BANNING IS GARBAGE. If anything, dog owners should have to have a license to own a dog. Pitbulls love kids!
 - There needs to be significantly less emphasis on the behaviour of pets and instead a stronger emphasis on pet owners and their responsibilities
 - "Have more off leash parks accessible to water.
- Increase number of off-leash parks"
 - Make group dog training at dogs parks accessible and frequent so people learn how to properly handle their animals.
 - Don't solo out pit bulls. Its how the dog is raised and the owner
 - Too focused on BSL. No accountability for people who tease/taunt animals through fences creating issues while they are on their own property
 - Look into options that aren't based in fear and misinformation
 - Please consider lot sizes when enacting these bylaws. Some subdivision lots are too small for 2 animals.
 - I do not agree with breed specific legislation. It is the owners responsibility to train and manage their animal!
 - Remove all "pit bull" specific and targetted policies and language. It is based on false narratives and prejudice.
 - I believe punishing a breed of dog is wrong. The onus is on the pet owner to ensure that his/her pet is well behaved and acts accordingly.

- No ideas
- The city could encourage more areas for training and behaviour guidance options. Basing decisions based on breed alone are discriminating.
- my pitbulls are my children and help me with my PTSD. Do not touch my babies. Ban bad owners not dogs
- How about going after people who take their dogs for a walk on school yards or a skate park located beside a school yard.
- Breed specific bylaws are ridiculous. I have met more aggressive "safe breeds" than pit bulls.
- Dogs should not be allowed in city river systems....our drinking water...
- I highly disagree that "pit bull" breeds should be singled out. The dogs never are the issue - it is the irresponsible owners
- N/A
- Not to make bylaws specified towards Bully breeds!!!!
- There should be a regulation on approaching a dog without permission. Please do not come up to me and my dog screaming "puppy".
- There should be a one time license fee. Yay for color coded engagement bandannas. Educate kids about appropriate animal interaction.
- Do not discriminate against pit bulls I cannot stress this enough!
- Behavioural and training program and test for ownership should be required with licencing a pet
- No
- Breed specific legislation is nonsense. Obedience training should also be mandatory for owners to teach them good habits
- I do NOT agree with breed specific controls
- There are no bad dogs, only bad owners. Do no introduce breed specific bylaws.
- It makes zero sense to have breed specific legislations, if its already been statistically proven that they don't work. Use your heads.
- it appears that our bylaws are as good only as the peper they arewritten on. my area is littered with dog feces, especially in winter.
- I think that the owners are the stem of dogs with behavioural issues and should be required to attend training. Classes with the dog
- RESPONSIBLE breeders should definitely protected. The public should be taught what "backyard breeders" and good breeders are.
- What happens to the man/lady/child that steals from my property or pulls my dogs tail then gets bit?....
- No specific breeds. It is the owner that creates dogs or cats to be unfriendly. Especially Pitbulls! Stop the stigma!
- Is updating the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw during a pandemic the best use of staff time?
- I believe the privilege of owning a dog should be revoked for anyone with pet behaviour issues until they complete education courses.

- If pets are not allowed around playgrounds and schools then make a law that no kids are allowed in dog parks too. How is that fair???
- I do not think it is fair to single out Pitbulls as a breed, and only single out animals that have proven to be a nuisance or high risk.
- If a dog has not committed any wrong acts, it should say something about the owner. The way a dog is raised says more than about the breed.
- BSL is NEVER a good way of forming bylaws. I have had more issues with small dogs than big ones. Focus on the owners and their behaviours!!!
- I dont see the point in over policing certain breeds. I personally have never seen or been apart of an attack from a pitbull.
- Continued Ignorance and stupidity that is BSL is what makes the city unsafe for dogs. Focus on the owners and their behaviours!!!!
- No
- Targeting one type of dog is absurd and discriminatory. Calgary, you have set the stage for being anti breed specific... keep it that way.
- Why discriminate against bullies? I have heard of more attacks from other breeds and smaller breeds. This is absolutely ridiculous.
- Dont ban or limit a dog based on breed
- No breed specific by laws. My 2 Rottweilers are gentle giants. And I will move before I get rid of one
- I think a publically funded dog behavior class should be made available to anyone who wants to take it and be made mandatory for dog owners.
- I agree that laws etc shouldn't be breed specific! Aggressive and nusnace animals are owner issues not breed issues!!
- Researching your data a little bit more: pitbulls do NOT have the strongest bite. Incorrect data is dangerous
- Allow cats to go outside. Keeping them in is cruel. Cat lovers could get cats again, and there would be a lot fewer dog and dog problems.
- Breed of dog should not be accounted for. BSL does not work. A bully breed dog does not have a stronger bite force.
- Don't segregate one breed of dog make it fair for all and muzzle all dogs that way there is equality seems pretty racist
- Please do not pass a bylaw based on breed. I have been grooming for over 10 years and never had an aggressive "pit bull type".
- Implement a "Good Citizen" program. Pet is assessed on behaviour for Significant discounted/free licenses. Houston Texas has this program
- IT IS THE OWNERS FAULT IF THE DOG MISBEHAVES AND IS UNTRAINED. "There are no untrainable dogs, only untrainable humans.”
- BSL is a big fat no in my opinion. There are way too many factors that play into this- including the dog owners!
- I think any concerns that I would have had are well covered.

- Remove pitbull bias. Hold owners accountable and leave the animals alone. Small dogs are far worse and aggressive.
- It is a myth that pitbulls have a "stronger" bite than other dogs. I expected more research from the city of Calgary.
- "Shame on you for considering restrictions on pitbulls.
- How about enhanced adoption training/screening for PEOPLE?"
- "I oppose breed-specific legislation.
- A nuisance dog due that barks or roams is not necessarily a danger in an off leash park"
- Cats should not be allowed to roam free. They should be confined to the person's house or yard only.
- I think it is ludicrous to single out pit bull type dogs their owners . BSL has NEVER been proven effective in any city .
- No idea.
- A barking dog is the same as loud music at 2am. Nobody wants it and should be treated as such.
- There should be no breed specific legislation. Obedience classes should be made mandatory for every breed before regulating pit bulls.
- Life time ownership ban for people who are proven guilty or animal abuse or cruelty! Also stop being dog racist, stick to facts!!!
- I'd like to see a fence built for the "off-leash dog park" along 26 St SE. It's too close to the road to not have one and is dangerous
- Pit Bulls and other large breeds aren't the problem. It should be on a case-by-case basis and not prejudiced against these large babies
- Less City Hall, cake and more BL officers.
- Make back yard breeding illegal! Provide mandatory educational programs for anyone wanting to own a large or strong dog breed. NO BSL!!!!!!!
- Ban pitbulls
- Dogs should be excluded from fines if defending their property or owners.
- Completely against sticking it to just one breed of dog! It's ridiculous.
- More accountability needs to be put on owners of ANY breed. I.e Bigger fines or restrictions of individual ownership. BSL is not the answer!
- Check out the owners. Dogs do not start out as bad dogs, owners make them that way. Not every human is evolved enough to own a dog.
- From personal experience, family members who own more than 6 animals have mental health issues which resulted in unsafe animal hoarding.
- This is disgusting. Breed specific?? Big, small, lab or bully it does not matter. Very disappointed in our city for targeting one breed.
- There should be a system in place for problem owners. Not just a fine but mandatory training and harsher punishment for repeat offenders.
- The dog has no control how it's raised and trained. Don't punish the dog or breed.

- I believe pitbulls are amazing animals, and if there happens to be one bad pitbull blame should be placed on the owner and not the dog .
- It's more the owner that is the issue. Mandatory training for existing and new dog owners, with biannual refreshers.
- Breed-specific legislation is reprehensible, costly and ineffective - proven time and again in BSL communities, I expect better in Calgary.
- Stop breed specific legislation its embarrassing as a city
- I think anything regarding pit bulls specifically is a stereotype of the breed and not based off any factual reasoning.
- what defines a nuisance dog ??? - if the questions are targeting specific breeds IT IS NOT RIGHT. Lose the BSL attitude.
- Breed-specific legislation has NO place in Calgary. For years, we were world-renowned for successful and effective animal control systems.
- You need to stop with breed specific bylaws. It is a form of prejudice against a breed.
- Bluetooth Microchip all dogs, allow anyone to scan and identify problem dogs, especially dogs at large; just a licence number to report
- Stricter enforcement of roaming cats. The average life span of a cat in the city is 5 years! That's not even reaching full maturity.
- Do not discriminate against breed's because ultimately the owner is responsible for training and handling the animal.
- Pittys and so called "Bully breeds" are not the issue, the issue is irresponsible owners/people that caused bad behavioural traits in dogs
- The idea of classifying dogs based on breed is quite frankly, disgusting. As a city we need to be better than that.
- Focus should be on educating owners - dog training as well as responsible owner education should be mandatory before one can get a dog.
- Breed specific laws don't fix behavior. The focus needs to be on the owners not the animal.
- Please no breed specific legislations.
- Breed-Specific Legislation doesn't punish the irresponsible dog-owners. The dog-owners should be the ones who are fined or punished.
- Please make a bylaw to prevent people from feeding magpies and crows on their property. It is very bad for the neighborhood and the birds.
- get rid of the no-outdoor-cats bylaw, then we may get rid of our mouse, squirrel (rodent) issues; it's just a money grab for the City
- It's not the breed, it's always the owner. Punish the bad owners not a specific breed.
- More emphasis and onus needs to be on owners to be responsible for their pet. Training and obedience should be mandatory for all new Pet owners
- no
- Breed specific bylaws is disgusting. So much animal cruelty is going on, yet the city can't stop obsessing over ONE breed.

- More time needs to be put into preventing animal cruelty and harsher penalties who are found guilty of it.
- BSL is founded on disproven studies and science. I've encountered more aggressive Chihuahuas and Shih Tzus than I have terriers.
- Many municipalities limit the age of children welcome at the dog park(s). The city of Calgary should consider a similar restriction.
- ..
- I think it is appalling that pit bulls were targeted in this. No one breed should ever be singled out. Look at the owners not the dogs!
- No
- All breeds are equally susceptible to aggression. It's the owners responsibility to train them. Singling out bully breeds is simply wrong.
- Legislation should not be breed specific. Many small terrier dogs are more aggressive than large breed pit bulls
- the only acceptable change would be to increase fines on irresponsible pet owners. Perhaps even issuing bans on people so that they cannot o
- Pit bulls are excellent family animals when not raised to be aggressive, it's unfair to target them specifically for their build.
- A Staffordshire Bull Terrier is 11 to 17 kg. I doubt that animal has "more potential for damage" than a 36-60 kg Rottweiler.
- The Northern Hills communities have approximately 57,000 people and 0 off-leash parks. There is no equity in how dog parks are distributed.
- I would love more fenced areas in dogs parks where unsocialised dogs can run and exercise without a risk to run into other dogs.
- Punish the owner, not the breed.
- Fines for roaming cats should be different based on the reason, such as escaped/lost cats vs. regularly roaming cats.
- The fines for littering should increase. Walking my dog in neighborhoods all over Calgary has made me very aware of how dirty the city is.
- More warnings/large signs present at off-leash areas like Nose Hill Park warning of coyotes and other wildlife! People just don't get the risk
- No
- Do not ban pit bull breeds, it is all about the owner and the training the dog receives.
- An animal badly injures people then it should be put down so no-one else will suffer the same fate or worse!
- Let's put a minimum age on people who are allowed at dog parks.
- In Canada we expect to be treated as equals. Prejudice and judgemental opinions are not welcome here . BSL is presumptuous and inappropriate
- I am just really concerned about any proposal that is based solely on discrimination and erroneous information. Do better.

- You CANNOT stereotype a dog - no laws regarding certain breeds. Mandate everybody has to take pet safety + body language course
- .
- No
- Breeders should be required to have a special license.
- A Staffordshire Bull Terrier is 11 to 17 kg. I doubt that animal has "more potential for damage" than a 36-60 kg Rottweiler.
- No I don't
- There is no place in modern society for dogs historically selectively bred to fight/kill. If this leads to BSL, I'd support it.
- If targeting dog breeds by "bite strength", be scientific and include German Shepherds and English Bulldog too (see <https://bit.ly/31fK97u>)
- "Bylaws and increased fines against certain breeds is discriminatory. This shouldn't be a conversation in 2020 anymore. ”
- I think there should be more increases fines on people with their pets that are repeat offenders with constantly getting out, biting othes
- Breed specific bylaws and fines should not be in place. Bylaws should be inclusive of every breed as to not discriminate.
- "A system if you wish to make a complaint, but are worried about retaliation?"
- Lower 'Family' licensing rates multiple pets in one house?"
- ESCALATING fines should be issued to the owner for EACH call the city receives regarding a continuously barking dog of an address
- I am very discouraged to see the attack on the breed of an animal and no repercussions for the owner. Spend money on pet education instead.
- Pitbull/Staffy breeds don't make dogs aggressive, fear and improper training/training to be aggressive make dogs aggressive
- Why do cats get to roam at large when dogs do not, cats should have to remain on the owners property. They dig in flower beds, attack, ect.
- I believe it is up to parents to teach their children how to appropriately treat dogs. We should not rely on bandanas.
- Breed doesn't define a dogs actions
- I don't support a breed ban, but I also live in a Condo that banned pit bulls after one tore a small dog to pieces in an elevator.
- The breed of dog should not have restrictions; poorly behaved or problem dogs is because of bad owners.
- Lower income households should not get a break on any sort of pet fee. They still have to care for the animal as much as the next person
- Na
- DO NOT INTRODUCE BREED SPECIFIC BYLAWS

- Pet bylaw infractions should affect the owner not the pet. The Consider a increasing fine on repeat offenders.
- BSL is dog discrimination which is dog racism..why are we reverting backwards [personal information removed]. It's 2020.
- Fines for off leash in non-off leash areas.
- The only thing I would add is, hold the owners responsible for their pet. Quit holding dogs responsible for how they were trained.
- I am very disappointed that breed specific bylaws are still being talked about. It's unneeded and sad
- Extendable leashes leave no control to the owner. They should not be used on sidewalks/busy areas--use in fields, large parks, etc.
- Fire [personal information removed]
- Dogs that bite are a result of their owners, not their breed. Abused/poorly trained dogs are not breed specific, the owner is responsible.
- It's 2020,BSL should not even be addressed anymore. Target backyard breeders. You should be qualified to breed.
- Bad owners create bad pets! Proper training and pet behaviour information for owners is key!
- No to colour-coded bandana! Kids need to learn how to ask before approaching an animal. A colour scheme is coddling and they will not Learn
- Off leash dogs in on leash areas need to be addressed, it's a very common problem in my neighbourhood to be charged by an off leash dog.
- Stop breed discrimination. If there is an issue with a specific dog address it on a case by case basis, breed discrimination is not helpful.
- It is disappointing to actually see the amount focused on bully breeds. I can't believe this is even being discussed. Come on Calgary.
- So disappointing to see the mention of breed specific laws in Calgary! Any breed can be an issue with poor training. DON'T BULLY MY BREED!
- A fully fenced section of off leash areas available on a FCFS basis to a single family/group for more reactive dogs. To avoid nuisance behav
- There should be more enforcement in off-leash parks for people who do not pickup dog feces.
- Do not be bias against certain breeds. It's the owner not the dog and I do not support breed specific bylaws.
- Any dog can be an issue. Blame the owners not the dogs. It's 2020 why are we even bringing up breed specific bylaws?
- It would be nice for obedience training to be necessary for all dogs and for people to stop singling out pit bulls.
- There should be no laws against any specific breed I.e: Pitbull
- Pitbulls should not be singled out! This is discrimination. Maybe make it any dog over a height and weight specification. Same as insuring a
- I am extremely disappointed to see discrimination against pitbulls. There's no evidence showing they are naturally aggressive.

- Free programs for dog education. If its accessible, there would be no excuse of not learning dog manners, we can avoid future problems
- Talk about leading the witness on the "pit bull" bias. All the "pit bulls"/Staffys I know are gentle, non-aggressive family dogs.
- Breed-specific legislation is out-dated and doesn't account for other breeds that have just as much potential to be dangerous.
- Public training/engagement for new pet owners.
- I disagree that pit bulls Are forced to wear muzzles because of bite force!
- Why single out specific breeds? Smaller dogs are generally more aggressive, ban irresponsible owners, which is the root cause of the problem
- When dogs are considered a nuisance or aggressive, they should be required to be given extensive behavioural training instead of euthanasia.
- BSL does not work! We've learned many things this 2020 and one of those things is racism and discrimination will not be tolerated!
- Breed specific legislation has no basis in evidence for reducing the frequency of serious bite injuries. Pet owners need to be responsible.
- I don't believe in breed discrimination. I prefer the terms of 'responsible pet ownership' and 'nuisance pets.'
- Breed-specific legislation is provably ineffective. If ANY dog, regardless of breed, has a history of aggression, focus on educating owners.
- All of these rules should consider the owner. No specific dog or cat should be fined more simply because of other bias opinions.
- Punish the owners of misbehaved animals not the animal itself. Thank you for recognizing the importance of ESAs.
- Get rid of pet licensing fees. Just a money grab, or atleast make it a one time payment.
- No ideas
- If there is a troublesome dog, it is a reflection of the owner. The owner should be required to do some training.
- Cats should be indoor only unless harnessed and on leash.
- Stop telling me what i can do and making a profit off it, your making clowns of yourselves
- What about "outdoor"cats?Why are they allowed to roam free?Bylaw doesn't seem to do anything about cats and they can attack worse than a dog
- Leave things the way they are! No reason to change bylaws. City should be worried about Basic services.
- More policing of school grounds and on leash areas (parks) for pet owners having their pets (dogs) off leash.
- Most problems people see are issues with dogs (dog feces everywhere, nightly barking, attacks). Perhaps require owner training for dogs?
- Breed specific legislation is illogical and discriminatory, and should not even be a consideration.

- Increasing the fines for attacks by certain breeds makes sense. It's not about the animal, it's about the uneducated owner.
- Owners should be accountable for not controlling their dogs, or cleaning up after them. Bigger presence of bylaw enforcing the laws.
- More discrimination should be put towards the dog owner and NOT the specific breed of dog. Dogs learn from their owners.
- Many pit-bull type dogs are wonderful, but as a group they pose a larger threat to the public than others. It's fair to treat them as such.
- Make sure that Calgary has a TNR (Trap Neuter Release) program/po for feral cats as it is the most effective way to control their population
- If citizens are allowed to have 6 or more animals, I think it would be good to have by-law check in on these residences for animal safety.
- Should be all dogs that attack, chase, or bite. How can a low income get the animal fixed when the program is suspended???
- To reduce aggressive canine behaviour, the responsibility needs to be on the other end of the leash with fines to order to prevent a breed ban.
- Pitbulls aren't bad dogs, there is just bad owners
- No
- Certain breeds are more dangerous than others taking preventative measures against these breeds can prevent a breed ban like in Montreal.
- No
- BSL is not the answer. This should not be in the Bylaws.
- Do not implement discriminatory and ineffective breed specific legislation. Bully breeds are not the problem. Irresponsible owners are.
- Any bylaws that discriminate against an animal's breed is cruel. It is the same as judging a person by the color of their skin.
- Animal Services needs to respond to 311 requests to start with. I reported the same aggressive dog at large 5 times with no response.
- The behaviour of the pet owner is far more dangerous than the breed. Don't punish Pit Bulls unfairly but hold their owners more responsible
- Hold owners at fault of any issues with their pets and not the animal. The city should help rehome them if necessary but no suffering to pet
- I'm tired of seeing people let their cats roam neighbourhoods freely while the cats harass other animals in their own yard and harm wildlife
- Dogs must be kept on a leash in ON-LEASH areas, too often people say my dog is fine and then they are not. Bylaw needs to enforce this.
- Instead of targeting specific dog breeds unfairly, why not emphasize training and responsible pet ownership?
- Fines for dog owners that allow their pet to pee on other's lawns/gardens. This kills the grass/plant and costs time and money to repair.

- Training and lack thereof is what causes an aggressive animal, not breed. Please stop villainizing pitbulls and other "bully breeds".
 - Consider offering more workshops teaching people (esp. children) warning signs dogs (give off and tips for appropriately approaching animals)
 - No.
 - As a child i was afraid to go out to play because of a dog owned by neighbour, who would no cooperate to keep him away from we children. IP
 - Strict enforcement of bylaw violations in on leash parks and playgrounds for owners who let their dogs off leash around kids.
 - Children and adults must demonstrate appropriate behaviour when in an off leash dog park and owners must be able to control their dogs.
 - We don't have to take obedience courses to raise children, why single out certain breeds? I know alot more worse behaved children than dogs
 - This idea of banning pit bulls is plain stupid and waste of money. Might as well ban all dogs because of their strength.
 - Animals in abusive homes should automatically be Seized from the owners.
 - N/a
 - I would like to see park n play type set ups in the off leash parks to teach training techniques and socialization for Dogs.
 - There is nothing wrong with pit bulls, horrible to see Calgary law makers are so stupid.
 - Include free or sliding scale mandatory training with each lifetime dog license for all owners. No BSL law. Small dog bites occur more often
 - I do not agree with breed specific legislation. I think All dogs should have the same rules of rules to be a nuisance animal.
 - No
 - Be great if your form had a way to actually submit. Right now it's returning constant errors when trying to submit.
 - "Require obedience training and learning for all dog owners, of all breeds.
- Perhaps as part of the licensing process."
 - More dog friendly businesses and off leash parks in general. Not sure if the reason for is difficulty obtaining licenses or owner preference
 - [personal information removed]
 - No
 - A dog bite is serious, whether inflicted by a pit bull or chihuahua. It indicates irresponsible pet ownership, NOT specific breed issues.
 - Do not make special bylaws for pit bulls. They have done nothing wrong and is ridiculous of an idea to do that to the owner as well as dog.

- No
- A low-cost or free training program for low income people should be explored. Stop punishing the breed, help reduce irresponsible ownership
- I moved to Calgary because of your laws on all dogs/owners being accountable. Not having in ridiculous breed bans. Shame on you.
- Did the survey but not receiving message of unexpected error. Will not be completing the survey again.
- No
- We need more areas like the Connaught dog park, divided between small and large breed. I have asked proper channels but fell on deaf ears.
- None
- Long overdue to realize dogs are still animals. OWNERS need to get real and realize they can encourage bad behaviour.
- Not all dogs are dangerous. It's only ones that have not be trained the right way. Don't take everyone's dog away because of one dog
- Please do not enforce anything related to "pit bulls";. This is absolutely horrid. The animal itself is not the problem, the owner is.
- Not really
- I keep trying to submit the form above but get an error (no form element mapping found).
- Government supporting vet bills
- No I do not have anything to add
- ALL dogs are capable of GREAT damage, large or small. Pitbulls should not be singled out. All bylaws should be applicable to all breeds.
- There should be a background check for pitbull owners. Pitbulls learn from their caregivers. It should be sure they are going to safe homes.
- Pet owners should have to undergo mandatory training with each new pet. If they've done training in the past, a shorter course would apply.
- Bylaws and increased fines against certain breeds are discriminatory. This shouldn't be a conversation in 2020 anymore.
- Instead of the bandanas we should be educating children on how to approach all dogs. Approach with caution and get permission from the owner
- I am not surprised by this idea from the City of Calgary. "Progressive" was never a character trait they exuded.
- More off leash areas like Connaught dog park. Ones that provide fenced space between large and small breeds.
- [Personal information removed] was an advocate across Canada for NOT having BSL, disappointing to see this type of questioning on the poll. NO BSL of any type.
- Animal vendors (sellers) should be required to explain the rules of Calgary pet ownership to buyers and allowed do initial registrations

- This is ridiculous. They are not aggressive or dangerous. They are one of the sweetest breeds and are not the only breed that is strong.
- Why do we need to PAY to "register" our pets with the city? And why do I have to do it every yr? Considering my cats are indoor only..
- Would like to see more regulation on "Rescue Agencies" who cross border shop to get low cost shelter dogs and re-sell at high fees in YYC
- Addressing individuals who bring their animals on-leash into a designated off-leash park/area. It creates a defensive and nervous scenario.
- Stop judging dogs based on irrational fear. Huskies, Collies and Rottweilers account for the highest percentage of dog fatalities in Canada
- No
- Targeting larger specific breeds for their potential to cause harm is misguided - more frequently toy and small breeds are antagonistic.
- someone that has trespassed into your own yard, you have posted signs on your gates beware of dog! Your dog shouldn't be at fault!
- Allowing 6 dogs/house for fostering, but only allowing 1 pit/home is ridiculous. Pits are the most abused/abandoned and need fosters more-so
- Taking better steps to protect animals that are being abused.
- I disagree with breed-specific laws. Owners should be held more accountable for their pets behaviour, the breed should not be punished.
- Data from many countries and cities shows that BSL does not work. How is this even a conversation? Shame on you, Calgary.
- I believe that all pet owners who have a violation need to take some sort of training with their pet on top of a fine.
- I am against EVERYTHING breed-specific. It is completely unfounded.
- service animals need visible legal ID. Comfort animal owners need to know their pets legal limits.
- I think this survey is badly done. Eg should feeding and teasing wildlife be banned.. why lump them together; they are different issues.
- How about requiring mandatory training instead of a larger fine for first offenses or smaller incidents before a license can be renewed?
- Breed specific legislation is wrong, and ineffective.
- If a dog attacks me and ruins my clothing I should be able to claim damages from the dogs owner. My sisters coat (2days old) was shredded.
- The survey did not mention feral domestic rabbits. How about banning the sale of rabbits in pet stores to help deal with this problem?
- Focus on responsible ownership - and education for kids (and adults!) about safety and etiquette around dogs!
- Breed specific guidelines are rooted in fear and largely based on misinformation about breeds in question! Archaic and ill advised!

- Pits do not bite most, they don't even crack the top 5 for most powerful bite, and they score higher in temperament than goldens and collies
- Pit bulls are not a bad breed!! Please stop spreading this negative connotation about this breed. Introduce more training guides.
- d
- No
- Pit bulls (and bully breeds) should not be singled out and should not have higher fines/restrictions. There's zero need for this!
- Limits are unfair. Many people in rescue have many animals they take good care of; limits could break up families. Limits don't stop hoarding
- You need to redo this whole survey and do one specifically for dogs and specifically for cats, discussion items around them are different.
- Pitbulls actually don't have the strongest bites. Breed specific bylaws don't work. Look at Ontario. Harsher fines and punishments for owners.
- Bylaws against certain breeds is discriminatory and unfair.
- Targeting pit bulls and rotties? What are we fuking Quebec commies? Wake the fuk up Calgary that's a joke.
- It's unfair to put the weight on certain breeds the fines need to be higher for animal abusers not for people who have a certain breed
- Breed specific legislation is unnecessary and unfairly perpetuates negative stereotypes against large breed and pit bull type dogs.
- There should be a 3 strike system for owners to quiet down their pets after a complaint, failure to do so should result in a monetary fine
- Breed specific bylaws do not address the root problem and should be removed from the conversation.
- have a designated park for bully breeds. Offer rehabilitation courses for problematic pups. perhaps off leash areas for certain sizes of dog
- Canada is already over-regulated. We should consider education over regulation to socialize norms and expectations of pet owners.
- Do not include breed specific laws (BSL)! The way an animal behaves is the responsibility of the owner, not of its genetic makeup.
- Low income households shouldn't be allowed to own animals. If they can't afford basic needs, how could they afford to care for an animal?
- Anyone else think that all the fecal bacteria being found in waterways is related to the number of dogs swimming/playing in/near the water?
- Small dog owners and their ill trained dogs are the problem. They often instigate while the owners call them "cute";
- There needs to be stricter guidelines regarding having appropriate barriers for yards with dogs of any size.

- All dogs should have the same rules and increase fines for the nuisance animals, breed bans and separate rules are ridiculous!
- I'm very disappointed in the breed specific language in this survey
- Make training required for everyone that has a pet. Discriminating against one type of breed is ignorant discrimination.
- Pitbulls are no different than any other large breed of dog
- Education for young kids around pets. Not all all dogs like kids but are good around them
- Bylaw used to offer really great in-school programs. It would be nice to see something similar offered again to help increase awareness.
- Renters need a say when roommates suddenly get dogs when they didn't ask the other people living there if it was okay.
- Online courses about responsible pet ownership in lieu of fines for minor offences. Mandatory courses for major offences.
- Waive the darn pet license fee. That is insane that we have to PAY even more for us to keep our dogs never heard of such a stupid thing
- Breed Specific Legislation has failed time and time again. Waste of resources and terrible look rather than dealing with irresponsible owner
- Fines should be eliminated entirely for dog bites to any child, adult or the death of another animal and dogs that bite should be euthanized
- Don't discriminate against dog species. Punishment should be to the guardians that are negligent
- Introduce lifetime licensing. Instead of muzzling certain breeds, invest in public programs about responsible pet ownership/interaction.
- I do not support BSL and am very disappointed to see this language used here. BSL has been proven to be expensive and ineffective.
- None at this time
- End attempts at breed specific legislation. End annual licensing fees. Our animals are part of the family. We do not license our children.
- Leave our dogs alone. Pitbull breeds are kind animals by nature. All pet owners should be responsible for their pet's behaviour.
- It is not fair or normal for pit bulls to be discriminated against. Give owners better education, they are the problem.
- Don't bully the breed, or the owners of the breed, unless they're bad owners.
- Pitbulls are NOT the issue. To paint all pitbulls with one brush is ridiculous. The issue is NOT the breed, it's most often always the owner
- Bylaws against specific breeds is discriminatory and Calgarians don't need higher fines in the midst of COVID-19 and a struggling economy.
- BSL is NOT the answer!! More education for the public and better formal training for people to understand how to help their individual dog.
- Putting bylaws in place that target specific breeds is not the answer. There needs to be stricter penalties for poor dog ownership.

- Pit bulls aren't the problem, it is always the owner And putting out fake info like their bites are more severe is untrue. Get re- educated
- For multiple year licenses or lifetime licenses, I would recommend it be revoked if some form of address confirmation is not done every year
- Bully breeds are typically less aggressive than many others. All dogs need proper obedience training and socialization to prevent problems.
- Before banning pittys, anyone voting on this should have to foster a pitbull for 1 month before voting. This is an owner issue not a breed.
- I think it's horrible you are singling out pit bulls. There are MANY dog breeds capable of causing harm. This is not justified.
- Having a license that covers multi years is a great idea and having them sold at various locations.
- It's the owner not the breed. Read up on information and facts
- More information for the public about dog behaviour. Too many people treat dogs like live stuffed animals among other issues.
- Disappointing to see an attempt to target a specific dog breed - I don't support this discrimination (it's the bad owner, not the dog)
- Larger fines
- No further ideas, just please do not descriminate dog breeds, especially since it is based on strength and not bite/aggression
- Municipal properties are NOT the place for livestock. The pandemic has opened our eyes to zoonotic infections.
- "Bad behavior is not breed-specific.It's not even species-specific(looking at you, other humans)
- Proper training is a necessity for all dogs"
- The city going after a breed (Pit Bull) but not making changes to how owners are responsible for pets does nothing. Breed bans do not work.
- Please do not go down the road of BSL. It has proven to be ineffective and it discriminates against certain dog breeds and is pointless.
- The target should be responsible ownership, not blanket generalization of an entire breed. Punish the bad owner, not the dog. Training = key
- I do not agree with breed specific bylaws. It is absolutely ridiculous to single out pit bull breeds.
- I disagree with basing decisions on a breed of dog especially. The owner is responsible for ensuring that their pet is well behaved.
- Cats should be allowed outside. Cats allowed outside, should wear a collar like dogs do.
- Stop limiting people's freedoms, we don't live in China no matter how much Trudeau wants us to. Stop the reckless spending.
- No
- Breed specific legislation is complete inappropriate especially when you say that "they don't account for more bites than any other dog."

- Fines against non-pet owners who excessively complain about others pets when no bylaws have been broken.
- If you think breed specific bylaws are acceptable, you need to do more research.
- Please do not punish the dog for bad owners. A dog only knows what the owner's teach.
- I know many people in rescue who have adopted more than 6 cats and provide an amazing home. Limits hurt good families.
- I have never supported and will never support breed-specific legislation (BSL). Owner accountability should be the #1 priority.
- Am am very against excessive ruling g against pit bull type breeds! It is the owners, not the dogs that are the issue.
- It's not the breed. A lot of times it's the owner that should be looked at.
- Tired of residents backing onto greenspaces using it as an off leash park without consequences (chasing kids and/or not picking up feces)
- Medical literature is CONSISTENT in implicating pit bulls in the most severe injuries and deaths. Put public health over "pit bull rights."
- Pit bulls are only dangerous if they have dangerous owners. It is 100% discrimination to restrict people from owning a pit bull
- Do not put restrictions on a dog breed because of ignorant people.
- Emotional support animals that arent livestock? For example, a dog, cat, bird, hamster, etc. As a companion for mentally disabled people.
- I completely understand the the issues regarding bully breeds. Way too many people want them for the status without understand the breed.
- Keep a dangerous dogs map with address and photo of the dog like the City of Minneapolis: MSP's list is mostly pit bulls. Photos don't lie!
- Additional off leash spaces are desperately needed. Consider adding "dogs at large” to the offleash signage so other users are More aware
- Any BSL proposals on behalf of the city is very inappropriate, any animal related issues should be handled case to case, not breed specific.
- If there are multiple complaints of a dog excessively barking or being mistreated there needs to be something done.
- No to BSL!!
- The strength of a pit bull bite is a myth. BSL has been proven ineffective. Calgary actually had lower dog bite rates in comparison to YYZ.
- Pit bulls are not a problem. Breed-specific legislation is wrong.
- Singling out bully breeds is 100% wrong. The dog is not the problem. The irresponsible owner of any dog is the problem.
- If people do not want breed-specific, make Pitbulls take training with the owners.
- Can I pay a higher licence fee for my cat to allow it to be an outdoor cat? Conditions that it is spayed/neutered, licensed, vaccinated, et

- Do not ban "bully" breeds from parks, or make them wear muzzles.
- No comment
- We don't leave our dogs outside alone. They need to be supervised so I can clean fecal right away. If barking, bring inside.
- Targeting pit bulls is so wrong and will not "fix" anything. We need age restrictions in off leash parks and owner education/accountability.
- Alter off leash guidelines for dogs that can pass a competency test. If a dog has a certain level of training. Allow that dog to walk off le
- Hn
- "Mandatory courses for those looking to buy or adopt.
- Instead if adding BSL, proven not to work, get better dog safety education in schools"
- NO SUPPORT FOR BSL
- I firmly do not support the implementation of breed-specific legislation. It has been proven to be ineffective in reducing incidents.
- Excessive barking is not acceptable in any urban situation.
- Do not allow un-neutered male dogs in off leash parks. Un-neutered male dogs can exhibit hormonal behaviour not recognised by human owners.
- .
- Onus is on owners. Train people to control dogs, by a certified trainer. Ensure owners know the fines that can occur and enforce the bylaws.
- Bylaws are great but if no one enforces them or even follows up on complaints, what is the point? Also should not be breed specific evert
- You CANNOT stereotype a dog - no laws regarding certain breeds. Mandate everybody has to take pet safety + body language course
- Please don't ban specific breeds. All breeds with the proper training can be kind and loving.
- Any livestock should be kept outside the city limits.
- Stop the nonsense idea that it's no ones fault when a dog is poorly behaved. The responsibility is on the owner and the dog.
- Do not ban ANY SORT OF DOG! Maybe we should look at the owners before banning a dog! You can train any dog to be bad and not behave.
- Pit bulls ARE NOT an issue. All dogs can and do bite. The media and public only share portions of information.
- Yyc DO NOT DISCRIMINATE AGAINST BREEDS. Lets look at backyard breeding and shady animal rescues instead.
- "Teaching children NOT to approach/pet a dog without permission from the owner.
- Also, lose the pitbull rule. Any dog can be dangerous!"
- Breed specific bylaws are not the answer.
- There should be exceptions for animals acting in self defense.
- No breed specific legislation. It is unnecessary and costly

- "Bylaw for dog
- noise need to be evaluated"
- I would support licensing being done through other vendors only if they were otherwise exclusive to veterinary clinics and hospitals.
- We must do much more about spaying/neutering more cats/dogs. There is massive pet over-population everywhere.
- No breed restrictions are necessary, it's the owner not the breed.
- Humans not trained properly and not understanding their own dogs signals leads to problems. Train the human, avoid having to punish the pet.
- I feel that areas adjacent to or used as access to off leash areas need signs saying that they are not off leash and that fines can be charged
- Stop being racist towards certain dogs. Buying a dog should require a license, making people competent in training their own pets.
- Breed specific laws are not the answer.
- Dogs should be secured in a vehicle if the owner leaves them with window open, enabling them to jump out and attack dogs walking by.
- Decrease license fee if dogs are trained through approved training facilities. Decrease fees gradually When there's no incident
- All dogs should require obedience training. Consider offering an annual fee reduction for proof of obedience training.
- Dog Groomer here. The muzzle law is insane. There are breeds that bite more often. Training is the key for ANY dog. That's what stops bites.
- QUIT SINGLING OUT PITBULLS AND LOOK AT THE BIGGER PICTURE
- "ALL LAWS FOR ALL DOGS!!!!"
- No such thing as a bad breed, but there is such a thing as bad owners!!"
- Make it illegal to discriminate against how a dog looks. Bully breeds are AVERAGE strength for their size and that's science.
- It would be great if when talking about a dog biting someone you weren't just being breed specific to pitbulls and bully breeds.
- I was unable to complete section 9A all fines need to be increased
- Pit bulls should not be signaled out as bad dogs. All dog breeds should be considered as nuisance dogs in a bylaw.
- Do not waive fees. If you can't afford them, you shouldn't have a dog but I do think it's fair to discount proof of obedience trained dogs.
- The breed specific legislation aspect of this bylaw should be eradicated. It is discriminatory and frankly not backed by any actual science.
- I do not support breed specific bylaws
- More fenced off-leash areas and take better care of them. The one by Confluence is entirely dirt! Nicer parks = more use.

- The irresponsible owners, I feel so bad for animals they don't have a voice, or a choice
 - Breed type bylaws are unfair and will not make a difference if the breeds do not account for more instances
 - This is down right ridiculous I have met and been charged by many more small dogs compared to larger "pit bull" type breeds,
 - No breed specific laws! It's not the breed it's the owner! Owners should be at fault and take responsibility
 - N/a
 - Steps before banning bully breeds from a joyful life in public and around other dogs. Training? Owner specific training? Special licensing?
 - Checking up on potential animal hoarders more frequently.
 - Can we get support for organizations doing public education how to engage with different kinds of pets? E.g. educators in schools.
 - Specifically attacking a single breed is disgusting.
 - How about doing something about excessive number of skunks in the city, rather than worrying about domestic animals/pets.
 - Remove breed-specific legislation; it's ineffective and doesn't work. Focus on educating ALL owners how to responsibly train their pets.
 - This should not be breed specific. All dogs, like all owners. I've been bit many times by a dog who is less than 20lbs Which went unreported
 - If you are a registered breeder with the Canadian Kennel Club, then lower the license fee for intact dogs. Not all pit bulls need a muzzle.
 - no to breed specific legislation! Singling out pitbulls/bullies is just wrong especially when the BREED has nothing to do with issues raised
 - No breed specific laws. Can't have laws based on people's race of skin colour so why for breed of dog. That's discrimination and racist
 - I get the Calgary government receives funding from fines and licenses. This website will show pro comments first, what even is freedom?
 - "I still DONOT agree with cat licences (I have no cats).
- Chickens, should be allowed in small numbers"
 - I leash walk my dog. There are way more people to walking their dog without a leash. Frustrated. Need more bylaw driving @ and fines
 - LESA should definitely be free to register for low income. Reduced fee for all others. These are support animals come on people!!!
 - Stop trying to put pitbulls under a microscope they are more harmless than the little cute dog that doesn't listen but it's ok it's "cute"

- Don't but any BSL it's literally discriminatory towards specific breeds. The breed of the animal impact the amount of animal bites.
- Providing more off-leash areas and better access to licensing for dog owners
- The human component of animal training, management, and ownership needs to be addressed. No animal behaves independently of its environment.
- No
- The current rules about responsible pet ownership are pathetic. A standard of care for well being of dogs in cold months left outside
- Please reconsider allowing people to have 6 dogs/ cats! How can anyone give them proper care in an urban setting!
- There should be no breed specific bylaws. Period.
- Stop making it about breed that's just absurd.
- Remove the biased breed specific language from your community engagement survey.
- Minimum fees should be imposed for licensing. If you can not afford to license your animal, you probably can't afford proper veterinary care
- Make extended leashes not allowed in on leash areas. Training should be required for all dog owners but, owner should be able pick trainer.
- I feel like all dogs should be considered for proposed changes not just specific breeds. Same rules for all!
- For the love of God, please don't discriminate against breeds. Do not blame a dog, blame the owner.
- Stop targeting specific breeds. It is how the dog is trained that makes it violent. Require obedience with licensing
- I find more small dogs that are more threatening and bite willing than pit bulls, I have been bitten by small dogs twice; never by big dogs
- Separate fenced off leash parks for small dogs and large dogs. (See Cochrane)
- Amount of animals allowed on a property should depend on the size of the property. House vs. acreage is very different.
- Owners need to take responsibility for their pets
- I think Bylaw officers should do patrols in dog parks, especially the busy ones. Officer presence is key in enforcement.
- Discussion would be on pet owner, how they train/what they teaches and how they socialize w/their animals and the environment they were brought.
- I think anyone adopting a dog should be required to do a training course. Most people have no idea about dog psychology or behavior.
- I think it's terrible that the city is differentiating Pitbulls from other dogs. It's important to me that all bylaws affect all dogs equall
- no, but I think cat licenses are too high. Perhaps have one license per household.
- Higher fines for not cleaning up dog waste. People bag and throw on people yards
- The stuff about pit bulls is completely unacceptable. STOP WITH THE BIAS!!!

- Too harsh on pitbulls. I grew up around two at different times of my life and its not the dog who should be punished, its the owners.
- NO breed restrictions. Focus on the the behavior not the breed and irresponsible owners. Educate the public on proper dog interactions.
- DO NOT BREED SHAME DOGS. It's a disgusting tactic, and I would be EMBARRASSED to live in a city where this was enforced.
- 140 characters will not cut it. Sometimes things go bad also irresponsible pet owners. Banning an entire breed just seems wrong.
- Breed specific bylaws are unnecessary and discriminatory. As they say, there are no bad dogs only bad owners.
- There is no reason to single out "pitbulls" in this proposal. Restrictions should be placed on all dogs if any.
- Stop this nonsense and get on with administering the priorities in this City. We are in a global pandemic and many are out of work.
- Na
- Do NOT ban certain breeds.
- The focus should be placed on large/powerful dog breeds rather than focusing on "pit bulls"; in the language.
- Quit discriminating against any breed and do your job! Same rules/fines/etc. For everyone!
- What does end of life look like for backyard chickens? Will they be slaughtered or euthanized or set free? I'd like it to be humane.
- My rescue could bite harder than a pit bull (but she won't because she's well trained). Punish bad owners, not certain breed owners
- I don't think these regulations apply to dogs...it's the humans, the owners that need to be accountable. Humans need the training
- Education programs on responsible pet ownership and the importance of getting animals fixed.
- I have no ideas.
- Has the city considered investing in, or linking their app with pet tracking apps? WhistleFit, Tractive, etc.? Find all them lost pets!
- Charge owners and not the breed. Bully breeds are not the issue, owners are. Do not discriminate against bully breeds
- Provide the public with more education on adopting a dog (puppy mills, responsible and irresponsible breeders)
- Pit bulls (and bully breeds) should not be singled out and should not have higher fines/restrictions. There's no need for this! So wrong!
- Provide free/affordable obedience/reactive rover training for dogs considered a nuisance.
- not at this time
- A license should be required in order to buy an any animal BEFORE the animal is purchased.
- Please lower the limit of cats and dogs to a maximum of two.

- Less breed specific laws (unless it's chihuahua) and more responsible pet ownership. Help low income folks out.
- I'd like laying ducks to be added to the urban hen project. Hardier than chickens, longer laying life, and definitely quieter than most dogs
- Is specific breed selection not the same as racism? The world is trying to erase racism yet we are going to teach it with animals instead?
- This survey is leading and flawed. CANADIAN research does not support bully breed restrictions at all!!
- You really shouldn't be considering breed specific laws at all.
- Suspend the pitbull policies. If your going to apply these to one breed it should be all breeds. Any dog can biter bark or act vicious.
- The targeting of pit bulls is outrageous. Whoever put this together needs more research as a lot of this information is invalid.
- Off leash protocols should depend on how compliant and calm a dog is
- Add dog drinking facilities in the parks.
- Off leash parks are a issue. My on-leash staffie and I have been attacked 3 times by "Friendly" off leash dogs.
- If cats are strictly indoors they should be required to be chipped and tattooed not licenced
- Also leave the fines as is. Increase them on repeat offenders. If your a repeat offender after 3 strikes you lose your animal.
- Do not ban pitbulls or restrict them in any way. They are sweet animals highly desired by terrible people.
- Chihuahua's are more aggressive than Pitbulls. Let's ban Chihuahuas!
- H
- Exceptions for more pets if on a big property .
- Breed specific legislations are uneducated and unnecessary. It's about the owner and training, not the breed.
- Sell the licenses digitally and send documentation digital and in the mail.
- Not everyone can tolerate animals due to allergies, phobias etc. Whatever neighbours do, impacts the people living around them.
- Discrimination against a breed of dog is ridiculous. Punish the bad owners, not the breed of dog! "Pit bull lives matter”
- I echo all the comments on breed-bias. Owners and training is where the focus should be.
- I think rather than obedience training there should be more options for educating the general public on how to properly interact with animal
- Breed specific bylaws are not the answer, it is about being a responsible pet owner. There is no bad breed just bad owners.

- Offer a city subsidy for obedience training, make it accessible and affordable, prevention not reaction!
- Looking into the owner not the breed. My mastiffs are more mild mannered than half the small dogs. This is Rascism, just towards an animal.
- Its ridiculous that one whole breed is being banned when there are plenty of other dogs who are much more aggressive. Don't do this!
- You must not make rules specifically targeting one breed. Dogs are a reflection of their owners. Don't punish all dogs simply by their breed
- Laws against Pitbulls are as stupid as the people who make them. There is no reason for them whatsoever.
- If an animal is a repeat offender for bites, esp serious ones, the owner should have higher fines and possible jail time.
- Small dogs Bite more than the larger breeds, but nothing is done. It is not fair that a "pitbull" type is singled out.
- I have a great idea...DON'T DISCRIMINATE AGAINST CERTAIN BREEDS!!! Discriminate against bad pet owners...case by Case basis!!!
- All breeds should be treated equally, I've had more issues with other breeds than a bully breed. Come on Calgary bylaw!
- Currently pit bulls are being shipped to Calgary and placed up for adoption. This should be prohibited.
- I don't believe in a bylaw or rules for breed the specific animals each case must be dealt with individually
- The pit bull discrimination bothers me. There are no bad dogs, just bad owners!!! Pit bulls get a bad rap.
- I have been bitten or threatened by more small breed dogs than any breed of large dog. Why not focus on bad dog owners rather than the dogs?
- Question #3 is biased against Pitbulls, uneducated, and unscientific. The authors should be ashamed. I am very disappointed in the City.
- Charge owners. Require mandatory obedience training for offenders.
- No breed specific regulations. Dogs should not be penalized for bad owners.
- I think power breed owners must complete a basic obedience class with their puppies. This way both humans and dogs will be more educated.
- Singling out bigger breeds like pit bulls just aids in negative stigma and fear. These animals do not deserve to be punished for existing.
- Make education/training mandatory for individuals licensing any form of "bully breed" dog. It's not the animal, it is the owner.
- "Are fines effective?"
- It's hard to get a sense of the point of this engagement. Has there been an increase in dangerous pet behaviour?"

- More incentives for indoor-only cats - better for animals and local ecosystem. Reduced or no licensing fees for registered indoor cats.
- Any dog owner knows that any breed can bite and it's on the owner to protect dog from situations. Don't discriminate breeds.
- There needs to be more research into breed specific legislation. It is ineffective in other cities and is based on misinformation.
- Singling out breeds such as pitbulls is a disservice to all dog owners, its all dogs or no dogs , the onus is on the owner not the breed
- If an owner makes no attempt to control/contain their animal, it should be removed and rehomed.
- Should be looking into how the owner teaches their animal, not the breed.
- With an Irish Wolfhound, an XXL dog who is a quiet, sweet girl, apartment hunting was hard! Weight restrictions are ridiculous!
- Selecting pit bull type due to bite is not ideal. What about breeds like mastiffs, Cane Corso and Rotweiller?
- Breed specific legislation and agendas need to be absolutely REMOVED from discussion. This is about a responsibility ALL pet owners have.
- Stop trying to implement breed-specific legislation. It is not based on any data or research and is entirely based on ignorance and fear
- I am against BSL. There should be stricter punishment enforced for pet owners based on specific events and not applied to All pet owners who
- direct drive ebikes are excellent dog traning tools and should be allowed on pathways, it is to dangerous train my dog on the roadway.thanks
- What a ridiculous survey! Don't ban dog breeds. It is the HUMAN not the dog. Pls stop wasting my tax money!
- Breed specific legislation is unfair. A bad owner can cause any breed to be vicious. Not the breeds fault.
- Strongly disagree to pit bull breeds being treated differently than other breeds.
- Stop grouping pitbulls and terriers into a group that people see as a threat. Educate owners.
- No ideas
- No
- Do NOT ban pitbulls. Do NOT make it mandatory for them to wear muzzles. Agression is not JUST about the species, it's about the owner.
- Small/toy breeds should not be allowed in uncontrolled off-leash areas
- None
- Its not the pit bulls that are aggressive its their owners.
- Dog ownership permit, given to approved people when they complete a course like firearms lisenec. Requirement to have a dog.
- Dog owners in this city are TERRIBLE at taking accountability for their dogs and it is not a matter of one particular breed.

- We shouldn't specifically target breeds like Pit Bulls. We should focus our attention on irresponsible owners.
- Do not make breed specific legislation. Many other breeds bite stronger than pitbulls do. Shame on whoever did the research for this.
- No I do not
- Mandatory basic training and obedience for all dog owner. Completed and registered along with the pet license. No breed specific legislation
- Its the owners who need punishing- jail time if required.
- Lifetime license for indoor only cats. They pose no threat to anyone.
- There shouldn't be any breed specific legislation involved. Bully breeds are not an issue and it is wrong to think they are
- The owners are at fault not the breed. I was raised never to touch a dog without asking it's about respecting animals as sentient beings.
- Quit objectifying pitbulls as "dangerous" dogs. A dangerous dog only becomes dangerous because of a hard life or ignorant owners.
- NO MENTION OF TRAINING FOR THE OWNER OF PROBLEM DOGS!?! BAD OWNER = BAD DOG
- cats are a huge issue. The amount of damage cats cause is horrendous. Cat owners should have high fines if their cat isn't licensed as well
- Please do not label or discriminate against pitbulls. All dogs no matter what breed should be treated equal. We do not need bsl legislation
- N/a
- Breed specific legislations are rooted in/perpetuate fear and ignorance. Any breed has a potential to cause harm if not well trained.
- No
- Not really an idea but I think it's absolute garbage if you place a breed specific bylaw. Every pitbull I have ever met it such a sweetheart
- Do not make it breed specific as one breed shouldn't be singled out
- I think Calgary should remember that we have been the leaders on responsible pet ownership without having to slump to racist laws.
- Actually enforce existing bylaws.
- Absolutely NO Breed Specific Legislation. If it were people we were talking about it would be racism. Hold bad OWNERS responsible not dogs!
- I don't own a pit bull but kind of taken back by some of the information here. There are many dogs (big/small) than can cause severe damage
- A bigger issue is off leash dogs in on leash parks
- "Bad" dogs = terrible owners...
- Be accountable for your pet! No matter what the breed!

- The owner should be charged or punished. Not the animal. It isn't their fault if they were taught that way.
- You can not single out a breed. All breeds bite, all breeds can do damage.
- Strongly oppose breed specific legislation. It carries the assumption that other breeds are not problematic.
- Life time registration, when most people get pets they become part of the family, this yearly give me money is just a money grab
- Breed-discrimination is NOT something that should be enforced. Owners must be educated and all dogs must undergo training.
- Training for owners being mandatory if you have a nuisance pet. Dogs are typically not the issue but lack of owner understanding
- No such thing as a bad/aggressive breed but there are bad/aggressive owners
- Accountability is huge. Pit bull type dogs need to be monitored as they can cause extreme damage and owners need more training
- Make animal training more affordable and more accessible. Breed management isn't the problem, access to appropriate training is.
- NO Breed Specific Legislation.
- You can't single out any specific breed, this thought process needs to be removed, and sole responsibility needs to be on the owner!
- N/A
- The Pet noise complaints in the city can be used and abused as manipulation tactics by neighbours, ESP after these changes.
- If I am restricted to six well cared for dogs, you better start restricting the amount of human children in a household too.
- I completely disagree with the breed specific legislation aspect of this bylaw.
- To say that Pit bull strength will cause a more severe bite is negligent. Don't provide false information that lacks evidence!
- Very upset about the pitbull specific comments, including dogs who resemble pit bulls.
- Sad people are that dumb to single out a specific breed because of an unjustified bias
- Do you blame a child for acting badly? Or do you believe they are a product of their environments? Why is that any different for animals?
- There are NO bad dogs, only bad owners. The focus should NOT be on banning breeds but on the people who mistreat animals. DO NOT BAN BREEDS.
- Stop picking on pitbulls, all dogs can bite. Make it a general rule for all dogs and not breed specific
- Pitbulls or animals that are aggressive and have a history of not been under control should always be muzzled.
- If obedience is mandated, barking shouldn't be a problem.
- start with harsher restrictions on pitbull breeders, many of these breeders are the direct problem, they see the animals as accessories.

- Owners should be accountable, no matter the breed
- For livestock, avoid pigs please. However, multiple homes can house a goat herd for weed management of invasive plant species.
- An online system for reporting ppl who do not pick up dog feces. Incl upload if pictures.
- I filled out the whole survey and then the captcha wouldn't work properly. What a waste of time
- Do NOT make pit bulls an issue. They are some of the best dogs out there. All dogs can be a nuisance regardless of breed.
- There are no bad dogs. Just bad owners. It should be mandatory to attend any type of basic obedience training if you have a dog.
- Don't single out pit bulls.
- This is complete craziness. I work in veterinary medicine and this disgusts me. Educate yourselves and focus on something more important.
- No everything seems good
- No
- I'd put my face next to a pitbull before I'd go anywhere near the uneducated disgusting people trying to pass this law.
- Can [personal information removed] please come back? It appears we need you!
- We need more off-leash park areas for dogs
- Calgary should have a bylaw restricting importing dogs from out of country
- I do not support breed specific bylaws.
- Discount offered for those who rescue senior dogs or special needs dogs from human societies. Get a discounted or waived fee for their help.
- The responsibility needs to be placed on owners for their dogs behaviour and not bringing in blanket rules based on breed/appearance of dog
- I agree with others that dog disobedience has a lot more to do with the owners then the breed. Pitbulls can be sweet and loving dogs.
- It's outrageous to put such harsh regulations on pit bulls. They are wonderful dogs. ANY breed can be vicious, it comes down owners really.
- Please have people who are actual dog owners or trainers to help make decisions, not non animal owners.
- No matter what the breed of the pet, owners should be responsible for training and socializing. Not different rules for specific breeds
- Everyone who wants to adopt/buy an animal should be required to take an educational course on animal welfare and behaviour.
- Against breed specific legislation
- No thank you.
- No
- I do not feel that breeds should be defined in any way as being acceptable or not.

- Approval by vet, trainer or behavioralist required to breed dogs. Fine for unplanned litters or unapproved breeding. Proof of knowledge.
- LESA and low income are should be separate. Pit bulls behaviour is based on the owner. The city should offer free obedience/education classes
- Please do NOT discriminate against pitbulls !!!
- There is no evidence that a specific breed is more aggressive, causes more damage, etc. Do not ban breeds!
- The proposed changes for enhanced measures against Pit Bulls are erroneous and unfair. Smaller dogs are more problematic (noise/aggression)
- I own 2 pitbulls and 2 cats my pitbulls are the friendly gentlest dogs I have ever owned .I do not find it at all fair to target 1 breed
- Instead of banning certain dogs we should be requiring stricter licensing requirements.
- I do not think "pit bull" breeds should be singled out as a "bad breed". This method has been used and it does not work.
- When it comes to certain breeds it is not the animals fault, it's the owners. Humans created breeds and made them pets we are responsible.
- Any dog can be a great companion, no matter what breed. Stems down to the owner. Dog owners should be held accountable.
- No
- I don't support breed specific bylaws. It's the owner, not the breed.
- Problem is not the breed it is the owner. Mandatory training would be beneficial. Also far too many people allow cats to roam free.
- Stop being breed specific, I would be more scared of a little dog than a big dog.
- Singling out breeds is just the same as singling out a race of humans. Has nothing to do with the breed and more a product of environment
- Calgary should invest more money in dog parks. More fully fenced parks With fun features and include waste bags. Ex. Canmore and Whitefish
- Limit the number of dogs a dog walker can walk at one time at off leash parks. This is something that needs a bylaw.
- Why are dogs with stronger bites not included with the pitbulls, such as Rottweilers? This survey seems discriminatory feeding into fear.
- None
- Pitbulls should not be singled out in this. Like any dog if raised properly they are not vicious .
- We shouldn't be singling one breed if many other breeds are doing the same harm to humans
- it is nonsense to think about breed bans or specific rules. Shame on you. It's the owners fault if a dog is aggressive.
- It is the owner's fault for the dogs actions, or often the person bitten for approaching inappropriately
- There should be a mechanism that allows a nuisance designation to expire after a period of time or after appropriate training is taken.

- Issue fines to people teasing or harassing animals, I would bite too if that's all I could do...
- Breed-specific moderation is not required. DOG specific moderation could be a suitable alternative. ie. Dogs previously deemed a nuisance.
- Ban breed specific legislation. Will assist in organizing class action lawsuit and dispute against it
- Help pay for vet bills when they are over a certain amount.
- I hate to say it but outdoor cats should not be allowed unless on a leash because they cause detrimental harm to local wildlife populations.
- a longer term punishment for repeated offenders such as increasing fines, and ultimately losing the privilege of pet ownership
- Try to look at the bigger picture of bad dog owners vs a dog breed/type that gets a bad rap. Punish the owners not the dog
- Restriction on a breed is ridiculous. Why not have the same apply to all dogs. Every dog must wear a muzzle not one type of dog.
- I am vehemently against any sort of Breed-Specific Legislation, pit bulls are no more dangerous than any other dog
- Please do not legislate dog breeds. This arises from misinformation and myths. Many studies have proven these to be erroneous.
- I would like to comment on number 3. Are we also considering enforcing these restrictions on dog breeds with stronger jaws, just as capable
- I will not support breed specific bylaws. Owners are the problem, not dogs or their breeds.
- Educate the general public (especially kids!) about dog behaviour and what it means when a dog does 'x', DO NOT impose bsl, it doesn't work
- No
- Higher penalties should be for dogs who have demonstrated vicious behaviour, not innocent dogs and families. It doesn't make sense otherwise.
- Relaxation of leashing requirements in not busy areas. ie areas one would consider a trail
- The colored bandanas seems like a way for people to provoke and instigate conflict. If people can't control or train their offspring...ugh
- Singling a dog breed out is similar to singling out a race based on stereotypes. With proper training pitbulls are not dangerous.
- Maybe required dog awareness/training classes for the OWNERS, as much of the time, it is the fault/behavior of the owners, not the dogs.
- I do not own a dog. I want to make it known that breed specific legislation is abhorrent as an Albertan and a Calgarian. It isn't who we are
- By-laws and fines must have some nuance. If a dog bites because it is being provoked by an adult or a child this needs to be considered.
- Educating future dog owners.
- "Rescue dogs and dogs

- From a shelter should be required to
- Complete training with the new owner as rescue dogs
- Come with baggage."
- This is a bogus bylaw, any dog can bite and hurt someone. Hold the owner any dog breed more responsible. No breed specific bylaw
- I believe offering sterilization at a cheaper cost and not just low income to reduce the number of animals.
- No
- Breed specification should not be a factor in any bylaw.
- Disgusted to see such unevenced discrimination against Pit Bulls. You simply feed the cycle of stereotypes. Some good ideas otherwise.
- I think it's wrong to single out and put restrictions on pit bulls. Any breed can be vicious if not raised properly.
- This is wild to even think we are just gonna pass legislation, to segregate certain dog breeds. It's about how they are raised.
- BSL is important, don't walk backwards.
- Breed/Animal racism is not ok. Punishing specific animals for something they did not do isn't solving the problem. Educating would be better
- None
- Ban breed specific legislation. Aggressive dogs are a result of aggressive owners. Behavioural training for dog and owner would help
- Do not make any regulations based on breed
- Animals should be judged on their behavior and that of their owners on an individual basis.
- Owners should be given rules on etiquette in the off-leash areas.
- Na
- Pit bulls themselves are not dangerous. It is how they are treated/raised that sometimes creates an issue.
- Pit bulls are not the problem. My pit bull has been attacked by a lab and the owner just laughed as my dog tried to hide. This is biased.
- Breed specification should not be a factor at all. Any dog can be aggressive and those owners should be fined on a per case/situation basis
- I do not support a lower licensing fee for people with low income. It's only $40 a year and is an associated cost of owning a pet.
- We should NOT be discriminating against a single dog breed. Equal actions should be taken for all dog breeds. Pitbulls aren't vicious.
- I do not agree with specific breed legislation. It all has to do with the owner and how they train the dog, not the breed specifically
- More fully-fenced areas that are designated as single occupant use would be great for some of the reactive dogs to get exercise.

- If you already know that pit bull breeds don't bite more often make it more about responsible pet ownership rather than breeds in the future
- Mandatory new pet owner course for all breed. The problem is the people not the animal. Licensed dog breeders only, no 'backyard' breeders
- Some dog are aggressive and it's not the owners fault or their breed's fault. Proper handling of aggressive dogs is key = education.
- No
- It's not "all the owners fault";. But knowing how to handle ALL dogs is important. An aggressive dog can lead a happy life if handled well.
- There should be no pitbull related bylaws. Absolutely there should be bylaws for aggressive animals but not all pitbulls are aggressive.
- Banning specific breeds and creating special rules like "must wear a muzzle"; only increase breed stigma. Wrong direction in decision making.
- To encourage dog owners to train their dogs a discount could be offered after completing a basic obedience course
- Reviewing or changing the bylaw regarding animal aggression or bites should not be limited to breed.
- "pit bulls are not involved in more bite incidents than other dog breeds"; but "strength"; listed as the issue. How do we measure and control?
- Muzzle and no off leash privileges for all nuisance dogs. Muzzle training is not hard, if owners won't train or control pets, keep them home
- Indoor cats should not need a license.
- There should not be breed specific rules and laws.
- Dog bites are not particular to breed. Proper education is key, do not punish dogs for having bad owners.
- Restricting a specific breed, especially one that has a stigma, is just adding to that stigma. Pitbulls are not the issue, it's the owner.
- Stop with the breed specific legislation.
- I would much rather target irresponsible owners rather than specific breeds. The breeds have never been the problem.
- I do not agree with specific breed bylaws.
- Do not stigmatize pit bulls ! This is wrong ! Any breed dog has the potential to bite or be aggressive in the wrong hands !
- I am strongly against breed specific legislation. It is not warranted, this is based on peer reviewed literature and past experience.
- Track animal abusers and give lifetime ban on pet ownership
- Breed specific legislation is not effective. Education and training are.
- Discourage backyard breeders by requiring a business license to sell pets.

- I do not agree with specific breed rules. It all should revert to the owner and responsible pet ownership.
- BSL is nonsense. I have had pitbulls and Staffordshire Bull Terriers with no aggression issues . I support higher fines for nuisance dogs.
- Focus on educating owners. Don't start picking breeds out based on media fear mongering.
- Education is key.
- No BSL. All dogs incidents should be judged the same.
- Pigeons are vermin, and keeping them/breeding them should be against bylaw.
- Feedback: If the concern about dog bites is potential damage, why aren't you targeting all breeds with higher bite strength? NO BSL.
- Fenced areas for single dog or household dogs to get great exercise in would be a great option to allow dogs running room.
- For a city that prides itself on diversity and inclusion, I'm shocked that breed-specific legislation is being entertained.
- N/A
- Create a dog park specifically for small dogs aka the "grandma dogs". Dogs who 99% of the time start it then become the victim when attacked
- Please do not pass bylaws that are breed specific! Working in the rescue industry for years, a breed does not dictate behavior
- BSL is not effective, there is many well documented cities, in Canada, that have already tried implementing this.
- Instead of a by law based on breed specific dogs, cases should be investigated case by case. Owners are responsible for improper training.
- Yellow ribbons on a collar or leash are already very well known to many as a signal to give a dog space. But prohibit from off leash parks.
- Regulations specific to animal rescues
- Not be breed specific. As it's not just pitbulls it can be ANY animal with these problem areas
- pet licenses paid online, you get one tag which stays with your pet for life if you lose it you pay a small fee to replace
- Pit bulls should not be singled out. It is their owner's responsibility to know their dog and put them in situations that are safe for all.
- Stop discriminating against breeds of dogs especially pit bulls or bully breeds. All dogs can be dangerous in different situations.
- No to treating specific breeds differently. All breeds can be vicious if they're treated poorly. Harsher penalties for animal abusers
- Guard dog type working breeds have stronger jaws too. They also need to be included or the BLS is more bias than for proper safety of others
- How many times must it be said? It's lack of training, not the breed itself, that's the problem. Dobermans and Rottweilers are much worse.

- If you have indoor cats that are tattooed and chipped why do you need a license for them.. ours never leave the house.
- "Do NOT breed discriminate.
- Perhaps training for all dogs should be mandatory, especially for 1st time owners."
- Stop discriminating against bully breeds when small dogs are more aggressive.
- more education of responsible pet ownership is required. Its owners responsibility. Add mandatory dog classes with their fines.
- Calgary you lead the way for how a city should handle dangerous dogs. BSL shouldnt be on the table. BSL doesn't work!!
- Pitbulls are no more likely to bite than other breeds. These bylaw changes unfairly target any pitbull-like breed based on their look.
- "No to back yard breeders . They should have a license.
- Also I don't agree with pit bulls having tougher rulings ."
- I have no input but I'm really liking that you're asking the general public about opinions on all of this.
- Keeping out of control dogs at home is not the best solution. Dogs need training, exercise and socialization with other dogs. Some new owners!
- How is this even a proper survey? Breed specific bylaws should not even be a thing - look at the human that raises them.
- "Bite Force PSI: Kangal – 743
- Cane Corso–700
- Akita Inu-350-400
- Rottweiler-328
- Husky-320
- German Shepard-238
- Pitbull-235"
- I disagree with breed specific laws, incidents should be handled on a case by case basis.
- Bsl is a horrible idea. Bylaw should be based on investigating case by case, not based on looks alone.
- Pet licenses should be issued only after the potential owners have take a responsible per ownership course and cleared a test
- I do not support breed specific legislation or bans! I do agree indoor cats should not require licences
- Rather than penalizing pet owners with fines, more should be done to enforce mandatory behaviour training after an offense.
- Do more about repeat wandering cats and dogs, especially cats! Some people think it's their right to let their cats wander.
- I am against any dog type specific bylaws, but I believe any dog infraction should be followed up with some type of mandatory training.

- Roaming outdoor cats that have a home but owners choose to leave their window open to let them be in or out should be perfectly fine.
- It has been scientifically proven that other dogs are higher on the list than bully breeds for aggressive behavior as well as stronger bite.
- Specific dog breeds are not the issue. If there is a problem with a specific dog, the owner as well as the dog should require training.
- Don't just pick on pitbull breed. Most I've met are cuddly friends who are the best
- Thank you for your time
- A license should be required to sell any kind of animal. Requirements for granting the license could help stop the abuse from pet mills.
- Animal license cost need to be the same regardless of income. Proper care requires disposal income. Leave bully breeds alone.
- Breed Specific Legislation is terrible and outdated- I am appalled that the City of Calgary is even considering this.
- Breed specific rules is narrow minded generalization that wouldn't fly if applied to people (ie Charter Grounds). Ascinine idea is DOA.
- Survey questions were leading / yes or no answers when other circumstances weren't considered. Right now - limited space for ideas. :(
- NA-
- Quite questionable that pitbulls are not involved in more bite incidents yet they are the only breed with specific rules/bylaw proposals.
- It's time to move the "ownership" of domestic animals to "guardianship" since they're not objects.
- I don't think we should put dogs down, just train them to be better socialized. Also, additional fees or fines for pit bulls seem crazy.
- Dogs should not be allowed to remain outside to bark while the owners are at work, i.e., continual barking for 7 to 10 hours.
- Implementing BSL is a bad idea. I've been a victim of dog bites from small dogs, never a 'pit bull' breed. It is discriminatory.
- Education for children in schools on how to interact with dogs. Quit blaming the dog!
- Remove breed specific bylaws. Rather - make humans take training and obedience courses for owning a dog (like owning a car).
- BSL does not work. Education, training and enforcement of our current bylaw (which is one of the best in Canada) would be much more effective!!!
- The idea of breed specific laws is terrifying and sad it has been shown elsewhere that it does nothing to change the number of attacks.
- Stop breed discriminations it's harmful and ridiculous
- Take your attempt at BSL and shove it.
- Please do not walk into the trap of BSL. It was a tragic mistake made in the East and resulted in many "pitbulls" being euthanized. Shameful

- Thank you
- There are no bad dogs only bad owners. BSL is outdated and has shown to make no difference.
- "Pitbull" bites are no more dangerous than any other dog of a comparable size. Research shows this to be true.
- "I do not support any type of legislation that is breed specific!
- It should be case by case. Dogs just like children act how they're taught"
- It would be inhuman to ask dogs to stop barking. People can be sensitive to low barking and call 311. Level of noise needs to be defined
- Pit bulls are not the issue. They should be put in classes if they need help learning. Also we should not restrict the amount of animals all
- The max number of dogs should be 3, except special circumstances. The max cats should be higher: 10 as they are not as noisy, less smell.
- Stop BSL!! I doesn't help anyone. Don't blame the breed..
- Let's continue not singling out any breed, and offer more communication/education to the public about the folly of such.
- stop trying to limit peoples ability to own pitbulls. Higher punishments for bad dog owners by suspending their ability to care for dogs.
- Please don't assume all pit bulls are viscous. That is just not the case. Nor do they have stronger bite strength than other breeds.
- Don't judge a dog based on the way it looks or it's breed. Every single breed of dog can be aggressive or dangerous. Pit Bulls are not bad.
- The BSL is absolute garbage.Has never solved any issues and causes unnecessary stress pain and heartache to many responsible pet owners.
- "Bsl is ineffective and discriminatory.

- Responsible pet ownership should remain the focus."
- The proposed breed specific legislation in section 3 is appalling and will not work; focus on the irresponsible owners not the breed!
- With all these opposed to BSL stating how uneducated everyone else is, can we get programs in place to educate the public on what dogs are?
- I don't have any additional ideas at this time
- No
- There should be more requirements for owners regarding training if their pets are deemed problematic
- What does the city constitute as a "look alike pitbull?????" Also there just shouldn't be a ban
- not at this time
- D

- Breed specific bans are awful it should be based on dogs behaviours
- BSL doesn't make sense and I don't own a dog! This is the same as racism in animals. Bite force only comes into play IF the dog bites!!
- "It would be incredibly disappointing to see Calgary implement BSL.
- A unfair, uneducated punishment for many responsible pet owners"
- landlords should not be able to discriminate against pets of tenants and should have a maximum set for pet deposit or pet rent increase
- stop trying to push breed specific bylaws.
- License fees need to be drastically reduced, if not eliminated. A one time fee is necessary to register your animals. That is all.
- German Shepard's statistically bite the most often. GS can cause a fair amount of damage too. Should they be included in this discussion?
- BSL is discrimination in the same way that racism or sexism is. There are well behaved pitties and there are poorly behaved chihuahuas.
- NO dog should be discriminated by breed all dogs have potential to be loving friendly dogs or controlled by owners if not overly friendly.
- Good
- Pit bulls aren't aggressive by nature, it's highly dependent on the owner and how it's raised/environment, etc.
- Sliding scale for fines for multiple offenders (Animals and/or Owners)
- Stop discriminating against dog breeds...the issue should be about responsible owners.
- DONT. DISCRIMINATE. AGAINST. SPECIFIC. BREEDS.
- No
- No you pretty much covered everything on the agenda
- [personal information removed]
- instead of licensing the animal license the owner in thier ability to own, train and care for specific animals or breeds .. ie: bullybreeds
- No BSL! The local chihuahua has drawn blood but 3 pitbulls on the same street don't even growl. There are no bad dogs only bad owners.
- End BSL!
- I can't believe how discriminatory you are!
- German Shepherds and Rottweilers scientifically have stronger bite forces than "pitbulls". Why must "pitbulls" be singled out yet again?
- Stop discrimination against dog breeds
- I work in veterinarian medicine and the idea of BSL is absolutely archaic. ALL breeds of dogs have the potential to bite. Say no to BSL!!!
- no
- Stop discrimination against dog breeds. I've been attacked by more little dogs than pit bulls. Make the rules equal for all dogs! .

- In the violation portion of the survey you should have specified if it was on the dogs property or running at large
- Quit discriminating against "bully breeds"; case by case situations for dogs should be evaluated. I have been bitten by a chihuahua no pittys
- I suggest that pet owners be held responsible for their pets and not the pets themselves. An animals breed does not define its actions.
- When applying for a pet licence for the first time, not renewals, potential owner must first pass a responsible pet ownership course.
- No
- Stop discriminating against 'bully' breeds. Bad owners are the problem and always have been! I was bit by a Golden Retriever.
- Stop discriminating against bully breeds! What a pathetically archaic mentality. Very sad Calgary.
- It is ridiculous to discriminate against a breed for any reason. Accountability for ALL pet owners is needed
- "I think that if people volunteer to complete a responsible
- Pet ownership course they should receive a discounted licensing fee."
- Don't be breed specific. You look stupid and makes Calgary look awful
- Breed specific legislation is like racism for dogs. Shame on you calgary!
- There should be a streamlined option for neighbour to complain about excessively barking dogs, where system generates a letter to send owner
- Stop discriminating against bully breeds. You should be doing more to hold the owner accountable and stop blaming a breed.
- Someone specialized in bite work should be evaluating the dogs that bite. There are to many variables to generalize a dog bite
- quit trying to make large animals out to be bad animals. its always always smaller dogs that are more violent. the stats say this
- No
- Bsl is stupid. Any dog can be aggressive. Because of their bite force is not a good reason to target certain breeds
- No
- Every dog (well, owner) needs training, regardless of breed. BSL is rubbish.
- This has already been covered but 6! Dogs! and 6! Cats! I know of no one household that could provide excellent care for that many!
- I think the BLS law is [removed] as any dog can bit it is not always the dogs fault I've been bitten more times by Little dog
- "STOP BREED BULLYING!!!!
- This is disgusting that the city of Calgary is actually considering this. Do Better."
- Do not approve breed specific legislation. That's almost synonymous with racism. Do not stereotype them.

- NO TO BREED SPECIFIC BYLAWS
- NA
- Yes the government should be paying the people money for even considering making people pay a fine for a dog barking !This is all about cash
- If a dog shows aggressive behaviors then deal with that specific dog! Don't go after a specific breed!!!
- I am disappointed in Calgary city councils decision to make this city more exclusive yet again.
- All the times my dogs have been attacked, and there's been a few, it's small breed dogs. I've also been attacked by small breed dogs as well
- .
- Agree with some other comments, it's 2020 stop bullying and discriminating on looks of a dog.
- Stop breed bullying and allow people to own whatever type of dog they wish and all be treated fairly.
- Breed specific legislation is wrong. Don't punish breeds. Punish irresponsible owners. Dangerous dogs come in all shapes and sizes.
- If a dog has aggressive behaviours then go after that specific dog - didn't attack a specific breed
- In 2020 Ontario is looking to repeal their pit bull ban, it did not reduce the amount of dog bites, so BSL does not work. Education is key.
- Get off your breed specific high horse. Educate people about owning pets.
- NO BREED SPECIFIC LEGISLATION IN CALGARY!!!!
- No suggestions
- Stop blaming "pitbulls " or trying to make examples out of them. 99.9% of these dogs are very gentle loving big lap dogs.
- Stop singling out one type or breed of dogs!
- Toddlers in off leash parks is poor judgement. Dogs are chasing each other and may run into the kids. Not aggressive just having fun.
- Agression happens in EVERY breed. Stop trying to ban pit bulls! The more you restrict the more you will have people breaking the law.
- Stop demonizing pittbulls and concern yourself with non bias views instead of always saying pitbulls are the issue
- Breed specific legislation is wrong.
- Stop discriminating animals by their looks/breeds/etc . All pet owners should take pet care courses.
- No
- I think it's disgusting that you are choosing to focus on breed specific legislation. Shame on you. It's discriminatory.
- Lose the pit bull legislation. If your reasoning is their strength, then the list of dogs restricted would be MUCH longer.
- I can not believe that the city is thinking about bed specific legislation. Dog and dog owners need proper training and education.

- You should not be targeting pitbulls specifically. That is like saying stronger men should not be allowed to do certain things.
- It is the owners at fault when a dog is vicious not the breed. The city of Calgary calling the terrier breed a nuisance is a disgrace.
- "We cannot discriminate breeds. Period.
- Education on animal care and support to those unable to continue proper care needed"
- It's not a breed issue, it's an owner / training issue. NO to anything breed specific.
- Spay/neuter feral cats but instead of releasing them, have a program for feral cats to be mice catchers on farms. Feral cats kill many birds
- Specific Breeds are the problem, make owners take their nuisance animals to obedience classes as well as a fine.
- This is bullying pit bulls and pit bull owners. I am disgusted by the "breed ism"; in this bill. Shame on you calgary.
- This is no different then saying a certain race of people commit crimes...Just cause it is an animal doesn't mean it isn't discrimination...
- make much larger fines to people that exploit animals or train them to be violent. ban them from ever allowing them to own an animal again.
- No
- No breed discrimination is required. Deal with bites/attacks on a case by case basis.
- Amend reptile bylaws with input and guidance from knowledgeable and responsible groups, such as TARAS
- Any animal can be dangerous, Responsibility falls upon the owner to mitigate the behaviour. Public education is key to preventing bites.
- "Pit bull and pit bull type dogs"; Are NOT the problem. Please stop discriminating against these dogs and look at the other end of the leash!
- Breed specific legislation is ineffective and wrong
- Yes, breed-specific legislation is necessary. People who say otherwise are overlooking the statistics of severe bites.
- No I don't
- No
- Breed specific legislation is unhelpful. Aggressive dogs come in all shapes and sizes and are usually the product of poor training.
- I am completely disappointed and disgusted in Calgary for even thinking of a breed ban! Used to be a proud Calgarian this is just pathetic
- quit blaming certain dog breeds, that's actually being quite racist
- Breed-specific legislation is very wrong, people get bit by little yappy untrained unsocialized dogs than they do by "pit bull"; types
- BSL is NOT the answer. Doesn't matter the breed of the dog. If the owner doesn't train the dog properly, the dog can be dangerous.

- I've encountered more issues with untrained small breed dogs than anything else. The breed is not the issue, it's the owners.
- Pit bulls are not the problem. Come on Calgary, we are better than that
- No ideas
- No
- Stop discriminating against breeds! Change the conversation/stigma
- Don't be closed minded!!! It's outrageous you think 'pitbulls and pitbull like dogs are more aggressive than a chihuahua! Muzzle those dogs!
- Need to deal with actual abrasive dogs. Not just dogs that look like they could be aggressive. There aren't bad dogs. Just bad dog owners.
- "All dogs no matter size or breed should be treated the same!
- Just like humans!!"
- Na
- "Breed specific legislation is wrong.
- All dogs should require obedience training. Two per person should be Max. Can we regulate kids too?!"
- "Pit bull and pit bull type dogs"; Are NOT the problem. Please stop discriminating against these dogs, HUMANS ARE THE PROBLEM NOT DOGS .
- Breed Specific Laws are unjust and cruel. The breed is not the problem. Mishandling of the animal and humans are the issue
- I 100% DO NOT SUPPORT the City's ideas of breed specific legislation. This is absolutely unnecessary and completely unwarranted.
- There should be higher fees and regulations for backyard breeders. They should have to get inspected for being given a breeding license
- Something needs to change to enforce offleash dogs in public areas. Dogs should always be on a leash.
- Discriminating against certain breeds is wrong. All pets have the potential to cause issues without proper training and care.
- I don't believe in breed specific legislation. It's not the breed of dog it's bad owners and lack of training people.
- Please do not ban bully breeds. Any dog can be dangerous if not properly trained. Chihuahua's are more aggressive than most large dogs!
- Maybe focus on prevention and rehabilitation rather than punishment which we know is ineffective. Wasted tax dollars honestly
- Breed Specific Legislation is definitely not the answer.
- The city assumes citizens understand appropriate behaviour in animals, a large majority do not. Further education would go a long way.
- more education in school about pets and animals will allow other nationalities to appreciate pet ownership

- BSL doesn't work!!!!!! See Ontario for reference. Dog bites and attacks are still high even with BSL. Stricter fines for offenders...
- Dog Breed specific law enforcement is unfair and dated.
- BSL is wrong, not only does it support that certain breeds are more dangerous it plays a huge role in miss information on stereotyped dogs
- From experience my dog (pitbull mix) has been attacked by TWO small dogs just this year. Singling out one breed isn't the answer
- No
- The same person is writing you over and over again, pleading about not banning pit bulls. Ban that person!
- Dog breed specific bylaws create many more problems than they solve. Increase fines for backyard breeders and institute licensing fees
- N/a
- Pit bulls owners should not have to jump through extra hoops based solely on the breed of their dog. It should be based on behavior.
- Discriminating Pitbulls is appalling! Pits are extremely loving dogs! Did you know small dogs bit more often??? Humans are the problem!!
- No
- Breed specific laws are not fair to responsible owners. Put more responsibility on dog owners. It's proven BSL does not work.
- Breed specific legislation simply doesn't work. It doesn't reduce the number of dog bites - education and training does. Do better Calgary!
- All animals musy be spayed or neutered unless you buy a breeders license. There are too many backyard breeders NO BREED SPECIFIC LAWS!!!!!!
- The whole pitbull section is ridiculous. Shame on you. Will definitely and happily move away if this is the case.
- Your downtown core is VIAL!!!!
- Should allow farm duck, pheasants and other egg laying foul in Calgary. Have a limit and ensure they are kept proper.
- "noticed problems with bike users and dogs which always escalate when the biker stops and attacks the dog with bike
- Very bad decisi"
- AGAIN a responsible pet ownership course with a decent monetary amount in order to be able to own a bully breed dogs. owners are the problem
- Bad care = bad animals. There needs to be a program for people to be able to report owners that are causing the issue.
- NEUTER your bully. It causes conflict between dogs. Unfortunately you're dogs a good fighter...
- No breed specific legislation. Training is key.

- I do not support DBS bylaws. Please focus on the specific nuisance animals and irresponsible owners.
- I think it is wrong to have breed-specific legislation. I think your questions regarding pit bulls are uncalled for and continue stigma
- BSL has been shown to have no effect why is Calgary even considering such ridiculous rules?
- I do not support breed specific legislation, it is cruel and unnecessary. The breed is not the problem, people are.
- N/A
- Breed-specific legislation is NOT the answer! Stop discriminating.
- none
- The owners of nuisance dogs should be required to complete extensive dog training. It's the owner's fault, not the dog's.
- I DO NOT Support Breed Specific Legislation!! Completely Unnecessary.
- No BSL please. My dogs face resembles a pitbull and she's not. She's a mixed breed. But she would be condemned by this bylaw
- I think it's sick that you're actively pursuing breed specific legislation. I'm disgusted and embarrassed to be a calgaryian right now. Stop
- No
- You shouldn't make your decision on a specific breed. I own a pitty and she is the most gentle soul I have ever owned. Don't judge a breed.
- N/a
- N/A
- Restricted owners list for those who have multiple infractions and continue to put animals safety at risk
- Punish irresponsible pet owners, not any specific breeds. Pit bulls are wonderful dogs and when raised right no dog or breed is dangerous.
- Discrimination against pitbull's, Rottweilers, Dobermans and any protective breed is based solely on fear! They are most loving of all
- NO to BSL yes to responsible pet ownership. Cannot paint every pit bull type dog with the same brush!
- There is a huge difference between a "nuisance" animal being a barker and a biter. Questions should be much more specific in regards to that
- Breed specific laws are ridiculous, and the city should not support them.
- Nice to see you don't have better things to focus on, say like a pandemic? Instead, you are choosing to look at a by-law that doesn't work
- DO NOT BAN PITBULLS. IT IS BECAUSE OF THE OWNERS, NOT THE DOG BREED. DON'T DO [removed] HERE LIKE ONTARIO.
- Your outright discrimination to pitbulls is disgusting

- More patrolling and fines for people walking their dogs off leash in on leash areas. It poses a huge risk to safety of other dogs and people
- Punish behaviours, not the dog breed. All dogs should be mandated to attend obedience training.
- No BSL
- The pit bull ban is such an unnecessary program to flirt with. If ANY breed shows aggression, make training mandatory with the fine. (1/2)
- No idea
- I'm so disappointed that Calgary is even talking about BSL. SHAME ON YOU. I thought we were a progressive city - guess not.
- I am so disappointed in the extremely ignorant suggestion for BSL. my brother was bit golden retriever proof all dogs can be aggressive
- Do not want to have breed specific legislation in Calgary. Deal with nuisance dogs on a case by case basis
- Breed-specific laws were implemented in the 90s in the US they all have been reversed because they don't work. Do some research!
- Targeting a specific breed is unacceptable! Focus needs to put on bad pet owner's!
- No BSL....only bad owners.
- Additional animal behavioural training for bylaw officers, so they understand reactivity vs. aggression.
- I am glad the Calgary has so few problems we can spend the time and resources to limit dog ownership, or cat ownership, or chicken ownership
- I'm disheartened to hear that the city of Calgary would discriminate against certain dog breeds.
- Please stop focusing on BSL This has been consistently disproven and by highlighting this, you are perpetuating an incorrect stereotype.
- People that want to own any dog breed that is deemed 'dangerous' should have to go thru a rigorous application process to determine suitability
- Focusing on one breed is the problem. The problem is irresponsible owners. Get your acts together. Montreal even ditched this bylaw!!
- Singling out pitbulls is breed discrimination. There are other breeds that are known for attacks. If you're getting a dog, educate yourself!
- Treat all pets equally. German shepherds are actually more unpredictable than a pit bull but you don't seem to have specific laws for them!
- I think it's wrong you guys are trying to target a specific "breed" of dog. Look at the problem dog not a breed. That's as bad as racism.
- I'm extremely concerned about proposed restrictions on "pit bull" type dogs. Data shows BSL does not reduce occurrence of severe dog bites.
- I just really don't support the Pitbull [removed].
- I don't support breed specific legislation in any form. Please don't forget there are no bad dogs, just bad owners. Fine them.

- Instead of punishing the owners and the breed, consider investing in education for pet owners. Breed specific legislation is wrong.
- No
- No BSL. Bad dogs are a reflection of bad ownership, there is no such thing as bad breeds. Muzzles only make people more afraid of bullies.
- Banning or discriminating against a dog because of its breed is ridiculous. Dangerous actions need to be dealt with. BSL does not work.
- discrimination against breeds does not solve the problem of dog aggression and bites. Owner education and responsibility, and dog training do.
- You should be ashamed trying to take away people's beloved fur babies you make me sick and you all should be locked up not the fur babies
- You want to stop racism yet your willing to regulate breeds. Is that not the same just cause they are dogs it's no different
- It's unethical to have breed-specific legislation. Focus on responsible pet ownership, education and training.
- No BSL, a dog's temperament cannot and should not be judged by its breed. Stronger consequences for vicious dogs like mandatory training
- Feces removal programs should be provided by the city at a reduced rate (similar to current trash/composts/recyclables programs)
- No
- Owners are the problem not pit bulls.
- A law prohibiting feed breed to local ducks and geese as it makes them very sick
- Breed Specific Legislation is completely unnecessary and discriminatory. Nuisance dogs should be dealt with on an individual basis.
- Calgary has long been looked at as a positive example of a city who does not use BSL yet has effective dog policies - don't change that.
- No BSL please. Both of my dogs heads resemble a Pitbull, but neither of them are. They are mixed breeds, both rescues, and both so gentle.
- Please don't bring in rules singling out pitbulls or other specific breeds. It's analogous to racism. Instead, focus on individual dogs.
- BSL is heartbreaking to those whose pet is a model citizen, which is most of them. Instead use money to shut down puppy mills, etc.
- More education for people, Usually bad dogs are the result of bad owners. Pitbulls have gotten a bad rap over just this situation
- Nothing at this time
- I do not support breed specific legislation. The breed is not the problem, people are.
- All pet owners should be held responsible for their pets... Dog owners should have obedience training and have each dog they own trained.
- I do not support breed specific bylaws. All breeds and sizes can be aggressive and reactive. Owners fault

- BSL is disgusting, and would cause undue trauma to many innocent animals.
- No
- "Disgusting that you are considering BREED specific legislation!
- Owner legislations and fines ONLY!"
- N/a
- I think it's ridiculous that you're thinking of making specific laws for pitbulls. I own one and he's the sweetest and most gentle dog.
- Do not enact BSL in Calgary.
- If the owner allows the dog to bark excessively they should be given 3 chances to correct the situation. If not, look into the dogs safety
- Breed specific legislation (even using the excuse of bite strength) is not okay. Make it harder for bad owners to own dogs.
- NO BREED SPECIFIC LEGISLATION!
- Do not go through with BSL! One specific breed is not the cause - it will always be the owner! Don't hurt the poor dogs due to bad ownership
- Assuming that a dog is dangerous just because of the way it looks is ridiculous. The owner of a dog, regardless of the breed is the Issue.
- Regardless of breed, if a dog injures another dog and/or human, the offending dog's owner should have to pay all expenses faced by victim.
- Need better enforcement on picking up after your pet and disposal, to many pet owner think bagging is enough. Bag it and dispose of it.
- NO BSL!! It has been proven to be COMPLETELY ineffective in dealing with nuisance dogs. It will flood rescues and cause animals to suffer!
- Breed specific Legislation is a step backwards It isn't helpful , putting responsibility back on the owners is.
- BSL has been proven time and time again it does NOT work. Is there not a better use of time and budget to be discussing?
- I think it is unfair to single out certain breeds of dogs. If you are going to muzzle a dog it should be only dogs with a history of biting.
- No breed specific legislation. Terrible that some dog owners might have to chose between keeping only one of their "pitbull” dogs!
- People who don't like animals shouldn't antagonize dogs, for dog to chase or bite them.Owner who train the dog to be mean, need 2 be charged
- PLEASE do not enforce BSL. This punishes all the responsible pet owners.
- Continue to be an example to other jurisdictions with fair, science based bylaws that do NOT target specific breeds, but keeps owners accoun
- The breed specific inclusions to the bylaws ("pit bull specific) is ridiculous. Stop vilifying breeds.
- No

- No
- Many breeds have powerful jaws. Many breeds are more likely to bite. After many years as a trainer I am far more cautious around shepherds
- Breed specific laws fail to focus on the core issue of dangerous pets; dangerous owners. Owners need to be held accountable for "bad breeds";
- No more paying to register your dog or cat.
- We should be educating people on dog behaviour and teaching people not to approach strangers' pets without permission.
- I don't support breed specific legislation in any form. Please don't forget there are no bad dogs, just bad owners. Fine and train the owner
- No further comment
- there needs to be more behavior classes available for dogs, young and older!
- Breed specific legislation never worked, it should not still be coming up. Any dog can bite. Pit bull breeds are people pleasers.
- I want 6 mini goats for naked goat yoga.
- Breed-specific legislation is a lazy and inappropriate way to handle nuisance animals. What a waste of time and money to even think about it
- The owners of any animal is responsible for the aggressive behaviour and should not be permitted to keep or have a dog.
- Special classes for owners who have nuisance animals after two or three incidents; mandatory obedience classes and check ups afterwards.
- The breed you lump together as pit bull is not the problem. Any dog can be vicious. The problem is the owners, not the animal.
- Why are we limiting these bylaws to just pit bulls. I had an encounter with Dobermans that was extremely scary. Not pitbulls.
- Breed specific legislation is going to create more issues than solve. ALL dogs have the ability of being aggressive IF NOT TRAINED PROPERLY
- A vicious dog is a vicious dog, small or large. Small purse and lap dogs tend to be more aggressive in public areas
- Do not enact BSL. It's archaic thinking. There are bad owners not breeds.
- You can't judge a person by the color of their skin, don't judge a dog by the shape of its head or body.
- Don't punish bully breeds!
- the focus on pitbulls and those who resemble a pitbull is absolutely absurd. EVERY DOG has the ability to bite/attack.
- BSL is terrible, I do not support it at all.
- BSL is a bad idea. Many pitbulls are peaceful dogs and do no harm to anyone. In dog stress tests they scored second to labrador retrievers.
- Dog walkers should not be allowed to walk more than 3 dogs

- Alienating a specific breed, such as pitbulls, is a form of racism against animal breeds. It should be owner specific.
- BSL is antiquated and should NEVER be considered. Pitbulls are not more dangerous than any other. Proper training is key for all dogs!
- Breed Specific Legislation is NOT THE ANSWER. Deal with nuisance dogs case by case. Do not punish an entire breed! Bully lives matter too.
- Do not put in BSL! It's not fair to punish everyone for the sins of a few! Most pit bulls are lovely dogs!
- no
- Higher Fines for Constant BARKING dogs.
- None
- No
- A dog has the mental capacity of a toddler. Dogs are a product of their environment same as a child. Good home = good dog. Breedism=racism
- Breed specific legislation is archaic. Focus on the owner not the breed!!
- One free "finder's fee" for animals at large (obviously meant for the accidently occurrences) if your animal is licenced.
- Its not usually the "bad dog”, it's more often a "bad dog owner”,. Some people just aren't meant to have dogs or cats.
- BSL is a load of BS. You are punishing a lot of people and dogs that have never ever showed aggressive behavior to anything not even a fly
- The 6 limit is completely erroneous and unnecessary. The Humane Society already employs a team Peace Officers to deal with cases of neglect.
- Bylaw needs more enforcement of not cleaning up after animals and dogs off-leash in areas like Griffith woods.
- Breed specific legislation Makes the city look uneducated. I've been bitten by 2 dogs, a German shepherd and a springer spaniel. Not a pit!
- i do not support breed discrimination. I do support that every dog no matter the breed is trained well.
- Round the world BSL has been shown NOT to work. Why are you resorting to this?
- I am appalled by the breed specific angle - including if a dog "looks like a pit bull”,. Go after the bad owners, not the dogs...
- Bull breeds are no more a danger than other breeds
- Breed Specific legislation is plain wrong. Met way more nice pit bulls working in vet clinics than nice shitzus or chihuahuas.
- Breed Specific Legislation is absolutely absurd. Smaller dogs are more likely to bite someone and the only difference is its not reported.
- I don't support breed restrictions of any kind. They can be required training.
- When you go to license your dog, the person should have to provide a copy of the dogs obedience training certificate. Make it mandatory.

- QUIT BLAMING THE DOG/BREED!!!!!! START BLAMING THE OWNERS FOR NOT PROPERLY TRAINING THEIR ANIMALS!!!!!! I support pit bulls 100%
- Education is key! Funds designated for training people with 'Nuisance' dogs so they can get help. Often not the animal but poor knowledge
- Stop breed specific legislation.
- specific breeds are not the problem, bad (or uneducated) owners are. DO NOT put restrictions on certain breeds, put them on the problem dogs
- I do not support breed specific legislation. Training and education is key, not fear.
- Behavior is learnt it's not a breed of dog it's an owner teaching his dog to be aggressive stop discrimination against dog breeds
- Number of chickens, or any animal, subject to the yard area available. Townhouses are not good place to have multiple animals
- Breed specific legislation is terrible. It's irresponsible owners that make bad dogs. Not breeds.
- Breed specific legislation does not do anything to help prevent dog bite attacks. It is all about responsible training and ownership.
- When you where in class, did you enjoy when the teacher gave EVERY one a punishment because two kids wouldn't shut up? Leave breeds alone.
- No
- Yes to BSL, unless you can enforce mandatory dog and owner training.
- I'm disappointed to see my city talking about pit bulls this way. Pit bulls are sweet and loving and should not be seen as dangerous.
- Being allowed 6 dogs or cats is ridiculous. I
- no
- Why are bully breeds singled out? There are so many other breeds with higher bite problems.
- No
- No ideas
- I don't support breed specific legislation in any form. there are no bad dogs, just bad owners.
- Don't ban breeds! It's not a breed that causes the problem it's lack of training or teaching on the owners' part.
- It is absolutely disgusting that you have decided to try to discriminate against bully breeds. Shame on you
- Singling out a specific dog breed will not solve anything. Very disappointed that this is something Calgary has even brought to the table
- We need to educate the humans on proper training and care for our dogs. Why are the pit bulls alone getting dragged down for human incompetence
- Focusing on 1 breed is the problem, it's irresponsible owners. Not much different than a vehicle owner, it's fine until the owner drives it.
- I take great offense to breed specific inclusions. Any dog can be an issue and I found this discriminatory ideology in the survey offensive.

- I think you should spent your time in more important matters, like how to give more support to low income families or the homeless.
- Do not make anything breed specific. Small dogs bite more often than large dogs and can cause bad infections. Force owners of badly behaved
- I like to say that I am REALLY against BSL.It states right in this survey that Pit Bulls are not responsible for Increased incidences.
- Education for poor owners and the general public on what is acceptable behavior around dogs, not discriminate against certain breeds
- People need to be educated and informed. Stop stereotyping and labeling pitbulls as an aggressive breed.
- ANY dog with aggression or bite history should be a nuisance dog, bully breeds should NOT be grouped into this category. BSL is [removed].
- Do not discriminate on breed.
- Having more areas where dogs are allowed on leash in public spaces. Having more patios open to allow dogs, and allowing fresh water for them
- More support to train pets. Some people don't have the means and all pets deserve a chance. This will prevent high shelter numbers.
- BSL is a disgusting way to treat pet by-laws. Don't punish the animals. They deserve time at the park, walks without muzzles, and respect.
- Bad owners should not be reflected on animal breeds. Fees and access is high for a city that doesnt maintain off leash parks well.
- I believe in Education. Have programs in schools, teach kids from a young age appropriate animal care and ownership. Then we will see change
- I do not support breed specific legislation; has been shown in other jurisdictions to not be effective and is not fair.
- I do not support breed specific legislation.
- Spend more time on real important issues, there should be a one time license fee for the life of the animal and more fines for abusers.
- No breed legislation
- Stop focusing on the breeds and focus on the owners; you've clearly stated these breeds aren't responsible for more dog bites than others.
- "Please make training mandatory for all dog owners.
- We owe it to all breeds of dogs to give them a fair chance to function in our society"
- Don't have any
- Stop targeting pit bulls and larger breeds. Parents need to educate their children about approaching dogs.
- Fine and train owners!!!
- Breed specific legislation of any form is a thing of the past, this shouldn't even be an area of concern for the city of Calgary

- No
- Pit bulls should not be deemed nuisance dogs because of their breed. I am so disappointed Calgary. BSL is NOT the answer.
- Breed specific legislation is absolutely wrong! I've had worse times with small 'family' dogs than any pitbul or bully breed. Redneck much
- The proposed rules around pit bulls are ridiculous and not science-based.
- People should be educated on not approaching anyone else's pet in a public setting, unless there is expressed permission.
- Require attendance of a class on cat/dog behavior, basic obedience and practical pet ownership within 6-12 months of acquiring pet!
- No
- Why are we singling out pitbulls? There are other dogs who are just as dangerous, if not more. No BSL. Target the [removed] owners, not the dog
- I don't think it's fair to single out pitbulls and Staffys as it's not the dog who is aggressive but the owner who doesn't teach them
- Pit bull breeds don't deserve to be treated differently because they are strong owners should be responsible for training them and withholding.
- "Stop discriminating animals by their looks/breeds/etc . All pet owners should be responsible equally. BSL IS NOT THE ANSWER!!
- The rules should be the same for all dogs regardless of breed. Harsh penalties for nuisance owners should be enforced regardless of dogbreed
- Hello.
- By-Laws targeting Specific Breeds is prejudicial. It's punishing an animal for what the owner has trained it (or not trained it) to do.
- Breed specific legislation does nothing to reduce animal attacks/bites. Studies have been done in various cities across Canada.
- DO NOT put in breed specific laws about pitbulls! They do not work. The dog isn't the problem poor ownership is
- Allow for bee keeping
- Cats should have the same enforcement laws as dogs. These laws should be enforced.
- No
- I do not support any breed specific legislations in any form. Educate and assess the owners, don't just fine them.
- Breed specific legislation is not ok. An entire breed should not be considered a nuisance. I do not support this at all. Bully lives matter!
- I've witnessed 2 severe dog bites, neither was a pitbull. Breed specific bans don't eliminate severe bites. Stop vilifying breeds
- Calgary should not implement a breed specific legislation. Training should be mandatory for dog owners. Poor dog control is the issue.

- License discounts for pets that have Trupanion.
- Save the bully breeds. They don't need to be museled, they're just like any other breed of dogs.
- Breed specific bylaws are not acceptable. Education, obedience classes, and dealing with specific problem dogs are far more effective.
- I don't support Breed Specific Legislation as I don't think it achieves its intended purpose.
- I do not support BSL as data suggests it does not make a significant difference to protecting society from aggressive dogs.
- There should not be legislation that is Breed Specific. All instances should be dealt with on a case by case scenario.
- Bylaw for cats running a large. Cats must remain on your property at all times unless they are on a harness walking with a person
- Put more emphasis on the owners of the animals that present a danger. Huge fines for those involved with dog fighting and stealing dogs.
- There should not be BSL in this city! Any and all laws should apply to all breeds. All breeds should have proper training!
- Stay away from the pit bulls that are not the only dog in the world that can be bad
- BSL is wrong. Treat things on a case by case. If ANY DOG of ANY breed proves to be untrustworthy, then enforce more restrictions on that dog
- The pit bull thing makes about as much sense as keeping black people in shackles because they are black. Give your heads a shake.
- The idea that any "blockheaded" dog may be punished by looks alone is sheer ignorance. Breed discrimination does not solve problems!
- Pit bulls are one of the nicest dogs. Having that bylaw is frankly stupid. And it's being racist.
- I think it's BS that the city is singling out 'pit bull' type dogs. We have an English staffy and she is the friendliest dog. Ban Chihuahuas
- Owners of any dog deemed a nuisance, regardless of the breed, should be held accountable. I do not support BSL. Shame on you City of Calgary
- Offleash dogs in non offleash areas needs attention. Both my dogs were attacked by off leash dogs. Leash should be required in all public
- Breed Specific Legislation is a very slippery slope, and I'm outraged at the blatant bias City of Calgary has displayed in this survey.
- It is cruel to judge an animal based on breed. No breed is inherently aggressive. Bring attention to rehabilitation training not euthanasia.
- The singling out of pit bulls is breed specific bullying. All dogs can bite. Obedience training should be mandatory for all dog owners.
- Fence and separate all off leash areas. Otherwise it guarantees injuries/user conflicts. NO ONE can 100% guarantee dog behaviour. Lawsuits!
- No
- Keep BSL out of the conversation. Discrimination against a certain breed does nothing to ensure responsible pet ownership.

- BSL is a step backwards in time. It is discriminatory against dogs and owners, and does not address irresponsible pet ownership and abuse.
- Please don't make it harder on the good owners/pittys just because of the breed. And make it more about irresponsible owners/handling.
- Punish the deed, not the breed. Breed Specific Legislation is archaic and ridiculous.
- Many other breeds have higher bite strength than pits. This is breed discrimination. A dog's threat is determined by how/if they're trained.
- BSL is the worst idea! The dog is not the issue, the owner is. If the owner can not control their animal then they shouldn't be able to own.
- No
- veterinarians could handle licensing but pet stores being able to do that would create too much accessibility and not enough accountability.
- The problem with pets is always in the owner. Pet owners should have to pass testing and licensing in order to own pets.
- Waiving of pet license fee for low income is not a good idea, will encourage multiple animals in house, which can't afford medical care.
- Banning breeds won't solve the problem. Rather, require owners of nuisance dogs to take extra training, subsidized if needed.
- The city needs to focus on dogs/cats and owners that cause issues without focusing on one specific breed. #PitBullLivesMatter.
- Remove unfair pit bull rule and start putting stricter rules around breeders and adoption qualification.
- Pit bulls should absolutely, 100%, never be treated differently than any other large breed dog. It is unfair and is discrimination.
- BSL is not the answer!! Holding owners of all breeds and sizes to the same standard of pet ownership is!! A bite is a bite, full stop.
- There needs to be consequences for people who instigate problems with pets. I believe it is most often NOT the animals fault.
- Provide access to affordable dog training. I.e. special dog area in a library with access to YouTube dog training videos.
- I do not support penalizing pit bulls and their owners, or any other specific breed. All pets should be treated equal, just like people.
- Pit bulls/Bully breeds should not be penalized for their size/the way they look. Usually these dogs are gentle and loving, no extra measures
- Require "service dogs" or "emotional support dogs" owners to provide CERTIFICATION from accredited organizations, not a vest from Amazon.
- Attempting to pass Pitbull focused changes is horrendous. Have you SEEN a dogs way home!? It is fiction yes, but with so much truth to it
- breed specific legislation creates false fears in people, and false sense of security around "safe" breeds that cause just as much harm.
- No breed restrictions

- I'm concerned with the idea of lowering licensing fees for low income. If they can't afford the fee how can they afford food or vet bills?
- More education for dog owners and no breed restrictions
- I've seen more attacks from dash hounds and Chihuahuas. This fear of pitbulls and other listed breeds is absurd.
- I do not support breed specific legislation.
- stop focusing on specific breeds, there are no bad dogs, only poor owners. Lifetime license would be great for dogs and cats.
- I think if a pet has been Micro chipped that they don't also need to be licensed. I feel these are the same thing.
- Banning specific breeds will not solve any of the issues addressed in the proposed bylaws. It is the owner who is responsible for their pet.
- Giving bylaw officers the ability to use judgement when handing out fines and requiring a greater burden of proof on complainant.
- I am so disappointed to see YYC even investigating the implementation of BSL. Please, continue to set the example and stay breed neutral!
- You'd think in this day in age we would understand that going after one type of breed is discrimination! Making a bylaw on looks, c'mon now.
- An owner of a dog who is deemed a nuisance, REGARDLESS OF THE BREED, should be held responsible. Do not punish an entire breed. NO TO BSL!
- Breed specific laws are archaic and unfair to the animals. If the dog is well trained and behaved breed is irrelevant.
- Noise, the hours people can visit green belts, school fields, playgrounds restricted to , 9 am to 9 pm. To reduce noises for those near by.
- New owners REQUIRE dog training. Certificate from certified trainer precludes future need for training.
- More about breed specific bans - pit bulls specifically. They weren't addressed in phase 2
- "Train pet/cmpn/lvestck owners (part of licence rqrmt)
- Licence presence in off-leash parks
- Ad-Train public on dog approach etiquette"
- If you need a special colour bandanna to warn others about your dog, it shouldn't be off leash in a public area. Good idea for onleash dogs.
- I am guessing the people making this up do not own or know any of the bully breeds personally. I bet they only know what they see on TV. sad
- Breed specific legislation is not helpful to the community. Stop lumping all pit bull type dogs into nuisance bylaw.
- City should provide free health care to all the pets of low income Calgarians , if they wish to wave the license fee for low income homes
- Pit bulls are not the issue, it's the owners and the way that dogs are raised. All dog breeds can be aggressive if not trained properly!

- Don't agree with Breed Specific legislation. Why does the dog have to pay for the owners lack of education on training.
- Bylaws are in place to protect pets, owners and the community, this isn't offering any reasonable protection for our responsible dog owners.
- Get outta here with the breed specific bylaws. My small dog is more of an [removed] than any pitbull we have encountered at the dog park!
- It is ridiculous that a dog should be judged on appearance or breed. Proven aggressive behavior is the only reason to ban a particular dog.
- This is misinformed, ignorant and bolsters a stereotype that instills misplaced judgement and fear towards bully breeds; educate yourselves.
- Give free training then you can make sure the dogs are trained and the owner is responsible.
- Breed Specific Legislation is wrong and should not be considered here at all
- I'm not on board with the Pitbull Muzzling and banning. Golden Retrievers bite more than Pits, but you don't see anything about that.
- Do not believe in bred discrimination... small dogs bit more often.
- I think all dog bites should be reported no matter how insignificant. Then people will see that small dogs actually bite a lot more often.
- Bylaws protect pets, owners and the community. BSL offers no reasonable protection for responsible pet owners and well-behaved bullies.
- I think it's insane that we're considering an anti-science thing like restricting certain breeds. Dog behavior is moulded by the owner.
- Breed specific muzzling penalizes the good apples!
- No breed specific legislation. Period.
- Irresponsible pet ownership should be addressed, without punishing the "look" of a dog. I do not support breed specific legislation.
- Breed specific legislation is unscientific. Instead, focus energy on increased support for owners, access to training, etc.
- Breed Specific Legislation is unreasonable and not supported by science . Golden retrievers have the most reported incidents of biting.
- There should be NO discrimination against pit bull breeds. Specifically when you note that the research shows they are not dangerous.
- Barking collars
- Do not discriminate Pitbulls!
- "No BSL
- One time license fee for spayed/neutered pets
- educational programs on responsible pet ownership.
- Do not punish responsible owners"
- Barking laws noise bylaws for small dogs ! Fines for them

- Punish the owners and not the animals. Pit bulls are not bad dogs. Muzzles for them is a terrible approach to this issue
- Barking continuously. Needs to be addressed better. If barking more than a half hour or even 15 minutes is unacceptable.
- no comments
- BSL does not create a "safer" community. If dog training is mandatory make it mandatory for all breeds. Owner accountability for all dogs.
- Problem pets are the result of problem owners, not breeds. As traffic violators can go for retraining, so should problem owners!
- Singling out a specific breed of dog is wrong. Not every pit bull is a vicious animal, more concerned about the skittish purse dog
- Fines for roaming cats should be far higher to deter owners from ever setting them out, since so many of them suffer a horrible fate.
- Breed specific legislation is BULL! The same people are going to be making other large breeds into what they've made bully breeds into!
- End BSL all dogs should be treated the same otherwise it's just breedism....and we're better than that!
- I think saying the whole "pit bull" thing is not right. It is all how the dog is trained and treated. I grow up with a rottie.
- BSL unfairly targets a large amount of dogs and leaves many owners of "less intimidating" dogs unaccountable. IT HAS NO PLACE IN YYC.
- I'm ashamed in the city of Calgary for considering BSL. The bias against pitbulls in this survey was sickening
- BSL does not create responsible pet owners... Punish the guilty! If obedience training becomes required for pits, YYC should pay for it.
- The Pitbull issue should not be raised. All dogs can cause damage, some more severe than "pitbulls" All breeds should be treated the same
- Breed Specific legislation has not been successful in decreasing nuisance animals. Education of ownership and training is far more important
- I do not believe that BSL is appropriate or fair. See Temperament tests <https://www.pitbullinfo.org/pit-bulls-temperament.html>
- Don't single out bully breeds. There are more vicious Pomeranians than there are potties. It's disappointing that the city is doing this
- No
- We need more protection of pets from predators because Calgary is overrun by coyotes and they're killing pets in the hundreds per year.
- No
- [removed] Get educated and stop wasting our tax $! No to BSL!!!!
- Stop the BSL. "Pitbull" type dogs should not be included on this list. Judge an individual dog not an entire breed.

- breed restrictions is not fair. Having responsible owners is far more important.
- Breed Specific Legislation is unreasonable and not supported by science . Golden retrievers have the most reported incidents of biting.
- Breed specific laws are archaic and should not be put into place. Any breed of dog can have a bad owner.
- A bad dog is a bad dog. The breed is irrelevant.
- Breed restrictions are ridiculous and should never be tabled in legislation discussions.
- higher fees/restrictions on dogs just because of breed is wrong on so many levels. Have mandatory behavior training for all pet owners
- Fines should increase each time an incident occurs. Ie if a dog bites someone, then the $350 fine. But 2nd offence should be much higher
- Breed Specific Legislation is unreasonable and not supported by science . Golden retrievers and labs have the most reported incidents of biting.
- Xx
- 12 barking dogs live at the house by our mailbox - I've heard from neighbours they were reported. How are they still there?
- Please stop with the Breed Specific bias, it's so outdated and so untrue. It makes you look incompetent and uneducated. Focus on bad Owners
- I am extremely concerned about the new view of BLS against Pit bulls that Calgary is adopting what about the responsible pet owners???
- Don't be racist towards pit bulls.
- No idea
- I feel that imposing ownership restrictions makes more sense than BSL. If an owner has one "problem" dog they will likely have more.
- no
- Mandatory Obedience for Nuisance Dogs. Create More opportunity for Training programs for pets. Lower Costs of Training program.
- It makes me upset to see YYC even considering BSL. That is absolute garbage. ANY dog can be a "nuisance dog"; BSL is absolutely archaic.
- Breed restrictions is absolutely ridiculous and appalling.
- No Specific Breed Restrictions!
- "Why aren't we making training and education more accessible
- For pet owners? People are the first issue."
- Instead of bandanas, we should teach kids and adults alike to not approach a animal without the consent of the owner.
- breed-specific laws are backward thinking! All dogs have the ability to be a nuisance and cause issues, educate pet owners of all breeds!!
- Stop going after "pitbulls" this day and age you should be more educated. This shouldnt even be a discussion! I'm disappointed for sure!

- Breed specific legislation is proven to be ineffective, inaccurate and does more harm than good.
- No breed restrictions. Pets, like people, are individuals and should be judged case-by-case, not a blanket law.
- City of Calgary give your head a shake ! You can't be serious with this survey? Do some research first maybe? [removed]
- Mandatory chipping for all pets and animals for sale/sold/given away/inherited. Mandatory spay/neuter for all animals brought in by AC.
- Breed specific legislation is ridiculous. Dogs are NEVER the problem, the people who raise and train them are.
- Pitbulls cannot be treated differently. Any larger dog can be a huge threat when not properly trained.
- Stop targeting pitbull breeds, their bite is not stronger.
- "Breed Specific Legislation is wrong and should not be considered here at all"
- "No BSL
- free education on responsible pet ownership
- Do not punish owners/pets that have not broken any bylaws
- Any breed can misbehave"
- Feral cats should be capture and euthanized to protect wild birds. What is you plan to control rabbits
- Pit bulls don't deserve to be treated differently than any other dog breed. Please don't support discrimination.
- Need more signage to remind people to pick up after their pets. Also more garbage bins in public areas
- Make obedience training mandatory for all dogs. Increase fines for repeat offenders who do not pick up dog waste. Include URINE as waste
- Address owners who allow dogs to Bathroom on lawns!!!! People who have nice, weed free lawns do not deserve to have dogs ruin their lawn
- X
- BSL is not the answer, there are many provinces pulling theirs for this very reason.
- Breeds are not dangerous, owners are. Do not restrict breeds.
- I do not agree that Pit Bulls are a problem. The owners are the problem. I do not agree that singling out one specific breed is the answer
- in homes with multiple dogs, only allow 1 stronger breed. i.e not 3 pits, or rottie or shepards UNLESS the can provide training and exercis
- Would like a bylaw that would have heftier fines or removal of pet(s) after numerous neighbour complaints about noise/nuisance.
- This isn't a breed specific issue. This is an ownership issue. Never see small dogs who are aggressive get this.
- Breed Specific bylaws are just wrong, its not the breed, it is the owner! Do not single out bully breeds!

- While it is good to seek public input and ideas, final legislation should be drafted by experts in the field, (animal behaviourists, vets)
- A specialized crew of employees that can come and address an off leash dog asap, When bylaw is Called currently they take days to do anythin
- Do not create breed specific legislation.
- Before considering BSL, show me evidence that BSL actually works. Plenty of places have implemented it, is there any long term benefit?
- Mandating a dog-owner training program for any dog over 50 pounds would be a much more effective way of limiting aggression in larger dogs.
- "Dog training FOR HUMANS.
- more RIGHTS for animals! This seems to be a lot pf bylaws against animals instead of for them."
- Breed specific bylaws won't change 98% of the attacks that happen. Obedience Training should be mandatory for all dogs/owners
- I implore you to remove breed specific legislation from these amendments. It's biased, unfair and ineffective. Handle issues by the case.
- Breed specific (or type specific) laws are bad laws. There are breeds that can do far more damage than any of the breeds/types mentioned.
- I'm absolutely disgusted with [personal invormation removed] for even considering BSL. Imagine if we were this intolerant towards ethnicity
- Breed specific legislation is unfair to well trained animals and responsible dog owners. It is unnecessary.
- Utilize feral cats by renting out to business willing to feed and shelter during winter months, the rent is paid via spay/neutering
- Breed specific legislation is utterly ineffective. People who are bad dog owners are bad owners period.
- I think an obedience training certificate (with a passing grade) should be mandatory for dog owners.
- A survey asking what you "would or would not support" but only provides check boxes on what you would support. Inherent question bias.
- "Judging an entire breed of dogs is equivalent to racism. Stop BSL!
- Blame the owner/upbringing, not the dog!"
- Stop doing breed specific legislation. It doesn't help. Stop being such [removed]. Small dogs bite kids all the time. Absolutely ridiculous.
- There should be no breed restrictions - pit bulls and other pit bull "like” breeds are no greater safety risk than other breeds.
- I think the pit bull bylaw is complete bull. If anything bordie collie dogs and even sometimes chiwuawa dogs should be looked at.
- Not singling out a specific breed due to a bias Many large dogs are capable of inflicting very strong bite such as Shepards but not included
- None

- Should not be based on breed but instead by incident. Instead of fines an option for training would be helpful
- I don't support breed discrimination.
- No
- BSL just reinforces negative stereotypes around bully breeds, more education needs to be provided, and readily available to ALL pet owners
- Please do not implement BSL. The onus should be on the human owner, not on the dog. Survey says 'pit bulls' are not more likely to bite.
- Voluntary 'traffic light' bandannas - the onus should be on parents to TEACH their children how to approach an animal and to ASK the owner!
- Bylaw is about responsible pet ownership? Concentrate on the owners not the animals. Bad owners cause bad animals so fix the owners.
- Not especially, Im not for specifically targeting specific breeds of dogs. I'd rather we target poor behavior.
- Maybe ask the pitbull dog ownership directly instead of asking individuals who have had no to little experience with the dog.
- All dogs need to be considered the same , not one breed more than another. Training is a result of a poorly behaved dog- not their breed .
- Start training people and not just animals!
- I have had many negative experiences all different Breeds. The only commonality was a Bad Human. Not the Breed of the Dog.
- Make the page so it does not kick you out every 30 seconds. If this was not important to me I would have gave up
- anyone with a history of animal abuse should be banned for life from owning animals. These animals have many behavior challenges.
- I think its been shown time and time again that breed specific legislation has had no affect on the number of annual dog bites per year.
- Mandatory training for dogs that have incidents...most dogs behaviors are taught not what they're born with.
- Breed Specific Laws will only further damage the reputation of many many innocent dogs. Many friendly dogs will end up euthanized.
- NO BSL!!! we dont have different laws for different ethnicities stop doing it to dogs !
- Other breeds should be considered vs just bully breeds. Aggressive dogs as a whole
- Breed specific legislation is based on fear not fact. The bad owners are who should be held accountable.
- Don't you dare own a Pitt Bull in my city... But chickens that attract mice and other rodents: have at 'er. -[removed].
- We had humans created breeds and are the ones who train them. We are the problem, not the breed.

- Singling out pit bulls tells me whoever came to that conclusion is woefully misinformed. Probably a Karen who hates dogs.
- Even considering not allowing a certain breed is disturbing to me. I would hate to call myself a Calgarian if it happens.
- .
- It has been proven in many areas that BSL towards "pit bulls" does not work, is not the answer. Please consider each pet case by case.
- BSL is just [removed]. I'm sick of being bit by tiny dogs whose owners laugh it off while a big dog is targeted just due to its breed. Nonsense.
- I don't have an idea
- Puppy mill enforcement. Regulations on breeders
- I believe that if pet training was made mandatory for owners, it would help to avoid or minimize issues occurring, with pet and owner.
- Create a curfew for barking dogs Like not left out alone after 9 p.m.
- Breed restrictions have not done anything to help the owners should be held responsible not the animal. I don't agree with breed restriction
- A survey that asks what you would or wouldn't support but then only provide a list of items of which you would support.... THIS IS PURE BIAS
- More doggie bag distribution posts in public parks to encourage people to pick up after their dogs. Bylaw for aggressive human neighbours.
- DNA tracing of dog feces to owners. Paid for in cost of fines for not cleaning up after your animal.
- I'm highly against any breed specific legislation. A pit bull should be treated no differently than any other breed.
- Am wary of survey that targets specific indiv. I did not get Phase 1 ? I cannot state my full concerns with the min characters allowed here.
- People getting any pet without research is a problem; any dog can be aggressive or a nuisance. BSL targeting pit bull types doesn't stop it.
- Pet owners should be regulated as well, it is not the dogs fault if thier owner does not train them properly.
- You cannot blame a breed, only the owners. Any legislation/bylaws should apply to all breeds, not just one.
- I do not support BSL and am so disappointed at the large step back that Calgary has taken. I am ashamed that my city is even considering this.
- Leave pit bulls be and make people get a licence to have children.
- It is the owners who are negligent the dogs should not be punished for this it is natural for a dog to bark but they can be taught not to.
- No BSL! DO NOT DISCRIMINATE THE BREED. Humans need the training as much as the animals. BSL does nothing. Check out "Justice for Bullies";
- I do not believe it is the breed of dog that is aggressive (been bit by more "purse dogs" than "bully breeds") but the owner. Period.

- Breed specific laws are discriminatory against gentle animals that just so happen to be raised by careless owners.
- This is a massive step backwards. Dogs should not be punished due to its breed. It's the owner. When will we learn this, EDUCATE YOURSELVES!
- No Breed Specific Legislation! Bad dogs are not restricted to a breed.
- Consider bylaws against aversive training techniques which are known to increase aggression in dog. Includes ecollars, alpha rolls...
- I just want to be clear that I don't support any breed specific laws, those don't solve problems, we need to stop bad pet owners
- Excessive barking should be punished. Neighbours of dog owners often are very annoyed with this and cannot do much.
- Don't discriminate against certain breeds. Focus on proper ownership and owner responsibility.
- Bite strength is a poor reason for BSL, many breeds have higher but strength than bullies. It's not the dogs, it's the humans. NO BSL!!!!
- There needs to be more focus placed on educating people about the importance of training animals in a KIND and GENTLE manner rather aggressive
- Possibility of reduced license fees for those who have completed obedience training?
- What about the people who bring multiple 6+ dogs to the off leash and can't control any of them? Who regulates that?
- Target the behavior of owners rather than creating bylaws that are biased against a specific breed.
- BSL is opposed by every legitimate animal welfare/ advocacy group because it has no evidence and is based on bias and racism
- Do not implement a ban on 'bully' breed dogs. This is ignorant and doesn't properly implement any useful safety changes.
- BSL is flawed and unfairly targets breeds. Target the behaviour of a specific dog or its owner not an entire breed.
- Obedience training should be mandatory for all dogs.
- Provide more education on training and understanding dog behaviour...no breed specific bans
- Discrimination on "bully" breeds. Another form of controlling the people. Any breed of dog is considered a "threat";.
- ITS NOT THE DOG. ITS THE OWNER.
- I don't support breed restrictions. But I would support stronger regulations for who can buy them to make sure responsible owners have them.
- Pit bulls may not have a stronger bite but there is an higher intensity behind their bite. Majority safety for all people/dogs. Pro muzzle
- Breed-specific legislation is ridiculous. Responsibility should entirely remain with the owner to properly train and handle their pet.

- BSL is totally ineffective and causes prejudice against breeds similar to human racism. Fines and punishment should be case specific.
- There should be a designation separate from "nuisance", for aggressive dogs, for park bans etc. No BSLs should be considered.
- Dogs making excessive noise should be removed after certain number of complaints filed.
- No pigeons
- No
- N/a
- Anything about restricting, muzzling, or anything to do with Pit bulls is absolute bull. Do not promote this kind of ridiculousness.
- Dogs should be by case by case for dangerous breeds.
- This was already said, but needs to be said again - "Breed Specific Laws will only further damage the reputation of many many innocent dogs.
- N/a
- Why are animals treated differently. We don't cage up and handcuff humans without proper proof to do so.
- Stop singling out bully breeds, it's always a bad owner that leads to a bad dog! I've had more small dogs try to attack me than bully breed
- No breed specific legislation, the only damage I have had from dogs were little dogs.
- The new changes suggested seem to put the onus of innocence on the pets themselves. I'm sure they'll understand. #MunicipalLogic
- NO BLS. Ban backyard breeding incl. kijiji, pet stores etc, obedience training for nuisance dogs, teach kids how to approach a dog in school
- Build more dog parks near bodies of water.
- No new ideas
- Dogs should be allowed to walk in graveyards as long as they remain on the pavement and on a leash.
- Please stop specific breed bans. It is the owner who is responsible not the breed
- Dogs can not be considered more dangerous based on appearance and breed. Aggressive dogs are aggressive dogs.
- The singling out pit bulls and bully breed is reactionary nonsense. All dogs can bite their behaviour is the fault of the owner not the breed
- Do not ban or label an entire breed as a problem! If you haven't noticed during this pandemic, humans are at the root of most issues.
- Children should be taught not to approach an unknown dog without prior permission from the owner rather than an early warning system.
- Breed-Specific Laws are absolutely disgusting. It is not the dog who is at fault, but the owner of said dog.
- Dogs bark when their owners aren't home and people like it quite when they're home from work

- No
- Drop the pit bull bylaw idea....
- Putting restrictions on certain breeds is unfair and harmful. There are many strong dog breeds and putting restrictions on PB's is prejudice
- Public education on how to properly greet and behave around any dog should be posted on signage at dog parks to reduce bites.
- Division isn't accepted in society for People, why create it for Animals? Hate is taught, as is behavior. Education is key!
- None
- Pitbull are also an amazing dog. People need to educate themselves before eliminating them from other dogs activities.
- Dogs under 6 months of age should not be allowed in off-leash parks.
- Any reference to BSL is discriminatory and the City of Calgary should be ashamed for exploring it.
- The fines for behaviour based problems should be mandatory payment and attendance of force-free dog training instead of fines.
- Breed Specific Legislation does more harm than good. There needs to be a greater focus on education and training for pet owners.
- BSL is ridiculous. This is total non sense and completely outdated. Calgary is better than this.
- All animals with any violation should be leg required to do a full round of training with owners. Low income workshops should be considered.
- No
- BSL have been proven to counter productive and prejudicial, they promote negative stereotypes. Any dog can bite, and any dog will bite given
- .
- Stop breed and size discrimination in dogs. Small dogs need to be held accountable for their aggressive behaviours and right now they aren't
- The logic of your pigeon count question is nonsensical, it should be under a certain number, not a lower limit to upper limit.
- None
- I think there should be new laws enforced stopping people out there that are backyard breeding dogs and cats and profiting off of it!
- You can not discriminate against bully breeds. Do not be ignorant. This is so unfair to the dog. Calgary needs to be inclusive!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
- Any dog breed can be vicious; not just block head dogs. Ridiculous, to single out one breed. No bad dogs just bad owners.
- Why is Calgary thinking so backwards? Other locations that have had these breed biased rules are reversing them.
- I believe all legislation should be enforced in an informative, collaborative way to engage responsibility and accountability with citizens.

- More breeds should be considered as dangerous.
- This survey should be limited to Calgary residents only
- Please waive pet license fees it's ridiculous to have to pay every year and just a money grab for the city. or $67 lifetime fee.
- It's not the breed that is the problem, it's The owners!!
- Breed specific legislation is ridiculous. I've been attacked or threatened by more small dogs than "pitbull types".
- Owning a dog should include having to pass a test showing you're a competent dog owner. You must have full control of your dog at all times.
- Better training for pet owners. Dogs are not to blame!!!!
- Remove your discrimination of pitbulls. Are we in 2005? You even acknowledge they no more likely to bite you, yet influence people with it
- Limiting text here limits me sharing my idea!!!! Ugh, I give up.
- The criticism toward pitbull type dogs is not with pure motives and intentions. Aggression should be the concern, not a specific breed.
- Let's allow much more off-leash. City parks should allow pets off-leash as long as they are under control. Let's be welcoming to pets!
- Blame the owner, not the breed !!!
- Focus should be on reuniting pets, not on charging owners "at large” fees.
- Breed Specific Legislation is unfair and totally bias. There is a larger problem with people/owners than the dogs..
- none
- Do not be breed selective. Small breeds as well can produce vicious bites. Dogs are only as good as their owners. Bad owner=bad dog.
- Pit bulls are not the problem, owners of all breeds of dogs that are repeat offenders need increasing fines and prevention from owning dogs
- More focus on irresponsible owners! Education is key to improving animals lives and keeping everyone safe.
- As a pit bull owner and lover, I absolutely oppose this breed specific legislation. Let's deal with nuisance dogs on a case-by-case basis.
- Nope
- Do not implement Breed Specific Legislation!! It has been proven time and again that is does not work!!!
- I understand that pit bull breeds can do more damage but they should not be singled out against other large breeds.
- Off leash parks should not be along pathways. Dogs have more rights than humans. That is wrong.
- Don't ban breeds. Maybe require permit system instead. Weed out the bad owners. There will be less bad dogs. Logic please. Logic.

- Requirements for obedience training for all dogs for licensing requirements. Proof of registration and payment in full of training fees.
- There should be an exam to prove that you understand the basic needs (beyond food, water shelter) when you register your pet - both free.
- Distinguish between cats and dogs. There are a lot more cats roaming around than dogs. Increasing fines for repeat offenders
- Muzzles for all nuisance dogs is a good idea, rather than banning from dog parks entirely. This INCLUDES little nippy chihuahuas!
- Dogs that have attacked other dogs should not be permitted in off-leash parks. If caught, owner should be fined
- BSL is discrimination. You cannot judge a living thing by how it looks.
- Going solely based on breed is unjust. You cannot blame the animal for their rash behaviour as it is based off their owner.
- no
- Consider the small vicious dogs more than pit bulls. Majority of the time, they trigger/initiate the attacks
- no comment
- These rules and regulations should be for all dogs, not breed specific. If your pet is aggressive training should be mandatory with the fine
- Stray and feral cat programs require better funding and support from the city.
- Unfortunately some dogs are "anxiety " barkers, not sure how fines deal with this
- There needs to be more support to help with problematic dogs-not fines. We should enforce following through with obedience intervention
- Rental properties and having landlords not say no to emotional support animals.
- If bigger dogs do more damage, you need to decide if bigger vehicles cause more damage so should carry more insurance. This is ridiculous.
- Rules, fines and restrictions for dangerous or nuisance pets are based on infraction and severity on each individual case, not by breed
- As per the tribunal question - do not use a declared list of breeds as an easy check mark to euthanize.
- X
- Makes me sad you call out pit bulls in this. The science shows this is incorrect, yet you still do it? Why?
- BSL should never be considered and the language promotes bias. Who would even decide if a dog is 'bully'? they share features with other dog
- There are no bad dogs, only bad dog owners. Stop punishing dogs, punish bad dog owners. Pit Bulls with good owners are not a problem.
- Please do not use breed discrimination, it kills more dogs for no reason. It's the person not the dog. Please punish owners not dogs

- Should "Indoor only" cats be licensed at reduced cost?
 - I think discrimination against breeds is like discrimination against a certain race or religion. It's wrong and against all ethics.
 - Pit bulls are not the problem, the claim that they have a stronger bite is untrue as dogs like labs, German shepherds etc are just as strong
 - Knowledge of training, caring, responsibilities and other common sense as to owning pets (not specified breeds) be enforced prior!
 - Do not profile dogs based on how they look. If you're afraid, then stay away! Don't let your fear dictate how others lead their lives.
 - Please ban feeding wildlife in backyards.
 - Breed specific legislation is horrific, it punishes good dogs and good owners. There is no need for it, dogs should be examined case by case
 - Animal training (esp. dogs) run by volunteers? Maybe people aren't training their animals because training is too expensive? Or clubs?
 - Leave pit bulls alone!!! It is about how any animal is raised, not the breed!!! Stop animal discrimination!!!
 - Pit bulls are not the problem, owners are. We should not be singling out breeds selectively.
 - An interactive program that goes into schools and teaches young children how to interact with dogs and cats.
 - Pitbull and bully breeds are not to blame for negligent/poor training. It is the people to blame. I oppose this breed specific legislation.
 - I think you shouldn't single out dog breed when small dogs are more likely to attack but cause less damage
 - Fines/Extra Fees/Extra Requirements should be placed equally on all dogs - not specific breeds. It is the owner and training that matters.
 - "The rules need to be applied to ALL dog breeds, not just certain breeds.
- There are no bad dogs, just bad owners."
 - BSL doesn't work. in other cities and provinces it's frequently been shown not to reduce number of bites, only the population of the breed.
 - Small dogs are usually much more noisy and aggressive than big ones such add pitbulls.Anyone consider to tax that?Should use the same logic!
 - None
 - Make spaying and neutering a requirement. People who have intact pets should pay higher fees.
 - Cats that are left to wander spraying or defacating on non owners property 1000 fine!
 - Three strike rule. Two warnings to quiet the animal or be fined
 - I think the bully breed owners should be muzzled and banned from public places IF their animal becomes a nuisance. Not the other way around.

- Don't make anything breed specific. That's discrimination and fair to breeds. It's people who turn animals mean.
- Dogs should never be euthanized as a consequence for bad behavior (biting, chasing, property damage). Any dog can be rehabilitated and learn
- Please don't perpetuate dog breed stigma by creating breed specific bylaws. There needs to be access to training and education for owners.
- I strongly oppose BSL. All dogs can be dangerous with improper ownership/training, focus on education, nuisance dogs and repeat offenders
- Perhaps dog licencing should be contingent on owners completing a free (on line?) course on training techniques to avoid problem behaviors.
- Stop wasting tax payers money and government time on ridiculous bylaws like this. Focus on real problems in our city
- I do not support any restrictions against responsible ownership of pit-bull type dogs.
- Research conducted by U.Georgia and nat geo found pit bulls registered the least amount of bite pressure among various dogs tested(GSD, rotti)
- Banning a breed does nothing to prevent dog bites or increase safety. Bad owners will only move onto other breeds!
- Leave good dogs like Pitbull's alone! They are amazing pets when a responsible person owns them. This is discrimination based on looks
- "I'm glad the city is opening discussion on having hens.
- Also dogs are not inherently bad, and BSL does NOT WORK."
- Changing the bylaws referring to pitbull type dogs to all large sport breeds would be very important. Simply put- it's dog racism
- I believe that too often dogs are blamed for being dogs. It is the owners that need to be held responsible for their pets behavior.
- Putting a blanket ban on pibull types dogs is ridiculous and does nothing to address "dangerous dogs' There is a big difference.
- Having private city rentable off-leash areas for reactive or non-social dogs.
- There are No bad pets, just bad owners. It is entirely unfair to single out specific breeds!!! If a dog is declared a nuisance, so be it!!!
- Calgary was recognized nationally as having the most rational approach to dog legislation - why change? breed-specific leg doesn't work
- Enforcement of dogs riding in the back of trucks unsecured needs to be more strictly monitored and fines should be higher.
- Sell license where you register your car
- It is absolutely disgusting and wrong to discriminate against a dog for the way it looks period. This whole survey is bias.
- Rather than banning breeds, let's incentivise training and obedience programs to reduce dangerous and nuisance dog behaviours.

- No
- Fines/punishment for owners that put their cats outdoors in winter - my neighbours' was wandering in -40 last winter and it's beyond cruel.
- Allow a certain number of livestock (hens, ducks, goats, etc.) based on the sq. footage of yard available, to prevent overcrowding/cruelty.
- Make a bylaw that allows officers to seize animals from neglectful homes. Dogs with no attention/training become problems. Fix home, fix dog
- Stop stereotyping breeds would be an idea
- Old arguments, with no proof, based on a bias against certain breeds, that are a violation of our rights to dog ownership. Disgusting
- I am not a pit bull breed owner, but my dog does have "square headed" dog friends that are amazing. proper training/attention = good dogs
- "More places to buy licenses is a great idea!
- I hope it's possible to reduce the price of licenses as well."
- .
- discrimination against a certain breed of dog is the exact same as discriminating against a person of colour. this idea is outdated.
- No
- You seriously should be asking for a postal code to ensure that only calgary residence are submitting responses to this survey.
- The decision about allowing livestock on people's property.should be voted on by the residents of Calgary.
- This survey is insignificant because you have no way of ensuring you are only getting responses from Calgarians. Ask for postal code please
- I'm embarrassed to be a Calgarian if we are legitimately considering breed specific legislation! What a disgrace.
- Bylaw changes should be evidence-based. There is no evidence to support BSL and in fact, there is clear evidence AGAINST BSL. Say no to BSL.
- stop discriminating against one breed! there needs to be more consequences for the owners who arent properly training and caring for their dog
- Being able to get a license at your local vet clinic may be helpful to pet owners
- It is wrong to discriminate against a dog for the way it looks. A person should not be discriminated against for owning the dog either.
- The breed specific bylaws regarding pitbulls or "pitbull like" are to harsh.
- There needs to be a difference in actions taken against dogs who bite ppl vs dogs who bite ppl. Dogs are ANIMALS + scrap w/ea.other at times
- No

- First it was Dobermans to Fear, Then German Shepards, then Rottweilers now it is anything that MIGHT look anything Like a Pit Bull. EDUCATE!
- Letting us speak about phase 3 of engaged since that is the one that will effect the most people. Dogs are NOT bad, people are.
- We need stricter enforcement of animal at large bylaws and more education on how the "my dog will never hurt anyone" approach is harmful.
- Stop targeting specific breeds.
- Owners need to be at fault, not the dog. Proper training for ALL dogs made mandatory!
- Pitbulls are dangerous to all. Hoping this bylaw passes, dog parks and communities will be much safer.
- Stop discriminating against pitbulls! All dog owners need to be held accountable for their pets. SAY NO TO BSL!
- Ban bad dog owners, not Pitbulls.
- No
- Cats at large are less dangerous than dogs - not sure why they're in the same question.
- Dogs can bite for many reasons and making a bylaw that singles out one breed is irresponsible. Support is better than fines.
- To ban pit bulls and to say that they're more likely to cause serious harm is irresponsible and ignorant.
- I do not feel that singling out "pit bulls" or "pit bull like breeds" is fair. A large dog of any kind is just as dangerous.
- Breed specific bylaws do not serve any purpose. Pitbulls are not dangerous dogs and should not be treated any differently than any other
- Noise by-law should be observed
- No
- Punish the owners more severely the animals aren't the problem
- A golden retriever is just as likely to cause serious harm if trained or treated poorly. To say otherwise is bias, ignorant and irresponsible.
- There should be some bylaws regarding people tying up their animals, around length of time, provision of water, shade, and care.
- PLEASE bring back signs for on-leash parks! Too many owners think any green space (incl. schools) is a good place to run dogs off-leash!
- There needs to be more responsibility on the owner not the dog. Also there should be mandatory training for all dogs no matter the breed.
- again, I think fining people will only lead to a worse life for the pet there should be city run courses that are mandatory for offenders
- Rules should be setup to target and allow for enforcement against irresponsible pet owners and not specific pets.
- Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw....yet you're blaming breed not "responsible" ownership? Not ok.

- I dislike singling out specific breeds. I would prefer more fines or charges against abusive or neglectful owners.
- Anyone who believes dogs should be discriminated against based on their breed should NOT be allowed to have any input on rules.
- Stop with the pit bull. Classify them as dogs..
- The city needs more fully fenced off leash parks. For puppy and recall training. A well trained dog is best for everyone.
- Higher fines and less leeway for dogs that bark outside and inside.
- This isn't the minority report, you can't punish people or pets for something that might happen.
- BSL will not decrease bad and/or irresponsible owners. All dogs and owners must receive the proper education and training
- DO NOT ADD BREED EXCLUSIONARY BYLAWS. DO NOT BULLY A BREED. BLAME BAD OWNERS NOT DOGS.
- Lower licensing fees for animals from a rescue
- Why do you have 4 separate fines for a dog biting or attacking. Dumb overkill, and too subjective to bylaw opinion. I trust you'd only get 1
- Do not implement breed discrimination.
- Start targeting owners of poorly trained pets. Not the pet or breed of pet. A dog is a dog, a reflection of its owner. You need a muzzle.
- Specific breeds should not have greater restrictions as there is NO evidence to support that any breed is instinctually more dangerous.
- BSL is ineffective. Treat all dogs as dogs regardless of breed.
- Specific breed targeting is both ignorant and asinine, and I am EXTREMELY unimpressed that the city of Calgary is even considering it.
- A bylaw that targets any dog that LOOKS LIKE a pitbull is the dumbest thing I ever heard.
- Stop targeting specific breeds, The owners should be responsible for specific training for their dogs and for THEMSELVES.
- Absolutely oppose the breed specific legislation.
- Cat at large fee should not be the same as dog at large.
- Letting owners tag their dogs "green"; is a bad idea. What happens if that dog attacks a kid???? Red only!!
- Enforce the protection of animals ((Breeders)) need to be constantly monitored as they abuse their cats/dogs and gain profit off of animals
- Stop targeting specific breeds.
- I think we should try to look into having some sort of course or certificate of achievement for being qualified as a dog owner.
- Increase patrols and signage in on-leash areas. Too many people let their run on soccer/baseball fields.

- Consider a licensing fee structure that gives discounts for verification of training completed with a reputable, science-based company
- Pitbull specific bylaws are ignorant. I suggest the people coming up with these ideas go and spend some time with a Pitbull.
- Refusal for pet license for convicted animal abusers and registry to share names of convicted animal abusers that can be accessed publicly
- Increase funding and availability of obedience training. If a dog acts out its usually the fault of a human
- Stop targeting specific breeds. We need education, not division and fear mongering.
- Do not restrict animals or impose regulations on breed specific or "visually" specific animals.
- Owners say to my kid- my dog is friendly or well trained. Kids terrified of dogs are traumatized by people who think leash laws don't apply!
- breed bylaws are as discriminatory as banning people based on their place of origin because of the actions of certain groups
- There needs to be more emphasis on the owner and training rather than the animal, or breed.
- "I think it should be a max total of 6 pets in a household.
- License and registry for a animal should be a one time payment. $100."
- Statistics do not support singling out pit bulls. Please focus on the problem - nuisance dogs and their owners.
- Muzzling bully breeds in public won't prevent attacks only the responsible dog owners will oblige meaning no change in the number of attacks
- Can we now discuss penalties for owners or others who abuse/neglect animals?! Why are the laws so slack with this? Better owners=better pets
- Owners should have to undergo pet ownership fitness tests, the dogs are NOT the problem. People who dont know what their doing are!
- No I don't
- Pitbulls should not be treated differently compared to other dogs! They are incredible dogs!
- No
- Obedience training should be more accessible if you are planning on implementing a requirement for dogs to receive it.
- BSL has been proven time and time again to not have any positive effect. BSL is based on ignorance and sensationalism, not logic or fact.
- Fines for dogs repeatedly peeing and or pooping on private property.
- Insist that fir problem dogs that owners Out a bark collar on them
- Muzzling any breed of dog in public just creates fear, if you are going to ban a breed from off leash it should be chihuahuas not pit bulls.
- Owners should be held accountable, and need to be educated. It's not the breed, it's the human exploitation that is the issue. Fix the cause

- Regarding all dog aggression laws, fines are not the answer. You're not helping to fix the problem, instead adding insult to injury.
- I don't like the bandana program. Children/people should ALWAYS ask first to touch an animal, regardless of bandana colour.
- There is no reason for breed specific bylaws.
- you need to ban the bad owners not the breeds. it is bad owners not bad dogs. with the early warning system some people dont the meaning
- Dogs off leash in on-leash areas... needs more enforcement. How can owners pick up after their dog if they can't see where the dog is going?
- Any dog can bite. Breed specific law is encouraged by ignorance. Laws should be generalized to include all breeds large or small.
- Stop discriminating dog breeds. They are all dogs. Start teaching people how to respect animals, not always a dogs fault if they bite.
- Do not single out a breed such as pitbulls. They are great dogs, and having a BSL is not ok. Its the owners, not the dogs that cause issues
- How about license the owner to have the specific breeds instead of punishing the breeds? No bad dogs just bad owners.
- This discrimination against pitbulls is despicable. It needs to stop. Make a program where pit bull owners need to meet standards instead.
- Owners should be responsible for all dogs actions
- STOP breed discrimination, an option for a multi-year licence or a lifetime licence for a pet. Make humans responsible for their own pets!!!
- Do not target specific breeds; it's just like targeting someone because of their race! Have your counsel members do their research!!
- give up on the attempts to regulate pit bulls. all breed owners need to train and control their animals
- Provide greater support and training for pet owners to encourage and empower responsible pet ownership.
- I think pit bulls need to be banned altogether , they have a history of attacking and killing. Why wait until it's too late.
- The amount of emphasis that was placed on pit bull type breeds is ridiculous. Any larger dog can cause a severe bite, not just pit bulls.
- There should not be any breed specific legislation, all rules should apply to all animals. It is not the breed, but the owners.
- Having some kind of education on dog and cat training and/or responsible ownership mandatory for new owners
- It isn't the breed of dog, it's the owner. Bad owners = bad dogs
- Breed specific legislation or bylaw amounts to the EXACT same motivation as racism. Owners treatment and training is to blame. Not the dog
- Stop making pit bulls the bad guy. Instead make the owner of aggressive dog breeds take behavior courses or risk getting charged somehow.

- No
- DO YOUR RESEARCH. No breed specific bylaws should EVER be in place. It makes me sick to my stomach that anything breed specific was included
- You should NOT discriminate against an animal based on breed. That is unacceptable in our society today. Give your heads a shake. Disgusting
- Why is there a need for breed specific laws? It should be based on a pet by pet basis
- Pitbulls are NOT the only breed with enough strength to severely injure a person or pet. Consider possibly dogs 50+ pounds. ALL BREEDS.
- How about stop demonizing pit bull type breeds and actually research the breed.
- These breed specific bylaws toward pit bulls is unnecessary. My pitbull has been attacked at off leash by collies and other small dogs.
- More education on dog ownership at the dog parks is necessary. Many people think it's a free for all or don't know dog behavior.
- No animal should be euthenized! It is the owners fault and they can be retrained by someone else.
- We don't need breed specific laws. If you are worried, just make sure all animals go through training.
- breed-specific regulations are pointless - dogs with behavioral issues/bad owners span all breeds.
- There is no reason to target a specific breed of dog with a bylaw.
- The only way to make sure our dogs are looked after and brought up well is by making sure owners are held accountable. Don't bully breeds!
- Biggest thing is, it is not a breeds fault. Owners need to be accountable. Maybe we need to take a course for owning animals.
- Every pit bull I have met is way nicer than most other dogs. Don't ban a dog for its bread but it's behaviour
- Pit bull breeds are not the problem! Implementation of mandatory training should be explored before any restrictions on breeds are placed.
- I think license and registry for an animal should be a one time payment. I would suggest $100 for a cat and $200 for a dog.
- DO NOT STEREOTYPE PITBULLS!!!! Any dog can be violent, it depends on the owner. Harsher punishments for the owners or not allowed to own
- When you get/renew your pet license you should have to read and sign the bylaws. Owners shouldn't be able to say they didn't know the rules!
- Dogs should not be targeted for additional by-laws based on breed type. Owners need to be responsible, regardless of breed.
- Calgary has been a world model of how to achieve low bite rates without breed specific legislature. Be a shame to see that change.
- Breed specific legislation(BSL) is horrible. Any breed of dog can be dangerous. Please stop BSL
- No breed specific discrimination!
- Enforce leash laws!!! Just because you think your dog is great doesn't mean other park users want it running around.

- Breed specific bylaw is ridiculous and should not even be discussed. You are punishing all pitbulls and owners for something a few do.
- I think that, in addition to fines, owners of dogs who injure or damage someone/something, should be liable to pay for damages/vet bills.
- It would be good to have a conversation about the number of dogs brought to an off leash area by a professional dog walker.
- Please, do not implement a Breed specific by-law. It is either the owner or bad dog. Not the Breed!!
- Don't support dog specific breed laws at all. Do support severe fines/penalties for owners whose dog (any breed) endangers others/animals.
- No
- I am completely against breed specific bylaws!
- Breed specific bylaws place undue stigma on that breed. Limit dogs only on an individual basis, if that dog has proved to be aggressive.
- There should be mercy for an animal at large. Loving pet owners do everything to bring their missing pet home and shouldn't be punished
- Need more bylaw officers. Should not be up to park users to report infractions (leash laws, etc). Enforce bylaws don't just write them!
- Singling out a specific breed is disgusting, no better than racism. Should we also identify higher risk due to religion as well?
- Stop discrimination based on animal "looks";. Small dogs are far more likely to bite than larger dogs because of insecurity.
- There should be no prejudices against pit bull like dogs. This is simply disgusting. The owner alone determines how any breed is trained.
- Nope
- I do not believe that this bylaw should have any specifications around dog breeds.
- No breed specific legislation!! The 2 times I have been bit while out running, were small dogs and irresponsible owners!!
- Domestic cats should never be allowed to roam out side with out a leash, cat run or an owner present in a backyard.
- Spend time/money on the root problem: people abusing animals and improper care. More fines for abuse and more youth education on animals.
- Public education on approaching dogs. Many assume they can go up and pet any dog. Too many are uneducated and cause incidents of bites etc.
- "Calgary designated as a No Breed Discrimination City!"
- Schools teach animal rights/welfare
- Mandatory training 4 all owners and officials"
- I believe that all dogs should be treated equally, there is no ONE breed that is more aggressive than another. Dogs need to be equal

- It is really annoying when you are walking your dog in a leashed area and others think they can walk their dogs without a leash.
 - No to breed specific legislation
 - I believe you should have awards for people who follow the rules
 - Pit bulls are not the problem. Look at Ontario. The pit bull ban has been in place for 15 yrs - bites are still increasing. It's the owners.
 - Bylaws should be based on the behaviour of the dog, not the specific breed. BSL will just cause more problems for responsible owners!
 - The policies of the city toward animal ownership are reactive, not proactive. Bylaw enforcement in general needs a rethink/overhaul.
 - Breed specific legislation is useless.
 - No
 - .
 - "Rights of service dogs as well as expected etiquette when encountering them. A campaign for this!
- BSL is difficult to enforce"
 - If you're going to punish breeds, punish makes of cars that have high rates of moving violations
 - Pitbulls are no more dangerous than any other breed of dog. Singling them out, despite your rationale, is ridiculous.
 - When writing your survey questions, please review them for incorrect information and for wording that leads only to your desired response.
 - stop breed specific discrimination!
 - I would like more patrolling of off leash parks. The auburn bay off leash is covered in feces. No enforcement of by laws.
 - Something must be done about people who pick up after their pets and then leave the bags lying around.
 - Looking at the owner of problem dogs! Animals don't just become nuisances on their own, it's because of how they are treated!
 - no
 - "I don't support breed bans because they don't work," said [personal information removed], the former director of animal services for the city of Calgary.
 - This line from your info is incorrect: a pitbull's strength allows the potential for a more severe bite. Don't spread false information.
 - In most cases the dogs are not the problem, owners teach the dog behaviors. People need to be held accountable for their dogs actions.
 - "1) Bylaws for exotic animals (snakes, monkeys, large cats) that do not fit current animal bylaws
 - 2) Bylaws against fake service animals"
 - Nope

- No breed specific legislation.
- No
- Ha ha ha
- I've seen many small dogs bite and attack. I've never seen a pitbull that wasn't a ball of love and cuddles. No breed specific laws
- Instead of restricting what type of dogs can be owned, we should restrict who can own them. This can be monitored through pet licenses.
- STOP BSL .. DO NOT DISCRIMATE BY THE TYPE OF DOG
- No breed specific bylaws or bans!!!
- I would just like to say again that making breed bylaws is unreasonable. I think dogs should be treated on a case-by-case basis.
- Na
- .
- There should absolutely not be any breed specific legislation in Calgary.
- If the goal is to reduce the frequency and severity of bites, breed specific legislation is inappropriate. Focus on owner behavior and education
- Implement mandatory obedience training when a dog is involved in any threatening or violent incidences and mandatory education for the owner
- Education and training for pets should a component of ownership.
- Something should be done for those who provoke dogs to bark or tease them, fines for those using playgrounds as off leash areas
- More training enforcement to fix behavior issues (barking, fear of men/other pets/children) if an animal is flagged.
- This is ridiculous!! Its owners not the breed. Small dogs can do damage as well... my big dog has been attacked multiple times.
- Absolutely no laws that place more restrictions on certain breeds over others. It never has and never will have any positive outcomes
- Mandatory training + update visits for owners of certain dog breeds. Rather than a blanket restriction on the breed.
- Breed specific bans are ridiculous. The personality and behaviour of the dog are dependent on their handling by the owners.
- All these bylaws are great in theory but must be actually enforced. Higher fines mean nothing when bylaw is nowhere to be found.
- Any dog can be a problem depending on owner. Focus on the issue, not the breed.
- Take out the option to even vote for breed specific bylaws.
- No to BSL.
- I just think that breed discrimination legislation is a horrible idea. Please do not enact BSL.
- Dog walkers should have a limited number of dogs. Ive seen some with ten or more. It is very intimidating plus they cant control all of the - Breed specific legislation does not work. There is several countries including United kingdom and it has created much heartache. Suffering

- "I don't believe it should be by specific breeds No livestock.
- No limits.
- More officers ."
- Nothing to add
- Bylaws need to be enforced to be effective.
- No BSL! You even stated that they don't bite more than other breeds and their bite is no more severe than that of any large breed dog.
- No discrimination based on breed. That's irrelevant!
- I do like the idea of the early warning system, but should not allow auto-discrimination and charges on red-bandana dogs.
- Breeds should not be questioned. That's discrimination. Breeds do not become dangerous on their own. Owners make them dangerous.
- Dogs being treated case by case, not breed. Mandatory professional training for any breed dog that has an aggressive attack or bite incident
- No to BSL. The owners that are at fault for bad dog behavior. Any dog can cause harm, please do your research before blaming a breed!
- No
- Don't prejudice certain breeds. Frankly small/medium dogs can cause tons of injuries too.
- DO NOT BLEAND ALL DOGS IN A BREAD THE SAME. THAT IS NOT THE PLACE WE SHOULD BE GOING.
- BSL - is discriminatory towards the Animal when in most cases the owners are at fault. The phrase "Pit bull like" could describe every Dog.
- I disagree with the breed specific bylaw you have in the above survey - it should be based on any animal not a specific breed.
- Please quit fining people for dog bites and dog/cat roaming. For dog bites that are more than a nip, mandatory training for dog and owner.
- Shouldn't be doing that innocent animals pit bulls are loyal loving dogs don't judge a book by its cover
- No
- I would like to know why a specific breed is targeted? Is this truly about reducing problem behaviour if not considering all breeds?
- I completely disagree with BSL!
- n/a
- Discriminating against blockheaded dogs needs to stop. "Bully” breeds need to stop being treated like pariahs. Enough.
- Dogs are like children, they do what they are taught, make education Mandatory for people on how to play with (for children) and approach dogs

- "This is not a progressive idea.
- Questions regarding how people approach a dog needs to be considered."
- "Must differentiate b/t dog bites/ attacks resulting from
- provocation or stupidity of victim vs those initiated by the dog itself"
- Eliminate breed specific restrictions. If there is an insistence on breed discrimination, include other nuisance breeds such as husky etc
- we need much much much higher fines and ramifications for people who deliberately harm animals. we also need to better educate pet owners
- It is absurd to act as though certain breeds are more dangerous. Go case by case not by breed.
- There are many bad dog owners, you see them every day at dog parks. The dogs are sadly the bi product of a bad owners. Do not punish the dog
- Nope
- Its not the dog or breed, most of it is owners doing or people intagganizing animals and then the animal is put at blame.
- No to Breed-specific legislature!!
- Do not make it breed specific! It's the owners and training that impact behaviour
- Offer more resources for cheaper or free obedience training and neuter/spay programs for those who are low income.
- Berkeleys Place in Edmonton has educational programs designed around Bite Prevention. It has even been requested by other communities/cities
- Breed specific should not punishable in Calgary/Anywhere. If a dog is aggressive, its the lack of education and training on the owners part.
- According to the research, all breeds bite at the same rate. "Pitbulls" do more damage but the fines already reflect that. Why BSL also? [removed]
- I really think I would be great that if owners did obedience the following year they would be a discount on there license for the following
- Pit bull owners have a vested interest in ensuring other pit bull owners advise you. Look at the victims instead.
- Nothing other than low income people do NOT need a lower tax fee. if you can't afford the pet don't get the pet
- Not at this time
- Require professional training and potentially muzzles for dogs of any breed with a history of aggression. No BSL.
- No I don't hav anything to raise or question at the moment!
- Raise fines on cats that are caught roaming more than once. Outdoors cats are a threat to wildlife and bites and scratches can cause infection
- Dogs being treaded case by case. Its the owner, not the breed of dog.
- Please don't discriminate against specific breeds. It is not fair to judge simply by a label. A responsible owner manages proper behavior.

- No.
- NO TO BSL! THERE ARE NO BAD DOGS, JUST BAD OWNERS! SHAME ON YOU YYC!
- Remove the fee to register your animal. If the city wants tracking, that's fine, but why do people need to pay?
- Need more education on impacts of cats at large on wild bird populations, and pet/wildlife interactions in general (including releases).
- No BSL! No breed discrimination! There's no bad dog, only irresponsible owners!
- Make it harder to get pets. Stop breeding by just anyone and require fixing- if not give fines. Do not bully the breed- bully the owner
- Mandatory training for all dog owners. The personality of any dog is affected by how they are treated. Responsible owners train their dog.
- all dogs can be vicious if not trained and taken care of properly. To signal out a specific species because of some bad owners is wrong.
- No Breed Specific Legislation. That is wrong.
- I'm a certified trainer with AC experience and I do not support BSL. I specialize in fear and aggression. Please reconsider BSL.
- No
- I think dog walkers who walk groups of more than 4 dogs need to be licensed. 1 person cannot watch 4 or more dogs properly.
- I think it's ridiculous that pit-bulls are being singled out. All dogs react based on how they're trained and the situation they're in.
- Catalog each complaint
- I think breed specific legislation--especially those that are preemptive--is not a viable approach to maintaining public safety.
- You can not discriminate against a dog breed anymore than you can on the color of a persons skin. The owners need the bandannas!!!
- Fines $100 for dog on school ground, untethered near playground, within specified distance of play equipment. $100 poop on private property
- "Higher registration fee for pets that are not fixed.
- Flat face dog owners need to pay much higher registration fee due to animal abuse"
- There should be no Breed Specific Rules, Owners are responsible for their dogs and should be held accountable for the actions of their dogs
- No.
- Breed should not matter. Forcing people to muzzle their dog just because of how it looks makes no sense. Any dog can bite.
- Moderating a dog based on its breed alone is like moderating a black neighbourhood more heavily than a white neighbourhood.
- No breed discrimination. A dog that bites is not breed specific. That was already pointed out in phase1/2

- I strongly object to calling out pit bull breeds as dangerous in a general statement. The concern should be over the small aggressive dogs
- We did not cover how money hungry our local government is
- .
- Discriminating against specific breeds is no better than racism against humans. More attention needs to be placed on the education of owners
- You cannot judge a dog based on its breed period! Just like people you have well regulated and unregulated personalities. BSL = BS!
- Evaluate all dogs on a case by case basis and not assume based on looks. Banning a type does not solve irresponsible ownership problems
- Big Heck No!!! Do your research. Each incident should be based case by case. Not by a breed. All this is is discrimination against one kind.
- Increased ability to investigate and (in a timely manner) animal cruelty/welfare issues, more meaningful enforcement, support for low income
- No
- It's by laws is called so many times about a dog barking nonstop said dog should have to go through behavioural training or something like t
- No... to breed specific legislation
- I am absolutely against any kind of breed specific legislation. This is a human issue not a dog breed one. Moving us backwards. Sad.
- nothing to add
- Higher fines after an attack don't prevent the attack...mandatory obedience training to license a PB would be much more effective
- Work with current bylaws. Work with experienced people(trainers,vets, etc). No limits or breed restrictions.
- No
- Semi trucks cause more collision damage than cars. We don't put speed restrictions on Semis; advanced driver training is required...
- When dealing with roaming cats the city should fine the pet owners and not require the person complaining to take the pet owners to court!
- Don't focus on bully breeds. Focus on people who have nuisance dogs.
- No breed-specific fees/regulation. This has no scientific basis in promoting safety. Focus on welfare of animals, education, spay/neuter etc
- Education is crucial, nobody should approach a dog until owner agrees. The owner, not the dog is responsible. End breed specific legislation
- No to BSL. I'm very disappointed that my home town is even considering these horrible bylaws. Time to start calling councilors...
- No to BSL not fair to target a specific breed. You handle dog bites on a case by case basis PERIOD
- Nil

- Do not discriminate against pit bulls or breeds that are similar/ a variation of pit bulls. It is the OWNERS fault and responsibility
- Never blame the breed.
- No
- No to BSL. Do more about owners who let cats wander, tired of dead birds and cat [removed] in my gardens.
- Protect the innocent residents before the people who want to keep dangerous dogs who were bred specifically for animal aggression.
- Fees need to stop being lowered for low income households. If they cant afford the fees they shouldn't own an animal or cant afford the anim
- BSP legislation is wrong, any dog can be a bad dog. It's nurture vs nature. Dogs need to be treated on a case by case basis.
- There was nothing in place to assure that people taking this questionnaire are from Calgary. I am from calgary, but a link is circulating FB
- Dont blame the breed, blame the bad owners
- Your bread suggestions are ridiculous. More small dogs attack people then "bully breeds"
- Bylaws should only fine/punish irresponsible owners. There should be no limitations on dogs by number or type for responsible owners.
- BSL does not work. Period. You really need to focus on regulating breeders.
- Please pass a bylaw that cats must be leashed or contained to their own property by an enclosure when outside. No more roaming cats
- I do not support banning specific breeds
- Breeds of dogs should not be discriminated against any more than people should for being different colours. It is not appropriate...
- dogs are dogs, we as humans train them to be good or bad don't blame a breed on a bad temperament blame the owner. Stop the discrimination!!
- Stricter and more frequent enforcement of free roaming cats and dogs (outside of off-lease) areas to reduce harassment of birds and wildlife
- No BSL!!
- No BSL! Bad owners make bad dogs! The early warning system may be an idea but may still cause discrimination on its own.
- Dog specific legislation will not resolve aggressive dog issues.
<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC2387261/>
- no bully breed legislation is needed at all.
- I do not support breed specific legislation.
- Stop encouraging the breed bias. Other breeds can also cause significant damage, this is an invalid justification for discrimination.
- No breed specific limitations, stiffer penalties for bad owners.

- To curb aggression in dogs and prevent homeless pups spay and neuter programs and incentives are key. Education and more reduced $ on licences
- No to BSL! There are other breeds of dogs that are aggressive. But its all down to bad ownership, and training of that animal.
- Don't discriminate against the breed hold the owners accountable! Not all dogs are the same and this puts them all into 1 category!!
- Waiving licensing fee for low income is why we see dogs bite. If you cant afford or care to properly train a dog, then you shouldn't own one
- Pit bulls need to be illegal and euthanized out of existence. People are dying from these maulers. Remember Lawn Darts? Illegal after 3 dead
- Licence and regulate breeders so that backyard breeders are illegal. Unregulated cross-breeding causes problems in the dog's health/behaviour
- No
- What the [removed]?! Stop discriminating against certain breeds!
- Non-animal families that use very limited off-leash park space as public park space should not be able to file complaints about dogs.
- No
- Please don't create breed specific by laws against pit bulls! It's is incredibly unfair.
- BSL will not work. Why discriminate. A dog is a predatory canine therefore aggressive by nature, nothing to do with owners. Ban them all!
- Supervised off leash park - Aggressive dogs in there.. owners sit in car while dog is loose in off leash . Also dog walkers have too many
- Don't specify a breed that should be labeled bad. Pit bulls and variants of the breed are not the problem, IRRESPONSIBLE DOG OWNERS ARE
- ANY breed of dog that has issues with aggression should be rehabilitated and potentially rehomed depending on the case. Help, not kill them
- BSL seems like a pretty terrible suggestion. Breed-specific regulation isn't the answer.
- Further enforcement/ penalties for "free-roaming"; cats
- The idea of a BSL (breed specific legislation) in Alberta is utterly ridiculous and lazy law making. Breed is not the problem, its bad owners!
- Someone was walking their dog off leash in a non-off leash area and it ran in front of my bike, causing me to crash. It sucked.
- BSL is not the answer! Bully breeds are not the problem, uneducated owners are. Don't punish the dog, educate the owners!
- There should be no mention of specific breeds. Stop breed discrimination.
- I absolutely do not support Breed-Specific Legislation.
- Any animal can be aggressive. Stop punishing animals based off their breed and start paying more attention to the people raising them.

- I think it's disgusting you are singling out pit bulls, whether they are one or look like one. Do your research. Shame on you
- Strongly disagree with singling out a breed of dog. Animals should be judged on behaviour not breed.
- Do not blame dogs it is so biased and inappropriate it comes down to humans and how we raise and train them.
- Do not make it breed specific! If the animal misbehaved the owners should be reviewed.
- Decrease the amount of regulation and enforcement regarding pets. This city needs to slash its expenditures instead of charging the poor.
- Breed specific laws are not fair
- No to bsl. Predatory canines are aggressive by nature, not due to who owns them. That can't be trained out either. Just ban the species!
- No I don't
- "Please do not target pitbull breeds. We need to address irresponsible pet ownership, not punish the dogs."
- No I think all issues have been addressed.
- Anti-BSL laws and bite risk education for judges. We know a lot about risk factors for bites. Breed isn't one.
- Don't allow discrimination and punishment for innocent dogs. There are no bad dogs just bad people who poorly trained animals.
- Off leash should only be in secure off leash parks not insecure spaces, too vague for all citizens
- BSL is lazy legislation. The right thing to do is increase enforcement and monitoring for "nuisance"; dogs, fines, seizures etc
- I think Landlords should not be allowed to state weight restrictions on dogs.
- I strongly disagree with any form of breed-specific legislation. It is not backed up by science or anecdotal evidence, just fear-mongering.
- There is no good evidence that any dog breed is particularly aggressive. Laws against the way a dog looks ie "pit bull type" are ludicrous
- Stop penalizing owners of pit bulls and the like, all dogs need training and these breeds shouldn't be subjected to harsher punishment
- Breed specific legislation and bylaws are wrong. Pitbulls properly raised are kind and gentle family members
- "Breeding dogs and cats should be regulated and there needs to be clearer legislation on this issue.
- A bylaw regarding the use of dog parks"
- Rationale for specifying bull-type dog breeds for special by-law considerations is flawed. All large breeds can cause damage. Use dog weight
- I think children under 15 should not be allowed in offleash areas.
- BSL is like judging humans on their skin colour. No bad dogs only bad owners and poorly trained pets. Don't lump them together.

- I miss [personal information removed]! He never would have even considered BSL or Animal Limits!
- No
- No
- Focusing on pitbulls just seems unnecessarily polarizing. Just slash all of the language pertaining to those breeds.
- Pitbulls should not be unfairly targeted.
- Cats should not be allowed outdoors. They kill insects, birds, and other small beneficial animals. They also leave feces in other's yards.
- Don't breed discriminate. Identifying breeds distracts from the real 'nuisance dog' problem which is ineffective/Irresponsible pet ownership
- I am a veterinarian. Please consider NOT introducing Breed-Specific Legislation. Nuisance dog legislation would be much more beneficial.
- Pitbulls are like every other dog , their bites are not stronger than a k9 dogs. They should be treated the same!
- BSL is not fair!! Do not do this!!!
- Issue higher, more serious consequences for poor pet ownership in general. No animal is inherently vicious. People make them that way.
- Breed selective legislation is the same as the racial segregation that has happened in the past and still rears its head now.
- No.
- BSL only reinforces stereotypes, nuisance breeds and irresponsible ownership is fair.
- Punish irresponsible owners with outdoor cats pooping and wonder in others yards; allow city to fine in condos instead of solely condo board
- Get on the backyard breeders. I think the main issue is poor pet owners. Bites and attacks ARE PREVENTABLE.
- Na
- Please don't breed discriminate. Identifying breeds distracts from the real 'nuisance dog' problem which is ineffective/Irresponsible pet !!
- N/a
- Don't punish people owning these dogs. Look at ways to better the situation, ie training courses. Not all pit bulls are aggressive.
- High risk breed owners should need to take a course consisting of a certified animal behaviourist and instructions on proper dog care.
- Don't target pit bulls. I don't care what breed your dog is as long as it is well trained.
- No breed should be singled out, every breed treated the same. Yearly fees could be made to be paid in instalments
- BSL is wrong. Don't punish animals for irresponsible owners.
- Children are little [removed], people need to educate their kids. Teach them to not run up on an unsuspected pet. Pulling tail a no no and so

- I think breed specific bylaws are completely unfounded and unfair. Dogs that bite should be punished, not dogs of a certain breed.
- Fine people for not picking up after their dog/s in the off leash parks. Get some by-law officers out there!
- Cats are huge nuisance animals to local wildlife and should not be allowed to be at large!
- All dogs (and owners) need proper training to ensure the animal remains under their control. Mandatory training over breed restrictions
- If given the right training and love I believe every dog regardless of breed has an epic bright future Pitbull we're once used as nannies.
- Enforcement of by laws appears to be none existent in some areas. Prime example is the storm water drain pond area in community of Cranston.
- Breed discrimination will not be as effective as focusing on dogs that have a history of aggression.
- No
- for cats that only reside inside the house and are spayed/neutered should have a lower license fee than outside cats.
- BSL is not OK, PERIOD
- I think only pet friendly salt used for the sidewalks should be allowed. Banning the unfriendly pet salt in Calgary
- I believe breed specific bylaws are ridiculous. There are no bad dogs, only bad owners.
- FENCE/DEFINE/SEPARATE all off leash areas. Open/undefined areas are too much conflict/risk. And the daily "I did not see my dog poo" issue
- N/A
- You know what is a great idea , [removed]. "Pit bulls" are not the problem. It's the owners.
- Punish irresponsible owners who do not take full responsibility for their pets. Don't punish the pets it's not their fault.
- Have strict fines for owners who do not pick up after their dogs or cats in public spaces.
- The fact you lot that sit in your pretend ivory towers think you have the right to say who can own what breed of dog is complete trash. [removed]
- .
- Breed-specific bylaws are unfounded and not effective. Problems start with owners and training.
- Have a very small licensing fee for indoor cats. Most people don't license their house cats, generate some revenue and create data.
- There needs to be accessible spay neutering programs in place
- No sorry
- I believe there should be stricter fines/jail time for animal abuse and neglect. Also, offenders unable to adopt/ own pets ever again.
- No
- Do something to encourage catios so cats don't roam at large. Maybe community workshops to teach how to build them? Save the birds!

- Fine people for not picking up feces anywhere, and not disposing of same appropriately
- Animals, like people, are not perfect. Even well-trained animals have bad days. Don't over penalize pets for being "human". Be understanding
- Pit bulls are not the problem. Proposing adding bsl to the by law is. It will cost more and be less effective.
- Breed restrictions should never be a consideration. Behavior is not based on breed but based on learned behaviour/training and owner control
- Breed specific legislation is not going to solve problem owners. BSL is punishment for an animal that has done nothing wrong except exist
- READ AND LISTEN TO THE IDEAS BELOW OF PET AND NON-PET OWNERS. STOP REINFORCING STEROTYPES, BREED DISRIMINATION AND PUSHING BSL!!
- "at large" cats killing song birds - this is a myth - the population of songbirds is decimated by predatory birds - magpies and crows.
- punish irresponsible and incapable pet owners and stop pushing BSL
- PREVENT the irresponsible people from owning pets do not wait for there to be a need for INTERVENTION when it is too late.
- No breed specific legislation
- Be realistic, dogs do get aggressive. The best way to break up a interaction is to lift the dog with hind legs. This will release the bite.
- Where are all the by-law officers?? I have never seen anyone get a ticket for not picking up poo and people do it all the time
- If BSL is consider than why not request applications for all types of pet ownership prior.
- Don't breed blame. Blame the owner.
- Dog walkers should have limited amounts of dogs at off leash parks. If something happens, it can be hard to control 8-10 dogs
- How is BSL solving any problem? What did my dogs do to you that warrants you to restrict their lives?
- Regulate sales/ breeders/ mills of animals
- Offering behaviour rehabilitation for problem dogs. Assessing the family they are with.
- Breed restrictions should never be a consideration. Behavior is not based on breed but based on what the owner teaches or fails to teach.
- "One time pet registration is a good idea.
- I also don't think pit bulls should be discriminated against."
- No breed specific discrimination and more focus on responsible dog owners. I have always been so proud of Calgary, and disappointed now.
- I strongly disagree with BSL. It's unfair to lump one or a few breeds together as a "nuisance" or "dangerous" breed simply based on looks.
- There should be no breed ban, or exemptions it is not the animals fault for poor training!

- I firmly disagree with these proposed bylaw changes which will only punish responsible pet owners. Breed specific legislation is WRONG.
- Please do not discriminate against pit bull breeds
- Breed specific shouldn't be implemented, many breeds are as aggressive as pitbulls. Low income shouldn't have lower fees. Don't own if you c
- Bully Breed legislation should not be considered.
- I am just sick of people blaming the pets over the irresponsible owners. Pit-Bulls are not evil animals, hate is taught.
- City needs to follow through on its own bylaws
- So Pitbulls are not known to bite more, yet you want to basically surrender their rights. Is this the UCP cough Or Communist China?
- Fines for people walking their dog without a leash in areas OTHER than designated off leash parks . It's terrifying to have big dogs run up
- I disagree with breed specific legislation.
- "Please do not discriminate
- Against one certain breed"
- Breed specific bylaws are essentially racism.
- It should be based of the strength of the animal and the competence of the owner
- Yes to BSL! Also look at banning bad breeders as bad breeding is often the result of behavior problems in all breeds that cannot be trained.
- Breed discrimination is not the answer. Responsible ownership and accountability is.
- BSL is a response to fear created by an uneducated public, thus creating an unfortunate stigma.
- Please stop with the "pitbull" category! It's not relavent
- Does the argument that the BSL targets Pitbull's because they have a stronger bite make it OK for Chihuahua's to attack bc they're weaker?
- Complaints should be properly investigated before a fine is issued.
- Don't target Pitbull breeds! Training should be implemented with every dog, no matter the breed, so they can all have manners; owners included.
- Don't penalize the dog by it's appearance - trying to guess whether it is or isn't a bully breed is senseless and these pups are so sweet!
- Larger dogs in general have stronger bites. Can we discuss German Shepards, Rottweilers, Doberman, etc as well?
- You should start a return to field program for community cats. See bestfriends.org
- No
- N/A
- Please review the location of garbage bins at Nose Hill Park. More strategic siting of bins would improve owner removal of waste. Thank you.
- Breed specific legislation is completely unacceptable. There is no such thing as a bad dog breed only bad owners.

- no
- No ideas.
- please do not single out pitbulls, my vet said he has been bitten by more golden retrievers than any of the bully breeds.
- fines for animal bites on humans should have a fee scale determined by severity and negligence to take action on resolution.
- City of Calgary is better than this!!! Discrimination is so unneeded. Don't be dog racist!!!! It's not the dog it's the owner.
- No
- No.
- Breed-specific bylaws are not only unjust they are misguided. Any dog rescued from a Reserve likely has some sort of 'Bully-breed' in them
- If you are worried about pitbulls or nuisance dogs off leash in parks then you can require temperment testing say for dogs over 50lb
- Please say no to BSL in Calgary. Any animal has the ability to be aggressive, training is important for all dogs and owners.
- Incredible we're still having the pitbull debate. Policing according to breed isn't any smarter for dogs than it is for people.
- The city is hemorrhaging money at the hands of our grossly incompetent city council! Leave the pit bulls alone...[personal information removed] is the real menace!
- Breed specific bylaws are discriminatory against responsible owners and their dogs. They fail to address the problem of harmful owners.
- Do not breed specify!
- Do not discriminate against a specific breed.
- I do not agree with any breed specific legislation
- Consider a mandatory training session for people who want to own a cat or dog.
- Please do not discriminate against one breed.
- No
- No
- I understand the fear around pitbull-type dogs due to the injuries they can cause but there are no bad pit bulls...only bad pit bull owners.
- "Bully breeds" and pitbull type dogs should not be considered differently from other dog breeds.
- People are more likely to be bitten by a chihuahua as they are by a "bully" breed. The issue is the owners, not the dog.
- I disagree with breed specific legislation
- I think cat licenses should be lower, especially for indoor cats who are now generally chipped. This is just a money grab by the city.
- Breed specific legislation is wrong, and an absolute disgrace that the city is considering it.
- Dog breeds not be pinpointed you show love and they'll give love!

- No
- Breed specific laws are ignorant of true issues and do more harm than good.
- Breed specific legislation is not only ridiculously biased but it provides FALSE sense of security around other dogs who may also be a risk.
- I disagree with breed specific bylaws. Also if you can't afford a current pet license you likely can't afford to take care of a pet period.
- Please stop discriminating against Pitt Bulls
- stop singling out breeds like pitbulls. Focus on [removed] owners.
- Fines for animal bites to other animals should be required to pay the victims vet bills not city pockets!
- Banning breeds is immoral and should be illegal
- No mention of rotties, German Shepard's, Doberman's, boxers. Just as strong as pits, don't hate on one breed
- BSL IS WRONG! I do support the warning on the leash. Nervous dogs (of any size) need to be walked and many people do not respect their space
- BSL has been proven to be a costly and ineffective protocol to reduce dog bites. Onus should fall on irresponsible dog owners, not one breed
- Breed specific bylaws are wrong.
- Bully breeds are already mislabeled and mistreated among the animal industry - BSL just perpetuates this - w/o DNA tests is nearly impossible
- racism is still racism even with a different species
- Bully Breed legislation - specifically Pitbulls is ridiculous. Discriminating based on breed is out-dated and seriously wrong.
- Fines should be higher for pit bulls if they do attack MUCH HIGHER. deter bad owners, good owners should have nothing to worry about.
- N/A
- Any dogs can have behavior issues depends on the circumstances like human beings. Do not just discriminate them.
- There needs to be more regulation/legislation for the sale, breeding, and discovery of puppy mills.
- All other breeds that can display similar bite force should be included in the by-law, not just pit bulls.
- Whole heartedly disagree with breed specific legislation.
- The idea of singling out pit bull type dogs is very misguided. It is not the dog but the dog owner that is at fault if a bite occurs.
- we need a better solution towards specific breed laws. it is the owner, not the dog.
- Pitbulls are not the problem. Bad owners are.
- Calgary has the highest number of dogs per capita in Canada. Who is the bylaw being changed for? Punish bad owners not specific breeds!
- Breed specific legislation has been proven ineffective in every jurisdiction it is implemented. Calgary is a dog-friendly city. We are better

- permanently muzzeling in poublic and banning "blockhead" looking dogs from dog parks permanently is an absolutely absurd proposition!
- To say that a Pit bull strength will cause a more severe bite is negligent. Don't provide false information that lacks evidence!
- High fines for irresponsible ownership!! Owning a pet is a LUXURY not a right. Put some time/effort into training or you shouldn't have them
- Don't make a decision on an entire breed of dog based on fear and the news you read on Facebook. That's not real news FYI
- BSL has been proven to be infective. Focus should instead be placed in education on dog behavior, genetic predispositions, balance training.
- No
- Why should the 99.999 % of responsible dog owners and good dogs suffer for the 0.001% of irresponsible owners!? Absurd breed-specific idea.
- License fee discounts or credits for: dog owners who demonstrate having attended obedience or other responsible dog ownership class
- The answer is not unfair and often apparently arbitrary breed-specific bans and regulations. It's responsible pet ownership.
- No
- No
- Pit bulls are not "inherently dangerous.”
- I find it scary that this survey targets Pit Bull's. I don't support any ban or targeted restrictions for any breed of dog.
- Do not implement breed specific laws. It comes down to each individual animal and the responsibility of the owner to train it. Super simple.
- No to nuisance dogs, but breed specific legislation is nonsense.
- Breed specific legislation does not work. It is unfair to target any dog because of their look/shape of their head, etc.
- I thought we live in Canada not US. This is not fair. My Pitt Lili went through a lot before we got her. She doesn't deserve this.
- I believe that only dogs that have a history should have to be muzzled until completing a training course.
- Stop the racism against pit bulls or others. As I stated earlier; would you exclude a human or make them pay extra due to their ethnicity?
- Because
- Instead of being so restrictive with pit bull etc, why not offer a free or low cost training for owners of the breed that they take.
- Breed-specific restrictions punished innocent animals and responsible pet owners.
- I do not agree with restrictions to breed specific dogs or cats however I do agree that animals that are a danger to humans need to be train

- None
 - An animals behaviour is directly related to the owners care and training, not necessarily breed. I've met more vicious small dogs than pits.
 - Problem dogs and owners are the issue. Not a breed. Would you like it if someone jailed you for the colour of your skin?
 - The discrimination against bully breed dogs needs to stop, it is ridiculous. Target irresponsible and poor dog owners.
 - Punishing specific breeds is not a constructive solution to problem dogs. Focus should be on problem owners.
 - Considering the strength, (comparitive) and ease for a Pit Bull to incur damage/violence, with poor management training should be mandatory.
 - Drop any idea of BSL. Pit Bulls are not the problem so stop promoting it. Undereducated and uncaring owners are the issue
 - Stop making things cost so much for first offence of some issues. Also do more positive reinforcement to promote good behaviourandcompliance
 - Before anyone get any dog , the person must attend some dog training. In another words the person should get a licence to own any dog
 - More action for pets that disturb the noise law ie constant barking
 - No
 - It's nuisance at some point, but at the end of the day, the owners has the responsibility to train their pets.
 - "First of all, I love the pun.
- I just think that we target animals rather than increasing safe environments for them."
 - Bully breeds aren't the problem here, hold owners accountable for their negligence without punishing the responsible ones and their dogs
 - All dogs need training, BSL is not constructive. Disgusting a city which had OG responsible ownership laws is now considering BSL
 - Don't blame one breed or what they look like make the owner take responsibility. In my business it is the small mixes that you had to watch
 - Pits are not the problem. It is the owners. Many large sized dogs can cause injury if the owners are not caring for them properly
 - How bout Chihuahua specific legislation so I can stop getting bit by them? I've been attacked by multiple chihuahua/Yorkies? Why is that ok?
 - Breeders should be held more responsible... aka be required to stop breeding dogs known to be aggressive or known pass on aggression.
 - Targeting specific breeds is NOT the answer. "Pit bulls” aren't the problem, terrible pet owners are. This is absolutely ridiculous.

- The owner should be given a written notice and after that they should be fined for excessive noise
- BSL distracts from actually "nuisance" dogs and can create a false sense of security around dogs who are actually dangerous and not "pitbull"
- pit bulls aren't the problem and falsely saying they are a threat takes away from the actual issue of incompetent people who buy for looks
- Na
- Please do not discriminate against pit bulls
- I've been bitten three times by a Yorkie! Are you going to make bsl for them and make them wear a muzzle in public?
- Pit bulls are dangerous and I support this bill. Have you ever seen a pit bull attack a person?
- Focus the attention on aggressive and nuisance pet OWNERS, not the pets themselves. The breed is not the problem.
- No i do not.
- Stricter enforcement/fines for owners of dogs with no leash in a leashed area, for example Fish Creek Park and leashed areas of Nose Hill
- No
- Decrease number of animals allowed per house hold to 4 cats 4 dogs.
- Neighbourhood prizes for the most responsible pet owning communities? Something to encourage people to pick up after their dogs?
- When a small dog attacks me or my pet no one bats an eye. This should be no different. Stricter fines for poor pet OWNERS is necessary.
- "Blockhead dogs aren't the issue idiot owners are no bad dogs bad parents.
- Start making it tougher to get the breed and give training"
- I do not appreciate that you are separating "pit bulls" from any other dog! You are being racist towards pit bulls and that breed
- Put a law: if you are getting a pit bull and licensing them, bylaw needs to interview the owners. 99% of the time it's the owner's fault!!
- Ban the sale of non-rescue pets in stores like YYC's [personal information removed]. One of the last pet stores to still support puppy mills.
- Give the land back to indigenous peoples and expand the Inglewood Bird Sanctuary to the size of Calgary.
- any animal can be vicious if the owners are not willing to train them otherwise. punish the bad owners.
- Prioritize mandatory training course for nuisance dogs over fees/fines. Euthanasia should be a last resort not based on the owners income.
- More fenced areas for dogs to be off leash within communities. Designated single use areas to exercise dogs alone for anxiety animals.
- Aaa

- breeding any animals should not be allowed in city condominiums complexes or attached homes. make them get permits first for all breeding.
- Dogs shouldn't be blamed for the failings of the owners. The breed does not matter. Punish owners for negligence, not 'dangerous breeds'.
- Ask rescues like [personal information removed] how to make their lives easier .. Since they are a bridge between you (shelters etc and the public ...
- dogs should not be singled out and forced to wear muzzles because of their breed!
- dogs should not be singled out and forced to wear muzzles because of their breed!
- How about centralizing where people can post photos of lost pets or pets roaming around their neighbourhood?
- If you go after bully breeds, go after German Shepard's, rottis, chihuahuas and other aggressive breeds.
- Educate law makers: BLS punishes the dog, not the owner. The attitude of the owners dictate the behavior of ANY breed.
- Breeders should require a licence to breed and sell animals, and only so many given out per breed.
- No
- Breed-specific legislation is extremely damaging.
- Off leash dogs in on leash areas should be fined
- LEAVE PIT-BULLS ALONE!!!!
- educate the pet wonders about the importance of training the dog, not bash the entire dog breed.
- No law will ever implement a complete safe environment, but it can reduce problems. The people's voice is a great way for a majority vote.
- I think it would be a good idea to have more Bylaw officers visible at dog parks.
- Dogs left out in cold temperatures needs to be addressed more stringently.
- more bylaw officers
- I hope the pigeon restrictions only apply to pets and not the wild flocks that continuously visit my yard!
- Pit bulls should NOT be stopped from going to dog parks or penalised unless they have shown aggressive behaviour in the past
- Education is key. Require pet stores, breeders, and vet offices to give out a pamphlet of the pet bylaw to reduce the 'I didn't know' excuse
- Dogs left outside in cold temperatures or in vehicles with hot temperatures need to be addressed with heavy fines.
- No
- All dogs should be able to enjoy the dog parks without restrictions but also to the dogs should be trained and have good recall
- No
- The pit bull "bite strength" is a myth. Educate yourselves.
- Do not support bsl. Move forwards not back.

- able to buy licences online with annual automatic renewal, discounts for spay/neuter and microchip and additional discounts for proof of Training
- Pit bulls or like dogs have nothing to do with attacks. ALL breed should be considered equal. Owners must be held responsible for All breeds
- There is no evidence that 'pitbulls' are any more dangerous than other breeds. Not to mention that including a generalized type of dog in th
- I completely disagree with breed specific limitations, especially for pit bull type dogs. Many smaller dogs are more vicious.
- nope
- The number of animals in a home should be based on the size of the home. 6 dogs/cats is a lot of animal in a space.
- I completely disagree with pit bulls being singled out. German Shepherds, Dobermans, Chihuahuas all nite. The owners need training.
- I dont like the pitbull specific bylaws
- Blockheaded dogs, or any description that singles out a breed(s) is not acceptable. It has been proven time and again it does not work.
- No
- I have nothing..... except to say it makes me sad to see pit bulls put in their own categorie
- I hate the idea of pit bulls being singled out..... WHY DOES NO ONE SINGLE OUT OTHER BREEDS???
- "do not propose breed specific legislation.
- Ban bad owners from having animals. There are no bad dogs, just bad owners."
- All breeds should be considered equal. Pit bulls are not the issue.
- Children or owners not strong enough to control or restrain large dogs should not be permitted to walk the large dogs in public.
- Blame the owners, not the animals. Animals, like humans, need training. Also, we should consider all breeds equal; stop blaming the Pitbulls
- Enforcement of dog by-laws is woefully lacking in places like Nose Hill Park. Majority of dog owners treat it like one big off-leash area.
- Trouble dogs are always the result of mishandling and poor owners regardless of breed. Singling out pit bulls is unfair to the dogs.
- Dogs at large should be more severely punished than cats at large. Cats and dogs should have individual options shouldn't be lumped together
- I want to echo what most are saying. Breed specific laws are silly. Has anyone ever actually met a pit bull from a good home? Angels.
- N/a
- Cat licenses should be free (or offered at greatly reduced cost), because this would ensure more people license their animals.
- All breeds should be treated equally. Pit bulls are kind gentle dogs that shouldn't be discriminated

- A municipality should have an education officer devoted to the animal control bylaw. The individual should have professional dog experience.
- Remove your breed bias. Dog owners need to be responsible for their animal regardless of their size.
- I disagree with breed specific legislation. The problem is the owner, not the dog. I have met many small dogs more vicious than pit bulls.
- The city needs to enforce off-leash areas, specifically those near bike paths. I have been charged at while biking multiple times.
- The BSL that was mentioned in this proposal is very disappointing. I am all for obedience training for ANY dog. Pitbulls are not a problem.
- The phase 2 survey was very disappointing questions were not open enough, mixing multiple questions with only one Y/N answer is no good
- Please please do NOT pass breed specific legislation!! I came from Ontario where this has already been passed. It's HORRIBLE.
- No additional ideas.
- All breeds should be treated equally.
- There are many dog breeds that are just as strong as the pitbull, I think it needs to be on case by case bases, not on dog breed.
- 00
- I'm a plastic surgeon. I have to save hundreds of people (esp kids) every year after a pit bull attack. The pitbull problem is real. Period.
- No
- Statistics don't lie. 82% of all human fatalities from dog attacks are from pitbulls. If they were a car it would be recalled. Regulate now.
- I do not agree with breed restrictions. Possible mandatory training and education sessions prior to licensing. Certify owners.
- How many more people, kids and animals are going to be attacked and killed by pitbulls before we admit and face the problem?
- When people have too many demerits they have to take classes- why not this as part of the fine system to encourage responsible pet ownership
- Na
- Breed specific is discrimination. The responsibility needs to be on the OWNER, not the dog!
- It's not their fault that pitbulls were bred to rip/tear flesh with enthusiasm and athleticism. Breed traits/instincts require no training.
- I would really like to see if there is a more robust way to manage owners of 'outdoor cats'. I'm frustrated by them coming on my property
- Do Not Pass a Breed specific law .
- Breed specific legislation is an extreme overstep by the city.

- It is disappointing that Calgary is even considering BSL; it's not the breed, it's the owner. Do NOT ban pit bulls; ban bad dog owners.
- I don't agree with penalizing a dog or owner just because of the breed. It should be a case by case basis.
- "The fact is that BSL DOES WORK. EVERY TIME.
- I'm surprised more people don't muzzle their pitbull voluntarily to reduce the risk."
- Any breed becomes dangerous if we as owners set them up for failure. Irresponsible owners are to blame; no breed should ever be singled out.
- Nothing more to add
- Absolutely egregious that the city would even consider the BSL laws. Go after the owners instead of the animals!
- No
- Passing a BSL does NOT fix any problems. Responsible pet owners is what is needed. Any dog regardless of breed can be a threat.
- Meet with some responsible pet owners
 - stiffer penalties for animal neglect, cruelty or abuse
- There should be no breed specific bylaws
- Have neighborhoods form their own responsible animal ownership boards. Whos job it is to educate on by laws and responsible pet ownership.
- To single out pitbulls... disgusting
- Please don't pass BSL! Instead focus on training responsibility of the owner. Pit bulls can be as gentle as any other breed
- Reduced dog licensing fees after 5 years old. As they get older, the fees should reduce (older dogs tend to cost more).
- N/a
- muzzling a breed just because of the strength of their jaws is ridiculous. It would be like saying a very strong man must wear handcuffs.
- Why do we permit so many rescue dogs/cats to enter Canada/Calgary from other countries?? Our own shelters/rescues are full enough.
- I am really disgusted that Pitbulls are being targeted here. Unfair Discrimination for our beautiful breed. Punish bad owners not a breed
- We petitioned counsellors to ban the sale of non rescue animals in pet stores. Almost every counsellor showed support. Where is this option?
- "I'm very against breed specific legislation. It hasn't worked well at all in the UK.
- ANY breed can be dangerous"
- Making laws pertaining to a certain breed of dog is completely wrong, incredibly disappointed in The city of Calgary for even suggesting it.
- No

- You must provide proof that you can provide proper care to more than 4 animals in household, let alone 6
- I am not in favour of BSL. Focus on spaying/neutering and providing resources/training for owners of aggressive animals to prevent attacks.
- BSL is purely discrimination based on a dogs appearance not temperament or history. It does not work!
- Please do not target specific breeds. It is the owner that you have to train properly then the dog will follow correctly.
- BAN SHOCK/PRONG/CHOKER COLLARS. They are proven to cause more aggression and fear based responses.
- No need for BSL just train your dog
- Allowing Calgarians to have chickens will help to increase self-sufficiency in these uncertain times.
- Please look at other municipalities where BSL has been implemented. You ban a breed and a new one will end up taking over.
- No
- Don't judge breeds of dogs, judge owners
- Breed specific legislation does not work! Any breed/type of dog can be aggressive and can do serious damage, it's about owners and training!
- I have NEVER been attacked by a pit bull but have been attacked MANY TIMES by chihuahua's who are MORE THAN HALF THE SIZE..
- I feel it is brutally unfair to have a BSL, owners of all animals need to be responsible
- I am disgusted and disappointed to see breed specific wording in the discussion and legislation information. For shame!
- Don't make silly rules about pit bulls. I don't own or want a pit bull, I just know treating them like ticking time bombs won't help anyone.
- People need to be punished not the dogs. Not every bully breed is aggressive and a lot of the time when they are it is due to bad breed/owner
- Breed specific legislation is not the answer, punish the deed not the breed. Limiting bully types will increase Cane Corso etc
- I am NOT in support of BSL legislation. No no no!!!
- Proper training for pet owners is a must, it will help with incident prevention and ensure animals are receiving the safest care possible
- As many of us are aware, the breed of the animal has very little effect on its behaviour. Consider human fault for aggression in dogs.
- BSL is extremely unfair, owners of nuisance dogs should be required to take training classes not just fined
- No not at this time
- Please don't make pitbulls wear muzzles, they're good boys.

- I'm only concerned about animal welfare. They are family not property. Are kids considered property?
- "do not pass BSL!
- This survey for phase two was not the greatest in set up or questions...feels like info will be skewed."
- Stop picking on pitbulls! If you're going to make things mandatory, make them mandatory for all!! All dogs have the potential to bite.
- Breed specific laws are horrible and unneeded, we are above that. I came from Ontario and now own two extremely friendly rescued pitbulls!!
- No other ideas at the moment
- The breed specific legislation is unjust. Many of these regulations seem as though they were introduced by people afraid of animals.
- Don't discriminate based on breed. Pit bulls and other bully breeds shouldn't be discriminated against. All dogs can cause harm if untrained
- Dogs are not the problem, people are. Laws should be made to protect all animals not punish them for the idiocy of humans.
- i don't understand why everybody thinks pitbull's are such dangerous animals. you can train a golden retriever to be mean if you wanted to.
- Fine for cat causing death to an animal; cats kill more wildlife than dogs.
- "Targeting bully breeds isn't fair.
- They are capable of vicious attacks, but so are a lot of dogs. Enforce proper training instead!"
- NO breed specific legislation!!!!
- BSL is ineffective. Legislate to protect the public from nuisance/dangerous dogs, not a specific breed (or "look” like a specific breed).
- Breed specific legislation does not solve any problems, it creates new ones. Focus on penalizing behaviours, NOT breeds.
- NO to BSL
- BSL is a rabbit hole I do not think we should go down. I have seen far worse or no training on small nuisance dogs than bully breeds.
- "Please do not pass BSL. It is NOT shown to reduce bites.
- Fine and punish bad DOG owners in general. Not just ones with "'scary looking” dogs"
- Dogs should be considered on a case by case basis. Dogs with a clean past should not have to pay for others' transgressions. NO TO BSL!!
- Owners should be punished not the animal. More options provided for training animals that have behavior issues.
- BSL is wrong and ineffective. For problem or aggressive dogs each situation should be assessed and changes implemented.
- I think we should pay more attention to WHO owns pets not the breed of the pet. Can the dog be removed, rehabilitated and rehomed.

- Breed specific legislation is not the answer, responsible pet ownership and addressing individual cases, NO MATTER THE BREED is the answer.
- I'm a courier and I've been bit by more tiny ankle size dogs than I have by big dogs! It's not the breed, it's the owners!
- Investigate the person making the complaint to see if they are the cause of the barking
- I don't believe breed specific legislation is necessary or beneficial to the City.
- No breed specific legislation
- The dog owner should be held accountable for the pet. There should not be any discriminatory regulation against a category of dogs.
- There are tons of random green spaces in this city. TONS. They're not specifically parks, just undeveloped land. Please add off leash signs
- The notion that a pit bull (or any dog resembling one?!) should be held accountable for something they haven't done is absurd.
- All dog breeds should be treated the same. Blockheaded dogs and pitbulls should not be penalized by their breed.
- I don't have an idea.
- I had to take a mandatory class when I adopted my dog. I think people considering "nuisance" breeds should have to be educated about breeds.
- Would love to see the "Canine Good Citizen" certification encouraged more. Maybe a reduced pet licensing fee could be used as an incentive!
- Please do not introduce breed-specific bylaws. It only makes discrimination against breeds worse. It's all about the owner.
- No, thank you
- NO BSL
- No breed specific bylaws
- Provide proof that bullies render a more severe bite than all others since this is the criteria by which they are being singled out. HOGWASH
- do not have breed-specific rules! Owners and training are the main issue with 'nuisance' dogs
- More water spots in parks, like small ponds for dogs to cool off and play in. More fenced off leash like Auburn Bay. More dog parks in north
- BSL is wrong. There are many well behaved pit bulls. Nuisance dogs come in all breeds. The owners are the problem not the dogs.
- I do not believe the pitbull breed should be discriminated. They are some of the nicest dogs I've met. Instead target any aggressive dogs.
- Breed specific legislation is completely unreasonable. Stop punishing well-behaved dogs and good owners.
- You offer discount licence fees for LESA and people with low income but nothing for me who works full time and will soon be a senior
- Barking is not a crime.

- We have a dog behind us that barks constantly and aggressively at us over our fence but you make it extremely difficult to get help with this
- Target owners not breeds. Habitually Irresponsible owners are disproportionately attracted to bully breeds to look cool.
- No idea
- Teach dog body language to those who are afraid. You're punishing many more good dogs and good people with breed specific laws than you help
- Mandatory participation in training classes to be a dog owner (of any breed) would be far more effective than BSL.
- Dogs can only be trained to be vicious. If there is a dog that has bitten or attacked a person, the owner should be investigated.
- Rescue dogs should be exempt from BSL
- BSL is racist and discriminatory. Create legislation that covers all breeds of dogs. Any breed can inflict damage to a human or animal.
- There should be no bylaws against pit bulls or similar looking dogs. This is an extremely biased law and should be looked into further.
- Most dog vicious incidents are created by the owner. Owner needs to take responsibility of attacks by getting dog training for their self
- Clearer definition of "nuisance" would be appropriate, an aggressive/violent dog is not the same as a dog that barks or has run at large.
- No BSL. Pitbulls are the "bad breed" now, but other dogs had this label in the past and it's been proven it's not the breed, it's the owner.
- Breed specific restrictions are unreasonable. I hope removing breed specific language is done before any proposed changes are put in place.
- If someone or their pet is being taunted the person the animal attacks should get the fine not the owner and the person if not an adult shou
- Make obedience classes for any dog breed mandatory. Make it clear through education that you can't just wing it owning any pet.
- BSL is not appropriate for our city. Animal owners should be held responsible regardless of breed, proper training should be enforced.
- It's not the breed it's the owners.
- Owners of nuisance dogs should be required to undergo training to learn how to deal with their dogs specific Issues
- There needs to be a clear separation of pit bull dogs and nuisance dogs in all questions.
- Please do not allow up to 12 animals per household. That is far too many to be cared for properly and for a house in the city to sustain.
- Please don't judge a dog only by breed, rather by its behaviour. All dog breeds should start with a clean slate, no discrimination
- I believe, that forcing only specific breeds of dogs to wear muzzles is inhumane and cruel. This bylaw would be punishing good, innocent dog

- No to BSL! More education, less regulation.
- There seems to be an issue with pet thieves and pet dumping in Calgary. More police and news attention is needed on these issues!
- Do NOT tell me that 2 pets are "enough"; for a person. Then there should be limits on kids. My pets are my kids, 4 is good (I can $ care for)
- It is my opinion that singling out any breed is animal racism and should not be tolerated. Uneducated people are the problem not the animals
- I do not believe that breed specific legislation is beneficial
- NA
- We have problems with
- Breedism is reductive, unsupported by evidence, and harmful to the public. It is abhorrent that BSL is even being discussed.
- I don't agree with pit bulls being banned in the city of Calgary. I think ideas listed in the survey can be used with out any breed bans.
- No
- Dog bites against humans should be investigated to determine if the dog is in fact at fault or if it was defending itself from the human.
- N/a bud
- Breed specific legislation is discriminatory. All pet owners should be responsible no matter the breed or size.
- Thanks for this opportunity to advise, the dogs and cats are never the problem. The problem is the owner of a pet! Police the owner not breed
- I don't have any idea.
- Don't blame the dogs, blame the owners and make them be held accountable. Encourage proper training and education.
- NO NO NO TO BREED SPECIFIC LEGISLATION!!!!
- "I do not agree with breed specific by laws.

- I disagree with limiting number of pets.

- Fines should be lower."
- I believe mandatory education for dog owners should be made available.
- Animals should not be considered hostile or risky simply because of breed. Chihuahuas are more violent than any pitbull.
- BSL is ridiculous. I've seen more aggressive small dogs in dog parks than I have large breeds. It's the owner not the dog.

- Chickens could work but I feel like a) not enough owners would be responsible enough, and b) it could cause issues with neighbouring dogs
- Sensible use of outdoor rinks and tennis courts in off season for dogs that aren't ready/ can't be off leash. Use by 1 family group at a time.
- It would be nice to have more designated off leash areas
- Why are you making a joke?
- I believe that the owner of an animal is responsible for the behaviour of a pet. For senior/disabled animals exceptions should be made.
- Larger fines for cats who roam free or that are not in leashes! I've seen many people train them on leashes just like dogs.
- Legislation should be centred around owners of the animals, and not specific to the breed. Responsible ownership should be the priority.
- There are no bad dogs. Just bad owners. Make training cheaper and a requirement. Hold owners accountable to their pet.
- Awareness programs need to be supported. ie; how to approach a dog, how to recognize aggressive/fearful dogs. Especially with kids involved.
- I thought Calgary did not promote hatred or discrimination, why single out a breed and their owners? Shame on you!
- No law should be breed specific a dogs behaviour is determined by its owner
- Those who don't like BSL - their perspective might be different if they were left with life-altering injuries from a pit bull attack.
- I do not support breed specific regulations and think they could do harm by placing perceived danger on dog breeds rather than dog owners.
- If a yard of a private home is not a completely closed in area, the dog must be on a leash. and unfixed dogs must be leashed at all times.
- Total ban on Pit Bull type dogs in Calgary, Alberta, Saskatchewan and BC. I've been bitten by such a dog whilst protecting my own dog.
- Why has the City of Calgary opened this up to literally anyone on the internet?? Only Calgary taxpayers should participate in the survey.
- Breed specific rules are not fair and haven't worked in other jurisdictions all it does is unfairly vilify a large breed dog.
- Any dog may attack at some point, but chihuahuas don't inflict the damage that a pit bull or rottweiler would.
- Removal of skunks. They are rampant, hurts children and your own pets. Relocation of wild animals in city limits, ie coyote, fox, cougar, et
- Every decade it is a new dog to ban. German shepherds, dobermans, now pitbulls. When will we start putting responsible dog ownership on ppl?
- Responsible owners will abide by regulations. Irresponsible pet owners will not. Serious fines/sanctions for irresponsible owners are needed
- Breed specific rules are silly. It's about responsible owners no matter what the breed.

- Go to DogsBite.org to see the stats. BSL sounds mean, but stick with the facts.
- Breed-specific legislation is not beneficial or effective. Dog owners and their treatment and training of their dog determine these outcomes.
- Breed specific legislation is cruel. Don't be a city that enforces that.
- BSL is such a crock. No bad dogs only bad owners.
- From 2005 - 2019, family dogs inflicted 54% of all fatal attacks. 65% were inflicted by pit bulls. Stick with facts.
- Mandatory training for all OWNERS. Reduction in licence fees if proof of training can be provided. Higher fees may encourage training.
- "Of the 346 fatal pit bull attacks during 2005-2019, over half, 53%, involved killing a family member.
- See stats on DogsBite."
- Increase fines for waking dogs in play/school/athletic parks and walking a dogs dogs without a lead in areas not specifically designated.
- Retractable leads should be prohibited. They pose a danger to the dog, owner, and others.
- Smaller are dogs are proven to be more aggressive, but can be manhandled so they are given a pass, which is not ok
- Offer more free access to low cost dog training so we can reduce the risk to the public.
- I'd like to see a ban on extendable/retractable leashes, as well as any other metal/wire or rope leashes.
- Pitbulls are a wonderful bread. It is the owner who causes issues. I will leave Calgary if pitbull ban occurs.
- None
- It should be mandatory for all dog owners to take training classes.
- How about we find a POSITIVE way to increase awareness and education of pitbulls rather than trying to eliminate them like hitler did the jews
- As someone who was badly attacked by a toy poodle and always around big dogs it disgusts me people are so prejudice of certain breeds
- You keep looking at the DOG or other animal and are not focusing on the problem. OWNERS are responsible and need to be taken to task.
- Legislation shouldn't be breed specific. Owners not breed types are the issue.
- None
- Temporary ban on pet ownership if a person is a repeat offender and shows that they are incapable of providing the animal the proper support
- Provide education to young children about how to approach a strange dog or cat. Some useful do's and don'tS
- Avoiding BSL and language that presents this view is a must. Calgarians do not want breed discrimination! Owners need to be held responsible

- please stop targeting specific breeds, it will not fix your problem. Take more time per case to learn why the dog did what it did instead.
- City Bylaw Enforcement should make some sort of effort to control cats. Currently they make none. It is sad
- I always thought that volunteers in Fish Creek Park could hand a yellow card if they spotted someone not picking up after their animal.....
- Dog breeds developed for fighting have no place in urban settings.
- A big problem is Feral Rabbits. They damage private property due to burrowing. Suggest a trap, spay, neuter, program. If not, then cull.
- if license fees are reduced for low income they should be reduced for everyone
- The banning of animal based on breed is unacceptable and inappropriate.
- In home rentals or ownership there should not be a restriction on having a pet. There are too many NO PET homes. Ontario allows pets.
- Owners with cats that are 100% indoor animals should not be required to license their cat.
- Incentivise good pet ownership habits by perhaps giving them a break on licensing or partnering with local shops for sales opportunities.
- I have a better chance at getting attacked by a human being then a pit ball.
- Dog parks should offer minimum 5 fenced lanes(Bowling alley concept) FCFS, $5 for 30min, dogs can run without worry, city gets user fees.
- Increased fines for dogs off-leash in on-leash dog parks where other dogs and children are present.
- The idea of identifying one breed over others is discriminating and unfounded
- No pit-bull based by laws. However I am in full support of increasing fines and penalties for bad pet owners.
- Breed specific legislation should not be implemented in Calgary. A dog's behavior is the result of the owners training or lack of training.
- I would like this to be a reconsideration of not targeting one specific breed of dog. All owners have to be held accountable.
- Fines must be accompanied by training and evaluation of the human. This is not enough space to give a complete answer.
- Educate children and people of how to greet a dog/cat they don't know. What to look for? What to pay attention to. Animals have rights too.
- Why just pit bulls? Rotti, doberman, German shepherds etc are all strong, not fair to lil pitties. I love all dogs and will not support BSL.
- "pit-bull type dogs" because of bite strength, "pit-bulls" rank #10 in bite strength @235 PSI with other common breads ranging from 750-300.
- I do not like the idea of targeting Pit Bulls and associated breeds. Target responsible pet owners!!!
- Euthanizing all stray cats and aggressive dogs that cause attack an injure people.
- Do not implement breed specific legislation, Calgary is a progressive city that knows how archaic that type of thinking is

- I don't believe having a breed specific bi-law will be fair as I have seen more small dogs attack people and other dog than any Pitbull type
- The current by-law for barking dogs places the burden of proof on the person filing a complaint. It needs fixing and enforcement
- I don't think it's fair to isolate a certain breed ie pit bulls. I don't have one, I have a small breed and they can be really bad too.
- I believe the city of calgary should really RE-CONSIDER their possible bylaw regarding "pitbull" dogs and " nuisance" dogs.
- The emphasis on pit bulls is not right. There should be more emphasis on owners being responsible and ensuring dogs are appropriately traine
- I opposed breed specific legislation. I support stronger rules and controls on animals which are demonstrated to be dangerous to the public.
- Bee hives. A resident near has four hives and not looked after. One of the hives typically swarms in the early summer looking for a new home
- Bee hives. A resident near has four hives and not looked after. One of the hives typically swarms in the early summer looking for a new home
- Make the licence fee for a neutered and unneutered dog the same.
- Hey how about we leave breed specific legislation in the past where it belongs and not discriminate against a dog based on the way it looks?
- I didn't see it mentioned anywhere about repeat offenders. Fines should be higher for these people and also a ban on owning pets.
- In the future do not have misleading associations of nuisance and a particular breed. You need to have unbiased questions
- I don't think it should be an offence to have a cat at large. I fail to see the harm a free roaming cat can cause. I also don't support BSL
- Have any revenue gained from animal fines go towards funding rescue shelters and humane training organizations.
- No breed of dog should be singled out. Make first time dog owners take obedience classes to learn how to train and control their dogs.
- Bylaws are useless unless enforced. What do you plan to do to enforce all the bylaws addressed in this survey?
- City-run animal training program; program fee based on income to accommodate low-income pet owners.
- Pit bulls are not dangerous. Most of them are cuddly teddy bears. The Pit bull has a bad name due to bad owners. I will move if this passes
- Owners of dogs, should not let their dogs walk on the lawns , or urinate on vegetation or flowers...
- It's important that pit bulls and bully breeds are not needlessly discriminated against with unduly muzzling, etc. This idea is outdated.

- What about bylaws pertaining to bees. Ensuring rules are followed so it's safe for neighbours.
- Calgary has been a Stand Alone example for the rest of Canada regarding dog issues. The theory Deed not Breed a best practice for all cities
- Calgary was the leader in creating legislation that focused on good pet ownership rather than a particular breed of dog. Shameful to change
- Option for a Licence for the owner, not the pet. Option for licences to go on subscription. Licence for puppies to limit backyard breeders
- Fines should go to the victims of animal violence. Any other animal related fines should be used to fund affordable obedience classes
- Any revenue that is gained from animal fines should go back to animal shelters, spay and neuter programs, and animal rescues.
- Nope
- Limit of 3 animals per house house. Maximum.
- Toss off and focus on real issues like transit or tax burden
- No dog should be discriminated against. Maybe have a test that each dog must pass that determines its behavior.
- Some pet owners obtain a pet and do not know how to responsibly look after it. Education is required for first time pet owners.
- No restrictions for pet ownership in rentals owned by a corporation
- Training in obedience classes cost way too much making it hard for pet owners to get the proper training for their animals, There should be
- One rule for all dog breeds. Stop doggie racism today
- You have been "exploring" the idea of urban chickens for at least a decade now - perhaps just get with the 21st century and make it happen
- no
- all new dog owners must get their new dog temper and aggression tested, and min of 3 dog training classes.
- Nuisance is a broad category. A loose animal is not automatically a dangerous animal. Dog owners need to train their animal not just pits.
- N/A
- As a vet tech, I can honestly say that the worst breeds are the little ones as owners don't believe in training. Don't bully my breed!
- BSL is unnecessary, it's not the breed - all dogs bite if they're not properly trained. It's quite discriminatory...
- Possible mandatory obedience training for owners of Dogs to ensure that everyone is on the same level. Mandatory spaying if no intent breed.
- An action by a pet has been done by the owner. If a dog hurts someone it is assault and battery a criminal offense. It is your pet.

- You really need to stop demonising bully breeds, it's awful and makes you look pathetic. All breeds can cause harm and attack people...
- Dogs aren't bad unless they have been conditioned be that way, be it intentional or not.
- Dogs should not be judged on their breed, they should be judged individually.
- No to single out pit bulls
- Weight limit for animals in rentals should not be a thing. Also, non refundable pet deposits.
- Breed discrimination is not okay, first time dog owners should be required to take training classes with their pets.
- I don't think it's humane to keep a cat indoors all the time.
- The restrictions against pitbull-like breeds is based on misinformed opinions and should have never even reached this stage of consideration
- Why are barking dogs not addressed her we have 2 that bark constantly with no resolve
- Mandatory info and training organized for owners of "trouble breeds" to help understand behaviour of their dog and how to prevent conflict
- Maybe household pet number limits should be in conjunction with property size?
- Ban cropped ears and docked tails, unless medically needed, as it's unnecessary, can hurt the dog, and is often to make those breeds scarier
- Pitbull owners and dogs who have shown a propensity to be dangerous need to have a fence inspection and need to assessed
- I would be like to see strict but proactive ways to prevent dog bites and promote responsible dog ownership
- N/A
- None
- We all know that good people follow societal rules, and scofflaws don't. Making more rules will never change that.
- Require pet owners to complete a mandatory multiple hours course on responsible pet ownership before the person can acquire a pet license
- Licensing dangerous dogs separately, similar with firearms system. The dogs could be more dangerous then weapons because they can act indepe
- There should be minimum weight required for people walking large dogs, so they're able to control the dogs in case of an on-leash attack.
- Have mandatory training for all dog owners. Not all bad behaviours are intentional, some people just dont know any better.
- Would like to see bylaw and fine for nuisance dogs related to constant barking.
- Not all pits are bad there are bad owners so blame the breed blame the deed!!! THERE ARE AN AMAZING BREED.. If taught right!!!
- Very dissappointing by-law regarding "pit bull and pit bull looking” dog! I've never met a bad one yet!!
- Explore urban rabbit farming.

- Pit bulls should not be treated different from other dogs. Nuisance animal labels should only come when an animal is a nuisance not by breed
- .
- I think that dog owners should be required by law to provide at least one hour per day of exercise for the dog.
- Aggressive animals should not incite city fines, that money should go to the victims that are being attacked.
- na
- "Incentivize obedience classes by reducing licensing fees for first 2 - 3 years
- A public register of where pit bulls are located."
- No.
- I really hope you guys aren't dumb enough to put breed specific rules in. Pit bulls are not the problem, bad owners are.
- No
- Roaming cats need to be dealt with better. If dogs can't roam free, neither should cats. For their safety and because they can be a nuisance
- Pit bulls are not the problem , irresponsible owners regardless of breed are. Cats shouldn't be allowed to roam they kill too many birds.
- BSL has my support Calgary. Even if it saves one child from a pitbull attack a ban is worth it. What's truly shameful is pitbull advocacy.
- Bylaws for dog walkers.
- Increasing fines for multiple infractions for nuisance dogs. Mandatory obedience training for large dogs
- I feel bylaws should be set against pet owners not the animals themselves. Tougher penalties for irresponsible owners
- dogs should not be punished because of their breed.
- Policing of pathways and better signage so people are aware of the rules, not many are.
- Pet owners need to be held responsible for their pets and how they act! Pitbulls are one of the nicest breeds I've experienced
- Re-looking at what constitutes an "emotional support" animal
- Breed specific bylaws are not appropriate
- having new dog owners have to take a course in order to licence their pet.
- Breed specific legislation should not be considered.
- punish bad owners, not dogs. Pitbulls are the most beautiful dogs.
- I do not agree with muzzling pit bull breeds. Discrimination against the breed is not right.
- Dogs w/specified height and weight limit should be muzzled in public AT ALL TIMES within City limits. Ends any major injuries to man or animal
- Please remove any BSL language from your bylaws. Responsible pet ownership covers all breeds/species. Do not unjustly punish based On breed

- Breed specific bylaws should not be considered
- Training new Canadians how to behave around pets. They don't need to scream when they see a dog walking or try and hit a sitting dog
- I am firmly against breed specific legislation... it's not the breed that's an issue, it's the owners.
- Chihuahuas bite more than any dog I've encountered
- Bylaws should address nuisance animals not be breed specific.
- Do not promote breed specific laws. Im a retired letter carrier I've been bitten 5× :2cats, 2small dogs 1german shepherd NO pitbulls EVER
- Enforcement of on-leash rules. There are a ton of off-leash dogs in on-leash areas in the beltline.
- an Owner should not be penalized if their dog bites defensively, for example if harassed/taunted by an adult or minor.
- Bylaw policing dog parks on a frequent basis. Irresponsible people ruin it for the nice dogs and pit bulls.
- Quicker response time from authorities for potentially dangerous scenarios - ie someone who refuses to leash his pit bull while walking it -
- I believe that owners should have to take a dog care training program, feeding, vet responsibilities, exercise, waste management, etc
- Encourage training for all dog owners regardless of breed.
- Apply the same rules to all breeds. Singling out certain breeds is super ignorant.
- I take issue with Breed-sp' thinking bc' it's often owner creating danger. Responsible Breeders screen people as much as child adoption!
- No
- There is no conclusive scientific proof to suggest that pit bulls are in anyway more dangerous or aggressive than other dog breeds.
- Make the rules for dogs in general, don't be breed specific. Any well trained pit bull is the friendliness dog you'll ever meet.
- Lower fee for neutered animals. Stricter rules for pop and scoop. Leash free parks by pet size or breed.
- Not really.
- Consider free or very low cost dog training classes for all owners - not attached to income. Violent dogs are because of owners - not dog
- Not at this time
- DO not BSL, it's antiquated. Dogs are like children, if raised poorly will turn out poorly. Blame the owners who failed in raising the dog.
- Update the survey to include accurate information and not target pitbulls w/ inaccurate information just to get a stronger response against
- Proper classes for people who have multiple offenses regarding their pet. Once can be an accident but multiple times is negligence.
- N/A

- Don't demonize a particular breed of dog
- Stop the sale of pets at pet stores. Strict control of pet breeding—could be dependent on how many animals are in local Shelters.
- Any breed is capable of biting, do not single out specific breeds, or dogs who have a certain "look" or body type or markings.
- thank you for exploring hens and other livestock, if instituted responsibly could be a benefit
- More enforcement of leash laws and no warnings. Everyone should know the rules when they choose to they a dog.
- Pet owners should have to complete a free on-line course on Responsible Pet Ownership before purchasing an animal license
- More bylaw officers on duty and longer hours. People run their dogs off leash in on-leash areas before and after bylaw officers are working
- Do not bsl, pitbulls are no more aggressive than other dogs, and are not the dogs with the strongest bite.
- More expensive licenses for pure bred dogs. More expensive license for dogs not spayed or neutered.
- No
- I feel the need to mention that I am inherently against breed specific legislation. There should be larger fines for irresponsible pet owner
- Implement 'corrals' like in Toronto where you can take your pet into a 5 by 5 foot enclosure where your dog can go poo. Controls feces.
- I feel strong that certain breeds of dogs deemed dangerous by a statistical standard should be band from the city
- I disagree with any breed specific by-laws or rules. It's irresponsible owners that are the problem not any particular breed
- What can be done about Calgarians who mistreat or neglect their pets? Is this clearly spelled out by the city?
- No BSL. Every city and province prides itself on changing their own BSL laws to what Calgary has. Don't ruin your reputation!
- Animal cont officers should have training in dog mgmt and behaviour, so they can identify if an "agressive" dog is just fearful or other ...
- Ban pit bulls for the City of Calgary; they ear extremely dangerous and totally unpredictable. Pit bulls kill people.
- Please make Calgary pitbull free. I am a dog owner and lover and have encountered aggressive pitbulls on several occassions.
- If a dog or child is making excessive noise then someone's needs to investigate. Excessive happens for a reason, a need isn't being met
- Ambassadors at off leash parks. Instead of a colour warning system, volunteer ambassador randomly patrol off leash parks,
- Bad pets are because of bad owners. Penalize the owners, not the animals.

- More opportunities to rehabilitate rescues - I mean access to a range of behavioural specialists to assist the owners stop nuisance animals
- No
- Pet bylaws should be linked more with housing. Prejudice against big dogs in apartments is unfair - smaller dogs that tend to bark.
- Make training mandatory when buying or inheriting a pet. For the owner and the pet. Make it easier to enforce rules about cats at large.
- Same law for cats as dogs. Cats are a big nuisance out all the time pooping in gardens that's not theirs. No real repercussions for owners.
- The retraction of off leash dog areas, why does a non dog owner get preference over a dog owner?
- my idea is to stop labeling pitfalls!
- This city shouldn't single out a breed based off of looks and what they think is bad. This city should focus on the owner being responsible
- Dog and cats outdoors should be required to have a collar with there name and owner information
- Owners of dangerous breeds should be required to purchase insurance to cover their dog attacking people, other animals and property.
- Education is always more powerful than black and white abstinence. Don't waste money on a breed specific ban.
- Ensuring barking dogs in yards should also be covered. How often have we walked by barking dog who does not seem secured in their yard.
- Please don't introduce breed specific bylaws. Ban specific people from owning dogs instead, those who would abuse dogs.
- Provided they are 'fixed', microchipped and have not been previously deemed a 'nuisance', I feel the City should permit cats to roam.
- I'm sorry, this was the unrealistic survey and very disrespectful to the bully breeds
- The [personal information removed] causes bigger problems in this city than dogs do. Take care of actual problems before worrying about minimal ones
- Better enforcement when it comes to constantly barking dogs
- Consider linking number of pets allowed to property size and type in consideration of animal welfare.
- The city should address the population of domestic rabbits.
- BSL will not solve any problems. We need lots of education for dog owners, specifically regarding positive reinforcement training techniques
- I would support mandatory dog training sessions for owners that have dogs that are identified as nuisance pets.
- Firearm owners have restrictions on certain capacity firearms due to the potential for significant harm. Pitbull type dogs are the same.
- There's 8 other dog breeds that have a stronger bite force than "Pitbull" type dogs. Why are they not listed if it's about bite force? NO BSL

- Some of these dog bylaws should apply to all dogs, not only pit bulls. We need to keep ALL owners more responsible for their pets.
- BSL has been proven to be discriminatory to certain breeds and targets them unfairly. Any breed of dog can be aggressive. Train the owners!
- Do not introduce breed specific bylaws. Problems are with owners not with breeds.
- Nope
- Introduce fees to offleash areas.
- Dogs should not be allowed in any natural waterway. Their defecation ruins water quality and natural habitat.
- Dogs should not be allowed to pee on private property. My neighbour brings 3 dogs over several times a day to defecate and urine on my lawn
- Just having a survey about banning breeds shows how backward and ridiculous our city is. Ban the deed not the breed.
- 7
- Mandatory DNA testing of dogs so we can catch (and apply absolutely draconian fines) to owners who can't be bothered to clean up.
- Don't discriminate against dog breeds. The evidence does not support breed-specific bylaws and legislation.
- Affordable, accessible dog training and behavioural education for ALL pet owners would greatly reduce the risk of any pet-related injuries
- Pitbull breed dogs should not be discriminated against. Responsible pet ownership should be across the board despite the breed you have.
- enhanced investigation process. There were 5 households with dogs where I lived, one dog would bark non stop(not my dog) all 5 houses got tix
- I am for a full ban of all pit bull breeds. They cannot be trusted with our children and youth. I love dogs but they disgust me.
- NO BSL!!!! All owners should have to take responsible pet ownership courses, not just breed specific ones!!!!!!
- Any dog that bites, should be put down and owners fined or jailed. No excuses.
- BSL are inefficient and antiquated. Every dog is an individual and should be judged on behavior, not appearance.
 - number of dogs per household may need to be linked to the size of the property (6 dogs in a small apartment may be inappropriate)
- Breed specific legislation is inappropriate, for example a Rottweiler could inflict an equally severe bite as a pitbull
- Consider creation of separate optional spaces in off leash dog parks for small dogs only
- Every dog who barks unnecessarily should be destroyed immediately
- Those that use the bylaw to harass pet owners that arent in violation of any bylaw should be fined
- There appears to be absolutely no enforcement of the rules in off leash areas and I would like to see this change

- Pitbulls are dangerous.
- Owners not animal need the rules. Education and awareness work best. Don't create rules to make work make them enforceable
- It is not fair (especially in today's world) that you are singling out one certain type of dog breed (pit bulls), for no specific reason.
- Suggesting that the breed of dog rather than the owner is responsible for their behaviour is beyond ridiculous.
- There is no evidence that breed specific legislation works at all. Proper training, education, and accountability will help much more.
- Do not discriminate against dog breeds.
- Dogs behaviour should be the pet owner's responsibility. No breed is bad. It's owners.
- Don't blame a breed for what WE as humans have put on them (ie forcing them to fight). They are an amazing loving breed. NO BSL!!!
- "I never see bylaw at offleash enforcing ppl to pick up after their dogs.
- Cant owners need to be more responsible, and pick up poo"
- Needs to be a more effective system regarding pets whose owners let them off leash in on leash areas.
- Trapping cats that are licensed and roaming the neighborhood and pooping in my yard should be allowed. The owner should pay a hefty fine.
- Alberta should limit the number of rescue pit bulls allowed into the province.
- Mandatory licensing, tons of people do not have licenses for their pets
- Lower pet costs for licensing would bring more owners to license their pets. Paying these fees do not help in any way to us
- What about exotic pets? Snakes, tarantulas, etc. All dangerous species, can inflict injury and even death and have not been mentioned.
- Deal seriously with barking dogs. A constantly barking dog is sleep-depriving torture to neighbours. The City should deal with the offender.
- All parks with playgrounds where kids play should not allow dogs. There should be a separate fenced area for dogs where possible.
- Discriminating against certain breeds because of social media propaganda and sensationalized news? Seriously? Pit bulls DO NOT deserve that.
- I'm hoping each incident will be dealt case by case. Each situation will be different and I don't believe any dog is at fault, the owner is.
- breed-specific by-laws should NOT be implemented. This will result in a lot of dogs being euthanized and solve nothing. Punish bad owners.
- It is of huge impact to consider the owner of the dog and quality of life and care a dog receives.
- Mandatory training, financial and home security demonstrated by intended per owners and proof of same before pet license issued.
- The breed of dog is not the issue - the owner is. To suggest anything else is ridiculous.

- My chief point is. Don't punish a breed for bad owners. Never bite by pit bull BUT have been by cute, little dogs.
- Breed specific legislation is prejudice and inappropriate. It is disgraceful for a City as advanced as Calgary be so primitive.
- How about a ban on certain dog breeds before any child or adult is hurt!
- Breed specific by-laws are unhelpful each situation should be dealt with on a case by case basis not a breed as a whole.
- An established colour coding system already exists in professional dog circles to ID friendly/non - using a traffic light coding conflicts
- Put [personal information removed] in a rubber dinghy and set it loose on the Bow River
- Potential pet owners should take a course as part of the licensing process. For responsible pet ownership.
- Not at this time
- Our government praises equality, this is contradicting that. Do not judge by breed. It's unfair
- The idea that any single breed of dog being dangerous is ludicrous. Any dog has the potential of being dangerous. Don't target pit bulls.
- People that want to own dogs of any kind should have to undergo training as it's usually the owner not the dog that created the problem.
- breed specific laws are ridiculous.
- Breed-specific legislation should not be pursued because it doesn't address the underlying issue of irresponsible breeding and ownership.
- Breed specific bylaws are disgusting and the product of naive ideals. Proper training for ALL breeds should be the priority.
- "TOO many rules result in people's inability to develop and use common sense.
- BSL= lack of common sense/education.
- TRY EDUCATION!"
- The pets are not the problem.....the owners are! Make it count and hurt the owner financially, they will learn to properly train their pet.
- Breed specific laws are nonsense. There is no "bad" breed of dog.
- Do not judge by breed it is the not a specific breed of dogs that causes issues, majority of the time it is the people stop targeting
- More focus on education programs for all dog owners and less on fines. Stop focusing on specific breeds and more on education for all dogs.
- If someone is unable to afford a pet license, then they shouldn't own a pet, unless it is for a medical reason or an assistance animal.
- I am an animal lover but I admit I am afraid when I see Pitbulls coming near me or my pet. Their behaviour is unpredictable and often severe
- Not at this time.

- We need to be able to sustain ourselves. COVID has shown us that. Urban hens are a start in the right direction.
- Giving incentives to people with well trained, socialized dogs, and penalizing people with ill behaved dogs is a better approach than BSL.
- No for the moment
- Ok
- financial penalty for aggressive dogs should be immediate and severe for owners including removing dog from their care min 1 week 1st offense
- Item #10 has 3 parts, but you're only asking for feedback on 2 of the 3 parts. I would support lifetime or multi year pet licenses.
- "Dog bites a child euthanize.
- Punish the deed , not the breed"
- Breed specific legislation is ridiculous and unnecessary. Pit bulls are not the problem, bad owners are.
- Max 2-3 large breed dogs or 3-4 medium or small breed dogs and maximum 4 cats per household
- Breed Specific is another form of Discrimination... I have been attacked by small breeds of Dogs and Never by Large Breeds.
- "Giving incentives to people with well trained, socialized dogs, and penalizing people with ill behaved dogs is a better approach than BSL
- People have a problem taking care of their own family ... and why should they have animals ...
- Dogs pooping in the river. Barking at the 11 street sw off leash is terrible, and nothing we can do
- Calgary should follow CA's lead and ban pet stores from selling commercially bred dogs, cats and rabbits. Also, I am against a breed ban.
- Stop bullying bully dogs, they are animals, if the OWNERS lose control remove their ability to have them or require obedience training.
- There are some people that just hate animals and try to "hurt" them, if these people are caught then they should be federally charged.
- Have more focus on education programs for ALL dog owners rather than focus on specific breeds (as the breeds are not the problem).
- Just rethink ur bully topic.
- Let the pit bulls be! Don't muzzle them just because they're strong... It's like handcuffing bodybuilders in public.
- I am very AGAINST breed specific legislation. It is proven ineffective as pitbulls are not involved in more incidents then other dogs.
- Enforcement of offleash, onleash areas by bylaw. Too many dustups by having people allow off leash in undesignated areas
- Why would a dog that barks be refused off leash?
- "So what changed in the past few years? Calgary used to have it together!!!
- <https://t.co/4vAySDfb3h?amp=1>

- I liked the topics covered in this survey.
- NO
- Do not ban pit bulls. Punish a specific dog not a whole breed.
- City of Calgary, pretending to care about your input but will do whatever they want after the survey closes.
- Would love to see bylaw allow for a visiting goat lawn service - following the success of the city's use.
- Larger animals should incur higher licensing fees. Not picking up pet feces should incur higher fines that scale up with repeat offences.
- bite/injury fines be 2 levels for minor or severe + consideration if dog provoked. All/portion of fine to injured/killed if no insurance
- I dont think imposing a muzzle bylaw is fair to people that own a dog of a specific breed or characteristic
- A dogs breed doesn't make a bad dog bad owners do. A dog should not be euthanized for a single offence.
- There should be NO discrimination against PITBULLS. The discrimination and penalties should be against the owners.
- Breed specific legislation is a terrible idea that will not accomplish the outcomes you want. Pandering doesn't work. Do better.
- More off leash areas in the city, specifically nose hill where bicycles are not allowed
- It's awful you're singling out a breed of dog (Pitbulls). Educate yourselves first, and quit punishing an entire breed.
- I think that muzzling breed specific dogs is ridiculous and should be re-evaluated on an as needed basis.
- No one under the age of 25 can adopt, buy a puppy from a breeder, etc., until they have taken a certified training program on handling dogs
- The breed of an animal has absolutely no involvement. Do not put blame on the dog, but on the owner instead. Pitbulls are amazing animals!!!
- Do not ban pitbulls. Breed specific legislation never achieves the intended purpose because it's not a breed specific problem.
- "I am sick of people
- Complaining about dogs barking,"
- Definitely against breed specific rules.
- Wow. Very disappointed in Calgary for literally calling out an entire breed of dogs. How close minded was the person who came up with that
- N/a
- You shouldn't single out pit bulls because of their bite force. Pit bulls are not born to bite, their owners allow that behavior.

- Any dog can be "vicious", it is about education, not discrimination.
- Training of dogs needs to be brought to the forefront. Encourage Canine Good Neighbour Testing. Encourage dog sports and training.
- Dogs are prohibited on school property, but owners (sometimes students' parents) bring them anyway. More education and enforcement, please.
- Do not skew responses by limiting the option for answers. Take in to account what the human did to cause the dog to bite them
- Discrimination of any kind is not okay, even within the realm of pets. Stop the craziness.
- Dogs being left out in yard unattended while owner away and becoming a nuisance
- Need better presence in off-leash parks to distribute fines to unruly or aggressive dogs, remove aggressive dogs, issue fines etc.
- I think more focus on actually enforcing current bylaws is needed. There's no use in creating more hoops when existing laws are ignored.
- Pitbulls shouldn't be targeted!!
- Preadoption training
- more fenced in off leash areas in south east, south west, near 210 Avenue
- I think the focus on certain breeds of dog is not the right approach. Support responsible pet owners no matter the breed.
- I think that muzzling breed specific dogs is ridiculous and should be re-evaluated on an as needed basis
- At the risk of sounding somewhat radical, isn't breed specific legislation simply just descrimination?
- Too vague-would capture dogs that pose no harm based on arbitrary looks/criteria. Lots of breeds can do damage in a bite.
- More enforcement of on-leash parks. There are many 'hot spots' that people continually bring dogs off leash because it is never enforced.
- More feces bag stations around city will mean more feces picked up
- Discriminating against breeds does not prevent biting/aggressive behaviour. More abandon animals could result from increased fees/insurance
- Mandatory rehabilitation for aggressive dogs rather than putting the animal down.
- Pit bulls are loyal, loving animals, people create aggressive animals. Disgusting that we even need to have this discussion!
- N/A
- If a dog commits an offense the owners should be held responsible and should be require to go through some sort of training program.
- Pitbulls are fighting dogs and unpredictably aggressive. We don't want their kind and their apologetic owners around here.
- To create a bylaw specific to pitbull breeds and not behaviours is a completely ignorant response to public safety and pet ownership.
- Dog walkers should have a limit of 4 dogs so that they can be adequately controlled

- Small breeds are much more common biters but only the larger breeds are publicized.
- BSL doesn't solve dog attack problems, it just gives owners with unruly dogs who aren't pit bulls a pass. Enforce training for all dogs.
- None
- Focusing on one breed doesn't change the outcome. This is only caused by people's fear of something they don't understand. Every dog is different
- Do not ban specific breeds, instead ban certain people from owning pets
- Pit bulls should be banned. Doesn't matter who's fault their potential bad behaviour is, they inflict far too much damage.
- instead of raising fees, make it mandatory for nuisance pet owners to have to attend and then prove attendance at a obedience class ..
- There should be a bylaw against having large dogs in small appts/condos . More strict penalties should be enforced for bad pet owners.
- More enforcement and fines of dogs being walked off leash in non off leash areas.
- It's definitely not about the breed, it's about Owners who own this breed. Pitbull owners are not responsible enough to maintain this breed.
- Punishment to bad owners NOT the dog/breed!!! NO BSL!!!! Shame on you Calgary!!!
- Addressing aggressive pets in yard with low fences - barking and aggression when the sidewalk is close and the dog can jump
- Just like we need to take a test to get our learners, I think If people want to own pets, they should get a pet owners license.
- Easy access to printable bylaw rules re barking dogs, to drop in neighbors mailbox
- Enforcement of the cat bylaw is a joke. If you have a problem you have to pick up an "acceptable" trap, set it up in acceptable location and
- I think a bylaw to cover neglected or at risk animals should be in place. Current state bylaw passes it off to calgary humane.
- You should have to have a business licence to breed animals. If you get caught doing something illegal (selling drugs) animal should be tak
- Breed specific restrictions do not deal with individual dog's behaviour. It would make us move and we don't even have the breed mentioned.
- A golden retriever nearly ripped my face off as a kid and a pitbull reversed the trauma years later. Stop focusing on the breed.
- No
- More off leash paths. Simply put a sign: you are entering an off leash area” And then further along "please leash up, entering onleash area
- Breed-specific legislation is known to be ineffective. The methodology of this survey makes it also ineffective.
- No

- I sometimes see pets in stores. I don't agree with this. They are animals and not everyone likes them.
- Yes, get out of people's lives! Enough of you control, dominate and subdue. Is this Big Brother?
- none
- Any fine should not be set in stone, it should be on a case to case basis . The cat at large fine?
- Pitbulls do not have stronger jaw strength than other large breeds, base legislation on fact, not folklore
- Stop allowing animals to be sold in pet stores and thru other means. If we want to end the abuse against animals, start at the source .
- Responsible owners have nothing to fear from practical pit bull restrictions. The result is the public will be safer from dangerous dogs.
- Obedience training and a behaviourist analysis on animal attacks should be advised in all situations regardless of breed. BSL doesn't work.
- Do not single out Pit bull dogs, vicious dogs come in many breeds and mutts.
- Fines are great and should be higher but we also need enforcement. Currently many irresponsible pet owners are getting off scot free!
- I totally disagree with breed specific bylaws. It encourages fear of that breed. What about licensing discounts for trained pets/owners
- Where is the opportunity to give further feedback regarding roaming cats and irresponsible owners?
- n/a
- "The breed of dog should not effect the fine amount.
- All dogs have teeth."
- All pets should be on a leash everywhere that is not an off leash area.
- Each neighborhood should have off leash areas within walking distance to neighborhoods, dogs can burn excess energy first.
- Enforcement in dog parks. The same person brings a dangerous animal. They say the bite/attack/threat is a one off but it happens weekly
- Consistent enforcement would be a better deterrent than large fines. I have never seen bylaw actually enforcing leashing etc.
- Fines for low impact to citizens (like unlicensed pet, pet at large etc) should start nominal and increase per infraction
- Mandatory Special training /education necessary for having urban livestock. Include topics like parasites, bacteria, viruses.
- I just stand strongly behind keeping pitbulls away from everyone.
- Enable / increase park patrols that can ticket people for off leash dogs; many owners in park near us don't monitor off leash dogs
- no breed specific targeting. I think the chihuahua on my street is more vicious then the pit bull I barely know he is there.
- Ban the sale of dogs in pet stores.

- Do not single out a breed, a dangerous dog is a dangerous dog no matter the breed
- No, I just came here to say how terribly disappointing it is that Calgary is suggesting BSL. Bring back old [personal information removed] and [personal information removed]!
- Ban pit bulls in this city. The breed is not stable mentally.
- huge problem with dog walkers in Calgary being able to walk multiple dogs at the same time - it is so very unsafe to others! We need a law
- Use common sense regarding pets, it's not always black and white.
- Breeders business license. I think anyone who is selling dogs, should carry a business license and be treated as a small business owner.
- "Nuisance" dogs is a broad category that places well trained breeds in the same category as those of which who have incompetent owners...
- N/a
- The "early warning system" is a good idea. It's usually a stranger's fault for aggression, so we should communicate how to approach the dog
- Don't single out a specific breed. There are no dangerous breeds just dangerous owners. Monitoring and enforcement are detrimental!!
- Breed discrimination is ugly and proven not to work in other jurisdictions. Y'all should be ashamed of yourselves.
- The fine question only offering increase or decrease was limiting. Stay as is should have been an option.
- If a dog is aggressive it is not because of the breed. It is because of the owner, and the potential trauma to the dog is receiving
- "Breed specific legislation is racism in the dog world. Many pitbull dogs have not bitten anyone. My 12 yr old one hasn't.
- To many laws now!"
- No
- Responsible pet owners with well behaved dogs should not have to pay extra fees because their dog has bully breed features.
- If kids have support teddy bears as support animals why do adults need more than a cat or dog? No "exotic" animals need to be considered.
- Treat pitbulls the same as other dogs. Get off your high horse
- Limiting the number of dogs with professional dogwalkers in off leash or increasing fines if those limits already exist. I regularly see 12+
- No
- Enforce the bylaws. Breed specific regulations don't work, it targets specific breeds not irresponsible owners that should be held accountable
- I strongly believe that dogs behavior is reflection of the owners. Dogs are kind and human friendly if raised with kindness, love and RULES

- No Breed specific legislation, it doesn't work, this is already known. Target irresponsible owners not the dog breed.
- Stop picking on specific dog breeds.
- Pit bulls raised with love. Trained and socialized at young age with constant reinforcing make a great pet. But all dogs are work. No problem.
- I've never been more ashamed of this city. This kind of ignorance is truly disgusting.
- "BSL questions were a BRILLIANT scheme to arouse the public into engaging the survey.
- Well done Bylaw! You would not dare carry on!"
- How times change. Pits used to be called the nannie dog because kids were so safe with them. The dog has not changed, we have. NANNIE DOG!
- Breeds are not the problem, ignorant and lazy owners are. The owners should be accountable. I've never met a Pitbull that wasn't a softie.
- Off leash areas need more rules, guidelines and expectations for owners who aren't attentive. They are disasters waiting to happen.
- It is the owner and people/the public that create reactions in dogs. More education/awareness is needed. Blaming the breed is wrong.
- No breed specific laws If your dog is aggressive it should wear a muzzle in public no matter the breed If something happens then owner fined
- None
- More fines based on off-leash animal attacks in on-leash areas.
- Interestingly, none of the project team seems to have a pitbull. You can keep redoing the survey, even if you're not from Calgary?
- Fine people for teasing and/ or encouraging dogs to bark. If under 18, fine the parents.
- n/a
- Don't allow pit bull or other dangerous dogs as pet.
- I feel that the animals are getting most of the blame, here, when 90% of "nuisance animals" are due to the owners being lazy/abusive.
- No
- Many of these suggestions rely on case by case basis or law enforcement's judgement which is a recipe for disaster.
- Address people who abuse animals.
- targeting backyards breeders
- just a comment- i believe all children should be educated- NOT to approach a dog without asking the owner if it is ok to pet their dog.
- Obedience training required in order to obtain an animal licence (for all breeds) and the first year license fees will be waived.
- Licensing for owners of aggressive breeds - same standards as gun ownership. Most of these dogs are fantastic pets in ill prepared hands.

- Ensure all legislation is breed neutral. Bite force is determined by size. Many breeds such as German Sheppard have a higher bite force.
- GOOD, responsible pet ownership is not the same standards for everyone. Too often pets are used as "guard” animals or for protection.
- I want to have BSL for pit bulls. They are inherently dangerous and have killed a lot of people/kids/animals.
- Increase fees for purebreds and custom breeds as well as breeders. Decrease fees for rescued animals and shelter adoptions.
- "1.Mandatory training for nuisance animals.
- 3.KEEP PITBULLS IN THE CITY
- 3.Equal treatment for all breeds not size."
- PLEASE do not discriminate against our beaut
- Have more off leash parks in the south east and divide some parks so the large dogs can be separate from the small dogs
- I would like stricter enforcement in off lease areas. Many dog owners do not have control of their dogs and don't pick up feces.
- Do not discriminate against different breeds of dogs. All dogs are beautiful and do not need to be segregated or cost more to have.
- Lower the license fee for cats that remain strictly indoors.
- Higher sentence for those abusing animals
- Responsible neighbours mean having a level of tolerance for pet behaviour. Periodic dog barking has to be accepted - excessive dog barking i
- Responsible pet ownership is a privilege, please respect your community by keeping your pet under control. Parks are for everybody to enjoy.
- Ban all pit bull type dogs.
- We live by the river and at least 20% of dogs being walked aren't on a leash. Stricter enforcement is necessary. More garbage cans availabl
- Pit bulls kill more than any other dog breed in history. They have no place in our parks or on our streets!
- We need to find ways to better deter dog owners who leave their dogs barking outside.
- I would like to see more off leash dog parks designated large dog vs. small dog.
- Breed specific rules are nonsense as it's the owner who is the problem not the breed.
- I do believe certain breeds of large dogs should be prohibited in Calgary e.g. Pit Bulls, Presa Canario, Mastif.
- We should not discriminate certain breeds instead we should implant licensing and training before purchasing a dog that is considered danger
- Dogs off-leash in on-leash areas seems to be getting more and more common. Perhaps warnings, then fines for offending owners.

- Regulate WHO owns a bully breed. If owner is un able to regularly socialize, train spend time with the dog problems arise. Ban some people.
- Breed specific laws should not be contemplated. Fine the owner not the animal!
- Waive or reduce fees for dog owners that demonstrate that they have educated themselves about dog behaviour (obedience classes, etc)
- I'm really concerned about "walking” dogs by dragging them along on a leash while the owner rides a bicycle. Educate more then fine more.
- Make having pets (especially dogs) chipped mandatory. Have it so Vets can report non-compliance and maybe give a reduce licence rate.
- Should have volunteer services for walking and cleanup to help care for pets.
- N/A
- "For number of allowable dogs, having
- a total weight limit (ie no more than 500 lbs total in dogs owned) vs number of dogs"
- N/A
- Use empathy, common-sense and please keep the animals best interests in mind and at heart.
- Breed specific banning of pitbulls is wrong. The city should focus on fines and deterrents for aggressive dog behavior in all dogs.
- Fines for bylaw infractions may impose financially on low income families. Community service could be an alternative.
- Stop looking at the problems as being just one type of dog. I don't go to dog parks anymore due to aggressive dogs of ALL types attending
- We need more off-leash parks, perhaps graded for small dogs to large dogs, and more public spaces where people can enter with their dogs.
- I would 100% support an eventual ban on certain breeds as has been done in other metropolitan areas.
- City is very restrictive on where you can bring dogs, even on leash. So many families have dogs and cant bring them due to not being allowed
- Changes that are overly breed specific are lazy and poorly thought out. All dogs can be bad if not cared/trained. Animal safety =#1
- I think that there should be a higher fine for anyone who has their dog off leash on a path that is not designated as an off leash area.
- Service and LESA animals should be one-time lifetime licenses. Other animal licenses should be 5 year term (reduced administration costs).
- Maximum number of dogs that can be walked by a single adult
- Crack down was harder on bad dogs. A dog should be put down it is bites.
- Do NOT call out a specific breed!! Untrained and owner instructed dogs can be vicious more than a certain breed. Teach owners
- no
- No

- Please please enforce the on-leash rules and fine people. Some on-leash parks have dogs running wild. How can kids play safely there?
- No
- Better monitoring of off leash areas. Stop singling out breed specific. ALL dogs can be aggressive. Consider free education classes.
- No
- The LESA question did not permit an answer that included raise the fee AND permit waiver. I support an increase and waiver potential.
- Pitbulls are proven to be involved in a significant majority of severe incidents. Pet ownership is a luxury, not a right. Higher fines.
- Dog walkers to be limited to number of dogs they walk (suggest 4 as a max)
- BSL is unnecessary, dogs should be dealt with on an individual basis not based on breed.
- 6 dogs or cats in one household is too many. That many animals under one roof in an urban setting will be a nuisance to neighbours.
- Some dog owners do not know to rein in their dog when people are passing them on a path. Pet ownership requires education and responsibility.
- Don't discriminate against dog breeds. It's not the dog, it's the owner. Also, I shouldn't have to register my indoor cats every single year
- Can you explain why the survey is available in 6 languages, but NOT in the other official language of Canada? This is unacceptable.
- I strongly do not support the mandatory muzzling of put bulls. I do not own one, but am concerned it will soon encompass other large breeds.
- Keep dogs that are on a leash off the "out of leash” area.
- Parents need to be responsible of their kids at dog parks. Kids under a certain age must keep their kids working arms reach at dog parks
- BSL is not fair. It is the owners who make the dogs aggressive, not the breed.
- The idea of charging people for simply owning a specific breed with no data presented to back up why that is justified is absolute nonsense.
- No additional ideas
- Honestly just leave the pitbulls alone. it's the owners who bring them up they way that they do. they are not bad they can be super loveable
- Dogs are reflections of their owners. There are no bad dogs, only bad owners.
- Preventative measures and educational programs. NO BREED SPECIFIC LEGISLATION.
- Ridiculous! You wouldn't discriminate a baby because of their race. How is it ok for the city to discriminate a specific breed of dog(s)?
- Why aren't there clearly posted signs or sandwich boards (like the ones in off leash parks), in every city park\playground re animalbylaws
- They should run better background checks on those who want to adopt a dog, any dog because small dogs can be just as vicious as Big dogs.

- No breed specific legislation!
- No Breed Specific Legislation. Just education and preventive measures.
- A dog park is the one place where we as pet owners feel comfortable. Parents of children need to be held responsible not just the dog.
- I do not support breed specific legislation. Dog behaviour stems from their owners, and pit bulls arent the only strong dogs so it's unfair.
- People receiving government subsidies are not allowed to adopt pets.
- STOP BSL. Pitbulls are some of the best dogs they score very high on temperament tests. They are no stronger than any other dog their size.
- Improve engagement with animal welfare organizations when making many of these decisions (e.g. SPCA, wildlife rehabilitators).
- You can remove that pitbull type dogs have a stronger bite. The statements made are not based on fact nor backed by veterinarians.
- Children and their activities should be limited in off-leash parks. Their activity is often seen as play by dogs.
- If dogs are impounded for an incident, have them assessed for potential rehab and re-home them with someone who can improve their behaviour.
- Extremely disappointed Calgary would even present a BSL - NO TO LIMITING, MUZZLING, DISCRIMINATING AGAINST PITBULL TYPE DOGS.
- Are there any measures in place to catch people who may fill out this survey numerous times?
- No fines. Pet owners should pay expenses for any damage caused by their pet. Restrictions for those pets. Program/behavior training for pets.
- Barking dogs are nuisance and pet owners should be made aware of that, along with some suggestions to minimize the problem.
- Nope.
- A dog deemed a "nuisance" for barking should not be served the same penalties as one deemed so for biting or injuring. Should be separated.
- If not already, all off-leash areas should be COMPLETELY enclosed, as dog do not know the boundaries without a barrier/fence being in place.
- All City Rules should be posted at off-leash entrances, and Rules should include "Do Not Feed Pets Other Than Your Own" i.e. ALLERGIES etc.
- A bylaw specifying ANY breed of dog as a 'nuisance' is grossly ignorant. Past breeds thought to be dangerous have now been proven otherwise.
- Breed specific prejudice is misguided and detracts from the responsibility of pet ownership
- Parents of children should be held responsible for minor accidents caused by their kids; No breed specific legislation.
- Pit Bulls should not be targeted here. Owners are the problem, not the dog.
- A reduction in annual animal license fees for owners that complete Good Neighbor training or level 3 and higher obedience standards.

- none
 - I completely disagree with any form of BSL , I have seen more aggression in doodles (I'm a dog groomer)
 - "Get rid of BSL. I can't believe I need to say this in 2020.
- Bad owners are the nuisance, not pit bull type dogs."
 - N/a
 - Fines for having dogs off leash in a city park. Hefty fines.
 - BSL is absurd and harmful to loved family pets. Pit bulls are strong dogs, yes. But poor behaviour stems from POOR OWNERS! Not the dogs.
 - Fully enclosed off leash areas with dedicated areas by activity, etc.
 - stop trying to make breed specific legislation. Any breed can be a problem or the sweetest thing
 - Put a program in place that sends a "nuisance" dog to mandatory training, other than jumping to euthanization. #rehabilitate
 - Small dogs can set off a protection feeling in larger dogs due to the smaller dogs aggression. I do not think you should specify breed.
 - Get rid of animal licensing all together.
 - Again I will just state again how disgusted I am at the use of pitbulls in this survey. And who ever wrote should be ashamed.
 - Specific and increased penalties for people that bag dog feces and then throw it away on paths and other public places. Disgusting !
 - It's already been covered in phase 2 conversation but I believe the breed restrictions are absolutely ridiculous.
 - Fines are not effective without enforcement. There are MANY violations daily at our multi-use off leash park and there is NO Enforcement.
 - Investigate the entire incident. If the incident was provoked or triggered, the 'victim' has a role in accountability too.
 - It's ridiculous that pit bulls are specifically listed. Why is one breed being targeted? What about other known breeds that can be aggressive
 - Safety and health of the dog is paramount. Re: license fees, # dogs, the owners need to be able to keep their dogs safe and healthy.
 - No
 - I was intensely disappointed to see the proposed inclusion of breed specific legislation. This is discriminatory and unnecessary.
 - Remove the Bylaw complaint category for "excessive dog barking" unless the household in question has more than 10 dogs barking incessantly.
 - BSL is the worst idea ever. Making him wear a muzzle on a walk would not only make him look scarier but would also be unhealthy.

- Consider requiring a pet license/liab. insurance prior to acquiring pet. Affords teaching opportunity re: responsibilities/penalties etc.
- No breed specific regulations. Owners with multiple/repeated bite/aggression reports for multiple dogs should face additional consequences.
- the breed restrictions are terrible!
- Leave pitbulls and other bully breeds alone.
- Mobile spay/neuter and microchip truck for low-income areas. City of Toronto runs a spay/neuter truck and a microchip truck.
- BSL is discriminatory and ineffective. "Pitbull" is not a breed and so labeling any given dog a pitbull is problematic. License owners.
- "Pitbulls" do not have an exceptionally strong bite, this is easily researched. There's no reason to arbitrarily target one type of dog.
- PLEASE DESIGNATE PET FREE PARKS FOR THOSE WHO WANT TO COMMUNE WITH NATURE WITHOUT BEING HARRASSED BY DOGS/OWNERS. POLICE UNLEASH AREAS PLEASE
- N/A
- Focus on behaviour, not breed. An animal that causes harm should be rehabilitated wherever possible, with problem owners punished.
- No
- I feel we are only considering the needs of pet owners, non-pet owning citizens need to have their voices heard.
- Attempting to legislate against pit bulls is [removed], please don't do it
- Enforced grooming practices for certain dog breeds
- No
- Provide the city with more affordable pet obedience classes. Irresponsible owners are the cause of "nuisance" pets, not the pets themselves.
- Place an outright ban on pit bulls, Rottweilers and other aggressive breeds.
- Pitbulls are no different than any other breed
- Na
- Absolutely no BSL for Calgary! It doesn't work.
- "- A ban on male intact pit bull type dogs outside of licensed breeders."
 - Additional, mandatory insurance for pit bull type dogs."
- Nothing further at this time
- N/A
- Ban certain large breeds including pit bulls.
- Please ban all dogs. They are nothing but severe health hazards.
- Voluntary dog early warning system is long overdue and needs proper public education to make it a success.
- My idea is the city shuts up about pets, pigeons, chickens and pit bulls.

- DNA testing of all dogs to allow for tracing of ownership of dropped / tossed bags of feces
- Lmnop
- Dogs should only be flagged as a nuisance for aggression. And the bandana system should be enforced at the off-leash areas. not barking.
- We need to get serious about backyard breeders. Theyre flooding the market with animals that can have serious health and behavioral problems
- The nuisance label should apply to the behaviour, not the breed.
- I don't have any ideas at this time.
- I do not support a pit bull ban or higher fees or insurance for pit bulls. This is discriminatory.
- Roaming cats are disease spreaders and kill native birds - this needs more attention. Survey skewed to pet owners and chicken activists.
- Regulation of breeders, especially "backyard breeders", and people selling dogs on Kijiji, etc. They need to be licensed and inspected.
- Quit picking on pit bulls. All dogs have the ability to bite. Sadly it is small % of pet owners that ruin it for the rest of pet owners.
- BSL is biased, discriminatory, and not supported by actual research. Ban the behavior, not the breed.
- No. Just leave Pitbulls alone. It's the owners not the animal!!!
- Fines for owners who specifically breed dogs for aggression and abuse them This includes jail time, bans on owning animals and monetary fines.
- N/A
- Really ashamed to say where I live now, mine as well say Ontario.
- I support nuisance dog legislation but am concerned that pit bull types will be treated unfairly under any such legislation.
- Pit pulls DO NOT have any greater strength than your average medium-sized dog. Focus on rehabilitation and training before punishing owners.
- Ya y'all need to blame people for screwing things up. People screw up animals, they screw up the city and they screw up Surveys
- All owners must take training classes. registry for owners. Tracking of owners who are irresponsible with removal of animals and hefty fines
- Breed specific legislation against 'pitbull' type dogs is unscientific and fear-based legislation that has nothing to do with community safe
- Deeply disappointed the City of Calgary is considering breed specific legislation considering the ample evidence that it is ineffective
- "Off leash dogs running all over the place provincial private properties need to be able
- fine owners of off leash dogs ect dogs at large"
- No
- I would suggest that dog owners get a pet licensing fee waiver from the City if they enroll their pets in animal training classes.

- Don't discriminate against pit bull type dogs. It is the owner, not the dog, who is responsible for a problem dog. Training ALL dogs is key.
- I support nuisance dogs getting training etc., but focusing on pit bulls will cause a larger issue of dog attacks, by ignoring other dogs.
- The common denominator in all this is: owners. The bad ones ruin it for all. None of these measures singles them out. Revisit your approach.
- Please completely ban dogs in city limits that have the capacity to kill a human being. I am an animal lover but animals are unpredictable.
- "Regulating breeders.
- BSL is technically racism. Look/color should not matter."
- Actual proof should be required to report a noisy or barking dog. We've been falsely issued warnings before.
- punish the owner not the dog! Don't discriminate!
- Dog walking business in residential area. The doggy day care must limit animals. walking of animals to walking park
- Don't ban any single breed. If anything obedience school should be mandatory across the board, and not specific to single breed
- Absolutely do not enact BSL. It is backwards and harmful.
- Dog owners should be required to train dogs excrement in their own yard. Not conveniently go for their walk and excrement along their walk.
- I've had a non-owner raise their walking stick as a weapon when my dog was on leash and completely friendly. Dogs aren't the only aggressor
- You can't stop a cat from roaming!
- Educational outreach programs for children and/or when adopting
- None
- I totally support banning pit bulls. Most attacks from dogs are reported to be from these aggressive breeds.
- There should be a limit on the number of dogs a dog walker can take to an offleash park.
- No
- <https://www.fairdog.dk/elements/documents/research/world-wide-failure.pdf>
- The fact you're picking on BSL is revolting. You need to target owners not the breed. More welfare checks and actually do something about it
- Discriminating dog breeds because of the actions a small percentage of poorly trained dogs is no different then racial profiling for humans
- No
- Do not change any laws regarding pitbulls, no specific dog breed is inherently violent, using collective punishment is a bad idea.
- Na

- I love the idea of lowering pet fees for owners who have gone through a training course. But I am completely against BSL. Target bad owners
- Puppy mill and hoarding cases need to be more severely charged, and jail time issued for those with many sick and emaciated dogs.
- property damage -beyond owners homes, many now live in apartments / condos that have no requirements for onsite facilities under land use?
- Multiple fines for a cat roaming should result in increased fines or removal of the cat.
- "Multiple pet ownership should be permitted or restricted based on the size of a person's home.

- Also, don't use BSL."
- Targeting pitbulls by labeling them a problem breed is scapegoating and doesn't address the real problem, irresponsible owners of ANY breed.
- No to BSL, pitbulls are no more dangerous than any other dog can be. All dogs need good owners who train them properly.
- Fix the bylaw so that it includes all dog breeds, not a select few. Chihuahuas are more dangerous than pitbulls. Use reliable information.
- Nothing at this time.
- Enforce leash laws!!
- Instead of singling out a specific breed. Problem isn't the breed it's the people. Make obedience more accessible.
- Maximum length for leashes!
- Owners need to HOLD their dogs leash. Many people put their dog on a leash but then drop it once at a park. They argue the dog is on leash
- Owners need to HOLD their dogs leash. Many people put their dog on a leash but then drop it once at a park. They argue the dog is on leash
- Don't implement BSL.
- It's not the dogs fault, some people should not be allowed to own certain breeds.
- Irresponsible owners / repeat offenders should be banned from animal ownership. I say no to BSL, it's the owners not the dogs.
- We currently constantly have issues where people walking dogs allow them to put their head/bodies under gate into our yard. Bylaw idea
- Watch for back yard breeders. They should be target and not allowed.
- Mandatory follow-up by enforcement officers with nuisance dog owners and an increasing fine structure for second and subsequent offenses.
- Please ensure you have the officers (and working hours) to support enforcement of these bylaws. No point in having laws without enforcement.
- Pigeons should not be allowed out of the owners home/cage, they are considered a nuisance and they leave disgusting messes and noisy as well

- Restrictions should be put on people who run or buy from puppy mills, backyard breeders and animal hoarders.
- Stop blaming pit bulls as the cause of all dog aggression. They are no more dangerous than other breeds.
- "There is no bad dog, it's a bad owner!"
- Focus on stopping the dog fights!"
- I don't think it's right to say any dog that looks like a pitbull I have an American bulldog mix he looks similar to a Pitbull. Not the same
- No BSL!
- More training and educational resources for new pet owners and existing pet owners. More fines for puppy mills.
- A
- Animals found to be "nuisances" that are intact should have one of their requirements be sterilization to curb the need to roam et cet
- n/a
- Lower income families typically (not always) cannot afford food for families. Why would we lower the fees for greater accessibility
- Remove any breed specific mention in these bylaws and educate yourselves. BSL is BS.
- No
- I condemn any specific actions taken specifically towards the pit-bull breeds. This is inherent discrimination and lacks statistical basis.
- The sample size/demographic of Ph1 seems skewed. It's rare that responsible dog owners would opt for breed specific rules. Unimpressed
- More training for Bylaw Officers-I should not have to read your bylaws to you to complain. Don't pass on bylaw issues to other organizations
- A training program, brochure or signage showing how to safely approach others peoples dogs. Not all dogs like all humans!
- Don't just ban one type of dog breed. All dogs can be aggressive
- The rules regarding cats have to change. How can you possibly control the population if house cats are allowed to roam free ?
- Dogs need space. People should not be able to get dogs if they don't have the outdoor space for them (based on breed and size).
- It is highly uneducated to condemn specific breeds such as pit bulls. It is often the owners, not the breed, that are the problem.
- Thorough research shows that BSL DOES NOT work! Each dog is an individual and should be treated as such. Ridiculous to suggest discrimination.
- I have not been happy that as a senior on a fixed income with cats that are NEVER ALLOWED OUTSIDE that I have to purchase a license.
- Nothing more to add

- No
- The bully breed question is a straight out bullying of a breed of dog. I was bitten more by a toy poodle, Pomeranian and chihuahua's.
- Calgary, the bylaw did not fail you people did. Proper enforcement and educational campaigns about responsible dog ownership is all you need.
- Having more support for resources to help train new pet owners/ pets vs trying to breed profile a specific breed!!
- a city-wide socialized pet insurance program for all pets would greatly increase the quality of care that animals receive
- Pit bulls should not be singled out. Any dog found to have behaviour concerns should have the tighter regulations. Stop picking on pitties!
- Before getting a pet or adopting a pet, owners should go through basic courses on pet ownership, bylaws, how to identify aggressive behaviOu
- You've already made up your mind, so why bother with these fake engagement sessions? Don't bother next time. Don't waste our money and time.
- I am against the breed specific bylaws. I agree with imposing more restrictions on animals who have been labeled a nuisance.
- Do not ban Pitbulls. Banning Pitbulls will in no way help. This is discriminatory and wrong and if you cant see that there's a larger problem.
- .
- Don't support breed specific regulation, all pet owners should be responsible for costs of injuries caused. Harsher fines for animal abuse.
- Im completely against breed specific bylaws, but I do agree with nuisance animal specific bylaws.
- It's completely unfair to target a specific breed (pit bull type) or the way a dog appears. Don't discriminate against responsible pet owners
- I am severely apposed to the breed specific law. Owners need to be more responsible and understand ownership is a lifelong committment
- Make it mandatory for separate owner training not just the dogs.
- Fully against breed specific bylaws. Make the owners more accountable for the behavior of their pets!
- There should be more effort put into the fair treatment of pit bulls to make people less afraid, aggression is taught and not bred
- having a breed specific law is discrimination. I have been bit or snapped at by more tiny dogs than pitbulls. Punish the deed not the breed!
- when will it finally be accepted that it's not the breed, it's the owners??
- A training program, brochure or signage showing LEASH YOUR DOG. Dogs invade peoples space more than vice-versa. Not everyone likes your dog.
- Please do not pursue breed specific legislation as it obscures other efforts re. around nuisance dogs and shifts focus away from the owners.
- Bark collar

- I support the idea of urban chickens, under the condition that there are reasonable limits on the number of animals per household.
- More needs to be done regarding barking dogs and the ability to report them.
- More accountability from pet owners is a must. Negligence in training puts both public safety and the animals welfare at risk
- .
- The city should look at fining police for all of the traffic laws they break and not try to generate revenue off of responsible pet owners
- Parks need more monitoring for owners with dogs off-leash in on-leash areas for the safety and comfort of all.
- I believe that all dogs that go to parks and go outside on walks should have to wear mandatory "traffic light" flags.
- NO DOG OR CAT IS VIOLENT THE OWNER IS THE PROBLEM DONT BAN BREEDS THAT IS INSANE
- na
- A law that prohibits dog owners to let their dogs pee in other homeowners' lawn. Most people spend a money to make their lawn look nice.
- Steeper consequences for roaming cats.
- Easier to report roaming cats and response from the city that causes change.
- Yah stop making leading questionnaires that are discriminatory and biased in the way they are being asked and presented. Shame on you noBSL
- Roaming cats need to stop it is out of control.
- Owners with cats unattended outside should be fined immediately... Dogs aren't allowed off leash so why does it seem as though cats are?
- Stop targeting specific breeds, More issues with smaller dogs-napoleon syndrome. Myself and my dogs bit, excuses and passes given for size.
- Roaming cat control!They are a danger to themselves,other cats, animals and especially dogs who are leash and don't like cats (many rescues)
- More accessible and responsive way to deal with roaming cats. It is ridiculous.
- Cats should be confined to the property of their owner and this should be held to the same standards as dogs
- Dont ban breeds!!! Ban the owner from owning animals if he/she cant train the animal properly!! This specific breed ban is useless!!!!
- Cats need to be kept inside or on a leash. Steeper fines and consequences for owners.
- You can not target a specific breed. It is based on the owner and training of the animal.
- Catching and trapping licenced roaming cats should be allowed. They are causing damage to many people's property. And a nuisance to dogs.
- Keep cats inside!! Steeper warnings and actions for irresponsible owners.
- I don't believe that any dog should be targeted because of breed

- I do not support any breed specific law. Owners are the ones responsible for their pets big or small.
- Monitoring for roaming cats in problem areas. Bigger fines.
- Bad pet owners are the problem not the breed. We should be focusing on making sure owners properly train and care for their dogs
- We can have many rules but if their not enforced why bother? I have had to call bylaw regarding dog issues and they call back 2 months later
- DNA registry for dogs and testing of feces left on ground and feces bagged and thrown in bushes. Very significant fine for violators.
- I have been to off leash parks and have encountered too many aggressive dogs.
- Here's an idea - don't spend so many taxpayer dollars trying to micromanage pet owners in the city - leave the bylaws alone!
- People jogging or riding their bicycles through off leash dog parks should expect that dogs will approach them. Signs maybe?
- Na
- Responsible pet owners do not have problems with their pets. Increase fines and jail time for pet owners that are irresponsible.
- You should have automatically sent this to all those that presently have licenced animals in the city of Calgary.
- Attempt to return dog before being brought in by bylaw. That is stressful for the animal and helps no one. Return them home if possible.
- Some off leash areas should be for small dogs only. They are often the cause of attacks.
- no.
- Stop the breed specific legislation that you guys are talking about. This survey is terrible and should be used for nothing but garbage.
- "No pet neighbourhoods - no ownership, no walking pets.
- More by-law officers to enforce current on-leash areas. Raise fines."
- BSL is not effective, should hold the owners accountable regardless the breed. Bad owners not bad breeds
- When an animal is treated poorly they should be placed in a better environment. No animals should be neglected or abused.
- Have parents teach kids how to treat animals. Chasing and crowding around them are not ok. No way to address with the parents.
- Let calgary become more dog friendly - more dogs allowed on patios and public spaces. (If well behaved)
- The concept of blaming pitbull and pitbull types is outdated and in general pointless. Small dogs like the most common biters.
- No
- The pet owner is the problem.

- Greater focus on education for humane behaviour change. Or Least Intrusive, Minimally aversive training. NO BSL!!!!
- "Should be something for Lowering the cost fro training for low income, disabled, seniors

- No breeds should be picked on"
- More mandatory training for individuals with problem dogs or high risk animals. Higher fines for anyone circumventing. No outright breed ban
- Would like the pit bulls to be prohibited from the city!!!!
- Pit bull owners are some of the most mentally debilitated individuals I have met, I personally wouldn't blame it entirely on the breed.
- Owner is responsible and should be held liable for their pet.
- I am sure it has been covered but seriously do not punish poor dogs who have the wrong head shape and their responsible owners!
- Dog park for small dogs only.
- n/a
- I do NOT support the categorization of pit bull breeds. This is open and blatant discrimination. I do support increased penalties to owners.
- Low cost or free animal care and training classes available to everyone
- It is not the dog who is the problem, it's the owner, how they train and treat the dog.
- It is people instead of the dogs we need to worry about. Rather than lowering license fees for lower incomes, provide lower cost training.
- Na
- Pitbulls are never the problem. Their owners are.
- A responsible pet owners do not oppose restrictions on their pets that does not materially change their enjoyment yet is good for others.
- Give owners fines of over $2,500.00 who train animals to be vicious, remove the animal and have a good pet parent to retrain them
- Certain breeds should not be banned. It is generally the owners fault in lack of training or socializing that causes the issue.
- Attacks by animals are not breed specific but rather due to owners not understanding the breed and requirements for the breed.
- Not really. Just breed has nothing to do with responsible ownership. Specific breeds and their owners should not be treated differently.
- We should fight BSL as passionately as we've been fighting racism. This prejudice needs to end, we're better than this.
- N/a

- As another person mentioned, owner MUST be held liable for their pets - no,exception.
- none
- I wish people would start to listen to their pets, outside and barking, there has to be a reason, especially like ten minutes or more.
- Mandatory training that is available for free through the City. Must provide proof of passing the training to allow your dog off leash.
- Breed specific bylaws are disgusting and should be removed immediately.
- Do not Ban pit bull or dogs appearing to be pit bulls! I do not own one, however I have been around many wonderful dogs of those breeds.
- Pit bulls should be banned from Calgary
- Pits definitely need more regulation. Account for most severe attacks. Doesn't matter if "small dogs bite more” they can't rip ur face off.
- Develop a free online course as a prerequisite to adopt animals. Don't make it a barrier, make it a real opportunity to eliminate arrogance.
- In off leash areas there is a lot of violation of the requirement for dogs, to be under the control of the owners. More education needed!
- Breed based discrimination is terrible. The statistics speak for themselves, the city has a responsibility to show people the numbers.
- Any breed big or small, the owner is held accountable for their behavior. More small dog parks with restrictions and fines for noncompliance.
- No ideas
- "” it's okay that small dogs bite more as they can't rip off your face””.. my collie is much more likely to rip off your face than my pitty
- We need to start building laws to protect the animals. There is not enough happening to protect animals and punish people miss treating them
- All BSL language should be removed from bylaws
- Making dog training more accessible to everyone. Many people get dogs with the best intentions, but fail miserably at training at home.
- None
- No
- Owner should be held accountable, if you have a breed that is prone to biting people or potential then do your due diligence
- singling out pitbulls is dog racism. I have been bitten by alot of small dogs and never by a large dog.
- No ideas
- Do not penalize pit bulls just because of their breed
- No BSL! disappointed that the city even thought this was okay.
- There should be more emphasis on training dogs and how to locate good dog trainers to help with behaviours not scape goating a breed
- N/A

- no
- I'd like to not have bans or extra restrictions on pit bulls.
- No BSL. Disgraceful that's the city of Calgary even thought this was okay. Shame.
- DONT BAN PITBULLS. BAN BAD OWNERS, DONT BLAME THE BREED FOR DUMB OWNERS
- If you can't afford a pet, then don't get one.
- Stop breed discriminating.
- If you are set on a punishment system for dog owners, you should have a reward system for responsible owners.
- I disagree with breed specific legislation and do not believe it is necessary to pass bylaws about this.
- If I have a pit bull that is certified and trained, why should I be lumped in with bad OWNERS? It is never the dog always the owner
- "keep in mind, small dog owners who feel they don't have to leash their dogs are
- often instigators nipping jowls etc on the larger breeds"
- I am very concerned that the City is motivated to spend money on Tribunals when we have a perfectly functional and effective Court system.
- publish other breeds who also have biting incidents not just bull terriers there are many others,quit using bull terriers as the fall guys!
- No BSL... it is extremely prejudiced and these animals are unfairly judged.
- Authorize neighbourhood volunteers to fine violators as we see them and you don't. Bylaw is never quick enough to enforce anything.
- Any dog has the possibility of biting or attacking. Each scenario is different. Doesnt matter the breed of dog.
- Stop breed discrimination. The temperament of animals is directly related to the humans that train them.
- BSL needs to be removed from the bylaw. It does not reflect scientific fact. What a disgrace to think it is okay to include this!
- Get rid of the idea that it is ok to penalize specific dog breeds when the science/expert opinion does not reflect this! Disgraceful!
- This is it
- "Stop breed discrimination. Pitbulls are some of the nicest dogs I have met. It is ownership issues.
- And if you can't afford a dog, dont"
- Provide affordable access to positive dog training. Do NOT single out certain dog breeds to be more dangerous than others!!!
- No
- stop holding breed stigmas and start realizing no dogs are born aggressive it is taught by owners - plenty of very mean small dogs
- People should go to jail and have much much higher fines if their dog bites or attacks. The dog should be immediately put to sleep.

- stray cats...unadoptable? spay and release= suffering cold/hunger/loneliness. Unhappily I think they should be euthanized not released.
- None
- I do not believe in breed specific legislation. Pit bulls are unfairly targeted. Bad pet ownership leads to incidents. Education is key.
- Ban pitbulla
- Define and educate about nuisance barking. Fines against owners who allow their dogs to bark incessantly.
- Breed restrictions for pit bulls should not happen. Like any other dog, if they are trained well they will not cause problems.
- Chickens, livestock in the city. Ridiculous
- Not at this time
- A bylaw that requires neighbours to clean up defecation in their yard within 24 hours. Doggie doors should be closed between 11 PM and 6 AM
- I don't believe that pit bulls should be put in the same category as nuisance dogs before these negative behaviors present themselves.
- Hold all owners accountable for their dogs behaviour. Stop discriminating against certain breeds! Seriously be better than that people!
- bias against pitbull-type dogs. After being in off-lease parks, the problem is not often them; any owners can be thick. ideas? No room to wr
- Research doesn't support breed specific laws. Pit bull types don't need additional restrictions. There are a lot of myths about pitbulls.
- Do not single out pit bulls. It is not the dog that is the issue, but the owners. Require mandatory training for owners of 'strong' bite dog
- There are no bad dogs..... just bad owners.
- It's truly disturbing to see certain breeds being targeted. It's downright racism against animals. What about all the aggressive small dogs.
- I do not support breed specific legislation. The problem boils down to the owner and if the dog has been trained correctly.
- Stop including only pit bulls as a breed for laws. It's an embarrassment.
- Drop cat licensing. It's equivalent to licensing a goldfish. I am a responsible cat owner and shouldn't have to pay for those that aren't.
- Have animal owners get training regarding their animals. What happens when ,say, a 10yr or 15 yr old intentionally abuse an animal for fun.
- Do not ban pitbulls! Dog aggression is a learned behaviour and not breed specific. Hold irresponsible owners accountable.
- Mandatory microchipping of aggressive dogs
- Leave dogs alone

- pet ownership is a human issue, not a pet issue. A bad pit bull has a bad owner, just like a biting bichon is a bad owner.
- Affordable and easy to access training for dogs.
- Discrimination against certain breeds is outrageous! Education is needed more than restrictions on certain breeds.
- I think more info is needed allot more before you start pointing fingers at one certain breed
- More fenced in small dog designated parks in the city similar to what is in Airdrie. The only one in Calgary is extremely small.
- At the time of license. The owner should sign they have read and acknowledge the city bylaws and fines.
- Breed specific legislation is the Jim Crow law of the dog world.
- I would like to see dog owners be made to take a training course about how to be a responsible owner before they are allowed to own a dog.
- Special licenses for nuisance dogs that can only be obtained if certain criteria are met i.e. obedience training
- Lions and tigers bite people at a much lower rate than pitbulls, so we should allow them, right? Wrong! They kill people, as do pitbulls.
- All dogs and cats should require a minimum liability insurance. Insurance companies are professionals at assessing risk.
- no
- More garbage cans in large off leash areas like nosehill park
- I think cats and dogs should be distinguished more. They shouldn't be lumped in together.
- A lot of times when animals attack it is because they are provoked. Maybe the humans need obedience training rather than the dogs.
- People in residential areas don't always keep there animals on a leash and it's infuriating. Figure out fines for this and how to monitor it
- Ownership licence for the person owning the dog. Like a drivers test
- Please do not implement breed specific legislation. That is unfair, any breed can be aggressive based on how they are raised and treated.
- It is absolutely ridiculous that the city is even considering this!! Focus on the important issues--this is a joke!!!
- "Offer obedience classes through Parks and Recreation so more accessible and affordable.
- Subsidize spay/neuter costs for rescue animals"
- STOP pandering to all those snowflakes who are always wining and complaining about every little thing that annoys them. Stop this Fascism
- I think the price of dog/cat licenses should be lowered the longer they own the pet. This would encourage people to license their pet asap.
- Make humans get training for the larger stronger breeds of dogs. It's not the dogs fault his human is dumb.

- Please do not implement breed specific legislation. That is unfair, any breed can be aggressive based on how they are raised and treated
- Please don't implement breed specific bylaws. I'm afraid of all dogs to start and some of the most lovable pooches I've ever met are pit bulls
- Fines/higher fines for people who don't keep their dogs on leash in non off leash areas and run up to other dogs on leash and cause an incid
- Really discriminating and terrible that it is breed specific.
- No.
- Breed specific legislation and bylaws are ignorant and uneducated. The source of any aggressive dog is poor ownership.
- visible identification for service and emotional support animals. Also an info sheet explaining the difference upon registration.
- This is ridiculous
- against breed specific legislation but you should not be able to own a dog without taking training. Friendly dog workshops 4 fearful ppl
- we need rules for bad pet owners
- Training resources for children on how to properly treat/approach animals. Ask permission first to touch/approach.
- More bylaw officers at busy areas to be visible; educate, educate, educate, much bigger fines for significant bites.
- I think spay/neutering should be more affordable. No breed specific bylaws should be put in place, owners need to be held accountable
- Owners, not animals, should be penalized for poor training. Owners with nuisance dogs need mandatory training or banning. BSL doesn't work.
- Don't mock this section with bad puns, it is a serious issue
- Ban all pit bulls
- All these bylaws and restrictions do is make it more appealing for the wrong people to own these breeds of dogs.
- No
- Irresponsible ownership is the problem, NOT the dog. Size does not equal danger - small dogs are responsible for more bites and injuries.
- If you can't discriminate against people, then you shouldn't be allowed to discriminate dog breeds either. Pit Bulls are the best dogs!
- Please do not punish pit bulls!
- None
- No
- Do not implement breed specific bylaws or regulations. Gear to the behavior and not the breed. Some smaller breeds are just as vicious

- Why don't they have a pit bull only dog parks instead of muzzling them? Muzzling them won't stop the random attacks that occur.
- Breed specific legislation is not the answer! Hold the owners accountable for the actions of their dogs! Don't punish all pitbulls!
- Community Off Leash Park Areas? Would be nice! Rather than some large area ones through out the city. Would reduce parking congestion.
- Poor pet ownership is the issue not dog breeds. Hold people more accountable for poor pet ownership, not the dog.
- I do not support breed specific legislation. Also I shouldn't have to pay a license for my indoor cats.
- Pet training for owners that have violations such as their dog is at large or attacking someone so they do not become repeat offender.
- I didn't see any reference to roaming cats killing wild song birds, which is a very big problem.
- More education for cat owners about the dangers of roaming cats - wildlife suffers tremendously from hunting cats
- I feel the present fine for owners of roaming cats is too low because even after I have turned in a cat, I see it roaming again soon after.
- No comment
- Off-leash dog zones in natural areas should be abolished because I see dog owners ignoring zone signs EVERY time I am in a natural area.
- Why is this field required?
- I believe that its not the breed its the improper training, offer affordable training and some of these problems would be solved! :)
- Post the Bylaw Office phone number on signs in parks so that people can report off-leash dogs.
- All major parks should have signs at entrances stating that the park is on-leash only, because I regularly see dogs running loose in parks.
- Nothing should be made breed specific. Fines should also be assessed on a case basis taking into account circumstances. I.e. Was it provoked
- No. But I think your pitbull specific questions are biased. Dogs who are nuisances have bad owners
- No breed specific bylaws! Spay and neuter to be affordable for all. Back yard breeders should be fined and put out of business. More officer
- Review the owners there is a reason y dogs bite !!!!
- Please don't bring back breed specific legislation. It has been shown not to work. Keep educating!
- Waive dog licencing fees for dogs that have proof of graduation from an approved obedience program.
- Fines, etc. should be more closely tied to situation - ie. bite someone teasing or abusing an animal is different than unprovoked attacks.
- 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many in a household
- illegal to walk your dog in the heat! Over 25 degrees a person should get a ticket of 1000$ including winter! Ticket if pet left in car.

- The idea of introducing breed specific laws is completely ridiculous with no scientific support to back it up as an effective solution.
- Affordable and accessible training. Can be hard to get into classes and expensive.
- Mandatory muzzling is not a solution. Dogs need to be trained to handle muzzles and may not react well if not introduced properly.
- more attentions to the owners behaviour of a dog that injures or attacks instead of destroying the animal - i believe 80% is due to humans
- Training supports and prevention preferable to fines etc
- Please please please, stop thinking that BSL is okay. It really isn't. Pitbulls are wonderful dogs who are being targeted unjustly
- Leaving pitbulls alone. And register them like any other dog breed.
- more severe punishment for people who torture animals - there are far too many cases of people harming animals
- Education for dog owners about why training is necessary. More accessible and frequent reactive dog training courses. Spots are ofte limited
- How about you leave our dogs alone they aren't the problem it's the people Who raise them, there are MORE bites due to small dogs then big.
- BSL is discriminatory, inhumane, cruel and perpetuates false stigma and myths which will contribute to the increase of euthanasia and loss of life
- Stricter bylaws and fines further harm pet owners with a system that is already built on racism, classism and ableism.
- I think that vet charges should be taken into consideration. Most people who own animals will do anything for them but it can be so costly.
- Humans who have a dog that act out should be penalized and the animal re-homed and not be allowed to own other animals and it be enforced
- Please do not implement breed specific bylaws/legislation. Focus on responsible pet ownership bylaws like we currently have.
- Ban all dogs from the city. They are bad for the environment. They deficate on side walks.
- This comment section should be bigger - I have to shorten my sentences
- BSL is not a good idea
- Pitbulls shouldn't be banned. It's like saying a certain race of person can't live in Calgary. They shouldn't have higher fines/restrictions
- I think chihuahuas are more vicious then pitbulls, but people think they are cuter because they are smaller.
- Dog owners should be required to complete an obedience training course and present a "certificate of completion" to the city.
- Dangerous dogs should be banned. Higher fines for delinquent pet owners, seizure and euthanasia of dangerous breeds that attack other dogs
- I think there should be a more reasonable fee for licensing an animal and it should be a lifetime license. The fees are far too much.

- Photos or videos of owners and pets can be taken or bylaw called (keeping caller as anonymous) to report pet unleashed in children park
- People who buy pitbulls, or other dangerous dogs have serious issues.
- It is absolutely ridiculous that the city is targeting "Pit Bulls." Dog breeds are not the problem, humans are. Target the actual problem
- End this BSL [removed]
- Licensing should be done at vets. Animals get proper treatment, animal abuse goes down, responsibility of owners goes up. Proper care of pet
- No
- Breed specific bylaws should never be allowed. Nuisance dogs begin and end with bad owners.
- Make harmful/forceful tools illegal ie. choke chains, prong collars, shock collars.
- cats should be licensed and there should be more penalties to do with cats being at large
- BANNING PITBULLS IS STUPID . It would destroy many families and would be cruel
- Pitbulls should be banned. The argument that it is not the dog's fault, but the owner does not hold true. Pitbulls will fight till death.
- I think the idea of breed specific laws are stupid. Every dog has the ability to be violent. The owner needs to teach it right.
- Breed specific legislation does not work. It simply creates a void for another breed to fill. Create a framework to penalize owners.
- I think this is ridiculous that any dog that looks "like a pit bull" or "strong and mean" does not mean they are mean dogs. It is not fair
- This is ridiculous. It comes down to responsible ownership. Smaller dogs bite more people than pit bulls....
- I do not have an idea
- No
- Obedience training/classes should be required for all eligible animals/pets. This training should be completed with current owner(s).
- The problem is poor owners not the dogs!
- Dog breed isn't the issue.
- No
- None
- Please do not ban bully breeds or force a nice dog to wear muzzle. Should only happen if the dog (not breed specific has been aggressive.)
- Stop stereotyping dogs by breed. Dog behaviour is the owners responsibility always.
- You should not be putting a bad name to the bully breed. There are other dog breeds that can be unpredictable and have injured others.
- Do not punish a breed punish the owner!
- Thanks

- I am sick and tired of people having their dogs off-leash in parks - whether there are kids present or not.
- I would support Ontario's stance and that is eventually phasing out bitbulls. Owners are the problem but they cant be changed.
- Responsible pet ownership course for all prospective pet owners.
- None of the cities business how many or what kind of animals a person owns on their property so long as the animals are being well cared for
- Humane orgs make $ on every adopted pit bull. Stop listening to them! Start listening to the M.D.s who treat and study dog bite injuries.
- Civilian oversight of bylaw programs and peace officers .
- Nah
- Any owner whose animal must be euthanized cannot get another animal until they complete force-free training.
- Publish photos of all the dogs deemed nuisance and dangerous to prevent dog laundering.
- Bigger crackdowns on unethical or surplus breeders- dogs, cats, any pet. Adopt, don't shop!!
- Mandatory Behaviour training class for all first time dog owners
- It has been widely studied and found that "pit bull" breeds do not bite more often than others. It is disappointing to see this put forward.
- True pit bulls are not the problem but as too many owners fail to properly train and control them they must be targeted strongly.
- The breed is not a problem. The owner is the problem. If the owner can not demonstrate responsibility, they should not own the pet.
- The law can't control pedophiles nor child abuse. Humans are worse than animals. Animals will fight too. I will fight for pitbull rights.
- Consider humane orgs' major conflict of interest on pit bulls: they make money with every pit bull "adopted" (BOUGHT). Follow the money!
- BSL isn't going to lower the number of attacks, it hasn't in other cities. Calgary should be proud of responsible pet ownership bylaw
- It's the owners that do not train or solicitation the dog that should be gone after. Charged, fined, animal removed and unable to own another
- Breed is not the issue. Pet owners should be educated on how animals interact and how to address behavioural problems
- Consider a credit applied to pet license fees for evidence of successful completion of obedience training (or different tiered pricing).
- I think that children should be held accountable for attacking dogs. They should be fined if the dog retaliates. The parent can pay the fine
- I would like to see more attention to public education about how behave around dogs and service dogs and animal behavior.
- All fines should be increased substantially to fund programs for low income pets.

- Breed-specific fees and bylaws are such blatantly discriminatory pieces of legislation that show how ignorant people can be about pets
- "Train your staff to not blame the victim.
- Diversity training would also be good.
- The survey is poorly worded in places!"
- pit bulls and their cross breeds should be banned completely as they are in many many cities already; one dog per dwelling of other types
- BSL is an embarrassment to the city. Problems for the city will increase tenfold if any of these legislations are put in place.
- Dog breed isn't the issue, give your head a shake.
- The issue isn't with any specific breed or size of dog, irresponsible owners and lack of training is the issue.
- Why is there no options to choose for no Breed Specific laws? What are all the options more towards this happening. You can do better.
- Pitbulls may not bite significantly more than other breeds, but when they do are cause the most damage. Ban pitbulls.
- policing of off-leash dogs outside of off-leash areas
- Dog walkers should be limited to 4 dogs per person.
- None
- I do not support breed specific bylaws. Please focus efforts on positive and responsible pet ownership. Discount license with obedience
- No
- I was attacked by a German shepard in June of 2018 but it was the owners fault not the dogs. I dont believe in BSL at all its the owners.
- Fines for people; chasing or threatening your dog, removing dogs from homes where they are making excessive noise ~ obviously being ignored
- If a dog bites the owner should be mandated to take training with said dog. Proof must be submitted to COC.
- If a citizen witnessed abuse in f an animal the city should respond and remove the animal or animals and investigate
- Mandatory muzzles for dangerous breeds off of their own property.
- There should only be a cap of 2 or 3 pets per low income household to prevent animal hoarding or possible animal neglect.
- Calgary's efforts to micromanage every move someone makes just creates more problems. Stop micromanaging.
- Implementing regulations based on a dogs breed without prior offense is fallacious. Pit bulls consistently score well in temperament testing
- There should be more fines and educAtion for dog owners who insist on letting their dogs off leash in leashed areas.

- I do not support the use of breed specific language. Take examples using "pit bull" out. This is manipulative.
- No thank you
- There needs to be better regulations considering pet adoption and rescues. Rescues should be on the line to spay/neuter all pets adopted.
- Better enforce dogs off leash where they shouldn't be. All fines/fees should be increased- pet ownership is a luxury and the city is broke.
- Do not single out breeds
- No
- If a dog bite occurs, the owner must remain at the scene to speak with an officer and this must be recorded. All pets must be registered.
- Why is there nothing discussing the owners or training? Prejudice against breed is the same as racism. It's the owners, not the dogs.
- I am concerned about pet waste in designated off-leash areas. Some owners do not supervise their dogs, and the volume of waste is disgusting
- Please ban pit bulls.
- I do not support breed specific bylaws. The behavior of a dog reflects on the training and handling of the owner, not of a specific breed
- Off leash areas that are close or adjacent to high traffic roads ie: Crowchild Trail need to be fenced with gate access.
- This is animal racism. And it's awful. Maybe teach people how to properly interact with dogs. And fines for improper care towards dogs.
- Signaling out a specific breed is irritating. Many large dogs become aggressive and bite hard. German shepherd and rottie for example.
- Careful consideration must be given with barking dogs when neighbours complain as some people do not like dogs or animals in general!!
- Breed specific legislation is wrong do not do this!
- Animals who have bitten someone severely should be destroyed.
- Bb
- The TNR program should be changed to Trap-euthanize
- If an outdoor cat has been brought to the city a certain # of times it should be seized because the owners are breaking the bylaw.
- I do not support breed-specific legislation
- More signage for areas where dogs are NOT allowed off leash. Too many off leash dogs ruining everyone else's walks.
- Make humane traps more accessible to trap nuisance cats so they can be taken to animal control.
- Breed specific legislation is not a solution to irresponsible pet ownership. Wow wanted to explain but this post does not permit the space.
- More exclusively small dog parks please.

- Remove all off lease designations in all city parks. All city parks should be on leash parks only. Ban all pit bulls and variants from city.
- TNR keeps cats in the cold and still lets them kill wildlife and terrorize neighbourhoods. Should instead be trap and euthanize feral cats.
- No
- Euthanize dogs that kill other cats/dogs on public property.
- Our neighbourhood has a real big problem with stray cats or people letting their cats run free. The phone should be big enough that people
- The pit bull ban is a horrible idea. It never works and ends up getting reversed. Not to mention the cruelty that ensues through surrender
- Every occurrence should be carefully investigated. Rules should not be applied robotically.
- Off leash parks should be separated from public pathways by a chain link fence. Not everyone is comfortable with dogs approaching them.
- Basing bylaws on breed not offences doesn't address the problem. To base it on the perception the dog could be breed X is ludicrous.
- I do not agree with breed specific bylaws. Pets for the larger part are a product of their upbringing just like children. Think about that
- Do not single out specific breeds!!! It is the owner that creates an aggressive dog, not the breed.
- No
- The definition you have of "nuisance" is way too vague and non-specific to answer questions in #3.
- Cats that people let run free are a big problem in my neighbourhood.
- It is not fair to breed specify. Absolutely ridiculous. This should not even be considered in the legislation.
- For those pet owners that are responsible in licensing their pets annually, offer a multi-animal (ie 3 or more dogs) reduction fee of 20%.
- I do not support breed-specific legislation
- Stricter monitoring and enforcement of pet waste clean up in parks and on pathways. The amount of waste left in public areas is horrific.
- Legislation should be evidence based and breed neutral. No breed specific legislation!
- Pit bulls have larger jaws and are stronger than other breeds. It's not whether they attack MORE, it's the harm they can cause when they do.
- Actual enforcement seems to be the key issue in my opinion.
- Fines for people antagonizing pets. Investigate why they were being chased by the dog. How did the dog get off of the owners property?
- I do not support breed specific legislation.
- Vastly higher fines for owners whose cats/dogs enter private property.
- Breed-specific bylaws are FANTASTIC! Dogs were bred to do certain things; those bred to fight/kill should be banned.

- Owners of dogs that bite someone MUST pay for all medical bills and psychological counseling for the victim. Dog MUST take obedience training
- It's not the animals fault, it's the owner. Put more responsibility on owners and ensure people are responsible, fair and kind pet owners
- Irresponsible cat owners in our city. Higher consequences for roaming cats.
- More accessible cat traps.
- Easier way to report roaming cats.
- Breed specific legislation does not work. Especially when you include "looks" like a pit bull in that description
- No pit bulls allowed in calgary
- Seize roaming cats from owners. Punish repeating offenders..
- There needs to be more leeway given to renters from landlords with regards to owning small/medium sized animals (cats, for instance).
- Seize roaming cats.
- Single out pit bulls is a awful area . Pet ownership education is the key . Problem is seldom from the dogs Often from the owners
- Charge people who let their cats out unattended. Irresponsible owners.
- Do not put extra fees in place for PB owners. PBs already make up a larger number of dogs in shelters and this would increase that problem.
- Cats are a big problem in this city.
- Please ban all pit bulls. These dogs are not meant to be pets and no human life is worth the risk
- Roaming cats need to be controlled.
- Its the owners who create aggression. Same with EVERY other breed. Mistreat a dog and they get scared and act out. People need to stop blami
- Sick of people letting their cats do whatever. It's disrespectful to other cat, dogs, and property owners.
- Damage from roaming cats in the city and people's property. It's out of control.
- Cat control.
- More accessible way to report roaming cats.
- Better way to report roaming cats and action is taken by the city quickly.
- Keep cats indoors.
- Please do not do BSL it is ridiculous
- Too many warnings are given for off-leash dogs in on-leash areas, fines should be given right away.
- Dog training for all breeds and show the certificate when registering the dog, people are to sensitive nowadays, we complain for everything
- If you ever place a ban on certain animals you're just gonna get bashed and fought by the people who own the city. The public.
- No

- More enforcement for animals off leash in on leash areas. More public awareness and enforcement. Dog parks in residential areas aren't ideal
 - I do NOT support breed specific legislation. It's The animal equivalent of racial profiling. Owners should face consequences not the animals
 - Breed bans do not work and should not be used
 - We should not single out specific breed of dogs, for example pit bulls. Any dog can be dangerous if the owner is not willing to train it.
 - What is being addressed for owners who have a neighbor whom despises all Pets and have filed unjust complaints?
 - Why are pit bulls singled out? All dogs can attack and this is like saying black men are more likely to cause a crime shameful
 - Too many roaming cats
 - I think the clean coop bylaw should also include chicken coops. Clean animals are happy animals.
 - Owners are responsible for their dogs behaviour. Enforce current laws and promote behavioural training not breed specific legislation!
 - no barking
 - Breed specific legislation is wrong. Please rethink your stance. Legislation should be event based not breed based.
 - You should fine bad owners not specific breeds!!!
 - I do not support breed specific legislation. I believe in teaching the people how to act responsibly around all dogs and/or pets.
 - Pitbull can be good dogs but it is instinct for them to attack - dog or any random person. all pitts should be muzzled if owner walks them
 - I do not believe it is acceptable to discriminate against a specific dog breed (ie pit bull). Owners should be monitored not the breed.
 - Restrictions should not be put on Pit Bull types most unfair
 - "Stop targeting responsible pet owners of all types.
- A breed specific ban or set of bylaws is dumb as [removed] even for our city officials"
 - Too many owners still think "outdoor cats" are okay. Promote trapping roaming cats and turning them in to the city!!
 - Provide a site to post "wall of shame" pictures of dog owners caught not picking up after their dogs (as deterrent).
 - No breed specific legislation, investigate those who tease animals and charge/educate, animals should not pay for the sins of a person.
 - There are hundreds of different dog breeds. There is no legitimate reason why someone needs a pit bull instead of any other dog.

- I think the owner of the dog should face the same punishment had the owner bitten or attacked anyone.
- No
- No
- Animal Cruelty investigation team with SPCA is understaffed and underfunded.
- LOVE the voluntary bandana program!! This could reduce a lot of stress for responsible owners trying to train reactive dogs.
- Free roaming cats are nonsense. You can keep your cat supervised in you yard or in a catio. All this does is keep coyotes and foxes well fed
- Dogs Barking at night there needs to be a fine
- Education for non-pet owners on how to approach animals and what to expect from animals they encounter.
- Blame the owner NOT the breed. Irresponsible owners should get a fine vs a dog who simply doesn't know better.
- Fund an information campaign on the included topics. Encouraging input when people are un or misinformed is counterproductive at best.
- People should have to sign some sort of behavioural contract when they license their pet so there is no way they can plead ignorance later.
- "I do NOT support breed specific legislation. It's The animal equivalent of racial profiling. Owners should face consequences not the dog
- no
- .
- I'd like to see fines for households that store bagged or loose garbage on back decks or in yard which then attracts skunks, birds etc
- Breed doesn't dictate behaviour
- Breed specific legislation is wrong and unfair. It is discrimination based on stereotypes. You care not for dogs if you enforce this bylaw.
- Most people cannot properly identify a dog's breed. Laws shouldn't be made against a breed but to help enforce responsible pet ownership.
- ?
- There are many cat owners who think their cats are allowed to roam free even at night. PLEASE address this issue of roaming cat nuisance.
- the owners should be better educated but do not blame the dogs. would you euthanize a child? no you would educate them.
- When on a sidewalk with a pit bull the pit bull owner should give way to the other pedestrian
- All dogs should be on leash when walked. Fined for off leash.
- ...
- Pet owners of large powerful animals should be required to take a training course to ensure they are properly prepared to handle the animal

- Breed profiling is not right. Every dog, no matter what size, has the ability to bite. Training is key. Responsible ownership is key.
- Breed specific legislation of any kind is unfair and not based on any fact. It does not belong in this municipality.
- "Increase fine for cats roaming from their residence.
- Ways to capture a cat and charge the owner the expenses."
- Offer discounts on pet licensing for completion of obedience training course (proof required)
- Pit bull specific legislation is needlessly discriminatory and unnecessary. I DO NOT support ANY of the proposed targeted regulations
- All dogs need to be trained, non optional. Maybe a test that all dogs need to pass by 1 year old to ensure that dogs are trained + socialize
- I do not agree with breed profiling/ It is up to the pet owner to be a responsible pet owner
- You covered most, if not all.
- The city needs to be transparent about how animals in their care are treated and especially those that are held after attacking a person.
- Breed specific legislation is wrong on all ways. It is the equivalent of having specific laws based on a persons gender, religion or race.
- Leave pitbulls alone. This is the animal equivalent of racism.
- In some scenarios it should be case by case, for example if someone is bitten by a dog, fines should be based off severity of the bite.
- To encourage owners to be more responsible, if a bylaw officer witnesses an example of this like reward them for it with a points program
- ...
- Banning certain breeds has been proven to be ineffective so why even consider this, a color code is a great idea and it was my idea...
- Even suggesting BSL is shameful. No different then racism in people your just doing it to dogs. Blame the owner not the breed
- Breed-based discrimination has no place in our city. It is not supported in fact, and causes more harm than good.
- On leash areas better signage- no off leash animals!!!
- Punish the pets person. DO NOT punish the pet for its irresponsible person.
- We are not allowed to profile and restrict people based on race. Why does anyone think it is appropriate to do it with dogs?
- "Responsible pet owners are a must!!! Quit discriminating against pitbulls"
- #justiceforbullies
- #bslfreeeyc
- #dontbullymybreed"
- Can't vet who owns a dog breed? Ever been attacked by a pit bull? I have. Do it - BSL is needed if you can't vet who owns them

- Unleashed animal fines should increase!!!
- I really think pets should only be euthanized in extreme cases. Exhaust all options, including training. Investigate the family
- Stronger enforcement of fines for off leash pets in on leash areas.
- Question 3 answer 7. Even if someone supports only one nuisance animal per household, does not mean they also support 1 pit bull per house.
- Dogs should be off leash only in their special park, those special parks should be closed to other people, more to say....
- I don't think it's fair to discriminate against pit bulls. This seems to just continue to perpetuate the negative stereotype circulating.
- Save tax payers money by forbidding pit bulls in the city.
- city council to understand that they don't need to make a rule for everything. They need to concentrate more actual issues like roads
- Included should be dog urination. Dogs are peeing everywhere and in winters, it just sits like a frozen smelly yellow pool on the pavement.
- Might we research why some prefer to own breed that engender fear, or are capable of seriously harming others? eg. fearful; trauma history?
- Instead of handing out fines, provide free training courses. Pit bulls should not be the focus, it is the owner that trains them to be bad.
- breed-specific legislation restrict dogs based on appearance do not reduce dog bites in communities. It doesn't belong in our city.
- Less singling out pitbulls. Bad owners cause bad dogs. As well have checks on homes where there is a lot of animals to ensure their wellbeing
- Dog at large fine should stay the same or lower as most dogs at large have gotten out by mistake. Cat should be higher as most are deliberate
- WOW Calgary bylaw, You've sabotaged your credibility, and exposed your true knowledge base to the public with 3 - capital letters! YIKES!
- No
- Educate the community. There is no place for BSL. Pit bulls were originally bred as nanny dogs. Owners need to be responsible, not the breed
- We should consider all citizens to take a course on responsible pet ownership, or how to properly greet pets...especially in off leash areas
- Blame the owners not the dog
- There should be more done about backyard breeders. Poor breeding can be a significant cause of dog behavior problems- go to the source.
- No
- Any dog that isn't socialized has the potential to act out and be aggressive. Singling out bully breeds is absolutely shameful.
- I love the idea of reducing licensing fees if your dog completes obedience training. That would be great for the whole city and is proactive

- Don't need blame
- I'm extremely proud of how many people are against BSL and standing up for bully breeds.. at least SOME of you are educated and have a heart.
- No
- Pet owners with medium to large dogs who are considered aggressive breeds should have to go to obedience classes/courses-show they are educa
- Fines for leaving pet waste in parks and fines for off leash dogs in parks need to reflect the high health hazards they pose.
- Enforce dogs running at large especially in parks and regional pathways.
- Reduced licensing fees training, vaccinations, spay / neutering. These animals are less likely to impact taxpayers and fees should reflect
- BSL unfairly targets dogs and their owner. Punish the deed, not the breed.
- BSL has proven to be inefficient. Please do not turn back the hands of progress and adopt this language. Dangerous dogs come in every breed.
- Should parents be fined for screaming kids? raising evil Children as it is a bother to those of us who do not have them..
- yes. Don't be an embarrassment and put into place breed specific legislation that has a decades long track record of doing nothing positive
- "BSL has been a failure the world over and in [personal information removed] words ""it polarizes communities and makes communities less safe""
- #SayNO2BSL"
- BSL does not work nor does it target the aggressive dogs. I've yet to meet an aggressive Pibbly. It's about education.
- N/A
- BSL is a failure the world over and pit hate fanatics push for flawed legislation that increased number of bites and severity
- Cats that residents allow out at night to roam should be rounded up and put into a retention center or cat pound.
- Bylaws should not be breed specific. They should apply to all dogs. There are no bad dogs just bad or irresponsible dog owners.
- Do not restrict Pit Bulls. This is an extremely outdated idea. Please do non anecdotal research. I'm ashamed this is a city of calgary topic
- Most cities with BSL are going back. This will be costly and cruel and it won't work. We will not let this happen in out dog friendly city.
- Don't ban specific breeds. Ban poor pet owners.
- Dog walker services should have business licences, pay fees, be subject to dog number limits and pay for off leash park use.
- Owners of any dogs should be required to carry additional insurance and remain on scene of any incident; including "pit bulls”

- No additional ideas.
- I think there should be a well subsidized licensing program for seniors, those with disabilities, and low-income Calgarians.
- It appears that the by laws are not being written for property owners, they need more respect from the city.
- No
- laws against pit bulls are extremely outdated and should not be required. No bad dogs, just bad owners.
- N/a
- I don't like the singleing out of pit bulls.
- N/A
- Breed bans are so ignorant, I don't know where to start. People just like banning things that they think look dangerous, facts be damned!
- Why be breed specific? A dog is a dog. If there are nuisance dogs, please look at the owners first. Make them go to training or pay a fine.
- Bully Breeds are not the problem, it is bad owners that are not responsible with their pets. Rules should to apply to all breeds
- No
- No
- Bo
- Leave the bully breeds alone. We are not Ontario. Calgary is welcoming of all breeds, why change this? BSL doesn't work!
- BSL is outrageous. With ALL canines, the issues begin with bad owners not breeds. To be fair, the policy needs to reflect any breed.
- Breed specific legislation is not effective, don't move backwards Calgary, we are better than that.
- There are only bad owners. No bad pets. Energy levels of a dog and laziness of the owner are the critical factors.
- No
- No
- Please do not be breed specific and target 1 group of animals. It is irresponsible pet owners that should be punished.
- Leave the pit bull myth out. You sound dated and uneducated
- This survey is [removed]. You're trying to be subtle about the fact that this is being done to make owning a "Pitbull" breed more difficult.
- barking dogs should be restrained by the owner. if prolonged, the owner should be fined,
- Education for non pet owners. We own 3 dogs and often encounter children running up and greeting our dogs. Ours are friendly but not all are
- no
- "Pit bulls should never be allowed near playgrounds. Read the horror stories of Pit Bulls

- <https://www.reddit.com/r/BanPitBulls/>
- Breeds are not to be singled out. There is mandatory registration, this should include mandatory reading on training, care/socialization.
- Dog walkers. They should not be able to take dogs off leash if they have more than 2 dogs. They can not control them.
- Breed specific rules are wrong. Responsible owners is the way to go
- I think we need to focus more on responsible pet ownership as well as public education on domestic animals people are dumb help them learn
- "Banning dog breeds is discrimination. How would people react if the city created a bylaw preventing
- certain races from entering Calgary?"
- Very little emphasis on people's behavior? What about not adequately training dogs, hoarding, over breeding, leaving dogs outside.
- Current animals should be "grandfathered", esp if no history of issues. Decrease in license fee when proof of training or assessment is done
- Quit targeting specific breeds. I have had issues with all breeds of dogs. Small dogs bite too. DO NOT PENALIZE PITBULLS.
- bigger more obvious signs around playgrounds and parks that say dogs should be on leash
- No
- Not responsible enough to be allowed to own a gun, buy a pitbull instead, added benefits includes legally being allowed to flee the crime.
- There are many misconceptions based in fear and not fact - simply in the name itself of "bully breeds". I expect policies based on fact only
- Focus should be on responsible pet ownership, not specific breeds.
- Please provide proof that all pitbull-type dogs are inherently more dangerous than other breeds.
- Removing pets from offending owners household
- Unaltered dogs should not be allowed off-leash in public.
- Punishing dogs and reducing their quality of life because of their appearance is trash. Any dog can have an irresponsible owner.
- Increase enforcement of off-leash violations along City pathways, especially in parks.
- None
- Nope
- Stop targeting breeds. Its the bad owners that are the problem!
- Progressive fines and mandatory training for dogs who will be over a certain weight at maturity could be implemented.
- None of this is of any value without enforcement. The City needs to be willing to increase Bylaw monitoring and complaint response.
- Ban dangerous dogs, you need a licence that shows your competence or criminal record for anything else that dangerous.

- No
- Discrimination towards pitbulls reflects poorly on the City of Calgary. This is not inclusive and teaches people fear. Dangerous and ignorant.
- All dogs can be dangerous. I hate how we never hear of any dog attacks except ones that involve a pitbull. some of the nicest dogs are pitty
- Importing dogs from other countries and the risk on new diseases to our city/region. Also, better control of coyotes in off leash areas.
- Education for children on how to safely interact with animals and to be respectful of them always.
- Make obedience training mandatory for all breeds. Provide proof before licensing.
- DO NOT DO BSL. IT IS BULL . IVE HAD PIT BULLS BETTER BEHAVED THEN LITTLE RUNTS.
- Labelling animals as "nuisance" or dangerous because of their breed primes people for fear. Bylaws should not target breed but bad ownership
- People make bad dogs - not just pit bulls! Stop making Pitbulls, terriers and breeds like look like a "Pitbull" the bad guys!
- All aggressive breeds should be identified at registration and require mandatory training for the new owner - no exceptions
- I hear a lot about discrimination against pitbulls as an argument not to ban them, are we allowed tigers and lions? is that discrimination?
- "Ensuring garbages are emptied regularly so people can throw out of dog waste
- Pit bulls should not be penalized for stereotypes"
- How about a support system to reduce cost of spay / neuter. Then life time license if the animal is spayed or neutered?
- You want to ban a breed but allow people to raise chickens? Are you trying to turn Calgary into a 3rd world country?
- nuisance dogs being required to wear a red bandana or red identifier on their collar.
- No
- I feel that enforcement of existing animal by-laws is not properly enforced in this city especially in regards to off leash dogs.
- No
- N/a
- Allow victims of dog bites to have say whether or not to put the animal down.
- Please no chickens, ducks, or other fowl in city limits.
- I have a blond boxer that looks very much like a pit bull. Will I have to carry her DNA test with me every time I walk her. Do not stereotype
- J
- It has been proven that breed specific legislation is not based on the scientific understanding of the animals. This is a foolish concept!
- Shaming or outcasting pet owners based on the "bully breed" should be seen as an act of discrimination.

- Nuisance Dog owners should have to take a mandatory training/management program before they are issued a pet licence.
- Stop targeting pit bulls. It's the owners that are the problem. Target irresponsible owners.
- As someone who was attacked by a dog and had my dog attacked, both times unprovoked, I appreciate the city looking at these bylaws.
- "Large signs at off leash areas

- Restrictions to the number of dogs a dog walker can walk at one time."
- Can't stress enough that socialization of puppies with other puppies combined with ongoing training is key to ownership and safety.
- Education. Genetics play a huge part in canine behaviour. Pit bulls and herding breeds are good examples of genetic bred behaviour.
- This survey is designed to be read that having a pitbull is equivalent to owning a nuisance pet. This is fear mongering.
- Focus should be done on pet care and pet ownership rather than pet specific breed.
- Get rid of cat bylaw where no cats allowed outside = fewer mice/rodent problems (mice carry disease)
- I don't think one specific breed should be attacked as you have in this survey. I think the city needs punish bad owners of dogs who bite
- Signs should be installed along pathways and parks to inform of a fine amount for not picking up feces after your dog
- BSL is an outdated, ineffective way to try to prevent dog attacks. Pitbulls are no more dangerous than any other dog.
- I don't have any other ideas.
- Dog Walkers need to have limits to dog parks! Too many times you see a dog walking company bring 8 dogs, zero control!
- "Cats are the number one cause of wild bird mortality in North America.
- Nothing here that addresses that scourge."
- Increase the fees heavily for owning the pit bulls.
- Do not target specific breeds. When dogs behave poorly step in but don't blame an entire breed for no reason. Pitbull a great dogs.
- Need a bylaw for mandatory obedience training for first-time dog owners/and dog owners who have had problem dogs. or mandatory to adopt a dog
- Why have you not included other dogs? Small breed dogs like chiwawas are also dangerous in the same stroke you are painting large breed dog.
- Barking dogs in city limits should be enforced alot more. And taken as serious as loud music etc
- Bad breeding, bad breeders and bad owners are the issues with all pet problems. Dog bites, barking dogs, cats at large are all owner issues

- See comments inserted above..
- Quit penalizing the dog breed! Penalize irresponsible owners. Little dogs bite just as often and are often more aggressive.
- The traffic light bandana idea should be abandoned. All dogs can be dangerous if approached wrong.
- It used to be Doberman's and Rottweilers and boxers and German Shepard's. stop blaming breeds for human idiots.
- BY LAWS HAVE TO BE ENFORCED Neighbor has 14 dogs. All neighbors have dealt e the city. She's been in court twice NO change in 5 yrs
- Dogs look to their "pack leader" for how to act. It's the owners fault if they are aggressive. Stop targeting breeds!!
- Dog breed restrictions are the animal equivalent of racism!
- "Breed specific language targeting certain dogs is like ethnic specific language targeting humans.
- No two dogs are alike. Disappointed YYC!"
- People are extremely uneducated about pit bulls. Just because you think they look "scary" to you doesn't mean they are more dangerous.
- You license animals themselves when it should be the owner that requires a dog license to own a dog. Much like a drivers license.
- It is more important to focus on responsible ownership and training rather penalizing the animal. Focusing on specific breeds is wrong.
- Breeders of animals should be licensed and subject to annual mandatory inspection. At present, authorities cannot inspect without cause.
- Responsible pet ownership is the issue - not the dogs. Limiting a breed is not going to make irresponsible owners more responsible.
- Tip line for dangerous animals. When a tip is received, by law officers should conduct an evaluation.
- Do not discriminate against any breed. Any dog can be dangerous More education not discrimination!
- More enforcement, higher fines for barking dogs.
- Ban pitbulls, do not allow urban hens, increase fines and lower tolerances for owners keeping pets that have attacked citizens
- no
- I would love to see that training is a requirement to getting a license.
- Stop classifying pit bulls and terriers as dangerous animals. Dobermans, rottweilers and some smller, aggressive breeds are the issue.
- Pitbull are no more dangerous that any other bread. The lack of screening to own a dog and the lack of training of both human/dog are the is
- No
- The focus needs to be done on pet care and pet ownership rather than pet specific breed.

- People who want to make money by breeding animals should have to be licensed and have random checks to their breeding location
- Cats should be kept indoors. It is safer for them so they are not injured in fights, hit by a car, or taken by wildlife.
- Police the persons who frequent the bins in the back alleys behind properties and who provoke well behaved dogs to signal an intruder
- Not in favour of breed-specific legislation. Increased enforcement and fines for irresponsible breeders and owners is more effective.
- No
- One specific breed shouldn't be attacked like this survey. It creates fear mongering. ANY animal can bite. Hold owners responsible, not pets
- "Having to write a letter to to person with a barking dog does not work.
- It only creates issues. Hire more people to deal with complaints."
- Cats should not be allowed outside without a leash. Free-roaming cats have been partly responsible for the decline of many bird species.
- I am disappointed to see that Calgary is considering breed-specific legislation towards pitbull-type dogs. All dogs are born inherently good
- Provide discount on dog licensing if certificate of qualified obedience training is obtained
- "Lower licensing fees for cats than for dogs.
- Don't single out one type of dog breed over another in regard to bites and attacks."
- Stop breed specific legislation. Even suggesting it is causing spread of misinformation and biased opinions.
- I do not support the restriction or banning of specific breeds of animals. That could possibly lead the many acts of cruelty
- This survey reeks of privilege. Pitbulls are not aggressive unless left to their own devices. What about Akitas? German Shep? Rottweilers?
- No
- Stop the differential (discriminatory!) non-spayed/non-neutered registration fees for dogs while increasing the fines for by-law violations.
- Ban all pitbulls! They are dangerous animals
- More enforcement on people who don't pick up after their dogs.
- Target irresponsible breeders and irresponsible owners. Educate people and animals. NO BSL! Target off leash dogs not in off leash zones!
- not one neighbor in our area respects the rules. until thre is enforcement not one of these initiatives mean anything.
- Dogs require balanced training, socialization,proper human/dog social behavior,daily commitment and compassion. It's the owners NOT the breed!
- I am not in support of breed-specific legislation.
- "1. Registering rabies vaccinations with pet license.

- 2. Pets who display a serious and or repeat offender, should be national registered."
 - What's next? Are you going to after white, blonde, brown, red, brindle and mixed coloured dogs and only allow black dogs off leash?
 - No
 - "Big ""NO"" to Breed-specific bylaws.
- It's bad owners, not bad breeds"
 - Ban pit bulls. I now carry a walking stick after being charged by off lease, friendly pets. Dog owners never see their pets as dangerous.
 - More education for citizens on proper pet etiquette. Not reaching to pet animals without permission etc
 - No
 - More local off leash areas. More fun off leash areas for owners and dogs - not just a block of flat empty land. More trees and off leash paths
 - A special leash for pit bulls and nuisance dogs requiring a secondary tethered to the waist of the dog walker would help prevent dog attack.
 - More information on where off leash are. Not all shoreline of bow river is off leash. Timeline for putting barking dogs out on private land
 - More enforcement on the owners that don't pick up after their dogs , higher fines for dogs that bark all day or night enforced .
 - "<https://globalnews.ca/news/7293560/calgary-woman-pit-bull-attack-pet-survey/>
 - How about some advocacy for victims of pit bull attacks?"
 - Breeders should be licensed and inspected regularly.
 - Once again Breed Specific Legislation rears it ugly head. Pitbulls are not the only dog with a strong bite, let's focus on training not bans
 - Free training workshops to people getting pitbulls because training can be very expensive if the dog is not a puppy.
 - I have no ideas
 - There are people out there whose lives will never be the same due to a vicious dog attack. 70% of these are by pit bulls - see DogsBite.org
 - Stop trying to ban pitbulls.
 - Victims of pitbull attacks need to be heard - children who have died need to have a voice. Do not consider this type of pet for your family
 - .
 - The problem with people owning particularly dogs, and not picking up the feces in their yard often enough and flies are driving us crazy.
 - Do not believe in any breed specific legislation. Should be more about the breeders and owners versus the animal

- No
- I am not a pet owner. However, I am strongly opposed to Breed Specific Legislation (BSL). Many studies have proven it to be in-effective.
- BSL is not the answer. Support responsible pet owners not punish them. Provide incentive to license your animal.
- "Stop targeting pit pulls!! They are not dangerous or aggressive unless they are trained that way, JUST LIKE ANY ANOTHER DOG COULD
- BE."
- Breed Specific Legislation doesn't work. Look at the evidence from other jurisdictions it has failed. Only to punish good owners
- I would like a dog licence you buy once for the life of the dog. It is too expensive in my opinion.
- I do not support Breed Specific legislation of any kind- aggressive or problem dogs can come in any size or breed and shouldnt discriminate.
- BSL is ineffective. Irresponsible owners are to blame. Proof of obedience training should count for something. Urban hens are a great idea!!
- Dog owners and non-dog owners need to be educated about animal behaviours. Any untrained dog can be dangerous, not just pit bulls.
- no its not the dog breed its the owner
- Make stricter laws for animal abuse!!!! Shut down breeders! Breeders need to be shut down! No sale of dogs on marketplace or Kijiji.
- Deal with Bad Owners
- Dog attacks are mainly the owners fault. The dog should be placed on mandatory obedience school and the owner should be heavily penalized.
- Would be nice to see fenced areas for puppies to run around in
- More inforcement and consequences around barking dogs. Require additional training by the owner.
- I DONT think pit bulls/ bully breads should be banned
- Suggestion for people who get warnings or dogs who have issues to get mandated to mandatory training within a 6 month period,
- No.
- Its not the dog that is problem it is the owner Owner should take classes to control their dog or cat
- Put more dog waste bins in parks
- Stop discriminating agasint specific dog breeds.
- Breeders should be inspected regularly, and puppy mills should be banned.
- Breed specific legislation is harmful to many Calgarians who love their Pitty breeds. Please consider the owner not the breed itself
- It isn't the dog it's the owners. Ban bad dog owners not the dogs!
- I don't think "Pit Bull type" dogs should be tagged in this manner. I have more issue with small dogs and German Shepard charging me

- Promote/enable businesses to have appropriate leash-up spaces for dogs (Corner stores etc.) Eg Simple leash hook in a low-traffic area
 - Separate types of offences re: nuisance dog restrictions. Multiple noise complaints vs. bite complaints is very different
 - Hard no to banning pit bulls or dogs that look similar. Bad owners, not bad breed.
 - When a new dog is licensed, there could be a list of places for training. Rescue animals should go through training as well with the owners.
 - More patrolling in parks for off leash dogs and feeding wildlife - I.e Carburn Park
 - Fines and penalties shouldn't be used to discourage and punish specific breed owners. The fault is the owner and not the breed.
 - Put a muzzle on [personal information removed]
 - Hold ALL pet owners accountable. By this survey's "standard", all dogs capable of a severe bite should be policed and deemed a "nuisance".
 - Punishing a breed is absolutely inhumane and cruel. I can't believe that this is a consideration.
 - no
 - Breed specific bylaws are horrific. Dogs are only as good as their owners and how they are raised.
 - No
 - Where are the by-law officers to catch all these owners who don't follow the by-laws regarding keeping them on-leash and feces removal
 - The city needs to stop controlling people.
 - Bully breeds are not more dangerous than other dogs. Every dog owner should be held accountable for more training if dogs become a nuisance.
 - Although this was covered, it is very important that the City is very aware that breed specific legislation is unacceptable!!!
- No dog-specific bylaws. Treat every dog the same, until they prove otherwise by being a nuisance. Don't punish innocent dogs and owners.
 - Fines and/or charges for puppy mills and other animal abuse needs to carry harsh consequences.
 - None
 - Nuisance dogs come in all sizes - small dogs are just as bad (or worse). Enforcement should be equal for owners and pets of all sizes.
 - pit bull = strong bite thus we need to restrict them, what about other common breeds with bites as strong or stronger being included
 - IT IS THE OWNER!! NOT THE DOG who should be spotlighted.. (ie. pitbull) these dogs aren't trained properly. That is the issue.
 - Parents are responsible for the well-being of their children at dog parks, no other patrons and their dogs.

- Irresponsible pet owners should be excluded from ever having animals. Harsher punish for animal cruelty and abandonment. #dontbullymybreed
- When I attend Sue Higgins there are dog walkers with multiple dogs. More than 6 at times from multiple households. I feel YYC should backoff
- Anxiety driven dogs need their owners to be given some time to get help to reduce barking.
- no banning bully breeds, period! They are some of the best behaved and well trained dogs. No breed banning at all
- Nothing
- Stop discriminating against certain breeds!! I've been bitten (and bruised) by more small dogs than I have big. And never by a pitbull.
- Violent behaviour stems from no training; dog should not be killed after an attack case. They should be rehomed and retrained first.
- Stop discriminating pit bulls.
- Breed-specific bylaws should not be considered as part of this review. Any fault that exists is that of the owner, the breed is irrelevant.
- Don't punish dog breeds, punish irresponsible owners. In order to licence a pet at home, their should be an online class and quiz.
- No
- BSL's is ineffective and pointless. A bad owner is a bad owner, regardless or breed. Just like children, some people shouldn't have them.
- There are dozens of breeds that have stronger bites than "pit bulls" yet they are not mentioned here. We need to talk about bad owners first
- Biting and attack fines should be paid to victims not used as a money grab for the city. Photo radar does enough of that.
- Some of the new signs in Bowmont park (in Varsity) were installed in the wrong spot, as they straddle a dirt walking path, vs one side
- Most severe bites come from un-neutered male dogs, look at encouraging spay/neuter to mitigate aggression, rather than targeting "pit bulls"
- Breed specific bylaws should not be the mandate for judging incidences. It should be based on objective evidence and testimonials.
- It's ridiculous to assume that we can subjectively ban dogs based on how much damage their bite may cause, where would the line be drawn?
- I don't think fines are the answer but mandatory assessment, rehabilitation if possible and training. Or use the fine money to pay for progr
- No BSL! These legislations have been proven ineffective at preventing incidents and have been successfully repealed in many areas.
- Do not introduce breed specific legislation. Look into issues on a case by case basis regardless of the breed.
- Nuisance dogs of any breed should be removed from the community.

- I think it is unfair to unpunish certain breeds! You should fine dogs and owners that have attacked others not dogs that look a certain way.
- I wish I had a good idea about all of the roaming cats. I am a member of the next-door neighbor app. Full of missing cat ads. Shocking
- More Fenced-in Off-Leash parks. Smaller = Better for owners training recall to avoid chasing their dog for a long time.
- I'd like increased education and enforcement in no dog zones on Nose Hill.
- We need to remember animals are animals and can lash out if threatened, if provoked animals should have the right to defend themselves.
- The focus should be more about eliminating irresponsible dog owners, not pit bulls.
- There shouldn't be a Bylaw based on an animals breed - its absolutely absurd to base something around one single breed. END OF STORY.
- DO NOT DISCRIMINATE.
- Pit bulls are not the problem. Owners are.
- Breed-specific bylaws should not be considered as part of the bylaw review.
- Should be mandatory to attend a training and socializing course in order to get a pet licence. Educate owners BEFORE the dog is problem.
- There are way too many off leash areas. Dog owners need to understand the rules and that not everyone loves their dogs as much as them.
- No
- Bad owners are more responsible for issues than bad pets. If someone can't be bothered to properly train and control their pet, no pet.
- Wish i had an idea on how to deal with dog owners who leave their dog feces everywhere. Unless they get caught in the act, nothing happens
- I think this is a horrible idea and that the people against the breed need to be muzzled! I've grown up around bully breedsandtheyarethebest
- I appreciate the survey presented by the city, but breed specific by laws will not help. Responsible owners / citizens first.
- NO to BSL. As a professional dog carer, the majority of issues I see with any dog breed is a result of the owner's inability to train them
- bylaws against breeders, we need to eliminate the backyard breeders. A dog only acts the way it does is because of the owner go after them!
- Stop the rasicism of dog breeds. Every dog deserves a chance.
- Stop targeting pitbulls. Target bad owners its not that difficult.
- Dog(S) who are left outside and unattended to bark all day at everything should not be allowed. The owners should be held responsible.
- Constantly barking dogs should not be allowed to disturb the peace. They should be limited for outdoor time. Also public education is best!

- Owners should provide proof of Enrolment in Obedience training to get a Temporary License for dog and prove completion to get the yearly one
- Dog breeders should have to be licensed if they are making money on the sale of puppy's
- Case by case please! 2 times in my life I have been cornered by aggressive Dogs and neither one were Pitbulls! #dontbullymybreed
- pp
- Issues with dogs often stem from owners NOT the dogs. Stop punishing dogs because of their breed! Small dogs are often worse than large dogs
- To be honest I think it should be mandatory for all dogs to attend obedience training. Because any dog can attack or have bad behavior.
- All Animals Act on instinct. The responsibility of the owner of domesticated animals to ensure the safety of others outside of own property
- I think that anyone who works with or rescues dogs should be required to take a dog psychology/behaviour modification course.
- Put restrictions on owners and owner accountability, not on a breed or dog that has certain physical characteristics
- Nope
- Licensing through vet clinics. Stop targeting pit bulls. BSL is biased and not evidenced based or helpful.
- A cat owner should not keep their cat all the time out of their property. Many times I noticed it bothers other pets such as dogs.
- "There are no bad Pitbulls, only bad owners" is the same logic as "guns don't kill people, people kill people". Further restrictions now pls
- Policies relating to dogs needs to be made by vets and educated dog owners, not a few loud and outraged citizens using poor anecdotal info
- Don't target "bully" breeds. With any breed, small or large, it's their owner's responsibility to take care of and train them properly.
- Still think muzzling ALL dog breeds in public is the best idea stop the BSL [removed]
- BSL does NOT work. This is a proven fact. Making OWNERS more responsible and liable is key. Don't punish the animal, punish the people.
- Shame on you Calgary for even considering BSL.
- A few bad owners should not cause the rest of "pit-bull" type dogs to suffer a lower quality of life, like, not being allowed to a dog park.
- cats at large should not be in the same category as dogs at large - cats do not pose a biting threat like dogs
- It is far to easy for Calgarians to obtain dog licenses for dangerous breeds. No training for either required. This should not be!!
- Stop targeting specific breeds. There is no such thing as a bad dog, just bad owners.
- It would be nice to request a cat trap from the city, and be able to call the city to have the trapped roaming/feral cat taken to the pound

- Educate the owners! Our animals are a products of the environments they are being placed in. More affordable training classes needed.
- More needs to be done about people bringing their pets to playgrounds. There should be signage and enforcement/education
- If Cat traps are unavailable to people, then people should have the option to purchase their own traps.
- I feel that singling out bully breeds is unacceptable and uneducated. They are not nearly the most dangerous, powerful, or aggressive dogs.
- if we ban based on breed we should also do the same for humans??....
- Dogs, chickens, goats...any and all pets/livestock are under control of someone. That someone is responsible for the actions of that animal.
- In no way should pit-bulls be banned from our city or forced to wear muzzles. It is the owner not the breed
- Dogs should not be allowed at all except for elderly and handicapped people help.
- Post large signs warning the general public that they are about to enter a off-lease area -Enter at your own risk -avoid sudden movements
- "More liability on the pet owners to raise their animal responsibly. It's not the breed that is an issue.
- PETS ARE PRODUCTS OF ENVIRONMENT"
- MUCH more signage and fine warnings for on-leash areas, not picking up feces, and areas where dogs are not allowed (playgrounds)
- Too many times dogs are off-leash (in on-leash areas) are or on long leashes and the dogs run at my small kids
- I do not agree with the muzzling of certain breeds because of their looks/false reputations. It is on owners to get proper training
- More repercussions need to fall on bad pet owners. It's not the dog's fault they weren't taught what's right and what's wrong.
- Breed specific legislation is not only logically but biologically defensible.
- There should be clear stipulations to declare a dog a nuisance, but otherwise this tact vs blanket breed based policies makes far more sense
- Seeing dog feces (bagged or not) all over paths and parks where I take my small kids to enjoy themselves is infuriating
- License fees for cats and dogs should be the same fee. Cats at large are just as much of a nuisance as a dog at large.
- Need to have higher penalties for barking dogs, calling 311 doesn't seem to work
- Police the owners! Not the dogs. Stop with the breed specifics. Put measures in place for responsible pet ownership.
- Banning based on breed is unacceptable.
- I think there should be regulations and restrictions on dog and cat breeding to reduce the amount of poor backyard breeders.

- I would Like To See a Segregated, Secure Fenced" OFF_LEASH" area For Problem Owners/with specific breed designation. Strict association .
- mandatory training for dogs who have shown aggressive behaviors, site visits to be sure the pets location is a safe one for it and public
- Time to stop wasting tax payers money
- Banning dogs by breed isn't right, the dogs behaviour is influenced by the human(s) raising the animal
- Tighter restrictions on Pit Bull owners will only heighten the stigma on the breed. Not fair for responsible owners and their dogs.
- Fines for dogs and cats should be looked at separately. I do not open my front door and let my dogs out as the neighbors do with their cats.
- Better access for lower income people to spay and neuter program as well as access to pet training and classes.
- Writing animal bylaws based on the breed of dog is a bad idea.
- For dogs that continuously bark in there yard there should be a bylaw.
- Fines with mandatory training on nuisance Dogs. At owners expense - and reduced for lower income. The animals need a home and training...
- The city should entertain the idea of providing obedience classes and puppy classes to all people who adopt an animal
- No
- no
- Banning based on breed is unscientific and unacceptable. Enforcement should be based on the particular dog exhibiting past issues.
- Don't ban bullybreeds-theyre sweet. More signage/patrol in ON leash areas. proper licensing/close observation/strict rules for dog breeders
- It would be good to know how The City collaborates with other orgs to coordinate on efficient service delivery and reduce duplication
- Continually barking dogs of the neighbors are a big problem with us. Increase the enforcement options for this.
- Parks would benefit from having biodegradable bags and receptacles placed in higher traffic areas, Fish Creek Park .
- Higher fines for people who allow their dogs to roam off leash in non dog parks, ie: walking/bike paths, playgrounds, residential areas, etc
- Barking dogs. This needs to be dealt with. Larger fines.
- Don't condemn a breed worry about back yard breeders and irresponsible pet owners. License needed to breed approved by a veterinarian ect
- Pet Lic.
- Specifically targeting one breed of dog is not the solution. It is the owner that is the issue and how the dog is raised and trained.

- Breed-specific legislation is not scientifically supported and the "facts" presented about bite strength are incorrect
- Economically it is unjust for the city to use financially punitive measures, rather than a rehabilitative approach. Don't slander pitbulls
- Owners are responsible for aggression in their animals. Bully type dogs don't deserve to suffer for an owner's neglect or lack of training.
- Stop using pit bull in the same sentence as vicious. Use irresponsible pet owner with the word vicious. Dogs are not born vicious.
- If it isn't already, banning cosmetic procedures for dogs including ears cropping, tail docking etc. Unless it is medically necessary
- No
- I think it is the owner of the animal of how the animal reacts not the breed.
- Specific breeds are not the problem, negligent owners are.
- Why bother targeting one breed of dog, especially when you don't enforce the bylaws that are already in place. Enforce the current bylaws!
- Animal licenses for cats and dogs should mandatory. As should spray and neutering. If you can't afford your pet, you shouldn't have one.
- Allow for better education to youth and the public about how to approach dogs , how to tell if your dog has aggressive behaviours or stress
- In most cases it is the owners who need training before ever getting there pet and should be required to pass a course
- Stop with BSL. It is cruel and stupid. Who are we as a people? Get the facts out before doing this survey. This is sickening
- I dont agree with livestock in the City (hens, etc) but if allowed, they should have to pay for each animal to be banded and licensed
- Good idea
- Pit bulls are not the problem!
- |
- "DOG BITE STATISTICS BY BREED 1982 –2014
- Rank 1- Pitbull - 3397 attacks
- Rank 2- Rottweiler - 535 attacks"
- Enforcement of a bylaw requiring a license to breed, approved by a veterinarian.
- No Ideas.
- Breed specific legislation is unfair to the animals and perpetuates harmful stereotypes against pit bull owners, especially people of colour
- A pet bylaw needs a commitment from the city to enforce it. Otherwise, it would just be more virtue signalling from the city.
- A breed specific by law condemns many amazing dogs. Poor acting dogs are the result or poor acting humans. Save our breed!

- You do not know, until you know. Don't wait until it is too late, ban pit bulls.
- I do not support any sort of BSL. Responsible pet ownership is key not BSL
- I think a pet limit of 6 total animals is better. 6 dogs and 6 cats is too many
- Maybe do some actual research on what dogs have attacked more people and go after them instead of a pitbull because of how it looks
- H
- Ban all animals that are capable of killing someone. Pitbulls, rottweilers, German Shepherds, crocodiles, scorpions.
- I 100% support banning pit bull type dogs. Any pro-pit commenting needs to stop posing as an advocate, trying to defend their wounded egos.
- No I think most things were covered
- If you are doing breed specific legislation you better address all other dog breeds!!! Because all dogs are capable of being aggressive
- Unleashed dogs in city paths not designated as off leash should be fined and enforced more rigorously.
- There are no bad dogs, only bad owners. Do NOT single out breeds - severely restrict bad owners!
- Nil
- Leave it alone!!!
- "Specific breeds are not the problem, negligent owners are," says every pitbull owner before their dog kills someone.
- Pet licenses should include a written exam ensuring owners understand existing bylaws and responsibilities, subsidize obedience training.
- There are no problem breeds, only problem owners.
- No
- Banning/restricting based on "appearance" seems really sketchy, and bans on specific breeds doesn't address the real problem: bad owners!
- enforce the rules about dogs being off-leash out of bounds. My 2yo gets terrified in Bowness Park on the trails when dogs bound toward her.
- Trap-neuter-release programs for feral/stray cats is the best way to control feral cat populations!
- Focus on preventative measures! Qualified must-have training for all pet owners. Education for public not to approach or startle dogs
- DOG BREEDS ARE NOT THE ISSUE. Instead of blaming specific breeds, focus on the irresponsible dog owners!!! OWNERS ARE THE ISSUE
- Please make evidence-based policy, recognizing that visual identification of dog breeds is deeply flawed. Do not punish pit bull type dogs.
- no ideas
- Owners are the problem, but since they can't be forced to act responsibly, dangerous breeds need to be targeted instead.
- Increased fully fenced in off leash dog parks. Northwest Calgary has 1... This is ridiculous

- Even if Pit Bulls bite "less" than other breeds there is no denying they have larger jaws and muscles. This is potential for great harm.
- Increased fully fenced in off leash dog parks. Northwest Calgary has 1... This is ridiculous "Specific breeds are not the problem, negligent
- Cat owners should not be allowed to let their cats roam past their property line. If dogs are not allowed to wander neither should cats.
- It is not a child's responsibility to behave well around dogs. It's the owner's responsibility to train their dog.
- Do not be ignorant and underline your lack of education by supporting the ban on certain breeds.
- Pit bulls are dangerous. End of story.
- Targeting "bully breeds" is completely ineffectual for reducing dog attacks. Public/owner education is crucial and scientifically backed up.
- Dog breeds are an issue. Pit bulls are an issue. Public safety is an issue.
- Anyone who would adopt a pit bull needs psychotherapy ASAP.
- who knows what the right answer for this is
- No
- Look to other cities to see their successes with urban chicken programs, with recommendations of coop size, placement, and flock make-up.
- Yes! Freedoms of pet ownership! BUT not Pit Bulls. Sorry. That infringes on my right to safety. I don't want to be attacked please.
- No, keep BSL out of it's the actual statistics and science does not support the media bias and hype.
- I hope they all get euthanized soon.
- I think kids should be taught not to run up to dogs. I think color coding a collar for dogs when in public to let people know if approachabl
- Rehabilitation Program, re-assessments. If convicted criminals are given the chance to change, why not give dogs the same chance?
- Regardless of comparisons to other dogs, pit bulls are bred for fighting prowess, and are capable of killing people. People first.
- It's not the dog, it's the owner. More little dogs attack than large dogs. Fix the problem, not the symptoms
- Ban all dangerous breeds like pitbulls
- Ban pit bulls (grandfathering current ones with microchip requirements). Ban breeding and importation of pit bulls. Euthanize at-large PBs.
- There is no denying the numbers, ban pit bulls! And maybe some therapy programs for people who defend pits, yet have no empathy for humans.
- Stop discriminating against "bully-breeds"
- Too many kids have been killed and maimed by Pitbulls just in 2020. Enough is enough. We have to finally commit to end this savage madness.

- The mentality displayed in anti-BSL comments in this section only further support why a ban on pits is so essential.
- Please have more fenced off-leash parks for well behaved animals.
- Looking through the comments - It's simple, Calgarians DO NOT WANT BSL?
- No
- Be in control of your dog at all times on or off leash, take the time to train them, a dog is a responsibility not a right.
- Do not ban a specific breed of dog, take the dog away from the humans if it is a problem.
- Band all the propaganda emails and the incorrect information being attached! Here's your uneducated people!
- Your focus on bully breed dogs is completely unfair and unwarranted. Do better City if Calgary, you're embarrassing yourselves.
- everyone relax be responsible nothing wrong with pitbulls but idiots teaching them and owning them lack of skills or knowledge
- Less about Cats at large as they help with mice/gophers and more about aggressive dogs, not breed related. Do something about skunks.
- We back onto an off leash area. A dog ran up to a man, barking, man backed up and raised his hands. Dogs feces 2 feet from our chain fence.
- Target bad animal owners NOT the animals!!
- Can't believe we're re-exploring breed specific legislation. ALL dogs should take obedience training and held to higher standard post incident
- I wish there was actual enforcement to fine and discourage people that pick up after their dog but then leaves the bag.
- The definition of a "pit bull" is too broad in this survey. A ban on specific breeds is ineffective in dealing with dog bites.
- Upper limits for pet ownership numbers is NIMBY [removed]. Use existing legislation to target unhealthy/unsafe living conditions (ie-mills) instead
- don't put hate on a breed of animal, put hate on the owners who treat and train the animal wrong. #justiceforthepittys
- No
- If you're going to say all pit bulls are bad and need muzzle, might as well say all black people are bad and should be in jail. Same thing.
- Licensing for cats should be dropped. Most cats are indoor. This is simply a money grab that funds other enforcement programs.
- Poor behaviour is poor training. If we are talking about bite strength, we should include all dogs with strong bites. Don't bully my breed.
- "Pit Bulls DO NOT BITE MORE OFTEN
- Pit Bulls DO NOT HAVE THE STRONGEST BITE!!
- Research and educate"

- Breed specific laws/bans are ignorant. Ignorance is dangerous. End of story
- A breed should not be discriminated against. It should be case by case basis.
- Pet registration for responsible indoor cat owners is nothing more than a cash grab. We don't utilize any of the services that $$$ funds
- it would be nice if some City parks allowed horseback riding.
- Bully breeds should not be targeted, usually it is the people that own the dogs that are the problem, not the dogs.
- Don't blame the breed, blame the person .
- Maybe instead of a limit on the number of pets/household, the licensing fee for each subsequent pet is higher.
- You can't single out a breed .. it's all how you raise a dog .. don't take away the freedom of our companions
- It is the responsibility of parents to ensure their children are taught how to act around dogs and to ask permission before petting
- higher fines for cats purposely let out. Visible Id for service/emotional support pets. Education on the difference between them.
- ID for emotional support animals. Education on their rights
- If a dog is peaceful and docile with everyone except the bitten then then the bitten needs to be investigated.
- Children who are bitten by dogs should have an investigation happen to see whether or not the child provoked the dog. Kids aren't innocent
- How about enforced training for people with dogs that can be aggressive? It's not the breed, it's the owner.
- I do not believe in breed specific legislation. Owners should be licensed by proving they know responsible Pet ownership principles
- Target the owners of all vicious dogs, not just certain breeds that people have vilified
- "Fine adults that come over fences and tease dogs.
- Perhaps people with big breeds should be required to take a small online test."
- The City of Calgary needs to recruit a lot more Peace Officers. The current workload exceeds the existing capacity.
- On/off leash signage is poor, confusing. If dog is not controllable, should be on leash at all times. Enforce pick up excrement bylaw.
- Consider banning owners from keeping aggressive breeds in cases causing severe injury or death.
- I think obedience training required for 'nuisance dogs' is the best compromise. It will disincentivize bad owners without punishing the good
- NA
- Easier portal to request bylaw presence in community parks where there is a lot of offences.
- Make bylaws based on the animals and owners actions. Not based off of its breed. A viscous animal is a viscous animal. Breed doesnt matter

- Don't discriminate against pit bulls. Every single dog out there is capable of biting. Start punishing owners instead of dogs!!!!!!
- The people who are saying to ban pitbulls have NO IDEA about dogs or dog behavior. Blame the owner, not the dog. Period!
- BSL is not a good idea. The animals are not the problem, the owners are. Any dog of any breed can be vicious and not all pittys are.
- "DOG BREEDS ARE NOT THE ISSUE. Instead of blaming specific breeds, focus on the irresponsible dog owners!!! OWNERS ARE THE ISSUE
- City worker to check in with nuisance dogs and owners on how they are doing.
- there are too many uneducated media junkies. Talk to vets and behavior specialists and make a decision based off of facts. Not emotions.
- Please don't introduce BSL. It doesn't work and dogs are family.
- BSL is not supported by science so it has no place in our city. Humans create problem dogs, not the breed.
- I don't like the idea of being able to keep pigeons. My neighbor has pigeons and there is a lot more feces on my vehicle. Need to pay fees t
- Increase fines for violent dogs of any breed, not just focused on the Pitbull family. Owners should be held accountable not the animals.
- why give a break on owning a pet no matter the income. no matter who you are what you have owning a pet has the same responsibilities
- Mandatory annual vet visits, for check ups/vaccines for all dogs and cats.
- Encouragement for training dogs rather than banning breeds, It is irresponsible owners that cause the problems.!
- Mandatory dog obedience training should be a requirement of licensing.
- It's really unfair and unjustified to put restrictions on a breed due to appearance.
- I've never met a violent pitt bull or Stafford terrier and think muscling them could cause psychological issues
- Fines should be absurdly high for all aggressive violations. There meant to passively police rules not just revenue generate.
- Do not ban bully breeds.It's unfair and if you think you need to ban them might as well ban all dogs.All breeds can have uneducated owners
- No
- For those who tell people to get educated, the Pitt bull is a hatebreed dog designed to kill bovine Bulls for sport outlawed Early mid 1600s
- Not sure
- Flailing movements and high pitched squeels are bred triggers for Pitt Bulls. Naturally that's what small kids/animals do and why attacked
- My main concern is the discrimination towards Pitbull's and Staffy's. They are not the problem. Uneducated, mentally unfit, and lazy people are!

- It's not a debate over whether it's Pitt Bulls or the owner's that are the problem... It's BOTH! And two wrongs obviously don't make a right
- More off-leash areas.
- Were not talking about which breeds bite More or less, such a deflection of the issues. I'd personally literally go 20-1 Pomeranian bites
- Pitts are known for their high intelligence + their number one priority is to please their owner, issues are entirely owner related, not pup
- Unfortunately many of the irresponsible pet owners in my area have pit bulls so I support this survey
- Pets (any breed) are a product of their environment. Figure out how to identify and deal with irresponsible owners it's not the pets fault.
- Any dog can bite, not just bully breeds.
- I think there needs to be better circulation of animal bylaws as well as enforcement.
- Pitt Bulls are too much dog for society. There's a reason we're not allowed top fuel dragsters on McLeod trail. It's 4 ur safety 2
- I'd like to see a decrease in licencing fees over lifetime of pet if demonstrated responsible ownership by owner.
- na
- I do not believe in discriminating dogs by breed, and vehemently oppose special bylaws for pitbulls.
- Band pit bulls in Calgary !!!!!
- We need to stop crossing the narrative. Bites and attacks are different. Small breeds fear bite if space invaded, Pitt Bulls attack
- I do not agree with breed specific bans. Any laws should be based on the behavior of the animal
- Treat all breeds of canine the same! Do not single out "bully" breeds as aggressive small breeds are more aggressive than bigger breeds.
- Leave the bully breeds alone and identify the owners who are responsible for the behaviours of their pets.
- no no rules about pitbulls or bulky breeds should be applied i own two dogs neither is a bully breed or pit . I have never ket an aggressive
- Enforce cat bylaws. They are responsible for extinction of birds, ruin gardens, antagonize leashed animals, stuck in trees, eaten by coyote
- None
- No additional ideas.
- There needs to be regulations for back yard breeders. This should not ne allowed.
- Banning pitbulls is not the answer! Small breeds, especially Chihuahuas, actually bite more often due to lack of training!!
- sorry don't have any ideas,
- There should not be any difference in how a dog is treated based on breed. This penalizes good pit bull owners. It is unfair and unjustified

- Fines make no difference if no bylaw officers ever visit the park to write tickets. The ravine in ArbourLk is treated by 75% as off leash
- The focus on Pit-Bulls is completely unfounded and disgusting. There are exponentially more bites by smaller dogs.
- Seems many municipalities have already legislated Restricted Dog by-laws. Is this causing reductions in dog attacks on both people and dogs?
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work. Chihuahuas bite often because of poor handling and they don't get banned. Owner education is key.
- no
- Vets need to be held more accountable. There needs to be something in place for people in low-income.
- Pit bulls are very gently kind dogs when raised right. Restrictions on who can own one may be ok.
- Pin pointing "pit bulls" even though it's a known fact they don't have the highest bite record is absurd!
- cat license's are unnecessary, and onerous on cat owners. repeal the cat license bylaw
- Singling out pitbulls like this is disgusting. We should be encouraged responsible ownership rather than punishing all owners like this
- Stop focusing on specific breeds such as pit bulls. Poor ownership and lack of training are the bigger issues.
- Fines of around $50 for each excessive barking complaint where excessive is anything over 2 consistent hours.
- It is non-sense wanting to put Restrictions or additional requirements on a specific dog breed / owners based on that dog's bite is strong.
- owners of nuisance dogs should be required to participate in obedience training with their pet AND in a pet management/care course.
- Fines are great 4 generating revenue but do little to solve the original problem Invest in more education and training resources 4 pet owners
- Ban the pit bulls. End of story.
- An addendum for rescued pit bulls. Pit bulls should be illegal to purchase or adopt without proof that they are rescued with culpability.
- Any bylaws or legislation that targets specific breeds needs to be backed by accredited studies published in a respected journals.
- Your pit bull dog should be banned. I'm sorry this bruises your tender ego, but people are getting disfigured and killed. Fully support BSL.
- The more well adjusted and properly trained a dog is, the less likely they will bark.
- People should have to attend force free training for dogs who have had issues to learn to properly train their dogs in effective lasting way
- Please put people first and ban all pit bulls!!
- Owner education is key. Dogs/cats (OF ANY BREED) are not born "bad"; they are raised that way.

- Pro bsl! And please stop hating on fellow humans in favor of vicious dogs. Stop the destruction!
- Need a responsible pet ownership course for owners that explains how to properly take care of and train animals and explains the law.
- I think outdoor cats should be illegal. There are SO many cases of people that kill them for fun or in general them getting hurt.
- I DO NOT support any sort of breed ban. Information offered to support breed bans are after not accurate. All dogs can bite
- There should not support be breed-specific legislation.
- Stop being bias to dog breeds! Work with those owners and figure out a solution. Give them and the dog a chance before you kill the dog.
- I've had lots of problems with loud barking dogs in my neighbors yard as well as dogfights. Nothing has been done after numerous complaints.
- People who own breeds stronger than themselves should have to take mandatory training classes
- Implement more affordable training for dog and owner! Putting legislations on breeds does nothing to reduce attacks. NO BSL! NO BSL!
- TRHRSTHTRHHR
- It is not fair to label all pitbulls as dangerous. It is all about the owner and not the dog! They aren't even the leading dog biting breed.
- Having a dog is a responsibility, not a privilege. All dogs should be given the same chance and all owners make sure they are responsible.
- Pitbulls should not be a targetes species. Chihuahua can be targeted. They bite all the time just to bite
- This needs to be stopped. It's a slippery slope, soon all big breeds could be affected and after that the mid sized dogs are next...
- BSL does nothing but ensure a death sentence to bully breeds and causes more fear of a sweet breed. blame the owner not the dog!
- SAY NO TO BSL! smaller breeds cause more bites and more severe bites than any other breed but because pitbulls look mean they are blamed.
- Bylaw so renters of large breeds are not discriminated against. Muzzling of small, nipping, dogs. Limit dog walkers to 5 dogs per walk!.
- Put fencing on pathways to distinguish between off leash areas and pathways, eg ring road area oakridge west. Seniors cant walk here dange
- Calgary used to be a city that focused on training owners and not blaming the breed, what the heck happened? BLAME THE OWNER, NOT THE BREED!
- Breed specific bylaws do not work. They are targeting the wrong situation and penalize people with gentle and behaved dogs.
- There is no such thing as a bad dog! aka pitbulls...Only bad owners!
- Including a training class with the 1st years license at a higher cost then a reduction in all license fees in subsequent years for graduate
- Fines for dogs off leash in non-designated offleash areas.

- rulings on cases of attacks and bites should not be based on breed, any dog can bite, if the dog and the owner are not trained properly.
- BSL is not a good idea and not scientifically backed up. It is abhorrent that the city is considering this in any form.
- No
- No ideas
- I do not agree with Breed Specific Legislation. The behavior of any dog is ultimately related to how the animal is treated by the owners.
- Please make it legal for any calgarian to shot on sight any pit ball. That is proven to work!
- "Fincial aid for mental health/therapy animals.
- Reduced fines for pet owners who are experiencing financial difficulty.
- Training not fines."
- I don't like fighting breeds-they caused injury to my dog.But I was hurt by a poorly-trained St. Bernard.Target the nuisance, not the breed.
- As a vet for 20+ years, there is no science to back BSL. Owners are the root cause of aggressive dogs.
- Any dog is capable of biting. I do not agree with Breed Specific Legislation. Very backward thinking as far as I'm concerned.
- BSL doesn't prevent attacks or bites. Zero evidence that it does. Don't be like flat-earthers. Educate yourselves.
- Setting up accountability of parents with children who taunt, tease and throw items at yards that have pets.
- Since when does Calgary support BSL?! I've always considered it to be past this! Wasn't Calgary the one that reduced dog bites without BSL?!
- As a part of registering a dog in Calgary, proof of obedience training should be a mandatory requirement.
- Dog owners should have their dogs defacate on their own property! Even if they pick up the business there is remnants and it's disgusting.
- None
- -
- As a pit bull owner, I'm shaking my head. The neighbourhood kids will lay on my dog all the time. He sleeps right through it. So dangerous.
- Rather than increasing licence fees for dog owners with bully breeds....actually reduce the licence fees if the dog reports no incidents.
- City doesn't care about our pets just lookin for source income!
- How can ONLY pitbulls be mentioned?!All large dogs are capable of devastating bites. Stricter enforcement for owners of (ANY) nuisance dog
- You mentioned pigeons being lore limited. I believe that could be more streamlined.

- I do not support any kind of law that targets one breed of animal. Any breed can act out it is up to pet owners to properly train their pets
- "One time license fee for cats and dogs. Higher fee if not spayed and neutered.
- Licenses available through vets and humane society."
- The animals are not the issue here. It's people. Always. Fix your ownership bylaws before you ban dogs.
- I do not support any kind of law that targets one breed of animal. Any breed can act out it is up to pet owners to properly train their pets
- jjm
- Please refrain from singling out specific dog breeds. All of the most credible information has indicated BSL is not effective and wrong.
- Vicious dogs need to include Chihuahuas, etc. Just because they're small doesn't make their aggressive behaviour "Cute".
- nope
- There is absolutely no reason for BSL. I struggle to find a difference between this way of thinking and racism. It is the OWNER.
- NA
- There is a big responsibility in having a pet in ones home. Mandatory training when a new dog comes a home. Every time.
- Put more blame on owners not the animals.
- Fix the stray cat ussue. Im sick of seeing cats hit by cars and cat limbs in edworthy park from owners that dont care enough to keep them in
- "Breed-specific legislation is not beneficial or effective. Dog owners need to be responsible
- I think that each case should be explored based on individuality and severity
- Many green spaces are under utilized and would be better appreciated if made off leash areas.
- I had two savage dog bites as a child from a German shepherd and a yellow lab. Breed specific laws arent the answer
- A one time licence fee for a dog that remains in the house or yard except when it is in the car to go to the vet or get its nails trimmed.
- I would Be in favour of a program to identify potentially dangerous dogs. Education for owners and training for dogs
- No
- Owners are definitely the issue here, not a specific breed of animal. Offering discounted rates for training so, owners properly train pets.
- No
- Have park ambassadors in all parks.
- I do not think that it is wise to focus on breeds but rather behaviors.
- Fix the outdoor cat problem. Increasing fines for each time its captured.
- .

- Singling one dog breed out is outrageous, we should be evaluating if someone is even fit to have a dog- any size
 - The wait time for low-income spay and neuter is too long. Providing more money to this program will limit the feral cat problem
 - Fixing feral cats on farms as lot gets dumped them
 - No
 - Singling out one dog breed is not ok. I will not support a bylaw that discriminates against a specific type of dog.
 - "Don't single out breeds.
- Focus on educating and or evaluating owners in all cases of dogs/cats/birds."
 - Please make effort to change behaviour regarding owners that don't pick up their pet waste. This is a nuisance for all citizens.
 - Focus on the owner and give proper training to the owner if there is an issue with the animal. It is not the breed, it is the owner.
 - Singling particular breeds is a waste of time and money. Use that money for education on an early warning system.
 - I would like to see more responsible pet ownership. Dogs, especially large dogs, shouldn't be off leash unless they're in an off leash park.
 - Nope not really
 - I wish the fee for cats wasnt so high. My cats are indoor cats only, making the registration almost useless to me
 - If we believed a race of people had higher potential for violence would we place restrictions on them too. Shame on you calgary
 - BSLaws are not the answer. You should be zoning in on bad owners, the breed is not the problem.
 - "BSL is NOT racism, HELLO - these are DOGS, not HUMAN BEINGS!!
- I fully support BSL, those opposed are clearly not of sound mind."
 - I do not support "pitbull " type dogs being singled out. The breed is not the problem. Any dog can be a nuisance with a problem owner.
 - Yes to breed specific legislation - pit bull dogs have no reason to be in our society.
 - none
 - no
 - I am completely opposed to Breed Specific Legislation - it is racial motivated and comes from an uneducated perspective. Review the ON stats
 - The owner does not determine what's already bred into a dogs DNA. And the owner won't be fast enough to stop an attack. Pibbles = dangerous.

- No breed specific legislation
- I would support obedience training for all dogs, but solely focussing just on pitbulls is ridiculous. You even admit they don't bite more.
- Is this about nuisance dogs or vicious dogs? Because to me those are two vastly different things
- I think the idea of breed-specific legislation is antiquated and dangerous. Remove all verbiage pertaining to "bully" or "bullheaded" dogs.
- The current cat bylaw puts the onus on people to pay for a trap and catch a stray cat. The rules for cats and dogs should be the same.
- It's not the breed, it's the owner. Staffies and pit bulls are gentle with the right owner
- I would like to see a relaxation of cat roaming rules.
- I would like the focus for dogs to be education, training and care as well as responsible pet owners.
- Changing perception of dog breeds
- All dogs can be dangerous, no matter the size or breed. Owners need to be held responsible for the actions of their dog(s).
- keep breed specific bylaws OFF the table indefinitely!
- No breed specific legislation is needed. #all[removed]matter
- "An easier method of submitting complaints of excessive barking or other animal noises.
- Some of the current rules seem restrictive."
- "Cats need to be contained like any other pet!
- Pitbulls are the same as Sheperds, Rotties, Mastiffs, Dobermans ect don't be breedist."
- All large dogs regardless of breed, but capable of real damage to an adult or child, should be required to participate in obedience classes.
- Pitbulls were originally bred to be NANNY DOGS. Violence is NOT in their DNA. If raised properly they are very kind and gentle dogs.
- I am completely opposed to breed specific legislation. The breed is not the problem!
- More proactive policing of bylaws at off leash areas and pathways.
- A breed's avg. bite force times 20 yr stats of incidents/fatalities yields a risk factor, higher risk must have $1mil. liability insurance
- What will the city recommend for the increasing number of feral rabbits. Kingsland community has an issue now due to irresponsible rabbit ow
- No BSL; any dog breed can be a nuisance do not single out Pit bulls
- Better signage and enforcement of where dogs are not permitted
- Don't punish the breed!! Punish bad dog owners!!!
- An off leash park, is not a place to sit on the grass and have a picnic. Screaming when a dog approaches.
- Im absolutely disgusted the City of Calgary is considered judging a dog on its breed. This is so archaic and ignorant. NO to BSL!!
- We already have breed specific laws for pet owners. We can't allow own exotic animals!

- I think it's completely unfair to base any legislation based on a breed. What does a "Pitbull type" even mean? Ridiculous
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work. Any dog can bite. Blame the owner, not the dog.
- Is there any bylaw protecting wildlife such as squirrels or other animals considered as 'pests'? Also increase fines for animal abuse
- No BSL; any dog breed can be a danger do not single out Pit bulls, it's all about how people train their dogs NOT about the breed
- na
- Breed-specific legislation is not supported by evidence. Responsible pet ownership and education need to be the focus, not BSL.
- I wish all cats and dogs would be spayed or neutered. With rare exception.
- None
- Focus on the owner and give proper training to the owner if there is an issue with the animal. It is not the breed, it is the owner.
- #pitbulllivesmatter
- Breed specific regulation is not the answer. Public education on responsible pet ownership and zeroing in on irresponsible owners is better.
- People with pets only, in off leash areas. Not cyclists and family picnics.
- No
- N/A
- Barking dog education and if not taken care of fine. Accepting recordings of dogs sent to by-law via email for neighbourhood disputes.
- Ridiculous to have breed specific legislation. Gives people with other breeds a pass to not train and manage their dogs.
- I have seen more small dogs that are mean ,than the bigger dogs. So sad that a pitbull " pitbull type " has to punished , city gone to [removed]
- Pitbulls are gentle giants. Don't discriminate because of their size. I've seen way more small dogs attack than I have a Pitbull attack.
- Focus on the owners and not the animals.
- All dogs and cat should be need to be spayed or neutered by law with rare exceptions.
- I believe that we should not be targeting one breed of dogs as its cruel and unfair. I have seen more vicious small dogs then I have big dog
- More puns I suppose
- There should be no breed specific legislation. There is no evidence supporting BSL effectiveness. Training is the owners responsibility.
- Eliminate off-leash areas which are also mountain biking areas (eg. nose hill)
- Place a max limit on how many fines/notices are issued before further measures are taken. Should not keep being indefinite warnings/fines.
- No

- Education programs. Hating on 1 breed won't fix the problem, ANY animal can be aggressive and those owners need the tools to train their pet
- I believe it is unfair to single out a certain breed of dog. Many breeds that don't have owners that know how to handle them can be dangerous.
- Breeding of animals should be banned in the city. There are far too many animals already in need of homes. Breeding more is irresponsible.
- BSL does not work. It just punishes dogs for how they look. The problem is the owners, not a "breed".
- Full ban on pit bull and other aggressive dogs
- By "nuisance" I hope you mean nuisance dogs of ALL breeds, not just ones that "look like pitbulls".
- Arguments based on 'stronger bite' are flawed. German Shepherd, English Bulldogs, Boxers etc. are in the top 20 bite strength as well.
- Backyard chickens
- Time has showed us people are too dumb to be responsible for a breed of dog like pitbulls. I love them, but support the ban
- I do not support additional laws targeting "pit bull" breeds.
- No
- A pitbull is not a particular breed it is many breeds. Bad owners will just move to other large breeds (Rottweiler, Cane Corso, etc)
- "Focus on behavioural changes vs the breed"
- Many small dogs can cause damages, be rude, or bite. It isn't specific to bully breeds."
- should be better rules for who can adopt or get a pet, required training or all client who get a new pet has to book an app with a vet
- Again; it is not the breed...it is the uneducated/irresponsible owners that are the cause. Stop punishing the breed. Up the fines, BIG TIME.
- To try and single out a breed or type of dog is ludicrous. As a long time owner of bully breeds I am appalled by this notion.
- I, like many others, am completely against breed specific legislation - It reminds me of racism. Please focus on responsible pet ownership.
- Don't be like Ontario, don't ban or muzzle pit bulls. If you do you will be part of the problem
- Most dog bites can be avoided. Training should include recognizing a dog that is stressed and may bite. Even good dogs can bite.
- Do not ban pit bulls. That is an uneducated approach to the real problem which is bad pet owners.
- No
- The antiquated notion of rolling out BSL in Calgary is appalling. The logic is flawed. Terrible.
- Define pitbull not a breed the owner not dog is problem .

- Breed specific bylaws should NOT be implemented. Pitbulls are not bad dogs, there are only bad owners. Any dog can attack. This is unfair.
- breed specific bylaws are proven to not decrease animal incidents! I am appalled by this potential legislation!
- Because people overreact and nowadays use false claims and their emotions to get what they intend to be right when it's not. Abuse the syst.
- Lower fines for not picking up dog poo. Not the end of the world and shouldn't be $200. Unreasonable. More parks should be off leash.
- I'm appalled YYC is even considering BSL. The data is clear, it doesn't work. Focus on the owners.
- Dog parks are for dogs. Kids need to be controlled Nd educated about their place in an animals environment.
- High fines for animals found in distress. Removal of the animals immediately if found in abuse circumstances.
- Bandannas on dogs won't prevent bad behaviour of owners. If u aren't smart enough to train a dog U aren't smart enough 2 pick the color.
- Higher fines to owners, more responsibility lays on the owner. It shouldn't be on the breed of the dog. You could lump in Shepard's Doberman
- Breed specific legislation does not reduce bites. Dog breeds do not dictate behaviour. All the pitbulls I have met have been very gentle.
- No
- Instead of placing all the blame on the dog or breed for their behaviour start taking into account the owner and how they handle the dog.
- Make penalties based on individual animal history not by breed
- Provide affordable training center for dog owners. In order to eliminate a problem you must educate the owners not muzzle specific breeds!
- 3 strike rule to warrant a life time ban on owning or selling of animals..
- It's rarely a bad breed ie;pit bull it's bad owners!!
- DO NOT BAN PITBULLS ... JAIL TIME AND FEE DOR ABUSE TO ANIMALS.
- Not at this time
- Penalties and rules shouldn't be based on breed - they should be based on individual animals and owners.
- Do not create any breed specific legislation! It doesn't address any of the actual problems causing dog bites!
- Singling out and vilifying pitbulls reflects poor research on and understanding of the bully breed. I am ashamed to read the proposed laws.
- Creating legislation targeting specific dog breeds will only make people's fears of these breeds worse. Focus on obedience training instead.

- More dog friendly establishments - well socialized dogs are happy dogs! Keeps communities safe and thriving when pets and humans can cohabit
- Breed specific legislation creates more problems than it solves. There are no bad dogs, just bad owners.
- Targeting a specific breed of dog is disgusting. I've been bit by smaller dogs and chased more by 9 pound dogs Then any "high risk breed"
- Put more rules in place for PEOPLE who want to own dogs and mistreat them. Dogs much like humans are a product of their environment.
- The fee structure changes are not useful if there is no enforcement. There needs to be effective enforcement that is proactive
- "Pet licence for rabbits
- Heavy fines for releasing rabbits"
- "BSL has NEVER worked it's legislation implemented to placate the [remove]
- AU, Spain Italy Ontario are just some of the failures"
- I do not agree with identification of breed specific as dangerous. I have seen and been bitten by more small breeds than large breeds.
- Increased dog fees should be used to provide a service to clean up dog feces on public and private property from irresponsible owners
- The amount of things you folks at city hall are trying to control, is getting out control. Keep your hands out of my pocket.
- animals should not be penalized for protecting there home/owner from someone who enter the property unwelcome or uninvited.
- BSL is a form of racism. I am a large breed owner, education is key. Not scare tactics.
- No
- The cat bylaw requires a homeowner to trap the cat. Photos could be used instead along with providing the cat's address to report offences
- I cant say it enough but TRAINING, TRAINING. All dog and owners. Especially new owners need to go through training to understand their dog
- Most animal owners treat them as part of their family. No need to make things more difficult for us.
- Breed-specific legislation is not the answer. We need to enforce dog owner accountability by emphasizing non-breed-specific laws instead.
- targeting a specific dog is beyond disgusting. BSL has been proven not to work, and many cities have dropped it. My dogs are my family.
- No
- Proper training should be done when owning a bigger breed dog no matter the breed.
- Training!!!! Owners and dogs. Bad owners make bad dogs not breed!
- Proactive enforcement or presence in dog parks or high pet traffic areas such as walking paths.
- Pit Bull laws need to be proactive because a first attack is usually severe. Breed specific problems require breed specific solutions.

- No
- Reduced licensing fees for low income pet owners should be restricted to a lower number than the overall pet limits.
- Have neighborhood's that allow cats to roam. My cat meows NON stop to go outside. Vet says my cat has anxiety from wanting outside. RIDICULO
- I'm extremely disappointed to see that our city is even considering bylaws that target a certain breed. These dogs are the sweetest breed.
- Penalties for aggressive dogs. No such thing as bad breed. Every 10 years the "bad breed" changes because people fight train different breed
- There should be more severe punishments for animal abusers and not specific breeds of dogs.
- I would like to see you create a MANDATORY BYLAW that requires the owner to have their animal spay/neuter unless they are a breeder.
- Lower fines and make Force Free (the most modern) pet behavior training mandatory post incident at the owners expense.
- This is ridiculous. The dogs are not born vicious, the stupid owners make them vicious. My pit bull is a protective dog, she's sweet n lovin
- Stop breed discrimination! Pitbulls are some of the kindest dogs out there. All dogs should have to follow the same rules.
- Most breed related issues are due to lack of training and structure from owners. Enforcement on mandatory training would be a better off.
- Enforce leash laws better. I am afraid of dogs and it is very hard to find a somewhere to walk without an off leash dog approaching me.
- A certain breed is no more likely to bite then another. Drop the pitbull [remove]!!
- No discrimination to pit bulls! Focus on EDUCATING OWNERS! Restrict number of dogs a dog walker can bring at one time to off leash parks.
- People should be able to keep up to 6 hens in an appropriate coop and run. There are already avenues for neighbours to complain.
- Allow rate control on animals that are required to take obedience training. A lot of the time owners WANT to take their dog to training
- I am DISGUSTED Calgary is considering BSL. Education and training should be the only solutions we are considering. Pets are family.
- New cat or dog license to require a mandatory 30min-1hr online training session. Renewing or new license of same type has class waived.
- Owners of bully breeds should have to complete recognized animal training program to get licence.
- Calgary is better then this! There is not bad breed, just bad owners. I know meaner wiener dogs than bullies.
- No
- N.A
- Increased enforcement for city parks. People not keeping their dogs on a leash or cleaning up after them. I have witnessed this multiple tim

- Charge owners for crimes committed by their pets.
 - Breed specific legislation has NEVER been shown to reduce dog bites. BSL is not the answer.
 - Usually it's the "victim" that does something to cause a bite. Dogs don't bite for no reason. It's not always the dog and owners fault.
 - Please stop with the BSL legislation. Bully breeds are no more vicious than any other breed. This has been proven time and time again.
 - more relaxed for roaming cats, and truly believe that banning pit bulls is outrageous, outdated and the data is NOT affective.
 - Questionnaire states that pit bulls do not have a high attack rate. Give discounts/waive license fees for dogs with professional training
 - "No separation or discussion of provoked/unprovoked attacks or strangers entering yard.
- Do not penalize breeds, only owners."
 - Increased training for pet owners should be mandatory especially for nuisance or pit bulls. It is the owners that need the training
 - "Why are pigeons kept as pets? Urban chickens are a bad idea. No roosters should be allowed. Mandatory animal
 - Welfare course for owners"
 - No
 - I don't see anything in the proposed bylaws for action against humans who abuse or mistreat animals. Greater fines for neglect and abuse!
 - More enforcement of training for small dogs. Usually bad behaviour that I have seen exhibited the most is from small breeds not large ones.
 - Owners of bully breeds should be required to go through training and testing to ensure the dog is not a danger to society.
 - Please do not consider implementing BSL. Punish the deed, not the breed. Focus on educating owners to be responsible instead.
 - More Enforcement for pet owners who let their dogs off leash in no-off leach parks. Using video evidence to prove this.
 - I think that bully breed specific legislation is a very down stream approach. Mandating dog training for every breed would be more effective
 - Not a fresh idea, but I'd really like to see more bylaw patrol looking for off leash dogs in on leash areas.
 - none
 - We should not change bylaws based on one breed of dog. If bylaws are changed ALL breeds should be included.
 - When a dog attack or bite, not always is the dog fault, what happens when bites are in self defence or when protecting de owner??

- Dogs learn behaviour based on owners. It is not passed down through breeds. Small dog owners should be held to the same standard
- QUIT DOG DISCRIMINATION
- Send this survey to all who have a pet licence. A mandatory eLearning yearly (2yrs) when renewing licence. (onleash/off leash rules etc)
- If the dog injures a human to protect the owner from a potential threat, there shouldn't be a fine
- "pit bulls are not involved in more bite incidents than other breeds", so why then are you even considering BSL? Be better Calgary.
- BSL is absolutely not the way to go. The idea is asinine and has been proven to be so many times. "Victims" are often at fault.
- Nothing at this time
- no
- Every time a breed is restricted, irresponsible owners just replace it with another. Responsible pet ownership should be the focus.
- "Dogs learn behaviour based on owners. It is not passed down through breeds. Small dog owners should be held to the same standard"
- why were responsible pet owners not provided the survey via email? you send a notice to pay annual fees but not for proposed bylaw changes.
- I own 2 pit bull rescues and have never had issues around babies, children, teens or adults. Punish the owner not the breed!
- There is data to prove that Pitbulls are involved in more number of severe dog attacks than any other breed. Don't ban but revise Breed rule
- No BSL! Responsible owners and higher fines for owners of something happens like a attack
- Pit bulls are not the problem, bad owners is the issue. Don't punish the breed for a incompetent owner.
- Urban hens provide food stability and connection to our food systems. They're so important.
- This survey was flawed. BSL questions need to be decoupled from "nuisance" and should be asked about all breeds if you're truly "curious."
- Nuisance does not equal dangerous. Questions on minor things like barking should be decoupled from serious bite history.
- Mandatory spay and neuter, with a well-supported program accessible to all, is the most important thing you can do.
- If people do not have the strength, knowledge, or time to invest in training their pitbulls, get a different breed!
- Adding your BSL questions is a red herring to distract from other important issues: spay and neuter, food security with urban hens, etc.
- We can not allow breed bans, it's not ethical. There are no bad dogs just bad/irresponsible owners.

- Restricting number of pets doesn't work to prevent hoarding. Invest in mental illness support rather than an arbitrary bylaw.
- Restricting breeds does not work. The "bad guys" don't care about bylaws. BSL only hurts good owners and good dogs.
- dogs do what they have been taught it's not their fault if they were trained to do the wrong thing
- Education, not regulation. We know what works, so let's do it.
- Support rescues so they can actually rehabilitate dogs with adequate resources and properly screen potential owners.
- Pet per household section should also involve property size (e.g., apartment vs a house with a backyard)
- Urban hens help manage public health issues like obesity and lack of access to healthy food.
- Urban hens and other livestock would support Calgary's agricultural history and keep the spirit of the Calgary Stampede alive.
- If there is an incident I think that the fine should be paid to the person that was injured, one time per licences updated by pet death
- Crack down on the real issues: gangs, drugs, trafficking, etc. It's not about the dogs. It's the underlying issue and bad guys don't care
- BSL breeds hate. That is NOT my Calgary. Discrimination is never OK.
- There should be a bylaw that if you are not a licensed breeder, it is absolutely, unequivocally mandatory to spay/neuter your cat or dog.
- I don't feel "pit bull" type dogs should be treated differently than any other large breed dog.
- No everything was included
- Ignore BSL. Increase education for pet owners (require behavior classes for all owners before obtaining a license). Minimize license fee.
- My good friend has two pit bulls mix dogs. And they're are nicest kindest laziest dogs I've ever met.
- BSL is a targeted, prejudice and ignorant motion, with as much factual backing as the boogey man. Your time could be much better spent.
- Ani left outdoors w/o adequate shelter, heat /cold, water will be $$$fined. 2nd offend apprehended and Muzzle barking dog in yard or fines
- No other ideas
- Please do not add BSL. This is unhelpful. Why not add more support and education? Do not punish a breed because people are the problem.
- You should be ashamed of even considering breed specific bylaws.
- STOP DISCRIMINATING. I don't care if it's humans or animals. The owners of the pets are responsible for their actions.
- Ban owners who have committed dangerous crimes or involved in violence from owning pets.
- Increase license costs for owners who have multiple tickets, even jail time.
- For people that had a pet that bite or attack people/ animal to have them to go through a training with professional pet trainers!

- Having a pet is a total responsibility of the owner, no one else. If your pet doesn't know how to behave in public then don't take it out.
- Do your research before coming up with guided bias questions. Why are you allowing anyone to submit answers from anywhere.
- Its the Owners Responsibility to make sure their dog is in control. I take my dog everyday to off leash parks , and its always a great.
- Ban "Backyard Breeders" instead. + Bylaw should be clear on how many animal welfare complaints they receive, but ignore until it's too late.
- BSL causes fear and further perpetuates a problem. An aggressive dog is either afraid or trained to be and it is 100% the fault of the owner
- People who have been convicted of animal cruelty should never be allowed to own another animal and a regular check up should be done
- The idea of BSL anywhere makes me sad. I DO NOT support this for my city.
- Banning people who have multiple animal offences from owning pets, Get rid of the bad owners a dog is only bad of its trained to be.
- Would love to see multi-year licence purchase options (i.e. 2 years, 5 years)
- Other dogs are much more aggressive. I have a aggressive Pomeranian that lives around me. Nothing is being done about that. [remove] By-law
- First-time dog owners should NOT be allowed to own Pitbulls and/or other guard dog breeds WITHOUT professional obedience training.
- Breed specific legislation has no place in a modern and civilized first world developed and progressive country, province or locale.
- I do NOT agree with BSL !!! Its bad owners not bad dogs !!
- Residents with children should have the right to refuse their neighbours owning of guard dog breeds unless they have obedience training.
- Na
- breed specific bands are a horrible way to manage aggressive dogs. I have never been bit by a bully breed but by other breeds
- If you plan to pick on pitbull breeds then ALL aggressive breeds need the same legislation. German shepards, rottweillers, Akedo, Dobermans,
- People should be fined for allowing their dogs on other people's lawns while on walks. It's rude and irresponsible.
- We need to not focus on breed specific dogs, aggression in dogs is not breed specific
- Better licensing enforcement needs to happen. This will ensure responsible ownership and accountability.
- Personally I would ban all ownership of outdoor pets. Pet owners are completely insensitive to people who may not like animals.
- Breed bullying at it's finest! Irresponsible owners should be held accountable regardless of the breed.
- How about some fines for humans baiting animals into biting?

- No ideas at present.
- Increase public awareness of how to approach an animal. Permission from the owner should always be sought first and should not be ignored.
- I think that if dogs bark a lot there should be designated times where that dog can be walked like park closes and there's a membership
- There should be a short course on pet ownership. Responsibilities would include training, exercise, cleaning up etc. You owe them a life!

- I would be interested in being part of your tribunal. I am in oil and gas professional in Calgary and a current responsible pet owner. Kathy
- Roaming cats need to be looked at enforced? No one takes the bylaw about cats at loose seriously. Most people "train" their cats to wander
- We need more bylaw officers going into the parks and pathways and giving out tickets to those people that DO NOT follow rules.
- If you dont like dogs, dont go to a dog park and complain that dogs come up to you. Also, more tickets for off leash dogs in on leash areas
- I think that people who continually call to complain about an animal that is not actually in the wrong, should be charged for wasting time.
- educate and enforce cat bylaws. Many owners either dont care about their cats, or dont know they cant wonder. Then cry when they go missing.
- ID for support animals. To separate the real ones from those who bought into the "support animal license" scams online.
- Address the root of a problem. I.e Funding for TNR, subsidized spay/neuter for low income.
- Community gardens. Incentives for eco friendly yards and personal gardens.
- No
- Excessive barking should be followed up for repeat offenders. Likely the animals needs are not being met if it's ongoing
- Make your decision after talking to vets, trainers, and getting facts. Do not make this decision based off of peoples emotions. #nobsl
- There should be no breed based restrictions. Problems are the owners not the breed.
- Punish the deed, not the breed.
- Basic conditioning training. Takes about a 2-3 weeks to help a dog with separation anxiety. For barking you can train them to be quieter.
- Focus on vicious or dangerous dogs, (of any breed). Please don't make a decision to target a whole group of dog types.
- Incentivize food gardens on private and public property. Fencing off more off leash areas would be nice too.

- I sure hope this survey is just to appease the public. But in reality you will make a decision based on facts. Talk to cities that had bsl.
- Treat dogs on their own merits, not as one of a specific breed.
- Animals don't belong in cages. They need room to fly, roam and enjoy life. Ban livestock from the city.
- No bad animals just bad owners. Increase fines for violations e.g. dog not on a lease, not picking up after your dog.
- Work on the stray rabbit and cat issue.
- Focus on owners. Not animals...
- I do not support the bylaw for keeping cats in door, they need to run free! humans are killing more birds than cats do with 5G antennas
- Small off-leash fenced park in EVERY community and a larger area shared by several communities. Social and exercised dogs have less issues!
- Animal Welfare should be an important part of the discussion. Also, more local off-leash areas.
- Small community-monitored off-leash areas. There's so much public space that is under-utilized.
- None
- No to BSL, more education for all also those who don't have a dog or understand the breed,
- A mandatory course for owners on dog behaviour and dog ownership for owners of bully breeds and nuisance dogs.
- none
- Creating bylaws against a specific breed is unfair. All dogs have the potential to be dangerous. Educate not penalize
- The City could make money from an indoor (winter) dog park. Charge a fee. More by law officers in dog parks for feces removal compliance
- N/a
- No more off leash areas where homes back on to them. In our case, there is lots of room, but dogs/ owners come within inches of our fence.
- Cats should have to follow the same rules as any other animal. For natures sake and their own safety.
- Singling out Pit Bulls is wrong. To have breed specific laws is wrong and basically animal racism. Focus on bite prevention and teaching.
- More affordable training. Every owner wants to have their pet professionally trained, but many attempt to do it themselves because it is $$$
- Just as different races of people are not bad or good, you cannot apply good or bad to dog breeds. All lives matter.
- Require all dogs to complete basic training, by a trainer who is accredited through an independent body and uses modern scientific methods
- All dogs (regardless of breed) should undergo an in-home basic obedience test at 1 year of age monitored by Bylaw officers.

- No to breed specific legislation, more education and more enforcement in dog parks. Never seen one bylaw officer enforcing rules in a park.
- Pet wellness program: monthly fee includes spay or neuter, vaccines, annual exam, dewormer, etc. Education opportunities and better health.
- More education of youth, new citizens, etc. on interacting with animals. Most bites are because of inappropriate human behaviour.
- PET CATS ROAMING IN PEOPLES YARDS
- Shut down backyard breeders. Make licenses for unaltered pets substantially more costly (like $500 more/year than spayed/neutered pets).
- Pit bulls are a misunderstood breed and should not be specifically targeted against.
- Incentivize catios as alternatives to free-roaming cats. Education, no hoops from bylaw to build, demonstration sites, etc.
- Bylaw officers should not show bias. I had to hand over a found chow to officer who said "the only good chow is a dead chow." Disgusting.
- It's naive to think that Pitbulls are an aggressive breed of animals. Happy the City have some common sense in suggesting controlling them
- Quit discriminating against specific breeds. Punish the owners, not the dogs. DOG'S AREN'T BORN BAD. Shame on you for this ridiculousness!
- Strongly penalize owners not dogs. I've seen more vicious small breeds than pitties, any trained, socialized animal can be great!
- BSL is a good thing. <https://www.google.ca/amp/s/time.com/2891180/kfc-and-the-pit-bull-attack-of-a-little-girl/%3famp=true>
- Incentivize food forests and urban agriculture. Improve food security and access to healthy food.
- More emphasis needs to be placed on owners and their behaviours first. An animals behaviour is directly related to that of their owners.
- Dogwalkers should not be allowed to walk any more than 4 dogs at a time
- I am concerned about Pit Bull type dogs. Bites from Pit Bulls can be so much more severe than bites from other breeds.
- City says they're curious about pit bulls but they have no data to show there's an issue. So ask about EVERY breed or don't ask at all.
- Subsidize the cost of spay and neuter for everyone- make it free so it actually gets done. It will fix 99% of Calgary's pet problems.
- Incentivize good behaviour, not just penalize bad. What about some kind of decreasing license fee for every year you have no complaints?
- Ensure pet owners have a right to prove innocence. Especially barking I see dogs falsely accused often because it's hard to tell direction.
- Follow farm guidelines when determining appropriate, housing for small livestock. Liscence each household wishing to raise small livestock.
- I support lifetime licensing options.

- Animal limits ignore differences in property size, physical, psychological, and economic ability to care for animals, etc. Arbitrary.
- No to BSL, animals are the product of our teachings no different than our children are.
- Stop SEGREGATION with dogs and people! Every dog is different. Don't target the bully breed when there are a lot of well trained pit bulls!
- Voluntary bandana idea is good.
- Empower rescues to sell licences but make it easy for them. They are VOLUNTEERS, not paid city staff. Better compliance as part of adoption
- Responsible animal ownership should be praised and encouraged.. reducing fees for owners that have respect laws and are responsible .
- I think there should be a responsible owners course for large dogs. They should not be outlawed and the city should not discriminate breeds.
- To enhance good behavior people pets have to be educated. If an issue occurs fee could be waived for the new pet course or visit a behaviorist
- no
- No one needs 6 pets in one household within the city - it should be lower.
- No
- I disagree with the statements relating to specific dog breeds. Since any breed can be aggressive, the bylaws should focus on nuisance dogs.
- I trust pitbulls more than I trust adults. pitbulls are kind dogs who love everyone. educate the public rather than create fear.
- Stop pushing for breed bans it does not work. Make owners accountable not a breed or breeds. Many people do know what these breeds are
- Do not require a Fanciers license. Membership is already payable through governing body. Have proof of CKC membership only
- No
- All pit bulls should be destroyed
- I believe that anyone that has a dog and applying for a license, should have proof that they have attended obedience classes and passed
- "Singling out Pit Bull breeds is ridiculous. Unfounded fear mongering is irresponsible governing!
- Bad Pitty = BAD OWNER! Every time!"
- There should be an increase in fines for cats at large during the months of June to August to address the increasing loss of song birds.
- I sure wish people would stop letting their cats out to hunt the birds in my yard and use my garden to do their business.
- Public access to obedience training for all dogs. Small dog bites/attacks treated with similar weight to larger dogs. Ending BSL
- My service dog is an American Staffordshire terrier. The proposed BSL would outlaw my lifeline. Training beats BSL ignorance always

- none
- The City should really work to emphasize that we citizens must accept personal responsibility, teach kids about dogs and train dogs!!
- The #1 thing is cracking down on off-leash dogs outside dog parks. And use the many qualified trainers in town to consult on policy.
- No
- No
- Pigeons constantly destroy property and it is very hard in court to prove the pet owners pigeons are the ones that caused the damage. 0 = :D
- BSL has been statistically shown to not be effective (re bites) in many places. Please move forward using facts, not fear mongering.
- Bullies breeds are being exploited here! To name them is being discriminatory!! A dangerous dog comes in all sizes and mixes!
- "Dogs bark to protect property and their owners
- Sometimes if there is a nasty neighbour the dog will let the world know."
- I think all pet owners should have to prove they have space/time/money to take care of any pet!
- I have a dog whose breed is known to be temperamental and she won't even lick me. It's about the training. Punish bad owners not the dog.
- How many animals in a home, consider an area restriction, six big dogs need more room., one dog can make more noise than six !
- A dog is gonna bark that's a dog you need to be specific on "excessive" noise
- Laws based on breeds is a waste of time and resources. Laws should focus on holding owners accountable for their pets.
- I think there should be a limit of dogs in Calgary city. To fix the noise issue and the dogs turning issue.
- It is all about the owners, not the animals
- I think that people who are professional dog walkers should have limits on the number of dogs they have on a walk and have insurance.
- Foster animal off leash area
- It should be a mandatory requirement for people to participate in/complete/pass dog training/obedience classes when they get a dog.
- Dog socialization classes should be mandatory when getting a dog
- "BSL has been statistically shown to not be effective (re bites) in many places. Please move forward using facts, not fear mongering. "
- the dog should wear a bark collar.
- Pit bulls are not the problem. Irresponsible pet owners are the problem! Don't blame the breed!
- Why do people even have pigeons? Seems very unsanitary.
- Get rid of backyard breeders. This industry should be regulated and require proper education about puppy development/needs included. socialization

- Exactly where in "phase 1" engagement was pitbull bsl brought up? Council is just creating stress on those who have "pitbull" type dogs.
- A pit-bulls bite is not the strongest @ 235psi. Quite a few breeds are stronger. Husky @ 320psi. Rottweiler 328psi. English Mastiff 556psi.
- How about dog bite statistics get posted ? I cross the street to get away from Yorkies as I've been bitten by them.
- Exactly what [remove] decided to bring up bsl ? Every other province is looking at reversing bsl as it hasn't made a difference. Why consider it?
- [removed] NO TO BSL!!!
- I don't believe pit bulls should be targeted. I believe bad pet owners should be targeted.
- Animals deserve better care and cruelty bylaws. Focus on that. Humans [remove]
- Potential pet owners should have to prove that they can properly afford, care for, and manage their pet, regardless of size or breed.
- In my opinion, the bird's/pigeons need to be vaccinated, so there r droppings aren't full of bacteria.
- All dog owners must have to take a dog behavior course before getting an animal and their dog pass a test similar to the CKC Good Neighbor.
- We need more animal bylaw officers. Been in city 25 years and yet to see one. Hire more or add this duty to other city staff.
- N-a
- STOP dog racism, a dog is a dog, just like all humans are human and all cats are cats. "Bully" breeds dogs are just dogs. This is stupid.
- No
- In my opinion, it is not fair or necessary to discriminate against "pitbulls" and pass these horrible bylaws.
- Please ensure that higher fines don't lead to people harming animals in order to avoid fines. For example, if noise violations.
- Pit bulls should be targeted, bad pet owners should be targeted.
- Fines for pet owners allowing pets to urinate in public parks where children play...
- I would like to see the 2 meter bylaw enforced and extendable leashes banned.
- Putting severe restrictions in place for "bully" breeds is discrimination. I have more issues with other breeds at parks than with pitbulls.
- Any change should not require an increase in the cost to the taxpayer.
- Leave the bully breeds alone. Start making bylaws for bad humans rather than the dog. Bad people make bad dogs. Get your heads straight!
- More garbage cans along sidewalks could help with feces cleaning.
- There needs to be higher fines for off leash dogs in on leash areas. Your dog may be friendly, mine is reactive, which is why he's on leash.

- The dog bite fines should be clarified to indicate unprovoked. If someone breaks into a house or attacks the owner and the dog bites, no fine
- I think that there should be education for children and their parents to train kids not to approach or touch ANY animal that they don't own!
- I don't understand why the breed of dog is an issue. Huskies are known to bite more than Pit Bulls. Responsible ownership is key.
- False accusations against a Pitbull should result in a fine.
- Never seen an aggressive pitbull in Calgary, proper training of the animal is the difference between the two!
- N/A
- None
- BSL is so far off base as a means to increase public safety. Humans ought to obtain a license in order to own a pet.
- The targeting of pit bulls is not fair. Not all pit bulls are vicious or nuisance dogs and not all vicious or nuisance dogs are pit bulls.
- update the old bylaws as the world changes.
- All dog owners should be required to go through obedience training. If you can't afford the training you can't afford the dog!
- No
- The dog early warning system no good. Visual labels will only increase human fear, which reinforces anxious behavior. Not a resolution.
- There must be a bylaw for clean up of feces on private property for health reasons and door control.
- A bylaw that says you can't feed another persons pet. I have problem with neighbours giving my dog junk though I've asked them to stop.
- Breed specific legislation is not effective, don't move backwards Calgary, we are better than that. ”
- Singling out breeds should not happen
- Shame on you Calgary for even considering BSL. ”
- Shorter leashes for known aggressive dogs. Extendable leashes banned, use of same to carry a fine.
- Responsible pet owners are a must!!! Quit discriminating against pitbulls" #justiceforbullies #bslfreeyc #dontbullymybreed ”
- What a shame for Calgary. There were once the leader for the responsible dog acts.

- Do not implement any Breed Specific Laws. Owner and animal training should be required.

- NO
- I am not in favour of anyone complaining about barking at a door to be let inside the house if it doesn't continue for more than 1-2 minutes
- Address animal issues on a case by case basis, not breed specific basis. It is frequently the training and handling that leads to issues.
- Stop targeting specific breeds. It's either all dogs or none. Targeting specific breeds cause misinformation and prejudice and harm
- Spraying off leash areas With herbicide should be abolished
- BSL [personal information removed] ? Is this your vision of social equality in calgary
- No dog nor animal is bad. It all depends on the owner with the way it's being treated and/or raised.
- Focus on supporting good training and animal ownership. What about licensing discounts after completing basic obedience? Owner education!
- Blanket bans are ineffective and unfair. Poorly disciplined dogs of all species exist. Legislation should put onus on owners and not breeds
- Breed-specific bans and legislation is not based on scientific evidence and creates an unnecessary stigma towards certain breeds
- I am confused about the fines area. I care less about the fines than I do about compensation for injuries and deaths. What about that?

- We need to encourage people to be better owners not ban breeds
- We're thinking of allowing people to keep pigeons AND talking about BSL? What is wrong with this city and who is on this panel?
- Not sure
- Bad pet owners. Neighbors have 3 German shepherds and are well worst trained than my pitbull. Not the breed it's the owner. Smh city of yyc
- I agree with other criticism that pit bulls should not be explicitly targeted, how the dog is raised and not the breed itself is the issue.
- I am in full support of backyard chickens. Removing the ban would be a win for building a more sustainable, local food system!!
- Put a municipal tax on pet food and pet accessories in order to pay for the off-leash areas and the related municipal by-law services .
- Put away with ANY breed specific legislation and actually follow up on any and all! complaints and reports. Even on dog on dog attacks.
- .
- I am against targeting dog breeds like pit bulls. It's the owners that need training. That is a very gentle breed when treated with love.
- Pit bulls should NOT be targeted.
- Hold everyone accountable for an aggressive dog. Whether it's a 5 pound dog or 150 pound dog. Let's stop being breed specific.
- Pet fines not going to deter people from having a 'violent' animal. Proper training and rehabilitation for violent 'pit bulls' from professi
- stop blaming the dog. it is the owner that is not being responsible. everyone that gets a dog should have to go for dog training.
- the [personal information remove] needs to learn what pet ownership involves before he starts with bsl. dogs are like children, they do what they are taught.
- How about you prevent people from owning certain breeds because its the owner giving a bad reputation. Rotts and GS bite harder than pitties
- Composting bags required and bins for composting in off leash areas
- Enforce leash laws. Too many people think any park or school yard is an appropriate place to run their dog offleash
- Make pet owners review and sign bylaws when renewing their license. No one should be able to say they didn't know the rules. Enforce rules!!
- I'm not sure at this point
- Not at the moment
- Hire more bylaw officers and ensure working hours match when people walk their dogs. Often leash infractions occur on holidays or early/late
- It is really great having all theses bylaws and penalties, but make sure that there is proper enforcement, which seems to be lacking now

- I totally disagree with breed specific regulations. Temperament varies from dog to dog, and from owner to owner, and less by breed.
- Put no dog signs back at playgrounds and schools. People need a reminder...
- Pitbull are not more dangerous then any other breed and shouldn't not be discriminated against.
- I would like dog training to be a requirement for noise complaints. Slapping an owner with a fine won't stop the dog from barking.
- BSL is a proven failure the world over - Toronto 15 yrs later has more bites with greater severity yet pit type dogs R all but GONE
- Responsible pet owners are a must!!! Quit discriminating against pitbulls!! #justiceforbullies #bslfreeeyc #dontbullymybreed [DUPLICATE]
- I don't own a dog, but know that BSL is not the way to go. Deal with dog bites, dog attacks, nuisance behaviour on a case by case basis.
- 6 cats or 6 dogs is too many in the city. And calling out one "breed" (pitbulls ect) is uncalled for!
- BSL does not work. The focus needs to be on education, and responsible ownership of all breeds, not banning pit bulls.
- Please judge dogs based on behaviour not breed. Pit bulls are really wonderful dogs.
- Nothing
- BSL won't work. I think the city needs to look at specific owners and bite history's before breed. I bet small dogs bite far more frequently
- Nothing else right now
- Its not the breed its the human. It should be conveyed to provide dogs with sufficient food, exercise, discipline and affection not neglect.
- All in the survey
- Targeting pit bulls is a waste of time. They are no more dangerous than a large breed and definitely less aggressive than a lot of small ones
- Increase signage and enforcement of dogs off leash in green space areas....ex Strathcona Park Community.
- Lets pick on small dogs!! Leave bully breeds alone!!
- Instead of breed specific laws, the city ought to put actual effort into following up and punishing violent dog owners.
- I do NOT like dog waste bags filling all public trash cans AND unknown dogs approaching me in parks when they are supposed to be on leashes.
- I strongly support passing a bylaw to approve backyard chickens, which I believe will benefit families and communities.
- No
- Punish the people, not the bred. It's their actions and training or lack thereof that caused a bite.
- Ensure a training program is done to handle Large dogs before having one.
- Absolutely NO to requiring muzzles for pit bulls in dog parks/public areas. Ridiculous, I can't believe that was an option on the survey

- Victims of dog attacks should keep the money that the irresponsible dog owner gets fined
 - Please just do not ban pit bulls, yes they are strong, yes they seem more intimidating than other dog breeds but it is not their fault.
 - I totally disagree with muzzles and special conditions for pit bulls!!
 - Fear mongering specific breeds does nothing but create more incidents. Irresponsible owners and bystanders are the culprit.
 - Not at this time
 - Should there be a time limit /day, dog owners are allowed to leave their dogs alone in the back yard and to let them bark /hour
 - I agree with these new bylaws.
 - Pet insurance to be cheaper and maybe have the city provide those services instead of vets.
 - Good idea BSL. You have the support of every sensible citizen in this city. Wise decision :) Thanks for helping keep people safe Calgary!
 - A dog and their behavior is specifically linked to the owner and how he/she raises/trains the dog. It is a complete farce to think otherwise
 - No BSL- and if you surrender a dog there should be at least a 12-month minimum wait before licensing a new pet
 - You are asking people who have only the hysteria of the uninformed press to fill out a survey without REAL facts and stats! Irresponsible!
 - Please can pit bulls and similar breeds. We all know a lot of people own them for the wrong reasons or to prove a point.
 - Muzzle small dogs. They are the biters. Leave the lovely pitties alone. Barbaric rules. Change the government.
 - I would like a plan to reduce conflict between pet owners and cyclists on multi-use pathways.
 - There should never be a BSL. If issues arise, the human should be trained with the dog.

- [Personal Information Removed] Calgary Model reduced bites 5 fold - It's ranked #1 in North America because he knew it's the owner not the breed
- Harsher punishments for animal abuse and more investigations
- A special licensing program should be adopted to educate ppl prior to owning high needs breeds and used as a vetting process.
- There should be NO BSL in Calgary or any city.
- Ban exotic pets- no usually wild animals should be pets such as snakes, tigers, bears
- Chickens are an obvious go-ahead. The context of having permission from adjacent neighbours is perfect. Roosters are the noise concern.
- A multi-year pet license would be so much easier.
- A bylaw should be passed that prohibits pet owners from letting their pets go own private property. I look after my front lawn and bushes
- No comment.
- Having chickens helps me and others be more sustainable...
- The ideas to muzzle pit bulls in open spaces, limiting one per household or not allow them in dog parks is a dangerous and discriminatory
- BSL is ridiculous and shows the City's ignorance. Require mandatory training for dogs involved in infractions not just fines.
- Leave our pit bulls alone!!! They are the sweetest things! I only grew up with pit bulls and none of them ever bite a living soul!
- No
- I also am disappointed in the City of Calgary's Pit specific questions in their survey. It is not the breed it is the owner.
- Lower pet licensing costs with proof of approved obedience training.
- ""There should be NO BSL in Calgary or any city. ”
- BSL is backwards."
- All Bylaw enforcement personnel should have a certification in animal behaviour and/or training to better understand special situations.
- No but you should use exclusive terms not single out any dogs including bully breed!
- Don't introduce breed specific legislation.
- Pets who must be removed should be rehabilitated and given to new qualified owners and not euthanized
- You need numbers of incidents and not fear. Like if you have a virus that 97% of the population won't get. Should you force citizens masks.
- BREED SPECIFIC BANNING OR BYLAWS ARE RIDICULOUS, USELESS AND HONESTLY, KIND OF RACIST. a bad dog is caused by a bad owner. No bad dogs.

- Legislation that is worded against specific breeds is detrimental to that breed and understanding K9 behavior. No bad dogs only bad owners!
- I think more emphasis needs to be placed on dogs ending up with good owners. Crappy humans are the problem, not bad dogs.
- Not an idea, but wanted to add that FEEDING SQUIRRELS should be outlawed/fineable. Thx
- This is insanely [remove] for a city to try and do this. I would almost pet a "black headed dog" before any other[removed]
- pit bull owners should be required to display their dogs behavior prior to licencing, this could show if the dog has been well trained
- Ban Huskies and Rottweillers which have a higher bite rate in Canada and any breed with a lower temperament test rating than "pittbull breed"
- BSL is prejudicial and has no fact based support. Blame the owner and a lack of training rather than a dog that only knows what it's taught
- Reduce the cost of retrieving a lost or runaway pet. Sometimes bad circumstance happens and I'd hate to see someone separated from their pet
- As pets become more common, there should be free pet training seminars/webinars for how to engage with pets. Train Non- owners.
- Feeding ANY wild animal "people food" should be fully banned. It promotes person-animal interactions and is nutritionally bad for the animal
- There are no bad dogs, only bad owners. Bad owners leads to prejudice against a specific dog breed. Learning K9 behavior is key.
- Increase fines for dog breeds that actually do bite more (not bully breeds just bc of the stigma). chihuahuas and cocker spaniels bite more!
- Leave the poor staphs Alone .. So sad
- Responsible pet owners are a must!! Quit discriminating against pitbulls! #justiceforbullies #bslfreeyyc
- I'd really be interested in seeing protection of songbirds become more of a priority ; ie, cats at large as a threat, covering windows, etc
- Treat all dog breeds equally. Any dog (regardless of breed) is deemed a nuisance special limitations (muzzle, park access) should be imposed
- many people have cats, dogs reptiles and birds in house. They should also be limited as they often release reptiles as they get too big .
- No BSL CALGARY! Listen to your sensible people!!!! End of story!
- Have responsible chicken owners use the 311 app to show the location of their chicken coops in Calgary, so that bylaw knows where they are.
- PUNISH THE OWNER, NOT THE "breed"
- Re the bandana idea. 1) Children should not be in dog parks 2) a dog that doesn't classify as green should not be in a dog park.
- Take your dog into the house Pets need human contact and socialization
- BSL is not the answer, let's move towards education not breed bashing

- Was rushed by an aggressive dog off leash while his owner watched, and this morning I was woken up by the neighbours barking dogs. Why?
- Nope
- Enforce responsible ownership, not breed specific licensing. Aggressive dogs should NEVER be allowed in off-parks.
- "Bandana early warning system:
- There should be a resource offered to parents to educate their children specifically pertaining to dogs."
- I have no more comments.
- I do not agree with BSL in any community. Breed neutrality should be the standard. There are only bad owners not bad breeds.
- I am annoyed at owner who cannot control their barking, jumping dogs when I am out walking; allowing them to dedicate any where!
- I'm so happy about the proposed bsl, it's about time Calgary! Proud of my city.
- If you support bylaws against a specific kind of dog (ie; "boxhead" dogs), odds are you'd support the same discrimination against people.
- Responsible pet ownership is the key. Owners should be held accountable for their pets behaviour regardless of breed.
- Uncut dogs should only be allowed for licenced breeders. Uncut dogs should not be allowed in off leash areas.
- YES! BSL 100% - long overdue!
- I love the new bylaw. There's absolutely no logical reason to own a pit bulled dog. You either want violence or need therapy. Or prob both.
- Breed discrimination is not the answer, enforcing responsible ownership is. Heavily fine repeat offenders and develop a clear path to report.
- Pit bulls are not the problem, owners are. Make obedience mandatory, or going through a licensing process you would for a gun.
- Do not blindly ban pitbulls and large dogs based on the breed. Focus on the training and ownership practices that lead to violent dogs
- There is a lot of talk about breed specific laws ... they don't work and I don't want to see such short sighted laws put in place
- owners of pit bulls should be required to undergo obedience training because of the trendiness of with pple projecting a 'tough/edgy' image
- The ideas are good and if implemented should help to reduce the number of incidents. Stop singling out pit bulls, instead of owners.
- No
- Breed specific bans do not work and it would be atrocious for Calgary to implement these.
- Calgary should ban the sale of animals in pet stores, and only allow adoptions of rescued animals

- This is not a breed issue, please do not single out a type of dog. This is a pet owner issue. Let's focus on where the real issues stem from
- No
- n/a
- Placing a breed ban or anything similar is basically racism and not necessary in this day and age.
- Discrimination against a breed is not the answer. Education, not breed fear mongering
- Any new bylaw should apply to all dogs and not specific breeds. Basic obedience and recall training should be reviewed when registering/renewa
- BSL doesnt work!!!!
- Breed discrimination is pointless and unfair. Small dogs bite as well! Pet owners, of any breed, need to be held accountable.
- No thank you
- If a dog bite results from being antagonized/hurt (child/adult) OR due to a conceived threat to dog/owner, there should be no fine.
- evaluations of people to own pets, - this will stop many of the nuisance issues we are facing as most of these cases come from clueless ownr
- Implement for the owner and the pet to be put mandated into training program by a local provider that has been approved if bylaws are broken
- I enthusiastically support education about animal behavior and subsidized positive reinforcement /force-free dog training. BSL is pointless.
- V
- If bylaws about dogs get put in place, this should apply to all dogs.
- Consider putting more onus on owners (not breeds) - ownership bans for people that have demonstrated they cannot care for/control their dog.
- With any of these fines and proposals, you need to see why the dog attacked. Don't blame an animal if people are teasing, throwing rocks etc
- Nothing
- A differential licensing cost, benefiting those who adopt rescues vs. purchase breeds, and/or complete animal training/obedience programs
- Pit bulls are the #1 leading cause of pit bull attacks everywhere. Yes, DO the research. The #s ARE there. The attacks severe. And owner N/A
- For dogs considered "risky", the owner should pay for and prove obedience training for the owner and dog before they are allowed to have one
- Make dog obedience classes a part of the seasonal recreation guide, to make them more accessible!
- Educating dog owners re: off-leash parks (aka, they are parks/public spaces where dogs are allowed to be off-leash, not for dogs only).
- Keep legislation breed-neutral, but please increase owner accountability for their dog's behavior.

- There should be a larger fine for letting "wild” cat breeds like bengal and savannah cats roam because they are more likely to hunt wildlife
- You need to remember that dogs are only as good as their owner. Owners need to be held accountable for properly training and raising the dog
- Please do not ban dogs because of their breed. Please increase fines for irresponsible owners.
- Muzzling a dog because it might cause harm is equivalent to arresting someone before they commit a crime.
- BSL doesn't work and unfairly targets dogs based on how they look. Its no different than how black people are being treated. Its racism.
- It's unfair to target these dogs ! It's the owner and not the dog! You are putting everyone of these dogs in danger by doing this!SHAMEONYOU
- n/a
- More enforcement of barking dogs. City intervention that doesn't take months and months to deal with.
- "Ban sale of animals in pet stores - allow only adoptions of rescued animals
- Vet schools to offer medical assistance to low $ pet owners"
- The idea that "pitbulls" and bully breeds are singled out in this survey is a huge mistake
- Dogs can be triggered by cyclists. Could signs be posted where cyclists and dogs share the area? Nose Hill, for example.
- Change the description of nuisance dog. I dog that barks a lot vs aggressive behaviour. A dog that barks a lot shouldn't need a muzzle on
- Please do not increase fines for these bully breeds. Rich people are not necessarily more responsible pet owners
- Create an all new set of non-leading questions. expand your questions to what positive programs people would like to see.
- Specifically naming "block head dogs" or pitbulls as nuisance animals is discriminatory against responsible owners and animals.
- If all animals are required to go through training, that could be subsidized. I feel like it shows the willingness to make an effort.
- pet owners that unethically treat their pets and do not have the brain capacity to care for their pets should be fined a large sum of money
- MAKE THE PET OWNER MORE RESPONSIBLE TO PROPERLY TRAIN THERE ANIMALS IT IS NOT THE BREED THAT IS THE PROBLEM IT IS THE PEOPLE !!
- lower licensing fees for dogs with good neighbour certification or successful behavior testing by ckc/vet. More small dog only play areas
- I do not.
- adding to the calgary impound pet site any animals that may have been hit by cars and picked up by the city for dead missing pets for people
- There should be protections for owners and pets against the complaints put forward by people who have ill intentions or ulterior motives.

- Every serious attack on a child is from a Pitbull. Dangerous breed.
- There should be nothing against Pitbulls, it's the people who raise them that make them aggressive not the dog.
- The label of "nuisance" dog should be clearly defined (ie. not using "etc" in the definition) so people know what they are asked to evaluate
- the words calgarian and responsible don't even fit together so i don't even know how effective any changes are going to be
- No breed specific target on pets! I've seen many loving pitties at the off leash park and have seen nasty small breed dogs be very aggressive
- The city should adopt a color code system for dogs, "friendly", "don't pet me", "in training". This type of idea.
- Fee reductions or other bonuses for those who have trained their dogs - obedience, CGC, etc. and have certification to prove it.
- No breed specific bylaws. A golden retriever can be just as dangerous as a pitbull. Proper training and conditions apply to all breeds.
- Focus on the owners not the pets
- No
- Use of 'training' leashes and unattended leashes should be prohibited at off leash parks. They are a hazard and recall s/b learned at home.
- I do not
- Dog owners that cannot walk there dogs should not be able to adopt or purchase. Dogs left in backyards day in and day out is cruelty.
- Re: muzzles. Types that don't allow the dog to pant properly should be illegal.
- no other ideas
- I am strongly against singling out any type of dog. Responsible ownership is key!!!
- Put the no dog signs back in the playgrounds as some people don't seem to remember the rules without signage.
- Please refrain from implementing a breed specific law.
- We should make separate off leash areas.Small dogs in one area and large dogs in another.Might save some of the little guys lives.
- No opinion
- DON'T LABEL SPECIFIC BREEDS as dangerous! Many breeds can bite and until a dog has, they shouldn't have different rules put on them.
- I would like to see a nominal fee for off leash access with increased education and enforcement of polite dog behaviour.
- None
- Universal for all dog breed. Not just pitbulls
- Breed Specific Legislation does nothing to reduce the number of severity of incidents. Punish the owners, not the animals.

- Focus on animals by species not breed. Breed profiling is essentially racial profiling. There is no such thing as a bad dog, but a bad owner
- Breed specific legislation is not appropriate. Many dogs are capable of inflicting significant harm regardless of breed.
- Magpie reduction. Reduce the number of magpies in problem areas or provide households with access to tools to do so on their own.
- "Pigeons carry parasites. I don't want in my yard. Address pigeons with no owners.
- Deal with bad dogs/owners not specific breeds."
- Breed specific legislation is utterly ridiculous. It is the owners that should be responsible for their pet
- BSL has been proven in many cases studies to be ineffective. I do not support Calgary incorporating this in any facet
- I strongly support responsible Urban Hen ownership. Used to have three hens which was a huge source of food (eggs) for my family.
- Should not be profiled by breed
- Owners should be responsible for the actions of their dogs. Of their dog does something wrong the owner should be punished, not the animal.
- Remove the ability to ban certain breeds. If you're not responsible enough to train your animals properly, you shouldn't have a pet.
- none
- Targeting a specific type of dog breed isn't the right way to go about this. I've met many nice pit bulls and discrimination is wrong.
- You should not be considering any by-law that is breed specific.
- Fine people who don't respect a dog's space and get themselves or their kids or pets bit. Especially if asked to stay away.
- None
- Breed Specific Legislation is an incredibly prejudiced way of looking at animals. I'm extremely disappointed in Calgary for considering it.
- None
- Love the work done here by both the city and all the volunteers who have taken place. I wish I had known earlier but I deeply appreciate it.
- Allow for reasonable explanation of pet owner before fining or charging them with something.
- We need less municipal government intervention and lower fees and fines except for extreme circumstances like serious bites causing injuries
- Allow pet-sitters to operate without a license if the number of temporary animals is under the maximum number of animals allowed at a home.
- What backwoods [remove] decided to bring up bsl? How about they do something more productive with my ludicrous tax $? NO TO BSL!
- I feel that pet owners should be held more responsible for there animals, if you have a bad owner you have a bad pet

- Owning a dog is a big responsibility. People should have to apply for a licence to own a dog. Prove you can handle and care for it properly
- SAY NO TO BREED DISCRIMINATION. Owners are responsible for knowing their pet and its boundaries to ensure safety of people and pets!
- I am only concerned because our gentle pure breed lab gets confused for a pit cross regularly because she is red in color.
- Cats should not be free to roam, especially when they are bird hunters. We have cats in our neighborhood using flowerbeds as a litterbox.
- Bring back the song birds and stop cats from getting eaten.(they dont get lost) Enforce the cat bylaws.
- Discrimination against pitbulls makes no sense and is completely unfair. Bylaws against them can't be allowed to be put through.
- Looking at data from other municipalities Breed Specific by-laws cost almost $1 million a year to run. Will our taxes go up?!
- I think people who walk their dogs off-leash in on-leash areas should get fines.
- Please do not discriminate against pitbulls. They are beautiful, loyal and kind breeds. The issues is poor ownership and responsibility.
- No
- No
- My Lab has had nothing but positive Pitty encounters, while sustaining bites from Doodles and Shepherds. Breed is irrelevant. Nurture & nature
- Don't ban pits. I went through it in Ontario. They killed more than 2,000 dogs that didn't even have issues. You can't pick apart one breed
- Cats should not be allowed to roam free, regardless if they're licensed. They can cause damage to property and can attack other animals
- From 1986 to 2006 Calgary reduced bite incidents 5 fold with current by-laws. Get back to doing what already works. No to adding BSL.
- "Note: pit bulls are not involved in more bite incidents than other dog breeds";... you said it yourselves. DONT DISCRIMINATE
- BSL is wrong. PERIOD. ANY dog can be vicious if not trained or trained properly. Punish the owner, NOT the dog.
- Breed specific legislation is ineffective, unfair, and completely wrong.
- BSL is an ineffective, unfair, totally subjective, and unreliable way to determine the "danger" potential of a dog. Dog racism basically
- Poor pet ownership is a people problem. Nuisance animals aren't breed specific, and animal rehabilitation/relocation supersedes euthanasia.
- Dog training and obedience training should be made more available. So that way people in low income situations can afford the training
- Animals are awesome, keep them out of bad homes.

- Discriminating dogs by breed or 'look' is totally wrong. Fine according to the incident, not the type of dog. Please do better, City of YYC!
- Discriminating dogs by breed or 'look' is totally wrong. Fine according to the incident, not the type of dog. Please do better, City of YYC! [DUPLICATE]
- I'm a firm believer that you need to focus on the household the animal is in before passing judgment onto the animal themselves.
- I would like to see the City actually enforce the rules, which is definitely not done now.
- Making Training classes available at a lower cost and in more locations may aid in problem dogs. Breed Specific Discrimination is NOT OK!
- "The Calgary Model is the number one Animal Control model in North America 5 fold decrease in bites
- BSL has been proven a failure"
- Neighbour's dog alone inside all day, barked constantly. SPCA said dog is not in distress! If it barks all day it is in distress! SPCA wrong
- All ok
- Enforce anti tethering law 25% of all fatalities are from unsocialized tethered canines
- "86% of all fatalities R from unfixed dogs and 92% are male of all breeds
- Push harder to spay and neuter make it easier and cheaper
- NO BSL"
- "25% of all fatalities are from dogs at large - Stiffer fines and force responsible guardianship
- NOT BSL"
- "25% of all fatalities are from unsupervised children left with canines -
- strengthen the lessons to children and adults
- NOT BSL"
- RESCUES should be helped not hindered by Bylaws and charges for tags and capacity
- Discriminating dogs by breed or 'look' is totally wrong. Fine according to the incident, not the type of dog breed
- Spaying and neutering should be mandatory to help control the pet population. Exception would be animals used for breeding.
- I have no problem with spayed cats wandering neighborhoods. It was a real hardship on our outdoor cat when we moved to Calgary.
- Rather than BSL, provide proper training courses for pets/owners as well as spay/neuter programs at a more affordable level.
- Mauling, biting, or killings by dogs should result in the owner getting an equivalent criminal charge and having to defend it in court.
- BSL is not the answer All breeds can be a nuisance . Proper training and spay/ neutering programs should be implemented for pet owners
- Breed specific laws would not just harm responsible owners, but harm dogs that haven't done anything wrong. Don't place BSL in as a law

- No other ideas
- No
- BSL is not the answer. Owners are bad for training, or not training, dogs. Training should be considered and the owners punished not the dog
- People need to lay off Pitbulls,,, Rottweilers and Boxers have the same strengths. PEOPLE and OWNERS need more training.
- BSL is unacceptable. If you want to crack down on vicious and nuisance animals and bad pet owners sure. But don't be breediest!! Unacceptabl
- I do not agree that pit bulls should be singled out as the most dangerous breeds.
- Barking lot for dogs and other animals to run and play is fine as long as the animal owner can handle their pet of leash.
- i believe that the [personal information removed] has to be held accountable for their actions in kidnapping animals from citizens and holding them.
- BSL is wrong. Most of the time it's due to poor ownership that there are issues. Not the breed!
- Instead of punishing one breed of dog purely on the basis of fear mongering and stereotyping, look at more education for owners.
- NO BSL and people need to respect a dogs' space, too. No charges for bites if person was trespassing or threatening the owner.
- pit bulls are not the problem, nor is any specific breed. All dog owners should be held accountable
- No
- It's ridiculous to discriminate against pitbulls when we know they aren't more dangerous than other dogs
- breed specific legislation has not proven to stop vicious and nuisance animals --- manage and fine bad pet owners!
- There is no information on your website on where someone can have their animal registered as an Emotional Support animal. please upload this
- The issue is with humans not a specific breed. Failing to meet the needs of a domestic pet, including a safe environment and training.
- I would like a questionnaire added to the pet license process so that owners demonstrate that they have read and understand city's bylaws.
- An urban environment is not the place for farm animals. Please don't start down the slippery slope of allowing chickens, then sheep, then...
- Terrible to name 'pit bulls'. As a breed are very gentle. Strong but other large breeds r capable of attacking and causing damage.Archaic idea
- no
- Responsible pet ownership includes exercise/socializing. City only proposing punitive measures, no "responsible pet owner" measures. Tsk tsk
- 1 time pet licenses. Removal of the yearly licences.

- BSL is wrong! Owners need more education, not a ban on specific breeds. Judge each dog on its own merits, not its breed.
- Online dog safety course prior to licensing dogs + high fines for unlicensed dogs. Removes owner ignorance for poor dog behavior/training
- Ban bad owners, not breeds.
- Mandatory dog training should be required for pet ownership. Instead of demonizing dogs primarily found in black communities. Shame on you.
- I think that the licensing fee should be the same for dogs and cats.
- I am specifically completing this survey to decrease the input/response that any specific breed should be banned.
- Breed legislation is a terrible idea. The onus needs to be put on responsible pet ownership
- At the end of the day, we, pet owners, are the ultimate responsible for their actions
- Neighbor dogs bark and show vicious aggressiveness when you walk along your own backyard should consider threat to neighbors. Bylaw impose.
- I think, the allowable amount of animals per household should be by sq ft of your indoor residence. Same as for outdoor animals sq of yard.
- You can have an intact dog and still be a responsible pet owner. Enforcing sterilization would be wrong.
- If a person is able to control/contain smells and sounds and the animal as a whole in a humane way this should be more important
- We need bylaw to respond with urgency to reported incidents. Witness won't sit around for hours waiting for bylaw after a bite or attack.
- Muzzles should be mandatory for dogs involved in any attack or bite. Destigmatize muzzles, they save lives.
- Breed specific legislation and bylaws are unfair and prejudiced
- No
- Pit bulls need to stop being targeted and stigmatized. They are no more dangerous than other breeds. It all comes down to the owners
- Color coding may not be visible on a heavy coated dog. Excitable children can startle a dog and cause the dog to react in an adverse manner.
- Don't label Pit bulls as the bad guys, any dog can bite. It is up to the owner to raise a dog right.
- Repeat offenders (owners NOT dogs), should be required to participate and pass some kind of training to ensure education.
- N/a
- A dog that bites, is a dog that bites, damage inflicted and breed are not as relevant as the fact that it bites.
- Increase and enforce not cleaning up after your animals in public spaces, disgusting walking around massive piles left by ignorant owners.

- Mandatory training for NEW dog owners or not had a dog for over ten years mandatory training again
- There should be no ban on pitbulls. There seemed to be a lot of breed blaming in this questionnaire and not on ownership faults.
- Penalty for not having a leash in a non off-leash area should increase.
- na
- N/A
- Can't think of anything.
- Nothing to add.
- Breed specific laws should be banned. A good dog is a tired dog. Taking away potential exercise from a dog doesn't make sense.
- How about an extensive training program for prospective owners as part of the licensing process?
- Stop picking on pit bulls. They are wonderful dogs if treated right. The stigma about them needs to end. It's not the dog it's the owner. Sj
- Instead of banning dogs that did nothing wrong maybe educate yourselves and others about the misconception on "pit bulls"
- Some system to track/ monitor owners that repeatedly have issues.
- Proper training, spay/neutering should be more affordable and mandatory for all pet animals (cats and dogs) but BSL is not the answer
- I think there should be off leash areas for different size dogs. One for small - under 25 pounds, medium 25-50, Large 50-80, and then XI 80.
- Breed specific bans are ridiculous. A poorly trained dog can be dangerous regardless of breed! It's owners responsibility!
- "1. Incessant Barking Dogs can very negatively effect a neighbourhood and need to be taken very seriously by the City.
- 2. Ban Pit Bulls"
- Dog bites to kids are not tracked..it should be LAW that these dogs are tracked and followed up.
- Mandatory obedience classes for pit bull owners.
- Singling out a breed in this engagement is shortsighted, and perpetuates ignorance of the facts (e.g. USPS dog bite data = little dogs bite)
- Breed specific restrictions is unacceptable, don't breed discriminate! The owner should always be held accountable regardless of the breed.
- BSL is inappropriate. Any dog can bite, injure, or cause damage. Rules need to be applied and enforced equally.
- Banning a specific breed is counter productive, Also, 'nuisance ' dogs should be tracked and listed 'on-line' so they be traced.
- Need more plainclothes bylaw officers to monitor and ticket people who do not pick up after their dogs in parks and in offleash areas.
- "I think that it is wonderful to have dogs and a couple of cats. Unconditional love and great exercise.

- Pets are good for us!!"
- I will not ever agree with targeting specific dog breeds. That should not be added in any bylaw.
- STOP PICKING ON PITBULLS AND OTHER BULLY BREEDS. I've been bitten by every chihuahua I've met and given endless kisses by every bulldog.
- Are we going to ban cars because of drunk driving? Is it the drunk driver or the car's fault? Is it the owner or the pit bulls fault?
- No
- This engagement needs to do a little more research and clarify a few things (i.e. Vicious vs nuisance)!!! These are NOT the same thing!
- Breeders should have to be registered and home checks to make sure animals aren't living in deplorable conditions.
- Adults and children should be fined for approaching an animal that is not theirs and getting bite as an outcome.
- DO NOT RESTRICT PIT BULLS THEY ARE FAMILY TOO
- When are we going to stop being prejudice against "Pitbull /type breeds"? It's the owner NOT the type of dog. Many other breeds attack too
- I do not agree with breed specific legislation, I think it in the end owners are responsible for our pets and their behaviour
- I am studying permaculture and would love to have some hens in my garden.
- Going after Pitbulls is absolutely ridiculous. You should be going after any dog owner that neglects or poorly treats their animal.
- No
- Owners need to be responsible for their pets. Punishing a specific look of dog with specific legislation is ludicrous.
- People who leave dogs in cars in the summer months should be fined, DEMERITS off their Driver's License, and increased dog license fees.
- Higher fines and jail time for animal abusers.
- Owner education and training should be the focus here. Breed specific legislation has already proven ineffective in other provinces.
- "Number to dogs per person at off leash
- Many dog walkers have more than 4 cannot keep track, do not pick up after each daog"
- None
- Here we go, another way the city use to create a source of income for [personal information removed] to spend on art work!
- Animals act based on a natural inclination. If they act negatively, this is has to do with the owner, and how the owner raised the animal.
- Pit bulls are quite a calm, loving breed. I understand the concern of the strength of their jaw but I don't think they should be singled out

- A progressive City should know better than to discriminate against dog breeds. Irresponsible and uneducated owners are the issue
- Bylaws should cover animals of all breeds. Bylaws should not discriminate for or against certain breeds.
- Id/legal proof for emotional support animals and service animals. People are claiming them without proof. An ID tag optimally.
- I believe that individuals that commit animal abuse should have to face harsher consequences. There is no excuse for that behavior.
- No
- Offer to decrease city license cost by 25% per year. if the owner shows proof of obedience training.
- crack down on the roaming cats. They should have to abide by the same rules as other pets. There should be more song birds and less dead cat
- Animal abuse - high fine or jail time
- I don't have an idea, give us chickens!!
- I have frustration with my On LEASH park. No one obeys. Large dogs come galloping at my dog who is on leash. They don't care. Fine them.
- Love
- Don't ban pitbulls. Owners require training when owning powerful dog breeds. That is all.
- For all aggressive type dogs not just pit bulls require training which needs to be passed before owning or licensing the dog.
- I don't think it's necessary for owners to have to pay for a cat license for indoor cats.
- More signage for off leash parks and not so close to bike paths and playgrounds that I take my children on.
- More signs reminding ppl to not bring their dogs on playgrounds and larger fees for doing so.
- Ban pitbull breeding
- More fines for dogs off leash outside of off leash area. In particular near the parking lot of 8th avenue NE to access the bike path.
- People who say it is "discrimination" against pit bulls are embarrassing and need to stop comparing dog breeds to actual humans.
- Name a single incident where a chihuahua has seriously maimed or killed a human or another animal.
- "Pit bulls caused 25 percent of the bite injuries." - Dog bite injuries in children: a preliminary survey. (1999)
- Pitfalls aren't the problem. Owners are the problem. Training is required for almost all dogs.
- No chickens or any type of livestock allowed in the City. Dogs must be on-leash at all times, unless posted signs indicate otherwise.
- More signage stating dogs are not allowed on playgrounds. It is unsanitary to have them pooping/peeing where kids play.

- More signage stating dogs are not allowed on playgrounds. It is unsanitary to have them pooping/peeing where kids play.
- More signs stating no dogs around Glenmore Athletic Park. They can hurt athletes and they get in everybody's way.
- It needs to be easier to deal with owners with dogs that bark needlessly, particularly when they leave them outside to bark.
- Stop trying to make money by creating and enforcing rules on what people can own and do.
- I don't think that the breed of dog should be penalized. Just the owners. All dogs can bite. I think 6 dogs and 6 cats are too many animals.
- Fines for off-leash dogs in ON-leash parks need to be way higher! People think their own dog is "good" and so the rules don't apply to them
- Dogs run off-leash in school parks and playground areas should be an automatic double fine.
- Thanks
- More dog off-leash areas are required
- Both victim and owner must take a reactive dog training course. I think in order to get a dog - dog training is mandatory.
- I like the idea of stronger and swifter consequences should a dog bite. I don't believe in punishing all dog owners which this survey suggests
- All dog owners requiring basic obedience training...not just discriminating against pit bulls
- On-line training with breed-group / species specific mental / physical exercise needs that must be completed to purchase initial license.
- Rescues should have a 6 month free license on dogs or till they're adopted/transfer ownership
- Tracking dogs and forcing new owners to license
- Breed bans not required / don't work per recent Calgary research: <https://www.mdpi.com/2076-2615/9/6/324/htm>
- Better enforcement for off-leash dogs in on-leash areas. The sense of entitlement of some dog owners when it comes to this is mind-blowing.
- Stop discriminating against pitbulls
- City to offer basic obedience training to all pet owners with special "lifetime license" purchase (fee to cover costs).
- We need to have an off-leash dog park in the south near Spruce Meadows. There is nothing close by and many neighbourhoods in the area are growing
- "Ban sale of dogs and cats in stores and back yard breeding --
- ADOPT don't SHOP
- Spay and Neuter"
- Anyone looking to get a dog should be doing a training course prior to being approved as a suitable home.
- Pet license fees should be waived for people who have 3+ years of no complaints against their animals

- All dog owners at time of adoption time of taking over from somebody else time of buying the entire household should be mandatory that they
- More off leash areas where owners can actually walk and get exercise too. Convert some of the bike paths to be used only by dogs and owners
- Pets found lost/roaming in city and brought to the vet to secure if no license microchip the owner MUST license their pet to retrieve dog.
- Legislation should not be breed specific but should address all problem dogs the same
- More off leash parks are needed south of Anderson. They should be within walking distance of most neighborhoods, and ridge of fish creek par
- It is important to have a fine for people that provoke a dog bite or a dog chase. People must be responsible for their animals and kids.
- Higher fines and jail time for animal abusers.
- None
- I'm not sure that there is anything that can be done within the cities jurisdiction but I would support any increased penalties or other det
- "Continued due to character limit.
- Deterents for anyone caught harming an animal"
- Stop the sale of animals in pet stores other than rescues
- NA
- No good comes out of breed specific legislation. Makes us look ignorant.
- "!!NO to BSL in YYC!!
- Manage dog bylaw issues on an individual basis and promote responsible pet ownership with education/community support"
- Responsible Owner Legislation not breed specific legislation!
- Something needs to be done about cart owners who purposely let their cats outdoors to roam the neighborhood
- people should be able to fence in their yard, make a dome as long as it's safe without needing a permit from the city.
- Montreal had 480M people petition to remove short lived BSL, as Coderre ignored people, science and fact -- HE WAS REPLACED and so will YOU
- Bee keeping.
- There is a serious lack of meaningful education relating to dog training and owner identification of "red flags” early in a dogs life.
- Responsible owner legislation, not breed discrimination
- -
- I don't not agree with breed specific legislation. Any dog can be a problem with an irresponsible owner and bylaws should be geared to that.
- Large dogs need space to run which is why our dog parks are so perfect for them! The fact that your survey suggested banning them is sad.

- Focus on educating dog and non-dog owners alike how to approach and interact with ALL dogs safely. Don't discriminate against bigger dogs.
 - Money that is fined for dog bite, etc should go to victim
 - This is labeled "Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw". Walk outside any condo or apartment building in Calgary. Feces and urine burnt grass.
 - No
 - This is labeled "Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw". Calgary parks have become an eye sore. Dog feces and urine burnt grass. Kids can't play
 - "Responsible P.O.B." The urine hour. Right after work every "responsible" dog owner lets their dog urinate on their neighbors yards.
 - "Responsible P.O.B." The dump hour. As soon as it gets dark, every "responsible" dog owner lets their dog defecate on their neighbors yard
 - "Responsible P.O.B." The dump hour. As soon as it gets dark, every "responsible" dog owner lets their dog defecate on their neighbors yard [remove]
 - The city should supply a sign that home owners can place on their property to let pet owners know not to use the property as a pet washroom.
 - Any leash over 6 feet (2 meters) should be made illegal. These reel out leashes are dangerous to the public and are a work around for rules.
 - An easier way to identify a dog owner and dog needs to be brought forward. Fines are useless deterrents if the owner can not be identified.
 - On average 108 dogs pass my house each day. Each dogs owner lets them urinate on the property. Responsible? Use your own yard.
 - Could the city on occasion sponsor or host some free dog-training events, something proactively preventing problems?
 - Dogs should not be allowed to swim in waters in Griffiths Woods Park. Increases stream sediment for fish as well upstream Glenmore reservoir
 - Another distraction from the real problems facing Calgarians : high property tax and bad road conditions. time to flush the toilet!
 - Spade cats should be allowed to roam to keep mice and vole populations down.
 - Stop faulting the dog and labeling certain dogs as nuisances- it is the owner not the Dog breed . A chihuahua can be more vicious than a pit
 - There needs to be patrols by bylaw officers through on-leash city parks to address off-leash dogs. I never see any officers
 - "Education is key!!
- NO TO BSL."
 - Pitbulls should not limited or banned

- Barking complaint process needs to be easier, particularly at night. Educate owners that all front yard are not dog toilets.
- DNA submission for dog feces not picked up. Apply fines to linked dog for feces not picked up
- "I think having clarity on how much barking is allowed.
- There are alot of owners that walk their dogs off leash in the back alley's"
- Barking dogs are a nuisance when working from home. Homeowners or residents should get $100 for every dog dropping in their bins or lawn.
- I would just like to say that it is completely unfair to pass a law that pitbulls have to be muzzled and limit it to one per household.
- Higher fines for off leash dogs in on leash areas. I am afraid of dogs and the illegal off leash dogs mean I cannot enjoy my neighbourhood.
- Big fines for letting your cat enter other people's private property without permission. They pee on my house and don't even control mice.
- "No to BSL!!
- Yes to EDUCATION"
- Double fines for dog bylaw infractions in school yards or near playground- just like speeding fines double in construction zones.
- "The city has to get their heads out of their [remove].
- Proposed urban poultry/pigeons/livestock is ridiculous. Where's the common sense ?"
- Concerned about lack of control of some dogs in off leash areas
- Increase dog license fee overall, w/ Reduced fees for owners who do ongoing training (like car insurance, better driver = lower premium)
- If a dog takes a pee on my house, let me go to the owners house and pee on his front door without penalty or punishment.
- Give out fines for people that don't pick up feces of their dog. Too many times people leave dog feces on the sidewalk. Totally not fair.
- limit number of off leash dogs walked. There is no way a person "walking" 8-12 dogs off leash will be able to see and pickup all poops.
- We and our pit bull was once attacked at nose hill park by some unleashed mutt in an on leash area. Higher fines for roaming at large!
- Don't punish the dog breed punish bad owners. Create a mandatory training program and a license in order to own certain breeds of dog.
- Education should include positive education on pitbulls to remedy bias against and express lack of nuisance evidence found above.
- Increased enforcement in on-leash parks, school playgrounds, alleys, etc.
- Off leash dogs in on leash areas of Nose Hill is ruining the ecosystem. Please patrol the area more to keep this park healthy.
- Back-lane/alley off lease areas (i.e. Lakeview) should be abolished as they are unsuitable. They are dangerous for animals and people alike.

- I think all laws regarding pitbulls should be for every dog or not at all.
- Identification of pets/owners. Dog tags useless if owners leave after incident. At registration a photo of the pet and owner should be filed
- Discriminatory policies against pitbulls and rottweilers needs to be changed. The breed of the dog shouldn't influence laws, just training.
- I do not support any form of BSL. All dogs/owners should be required to attend puppy and basic obedience classes with their dogs.
- Still see many cats roaming free. For those that like their cats to be outside, would like to see catios be required in the owners yard.
- Not aware
- Breed-specific bans are nonsense. "Dogs that look like..." Really? We're going to write laws around a dog's appearance? [remove]!
- Focus on responsible pet ownership, versus penalties for lack thereof.
- Banning certain dogs based on breeds is absolutely ridiculous. If anything you should be fining the owners for being irresponsible owners.
- Breed specific legislation is absolutely necessary as these dogs can kill people and other animals. Please do the right thing.
- Breed specific legislation is not the way. Mandatory accessible and affordable dog obedience training for all dog owners is a better way.
- Bringing farm animals to the City and urban areas is absurd. It's a total lack of common sense and responsibility as a good neighbor.
- Free basic dog training classes for low income Calgarians with dogs. Also, kudos to whomever came up with the name Barking Lot.
- No license required for Full time indoor pets.
- na
- Targeting specific breeds is entirely short-sighted, unjust and appeals to those with a lack of understanding or fear of the unknown.
- We have not had a big problem with multiple pet households since it was first allowed, why restrict numbers now. No valid reasons I can find
- It is the owners fault for not training the dog properly. Because of people's ignorance these dogs will suffer. Think about that.
- Six dogs and six cats per household is too high for the bylaw. Would like to see it lowered to ensure less animals are seized.
- :)
- Lower license fees for low income is counter intuitive. If you can't pay the annual fee you can not pay to provide proper support for pets.
- I just wanted to add that if you can't afford a licence fee, how can you afford to provide sufficient animal care, hence I said no on one Q
- Approach to animals within city limits should be more in tune with "permaculture" concepts: exterminate mice with cats etc.

- A focus on dog training would be a solution to the idea of dangerous dogs. A well trained bull breed is safer than an untrained retriever
- People do what they want to do - they know bylaw isn't enforcing responsible pet ownership as it stands today. Invest in education + bylaw.
- all good
- Mandatory use of anti-bark collars - neighbours re left at mercy of barking dogs while their owners are away.
- More than 1 pet should not be allowed!
- People don't need more than 4 pets. 12 animals is too many!
- No
- Fines that escalate sharply for repeat offenses. Lower licensing fees for spayed or neutered pets. Some rules around "therapy" animals.
- Have esentives for all al to all dog and cat owners not just low income . We all have to budget as responsible pet owners.
- Licensing should be only available online. If it's offered through other avenues, I would only support it if it didn't cost the city more $$
- BAN BAD OWNERS
- What breeds are considered to be similar in look to pitbulls type dogs? that needs to be more clear
- I really like the idea of adjusted rates for dog registration for low income people.
- Harder enforcement of cats not on-leash in their own property. Catch them and penalize the owners. Cat catching stations in the city limits.
- No
- Increasing fines for reoccurring issues of pets.
- I'd move before I'd stoop to the inhumanity of a muzzle on my dog.
- Anyone entering an off leash dog park should understand they might get bumped by big playing dogs. Put up educational signs.
- Don't focus on the breed, focus on the owner. Any dog can become a nuisance with weak, directionless ownership.
- Breed specific legislation does not work and should not be a part of the system in Calgary. I am appalled that this is being entertained.
- Nobody has pigeons yet there are bylaws allowing to keep them. Let us keep our "pitbull" and chickens.
- Toronto and Montreal did BSL and it hasn't worked for dog bites - why would we even consider it here and punish family dogs in good homes?
- Domesticated dogs are not born vicious. Owners need to understand the breed to not encourage undesirable behaviour (intentionally or not).
- No
- No
- NO TO BREED SPECIFIC LEGISLATION!

- NO TO BREED SPECIFIC LEGISLATION!!!
- No breed specific legislation. There are no bad dogs, only bad owners.
- .
- breed specific legislation does not fix animal aggression, deal with the bad owners and you deal with the "bad" animals.
- I do not
- Breed specific legislation can give other aggressive dogs a legal loophole. Say "all dogs with a personal history of aggression" to be safe.
- Disappointed in Calgary. US with all their problems don't have this type of law discriminating against people's best friend.
- It's Bad pet owners not type of dog. Many dogs bite. License fees are also so high especially puppies that can't be altered yet.
- AU proves that BSL is an utter failure -https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_KFX86ZhoMc
- Rescues need exemptions to animal limits if imposed for many of the animals are transient waiting on a new home they are not personal animal
- Full ban on dogs is required. Bad dog owners have ruined it for everybody. Maybe allow dogs only on private property.
- Why do dog owners think it is ok to let their pet urinate where ever they want? Your choice of owning a pet should not affect the public.
- A crime stopper type line with cash rewards for proof (video) of dog owners not picking up, long leashes, no leashes, aggressive ,etc.
- No
- critical to address the problem of loose dogs on front yards (unfenced). No breed specific legislation. Large dogs with low fences an Issue.
- Before we limit the # of dogs in a home, enforce the laws we have; including increasing fines for ppl who don't pick up after their dog!!!
- N/a
- Increase fines for people that abuse or abandon animals. Dont allow to gave animals again
- "Roaming pet cops visiting all parks occasionally to
- Patrol and fine (with much increased rates) when required, to deter bad pet owners."
- There should not be yearly pet fees. Once per pet lifetime license should be considered. The city can keep track of pets w/o costing owners.
- I don't know
- More education on how to keep cats inside. Many people make excuses as to why they "need” to break the bylaw and let cats roam.
- Fines for people who dump rabbits. I see so many domestic rabbits outside with no owners.
- Collars should be mandatory for cats and dogs. Makes it easier to find their owners if they get lost! We need less lost pets, more found!
- I'm appalled the city has such preconceived notions about bully breeds. [remove] BSL!

- Would like to see more done for the dumped rabbits in the city. Also, education/training of people on proper care and needs of animals.
- Increase fines for roaming cats found off property!! I've seen too many cats hit by cars.
- No ideas.
- More awareness/media/marketing to cat owners that cats can't be "outdoor cats;" ie; they are not allowed to roam free unattended.
- Please have more signs about none off leash areas, dog owners don't know the by laws about having there dogs running free on path ways.
- Fines for owners allowing dogs to walk on our yards. Dogs ruin grass and pee all over it. Lower our property taxes then.
- Law for Owners to train dogs to go in their own yard BEFORE their walk so others don't deal with their feces or damaged lawns. Tx
- All owners should have to sign that they have read and understand the bylaws when getting annual licence. Owners NEED to know rules!
- "Requirements:
- sufficient exercise (which most are not! This is a huge factor avoid problem behaviour)
- thorough behavioural training"
- "Rescue dogs require obedience certification.
- A city license is required to breed and sell animals in the City. Stop the city puppy mills"
- This is not a breed problem this is a people problem
- The citys licensing fees for pets for seniors. The city has many senior discounts for their programs. Should have discount for pet license
- Far SW Calgary needs off leash parks

- #SupportBSL "The pit bull had his mouth around the boy's neck shaking him." -[personal information removed]
- Being discriminatory against certain breeds in unfair and cruel. It is the owners fault, not the dogs.
- Dog DNA database implemented. Match the pp to the dog. Huge fines could pay for the system.
- Help clean up the city and save a lot of tax dollars. Get rid of dogs.
- The problem is bad pet owners, not the pet or its breed. If you aren't going to properly care for your pet, don't get one.

- Check how many down votes posts about "dog owners being more responsible on where they let them urinate"? See the problem? Entitled?
- A law stating a pet owner must provide either valid name and address or pet tag number when requested by a citizen. No reason required.
- Easier way to identify by-law offenders in public. Visible license?
- I do not support breed specific bylaws. Nation wide data base of animal abusers needed, tougher punishments for those who do not follow bylaw
- It is not right to ban an animal, people will be forced out of their homes, make it harder to find places to rent and create more challenges
- My yard is NOT your dogs toilet, keep off my lawn. "Animal control " is useless. They come out hours after I reported Tuxedo community park.
- PUT ALL "NO DOGS ALLOWED SIGNS BACK UP IN ALL THE PARKS" Dog owners have become inconsiderate and are ignorant about dogs off lease in ALL P
- Na
- Signs are necessary and when ignorant dog owners deface them, use decals to replace the sign but not the pedestal.
- Fire all "Animal Control" and hire new people that will fine dog owners(No second chances, they are ignored as in Tuxedo Park, reported many
- The lady on the internet showed dogs not under owners control in park . She should have said this is illegal. She is biased and must be fired.
- I live in Lakeview (SW Calgary) there's a large population of stray out door cats. Our sandbox is now a litter box. Both dogs and cats need
- None
- Workshop was to be at Lincoln Park but no one showed up. I was there half hour before and after. Identify yourself somehow.
- Stop making larger dog breeds out to be problematic. Bad owner breed bad dogs. Dogs attack if threatened, not for fun.
- I am not in favour of banning any specific breed, the owners are the problem not the dog.
- Ban pit bulls
- N/A
- "Bylaw needs to be present on a regular basis to dog parks etc
- All the time I see dogs in On leash areas that are running loose"
- When renewing or getting a new a pet licence implementation of bylaws review so owners are reminded of them as well as any changes.
- Breed specific legislation is unethical and it makes me extremely disappointed that the city is even debating it
- Ppl freaking out about dog pee. Not cats, deer, bobcats, rabbits, squirrels, skunks etc, and sometimes human urine? It's lawn u don't use.

- More well cared for fences off leash parks (confluence is in bad shape) and there's no other fenced in ones in the NW.
- Many of the questions were confusing. What is the classification of a nuisance dog - barking, viscous, peeing on a post? Survey was flawed.
- What kind of wildlife are you worried about people feeding in their backyard? Harassing wildlife should never be allowed - dumb question.
- I like feeding the wild birds in my yard. Why isn't this an already listed exception? Birdwatching is easily accessible for everybody!
- No mention was made for fines to those charged with animal cruelty. Fines and penalties in this category must be tripled at least.
- All off leash areas should be completely fenced in. Dogs have run in front of my car while driving near offleash parks. Very scary!!!!
- More off leash areas.
- Banning animals by breed goes against what is fair, animals deserve a clean slate without stigma or bias.
- I know of dog owners who's dogs have killed their own other dogs (pit bulls). The veterinarian should be required to report this behavior.
- I think you should completely abolish the idea that a pitbull (of any sort) should be restricted due to breed. It's the owner not the breed.
- So many comment say "it's the owner and not the breed". I'd like one bad pet owner to say, "Yup, I'm the bad apple". No responsibility.
- Many dog owners do not respect on leash areas. Many are aggressive. 311 is always busy. Bylaw officers don't respond. System needs improving
- If it is the owner and not the breed as many think, then we should call the police and not 311 for bylaw officers. Is that an option?

- Do not single out pit bull breeds, it's irresponsible and eluding the fact that any breed of dog could be subject to aggression
- Ban pit bulls
- All dog owners should gave training. Also, The Champions (book or movie) shines a light on how misunderstood pit bulls are. Please watch.
- More enforcement of barking dogs disturbing neighbours. Not just sending one letter of complaint. Follow up on complainant's behalf.
- Owners who repeatedly let their pets roam at large should have to relinquish ownership after 3rd offence. Some have more money than brains.
- Off leash dogs or dogs in areas where they are prohibited should be enforced more stringently. The fines offset costs of more officers

- ownership bans for repeat offenders. pets are never a problem until they have misbehaving management
- Bylaws must not be made specific to dog breeds but to educate dog owners to prevent injuries
- Obedience classes -great! What about the owners of dogs who have been fined? Should be required to get training on how to raise safe pets.
- Increases in fines for repeat dog noise offenders.
- Proof of veterinary visits/shots. Have vets submit records to the city. License number would be the identifier.
- Breed is not the problem. Owners who do not take effort in training their animals is the problem. Please don't punish the breed.
- Red tags for dogs that have been fined for biting or aggressive behaviour. Off leash use requires coloured tags (extra fee) pays for maintenance
- #SupportBSL "She was just so chewed up there was nothing the doctors could do." [personal information removed]

- Allow 6 chickens per household to improve soil quality, control pests, provide local, sustainable, nutrient dense food to families.
- I agree that owners are the problem but they take no responsibility and would NEVER see themselves as the problem. A police matter then?
- More bylaw officers on bike patrols all summer long. I've never seen a bylaw officer in any of the on-leash areas where offences occur.
- Ban all dogs except pit bulls
- I think that within city limits the number of dogs and cats should be limited to a maximum of 2 dogs and up to 4 cats. or 4 pets total.
- A
- What's the plan to control or charge cat owners when their pets are roaming and using your house as a litter box?
- N/A
- There needs to be a bylaw limiting the amount of dogs a dog walker can walk at the same time in Calgary!! Like other cities!!! 4 max!!!
- "Enforcing rules on dogs based on BREED is equivalent to enforcing rules on people based on COLOUR. now read that again. "
- There needs to be licences and regulations involved with breeding animals. Otherwise, spay and neuter should be a MUST
- More information to show people what responsibilities come with pet ownership
- Having backyard hens has historically been a way for a family to provide food security, a neighbour should not determine if we can have one.
- Approval from neighbours should not be required for owning hens, just as it is not required for owning cats, dogs, or most other pets.

- Legalising urban hens is a no brainer!
- Cat bylaws in regards to free roaming should be like In Walburg. Leashes/various/indoors only, no free roaming.
- People should not be allowed to put their parrot cages outside without supervising their parrots. They get loud and can escape.
- Encourage use of cat leashes and building "catios" for people who insist on having cats outside through education programs and the like.
- "NO TO BSL
- YES TO EDUCATION!!
- THIS IS A PEOPLE PROBLEM NOT A BREED PROBLEM"
- All dogs should undergo obedience training of some sort prior to getting licensed.
- Breed specific legislation does not work. Small dogs bite as often if not more than large breeds
- I would like to see enforcement of current city bylaws regarding off leash dogs and feces pickup. See many violations but no bylaw officers
- Make pet owners responsible of their pets behaviour, not by banning a certain breed but by enforcing a system where the owner is accountable
- Reduce fines for Cats at Large. They provide a service to the neighborhood by keeping down the population of mice and voles in the area.
- In off-leash parking lots it should be mandatory to have you dog(s) on a leash until you enter the designated off-leash area.
- City should stop perpetuating myth of pit bulls and BSL. ALL dogs AND PEOPLE, if not trained, can be dangerous.
- More bylaw offices on the trails to fine bike riders that do not ring their bell or who are travelling too fast. My on leash dog is at risk.
- I support backyard hens without neighbour approval, Hens are less intrusive than dogs and far less understood.
- Cats shouldn't be allowed outside. They chase away and kill the native songbirds. :(
- I saw a coyote eating a cat the other day. Cats should not be allowed outside unsupervised because they attract predators to neighbourhoods.
- Cats are a menace to my neighbourhood. They leave dead mice everywhere, pee on houses, dig up/poo in gardens, and scream at night.
- The city should consider an outright ban on pit bulls (including all pit bull like dogs)
- If households want to raise dogs, cats, hens, etc, there should be an incentive program to learn how to properly care for them.
- I don't want any breed specific legislation. The same rules should apply to ALL dogs!
- I would like pitbulls to be banned, at the very least from off leash areas. Banned would be preferable.
- Please remind people there is a bylaw requiring cats to remain indoors. More and more people seem to be breaking this bylaw.

- The city must realize dog feces and urine is a bio-hazard. If you don't agree, then it sounds like your yard would be a perfect dumping ground.
- A pet owner's choice to own a pet should not affect anyone else in any way. If not able to comply with this. No pet.
- Establishing more fully fenced and secured off-leash parks should be a priority. A lot like Sue-Higgins off-leash park.
- Please have more enforcement in parks. I have often been approached by hostile off-leash dogs in parks where they should be leashed.
- Calgary is lacking access to fully fenced and secure off-leash parks. Most designated off-leash areas are unusable due to proximity to roads.
- Annual licensing fees should be reduced. Yearly fee goes up only when an animal is found lost or receives a complaint.
- Thanks
- Animal cruelty fines should be exponentially increased. Unknown to most, the underground dog fighting ring in Calgary is huge.
- We should never single out a Dog Breed, all dogs should be concerned the same; big or small, black or white.
- We need higher fines for pet bites/attacks and owners should have to stay at the scene otherwise be fined.
- There are circumstances where there should be no fine for dog bites, trespassing onto dog's property for example.
- no
- People should be prohibited from jogging or riding bikes through off-leash areas and dog parks.
- Enforcement for dogs off-leash where they should be leashed. It's not safe for leashed dogs or people when approached by an unfriendly dog.
- Easier ways to report roaming cats.
- Higher fines and response to roaming cats.
- More strict rules for roaming cats.
- Steeper consequences for unattended and roaming cats.
- Dog owners need to be fined for their loud barking dogs! It starts at 5:30 am on Evergreen Heights and Evergreen Point and goes all day!
- Letting your cats roam is a bylaw offence, why is it not being enforced. It is absolutely ridiculous how many roaming cats are in this city.
- Roaming cats are a pest and nuisance to other animals and people in the area.
- Stop roaming cats.
- Strict consequences for roaming cats. People think it's okay to let their animals use other's property as a toilet.
- Dogs on-leash, why are cats not?
- Dumb cat owners being entitled thinking their cats own the whole neighbourhood

- Actual change and enforcement of roaming cat bylaw.
- Reinforce roaming cat bylaw
- Easier way to report roaming cats
- More accessible way to report roaming cats
- Easier way to report cats unattended
- "Less killing of an animal more training Specialty for the owner
- If you can feed house care for the it you shouldn't have it."
- Get back to basics of apply current animal by-laws. Calgary has been a world leader at reducing bite incidents from all breeds without BSL.
- What are you doing about the threatening, aggressive behavior directed at owners of bulldogs, pitties at off leash parks? Many driven away.
- Areas near off leash parks monitored more for dogs off leash. People walk dogs off leash on the way to the off leash areas.
- No violent animals. Let people feed themselves.
- Education and training help people understand their pets and their pets understand them. Punishment doesn't resolve the issue, it taxes it.
- Why is there no mention of individuals trying to get a reaction out of a dog like throwing a cold bucket of water on the neighbours dog?
- Why waste money enforcing bylaws that no one in real life has a problem with?
- I was severely attacked from behind by a unleashed dog as child walking on side walk. Didn't know it was there. Dogs can bite for no reason!
- Fake people can make multiple comments with no validity on these forms. No to special interest groups.
- People commenting here have no experience in real life and are faking stories.
- Nothing should be breed specific. Any dog (breed) has the capability to be aggressive and have poor behaviour.
- Having real engagements that aren't gerrymandered fake news.
- ONLY BAD DOG OWNERS. NO SUCH THING AS BAD DOGS. when are the bad dog owners going to be held accountable instead of the dogs?
- Let's put this BSL stuff to rest and target only dogs that have an actual aggression history.
- There have been no questions or input provisions for bylaw to enforce any revisions. What will be the City's response for enforcement?
- Nothing to add
- If singling out a specific breed seems right to you should we also single out a race of people. What's good for our dogs is good for us too.
- The city should quit wasting money on things like this and maybe get on with saving some money in these tough Financial Times.
- Drop all the discussion around "pit bull"; dogs, all large dogs are capable of causing harm, "pit bulls"; are not special in this capacity

- Please don't move forward with BSL... please. I lived in ON and it doesn't work. Pit bulls are AMAZING animals, it's all about the owners!
- I DO NOT SUPPORT BSL. More focus needs to be on the owners not the breed
- This is getting old leave pit bulls alone. When are you going to point out the real reasons behind the problem? THE OWNERS
- Pitbulls were responsible for more serious attacks last year in Calgary than all other breeds combined. It is a breed issue.
- No to BSL.
- Increased fees/enforcement/education surrounding dogs off leash outside of off leash parks. It happens too often and puts everyone at risk.
- Why not focus on preventing dog bites and responsible pet ownership, breed is not a factor in predicting dog bites. NO BSL.
- BSL does not work and isn't fair to responsible dog owners. Target dogs who have caused a problem and their owners, regardless of breed.
- Ban or re-route cyclists to get them off the off-leash areas. Force them to SLOW DOWN at the very least!
- There are so many problems with this, I don't even know where to start. Breed specific legislation is ridiculous.
- Increase fines for those involved in dog fighting and people who steal animals to be used as bait in dog fighting.
- Increase fines and bans for people who engage in animal cruelty.
- Sanctions for animal cruelty and abuse need to be MUCH more severe.
- Ban people from pet ownership if they tie/chain their dogs for more than a couple hours. This is cruel. We need to update bylaws!
- What about fines for irresponsible dog owners? So many dog owners that throw their dogs into the back yard and never walk them!
- I strongly support backyard chickens! They are significantly quieter and less dangerous than dogs plus can be an important source of food
- Not an idea but a comment ...do we really need more pigeons in this city?
- More proactive education to help prevent serious dog injuries and also more education to prevent animal neglect and abuse cases
- N/a
- No breed specific wording... that is not at all helpful for what you are trying to accomplish. Leave breed out of it.
- Barking - Person who owns barking dog gets one warning. When this person gets a second warning, he/she must take dog to a class.
- No breed specific bi-laws. Dogs are not aggressive by breed. Instead enforce mandatory training for all dogs.
- Backyard chickens are integral to a sustainable lifestyle and provide a secure food supply in the face of increasing food insecurity.

- Should be regulations at official off leash dog parks regarding bicycles and small motorized vehicles.
- Implement a method of enforcing pet owner removal of feces and applying fines.
- Should be an easy way to report aggressive animals in public places ie - how to report an off leash dog attacking other dogs on a bike path
- provide barking noise levels for different breeds for condos and single family households
- I would like to see a marked increase in bylaw officers issuing fines on site at on-leash parks where many owners disobey the law.
- Signage about on-leash/off-leash areas in parks needs to be larger and more explicit so people cannot continue to pretend they do not know.
- Urban hens will have a massive net benefit for food security, public literacy about our food system and community connectedness in Calgary!
- Citizens should not have to be faced with telling aggressive dog owners that their dogs need to be on a leash when in a public ON-LEASH park
- More enforcement of dog-owners who let their dogs off-leash in on-leash parks and disturb folks who just want to enjoy a park in peace.
- Roaming cats are a HUGE issue. Owners should not be given licenses unless they commit to following the rules and given instant fines if not.
- Why do cat owners feel entitled to let their cats roam free and devour bird populations? Stricter enforcement and stronger penalties needed.
- We need a quicker method of responding to public complaints of dogs off-leash in on-leash parks. Otherwise the law is useless.
- Perhaps an initiative to put many cat traps around the city in order to address the major cat roaming issue? Mass implementation.
- Urban hens are a wonderful initiative that have a very low chance of causing disruption to neighbours- permission should not be required.
- Anyone wanting to own a dog needs to have mandatory training. Dog breeders should have a license to limit the amount of strays in Alberta.
- This idea through the survey that pit bulls are more dangerous and have a stronger bite force is ridiculous and stupid.
- About the pigeons should not be allowed in residential areas to fly because of the pigeons feces are dangerous as you can't control the fly
- No idea
- Focus on education . . . require new dog/puppy owners to complete a canine good neighbor class . . .
- I would love to keep backyard hens, for fun and fresh eggs! As long as they are housed and cared for properly, there should be no issues ^_^
- Widespread education on dog behaviour. Breeds do not indicate aggression of dogs. Low cost/free access to training for dog owners.
- Na

- People against BSL are chirpy. Maybe not so vocal if they were attacked by a pit bull.
- Urban hens are a slippery slope into the urban livestock issue. What is next? Urban pigs, goats, sheep, cows, pony's...
- Strict enforcement and punishment for animal abuse and neglect (wild and domestic animals). 1 strike = not allowed to own/possess animals.
- BSL has proven to be ineffective. Breed does not determine aggression. More responsible pet ownership breed neutral bylaws. No BSL.
- I think all pitbull/"aggressive" breed classification needs to stop. All animals have the ability to be aggressive. Falls back on ownership
- Na
- I served on a drafting committee in California in 1989 and we drafted a generic statute that addressed dog behavior and it worked.
- Stop allowing dog "rescue" missions bringing violent dogs across the border from the US. This is just another form of hoarding.
- "Limit number of cats and dogs per household to 2 or 3.
- Roaming cats should be euthanized if owner continues to allow roaming after dining."
- Heavier fines for animal abuse or neglect. And more programs for low income pet owners to receive discounted food, training or vet bills
- No BSL, more education and awareness for all, both dog owners and non-dog owners
- Lower the prices for training animals, it should accessible to everyone. Put a stop to euthanizing animals, start thinking how you can help
- Lower fees for cats, people dont reclaim cats like dogs. Enforce laws that sell cats on media outlets ie Kijiji. Allow microchips as licence
- I don't think you should need a license for an indoor-only pet.
- You MUST have a bylaw that forces people to register in order to breed animals. It is unethical that anyone can breed animals to sell on kijiji
- I think a few backyard chickens are a great idea and I definitely have more space than industry standards of 6"x9" (battery cages).
- Owners allowing cats to roam are a frustrating nuisance. Higher fees and mandatory education during licensing should be instituted.
- Make ALL pet breeders licensed by City Of Calgary AND APPROVED BY A QUALIFIED VETERINARIAN. NO BACKYARD BREEDERS.
- Heavier fines for animal abuse/neglect
- Calgary is often cited as an example of a city with successful breed-neutral dog laws. We should not change that.
- Increase education for ignorant pet owners. Fines alone don't address the problem and could result in the pet being punished.
- Nothing to add

- Don't punish a breed and their responsible owners for a handful of negligent owners that have created an aggressive dog.
- Our bylaws need to stay breed neutral and focus on incentives to register, spay/neuter and educate children on how to interact with dogs
- Make anyone breeding dogs subject to strict regulation - no backyard breeders or puppy mills
- Thanks
- GIVE US OUR CHICKENS
- Banning pit bulls or any other dog based on breed or appearance is very shortsighted and ineffectual.
- No restrictions against pitfalls. Offer dog training discounts or public dog training sessions.
- off leash should be divided, one side for small dogs and one side for large
- Roaming cat destruction
- Backyard hens provide food security and support anti-fragile systems. They can foster good community relationships.
- My rescued pit bull is now 12, he has never harmed anyone. The city passing any BSL would be revolting, shame on you for labeling.
- A good friend of mine was just attacked and badly injured by a blue heeler. He hasn't suddenly decided to campaign against the breed. No bsl
- Backyard bird feeding is a strongly supported/beneficial practice and should not be lumped into a bylaw that considers "teasing wildlife"
- The cat bylaw for roaming is basically unenforceable unless you know who owns the cat. Even then, it is very difficult to get action.
- None
- Parks and Rec Dept removed "No Dogs" signage on most park and playground areas for what reason?? They're now treated like off leash, FIX THIS!
- Violating invasion and such defacement of property that the law allow pet owners to trespass on private properties to use our lawns as toilets
- Impact of pet ownership on environment and wildlife. Attacks and death of wildlife + sanitation issues + environmental contamination.
- There is no scientific evidence that supports bully breeds have a strong PSI bite than other breeds. Please update.
- Mandatory obedience for all dogs to make them good citizens
- I think owners of any animal should go through some training on how to become fur parents and how to train them this should be mandatory
- A normally friendly dog may react to an aggressive dog, it shouldn't be labeled as a nuisance as a result.
- More signs in on leash areas saying "pets on leash";. Too many people let their dogs run freely in on leash areas.
- Make humane traps more easily accessible so stray/roaming cats can be taken to animal control.

- More bylaw officers patrolling in neighbourhoods adjacent to off leash parks. There are WAY too many off leash dogs in Altadore.
- Fines for roaming cats should be increased to fund TNR programs.
- should not be labeling dogs by behavior. Dogs behavior is dependant on its owner - lowners to be equially responsible for their pers
- All dogs and cats should be equal, no breed discrimination
- Dog owners need more education. Just because it is an off-leash area does not mean they own the location. It is still a SHARED public area.
- The city needs to deal with the large amount of pet waste that is spread through the city each day. It would be nice to enjoy a this city.
- Cats should not be able to roam off-leash outside of their owner's property - same as dogs.
- Breed restrictions are ineffective and do not contribute to responsible pet ownership. The focus needs to be on human behavior.
- More education on dog attacks and how to prevent it. Including (not breed specific) irresponsible breeding, improper living conditions etc.
- More signage in different languages as we've come across a lot of ppl that freak out at our dogs that don't realize they're in off leashpark
- Pet Obedience Classes Subsidy Program for low income earners to help assist their family with education on how to care for a dog properly.
- "More affordable
- options for low income families and newcomers to Canada with pets in terms of obedience class, licensing etc..."
- Dog owners to attend a course on responsible pet ownership would go along way to reduce the animosity between pet-owners and citizens.
- Fines should be scaled for income. Some people are just getting by and a $200 fine for a pet mistake cuts into groceries, others no big deal
- None
- In addition to the early warning system, dogs that have shown aggression towards other dogs or people should be REQUIRED to be identified
- Let us have chickens!!!
- submitting photos of cats/dogs at large. Pit bulls/pit bull type dogs should not be singled out as a breed. Many aggressive dogs are small
- Create more fenced dog areas in neighbourhoods where there is currently unused grass space (ex. Galbraith Drive in Glamorgan community).
- No more BSL - it doesn't work! Check the stats!! Bring back the nanny dogs
- I'd suggest a mandatory intro dog training course for all licence applicants. Licence issued upon proof of completion.
- No

- BSL doesn't work. "Pit bull bite force" is a myth, "pit bulls" are no more dangerous than any other type of large domesticated wolf.
- City is looking for a new source of income! Bravo [remove]
- I DO NOT SUPPORT any bylaw the city come with, they just care about how to make more $$$$$. We will flush them down the toilet next election
- Educating and training people is far better than punishing dogs. Most nuisance and 'aggressive' dog issues can be resolved with education.
- Ban selling small animals at pet stores (hamsters, snakes, geckos, etc). They are often kept in poor conditions and are from mill breeders.
- All dogs should be regulated equally, small dogs have attacked my larger dog on several occasions and should be just as liable for doing so.
- How will it be handled if a smaller dog attacks a larger dog who then defends itself?
- STOP BULLYING PIT BULLS, they don't deserve to be treated this way. I've had several and they've never been aggressive.
- BSL doesn't work. "Pit bull bite force" is a myth, "pit bulls" are no more dangerous than any other type of large domesticated wolf. [DUPLICATE]
- Backyard hens would be a welcome addition to our house and many others' in COVID times and beyond. Small poultry is great in the city!
- There was nothing mentioned in the phase 1 "What We Heard" report about BSL. If it wasn't mentioned in phase 1, it shouldn't be in phase 2.
- I agree fines should be scaled for income. Some people are just getting by and a $200 fine for a pet mistake cuts into groceries. [DUPLICATE]
- Create more fenced dog areas in local neighbourhoods where there is currently grass space so we don't have to drive a long way to dog parks
- No
- I'm very concerned about the emphasis on Pit Bull type dogs! I find this may be leading to a partial or full ban on this very maligned dog.
- Why is the notion of limiting the number of cats/dogs in a household coming up? I own ONE animal yet would still support citizens with more.
- Nothing comes to mind.
- the city should sell "backyard chickens in a box." A kit that complies with bylaw, provides instructions for raising the animals, etc
- Owning pigeons, chickens or any other livestock within the city limits is completely inappropriate.
- I feel as though fines for biting adults should be the same for if children get bit. it is the parents responsibility as much as the owner
- .
- none
- Breed specific laws are disgusting. Even thinking about this is seriously disappointing for a city I considered to be progressive.

- Fences around all off leash parks. It is safer and makes the border of the park clearer so dogs aren't walked off leash in leashed pet areas
- To put more ownership on the owners that cause bad dog behaviour. Require training for problem dogs
- I think there should be the equivalent of GDL for a dog owner license with restrictions. Mandatory dog training required to get full license
- All dog owners should be required to attend a training course at least once and have this on record.
- Off leash parks should be fenced in for safety of the animals. Animal control laws should not be breed specific.
- I DO NOT agree with discriminating against any breed of dog!
- Disappointed to see a city as progressive as Calgary have BSL language in their bylaw especially when there was no talk of it in stage 1 ??
- Human owners are ultimately responsible for their pets and should be held responsible for their pets actions, not the animal.
- I think we should be allowed chickens
- The city of Calgary should not be involved in the adoption of pets. This is a complete conflict of interest.
- "Remove BSL!!!!
- A nuisance dog is just that!!!"
- Do not go forward with BSL!! Any dog can be/become a nuisance.
- BSL doesn't work. Focus on responsible pet ownership and aggressive dogs, not just a specific breed.
- owners need to be held responsible, if you have a dog that is showing any aggressive traits don't train it at the dog park.
- No, thanks
- I wish my neighborhood pleading hearts would stop feeding the pigeons, squirrels and stray cats. I don't know who is more of a nuisance?
- For dogs (high energy) to not disturb neighbors, more off-leash dog parks within walking distance from each neighborhood would be beneficial
- People should be fined for approaching dogs without permission. Attacks can be instigated by people and dogs always get the blame on reacting
- Pigeon limits should be based on yard size. Acreage vs infill are very different scenarios.
- A bylaw offence summons to be issued at officer discretion. Currently a court appearance by neighbour complainant is required.
- Pitbull lives matter! Don't discriminate based on race.
- nope covered it all
- There should be a dog DNA registry to identify owners not picking up after their animals.
- Bandana system costly to implement, voluntary = inconsistent/unreliable. Animal behaviour is not set in stone leaves owner open to liability

- Keep cats inside. They don't belong outside!
- I think that the registry of all animals should be free!
- Poor training breeds aggressive dogs. Owner education is as important as a dog's education; should be mandatory for owners of nuisance dogs
- Don't discriminate based on breed. Pitbull lives matter
- No BSL. Your excuse about the power and size/bite of a pit bull is feeble. They are no more of a threat than a Doberman, Rottweiler etc.
- Off leash parks should have warning signs to alert families with small children that they will encounter dogs playing and running around.
- I'm for no bylaws-they're removing freedoms. Dogs speak by barking, do not expect them to be silent. Send love instead! Change starts within
- "BSL has not worked. Education for everyone is key. Enforcement of current bylaw.
- NO TO BSL"
- [personal information removed] had a world renown responsible pet ownership bylaw. Calgary lets continue his legacy. NO TO BSL
- Calgary you are blaming the wrong end of the leash. We need to get to the root of the problem. BSL does not work when the owner is at fault
- No to BSL
- If there is an animal bite or attack there should be an investigation as to why not just automatic fines. More training for problem animals.
- Breed is not the problem, ownership and education is the problem. Everyone in the vet industry will tell you what is the real issue.
- There should be pet education classes offered! I personally work in the Pet Industry and would volunteer for this! More education is needed!
- Part of licensing fees should go towards a program to rehabilitate aggressive or vicious dogs that have been seized from owners
- There must be more of an investigation as to why the attack happened. More focus on education and more pressure on the owner.
- Nuisance OWNERS should be identified in this bylaw rather than pinning their actions on their animal!
- Off Leash dog parks at not a place for children to free roam without education from their parents about running up to dogs they do not know
- The main issue is reporting a stray cat doesn't result in any action. This needs to be addressed.
- The City would never implement legislation singling out a specific human race - BSL is the same idea. Shame on you, Calgary!
- Do not ban pit bulls. Ban shitty owners. They are the problem.
- Pets are expensive to care for in their lifetime. Lowering/waiving pet fees for low income earners sounds like an invitation for pet neglect

- Breeds are not the problem. People are. Education is more important. Feeding wildlife eg. Birds is not a problem but therapeutic . Liz
- Need cats to be outside to get rid of mice and control bird population, its nature! my street is mice free thanks to the guy next door cat!
- I do NOT agree with banning/muzzling of pit bulls as a BREED. Any animal can be dangerous, it's an owner problem
- Mandatory training for every pet owner otherwise no licence. Training update every 3 years.
- Roaming cats chased away all the birds at my bird feeder. :(Please keep outdoor cats illegal.
- Outdoor cats do not control mice very well, and can spread diseases from catching/eating mice. Get an exterminator if u have a mouse problem
- Just to reiterate and clarify, I do not support breed-specific legislation. Deal with the issues that arise on a case by case basis.
- When a call is placed on a cat that is continually roaming and you know exactly where it lives, why is the onus on me to trap it. Warn !
- Everyone saying "breeds aren't the problem" are being [remove](and are probably owners of pitbulls).
- Pit bulls are bred to be aggressive, with massive jaw strength + high kill drive. They're gentle until they aren't. Denial is dangerous!
- Better enforcement and higher fines for people engaging in dog fighting and using animals as bait dogs
- I do not agree to breed specific legislation or bylaws. They are unfair and prejudiced against pitbulls. Raised properly pitbulls are gentle
- na
- Before being allowed to adopt a pet there should be a mandatory class, with certification, explaining all the rules and regulations involved
- I believe the city needs to do much more when it comes to dangerous pets and attacks.
- My greatest pet peeve is dog owners leaving bags of dog feces all over the parks and especially around and on top of the garbage bins.
- Ban pitbulls
- Mandatory on-line dog behavior/responsible pet ownership bylaw knowledge when applying for new dog licence.
- Landlords should be held accountable for renting out places where prior renters' animals urinated and caused mold to grow causing illness.
- Encourage all neighborhood stores, vet clinics to adopt and supply pet waste bags (With logos) and bins to be installed on nearby parks
- Make it easier for restaurants to allow dogs on patios, and, allow dogs in more stores. We can't leave them in the car, of course.
- Domestic rabbits are a huge problem in the city especially in the Manchester area, they are pest and destroying landscape and property.

- Mandatory training pre license will prevent people from getting a license. Its odd the license process currently doesn't mention the bylaw.
- Supporting pet friendly businesses and making them easier to be approved! If Cold Garden can do it other places can too!
- What's the current practice w roaming cats? Can I catch it and bring it to the humane society?
- Regarding dogs being left outdoors and constantly barking. Shorten the rules to have the owners put on notice immediately.
- 2018 tickets issued: 256 for animal at large; 1 for failing to pick up feces. The fines are a joke; add a zero to every fine and enforce.
- Please do not punish breeds, educate people
- Training your dog is good practice. But some dogs are reactive and people need to respect their bubble! Non-pet owners also need training!!!
- No I'm good 2ith 2hat was presented
- Fifth estate doc on pitty breeds; banning pitty's makes sense. The anti-BSL mob will be all over this survey to try to influence the outcome
- take the anti-BSL comments/rhetoric in context, they have a well organized lobby to ambush surveys like this; city council will be the vote
- Philosophically I do not support any pet ownership, but I live in the society I do and it's illogical to single out a particular dog breed.
- More bylaw enforcement is needed; I'm tired of my children being scared to go the local field because owner's treat it like off-leash.
- No licenses for cats. They are impossible to contain. (Ever tried herding cats)!
- Fine amounts are good as is, but more enforcement is what is needed.
- Education of the public is MOST important factor in reducing dog bites. NO to BSL
- Escalate fines and compliance measures to any dog breed that has endangered or harmed people or other dogs do not target based on breed
- N/a
- Please don't target specific breeds. Any dog of any breed who has a history of threatening behaviour, needs to be evaluated.
- Target irresponsible dog owners not specific breeds of dogs. For their own safety, cats should not be allowed outdoors.
- No to BSL. shame on the city for even suggesting.
- No to BSL .
- Revisit / Review the number of enforcement officers
- Don't fix what isn't broken. Calgary has been a leader regarding BSL, and nothing has changed to warrant BSL now.
- Need to enforce bylaw on barking! A lot of dog owners are irresponsible and let their dogs bark all the time.
- Treat every dog as an individual. Educate, don't discriminate. #bslfreeyyc

- Ban pit bulls. Period. They are extremely dangerous. They just ripped the intestines out of our friend's dog. I'm not kidding.
- Enforcement is crucial because it's becoming too easy for the public to disregard and flaunt.
- BSL is ridiculous. Training and ownership makes the difference (for all breeds). I have never once seen bylaw at any park (start there).
- Very important to have a method to report too many pets. Requirement for more accountability placed on owners of known dangerous animals.
- .
- Make more visible signage and a speed limit for bikes going along paths. I've had people blow past without bells and almost hit my dog.
- Owners should be charged with neglect for letting pets roam, especially if the pet isn't fixed because more neglected pets result from it
- Outdoor cats live 2-5 yrs vs indoor cats at 15-20 yrs. Letting cats roam should be considered neglect. The current system doesn't work.
- It might be worth considering making spay/neuter mandatory except in special circumstances.
- Cat owners need to be educated about environmental enrichment, nutrition, interactive play, taking their cats for walks and catios.
- A job should be created for TNR and caring for feral cats and educating cat owners. Pay for it by raising some fines.
- Do something for all the abandoned bunnies!
- Educate cat owners and punish bad ones. I don't want any more of the neighborhood cats found in pieces on the road. Cats deserve better!
- Don't punish stray and feral cats for a human-caused problem. Focus on TNR, adoption, and responsible owners. Don't euthanize feral cats!
- "Stop targeting put type dog nothing but sensationalized news driven hysteria
- I left Ontario in 2005 I'm not leaving again We Will Riot"
- N/A
- Work on changing the attitude that cats are disposable. You wouldn't let your dog out to run in traffic or get lost or injured.
- some sort of incentive program for building a catio
- System for surrendering pets at the vet when the owner can't pay for the needed treatment
- Cats should not be roaming on the streets. It's not good for the cat or people who may be afraid or allergic to cats.
- Having dogs off-leash in on-leash areas of parks is horrible for people who may be scared or allergic to dogs, needs to be taken seriously
- Give us chickens!!!
- I believe education is important when it comes to managing dog behaviour. I've met gentle pit bulls and small dogs that bite (less damage).
- Make animal traps and animal at large rules apply year round, and during times of a Pandemic

- Just please do something about the pit bulls
- Pit bulls are dangerous and need to be dealt with.
- Breed specific legislation does not follow the science and has not proven to be effective. Responsible ownership for everyone is key.
- "Owner of recent NW attack is a known abuser dog had 0 chance.
- DO NOT BLAME THE BREED"
- More parks/open spaces where pets NOT permitted. Greater access to dog free areas for all. Higher fines for off leash dogs in on leash parks
- Cats are the highest impact to bird populations. They should not be permitted outside even in people's yards.
- More enforcement when it comes to dogs off leash in on leash areas. It is so scary to have a giant out of control dog run up to me barking.
- Require obedience training for dog licenses, banning breeds isn't a solution. If you can't do training, you shouldn't own a dog.
- "*mandatory jail time for animal abusers *restriction from ever owning another animal.
- PUBLIC REGISTRY for abuser of animals!!!"
- Putting restrictions on Pit Bulls does not make the streets safer. Fine the owners.
- Non
- Enforcement of dogs off leash in on leash areas. This needs to be enforced more
- Limit the amount of dogs one person can have an off-leash dog park at a time or require a special licence.
- "Reclaim natural areas by reducing off leash areas where damage is being done."
- Easier registration for pet owners other than online with alternate options besides credit card. Registration should be one time fee
- BSL has been proven not to work. Isolating dogs from other people and animals creates aggression issues. Dogs need to socialize!
- The less regulation the better in my opinion. Punish problem pets and owners, not general population.
- Mandatory animal behavioural training for councillors and bylaw officers.
- The recent nw attack on the Aussie isn't a pitbull. It's an American bulldog. So ppl that can't identify breeds should just call it a dog.
- Sidewalk paint sanctioned signs that indicate not-ok to urinate or scent on this grass area. "Dog Not-OK" or "Curb Dog." Let them know.
- Off-leash dogs chasing waterfowl in public parks is annoying, illegal, and harmful to the birds. We need more by-law officers giving tickets
- Make the spay/neuter program available to more than just low income Calgarians, more people might get their animals fixed if it was cheaper

- Penalize the guilty, not the innocent. Pitbulls (and others) are beautiful animals if cared for properly. Don't penalize responsible owner
- I'd love to see more public education about why cats should not be free roaming outdoors
- Individuals should be required to take classes prior to buying/adopting a pet. People don't train and are potentially harming animals.
- All fines should be scaled to income - people with a lot of money see them as fees rather than deterrents, and can afford to break rules.
- Don't penalize "nuisance" dogs. Penalize "vicious" dogs and OWNERS. Never single out a breed that IS or LOOKS like a Pitbull period.
- Breed specific legislation is ineffective, discriminatory, and is not backed by behaviour science or animal control best practices.
- No I do not
- If we are trying to move farther away from a world drenched in prejudices, we must include our pets. Pets should have more rights, not less.
- Please actually do some research into breed specific legislation, before continuing to waste everybody's time on an ineffective solution.
- Income dependent fines should be considered
- I propose that the law not classify dog as nuisance dogs. Rather, classify their owner as a nuisance owner. It's a more accurate take.
- Among the questions asked in the survey, you should have asked if the person completing the survey was a pet owner.
- Barking dogs are a real problem in my neighbourhood, you need stricter rules and a less onerous reporting process
- ghh
- More laws/bylaws should be in place for animal breeders. Too many homeless animals already, backyard breeding is unnecessary and ridiculous.
- Don't punish the breed, punish the owners. Bully breeds should not be singled out at all! I have had more issues with small dogs than large.
- N/A
- Pitbulls used to be used as nannies for young children. Its is ridiculous to put rules on a specific breed.
- I say that the fees for pet liscense a should be lower and that cat liscense or small animal(x amount of lbs such as 35) should be lower
- If you have a limited income, it can be said that you can't afford a pet. I do not support a licensing pay scale based on income
- We have a bad problem with 4 or 5 roaming cats in our neighborhood and would like bylaw officers involved
- if a dog is aggressive in anyway. the city should offer training courses to the owner. Courses are expensive, would help a lot of people.
- Specific breeds should not be singled out. Bad owners breed bad dogs

- It is the owners responsibility to properly care for/train bully breeds and therefore, they should have mandatory training before adopting
- I do not support ANY breed based discrimination for dogs. Punish the behaviour, not the breed.
- Nope
- This is covered but I don't think pit bulls should be specifically signaled out. I haven't seen any good data to support this bylaw.
- Dog owners who have a history of owning animals that bite or are aggressive or vicious should be banned from owning dogs
- Many breeds can be dangerous. Pit bulls should not be singled out. Why not rottweilers? Why not mastiffs? Punish behaviour not the breed
- A 2014 literature review by AVMA found that "controlled studies have not identified [pit bull type dogs] as disproportionately dangerous."
- Owners that have dogs who attack other dogs/people should have to complete strict dog training classes or have their animals seized.
- Not all dogs are bad but the fact is that pitbulls are capable of doing more damage than most breeds.
- Re barking- repeat excessive should have a wellness check, requirement of minimum exercise or play time as it's usually a household problem.
- I feel that each issue should be dealt with case by case management. Every issue is individual and should be treated as such.
- I support allowing cats to roam.
- No
- Ban pitbulls
- How can we keep cats out of our yards
- The strength of bite is determined by the degree of bite inhibition the dog develops as a puppy, not by its breed. Puppies need socializing
- No
- Pit bulls are not bad dogs, there's only bad owners!
- No
- Signs and Fines' can only do so much. No point increasing those, if there are no officers nearby to enforce!
- BSL effects more than just dog owner. Small businesses with dog- daycare, walking, grooming, etc. It will effect them too
- I think obedience training should be required for all breeds of dogs regardless of their perception of being a vicious breed
- "Ban the deed not the breed -
- 86% of all falsities are from unfixed canines 92% are male - Spay and neuter"
- STOP SELLING COMPANION ANIMALS IN STORES AND END PUPPY MILLS
- There's no bad dogs, just bad owners

- My Calgary went from hero to zero regarding pet responsibility. Do your research and look at ONT! BSL does NOT work!
- How about showing the fines that were levied against owners of pets. What was the City's total revenue from pet fines? Hmmmm?
- The bylaws as written are great! I would prefer to see bylaw officers stationed at parks and able to educate and enforce daily.
- Bad pets are a result of bad owners, owners need to be held responsible not the animals, it is ignorant to ban a specific species of dog
- No
- If anyone wants to have livestock move to the country. I will never allow anyone to have chickens or goats next to me until I move back to
- Outdoor cats and all dogs need to wear a collar with identification.
- You don't like your neighbors or neighborhood? Why do you let your dog urinate all over other peoples property? Laws to end this required
- "Cigarettes kill millions of people every year. Why do we still allow the sale of them? Oh right $$
- NO TO BSL"
- Non-pet owners rights need to be taken into account. Over 1/2 the city do not own a pet according to this site. This survey is pet biased.
- often dogs left alone outside are anxious and the barking incessantly requires a dog sitter therefore open up jobs for dog sitters trainers.
- Allow outdoor cats. They are good at keeping rodent population down. More natural than indoor cats.
- Why is this available to everyone and not just yyc residents? This is amateur hour, stop with your BSL nonsense.
- I find sections of the questionnaire disturbing for possibly targeting pitbull dogs; Do Not Enact BSL
- I think we need more bylaw officers because I've never seen one. Right now the bylaws are based almost exclusively on an honour system.
- This is discrimination and non pet owners will never understand dogs bark if that's the case then every breed gets the same treatment.
- Do not focus on breed focus on conditions and responsible ownership
- We are dog owners, but it is shocking how inconsiderate many dog owners are, in terms of jumping up, etc. Not sure how to educate people...
- I think the focus on pitbull or pitbull type dogs needs to be removed. The focus should be placed on responsible owners above all else
- Any breed of dog can be aggressive and bite. The focus should be on the owners. Obedience training should be recommend for any dog
- Please bring in someone who knows how to write an unbiased survey. The forced-choice questions had glaring holes, no options if I disagree.
- Fines should increase at second and third offense

- Rather than picking up every cat or dog and removing them from neighbourhood that are healthy tag and release to see if go home...
- It is neglectful to allow cats to roam outside to get hit by cars, killed by coyotes, face the elements, and lost. Keep cats inside.
- Cat owners should be fined for neglect/animal abuse for letting their cats wander outside to get hit by cars or otherwise hurt.
- All cats and dogs must be required to wear collars so owners can't be identified if the pet is lost.
- Pigeons are a good idea They make better house pets than parrots. They should not be allowed to fly freely though.
- Dogs should always be walked on leash on sidewalks/neighbourhoods. Almost accidentally hit one with my car the other day. :(
- If a dog bites someone, the owner MUST take responsibility and stay on the scene.
- More enforcement for off leash dogs and free roaming cats. Maybe increased fines for each incident reported.
- Stop people from walking dogs off leash in weaselhead and fish creek. They are hurting the wildlife.
- Keep cats from killing songbirds in the city!
- The city should seize and rehome cats that have been brought in to animal control too many times for roaming at large.
- Dogs should not be allowed to be tied up right at the front door of shops. I am scared of dogs and I don't like walking so close to them.
- Chip and licence must be mandatory for cats and dogs. We need less lost pets in the city.
- Outdoor cats mean less lost cats find their way home, since everyone assumes cats are supposed to be outside. Increase fines for outdoor cat
- "Do not restrict based one breed.
- Punish owners not dogs.
- Pit bulls are not the problem. People are."
- Responsible ownership should be the focus. BSL is ineffective, punishes innocent dogs based on uneducated labeling and costs tax payers $$$!
- I like that people can have their own animals for their own enjoyment. I do not want laws to block responsible owners from having this.
- Escalating fines for repeat off-leash infractions + no warnings. If you own a dog you NEED to know the rules before taking it out in public!
- Everyone should have to sign that they have read and understood the bylaws when getting their annual licence. No excuse for not knowing laws
- I sincerely believe and have for many years, that all dogs should be muzzled in public. I also believe a FREE spay/neuter clinic should be
- No breed specific laws! Owners are responsible not the dog or the breed
- All dogs should be assessed as individuals, not by appearance. Stereotyping by breed is harmful to the whole pet community.

- Off-leash dogs are too common on regular city streets. Leads over 6-feet and non-fixed "extendi-leads" are also common and can't be controlled.
- Please keep control of your dogs and cats and do not allow them to wander freely, or jump on people or other pets. Pick up after your pets.
- Education/enforcement blitz for nuisance behaviours and off-leash infractions. Mandatory behaviour training for repeat offenses.
- I am against BSL. This would just encourage another breed to be exploited.
- Anyone can call themselves a dog trainer in Calgary. The quality and effectiveness is never questioned after an incident. It should be.
- The focus of Mandated training should be the owner!
- Children are often in off leash parks and have had no instruction on how to approach a dog. A shared responsibility for safety would be good
- Dogs should be defined by their behaviour, not their breed. I do not support breed specific legislation. Focus on the owners.
- A breed ban is a contradiction to the idea of Responsible Pet Ownership.
- This survey has been hijacked by a small number of American pitbull fanatics from a rightwing U.S. pitbull forum.
- No
- Pet owners need to learn to become better neighbors. Use your own yard as a toilet if you want to own a pet. Home owners will soon rebel
- Yes the boulevard is public property. That does not mean you should use it as a pet waste dumping ground. Use your boulevard instead.
- Supports for victims of domestic violence. Support for shelters which allow pets. Reduced fees for pet owners who are escaping domestic.
- I am in favour of BANNING bully type breeds all together. They are a public safety hazard!!
- Nearly two-thirds of human pathogens and three-quarters of emerging pathogens are zoonotic in origin. The city needs to study on pet waste.
- Ammend 23M2006 22. to include URINE.
- An easier way for home owners to use 23M2006 25(3) to protect private property and public boulevard from Urine burns. Small claims is slow.
- If the expectations by-laws to allow urban hens is drafted to be comprehensive the added step of neighbour approval can be removed.
- I see a lot of dog feces in my local parks. Some people do not pay attention to what their dog is doing and others just don't pick it up.
- Inner city fenced off leash dog parks suitable for elderly dog owners to access
- I would like to see more buildings allow pets. It is pretty difficult to find a rental property that allows them, especially for seniors.
- Separate dog parks for big and small breeds
- Fines and jail time for dog bites and an animal that killed other animals

- Dog size parks
- Chickens are is important part of a sustainable future
- I think that the idea of dog training should be either replaced or supplemented with dog behaviour education for owners.
- We are expected to treat all others equal regardless of race. Take that same regard when you look at "Pitbulls”
- You can engage all you want about increased penalties, etc. but unless you are prepared to enforce it's all just lip service.
- Immediate fines for leaving dog feces in bags on the sides of trails. Pet licensing should come with a mandatory online course.
- Na
- I would like the over population of skunks in the North East to be considered. It has become out of control, Cities responsibility to clear
- Additional funding for community volunteer stations to feed stray dogs and cats, and much needed neuter programs to reduce populations.
- There should be a course that potential pet owners should have to take. Uninformed owners often cause pets to be ill-behaved or untrained.
- I would like the city to be able to be involved with problem cats who will not be trapped.
- Give a free 6 month free licensing to approved rescues making it easier on rescues then U automatically can track the next owner as adopted
- Make all pets wear a chip of identification of owner and if abandoned put fines of minimum $1,000. This includes rabbits.
- I don't like how black and white the on-leash vs off-leash restrictions are (except for paved bike paths). NEED SPACE TO EXPLAIN!!!
- Animal attacks on humans should result in euthanasia of the animal. Period.
- Silver Spring Bot. Garden. On leash during peak times (noon to 7 pm) June thru Sept. only.
- Problems with pets are owner related. Breed specific policies and bylaws don't get to the root cause of uneducated, negligent, inattentive o
- "End the sale of dogs at pet stores -- Only rescued adopted animals --
- The World has enough animals --"
- Ban the deed not the breed - 86% of all fatalities are from unfixed canines 92% are male - Spay and neuter” be responsible guardians
- Vets should be required to automatically include license costs to pet owners bill when treating an unlicensed animal/pet.
- I don't find cats at large annoying. I kind of enjoy seeing, possibly petting, a cat when I'm out for a walk.
- Nothing
- Bandanas: add school program to mention this. Increase dog license fee and subsidize training, require dogs to go to lessons.

- No
- this change was thought up by someone who hates dogs and pets in general.
- One problem with high fines is that there is a reluctance to issue tickets when they are viewed as draconian. Lower fines get issued.
- I am at a an off leash park daily and can count on 1 finger the number of incidents regarding any dog bites. Don't fix it if it's not broken
- More controls in place to prevent cats from roaming.
- Dogs on the PATHWAY SYSTEM should be on a tightly controlled, right-hand-sided 3-ft leash. NO Retractable Leashes! (protects passers and dog)
- Wouldn't it be wonderful if everyone actually kept their dogs on leash in on leash areas.
- Maybe The City should consider a restriction on leash length. Only one standard length to allow proper 'control' of their animals.
- All dogs and cats should be banned in the city. They are basically just an annoyance and provide zero benefits.
- I believe this bylaw should not be looking at "pitbull dogs" when that isn't even an official breed. If a dog is deemed dangerous yes
- I have tried totalj to my neighbor about his barking french bull dogs that charge my fence. No solution, [remove] owner = [remove] dogs
- If you're going to let your cat outside, like a dog, it should be licensed, like a dog.
- Cats are an invasive species and damaging the city's ecosystem by killing birds. All cats should be kept inside.
- Banning bringing aggressive breeds into the city from animal rescues outside of the country in large numbers
- Natural areas and habitat must be protected. Enforcement not education!
- Other cities tried BSL then scrapped it due costs $1 million+ a yr tax $$,did not solve incidents of dog bites. All breeds can bite.
- Don't punish a breed - punish irresponsible owners. A dog's actions are the result of its present and past training and treatment.
- Many people with poorly behaved dogs won't enroll in training/obedience because it costs too much. Make subsidized/free training available.
- Survey is written with bias and provides untrue statements to elicit fear not accredited to any body or proof. Shamefully executed.
- The idea of banning a breed based on "bite strength" is a horrible one. Ban bad owners, not bad dogs.
- N/a
- N/A
- Don't discriminate based on breed of dog :(Punishment should be based on pet and owner, not because of breed.

- No to BSL. incentivize licensing, spay and neuter programs and training for all breeds. Rewards to be responsible, consequences when not.
- Leash laws need to be enforced and fines given, especially adjacent to off leash areas.
- If this by-law is passed. It should apply to every breed. All breeds should be included in this new by-law.
- "No to BSL. incentivize licensing, spay and neuter programs and training for all breeds.
- Higher fines for dogs in sport fields/playgrounds and dogs off leash in non off leash areas such as the bike path system.
- Maybe there could be a free course to take on dog training which will actually help people and pets be happy instead of putting restrictions
- No ideas
- I think is covered good
- Max dogs/cats per household should be 3 of each (not 6) in my opinion.
- Like most surveys, many of the questions are leading questions and include bias. It's frustrating to see surveys used in this manner.
- If an animal is attacked or killed by another animal the owner should have to pay for the vet bill. Thank you all for your help.
- Do not introduce breed specific legislation!!!
- The idea of specific pets being muzzled is gross injustice to pet owners.
- Having a pet is a responsibility. Owners should have to prove via a strict but fair class that they can care for an animal.
- Do not agree with any form of breed specific legislation.
- The breed of a dog should not matter if they are aggressive they should all be treated the same and the owners fined the same
- I feel that the owner of the animal that caused injury or death to humans or pets should have to pay medical/vet bills. Not a flat rate.
- Was great thanks!
- I have a big issue with cat owners. We have a lot of cats wandering fPeople spend money on their gardens for people's cats to use as a toilet
- There should be a limit to how many cats and dogs owned in high density condo areas such as the Beltline, Mission and Kensington areas.
- I would like to see more officer out in the off leash parks. I would like them to educate and make the pet owner feel safe. Less policing.
- Your animal attacks you pay for medical bills. Person who got attacked should not be the person trying to facilitate this payment
- I also support limiting the # of dogs walked off-leash by professional dog-walkers at dog parks as their ability to control them is impacted
- Education for pet owners and non-pet owners about what responsible pet ownership really means and how to responsibly interact with pets.

- Currently there is little or no enforcement of any pet bylaw. Take a look at Calgary's largest off leash feces park, Nose Hill.
- We require more public education Concerning protecting our urban wildlife they are important to our environment
- No outdoor dogs overnight. Dogs must be allowed in overnight to prevent excessive barking.
- BSL only punishes the responsible pet owners. Negligent owners will continue to raise aggressive animals just a different breed
- "delete the word "" RESPONSIBLE "" our of the
- responsible pet ownership bylaw
- it assumes people are irresponsible"
- N/A
- bsl leads to mass euthanasia of said dogs regardless of behavior and has proven ineffective in stopping problems. Drop the bsl movement
- I think loud dogs should be fined
- All dogs larger than 40 lbs should be required to wear a harness with their lease attached to the harness rather than their collar.
- fines collected for a dog attacking another animal should be used to help the owner of the attacked animal with vet bills
- Not right now
- Higher fine and consequences for roaming cats.
- Easier way to report roaming cats
- Actual follow through of punishment for irresponsible owners who let their cats roam
- Negligent owners need to be held more accountable and not the responsible owners
- .
- All cats should be kept inside as per the bylaw or outside on their property with a leash.
- Roaming cat control
- Instant fine for allowing your cat to roam free.
- Responsible pet owners know where their pets are at all times.. That says alot about roaming cat owners..
- Charging people who let their cats roam unsupervised.
- Fines for people who allow their cats to damage other's property.
- Easier way to report roaming cats. [DUPLICATE]
- Steeper consequences and follow through for people who let their pets roam freely.
- Easier way to report roaming cats [DUPLICATE]
- Better system to prevent roaming cats.
- Easier way to deal with roaming cats
- Easier way to report roaming cats [DUPLICATE]
- More simple way to report roaming cats and officers to deal with owners
- An officer immediately sent out to give cat owners a ticket if their cat is reported roaming

- STOP pandering to [remove]. It just [remove] down the herd. This should be mandatory, especially after this Covid scare. All animals do this.
- Bylaw officers that fine roaming cat owners
- Increase in Roaming cat control
- I believe offenders and the outcome of bylaw investigations should be made public so the victim knows what happened.
- There are no lights in off leash areas and no shelters. When it's dark in the winter you can't visit a park in the evening as you can't see.
- An owner's dog who has attacked or harmed another pet or human should be responsible for the victim's medical bills.
- Ban pit bulls entirely
- Dog and Owner who has attacked another animal/human should be required to display an identifier that their dog has shown aggressive behavior
- No other ideas, just safer communities with big scary dogs. Pet owners need to be more respectful.
- I know it might not be popular but I think people who rent should not be allowed to have more than 1 cat and 1 dog.
- None
- Lighting in parks for night time walks, more garbage bins located in the park, not just at the park entrances. More bylaw for non poo pickup
- Pit bulls are just one potentially aggressive breed - how do you identify a dangerous animal before an incident takes place?
- Urban chickens are a responsible way to ensure food security in Calgary
- No
- Cute! Any new proposed by-law pertaining to pets or animals in general should be drafted in a logical, common sense manner, sans "woke".
- .
- I feel that people need to understand that not all pitbulls are bad animals. I have met and seen smaller dogs that are more aggressive.
- It is irresponsible to let cats damage neighbour's properties. Negligent free roaming cat owners MUST be fined more.
- Roaming cats, cats, cats- enforce this please! Also dogs on the drivers lap in a moving car- irresponsible to the extreme.
- No
- To be fair, Peace Officer should investigate before sending out letter to pet owner. Nuisance neighbor can lie and pick on a can't talk pet!
- Animal enforcement should be fair to both owner and complainer! 311 should not just issue letter very time when receiving a call. Waste $!
- No
- It is wrong to make rules specific to breed. It's bad owners not breed.

- See Sherwood Park's bylaw for reducing licence fees for people who prove current engagement in dog obedience classes
 - I think that pet owners should be tracked as to how many of their pets have been deemed nuisance. Prohibit repeat offenders from owning pets
 - Let's have training for dogs a positive mission. Affordable and in some cases refunded for the low income owners. We can do this!
 - People should be aware that they are in an off leash dog park. If you don't like dogs, choose a different park! Calgary has lots!
 - I think dogs should be allowed to walk on paved paths in an off leash park, especially if you have a disability or if you have a stroller.
 - After removing the signs for "no dogs in parks"; because of sign pollution. Can you please place a sticker on the garbage cans in parks.
 - enforce the rules we already have. Stop vilifying a breed. Pitbulls are no more dangerous than any other breed but that never makes news
 - Owners of animals should have to be licensed as well as the animals themselves. Most dog owners seem to be ignorant and self-righteous about
 - mandatory training for dogs showing aggressive behaviour should be prioritized over or go along with fines for pet owners
 - No I dont
 - Fines for not picking up your dog feces are not enforce in the west downtown area and I would love to see that improve.
 - No
 - No
 - Dog owners are responsible for their dogs. The punishment for a dog attacking another dog, a child or an adult should be more than a fee.
 - I would like to see 'Pitbull types', described earlier, banned from our city. They have proven over and over to be extremely dangerous!
 - Pit bulls and similar aggressive breeds should be banned. I'd love to say I've met intelligent, responsible pitbull owners, but I have not.
 - ban [remove]not dogs!
 - I think cats at large should receive stiffer penalties
 - no
 - When nuisance animals are reported, the animals should be removed from the home and owners prohibited from owning animals in future.
 - "Owners of pets have to be responsible
- If their animal hurts, kills another animal owner of pet responsible for all damages ie vet bills"

- Fines must be a reflection of the actual damage done. If a dog attacks the fines should be greater than the medical bills for the human or p
- Age restrictions, and mental health checks should be enforced for all pitt owners. 25yr+. This is not a breed for an inexperienced handler.
- If your dog attacks someone make it illegal for that person to own another high aggressive dog breed without mental health check
- Nuisance dogs have no place in this city. If a dog cannot behave, it should be removed or euthanized.
- A lifetime animal license is a great idea.
- By-law officers should be patrolling the off leash areas daily, monitoring owners for cleaning after dogs and enforcing the rules.
- I very much favor a pitbull ban. A breed that kills more kids in the U.S. every year than all other breeds combined has no place here.
- Something needs to be done about off leash dogs in non off leash parks. These dogs defecate and owners do not pick up. Also risk for attacks
- I support BSL and would like the process to legally own a pitbull to be so difficult that it deters people from choosing the breed.
- Negligent owners or owners of convicted pets should have to pay medical bills for victims
- I think rules about feeding wildlife should NOT apply to feeding birds on private property; this should be allowed and encouraged!
- There needs to be similar malice toward dangerous dog owners as there is to lawful gun owners.
- As a cat lover and previous cat owner, no more unattended outdoor cats! Indoor cats are healthier and live longer.
- Negligent owners should have to pay medical bills for victims whether they are humans or animals.
- Nothing at the moment.
- Owners should have to attend training with all dogs
- Owners must be fully responsible for their pet behaviour assuming all consequences and damages.
- Have you addressed reptilian pets? Large loud birds? Rabbits?
- Consider the OWNERS and not the pitbull as the problem. An animal, aggressive breed or not behaves in response to how they've been treated.
- Pitbulls should be banned from the city of Calgary period.
- Off leash dog fines should be increased for violations on or near school fields or playgrounds where children are often playing.
- Pet offending owners should be responsible for incurred vet bills for the injured pet.
- There is no way that a special kind of Dog Breed should be picked on. There is just as many small (tiny) Dogs aggressive as big Dogs
- Aggressive breed dogs should have significantly higher licensing fees. Perhaps $1,000 per annum per animal. ie; Pitbulls

- There's a HUGE difference between nuisance and vicious. For shame whomever drafted this survey and lumped them together. Ur bias is showing
- Off lease parks and bike-running paths problematic. dogs are often not under control. Please change most parks to on leash. Enforcement!!!!
- There should be fines for releasing unwanted reptiles/fish into Calgary. If you don't want a reptile or fish anymore, they should be rehomed
- Children need to be taught not to come up to dogs and assume it is okay. Parents need to take responsibility for their children.
- Pit bulls are not the problem. All dogs require training as do their owners. Focus on prevention and not on breed-specific policies.
- More fenced in Lrg off leash parks. Ppl who don't like dogs have many park options already. Pet owners and their pets need more places to go.
- More transparent communication of the dangers of pit bulls and pit bull like breeds and the added responsibility owners need to assume.
- All dogs should have to go through training. If someone wants to own a pet, they should be required to take puppy/dog training.
- Good neighbour program - too many concerned ab what the other person is doing. Less regulation. We need to learn live beside each other
- N/A
- "Owners need minimum awareness of obligations about being good neighbours.
- Don't let dogs go off leash in the Bow or Elbow River."
- Dogs that bite/injure people and/or pets should be automatically put down. They can't be rehabilitated and their owners don't seem to care.
- ??
- Owners who have multiple violations or an animal abuse conviction should not be allowed to have pets.
- Na
- I think when a dog exits the house he should be on leash to avoid him attacking a person or a vehicle passing by
- Each bite incident needs to be reviewed on a case basis. What caused it? Is the animal abused? Was it protecting? Is the animal in pain?
- Enforcement and fines for dogs off leash in non off leash areas in the city no matter how big or small the dog is.
- Noise nuisance should be easier to report and investigate.
- an endlessly barking dog needs to be dealt with, how? if it's your dog figure it out
- I do not believe licensing should be required for pets that are 100% indoors. I live in a condo and have 2 cats that never leave my unit.
- The pandemic hurt people financially and mentally. Bad year to decide to go after people's dogs as well. Pretty gross city of Calgary.

- Dogs that have a tendency to bark should be muzzled when outdoors. No Exceptions!
- The vet fees in Calgary are ridiculous and it's cheaper to go out of the area or even province to get medical attention.
- Why are we increasing the complexity and scope of pet bylaws when the city and province are in a budget crisis?
- More parks where dogs are not allowed in Calgary. I cannot go for a walk without someone's off leash dog following or barking at me.
- Dogs barking all around my house, seldom any peace, these folks don't care a dam about my quiet enjoyment of my life.
- No evidence to support BSL is effective, very expensive to enforce, better to enforce the bylaw [personal information remove] worked hard for.
- The city needs to get to the root of the problem. BSL is not the answer. Stricter fines that are actually enforced and education!!
- BSL is ineffective and not backed up by behaviour science or animal control
- If a dog kills another dog the owner should be responsible for all vet bills related to the incident
- When [personal information remove] was around bites were down 75% with no BSL. Owners were expected to be in control and responsible of their animals
- Off leash dog owners should be fined immediately. No warnings, they don't listen.
- There should be NO pet stores that sell any size of animal allowed. I only shop at and support pet stores that sell pet food and supplies.
- Make available to pet stores, veterinarians and animal adoption places, a pamphlet of the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaws.
- Prevent unfair judgements based on breed or breed bias. Other breeds have similar bite forces as Pit Bulls have.
- BSL legislation is NOT effective. It's disgusting to have a plebiscite on banning specific breeds. Owners should be held accountable.
- The issue is generally irresponsible pet owners - any changes should focus on penalizing these owners and not just the animal.
- Disappointing seeing that Calgary wrote the book on how to prevent dog bites. This direction towards BSL is regressive.
- If animals are a nuisance of any kind; the pet owner must attend classes to improve animal behaviour with proof of attendance and change inPet
- There is an over abundance of off leash dog parks in Calgary. More park space that does not include off leash use is needed.
- Need to educate people that wandering cats kill birds (our bird populations are in grave danger). Don't make it necessary to give your name
- I would suggest that more reminder signs up in the parks with emphasize on consequences if breaking bylaws. I.e: Fine $ for breaking bylaws
- Pet ownership is a privilege and not a right. Those who cannot follow the rules should loose that privilege.

- I feel that an owner who continually breaks bylaws should be mandated to take a city pet education course.
- "Make more parks on leash -Especially Botanical Gardens of Silver Springs!!
- People Parks- no dogs allowed
- Higher fines for barking dogs."
- There is a huge problem in Sunnyside with cat owners allowing their animals to roam freely. Traps and greater fines should be implemented.
- Shame on this team for trying to bring in BSL which doesn't work and wasting time and money on this. Is our city not in a budget crisis?
- Too many NIMBY. We share common spaces. Dogs should be on leash (where needed) and off leash (when allowed). Don't want to share, stay home.
- Stop being racist against dog breeds it's not the dog it's the owner the owner has to teach the dog right from wrong. PUNISH THE OWNER
- Nothing
- encourage and reward spay/neuter. abusive pet owners should receive jail time, fines, and NEVER be allowed to own animals again
- Police parks like Bowness Park- people walking their dogs off leash all the time - issue fines even for 1st time offense - no waive fine.
- Feces should be picked up immediately in your yard not just once a day.
- Defund and disband bylaw
- A person needs a licence to catch a fish in this country but anyone can get a dog. It is NEVER the dog's fault, no matter what breed.
- Pet owners need to be aware of severe allergies some people have and ensure their pet does not interact with anyone who has not consented
- Pathetic. Breed specific, really?! You should be ashamed of yourselves; you should be above this by now. Time 2 find a new job? #IThinkSo
- Sorry I missed phase one. Something needs to be done about the system to handle barking dogs.
- Calgary NO BSL. PLEASE do your research first. History shows BSL does not work. Refer to [personal information removed] Bruce!!!
- Dogs assist seniors to stay active. More local off leash areas and dog runs, ability to bring on leash dogs into public buildings.
- I want owners responsible for a victim's vet/medical expenses.
- Get rid of pit bulls within city limits.
- Dog training certificates should be made mandatory, as it relates to responsible dog ownership. My dog received her training at Dogma.
- N/A
- All registered nonprofit rescues should be able to receive a 6-month free license for their rescue dogs, transferable to the new family.

- Funny that ppl want others to prove they can train an animal, but ppl can have as many children as they want w/ no training needed.
- Owners--not specific dogs--need to be tracked for multiple offences. BSL means negligent and abusive owners will just get different dogs.
- These ideas are from people who have never owned a pet and do not like animals they are not constructive in the slightest.
- Why do all these comments sound like someone who hates pets wrote them?
- Pet owners should be allowed to defend/dispute complaints against their pets. Its a bit of a one sided business.
- These ideas sound like they are not well thought out at all. Pet owners responsible for other peoples allergies are you joking?
- Forcing cats to stay indoors is animal abuse, cats are made to roam around. Why rules counter to nature?
- Many proposals specifically mentioned "pit bulls";. Pit bulls are not a problem. The owners that do not train or control vicious animals are.
- Not a fan of breed-specific legislation.
- I encounter too many uncontrolled off-leash dogs, even in on-leash areas. Dogs who can't be controlled shouldn't be let off-leash at all.
- Who will determine if a dog has a "similar appearance or physical characteristics"; to a pit bull? Sounds like [remove] (and BSL).
- We recommend stiffer fines and incarceration for animal abusers. There should also be laws in place for adopting an animal.
- No
- There were no mention of the people who hoard animals. They many only have 1 dog/cat however have a number of other animals.
- A separate set of rules for Pitbulls is ludicrous, all dog breeds should have the same penalties for the same offences.
- "- accountability for drivers who run over dogs. Accident or not.
- -accountability to the owner of out of control dogs."
- A breed specific survey? I suggest [personal information removed] follows [personal information removed]; out the door next October for approving such. Shame on you and your ignorance
- all are here
- If pit bulls weren't a problem, there would be no discussion about them. Anywhere! It's mostly the people. But they were bred for fighting.
- Free spay and neuter program. More support of animals who need to be adopted.
- Rather than fines alone, consider enforcing responsible ownership through education- such as an order to complete an obedience course.
- Very high licensing costs for pitbull type dogs. Grandfather those who currently have but ban for new licensing.

- Have bylaw officers patrol the parks to fine people who do not pick up after their own dogs. Have the bylaw officers hand out tickets!!!
- It should be mandatory for first time dog or cat owners to take a free short 2 or 3 hour course on husbandry and responsible pet ownership.
- Targeting a specific breed of dog is wrong and biased. That is like saying all big dogs are bad. It is better to define what is a nuisance dog
- Offending dog owner should have to pay vet/hospital fees for victimized dog/human
- All bully dog breeds should be muzzled in public, better yet banned totally. Can't love out the inbred meanness.
- Pet's owner should pay vet bill.
- Ppl pushing for higher licensing fees, stop it. Higher fees mean fewer ppl opting to license their pets. Lower fees = higher compliance.
- By law officers frequent public parks to ensure leash compliance. There are so many dogs running free in parks and this is scary for kids.
- If want a license - have to submit plans as to where/how they will shelter animal, how many hours they will be home with it; spot checks
- Owners should have to pay for vet bills incurred when their dog harms another animal.
- Please ban pit bull breeds from dog parks. I have a g retriever and she is the best dog in the world and I'd die if a pit bull killed her
- Free licensing for rescue dogs.
- Once your beloved dog has been mauled by a Pitbull you will change your mind about letting them in our city!!!
- Please do not enact BSL. It does not work. If you're worried about powerful bites in pits you might as well include Rotties, Cane Corsos too
- No
- Pitbulls were bred to fight - pure and simple. You can't love that characteristic of of them.
- Fewer bylaws and more community cooperation is needed, people can live better together and not look to bylaw enforcement.
- Instead of fines the money could be paid towards obedience lessons, this would actually go toward solving the issue.
- Have off leash areas for small and tiny dogs.
- Every 'problem dog' has one thing in common: an owner. Enforce bylaws/fines more often and have repeat offenders take obedience classes.
- What is it with your nanny-state bull-tweet? Leave people alone for Pete's sake. Licensing indoor only cats is invasive enough!!!!
- my ideas are FOR SALE not free.
- Quit bringing in aggressive dogs/pit bulls from other provinces/countries. It's adding to our problem and helping their problem.

- Higher license fee for aggressive dog breeds. Like $1000 each. Make it harder for people with mean dog mentality to get them.
- There should be a zero tolerance policy for dogs who attack/bite people. Remove these dogs from their homes and have them destroyed.
- "STOP SELLING PETS IN CALGARY
- STOP SUPPORTING PUPPY MILLS
- STOP SUPPORTING ANIMAL ABUSE"
- I am so disappointed in this city for trying to enact BSL, and all of the ignorant people supporting it. Education and compassion is needed.
- Pet owners need to be given a fair opportunity to defend their pets.
- 47 OF 51 VICK DOGS WERE REHABBED 0 INCIDENCE OF AGGRESSION - LIVED W/ CHILDREN and ANIMALS GOOD CANINE AWARD and THERAPY DOGS IT'S NOT THE BREED
- BSL is ignorant and wrong!!
- Insurance? Higher licensing fees? This is just going to ensure LESS people comply.
- Post targeting "PIT BULLS" (not a breed) are from uninformed ignorant pit hating propagandists ignoring science and fact
- Truly disappointing that [[personal information removed] Calgary Model that had a 5 fold reduction in bites is even being considered replaced by ineffective BSL
- BSL is a failure the world over bites and severity are up in Toronto - Yet pit bulls are gone -
- Spain - Journal of Veterinary Behaviour '07 showed the BSL (2000), targeted a number of breeds had no impact on reducing dog related injurie
- Italy '09, abolished its BSL, which applied to 17 breeds down from 92 breeds, in favour of BNL like the Calgary Model
- BSL is a failure the world over - 0.02313 % of communities in America have BSL 21 states have banned it and repeals happen frequently
- BSL leads to higher costs to cities and taxpayers. The list of cities that tried BSL but removed it because it did not work is long.
- More enforcement of people walking dogs off leash in on leash areas! It's a big problem! It means less attacks and threats from loose dogs!
- Disable the like and dislike buttons one person can click them as many times as they want for their side. They are not accurate or fair.
- People with aggressive dogs won't take classes in training. They don't care. They run away with their dog when it attacks someone.
- Don't wat to be responsible for some ones vet/medical bills? Don't let your dog run loose!
- Ban pit bulls, it's the only proactively enforceable thing you can do. Start enforcing defecation bylaws as well, currently it's poor.
- Fines for barking dog owners
- Ban pit bulls and enforce leash bylaws for other dogs.
- Ban negligent owners they are the real root if the problem.

- Start actually enforcing our current bylaw with increased fines and you will see a difference
- Yes to making your own food
- Take the emotion out of it and look at science and FACTS. BSL has been proven to NOT reduce bites and aggression.
- Calgary should ban the sale of animals in pet stores, and only allow adoptions of rescued animals.
- Higher licensing fees will only encourage negligent owners to not license their dogs.
- Mandatory obedience training classes
- Increase licensing fees for dogs that have not taken obedience training
- G
- It seems that plenty of [remove] owns pitbulls. Can we not just ban them from the city?
- Stop trying to punish good owners. Go after bad owners. When someone causes a car accident not all black trucks are banned from the road.
- There are no bad dogs just bad owners. Owners of undisciplined dogs need to be held financially responsible with enforced training.
- We see more roaming cats in the neighbourhood than off-leash dogs. Owners need to keep their cats indoors and not out hunting.
- Xx
- Abolish the idea of BSL it does not work. Check the facts!
- Anti NIMBY community supports / programs, we have a city without a sense of community that want a bylaw officer to tend to every annoyance.
- There should be restrictions on how many pets are licensed in downtown. Our parks are being ruined by dog pee. There are too many dogs
- Why is BSL even still being considered in 2020? It does not work. It is about the dog and their training, not the breed!
- Stop targeting Bully breeds. It's not the breed it's the owner. All owners should be responsible dog owners period.
- This city seems full of hateful awful people. Pretty disgusting stuff. We don't deserve dogs.
- My pitbull has been attacked by several lab types and needed vet attention. This didn't make the news because it doesn't fit a bias narrative
- Most dog owners are responsible. Roaming Cats are a problem in our area. The ones we see are hunting birds and using the gardens for toilets
- Stop targeting the bully breeds . People need to be trained and the dogs need training also . It's the same as driving a powerful vehicle .
- Classifying all bully breeds under the aggressive umbrella is uneducated and based on fear. FACT all dogs have the potential to bite.
- All dogs can be aggressive up to owner to keep dog under control at ALL times. Enforce stronger fines NO TO BSL
- Specific breeds are not the problem, but we DO need more of check on BAD owners of more potentially dangerous dogs- not exclusively pitbulls

- I only support Breed NEUTRAL Legislation
- Refer to [personal information removed] program. Lower bites when he was around and he did not support BSL
- Wild birds should be allowed to be fed on private property.
- Prohibited any pet in the light of under 2 year old baby at home, please.
- Stop targeting Pitbulls. They do not statistically show to bite more. Aggressive dogs is the terminology that should be used. All dogs.
- If everyone just took care of their animals. Kept dogs under control and on leash. Cats inside not roaming. Why is it so hard for so many?
- Please don't increase the number of dogs/cats people can have. It's hard enough for people to take care of and control the ones they have.
- Does a pet licence come with a set of guidelines for responsible pet ownership? A synopsis of the bylaw(s) and penalties for infractions?
- BSL is not backed by science, fact, or any logic whatsoever in keeping citizens of Calgary safe. Very disappointing to see.
- FACT: No supporting evidence that banning breeds has any impact on dog bites.....PERIOD
- Researchers have identified the factors that lead to a dog bite.....BREED IS NOT ONE OF THEM
- BSL wastes money.....with no reduction of bites to show for it.
- Lower the annual pet license fee for owners who put their dog through training and increase the annual pet license 4 cats/dogs found roaming
- Please chickens. We love a da chickens!
- Please limit the number of dogs a dog walker can walk at one time. It is very difficult to watch many dogs at one time in order to pick up.
- Why is the dog barking? Is someone provoking it?
- My arm was destroyed by a lab cross not my American bulldog. BSL's do not work, punish bad owners they are problem not the animal.
- BSL a simplistic answer to a more complex social problem has the potential to divert attention and resources from more effective approaches
- While BSL may look good on the surface it is not a reliable or effective solution in reducing dog bites
- Breed bans do not address the social issue of irresponsible pet ownership
- Banning a specific breed can give the community a false sense of security around other breeds that are not deemed "restricted";
- Calgary should focus on leash laws, licensing, and responding to owners of any dog or breed that posed a risk to the community
- Enforcement of non breed specific bylaws focusing on chronically irresponsible owners
- Spay/neuter of all animals that are not from a registered breeder
- School based and adult education programs that teach pet care responsibility and bite prevention
- Implement bite prevention programs in schools and communities
- Mixing "bike paths" and "off leash".....don't mix. This year has been exceptionally "trying".

- Putting a ban on a specific breed is no different than saying a person of a specific race should not be allowed in a community.
- It is not the dogs that people should fear, it's their owner. Dogs respond the way they are trained and treated.
- Not long ago German shepherds had the same stereotype, and now look at them: The poster dog for police officers. NO TO BSL
- Everyone has an opinion about "pitbulls"; those that are the loudest are usually the least informed.
- "Legislation that is implemented by fear mongering rather than based on sound evidence is unjust.
- NO TO BSL"
- "When fear panic and ignorance trumps logic living creatures suffer. And we should all be concerned.
- NO TO BSL"
- No room for labeling of any kind. Shame on you Calgary
- The root of the problem will never be solved if we just focus on the easy way out....banning breeds. Focus on the owner and the individual c
- Make policy on the best research and data available. Publish info on best practices where policy has had a positive impact on dog incidents.
- It takes weeks for a bylaw officer to visit owners of barking dogs. Speed up that process.
- Do you think by banning a breed you will stop these negligent owners they will find another breed to exploit.
- People are ignoring existing bylaws. Eg dogs within 10m of playground areas. We need bylaw enforcement ie people must have consequences
- Education is HUGE in implementing responsible pet ownership, lack thereof results in irresponsible owners
- Breed bias is wrong. It is owners not pit bulls that are responsible for their behavior
- make owners responsible fully in every aspect of whatever their animal does to someone or something else
- The Botanical Gardens in Silver Springs should not be an off leash area. There are too many dogs and dog owners do not control their dogs.
- All dogs owners say dishonestly this is a friendly dog and selfishly underestimate the inconvenience they make to others.
- Dogs bite for a reason look at the circumstances surrounding the incident
- All dogs bite.....not all are reported
- Only sign needed is a very LARGE one saying DOGS ON PATHS MUSTBE ON A LEASH FINE $? + NoDOGS ON PLAYGROUNDS SIGNS YOU HAVE NOW CONFUSIN
- Why are we talking about "pitbulls"; when they are not involved in more bite incidents than other breed? Seems odd and unjust

- Lets not try and fix the problem lets just put a bandaid on it. City of Calgary I expected more from you. BSL is not the answer shame on you
- BSL does not improve public safety or prevent dog bites!
- BSL ignores potential attacks/bites of non-targeted breeds
- BSL requires every dog to be identified as a breed something that is impossible to do accurately and objectively
- BSL makes targeted breeds even more desirable to irresponsible and criminal owners
- BSL does nothing to make irresponsible dog owners accountable
- BSL punishes responsible dog owners
- BREED DOES NOT PREDICT BEHAVIOUR
- Many cities and countries all around the world are repealing BSL because it has proven to not work. Why is Calgary talking about it?
- "Owner behaviour has a direct impact on dog aggression and personality" — Journal of Animal and Veterinary Advances
- Limit the number of dogs a dog walker can take in the off-leash area to six (6). Bigger groups can be intimidating/threatening to some dogs.
- PROVIDE MORE "NO DOGS" AREAS. THERE DOES NOT SEEM TO BE ANY PLACES TO GO WITHOUT PEOPLE AND THEIR DOGS. ENFORCE BARKING DOG COMPLAINTS.
- There are many responsible, law abiding bully owners in this city! Do not punish them.
- More signs around playgrounds and athletic parks saying "no dogs". It is not clear. People let their dogs run around and pee where kids play
- Less off leash areas. If you can't exercise a dog without taking it for a walk/run/bike ride then get a different breed of dog.
- Enforce leash laws. Too many nuisance dogs off leash who aren't trained in recall.
- I don't trust off leash dogs. Owners shout "he's friendly" as their pet runs up to me and tries to hurt my pet. Enforce leash laws.
- The fines for dog attacks and bites are currently very low and has to be increased.
- License owners and not the pets.
- Need to enforce owners picking up after their dogs great we have the bylaw but I love on a green belt and to many people do not pick up afti
- incentives for pet owners to do obedience training. ie discount on license fees if there the animal /owner successfully completes course
- Dogs off leash has become a frequent issue. We have 3 kids and they have been chased and jumped on. More frequent enforcement required.
- No
- The ability to send in a complaint online and a 3 strike system for fines.
- Off leash areas should be separate (fenced) from other areas of parks to reduce conflict. Many are close to playgrounds, pthwys, bike trails
- Pit dogs should be banned within City limits

- Barking is normal with a young dog and they should be warned to take an obedience class. If no intervention is applied then a fine Issued
- Barking is not controlled strictly enough , five minutes twice per day in backyard is maximum .
- "1. Small dog off leash dog park/area in each quadrant of city.
- 2. Security cameras in off leash dog parks to reduce number of dog attacks"
- BSL is a waste of tax payers money no evidence it actually works. Money will be better spent elsewhere
- Formal Obedience training should be required to license any dog over a specified weight or size. Obedience training is more for the owner!
- I would support narking bylaws for repeat offenders or owners that don't take action for a barking dog immediately.
- Questions asked about lowering fees but did not mention how this drop on revenue would be covered.
- Waive license fee for retired working animals
- No
- The city needs more dog free green areas for people who are allergic or afraid of dogs.
- Need Bylaw officers patrolling on leash parks and areas around off leash parks for dogs off leash. It's constant. Fine owners, no warning.
- It's important to centralize registration for the integrity of the program.
- Na
- Yes, you put in questions in such a way on Phase 1/2 survey that, A. Combines very different questions (i.e. Teasing or Feeding of animals)
- Like zoos which keep animals that are too large for an enclosure, it's no diff than Large Dogs kept in house/condo that should be banned
- "Punishing a breed is blind sided and simple minded . Punish bad owners .
- Make a law that stops landlords from banning pets for no reason"
- Fines should increase every time a cat found free roaming is taken to animal control.
- My pit bull has been attacked more than once. Won't even fight back. If she had, what would the press have said? What people want to here.
- Don't punish the breed punish the bad owners.
- N/a
- I support BREED NEUTRAL BYLAW get to the root of the issue——irresponsible owners who are not in control of their pets.
- I have a pitbull mix and he is the sweetest boy, always smiling, always happy to see people and other dogs. Don't punish a breed please.
- EDUCATION RE: use of neighbour's property as dog potty, use of neighbour's garden as free range for dogs, off leash- not out of control
- Feed wild birds on our property.
- Support BNL. hold negligent and reckless owners accountable for their animals' behavior.

- Calgary has an off leash law. Enforce it! Ppl controlling their dogs = no attacks. Then there is no discussion for BSL.
- Don't make thing breed specific.
- Targeting bully breeds is absolutely ridiculous and short sighted. NO BREED SPECIFIC BY-LAWS.
- I think it is wrong to single out a specific breed or a specific type of breed in any laws. The responsibility should be on the owner!
- Lunging dogs should be fined as well. It is very scary experience for anyone victim of such incidents
- Have enclosed areas in off leash parks for people to work 1:1 with their dogs in a solitary setting if they struggle with socialization.
- Dog feces in public areas are an unsightly public health hazard. Implement a DNA testing system as in other cities. Very effective.
- There is no good scientific evidence that BSL reduces bites. What DOES and needs to be addressed - unneutered dogs, roaming dogs, prev bites
- Require DNA sample upon licensing. Useful for identifying culprits who don't pick up their dog's droppings, currently unenforceable.
- Owners of dogs left alone that bark all day in a house or condo (a dwelling) should receive a fine.
- Steeply increase fines for repeat offenders. Third offence results in revocation of pet license.
- Targeting specific breeds is an oversimplified and pandering solution. Make owners more responsible, don't feed public fear with rhetoric.
- I think the ideas are comprehensive and well-thought out. My only comment is to have more funds directed toward education vs enforcement.
- With respect to pet ownership limits, if the pets behaviors' become disruptive and a complaint is lodged, bylaw should exist to limit the #
- Excessive barking- if repeat offender, owner should have to purchase and use an AboiStop collar (citronella) to stop dog barking
- "Level 4 and 5 bites: Euthanasia after end of rabies hold.
- Level 2 and Level 3: Quarantine at home till decision.
- Level 1- Warning."
- There should be a bylaw re dog size as an example my neighbor has a dog you could put a saddle on and ride it, not fair to a big dog living
- Overregulation of pet ownership!!! Feeding wild birds on private property does not hurt anyone and helps the birds.
- Can't stop wildlife eating fallen fruit or berries on private property. Do not try to regulate this!
- Don't punish the breed , i have yet to meet a bad pit bull yet . The punishment must be higher for the owners of any animal out of control
- Forcing cats to be indoors only is the same as keeping wild animals caged. It is not natural. And they help keep mouse populations down.
- Higher fines and make it easier to fine owners that let their dogs bark outside for extended periods of time.

- I am satisfied with those put forward
- Make the humans responsible, not the dog (in most cases). Blaming a dog is ignoring the actual issue. Learning DOG language is needed!
- I would rather be surrounded by dogs and cats than a lot of the pet hating bitter people commenting.
- Bylaw for putting leashes on children that can't behave in a dog park.
- Your survey clearly shows a negative bias to one specific breed of dog. You should change the wording so that one breed is not discriminated
- I would like more flexibility to take pets (dogs etc) to more public areas, with less restrictions.
- Regardless of the breed, the responsibility falls on the owner. Animal ownership is a privilege and, like others, may be revoked if abused
- Dogs only have so many off leash areas to enjoy, have we considered the risk factors they face? Cyclists? Unsupervised children? Toys?
- I am strongly opposed to breed specific bylaws.
- Come in Calgary. Pit bulls or any muscular dogs called "pit bulls" are not the problem - let's focus on irresponsible owners/nuisance dogs.
- Are there published statistics to support reasons for BSL? We should not suggest subjective by-laws without objective evidence.
- The fee structure seemed overall ok but they should be based on the number of infractions and go up and at some point your animal taken away
- Stop associating specific breeds to aggression. It's not typically the breed that's an issue it's the owner.
- Education & Exclusion
- Dogs who injure another animal should pay for vet bills. Pit bulls should never be off leash and muzzling is a good idea. Then these events
- The growth in the mouse population increases the risk of hantavirus transmission to humans. Cats should be allowed to roam and hunt freely.
- Backwards baseball cap, lifted truck with Pit bull hanging out the window barking at everyone... These are the owners who are the problem!
- Dog off-leash areas (such as the one along Toronto Cr NW) should not be located along streets unless the area is fenced. Dangers for all.
- Dog owners must be made aware that any paved path or street is NOT an off-leash area and it is their responsibility to keep their dog away.
- No
- n/a
- Should you wish to own a "higher risk" animal, you must pass a specific animal training course provided at the owners expense.
- Breed Specific Legislation (BSL) does not work! Please do not go down this path of folly. Just look at other jurisdictions.

- Transporting loose animals in truck beds is a risk for everyone, animals should travel safely in the car or in a secure crate.
- There should be more severe punishment for animal abusers. There should be lifetime sentences for those that torture and murder animals (pet
- No other ideas, but I would like to re-iterate my support for allowing people to have chickens or other livestock where possible.
- It's about time Calgary caught up with many other major cities and made having chickens legal as well as promoting other urban agriculture
- B
- Cats spread toxoplasmosis which can be deadly to the immunocompromised, elderly, or pregnant. Cats shouldnt be allowed to free roam.
- Tired of cats digging up my garden I work so hard on. It's not a toilet!! Keep cats indoors.
- I would like to see owners of aggressive pets who attack be fined and also have to pay the vet bill of the injured pet or person
- Vote for a BSL free Calgary, BSL does nothing but punish good owners and innocent dogs.
- I think that in cases where a dog attacks another animal, the owner of the attacking dog should be required to pay all/some of the vet bill.
- None
- N/A
- No to BSL. More education and investment in preventing dog bites, breed is NOT a predictor in dog bites.
- We should not single out certin breeds of dogs and way stiffer peneties for animal abusers
- I would like to see owners of bad dogs (aggressive, biting etc) forced by law to take their dog to obedience classes such as Clever Canine.
- Dont group pitbulls as separate from other dogs. Separate what livestock is referenced as a chicken is not the same as a cow.
- Make it a requirement that the owner and the dog have to attend formal training to try and prevent any future incidents for nuisance dogs.
- Would love it if leash laws were enforced more. It's incredibly dangerous when uncontrolled dogs run in front of my bike and car.
- Would be great to add additional fines for speeding bikers in off leash dig parks.
- People please take a dog Behavior course to understand how to make sure your dog is mentally healthy and happy not living in fear and servitude
- Fines collected for nuisance animals used as a fund to support victims of animal attacks, and suppliment fees for low income pet licences
- Is there anything that can be done about a vicious dog next door?I have a neighbor with 1 that attacks the fence when I'm in my yard. Horrid
- I think more education into dog behavior is required. The humane society does great work doing this and more people could listen with ears

- I don't support breed specific legislation or pet sales from pet stores vs from adoption services
- Definition of a pit bull should NOT include animals that LOOK like a pit bull. Dogs are very often incorrectly categorized by looks.
- The problem with dogs is dog owners who let animals run free in on leash areas. I can't walk in nose Hill park anymore. The cat bylaw works
- I think you should need to apply to get a license. Not just anyone should just own a dog without training. People need training.
- Stronger penalties for dogs that bark all day!!! I previously was in a townhouse complex where this was a huge problem, and city just shrugged
- As a tax paying citizen I am not ok supporting a bylaw that is very expensive to enforce such as BSL when there is no evidence it works.
- We have the lowest bite rates in North America with our current bylaws. No need for change, except for reviews of fines.
- I oppose any measures or bylaws that single out specific breeds
- Let us feed wild birds in our yard and have chickens.
- There is a leash law to keep dogs from being a nuisance and prevent attacks. Ppl need to abide by it and the city needs to enforce it more!
- I feel as an avid Pet owner and trainer. People need to be more respectful of other owners/pets. Common Respect . I need more room to type
- Owner pays for all medical/vet bills if their dog attacks. Not only small fee. If they leave scene of attack then it's criminal, go to jail.
- It is a interesting time to try and peg public safety on pit bulls. Who put that 12 year old autistic boy in a coma [personal information removed]
- Keeping all dogs on leashes in public spaces keeps everyone (including your dog, other people's dogs, kids, you yourself, etc) safer!
- Allowing ppl to have more dogs and cats is crazy. With just the expense alone. Then trying to control them. Too many irresponsible owners!
- Offleash areas should be only that. Shocked that botanical garden in silver springs is an offleash area. These are not complimentary uses
- Chickens please. But what is meant by other livestock?
- We should not ban any breed of dog!
- My god, please ban, control, restrict the feeding and housing of pigeons. They are a non-migratory nuisance pest!
- I previously filled out this survey listing fines should be alot lower... BUT I intended to say add money for the victims and owner.
- Only 1 emotional support animal per household. More control of off leash dog parks. ie control waste pickup control.
- Pit bulls are loyal loving dogs n I believe 6 dogs is a good limit in house hold
- A dog is only as dangerous as its owner allows it to be. Do not restrict the breed, restrict the owner

- Bylaws, and related enforcement, need to be kept to a minimum. The city, and residents, need to look for ways to reduce costs.
- More enforcement for nuisance animals and restrictions on owners not breeds!
- There needs to be legislation at every level of government acknowledging and requiring more careful guardianship of all sentient creatures.
- Disappointing to see a once progressive city take steps backwards with this bylaw. [Personal information removed] worked hard for his program and it worked.
- Decisions should be made based on SCIENTIFIC FACTS not based on emotions, what ifs, and hearsay
- Calgary should ban the sale of animals in pet stores and only allow adoptions of rescued animals.
- No BSL and do not allow "farm” species in the city, unless as companion animals and adopted from shelter.
 - Calgary should ban the sale of animals in pet stores and only allow for adoptions of rescued animals.
- Make dog owners criminally responsible for their dogs action. Dog attack = assault charge. Dog kill = manslaughter charge. to owner.
- Leaving a scene of car accident has criminal/civil charges. Owner of a dog that attacks should too and pay medical/vet bills.
- Fines collected from people breaking the bylaw by letting their cat free roam should be put towards TNR.
- I love the bandana idea for dogs.
- Owners should be held criminally responsible (assault/manslaughter) for at fault dog bites. Fines do not deter irresponsible dog owners.
- Increase fines for pets at large. An unsupervised pet can get into trouble and hurt themselves and others.
- I don't support breed specific legislation! There should be a higher focus on owner responsibility not specific dog breeds.
- More Russian tortoise captive breeds in Canada plz
- No
- It is not the breed of the dog it is the owner and the training.
- Need to control number of rescue pets being brought into the city. Calgary has many adoption pets already, do not import more.
- I don't support restricting backyard wild bird feeding. It's a personal choice that comes with personal responsibility.
- I am afraid of dogs. Owners need to shoulder responsibility for the actions of their dogs. Barking is sorta' like a car alarm, no?
- No extra ideas at the moment.
- Too much regulation is bad. Especially for things like bird feeders on private property and urban agriculture. We are not compliant drones.

- A lot of little dogs are highly aggressive and cause dog fights. Little dogs need more training not large breeds.
- A lot of parents can't control their kids but expect animals to act perfect all the time. Take responsibility for your kids and phobias.
- I don't agree with breed specific. Many, many pit bulls are kind and gentle, loveable, and well trained.
- Retailers and breeders of dogs should be required to keep records and test potential owners. The test should include bite prevention.
- Breed specific legislation does not work and puts animals at risk who pose to threat to the community. Make owners more accountable,
- I think 6 dogs AND 6 cats is too many within city limits.
- Cats should be allowed to be outside . Calgary is one of a very few cities to impose restrictions on cats . Rather ban all off leash dogs .
- A bylaw prohibiting the feeding of wildlife on private property should not prohibit the feeding of birds or use of bird feeders.
- Education and licensing of pet owners, for ownership of exotic or animals / dogs over certain size.
- Enforcement of barking dogs seldom leads to a resolution, how can a chicken coop smell go any better?
- I believe if an animal causes property damage, injury to people or another animal, the owner should be held liable for the damages.
- Breed specific legislation is wrong; it assumes one breed is stronger/more aggressive and others are less. We must educate/train people!
- 6 dogs and 6 cats per household is way too many.
- A definite no to chicken coops and their smell!
- Legislating against backyard of feeding wild birds is ridiculous. Feeding protects rarer species; it's also good for our well-being.
- I really hope you leave the bird feeders alone. Punish the owners of cats who don't wear a collar killing my birds instead
- I would actually love to explain an idea, but this format restricts the number of spaces I can type. This is [removed]!
- We have a lot of dog parks however we need more. It is imperative especially in times of covid and it's fall out that we have pets.
- No we do not
- There should be some education around wild animals and the city should consider partnering with other groups; to reach more people.
- No idea.
- No

- Bird feeders need to be allowed. Livestock belong on larger spaces in the country (chickens included).
- No
- Little dogs jaws may not lock but they can be very vicious. It is up to the owner to know the dogs personality and treat it accordingly.
- All dog owners should be required to take mandatory pet training program before a licence is given. This includes temper, obedience and
- People who own(ed) dangerous animals involved in incidents should be barred from further ownership of large animals for 2 years within city.
- None at the moment.
- Love cats and dogs but do not want them using my property for their toilet.
- City of Calgary should ban firepits. Smoke can be excessive, hard on people with lung issues, danger of fire that can spread to other homes
- None that I can think of at this time
- Wild bird feeders should not be banned. However, feeding squirrels should be.
- Early warning system. Would rather kids ask permission first from parents then owners. Even the best behaved dogs can over react.
- A city supported, spay/neuter program for low income households.
- If you do include something about feeding wildlife, please explicitly ensure that we will still be able to feed wild birds.
- Fines for not picking up after our dogs should be posted in green spaces and parks. Fines should be enforced.
- "6 cats and 6 dogs. It should be a cumulative total significantly less than 6.
- What is the justification for banning bird feeders?"
- Only if declared a nuisance
- Higher level of enforcement of cats running loose and of any animals defecating on other peoples property, if it is not cleaned up.
- I would support a req't for mandatory training/licensing for owners before purchasing dogs (i.e. similar to vehicle license).
- The City should NEVER consider having a breed specific law
- If the City of Calgary wants to imement dog-breed specific bylaws, the City should fund the DNA tests required to prove breed
- No breed specific legislation. You are promoting uneducated ideologies.
- It would make more sense to me if the pet owner were required to pay the fine to the injured party rather than to the city.
- No one within the city limits should have pigeons. They are dirty and there is enough flying around downtown!
- Neighbours should be considered or surveyed before pigeons are allowed in the neighbourhood.
- Encourage people to get their pets from rescue organizations rather than breeders.

- "NO LAWS FOR PITBULLS
- THEIR BEHAVIOUR IS AT THE FAULT OF THEIR OWNERS NOT THE BREED"
- People should be fined for feeding pigeons on grain on open trays or on the ground on their property.
- Enforcement of wandering cats. No different than letting a dog wander -not okay. Much higher fines are needed to get people to learn.
- The idea of banning the feeding of birds on private property shows how foolish Calgary has become. Feeding birds properly is a good thing!!
- No
- Do not ban bird feeders or baths
- Remove licensing requirements altogether. Or at minimum make it lifetime, repeated registration is only a cash grab by governments.
- Regulate children so they don't chase/touch a stranger's dog. My big dog was chased by a small child on a scooter yelling "puppy"!
- I think your fines for dog violations (eg. biting another dog or human etc) are in line. Victims can choose to sue.
- Breed specific bans do not work. There should be more education for responsible pet ownership. Heavier fines for puppy and kitten mills.
- I think the biggest challenge is having rules that aren't enforced. If there is no monitoring, rules aren't followed.
- Can not think of anything else.
- Other strong dogs - Shepherds, Huskies, Dogo Argentino, Rottweiler, Malamute, St Bernard, Bernese, Boxers, Cane Corso. Can't ban them all.
- A 3 digit ph. no. to call to report a nuisance or dangerous dog. Mandatory obedience training before issuing dog license.
- No
- The City of Calgary should immediately adopt breed specific legislation that removes "pit bull"-like breeds from the city.
- Look at all the discussion around problems with dogs and cats. And the city wants to allow 6 dogs and 6 cats per household. I say no.
- Calgary is a great pet friendly city ,let's keep it that way. Responsible ownership is up to my neighbours without new rules or licence's.
- Homing pigeons are OK as long as the owner is responsible. Otherwise the pigeon is a wild bird and can not be caged.
- Chickens are legal in most major world-class cities, surely Calgarians are responsible enough to have a few hens
- Do not ban backyard bird feeders or bird baths. They are part of the urban environment - encourage nature appreciation.
- Bylaws only as good as enforced! Leave neighbours out of each other's business - higher fines for non-compliance will help keep the peace!

- None
- Recommend that people who want to add a pet to their family, try the Humane Society or Pet Rescue Organizations. This saves animals' lives!
- Off leash areas absolutely need more enforcement. Many owners allow their dogs to be out of control on city pathways and on private property
- Backyard hens would be such a great addition to the city, they are not understood today and this is a great way to show people.
- Allow backyard hens, they are not nearly as disruptive as other pets and provide food security and foster good neighbour relations.
- Wish it was easier to complain about barking.
- Register all exotic pets, such as snakes; especially if they could potentially be invasive environmentally or dangerous if released.
- Chickens are awesome pets and provide eggs to share with neighbours! What a great way to support communities.
- Backyard chickens are the best pets, they have shown to encourage good relations with neighbours and who doesn't love eggs.
- We should be able to feed the wild birds and squirrels on our own private property!
- Let us have chickens, they make great pets.
- higher fines for dog owners who take the time to bag their dog's feces, but then drop the bags along their route instead of disposing proper
- Allow ducks in addition to chickens.
- Require neighbor approval for having livestock and hens.
- Dog walkers should not be arbitrarily limited to a given number of dogs.
- more by-laws that protect animals. lots of protection for humans but but what if the dog is being abused/provoked?
- Fines should exist where a person is found to make fraudulent or unnecessary complaints about an animal.
- Higher fines for barking, make it easier to report repeated barking (online) and the option of animals confiscated/ownership ban
- Man kills daughter while driving impaired gets 5.5 yrs only and the city wants to implement BSL, instead of getting to the root of the problem
- Livestock can safely be incorporated into cities and can support health communities. Backyard hens are a great example of this.
- Housing and food costs are high, with an uncertain future we need to support families with livestock, backyard hens are a great for eggs
- Backyard hens make less noise or the same as dogs. Why would I need permission from my neighbour? It's good to be less reliant on stores.
- Chickens are minimally noticeable, they can easily incorporate into an urban setting without neighbour disruption.

- Have no more ideas
- Offer subsidized training for all dogs to ensure early education before becoming a problem.
- Yes to chickens. Limited with proper set up for them. No to livestock like goats, pigs, cows, horses, Lamas, Alpacas, etc.
- Ownership and care of domestic rabbits needs to be addressed. There need to be increased fines for animal abuse, neglect, and abandonment.
- Backyard hens are a great addition to the city.
- Restrictions for problem owners only please, however Pitbull type dogs need more restrictions than they have now
- Urban livestock can be a great addition to a city and done in a responsible manner can help encourage positive community interaction
- Small dog off leash areas. There is one in Airdrie which is awesome, Calgary needs to catch up!
- We need less red tape and fewer new initiatives such as this that increase spending of taxpayer dollars. Pet bylaws are fine as is!
- The fine money from attacks/bites needs to go to the victim !!!
- The City must do a much better job in enforcing the bylaws whose purpose is to ban off-leashed dogs from using on-leash areas.
- No
- Professional dog walkers need to be licensed and no more than 5 dogs at a time ! They can be a real nuisance especially in shared areas.
- Just curious to know what dog breed will be blamed after BSL doesn't work. Asking so I don't have to deal with ignorant people in the future
- breed targeted bylaws do not work!!! responsible pet ownership. responsible pet classes; the same as drinking and driving classes!
- "Like [personal information removed] said ""Punishing responsible owners with discriminating breed laws makes life time
- adversaries I for one will be protesting"
- Not waste money on implementing bylaws for pit bulls. There are no bad dogs, just bad owners. Punish wrongdoers, not breeds!
- I'm ashamed that my city is offering breed specific legislation.
- I've been wishing for so many years for not a municipal not a provincial but a nation wide government funded low spay/neuter program for all
- Do not implement BSL in Calgary. Very disappointing to hear you are even considering it.
- It all depends on the owner and how the animal is cared for. We really need to look at proper ownership not looking at the innocent dogs.
- Restricting how many dogs a dog walker can exercise at a time
- Re: legalizing chickens. Both Edmonton and Vancouver have sucessfully allowed chickens inner city. Of course we can do the same in YYC!

- Chickens allowed in other major cities have proven to be no more noisy or smelly than dogs or cats. If anything they have proven to be less
- I think the idea of chickens inner city seems a bit unorthodox. However if we make it just as regulated as Edmonton did, it can be successful
- Do not apply restrictions and requirements around the type of pet breed (such as a pitbull) All breeds should be treated equally.
- I'm shocked that currently pigeons are allowed but chickens are not? They are both birds... Lets give chickens a chance!
- Owners of Pit bulls and nuisance dogs need to have training as well as the dogs.
- No breed specific bylaws. In order to license a dog, an owner must prove obedience/behavior training has been completed.
- Obedience training should be incentivized for dog owners regardless of breed. Perhaps a system of lower license fees with proof of training?
- Enforce the off leash dog problem in all on leash areas. It keeps other animals and people safer. That's why the law is there.
- We should have zero tolerance for dogs that bite adults or children.
- Shame on City council to think about imposing breed specific legislation or bylaws. It is unfair and prejudiced
- Spaying/neutering should be heavily subsidized - it would likely take down the costs of animal services and break even in the long run.
- I want the City to stop enabling puppy mills. Pets should be either purchased from reputable breeders, or preferably adopted from rescues.
- Have bird feeders and bird baths in our yards. Feed wild birds on our own property.
- I fully support hens and would consider other livestock that support families as well.
- Even with regulations, it won't stop accidents, irresponsible owners will still find other ("illegal") ways to get pitbulls. Sad but true.
- I'm tired of innocent people getting extremely hurt by pitbulls. Yes other dogs bite, even more often. But not as severe as pits. Not fair.
- Recently a dog was killed by another dog. Handler fined $350 total. Why not the $1000 fine for dog causing death to an animal?
- Most of these problems could be solved by communicating with your neighbours like respectful adults.
- No tolerance for dogs running loose in on leash areas! More enforcement of offenders! Leashed dogs = no attacks!
- Dogs are being walked daily on the paths around the Glenmore Reservoir even though it is posted 'no dogs'. Increase policing please.
- Do not prohibit feeding birds. Offer advice in this area on your website.
- More policing in Crescent Heights near Rotary Park. People walk dogs off leash daily on the way to the off leash area in the park.

- Strict fines and enforcement for dog fighting and using innocent animals for bait. No breed specific legislation
- Chickens please
- The pleasure people get from watching birds at a backyard feeder is immeasurable. Do not prohibit feeding birds!
- Breed specific legislation and bylaws are wrong and prejudiced
- Strict laws and enforcement against dog fighting and using innocent animals as bait. No breed specific legislation or bylaws
- No breed specific legislation
- Banning a specific breed seems unfair. BUT innocent people getting extremely harmed or KILLED is more unfair. Sorry but Ban pitbulls please
- Bird feeders should be allowed, and there should be higher fines for free roaming cats that eat city songbirds.
- Breed specific legislation is misguided and proven to be inefficient
- It should be a good rule for dogs and cats living together
- Yes to Chickens in YYC. By having inspectors and regulations, it will be a great opportunity to create more jobs for our local economy.
- Home owners should be able to feed wild birds on their own property.
- People shouldn't have to register their pet with the city. The city does not provide any specific service to pet owners.
- Bird feeding and putting up bird houses should be allowed, due to decline in numbers of birds. Also protect wetlands.
- I love that you are trying to help animals and every dog is the best dog! Humans need to be better educated so their dogs don't suffer!
- More consideration should be given to whether an owner is responsible for the type of dog they own. No bad dogs, only bad owners.
- No, I do not.
- There shouldn't be BSL. I have been attacked by a different breed when I was 6 years old and witnessed a child attacked by a German shepherd
- We lost our little 7-lb Tabasco a few times, and the City of Calgary was so helpful in returning him safely home. Thank you for the service!
- Pets are a privilege, not a right. Stronger legislation against backyard breeders is needed, there are already too many homeless animals!
- I really think irresponsible pet owners should be held to account and not punish responsible pet owners or pets because of the breed.
- The most aggressive dogs I've seen have been border collies. Breed isn't the problem, uncontrolled off leash dogs are.
- All dogs off leash should be muzzled with a humane muzzle to prevent bites and other dangerous incidents.

- The process of renting a cat trap from the city should be made easier so Calgarians can more easily catch lost cats.
- It would be nice to have reduced fees for multiple pet homes.
- If you try to ban bird feeders I'll make them a requirement of my mental health.
- More off leash and fenced dog parks are needed. This encourages healthy dogs and healthy calgarians. Invest in health and wellness, it pays
- Hens would be a great way to help communities understand how neighbour friendly they can be.
- I would prefer to see the City have people prove that their dog is receiving appropriate training versus branding breeds as good or bad.
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work, and Calgary has the largest research group and body of work in the country regarding this. Remove.
- Education for dog owners? Most won't pay or go. BSL expensive for city? So is education. Keep dogs in their yard and on leash in public.
- I would like to see more bylaws protecting animals from neglectful and abusive owners . Higher fines, more restrictions.
- DO NOT DISCRIMINATE AGAINST DOG BREEDS!! Certain dog breeds are more aggressive like chihuahuas, PIT BULLS ARE NOT aggressive by nature
- Rules needed for people with kids in an off leash area, don't let them chase dogs etc. Remove breed specifics as not necessary.
- BSL will NOT change irresponsible owners
- Focus on education, not breed specific legislation.
- Take bike paths out of mixed use Parks and make them off leash parks. Cyclists can take the road rather than cutting through my dog park
- Dog owners need to be more aware of non dog owners and cyclists. The world is not your dog park. On leash areas need better enforcement.
- We need FREE spay and neuter programs. We euthinize far too many animals in this city. Its shameful. We spend money on frivolous art !
- There should be warning people signage for idiots who run/jog through dogs in dog parks. How stupid can you be. Run elsewhere.
- Calgary has been one of the few cities I know without an animal limit or a BSL. Let's stay progressive!
- More bylaw officers are needed to enforce any of these bylaws or else what is the point? Now: very slow process with few resolutions.
- Do not discriminate on the basis of breed.
- Instead of euthanasia or fines, there should be free training courses offered for those with "nuisance" animals.
- I support anything that fosters well being, community and food security, water security, harmony with ecology
- 2 incidents w/small dogs not being controlled and getting away from owners both charged at me. Why is this not an issue?

- Pet licenses need a signed contract of understanding re: humane treatment so bylaw is understood. Animals without licences need HUGE fines
- BSL is damaging and ineffective. Pet owners need to be responsible and accountable for their pet(s).
- Your comments regarding feeding of wildlife were really vague. Birds should be an exception everywhere. Teasing not tolerated but feeding?
- I would like to be allowed to walk my dog through the school yard to pick up my children from school or the park. (on leash under control)
- "Feeding of birds should be limited. Balance is key. Perhaps a limited size and amount could be agreed upon.
- Owners must clean up areas"
- Lower license fees for lower income is a terrible idea .. if you can't afford a license maybe you can't afford a pet
- Mandatory insurance required for all dogs that includes mandatory training, for all areas off leash or on
- Dogs with insurance and yearly training can be off leash anywhere. All dogs off leash must have visible markings to ensure compliance.
- No
- Why do cats have to be licensed if they are fully indoors and do not set foot outside?
- No licensing for indoor only cats. 6 dogs and 6 cats per house is too many. There too many issues with animals now, problems will increase.
- Two suggestions for dog parks. First - prohibit bikes which are a safety concern. Second - enforce fines for not picking up after your dog.
- Six is way too many. This will cause more health issues then should occur. Licensing should be reduced for spayed/neutered animals.
- No
- Info in public venues about how to safeguard the wildlife with whom we share the city. Ex. Dogs can trample nests, ducks can't eat dry bread
- Dogs should be on leash near anywhere there are vehicles like bikes or cars. All dog parks need fences around them to prevent accidents.
- "Don't just ban a breed. Concentrate on the nuisance dogs.
- On bird feeders there is no problem - just keep it clean. They brighten my day."
- Don't want BSL or Pitbull's banned? Get control of them. It wouldn't be a discussion if there wasn't a problem. There's your fact! Yes BSL.
- 6 cats and 6 dogs. Yes way too many. More chance of them not being cared for and not controlling them.
- ...
- Ultrasonic Anti-Bark Device: harmless, silent, cheap, happy neighbours AND a calmer, happier, more confident and less insecure dog I promise

- Why were signs of no dogs in playgrounds taken down? Bring them back Also I think we need signs that this park I least green space is NOT off
- Give the seniors a break and allow them to enjoy the love and companionship of a pet without gouging them on licensing.
- Animal noise (barking dogs or otherwise) should not be audible by neighbors. Consistent animal noise constitutes a nuisance animal.
- Without enforcement, a 'rule' is just a 'recommendation'. Current bylaw enforcement rates are very low.
- No extra ideas
- Easier reporting of barking dogs. Enforcement is essential for compliance.
- STOP SELLING ANIMALS AT PET STORES ADOPT DON'T SHOP
- cats or dogs the seller " breeder" need a number permis to certified him and can be inspected for animal welfare and need to put # on adds
- Stop targeting the dog especially based on breed - BSL is a failure the world over
- I don't have an idea
- Start enforcing our current bylaws
- The city needs to stop with this BSL language and start offering bite prevention programs accompanied with enforcement of current bylaws
- BSL really??? Because of what MAY happen! How about using your time to actually investigate real bite reports. This includes ALL breeds
- Pitbulls killed more kids in North America every year for the last 2 decades than all other breeds combined. We need a complete pitbull ban.
- Decisions based on fear, prejudice and discrimination never have good outcomes. The data does not support BSL to solve issue but costs more$
- Cats shouldn't be off leash and there should be a bigger fine if you see a cat on your backyard (cat using your backyard as toilet)
- Most ppl go about their daily lives with no bad interaction w/ dogs. Stop trying to punish responsible owners. Go after criminals/abusers.
- Most ppl go about their daily lives with no bad interaction w/ dogs. Stop trying to punish responsible owners. Go after criminals/abusers.
- There are too many poo bags being thrown into yards or alleys near off-leash parks. There should be more containers near the perimeters.
- Humans are the dangerous ones. More enforcement needed for IRRESPONSIBLE owners!
- Called city for every day dogs off leash going to off leash area. They said not enough ppl to patrol areas. Need to enforce rules they have
- Living near an off leash park is a problem with dogs off leash outside the park. Can't go outside with out being approach by a loose dog.
- Don't increase number of cats/dogs in a house. Vets are so costly. Healthcare of pet will decline. Especially with age.

- Shame on YYC for even suggesting BSL. Increase fines, hold individual owners accountable and actually enforce current bylaws. No to BSL.
- Leave neighbors out of ppl getting chickens. City limit the amount and check for proper housing. No one asks neighbor if getting more pets
- There should NOT be any breed specific legislation (pitbull targeting) passed in this bylaw reform. It's unproven and ridiculous assumptions
- The bunnies in mission are very therapeutic for many people. Could there be a neuter program for the males? I would hate to see a cull.
- You potentially want to discourage bird feeders in my yard but my neighbours smelly fire pit stinking up my house is ok?
- Breed Specific Legislation is outdated and is not effective- why is this even being considered?!
- Establish minimum training/socialization requirements for every puppy or adopted dog, with obligation to provide evidence within a deadline.
- Calgary, if a person complains about an actual problem. Don't just shrug it off. Check it out and fine if bylaw infraction.
- Breed Specific Legislation is outdated and is not effective. Disappointed in this council for considering this.
- My pitbull is a senior. He has never hurt anything in his life. Pretty dumb he would have to wear a muzzle his last couple years.
- Please do NOT add BSL. [Personal information removed] has a tremendous legacy. Consider breeding standards and positive reinforcement training standards.
- "There should NOT be any breed-specific legislation (pitbull targeting) passed in this bylaw reform. It's unproven and ridiculous.
- I am a responsible pet owner and I don't see what I should be punished for others' mistakes and lack of responsibility.
- BSL is completely ridiculous and misinformed. Shame on our government for considering this...
- More bylaw officers are required no matter what new pet rules are established.
- Inflict stricter laws on irresponsible pet owners... bigger fines, proof of obedience training if they have been identified an issue ,etc.
- How are you going to enforce off-leash dogs in on-leash areas? This by-law is not being enforced and these new rules don't address that.
- All fines should escalate for repeat offenders. People get too many warnings (offleash dogs etc) and have no intention of following rules
- "VERY SIMPLE
- Spay/Neuter pets
- Keep them under control
- Socialize
- Know your breed
- DO NOT PUNISH RESPONSIBLE OWNERS

- NO TO BSL"
- .
- Breed specific legislation will not address the root cause of the problems. Punish the irresponsible pet owners, not a "breed";
- Cats kill wildlife when they are allowed to roam. People aren't being fined for this by-law already. Enforce this by-law!
- Yes to hens!
- Allowing for chickens in backyards really expands food security
- N/A
- The fact that the law was change requiring indoor cats to have licenses is just plain greedy. Stop using everything possible to gain money.
- Please dont put rules for specific breeds. It is the raising not the breed. I fully support nuisance dog classes but NOT based on breed
- With the ability to pay online no need to spend money to expand how people can pay for their licence.
- Chicken
- There should NOT be any breed-specific legislation, to me this is equivalent to racial profiling in humans.
- There NEEDS to be stricter rules on what is considered an acceptable environment for pets and how they are treated (ex. Overuse of kennels)
- N/a
- I want chickens in my back yard!!!!!!!!!!
- How will all these additional bylaws will be enforced when bylaws officers seem unable to deal with the current level of complaints
- I would love to see better control of cats that are not licensed. Also better control of off-leash dogs in leash required areas.
- Feral cats should not be re-released even if spayed or neutered. They kill and injure native wildlife <https://catsandbirds.ca/>
- Kids under 12 should NOT be allowed in dog parks!!! You have parks for kids, let my dog have her dog park!!!
- Cyclists need to be banned from dog parks, it's dangerous to the cyclist and to all dogs the cyclist passes by!!
- No.
- Pitbulls were responsible for every one of the 14 dog on dog fatalities in Calgary last year. Pitbulls are the problem. Ban them please.
- Dogs who consistently bark should have to wear a bark collar.
- It should be illegal to set kill traps outside.
- There is a serious problem with some people not leashing their dogs or leaving full poo bags in the park and not disposing of them properly

- Allow backyard hens! No more or less of a nuisance to the owners or community than cats/dogs, assuming they're taken care of properly.
- in calm traffic area, leave the roaming cats alone, as they control mice population.
- I think that feeding wildlife and teasing wildlife should be separated into two questions. Feeding birds with a birdfeeder is common.
- Chickens are allowed pretty much in every other city... Please can I have some... Please?
- When buying a pet licence, you must provide a DNA sample. If your pet's poo is found, you get fined.
- Q2. Are birds wildlife? I can't answer this question as feeding birds is not the same as feeding squirrels or other animals.
- I would like more fencing around off-leash parks, especially in multi-use spaces where owners often ignore transitions to leashed areas.
- Re-define "nuisance". A dog cited for noise is not the same as a dog cited for dangerous or uncontrolled behaviour.
- if there are no restrictions to breed of animals, there should be no restrictions on back yard hens
- People who bag poo and leave it should be fined double.
- Enforcement at dog parks eves/weekends should generate more than enough tickets to pay their staff salaries and improve overall experience.
- It is illegal to kill a bird with a BB gun in the city, so why is it okay for people to let their cats roam freely and kill birds?
- FULLY fence smaller neighbourhood offleash parks so dogs can be trained in more controlled environment vs. huge parks like Sue Higgins.
- Need more signs for dogs on leash. I've been in on leash areas like weaselhead and people have dogs off leash calling it a dog park.
- Free roaming cats attract coyotes into the city. There should be stricter enforcement and fines for roaming cats.
- Education campaign needed - animal poisons (alcohol, caffeine, tobacco, cannabis, fish hooks) often left in dog parks.
- Education campaign needed for BOTH dog owners AND those sharing parks. Dog behaviour, cyclists, kids and parents' responsibilities, wildlife.
- Muzzling and Lack of socialization DOES lead to aggression issues. This is insane and irresponsible. You are setting the dogs up to fail.
- A dog is a animal—which is exactly why the owner needs to be in complete control and be responsible for their dog. Do not agree w/BSL
- I would honestly love it if the first time an individual applies to license a pet, they have to take a course on responsible pet ownership.
- Nothing to add at this time.
- All off leash dogs should be muzzled.
- How about licensing owners? Can you prove you can be a responsible owner? If so, license granted, if not, no license and no pets.

- Backyard bird feeders help Calgarians learn about wildlife and promote nature conservation. Please exclude bird feeders from the bylaw.
- No further ideas
- We had 2 pitbull attacks on kids in front of our house last year. The N.E. is so full of them you can barely walk outside. Very unsafe.
- None
- In off leash parks some people do pick up dog feces BUT they leave the bag beside the pathway. Add to signage not to do this. Provide bins
- Instead of tags, have a tattoo or microchip as an identifier. Indoor cats-no lic/Sr no fees, breeders should max litters per yr and licensed
- These changes don't go far enough. A complete ban on pitbulls is the only way to protect kids in our city.
- Do not regulate ability to feed birds. Hens and other animals would allow control over pests (ants and slugs) allowing for natural pest control
- No
- I am against pigeons in residential communities as my mother, suffers from restrictive cement lung from cleaning her Dad's coop as a child
- Outdoor cats cause needless suffering to a lot of small wildlife in Calgary (such as songbirds). No free roaming cats!
- Fines for animal attacks causing injury or death should be much, much higher.
- Breed specific banning is NOT the answer. Responsible pet ownership IS -, no matter what the breed
- Breed banning is NOT the problem. It's the bad owners who raise bad pets!
- Chickens can be healthy and easily contained within the city. Please support food sovereignty so we can thrive in years to come.
- way stiffer penalties for cats at large. They can get hurt (cars, animals) and cause issues for neighbours (spraying, defecating , fighting)
- Targeting specific breeds like pit bulls is not the answer. Improve access to education programs for responsible dog ownership of ALL breeds
- Bird feeders are a wonderful way to experience wildlife within our city and should be allowed on private property.
- Take seriously concerns with coyotes. They leave disgusting droppings in off leash areas. Expensive vet bills and very sick animals result
- NO BSL - more severe consequences for owners with violent dogs (all breeds).
- Still say toss this amendment out
- No free roaming cats. Protect our dwindling wild bird population.
- None

- Pitbull attacks in the N.E. are a weekly occurrence. You can't let your children out to play in some communities it's such an issue.
- Enforcement of leash rules in spaces and pathways adjacent to off-leash parks. Eg. Sandy Beach Park and paths near + across the Glenmore Dam
- No not really!
- Na
- If city is willing to spend the money for BSL enforcement. Why can't they increase officers and enforcement of bylaws they already have?
- I would only support voluntary green bandanas for dog approachability. Red or orange would only work if every owner used them.
- M
- There needs to be more education/penalties for purposefully releasing your pet into the wild (fish, rabbits, birds, rodents, etc)
- Actually enforce bylaws, I'm at the off-leash parks daily and have never seen any enforcement people.
- No license for indoor cats.
- Leave neighbors out of getting chickens. Mine didn't ask me when he got 2 pit bulls that keep breaking the fence trying to get to my Pom.
- Teasing and feeding wild animals should not be in same question. It's not the same thing. Keep us feeding wild birds. It's not teasing them.
- No to dog and cat increase. 6 each is too much! It will increase current problems! Controlling them and their well being!
- Bylaw officers seem to only show up at On and Off leash parks when there is an attack reported. They need regular patrolling.
- Another shooting city should focus on the increased crime and not on BSL
- No BSL, it unnecessarily punished the dog. We need more owner education so that they understand the needs of the breed they are adopting.
- We need more education for cat owners who still think it's okay to let their cats roam free outdoors.
- More enforcement is needed in neighbourhoods and trails adjacent to off leash parks. Too many people claim on leash areas are "dog parks";
- Please enforce neutral, case-by-case legislation for all animals and dogs. Please not Breed Specific Legislation against pitbull types
- What about [personal information removed] 4 principles? This multi step program, which emphasizes holder the owner accountable. It works! NO to BSL!
- Yes please CRUELTY to animals, people whom are CRUEL to animals should be banned for life from having any kind of animal!!
- License fee waived for neutered animals adopted from shelters and rescues.
- Owners who let their cats roam free should face negligence charges if those pets are injured/killed by cars, wildlife or harmed otherwise.

- "More control for the future owner, their ability to handle animal.
- More fines for abandon and violence against animals."
- Reduce cat licence fee if cat owner buys a harness to walk their cat outside. Promotes responsibility among cat owners. Fewer roaming cats
- Larger dogs should wear muzzles at all times when outside of their property. Even when on a leash in the street they can still bite.
- Please do not punish bully breeds for existing. Any dog can bite in the right circumstances many "family" dogs have a worse history!!
- If pet owners don't want to train the dogs to not bark then the dogs should only be let outside when needing to go to the bathroom.
- I think Calgary needs to become more dog friendly: take them to malls, offices, restaurants. Register the dog with the mall....
- Increased education for families so that there is understanding that children should not approach dogs without permission from the owner.
- I think you should be allowed to run your dog with a bike as long as it is with the proper safe riding equipment.
- Fines for people taking non service dogs into grocery stores and restaurants. It is disgusting and also quite scary as I am afraid of dogs.
- I don't think you need a breed specific by laws. You need owner specific by laws. If a dog, regardless of breed bites, look to the owner.
- Do not implement ANY BSL. BSL is discriminatory, unnecessary and ineffective.
- Request the owner (not the dog) to take training classes to understand the pet's needs to address excessive barking
- I believe all dogs are are good. They learn bad habits from the direction of their owners. Carry a loaded gun and it goes off, it is on you.
- No
- More off leash parks in the downtown area. Many vacant lots/under utilized spaces. High density pop, no yards, gentrify vacant lots for pups
- I believe owner of animals should have them under control at all times, dogs should be on leash unless a off leash area or private property
- I don't like the idea of singling out certain breeds as the owners of any animal need to take responsibility for behaviour of the animal.
- It should be against the law to keep pigeons. I am currently having to pay for a roofer to repair roof issues caused by pigeon droppings.
- I think rental properties should not be able to restrict the ownership of pets and renters should be able to have cats or dogs.
- Breeds should not be singled out
- Use statistics and not feelings to address BSL. Some dogs are more dangerous. Numbers don't lie.
- "For backyard chickens:

- Hefty fines for slaughtering their own chickens and different licence depending on pet/sanctuary or egg laying"
- Mandatory spay and neuter unless a licensed breeder.
- Please no increase on how many dogs and cat in a household.
- Nearly every serious dog attack on a person or animal in the last 5 years in our city was a pitbull. Hence the bylaw change.
- Na
- Mandatory spay and neuter unless a licensed breeder and more serious consequences for animal abusers.
- No pit bull ban — consider education or training courses for people who wish to own that breed of dog. Responsibility should be on the owner
- No
- "Regulate pet noise:
- Barking/whining/calling for >5 minutes straight or > 1hour/day maximum. Repeat offenders must be kept indoors 9pm-9am."
- "How does introducing BSL stop unrestricted breeds from biting?"
- I STRONGLY SUPPORT A BREED NEUTRAL BYLAW"
- This is insane!!! Stop this muzzle bad dogs not happy dogs
- No
- None
- Yall are monsters and should be ashamed for supporting animal abuse.
- Clearly people are making up stories here. Fact Toronto banned pit bulls and the number of dog attacks has gone up not down.
- "Pit Bull" is a description and not a breed. Don't punish a dog for how it looks because it has a bad owner. Punish the bad owner.
- By law officers are not always around to see poor behaviour - any way for a citizen to report an occurrence (picture?)
- An owner should be given a warning to get their dogs behavior changed if they bite a dog.
- No pit bull ban...Owners need to be educated if they want own a pit bull, if the dog is raised to be friendly, there would be no aggression.
- Stop generalizing dogs based on their appearance. Behaviour is learned, not inherited. Blame the owners
- Have higher fines for owners who allow their pets to run in on-leash areas (or areas where dogs aren't even allowed, like athletic parks)
- I think it is shameful that people would judge a specific breed. This bylaw is fuelling a stereotype that simply is not true.
- Pigeons do not belong in Calgary Urban areas, get rid of this backwards bylaw.
- Nothing that comes to mind at the moment.
- There should be fines for owners who let their dogs chase pedestrians and cyclists.

- Increase fines for owners who let their cats wander outside illegally. It can fund more enforcement for these sorts of things.
- Cities that banned breeds did not reduce bite incidents. BSL costs millions per year to fail public safety. Don't waste my tax dollars
- I want to see laws and regulations put in place to reprimand owners who r mistreating animals
- Dogs in public and private property
- At large cat capture information needs to be available. BSL's are a waste of time and money and only cause stress to responsible pet owners.
- NA
- N/A
- Only wildlife allowed on private parties should be song birds.
- For the comment on feeding wildlife.... please exclude birds. A lot of people have bird feeders. The bird need food during the winter.
- info about places/programs for behavior training should be provided and low income households should have it funded if theyre unable to pay
- There should be much harsher penalties for mistreating animals.
- I don't think neighbours should have the right to approve/disapprove of hens. It really does not affect them in any way.
- Training need to be more of a focus! Training for dog owners and education for parents - how to read dog body language, how to treat a dog,
- I do not support breed-specific legislation. It is unsuccessful, costly and dangerous. I support preventative training and education. Deal w
- Letting cats wander outside (to get hit by cars, stolen, and eaten by coyotes) should be treated with the same severity as animal neglect.
- Breed neutral rules will address actual aggressive dogs (they come in a breeds). Animal temperament is far more than a breed issue No to BSL
- Hens please and feeding wild birds.
- Please enforce leash law more. If person tells owner to put their dog on a leash it usually causes problems. Think they are entitled.
- Urban hens would be a great addition to the current pet bylaw.
- no
- Please enforce leash laws better. Entitled dog owners ruin city green spaces for the rest of us.
- more controls for owners that do not train their animals. majority of attacks are at off leash parks because owners can't control their dogs
- Please license the dog walkers so we have responsible individuals doing this job. Also, limit the number of dogs they are allowed to have
- A dog of any breed can inflict severe damage. It is wrong to stigmatize "pitbulls" as dangerous when we know that it is the owner who is res

- Cities that banned pitbulls saw a large decrease in dog bites requiring reconstructive surgery. Dogs bite. Pitbulls maul.
- Nearly all serious attacks that result in severe injury or death are pitbull attacks. Decades of statistical evidence shows this. Ban them.
- Last year in Calgary every single dog killed by another dog was killed by a pitbull or pitbull cross. I support banning them.
- Distinction between legal service dogs and emotional support animals. Im sick of people lying and bringing their pets in restaurants
- A mandatory online course with every license on basic needs and management of animal being licensed. And a basic course on animal behaviour.
- I find that Calgary wanting to change from being the leader in responsible pet ownership to targeting a specific breed absolutely appalling.
- I'm furious Calgary is considering breed specific rules against pitbulls, when will people learn that it is NOT about breed but the OWNER?!
- There should be more understanding about at- large animals. Its not always the owner's fault their animal is running loose.
- stray cats are unsafe for the cat, as well as kill all the birds and ruin peoples gardens. Catch and fine free range cats
- I don't mind giving people who are financially disadvantaged a break on their pet's annual license fee, providing it is only for one pet.
- If someone is forced to turn in a pet due to financial hardship, I believe that they should be able to do that without having to pay a fee.
- stop picking on pit bulls! if you look at the stats, shepherds have the highest stats for biting!
- Much higher fines for repeat offenders. Third offence revoke pet licence. Privilege, not a right to impose your animal on others in public
- We can't judge humans by their appearance so why is it okay to judge dogs? Stop bashing and start teaching!!!
- Pitbulls are not a problem, it's the owners. They are loyal dogs and will follow what their owner is doing, good or bad
- Targeting pit bulls is ridiculous. Go after irresponsible owners. And who would define what looks like a pit bull?
- Please let us have our Hens, this would be a huge step in getting us reconnected with our food.
- Backyard hens should be allowed. Positive impacts would be increased food supply and better understanding of where food comes from.
- It is unnecessary to use pit bulls specifically, it should state ALL large dog breeds that could seriously harm someone or another animal.
- Why is it so hard to understand that BSL will not stop bad owners from owning aggressive dogs. Start cracking down on the owners
- The money it will cost to implement BSL should be used to hire more officers so they can enforce our current bylaws. NO TO BSL

- BSL is not effective in reducing bites and is very expensive to implement. Do not approve of my tax dollars being spent so carelessly
- If colored leashes are used...children still need to be educated on how to approach and behave around dogs.
- We have signs when an area is off leash, why don't we have them when it's on leash. More important! Especially at entrances.
- Backyard hens should be allowed in Calgary. Vancouver has allowed them for approximately the last 10 years. Why is this city so "backwards"
- Bully breeds are actually very gentle. They are no more dangerous than other dogs. They actually do better in temperament test than Labs.
- I do not support BSL. I am very disappointed to see breed specific language in this survey. BSL is not effective at reducing dog bites.
- Re: Fines and increases - increase those related to issues/problems in Calgary not on what other jurisdiction impose.
- Like children, dogs need to be taught how to behave. Many people think dogs learn by osmosis. NOT true! If human doesn't lead, the dog will
- I dont have one
- My wife and I watched a young basset hound decapitated by my neighbors "nice" pitbull Tron two years ago in front of our house in Taradale.
- Most of the people killed in North America last year by dogs were killed by pitbulls. This is an easily verifiable fact.
- I walk by at least three pitbull types everyday. None of them are aggressive. I avoid a street that does have an aggressive lab though.
- Do not place restrictions on pitbull type dogs! All dogs are equal!
- Bully breed or not, there need to be steeper penalties for nuisance and dangerous dogs in the city.
- No
- Just mind your own business.
- Smaller dogs can be just as aggressive as bigger dogs. There are good pet owners and not so good pet owners.
- owners are often the problem too
- No
- Registration fees should be used to support free neuter/spay procedures in large campaigns.
- No pitbull is aggressive until it is, than someone gets reconstructive surgery. This breed of dog needs to be banned to protect kids.
- The adoption procedure should not end delivering the animal to the new home. Doing a follow-up is THE important thing to do.
- Lets stop pretending that a golden retriever is the same as a pitbull. No one uses golden retrievers in dog fights for a reason.
- Increase fees for registrations and use the money to pay for increased enforcement.

- My Calgary went from hero to zero for considering BSL. Do your research first and stop listening to all the Ken and Karen's commenting!
- No animal should be judged by how it looks. That's ridiculous. Also "pit bull" bites are not abnormally strong compared to other dog breeds.
- Who came up with the idea that cats should always remain indoors? My three cats (adopted and inherited) are used to being able to go outside!
- None
- City wants to introduce BSL....yet we allow rapists to walk our streets
- Negligent owners will not abide by any BSL restrictions they have proven that already by not abiding by regular bylaws. NO TO BSL
- Did Mrs.Deagle from gremlins write most of these comments? Dogs are amazing.
- Educate every individual that buys or adopts a dog about the rules in an off-leash area.
- I don't know
- Dog owners are not cleaning up their dog's feces, they are on sidewalks, city parks and when put in a bag the bag is left on city paths.
- Please increase fines (and enforcement) for failing to pick up your pet's feces.
- I live near a natural reserve and see dogs off-leash chase wildlife (deer) . Would like to see more enforcement of existing bylaws.
- Would also like more enforcement of dog owners not cleaning up pet waste.
- The use of breed specific legislation is disappointing. All nuisance dogs (regardless of breed) should be treated equal chihuahua or larger
- Pit bulls are sweet dogs, Stop saying they are aggressive dogs!
- "I support Responsible urban hen ownership.
- #petsthatpoopbreakfast"
- all dogs deserve to be treated equally
- Owners should not be permitted to let their dogs urinate/defecate on the grass between the sidewalk and private property lines.
- blame the dog rings not the dogs for violent dogs. pitbulls are naturally very sweet dogs!
- A quick 5 minute read of the info available at dogsbite.org will tell you everything you need to know about dog attack statistics.
- How about stop saying pit bulls are aggressive dogs when they aren't
- When a breed of dog that makes up less than 4% of city dogs accounts for 80%+ of the serious dog attacks its a breed issue. Ban pitbulls.
- 47 children in Canada in 2018 required reconstructive surgery after pitbull attacks. 0 kids required surgery after chocolate lab attacks.
- In summer hire students to patrol off leash parks with cameras to capture any dog defecating, track to owner's car plate and bill.
- Some areas of the city have a severe problem with cats roaming off of their owner's property. Many cat owners believe it is their right.

- pit bulls are not bad dogs, you're just a [removed] person
- Stop ditching doggy bags in work skips or random green carts. Take your trash home whatever its make up.
- I have yet to see a bylaw officer hand out a fee for a dog off leash or cats roaming freely. What's the point of a revised bylaw?
- Do not haze coyotes at Nose Hill or other such parks. Instead enforce off leash by laws, provide more signage where off leash is prohibited.
- I understand why cats that are allowed to roam should be licensed but I don't see why an inside cat that never goes out needs to be licensed
- Increase incognito patrols to catch those owners who don't pick up after their dogs
- Not all pitbulls are aggressive just like not all owners are responsible. When will we blame the owner?
- You don't need BSL when you have a proper animal program in place that is properly enforced. Ask [personal information removed]
- A good bylaw doesn't care what the dog who bites looks like, it cares only that it bit. Deal with this issue case by case. NO TO BSL
- I have witnessed more small dog behavioural issues and bites than large dog breeds, including bully breeds.
- "In 1 yr in Canada herding dogs such as Shelties and Collies and Australian Shepards were responsible for the most bites.
- NO BSL"
- Negligent owners will continue to be an issue with or without BSL. Blame them not the dogs.
- Increase enforcement against pets (dogs AND cats) that harass wildlife.
- Please ban the sale of exotics in pet stores (like birds and lizards).
- I would like to see the city deal with the opioid crisis and the increased crime rather than go after responsible dog owners
- If you actually fined people the way it's laid out for dogs biting and killing other animals, you wouldn't have so many bites. And no to BSL
- Large dogs can do more damage than small dogs. If there are going to be preventative measures against biting, it should be for all large dog
- Don't just muzzle pits. Make all obedience training mandatory for dogs
- In 1yr in Canada herding dogs were responsible for ZERO bites requiring reconstructive surgery. Pitbulls were responsible for 47.
- Ask any veterinarian, groomer, reputable breeder, dog trainer their opinion of BSL. They will all agree it does NOT work. Focus on owners
- No BSL Calgary! Any dog can attack or bite a person when owners fail to train or control their animal.
- Fining someone after their pitbull mauls a 5 year old does nothing to help the 5 year old. Ban pitbulls before they maul.

- The changes to the bylaws are being proposed because almost all serious dog attacks in Calgary are pitbull attacks.
- Saying any dog can attack is like saying a machine gun and a pencil are equally dangerous because they can both hurt you. Ban pitbulls
- No sane person chooses to own the most potentially dangerous dog you can find. 300+ breeds and pits kill more kids than all of them combined
- I watched a pitbull in my neighborhood Taradale tear a cat in half in the middle of the street while its owner screamed. So dangerous.
- No
- 86.8% of APBT passed temperament test higher than collies golden retriever and beagles
- Thank goodness we have a Mayor that stands up for normal people. [Personal information removed] is doing what's best for Calgary by restricting Pitbulls! Good job.
- I support a total ban on pitbull ownership. Muzzling them isn't enough. How many normal dogs are we going to let die to pitbull attacks?
- More than 30 breeds and mixes are incorrectly identified as pit bulls in bite incidents attributing the pit bull to unfair # of incidents
- The way in which animal noise complaints are dealt with have to change - mediation should be mandatory to avoid unreasonable complaints
- Collies, golden retrievers and beagles killed no one last year in North America. Pitbulls killed 31 people. Mostly kids.
- Every single year the number of people in North America killed by pitbulls is higher than all other breeds combined. Every single year.
- Dogs don't bite unless they are poorly trained or being bothered.
- Painting all pit bulls, or crossed breeds with the same brush is irresponsible and uneducated response. Shame on the city.
- Pitbulls and other similar dogs cause attacks no more than any other dog, so they should not be forced to have additional restrictions.
- Focus on bad owners. Actually enforce the current laws re: vicious dogs. ANY dog can bite and all big dogs are strong. Stop discriminating
- I would like to know what you do with the money you receive from fines. If you want to increase fines, then it should go to victims.
- Pitbulls kill more kids every year in North America than all other breeds combined. Every single year they do that. It's the breed.
- I have had two pitbull attacks on children in front of my house. One of them was a "nice" pitbull that lived next door.
- It's not bad owners. It's the pitbull breed. Pitbull owners are just like other dog owners. The reason pits kill so many kids is the breed.
- In Canada, there have been 46 fatalities due to dog attacks since 1983. Five have been labelled as "pit bull" breeds. Majority were huskies
- "People need to be educated on dog safety. Dog owners need to be in full control of their dog.

- PROBLEM SOLVED"
- Training: for both owner and dog. Train the dog to bark on command and shush on command. Also train the owner to be the alpha dog at home.
- Please fine owners who let their dogs chase people and other pets. I've had to save my (leashed) cat from a dog more than once.
- No
- You said it yourselves -pit bulls are not involved in more bite incidents.. then focus on the VICIOUS dogs that are biting and their bad owner
- none
- Cities w/breed specific legislation don't have lower bite rates. Factors that = safer dog/human relations: EDUCATION + LAW ENFORCEMENT
- Stop picking on bully breeds. [removed]
- If a barking dog is reported as a nuisance, the complaint should not be anonymous to the dog owner.
- I don't think that there should be breed specific laws, but nuisance dog owners should be monitored and only one nuisance dog per household.
- Shame Calgary! BSL is proven to be backwards thinking. Cities that ban "these" breeds did NOT reduce bite incidents and now are removing BSL
- Pit bulls.. how are they more dangerous than a Doberman? Or a German Shepard? What about Rottweilers? Stigmas don't matter, it's the owners.
- Tiny dogs have attacked my pit bull and she growls back and the owner of the tiny dog got mad at me! Control your own dog!
- NO TO BSL. Promoting responsible ownership and targeting behaviour & not breed & is the only proven way to reduce dog bites.
- An OFF LEASH husky came up on my front lawn and attacked my senior cat who was out on his harness and leash. Needs to be a case by case basis
- BSL has not succeeded in reducing dog bite-related injuries wherever it has been enacted. Don't waste my tax money!!
- I had a colleague loss his nose and cheek to a golden lab, 3 wks ago. As a vet, in my 25yrs., I see more attacks from Labs and Huskies.
- I , as a pet owner of all kinds of animals (cats, dogs, horses, cattle ,pigs ,chickens and turkeys) believe any problems are man made.
- BSL has been very effective in reducing serious dog bites everywhere that it has been enacted. Someone needs to stop pitbull maulings.
- As a vet of 26 years O know that pitbulls kill more children in North America every year than all other breeds combined.
- STOP CREATING FEAR ANS START EDUCATING PEOPLE ON BITE PREVENTION
- The definition of "nuisance" in questionnaire includes "dangerous" AND noisy. Separate these. Why disallow noisy dogs from offload parks?

- My neighbor has 2 aggressive dogs he likes it that way. They break the fence to get in my yard. Can't imagine if he and ppl like him had 6??!
- More enforcement of unleashed dogs. Too many ppl think it's ok, they don't take it serious cause nothing happens. It would lesson attacks!
- Some dogs do attack and bite unprovoked. Happens all the time. The latest dog death was unprovoked. Controlled dogs no attacks. Then no BSL.
- Why do we need input from our neighbours for chickens, but not for other animals? This shouldn't be the case.
- Keep wild bird feeders and bird baths. Yes to hens. No to livestock in the city like goats, pigs etc. No to increase of dog/cats per house.
- Do not target breeds. Target irresponsible owners. Control the number of animals per household.
- Yes to Urban Chickens! You can already have many pigeons, parrots, and other pet birds... chickens is a no brainer!
- Can we get a definition of dangerous behavior there was one point I may have supported but the lack of definition made me uncomfortable.
- The City needs to review credible statistics on dog bites etc. The vast majority of studies show that Pit Bulls do not bite/ attack more th
- CLOSE. THE. SCHOOLS. We already have enough COVID cases. Either shut everything down again, and wait for things to settle, or shut down
- 31 serious dog attacks on people and animals last year in Calgary. 29 of them were pitbull attacks. It is a breed issue. I vote ban them.
- Fines for people who steal or report dogs that are out with their owners and tied up outside businesses in reasonable weather.
- Subsidies for trainer assessments to assist with those needing help managing their animals.
- Use 100% successful, science-based, modernized dog training experts for assessments or other issues, as at <https://arfarfbarkbark.com>
- "A sliding scale for fines would allow more flexibility
- Racoons rapidly increasing pop. soon to get out of hand
- Help with skunks"
- Besides fresh eggs, hens are very rewarding backyard pet and they are affectionate. Yes to Backyard Chickens. NOW!!!
- the city of calgary needs to ENFORCE their current bylaws. The amount of complaints we have made and nothing is ever done!
- We need more enforcement of leash laws. There are lots of "no dogs/dogs on leash" signs in weaselhead but no one follows them.
- there shouldn't be a BSL. Licensing included the need for training -proven that it was taken or will be taken? make smarter owners
- Outdoor cats keep trying to fight my indoor cats through the glass and it is stressing us out. Roaming cats need more enforcement.

- I would love it if pet licences were more easily accessible. Not everyone is good with a computer and able to order them online.
- My neighbors dog is often loose coming in my yard. City shrugs. I would have to have her permission for hens? She didn't ask me for her dog.
- they city does NOT adequately address barking complaints and nuisance dogs. Owners should be held more accountable for obedience training.
- Increasing the number of dogs and cats per household is just asking for more problems! Get irresponsible to control what they have.
- Laws against selling puppies, kittens, rabbits and imported animals at pet stores.
- Regardless of the breed, the onus should fall on the dog's owner, and not on a specific breed. Focus should be on responsible ownership.
- No to indoor cat licensing. What's the point?
- Thank you
- Re Q. 9 - I don't understand what fines would accomplish. We need more creative solutions, perhaps direct access to legal aid to handle.
- Please get correct stats from our Vets and credible ppl instead of misinformed sites targeting that breed and very incorrect neg comments.
- Ban fine dog owners letting their dogs defecate and urinate on people's lawn I shouldn't have to chase people down they just ignore and leave [removed]
- Can you get animals and their feces out of our groceries eateries malls the sidewalks parks waterways are already overrun with animal feces
- 31 serious dog attacks on people and animals last year in Calgary. 29 of them were pitbull attacks. It is a breed issue. I vote ban them
- The pitbull issue is mostly in the N.E. parts of the city. We don't need to ban them everywhere but in the NE they make it very dangerous.
- [Personal information removed] promised in the last election to do something about pitbulls. I am very happy to see he's keeping his word. Ban them please!
- Much higher fines for dog attacks and particularly Pitbull dog attacks on kids. We have had to many of them over the least 5 years.
- Cats are a lesson in consent and so many controlling people hate cats because they can't control them! Cats meant to roam and hunt
- Instead of highlighting "pitbulls" I would like dangerous dogs being the focus bc they are the true issue no matter their size or breed.
- Yes to Urban Hens. If there is a bylaw in placed, ONLY RESPONSIBLE OWNERS would be allowed. No need to ask neighbors permission.
- No
- Make it easier to get off-leash areas put into communities. More off-leash parks = less off-leash in undesignated areas = happy, tired dogs
- Support with relearning/training rescue dogs (often are bully breeds that were previously abused)

- Definition “pit bull” is too vague. It sounds like if any dog might appear to be a tiny % pitbull, the owners will be penalized. Not cool.
- Multi-year or lifetime pet licenses would be a great improvement. Yearly renewals are a hassle.
- Thanks for taking the input. I am excited about the possibility of urban hens!
- skunks. We are overwhelmed with in our neighborhood. City does little to help
- I do not support breed specific rules or restrictions - innocent until proven guilty!!! The owner should be responsible for a nuisance DOG!
- Bee keeping within city limits is a direct threat to native bee populations that are already struggling to survive. Please don't allow more.
- I'm super excited about urban hens!
- City should support animal rescue spay and neuter programs. Bylaws unsuccessful because the number of cats being killed keeps increasing.
- Section 9 - fines: keep the fines the lower / same, but the owner is responsible for medical costs resulting from the behaviour of their pet
- Even if pet licensing is not lowered, spay/neuter programs and support should be funded and supported as much as possible for all.
- Should be tightening up on roaming cats!
- No
- Lazy neglectful owners let their cats wander to get hit by cars and eaten by coyotes. City needs to do more about this.
- "More to questions 10a and 10b:
- The license fee is the small cost to affording the well being of a pet.
- Each hen in a coop should be licensed."
- Cats supervised outdoors and encourage outdoor enclosures. NO breeding, only adoption. Abusers/neglecters-harsh punishments, bans on ownership
- TNR funding for cats. Ban exotic animal ownership. No live animal sales in pet stores.
- There needs to be more control of aggressive dogs. Starting with banning pit bulls.
- Not at this time
- Owners need to take their noses out of their phones and start putting the effort into raising well behaved dogs of all sizes
- RE: fines for dog attacks - have the owner responsible for ALL costs associated if injury occurs to either another human or animal.
- A dog bite/attack on a minor should carry a large fine and automatic euthanasia of the animal
- 1 Stop roaming cats 2 Ban urban hens 3 Fine owners who let dogs defecate on lawns. Why can't they use alleys? 4 Fewer off leash areas.
- Any dog regardless of the breed can be dangerous in the wrong hands
- Chicken eggs for all!
- Make new communities include off leash parks. Walden is pathetic and relies on wolf willow without an exact date to open. #shameonyyc

- Condo/townhome developers need to include outdoor space for dogs to do their business, onsite. It's not fair to pets or neighbour properties
- Extremely high fines for owners who refuse to pick up after their dogs. Animal removal after 3 times. People can send in video of offenders
- There are a lot of good pet owners. Need to focus on the bad owners and helping the animals
- Yes to BSL and ban pit bulls.
- German shepherds have a stronger bite than staffers bull terriers. Don't see their breed in here
- When not in a fenced off leash area, there must be consequences for the Dog Owner if their Dog is not on a leash and 100% controlled.
- Get rid of backyard breeders. Mandatory spay and neuter except licensed breeders. Ban and stop breeding pit bulls.
- Yes to hens and pigeons. With limit. No neighbour consent, don't need neighbour consent for dogs or cats.
- I continue to advocate the same rules for cats as for dogs
- Per the comments apparently the NE has many negligent owners. Increase bylaw patrols and seize animals from these monster humans.
- Ban all pitbulls in Calgary. If a dog bites a person the owner should be charged with assault as owners are supposed to be in control.
- would like to see portion of dog license fee designated towards the cost of paying the city to pick up dog waste all over the city.
- I support a harsh penalty for the unauthorized breeding of animals within city limits, and higher penalties for animals not spayed/neutered.
- In addition to fines, add hours of community service of picking up dog waste when caught not picking up after their own dog.
- Let bystanders report bad dog behavior. I witnessed a pitbull attack a small dog but bylaw wouldn't investigate it b/c it wasn't my dog.
- I like the idea of pitbull obedience training. It forces participation by the owner. The responsibility is with the owner.
- Out of 31 serious dog attacks in Calgary last year on people and pets 29 were pitbull attacks. That's why bylaw is proposing the changes.
- Regulate irresponsible backyard breeding
- more needs to be done about bad owners. People are afraid to report incidents for fear of the owners.
- Stop the breed specific bylaws. Deal with problem dogs of all breeds.
- THIS comment, especially for YYC winters "Condo/townhome developers need to include outdoor space for dogs to do their business, onsite"
- More dog parks please. None in Deep SW. Land taken away due to ring road construction. Also dog parks are too crowded so more problems.
- N/a

- STOP discussion of banning pit bulls. Small dogs owners don't always teach their dog to approach large dogs properly. Dogs don't see size
- The importation of pitbulls into our city from the U.S. should be banned. Local "rescue" groups dumping ex fighting dogs into Calgary.
- I do not support my tax payer dollars going to enforcing BSL. There are better methods.
- Dogs barking in homed and yards should be addressed.
- Require dog owners to submit a dog's DNA to the City. Injuries from dog bites and feces not picked up can then be prosecuted efficiently.
- The import, sale, and ownership of all exotic pets in Calgary should be banned.
- All fines should be higher and better enforced.
- Every professional organization associated with animal welfare, animal behaviour, and animal control takes a position against BSL.
- Mayor Denis Coderre pushed through a breed ban and months later was voted out in favour of a candidate who made breed-neutral legislation
- In the last decade in Calgary, an average of 12% reported bites are attributed to "pit bulls"; 88% of all bites are by OTHER breeds.
- Each dog attack/bite incident needs to be assessed on a case by case basis and laws need to be enforced. Breed doesnt matter!!!!!!
- Under the leadership of [personal information removed], our city had some of the lowest bite rates, strongest enforcement, progressive outreach and high licensing
- We need clear bylaws that promote owner responsibility and target known risk factors for dog aggression without discrimination of breed
- T
- dog owners that allow there dog off leash in areas they should be on leash (sidewalks, parks, playgrounds). How to curb irresponsible owners
- Preventative maintenance, training and community support to teach parents how to introduce children to dogs responsibly
- BSL is a knee j3rk reaction by legislators to placate the uneducated and uniformed because it has been proven to be ineffective -
- No sale of dogs and cats at stores only rescues put up for adoption
- There is no such thing as responsible breeding when millions of animals die in shelters in North America - END BREEDING
- BSL is ineffective only 0.002313 % of Communities in America have some form of BSL and it's being banned and repealed often ..
- "[personal information removed] talking in AU about failed BSL -- https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_KFX86ZhoMc
- BSL is a proven failure - DON'T IMPLEMENT"
- "Stop calling all dogs with blocky heads pit bulls -- Pit bull is not a breed
- NO TO BSL -- anyone citing stats are a lie"

- Pit hate propaganda from sites like 24/7 who lost in court for falsifying data and pages like DBO are nothing but LIES No To BSL
- How about you spend our tax $ on something useful like more schools?! It's 2020 and you're bringing up BSL? Enforce and Educate for all breeds!
- How many recent bite incidents involved a true ABPT? My guess is they were mostly mutts labelled as Pit Bulls. Exactly why BSL doesn't work
- BSL ignores the real issue.
- No
- I would fully support more education surrounding bite prevention and more enforcement focused on any breed that has a bite past.
- BSL creates a false sense of security surrounding other breeds in communities
- Mandatory pet ownership/training course for pet owners. Nuisance dogs are a byproduct of ignorant owners, not bad dogs. Education is crucial
- Cats should not be allowed outside without a leash. They can easily jump a fenced in backyard.
- Strong enforcement of current bylaws = responsible owners = reduced bite incidents for all breeds
- make dog training more accessible. dog training required for "nuisance dogs" like taking a driving course to get demerits removed
- I think cat owners who let their cats outside should be held responsible if their cat is attacked by another animal that is on its own prope
- 31 serious dog attacks on people and animals last year in Calgary. 29 of those attacks were pitbull attacks. Ban them please
- If you are a dog owner no matter breed it is your responsibility to keep your dog and community safe. NO TO BSL
- Breed is far less important than the circumstances surrounding the incident. NO BSL
- When one breed is committing almost all the serious attacks it is a breed issue. Thank you [personal information removed] for keeping your promise to ban pits
- Death caused by dogs in CANADA 1983-2017 43 deaths Husky 25% Northern dogs 24% German Shepard 11% Rottweiler 9% "Sled Dog" 7%
- The changes to the bylaw are being proposed because over the last 5 years the vast majority of serious dog attacks in Calgary have been pits
- A secure enclosure for all dogs loose their in yards would have prevented 31 incidents in Canada (74%)
- supervising very young children would have prevented 26 incidents in Canada (63%)
- supervising a known interaction between child and dog would have prevented 10 incidents in Canada (24%)
- any breed can express aggression if it is abused neglected improperly trained/socialized yet we pick on the "pitbulls" shame on you Calgary
- Calgary please continue to take a more progressive stance towards these archaic views of Pit Bull type dogs. Follow [personal information removed] hard work

- Many communities in BC have changed their bylaws regarding BSL because they recognize that they are outdated and prejudice.
- City Hall: The current bylaw is not bringing enough revenue, lets make changes to fix this!
- regardless of the breed when a dog attacks it is due to owner recklessness ignorance and irresponsibility simple as that NO BSL
- the key to reducing bites is not BSL but instead making owners accountable and responsible for their dogs behavior
- A reckless owner of any breed can become an out of control liability that ends up hurting somebody or someone's animal. NO BSL
- Na
- N/A
- no
- Responsible owners will be forced to adhere to these unrealistic regulations while negligent owners will continue to be NEGLIGENT
- Too many people can't control the animals they have. Please do not allow more dogs/cats per household
- Just like us as humans who raised us makes a big difference in how we react to things . Be kind
- Urban hens with proper housing and a limit on how many. No neighbor consent, they are less of a nuisance then a cat or dog.
- Keep breed discrimination out of the equation. It only promotes POOR OWNERS to ruin other breeds of dogs and you will never fix the problem.
- More information should be provided to everybody about how to respond if attacked by a dog or who to phone if your neighbours dog is barking
- Yes to feeding wild birds and squirrels in our yards. No to feeding other wild animals like, skunks, raccoons, fox, coyote, deer etc
- No
- Bylaw have clearly stated that the majority of serious dog attacks they deal with are pitbull attacks in our city. I support a ban.
- Not at this time
- No to urban livestock such as pigs, goats, cows, donkeys, horses, Lama, Alpacas, sheep etc. Yes to urban hens and pigeons.
- I would support a mediation system rather than a tribunal system to shorten resolution wait times for issues with problem animals.
- Investment in education/ training programs to help all owners understand the needs/ challenges of their breed would be beneficial. NO BSL
- Please make survey more streamlined and easier to navigate. Legislate based on behaviour and owners- not the breed. Every dog is different.
- Re-legalizing backyard hens is long-overdue. They were a part of our past and a requirement for our future!

- More urban orchards that are available to anyone in the city to pick!
- No
- YES Urban Hens. NO to neighbors' permission in keeping hens. Next door's barking dogs and pooping cats on others yard is a nuisance.
- Accountability and education. Dealing with problem dogs or owners makes more sense than writing a dog off based on looks or stereotypes.
- LOVE cats - but fed up with owners allowing them to roam freely. My flower and veg gardens are ruined plus bird deaths. Big fines please!
- Determining if a dog is a problem or dangerous should be based on the actions of the dog, not the appearance of the dog.
- As a pet dogs are a strong motivator for elderly people to get out for exercise and to socialize exempt their dog licence fee requirements.
- Focus on dog owner accountability instead of targeting a broad spectrum of canines with legislation.
- Please remove the wording about "pitbull" appearance. It shouldn't be based on what a regular person "thinks"; must be a pitbull
- Hoping this BSL does not happen here!
- "Excellent changes to the bylaw. Please inspect and license breeders. Ban boas and pythons
- Allow rescued cats and dogs to be brought here."
- Rules are pointless without enforcement; been at Edworthy dog park every day for the last 15 years and have never seen a bylaw officer.
- Its kinda wrong to "neuter" animals
- Please stop allowing people to trap cats, rabbits and squirrels in city limits.
- The City of Calgary has signed the Durban Commitment to protect Biodiversity. The City must enforce bylaws for dogs and cats and protect speci
- Make it more accessible for pet owners to have engagement with one another and with the city regarding pet ownership.
- Education options for all cat and dog owners when applying for pet licences.
- City given patches for legal service and support animals. Many lie about their pets. There is no way to prove that it isnt a service animal
- Enforce cat bylaws. Capture cats and Charge free roam cat owners. For both the cats safety and the bird extinctions/ mess they cause.
- The pet owner should have a license to own cats/dogs. Earned by taking an online course. No individual pet licenses.
- Breed restrictions are not necessary, responsible pet ownership is what is important to remember.
- We've had enough pitbull attacks in Calgary. The city is right to restrict them. I can't own a chicken but I can own a 60 pound fighting dog??
- Noise creating nuisance to neighbours. In winter in my neighborhood there is lot of barking and disturbing night sleep and creating nuisance

- Stop the 25 pound rental rule for pets. A lot of people move to this city and can't find homes and have to abandon or surrender their pets.
- Outdoor cats make it difficult for lost cats to be found and find their way homes. Please enforce roaming cat bylaws.
- "Yes to condo/row housing developers creating pee pad parks for dogs to do their business instead of in the common green spaces."
- Breed restrictions are morbidly asinine. There needs to be more accountability for the owners of these pets and less placement on the animal
- Cats should be allowed to roam freely unless they cause a nuisance - it is their natural behaviour. Locking in cats is cruel.
- Please better enforce laws against outdoor cats. It is neglectful to let a pet roam to get hurt or killed when there are better alternatives
- BSL is not an effective way to deal with animals. The science is there to prove that. Why are we going backwards?
- I would like to see higher fines and better enforcement for off-leash dogs in areas which either prohibit dogs, or are on-leash only areas.
- It is appalling that there are breed specific questions. How do YOU determine a breed? Focus on problematic dogs and their owners. NO BS BSL
- All outdoor cats are nuisances who pee on houses, dig up gardens, and kill local songbirds. The city needs to do more about this issue.
- It is terrifying whenever loose cats or dogs run in front of my car or bike. Please enforce leash laws and increase fines for outdoor cats.
- Please limit the # of animals a dog walker may walk at a time. One person cannot adequately manage 6 animals at a time. Also license them.
- Again Breed should have absolutely nothing to do with legislation. Punishment should be directed to irresponsible owner first and foremost.
- Discussions about opening up off-leash parks to other temporary uses. Ie: cyclecross races.
- Accountability! Dogs: don't leave them outside to constantly bark. Cats: (I have 2 indoor cats) - stop making your cat my daily problem.
- Everyone should have to go through a minimal basic training with their animals instead of restricting a breed.
- I find the fact that pits are being pinpointed in this survey deplorable, any dog can bite, some have a stronger bite than pits. Rework req
- Instead of blanket law on a breed it should be case to case. 'Outdoor cats' are the real nuisance, destroy gardens, spraying on chairs etc
- More off-leash areas are needed. Would be nice to be able to use some of the many pathways to be able to walk my dog off-leash on them.
- More bylaw officers giving tickets for bikes going too fast on the trails and failing to ring their bells. They are a risk for on-leash dogs

- Calgary you cannot solve the aggression issues by restricting a specific breed you need to get to the root of the problem...the owners
- Do not implement breed specific legislation for pitbulls! This is proven to do NOTHING to reduce dog bites and they are just like any dog
- All pet owners need to be responsible community members recognizing that their pet may bring joy to them but not to others. Uphold bylaws
- Pets and their owners do not have unlimited rights. NO to Dogs off leash outside their property/off leash parks and NO to at large cats
- Breed should have nothing to do with legislation. BSL has been proven to not work and punishment should be directed to irresponsible owner
- Don't punish the breed punish the behaviour NO TO BSL YES TO BREED NEUTRAL BYLAWS
- Yes to hens! Great idea.
- Off leash areas are a privilege, not a right. If a nuisance dog cannot behave itself off leash, it should not be allowed off leash.
- Shame [personal information removed]! You want to take good dogs from good families to be euthanized or move to another city? BLOOD will be on your hands!
- "Don't punish the breed punish the behaviour NO TO BSL YES TO BREED NEUTRAL BYLAWS"
- "Animals causing damage to others be responsible for all medical costs incurred.
- Owners of nuisance animals MUST be held accountable"
- question three was discriminatory and poorly worded and the person(s) responsible should be removed from their position.
- No
- More patrolling of on leash parks and near off leash parks. It's difficult to walk dogs on leash when loose dogs approach and causes dog fights
- Hen ownership should require neighbour approval as it isn't required for other pets.
- Pitbull attacks make up the vast majority of dog attacks requiring reconstructive surgery. They have no place in a city filled with kids.
- Mandatory owner training for dogs: breed info and learning
- Don't know if this was covered but people letting their dogs out in their backyards and the dogs are constantly barking is a huge annoyance.
- Return to the system where the Bylaw Officers are specialists, rather than generalists, and are actively involved in animal education.
- Higher fine for animal abusers
- Na
- It would be great to include chickens in the bylaw! Food security and education means a lot more in times like these.
- Shame on [personal information removed]! Thinking of taking good dogs from good families to be euthanized or moved out of city. BLOOD will be on your hands.

- "Canadian Veterinary Association has a position statement regarding dangerous dogs, pls consider this
- license dog breeders/ animal importers"
- I like the idea of a lifetime registration fee. Just buy when you get the pet and be done with it!
- City told me not enough funds/officers to patrol for unleashed dogs at parks. How is there going to be enough funds/officers to enforce BSL?
- Hen ownership absolutely should NOT require neighbor approval. It is not required for cats or dogs. Yes hens. pigeons and feeding wild birds.
- N/A
- Canadian Kennel Club DOES NOT SUPPORT BSL. Recommend responsible pet ownership instead.
- City of Dorval REMOVES BSL from bylaw, enacted enforcement and education that is non discriminatory -deemed more effective
- Tougher consequences for those who abuse animals.
- Toronto announces to table the bill to REPEAL BSL... changes bylaw to support enforcement and education no discrimination
- CKC opposes fear based BSL in favour of enforcement and education non discriminatory.. deemed more effective at protecting the public
- Toronto: Bill 147 repeals BSL passed second reading
- Montreal: Mayor Valerie Plante looking at denouncing BSL supports Responsible pet ownership
- Prince George BC updates bylaw - support of responsible pet ownership recognizes BSL is ineffective as dog bites have increased dramatically
- Prince George BC proposed bylaw no mention of breed specific (BSL) favours enforcement and education of all breeds
- Calgary why are we moving backwards when other municipalities are moving forward scrap the idea of breed specific legislation
- City can't find funds for officers to patrol areas.....how will BSL be funded. Expensive to implement with no supporting evidence it works
- I will not support a bylaw that is discriminatory towards specific breeds of dogs especially one that has no supporting evidence
- Politicians seem to be the only ones in support of a breed-specific by law what a waste of taxpayers money better spent in education
- We don't treat criminals this way with a human specific legislation most are allowed to walk away from their crimes only to commit again?
- Removal of neighbour approval for back yard hens. We don't ask for other pets. Back yard hens are a great source of food security.
- Remove the ability to back yard breed mandatory spay and neuter of all pets unless you are a registered breeder or for medical reasons
- Dog bite study by the U of C in 2019 states "that dog bite severity is not dictated by the dog breed". Bull types are in third LOWEST group!

- I do not support any breed-specific legislation.
- No
- Not all pitbulls (breed related) are unsafe. No muzzles or you will have protests!!! Trust me! Harsher punishments for the owners!!!
- BSL is not appropriate and should not be considered, blatant discrimination. Innocent people and animals, should not be treated like criminals.
- I agree with other on the fact that I do not support any breed-specific legislation.”
- Responsible owners = responsible pets. Its not breed, its you the owner.
- "Humans are the real monsters NO TO BSL
- YES TO RESPONSIBLE OWNERSHIP AND EDUCATION"
- Negligent owners do not abide by any bylaw what makes you think they will adhere to these restrictions. NO TO BSL
- Negligent owners will just ruin other breeds if BSL is passed. Focus on enforcing our current bylaw NO BSL
- It's funny how we put a dog down for biting a kid but if a human hurts a kid he lives how about the same for the dog
- BSL HAS PROVEN TO NOT BE EFFECTIVE IN REDUCING BITES EDUCATION IN BITE PREVENTION MORE EFFECTIVE
- I think there needs to be more enforcement of leash laws in areas where leashes are required. People walk dogs without leashes regularly.
- I do not support breed specific legislation
- It's time to get harsh with dog owners who can't / won't control their dogs. Fine them within an inch of their lives and take the dogs away.
- Not an idea, but a fact. There is no proven reduction in bites or attacks under BSL. This is just breed specific bullying and truly ghoulish
- Any breed pose threat without proper behavior management. Lower license fees w proof of obedience class completion. Small breeds attack too.
- "Higher fines for people attacking or threatening dogs on leash.
- Don't highlight pitbulls in bylaws. Agressive or not is important."
- I am completely opposed to Breed Specific Legislation and am deeply disappointed that the City of Calgary are even considering this.
- Uncontrolled off leash dogs are dangerous for people, pets, and local wildlife. Fines for having a dog off leash should be increased.
- I don't like the idea of restricting certain rules to one breed of dog - i think that the restrictions etc. should be linked to behavior.
- We should have and promote possibly monthly cleanup drives to off leash and on leash parks to clean up pet faeces that owners have missed in
- Please no more dogs/cats in a household. It's more to enforce bylaws for problem owners. More chance of neglect/abuse. More expense for all.

- Not only higher fine for off leash dogs. But, no warning, just get a fine. They already know the law. they just do it cause nothing happens.
- Since the city doesn't have enough funds for more patrolling for bylaw offenders. Maybe the public takes pictures and put on a Wall of Shame.
- More penalty to owners for dog attacks. Make it a crime for owner to leave the scene of attack with the dog and it's one of the charges too.
- I live across the street from an off leash dog park. There are dogs barking, fighting and people yelling. Worse when dog walkers are there
- Children should not be responsible for any breed of dog that could be considered dangerous in any public area
- Firepits in the backyards of city homes should be banned. They could be a fire risk, and the resulting smoke certainly are a health hazard
- Chickens please. They make great pets and give us eggs too.
- Don't discriminate Pit Bulls, all dogs can be aggressive. Owners are responsible for their pet. dogs need to be kept on leash by playgrounds
- Amendments to cats at large; homeowners provide a photo of animal at large and send to City for follow-up and enforcement vs trapping.
- Is there any financial aid available to low-income pet owners? I have seen people who cannot afford the vet bills and their animals suffer
- Make pet licencing more affordable and accessible. Also, STOP SENDING BYLAW OFFICERS TO HOMES FOR PEOPLE THAT ARE LATE RENEWING THEIR PETS!
- Yes to chickens! They are lovely and we need increased food security in these insecure times.
- Owners that have dogs that bite other pets, people etc should be made to pay the consequence. Vet, doctor fees, replacement of pet Etc
- Pit bulls should not be discriminated against as a breed. Aggressive dogs happen because the owner and how they train and work with the dog.
- I am very much in favour of limiting the number of cats and dogs and adamant about not taking away the right to feed the birds.
- When a single breed of dog is committing almost all the serious dog attacks it is a breed issue. No more pitbulls please they are dangerous
- "The 66th Avenue powerline area should be an onleash area.
- There should be enforcement of the onleash requirement in North Glenmore Park."
- It seems that pit bull related breeds are being targeted. This is wrong in all instances. It is the owner of bad behavior dogs is at issue
- I live near River Park off leash area and I hear dogs fighting all the time. It is very scary. Nuisance dogs should not be allowed off leash
- The key is responsible per ownership. I've had two dogs and one of the first things I did with each one was to sign up for training.
- A woman took her dog to unload on my lawn told her to pickup she ran off 1/2m dogs in city no waste/owner control now and more? Get a grip YYC

- Pet licensing should be graduated (increased fees) for multiple pets per household and nuisance pets.
- Many dog owners disregard leash bylaws; no you're not a dog whisperer. When you walk your dog, pay attention to your dog, not your phone.
- Responsibility is to the owner if there are any issues.
- Pit bulls are no different than ANY OTHER type of breed. Stop categorizing them as an aggressive breed.
- Animals which are never out of the house should not have a fee
- I don't agree making dog bylaws breed specific. Ie pit bulls. Like other dogs, some are sweet, some are not
- If a dog maims/bites a person it should be treated with the same weight as assault. If they kill a person It should be man slaughter.
- If a person's dog hurts or kills another animal, the owner should pay the vet bills in addition to fines (which should be increased)
- I enjoy feeding the birds in the winter months, I don't feed them in the spring/summer. I hope this option remains.
- feeding wildlife is not specific, would this ban bird feeders, I hope not
- parents of children need to educate their offspring ,not to approach an un-known animal to them and how to act when outside,
- There should not be warnings for people breaking the bylaw, only fines. No one listens to warnings.
- Fine owners not picking up dog feces. I typically see huge poops where my dog chooses to go + pick up his + more before it gets stepped in
- If a pitbull type dog is required to be muzzled how will they be able to protect themselves from another aggressive breed if approached
- The focus on pitbulls is a massive step backwards for a city that was once the world leader for responsible pet ownership. Shameful.
- Is there a way for pet owners across the city to share information, photos, concerns, updates, upcoming events?
- 47 of 51 Micheal Vick pitbulls were rehomed (with other animals in the home) which shows pitbulls R not naturally aggressive! No to BSL!!
- Dog ownership should require license regardless of breed. Dogs are inherently good natured, bad behaviours result from poor training
- Bylaw officers have clearly stated that the reason pitbulls are targeted in the changes is because pits commit almost all serious attacks.
- This whole survey is ridiculous. I've only had negative experiences with little dogs. They're the nuisance.
- [personal information removed] No fighting dogs in YYC please
- I live in the N.E. were most pitbulls live and I have personally watched multiple dogs killed by pits in public. Ban them from the N.E.

- Low $ pet owner education course to help raise emotionally healthy animals in a safe environment. Obedience and neglect can be ignorance.
- I think I'm regards to a limit on the amount of animals allowed in a single household, an exception should be made for those that are foster
- Fines from dogs attacks should go to victim for hospital/ vet fees
- I think there needs to be a cap on the number of dogs that dog walkers take out at a time as well as more patrol/monitoring in the parks.
- All new dog owners should have to sign up for obedience classes with their animals and the first year should be part of the purchase cost.
- better publication of the on leash laws for dogs is required, as most owners think every open field is off leash, which they are not
- Yyc you are claiming A Ban or BSL is not being discussed but that restrictions need to be in place this IS BSL have you read your own bylaw?
- SPAY/NEUTER INCENTIVE PROGRAMS AND EDUCATION. LAWS AGAINST PUPPY MILLS. IF YOU ARE A BREEDER, YOU MUST REGISTER THE ANIMALS AND MEET A STANDARD
- SPAY/NEUTER INCENTIVE PROGRAMS and EDUCATION
- NO BSL LEGISLATION
- LOWER REGISTRATION FEES FOR SPAY/NEUTERED ANIMALS
- SEEMS AS IF SOME STORIES ARE BEING MADE UP REGARDING "PITBULLS" AND THE NE QUADRANT OF YYC DO NOT FABRICATE STORIES FOR YOUR AGENDA
- Your "definitions" are too vague. The entire survey is easily misunderstood. How do you ever get to specifics in a bylaw?
- No.
- Don't have a breed specific rule. Training for owners and dogs should be required.
- Allow cats to roam outside of owner's property as it is physically not possible to limit a cat from roaming if he is the kind.
- Not applicable
- Everyone adding a new dog to their household and applying for a new dog license must go through a dog training/obedience program
- Prevent sale of animals in pet stores - [personal information removed]. I KNOW (not think) these animals are not ethically-sourced.
- Would really like it if you enforced roaming cats, right now there is vertically no repercussion for this offence as you do not enforce this
- Please publish annual statistics regarding fines and enforcement.
- Cats should be allowed to roam freely!
- Ban pit bulls. Stop breeding them. If there wasn't a problem it wouldn't be brought up. It's not the first time it's been here.
- I think I've provided sufficient information so far.

- No increase for cats and dogs in households. It's enough problems the way it is. Exceptions, to licensed breeders and foster programs.
- Yes to BSL. Yes to ban pit bulls.
- Bylaws should never be breed specific!
- License dog ownership and six months after issue, visible proof of training. My Doby was 100% off-leash trained w/heavy distraction by then
- Educate cat owners that their animals must remain on their own properties. If it isn't in your litter box it's on someone's property.
- Better ban musclebound gym goers too. They are more capable of physical altercation than most. Put this BSL GARBAGE to bed already.
- Some questions are too vague. All dogs should be treated the same no matter the breed. Most dogs will not attack unless provoked. Tell the truth
- Specially mentioning pit bulls is misleading and makes it seem like this engagement already has an agenda.
- If animal services was linked to 311 it would be nice. For reporting areas with lots of dogs off leash for patrol.
- No one's saying ppl against BSL or pit ban are making up stories. But, when ppl say they have been bitten/witnessed it's made up. Ban pits.
- Promote widespread public education campaigns for improved animal welfare E.g. don't leave pets in a car, no leashed dogs while cycling.
- Ban the people that don't train and look after their dogs. A well trained pit bull can be a fine dog
- Pit bulls are a continuous problem and have been since they were created. Because they were made for attacking and fighting. Need to be banned.
- Clearer legislation and management/enforcement of on-leash and no-dog areas is important. People need dog free spaces for lots of reasons.
- The subject of pit bulls is brought up in this survey. So there is a reason for pit bull talk even if pit bulls don't like it. Ban pit bulls.
- None
- Yes to licensing dog walkers but require each individual take a basic animal behaviour course to obtain a license. Limit 6 dogs per walker
- There needs to be "dog on leash" signs in every green space in the city. Too many people see a patch of grass and let their dog run loose.
- City needs better education on their website on how to keep cats indoors. ALL cats can be kept indoors humanely and happily with some effort
- All dogs should be held to the same standard. Period. I agree this engagement seems like it has an agenda with questions like these.
- Off leash areas should not be free parking, why should my tax-dollars when I do not own a pet be paying for the maintenance.
- I'm more likely to be harmed by a male human than male dogs. Nobody is crying to ban men or asking them to be restricted. Why not?

- Election is coming up based on how city council votes in this bylaw will determine how we as Calgarians vote
- When every single serious dog attack on a pet or human last year in the city is a Pitbull attack then it is a pitbull issue. Get rid of em.
- There is a difference between being bitten by a Yorkie and being mauled by a pitbull. It's strange that people seem confused by that.
- Kids need to be taught adults need to be taught dogs need to be taught introducing breed-specific legislation will never change that
- Pit bull ban can mean that owners keep the ones they have, no more are brought into the city and no breeding. Other places have done that
- None
- People should respect the personal space of a pet. Always ask for consent from the owner.
- No
- All dog owners should have their dogs go through basic and obedience training and submit these documents when registering their pets
- There is complete idiocy in the decisions made as to what is on or off leash, What is the difference between one side of a path or the other
- It's not the breed. It's the owners. Owners with nefarious intentions favour certain breeds. Punish the bad owners, not the breed.
- Cats account for an estimated 75% of song bird deaths in Canada. Cats have safer lives indoors. Feral cats should be euthanized.
- Tiered licensing; each pet the cost rises. Barking fees. Every barking complaint costs. Cat penalty. A photo is enough to send a fine.
- Every dog is an individual. Every dog should be judged based on their behaviour, not on their DNA or their appearance.
- I say no to creating breed specific legislation. More enforcement for problem owners.
- Regarding pit bulls, I have seen the same inane discussions about German Shepard's (1970's) and Doberman's as this. If trained they are good
- No
- Be more clear on what affects wild bird feeders in our backyards.
- The bylaw officers are asking for the changes to rules regarding pitbulls for a reason. They deal with serious pitbull attacks regularly.
- "Dog walkers need to be regulated and insured (eg. Max 4 dogs/walker).
- Fee to set up; many do not pay taxes on income I understand."
- Breed specific legislation has never worked. It's time the focus was on the owner and not the dog.
- Bylaw officers should get out of their vehicles and into the parks where bad behaviour happens to educate and fine bad dog owners.
- I live across the street from an off leash dog park. There are dogs barking, fighting and people yelling. Worse when dog walkers are there

- The city has stated that Pit bulls are not involved in the most bite incidents...why are we speaking about them.
- "What about pet rabbits?"
- I think that any animal kept as a pet should not be allowed to roam free and impact neighbors"
- I don't think having regulations around a breed of dog is fair. It is on the owner's to raise a well behaved dog. Bans and fines are stupid
- Have Due Process. If someone claims a dog attacked them do not fine the owner if there is no evidence, ex. Bite/Claw marks. Just Be Fair
- I believe it is unfair to target any specific breed of dog or animal but do support additional training required for any high-risk animals.
- Why are we speaking of restricting pitbulls when they are not involved in the most bites.....seems like an agenda
- How about not restricting pitbulls and start focusing on the dogs that are actually biting
- Don't target specific breeds of dogs target the humans that are making these dogs aggressive by abusing them
- City council please educate yourselves on what BSL truly means and what effect it will have on YYC. For example: lost revenue for buisness.
- Pit bulls aren't a dangerous breed, it's all in the obedience and training a dog gets from its owners. Just. Like. Kids.
- The Canadian Kennel Club opposes breed specific legislation for a reason.
- Prohibit female dogs that are in heat from using an off-leash dog park. A dog walker should only be allowed to walk 5 dogs at one time.
- It's really nice that so many pet owners think playgrounds are a toilet for their animals. DNA testing for feces would be an ok deterrent
- Bsl dog breeds have a bad rap, not all Bsl dogs are bad and having them looped all into one category is wrong.
- All dog owners, at the time of licensing, should be required to attend a training program focused on "How to be a responsible dog owner".
- I see lot of pet-owners walking their dogs Without any leash in downtown / along Riverwalk. City should do a better Job enforcing leash laws
- Attacks by pit bulls are associated with higher morbidity rates, higher hospital charges, higher risk of death than other breeds.
- Clarify what kinds of wildlife you can't feed in your backyard
- Noise by animals (dogs, cats, birds and livestock) should be held to the same standard as human noise (tools, lawn mowers, children...).
- When you register a pet, you must put the pet's DNA/saliva sample on file with the city so that if/when they bite, it's provable.
- Fines for off-leash cats should increase with each occurrence. Some owners habitually let their cats walk themselves (to birds' detriment).
- No

- If anything, pit bulls should not be stigmatized. Owners in this case should undergo an evaluation if needed as owners are typically the iss
- "Serious and unbiased research about the nit bull
- breeds who are inaccurately categorized as aggressive breeds."
- Why is the city so paranoid about families owning a handful of laying chickens. Dogs and cats are glorified
- Pigs allowed in the city, maximum 2 pigs per yard with stringent clean regulations.
- A strained economy/society is the perfect environment in which to consider implementing ridiculous breed specific legislation. Hi five!
- I support BSL and banning pit bulls.
- Pet owners should attend species-specific class(es) to be educated on training, handling, and lovingly disciplining the potential pet.
- Equestrian facilities within city limits.
- City could offer online course for owners of aggressive dog that would be mandatory I order to help owners deal with same
- Please do not single out specific breeds.
- Science -BSL does not work why are we as a city not coming together to find more constructive ways that actually work. EDUCATE!!
- "1st bite incident fine owners
- 2nd bite incident add restrictions to the specific dog not breed
- 3rd incident remove dog ban owner NO BSL"
- Dogs of any size/breed should adhere to the same bylaws restrict only those deemed aggressive on a case by case basis. NO TO BSL
- Media should be restricted against mentioned breed involved in any incident until breed is proved by courts. Media induces fear
- Stop labelling all dogs that are stocky, big head, muscular as “Pitbulls” they are NOT ALL “PITBULLS”
- I highly disagree with breed restrictions. Pitbulls are not the issue. Pitbull owners are. Period.
- A breed ban is ridiculous and has not worked in other places.
- A small child should not be allowed to walk a dog unless supervised by an adult
- On-line registration/applications made available
- Bylaw has clearly stated that nearly all the serious dog attacks on people and animals in our city are pitbull attacks. This is an issue.
- No BSL.
- Again as a new Calgary resident I'm shocked at the disregard for leash bylaws. Pls enforce this better. More officers/big fines.
- What about the rights of non-pet owners? We already have many conflicts. Why consider adding more "pets"? City costs will go up dramatically
- The City needs More fenced off-leash areas where people could train their dogs.

- "I DO NOT SUPPORT BSL
- I SUPPORT BREED NEUTRAL BYLAWS WITH STRICTER FINES AND ENFORCEMENT. EDUCATION AVAILABLE REGARDING BITE PREVENTION"
- BSL expensive to implement and businesses will lose revenue, tax dollars better spent in education surrounding bite prevention
- NO BSL start enforcing current bylaw with increased fines. More officers patrolling off leash areas and parks. 1-2 officer/s per community
- tax dollars better spent elsewhere increase fines and actually enforce them money can go towards educating the public around dog safety
- No BSL. Owners of any unruly dogs sh be held accountable.
- I love off leash areas but some dogs are very aggressive and some people do not seem to keep there dogs in control. (Bowness) enforcement?
- I think generalizing pit bull type dogs in one lump sum is terrible. That is like racism in people. There are no bad dogs just bad owners.
- Threats of fines is not a deterrent if there is little to no enforcement. Zero representation of control seen in parks!!!
- NO
- Yes to BSL. Ban Pit bulls. Stop breeding them. The problem them keeps coming up and has for the last 2 centuries.
- There should be more education and bite prevention about dogs especially aggressive types. But, pit bulls should be banned.
- No
- Let us have chickens and pigeons. Should not have to ask neighbors to have them. No to other livestock. Feed wild birds and squirrels.
- With regard to the fines, I think we should split the 'Animal damages another animal or property' fine into two categories: minor and severe
- Pit bulls were bred to be attack dogs. They are dangerous type dog. Breeding needs to stop and they need to be banned.
- Any Bylaws should be breed-neutral. The most common problem is the owner, not the animal.
- People shouldn't be allowed to have more animals. The aggressive dog is bad enough. Imagine if a bad animal owner had 6 and 6 roaming cats
- Cats and dogs are not the same and should be dealt with separately and not have same bylaw rules and fees. Dogs bite, bark and defecate.
- There should not be more off leash areas until owners learn how to control their dogs off leash. Offleash areas right now are a chaotic mess
- Low income people can't afford to neuter, spay, train pets and are irresponsible pet owners. There is no way their fees should be subsidized
- Hens are a fantastic pet. They are quiet, clean and provide eggs as food. They must be allowed.
- Where I live we have a "dangerous dog bylaw" which works beautifully. It doesn't target specific breeds. Nice to see Calgary do the same.

- Have an off leash area in every community.
- Any dog where the owner knows/suspects their animal will bite (other animals or people) should be required to muzzle their dogs in public
- People treat neighbourhoods with an off leash park as an off leash neighbourhood. I cannot enjoy walking near my home without nuisance dogs.
- Yes. Quit being racist towards certain breeds of dogs. It's the people that are the problem 99% of the time.
- No
- Taking care of the off leash problem would take care of a lot of aggressive dog problems. On leash areas need more enforcement!
- "I believe all off leash parks should be fenced.
- This is for the safety of both the dogs and passerby's."
- Rather than just fines for bad behaviour, also require obedience classes for owners and their dogs. Let's create meaningful behaviour change!
- I have had problems with barking dogs in backyards, and have found that reporting it to the City of Calgary has been ineffective.
- More proper ownership education programs/ information readily available. Educate the public and apparently city officials/staff.
- Of course we need guidelines and bylaws but every situation is unique. The idea that a "bully breed" be targeted is not acceptable.
- Bird feeders on private property allow birds to survive cold winters and allow observation from homes.
- The "bully breed" type dogs being targeted is unacceptable. I also disagree with the amount of pets you can own, as people will just hide.
- BSL is absolutely disgusting and expensive. Only people who have no experience with animals would agree with this nonsense. Shameful.
- Writing legislation for the sake of legislating is a sign of DSM diagnosable Controlling Personality Issues. Have the authors seen a psych?
- Yes to chickens!!! The bylaws can help educate and maintain standards for keeping chickens in the city! Hoorah Calgary for catching up!!!
- Bylaw has clearly stated that nearly all the serious dog attacks on people and animals in our city are pitbull attacks. This is an issue.
- People (especially dog walkers) should be limited on the number of dogs they can walk at one time. I see them with 10-15 all the time.
- should make it mandatory for all breeds to go through training when owners acquire a pet. And no picking on one breed aka pitbull types
- I want Bylaw to have the authority to seize any animal (dog/cat/etc) that is left unattended in a front or back yard and is making noise.
- There should be no pit bull type dogs allowed in children's playgrounds

- By-law officers should be able to trap feral/roaming cats/animals i.e. skunks. People should not be expected to trap and haul animal away.
- Animal groomers should be licensed and special attention should be paid to the grooming locations. Some should be shut down of lack of care
- Anyone who wants to own a pet must first take a course on how to be a responsible pet owner which includes everything about ownership. Good
- Dogs who demonstrate dangerous behaviour should be managed accordingly, not all dogs who are deemed dangerous based simply on appearance.
- Historically, pitbulls have had a lot of BIPOC owners - and BSL has been used as an “acceptable” way to marginalize or bully on racist lines
- Historically, pitbulls have had a lot of BIPOC owners - and BSL has been used as an “acceptable” way to marginalize or bully on racist lines
- My bird feeder has become a cat buffet. Please enforce roaming cat bylaws better, and make people keep cats inside.
- Breed specific legislation is needed in calgary immediately.
- Banning breeds doesn’t solve the problem. It’s the owners that need to be fixed
- More visible bylaw Officers out issuing fine for dog waste, esp those that bag them and leave them on trails or grass.
- “pitbull” are very loyal and are only as aggressive as they are taught to be. Blame the irresponsible owners not the breed
- BSL is not the solution education and enforcement is!
- Dog training classes should be mandatory for anyone looking to acquire a dog. 99% of dog issues are not the dog’s fault, but the owner’s.
- dog walkers should only be able to walk 4 dogs at a time
- Ban Pitbulls.
- No
- Bull Breeds are NOT more likely to bite than other dog breeds. Where did this notion come from?
- More enclosed fenced areas would be great, less worry in regards to traffic.
- Dog walker limit 4-6 dogs. Much more bylaw officer presence in problem on leash park areas to educate/ticket owners with off leash dogs!!!
- "Report people who make FALSE claims against animals and or their owners as this happens too often.

- Be able to report anonymously."
- Just asking not to be narrow minded please. All dogs deserve a chance!
- Breed specific legislation doesn’t work people. #justiceforbullies #BSLfreeYYC
- The off leash issue in on leash areas needs to be enforced. No loose dogs no dog attacks. No need for BSL.

- It would be great to install gates on fenced off sports fields where dogs are allowed, so that they can play off leash and not escape. Thx
- There needs to be more "no dog" signs near athletic parks and playgrounds. Dogs peeing and pooping where kids play is unsanitary.
- Dogs with a bite history should wear a muzzle and not be allowed off leash.
- If a pet is going to be maintained as an indoor pet (eg. Indoor cat), is there really a need for it to be licensed?
- More enforcement of existing by-laws. (dogs off leash in non-offleash areas, failure to dispose of feces). Bag of feces in a tree is not ok.
- Chickens!!!!!!
- Keep wild bird feeders please.
- License dog walkers. They are conducting a business on city property. Too many dogs, too little control. They are not cleaning up.
- no
- Need more Peace Officers 4 animal law enforcement plus powers of arrest and removal. A PACT team for animals (yes im a peace officer 4 AHS
- All off-leash areas should be fenced, for pet and people safety. Commit resources to enforce the bylaws. Improve the cat-trapping program.
- Dogs shouldn't be allowed on kids soccer fields and baseball pitches. Please put up signs saying this. It's unsanitary.
- Clearer designation of on-leash and off-leash areas, especially in larger park areas such as Nose Hill Park. Totally confusing.
- Bylaws for cats at large should be better enforced!
- Licensed cats should be allowed outside. The mice, magpie, squirrel problem in our neighbourhood is ridiculous.
- I agree with changing the bylaw except for the pitbull language mentioned. Restrictions should be applied to dogs on a case basis not breed
- As a mother with kids and pets the colour coding is a false sense of security. Rule: Do not approach or pet any animal unless the owner says
- If an animal attack occurs and the owner has to pay a fine. Let the money of that paid fine go to the victim. Also, educate people on pets!
- Dogs should be aloud to go we're they want it's mean to muzzle any anmail it's cruelty to animals
- Cats spread toxoplasmosis, which can be deadly to those with lower immune systems. Please enforce the cat bylaws.
- I am afraid of dogs, and the amount of people bringing their dogs to dog free areas is so scary. Please enforce no dogs/dogs on leash laws.
- Somehow there are a bunch of outdoor cats in my neighbourhood but we still have a mouse problem. And also a cat problem. No outdoor cats!!
- Please do not hand out warnings, only fines. Someone can be warned 10 times and still break the bylaws.

- no bsl.
- Breed-specific laws are regressive and discriminatory and should not be enforced. All pets should be held to the same standard.
- The park I've lived across from for 22 years... is NON-OffLeash, yet every single day, people exercise their dogs OffLeash, without control.
- There are no bad breeds of pets, only bad owners. Breed-specific rules should not exist.
- No
- N/A
- Support healthy free-range organic eggs from established Canadian farms - don't force hens into a miserable life in the city
- Only "flightless birds" should be kept as pets or LESAs. So yes to chickens and NO to dirty pigeons.
- Na
- Dog parks could use more large fenced areas that are safe for small dogs or small dog areas and large dog areas.
- Breed specific rules are UNNECESSARY. Owners are the problem and should be the ones being making the changes. No euthanasia for "nuisances"
- Please do a business case for sufficient resources to effectively enforce any laws wrt off-leash where not allowed and for not picking up.
- Fines to the parents of children that are caught teasing dogs in owners backyards.
- Dog parks divided for small and large dogs or higher fines for large dogs attacking smaller dogs.
- dangerous dog bylaws should focus on individual behaviour, not solely on looks or breed/mix. Fines/fees should increase w/owner irresponsibi
- Anyone that doesn't follow the rules or has a dangerous pet should be banned from owning animals, and that pet to be rehabilitated/rehomed.
- All parks both off leash and non off leash need to be patrolled more for irresponsible owners with dogs not under control. It's not safe.
- When a dog is continuously barking excessively there is an issue that deserves to be investigated
- Dogs require humans to provide proper care and direction don't blame them when they act out blame the negligent owner DO BSL
- For households getting 1st dog, REQUIRE Responsible Pet owner online course and test their knowledge. Perfect score gets discounted license.
- Dogs are a product of their environment blame their pack leader... the humans NO BSL
- I cannot stand off leash dogs in on leash areas. This should be monitored and fined
- Small dog specific off leash parks
- Dogs barking should be held to the same standard as kids playing, lawn equipment, motorcycles etc.
- Financial repercussions for ppl making false bylaw claims of nuisance behaviour and wasting bylaw officers time

- Dogs require humans to provide proper care and direction don't blame them when they act out blame the negligent owner NO BSL X2
- Put money toward enforcing the current bylaws. Especially on leash parks and areas around off leash parks. Instead of BSL.
- Fenced in off-leash dog parks in all communities. The nice ones are overcrowded because dog owners have limited options.
- Sandstone area 2 off leash is a terrible location next to busy multi lane roads. Add fences. It's a great length to play fetch but unsafe.
- Please don't single out breeds -- No BSL.
- Do not allow off leash dog parks adjacent to playgrounds. Le Rotary park is entirely off leash and is right beside a water park and playground
- Requiring breed specific rules is presumptuous of a dog's personality and discriminatory. The owner is responsible for their pet behavior!
- I think more restaurants should allow dogs on their patios and more stores should allow dogs - so long as the dogs are not vicious breeds.
- Don't ban pit bulls or bull breeds
- BSL does not reduce bites. BSL provides a false sense of security and punishes responsible dog owners.
- Put off leash areas in every community or at least an area where they can get more exercise.
- Anyone that hurts an animal, for any reason, should also be fined at least $1000.
- More dog friendly restaurants/stores - be more dog friendly, not less
- No
- Reduced licensing if you attend obedience classes
- Making bylaws more publicly known
- Parents who bring kids to off leash parks need to be aware of risks. Same for bikers and runners. It's not your park - it the dogs.
- I do not want dogs defecating on my lawn, even if the owner is picking it up.
- Punish the deed not the breed! Hold the pet owners to a higher standard regardless of breed or size.
- Why is Rotary Park an off leash park? It's next to a playground for kids. Off leash dogs are all over the park not only off leash area.
- Calgary needs to start enforcing leash by laws. The amount of ppl disregarding it is astounding. Leash your dogs!!!!!!
- No BSL. NOT NOW NOT EVER. It is not the animal it is the upbringing.
- I don't have any additional comments
- Required training for all dog owners to take dogs off leash
- Rotary Park as an off leash area is beyond reason. Not all residents can enjoy because of dog defecation, urine and irresponsible owners.
- Please keep legislation breed neutral!

- Large and obvious signs at off-leash parks warning of dogs at large, so non-dog owners using the park are not caught off guard.
 - GIVE PEOPLE PET INSURANCE
 - Breed Specific Legislation has proven to not be effective. I would not want to live in a city that is that narrow-minded and ignorant.
 - BSL is expensive and has not worked in other jurisdictions. Invest in preventative measures: accessible training, bite prevention, etc.
 - "People must be educated that a coloured scarf isn't an invitation to rush up to pet a dog, they must ask first!
 - Free education programs!"
 - Dogs should not be on restaurant patios where ppl are eating or in stores other than pet stores. It's unsanitary.
 - There is a reason for the leash laws. Keeping ppl and other dogs safe from so called "friendly" dogs. Owners need to be fined no warning!
 - Ban the sale of animals (dogs and cats at minimum) in pet stores, they can support pet adoption instead. Regulate breeding of dogs and cats.
 - Targeting a breed is the same as racial profiling. Please don't punish a breed for [removed] dog owners neglecting responsible training.
 - Only place restrictions on dogs that have proven to be aggressive (any breed) don't punish owners who have worked hard to have behaved dogs
 - "No sale of puppies and kittens in pet stores.
- License fee for breeders"
 - No
 - There should be fines for people who take their dogs into stores (Walmart, Starbucks, etc). It is unsanitary, annoying, and bad for business.
 - large dogs, when loose, even if they are gentle, can knock down elderly citizens who are also trying to access the walkways.
 - Yyc pls continue to stand by our long held decision to put the responsibility at the other end of the leash NO TO BSL
 - no
 - Human behaviour doesn't change w/out consequences, if you change the human behaviour the animal behaviour will be resolved—[personal information removed] NO BSL
 - Bylaw to manage dogs based on ACTUAL behaviours. NOT apperance/breed. A huge NO to Breed targeted bylaws in Calgary. No BSL.
 - Punish the owner, not the breed! We need to have higher punishments for irresponsible/abusive pet owners. NO BSL! That won't help!

- Rotary Park is not a dog park. It's a multi use park. Dog owners, stop abusing your privilege of use and abide by the city laws.
- Many off leash parks are multi use parks used by runners/bikers and others. They are not the dogs parks. Dogs still need to be controlled.
- Please enforce leash laws better. I am afraid of dogs and it is always terrifying when they run up to me barking.
- I would support a bylaw banning the ownership of known pests such as pigeons, mice etc. If it spreads disease it shouldn't be a pet
- If you only place restrictions on dogs that have proven to be aggressive, it's too little too late. They've already hurt someone.
- Education to the public about fact/fiction regarding pitbull type dogs.
- Yyc is rated one of the most companionable cities in North America for people and pets lets continue our legacy NO BREED SPECIFIC BYLAW
- Targeting pit-bull type breeds is discriminatory, completely ignoring factors such as temperament, training, etc, Same as racial profiling
- Research shows 1 hr of dog safety training in grades 1 and 2 can reduce bites by 80%
- "We don't punish breeds we punish behaviour" — [personal information removed] Director of Animal Services Calgary.....NO BSL
- No bsl
- Pit bulls make up only 6% of the dog population, but they're responsible for 68% of dog attacks and 52% of dog-related deaths since 1982.
- [personal information removed]—"A breed ban on pit bulls would be counterproductive, its up to the owners to make sure their dogs are well trained"
- Breed bans are ineffective— [personal information removed]
- A breed ban would lead owners to replace their pitbulls with other aggressive dogs — [personal information removed]
- "All dogs can and will bite all that happens is your bites shift to other breeds"
- [personal information removed]
- One person is killed by a pit bull every 14 days, two people are injured by a pit bull every day, and young children are especially at risk.
- Breed isn't a factor in dog bites rather people are more likely to report a bite from a powerful breed NO TO BSL
- Ban the thought of Breed Specific Bylaws permanently
- Na
- Please look into rescues in our city so many use the rescue to flip dogs many are being housed in deplorable conditions, not being vetted
- Also look into how these dogs are being transported into the city from across the border through these rescues, unethical transport unsafe
- People that state that pits are not an aggressive breed are 1.out to lunch 2. [personal information removed] supporters 3. Pulled their "facts" out of imagination.

- Not fair to target one breed because some people don't know how to raise a dog properly.
- No to BSL. Do NOT punish bully breeds simply based on the way they look. It's unfair and unfounded.
- All dogs can and will bite, but when that bite is from a pit bull, the damage is devastating and irreparable.
- Dogs are dogs it is 100% up to the owner to keep them under control at all times NO TO BSL
- Your antispaam robot detector didn't allow me to submit my responses to the questionnaire. Thanks for wasting my time.
- High fines and jail time for animal abusers
- Please enforce leash laws. It is unfair to my (on leash) dog to be approached by other dogs, off leash, in public with irresponsible owners.
- Any animal that has been in some sort of "incident" chasing/injury..etc be made to take an obedience course REGARDLESS OF BREED!
- The only thing that is reliable about a pit bull is that once focused on its prey, the dog will be relentless in attack. Bred to kill. Ban!
- Most pit bull attacks are entirely unprovoked and half of the children killed are the victims of pit bulls raised with love in their household
- DNA records kept for pets and testing of illegal dog dirt. If there is a DNA match, impose a significant fine on the dog owner.
- Pits were bred to kill. Creating an unstoppable "fighting machine". Once they attack they don't stop. They need to be banned.
- "BSL does not work.
- Please do not go back to this outdated and ill proven model of animal control."
- No breed specific legislation, and mandatory education/training programs for the OWNERS of pets deemed nuisances
- Owners are the issue, not the breed. Say no to BSL. They are a beautiful, caring, gentle and loving breed. Don't discriminate.
- No ball ! It has been proven ineffective and is being removed in many other regions that have tried it.
- Pit bulls as Nanny Dogs is a myth. Advocacy groups quit supporting as children were in danger. <http://thetruthaboutpitbulls.blogspot.com>.
- It is 100% the owners responsibility to maintain their animal and be in-tuned with them. NO TO BSL. People also need to be trained
- Pit bull issue keeps coming to the table for a reason. If they weren't a problem they wouldn't be. The breeding needs to stop and ban
- no sure what to say.
- Even the suggestion of a breed ban is disgusting of the city. Educate yourselves on breedism. Your ignorance will not go unchallenged.
- All dogs should be treated the same because it is the owner or lack thereof, that causes an animal to be violent, not the breed of the dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Stakeholder Report Back: Verbatim Report

Cats

To deal with the overpopulation of cats, we are considering increasing support for 'trap/neuter/release' programs. This could include:

- increasing fines for roaming cats found off property, and/or
- investing more in spay/neuter programs for feral cats, or
- A combination of A and B

Which option do you think would best serve Calgarians? What additional supports/resources would The City need to make your choice successful?

- Both. Increased fines important for roaming domesticated cats that are owned
- Both, what if we only released cats to their owner once they have been spayed/neutered?
- Like mandatory spay/neuter? Yes, if they are brought into animal services they would need to be spayed to be released.
- If we spay neuter in a catch and release to limit overpopulation. Trap in areas of concern.
- I know that AARCS has a spay/neuter program and we had a discussion on whether City should take over program or just send funding over to groups already doing it. Combination of A and B. Another question is whether we need legislative amendments to the bylaw to be able to trap/neuter. Question for law....do we have legislative authority (municipal and provincial) for these programs? Don't want to run afoul of our own bylaw or provincial legislation.
- In past years CHS took in all cats without ID. Is this something that could be explored in the future?
- Why are we releasing feral cats if cats cannot be AT LARGE?
- We don't.
- If increase fine, is there a risk of people coming in?
- Don't know what mitigation is
- Increase fine in unaltered cats? Does this make sense? Yes it does, stats are unknown at the moment will have to check this
- They don't care if they keep paying or they can't afford, spay or neuter
- Cats are feral, lots of complaints on this – what should we do? – research in TO spay or neuter then let out, invest in spay or neuter and encourage this
- Lowering fines as it might be prohibited – what are the other options? Balancing act, we can see more cats come in
- Increase is this supported? Keep it same for first offence, scaled approach for 2nd, 3rd...

- Education for the public, don't realize cats destroy flower beds – potential Option D for council – this could be part of the solution
- Combining A and B – agree with scaled approach
- I think spaying and neutering is the most effective for overpopulation. With the requirement that there would need to be education on why the City does a TNR program when roaming cats is against the bylaw.
- I think modifying the No Cost Program for ONLY cats, will help citizen's get their pet altered and Microchipped. Also means that we can provide that education while the pet is in our care.
- I support [personal information removed] in her comment on fines being cost prohibitive for owners wanting/being able to retrieve their pet.
- The TNR program from MEOW does neuter all their cats.
- I wouldn't say I support lowering fines but I don't think I support increasing fines. I also think if we offer microchipping, whether at cost or otherwise, would be hugely beneficial with ensuring cat owners are identified and will help with tracking repeat offenders and makes it more difficult for a possible owner match to deny being the owner. Although the microchipping events haven't been as successful as Toronto has seen I think they're still hugely beneficial. But being able to offer microchipping more than a few times a year would be ideal.
- YES [personal information removed]!
- Following [personal information removed] comment then perhaps we need more awareness/availability of the public cat traps.
- No need to discuss, but I want to capture this note (and my apologies if this was already discussed). Don't we already issue one warning ticket per year for cat at large offences (per Section 37(3) of the RPO)? That's essentially a type of scaled fine system.
- Yes
- Guilty in court before escalating, there is a legislated impact – this is not as easy
- Scaled approach but not in bylaw – question for law
- There is a problem with feral cats, neighborhoods people feeding and caring for cats, is there a program/incentive to help them bring these cats to the shelter?
- [additional supports]
- a combination of both would be great.....less of a backlog for the Spay/neuter program.....and for the chronic offenders, higher fines would be nice for us to issue
- What about reduced license fees/fines for cats that are spayed or neutered, to help reduce the population
- higher fines for cats that aren't fixed
- Removal of warning per license period
- get rid of the 1 warning per licence year to give us more discretion
- I agree with [personal information removed] re: no freebie of an at large per licensing year
- need to get rid of the requirement to issue a warning for the first offense in a licensing year too
- they often will be regularly at large, but then new license period = warning

- How about free license for first year if cats are spayed or neutered
- should the shelter be dealing w feral cats? they are busy enough from speaking to them.
- that technically is already in the RPO (double the amount for re-occurrence of offence) it would be nice to see reduced license for ""indoor cats"" however that would likely mean we are accepting outdoor cats
- what about making licensing available at the vets?
- discounted license under the Fair Entry Program has been previously suggested but I'm not sure where this went?
- Increasing a fine is alright, all 3 at once – spaying and neutering, not just feral cats
- We can start with option B
- Do we have stats on feral cats in the city?
- 2% of the cats taken in at the shelter in 2019 were considered feral, 43 cats
- How many cats that end up at AS are still intact?
- That's a great question, I would have to get back to you on that one removing the legislated requirement, warning. Having a policy versus a legislation
- Separate amount for unaltered cats
- Higher subsequent amounts for reoccurring, any thoughts on this?
- I like this, more cats from properties than feral
- Nuisance section – increase fines, helpful for cats and animals
- What additional supports/resources would The City need to make your choice successful?
- Education
- Removing barriers like cost to participate in the program
- I think increase in fines may result in people not licensing cats and also not picking impounded cats up from shelter.
- What about subsequent fines?
- first fine for cats is free already
- More availability for spay / neuter for all cats
- Wait lists should be shorter through city channels
- More partnerships would be helpful as well to help spay / neuter cats
- We have cats coming into the shelter multiple times. And then after a while the owners don't redeem them. Maybe when owners redeem the cat we can do mandatory microchipping. Would make owners more accountable. Sometimes we have cats that come through the no cost spay and neuter program and the owners redeem them the first time they get out but then they don't redeem them after that. First time it gets out, we can give them the benefit of the doubt, but after that make it mandatory microchip and the owner has to pay for it.
- Don't have the exact figures on the number of cats coming in without a microchip – guess would be 50%.
- [How much to charge for that?] Can't make any profits as a City facility, so we could do it at the purchase cost and staff time. Shouldn't be more than $20.

- I like [personal information removed] idea. But could we also have an offense when they refuse to pick up the animal?
- If we know who the cat owners are and they refuse to pick up the animal because they don't want a ticket, can we not still issue them a ticket? If they say "it's the 4th time my cat's been there, you can keep him"...what can we do? We can invest money into the animal and adopt it out or euthanize it. Can we not still charge?
- If the cat has a form of ID, we can confirm ownership and if the owner doesn't redeem the cat, it becomes a case of abandonment and it becomes a case that we can send to the Calgary Humane Society (CHS). It's an offence under the Animal Protection Act (APA). You can't abandon your animals. At least then these animals would end up at CHS and we would be spared from the medical/spay/neuter costs for these animals.
- Under the APA, if you don't redeem your animal it becomes abandoned. Same thing happens at vet clinics. Those animals end up at CHS. We can offer that as an option, but we still wouldn't get any fines from the owners.
- Are there any other municipalities that have done mandatory microchipping?
- Continue investing in the spay/neuter program and more education.
- [Re: higher fines for unaltered cats. For [personal information removed] - What level of certainty is there that we would be able to say that an animal is unaltered?] That would be easy for us. Females you can see a spay scar and males have an absence of testicles.

Wildlife

It is currently prohibited to feed or tease wildlife in Parks. Would you support a bylaw prohibiting feeding and teasing wildlife on private property? Please explain your response.

If yes, what supports/ resources would be needed to enforce the bylaw?

- Is that not covered in the community standards bylaw (CSB) with the attracting of pests?
- Not sure why people would have wildlife on their private property. We should have something in the bylaw that tells people that they cannot entice wildlife into private property because that will increase the predatory response of other animals which will increase risk to public as a whole.
- Recently dealt with a call with [personal information removed] who is intentionally feeding skunks. I used the accumulation that could attract pests section under community standards.
- in Edmonton, [personal information removed] used to put out meat to entice coyotes. No mechanism to deal with that issue. No real issues in Calgary, but looking for input. Would have to make an exemption for feeding birds. Don't know if there is a problem with people putting out meat or other attractants outside of birds.
- we have had that out in Springbank with people feeding bunnies, which attract bobcats and coyotes.
- Maybe updating CSB would be better as there has been issues with enforcing. You would have to be very specific of feeding of animals – that would have to be proven. You would have to be able to see the food being put out and animals feeding on it for evidence to warrant it going to court. CSB just talks about attracting – no need to prove animal is feeding. We had a case in the NE with people putting food on a rooftop to feed animals. Complaints in Erlton with people putting out loaves of bread to feed rabbits. Proof has to be there that intent is to feed animals and not just putting out garbage.

- I think it should stay in Comm Standards as this is the Responsible PET Ownership - not wildlife.
- are there prosecutorial challenges with using the CSB to address attractants? Is there an opportunity to strengthen the CSB?
- challenge is word 'accumulation'. One loaf of bread does not constitute an accumulation. Accumulation would be people spreading bird seed on a yard, ground feeders etc.
- There are also squirrels which is common place. And the bird feeders are subject to squirrel checking out. 'Food for thought' Law has defined food as 'not accumulation' as the food is acquired - placed- eaten - then replaced so it's not usually in place too long.
- Comm Standards Bylaw
- S.8. (1) No owner or occupier of a Premises shall allow on the Premises, the accumulation of:
 - any material that creates unpleasant odors;
 - any material likely to attract pests; or
 - animal remains, parts of animal remains, or animal feces.

I think take accumulation as well and add under (a) pests, wildlife,

- In terms of feeding - untidy property, seeds
- Can cause damage to property
- Fish creek park – food out brings in wildlife and surrounding property
- Yes supports if they are feeding. Is it the avian species or mammals – more mammals
- Squirrel problem, don't know if we can get away from this
- Public and private areas with these problems – Erlton – big problem with rabbits
- If yes, what supports/ resources would be needed to enforce the bylaw?
- One councilor is a bird lover, can't see to put forward not to feed birds
- Put in what is the harm
- Encouraging or luring of wildlife
- would that include bird feeders – answer is no
- Yes, I imagine it would be similar to the ""Attract pests"" under the CSB
- We already have accumulation of material which attracts pests to deal with people feeding wildlife
- I had a complainant in regards to a person feeding rabbits. The offender wanted me to issue a ticket, so he could call the media [removed] to hire an expert to determine if the rabbits caused a problem.
- Two areas most challenging
 - Pigeons, most pigeon coupes from feeding wildlife and accumulates. Prohibiting in private properties will help
 - Hares – challenging to enforce. Dog chasing bunnies at a townhouse complex
- Birdfeeders, where to draw the line. Waste attracting pests like mice and affecting property. Rule of no feeding at all?

- Thought of exemptions of feeding birds, not pigeons this is something to think about
- I think we have something in com bylaw accumulating feeding, are there issues of enforcement?
- We had a similar issue in Bridgeland with a neighbor feeding coyotes. Major safety concern.
- Coyotes found a den, they felt sorry for them and kept feeding them. This was a simple education, don't know if any issues ever since
- How was this resolved?
- More education and talking to them and getting them to realize the impact on rest of neighborhood. We showed them how to board it up and not invite animals. Didn't use CSB more education
- Can we add a definition of ""pest"" to the bylaw? (add to section 8 of comm standards bylaw)
- I'm thinking that an ask to Council for education officers might be required with the RPO review
- Education in schools on dog dangers, co-habitating with wildlife, urban hens, etc
- property owner was feeding ducks and then bob cat was in the area. Incident with officer and home owner, there was confusion.
- Everything other than birds
- it would be tough to enforce on private property
- what wild life would we be speaking about / dealing with?
- ok
- yes there is, not enforced very often
- definition of pests would have to be changed
- that's different yes
- What is considered wildlife? example feral rabbits
- Just wanted to make sure we're not talking about birds. Something that's not fowl-related. The little mammals that sometimes go with it, squirrels and such. I think squirrels should be included as 'no feed' because they can become a pest. They can do damage to people's homes. You do have to put some kind of note in there for people feeding birds, what happens if you're attracting other pests?
- It can create confusion, as people have bird feeders in the back yard and it will attract squirrels. Wildlife is a broad term.
- I think it would be very hard to enforce unless an officer witnesses it. All wildlife on own property.
- Is this really an issue, I have not heard of issues with wildlife in residential areas?

Dogs

The City of Calgary is exploring additional options to deal with problem dog behaviours, such as severe bites. A list of measures that other municipalities have taken to reduce the frequency and severity of dog bites is listed below [Provided in session. See www.calgary.ca/petbylaww for this list.]

What concerns, if any, would you have of any of these measures? What additional resources would you need to implement any of these measures?

- Why pitbulls (which is not a breed)?

- I didn't think we were interested in breed specific legislation.
- I'm not sure that we are, but we have to ask the questions and let Council and strategic decision-makers decide. Need to do our due diligence through this process.
- breed specific would be very difficult to prove - it should go history and behaviour of actual dog involved in each incident.
- The insurance portion is interesting because many of dog owners in district 4 are renters. I think insurance should be mandatory for ALL dogs and can be purchase at ASC.
- I was attacked Lvl 5 on duty by an American Staff. Terrier and I overall think we need to hold ALL dog owner responsible, regardless of breed.
- Comment about not having more dogs if/when a dog is designated as nuisance. Could we add a stipulation that if a dog is declared a nuisance, no additional animals can be brought into the household for the life of that dog. Can't dedicate resources and time to that dog with more animals in the house. Insurance should go into recommendations for sure – benefits dog owners with dogs who bite more than us.
- If an animal has insurance, they get a licence reduction. If they've done obedience training, they get a different licence category. Makes people invest in their own animals more.
- Structured rates based on what actions the owner takes (insurance, obedience) to reduce licence rates.
- Similar to demerit points – dogs get treated differently if they reach a certain threshold. More benefits with further investment into the animal's behaviour (agility training, obedience, insurance, etc). I think it could be a 3-step threshold.
- What is making us target Bully Breeds, why aren't we trying to keep it open when it comes to breeds? We just tie our hands.
- Insurance for ALL dogs would eliminate any discrimination towards any specific breed
- If we over legislate a specific breed the owners of those breeds will not license their dogs and hide from us
- To [personal information removed] this is true.
- There are regions in Europe where all dogs are muzzled if off the property. Possibly a prevention strategy which works.
- People already licence their dogs as something else as they don't want their dog labelled as pitbull
- Having insurance for all dogs would decrease home/illegal breeders due to fine for each dog not insured.
- In social media, emotional response to this.
- Need to do due diligence and bring engagement to council
- No advocacy for this, need answers to these questions
- Is there data that correlates breed with increase bites? Yes, we reviewed our own data, Eg: pit bulls severity of bites are higher dunbar scale .
- Last 4 points – what if that and a loop hole through paid assessments
- Consider not increasing admin work

- Agree with the last 4 points and obedience training. Don't agree with increase fines. Obedience training through license perhaps for these breeds
- Dangerous behaviour - Authority to seize how would this be different from what we are doing today?
No answer
- Agree for these breeds not to go to off leash parks, if owners know they have a history, need education around this.
- Breeders held more accountable, provide training to people they are selling to.
- Big no to BSL because it is hard to visually identify a breed of a dog.
- I do not support BSL.
- How will "nuisance" dog be defined and regulated?
- I would need to understand the definition to answer the question as well.
- I think supporting obedience training is a great idea in general. And then ensuring that a good resource be provided to those seeking training so they access accredited professionals. If a household has more than one nuisance dog then would the owner be forced to surrender one?
- Based on that definition (nuisance), I don't think it's reasonable for a dog that has been involved in multiple barking offences (for example) to be muzzled in off-leash parks or receive higher fines for an aggressive incident. There would need to be more nuance.
- I agree.
- What is an interim order?
- Is there an organization that we could collaborate with to do the assessments?
- Also what is the definition of Dangerous behaviour? and how would that be handled logistically? It seems no different from how a dog is captured today if out rather than 'seized'.
- When someone adopts a dog from AS they have to provide proof of payment of a training class. Can we do something like that for RTOs? In specific circumstances such as with "nuisance" dogs? As I type this I don't even know if I agree with my own comment.
- Have we deemed a dog to be a nuisance since 2015? I used to draft the nuisance letters that were sent out to dog owners.
- [personal information removed] and I discussed previously of taking the issue to the breeders.
- What about higher fines for aggressive incidents that occur in off leash areas?
- Yes to [personal information removed] comment on putting onus on the breeders.
- What additional resources would you need to implement any of these measures?
- Importing and selling – asking law right now, this is in review
- Using a tribunal system provides city with flexibility and expedite the process
- Are they asking for assessments to be available to all dog owners? Or just those that have come to our attention?
- Would not support BSI. It is hard to enforce and I don't believe there is research to support it
- breed specific legislation may be hard to enforce as people just claim it's a different breed or a cross
- In regards to general training - could we offer a license rebate to those that can prove they have done training

- I think increased fines for problem dogs (often at large) is a good idea
- I like the muzzle idea – for pit bull and nuisance
- we technically have it in RPO as is, however an easier way to do this would be great
- what about going by seize vs. breed, pit bull X and nuisance, can we go by weight of dog vs breed
- I'm just thinking more in terms of the size of the dog... (answering [personal information removed] weight question)
- I agree with [personal information removed]
- yup
- ok
- I think we have already established a standard through the courts & in the Canine Behaviour community, the CCPDT is the most accepted standard
- the size of a dog should not matter
- Nuisance would be good
- Setting more specific standards within the bylaw itself clarifying when a dog will be seized may help
- a lot of these need more time, money and officers
- I think it does matter in terms of owners not being able to control the dog
- like 3 at large impounds in 6 months will seize for assess, or something maybe?
- yes.
- Has the topic of allowing nuisance dogs to breed come up?
- Vicious dogs we require to be altered, I am not sure if the same applied to nuisance
- What if the department considered a pilot program to have all dogs in off-leash parks where muzzles for a period of say 2 years so Bylaw can study and determine if a more comprehensive approach needs to take place, or that all dogs be muzzle in the City
- We could see if aggressive incidents fall, and how the owner perceive the new requirement. I think council would go for this on the public safety issue alone
- If we're going to ask for muzzling, it should be for all dogs, not just for pit bulls.
- What additional resources would you need to implement any of these measures?
- requiring training to own a dog would also be difficult as we'd have to establish what standards would be and accredit training
- I think it is hard to ask that all pit bulls be muzzled. However more education on muzzling to the public (so it is not as taboo) is not a terrible idea
- muzzling also involves additional training. I don't think it's fair to have large dogs muzzled and small not. I've dealt with nasty Chihuahuas
- Breed specific legislation – other jurisdictions, not at all helpful, people hide animals
- Minor bites, chase threats – need better education and hope it doesn't get to level 3 – 5 bite. Stopping it here will help
- My concern is if pit bull ban was enacted, what is a pit bull? For us it will be a lengthy list or so generic. Defining what a pit bull is difficult. Officers know their breed and some don't. the range to define pit bull won't work out and will be difficult

- I watched a documentary from the UK, and it was based on size (height in centimeters), ear, head type, muscles etc. – how to identify
- Based on my own experiences while living in the UK the legislation was not very successful. Legislation brought in very quickly, police was brought in, didn't go very far
- Obedience training, reduced license if you have proof of a registered trainer
- Nuisance dogs, Muzzling dogs, higher fines for mid-range bites 3 – up. More education in earlier stages
- Can we set up a system for releasing a dog on conditions after we've seized it?
- Obedience training, any thoughts on this training? What are the standards?
- There is a variance
- Canadian pet trainer
- CPTD-KA certified trainers only?
- CPDT-KA for basic obedience
 - Re: aggression:
- Can we separate the bite with puncture from the bite with no puncture? We can have a level 2 bite, with a bruise, that is the same fine as a level 3 bite (puncture all the way up to tearing of skin). A bite puncture can consist of canines (4 punctures), and the front teeth with significant bruising. This type of aggression is very different from a level 2 bite, which may leave a tooth scrape, and a small bruise.
- This may be more of policy, but when a dog is seized, or when an owner feels that they need further help I think we need to bring back aggression style assessments. I've had a dog that was seized for a level 4 bite on a child at 8 months old, and the assessment was if the dog could sit, and not about its behaviour. The aggressive dog assessment, while not perfect, was a huge help to many owners, and they left with a ton of information on how to avoid further aggression. We did not offer the training, but what was best to help the dog (and there for the public safety as it was less likely to have a further incident). If we are going to add the 'hit and run' section for fines, I think that it will truly help to have benefits for staying around and having an assessment would be part of that.
- What additional resources would you need to implement any of these measures?
- Training is a big deal, better education on the aggression
- More education in earlier stages
- This may result in people not licensing their dogs or lying about the breeds in response to BSL....
- If Pit Bulls are not allowed in off leash parks they may be kept cooped up in a home....these breeds need to run and get exercise
- nuisance control on animals? I feel like it already exists but not using it, think about expanding it?
- I just feel ALL dog owners should be held accountable for their dogs behavior, shepherds / huskies / larger breed dogs can all bite just the same as a bully breed dog.
- How are we defining nuisance dogs behavior?
- Steeper fines is a good option IMO
- What additional resources would you need to implement any of these measures?
- Incentive program for training dogs... ?

- More accessibility for training / maybe discounts for dogs that are professionally trained.
- Breed specific legislation doesn't work from past research. I think the bylaws should include all breeds. Education is key!
- Re insurance: if we put that in the bylaw are we going to define what that looks like? What happens if my broker doesn't provide that? How would I get that?
- Is there an age limit for who can be walking a nuisance dog?
- We should probably have an age limit or the ability to say who can walk the dog. Depends what the nuisance is...is it barking or aggression? Need to be guidelines about who can be considered responsible for that animal.
- Agree, BSL, or mentioning a particular breed will not go well with public, animal welfare groups.
- What about repeat dog owner offenders? (with history of repeat offenses with their dogs) Consider the dog owner the nuisance and that they require higher licence fees, mandatory education etc.
- [Do you mean declare the owner the nuisance and then that would apply to all his/her dogs?] The dog could still be considered the nuisance but if the owner consistently has dogs that are nuisances they are the bigger concern.
- Mandatory payment of fines. Many irresponsible pet owners get away, as they do not redeem their dogs.
- Research has shown that Breed specific legislation doesn't work. I feel that education is key to everything. If more people were educated with behaviour, communication and the responsible pet bylaws prior to owning a pet then this would make a world of difference. I feel that we cannot make training mandatory for a specific breed etc. All dogs should have training and all owners should have some knowledge prior to owning a pet.
- As per nuisance dogs – depends on nuisance – each dog would have to be looked at on an individual basis. Some dogs might not be suited for off-leash parks while others may need this for their mental and physical health.
- As we discussed with higher fines I feel that the fines should go up with each offense or impound. The fines shouldn't be higher just because the dog is a nuisance or a pitbull.
- Pitbulls must be muzzled in public and off leash parks – I think again that you cannot single out a particular breed. Dog and people reactive and high prey drive dogs should be muzzled when walking. Dogs that need to be muzzled at an off-leash park shouldn't be there. There are a number of off-leash parks that people with reactive dogs can rent and use.

Pigeons

Which additional rules would you support for enforcement of properties that own pigeons?

- Locating the pigeon coop within a specified distance of adjacent houses
- Odour management (eg. clean coop, etc.)
- Enforce coop standards
- Removal of some or all birds if problems arise

➤ Cleanup of pigeon feces

Are there other rules you would suggest? What resources would staff need to enforce these rules?

- I think we need to hold the clubs responsible
- Re: odour management, is covered under the CSB.
- Lot of complaints we get in this area is that the owners aren't responsible for their birds. They open the coop, they fly wherever they want and poop, then fly home. Community has to deal with the mess. Owners say it's wild pigeons, not the pigeons they own. We have no mechanisms to deal with that. Should they have to take the pigeons off site to fly them?
- Most of the complaints ref pigeons I have dealt with are from neighbours complaining about the pigeons pooping on their property NOT the pigeon owners. How are we supposed to enforce that? Unable to prove which bird did what.
- Maybe look at having properties install pigeon netting?
- And could be wild birds.
- The Club members fly their birds but I get concerns from neighbours about them pooping on homes and yards etc. There are also no standards for issuing the bands from the club I had to look into this because I had Chickens with bands.
- Pigeon card – possible to get a list of this?
- Don't know what happens if they say I have a racing card. An organization publishes a list
- Standards of where and how to coup, if complaint, can they lose their card?
- What are conditions to lose card?
- Looking for more flexibility in bylaw, hard to remedy and for owners to address issues. Ability for the chief or whomever to understand complaint and then come up with provisions
- What is the remedy of coup? Where to put the birds, contractor comes in? what are the resources, list of resources if enforcement is needed.
- Seize pigeons, contractor needed, location to store, very few go to this extend, use these conditions to get compliance like other investigations.
- If that bad, humane society would be involved
- what about racing pigeons? could we get a list of these
- Out of curiosity, what is the reason that people own pigeons?
- I don't know enough about pigeons to have an opinion or suggestion.
- honestly i feel if these get accepted in the city of Calgary- bylaw, cps, 311, etc will have a lot MORE complaints from citizens
- they are already accepted now?
- at least number allowed for sure
- rules surrounding possible noise complaints
- do pigeons have to be banded? make it easier to distinguish between owned and wild birds
- yes, banded and part of club
- cleanliness - they poop all over neighbouring properties.

- Pigeons: there has been discussion around whether the Pigeons can be let out to fly or be "at large" when banded as part of a Club.....but then they cause damage to feces to neighbouring houses
- we have had damage to property complaints regarding pigeons
- limitations on amount of pets is a concern, for certain animals
- hard to determine/prove that they caused the feces, although that's the biggest part of my pigeon complaints
- there's 2 club in Canada they have to be registered with. Canadian Fanciers and/or Canadian pigeon racing club
- Are there guidelines from those groups where their membership can be taken away if a person is not following set guidelines?
- no. it's either or.
- not both
- It is not both, it's either
- Under the RPO a bird (pigeon) is under the definition of animal so technically they are at large.
- think chickens and pigeons should maybe be permitted similar to emotional support animals
- Then we have a list of locations and can avoid duplicate complaints
- Clubs also don't always respond when you try to confirm their Good Standing
- well my concern with all livestock, animals, birds is transmittable disease control how do we ensure this doesn't increase and cause later concerns
- Banded? Pigeons, yes
- pigeons need to be banded
- What resources would staff need to enforce these rules?
- and a tagging system for chickens, like the pigeon's bands, so we can ID
- What about chicken identification, for when there is 'at larges'
- Maybe they should be required to license - pigeons and chickens?
- Biggest issue is defecation. All over decks and fences. Somehow make sure this is cleaned up. Something to put in the bylaw
- Sense of what the number should be?
- 20 [personal information removed], all fly together and defecation issue
- 10 would still give pigeon racers...
- Similar to bees, owners being serious, have a requirement to be part of club or organization
- Agree with the defecation, in the North, causes havoc, how to control? Impossible. Have a licensing fee to have a coup, yearly license
- Currently, to become a member there is a cost, to be part of the association is in the bylaw. How to clean coup is not in the bylaw. There should be a license and stricter bylaw on this
- I like the idea of the licence for pigeons and with that licence we could include some guidelines from the recognized associations
- What about licensing pigeon coups? Give us flexibility to take license away

- something I would like to see, provide more leverage
- What if people are keeping Pigeons to eat them? I have been to a few calls about this in the past.
- Labelled as nuisance animal, this is a question for law
- If we do have to send it to clean-up, do we need a specified contract with our contractors, so they know how to keep themselves safe from things like bird feces or Hanta Virus? Do they require special things? And then billing back to the property owner for having to do all that work.
- Contractors going in to clean up would not only need to protect themselves but also use chemicals that are safe for the pigeons
- Annual inspection before granting the license on yearly basis.
- Exotic animals, birds, pigeons – should be regulated with an annual check-up to ensure owner is meeting the conditions and animals are being properly cared for.
- Re: urban hens and Avian Influenza. It's a reportable disease for the province – backyard hens would be isolated, and chances are low for disease. Must have a strategy in place though from the Office of the Chief Provincial Veterinarian. Very small risk for backyard poultry but should be considered in a risk assessment.

Dog Early Warning System

To address the needs of pet owners and non-pet owners, and to respond to concerns raised regarding behaviour in on-leash areas and off-leash parks, we are exploring a voluntary dog early warning system.

What concerns or ideas would you have regarding a voluntary dog early warning system?

- Wouldn't need to be under the bylaw because that makes us responsible for saying these colours are reflective of the dog's behaviour. People get to choose which colour they use, then the dog attacks. Dogs have different temperaments which can change with age or illness. Don't think it's for us operationally – can't control what colour the owner chooses and whether they use it. Dogs are unpredictable – dog might have been good for 10 years. Dealt with a dog that was 2-3 years old and had a brain tumor. Was good one minute and nasty the next. Unpredictable when sick – wrong colour collar is asking for trouble.
- This should be something we address in schools with children - our public education team used to go into schools and do dog safety pieces.
- Agree with [personal information removed]. Something not for the bylaw, but maybe for Parks. Don't want people putting a colour on their dog and then holding the City accountable.
- Agree with [personal information removed]. You shouldn't have a reactive dog in an off-leash area.
- Agree with it as a suggestion/education basis, but not in bylaw. Other issue is kids approaching even with a red bandana. Ownership on both parties – dog owner and parents to educate kids on how to act around dogs. Colour also could be used by other to say "why is that dog with that colour bandana here?"
- IF you don't want your dog to interact with people/other dogs - don't go to dog park
- Most dog owners won't put tags on their dogs, I find it hard to think they would comply with this.

- Making the focus on education and schools, bringing back those programs, better to share this information more readily.
- Teach children how to deal with dogs if they're afraid. Was a benefit before rather than asking people to police themselves.
- Agree with education in schools. Did info sessions with my kids' classes in grade 1 on what to do when approached/bit/how to approach. Huge positive from schools – very appreciative. There are so many kids and parents that are scared of dogs. With officers in smaller zones, they could go back into schools to share bite education with kids.
- On the other side, even if you put whatever identification you like on the dog.... once you let the dog run at large with other dogs in the area, you will still run into issues with other dogs or people.
- Is a good system, concern is it is voluntary, if it bites, is there additional hard bec I didn't have this?
- Would this set up an expectation?
- If it stops 20 bites bec bandana on – isn't it worth it?
- Maybe post informational signs with key points about bylaw and expected behaviours
- In terms of liability, beware of dog sign in backyard – related to bandanas? Please clarify what is the correlation
- Reduce culpability
- Work in dogs favour potentially
- Better to have a sign? Reduce some culpability bec they were warned when there is civil lawsuits towards biting dog
- Front counter telling people not to put signs –
- Fear of dogs, pole to tie dogs in front of business, people with fear and people who pet. [removed] not allowed to leave dog unattended. This is a frustration that officers experience.
- definitely need more education on this point. This would be subjective.
- And if my dog is wearing a red bandana and is involved in an incident, does that absolve the owner?
- I don't know what qualifies as colour blindness but this might not be recognized. Also, might get confusing with owners who already have certain colours of dog accessories.
- It could mitigate liability potentially. That would be for the courts to decide based on situational factors.
- I heard the same thing, [removed], when I worked on the front counter.
- I don't think you're allowed to tie dogs up but maybe someone can confirm.
- I feel this would cause issues with others at the dog park. They will probably be giving the DO a dirty look and so forth. It's reminds me of offenders wearing an ankle bracelet and allowing others to see it
- Section 17(1) (tied/tethered and unattended)
- Many owners are in denial about their dog's behaviour and would "mislabel" their animal.
- people would assume aggression on unapproachable animals
- I don't like this idea. Seems like a liability. what happens when a 'nice' dog bites
- I think that's overkill

- up to the owner to control dog and warn people
- That could be taught in the child training about how to behave around dogs - regarding the greeting with permission maybe even for adults too.
- we shouldn't be involved in this...DO need to be responsible
- maybe expanding the tease enclosed animal to enable to charge if someone declares to not approach and someone ignores them
- I think we should be teaching children to never approach a strange dog
- exactly
- I like that idea of the just red bandana, but i think in that case, these dogs should also not be allowed off leash
- red cannot be seen by someone who is color blind,
- Yea "red dogs" should never be off leash,
- DO needs to take responsibility and take proper precautions to avoid a bite,
- people who are bad dog owners that have aggressive dogs - which would be the target area for this warning system - would not comply
- I still think it's a liability, even just the red bandana, if a dog is wearing one and bites someone, then can the DO put the blame on the victim?
- are we not setting these red bandanas as targets by public
- I reinforce the idea of encouraging owners to learn more about dog behaviour and understanding their dogs triggers, through training - and encouraging that training through license rebate program
- I agree with [personal information removed]
- Could red bandanas be used as a defense in court "my dog was wearing an warning and they came too close"
- is this implemented in Edmonton and how did it go? (not implemented in Edm just something worth exploring)
- I like the idea
- Can't mandate the idea to everyone
- What liability is there if green bandana bites someone
- Red bandana and it bites, issue ticket if dog was provoked? Depends on context
- Program online already to get bandanas, research is already out there. Good idea but hard to enforce. Difficult around stampede
- Not a city program, difficult to enforce
- My concern is that we are relying on the owners perception of the dogs behavior
- Good point
- who would provide the bandanas?
- liability, signage would be put up, an education approach
- good point
- If you have a red bandanna on a dog you are not absolved of responsibility.
- Some dogs like to eat bandannas.

- this is good food for thought
- I think it's a good idea. Compliance of the owner – would this be mandatory or voluntary?
- Same comment. I think it's a good idea. Since it's voluntary, I don't think it belongs in the RPO. Maybe education or promotion with City-logged bandanas to get things started. Not sure it belongs in the bylaw.
- I think it would depend on the owner's opinion on their dogs behaviour. I think that lots of people will buy a red bandana but their dog is really good just to keep people away.
- My concern would be a false sense of the dogs behaviour. If someone has a green bandana, would this give the impression that the dog was completely safe to approach and run up to, pet etc. Also how would a person decide if the dog should be wearing a red or green bandana – would this be what the owner feels their dog should be wearing?

Fine amounts

We are currently exploring fine increases for RPO violations. What situations do you believe could be improved by increasing fines?

- Problem of 'at large'. Small ticket. Not the most serious offence, but the most prevalent. Would help with keeping dogs on leash in more areas.
- 'At large' should be higher. What's the root offence – often 'at large' is the root cause. Needs to be mitigated to prevent more serious offences.
- Not having a warning for Cats at Large - if we are going to keep it as an offence
- 'At large' responsibility is too little
- 'At large' and unlicensed definitely need fine increases. Take away the 1 freebie for at large cats.
- Cats have been in the bylaw for many years now and we can take away the one warning for at large for each license year.
- Discretion is fine.
- Agreed with [personal information removed] that legislating a warning for cats is odd and should be removed.
- but having that in the Bylaw is horrible. I have seen people with many warnings on the same cat.
- Increased specified amounts for repeat offenders, as it is now we have to make tickets mandatory court to increase the specified amount on the ticket
- Should fines be higher for at large cats that aren't spayed/neutered when they pick animal up from shelter?
- Might be hard to enforce (detect spay scars etc.). Don't know if that would cause an issue.
- I think so (re: fines should be higher for intact animals). Fine for at large unaltered animals.
- need to overcome the no ticket if its impounded thru vet clinic....as this is a lot of repeat offenders.
- Agree with [personal information removed] point.
- Agree with [personal information removed] point too. M/C animals. Can we offer it at least at cost? I had [personal information removed] get MC'ed so we can track him - he agreed

- Can we mandate microchips?
- Discussed a couple weeks ago. Should we be spaying/neutering and microchipping all animals at the shelter? Don't know if we can until they become our property.
- Offer m/C as a service when you redeem your animal at the shelter. Offer incentives if they agree. Better for tracking animals.
- Need to add outstanding fees (impound fees) to annual license fees to remove need for debit machines.
- Debit machines don't always work. Tell them it will be added to licence fees.
- Free ride home program being implemented as a value-added for licence fee.
- What about adding the fees into At Large fine cost?
- I don't think you can do that.
- [personal information removed], I meant increase the At Large fine in the RPO so that it covers the impound fee
- We can increase, but the penalty needs to be proportionate to the severity of the offence....you can't increase the penalty to capture additional costs that you currently have trouble collecting.
- Ok I see
- If it's not an effective deterrent or effective consequence then yes we can increase
- did you see the vet clinic comment...above.
- We don't issue VTs for At Large at the Shelter if it came from a Vet
- Why don't we ticket unlicensed pets through vet clinics...is that a policy or bylaw or is it stray animal?
- At large we don't ticket, unlicensed we do.
- Policy or bylaw?
- Policy
- I'll bring it up at the next Chief's meeting.
- It came from law some time ago as they did not want to call vet staff to court if it went to trial.
- It has something to do with if it goes to court and getting the Vets Staff involved in court.
- K, we can review.
- Aggressive should be higher, bites (person to person, animal, death)
- Graduated offences, continue to be unlicensed – higher fines
- Bite to children higher? – What if kid is tormenting the dog?
- Damage to animal is too broad, separate fines for both
- Fines for at large is higher than unlicensed – not equitable
- Aren't fines already higher for vicious animals?
- At vet clinic – no at large fine there. On agenda next chief's meeting
- Section 25(3) (damage to animal) is much too broad - there needs to be a differentiation between minor and severe damage and different fines for both.
- I think too - once a pet has been deemed vicious in the courts then the courts shouldn't be able to waive the keep fees for the shelter.
- Or if there are 2 offenses, such as at large while unlicensed could have a higher fine

- CN (complainant) would be happier with an increase in damages fine
- victim dog owner
- at large should be increased a bit, maybe barking to be more of a deterrent
- damage to animal is same fine as unlicensed. sometimes vet bills for damage are thousands of dollars and they get a 250 ticket
- higher penalties do not prevent anything
- Dividing damage fines - serious vs minor
- I think there should be levels of damage and appropriate fines per level
- because there's a big difference between a victim dog with $10k in vet bills and a dog that peed on and wrecked someone's coat
- Yes agree with [personal information removed] for a differing fines between a scratch and 10 punctures
- Can we legislate something forcing people to pay those vet fees in regards to damage – no, it will be civil or restitution with victim, conversation with law needed
- I actually like the idea of putting Dunbar scale into the bylaw for both bites to humans and animals. And a fine associated with each level
- i really like this idea [personal information removed]
- it's in POPA [Provincial Offences and Procedures Act] [personal information removed]
- what if you label the bite by the wrong level...would the charge then be thrown out?
- don't like bites to children being higher
- I don't think you can differentiate
- I feel that they should be the same personally
- The Dunbar scale is a widely used scale now that standardizes the injury - I think it creates fairness across municipalities
- children step on dogs and provoke reactions
- I think a bite is a bite. Children often are involved with provoking dogs so wouldn't be fair to charge more.
- I don't think the dogs distinguish between age
- it should be based on severity of bite
- no a bite is a bite no matter who it was.
- I don't think it should be higher - more education to children on dog behaviour, and to new parents.
- just doesn't seem doable...should be across the board...
- I agree with severity
- At large, bad things happen when dogs at large
- Also cats nuisance
- Can we make the at large fine progressive? fines increase as dog continues to be found at large (Yep)
- How many before increased? What would be the deterrent?
- Agreed, but not based on prior guilty convictions

- You would need a paid fine or a guilty conviction to proceed to a higher fine amount though
- Would it be limited to a 12 mon timeframe too
- Higher fines for unlicensed animals - with regard to higher penalties for Bylaw infractions involving unlicensed animals...such as Running at large $100 for a licensed animal and $200 for an unlicensed animal.
- I think within a rolling two year time frame as the MGA has a 2 year statute of limitations
- I think that if at large fines increased, that unlicensed could too.
- fines increased when unlicensed running at large. Incentive to license.
- Suggestion – unlicensed and caught infraction to bylaw – increase fee for this
- Higher fine for bites and damages.
- to penalize or gain compliance with increased fines?
- If we increase the fine for ‘at large’ we might stop people from coming in if their dog is impounded. I think having a higher unlicensed fine might deter some people.
- The unlicensed fine is quite low is it not? [$250]
- I think increased fines may deter people from redeeming their animals.
- Me too.
- Just the aggression. Fines for animals that are aggressive when they’re at large. Should be a higher fine for them being at large and aggressive versus a dog that’s friendly when at large. Maybe an additional fine for at large and aggressive. And then if it’s bites someone, that’s a whole other charge as well. Don’t have to be at large and aggressive, you could just be one. The Labrador out playing ball with the kids isn’t necessarily a safety hazard, whereas a German Shepherd or Border Collie out chasing kids has a whole different safety component to it.
- What about people not picking up after their dogs, More fines? $250 is ok.
- I have educated so many people in our quadrant.
- As well - it is a potential health hazard. When you look at why dogs are banned from school yards – feces can cause blindness in children.
- Serious zoonotic disease issues.
- Is that the same fee for folks not picking up feces in their yard?
- the fine is usually for not picking up dog feces outside of their own yard. In their own yard, it becomes untidy and then we can charge back for having it cleaned up.
- Should be $500 to keep it in line with littering fine, it’s $1000 for burning material.
- If a single dog owner has many violations under the RPO can they not be allowed to obtain a license from us, (thereby hopefully preventing them from having animals legally in the city)?
- I feel that the fines should increase on repeat offences and increase accordingly.

Tribunal

What ideas or concerns would you have regarding a tribunal system?

- I think it's positive. [removed]. Better for all parties, shelter staff, dog owners. Owners have been more present and engaged when they have been allowed to keep their dogs. We have to set a threshold that is consistent. Not all level 4 dogs are seized. If we're going to designate a dog right off the bat, we need clear standards, thresholds for the declarations for consistency.
- The promise to contain order is a great idea. It will ease the process on the dog, dog owner and require less of our resources.
- The way the dogs deteriorate in the shelter. For the wellbeing of dogs if we are seeking to return them to society, they are affected by long-term stays at the shelter.
- The shelter is not equipped for long term care. So I agree with this.
- Promise to contain order in conjunction with tribunal is a good idea. We would still have to hold the dog if the owner wanted to appeal?
- It's also the health and safety of the staff for having multiple repeated interactions.
- 100% support of tribunal system
- 100% support as well, can educate people as well and see the case one by one. More control of the issue and help the owners for future problems
- 100% support a tribunal system!
- Agreed!
- Absolutely there should be a tribunal system. AS is not equipped for long term care and dogs kept longterm at the impound will almost certainly have deteriorated health/behaviour.
- should be an AVBMA member on the panel
- Would an appeal of the tribunal's decision go to the LCSAB? Would it ever enter the court system?
- Two Qs: Is there an estimated time frame for a decision to be made by tribunal? What is the current timeframe? (don't need to discuss this now)
- much faster. Can have a hearing within a month.
- We would hope it would be in a couple weeks, whereas court can require a wait of months in some cases
- I think it is a great idea
- I'd be ok with Tribunal but some concerns with knowledge level of citizen's on a panel
- Can you explain what those timelines would look like
- agreed - tribunal is a good alternative
- if it keeps dog out of shelter longer then great
- why do we need to have non city reps and/or more than one adjudicator?
- agreed- love this idea
- This is a great idea
- yes
- yes
- My understanding is the panel would have a dog Behaviour expert (trainer or vet), with a combo of city and non
- Would a tribunal have the same weight as the courts do? - Yes

- tribunal system through administrative law does not require the appearance of procedural fairness. It just needs to be fair, we have a tribunal system in place that is adjudicated by one person
- What sort of time frame
- I see CDTA, CPTD, and CAPTD on the web
- For tribunal?
- Same force and affect as in court? (yes, still have right to appeal)
- What sort of timeframe for a tribunal?
- Within a month would be our goal
- And we would keep the dog for a month?
- 3 weeks to a month to hold a hearing, 45 days to have judicial review
- Who would make up the members of the tribunal?
- This would be far quicker than the Courts
- I like this process if it expedites the process

Bite and Run

If a dog bites a person or other animal, do you support a rule that requires the dog owner to remain at the scene of an incident to share contact information and talk with an enforcement officer if necessary? Please explain.

- yes.
- If people don't remain, there should be a fining section for that. There should be a fine. As an owner I'm responsible for my dog's actions, similar to my children. If my animal is involved in an altercation and I'm present, I should be held to share my details to ensure the safety of all, to check vaccines etc.
- Agree, there should be a fine. Owner is responsible.
- Difficult as some people do not realize their dog is injured until they get home - or too embarrassed to admit they have been bitten at the time etc...also not enough officers to commit to attending to the call in timely manner.
- If a person is negligent or is evading, there should be a fine or mandatory court. Would have to consult with law. Not for use with people who are just being belligerent, but for individuals who flee the scene and try to evade.
- They do not have to remain on scene but definitely have to provide information
- You can't expect them to stay for an hour to wait for an officer.
- What if our response time does not allow for a quick attending to the scene? We do not have the ability to respond to the scene immediately.
- I like the idea of providing licence tag # BUT not all dogs are licenced. [Agreed]
- Why don't we make it mandatory for all dogs at off-leash parks to be licensed? Whether that be through a scan card to get into entry points through a swipe/fob system etc.

- For response times - maybe we need a section for dog owners to mandatory self-report or provide contact details to the other owner. Compare it to the vicious section of the bylaw where the onus is on animal owner to report that the dog is at large or has committed an infraction. Self-report might be best with language barriers or if they don't have a pen at the moment to share information.
- Even a sign at the entrance stating all dogs must be licensed to enter the park area.
- All dogs must be licensed in the City regardless anyway.
- To [personal information removed] point above, why not make access to a dog park a membership where all dogs inside the park are expected to be licensed and in good standing with Bylaw Services? Charge a small yearly fee. [Why don't we make it mandatory for all dogs at off-leash parks to be licensed? Whether that be through a scan card to get into entry points through a swipe/fob system etc.]
- Treat like a car accident?
- There should be some sort of waiting at the scene for contact information, but how to enforce. To elaborate, if I'm the bad owner I would take animal away from the scene
- Need to be able to exchange info in some capacity for follow ups
- Question: Do you need the leash with you in off leash park? – yes that is correct
- If you have a dog and it bites another dog, if no leash to put it on, it would be difficult. Having a leash would be easier
- depends on the incident. If the dog cannot be controlled at the location makes more sense to remove the animals and the owner is the usually the best to remove / control the animal
- I think it means that there is far less confusion for the victim too.
- Share Information. Some D/O's would not wait at the scene.
- It should be a requirement of the bylaw that the owner of an offending dog share their information.
- Exchanging information yes because I would anticipate if a dog bites someone then the owner is likely going to be frazzled and won't want to stay put. They'd probably want to leave the situation ASAP because of the dog's state of higher arousal and general stressful situation.
- do we have a bylaw around having a leash with you in an offleash park? IN case the need to leash your dog comes up?
- I think you're supposed to be able to leash your dog if something happens.
- I like the idea of having that charge, don't know if would change behaviour much but gives us more leverage and creates education opportunities to teach people to be responsible
- Yes. But what would the consequence be if they didn't stay?
- Not sure how you can make someone stay on scene - especially a lot of the time we want an animal removed from the situation to avoid further escalation, but a requirement to exchange information and then an extra charge if they are found and failed to do so?
- At least give dog owner info to victim should be required
- Also a fine for providing false information?
- sounds similar to leaving the scene of a motor vehicle accident - I would appreciate to have that penalty as an option
- a VT (violation ticket) for failure to stay on scene would also make te victim happy

- I agree with [personal information removed] on this, would be a nice additional charge if required
- Fine has to be significant enough for them to stay at the scene. I think it should be there
- Significant is 1000. Assessments further help for the aggressive animals, benefits for staying and a fine if not.
- We've had two dogs in our care for the last 10 months and have no ability to release these animals
- As we have a court order to destroy, but have to wait for appeals
- Are we keeping the dog while we wait for a tribunal? Can we establish a release process where the owner is bound by conditions (muzzle/leashed)?
- I agree with, we have hit-and-run rules for Traffic safety act
- More value in tribunal system oppose to the courts
- In order to support if someone were to "bite and run" how we could prove they were the ones who left and if so, what if they fail to provide us with government ID.
- I agree. However I have concerns about seizing a dog and keeping it for weeks/months after a first offence. I think this causes undo stress to both dog and owner. If we can release it, with conditions, we can ease that stress and dog, owner and shelter.
- Is it lawful to keep someone's property without their consent? (the bylaw, the RPO)
- Playing devil's advocate, why bylaw can take my dog away in my home? (MGM provides this authority)
- Anyway we can find a contract keep aggressive animals, any place anyone can think of where they can stay long term (something we can look at under animal shelter review)
- Better enrichment within our shelter, better walks on daily basis
- Section 50's, allows us to write a fine, violation pink ticket – vicious, running at large – under these sections write summons in court, trial sooner than later, this is an option. This is an option for us to use
- Some voluntary compliance with this – a good thing
- Either would be good...might be tricky to get a Peace Officer out to scene right away
- Agreed
- When a bite/attack, occurs; we believed it would be very appropriate for both parties to exchange contact information; whether that is (phone number, driver's license information, or name and number etc) to assist the officer with the investigation; and fail to provide such information to the victim will result in an automatic COURT SUMMONS (PINK COPY) to either person involved (officers' discretion on who) to explain to the courts why it was not necessary to provide information to the victim when many victims on many different occasions have suffered life altering physical damages. The parties involved would not necessarily need to remain on scene until a PEACE OFFICER can attend only providing some sort of information to one another for follow up by a PEACE OFFICER.
- This tool will permit the officer to:
 - Like on many files, the officer has/had spent many working hours and tax payer dollars to try and track down an offending animal owner just to issue an (at large, bite, attack) ticket. And unfortunately sometimes when there is multiple animals involved the officer might not have sufficient witness information to lay the BITE/ATTACK CHARGE as the witness can be unsure which dog actually did the biting (was it their own dog or the other persons?). Therefore, regardless if that charge can or can't be issued, and one party involved clearly runs away from the location (which can sometimes show guilt) then at least the officer can lay a charge which forces that party to deal with the incident in court and permits the courts to decide the appropriate penalty based on the seriousness of the circumstances.

- Maybe a hotline so that they can phone with their information if it is unsafe to stay.
- [Could 311 act as that hotline?] I think 311 could work unless there is a long hold time
- Maximum time should be specified. If it's not safe for the owner to stay, they should be given 24 hours to call 311 and share the info. After that they should be fined.
- That's a great idea [personal information removed]!
- I agree! Great idea!
- like the idea of a grace period to self-report to the City.
- That is something we could communicate well for public reassurance in these situations - great feedback

Livestock

We are exploring criteria for the potential approval of other livestock, in addition to hens, to be permitted in Calgary. Criteria for other livestock would include:

- Offers community benefit/ will have positive impact
- Support from adjacent neighbours
- Suitable living conditions can be provided for the animal
- Exceptions would be evaluated on a case by case basis and the decision would be at the discretion of the Chief Bylaw Enforcement Officer

What concerns, if any, would you have if Calgary assessed allowing households to obtain these livestock using the above criteria? Is there other criteria you think should be included?

- Beekeeping is monitored through the province
- Support from adjacent neighbours. You sell your house and someone moves in and doesn't like the livestock. Complaints rise when people move in and don't agree with the existing community standard. There are more concerns with livestock regarding defecation, etc. We as officers aren't training in livestock response. We can't transport. We will have to change our mandate and how we operate/respond.
- We don't have resources or training to deal with livestock. There are people with 20 years' experience in livestock that would be better able to deal with it. We have a checklist for LESA but nothing else to go on. I don't think it belongs in the bylaw because we don't have the expertise, equipment or resources.
- Also Portland is not equipped to store or manage livestock animals.

- And vehicles.
- We have been called for goats, chickens, pigs running loose, and I think there is safety and resource concerns.
- We should reach out to Edmonton for lessons learned.
- Would it be a criteria for the animal to be licensed? Have that approval and I can support this and where does it live?
- Emotional support animals – there is a clause that says not allowed to eat any eggs, will that apply to this as well?
- Will get a Chicken for eggs, under this eggs should be allowed, probably minimum of 3, guidelines to be developed with max as well.
- Required support from adjacent neighbours could be very tricky and lead to serious disputes. And where would the animal reside? Inside? may make a difference to the type of license? Would need a DP as well?
- Would that be after they get the animal? Then if neighbours are not supportive they would have to surrender the animal/give it away?
- I would say no to the DP. Unless it is required somehow.
- would need to align this with the LESA program
- Is there other criteria you think should be included?
- Just like a home business, neighbors should have a say, put restrictions on livestock and how it impacts neighbors. Post for how many days and get support from neighbors. Eg: wolf hybrid, where do they fit? Dog license or wildlife?
- Beekeeping are we going to get any training for dealing with this and or setting up a team of specialists?
- Same question for additional livestock
- The bee king society in Calgary have handled some of my calls well
- I haven't taken Admin Law in a long time, but what is the difference between procedural fairness or a fair hearing [personal information removed]?
- neighbour support may be difficult as people move
- I think half of Calgary will have chickens if we let them, the work load could be beyond our abilities
- need to set limits to numbers for sure or animal hoarding will be an issue
- Beekeeping is governed Provincially, is it not?... – yes
- and would definitely need additional training and gear to deal with any of those animals if they get out at large
- thx
- Good point [personal information removed], there will be people that will hoard
- Agree with [personal information removed] - for sure!
- Hoarding & at large will be a problem for sure
- The Province expects each municipality to govern it though bylaws as there is only like 2 Apiculture experts for the province.

- you've just impounded an ostrich.. where are you taking it?
- we have enough bobcats in the city to deal with at larges...
- What about livestock being at large?
- Most of us have dealt with the cat hoarder, so opening door to other pets will cause a problem in a large city
- Urban Agriculture seems like a bad idea lol
- I think chickens may be ok, but we should stop there!
- Isn't that what Rural Alberta is for?
- I support chickens too
- Is there other criteria you think should be included?
- A lot of people would like pet pigs - a very common question
- a horse?
- Are we getting equipment to impound things like horses?
- emu?
- definitely need clarification in the Bylaw re: criteria for pigeons ie: are they considered at large when left to fly off the property once a day?
- What animals are in addition to hens?
- I think most large livestock will be a concern in Calgary. (Horses, donkeys, etc)
- Does this mean allowing livestock outside the LESA animals? (yes)
- Yes I love animals, however as officers on the ground, we tend to look outside our agency for help. Some officers may not be able to handle nontraditional animals. Will we outsource this to outside agencies?
- Interesting, I like this option quite a bit to offer different animals as pets (as suitable by location size etc.
- I've captured a few goats, sheep and chickens. I love extra training on this too!
- Training for at large livestock
- Would they require to have licensing for these animals? if so what would the cost be
- Letter from neighbours beforehand, neighbourhood survey. Eg: allergy to bees
- We would ask Council for extra money for training if this was something Calgarians wanted as part of the review
- I agree about the bees having more community input
- Would like the ability to solve these problems, have this flexibility in bylaw
- What if a pot belly pig gets loose?
- And we would have to impound the pig...where would we keep it, transport / capture
- Do we have a horse trailer? – no we don't. Who responds to this call? (Calgary Humane, Alberta Farm care. Strathmore...)
- We need to look into internal options. Internal team or partnerships
- My concerns are that if all these bylaw changes happen, we also need to keep in mind that we do not have any facilities to care for livestock, hens, exotic animals if they're abandoned. They need specific housing requirements, food, care. We need to plan that if we're going in that direction. We will need funding to have those sources in place before this is passed. We need to keep this in the back of our mind. CHS sees this all the time – people abandon their exotic pets and they're found running at large. Maybe develop a relationship with CHS or some other organization who can house these animals, or we have to develop a space within our shelter.

- If citizens are keeping these animals in their backyards, there's a possibility that they might get abandoned, lost, or run at large. They need to be properly cared for until they're reunited or rehoused.
- My concern would be the owners experience with caring for the livestock. I have a mini horse and it's a lot of care.
- I'd also be very concerned with the amount of feces an animal produces.
- Education of animal husbandry of the species citizen are keeping in their back yard.
- [Would livestock produce more feces than multiple dogs?] Depends on the animal. A mini horse for sure.
- Herbivore animals make more feces.
- Smell and attracting wildlife.
- Risk of zoonotic diseases. especially avian influenza from poultry.
- Urban Agriculture – I have concerns with livestock in an urban environment. There is so much to be concerned about. How will we ensure that the owner has knowledge for care of the animal. How can we enforce this? Officers would need to be trained on every species on what is acceptable for housing, feed, basic necessities, etc. I'd also have a huge concern with feces and removal of feces. Like I had mentioned I have a miniature horse – he produces huge amounts of feces a day compared to a dog – with the summer heat and with winter and the feces freezing quickly, I would have concerns with the removal of the feces – green bin or weekly clean up??? (green bin service is only every other week during the winter – the cart would be full at this point) Would these animals be able to leave your property? Most city lots are not large enough to give the livestock ample exercise.

Fees

We are currently exploring changing fees for low-income Calgarians and LESA. Would you support changing these fees? What would that look like?

- No concerns, agree that the whole fee should be charged at first, then reduced if there are no issues at the property. How would we determine who qualifies as low-income? Fair entry type of system? How would a person in the field know that a person is a Fair Entry client. If we can do something to help with people that have to make a choice between food and licences, I would agree. People have to wait until they get their next cheque.
- Don't like creating different categories (low income etc.), like having discretion to grant reductions when appropriate. People having to provide income proof, creates more headaches. Charge additional fee if they want more animals than we allow.

- Charge one fee for visit/inspection rather than for each individual animal.
- Could we cap the license fee? I think as the fees increase less people license their animals
- Support low income and seniors and older dogs – to encourage to license
- Would low-income also be provided lower costs for redemption?
- Higher for LESA, Discount through Fair Entry for licenses (low income)
- I believe if you can't afford the license, you shouldn't have an animal as how can you afford that?
Same or higher
- Agreed with [personal information removed] (see above)
- support for low income would be welcome, especially since they often get tickets on top
- agree with [personal information removed] about LESA due to inspection processes
- I have homeless clients I work with who would welcome the lower fees.
- they maybe had the pet prior to not being able to afford the license fee, not a reason for them to give up the pet if they are able to care for it properly
- seniors are lower income but should be able to have a companion animal
- but still the license fee might hurt
- To be consistent with the rest of the city I would do it through fair entry. They get approved there and then get access to the discounted programs (us, transit, rec...)
- [personal information removed] agree with [personal information removed]
- Need to be based on application fair entry program, proof on this program, help with assessing, a letter supporting low income
- Agree with above, coordinating with fair entry and stream lining and making it easier to apply.
- Not sure what are the fees for LESA. ($67)
- Low income is very important
- If recommended, certain amount of animals (3 chicken) just one time application
- Chief or director can't waive or reduce fees
- Takes a lot of time and resources through finance
- Look at case by case basis
- I like that
- The 6 month license option was helpful for that previously
- for LESA or all licensing? (not all)
- no opinion on this one
- I'm always happy supporting low income licensing
- I don't think they should have a change in fees. If they are low income how are they going to pay for medical fees that are not subsidized and care costs.
- It will encourage more animals in a low-income household, where there are not enough resources for medical care. Concern for medical neglect, unwanted kittens and puppies.
- No subsidized vets in Alberta.

- To [personal information removed] point (re: LESA fees for multiple hens vs. one miniature pig), could we build something in there that there can be discretion by the CBEO or the Director to waive fees?

Pet limit

What ideas or concerns would you have regarding a larger pet limit? What resources would be needed to implement this change?

- Part of the low income license should include a limit on the pets you have.
- Citizens may call in many complaints about limits and it will take up time.
- Depends on the size of the house.
- Depends on the owners. Comes down to the owner themselves. If owners are involved in certain incidents, then perhaps a cap should come into play. Think it should vary. Know people who have multiples and we never get any complaint.
- Agree. There are some very capable owners who can handle many dogs. Different with small vs. large dogs. Really does depend on the owner. [personal information removed] – had 9 wolf dogs in a very small apartment. Looked after them very well. Couple of incidents here and there. Put their care above [their] own. Depends on the owner and the size of the house.
- All of those animals were licensed.
- Like the limits and I would even argue that it should apply to breeders as well
- Definitely think there needs to be a limit on # of animals per household - I went to property the other day- they had [removed] adult dogs and [removed] cats - the smell was awful but there was no accumulation of feces/urine in the yard as they clean up everyday BUT you could still smell it.
- APA Concern.
- Maybe owners who have been involved in multiple incidents we start looking at capping the number they have. If we are involved in houses with multiples, we reach out to CHS to determine if the health aspect is taken care of.
- We don't get many complaints related to number of animals. Most problems we get is from 1 barking dog, not that there are 4-5 barking dogs. Doesn't come across very often.
- would 4 dogs and 4 cats sound reasonable to you Chief?
- No cats allowed would solve cat at large issue.
- There would be a license and fee for excess animals but it may deter people from having 15 cats.
- The people that would be exempt from the rule (breeders, dog walkers etc.) are the ones that we get complaints about. Better to investigate with CHS for issues related to excessive animals.
- If we come across something regarding health, we can consult with CHS. Agree that the ones we would be exempting are the ones that we have issues with.
- Agree with [personal information removed].
- This shouldn't be a one size fits all. Maybe size of property? Yard?
- Limit of 4 in other muni

- Don't support a limit, when 12 pets what's the difference?
- 6 dogs 6 cats – a large number, why? Do you have space and resources? 4 tops, implement a higher license. Daycares/temp homes – do they need a license for this? Business license for doggy daycare
- Dog walkers? Limit set on walking dogs in public, and all dogs are licensed
- Consideration – worth differentiating why they have a number of pets. Oversight of the reason why.
- Part of application process when exceeded
- Would there be a distinction between owning vs fostering?
- Would that exclude animals under 3 months of age?
- I have a limit where I live (4) and I find it helps prevent pet hoarding or pets not being taken care of properly (I do know there are amazing pet owners with many pets who take great care of them).
- I think people already take issue with licensing their animals and requiring special applications/making it harder will make people disinclined to licensing the extra animals
- I don't support a limit, but once you get to 12 pets, I feel like what's the real difference between that and even more?
- I think that for some citizen's who collect feral cats it would help us to ensure that the pets are well cared for.
- How many incidents have there been related to a large number of pets in the household?
- Quite a few. One officer said she just dealt with a property with 15 dogs.
- I know a lady in [personal information removed] that has 36 dogs.
- What would enforcing the number of animals look like? Will there be a change to the licensing system that prohibits someone from licensing a 7th animal? And then prompts them to complete a special application?
- I love the idea of limits (with those who have more grandfathered in) but i was shocked to see the online survey mentioned the number 6...
- yes, for emotional support...as [personal information removed] mentioned...someone with authority to make decision regarding cost on an individual basis for 'hard luc' cases or whatever you want to call it...but also should be able to justify increasing Emotional Animal fees due to extra admin and physical visits regarding conforming to the required standards, etc...
- Is there any other cities that have pet limits ?
- I live in [personal information removed], in the country, and we are only allowed 3!
- Too high, 6 total cats/dogs/LESA combined
- two is not reasonable - SIX is way too many for most properties in Calgary
- I like [personal information removed] idea
- Most cities do I believe
- and how would rescues fit in...special license?
- Maybe a CHS issue, due to the health and safety of the animal
- Airdrie has a limit of 3
- Most municipalities do - Rockyview, Wheatland, Foothills

- Rockyview is 3
- for pets that are inherited would we have lawful placement to ask and see a death certificates or wills – don't know the answer to this question
- Cochrane-3
- private kennel license for breeders/rescues etc, need to apply
- If your dog just had puppies, I guess that starts a clock for you to sell them before they fall under the bylaw?
- Rockyview requires a "kennel" license for anything over 3
- Apartment or condo verse a house, size of house, would that be a factor of amount of pets allowed?
- good point [personal information removed]
- I don't think we should be asking for death certificates
- Director's authorization on case by case basis for something like that....like any other bylaw...
- Does it just have to be death? I mean what if a parent is being put into assisted living or home that doesn't allow pets? - both
- Could be. This is all hypothetical
- if someone goes over the limit, what would the consequence be? Would we have the pet removed?
- Good to think about
- Can we make a limit on the amount of dogs dog walkers are walking at one time? Esp in off leash park? I've seen many dog walkers that can't keep track of the poop let alone making sure all dogs are behaving and comfortable
- 6 cats is alot unless they are really clean. Are their AHS views on number of cats / sqft?
- How responsible is the owner? If they are going to keep that many pets, they won't go by the bylaw anyway. That many pets don't produce licensing fees.
- Number of pets can be taken care of in other areas
- In Business Licensing they already investigate breeding or selling puppies. – align with BL or overlap, something to consider
- agreed on no limit, if you can care for them and they are not a nuisance
- [personal information removed] agree with [personal information removed]
- I live in [personal information removed], they limit to 3 dogs per household. Same in Foothills county. Yards in Calgary are small and there should be a limit on dogs.
- From an enforcement point of view, how would you be able to determine if there are more than 6 cats or dogs unless they're licensed? Who's issuing the permit and how does that process work?
- Is the City interested in this topic to prevent animal hoarding? It could stop people from licensing their pets too.
- Trying to prove that there's more than 6 might be a problem. We've got 6 black Labs. If I'm going to issue a charge, I would have to prove that these 7 black labs are individually licensed and that they're all over 6 months of age.
- I agree, hard to enforce.

- In my opinion - I don't think the city needs to be involved in the quantity of animals, but more so - should be considered, if I'm complying with the existing pet bylaws - that I am picking up my dog feces, that my dogs aren't barking excessively etc.

Vendors

A suggestion was raised in phase 1 engagement to make pet licences available from more locations.

Would you support the sale of pet licences through local vendors? Vendors could include pet supply stores, veterinarians, etc.

- What might be some anticipated challenges with this approach?
 - What might be some potential successes with this approach?
- Vets 100% should offer this.
 - Absolutely
 - Yes! Vets.
 - Most people think their vets tags ARE licenses
 - 100% [personal information removed]
 - Should have a sign at every vet as well
 - if you can get vets involved and pet food stores, that would be the best place to sell licenses. If you could promote it there. The onus isn't on the vet, but if we can get them to start educating and licensed breeders, partner agencies, to start that initial roll, that would help immensely.
 - I hear it all the time, my dog is Licensed - then show me a M/C Tag etc.
 - They need to check individuals physical ID when issuing new licenses
 - Petshops and rescues etc all need to sell licences to set people up for success as well as vets.
 - People not taking animals to the Vet when its sick because they think they will get a fine.
 - The same if business licencing are going to take on dog walkers companies should make part of the business licence is they have to have a valid tag per dog.
 - Are they selling the physical tag, or do we still mail out the tag? What do they need in the interim?
 - Filling out a form at vets and forwarding to City
 - Confusion over micro chip at vets
 - Enhanced partnership with vets
 - Lots of engagement with vets needed
 - yes, veterinarians for sure.
 - I like [personal information removed] idea.
 - challenge: registering the animal in Chameleon
 - I don't know how payment would be set up for the vet. Maybe the front counter staff would basically run them through ALPO while the person is there? *If the vet takes the payment. *front counter staff at the vet clinic.

- Could we not issue an invoice for all new purchased pets?
- On the topic of strengthening relations with vet clinics I think that AS should do info sessions on the RPO so that they understand the importance of licensing and our processes, etc.
- Filling out a form at vets and forwarding to City
- Confusion over microchip at vets as citizens think this means registered (licensed with the City)
- Enhanced partnership with vets
- Lots of engagement with vets needed
- What might be some anticipated challenges with this approach?
 - Chameleon
 - Where does the payment go if it is at the vet
- YES
- Of course!
- yes.
- a lot of dog owners are already confused between microchips and licenses, not sure this wouldn't make it worse
- rcs, chs, vets, pet store
- More people would be aware of needing to license and knowing the difference between a microchip and a city license
- Yes - we used to have regular programs of free 6 month licenses (to get people in the system) I think it would be easier if vets had the ability to give free 6 month license
- More locations can get it from the better. Just need to make sure we can get the license information and in our system
- any thoughts on a longer license period – multi year and multi pet
- Would an increase in license fee e.g. for having more than 3 dogs or 6 cats be a deteriorate unless animals are foster on compassion concerns
- Any chance Vets or certain places if they sold license, could access our licensing database only...could mean us having a lot less pick ups...
- Vets/Rescues
- I love the multi year idea
- I don't think we should give them access
- or lifelong license
- 5 year license with increased cost of course
- All being considered
- I kind of agree...but at least their own data bases then if they are selling them...could still lead to less pick ups if they can determine ownership info for more animals...
- Licensing 3 dogs or 6 cats is already a bigger expense.
- I think if they offer free six month (like a promo code) and then the person has to register themselves then we can be sure we get the info into our system
- maybe being able to opt to agree to give out their info if animal found when license it?

- sharing between agencies
- Are vets concerned if an animal has a valid city license ? Does it benefit them? Would they want to take on the extra work of selling our licenses?
- Ha probably not
- have to be an incentive
- I was thinking from the standpoint just for getting owners to claim fastermeans less time and money the Vets have to give until we can get them picked up...
- What might be some anticipated challenges with this approach?
 - would be a FOIP issue no? (for sharing database)
 - OR at least their own database...
 - yes it would be
 - for the ones they sell...
 - could fall under hia act
 - giving vets access
 - health information act
- Vet aware of age. Before spay or natured, education with that to understand what is needed.
- Limiting who can sell them as there is a possibility of abusing this
- I have one point I think is important before we leave
- How would fraudulent tags be dealt with?
- Maybe vet offices would be a good option...I would still worry about FOIP
- We should create a pamphlet and provide to all local vets and venders to educate dog owner about pet license.
- What might be some anticipated challenges with this approach?
 - FOIP
 - I feel having outside vendors would cause issues with inputting incorrect information
 - Chameleon / CSR systems not overly compatible or user friendly
 - For folks that don't use all the time
- What might be some potential successes with this approach
 - Registry Offices would be good
- What might be some anticipated challenges with this approach?
 - A great idea. concern would be correct info and information relayed back correctly to animal services from vet clinics etc. Veterinarians time to complete this.
 - Good idea. what about taking a picture of the animal getting a license and attaching that to its file. Vet clinic takes photos and then you can easily ID the animal and narrow down its breed. Many dog owners will describe the breed different than staff would.
 - I agree.
- What might be some potential successes with this approach
 - Fully support it, great idea.
 - From a vet perspective, they will be interested because they may get more potential clients. Come in for a licence and talk about vaccinations or spay/neuter. Not sure if big box stores are the best location. Will they be making a profit or will it be at cost basis? Based on incentive, I think vets will see a benefit. It will improve animal welfare, more chance of the animal getting home if lost, getting medical care. Also a potential window to talk to clients about medical care and prevention of diseases.

- Re: incentives – most vets would be happy to volunteer for this process. If the City listens to their ideas, most would be appreciative of this. Licence numbers would go up, especially for cats. Most of the time there's no ID or licences on cats that get brought into vets.

Other

- "OFF-LEASH DISCUSSION"
 - How about dealing with dog walkers walking 12+ dogs at parks.
 - I had a dog walker get a court order to limit her number of dogs she could walk
 - I do a recall test at off-leash parks and have had dog walkers remove dogs due to poor recall. Good for business licensing to get involved – not sure that they should have to decide what the reasonable number of dogs is.
- "NUISANCE DISCUSSION"
 - Nuisance dog order – looking to leverage that section to start banning certain individuals from dog parks, barking dogs. Interested in giving more flexibility to deal with problematic situations. My understanding is we used to use it but then got away from it.
 - Stopped 6 years ago.
 - If we go to a dog park and a dog is repeatedly aggressive, or the owner can't control 6 animals, can we leverage the nuisance dog designation to deal with it?
 - The issue with the nuisance was they had to be convicted of the offences previously and we were only going off the Chameleon record.
 - If we move to an administrative tribunal system, we have more flexibility around orders.
- If owners provide proof of training = lower license fee: Strathcona County does this; can look at their model <https://www.strathcona.ca/emergencies-enforcement/pet-ownership/dog-licences/#term>.
- [personal information removed] Q on checking low income status in the field: I think they have a SAMS ID card (or it is just a number assigned to them) that you check on SAMS online <http://sams.coc.ca/Secure/Home.aspx>
- Fair Entry: you apply once (annually?) but for NCSN program you have to be referred through Fair Entry as a separate step to be approved for the program
- Comments on the name of the bylaw from customers– they feel offended on “responsible” part of title of bylaw. This comes up over and over again
- I thought of another section that should be reviewed. this feedback is specifically to when a dog is on leash and has an aggressive act. We have the ability to write the at large ticket, but it is confusing to many offenders, and gets fought in court more often than not. The definition of running at large where an animal has had an aggressive act.

Currently we write the violation ticket under S 12- Animal running at large, and the definition of it is what gives us the ability to write it, however I find it very confusing to explain, and many officers wind up not writing it, or having that particular section fought in court because of how it is written.

I think there should be an animal running at large section, and no control on a leash causing a damage, or bite to other animal or person section. I've thought for years that those definitions need to be separated into different charging sections of the bylaw for clarity for the offender.

- "S. 12 - ANIMAL RUNNING AT LARGE is a current section.

PROBLEM – when officers get a complaint of an animal at large and the animal is in a common area of a condo building, apartment building or at a location where the physical address is the same; I am unable to issue a violation for S.12 of the RPO.

SOLUTION – Is it possible to add in the definition section of 'RUNNING AT LARGE', or add something along the lines of:

'RUNNING at LARGE' means – an ANIMAL is RUNNING at LARGE when the animal is anywhere in the city of Calgary where the public has implied access or not (need to define implied access and add to RPO) whether on private, or public property and not under care and control of the owner via leash when on public and/or under care and control of the owner when on private property; regardless if the owner and/or the complainant reside at the same address or not, and/or regardless whether the animal is in a common area (need to define common area and add to RPO) or not of a (apartment complex, condo, strip mall common spaces, hall ways etc).

Basically as an officer I think it would assist with giving us the ability to write a S.12 when an at large animal running in the hallways of an apartment complex leads to a bite. It would give us another means at dealing with irresponsible pet owners where warranted and of course at the officers' discretion.

- I had another idea which I wanted to discuss in the last meeting but the time of the meeting went by so fast. I also had vet rechecks to do on the animals and was being paged.

I am questioning, if we can brain storm the idea of "MANDATORY MICROCHIPING of Dogs and Cats" and Pros and Cons of it.

Majority of cats which end up at our city shelter, do not have any id.

We get many Injured, HBC (hit by car), trauma cats, chronic and acute disease issues cats. All these cats cost us lots of resources. For the injured cats we have to pay the emergency clinic treatment fee, and then follow up care at our shelter, many injured cat directly end up in our shelter and it is a very intensive process to stabilize them, treat them, daily follow up care, meds and diagnostics. Mostly these costs can never be recovered, as no one comes to it redeem these cats.

We also get many old, geriatric decline cats. Most of them are abandoned by the owners, also some owners think that my old cat has gone out to die and they do not look for them.

We have to invest our resources to hold these senior cats and care for them till the hold period is over. Almost all of these geriatric cats need meds, supportive care, diagnostics and daily checks.

With Mandatory Microchip bylaw, these animals can be reunited faster with the owners, bylaw officers can scan the microchip and drive the animal home right away.

Shelter will save resources as owner will be liable to pay for all the emergency medical bills and treatment costs, decrease in euthanasia and decrease in length of stay in the shelter (less food, meds, care and staff hours).

- Microchip will confirm ownership and not redeeming animals will be considered abandoning, and owner will have the consequences for being irresponsible. Microchipping will also help with stray population control.

City of Montreal have this bylaw since 2019.

For microchipping process - City can discuss with stakeholders. Our City Shelter, CHS, AARCS, Vet clinics can offer microchipping days in a week, where citizens can walk in to get their pets microchipped. Many veterinary clinics will support this idea. Vet clinics will microchip the pet dogs and cats at the time of spay neuter if city has bylaw for it. As it will improve animal welfare as clinics will have the ability to contact the owner in case an injured animal is presented to a veterinary clinic or emergency clinic.

We can give some incentive and perks, say if your pet is microchipped and is spay /neutered , discounted license fee, If just microchipped and not spay/neutered- prorated discount etc. Increase in fine revenues for not microchipping.

Targeted

Cats

To deal with the overpopulation of cats, we are considering increasing support for 'trap/neuter/release' programs. This could include:

- increasing fines for roaming cats found off property, and/or
- investing more in spay/neuter programs for feral cats, or
- A combination of A and B

Do you have any other ideas to address concerns with roaming and feral cats? What might these look like?

- I don't own a cat, my neighbour has a cat that's out all the time. It sits in my backyard and tries to eat the birds. I wish that they would keep their cat home. Increasing fines for roaming cats and TNR are both good ideas.
- In my area, there are many people who let their cats out the door. They sit below my bird feeder and try to get the birds. This goes back to being good neighbours. If I was to rat my neighbour out about her cat, she's going to complain about my dogs one day. City needs to do some mediation – what can we do to complain without them knowing? Don't agree with roaming cats – can't let my dogs out. How has that become a thing that people think it's ok for cats to roam? Another education thing.

- Don't understand why we accommodate feral cats. We have people bringing in rescue dogs from the Dominican Republic because they have feral dogs down there. Don't need feral cats or dogs. If they were dogs they would be picked up and dealt with, but because they're cats they're allowed to roam. I can call in and get support for a skunk but not a cat.
- What happens to a stray dog? [Dog euthanized if not adoptable] Why the inequity?
- Has the City consulted with programs that are already in place for TNR? Have they been involved in feedback for this process?
- I think we can support increased fines for roaming cats that have homes. Would support feral cat programs to reduce numbers.
- Provide incentives for people to spay/neuter feral cats.
- Just watching community pages around animals, there's a lack of education around cats and understanding behaviours around cats. We're catching up, but education is key. People don't understand the licencing program and roaming. There's still this perception that cats should be outside, and they don't understand the impact. We spend a lot of time on dog behaviour and less on cats.
- Not hearing a lot about feral cats in Calgary, maybe need to be more educated on it. Heard about it in Toronto and parts of BC. Does Calgary have a feral cat problem?
- Believe that education also plays a big role in solving these issues.
- People are missing the piece about the reasons behind it – community safety and animal welfare.
- [personal information removed] the Canadian Animal Task Force and AARCS [personal information removed] and have been able to see the impact those programs can have. For those owners who let their cats roam in Calgary that I know... fines aren't going to change their mind...
- People may be thinking that the cat needs to go outside but really enrichment indoors is better than the animal getting ripped to shreds by a wild animal outside. Do believe we can spark some change as a community in terms of thought.
- In Lethbridge, they have a program in the field – all these bins for feral cats. Is the City of Calgary aware of that? Have you talked to the City of Lethbridge? They were trying to catch them but made shelters for them out of Rubbermaid tubs. Have you discussed this with them?
- You could look at what the Cornwall, Ontario is planning to do. They had huge feral cat population that was a very large problem. I don't know the details but I know they have a plan in place at the moment and will start implementing it soon or perhaps already has (perhaps dampened by the pandemic).
- That's really interesting to learn about the population of feral cats in Calgary being quite low. Great to learn something new.
- To your point, it makes me think how effective AARCS program (or MEOW's) program has been in controlling the population
- Yeah, they (and CHS does too) do a ton. It's really surprising the need, and the number of applications they need to turn down due to the volume.

- Unaware of the extent of the problem of feral cats. Do you have estimates on what the population is like? I understand in Vancouver they have massive problems, but I was unaware that we had a problem.
- I support a trap/neuter/release program for feral cats, not for owned cats - how do you know a cat a feral or owned if it does not have it's tag on it's collar?
- Does the City Microchip, or offer micro-chipping?
- 65000! wow
- We do offer micro-chipping
- And low cost micro-chipping events throughout the year where is around $7 to micro chip your cat
- Super, thanks
- [personal information removed] do you offer microchip clinics to the public?
- they put a small notch in the ear to ID feral cats that have been spayed/neutered
- During our events throughout the year (I think we had 3 last year), we ask the public to bring their cat to our facility to get microchipped
- Another opportunity to partner with industry partners for microchip clinics
- yes there was three cat micro-chipping events held (pre-COVID)

Wildlife

It is currently prohibited to feed or tease wildlife in Parks. Would you support a bylaw prohibiting feeding and teasing wildlife on private property? Please explain your response.

- Would support. Causes more wildlife to come and be around. Like in Banff where they blocked off garbage cans. Don't know if there would be some way of creating something through your website, like an interactive map where people could report sightings, bobcat was sitting on this street. We're being informed in some way.
- Most of us think of skunk, wolf, coyote. I also think of birds. I feed birds on my property all the time. I would hate to have that prohibited. Lots of people enjoy feeding birds and I think it's something we can do to help wildlife. I don't think we should be feeding a coyote but feeding birds should be ok.
- Good point, so perhaps state mammals.
- Have to look at things like squirrels and other things that may be up for debate. Rodents.
- Yes- unless you are asked to step in for wildlife rehabilitation.
- For injured wildlife, various wildlife rehabilitation facilities might ask you to step in and care for an animal on your property (e.g. feeding formula) until they can get to the animal. I do support prohibiting feeding of wildlife with clarification if there is a 3rd party involved asking you to help keep the animal alive by feeding until they can get there.
- Could you define teasing? Would a crow box be teasing? It's a device by which you can train crows to bring you shiny objects or bring you quarters in exchange for treats. It's something where you offer food to an animal in exchange for an interaction.

- In Ottawa we have a large coyote issue (also some new human attacks too) and the city is looking for solution, so if Calgary comes up with a decent plan please send it our way.
- [personal information removed], we have the same issue here in the GTA.
- Private property as in a deer walks onto my property?
- I would prefer wild animals not be fed. I had a neighbour who was feeding rabbits which brought coyotes and bobcats into our yards.
- At no times should a wild animal be teased or fed (birds are the exception) coyotes, deer, moose, linx, etc
- At one of our retail properties, there was a bakery throwing bread out back to feed deer. The whole property ended up with a huge mouse problem. People intend to do good things but there are unintended consequences. There have been a lot of coyotes this year in the Evanston area and we've seen more interactions and a lot of people don't have the tools or understanding of what the consequences of their actions are.
- I fully support such a bylaw, with an exemption for feeding birds. at no time should a wild animal (or any animal) be teased.
- Prohibiting feeding the animals would be hard to implement but awareness campaigns as to the reason why it's not recommended to feed animals might be helpful for public education
- Do wildlife rescues ever use fosters? Would that ever be an exception?
- I agree with [personal information removed] - the enforcement of such a bylaw would be difficult. Again, public education would help. Many people are of the mind, if they are in the city they must be safe (trust me....I have heard this comment)
- This sounds like a 'start' initiative for the city. Are there other jurisdictions (fish and wildlife for example) that may be better suited/poised to oversee these types of issues?
- Lots of invasive squirrels. The ask in the community was to not feed the black and grey squirrels because they chase out the red squirrels. Don't have any hard stats on that, just what I've heard in the community. How do you differentiate between squirrel species?
- Biggest concern is with encountering coyotes and bobcats and how to best manage that. Don't know if that's something that can be tailored with "teasing". If the rabbits bring the coyotes/bobcats, what can I do as a homeowner. I have small dogs. I don't want them to become lunch. What can homeowners do to lessen encounters with coyotes and bobcats?
- Define teasing?
- Including birds?
- No bird feeders?
- Feeding birds?
- My dogs bark at squirrels and rabbits. is that teasing
- Is a squirrel proof feeder teasing ??
- I mean does that include Nana who wants to give the Squirrels nuts?
- Invasive vs. native squirrels?
- Magpies take my dog poop. Am I in violation of feeding wildlife?

- words used along with tease include: "harass", worry, exhaust, fatigue, annoy, plague, pester or torment,
- my dogs do all of those, alas
- pockets of feral rabbits all around the city.
- the only native squirrels are red squirrels. The imported squirrels Black and Grey, which are actually less annoying and they have been here for a really long time
- escapees from the zoo, I think?
- They came from Europe on Boats

Dogs

The City of Calgary is exploring additional options to deal with:

- Vicious dogs - designated by the Courts
- Dangerous dogs - Not currently designated in the bylaw
- Nuisance dogs - Designated in the bylaw and declared by the Director, Calgary Community Standards

What measures do you believe would be the most effective to address concerns with these dogs? Why?

- Just a question, how many vicious dog events are there typically in a year? Vicious is a particular designation, so obviously a formalized event. How many bite/attack events are there in a year typically in Calgary.
- Follow-up question, how many of those would have been bully breeds?
- So 39% of level 5 and above are bully breeds. I'm concerned about the BSL potential, you explained it's not out there yet, but it seems that to use the descriptors that were in the 'What We Heard' reports, I don't like any BSL, some of the breeds like Staffordshire are just not similar enough to Pitbulls to be dumped into the same basket. I just think that vicious dogs and dangerous dogs should be considered on a case by case basis. BSL would be a very unfortunate way to go.
- [Any measures to put in place?] I think that compulsory work with a qualified trainer for those kinds of dogs and careful assessment when a dog is being problematic is very fair. I have a dog that broke a tether several years ago and attacked a Daschund because he viewed him as prey. Would have been considered a class 5 bite. We settled it as neighbours. To do it based on breed....a dog, any dog that demonstrates these behaviours should have some of these measures applied. Training to support more success going forward. But just to categorize a dog as unsuitable to Calgary based on breed is unfair.
- There are many other breeds that cause damage. The dog that killed the infant several years ago was a Husky. Relatively unknown breeds such as Cane Corso and some Mastiffs, because they aren't known aren't a concern. How do you determine which breeds you're going to target?
- Understand what you're saying about being proactive. But it's a balance if I register a Pitbull. Like gun ownership – have to jump through hoops to own one. Regulation becomes cumbersome. Like the idea of licensing recognition of good dog citizens. That kind of incentivizing is a good idea because it's positive.

- Agree with comment above. Against all BSL. Slippery slope. First of all, Pitbull isn't a breed. If people had to go off of a visual ID, they would fail. Would pick a Boxer or some other breed. See a block head and just assume it's a Pitty. Start to let the animal activists in. Noticed a lot of chatter on the Global site that wasn't fair. Need to be careful when we talk about BSL. Calgary was looked at worldwide that we didn't have BSL and made it work. Montreal, Ontario have shown it hasn't worked. Bites have increased, not by Pitbulls because they banned them. Have seen very little dogs that should be classified as vicious because they are dangerous, but their bite isn't as severe. You can find many breeds with good bite power. City needs to be that pilot that others look to. Other people in the dog community are envious of what Calgary has. [personal information was removed] was instrumental in making it work without BSL. Dogs got licensed. If BSL is brought in, people will go underground. Need more officers out doing their job. Hang out in dog parks and you'll see lots of issues. My biggest concern is BSL. I don't own a Pitbull but I do own a dog that could be lumped into that slippery slope.
- When you have dogs living in a city environment, I don't know if that's something that will ever stop. Education needs to start in the classroom. Children need to know how to approach dogs. Would be more than happy to see tax dollars go to something in the classroom. Some children have a fear and others have no fear. Some dogs prefer to have their bubble and personal space. Great thing if people would understand that. People always have something to say about powerful breeds or treat you a little bit differently. Everything stems from education. I wouldn't have the dog I have without educating myself. You're going to punish good people with BSL because underground people are going to go further underground.
- I would volunteer to be a school presenter if there was a decent program created to do so. I am a [personal information removed] and would love to do this.
- Just have a lay person comment to make. I'm not for BSL but I do know that some types of dogs are just different than others. A Jack Russell will run up and bite but you can kick it away. There's lots of misinformation out there. Education is needed. The only time I've been terrified for my life, I was walking and something that looked like a Pitbull ran out, owner was there, dog ran out and smashed into my legs trying to knock me down. Don't know what would have happened. Owner screaming her head off. Dog thankfully went back to owner. Grew up on a farm, father raised dogs, had no fear of dogs until that event. When I go walking now, I'm afraid of dogs, not just Pitbulls. Afraid of a lot of different dogs. If we can avoid that type of incident. It has diminished my ability to walk in an off-leash area and not be terrified. Had nothing against any type of dog until this event. Glad the owner was there and able to control the dog. Would have felt better if that dog had a muzzle. Might be way off, maybe need more education, but that's all the education I needed.
- Can you tell me what the situation is with that right now? If someone has a vicious dog, are they required to be muzzled when off their property?

- Are you looking to have a City bylaw that just requires that of certain dogs? I don't think BSL works all that well. I have my own personal opinion about pit bulls but I don't think that's the answer. Any dog can be a vicious dog. We shouldn't single out a specific breed.
- Boils down to the owner and how that person acts with their dog. You get people out there that don't understand what can happen when dogs get into a dog fight. They don't care. "If my dog is loose, oh well." I think it boils down to the people.
- Calgary already has an effective bylaw in dealing with these concerns. We would like to see it stay as-is but more enforcement, more education. Similar to how it was in the early 2000s. Effective legislation in dealing with aggressive dogs. More enforcement, more training for enforcement officers. More education for those who need it, like those who have received a ticket or a citation for a dog that has acted in a dangerous or menacing way.
- Education is a big piece and dog training is a big piece. It's expensive and people don't take the time. Even just for recall and how to read basic dog behaviour signs. If there was something available just for the basics or to get people interested. Saw a program with coloured ribbons on how to approach dogs. Different coloured tags for different things. A dog labeled as a vicious dog could wear a colour so people are aware. Even just a couple colours. These dogs still need to be out and exercised. Education – maybe something offered in a park for basic training or recall. Maybe more people would engage and teach other people.
- Can you explain why you guys feel that there needs to be a bylaw change when we've had so much success with the current bylaw up until 2016. Fairly low bites until then. Why is the change necessary? Is there something else that's driving this?
- Did the breed specific language only come up due to public feedback? There was no indication of this on the questions in the first round of engagement. How did this come up? Is this solely based off of public feedback? Regarding obedience training – it's not regulated in North America. As someone who has done an apprenticeship and is getting certification, what makes someone a certified trainer? Not a lot of options out there for us. What is the City asking for if they're asking for mandatory obedience training? What makes someone a dog trainer?
- Re: referrals for training – Justice for Bullies supports training for all dogs. Encourage people to be proactive and do training. Obedience training for aggressive dogs – concern is that there are a lot of uncertified trainers. We need to come together to source out what the appropriate level of certification should be. Obedience training doesn't deal with aggression. It's only sit, heel etc. Does not deal with aggression. Airdrie is one of only municipalities that I know of that have a definition of who is considered a trainer – Canadian Professional Dog Trainers Association. They say these are the people that we do recommend. These are the only people that can be trainers in our municipality. Concerns about training for aggression with people who are not certified.
- Using a certified trainer is important. Can we look at licensing fees and if you use a trainer on a list provided by the City, you can get a reduced fee? Might encourage people to do training. I walk my dog on a 6-foot leash and there are lots of people who let their dogs off. People let their dogs off and they get aggressive with me and I'm the one following the bylaw. Goes back to educating people and we need to be more proactive with people rather than reactive. Look at how licensing might be affected by doing training.

- In the last 20 years that I've been working with bite prevention, whenever anybody has asked me what can be done for bylaw to improve results in a city, I have always pointed out Calgary as the answer....always. I literally just said "read Calgary's bylaw" and you have the answer. Not sure you can do anything with the bylaw that's going to improve things. It's always been looked at worldwide as how to properly do an animal control bylaw. It's hard to improve on something that has been working for so many years. So why are bites starting to increase? Not the bylaw. Public perception issues, education issues, other issues are the reason – not the bylaw itself.
- Calgary's MO for the last 25-30 years has been education over everything else. Education of the public, children, rescue groups, dog trainers and animal bylaw enforcement officers. It's always been to lean toward education/compliance rather than fining/discipline. I think that that one thing is the single most important thing to keep in mind. When you educate the public on why it's in their best interest to comply, they will. It could be, it's in your best interest to be a good neighbour, your dog could get returned to you if it gets loose, etc. Social media education campaign would be my first suggestion rather than immediately talking about enforcement.
- Public Education is so important, and I think severely lacking. Higher Fines for 2nd offenders, more severe consequences for 3+ infractions.
- I also believe that rescue animals are not vetted properly, as well. I don't believe that we should be bringing in these animals from out of country. there are enough animals in Canada alone that need to have good homes.
- I believe there needs to be a fine balance of both enforcement and education.
- I've worked with Cities and also refer to the Calgary bylaw as a model. Enforcement, education, outreach. I was lucky enough to listen to a presentation [personal information removed] – said he didn't want animal control to be dog catchers, but peace officers. Wanted them in parks to interact with people, congratulate owners when dogs are licensed, enforce when necessary. Bylaw is only as strong as enforcement. Easy to say, but maybe that means your team goes to council and asks for more funds. There needs to be visibility and constant relationship building.
- Some things that are going well are that Officers are fantastic. They have the support they need in terms of the bylaw and they are collaborative. They make referrals to people when they see people who need assistance. I like the 3rd classification of dogs – maybe nuisance dogs for level 1-2, Dangerous for level 3-4 and Vicious for level 5 and up. I think the bylaw is great. I worry the people are failing a bit. Wonder if there's opportunity to do campaigning and education – what responsible pet ownership means. Making good choices as you rear your dog from puppyhood. Taking the necessary steps if there are issues with aggression even if that means putting some restrictions in place. It means making smart choices in that ownership.
- Social media presence is needed. [personal information removed] used to do town halls with kennel clubs which was really powerful and very regular. For the City of Calgary – we provided a booth free of charge at our dog shows and it was really great. We have a huge gate that comes through – it's a captive audience. What better way to share bylaw news on proper dog ownership. It's 4 days out of the August long weekend but it works. I remember [personal information removed], it was 1% kill rate. That's something to be really proud of. Our turnaround time with stray dogs, if it's tagged or microchipped, those dogs can be back to their owners in less than an hour. I think a stronger presence in the community, social media, getting out to pet fairs is a powerful way to do it.

- CKC also used to support Responsible Dog Ownership Days with the City of Calgary and the Calgary Associated Dog Fanciers, which I understand were very successful. This can be done virtually also now.
- Education is key to reducing dog bites within a community. By teaching children how to approach and when to approach or not is indisputably effective. The responsibility of the dog lies with the owner. It is our responsibility as dog owners to set our dogs up for success. Responsibility is comprised of many things including, but not limited to, understanding genetics of the breed or (breeds within a mixed dog), knowing what they were bred for (herding/hunting vermin/retrieving/etc) to understand instinct, obedience training, understanding body language, etc on top of providing a safe, stable healthy home.
- In some communities there are three levels:
 - 1 - low level aggression, chasing, nipping, etc. Have restrictions but also have the opportunity to have it reversed if training is done and they can demonstrate the dog is safe.
 - 2 - moderate aggression - handled by the city with fines, restrictions
 - 3 - dangerous dog - conditions imposed through provincial court.The above framework makes it easier for the officers to impose restrictions without labelling it dangerous for life.
- To increase licensing, would it be worth exploring collaborating with pet retailers or other pet related business in the city that would include incentives to pet owners who fill out the licensing? Ex: discounts for services or discounts for products with the purchase of licenses?
- One of my colleagues is a dog walker in New Westminster, which used the Calgary model to remove BSL in 2012. She said she was walking two licensed dogs and an ACO approached her to tell her she was doing a great job and gave her a goodie bag. :)
- Positive reinforcement! Also helps the community see officers positively.
- Related to nuisance dogs. I would suggest if you have some appetite to change definitions, it would be a lot easier to figure out what to do with those dogs. Nuisance dogs is too broad of a term, too generic. Could be a dog that's barking or that has eliminated on your lawn. Could be all kinds of things. Need to have a better definition of what that means.
- Talking about dogs that are a potential safety risk, important to note that dogs that display aggression, it tends to happen contextually. If there's a dog who has challenges with other dogs, that doesn't mean they are problematic with people. You may have dogs who aren't appropriate around other small dogs or cats, doesn't mean they would be an issue around people. Important that we don't lump things too much and that we have the same kinds of options for all types of contexts.
- We have a tendency to split things up too much or lump things too closely – we're on the edge of lumping too much. Putting all of those things in the bucket of nuisance, there's a struggle to come up with effective solutions when they're all in the same category.

- Speaking about dogs at dog parks – important to note that not all dogs are appropriate for dog parks. People have an expectation that their dog should just get along with every dog it meets. That's not valid. Dogs shouldn't have to get along with every dog they meet in the neighbourhood. There is definitely some normalizing that has to happen with the public. If there are non-injurious incidents that happen with dogs at a dog park, people have to understand that that's normal. If there are injuries, that's something that could be addressed. There's a risk when people don't have any idea what to expect when they're at the dog park.
- Re: barking dogs – That's common sense. that's a noise bylaw violation. Definitely something that could be addressed with the noise bylaw.
- Lots of people don't know or don't have information on dog etiquette at the dog park. Lots of education that could be done. Can't just let your dog go in the park – need to understand what is normal and abnormal behaviour. That would have to cautiously approached by bylaw regarding prohibiting a dog from going to a dog park because there are lots of factors that could contribute to an incident.
- Vicious/dangerous dogs – [personal information removed] representing my own views and am also a dog trainer. I own a Staffordshire Terrier. I don't know the difference between a vicious and dangerous dog according to the bylaw. What are the definitions of a vicious dog/dangerous dog. What are your responsibilities if you own one? I don't think that's relatively known in the City. If there are things we can do to address those concerns that would be helpful.
- Lack of education. In all of the definitions, it would be a lack of knowledge, especially with the dog park example. If the dog is becoming an issue, you can't go by a single event, but maybe giving the owner some information on etiquette, reading dog body language. If the issues continue, I agree with banning from dog park.
- Wanted to share the policy statement for the Pet Industry Joint Advisory Council of Canada (PIJAC) regarding dangerous dogs. I would be happy to provide the link to the advocacy statement. That's our policy statement and we don't support BSL and we believe that responsible owners are really the key to moving forward.
- [Challenge from enforcement perspective re: reactive/proactive response. Any thoughts on what the City can do to be more proactive and encourage more responsible pet ownership?]
- I'm also from PIJAC. A lot is education with different stakeholders – breeders, pet store owners, rescues – all the avenues where people can acquire pets. Make sure everyone has education about dog behavior. We need to work with all stakeholders to ensure everyone has accountability. Making sure everyone is educated on all elements that need to be assessed around pets, that appropriate pets go to the appropriate owners. Do education at the onset to minimize the need for a bylaw response.
- Proactive – that would mean where are people getting dogs from? Start education process there. Pet store, breeder, rescue facility. Opportunity to introduce education at that point. Give breeders a discount on their licence if they provide education, as well as dog owners if they take training.
- I 100% Agree - very difficult to classify dogs into specific categories as how a dog acts is often very different depending on a specific contextual situation.

- Completely agree as well!
- completely agree as well
- Not all dogs are appropriate for dog parks; totally agree!
- I agree - education of the owners is key.
- Education is key. I never frequent dog parks. My dogs get targeted being intact. When I did go I found them accidents waiting to happen!
- Are there any stats around attacks at dog parks vs anything else? (don't have any specific to dog parks, will look up and add it to the chat)
- The key to determine a pattern of behavior - Once a pattern of behavior has been determined based on a dog by dog basis (and a situation by situation basis), and proven by a certified professional, then strong penalties can be enacted.
- Exactly. Proactive education
- <https://pijaccanada.com/for-businesses/advocacy/an-enlightened-approach-to-companion-animal-control-for-canadian-municipalities/>
- 11.8% of bites reported to Calgary Community Standards occurred in the home.
- A bite is considered "in-house" if the victim is either the dog owner or a member of the dog owner's immediate family who resides in the same household as the animal
- I hear lots on education, but what other actions can the City take to implement more proactive, preventative measures to stop dog bites before they happen
- One of the challenges from an enforcement perspective is that our bylaw is reactive....unfortunately we have to wait until an incident to take action
- So an in-home bite doesn't actually refer to the location where the bite took place?(yes)
- perhaps some free webinars on basic canine communication and behaviour? Something that could be offered regularly, to help people actually understand what their dogs are telling them
- Start education in schools
- Thank you
- Yes, I agree with [personal information removed] regarding education in schools
- PIJAC offers a Best Management Practice Program specific to the last exchange about education to the various pet sourcing
- while this may be controversial, engage with users of aversive tools such as shock, prong based equipment. these are a known risk for aggression
- <https://pijaccanada.com/education/best-management-practices-for-pet-establishments/>
- Those of us who breed purebred dogs have been doing that for years. Prepping our puppy people for what they need to do to keep their dogs safe if really important to me (and other breeders).
- All great comments and things for us to look into. This is helpful. Thank you.
- Disagree. Ecollars and prong collars do not cause aggression

Pigeons

Which additional rules would you support for enforcement of properties that own pigeons?

- Locating the pigeon coop within a specified distance of adjacent houses
- Odour management (eg. clean coop, etc.)
- Enforce coop standards
- Removal of some or all birds if problems arise
- Cleanup of pigeon feces

Are there other rules you would suggest?

- If someone has pigeons and they happen to get sick, is there any concern about them passing it on to wild birds in the city?
- Zoning for pigeons. City zoning for properties – not familiar with pigeon population. Is it a popular thing in the City itself or more on the outskirts?
- Again, zoning for pigeons? Not familiar with the pigeons in our industry, and being from Ottawa, unsure of the popularity
- I am aware that when pigeons are a problem in this city... they are a big problem and that the city may need additional legislation to support them in their roles. I support these changes or other changes to support the by-law officers in their work.
- Are they required to have an ID number? There's provincial legislation of the site and ownership? Is it the same requirements as for urban hens?
- I support this, goes back to responsible pet ownership. also agree with [personal information removed] who says they may have to belong to an organization. A licencing fee would be appropriate as we licence our dogs and cats.
- is there something that covers disease in the birds and potentially spreading to other birds?
- Are they required to be "spayed" or "neutered" (unsure if that's the proper term for pigeons) but that could become an environmental issue if they are capable of reproducing with the "wild" pigeons?
- I like the idea of licensing. [personal information removed], I will share that one of the most impactful challenges we encountered was that birds and reptiles were not licenced/accounted for and they municipality was unaware of the significant number of these animals were being housed. If there are homes with a considerable number of pigeons or have large coops, I would think licensing could just help to create knowledge and awareness for things like disaster response.
- People own a group of pigeons and they race them. They let them out and they fly in patterns. Sometimes they don't always come back. They end up in neighbour's yards and you get into "how do we get these pigeons back?" [How many do you think people should be allowed to keep?] I can't comment on that. My personal answer is zero but that's not fair to the people who own them.
- Seems reasonable to me
- No comment on pigeons. I think people who have vested interest are best to address that.
- I don't know anything about pigeons
- No idea about pigeons.
- My experience with pigeons is that when people have them out to race them or do what they like to do .. that often some will get loose.

Dog Early Warning System

To address the needs of pet owners and non-pet owners, and to respond to concerns raised regarding behaviour in on-leash areas and off-leash parks, we are exploring a voluntary dog early warning system.

What concerns or ideas would you have regarding a voluntary dog early warning system?

- NO FLEXI Leashes on pathways and sidewalks.
- I really like the idea in principle. Would require a huge education piece both to get people to engage but also for people to understand what the colours truly mean. What does a red bandana really mean? I think a bandana program for people walking dogs around the neighbourhood would be good. Think education piece would be steep.
- Love the thought of an early warning system but would require an education push so that people understood the colours - most people go "oh cute bandanna can I pet your dog". So a big city media push for it.
- Agreed [personal information removed] certain bandanna dogs should not be at off leash parks.
- Lots of people with dogs that don't want their dogs pet for whatever reason. I wouldn't see that as "that dog is going to bite", I would just see it as "oh that dog is just skittish". One person I walk with goes up to every dog. Once she stepped on a dog's paw and he jumped back. She intruded on that dog's space. Could have a simple system of two bandanas for pet or don't pet. Too many colours is too complicated. If you choose not to have one, that's ok too. Don't need to put it in the bylaw but could be something to educate people on.
- I love the idea of a bandana that would keep people away from my dogs.
- When we're looking at this it sounds great. We can put a warning system on our dog. But I've learned that most dog owners don't have an understanding of dog behaviour and will mislabel their dogs. Another issue – I teach dog bite prevention to children. Children don't always look at a bandana. Many people don't know or will not look. Lots of room for error. Maybe one day your dog isn't feeling well and is a red bandana. Lots of room for mislabeling and error.
- I train dogs and walk dogs. You can use anything to voice your concerns and people don't want to hear it, they will not use it. We have people who will not call their dogs back or off, even with my voice as loud as it is. We always hear "oh don't worry, my dog is friendly" and that's not always the case.
- I put red on my dog all the time and he's not aggressive, just looks good in red. People need to understand dog body language and need to understand that leash laws apply. Need to have dog bite prevention programs so people understand that they can't just be running up to any dog they want to.
- It's a bit utopian – people aren't always going to learn dog body language. The colour system is a dummy system. There's something to try here, something to think about to make it a little more flexible for people of all ages. Not everyone is going to learn dog body language. Some of us are more interested. Maybe something more grass roots simple. Maybe only label dogs that you don't want people approaching. Have it tied halfway up the leash, not necessarily on dog.

- Can't really see the colour system working. People aren't necessarily paying attention. How do we teach the whole City about the colours when they don't even know about the bylaw? 99% of the time my dog is fine but sometimes not. Do I have to colour code daily? People aren't paying attention. I ask people to call their dogs off and they say "but my dog's friendly". Everyone should be comfortable with the interaction before it happens. Just can't see it working.
- I live in a complex where kids run up to every dog they see with their mother shouting "don't run up to the dog!" Not paying attention. Need to be taught right away how to approach a strange dog as well as their own dog because most bites happen in the home. Need to know how to act with dogs, not with colours.
- Children don't have the cognitive level to understand a colour system. We need to teach children to ask first. Teach them what to do rather than having to look for a certain colour on a dog. What if bandana is covered, has fallen off? Can't rely on children to make that connection. Need to teach them from the beginning how to approach.
- Really do like this idea, would be cool as a community to have a standardized communication piece. Important to discern with pet owners that it does not give permission to victim blame. That does not mean that if someone approaches a dog with a bandana that they (victim) are liable for any bites. That needs to be communicated.
- I used to use this on my own dogs and clients but quickly abandoned it. The type of people that are always going to approach aren't going to see a bandana. Like it as an idea but coming from a city, I should expect space from someone that they aren't going to interact with my dog. People who understand behaviour would like for people to observe space and ask for permission to pet a dog.
- It's an opt-in system, what happens if I forget to put it on or it falls off, child misses that day in school. Message should be education for all to respect people/dogs space.
- Worried about legal issues – if somebody does not have a bandana on their dog. If a child ignored or didn't see a bandana and ran up to it and the dog bit, the legal aspect could be – you as an owner were responsible to put a bandana and you didn't so we're going to sue you. Or the reverse, if your dog is wearing a red bandana and a child who doesn't know the colours runs up and the dog bites, then it's "well you knew your dog was dangerous, why didn't you muzzle it?" Kind of like the "Dangerous dog" sign debate – what do you put on the sign to not be legally responsible.
- We actually wanted to do a pilot project with a local dog park, to provide info posters of common canine behaviour observed in dog parks, and how to read the body language to avoid conflicts or rising aggression situations.
- 100% agree that people need to start respecting the wishes of the owner and ask consent before approaching instead of relying on a bandana.
- Goes back to public education again...
- [personal information removed] could not have said it ANY better! Education about personal space and respect would prevent a significant number of incidences. [personal information removed] hit the nail on the head regarding legalities.
- Yep, I believe awareness, canine behaviour education, in dog park areas is a must

- This latter one is a concern as well. If I just want a peaceful walk and put on a bandana one day, and my neighbour doesn't like my dog, can they use that to argue that I admitted my dog was a problem?
- Not in favor of a bandana initiative, great points [personal information removed]
- Agree with [personal information removed] - I think this will be a slippery slope.
- It is a nice idea but agree that it is messy. For me, I feel like focus on responsible ownership (not choosing to take a dog with a propensity for Level 3 or 4 bite history to off-leash areas, etc), over trying to police everyone around the dog with flag/bandana would be preferable.
- Concern about consistency. We're trying to educate people and they see a dog with a bandana on that says they can't touch them. But then they see a dog without one and they think they can touch it, but really that dog just wasn't part of the voluntary system.
- How do you get compliance on this? Sometimes the ones that need these things aren't the ones using it. What kind of responsibility lays with the owner if they put a 'do not touch' bandana on the dog and an incident occurs? Are they accepting responsibility or does responsibility shift to the victim? Gives a false sense of security.
- Will go back to original statement about context – even a dog with a green bandana could be in a situation where if felt the need to bite. Having a bandana on even the most bomb-proof dog shouldn't be an invitation for people to touch it. Could be a mechanism for people with other dogs though. Yellow Dog Project – people with reactive dogs use it to let other people know to give the dog space. If a dog has to have a red bandana on in on off-leash park – that's just asinine. Red/yellow zone bandanas in an off-leash park is a disaster. Education about your responsibility as a person to not touch dogs is more important. I don't like this idea much.
- I believe the Yellow Dog Project is from a lady in Red Deer. She had a reactive dog, so she put yellow ribbons on her leash to let others know her dog needed space. Dog was not a risk if it had space – just an indicator to stay out of my bubble. Many have tried it to take dogs out into the community. Not sure what the success has been. You're on high alert anyway with a reactive dog. You look around corners and cross the street – use management techniques already if you own a reactive dog. Some don't take their dogs out at all.
- If you're on-leash with your dog, believe yellow ribbons could be useful. Not at a dog park at all.
- The system would be voluntary – so not all owners will have a marked dog, especially not bad owners. Could lead to confusion as some dogs will be aggressive, but not be labeled, whereas others will be. Essentially is a zero sum game where you still can't identify by sight an aggressive dog.
- I would much rather educate people regarding obtaining owner consent before approaching an unknown dog. I think that would be more effective
- Comment about aiding children to identify - this provides a false sense of security
- Does this open the owner up to liability if their dog is wearing a red or yellow bandana and something happens???
- Agree, it may lead to a false sense of security if you see a dog not a warning bandana, and thinking they are safe to approach
- No one needs to be approaching any dog without asking.

- Plus I find some people don't actually grasp the concept their dog doesn't want to be touched green is a false sense of security. Or they don't want the stigma of a red bandana and don't put it on.
- Yes liability would be an issue in my opinion.
- I think we are seeing some overlying themes about the need for education of both pets owners and citizens who could possibly interact with pets.
- Not a fan of bandana idea.
- How many times does an aggressive dog come running up with owner yelling "he's friendly"!!
- Education - people need control of their dogs. No reason dogs come running up to you and your dog. Most people do not have control of their dogs to call them off anyways.

Fine amounts

We are currently exploring fine increases for RPO violations. What situations do you believe could be improved by increasing fines?

- Back to the challenges you have for enforcement. Love the ethic of picking up orphan poops when in an off-leash area but in my 12 years in Deer Ridge, I have never seen an officer in the off-leash area. If a dog goes into the tall grass, people figure they don't have to pick up. Same fight that many civil servant departments are fighting. Cutback curtail how much enforcement you can do. All the things listed do deserve fines, but you have to find the people first.
- We keep coming back to that education point quite regularly.
- Are we finding that people are able to pay the fines that are already in place? What info do we have on the existing fine structure and are people able to pay their fines currently?
- What happens to dog owners who don't have a vehicle? Are they just getting off scot free for bylaw offences if they don't own a vehicle?
- Do fines actually deter anything anyway? I think they're like a speeding ticket. It might change behaviour for a short time, but then you just go back. Or people pay the ticket when they renew their license a year later, but that hasn't changed their behaviour. Are there other ways to change behaviour other than fines?
- For example, looking at excessive noise for $100. Is it $100 for every time it happens, or could there be a scale where it goes up for multiple times?
- Like the idea of a scale that increases each time. Sometimes only way to get people is through their pocketbook. What is the difference between a bite, injury or severe injury? How does an officer determine which it was? Do they take photos of the injury?
- Because we're talking about fines and bites/attacks, is there any way to obtain information on which breeds have been involved in each level. Does the city track bite scale per breed? I need to see if that is an influencing factor to this proposed change to the bylaw re: BSL or if there are other breeds involved.

- Can I get the information regarding level 5 bites? We need to look at populations of dogs registered per breed. Need to know if there are more of these breeds than others? For level 5 bites, is it just a visual breed identification or are we asking for papers from breeders?
- When dogs are being visually ID'd, that's a huge red flag. Even experts are often inaccurate in identifying dogs when they follow up with a DNA test. Dogs might not be getting ID'd correctly. I was told when I adopted my dog that she was a pitbull cross, my vet thinks she's a boxer, people on the street says she's a sighthound/greyhound cross. One bylaw officer might identify her as a pitbull and then another officer might identify her as a boxer.
- Other issue is registration – you are not able to pick mixed-breed dog. Reality is that we're dealing with many dogs from unknown origins. Would be good if the City could update their database to allow people to pick 'mixed-breed dog' as a drop down. Reality is that most people have mixed-breed dogs.
- Agree about being able to choose 'Mixed breed". Have no idea what my dog is.
- Looking at dog bites, injuries, attacks – wouldn't those be bundled into one? Do all those get bundled together if the dog bites me and injures me or are they pieced out?
- These do escalate right, second/third time would be more?
- Injuries or attacks to an adult, there's nothing for children. With some of these causing severe injury, is there a rehab program that they have to go through for some of these fines? Is there something that's going to expound a bit on that – if your fine is this, this is what's going to happen.
- I think for first offences these numbers are ok, 2nd and more the fines should be increased. I also think causing death to animal should be 1000 plus any vet bills incurred by the attacked dog's owners. Also it should be across the board, inclusive of children. There should also be a rehab attached to the more serious infractions.
- Is there a rehabilitation program for dangerous dogs?
- What happens if the vicious dog is re-homed?
- I have seen in other bylaws that dog owners can apply to have the dangerous dog label removed after a certain period of time of good behaviour...
- Further to [personal information removed] comment - yes, in some jurisdiction there is a category where you can undergo training and an assessment and have the designation reversed. So for example there would be aggressive, vicious, and dangerous.
- I just want to offer for consideration, that I think changing fee structure would have limited impact. Calgary is a large, and generally prosperous community. I think increasing fines, and the existence of them in general, suggests that your dog can offend in this way (save for euthanasia outcomes) as long as you pay your dues. Where I think we may be able to be more impactful, is to be proactive in communicating the impact to public safety, and the animal's quality of life if it offends and requires court ordered restrictions and tying this into responsible pet ownership.
- Generally, I think that smaller fines (defecation, noise, at large, unlicensed) may help if they're higher. With more aggressive incidents, people don't expect that to happen so higher fines may not be a deterrent to reduce incidents.

- A lot of education needs to be done with owners and families around how to conduct yourself around pets to avoid these situations we're talking about. We need to make sure people don't trigger any type of behaviour as well.
- Bites to children should be higher. Bites can be more psychologically damaging for a kid. Not discounting what an animal or adult might feel but I hear people say they were bit as a kid and are terrified of dogs now.
- I would like to see a higher fine for bites to children. I think it can be more physiologically damaging to a child
- No - biting a person should not be separated by age.
- the fines are fine
- Are more bites reported for kids then adults?
- Fines seem fine
- Kids are more likely to be bitten, for a variety of reasons
- I don't think we have access to those numbers, unfortunately
- Higher fines would support a more robust education program .. but raising the fines would not necessarily decrease the amount of bites / injuries - but I do believe it would help with the removal of defecation / pet liscencing / dog at large / barking dog
- 7 the fine schedule in Calgary is in the middle of Alberta communities....raising fines could be helpful
- I don't have those statistics [personal information removed]. What I would say, anecdotally, the trauma and impact to children is much higher
- I feel fees are fine. If you can't afford the license fee perhaps animal ownership isn't for you.

Tribunal

What ideas or concerns would you have regarding a tribunal system?

- Great positive potential as long as there's an assessment of the knowledge level of the people who are part of it. I was part of conflict resolution regarding barking dogs and I think it helped. I think if a tribunal could offer better solutions for all parties that are appealable. There should be severe consequences if one party breaches conditions set out by the tribunal.
- I like the idea if it does reduce trauma. My concern is with who would be on the tribunal. Need certified trainers, behaviour specialists, veterinarians. Need people who understand animals, not just some random person.
- Love this idea. Wonderful initiative. Is this going to be a panel, small select team, full time or contract role (part time)?
- Love the idea of it being a panel with someone from the City to say "this is what we need to do." My recommendation, there needs to be somebody with CBCC-KA or IAABC equivalent, somebody with a designation and experience with aggression to speak to this.
- Think this is an amazing idea. At a dog show, if there's a dog who bites a judge, its expelled and disqualified from the show. Just wondering if there's a correlation – some are banned for life.

- There are other groups that assess foreign dogs for pedigree. Not really the same but a similar type of collaboration.
- I think that the Tribunal is a brilliant idea, with a panel comprised of perhaps a person who breeds and works with animals consistently but not necessarily with a designation, one with a designation (working with aggression/training) etc. I applaud the city for even looking at investigating this further.
- I think there is a lot of value in this approach, to expedite cases. As long as the members were chosen carefully so they are objective. And, I suppose, there are clear mechanisms for escalation or review.
- Recommendation for requirements for certification. CBCC-KA (from the CCPDT), of the IAABC equivalent AND experience making euthanasia decisions at a high volume.
- Time spent in quarantine is detrimental to a dog's temperament. If we can lessen the amount of time the dog is in quarantine, that would be ideal. My concern is about who would be on the tribunal? What type of education/background would they have? Would they be suited to have these type of decisions?
- Should look for certified canine behaviorists. A well-rounded group of people. Animal control, animal behaviorist, maybe even a human behaviorist because often people are the issue.
- Very stressful for dogs and owners to be taken away for so long, also there is a cost to the city with the current system. Would agree with the tribunal as long as qualified people are on the it. I don't know what the current system is and whether there are experts currently involved. Believe a tribunal would be in the best interest of owners, victims, dogs and the City.
- I would be concerned about how you determine eligibility of individuals to serve on the tribunal. Not all canine behaviorists are created equal
- Agree.
- You need to have people that are well versed in dog behaviour and communication, as well as being able to read people to understand the whole story
- I think that giving the victims some course of action is important. If a tribunal gives this opportunity, I think that it is important
- PIJAC would love to work with the City of Calgary to expand access to its Beat Management Practice program. PIJAC represents several members from the pet community coast to coast. We also have several educational online module.
- If you go with tribunal there's must be an appeals process. You could have an unfortunate panel for your dog. Could be warranted but perhaps not
- Who will the tribunal report to? How will they be governed? What precedent will they use to make decisions?
- Agree with [personal information removed]
- There are other municipalities that use a tribunal system so there is some case law available. Again, Courts can review the fairness of the proceedings and whether the decision was reasonable

Bite and Run

The City is considering a rule around 'bite and run' in the instance that a dog bites a person or other animal.

What ideas, do you have regarding a rule whereby the dog owner must remain at the scene of an incident to share contact information and talk with an enforcement officer if necessary? Please explain.

- I think it would be great if there was someone to enforce that. I feel strongly that if an owner has a dog who commits a crime they need to take responsibility. Public would be more forgiving if they felt someone was going to take responsibility.
- How will you make anybody stay there if they don't want to stay? How many times have you heard they're calling bylaw and trying to make people stay and they won't.
- And that's also trusting that the people are giving the proper name or address because often they don't.
- When I attended the meeting some months ago, in reference to fines, one of the City people who was there said it's often hard to enforce fines that are levied by bylaw offence. You give me a fine, but there's no real ability to enforce that I'll pay that fine, which I was shocked by. It would be nice if the city would help your department get a little more teeth to the fines that are levied.
- In theory this is lovely...it would be amazing if dog owners would take responsibility if something would happen with their dogs. People unfortunately have bite and runs. Rule could be there, but I feel that enforcement would be hard to do. You could get citations for leaving the scene. Feel that this would be hard to enforce because people are already fleeing the scene. Would be better to have a public education campaign encouraging people to report, get all the information they can get at the scene, type of information to collect – description of dog, licence plate etc. Even if it's written in law, people that would break that law are already breaking the law.
- 100% support that [extra tool that City can use]. Love if we could keep people accountable. Entirely support the notion of a citation if people leave the scene. Irresponsible owners are going to be irresponsible anyway. Do support the notion of holding owners accountable. More education. Might be a struggle to gain compliance.
- Agree strongly with this.
- Yes, that makes sense in a safe manner of course.
- Although there are cases where the owner might need to run home to put the dog away, etc, which of course has to be considered, but then the owner should be expected to call their information in later.
- I also agree with this suggestion.
- Absolutely agree with this.
- Risk of reoffence and victim exposure – how can we make the leap from mandatory reporting to mandatory stay on scene. I like the exchanging of information – sounds like insurance in cars.
- 100% agree.
- Does the team have the manpower to respond to these concerns in time?

- Thinking about an hour response time – cortisol levels are going to persist in the dog's system for 72 hours. Would be concerned about the dog being ramped and not being able to recover. Risk of reoffence. Would focus on self-reporting.
- Are police normally dispatched after dog bites with injuries in Calgary? Just curious as I don't know the procedure.
- Yes, I meant when the bite is directed to a human and not another dog.
- Would have to be very clear what constitutes a bite. Jogger passes a dog, maybe there's a nip, a tear of pants. Sometimes people are ok with it, sometimes they have a strong reaction. Sometimes people go home and then aren't ok with it. If the victim seems ok at the time, I wouldn't expect an owner to go home and start a file on the bite.
- Are dog owners informed enough to know what information they need to report during a dog bite situation? Does the city outline this information?
- Yes, good point around dog-to-dog bites. Dog fights happen all the time and there even might be injuries, but both parties accept it as part of life and move on. I wouldn't want every scuffle in the dog park called into the City because people are afraid of being fined for a bite-and-run.
- Would have a concern about a dog-dog case because really you need to get out of there. One of your best courses of action is to get out of dodge because you don't want that to reoccur. If there's some provision where you can provide you name/contact info after the fact within a certain amount of time, to 311 or something, then that could suffice as something close enough to not being in violation. In the event of a dog-human, absolutely you should remain on scene.
- If you run away, obviously there's got to be some kind of punishment. I do agree that there should be some extra fine for not staying and taking responsibility or to show that they're responsible. It's likely the dog was the problem, but the human could have been as well. Same as leaving the scene of a car accident – there should be other charges involved.
- Concern is around containment of the dog and ensuring there's not a secondary issue. If you're standing around waiting the dog might bite again. Maybe a provision to be able to contain the dog and then exchange info. Don't want to make things worse by having the person stay on scene.
- Not sure how you would enforce it, but I like it
- Owners should remain at the scene of an incident, but my concern would be the containment of the dog. It's not a great idea to have the owner and an aggressive dog standing there with a victim of a dog bite – whether human or dog - it is possible the dog may bite again while waiting, and the victim may require medical assistance that would not warrant both parties waiting for bylaw/police.
- Bite and run. I think that's a nice idea. Hard to enforce. Plus often one needs to go to the vet. Everyone needs to be responsible for their dogs actions
- Or remove the dog (put it in the car/house./etc) and return to the scene to exchange information
- Sharing accurate information yes! The only issue with staying on scene is that emotions is high for everyone, including the dogs. A second issue could occur if you stay on scene. Esp. if it was due to faulty equipment (leash, collar, etc)
- Agree with mandating information exchange when dog incident occurs
- People will continue to run to avoid prosecution

- Great questions [personal information removed], we are just exploring this at this point. As it falls under Administrative Law, the Tribunal would have broad authority to place a variety of conditions to mitigate risk when releasing the dog back to the owner. They would also have authority to uphold a dog destruction order. I would envision that creation of over-arching principles to guide decision making, criteria and objective standards for decision making, and parameters on authority of the committee

Livestock

In addition to hens, we are exploring criteria for the potential approval of other livestock to be permitted in Calgary. Criteria for other livestock would include:

- Offers community benefit/ will have positive impact
- Support from adjacent neighbours
- Suitable living conditions can be provided for the animal
- Exceptions would be evaluated on a case by case basis and the decision would be at the discretion of the Chief Bylaw Enforcement Officer

Note: The City is looking at creating rules that balance the needs of Calgarians, as well as native and honeybee populations. While beekeeping was out of scope in phase 2 engagement, comments pertaining to beekeeping are still included here.

What concerns, if any, would you have if Calgary assessed allowing households to obtain these livestock using the above criteria? Is there other criteria you think should be included?

- Best management practices for beekeeping. Beekeepers tend, in most cases, if they're going to follow the rules, they do. Our organization's best practices. The City was very very involved in best practices development. We do call them the City of Calgary guidelines because they were ones that we had meetings with the City to come up with some practices.
- Regarding the 'What We Heard' report about beekeeping. Comments were shocking and came from people who didn't know anything about bees and beekeeping.
- When it comes to different interactions and land owners needing to be notified, I often look at when my neighbour got a dog which barks continuously, she didn't consult me first if I wanted a neighbour with a dog. There'll be people who don't get along very well and will say no I don't want a dog just because they don't get along.
- Notification to neighbours not necessary, but should have to register with the City so we can know where they are and do education.
- Proof of education at the same time as registration.
- Had a complaint about flying insects which we were told were honey bees. Turned out to be wasps which you can't do anything about nesting in your property. But if you know where a beekeeper is, you can make sure they're following the guidelines.

- I can guarantee, if you plant flowers you will get bees. Mostly honeybees. 300 different species in Alberta. 20-30 bumblebees. For allergies, [personal information removed], there [personal information removed] who's allergic to wasps and bees. I asked him, [personal information removed], if he had any issues with hives or wanted to know when I'm harvesting honey. He said no. Keeps an epi-pen because [personal information removed] much more likely to get stung by a wild bee. You would have to prove that a person has an allergy through testing because people just say they're allergic. One case in [personal information removed], 6 properties around the house with hives supposedly had people with allergies, where only 4% of the population has allergies. When bees forage they tend not to be aggressive. Only when you're near their hive. A wild bumblebee could have a nest on your property and could be aggressive.
- Beekeeping organization in Calgary are the only ones who go out and rescue native bees. We do between 80-100 native bee complaints/year. When a beekeeping organization goes out to rescue native bees, that says a lot about how much beekeepers care about native bees.
- Excellent idea for registering with the City and I agree no notification is necessary but registration.
- Are they just allowed hens, no rooster? Noise concern. How about ducks? Ducks bring a whole level of odour with them. Ducks are fun to keep but they bring a whole other level of odour than chickens.
- I have spoken with Councillors and they support beekeeping, but one Councillor said never in his life would he support hens. Just some information you should have going forward.
- Accessibility to a veterinarian for livestock. We do need support for care. Those must be available with options for these services to come to your house. Don't have the option to put these animals on Calgary Transit to access vet care.
- Curious as to what people would be doing with urban hens? Are they just for eggs or for meat? Honestly not sure how I feel about that.
- If only for egg laying purposes, what would happen with roosters if people don't know how to sex birds properly? How would we deal with a rooster cull?
- Lived overseas where people do have livestock. Sometimes it smells. That would be my concern. The odour wafts. Other than that, the chickens didn't disturb anyone. People might be bothered by the odour – that would have to be policed in some way.
- I'm sure I would have an opinion if I had chickens living next door - the smell mostly.
- Does the city have enough bodies to enforce something like this?
- Support from adjacent neighbours generated a lot of negative discussion. Applies to any pet ownership that we shouldn't have variable rights depending on who our neighbours are. Bylaw is set up to regulate harms and nuisance – shouldn't be dependent on what our neighbour thinks.
- When we look at ownership of dogs/cats, you're not required to consult your neighbours. Don't love the fact that this is seen as different. They're less common, but when cared for well they're not impactful to neighbours. We have those things in the bylaw. Those can be broadly applied to livestock. Noise/smell guidelines can be generally applied to all animals.
- Partnerships would have to be developed – taking in other animals puts stress on City resources.
- Education again on livestock animals behaviour and living needs, as they are quite different than the "typical pet" that the public is used to.

- Education is needed. I think most neighbours think living next to livestock means a lot of noise and smell. And as long as animals are properly cared for this won't be the case.
- Again size of animal, property size, zoning, might play a role in the decision of who would be allowed to keep livestock. You're allowed to own a cat or dog in an apartment, not sure a goat or hen would be the best fit (having had hens myself :)
- I agree - size of property, size of animal, zoning must be taken into consideration.
- Alberta Native Bee Council – We have a lot of concerns about urban beekeeping. Interesting that they've been separated from livestock because that's what managed bees are. Managed bees can have a lot of impact on native bees. They compete for food sources. Managed bees can spread diseases to native bees. We have a lot of different species in Alberta. 300 native bees species – tremendous wild bee diversity. We have a critically endangered species in Calgary. We have proposed limits on hive densities. Also that beekeepers should have to provide their own food – we have provided estimates on how much land covered in flowering plants is required. Really big issue for us – want to make sure the city is considering these impacts while they're reviewing the bylaw.
- One concern would be the size of the animal. I'm foreseeing someone keeping a cow or a horse in their backyard and let their hooves and shoes scratch up the street. Needs to be consideration for size – should be limited.
- In theory in favour of having ability to have livestock. Would have to have guidelines for square footage or certain number of chickens. I live in the inner city and yards are awfully small. Don't know whether you would have the appropriate welfare for a larger animal. Would like to see a pilot project or a phased approach. Pick a neighbourhood and test it there. Do see this as an additional revenue source for the City. Could see an additional licence – shouldn't be free for people to do. Would also like to see a community chicken coop. Primarily in favour of urban hens, but you could probably make it work for other wildlife. We've had success with the goats cutting the grass in Hillhurst. People love it. You could set aside some land for a community flock/herd. Would be an interesting experiment. Would have to be self-sustaining and licenced.
- Have any pilot projects been run?
- Just talking chickens right ? (they mentioned goats, potbellied pigs and mini horses)
- I'd be worried about smell. If you think dog yards smell bad, poorly maintained livestock are not nice
- The hooves and Shoes are not going to damage the street
- would be interested to hear what other cities are doing and what the outcomes have been
- How much Space is required to have a mini pony?or pig?
- Are there any differences in disposal of livestock waste vs dog/cat waste, from a sanitation standpoint?
- Green bin!
- So many stories of "Micro" pigs that don't end up Micro... or even small.
- You've tested chickens I think
- In favor of chickens/mini horse. But How much space is required to be allowed ?
- It would depend. There are standards that other municipalities have adopted that establish these
- For 3?

- the current requirement for chickens as emotional support animals is .92 sq m (10.2 sq ft.) is required for each bird
- If you allowed hens for egg laying purposes, we would likely allow more than 3
- Up to 8 to 10 likely

Fees

We are currently exploring changing fees for low-income Calgarians and LESA. Would you support changing these fees? What would that look like?

- My thought is that if you can't afford the fee, you probably can't afford the pet.
- With low-income, a licence of probably any monetary amount would likely be over-budget. If one was to do that, you have to give an incentive to want to purchase it. Have to convince them why they must get one. Before it was "a license is your dog's ticket home". Maybe something can be done with respect to low-income Calgarians. Agree with above that if you can't afford the fee you can't afford the pet, but think everyone should be entitled to have a pet regardless of their financial situation. Do agree they should be given some sort of break.
- With LESA, that should only be used for low-income Calgarians. If they have income above a certain amount, they should pay the fee just like I have to.
- If you want to have more than one LESA, then there should be a registration fee for that, just like if you choose to have multiple dogs.
- Low income, if you would like to give them a break, that would be reasonable to encourage responsible pet ownership and get them licensed.
- In the situation that the City is requiring that they have more than one – you pay $67 for the first one and then a lower fee for the remaining 2. Then the opposite when it's their choice to have more than one when it's not required...you pay more for additional animals when not required.
- Support lower fees for lower income. Read comments from first engagement about people shouldn't have an animal if they can't afford it. I disagree. I think everyone deserves to have an animal if they want one. People will have one whether people agree or not.
- Just to clarify, I do support lowering licensing fees for low income folks.
- For emotional support animals, one of the changes proposed is to only allow 1 pitbull type dog per household. How would that look if the emotional support animal was a pitbull type dog and a 2nd pitbull was required for animal enrichment? If someone wanted a second pitbull would they be able to have one?
- If someone had a pitbull as an emotional support animal, but are only allowed to have one per household, would they be able to have a 2nd pitbull type dog if the bylaw was changed?
- With backyard chickens. We are advocating for a stand alone urban hens bylaw or adding it to this bylaw as most urban hens will be kept as pets. We have a number of members who have gone through the LESA process. It is a high bar – there are many hoops to jump through to have a pet chicken. Cost is high. You have the cost of getting the letter from the psychologist, then also to add on $67 per bird. We would like to see that made more accessible.

- Could there be a fee per size of animal (or weight)?
- Such as lower fees for smaller pets, larger fees for larger animals
- I could support lower fees for low income families
- If your dog is at large or you're eligible for any of those fees that you mentioned, I don't think any should be reduced if you're on a low income. If you have a pet, you need to have a certain amount of resources to properly care for that pet. Agree with supporting low income with licencing and spay/neuter, but don't agree with lower consequences.
- For LESA, would it be the same as a low-income bus pass?
- Sounds like a reasonable accommodation to make on a case by case basis. Surely there could be a fund or some ability to help out folks that way.
- For LESA, you keep referring to livestock. How do you differentiate between a dog or cat that is an emotional support animal? What steps can people take to verify that their pet is for emotional support? What kind of verification are you using for livestock as emotional support?
- I would support lower fees for Low income
- Bylaw infractions should not be reduced by low income
- ES animals need what verification?
- I agree
- I agree - fines should not be lower, but perhaps licencing fees could be.
- Support for low income pet owners should be explored
- The applicant would need proof that a registered psychologist or psychiatrist is recommending the livestock as part of their treatment program. They would also need to show that they have adequate space for the animal(s)
- License for your animal is one of the smallest cost an owner will cost, more in favour of low cost spay/neuter
- We have a no cost spay and neuter program already in place through the City's fair entry program for low income residents
- Agree. Vet bills are so expensive. License fee is the least of my bills lol,
- I can't find the thumbs up button for chats, would support for low income pet owners and discuss how PIJAC could support a funding program for such situations.

Pet limit

What ideas or concerns would you have regarding a larger pet limit?

- Huge concerns about this. What proportion of complaints about dogs involve households with multiple dogs?
- If my dogs are too noisy, then I need to be dealt with for noisy dogs. If my house is filthy, then I need to be reprimanded or dealt with for the problem. I can tell you my 4 dogs are quieter than my neighbours Daschund. Not sure why we aren't enforcing bylaws that are already in place. Not going to help with hoarding situations which is due to mental illness. Often those become SPCA issues because dogs are in such distress.

- Agree with above 100%. I presently have 5 dogs but I compete in performance area with CKC. As a performance person and fancier of my breed, if I was limited to a number of dogs, it would limit me in progressing in the areas that I perform in. If I was capped, that would greatly impact my lifestyle with my dogs. Makes them great ambassadors for their breed. My neighbours can't tell that I have 5 dogs. I keep it spotless. There's a cattle dog 2 houses up that barks non-stop, never shuts up. I have 5 Rottweilers and I don't want them to make a peep because I don't want anyone to complain. Comes down to education and human beings being decent. If smell is an issue, why isn't that being dealt with by bylaw? Definitely not going to stop hoarders. They aren't going to license their dogs. Not going to stop a mental disease. They're lost in the system until their neighbours complain about it. Cap isn't going to stop 3 dogs being worse than 1 dog.
- With excess animal permits, I wouldn't want to have to jump through more hoops than just someone who owns 5 dogs. Would want a process that's fair across the board.
- See a similarity with number of beehives to number of cats/dogs. Bottom line – you make rules and people will always break them. People who aren't educated will break them as well. The more you have, the greater the potential for it to become a problem. That's why setting a number of beehives is likely a good idea, same as with dogs. Someone can have a limit based on yard size of 4 hives. I know people who have 8 and there's never been a problem. They're responsible. I know people who have 5 and it's a problem. By setting a limit, at least the people who follow rules will follow rules and decrease potential for additional problems. Would help bylaw help manage things in the City. Like the idea of the approved excess animal permit. There's lots of cases where people could have 10 dogs and manage them well. And why shouldn't they be allowed if they're a trainer or breeder. Have a limit to help minimize number of complaints that come from multiple dogs.
- What is the purpose of getting a permit? If I'm a rule follower, I'd be concerned about the process. I disagree that the more dogs the more potential problem. I think the less educated the dog owner is, the more likely there will be problems. I've seen very inexperienced people with a German Shepherd puppy and knew they were headed for trouble. I don't think numbers lead to problems, I think the education level of owners leads to problems. What's the purpose of the excess animal permit if my yard doesn't smell and my dogs are quiet and I follow all the rules? If I apply, is someone going to come check my yard? Going to create a whole new level of headaches and enforcement challenges for officers.
- Hear what you're saying [personal information removed] [re: issues with owner with 15 dogs], but those issues are one-offs. For a person with 10 dogs that gets barking complaints, it isn't going to solve the problem. They get grandfathered in and 4 eventually die, there will still be complaints about the 6. And if they're just one-offs, maybe 100 of those types of people in the City, what can we do with the one-offs? What can we do with the one guy with 10 dogs that are constantly barking? Probably nothing. Does it become an education thing or is the person beyond that?

- Mediation between neighbours. I don't love my neighbours but you do have to try to have a civil relationship, whether it's a cat or a pigeon.
- There are some enforcement pieces that must be challenging. I have a friend who is a breeder who has between 6-10 dogs at her property in the City. She does well keeping it clean, but it backs on to a park that is not off-leash. Off-leash dogs come over to her fence that incite her dogs to bark. Her neighbours go crazy because her dogs bark but if those dogs weren't off leash then her dogs wouldn't bark.
- Is there a definition for having the means to take care of them? Is that well-defined?
- Wondering where the number of 6 came from?
- 6 seems like a lot as a person who had 5, 6 seems like a lot so wondering where that came from? How many citizens have 6 or more currently? Some people with 1 dog have a lot of nuisance dogs because they're left out for hours on end, they bark constantly. I can go in and out of my house 20 times a day and 20 times a day those dogs will get set off. Depends on the people who own the dog.
- Other concern is if you put a number on it this go-round, next time will it get cut down to 4 dogs, and time after that 2 dogs? Where is it going to end?
- Again, I think it boils down to the individual situation. Person with 15 dogs, obviously that's a problem that needs to be dealt with. But there are people with 1 dog that are a problem that needs to be dealt with.
- I feel as long as the 5 basic needs are being met pet owners should be given the opportunity to show that they are capable of having multiple pets. This would address hoarding situation, backyard breeding operations etc.
- What are the Five Freedoms?
 - Freedom from hunger and thirst.
 - Freedom from pain, injury and disease.
 - Freedom from distress.
 - Freedom from discomfort.
 - Freedom to express behaviours that promote well-being.
- I have 6+ dogs that are licenced. Sounds like there's only 33 people that have more than 6 dogs. Is this even needed? If we're being responsible owners, you talked about a fancier's licence, I would be interested in that.
- As much as I love the idea of being able to own more pets, I suspect without proper awareness and education towards the public, might increase the amount of "nuisance dogs" or "nuisance animals" within the community. But owners should be able to apply to get "special permits" to own more (ex: rescues, breeders, fosters, etc)
- I struggle with this one. I understand the concerns from the perspective of enforcement with regards to this and at the same time, I (strictly speaking) don't see number of pets being the determining factor in animal welfare. I would be ok with a number but would like to see it higher than 6.
- Going back a few years, but I think it still applies, when I was having a conversation with [personal information removed], his approach was that we already have bylaws to deal with each issue that can show up. If there's animal abuse, we have laws to deal with that, if there's smelly poop, we have laws to deal with that etc. The person with 15 dogs that couldn't get rid of the smell, I manage a kennel with over 15 dogs and we have no smell. It's possible to keep it clean if you're diligent about it. You have to get into the data – does the data support dog limits? If you were to look at animal services calls related to noise, destruction of property, getting loose and on to neighbours property, how many of those would be going to a house with 1, 2 or 6 dogs? My guess is that the vast majority of calls are for houses with 1 or 2 dogs. Problems would not be solved with pet limits.

- Re pet limits - I would be one of those households, and as a breeder, would most certainly go along with the possession of a Dog Fanciers' License.
- Disagree with a limit. As someone who has dogs and is a breeder we are very aware of the bylaws and ensure that our dogs are not a menace to our neighbors. We also daily pick up after our dogs,
- Volume isn't indicative of irresponsible dog ownership.
- I suspect registered breeders would be exempt of this. I also assume that property and house size could play a factor, or even where the person lives, rural vs city...etc.
- My concern with legislation in general, not just Calgary, is that it ends up affecting a lot of people who aren't doing anything wrong. You end up with the vast majority of people who are doing a good job and doing what they're supposed to be doing and they get negatively affected by the one or two people who are idiots because of the struggle to enforce with those one or two people. We end up with legislation that negatively affects a majority of people. What happens to those 33 people who are more than capable of caring for many dogs? What happens to rescues? I've easily had 4-5 rescues in the house with my own 4 dogs. Noise/poop levels are taken care of, they get good care. I live in a situation where I can do that, but you also want to ensure you don't end up with a hoarder – I understand that.
- If you're be willing to be flexible with permissions for fosters, that would be good.
- I disagree with a limit. There are bylaws already in place for everything noted regarding noise/smell. As [personal information removed] said, volume isn't indicative of responsible/irresponsible pet ownership.
- No opinion on limits. Would be interested to research patterns in communities with low, moderate, or no limits.
- Agree.
- AB kennel club did submit a letter with regard to this – want to make sure you do have that. As breeders, some people do have many dogs. People who hoard, that's never going to be eliminated by a bylaw change. Letter said AB Kennel Club is against BSL and we addressed pet limits.
- Does the City have any partnerships for mental health to address hoarders?
- Agree that such limits end up affecting responsible pet owners.
- Are private homes able to be used for professional pet sitting or daycare? In most municipalities you need to have a zoned building for that.
- No to a limit. I very much agree with [personal information removed]. Limits/bans don't stop the problems, they just punish those that aren't causing problems.
- Disagree with limits based on numbers of animals, due to wide variability in city lot size/capacity to house animals. Manage nuisance (noise & smell) and harm (abuse/neglect/aggression) via bylaws.

- Somebody may terribly manage 1 pet while someone else may excellently manage 10 pets. Depends on the property and owner. Really comes down to how they're managed.
- Agree that it's all about how well they're cared for. If they're cared for and you're following the rules, I don't think the City should intervene. Backyard breeders – would like to see the City be able to act on those. If you're able to show proof of good breeding. Glad to see there are exceptions for fosters but would like to see something done about not very good breeding operations in the City. Would be hard to enforce but would like to see something done about backyard breeders – this (pet limits) may not be a way to do it.
- If you call 311, do we know how many stats we're talking about for odour complaints? What is the scale?
- Trying to define a backyard breeder is a slippery slope. Very hard to determine who's ethical or substandard. We may not agree with someone's breeding practices, but I don't think a pet limit is the way to manage that.
- As far as noise goes, I have 6 dogs. My neighbours are always surprised because I don't let them bark. The dog 2 doors down barks constantly. It's not a dog numbers issue – it's an education issue. I hate the idea of pet limits. There's a reason I moved to Calgary. This is a big thing for me and other breeders and competitors. It's about the quality of care that an owner can provide.
- My concern is that a lot of people might be punished for the irresponsibility of a few.
- If you put in limits, for people who get lots of complaints, that doesn't mean they're going to stop, they're just going to move dogs around or hide dogs. People work around dog limits, not legally. People that you're worried about aren't going to care about a limit and you'll only catch them if someone reports them.
- Not sure if limits are the answer or maybe it's higher fines or other consequences for infractions.
- RE: Limits - I strongly disagree with pet limits
- What is the purpose of a pet limit?
- Pet limits- disagree with any limits. Some people can't look after one! Some competition homes have more than 6. Especially with 2-3 competitors living in one home.
- Strongly disagree with this limit....size of animals may have some influence on the number of dogs in a city lot
- I have had between 6 and 8 dogs (as a breeder) and my dogs are always well cared for. I know of people with one dog that barely manage their dog
- Plus if I don't want cats can I then have 12 dogs? I don't want 6 dogs and 6 cats.
- Hoarders will always hoard. It's a mental disorder
- I agree with [personal information removed]. Pet limits seem pretty ridiculous to a farm girl.
- If a person can successfully manage many animals without issue, then they should be allowed to. If they cannot manage, and there are complaints, then it should be able to be mandated on a case by case basis a limit on ownership – all proven and documented by a certified professional.
- Is there not a city bylaw re smells and garbage already?
- Trust me, pet limits will not affect Backyard Breeders
- Those people will always find a way

- What do you mean "back yard breeder"?
- I agree
- Agree
- A backyard breeder is an amateur animal breeder whose breeding is considered substandard, with little or misguided effort towards ethical, selective breeding.
- How many complaints are there on this, per 311 calls?
- Right now we set an example to other cities regarding no pet limit. I'd hate to see this change. We have shown caps don't need to happen.
- Trying to define backyard breeders is a slippery slope. Who determines what is ethical? Who determines whether somebody is substandard? I strongly disagree with using pet limits to try and control breeding. Until people stop being willing to pay ridiculous amounts of money for crossbreeds, backyard breeders won't go out of business
- Even 1 dog could cause smell and noise issues.
- Agree
- Agree
- Agree...limits punish all owners regardless of dog/cat numbers
- Amen!
- Pet limits will not affect unscrupulous breeders - they are unscrupulous, so they will not follow the limit.
- I have 2 dogs. Would not personally have 6 but I'd still never support limits
- Agree with you [personal information removed], and that may allow the city to monitor breeding activity in the city
- Ok but if she gets one complaint ... Then is the license taken away?
- The city likely already has authority under existing bylaws
- Well, there would be an investigation, just like with any other complaint
- If this is a mechanism to work on hoarding cases, has there been engagement with AHS/mental health experts for proactive prevention?
- I would support increased penalties for violation of any part of the pet bylaw to manage people having too many dogs vs a pet limit.
- How many dog owners have more than 6 licensed in Calgary? (a couple hundred)
- So many would just cap at 6 and you lose those license fees. They will hide dogs
- 200 owners with more than 6 dogs in a city of 1.3 million

Vendors

A suggestion was raised in phase 1 engagement to make pet licences available from more locations.

Would you support the sale of pet licences through local vendors? Vendors could include pet supply stores, veterinarians, etc.

- What might be some anticipated challenges with this approach?
- What might be some potential successes with this approach?

- If pet stores are going to be allowed to sell dogs and cats, maybe they have to sell a license before the animal goes out the door. I also think the City has made it very easy with the online process. Maybe if it's more visible, maybe more people would be inclined to engage.
- Think having vets sell them is a great idea. When they come in for vaccines, vet can have a conversation with the owner. Can offer a deal on the license. Most people who bring their dogs in for vet care wouldn't mind purchasing a licence.
- Great idea!
- 100% support access to getting a license at more places. When people see their vet, go to the pet store for supplies for their new puppy – having that reminder that a pet needs to be licensed is a great opportunity. Having multiple places and multiple reminders is a great opportunity.
- I think we have city bus passes as a model – you can get them at multiple vendors. Could be a model for licences.
- Could they issue a temporary license like when you renew your driver's licence? Something temporary while you wait for the official one from the City?
- What might be some anticipated challenges with this approach?
- How do we ensure that pet stores are getting information to the City? Might have lost data.
- A lot to ask of individual business owners. Suggest an incentive program, like for every certain number of licenses sold, there is an incentive. It is more accountability on business owners. Need something put in place for additional work required. Or if they sign up voluntarily, they need to understand what is required. Need to feel like there's something in it for them.
- Agree with having more locations to get licences, also wondering about when you adopt a dog, if you don't go home with a license. You don't have to licence before 6 months, but you can. Don't know why dogs that are being sold within the city aren't being licenced right off the bat.
- Interesting idea, may ensure more people licence their pets, would you have to provide a fee to that organization though? The City already has an amazing online pet licence system.
- 100% agree
- Do you only mean in locations that sell dogs and cats?
- Free 6 month license for adopted dogs is a great initiative!
- Can city licenses be purchased online? It could be to have online hubs available in those other location, removing the responsibility from that location to manage it
- So the actual location wouldn't need to manage it, as long as several online portals for licensing would be provided?
- I was thinking of just providing more visibility of the licensing process, if people see it, they think about it, and are more willing to do right there and then (if the resources are available of course)
- Licensing with the City online is so slick – provide a credit card and they get automatically renewed. They make it too easy to not register your dogs.
- What might be some anticipated challenges with this approach?

- Logistically, I work for a retailer. We have partnered with cities before in providing this service. Technology is kind of advanced with partnering. Getting details back to the City etc. I think where partnership could come from could be from having months or campaigns that could be partnered with retailers.
- Challenges - make sure that staff managing forms and payments are consistent and accurate.
- I guess I am wondering if the investment of time would meet the benefit for the city when the process is already so easy. Would the time and management required to facilitate this, really improve pet licencing in a significant way to justify the change
- What might be some potential successes with this approach?
- Successes - lots of opportunities and reminders to get your license
- Could also be done at pet shows
- Offering this to vendors would be beneficial. It's a very easy process online. It would be good for encouraging the building of community and the opportunity for education. Would a vendor need to meet some sort of expectation? Would they need to meet a standard in order to do this? Not sure how much opportunity there is but driving footsteps into local businesses would be beneficial to help educate the masses on pet behaviour as much as we can.
- Retailers would be happy to support any responsible pet licensing initiatives. Licences are graduated, where they expire at different times. Are we just talking about new licences or expired/renewals as well? Might be a bit tricky but retailers would be happy to provide that. Would also be happy to offer licencing information. The City of Calgary has the highest licencing in North America. Our program is very successful unless it's fallen off a cliff in recent years. If you start spreading it around to retailers, you have another whole set of infrastructure that you have to set up. City could provide education that could be dispersed to vets, trainers, dog walkers etc. That's not as readily available to us (retailers) as I would like it to be.
- Running retail stores, I get first time pet owners or new to the city owners asking all the time, I even took the off-leash ambassador training just to get more information for when I get asked by customers what's expected of them. They just don't know where to go or they come from a City where they did offer licences at a retail location.
- I would support increased vendors - the more locations that licenses are available, the more likely people are going to buy them and renew them.
- It makes sense.
- I like the idea of licenses being more readily available to people. Not sure how it would be tracked by the city, but I think it's a good idea
- What's the cost to have multiple vendors? It's not hard to get one now
- I think that's great suggestion to encourage more education and licensing from vets / stores / etc
- Worked at a clinic. We put license info in new puppy packets. I get my license reminder via email. Pay it on online banking. Click and done.
- Often get asked these exact questions. Info available will be helpful
- My same comment. I think there is an opportunity to leverage pet businesses to promote responsible pet ownership and licensing. Thank you

- We haven't talked about dog walkers. I have strong feelings about dog walkers. They use City facilities for free. They are not licensed. No knowledge of what their experience with dogs is. There should be a licensing process. Demonstrate knowledge of dogs and liability insurance. Fee is reasonable if they're using City facilities.
- Also the number of dogs people can walk should be limited. If I have 6 dogs with me, it doesn't matter how well I control my dogs. If a strange dog comes in, shit is going to hit the fan. No way you can keep up with the poop. Should be some regulation. Not super harsh, but something.
- Dog noise bylaw is far too ambiguous. We used to live next door to a man with a sleep disorder, he would complain if my dogs barked once. The bylaw states any noise that disturbs. He would complain if my dog barked once because he had a sleep disorder. The bylaw leaves owners open to unreasonable neighbours.
- Thanks to the City and particularly Animal Services for being so diligent and receptive in seeking input from stakeholders.
- Thank you for taking the time to listen to us and value our input. Appreciate it very much.
- And I am seriously open and interested in future involvement in some sort of educational program.
- Question regarding the survey itself, is the City going to be looking into restricting multiple submissions and restricting who can participate? Concerned that anyone in the world can respond and can respond multiple times. Would like to see it limited to people who live in Calgary and deal with dogs in Calgary.
- Just want to make sure. We are anti-BSL. I have a following of 100,000 and I can say Calgary doesn't care, go ahead and do it. We know there are large lobby groups who can also direct people there. Just concerned that we may not get an accurate reflection of what Calgarians want. Might just end up being a debate about BSL on both sides. Doesn't take much for one social media influencer to go on and skew results.
- As a responsible dog owner and a tax payer I have concerns that engagement is open to everyone. I have family who live in Italy but I don't care what their opinions are about keeping dogs in Calgary. I'm concerned that either side could come in and provide feedback that isn't reflective of what Calgarians think.
- On the flip side, some of those people might have some great ideas we haven't considered.
- [personal information removed]
- In Canada we really believe in the rule of law and due process. Problem with BSL is that it takes that away from certain breeds. It allows a bylaw officer to make decisions based on visual identification. We really believe in rule of law and due process – BSL will take that away from owners and certain breeds of dogs. Scientific evidence doesn't support BSL as a useful tool in helping with responsible dog ownership.
- I appreciate the role of public consultation and understand that nothing is written in stone, but I would like to address things that are causing people anxiety in the pet owner community. Even framing it as an emotional reaction, they're worried about being treated differently. You go to the science and to the world of animal control and it's mystifying that this [BSL] is even on the table.

Toronto has a bill to repeal, Denver's going through it, Edmonton went through. It's not even just an emotional reaction - people are just honestly confused.

- The questionnaire that went out had very specific wording. It looks like somebody's put a lot of time into creating that questionnaire – looks like some of it was copied from Ontario. My concern is that Calgary has been for the past 15 years a model of animal control. Our concern is that for that amount of work to be put into the questions around pit bulls, that there's some agenda to get this on the table. [personal information removed] specifically said banning is not on the table, [personal information removed] said that banning is not on the table, but there's all sorts of things that can be done prior to banning that target owners of specific breeds, whether that's muzzling, insurance, not going to off-leash parks, extra fencing. All sorts of things that a city can do short of banning that still targets specific breeds. Wording on that questionnaire has me concerned because it seems like somebody put a lot of work into pit bulls.
- I would also like to add that even short of a breed ban, any breed restrictions - especially ones targeting household limits and insurance - are very concerning. Discrimination in any form is a problem!
- How can it not have been taken the wrong way when in the questionnaire it states something along the line of although statistics show that most dog bites are from other breeds, the inquiry is because of the potential damage that can be caused. I think that education both of owners and of the general public is the way to start. BSL legislation has been proven not to work. (I have a registered kennel and am speaking from the perspective of a breeder and dog advocate)
- So many great things have happened fighting this – I hate to see things go south. Facebook is very sensational – all of a sudden there were memes and things going around. If there could be some more positive advertising that Bylaw could do to say, “this is not what we're trying to do guys.” I also did the survey and thought “wow, what is going on here?” They were very poised questions and people just took that and ran with it.
- I'm representing the Canadian Kennel Club. Happy to see our members speaking out and echo sentiment that has been going on. BSL caused a bit of an imbalance in how people have looked at the survey. Language was taken from the Dog Owner's Liability Act. There are other good things about this consultation. I understand trying to get that balance and make sure to take notice of other things – make sure we don't get too caught up on just BSL perspective because we have to make sure that it's not something that's going to happen. The language and comment about the severity of the bite – certain things made one raise their eyebrows. Montreal recently had an incident in the last year or so and the coroner put out a report that disputed that fact. Just wanted to mention – would be good to have a look at that as well.
- I'm a trainer in the community, working in shelters and in private settings. Would echo the City's concerns that there is an increase in vicious dog incidents. Applaud the interest in looking at this. In my experience, vicious dog ownership/infractions are with cross-breeds. If we move to BSL, my concern is we are leaving the community vulnerable to those breeds that would not be included. Transfer of ownership and history of dog – worry about bylaw officers that when they see a first infraction, there could be a history and multiple offences. Re: stats on harder bites for specific breeds – can that be made available to trainers, so we can understand what some of the challenges are from a professional perspective?

- I have pored over the bylaw on other projects, am I correct in saying that it's not written into the bylaw that reporting bites is mandatory? [yes]. I'm not seeing the community able to make objective decisions about a Golden Retriever who was involved in a level 5 bite. They try to rehome that dog. Is there something we can do to make Level 4, 5, 6 bites mandatory to report?
- [Are you talking about an offence for failing to report?] I'm seeing logs of dogs rehomed that should really have a vicious dog license and don't have one. I'm wondering if we're seeing people who are not willing to report, or is our data skewed because we don't have mandatory reporting?
- As a breeder, I get into the middle of dog fights if I've got females in season. I have been bitten on occasion. I don't want to be governed by law for getting bitten when it's my own fault.
- Through the whole questionnaire, it was directly targeting pit bulls or broad-head breeds which covers a multitude of breed such as Rottweilers etc. Should be on a per-dog basis rather than by breed. Pit bulls were known as the nanny breed – are fabulous around kids. I'm totally for someone getting education when they get a dog.
- But doesn't the viciousness of the dog in question have to be proven...not based on a fear of a what if. I think a per dog bylaw of some sort should be drawn up.
- As a member of The Staffordshire Bull Terrier Club of Canada, we are very concerned that Calgary, a city that has been a worldwide inspiration and champion for breed-neutral animal control and responsible ownership and has been touted as one of the most effective in Canada, has suddenly included breed specific legislation for consideration.
- Another reason people are confused about the inclusion of BSL on the survey - it didn't seem to come up on Phase 1.
- We also stress that breed identification based on phenotype is incredibly inaccurate and is opinion based and not fact based. Studies show that visual breed ID is flawed, especially when it comes to mixed breeds and dogs of unknown parentage – which make up the majority of Calgary's dog population. Can you please explain to me how these dogs the city is deeming 'pit bull type' are identified? Specifically.
- Have heard the stats on level 3 and 4 bites on pit bulls. If you go back to the scientific literature, there's not a good measure of bite strength. There is research on skull anatomy and dogs. Nothing physiologically different between dogs in any literature. Most dogs that fall under pit bull type are not papered – we're talking about visual ID or owner ID. Just wonder if there would be an opportunity to dig into statistics to see what's going on – is it poor rescue practices, poor breeding, larger dogs?
- Very specifically, how is the city deeming to identify what they consider a pitbull type?
- Side comment: This issue can be addressed in two parts, short term or long term, short term being to make sure that the city has the proper tools in order to control dangerous dogs (not breed specific) but also long term more importantly, educating the community to eventually decrease the instances of dog bites at any level. There's a huge gap about canine behaviour and how to properly read dogs and prevent potential conflicts.
- Love that idea and totally agree that awareness and education is key for the long term

- Ok....sorry that I jumped the gun. incentives are good....and no problem.
- Can I make a comment about bite strength?
- Courts aren't recognizing DNA testing yet. Purely visual ID by animal control officers.
- Canadian Veterinary Medical Association in Ontario have also reviewed DNA and visual ID.
- The discrepancies between visual breed identification and DNA analysis is well documented.
- I think she is pointing out that where there is BSL, there are lawsuits, etc on breed ID.
- If we can look at increasing communication between large group stakeholders and the City, we can reduce bites. City had a wonderful program for rescue groups in the city. Were on the right track, content was excellent, and I did see it create change in organizations. Since that's been discontinued, people have reverted back. If you can bring us back together to talk about the flow of animals in the community, rescue groups bringing animals in from out of province, volume of animals, how bites change year over year, that could help. I would also suggest having vets as stakeholders – they are the ones doing the difficult task of euthanasia and behaviour assessments. If City shares their stats, they may be more willing to provide these services. If we share info with stakeholders, what the goals are, we may be able to work together.
- Rescue group practices (and breeders) are a great thing to study - dogs that are responsible for level 3+ bites are likely to have genetic aggression which breeders and rescues should be screening for, and responsible for.
- Thank you and will we get a sneak peek before it goes to council?
- That would be a great idea to know the direction you are going.
- Rescue dog imports – Any dogs brought in from abroad, imports, my concern is with diseases brought into the City (brucellosis, ehrlichia etc.). Is there any thought being given to what requirements might be put in place for imports?
- I groom dogs for a living and anything that comes from Mexico, if they want to come to me they have to show a negative test for brucellosis. Worries me.
- Re: nuisance dogs – pitbull question. My main concern is with the wording of additional insurance. Some homeowner's insurance already won't cover you if you have pitbulls. Also wording about more than one pitbull in a household. Would that be grandfathered in? I have 4 pages of questions but those are the two main ones. Is there anywhere that I can send these 4 pages of questions and concerns?
- Re: dog importation, there's a working group with CBSA, CFIA, Public Health Agency of Canada looking at dog importation specifically. I can certainly follow-up on that with you.
- Can I ask a question re rescue/dog imports and disease prevention
- Wildlife concerns around a lot of bobcats / coyotes.
- There is a working group working with the federal agencies and PIJAC is a member of this committee. Happy to share back.
- Please let me know the outcome and if the City can help
- Against BSL. I don't think the city really needs to move forward with this.
- Could you please reiterate what the next steps will be? Will there be any other opportunities to provide input? Thanks!

- 100% fully against BSL - I am heavily involved with two different predominantly bully breed dog sport clubs which provide a positive outlet for dogs to do what they love. These sports will end if any sort of BSL is enacted in Calgary.
- I am hearing many concerns and fears (and I share them) related to the line of questions on the web survey about BSL. The spectre of this is freaking everyone out. The misinformation and biased language about bite strength is disturbing.
- I second that!
- Ooh. Sorry. Did dog walker concerns get dropped?
- Again this is an information gathering exercise only
- The misinformation and biased language about bite strength is disturbing.
- Well said!
- We need to ask tough questions so we can fully inform Council on public sentiment
