

How it works: Development permit application reviews

Development Permit application submitted and reviewed by The City.

The City collects public input. Feedback and technical input is shared with the applicant.

Applicant submits amended application, if required.

A decision is made by the approving body (Administration or CPC).

The public has 21 days to appeal the decision with the Subdivision and Development Appeal Board (SDAB).