The Open – Public Washroom & Pickleball Court

The Open public washroom and pickleball court creatively blends architecture and landscape architecture, combining critical public infrastructure with a community amenity that offers ample opportunity for placemaking and play. Its eye-catching design captures the energy and vibrancy of East Village, and its playful naming — a nod to pickleball's tournament-style format — reflects The Open's distinct place brand and invites community members of all ages and abilities into the thoughtfully designed space.
