Project overview

The City of Calgary is currently examining potential uses for a City-owned green field site located at 251 Sage Hill Boulevard NW. There is a known need for a Calgary Public Library branch and a transit hub to serve current bus routes and the future NW BRT and the City is exploring if other civic services could also be housed on the same site. It is expected that the proposed Civic Centre could also include additional and integrated floor space to accommodate community, social, arts & culture and meeting needs, in addition to an outdoor public plaza.

Engagement overview

The City invited each of the five Symons Valley Community Associations (Kincora, Sage Hill, Nolan Hill, Sherwood and Evanston) to attend a meeting to gain preliminary insight into uses and activities for a potential community space and outdoor public plaza as a part of the Civic Centre.

The City intends to seek additional input from the larger community in April 2018.

Representatives from the following groups attended the meeting:

- Sherwood Community Association
- Kincora Community Association
- Sage Hill Community Association
- Calgary Neighborhoods
- Ward 2 Communications and Communities
- City of Calgary Facility Management
- City of Calgary Arts & Culture
- Sage Hill Library
- B&A Planning Group (consultant)

There communities of Evanston and Nolan Hill were unable to send participant

The meeting format was an informal and casual roundtable discussion where ideas for potential uses were shared among community representatives.

Part One: Project Update

The first part of the meeting focused on providing participants with meeting objectives, desired outcomes, project background and information to support discussion about preferred and desired community activities, arts and culture activities and outdoor public plaza activities. The project background information included a PowerPoint presentation on site context, project stages and process, site location, city policy context and a preliminary Site Vision.

Part Two: Interactive Group Discussion

The focus of the facilitated, interactive group discussion was on exploring and gaining further insight into potential public uses for the proposed community space and outdoor plaza including community, social, and arts & culture activities.

The discussion consisted of three topics along with supporting questions. Participants took five minutes to write their ideas on sticky notes. Ideas were collected, organized on idea boards and then discussed as a group. Participants then identified their two priority activities by placing dots on their preferred activities.

The group spent 30 minutes per topic, prior to a group reflection and wrap-up.

What we asked

This meeting was not intended to seek official input, as the Sage Hill Multi-Use Service Project was still in its exploratory stage. This includes keeping the discussion focused on ideas for potential activity uses only, and not physical requirements such as square footage, entrances, furniture, fixtures and equipment.

Part two of the meeting consisted of a discussion about three topics:

1. Community Activities
2. Arts and Culture Activities
3. Outdoor Plaza Activities

Supporting Discussion Questions for Each Topic

- What activities do you believe surrounding residents are interested in?
- What activities do you feel cannot be accessed nearby?
- Who do you feel would use this space?
- Would one large space be of best use or should the space be dividable?

What We Heard – COMMUNITY ACTIVITY IDEAS

During this discussion, several overarching considerations regarding community activities and space became clear.

Symons Valley Hub & Gathering Place – Connecting the Five Communities

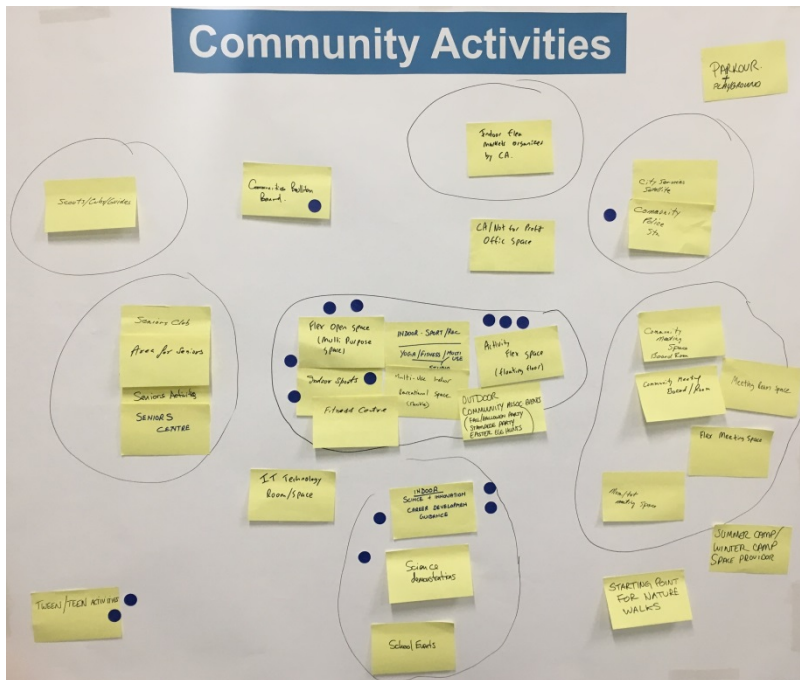

Overarching feedback included the desire to establish a new gathering place that would allow all five Symons Valley Communities to better connect and grow relationships. This was especially important given the recent fire at the Ranch House.

Activities for a Broad Range of Community Members

It was also clear that regardless of the type of activity, participants found it important to have a broader range of community activities that can cater to all demographics and cultures in the community. It was recognized that there is currently a lack of activities and available meeting space that can cater to youth, seniors and other groups and that a new shared meeting space could help with this issue.

Emerging activity themes & priorities

Participants’ ideas were categorized into groups and several themes and priorities emerged. This section provides a summary of these priority themes along with the individual ideas shared by participants.
