- I have no problem with pigeons either as long as their numbers are restricted, they have a proper place to live and are not just let loose but are used for racing or homing.
- Raising pigeons for racing is fine, but not for consumption.
- Direction on the number. Required minimum/maximum size of both yard and habitat. Safety is not a concern, smell and nuisance are.
- pigeons are fine as long as they continue to be used for racing or homing within societies/groups
- All pigeons should be kept in cages, they should also be vaccinated and have some kind of tracking device

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- A limit on the number of pigeons that could be kept and mandatory education on how to do so in a clean, quiet way that doesn't disturb neighbours.
- They don't smell great and they poop everywhere. I say restrict this one.
- I don't know the potential problems this could have.
- An umbrella and a shotgun? Just kidding. I feel safe around pigeons.
- I am opposed to the keeping of pigeons within city limits. Neighbours should not be allowed to impose their desire to keep flocks of birds on their property because of the inevitable mess created by such birds, on the nearby property of others.
- They are pigeons, they are already everywhere.... I guess a separated enclosure and cleaning of their area.
- Not allowed to perch and be free, fly free unless they are participating in a race or training exercise.
- Permitted and inspection if complaint issued. Limit per household. Transmission of disease possible if not held to proper level
- I don't know enough about pigeons to give my opinion on this
- Current restrictions seem sufficient.
- appropriate fencing and some way to manage any smells.
- There is a guy in my neighbourhood that has racing pigeons, He takes really good care of them and they have a gigantic coop and don't ever escape.
- My knowledge on this is limited but pigeons are also vectors for disease and a specialized license and rules to prevent effluent from running off the prior will be important.
- No issue
- Not sure what use these are but there are wild pigeons so what's the harm in training some?
- I really do not have an opinion on the keeping or of raising pigeons.
- Nothing.
- As long as ownership is responsible per section 27.1 this shouldn't be an issue.
- You should not be allowed to raise pigeons on your property. Dirty, noisy and not necessary.
- All for it, if people are interested. I'd say having 20 pigeons with appropriate shelter would be reasonable.
- Limits on the number of pigeons and rules against them simply being released into the wild if the owner decides to stop caring for them.
- Why?
- I don't agree with this. We had pigeons in our area and the owner moved/passed away or didn't want to deal with them anymore and just let them out. They were used to being caged and cared for. Not a humane way to deal with this
- I am fine with pigeons as long as they are for racing only. The pigeon housing must not have offensive odours.
- Neighbor of mine has pigeons. They do roam a block or two from his home. Many of the city lampposts where they roost have a lot of droppings underneath. I have to walk the dog around this. I hope there is a reasonable limit to the number of pigeons per house and per city block since they do roam far

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They are already allowed? I don't know why people want them since they aren't useful, but regulate noise/numbers. [personal information removed]
- This is unfamiliar to me. Similar to chickens I'd guess but there may need to be extra care since they can fly. I think the CPFA membership is a solid requirement.
- No restriction on pigeons
- Most people would not be able to keep more than a few animals. I guess the focus should be making sure there is a reasonable amount of livestock, not over crowding.
- Pidgeon poops and roucouulous noise.
- Limit the number of birds someone may keep (say a maximum of 4). Roosts should be centrally located in owner's yard and no higher than 6 feet up.
- I think that all animals that are outdoors should be registered. There should be some rules around cleanliness and smells.
- Urban pigeons are in no way different from regular birds. The more the merrier.
- Responsible caregiver that does not allow smell, sound or waste to disturb their neighbours. Proactive, enforceable city bylaws and productive involvement for issues.
- If clean, not noisy, love it.
- Same as above, absolutely as long as waste/smells are kept to a minimum
- We currently have some pigeons in the area. They poop all over the place. No thanks//
- As long as the pigeons are not allowed to go free and become a pest to others, this is another hobby.
- Just reasonable checkups with vet clinics making sure that they are health free of diseases and parasites and make sure they have reasonable ability to get back to the owner so as to produce more pigeons then already in the city
- Don't allow it.
- No messes (poop) in neighbouring properties. Should be kept on their own property and not left to fly about freely at all hours.
- Previously had pigeons somewhere in our area & they took up residence in our roof alcove resulting in pooing over our deck for 4 yrs. They likely were abandoned by their owner. Their constant noise was challenging for our daughter to sleep in her room. HORRIBLE EXPERIENCE but they eventually moved on
- NO We had wild pigeons nesting on our roof. Cost us a fortune to get the roof pigeon safe. Now the are living two houses down and keep us awake in the warmer season when we sleep with an open window. Too risky to get more wild pigeons. People will let them free. See Python problem in Florida Keys.
- Absolutely no
- Sure
- There are enough pigeons in the city. Not acceptable.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- These I dont see any benefits in having them around my neighbourhood. especially not atop my roof.
- More information. I honestly haven't read into the pros/cons of this and would love to see some trials being done throughout the city.
- Allow unconditionally but must be kept clean and orderly.
- Limits to the number of animals allowed, requirements on the house/cage provided for the animals, vaccination requirements, rules in place to deal with the smell, waste and noise that can be associated with pigeons.
- They're fine the way they are.
- Must be tagged and of the homing type.
- Love to listen to them. Keep them here.
- Will never feel safe with pigeons. They are a nuisance in urban environment
- Lived with a pigeon coup next to our home years ago. Big mess in our yard. Filthy and smelled.
- The accountability currently in place seems to be working as far as I am aware. I have no concerns
- The same rules as for other animals regarding medical care and not being a nuisance to other people.
- Educated (maybe certified?) owners
- Pigeons are ...well pigeons. Pretty bird but very very messy. I have a neighbor who's deck is almost unusable due to pigeon droppings, but no one is sure where the birds are coming from. This is a hard one. They are a flight bird, they can travel - pretty hard to contain. Unsure of resolution
- There must be appropriate care requirements met for these birds and a limit to the amount of animals that can be kept.
- Pigeons are dirty and smell - lived next to a neighbour's pigeon coup years ago, so have experience with this.
- To keep it on farm land and not in the city!!
- For what purpose?
- Haven't noticed
- There were 50 pigeons ten doors from me for twenty years some years back. The person has since died. They were pleasant to see taking flight up there each afternoon and I miss the sight. There were no issues and urban pigeons should be restriction free.
- unsure
- Urban pigeons should be kept to being in cages as they cause a great disturbance and may have disease in the faeces. They should be allowed but roost in cages.
- Pigeons are more human than the irresponsible pet owners, they are not harming anyone. since people do not like the droppings it doesn't mean that these beautiful birds are pests. the actual pests are the irresponsible pet owners whom making more mess by leaving their pet's mess behind in public are
- I have lived in a place with pigeons. They make a terrible mess and should be gotten rid of.
- Similar to livestock, large enough back yards could be ok.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I would keep these regulations the same.
- Nope. We don't need the diseases birds and other livestock can bring when not handled properly. Leave it to the rural farmers and ranchers who know the rules. Waste products from livestock and pigeons - how will we regulate their handling?
- Again, pigeons need lots of space, not someone's backyard.
- WHAT? Why?
- Management of the animals so they do not become pests.
- Pigeons do not bother me.
- Owners responsibility to address concerns of neighbors including droppings on adjacent properties. Urban pigeons should be permitted so long as it does not adversely impact the rights of others.
- A neighbour kept racing pigeons and they were just fine. They were kept in a hutch in his backyard and he would fly them each day. The pigeons were trained to return to the hutch. Occasionally, one of our neighbourhood Merlins would take out one of the pigeons. The neighbour took it in his stride.
- That owners have education certificates to be accountable for responsible care. A cap of how many animals may be on site.
- My concern is feces in my yard and what it may contain as well as damage to my property from it.
- Many of the same issues as above -- permits, inspections.
- hat
- clean facility with a cleaning schedule
- Should not be allowed.
- I am really not a pigeon fan and think the current policies should stand. We already have enough problems with wild pigeons.
- Based on the recent articles in the media of people eating pigeons, this is of concern to me for the safety of the birds. I don't have enough knowledge to provide an opinion though.
- Nothing
- No pigeons should be allowed.
- Same feeling as urban livestock. No concerns
- A natural part of our environment.
- These needed to be regulated and if people are racing them, this is income and this needs to be regulated. They are noisy and messy which the owners aren't going to take responsibility so this is another issue and how many they can have is also an issue that needs to be taken care of.
- I see no issue with pigeon coops
- Nothing
- respond to nuisance - usually noise and defecation
- Okay if number limited and pen restricted to center of yard and reasonable rules followed re. cleanliness, dealing with droppings.
- No issues if owner is responsible.
- I have no issue with this, and feel it would be best implemented via a permit process to demonstrate proper basic knowledge of raising and care if pigeons prior to engaging in the activity.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not in my neighborhood
- I'm fine with this, as long as they are kept track of
- The pigeons should be confined/restricted to the property of the individual responsible for them. Noise, smells, and nuisance should be kept to a minimum and not disturb neighbors.
- Must be managed in a clean coop, not allowed to fly about into other yards. Management of waste, noise, odour and debris. Health management and inspection.
- Nope.
- They would be a nuisance to any neighbours so not a good idea.
- Credentials
- By-laws in appropriate housing for the pigeons and rules on how many you can have.
- Assurances that the beekeeper has been properly educated, and a process in place to evaluate neighbor concerns.
- I don't know about this one, but my statement about responsible pet ownership applies. Responsible pet ownership means that my pets/animals do not negatively impact anyone else.
- I don't care either way when it comes to pigeons. They aren't a bother and they will be in the city whether people keep them in their yards or not.
- No dirty birds. Can't control their poop. Not on my property.
- Personally I wouldn't want pigeons next door. If the current number of complaints about pigeons is low, I suspect the bylaw is adequate.
- Contained stock only. Can have a detrimental effect on surrounding areas.
- No idea.
- Wild pigeons are a dirty nuisance!! If the homeowner is limited to small numbers of "urban" pigeons and keeps them clean, no worries.
- Pigeons are like a plague. they take too long to die, they have a type of louse that can transmit disease to humans and we can't eat them. We don't need to procreate them. Sorry , No pigeons !
- Clean conditions, bird coops can be breeding grounds for dangerous viruses
- Why?
- who needs this mess all over....again, we live too close together for this....I wouldn' t want bird poop all over or the noise.
- As long as I dont have to smell it
- Too messy.
- their poops is GROSS and toxic ... but they can be raced and enjoyed by so many. I do not have enough knowledge to have perspective.
- Would not support keeping pigeons especially in suburban neighborhoods. If the pigeons escape they will negatively impact local bird species.
- No problem. Racing pigeons and homing pigeons are usually well taken care of and do not pose an issue
- I currently am unaware of recent research in this area.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I know there's a lot of pigeons in the city they seem to be in some areas just like seagulls once again I think people just get lazy and don't take their responsibilities seriously
- messy and destructive animals
- I feel there could be potential problems with how the pigeons are managed and this would be very difficult to control or enforce.
- A secure enclosure. I may have concerns about noise.
- should be ban
- Similar to most livestock, there are risks associated with nuisances like smell, noise, and environmental management with regards to their waste. An Agricultural officer/regulator would need to be employed to manage and license the practice. There should be a cap on numbers informed by policy.
- No. I love my quiet neighbourhood and enjoy having my windows open whenever weather permits. Hearing cooing pigeons would not add to the enhancement of my neighbourhood.
- Spot checks by bylaw for the cleanliness of the cages. Their feces are laden with germs. The owner needs to make sure they are not pooping all over the place or on neighbors properties.
- Set amount per household for comfort and safety of pigeons. Proper enclosures for animal well being. Eg. no overcrowding.
- I can't believe that many people want to keep pigeons. Should be sanitary, and possibly have a mental health assessment.
- I suspect the nuisance bylaw enforcement is adequate, but perhaps a guide on how many a person can have in a residential area would be prudent.
- Nothing
- Limits on the number allowed per yard
- No Comment
- I lived next door to Pigeons growing up. My neighbour had his garage outfitted with probably 30 cages where he kept them. They are dirty and very noisy. Not pleasant. I would be very unhappy if one sprang up next to me.
- Reduce the population ... if possible ...
- Never considered this and don't know much about it.
- Allow them.
- Current regulation seems sufficient.
- Noise and cleanliness. Overcrowded. That they are not being used as food.
- Dislike pigeons immensely, so not a fan of them being kept in our urban communities.
- there are pigeons everywhere. is this a problem?
- Maybe, but not a lot. They fly around and poop all over the neighbours properties.
- Urban birds not just pigeons/ chicken /quail /turkey/pheasant. a bird is a bird why be so restrictive follow animal care guide for max # safe secure housing not on property line, non disruptive of adjacent prop. Proper cleaning to prevent rodents pests etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Mandatory licensing of pigeon barns, and mandatory standard vaccinations for all pigeons. No household should be permitted to receive a license for both pigeons and pig farming at any one time.
- Absolutely opposed. Do not at all agree with the keeping pigeons within city limits. High risk with respect to public health concerns and soiling of environment and/or personal items. Restrict these animals to rural areas only.
- Should be treated same as any other livestock.
- Same as above. Pigeons are disease carriers (e.g histoplasmosis).
- Active member in local organization. This is actually really neat.
- Considering we have spent money to put pigeon spikes on our roof due to the pigeons making noise and defecating all over our deck, I do not agree with urban pigeons.
- Ensure pigeons are caged, fed, and cared for properly/ethically. Max # of birds/sqft of space should apply, or maybe an overall max # of birds per residential dwelling (I don't know what that would be. Maybe 20?)
- I think all KFCs, Popeyes, Chick-Fil-A in Calgary must immediately add Pigeons to their menu to keep their populations in check. The City can create jobs by hiring Pigeon herders to track them down and capture them
- No, no, and no. Pigeons should not be raised in the city. They are messy, dirty and carry disease. It's bad enough we have to deal with horrible dog owners and bylaws that are not enforced. We have high taxes here and bylaw officers are not strict enough when a complaint is made.
- Seems like a pandemic avian disease spreading carrier waiting to happen. Just saying.
- Confirmation that they are being used for racing or homing pigeons. Pretty sure my neighbours are eating theirs.
- Care and attention to feed, cleanliness and housing of pigeons to ensure they do not become a nuisance to others
- Urban pigeons should continue as is
- Limit numbers
- Maintain existing policy.
- As long as their noise/mess isn't interfering with neighbours reasonable enjoyment of their property I see no issue with it.
- Pigeons are a non-issue in terms of safety. There are, however, some concerns about cleanliness and sanitation. Being taken out to fly is fine, just like dogs going to an offleash park. But they shouldn't be loose all day. Likewise, not in large numbers. A small flock is fine.
- No. Same as chickens.
- Terrible idea. no redeeming features.
- No...smell and neighbor quality of life property value erosion etc.
- No
- Never
- Number, health and hygiene, shelter type.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No opinion
- No
- Yes, continue with pigeon owners belonging to an organization.
- Absolutely
- No They are noisy
- yes but again, keep limited to how many, and sound violations
- Nothing i feel safe now. Pigeons are everywhere anyways, if someone wants one as a pet they should be able to have one.
- This could get wildly out of control quickly. Provisions that manage growth and distressing neighbour relations (noise smell and excitement)
- no additional needs
- Yes this should be allowed
- Should not be allowed, Pigeons are a nuisance .
- This is ridiculous, this is what a urban area needs is more nuisance birds... Not! this is an irresponsible idea.... you will just end up with lots of complaints and causing unrest between neighbours!
- Good
- Nothing
- No.
- If the pigeons are caged, it should be OK, otherwise, it should be allowed if the interested party has the approval of all his neighbors (at least 5 houses to his side and 5 in front).
- bylaw or guidelines regarding best practices, public education and limits to project sizing for personal livestock i.e., need a property of X size for X number of pigeons etc.
- I don't know enough to comment.
- Thought we already had these? I'm good with it as long as proper hygiene is followed
- same as hens, keep in order should be ok
- No concerns.
- Unnecessary. They do not provide food and they carry disease
- - Standards of care
- - Requirement that birds be banded and registered
- See above
- pigeons are a massive nuisance, cause a mess & are loud in groups but if properly housed & trained & kept an appropriate distance away from residences then I think it's possible to find a place for them in the city. they will attract other pigeons though so they need to be well cared for & enclosed
- should not be allowed. Again, can't control where they go
- ALL THAT POOP.....NO WAY.....NO THANK YOU!!!! ABSOLUTELY NOT!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
- I agree with the current regulations for pigeons.
- Weird hobby, but I don't see a problem with it.
- Same as above.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not sure.
- Should not be allowed.
- Same as chickens. Existing pigeons also wake me up.
- Same as livestock
- Prevention of bird droppings on other people's property
- Nothing.
- As long as they don't cause a loud noise and are let out en masse (poop everywhere)
- Not a fan. These animals are like stray cats. You can't control where their feces goes and that is how they become known as a 'nuisance'. I don't want any of my neighbors keeping pigeons unless they are for food alone. No racing pigeons or homing pigeons.
- If they are clean, large property, no noise and not disturbing others private property, the city should be allowed to do surprise checks on all properties whether it's bees, chickens, pigeons.
- This is weird. I'm sorry, do people really want to do this? Maybe I am splitting hairs because I think chickens, also a bird, are ok.
- As above
- NO
- Maximum six birds per city lot.
- As above
- I don't know enough about this, though pigeons can be quite loud, so that would need to be considered.
- nothing at all
- No problem. All the tall new houses in our neighbourhood are attracting lots of pigeons.
- Current rules are good.
- No opinion
- Pigeons are dirty & disgusting. I'd rather focus on naturally occurring bird species. If someone truly loves pigeons & uses them for racing or homing then I'd put up with them but not an overwhelming number please
- Rubber boots
- In my opinion, I don't think that urban pigeons should be allowed.
- No
- Clean and maintained. No smell.
- As long as the animals are taken care of sure. The city allowed this in the 60s or so and we already have pigeons everywhere
- VERY well defined waste and cleanliness requirements including fines for first time violations. Fencing requirements including visibility to limit children wanting to access area. Noise control. Minimum space requirements and setbacks from neighbouring property. Small max number of animals
- There should be a regulation to cap the number of pigeons that can be kept (I have no idea how many would be reasonable) and a minimum distance between the pigeon coops and any dwelling.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I have no opinion on this other than the level of care must be that of what is expected for dogs and cats.
- Maybe I should raise falcons!
- I see them every day downtown. I am not scared of them at all.
- Sounds like its already regulated.
- No comment.
- I have no concerns about pigeons
- Pigeons can be great for food source as well. Anything is great, under the right conditions, to have a closer to home food source.
- As long as the owners clean regularly, pigeons don't make that much noise. As long as the pigeons are not let out to fly around the neighborhood, they will make a mess in other yards.
- No!!! Pigeons are dirty and noisy. I don't like paying to get someone to clean my roof.
- Pigeon feces is dangerous to other animals like cats and children not that children are animals but they do eat the feces and can get sick.
- Current system works
- As long as there is a maximum of 5 or 6, and rules for cleaning, no problem.
- To know before my neighbor installs one and knowing they've had training before bringing them to the neighborhood
- Should not be allowed at all
- Suitable housing for pigeons amd similar comments as above.
- Max 5 pigeons/ per yard. Coops must be clean and pigeons must have identity bands. Injured pigeons must be cared for by the owner and a fine given when this does not happen.
- The current law seems appropriate.
- Why?
- As long as the numbers are reasonable and the cages are clean and well maintained it should be allowed.
- No problem as long as existing by laws are followed.
- Banning.
- As long as they are registered and not able to be release into the wild
- Never thought about it
- Maximum number of birds
- Enforce the current bylaw.
- Pigeons could be kept within city limits
- Why? This has no value nor does it have merit.
- Nothing
- There must be a limitation on the number of pigeons. They must be kept well away from other properties because of the noise and smell. I like the idea that pigeon owners must be a member of good standing in an association.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There are already have good guidelines for raising racing pigeons. However if raised as potential livestock would be bad idea due to popularity in some neighbourhoods which could have same problem with attracting rodents and other pests.
- Hard NO
- much better to allow chickens than pigeons, because they can be controlled. pigeons can transmit diseases like avian flu and poop down on people.
- Why not?
- no to pigeons as you can not control the mess they make by pooping all over neighbours property .i am already seeing a lot of pigeons being kept by the Asians
- pigeons can be confined to make a mess in their own yard .
- Current bylaw sounds fine
- i see no use for pigeons in a community environment as they are messy birds
- Pigeons should be allowed for racing, homing and for pets.
- Homing pigeons are generally caged and contained. It may be a noise consideration however I think magpies are the noisy ones. If something is worse than nature in terms of noise and inconvenience then perhaps address it.
- I support this. Pigeons are great
- Do not support this at all.
- I agree with current urban pigeon regulations.
- No!! My brother had a neighbour who had hundreds of birds. The noise and stink of excrement was unbearable, there were mice everywhere, and it took years to have the city deal with this. A sad mental health situation and a horror for all of the neighbours!!
- Once again a limit on numbers and clean up would be good.
- I don't see any reason someone can't keep pigeons. Same as I said for chickens, as long as the owner is educated, and keeps the area clean and doesn't allow the feces to accumulate and smell.
- I didn't even know this was a thing
- No. Pigeons are an invasive species
- No pigeons should be kept within city limits.
- I am supportive of urban pigeons.
- Same as for chickens and bees - if kept to a very small number and parameters for coops defined.
- Sure.
- No issues as long as contained. Not to roam freely in neighbourhood, to return home to roost. Keep enclosure clean.
- Proper housing
- Why have urban pigeons at all? What purpose do they serve?
- Coo coo! I didn't know this was a thing! Love it.
- No problem with pigeons
- I don't think they should be allowed. They're noisy and smelly and carry disease.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Continued strict licensing/enforcement already in place. Responsibility of pigeon owner for any damage/necessary clean-up which occurs to neighbourhood properties.
- Ummm, really?
- Educate the neighbors
- There is no reason to feel unsafe around urban pigeons
- Pigeons should be allowed in the City with a permit. Permit conditions should make sure owners clean up and care for their pigeons to avoid odors.
- Keeping the cleanliness of the area and health of the humans around the coop is important
- what would be the purpose of this?
- Nothing really, except a stock limit per hectare to prevent over stocking.
- Regulations regarding fecal matter clean-up.
- Not a big problem where I live. The local wild life 'looks after them' for us.
- Sure!
- Awesome, more people should trap them feed them and them eat them.
- I strongly disagree. We had neighbours with pigeons and they're noisy and extremely messy. Bird crap everywhere!
- There is nothing about urban pigeon husbandry which makes me feel unsafe.
- Manageable numbers of animals, sanitary, safe living conditions.
- no concerns or opinions
- Nothing.
- I guess if they are in good standing with associations there is an assumption that they are properly cared for and cleaned up after. However I have concerns with disease feces and smell.
- Maintaining proper sanitation and hygiene around such sites is key for health and safety.
- [personal information removed] They're amazing pets and excellent game birds and trapping and raising them is a unique and fulfilling passion! Current laws are actually very open and reasonable though.
- We already have enough pigeons.
- These are filthy animals and at no time should they be allowed to live in the city.
- A limit on the number of pigeons
- Current standards still and a limit on the number of pigeons you can have. Maybe a course online so you know how to care for them properly
- Just no!!
- Nothing.
- I have no issues with pigeons. Really the city would just need to ensure there are proper washing groups so as to make sure we are not overrun with pidgeon poop. Also since Pigeons can carry disease, we need to keep an eye on that and have policies in place that regular health checks are performed.
- I do not have personal safety concerns with the backyard keeping of pigeons.
- Nothing.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No issues with these birds.
- No
- No concern with current bylaw
- Adequate shelter and maintenance
- Never. Only in rural areas. Have you every heard a flock of pigeons cooing?? Very loud and annoying.
- Owner education/permit
- First, icky. Second, there would need to be a reasonable cap on the number of birds they are allowed to keep.
- Yes, they will go home every night and I love seeing them fly. They need shelter, food, water and roosts.
- Lots of droppings and sometimes over-population when they mate and they carry diseases. They are scavengers. Due to overpopulation there should be safe and humane bird deterrents to get rid of them.
- I guess? I did not know this was something people still did. This would need to be done responsibly to prevent pet pigeons from leading to an urban pigeon nuisance, I think the current bylaw cited above sounds reasonable.
- Again, no issues with urban pigeons.
- So long as there was no damage to other's property and, in the event there was, the owners of the pigeons were responsible for remediation.
- Ok but with limit of 5 birds per property.
- This should not be allowed in the city. The pigeons are noisy and might smell, plus carry disease.
- I think the current system is probably right on this one: pigeons could quickly get out of hand if not monitored closely. Unless we go back to using them as a food source..
- Same as chicken care. Proof of proper ownership, care and housing
- I do not want nor support urban pigeons and do not appreciate leading questions on these surveys. There is more at stake than what citizens 'need to feel safe' (leading them to either approve or disapprove of this). Poor effort by administration or council, again.
- Pigeons should be able to roam free and spaces be provided so they do not make their nests everywhere.
- A roost fpr them.
- Same as keeping urban livestock. Apply Responsible Pet Ownership Regulation section 27.1
- As long as noise bylaws are respected, the animal is being cared for (fresh food and water) with proper disease management and poop is cleaned up I'm ok with it.
- Pigeons need to be contained to a soundproof coup and not able to be released.
- No concerns
- No comments, seems strange to keep sporting birds. This is the first time I have heard of people wanting to keep pigeons in Calgary.
- Existing laws are adequate.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Too many on the railways here already.
- It seems unnecessary to keep pigeons.
- Absolutely not. Messy messy messy. Poop everywhere and noisy. Scared away little native birds.
- Not in the city
- I have not encountered pigeons in Calgary but it would make me uncomfortable to live alongside them.
- Adequate and sanitary living conditions for animals
- stay the same.
- Nothing
- Definitely need to be licensed and monitored regularly -- maybe annual certification?
- I don't even know how I'd be able to tell which ones were owned by people and which ones were wild. They should be allowed to be farmed for meat as well as racing.
- As long as they're not affecting native bird populations and other populations, and are well taken care of, there shouldn't be an issue with it.
- no thanks
- Please allow urban chickens. As long as you keep restrictions on how many are allowed to be kept and that they be hens to eliminate rooster noise, this would greatly improve community an health and enjoyment. Fresh eggs!!
- Limit amount of pigeons kept further into city centre core.
- Nothing.
- Ammend current regulations. Ammendment is to allow the raising of pigeons for meat, same rules as chickens: secure, healthy, housed, watered, fed.
- With adequate space/setup/permit they should continue to be allowed.
- Pigeons are known to carry diseases and should not be permitted inside city limits.
- No experience so no comment.
- Again a limit and flyways that are not directly over neighbours' yards or vehicles, their excrement is very acidic and causes body damage over time to vehicles,
- I don't have any concerns other than controlling the mess they make - cleaning up droppings. For all three areas, the city will need more bylaw enforcement officers to deal with negative impacts from people who don't follow the regulations
- A maximum of four birds at a time.
- No. They are loud, messy and damage private property
- We have them in our neighbourhood and there is no problem. The owners must be responsible.
- Not allowed
- Nothing but I don't like them pooping everywhere.
- No
- Urban pigeons would be a fun hobby, but I don't know enough about them to fully comment.
- no thanks to this as well
- Zero issue or conflict

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No. Due to biosecurity, diseases, manure control, noise. These need to be monitored for care, abuse, cleanliness etc.
- I don't have a stand on the subject, but I would say birds need to be in a safe and clean environment
- - there is nothing that can be put in place to make me feel safe. The odour and noise from these animals can not be contained in close living quarters that homes in an urban setting are located.
- Nope. Too messy and noisy unless owners can follow the rules.
- No Pigeons . My neighbor just spent thousands of dollars trying to get rid of pigeons from her roof rafters. It is even absurd that the CITY is even considering this
- I have concerns about how these birds interact with other domestic pets and local wildlife.
- If the pigeons are not damaging property, I am OK with the existing bylaw. Since we cannot prevent the wild ones, we need to prevent damage to buildings in any case.
- Permit and consultation with and approval by adjacent and affected neighbours
- Same as above. Needs sufficient space and clean operations.
- Pigeons make good pets!! They can easily be contained in a pen, and are not the dirty fiends that pest control companies like to portray them to be. Many people have a pigeon as an indoor house pet, just like a parrot. I don't think there is any logic to make joining a club mandatory.
- Same as #2.
- This should not be allowed
- Na
- Agree owners should be a member in good standing of the CRPC or CPFA, etc.
- Yum--squab! If people want to keep them for homing/racing, I guess that's cool. Odd, but cool.
- No opinion.
- Responsibility..training
- Quiet and no mess or bad smells that disturb the neighborhood
- Allow pigeons for meat or pets. (max 12).
- I also do not have a problem with people keeping pigeons in the city. I do not even think it is bad if people raise them for food as long as they are kept tidily on their owners property.
- Caged
- Why the hell. No. You don't need to race pigeons. But if you have the space and the ability to care for em , you do you.
- This seems pretty harmless, I don't have any safety concerns
- I don't know much about urban pigeons, but in general more freedoms for Calgarians the better, provided it's not affecting the quality of life of others.
- Signage indicating urban pigeon sanctuary.
- I'm completely ok with it as stands
- We do have two pigeons that come to our yard along with other birds on a regular basis not sure they are a problem as yet. Hope not.
- Notice provided to neighbors in vicinity as pigeons cannot be contained and can be quite messy. Would like the opportunity to protest this in my community.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Adequate facility
- To feel safe with urban pigeons I would like to see them equipped with lasers that will allow them to effectively eradicate magpies. If lasers are not available, some other form of weaponry that would result in the pigeons triumphing over the evil magpie would be suitable.
- Nothing.
- Cage.
- Concerns with the diseases they carry. Require owners to keep birds disease free. Prevent birds from nesting in neighbours balcony etc.
- Required notification of neighbors. Bylaws to enforce cleanliness and noise.
- The number of pigeons should be limited for noise levels, and also to a number that can reasonably be kept clean and housed appropriately. That would vary depending on yard and/or garage (or similar) space. constraints.
- Gross, no thanks
- Yes! And chickens! And goats for pest control!
- Pigeons are an issue. They are too loud and feces are all over the house/deck
- Ensuring that all pigeons are banded to help ensure owners are liable for sick/injured birds.
- Ensure space and care is sufficient, and that noise/ smell can be contained to not disturb neighbors.
- Again lack of knowledge on my part.
- Proper care and housing of pigeons including hygiene and cleanliness. ID on pigeons who get lost so they can be returned safely.
- Should not be allowed
- I think it's fine if they're not free roaming
- I do not see a safety issue with this, as long as all needs of the pigeons are met.
- Meh. If someone wants one, and it makes them happy, who am I or you to judge? Who says and why do they need to be apart of some elitist club in order to have one?
- No
- messy and noisy.
- Why??
- Havent encountered any problem so far.
- Nothing, they are clean and welcome
- Gross
- Not in favour at all.
- Reasonable knowledge on the part of the pigeon keeper.
- I don't know enough
- Smell is the main issue so housing of the birds is important
- They already allow this so I see no issue
- Concerned about the noise and smell factors
- Should not be allowed in the City under any circumstance.
- good idea

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No concerns.
- awareness and knowing proper safety measures are implemented, noise control, cleanliness
- Absurd... they are a bother to everyone around them and directly effect everyone living near these properties. Should be contained to aviaries or special rural properties.
- Homing/racing pigeons is a long tradition & residents should be either part of an organisation to make sure they are taking the proper precautions in the care of the the birds. Keeping Bees & Urban livestock should be the same, part of a member organisation & checks made regular for Pigeon welfare.
- As is.
- Seems like a neat hobby. No concerns other then excessive poo being a problem but a responsible owner would manage this.
- Same as above.
- I agree with current regulations.
- This is kind of gross. Keep it how it is. People don't need to keep pigeons unless they are using them for the racing like the current bylaw
- Pigeons 8
- Same as above! And for personal use only. Should have extra cost and inspections to ensure a proper number of animals and housing for them
- They've been around for a good long time. Let them be.
- No, don't need the noise and dung. Plus near Fish Creek, it will only attract bob cats etc to eat them as they do with squirrels.
- Too much poop.
- Yes, so long as it doesn't interfere with the neighbours' enjoyment of their property.
- One of my neighbors has a rather large coupe. Seems as though there are many that hang out on peoples homes in Abbeydale. Not sure what to think.
- Not sure
- We have plenty of non-domesticated pigeons already, what difference does a few homing pigeons make?
- Never been bothered by pigeons - but cleanliness, smell and noise possibly to be considered and the neighbours notified.
- I have no issue with it, but I understand the stigma associated with pigeons as a pest. As with other forms of urban agriculture, I thinking having a bylaw with standards, and a process to notify residents of intent to keep pigeons and any risk mitigation put in place would help.
- These are an urban blight; they have been likened to rats with wings. If Alberta is so proudly "rat free" why are we not dealing with the pigeon epidemic in the city of Calgary. Get rid of them.
- again : inspections/guidelines for keeping them, to ensure sanitary conditions and decreased risk of disease transmission
- Proper street cleaning

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- these are dirty stinky birds if not looked after, and we will definitely have those that do not look after them.
- I think there needs to be a limit on how many pigeons people keep and where they are located. They can be noisy so I think that there needs to be a balance between how many and the ability of neighbours to enjoy their outdoor spaces.
- Established limits on quantity and enclosure type for urban pigeons.
- Sure so long as they are cared for appropriately and there are rules in place that will be enforced if they become nuisances
- should not be allowed
- Depends . I'd be okay with it
- I always thought pigeons were part of the landscape of a city. Homing and racing pigeons are for a few not the many and maybe should be designated to specific area in town just for them.
- No
- protect the pigeons from people. again secure living area.
- No more than 3, confined to owner's property.
- Responsibly kept. Considering smell.
- don't know
- N/A
- No strong views -- again my concern is managing noise, disease, odor.
- No problems with them.
- Nothing special [personal information removed]
- I think this is similar to chickens..... best on an acreage.
- Not in the residential neighbourhoods.
- Not sure. I guess as long as they are kept concealed they are ok
- No comment
- No!! This is a terrible idea! No to pigeons!
- Urban farm sign, however pigeons are very noisy and would prefer this is not urban.
- Urban pigeons should be allowed, full stop. Maintaining a membership as noted in the Bylaw, and any other rules should be upkept.
- Keep the same as current.
- Should be eradicated.
- No concerns if kept penned / caged and is well identified.
- Would they be caged or flying free? Not a fan of extra birds pooping on my car/property...and as long as there is no smell or sound disturbance.
- Keep them contained so they aren't flying all over the neighborhood
- Nothing. I don't have an issue with people keeping pigeons.
- No way!!!! There are enough birds in every single area of the city and surrounding area. Pigeons are dirty and noisy and just outright annoying.
- N.A.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Again, in a limited number and a good coop this is a good idea
- Wild birds that people feed and encourage around their homes not good
- Yet in Calgary but anybody that has pigeons should be licensed
- Nothing
- as long as not hundreds in one residence. The poo would also maybe be a concern
- As long as the fecal matter was continuously cleaned to avoid stench & the pigeons had a large enclosure. Pigeons roosting on my pergola & crapping all over my outdoor space doesn't excite me.
- i don't like these in the city because they can perch and poop in specific locations.
- Same as above.
- They carry disease. Don't want people keeping them.
- no issues
- No issues
- They should be allowed given the current bylaws surrounding pigeons.
- don't feel strongly either way.
- I do not have enough information on this. But why!?
- Yes as long as standards are met for safety of bird and that it is well kept to not both other residents
- Nothing needed.
- Pigeons are only an issue when they try to roost on your house. I assume urban pigeons would live in an enclosure. Though I have the same concerns about zoonotic events from them as I do livestock. My dad caught Psittacosis from pigeons that roosted on his roof the 90s. It was catastrophic for him
- Complaint process if there are issues, and the ability to fine owners if required. There should be some regulations in regards to the number allowed based on yard size and an annual permit to have one.. This I am not in favor of at all though.
- Should carry a maximum number of pigeons and be licensed.
- Yes and no. I agree with the sport but they can become a nuisance when they get lost and start flicking on roof tops of other properties. We also have seen doves in our area of city and this can become a big problem like pigeons. If left unchecked
- No issues either way.
- I disagree with with keeping pigeons in an urban setting.
- not okay
- Contained in a fenced backyard, a reasonable number allowed.
- Limit number in neighbourhoods
- No issues
- No to pigeons as they will be pooping all over my property. ABSOLUTELY NO.
- Same thing, I am okay with this, but people should register with the city if they plan to do this. It should not interfere with the safety and well-being of neighbours. This includes cleanliness and smell.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Posted contact information should the Pigeon's need to be moved back home, though I believe they have the information on collars. Waste management plan should the flock be over a certain number. Again suggest City offer specific composting/waste program for a fee to owners.
- I don't think pigeons belong in any urban setting. They can be very messy with feces everywhere, unsanitary conditions, constant cooing and flying around.
- Current legislation is enough. They are nuisances, and people shouldn't have them as pets unless they are part of those associations
- Do people still race pigeons?! Because they can't be contained you run overpopulation risks and public nuisance from a mess standpoint. They shit everywhere and eat gardens. They also reproduce pretty quickly. I think the cons outweigh the pros on this one.
- not allowed
- Absolutely not. Dirty birds.
- As with bees and livestock, I think pigeon keepers should take a training certificate/license program to ensure competency. Some people truly understand how to properly care for pigeons, and they should not be painted with the same brush as unknowledgeable/irresponsible owners.
- There would need to be strict rules about cleanliness and noise.
- More deterrent "spikes" on overhead areas to prevent them from landing/nesting.
- Our neighbours have racing pigeons. They are fun to watch when they fly. They are not noisy and are just quietly cooing when in the coop. I do not know of any issues with coyotes trying to get into yards nearby. As long as the coop and birds are clean and healthy it should be allowed.
- The nuisance of droppings, constant noise and presence of large enclosures of birds is not in keeping with a densely populated, urban community & is a health hazard . Birds need to be licenced.
- Must be identifiable as a domestic pigeon to an average citizen.
- I wont be interested in raising Pigeons.
- Follow section 27.1
- Limit the number of birds allowed.
- Same as roaming cats, if domesticated, should not be allowed to fly free and owners informed and fined if not compliant
- Fine with it
- Should not be allowed
- Absolutely not
- Is fine the way it is.
- A neighbor a few blocks away from us and I do enjoy watching them as I drive or walk past, they don't seem to be causing any problems.
- licensing and bylaw regarding feces
- If the animals are quiet and kept health, contained and clean-no smell, I am fine with that.
- No idea
- Health concerns, pick up feces and prevent spread of disease.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't see any need to regulate beyond making sure they are healthy, not overcrowded in their space and are not creating a nuisance. Pigeons are going to be part of an urban environment anyway.
- No
- It's ok as long as they are members of the pigeon racing clubs and roost within the owners properly built shelter and are not shitting on other peoples property.
- Sure
- Pigeon coopz have been here as long as Calgary. See above.
- I dont think birds should ever be caged
- we have seen what happens in Europe with pigeons.....maybe not the best addition to Calgary's landscape
- I have no opinion in this matter
- my only concern is cleanliness because a large flock of birds can make a big mess if its just flying around the neighborhood
- No opinion on this one
- Should not be allowed in urban areas, rural only.
- Limited amounts and appropriate cleaning.
- No opinion.
- Fine if they are contained
- AZA from previous comment - is the zoo regulations wouldn't allow those animals in such small spaces as backyards so why would we allow it.
Urban Pigeons should NEVER be allowed. Dirty, poop can corrode, etc.
- unsure.
- Do not want this
- Urban pigeons populations give the opportunity of introduction of wild falcons into the city , whose life could be monitored by cameras and observed on large screens installed in public places. This can be not only major attraction but also the symbol of the city.
- As long as they are kept safely and humanely they should be allowed
- No safety concern with pigeons. They have always been there with no major issues and they will still be there.
I find the spikes along certain perch points is plenty.
- Ban
- meh
- No.
- Should not be allowed.
- I can't stand pigeons. They roost in our eaves and poop everywhere. If keeping pigeons means more pigeons are accidentally released in the wild, I would not support this activity.
- City is too populated for someone to have pigeons. I would not want a pigeon coup next door. Again people do not involve veterinarians and pigeons do carry a number of diseases.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I have no issues with pigeons sharing our urban spaces
- limit number of pigeons; current membership requirements are appropriate.
- Not in the city constant cooing of pigeons and doves is uncontrollable. Sudden takeoff of 50 birds scares even the strong at heart. If necessary limit to five or less birds
- To me this is similar to above. We don't want to allow roaming cats or dogs (bees) so why do we allow a free roaming bird.
- Fine, does not seem to be an issue
- Nothing.
- yes, because they are fun.
- As long as there are limits on numbers and it is regulated to ensure the birds are in good health. Smell and noise to neighbors need to be considered.
- So far these have not constituted a major problem that we are aware of but as with all other things numbers need to be controlled.
- Pigeons are filthy.
- Unknown
- No no and no horrible idea same as chickens and the cooing would be unbearable to listen to
- No pigeons.
caged pigeons attract wild pigeons.
- Cause lots of waste and noise and damage
- Number of pigeons restricted by acreage of property. Smaller property, fewer pigeons. Mitigate waste smells by penning pigeons at least 3 meters from the nearest property line. Owner responsible for twice weekly cleanup of pigeon waste.
- Maybe?
- Give your neighbors notice of the hive and a chance to discuss any issues with it. If your neighbors agree i dont see there being a problem.
- Nothing.
- Proper coop
- Again, as long as it is capped, a maximum number.
- There should also be a limit on the number and they should not allowed to be at large
- I'm ok with this, with limits. I worry more about the volume and smell of pigeons. Flock size should be limited, a yearly liscense should be paid, and I'd be ok if people wanted to raise them to feed themselves or pets too, not just for racing.
- Gross, but sounds cool
- Do not allow. Too much chance of disease
- A lot of space between homes...like an acherage. I wouldnt want to live near anyone with pigeons.
- best practice bylaws from other well governed and regulated cities
- Limits on the number of pigeons
- Nothing.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- more than 10 birds should not be permitted due to the smell and waste as they fly around the owners property.
- No never allow urban pigeons
- not comfortable with this. my nieghbour has pigeons, and cares for them well, however, wild pigeons are drawn to them and have torn thier way into my roof several times to make nests near by them.. its a pain. an expensive and noisy pain
- I never knew this was a thing, so I see no issues.
- Nothing. Maybe a maximum amount for land size owned. Eg. Max 4 pigeons in suburbs
- Racing pigeons sounds like animal abuse, but respect to anyone training homing pigeons! It's weird, and I like it.
- I would be concerned about needing to clean pigeon pieces up because an outdoor cat got into the enclosure
- Tougher regulations for keeping pigeons confined to their owner's property.
- Pigeons are not clean animals, this should not be allowed either
- N/A
- I have Bowness neighbour that has had pigeons for years. The local newsletter has featured his birds, and despite a large population of birds, I've never had a problem. When people are responsible pet owners, it's a joy to have animals around.
- Special licensing and inspections
- No opinion
- Does the City check on those who keep pigeons to make sure they are in good standing with the companies listed above or if these people just own the pigeons to sell to restaurants as meat.
- This should be illegal unless birds are completely enclosed in a garage or shed. One coup in our neighborhood has continuously attracted dozens of wild pigeons that hang out near the coup. Dirty, noisy and irritating.
- No thanks
- Not have them in residential neighbourhoods, adhere to sanitary regulations, netting or other containment requirements to keep them out of others property, owners of birds accountable and liable for any harm or damage to people, pets, or property the animals cause.
- There is no definition of "good standing" when it comes to pigeon fanciers. There is no standard and no way to ensure they are not being used as livestock. Should be eliminated
- No. They poop all over the place, and don't stay only in one owner's yard. Too much negative impact on neighbours.
- I think the current rules for pigeon keeping are sufficient.
- Not much of a problem if it doesn't result in bird excrement to adjacent areas.
- There seem to be a lot of pigeons in Calgary! I don't understand the impact of kept pigeons on 'wild' ones.
- I don't have a problem with them.
- Good idea. Just keep number below 10.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Nuisance pests that create disgusting messes for neighbours and should not be permitted.
- Lord no! I would not like to live next to a pen of cooing rats with wings.
- Good luck lol
- Never heard of this. However, I was walking to work one day and had a pigeon follow me for quite awhile. It even perched on my head as I sat and talk to it. Quite the character he/she was! I loved it!
- Disease and excrement.
- These are filthy animals that are being eradicated in most European Cities. Why create a problem we will have to clean up. Don't start, it will save time and money later. Isn't excess wildlife enough of a problem?
- Sure I really have no input on urban pigeons
- Noisy and feces problem
- I grew up worn pigeons and had hem indoors . I think this is great too
- I don't have concerns, except concerns for ensuring the safety of the pigeons.
- No comment
- I'm fine with it
- No, the are very messy
- as long as they are not a nuisance to neighbors and in good standing with an association, then having pigeons is not problematic. The number of pigeons should be based on yard space and distance to neighbours.
- Again limit amount
- Some sort of constraint so they are not pooping on neighbors yards everywhere.
- As long as they were clean and didn't smell I wouldn't mind. There would need to be someone to make owners accountable
- Yes. Limit number allowed. Certain homes.
Rules to protect animal when owners stops activity.
- I believe what is in regulations now is acceptable. They are sweet birds! I have met a couple pigeons and totally wished I could bring them home with me!
- N/A
- That should be for small acreages.
- Clean coup regularly so there isn't a smell. Not a huge concern.
- They are wild-raised for training safe is a weird word. More about mess and smell
Dogs could eat them.
Would like to have chickens.
- They are disease concerns with birds.
  - Coccidia
  - Giardia
 & others can be transmitted to cats and dogs.
Any bird can do it.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Also concerns about space issues. If you had a certain size backyard - they would need to have adequate space. You also have to consider noise.

Owners need to be educated so that there aren't too many. There has to be something in the bylaw that the birds aren't overcrowding & being well taken care of.

If people are doing this, they shouldn't just buy a license. They should have to take a class. & pass a test. This should apply to any animals.

- - What is safe?
  - Mammals are livestock
  - limits on pigeons - smell
  - minimize smell
  - can be dealt with in an individual basis, not common
  - No different than other pets
- Keep pigeons contained, so not defecating on neighbor's property.
- We don't have enough for a problem. Help keep our falcon and hawk populations up, instead of eating songbirds
- Don't care.
- Again, clean living quarters (non smelly) as they are a wonderful hobby for some, but they are also a viable, low impact food source when raised for that.
- Seems to be enough bird droppings around without adding more birds.
- Have not thought about this as I do not know the practice well. Would need more information before making a statement
- The current standards to stay the same
- Sanitation. Disgusting waste.
- Must have approval of neighbours.
- Should be allowed
- Sure within reason.
- Proper fencing and perhaps a limit on how many pigeons. A few farmed pigeons is great while a massive flock in the neighbour's yard is not as welcome.
- I would like the city to reduce the number of pigeons in the city. This may mean educating citizens or culling the birds or something else that will help. Pigeons are squeezing out other birds which decreases biodiversity.
- Don't have an opinion
- Spot checking for humane conditions, secondary compost locations for animal waste, more affordable housing, easier more humane ways to deter unplanned breeding
- I agree with allowing as long as the requirements are met, as stated above.
- Limits to how many birds are allowed per capita of land. Noise ordinances.
- They really shouldn't be on the streets. I am constantly swerving to avoid. keep them in cages
- I have no issue with urban pigeons and safety.
- Why though?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Having a say as their output can become quite damaging
- I love pigeons [personal information removed]
- I do not support urban pigeons due to potential for odours and noise.
- Need to be contained,
- Same as above.
- More of a nuisance than safety issue, being a good neighbor. Reasonable limits on the number of animals / no disturbance to neighbors. Proper care for the animals.
- Education about their requirements for urban pigeons to live a healthy and safe life.
- Pests to be culled. Except for those raised for racing and fancier clubs.
- Limit number of coops per a determined area. Birds must be kept under control and in safe and sanitary conditions-also with neighbours' approval.
- in a larger yard
- They must be kept a reasonable distance from neighbours to control noise and smell.
- no
- nope.
- Uncertain. A neighbor had pigeons and he complained about the poop and we noticed where ever they landed there was lots of poop. Still uncertain whether it's a good idea.
- Housing units for these pigeons should not exceed the height of the fence as to disturb the view of the neighbors.
- I do not know anything about the practice of urban pigeon keeping, but I can't see any safety concerns.
- Dirty, multiply quickly, control numbers. Domesticated pigeons do not stay domesticated and can become a nuisance to home owners, diseases, unsanitary conditions.
- A limit on the number in any given area, secure housing of them and a cleanliness regimen that keeps them from emitting smells to the neighbours.
- Keep what you have now
- Also should definitely be allowed I see pigeons all over the city already would be no different again provided there is regulations and rules governing good husbandry
- I don't think pigeons should be used for our entertainment. Racing animals of any kind, including pigeons, is against my ethics. If people want to raise a pigeon that they've rescued as a pet, like a parakeet or other bird, this should not be restricted by a bylaw.
- Have not encountered this, so, as of right now have no concerns.
- Most birds in general should not be caged and left out.
- Controls on number of pigeons, restrictions on locations where these can be set up (certain minimum setbacks from schools, parks, businesses). The city should also inspect these on an annual basis, as a condition for licensing.
- I do not feel any safety risk for pigeons and feel that owners should have to keep them clean and provide adequate shelter and are not a nuisance as with any other animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Why not as long as the place is kept clean and they are not with cruel humans who do not know how to treat living things with respect.
- Provided the animals are treated humanely, cleaned up after properly and are not creating a nuisance then they are acceptable.
- I feel very safe. I am thrilled that this is being considered within the city of Calgary
- Great.
- Not a fan. In November, a homing pigeon ended up on my front lawn, and wouldn't leave for 2 days. Research said it was likely injured or "lost" (look into it, they do get lost, and the way to help them isn't pleasant!). I finally had to capture & cage it, and take to an ER Vet; it was too cold out.
- Proper disposal of feces.
- This is a lost art. Doves and pigeons, when well taken care of, could be awesome pets. People should be allowed to have pigeons. Sound might be a problem if there are too many as they can be quite loud, but a few shouldn't be a problem.
- People really need to stop exploiting animals for entertainment, including pigeons. However, if the pigeons are well cared for and not causing a disturbance, it's none of my business.
- I also would not be interested in living next to someone with pigeons.
- Nobody cares about pigeons
- Same as above. Ensuring that there is also no additional burden on the community.
- No
- I agree with having to be part of a club or Association and identification.
- The current guidelines sound reasonable as long as there is also a size requirement of the yard so there is an appropriate offset from neighbours.
- No thoughts, I don't know enough about them.
- I agree with the current section 27.1 of the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw related to pigeons.
- Same issue as livestock. Smell, noise, spreading of disease. Irresponsible care takers. If people want livestock and pigeons move out of town. There is no valid reason to allow this in a city. Drop property values. Will promote animal fighting and neighbor disputes.
- Absolutely not. I have enough issues with pigeons around my house.
- As above, as well as limits on number of pigeons regardless of size of home/area to ensure quality care of animals; e.g. how can one person properly care for dozens or hundreds of birds?
- Pigeons are no threat to me, just annoying. So nothing I suppose!
- Plenty of signage to indicate proximity and location of pigeons.
- No. Just no. No on all fronts
- The current regulations seem adequate.
- I don't know enough about this to comment
- Sure, why not?
- Signage

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Pigeons can be a problem. I walk around the neighborhood, and can hear pigeons, that are housed very responsibly way. My mother used to feed pigeons, they would arrive for feeding time and cover the roof. I don't want to see that in Calgary.
- Ensuring cleanliness standards are upheld and not by animal protection officers from the Calgary Humane Society.
- Possibly add provide veterinary care if there are any concerns, and a duty to report any human-communicable diseases.
- Appropriate enclosure. Permit. Inspection.
- no issues
- No thanks
- Yeah, I have no issue with this.
- Nothing
- Once again I don't have a problem with them but they need to be meticulously kept clean otherwise you end up with other Wildlife coming in and causing conflict between people and animals
- They are amazing to watch and are secured when not "working"
- On properties of a specific size and a member of a Pigeon organization.
- why would anyone want one. They are dirty and have no purpose whatsoever
- As long as they are in an adequate cage and well cared for, I have no issues. Perhaps owners should be required to have a permit.
- Should not be allowed. Not sanitary.
- I do not like pigeons or their noise. I am alright with it as long as it is on a certain size of land ( large plot).
- Nothing
- There are lots of Wild ones so who would know!
- Our neighbors 3 doors down had them for years. It wasn't a problem for us.
- I agree with the current bylaw.
- I'm not sure what is anticipated here? I have the same disease transmission concerns.
- Hell no. They are awful and shouldn't be allowed
- Wouldn't want that either. No way to prevent them from going anywhere.
- What are the safety related concerns about pigeons? My guess is there are more concerns about nuisances from the raising of pigeons.
- Limited amount of birds, low sound & smell. Consult pigeon experts & other urban bylaws.
- Limit their numbers.
- They are cared for and looked after well... as all animals should be.
- attracting pests and wildlife to the yard, the noise and disease issues are all concerns I would have.
- Pigeons can carry disease, I'd rather see pigeons not permitted in the city
- Pigeons are a plague. There should not be any urban pigeons.
- No!
- Licenced locations

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Is this the movie Birds? I have wild pigeons all over my place as is
- Pigeons are a blight.
- Backyards are generally too small in Calgary to allow for this without it being a nuisance for others
- Pigeons should not be raised within City Limits.
- Not too healthy, lots of damage on people balconies
- Pigeons create unsightly mess and should be deterred through spikes and preventing nesting. Please continue to stop people from eating or trapping pigeons on their property, this is a health hazard.
- Does anyone ever feel reasonably safe around pigeons?
- Noise and smell.
- NO livestock in the city. We are currently enduring a global pandemic (coronavirus) that originated from too many animals in close contact with humans. Livestock should be banned in the city to prevent more animal-human contact particularly as many people are already unqualified and negligent.
- If public's life is not affected, it is ok. Quantity shall be regulated.
- Pigeons are messy and leave big piles of poop when they escape and try to live on people's houses. No problem with pigeons living on bridges & city infrastructure.
- There shouldn't be pigeons in residential areas and their poo is toxic and hard to clean up and can cause disease
- Same as the urban livestock. It needs to be minimum requirements for the animals well-being balanced with the needs of the community. People need to see more animals in their community and understand. We are responsible for doing our best for them. And that we live in a ecosystem, not in a bubble
- No, they leave such a mess....
- I don't think there is a huge demand for keeping urban pigeons these days, but if properly cared for, and in limited quantities, they should be allowed with an annual license.
- Not a problem at all - they are lovely creatures. When you say this is in the agriculture category, I certainly hope that you do not mean anyone is actually raising them for food. That would be horrible.
- This should only be done if it is not affecting the people that live by you;
- Sadly they poop where they roost
- I worry that people will not educate themselves on proper feeding and handling of the animal, I would like them to have to allow an inspection annually for the care of the animals to be able to renew their license to raise.
- No, pigeons are not clean, and and make a mess.
- There have never been problems identified in this area, so I see no issues or reasons to prevent pigeons.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Pigeons aren't a native species to Alberta, so they shouldn't encourage more of these birds to populate the urban centre. They always escape the owners coops no matter how secure. Pigeon racing should be banned.
- a process to deal with complaints and concerns with enforcement
- Pigeons are dirty and noisy. They should be restricted and controlled. I would not want them within a block of my house, so I doubt most others would want them either.
- Although I am not a huge fan of pigeons, if they are well taken care of and not being problematic for people in close proximity.
- As long as it's contained and not bothering close by neighbors, don't see an issue. They need to be treated humanely and with respect.
- Keep it clean
- I have only seen wild pigeons, but if they were being cared for properly, I would not object.
- Pigeons make good pets and are easy to contain. They are not the dirty creatures the pest control companies like to portray them to be. It is totally wrong to force a person who has a few pigeons to join a designated club!!! If so than perhaps all dog owners should be made to join the CKC.
- No issues.
- not a good idea - they are messy and noisy. There are enough nuisance feral pigeons.
- unsure what this entails
- No
- Gross, they spread disease and make a mess.
- Had no idea this was a thing. As long as the owner is responsible and clean, why not!
- I have no concerns.
- Pigeons are fine as long as citizens know how to care for the animals and the safe disposal when expired. Belonging to a club that helps regulate is good.
- Nope.
- I don't know anything about pigeon breeding.
- Health screenings for these disease carriers.
- NO!!
- controls for noise, odors, aesthetics
- Allowed with license & public notice to neighbours who can appeal. Signage out front of home that advises pigeons are kept on property.
- Urban pigeons could overpopulate areas with pigeons.
- cuious to see how your going to get rid of pigeons :D
- They are a complete nuisance and should be discouraged from roosting
- Why not?
- Pigeons freak me out.
- Pigeons should not be encouraged. Noisy, make a lot of waste, cannot guarantee they won't be impacting enjoyment of my property or public spaces
- The standards seem pretty reasonable for this already

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- not a fan as they damage roofs and smells so a program needs to control this as transporting them outside the city does not work as they just fly back
- Health concerns. Keep cages clean and birds healthy.
- No
- Where
- Yard to be kept up and maintained (namely adequate removal and sanitation of the feces, or composted), noise and disease management measures to be minded.
- Can spread disease like legionnaires
- Properly contained and in moderation.
- No? What would their use even be?
- Doesn't affect me or my sense of safety.
- Don't know
- One neighbor's pigeons poop all over another neighbor's house.... should they be responsible for the cleaning bill?
- Permit & proper housing.
- Reasonable hygiene and controlled breeding practices.
- Education
- Sure why not, there are pigeons everywhere in Calgary already.
- have fun with all the crap. pass.
- I have no issues with current regulations surrounding urban pigeons.
- only under the conditions outlined in S 27.1
- Keep contained and clean.
- i feel safe with urban pigeons.
- No due to the air traffic and the increase of drones. One or the other. Both will not work well together
- No concerns.
- They are already owned by many. Perhaps a limit on pigeons may be set as they do reside in the neighborhood and do not stay secluded within the owners property line. 10 would seem more than enough
- I would like to see the city allow urban poultry farming for eggs.
- In limited numbers, OK.
- I oppose pigeons in urban areas because of the smell and noise which affects surrounding neighbors. They serve no purpose and should not be allowed in the city.
- Noisy and feel badly for people whose houses they hang out on - but that is a homeowner problem. Put up deterrents - they can be a slightly I guess but it also tends to send them elsewhere
- Register and vet care as they can be carriers for diseases
- NA
- No opinion.
- Nothing needed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think regulations are fine as is. But I know that sometimes pigeons get released into the wild and if that happens people need to be held accountable.
- Pigeons aren't a danger too me, though the owner should ensure they stay healthy and that their coop is not in a place where they can defecate on people.
- Weird but still okay.
- No concerns.
- A limit on how many can be kept in one area and that they are not a health issue
- I do not know enough about pigeons for input
- Ew. Poop clean up. Birth control?
- Again, inappropriate. A visit to the Superstore, Rona (Lowe's) and Home Depot can reveal the effects.
- Flying rats, they can carry disease and their droppings are corrosive. Again, space, cleaning, and predatory animals are all issues here. Also, the food will bring in mice.
- I have no opinion on urban pigeons.
- I don't see the harm in pigeons kept in an urban setting as long as they don't move from their homes. We have enough irritating birds (i.e. Magpies) that we don't need to add to it. If you keep them contained and they come back to you, then why not have pigeons.
- Noise-I would only be concerned about the noise, depending on the # of pigeons. For example. maybe limit the # of pigeons a person can keep in a single dwelling.
- go for it.. dont know much about them but I am not opposed to properly cared for anything
- Coops are kept clean and safe for the animals.
- I have no concern with pigeons.
- Absolutely not, why would we want to encourage this?
- Hate this . Don't allow pigeons in Calgary. Very noisy and a real nuisance. we would leave Calgary if you allow pigeons, livestock and similar in the city.
- YES please! There should be guidelines/ in place about predator-resistant (coyotes and bobcats) enclosures and disease testing. Pigeons are VERY interesting! Why not allow people go keep them. I like them more than cats and dogs... if people can have cats and dogs, then they should also have pigeons
- Awareness, if you live within close proximity. There could be concerns regarding noise and smell. Requirements to ensure noise and smell do not become an issue for neighbours should be included in the bylaw.
- NO
- agree with current bylaw
- nothing , education is needed for people
- Why?
- Pigeons are a nuisance they poop everywhere and leave messes on fences. Perhaps have some natural predators to keep numbers down

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I am not afraid of pigeons. If there are places where they are becoming a nuisance or where their waste is creating health concerns, perhaps natural control measures such as trained dogs or Peregrine Falcons could be employed to discourage them from gathering in those places.
- Cleanliness! Can't have pigeon coups left unkept. Checking every so often that nothing gets out of hand
- Only a reasonable limit per household
- Not sure about pigeons
- Has to be a limit
- Leave this space
- Adequate proof that owners are appropriately educated about safety, health and cleanliness.
- Limit the number of livestock per square footage of lot size. Current requirements to keep pigeons are fine, in the past I've hardly noticed when a neighbour keeps pigeons.
- No urban pigeons, again, they are filthy and breed disease.
- House as many pigeons as you have reasonable space for as outlined I.E. (# of pigeons allowed = square footage of penned in space / average area required to house 1 pigeon) Housing facilities subject to periodic approval / inspection
- This should be illegal
- No, no, no get rid of them
- increased cleaning where ever they are allowed to congregate. ... I would say the same for Canada Geese that conflict with pathway use . disease control
- It makes no sense that cats cannot roam but pigeons can. Pigeons are filthy and crap everywhere. They should absolutely not be allowed. There are urban pigeons in Rocky Ridge and they come into my yard in Tuscany and crap all over my garage and yard. Its' so disgusting.
- Pigeons do not stay home. These birds are always looking for new places to live and I do not want my roof to be the birds new home!! Nothing to do with safety. They are just dirty birds.
- Why does anyone need them?
- Appropriate housing and caretaking, registry and identification.
- Pigeons have done a lot of damage in our neighborhood including ruining our roof shingles
- Current regulations seem good.
- permit, inspection, adequate living conditions
- Licences
- I love pigeons. No concerns as long as their environment is kept clean and feces isn't allowed to get out of hand, since it carries disease.
- info on trapping, or warning signage when they are present
- No concerns
- Limit amount & not allowed to fly in neighbourhoods- poop!
Again smell or poor maintaining a fine with strike 3 in effect!
- Breeding controls.
- Have no issues with pigeons outside of possible noise or odors

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Gross.
- i am against the keeping of pigeons as they are noisy and dirty and poop all over .they may carry disease
- No. They are usually covered in lice and never have a form of identification. Contact CHS for stats on pigeons that do not have appropriate identification.
- Licensing and administration of tracing log
Proper housing
Standards of care and control
- We are not fans of urban pigeons as pigeons have been a nuisance in our neighbourhood.
- I do not want to hear pigeons, they can be noisy.
- Should be allowed as long as it doesn't harm your neighbours
- Again they may become too noisy or foul smelling as well.
- regulations that owners must follow and are monitored to make sure owners follow
- Appropriate licensing/supervision as at present.
- Nuisance
Filthy
- I have no insight into this, but if the current bylaw requires owners to be in good standing with regulation boards and the pigeons are identifiable, that seems perfectly reasonable.
- Same as 2
- If people do this responsibly then I don't have a problem with it.
- Should not be allowed under any circumstances in cities. Too big a potential for spread of disease among humans. Remember the avian flu? Documented transmission of flu between animals and humans-more recently the corona virus, direct result of China's wild animal live markets. Not worth the risk.
- licensing and administration of tracing log
- No. Pigeons cannot be confined thus affect the entire neighbourhood.
- Do not appreciate the noise, also they perch on my house & their droppings are all over the roof, especially the garage, which not only looks bad but is eating away at the shingles.
- Animal welfare laws need to be enforced.
- Permit
- This should be allowed. It is such a rare interest, it is totally fine. Don't regulate pigeons. Focus on addressing noise complaint issues / regulating large dogs who bark endlessly in communities at all hours of day and night and vicious dangerous dogs who endanger children in the community.
- Not sure, probably not in the city.
- Same response as urban livestock. I do not support urban pigeons due to noise, smell, nuisance, diseases, care and cruelty. Enough animals abandoned and suffer from lack of care. Laws not strong enough as is. How will this be monitored and likely will cost taxpayers more.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- My neighbors have racing pigeons. They have 2 structures on their property to house the pigeons. I think there should be a limit on how many you can have. A limit of 10 would be okay. My neighbors have around 30-40 pigeons. This is very annoying. They leave droppings and feathers in my yard.
- Racing pigeons? Are you nuts, no way.
- I do not have sufficient knowledge of this particular subject. But what about pigeon droppings and public health and safety?
- License/permit - should include consent from neighbours.
City would have to take on the responsibility of accepting surrenders &/or seizures of these animals.
Administration of a tracing log.
Effective control of nuisance smell & noise.
- No thanks, they are gross.
- There should be no urban pigeons.
- nope, do not want pigeons.
- Why not? I feel safe.
- Ok with these.
- Seems unnecessary. There are too many pigeons already.
- As long as it is clean and not too noise I think is fine. I would limit to 100 pigeons no to be to noisy
- Animal cages must be kept clean and well maintained. Animals must also be kept healthy.
- Licensing and administration of tracing log
- Nothing in particular needed for safety.
- I like the current regulations.
- Homeowners keeping pigeons should be required to maintain their properties. They should not be let out or be permitted to congregate on neighbouring properties.
- Bigger umbrella
- This seems stupid.
- I would be concerned about the oversight mentioned above (organization memberships) slipping. I'd also be concerned about people getting pigeons without the oversight - how would anyone know the difference? Again, I don't think The City of Calgary has the resources to manage this properly.
- Weird... Haha. Don't know enough to asses how they compare to keeping chickens but so long as the practices are ethical I'd say let it be. Case by case based on complaints. I'm not a robot!
- When I was young, a gentleman down the street had pigeons. It was great seeing them on their flights. He maintained their cages well and there were no issues.
- We have to be careful about disease coming to humans. But eating pigeons is good-you just have to take safety precautions. If you want to eat them, make sure they eat good food.
- - loud
-stinky
- Keep pigeons in the house, they smell, pigeons poop everywhere, they could get out.
- I have not had a problem with this, but I know they can be a problem. If these are non-native species, I don't support having them in the city.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement
June 29, 2020

Administration

What pet owners need from the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw

- Information for non-pet owners on the rules
- Information on proper training. There seems to be an over abundance of trainers in this city still using outdated, harmful methods that are creating behaviourally unstable dogs.
- Information on why the distinction between provincial and municipal rules matters.
- Access to affordable dog training so everyone can be educated on responsible dog ownership.
- Fully fenced off leash parks, to allow for training
- I think there needs to be more signage and enforcement of leash laws in Calgary. Too many times have I been walking and run into an off leash dog. The owner does not realize that the area is off leash, or argues that they are allowed to have their dog off leash because it is well trained.
- Training and education on dog behavior and health
- I think they should get a map of off leash parks and be advised that they should not be off leash ANYWHERE else.
- low cost neuter/spay
- Dog parks need more garbage cans to dispose of dog waste, if they're not there, people won't pick up after their dogs.
- I know the signs "no dogs allowed" were taken down in non off leash parks but they really need to go back up. People do not know the bylaws for non off leash areas. Because on no signs, if you dare to tell someone they are breaking the bylaw by letting their dog run loose, they will tell you "it's not posted" after they tell you off....You have people of educating the public in off leash dog parks...why are you not doing the same public service for non off leash areas eg school yards, sport fields, baseball diamonds. These are areas that really need a new focus. It's horrible on some non off leash areas.
- Microchipping - make this mandatory.
- Enforcement on bad behaviour?
- All this information is provided but none of this is enforced.
- Rules need to be ENFORCED.
- Enforcement of off-leash dog bylaws through heavy fines and/or seizure of the animal.
- Private yards should not be used as their dog toilets. It's vandalism!
- how to avoid / respond appropriately to complaints. (I did not select 'proper dog behaviour' because this can be overly broadly interpreted without regard to age, breed etc. while I don't disagree, I worry this can take on a life of its own.
- our properties are NOT to be used as a bathroom spot, even if owners pick up..pet owners MUST understand even urine can burn the grass...stay off our properties!
- PUBLIC EDUCATION.
- Where to go to get help, like the humane society and private agencies. Info on basic animal care, food, shelter etc

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Owners should not have their dogs offleash in a non-offleash area. Even if they think their dogs are nice.
- Information about the legalities of a "vicious dog" for owner and concerned/affected parties.
- Ensure safety
- Information about good ownership behaviour and rules ppl need to follow. Dogs take their lead from their owners. Ppl need to be held accountable, not punishing dogs
- Training
- Information on proper dog behaviour, without forcing an agenda of a certain type of training down their throats. The Calgary humane society's "force free" training programs do not work for many high intensity dogs and are producing a lot of preventable behaviour issues. Just specify what proper public behaviour is, don't give advice on how to get the behaviour.
- Enforcement of the bylaws.
- To enact law that ALL dogs must be muzzled at ALL times when on leash or off leash park with their owners. This will 100% stop any and all bites which are main cause of death and injury from dogs
- Communicating concerns to their neighbour. Too many people jump the gun & just call bylaw. I think this question should be asked when someone calls in a complaint. Have you spoken to the other party?
- Rules about dog walkers and resources for training.
- Be able to control your dog around seniors with canes, I have noticed when I go walking with my dad (in a green space off leash area) who walks with a cane that he is often aggressively approached by dogs. People call their dogs and the dog continue to bark at my dad. He has even been lunged at. I asked my dog trainer friend about this. She said she to has seen dogs react to people walking with canes. She doesn't know why the cane triggers dogs. I understand having off leash area, but I have a problem with owners that don't have control of their dog. This happens more often than not. I've been walking with my dad and felt very threatened by dogs coming at us.
- What happens when rules aren't followed
- Resources for training and courses for handling resues
- More information on where dogs have to be on leash. Also more education regarding dogs not allowed off the regional pathway in the Weaselhead natural area. Despite a signage program last year, many dog owners don't seem to know the bylaw here or again they don't care because there is little enforcement.
- List of fines for noncompliance.
- information what is unexceptionable behaviour so they know exactly what is expected, when and where
- More fenced off leash parks. More neighborhood garbage bins.
- Oversee this but contract it out...tax payers should not be paying for this!
- Because of many uneducated and untrained, inverted animals I feel dog parks should be a privilege to those who license, and have done training. If parks were carded to get in/out it would also alleviate waste as people could be tracked for who uses it. Same for issues that happen within the park. Too many concerns and safety issues for dogs and people. We would use but it is not safe anymore.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Better ways to report events with action.
- Estimated costs of ownership so people can make informed decisions when getting a new animal.
- No un-neutered dogs at the off leash parks.
- Understanding of canine behaviour-
- FINES FOR IRRESPONSIBLE DOG OWNERSHIP
- More bylaw officer presence at parks
- How to manage incidents with other dogs, wildlife and people.
- Rules the Off leash areas (ie. what in control means) and info re not taking dogs off leash in on leash areas.
- Irresponsible owners need to be held accountable for their pets behavior.
- Polite and helpful service
- Less cat racism. More protection from pit bulls
- the outdoor Cat culture NEEDS TO BE CHANGED. it's outdated and preventing lost cats from making their way home. it's also not nice to let animals suffer and die in the elements when they're abandoned. a cat doesn't wear a help me sign, so we should help no matter what.
- Breakdown of leash and offleash areas
- Concise information that is timely and easily understood. Less fines and more teaching. Involvement in design, maintenance of off-leash areas; incentives to be involved. Partner with vets, dog trainers etc at off-leash areas to help people learn.
- Basic info available on care and also how to socialize their dog correctly. Provide opportunities and education in regards to basic training every dog should have.
- Nothing
- Extra goodies about dog enrichment (food puzzles, nose work, sniff walks, play with your dog)
- Display general rules when entering off-leash parks. For example, you must stay with your animal while in the park, you must pick up and remove feces, you must be in control of your animal at all times, your dog must have it's license on....
- Information on licensing. Unless you're hiring certified veterinary behaviourists. Stay in your lane.
- pick up afte your dog or get fined, we need more enforcement as the pathways look like a dog outhouse
- This should always be given out at veterinary offices and or that matter vets and vet techs need animal behavior training!!
- How to read your dogs behaviour, mood and actions to prevent outbursts
- specific dog waste containers/garbagages as seen on the streets of Europe, education on dog poop attracting coyote's etc if not picked up (because apparently the fact that it's gross isn't enough for my neighbours lol)
- Information about how to be a responsible cat owner!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- information about risks associated with punishment based training; education about dog bite prevention
- Clear signage in off leash areas. Access to garbage bins in off leash areas. Some common sense modifications to specific off lease parks. New regulations for the number of dogs for dog walkers
- People who care about their animals already research, know and comply. Others need to know the consequences of non-compliance.
- limit length of leash if on city/provincial parks and sidewalks.
- Cost of ownership and maintenance
- Enforcement of the bylaw for walking dogs off leash that is not a designated off leash area
- Are rules different in provincial areas like Nose Hill?
- Increased awareness when living in multi family residential units. Dogs in-particular should not have to be listened to from your neighbor when the pet is inside. .
- What to do if you see rules not being followed.
- Online licensing. Can license your pet at a vet clinic like many cities. No need to wear license tag if microchipped. Mandatory microchipping for ID.
- An easy to find website where all the rules and bylaws are available and easy to understand.
- Information on dog behavior and responsible pet ownership, breeding and care.
- Information on where to get appropriate behaviour help for their dog. Stop the blame game of shaming the owner. Dog behaviour is more complex than “it’s all how they’re raised”
- Not teach dogs to defecate in city parks, especially natural areas! These are not pet toilets!
- Need to know that the existing bylaws will be enforced for the comfort and safety of their pets
- Proper offleash protocol.
- Info on pet training options in the city. What areas are and are not off-leash areas (ie. not every public park)
- A requirement to spay or neuter.
- Number of dogs per home and excessive barking for extended periods
- Enforcement of rules in public dog parks and off leash areas.
- People need to take responsibility if they are getting a pet - the sellers (breeders) of the Pets should be responsible to educate them!
- PRIVACY
- All of the above should be provided by breeder/rescue at the time of purchasing a pet and/or registering a pet.
- Cat owners need more information on the impact that cats allowed outdoors have on wildlife, particularly birds (#1 cause of mortality in North America); information for dog owners that it is against the bylaw to allow dogs to harass or eat wildlife.
- “No dog” signs in school fields
- List of suggested etiquette in public and education about how to properly train these animals.
- ALL the education is important.
- Increase in patrols and enforcement of the current bylaws!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Resources or where to find information on animal behaviour, animal health, and animal training.
- Tangible consequences for irresponsible pet ownership
- Access to training
- More education on why there are off leash areas and why it is important to keep them on leash in other public areas.
- Enforcement of the existing by-law. We do not need a new by-law - just enforce the rules in the one that exists
- Poop bag stations and waste bins.
- What to do if pet gets lost and how to deal with lost pets they find (as they are more likely to try and help said animal)
- Info about how to behave safely around animals.
- Information about what is considered proper ownership behaviour such as proper waste disposal
- They need to be constantly reminded that they are always responsible for their dogs behaviour and must always have control of their dog.
- i
- Partnerships with training and care experts for owners needing further information.
- Training resources.
- Emphasis on dog behaviour!!!! Also information on proper dog park etiquette!!!
- We need to see the bylaw more and see them handing out more tickets so people get that this is serious.
- Access to resources like spay and neuter assistance
- Ways to control animals that don't involve shock or pinch collars
- To not own a pet unless you are prepared to care for it needs physically and emotionally and have the resources to do so.
- Fines for cats being caught outside and on other peoples property, for not collecting dog waste and dogs barking outside after 10pm
- Fines.
- Strong & effective consequences when rules are not followed.
- Rules for picking up after dogs in off-leash areas
- cats shouldn't be crapping in your neighbours flower beds
- More garbages, more off leash areas , more pet friendly venues
- No pets, should be allowed in grocery stores restaurants, food vendors or anywhere else where it is against health and safety codes. I'm allergic to dogs I have rights too in public. Less dog parks too many rec areas smell like feces. No dogs around Glenmore Park they are swimming/relieving themselves while off leash. Fines for rule breakers.
- We also need the City to enforce the bylaws, especially dogs off leash in inappropriate areas. There also needs to be an off leash area in EVERY community. West Springs and Cougar Ridge have none, so people take dogs to the play fields to let them run. Also need to have poop bag dispensers.
- free off leash behavior training to support dog owners at the off leash parks

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Warning signs when entering an off leash park that there are off leash dogs and you are entering at your own risk, for those with mobility issues. I have had very rude old dog owners tell me that my dog is running around too much and they have a bad hip... I want them to be aware of the risks.
- Dog training, vaccinations, vet checks, proper nutrition, etc
- information on responsible ownership to reduce conflict/impact on wildlife
- Actual enforcement of bylaws is needed. You can get away with irresponsible behaviour easily in Calgary because enforcement is feeble.
- Pick up your dog's poop
- Required training classes for dogs to provide information on pet behaviour.
- they need to see people enforcing the rules
- Rules about leash length- dogs on a 10m leash are effectively 'off leash' in terms of interacting with people and dogs in a 10m radius of the pet owner. Flexible-length leashes need to be addressed in rules.
- how to report abuses of system
- Safety tips/notices re wildlife
- - enforcement, enforcement, enforcement
- I liked the town that mailed dog poop back to owners marked 'lost property's.
- Dog park etiquette. Banning small children from dog parks (many dogs are excellent with other dogs and adults, but not kids. Dog parks are for DOGS and bringing children is an enormous risk)
- Where to go for help!
- Specifically that dogs cannot be off-leash in on-leash areas. This is a huge problem as an owner and professional walker of dog-reactive dogs. Many natural areas become completely unusable because people have out of control off-leash dogs in on-leash areas and are not receptive to hearing that they need to put a lead on their dog. They need to know they can/will be fined, and would also be legally responsible for any consequences of their dog approaching an aggressive dog on-leash. This is seriously a huge issue.
- Info on why we need to license pets and the benefits owners will receive from it
- Clearly communicated and enforced consequences for owners of vicious animals and illegal livestock ownership.
- Education and enforcement of no dog zones.
- Instruction about watching your dog at ALL times when off leash because they can poop any time and more than once on a walk!!
- Post proper etiquette at all dog parks next to stand to get free dog bags
- 1) If you pass a person without a dog: call your dog, leash it up 2) If you pass a person with a leashed dog: call your dog, leash it up 3) If you pass a person with off-leash dogs, feel free to leave yours off-leash
- What to do if your dog is involved in an altercation (sort of like those insurance cards that tell you the steps if you're in a vehicular accident!)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Neighbours who harass animals should get serious consequences. We had someone harass us for years, throwing rocks at our dog, and then making noise complaints because the dog barked. No one in the city gave a damn until I got one good bylaw officer who listened to me and looked at the complaint pattern and ticketed the jerk neighbour for harrassing the dog in an enclosed space, it took 6 years to be listened to. Bylaw needs to be more impartial and understand there are two sides.
- owner to take dog to training class and must provide proof
- WHY they prohibit dogs from playgrounds, atheletic parks, school grounds - why it is in the owners and pet's interest to stay out.
- information about how to be a responsible pet owner
- Enforcement when people are not in compliance
- Health and safety information.
- Police the off leash for people not picking up after their dog.
- Information on training opportunitie
- any info when requested
- Resources on training your pet. Currently with all the rules and regulations you still get some aggressive dogs in an offleash park. Pet owners need to know there will always be a risk going to an offleash park. If a bigger dog is playing with their smaller dog and they are not comfortable with it, then go to a fenced area or "for small dogs" area. Don't punish all the dogs by restricting the offleash area. There are limited offleash areas as it is.
- Mandatory pet ownership course.
- Sick and tired of people who think dogs can roam offleash wherever they like - sick and tired of being approached in public by other people's badly behaved dogs.
- Information about how to be a responsible pet owner, health and safety rules, pet responsibilities in regard to others and their property
- free work shops on animal care and behavior
- Signage! Sigage stating on leash were taken down from all areas of the city when the previous bylaw got changed. This in my opinion has made the situation of people letting their dogs roam loose through streets, alleys, green spaces and it turns into unsafe sitions and agruments! Also barking dogs in neighborhoods, owners rarely seem to care when they should be caring for the pet and stopping. many seem to let the dog outside and just let it go on for long periods, its not the dogs fault, the oweners!
- Off leash park edicate. Sadly some dog owners need to be reminded that these parks are a privilege not a right and to be respectful of other people in the park.
- Education about responsible pet ownership.
- Effective investigation and enforcement, including proactive patrols of parks
- informaiton about both provincial and municipal rules, information about allergies and how to prevent your pet from causing allergic reactions in others (proper control of animals and cleanliness, especially in apartment style housing)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- a limit and licensing program for owners with 3 or more dogs, also license dog walkers and limit # of dogs
- Small yappy dogs should be kept indoors at all times. They are more annoying than magpies. Better yet, they should be banned.
- Detailed breakdown and what if any penalties are in place for breaking by-laws and engaging in improper behaviour.
- That off leash dog parks are NOT a place to take your kids sledding and it is a dogs natural response to chase play and bark with small dog like creatures moving at high speeds in off leash parks.
- Enforcement of bylaws (leash laws in parks and playgrounds))
- Where to properly report animal neglect and abuse. Anytime I have tried to report this I get trapped in a girl of 311, animal bylaw, police, and external resources all claiming someone else deals with it. And after u spend weeks calling and calling to get sent back to the same sources who say they dont assist in this....its disheartening that it seems NOTHING is done for animals in bad situations
- Info how to contact both City of Calgary Animal Services and Calgary Humane Society for info on how to handle their pets.
- Enforcement
- What is a responsible dog owner? A properly trained and well behaved dog? Spell it out for every owner please. Respect your neighbours right to freely use their sidewalks, trails and parklands without fear of dogs nipping, jumping, attacking. I am a senior, runner, walker, snowshoer, pusher of a family member confined to a wheelchair. Dogs don't know what to do with a wheelchair! Proper dog owner behaviour and proper ways to call your dog to behave properly. Why do dog owners panic when the dog "misbehaves" and talk to it like a child. Use your dog commands the dog was trained to obey. Not "naughty boy".
- Information about how kids are to interact around dogs: never run towards a dog, watch for stress signals such as turning away and lip licking and give the dog space.
- Enforcement of posted rules and related bylaws. Enforcement of where off-leash areas are.
- How to keep dog safe and a detailed comprehensive list of what is animal cruelty ex hitting, kicking, screaming at & threatening a dog no water, no food, leaving dog tied up, leaving dog out in certain temperatures. DOGS SHOULD BE IN THE HOUSE NOT LEFT IN BACKYARDS OR DOG HOUSES! Dogs left in cars, dogs left out at night, dogs walked with only collars (causes neck damage, spinal damage, choking hazard, throat damage)...etc etc etc! I think also that ppl who don't report animal cruelty should be reprimanded.
- Having a fully vaccinated dog. Dogs should not be allowed in off leash areas unless they have their vaccinations and received a coloured tag from the vet that shows dog has all vaccinations.
- Safety issues -- guidelines for basic training, how abuse is defined in Canadian law, and ways to volunteer to help out the Calgary system.
- I think majority of people are aware of the rules, but choose to ignore them. Enforcement is sadly required, and lacking.
- To be clear on pathways that have signs stating offleash

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- We need educated staff in more of the public dog parks near the pens or entrances helping educate and facilitates the owners enforcing dog compliance. So many owners ignore their dogs while chatting and that's when dog attacks happen. They don't know the body language that is being said by the dogs and they ignore until a fight happens. The bad dogs still get let off leash when it's just the general public around but when bylaw or someone as trained as a uniformed dog walker the owners pay better attention and keep their dogs better controlled
- Animal should be licensed (if require) when animal is transferred to new owner.
- More tickets for infractions and more enforcement
- Being a responsible neighbour, looking at our needs for a peaceful environment above their needs of just putting their dog in their backyard and leaving it to do whatever
- Proper monitoring to ensure the rules are adhered to.
- Um...dog behavior. Is this a responsible dog ownership bylaw? Or PET bylaw? I think the City should seek out PET behaviourists to better understand normal (not "proper") pet behaviour to write effective and enforceable bylaws. And to develop educational materials for both pet and non-pet owners.
- Better access to poop bags. Some parks have them, some don't, but there are going to be days where someone forgets a poop bag and has to leave the waste behind unintentionally.
- Training assistance for dogs and and cats
- This information must be given to all pet stores whom must sit down with a new pet owner and go over the information BEFORE that new owner is allowed to leave the pet store or breeder, and must be signed and dated.
- People really just don't care because no one is enforcing the bylaws on the books now. Admin needs to do their job and enforce what laws they have not make new bylaws that they also won't enforce. They know better, but just don't care (same as speeders, people driving on wrong side of road, jaywalking, etc.).
- Referrals to training, including mandatory training when a dogs is aggressive
- focus needs to be put on proper dog behaviour and proper pet owner behaviour as well as some do little to nothing to control their animals, or say "down" but then inappropriately reward poor behaviour and ruin an animal.
- Enforcement
- Enforcement of bylaws
- Options other than a physical tag that will be accepted as proof of registration. Signed- an owner who is tired of paying to replace tags when they always have a phone on them.
- Off leash parks in each neighbourhood that are safe. Bylaws to help enforce bylaws. Random checks for licensing.
- Regular enforcement of bylaws, fines
- do not bring toys to off leash parks
- Free training for our pets

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Less rules - why go after those who actually bother to take their well trained animals to off-leash parks etc - the real issue are the owners who leave their dogs chained in the yard etc
- Some kind of electronic system so that you can easily scan and get the animal's license info. There are too many pet owners who allow their animals to run free and short of catching the animal, there's no easy way to identify the animal to report it to by law enforcement. If not a system that can be scanned by a smartphone app or scanned at the entrance to an off leash park.
- Pet Owners and non-pet owners need to trust that rules will be enforced.
- Enforcement for not cleaning up after your dog especially in off leash parks
- More freedom to take dogs in stores and patios
- Some sort of central place where people can get all kinds of good information about anything to do with pet "ownership". Information about the environmental impacts of pet ownership. (See number of birds killed by cats, for example.)
- Fine those who do not want to follow the laws...
- How to reinforce people to clean up after their dogs. Especially, having extra consequences of their action if caught!
- Information on how to properly care for animals.
- The city's Killarney Aquatic Centre sits in a park that is inundated with dog urine. In summer, the park reeks.
- More bins in the off leash parks and biodegradable bags
- More signage and far higher cost penalties are needed for owners who don't pick up pet defecation. Surveys from the Vet associations don't reliably report the high number of dogs owned. The A
- City of Calgary to enforce rules on a consistent basis
- People need to not!!!!!! Have their dogs off leash in any areas outside of their yards or the 150 dog parks here in Calgary! There needs to be heavy fine for off leash dogs in areas that are not dog parks!!!!!!
- Pet friendly places, events or parks information
- REQUIRED animal training classes included in the current costs of animal liscencing
- information about the importance of financial responsibility in pet ownership including veterinary care and providing for all needs.
- Spay/neuter education
- Mandated dog training courses or access to such courses.
- Dog owners have no need to follow the by-laws. There is presently no or little enforcement. I think the pet owners need to see a visble enforcement of the by-laws. With tickets issued. It would keep them following the by-laws.
- That there animals can be removed if they are neglected or are abusing there animals
- Free pet training courses to make responsible owners
- Information about ecoli. Information about consideration for shared space and other users in parks.
- We just licensed a dog and did not find any of the above information lacking.
- Stiffer fines for not abiding by the rules.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- compulsory education and community service when charged with bylaw offence
- Bigger signs around local areas where dogs should NOT be off leash. Signs should be clear in areas where dogs should NOT be off leash, and that multiple dogs shouldn't be walked on sidewalk. Same with people running and cycling with their pet off leash. Irresponsible dog owners need to understand they are not above the law.
- More signage in NoseHill Park indicating off-leash vs on-leash zones. People are under the impression when you exit your car it is automatically an off-Leash zone.
- The city itself needs to get a good understanding of 'proper dog behaviour', presently 'throw toys' are actively encouraged in dog parks. CRAZY! Foo foo might love her little tennis ball BUT, the 'toy possessive' dog does NOT understand 'mine, yours, his' and WILL do what it needs to do to 'own' that toy. And then we get upset at normal dog behaviour when Foo foo ends up 'attacked'? ABSURD!
- List of resources for pet owners like animal trainers, SPCA, adoption agencies etc
- the difference between off leash and a dog park
- So many people do not understand the on-leash and off-leash areas. They don't see why their 'friendly' dog can't just wander with them. They don't understand that some dogs are reactive and can only be walked on-leash. They don't understand that wildlife needs to be protected. They don't understand that their 'friendly' dog might react to some people in an unfriendly and aggressive way.
- Not really an other but I think this all should be provided to everyone upon purchase of a dog whether from a breeder or rescue
- re: 'Information about what is considered proper dog behaviour' I think that the rules need to include pets who have potential issues but not are 'vicious' or 'nonsense' dogs. If we are allowed to adopt dogs that might not get along with other dogs, it doesn't make us 'bad' owners as long as we are responsible and know our dogs, and ensure they stay away from other dogs. While my dog would never intentionally kill another dog, my dog might get riled up enough to potentially hurt another dog. An instance like this might happen when another dog owner is not being responsible and has their dog off leash (in an area not deemed appropriate for this). If a dog that is unleashed comes up to my dog, my dog could potentially hurt that unleashed dog. I would be responsible, and my dog would be deemed a 'vicious' pet, yet we were the ones following the rules. This must change, there must be a way to word a policy that would also take into account these types of situations. Since we adopted our dog, we have tried through the Cochrane Humane Society (where we adopted her from) and the Calgary Humane Society training courses, and unfortunately we haven't been able to change our dog's behavior. We recognize that the risk is higher for us given this situation, however I get really frustrated with how many people think it is appropriate to have their dogs off leash in areas not deemed so. We try to hard, and our dog is SO GREAT WITH HUMANS, but not with other dogs. Not sure what you would suggest, but I don't believe that I or my dog should be found liable in a situation such as that.
- How to clean up after their animal and fine the owner for not doing so immediately.
- To ensure that you keep your pets on leash in on-leash areas, specifically Crescent Heights paved pathway, and Bowmont paved pathways. Runners do not enjoy having to stop and start their runs

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

constantly with dogs who are seemingly "friendly" as put by their owners, coming up and growling/ lunging/ barking at us.

- It is imperative that there be CLEAR AND UNEQUIVOCAL MARKING of NON-OFF LEASH areas, as many believe they can get away with it, that the bylaw is toothless, that enforcement is a joke because nothing is ever done about it. That hurts the responsible pet owners and their on-leash dogs, often creating fear-aggressive dogs, creating a lot of discord in the community between dog owners and in some cases endangering my own safety.
- Grandfathering of dogs, owned and lived by their owners, who may have passed on . It is vitally important these animals stay with family even if the quota exceeds the by laws you are wanting to implement
- Limit on how many dogs can be walked at one time. On or off leash. 4 maximum
- Information regarding the risks of some breeds.
- More large off-leash areas.
- None of the above. Not sure what this by-law even is. I have never heard of it. The city needs to increase pet friendliness.
- Information on consequences of not following - fines, restrictions, jail.
- Making so regardless if city, province, green space or park all off leash dogs should be fined heavily and often by bylaw officers regardless of who owns the property this is a huge issue that need to be addressed
- The absolute importance of cleaning up after your animal for the safety of other animals and people. It should be made more clear that not picking up after your animal could mean a fine. People should also be able to report (with a description) when they see people who do not clean up after their pets, especially since it appears to be repeat offenders mostly.
- they need more supervision in off leash areas by bylaw officers
- Signs and postings that explain why dog poop is NOT a good fertilizer! There are a shocking number of people who won't pick up after their dogs because they honestly think the poop is non-harmful to the environment, wildlife, other dogs, people, etc.
- Training links, links to pet shelters and their programs, more community visibility of rules and regs and "good neighbor" type of guidelines
- Greyhounds always have their ears back. This is not a warning sign of anything but a calm and happy greyhound.
- Dog owners must train their dogs not to bark. Most dog owners figure everyone should like their dogs. I do not & don't want the dog coming near me.
- Better signs or listing of off leash areas as I dont understand why people have their dogs off leash in fish creek park and glenmore park. When you jave an injured do its impossible to find an area safe to walk your dog on leash as I never see dogs on leash in any area in calgary including my own neighbours dont have their dogs on leash walking to the dog park two to six block away and bylaw doesnt charge them its a free for all and the law breakers know it while I now have to pull out dog spray to protect my injured dog injured from being attacked in an area thats on leash by an off leash dog

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- people need to know how to clean up after their pets and that cat owners have to keep their cats contained on their own property. and hoarding pets is not healthy for them or the animals
- Better rules at dog parks. No toys, treats or dishes.
- Understanding that dogs can only be off leash in off leash parks, picking up after their pets!
- All available online, no need for flyers
- COMPASSION when something awful happens with an animal you love and never thought would cause harm.
- Information/education on humane and proper care of pets (food, shelter, veterinary care), also requirements for physical and mental exercise, and socialization
- To know that it is illegal to allow pets to chase, attack wildlife and that many are being killed, are stressed because of this and you risk having your dog put down if cause this to wildlife. Heavier fines and be held accountable, as a pet owner
- Clear rules and fines. Direct anonymous number to all to report infractions.
- Information on what to do if they observe or interact with pet / owner not following the bylaw.
- Off-leash regulation of dog walking services- maximum number.
- Monitoring and fines if people don't follow rules in parks ie) unleash areas
- Enforcement and consequences when rules are violated.
- The only place a dog should be off leash is at an off leash park or in your back yard. Not in your front yard, not in children's parks. Your dog may be friendly but it may run up to a frightened dog who only knows to growl which can then cause a fight. Or your dog may see something, run and cause an accident with a car. Also be mindful of your barking dog/s in your backyard, no one likes the constant noise, not even fellow dog owners.
- Funding and access to behavioral services
- dog parks, and NON-dog parks, and what ON-LEASH means. I'd prefer to see NO off-leash areas in public parks.
- Bylaw enforcement - off leash dogs
- Better supervision of on and off leash parks.
- Stricter laws about off leash pets in on leash areas.
- What to do if a... 1) dog attacks you 2) dog attacks your dog
- clear information of which parks are offleash and which are not
- Information about the 5 freedoms and a checklist of what owners need to be providing their pets not only for basic needs but to ensure they are also mentally and emotionally taken care of.
- Information on fines, where to report problems (ex. not picking up poop in dog park)
- How to walk your dog on public bike/ walk path. Ie on the right to avoid accidents for overtaking bikes on left
- Know that the bylaws will be enforced
- information but less restrictions
- Information on what is proper owner behaviour, regarding positive reinforcement etc. I have a neighbour in my neighbourhood who I watched him walk with his older puppy and he would yank on

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

it's leash until it almost fell over. It was horrible to watch. Perhaps some education around that would help.

- I still believe that individuals wanting to own a dog, should be required to take some sort of class to learn about how to properly handle and train a dog. Too many people do not know how to handle their dog, and that's when people get hurt. If you cannot read the body language of the dog, there's a problem.
- Areas that are off leash and the consequences of having animals off leash in a non off leash area.
- Knowledge that fines will be applied if they don't comply!!
- The reality and truth about owning a dog or cat such as how long they live, monthly costs, and the most important of all that pets are for life and are not disposable.
- A list of Calgary based dog trainers, daycares, etc But most importantly trainers
- Easy access to community programs about training/obedience
- Information about what is considered proper CAT behaviour!
- Education on why cats should be kept indoors and fixed. Subsidized vet visits for those going through tough times. All breeders and the sale of breeder puppies/kittens should be illegal. WAY tougher animal cruelty laws. Low cost dog training classes.
- There shouldn't be a limit on the number of dogs. If people are hoarders, they will hoard. Good neighbours make good pet owners. People are afraid of Bylaw. Instead of jumping to bylaw & enforcement, can we have more information & resources? I never want to see a limitation on buckles, collars, etc.
- Average person doesn't know much about the bylaw ie: leash laws
  - What happened to licensing posters [personal information removed] registration
  - vet offices
  - billboard
  - NEEDS TO BE MORE ADVERTISING
  - Pathways need to be more collaborative/hard to be on the right
  - Too many dog owners whose dogs are not properly trained in dog etiquette -> ie: approaching other dogs without permission
  - Resources are needed
  - Who is advising city on pet equipment? Limiting tools
  - Pinch collars, Ecollars, Martigales, Choke or SLR collars
- - Tight definitions/Terms of Reference
  - ie control
  - info package at licensing
  - Social media platform
  - More signage
- Rules need to be enforced
  - More resources needed
  - More officers
  - 311 Staff

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Officers need to be educated

- Officers often not educated about canine behaviour
  - needs to be clear
  - needs to moderate behaviour
  - if you pay for a license, you expect enforcement
- education, tv spots on bylaws, radio education, lots of sign boards
- Enforcement! There is no way to make owners of roaming cats responsible. Complaint based licensing.
- To enforce the no retractable leash law! People do not have control of their dogs on them and I've seen dogs get hit by cars and into accidents (other animals) because they were so far ahead of their owner.
- Better enforcement in parks and pathways
- Reminders that cats are no permitted to roam freely
- None. we don't have an issue and you are looking for more ways to get paid
- Who is allowed at dog parks and consequences for bringing aggressive dogs to dog parks. (or abandoning their dog at the dog park) (as well as safety concerns with children at the dog park!!)
- Signage returned to cemeteries regarding dogs not permitted and enforcement of existing rule of no dogs, allowed. In particular Burnsland and Union cemetery, after removal of signage, daily usage by owners driving to cemeteries for use as dog parks, zero enforcement presence and lack of signage promotes entitled usage attitude.
- Mapping on where rules may vary.
- Clear signage in parks for on-leash and off-leash areas. The signage in the Bowmont Natural Environment Park is abysmal, particularly in the area near 40th Ave NW. It's impossible to tell where on-leash applies and where it 3nds.
- Letting your cat roam is not okay and will not be tolerated. The City really needs to drop the hammer on this one and get it under control.
- City shall have the animal selling records from licensed sellers i.e petland, licensed breeder & animal rescue orgs to ensure all animals requested to be licensed licensed. At time of licensing, owners shall read over all owner-s responsibilities.
- On bike paths No long flex leaches
- Locations of off-leash areas.
- No off-lease pets in public parks and gardens
- Fines applicable to first time offences.
- even if pet ie: dog owners know all of the above , it isn't and can't be enforced due to the lack of bylaw officers.
- Information on proper cat behaviour
- An understanding of the impact of their dog on others

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- People think it is okay for their dogs to urinate on private property (we have to garden in their toilet and I have caught Coxsackie virus from it!); leaving bags of poop around the neighborhood; long leashes permitting unknown dogs to lunge at pedestrians
- They need to know that there are fines for not following the bylaws. They also need to see Bylaw Officers in the community enforcing these bylaws (through tickets/fines).
- People will do what they want responsible people will pay not the irresponsible ones.
- The penalties for not doing any of the above properly.
- what to do if you pet goes missing; care of animal, value of health checkups, where to get more information for support of aging or behavior issues, what to do if you can no longer keep your pet
- More compassion and respect for those struggling with their pets.
- how to get help when it's difficult to care for a pet
- Campbelltown, New Brunswick bylaw: Barking is considered excessive when it exceeds: 240 barks per day between the hours of 7.00am and 9.00pm, or 35 barks per night between the hours of 9.00pm and 7.00am, or regularly exceeds 30 barks per hour during the day or 4 barks per hour during the night.
- Enforcement of bylaws, specifically where the off leash areas are and aren't, and manners in off leash parks
- Training classes on dog behaviour to prevent the potential for dog bites and how to care for dogs in extreme weather.
- Understanding the level of care needed to possess an animal in the city limits.
- Reminders of penalties when rules and laws are not followed
- information about what is considered proper dog OWNER behaviour
- they city has done a poor job communicating about the bylaw in regard to pets, there has not been any advertisement in years.
- Enforcement And signage re what areas are off leash and on leash
- Some pet owners need to be disciplined (significant fine increases, and in some cases pet removal ) Many owners let the pet out running free to poop or pee , particularly on cold or rainy days. Many do not bother to clean up after their pet when taking them for a walk.
- Non-compliant owners need a smack-down; they get away with it too often and too well.
- Clear information / guidelines on what to do when conflicts occur between pet owners and others in the community. Many times, it is not a pet owner that is at fault for a conflict. And they never speak up. It would be important to provide information on how to move forward regarding reporting and conflict resolution. There are some human individuals that are causing major problems for dog owners and their dogs. Those people need to be fined. It can be similar to protection for hunters under provincial wildlife regulations. If a person impacts a hunter who is hunting legally, they can be fined. The same should be done for individuals that harass dog owners and dogs both in public areas and in their yards. Harassment and dangerous Behavior needs to be clearly defined by the City of Calgary so that everyone understand what is not acceptable Behavior

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Reminders that public parks and paved pathways are Not off leash zones. Or owners backyard. This is a huge problem in the city. Dogs off leash jumping, lunging, attacking people and their leashed dogs while the owner is too far away.
- perhaps a partnership with Humane on dog-on-dog signals for safer off-leash experiences
- Offer courses with local trainers that people can take to improve their dogs behaviour
- The right to seize pets that are mistreated, including being left outside
- Dogs and cats should be required to be chipped - not licensed. Many home pets impart NO cost to the city and as such they should not need to be licensed. The chip provides for any identification of the owner.
- Information on types of training (for dogs) and resources would be helpful. Information about cremation / end of life would be good.
- Signage at off leash parks with a list of rules
- We have a number of barking dogs in our neighbourhood and dog owners seem to be offended when we ask them to keep their dogs quiet. Dog owners must be made to understand that the bylaw says they must keep their dog (per the bylaw) from barking, howling or disturbing anyone.
- Basic information on animal communication - ways they try to tell us they are uncomfortable
- Not letting dogs walk offleash along greenspaced backyards. This is an ongoing problem with these dogs attacking mine through the fence. Not leaving dogs unattended on balconies or in backyards to just bark most of the day.
- How many dogs people can have
- No draconian or overreaching regulations that seek to end dog ownership like in Montreal.
- Information about Responsible dog ownership
- Proof of passing a first level obedience training....and the city to sponsor Canine Good Neighbor events.
- More freedom regarding off leash areas. They get too crowded and over populated which causes over stimulation and fights among other things. Loosened off leash rules would help this. Not all of us have wild and unruly dogs that have no manners and just want to walk our dogs in peace with nature. A basic training/education that owners can take that gives their dogs a specific tag to put on their collar (or something similar) that states that dog and/or owner should have a basic understanding of dog behaviour and a basic training level. If found to have caused severe issues with this tag - owner is heftily fined.
- Exact consequences is their dog injures rolls another animal or human.
- Stats on strays, benefits of spay/neuter, benefits of microchip (ie how long it takes to get an animal with a microchip home vs one without), importance of keeping microchip info updated
- People pay taxes for their land and house to limit breeders is wrong; and to continue putting license for each animal is not good...responsible dog owners should not be penalized
- You need competent staff in the park to educate the users!
- Education on what is responsible pet ownership.
- Please have your dog or cat spayed or neutered if you are not a CKC registered individual/

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Information about what to do when encountering someone breaking a bylaw.
- Nothing, there is too much government involvement already.
- Keep dogs on a leash, unless in a fenced off leash area. Ban leashes that extend and retract. It seems that they are more than 6 feet long .
- Education about the use of muzzles and other training equipment that allows all dogs to be safe.
- Resources (ie. dog training/animal behaviourist info), also clear rules/fines for dogs off leash in non-off leash areas- this is a serious problem in Inglewood
- umm, I don't need big brother to tell me how to have a pet
- Information on how to rehome pets rather than releasing them into the wild (like rabbits, reptiles, tarantulas).
- Safety precautions regarding on leash meetings. Not all dogs want to interact. Teaching people about dog behaviour and body language.
- Responsible practices regarding ownership of strong, dog aggressive, and/or human aggressive breeds as well as proper etiquette for small and/or friendly dogs.
- Bylaw should have to give owners written reasons why they are at their house. Can not enter just because you heard a dog barking. No different than police you have to have responsible cause. Hearing a bark is NOT reasonable cause.
- How to safely take care of an animals and ensure all needs are met.
- If they can't afford to provide food then they can't provide hospital bills for them and should not allowed to have pets
- Education on spay / neuter. Or mandatory spay / neuter unless a breeding license is applied for. Help reduce stray cat population. Information about dog warning signs before a bite. Understanding their dogs communication so it doesnt get pushed over its limit. Education on proper dog training (positive not punishment) because punishment makes the behavior worse. Appropriate ways to deal with dog behavioral issues and resources available. Ban declawing.
- Information about training, city dog parks
- Ways to possibly change outdated bylaws in cities that don't allow certain pets
- where to get obedience training or city sponsored obedience training classes.
- Information about how to read dog body language and how children and dogs should interact
- signage for off leash areas and what that means for those of us who do not have dogs
- Distinction between what agency does what (for example, CHS vs. Community standards).
- How to find support!! what does the license really do!! and trust !!
- Information about dogs off leash on the Calgary pathway system
- Proof of training classes
- Information targeted to young kids about what is considered proper behaviour towards pets (ask to pet etc.)
- People are very unaware of how animals/dogs are not like people and how to raise them to be healthy emotionally and so not an issue. A free/with licencing intro dog behavior class would help.
- Shared food between different animals

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It's a free country. Please allow me and my pets to enjoy our lives in peace. We don't go to off leash parks. Our neighbours have never complained.
- All pit bulls have to stay on leash always
- Information about options for recourse: For example, how to report problem dogs that frequent dog parks (with non-cooperative owners). Or how to report other people/animal owners who stand on public property (adjacent to private property) and antagonize/poison animals on adjacent private property.
- enforcement of the bylaws - fines don't seem to be issued very often, so pet owners believe they won't get caught if their dog is offleash or they are in an area where dogs are prohibited. Education and enforcement is required. At least one sign should be posted in areas where dogs are prohibited to continually educate the public.
- Bylaw reform on some of the more nonsensical bylaws surrounding pet ownership.
- Ban on vicious breeds
- concentrate on the people who abuse, neglect, keep their dogs chained outside 365 days a year, not provide vet care, that's who you need to focus on.
- When you are in an off leash area, it doesn't mean that you can sit on your phone and drink your coffee while your dog does whatever it wants including terrorizing other dogs.
- Information about what is considered proper human behaviour when in the company of dogs!
- Inclusion of all owned species/ Collaboration and communication with strategic stakeholders/ Grant assisting agencies/ Effective spay and neuter strategy (more encompassing means test, shorter wait times)
- Proper dog introductions, ensuring pets are under control in an off leash area (recall), dog body language
- Every area is on leash unless posted and you maybe ok with your dog running around and up to people but those people shouldnt have to deal with dogs off leash in leashed areas. Just saying your dog is friendless does nothing to help someone who fears dogs or an on leash dog who had surgery which is why they area walking in an area thats on leash. With 100 off leash areas they is absolutely no reason for dogs to be off leash in leashed areas
- Enforcement (fines) when posted rules are not followed.
- Location of all off-leash areas and expectation that that is the law.We live on a green space and constantly see dogs off leash. Huge potential for dog attacks only because owners too lazy to drive to off leash area.City needs to be proactive not reactive and hold owners accountable through fines and then confiscation of pets.
- inclusion of all owned species. collaboration and communication with strategic stakeholders. grant assisting agencies. effecting spay/neuter strategy (more encompassing means test, shorter wait times) [DUPLICATE]
- How to properly care for all pets, taking into account their natural behaviours when creating a suitable living environment for them.
- Lay out clear expectations/regulations on dog barking and consequences/fines/impoundment/put down dogs if the dogs bark non stop for more than 10 minutes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The public needs to be made aware of how many cats/dogs being euthanized each month because of overpopulation. The public also needs to be made aware each month of how many cats/dogs are in each of the cities shelters. The city needs to support Trap Neuter Return Programs by working with local rescues.
- Dogs under control at all times especially off-leash. Snakes/reptiles not allowed at all in public!!
- The issues that development when pets are poorly trained and looked after. Also, dog parks are for dogs. Kids are in their space not the other way around.
- Dog owners should recognize that Calgary has sufficient Off Leash Parks already for exercise and socialization and they dont need to take over all parks.
- More effective spay/neuter strategies.
- Education and reinforcement of education, easy access to clear information on responsible ownership, services available, etc.
- More information regarding why spaying and neutering is important and where to receive financial help for procedure
- Inclusion of all owned species, collaboration and communication with strategic stakeholders, grant assisting agencies, effective low/no-cost S/N strategy (more encompassing means test, short wait times) [DUPLICATE]
- They are required to pick up after their dog goes "Number 2". We are not requiring pickup of pee so one of two should not be onerous.
- Reasonable expectation that complaints and transgressions will elicit action FROM YOU.
- With the exception of repeat offences, a bit of slack should be encouraged as not all pet owners are seasoned animal wranglers.
- Reasonable licence fees that are not out too lunch for pet owners. Why, for example is a licence required for a house cat that never goes outside?
- Enforcement is extremely important. On Nose Hill, where there is completely inadequate signage about on and off-leash areas, there is no enforcement of any rules. Dogs run off-leash all over the place; wildlife is constantly harassed by dogs off-leash; and native birds have difficulty nesting because of dogs off-leash. The dog lobby in this city has far too much clout – it's time the City stood up for wildlife and for good behaviour. It's time for dog owners to start using their brains.

What non-pet owners need from the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw

- Information about how to file a complaint
- Information on proper cat behaviour as well. Many people may not understand that their neighbours' cats need to be licensed.
- i see too many people not knowing how to act around animals. petting service animals, teasing animals non pet owners need to inform themselves on proper animal edict
- Information about non-pet owners behavior to both the pet and the owner.
- We need to know protocol on what to do when there are issues with animals. We live on a park and have an off leash problem when it is not an off leash park.
- Bite prevention. Don't bring children to fenced off leash park, don't approach strange dogs, etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I have had instances where individuals walking through an off-leash dog park are terrified if my dog comes towards them. More signage, possibly, or more warnings to pedestrians for these reasons.
- What to do when pet owners are not following rules - continuous barking, cat roaming and leaving animals unattended.
- Monitoring and enforcement by City of existing laws. Knowledge that over 50% of bear attacks in America are caused by dogs.
- Who to contact when there is a problem and a quick response!
- Better support in dealing with pet owners who are not responsible. This especially related to noise!
- information on how to politely and positively engage with pet owners when there are concerns
- there has to be a better reporting system..not all homes can have security cameras to catch offender dog on their lawn..if homeowners are willing to write up a statement to the fact that should be enough too...s
- Do not approach dog without asking owners.
- Education on how to interact with pets in public. Often people do not know how to approach a pet and can stress it and the result can be a negative experience for both the pet, the pet owner and the non pet owner.
- Rules about what is permitted by responsible pet owners and rules public should follow to respect the animals.
- How to report
- Information on interactions with animals
- To get tough fir once on irresponsible pet owners as it is NEVER the animals fault but 100% the owners fault if their animal causes harm to another pet or human or property. Increase FINES, increase accountability (jail time) if required.
- Major Financial penalties for those who do not follow the rules.
- Resources of how to learn how to be a responsible pet owner.
- Non pet owners need the bylaws to be enforced.
- information how to protect yourself from a viscous dog, what is allowed and not allowed
- An intelligent decision on how to stop dogs from barking all day. Would you like to listen to a dog barking all day at your office?
- Understanding that dogs do bark especially when people walk right by fence property. This is normal.
- Information about [removed] and walk past dogs or ask permission to engage the dog
- We need bylaw officers to have more authority to deal with pet owners. It is a huge process for people that are being bothered by pets/bad owners
- A fast-track system to address concerns or injuries. Contract this out!
- No strollers or young children should be permitted in off leash parks
- Enforcement of areas that are not off leash
- Stop putting running paths through dog off leash areas - these people are a threat to my dog
- Culturally sensitive teaching for new Canadians who are not familiar with animals as pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If walking in a dog park, on or off leash, expect to meet a dog or dogs. If that is a concern, walk somewhere else.
- The non pet owner must tolerate the late night barking, dug up flowerbed or peed on tires. The pet owner may not appreciate that.
- Enforcement of rules to protect us from irresponsible pet owners.
- Education on what is ok, and that not all breeds are bad
- Understanding that they also need to be tolerant.
- Nothing
- I think families with young children running around in an off leash dog park should understand the safety risks
- Who to call when a problem or issue arises.
- Nothing.
- Easy access to the complaint process.
- Information about how the human should behave around unknown dogs. Many people who have never been around dogs do things that inadvertently put themselves in danger
- pick up after your dog or get fined, we need more enforcement as the pathways look like a dog outhouse
- Specific tools to communicate their needs to pet owners. For example if you have a fear of dogs how best to communicate that early and of course don't go to dog areas.
- How to read and assess a dog in approach
- some people don't have the common sense not run or ride a bike through an off leash area if you don't want to have any contact with dogs. same for kids screaming. Dog bite prevention training for children should be done in all schools
- Please make sure that what you are providing as appropriate dog behaviour is indeed correct. There are a lot of appropriate behaviours being labelled as inappropriate.
- Information about what is considered proper cat behaviour!
- Nothing. They're just going to call our anonymous 311 center and complain if any animal looks at them in the wrong way anyways.
- information on dog bite prevention; information on risks associated with punishment based training, including e-collars, prong collars & 'dominance' based training
- To feel safe while walking in non off leash parks and walkways that they won't be accused by off leash dogs
- What to do when you see rules are not being followed.
- None
- To know who to call if they have concerns about a pet or owner.
- Right to live without pet related issues such as barking
- I will not accommodate poorly controlled dogs: eg if the pet reacts to a person wearing a hood: DO NOT blame the human, it is the owner's responsibility to teach the pet.
- Enforcement of rules in public dog parks and off leash areas.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They can reference the Pet Owner info to make themselves aware if they want. It is a duplication of information.
- What to do when they see contravention of the rules.
- ALL the education is important
- Unless specifically designated off-leash all public areas are on-leash areas and you can call 311 to report any animals at large
- Information about proper people behaviour around dogs
- I check everything only because there is such a high volume of irresponsible and non-educated pet owners in the city. Owners NEED to understand how to let dogs properly greet each other and how to approach anyone else with a dog on leash.
- if your going to enforce the rules then don't bother with this
- What to do if they find a lost pet, whether or not it has visible ID. I've heard many stories of people finding pets, not seeing a tag or tattoo, and assuming it has no home. Most pets now have microchips, but they can't be seen and sometimes move around. Lost pets should be taken to animal services or a vet and scanned, otherwise these animals are sometimes kept by the finder or given away, never even having a chance to get home.
- Education around what dog owners should be doing to mitigate behaviour issues
- Info about how to behave safely around animals.
- Information on what is considered proper interaction with an animal and how to safely do so (such as not running up to animals)
- None
- Information on how to approach dogs politely to avoid scaring them
- nothing..they don't own a pet
- Reminders on common sense. If theres a playground inside an off leash, then act responsibly and not flip out on dog owners walking by
- How to act in a safe and respectful manner around pets. The [removed] I've seen people do and then whine about how the pet reacts. Training is not instantaneous nor consistent in most cases.
- A what to do if page.
- What areas are considered pet friendly and pet restricted or pet forbidden
- Non pet owners should not have to fill out multiple sheets of paper to get the Atti on they request. A simple report to 311 should be cause for a visit from bylaw.
- Information about how to spot & report animal abusers.
- Respect from pet owners, if you're on a sidewalk with your dog pull your dog to your side, don't make me go around or off the sidewalk because you have a dog on a long leash don't let your dog approach me, jump on me, lick me, scratch or put holes in my clothing, smell or rub against me/ my belongings or bark and growl at me. Pick up of their own dogs feces and disposal in their own garbage cans. If your dogs off leash they better respond to your requests immediately.
- they need some basic info about dogs. Often a pedestrian will quickly move into our space without concern or caution. My dog is not fond of people and will provide warning signals etc. It is the

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

pedestrians fault for entering our personal space...but they likely don't understand this. They expect all dogs to behave like robots. Joggers etc. should learn some basic dog safety to assist with conflict avoidance

- They need to take all complaints more serious!
- Slow down on the bike paths
- The lawn bylaw info, meaning how much of a person's lawn is the City's.
- We have come across people who don't have dogs but grab at or just try to touch our dog without asking. We have Retriever breeds so ppl like them. But this is dangerous. If the dog is a rescue or is being rehabilitated this attitude of grabbing a dog without asking can be dangerous. Non pet owners need to be held responsible for their actions too.
- maximum number of animals that can be (non) controlled at the dog park.
- Tips on addressing or resolving concerns, or where to make a complaint and what to expect from complaint process
- EDUCATION. If me and my dog are walking, on leash, and you see him and freak the heck out and act super scared- that is going to make him want to intimidate you. Public spaces are for all of the public, including dogs. If you're afraid of animals, go to a play park or ball diamond- where dogs aren't allowed.
- How to approach a person with a dog ask to pet. Don't just release your kids to go see the dog.
- Education on how to coexist with animals in society. Many people still don't understand this. Proper dog safety education as well.
- What services are available to them if they have situations with pets of others.
- Education about sharing public spaces.
- Reminder that their own behavior affects that of an animal so they are equally responsible for the interactions
- More action on enforcement of by-laws. Especially no dog areas and cleaning up after pets.
- An easy way to report a threat - real or not - that is actioned and vicious animals removed from society
- Education when they are unrealistic NIMBY's who think they should control other people
- Information on how to deal with irresponsible pet owners and pet behavior.
- just like people, we don't like everyone we met. I know I don't! Same applies to our animals. people need to understand to ask before approach an animal. also not let their kids run up to a strange dog (which to a dog that means he is being attacked). information about what is consider proper HUMAN BEHAVIOUR.
- what non-owners can do in a POSITIVE manner when they see infractions. Call the cops is NOT an option.
- Enforcement of the rules - Animal control officers in the parks and on pathways.
- information about what the city does to promote responsible pet ownership and what they can do if they have concerns.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Better recourse/mediation between neighbours with barking dogs and other problem pets. More anonymity where conflict is potential, deal with the problems.
- Information on what to do when an animal is behaving poorly or a pet owner is not acting responsibly.
- Information on how to report a misbehaving pet/owner. There seems to be very little recourse or ability to stop someone who is breaking the rules.
- info when requested
- A lot of people have allergies against animals this should be brought in consideration seems to have been set aside
- How to report and what can be reported.
- A bigger dog does not equal aggressive. People always assume your dog is out of control and freak out I, thats how we come up with all these rules and regulations. When dogs play with each other, they will yelp and tell each other when it's too much and that's ok.a lot of dog owners automatically jump in and freak out.
- Need teh City to monitor and maintain pet owner and their pet behaviour towards non-pet owners and ensure pets are on leash when visiting leashed grounds and parks, such as Nose Hill Park. It is almost impossible to walk there without getting harrassed by pets that are unleashed while pet owners mind it if pointe dto that!
- Supportive resources and enforcement in the event of a non-compliant pet owner, violent or disruptive animal.
- Sick and tired of people who think dogs can roam offleash wherever they like - sick and tired of being approached in public by other people's badly behaved dogs.
- Follow through with complaints
- More information on how to act around off leash parks. The city used to have a program teaching kids how to act when approached by an off leash dog. Sadly many adults also have no idea and act inappropriately leading to unnecessary problems for all involved.
- How to look after the animal.
- A better way to report owners who aren't following bylaws
- info regarding best practices for off-leash areas. For example, off-leash park near me (bankview) is frequently used by kids/families tobogganing and playing which is risky behaviour as many dogs don't handle kids/loud/fast people.
- In my area there are many wandering types looking for work and soliciting be hanging over fences to get the dogs attention to alert the owner. They then hassle the owner. I think that there should be fines in place for individuals who harass or tease dogs that are behind fences. THIS DOES HAPPEN IN DOVER!
- protection from other people's pets,
- Mace. Enforcement of leash laws.
- better way of dealing with pets defecating and urinating on their lawns.
- That is is not appropriate or legal to take your kids sledding in designated off leash dog parks.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Enforcement of bylaws (leash laws in parks & playgrounds)
- Info regarding how non pet owners should not be making their neighbors dogs bark by bugging them when their home.
- Citizens and tourists do not need a rule book to walk freely or ride, around the streets and parks and pathways
- Dog parks are for dogs to run and play. If they bring their children that are afraid of dogs or riding bikes or tobaggans or aren't steady on their feet, expect that dogs may run over to investigate. They may be curious. They are not allowed offleash in that many places in town. Please don't get upset if a dog licks the food your toddler is waving in front of their face.
- Information about how kids are to interact around dogs: never run towards a dog, watch for stress signals such as turning away and lip licking and give the dog space.
- Get a dog. It's a wonderful experience!
- Their responsibility in safe and proper interactions with animals.
- Improved off-leash area signage.
- PEOPLE act stupidly around dogs and that's who often gets bit! Information regarding HOW TO BEHAVE around a dog. I saw a lady at a dog park flailing her arms and screaming and hiding behind her husband and holding her child up in the air. HOW STUPID!
- How they should respect/behave towards anyone's pets
- Maybe some kind of information package could be available (upon request) about benefits of pet ownership? I am thinking about bees 'cause they are so beneficial to everyone but people freak out if they think someone might have a hive nearby. So, something to cancel out negative myths.
- Non pet omwered need to have easy access to animal behaviour training such as posters or radiot or tv that give easy safe ways to behave when encounterong an unknown animal domestic or Farrell
- If animal is not behaving in a safe manner, who do I call? 911? 311?
- incentive to microchip, spay and neuter
- If it's a pet bylaw than not just dog behaviour. And how about "normal or neutral" behaviour not "proper" behaviour. Non-pet owners need the City to have a better understanding of pet behaviour so they can be assured that bylaws and policies ensure pets, owners and non-owners can co-exist respectfully.
- Information on resolving animal disputes.
- How they can report unruly dogs.
- Must be taught in all levels of schools. And be online to find easily!
- They need to know the City is proactively heading off problems by patrolling parks and ticketing non-offenders.
- Information about what to do and how to respond when a dog is aggressive or attacks.
- A method for quickly reporting and getting a quick response to complaints that will carry enough weight to change behaviours (ie. no warnings, actually issue fines)
- Information on dog behaviour and approaching dogs. Just help people understand pets more
- I don't think non-owners care about any information honestly.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That pet owners have a right to offleash parks for the pets, the same as parents do for parks for their kids. Huge fines/jail time for ppl that are abusing, harming pets (ie raw chicken, poison).
- Confidence and trust that the city is preventing unwanted pet behaviour of other people's pets
- Non pet owners like to complain about the 'nuisance' of pets while their child screams/ yells/ destroys property, makes messes ect. They will always think they are the centre of the world and probably wouldn't be happy until Calgary gets rid of all animals
- We need monitoring and a way to ensure non-compliant owners are held accountable.
- Accountability from bylaws to enforce the rules and hold irresponsible pet owners accountable.
- Education of how to behave around animals they don't know. It is NOT ok for your kid to "pet" my dog by hitting him- and when that puppy then nips at said child- I'm the [removed]. No- maybe people should teach themselves and their kids how to behave around dogs
- Information on who to contact when a dog owner allows their dog to negatively impact other children and/or property
- Information on how to behave around animals.
- SAFETY. Public needs to be educated on how to properly approach animals in public. The [personal information removed] is an accident waiting to happen.
- What is acceptable surroundings for animals inside of a house. Filthy enclosures are unacceptable. This usually happens when people have too many animals.
- City is acting upon complaints. Ask for photographic or video proof. Please no excuses if you have proof.
- We need to know what is being done about the stench from city properties where an abundance of dogs urinate and defecate. The Killarney Aquatic Centre property and park area reeks when the snow melts. Calgary has more dogs than other cities.
- They should stop riding bikes in off leash parks
- Far higher cost penalties. Calgary parks are rife with dog defecation and urine. The stench is incredible.
- Information about the consequences of harming a dog (kicking, poison, trapping, locking in garage)
- There is no way to identify a dog owner to report them when they are not following the by-laws. I have a very clear security camera of a dog owner letting his dog defecate on my lawn and walking away. How do I report this? Make the owners wear a visible license when in public with their dog. Set up a web site with pictures of dogs and owners and a location map so I can locate and talk to them or report them as required. Another item that might be helpful....some home owners do not like dogs peeing on their lawn. It costs money and time to repair the damage. Maybe the city could provide a sign to home owners that they can place in their yard to let dog owners know that they would prefer if they moved along to another area. Some home owners do not care, some do. Make it easy for the pet owner to identify the "grumpy old man" like me. :)
- Information on how to interact with dogs, including what not to do, and how it may not be safe to immediately pet a dog, even if it seems to be friendly. They don't know the history of the animal, or how it will react.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That they can't just take an animal as their own, when they're out in the alley, street, or in the park. Because they might have gotten out of the backyard, house, or might be playing with their owner. So, many people have migrated to Canada from other countries and they don't understand our culture and love of cats and dogs. That they are family. You
- ???
- Stiffer penalties for being off leash in and on leash park, not education but fines.
- That they feel confident to say to an owner to have their dog on a leash and to pick up after the. People should be able to walk without the fear of any animal due to an irresponsible pet owner. I'm tired of the City doing nothing or making the person calling with a concern for a pet to jump through hoops by giving all their details etc as it puts the concerned neighbour off if they feel they are the one in the wrong by calling in. I was asked recently to call the Police when I saw a dog that was leashed to the fence but was on the road as leash too long. This person constantly doesn't do this to their pet and it goes nuts when people walk by...they neighbours are too frightened to call it in.
- Where to report irresponsible dog owners.
- My biggest issue is people without pets don't know how to approach animals. My dog is not aggressive, in fact she's terrified of strangers and especially kids. Some parents are great about asking if their kid can pet my dog but others just reach out to her and scare her.
- Continuing from the above comment, humans have lost touch with 'nature' and no amount of legislation is going to correct that. We dress up dogs, pay FAR more attention to our all important brain sucking electronic devices than to our pets. I have seen people forget their dog when leaving the dog park because the person was focused on their phone, but I'm pretty sure they got to share/post/tweet to the world about what they were doing, or something.
- Visible enforcement
- information about how non-dog owners should behave around animals and not think that all animals will love them.
- how they can hold dog owners accountable without feeling threatened
- On-leash vs off-leash. I cannot emphasize this enough.
- Rules for people around pets of any type would be great especially posted at off leash park entrances
- stay out of offleash areas if you don't want to encounter dogs. there are plenty of places for people to go. mind your own business.
- Rules about bike riders at off leash areas and sidewalks
- non-pet owners need to recognise that pets are part of our community and not complain heedlessly when they have had a minor negative interaction. Support for mediation/negotiation with neighbours who may be in dispute about pets.
- Information sessions for parents + kids about properly approaching animals / pets they do not know.
- Allow citizens to report dog owners online who do not clean up after their pet defecates.
- Better signage to indicate when dogs are allowed in specific areas and to when dogs must be leashed. Also provide owners with information on who to call and what to do if a situation were to arise about unruly dogs in on leash areas that pose threats to non pet owner safety.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Education about how to approach a strange dog, education about how to teach their children.
- Rules about not touching or letting your children touch an on-leash dog without the owners consent.
- Info on safe interaction for kids & Information about the benefits of pet friendly cities and spaces.
- Consequences
- For bylaw to be able to fine people in any and all private, city, provincial, or green space big fines all day long every off leash complaint should lead to a fine
- Where to find support with dog and puppy classes
- Respect. No one in this city cares about people that have fears of Dogs nor does the city actively enforce any of the laws so the Bylaw is useless.
- information about what is considered proper human behaviour around animals
- Complaints requires paperwork and proven in court that barking is consistent. Why cannot a notice be sent to the dog owner and if not compliant be fine?
- Understanding that, just because they don't have or want pets, doesn't mean they shouldn't learn to live and let live.
- more community visibility of rules and regs, "good neighbor" guidelines
- Understanding of shared spaces for example off leash dog parks that also have a bike path and our kids park
- Most dog owners figure everyone should like their dogs. I do not & don't want the dog coming near me. Don't tell me that your dog is friendly. Just keep it away from me.
- Quit talking to and calling my dog Ask first period but these are the same people that go up and pet a service dog
- What normal dog behavior is. What to expect in an off leash environment
- they should be aware of rules in off-leash vs. leashed areas. Non-pet owners should be encouraged to contact the city when they observe pets that are not being cared for properly/in distress/harmed.
- Number to call directly and at the time and can be anonymous.
- Most issues between dogs owners and non dog owners is because the non dogs owners do not know how to react. They then over react and react poorly. No matter how controlled a dog is sometimes it can be scared and In turn react.
- How to report a pet owner that is not following by-laws
- Bylaw enforcement
- How to file a complaint about pet owners not picking up their dogs waste, allowing their dogs to run free, not under control and dogs that bark.
- What to do if a... 1) dog attacks you 2) dog attacks your dog
- clear information of which parks are offleash and which are not
- where to report problems (ex. not picking up poop in dog park)
- Assurance that they won't have to deal with hassles of pet owners that don't control their dogs!
- Teaching their child how to properly approach a dog or someone with a dog.
- How can non-responsible owners be made to follow the rules. Please stop off leash areas in Nose Hill so none pet owners can enjoy it too.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That not ALL dogs need to be leashed...dog behavior education
- That dogs bark sometimes, that's what they do! If a dog is barking in a neighbours backyard, it could be because they hear something and are doing what dogs do!
- Information about what is considered proper CAT behaviour!
- They need more understanding...
- Resources
  - what about a mediator between non-pet owners and pet-owners?
  - Education (for both) (in school!)
- Enforcement
  - Can the bylaws do more for people to obtain license?
  - Set the expectations for bylaws higher so people have to become educated; they have to want it!
  - possibility of taking of course to reduce fines
  - Reward people not punish them
- to educate pet owners on respecting everyones property rights and safety
- Ways to impose consequences for non compliance. Complaint based differential licensing fee.
- Information on how to interact with dogs you do not know. How to behave in off leash dog areas.
- Education on dog behaviour, non pet owners are always quick to think dogs are vicious and scare our animals
- How to approach someone else's dogs. (ask first, pet later)
- If a person moves in to a home or building near a dog park they should be aware of the potential noise. Perhaps a sign-off of understanding.
- Responsible enforcement. I used to enjoy walking in local parks but not any longer. Too many incidents with irresponsible dog owners. Dogs frequently off leash in on leash areas and owners saying not to worry, their dog us friendly. Same thing I was told by an owner who's dog bit me. I never see any enforcement by City of Calgary in local parks. Why is that?
- How to act around dogs
- No off-lease pets in public parks and gardens
- Information about how to educate children about approaching a dog
- Public education. Calgary has May visitors and non-residence working, playing . How are they to know without a public education program or sufficient signage. Citizens of calgary should not be charged with educating and enforcing alone. Risks and safety are too substantial for the average person.
- How to submit complaints
- Protection from overly friendly and out of control dogs
- Non-pet owners need to see that the City of Calgary is enforcing bylaws (fines / Bylaw Officer presence) to ensure pet owners are following the bylaws.
- nothing you allow them to complain enough and use it against neighbors.
- That animals are living beings. Many non-pet owners tend to come off very entitled.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The understanding that they need to coexist with dogs, whether they like them or not, and that most dogs are good dogs.
- I also believe if non dog owners are in an off leash area they understand they may get dirty, jumped on, have water sprayed on them. They can be the best dog but these things can happen. Also when people bring children they need to understand not all dogs are use to children. Children should not be running and screaming at dogs.
- How to report irresponsible pet owners
- A system or way to report certain areas that are frequently used as off-leash even though they are not. As well, some monitoring of those areas and fines if required.
- rules aboutg the humans behaviours in public space with animals. they need to know that not all dogs want people running up to them. When a person walks in a straight lin to a dog, that means that person wants to fight. a human making eye contact with a strange dog - that is also a body language to the dog that they want to fight. people need to take courses that educate them about how to respect/understand how the dog communicates.
- what to do if people think a pet is being harmed
- Campbelltown, New Brunswick bylaw: Barking is considered excessive when it exceeds: 240 barks per day between the hours of 7.00am and 9.00pm, or 35 barks per night between the hours of 9.00pm and 7.00am, or regularly exceeds 30 barks per hour during the day or 4 barks per hour during the night.
- Animal awareness. E.g., animals here are well looked after; how to be a good neighbour to someone who does care for animals; not having their kids running in off-leash areas.
- Non pet owners need to know they live in a city with pets who can sometimes bark.
- How to avoid / prevent animal aggression. Some people intentionally antagonize animals, while others do it unknowingly
- Retail businesses should be made aware of the rules regarding support pets.
- Education on proper behaviour when meeting other people's pets
- How to properly interact with the dog.
- Unfortunately, parents allowing toddlers to run freely in a dog park DOES need to be addressed. Toddlers should always be within reach of parents when dozens of dogs are playing nearby.
- Tighten up the rules and regulations and follow through with enforcement as there are a significant number of pet owners who do not act in responsible manners with their pets.
- Education / information on how to act properly around dogs. So many people and their children are extremely dangerous around dogs. I'm amazed that more people don't get bit in this city. The human behaviour is the bigger problem then the dog behaviour ever will be. Responsibility for the city should really focus on human education and information. Naturally, dog owners will learn from this
- Information on what constitutes a good pet owner in terms of the amount of time an animal is left alone, crated, etc. If you don't have the capacity to be a great pet owner, don't get a pet.
- Education is key and non-pet owners need clear and concise guidelines so they can clearly identify if a pet and/or owner isn't following the guidelines so they can make a properly informed and backed up complaint should there be one.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- the website could have information for both pet owners and non pet owners
- what to do if a dog owner isn't following the rules
- How many dogs one person should have
- Not to have a trump card to complain about animals and their existence in public space
- non pet owners need to be educated and learn what actions are correct protocol for approaching animals they do not know.
- Information about what is acceptable during the day regarding noise as in barking while playing.
- To mind their own business.
- Rules around behaviors in public spaces need to be on signs in of leash areas. I saw an off leash dog jump on a person, and the owner said "what do you expect? You are in an off leash area".
- Nothing
- Education about the use of muzzles and other training equipment that allows all dogs to be safe.
- Dogs bark--- nondog owners need to understand the difference between nuisance barking (ie. extended ongoing consistent barking due to boredom etc) and regular barks that would be expected of any dog. Non dog owners seem to have unreasonable expectations in this area.
- How to properly interact with dogs. Do's and don't when in off leash areas.
- They need to understand that if they are in non fenced dog parks it is their choice to be there, as dogs can be off leash in those areas.
- Assistance from City when complainant lives in a condo. Same rules should apply regardless of where you live.
- Information about off-leash parks so non-dog owners can make an informed decision on whether to walk in one or not.
- Proper courtesy towards dogs in public
- Non-pet owners need to understand that we under no circumstance own animals. We are caretakers who have removed a being from its natural habitat and forced it to abide by our expectations. The animal has no need to provide use with companionship but we have changed them to shut out needs. However, animals are not toys or possessions. They will bark, bite, and growl. Just as human will speak, with and yell. This behaviour is normal and we should work to prevent it but also recognize that the owner is a caretaker not truly an owner. Animals are precious and should be respected. Their behaviour should be accepted not labeled as nuisance. I do not call strangers children unkind words even when they behave incorrectly and I expect all other living things to receive the same courtesy. Language such as owner, control, nuisance is used to describe slaves no respectable member of civilized society should stand for the continuation of this language in our bylaws or any legal document.
- Non pet owners need to respect dogs and not assume all dogs want to be petted or picked up
- Information That is specific for the non pet owner to be concerned
- How to behave around strange dogs and the importance of teaching their children how to behave appropriately around dogs even if the family doesn't own any because those children WILL be around dogs regardless

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Safety rules, especially around bringing food and small children to the off leash areas. Stay off phones, pay attention to your dog/kids!
- signage for areas that are designated off leash which include numbers to call if they have concerns
- Understanding the rights and responsibilities of pet ownership
- To enforce the rules that are already in place and leave the bylaw as it is. Bylaw officers at the dog parks enforcing the law from time to time would be a great start.
- defiantly rules around public spaces !! and how to approach a dog.. maybe just not without asking.. no bending down faces..
- tolerance towards those who earnestly take care towards pets.
- some basic awareness of how to interact with an animal if they feel like they have a problem. e.g., Teach kids to not run at a dog they don't know, teach parent this too!
- It's a free country. Please allow me and my pets to enjoy our lives in peace. We don't go to off leash parks. Our neighbours have never complained.
- Dog owners need to understand that we don't like their dog so they should keep the leash short enough so their dog cant come up and sniff us or touch us
- please teach people how to properly approach a strange dog-- scratch under the chin, do not pet on the head and dogs perceive this motion as threatening.
- Information about what is considered proper human behaviour when in the company of dogs!
- Information/rules relating how to safely interact with others pets in public (eg have children ask permission to pet and respect the owners answer).
- Information about what is considered proper behaviour toward approaching someone with a dog, or the dog itself, to prevent an animal from jumping on an approaching stranger and having them report it as an attack. Animals deserve personal space too.
- Quite calling someones dog you dont know you should be asking the pet owner before engaging with a dog consider ever dog a service dog in training
- Enforcement. There are many rules posted that aren't followed by dog owners (particularly in areas where dogs are not permitted to be off leash).
- We need more bylaw officer actually enforcing the off leash law. We've been bitten several times by off leash dogs and maulings are a very real potential. Non pet owners shouldn't have to deal with off leash dogs when going for a walk in the neighborhood. Signs don't work. Offenders need real consequences like confiscation and large fines. Does it take a child to get mauled before the city is proactive vs reactive.
- informtion on how to deal with noisy dog in community - non stop barking. The issue shouldn't just be passed off and confusing about getting a result. A pet owner should run the risk of having their dog put down for noise complaints.
- People direct their anger out on cats & need to be educated. Cats are blamed for killing birds ; yet windows, vehicles & other birds kill birds. Cats are blamed for defecating in yards, yet squirrels, racoons and birds also do this.
- Strict Supervision by city bylaw officers to keep everything in check on a consistent basis.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Non pet owners need to understand they have a right to use parks and should not be forced out or intimidated by dog owners
- again, education re: realistic expectations of pet behaviour (how to approach..children in particular, what is vicious vs freindly, etc)
- Pass law limiting dog ownership to two. Institute surveillance to ensure compliance to existing bylaws.No more [removed] excuses to avoid doing your job. You have or had rules. They accomplished little. YOU NEED LAWS NOT RULES AND YOU MUST ENFORCE THEM!!
- An information line to assess complaints and offer education where misunderstanding is encountered.
- Non-pet owners need a set of proper behaviour required of them when they are in the off leash areas.
- Enforcement and education

Reasonable expectations in or near off-leash parks for dog owners

- I would love to see a ban of small children in the dog parks. Unfortunately, they are at serious risk from dogs that are even playing well. Most do not look where they are going when running and playing and I have seen serious injury to even adults in dog parks.
- i really believe if they are going to a dog park they need all there shots so they arent getting other dogs sick.
- Recall is important but even the best behaved pets sometimes get distracted, especially with toys in parks
- Make sure dogs interact with people appropriately- no running and jumping up on people, chasing children, etc.
- Knowledge of dog behavior and warning signs through appropriate training
- Dogs should be on leash when they are near off leash areas, but not in them
- To be aware that if you have a dog on leash in an off leash area that they could still be approached by off leash dogs and to expect that
- Regulate dog walkers to no more than 5 dogs at a time. I constantly see 10-12 dogs running and dog walker can't possibly pick up after all of them
- Conflict resolution steps. When to say something and how to say something.
- Monitor to ensure your dog(s) do not harass other dogs in the name of "being friendly"
- Monitor to ensure your dog(s) do not harass other dogs in the name of "being friendly" [DUPLICATE]
- Re-leash when leaving the off-leash area.
- Dogs are registered with the city and up to date on vaccinations. Maximum number of dogs per owner that can be safely controlled offleash
- People need to be in control of their dogs. Aggressive/reactive dogs should not be allowed in off leash dog parks.
- Keep your dog within your area of sight at all times. If a dog does not have recall, it should not be in an offleash area period.
- Not allow dogs to jump up on/knock over people.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It would be nice if all dogs came when called but that is a big ask in a highly distracting environment. WOuld be better if there were separate spaces for high energy / bold dogs and smaller, shy dogs.
- Owners need to actually watch their dogs. And if a dog shouldn't be off leash (like mine), don't take it to an off leash park. You need to be sure your dog will be good.
- Appropriately is very vague.
- install security cameras in such sites so offender(s) are caught on camera(s)...
- Control of their dogs at all times is ALWAYS a problem at off leash parks. They are the most dangerous places for dogs and people in my opinion. I NEVER use them and recommend to anyone else to not use them either
- Ban the use of flexi leashes.
- Limit the number of dogs walked by dog walkers and enforcement of bylaws particularly in off leash areas. There are a large number of dog walkers who are walking too many dogs at one time and cannot control where and what the dogs are doing. And not picking up after the dogs.
- Share the pathway! I have taught my dogs to yield/sit/stay while onleash on a pathway of a bicyclist approaches. This is apparently rare.
- Ensure that pet owners who attend off leash parks with children fully understand not to harass or annoy the dogs so as not to create incidents.
- They should put their dogs back on leash if not in the off leash parks. It would be nice if all off leash areas close to children's playgrounds are fenced in or seperated from one another.her.
- No off leash dogs in play and school grounds, even if close to off leash area. Dogs in rotary park off Lions Gate bridge are ALWAYS attacking the children in the playground and this off-leash area should be permanently closed!!!!
- Do not allow dogs or children to interact with other dogs, on or off leash unless the owner of the other dog has invited you do to so.
- Pathway bylaws with pets on and off-leash need to be posted
- Enact LAW ASAP that ALL dogsust be muzzled at all time's while walking with owner both on leash and off leash parks
- Ensure that the person walking the 200 pound dog has the strength to control the dog.
- Dogs should be kept under control at all times, they should not be off leash if they don't behave and listen to their owners
- Which dogs shouldn't be off leash (and there are many -- too many that put our small dog at risk).
- Understand signs of aggressive dog behaviour!! Hackles up approaching others is NOT FRIENDLY!! Not approached others unless invited!!
- Like a car accident, stay onsite when an incident happens...provide insurance and contact information for resolution.
- Dog walkers should have maximum limits for how many dogs they can bring. I'd like a limit of 3 dogs per person
- But people aren't responsible enough! Not enough is done to catch these offenders.
- Only fully vaccinated dogs should be allowed in off leash parks (herd mentality)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dog owners in an off leash, Non-Fenced area are far more responsible. I find in a fenced area people assume it's doggie daycare and just let there dogs go and do what they want while owners stare at their cell phones. There is far more poop in fenced areas than non-fenced.
- limit the number of dogs one owner has with them in a park
- It's all about respecting others. and accepting all responsibility for your animal's behavior.
- Dogs must be under control
- Properly collared so there is something to grab if need be (also with licence)
- No small children allowed in the offleash parks for safety reasons. Dogs are running around and playing and may injure them unintentionally. Kids also do not know how to react to all dogs. Saw a kid waving a stick around and a dog tried to get the stick and jumped up on him to get it. Parents blamed the dog owner when all it wants do is play with the stick.
- Dogs must always be on leash except when in off leash area
- And that not every dog is there to roughhouse with out dogs. If not invited do not approach others.
- No balls or frisbees when lots of dogs are at an off leash park.
- Don't be on cell phones ... Distracted
- Dogs must be in control
- No toys or balls- increases aggression, prey drive and anxiety in many MANY dogs. No dogs in heat at the park . No intact makes in the park ( these are all bylaws in several major cities in the USA
- Do not have your dog off leash unless in an off leash park (i.e. near off leash park but not in it). SHould not have dogs off leash on school playgrounds/city playgrounds. Enforce this rule. There are many people and children who fear dogs and are not expected to be approached by an off leash dog.
- Keep your pet reasonably close at all tones - off-leash does not mean 'run amok'. Pay attention, interact with your dang dog.
- Seperate areas for different size breeds
- Be within a reasonable proximity to your dog.
- This is stupid, why would you ask that question? who in their right mind would say no to those options? Why even ask this question?
- That the dog is not aggressive and dogs shouldn't be on leash in an off leash area. Owners of small dogs should be cautious and understand the risks. Consider ya big a 25 lb and under area for small dogs. Mandatory course to use dog parks. More by law presence to educate and/or hand out fines. Dog parks are a privilege, not a right
- People who bring children to off-leash parks should never leave them unattended. Sometimes dogs just play too rough for little ones.
- No food other than treats, only play fetch when other dogs are not around, carry your leash with you at all times
- Dogs and children, the off leash areas should be safe for families
- Do not let your small child run around aimlessly and act out/scream and run. Dog walking services have a limit of how many dogs they can walk at a time (3-4 max per person)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- pick up after your dog or get fined, we need more enforcement as the pathways look like a dog outhouse
- I have a brilliant dog and we work on recall daily, that does not mean he comes 100% of the time and if a rabbit tears past him his natural instincts will trump his human. Bylaw officers MUST be well educated as to what constitutes "under control" If a human is 100 yards away and their dog is erratic that is not under control and 1 call out for recall is not enough to bring down an amped up canine. It is more effective if I command "down" and walk to my dog rather than have him come to me. He needs a time out which is his down command not come here and run all over the place while remaining in an elevated state.
- By law officers need to be in off leash parks to ensure pet owners are following the rules. I've never seen one!
- NUMBER ONE IS PICKING UP DOG WASTE!
- Truman home, just like small children near water pet owners need to be in control of their pet at all times there's always been two ways and have them within a reasonable distance
- Reporting requirements for when an incident occurs.
- How to properly interact with other owners. How your tone and actions can play into a dog's behaviour or reactions
- Dog parks are not the same as playgrounds for your kids. People that choose to bring children to the park should be aware of the dangers of your child approaching or inappropriately interacting with (taunting, hugging, running toward or away from, etc.) a stranger dog and should enter the park at their own risk.
- educate children on proper behaviour around dogs
- Be responsible for any injuries caused by your animal to other animals or people
- Dogs should not be off leash before entering the off-leash area. The off-leash area should be appropriately signed and fenced. Any animal who has a history of vicious behavior to people or other animals should not be permitted. There should be a clearly posted help number for reporting violations / cameras.
- keeping noise to a minimum
- Major issues with people letting their dogs be off leash in the parking lot before they enter the park, I have almost hit dogs running in the parking lot far too many times. Also they allow their dogs off leash on pathways surrounding dog parks, or in empty fields that are not designated off leash areas
- The other options are impossible to enforce.
- normalization about appropriate dog behavior; risks in using punishment based training
- New regulations on the number of dogs for dog walkers.
- Many dogs do not like puppies. Many dogs are afraid of children.
- Ensure dogs are wearing city license tag and name tags while off leash.
- Enforcement of laws regarding off leash dogs in non designated off leash areas

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Some people seem to believe that they do not need to pay attention to their dog while in the dog park (ie on phone, not keeping up with their dog etc) or they think they can drop them off and stay in their car.
- I'd like to see bylaw give more fines for people who do not pick up after their pets. Along the ridge by valley view park far too many people don't and it is gross for pet owners and non pet owners alike
- Don't automatically let dogs greet on leash, ask owners first.
- People should not just let their dog run up to every strange dog in the park. For example, if someone brings a fearful dog in on a leash, that dog shouldn't be swarmed by other dogs.
- General education for pet owners on how to read dog body language and what behavior is appropriate
- Persons should have no more than 3 dogs under their control in off-leash parks
- Dog to wear city tag and must always be in owners sight/within a certain distance for purposes of control.
- All of the above plus identification of dog and owner of requested in case of issues. There has been more than once personally my dogs have been attacked and the owners just left. Private dog parks perhaps?
- Unfortunately people are unaware and uneducated on canine communication and are oblivious to inappropriate behaviour from their dogs and other dogs at the park
- In control means NOT running after wildlife. The dog is NOT in control if it needs to be called back from a behavior.
- There should be no off leash areas in non dog parks. Dogs don't pay taxes. I do pay taxes, and I don't have a dog. Dog parks are sufficient space for that specific demographic. They have impacted the rest of us enough, through degrading public places for meant for PEOPLE to enjoy.
- Ensure your dog does not kill wildlife! (rabbits, birds, squirrels) because it depletes the food chain (for Coyotes) and causes danger for pets.
- The majority of issues seem to be a lack of education, particularly around appropriate dog behavior. If your offleash 'friendly' dog approaches a leashed dog/wildlife/bike/other person and does not recall, he doesn't yet deserve to be offleash and needs more training. People seem to miss the "needs more training" part.
- I go to Auburn Bay Off Leash often and it has gotten out of hand, the above needs to be followed more seriously and have actual repercussions
- Immediately remove the dog if there are negative encounters (noted above).
- If the dog is 'near' but not in an off leash area it should be leashed.
- Dogs must be controlled, monitored and not make a mess.
- be able to control your dog in difficult situation
- Listen when others ask to leash pet or remove it from the park. No intact dogs. Dogs must be under control.
- Bylaw needs to show up

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I want to emphasize points 2 and 3. Numerous times I witness owners letting their dogs run off leash and not come back when called. Last night a dog chased after a bystander's bike and did not stop or turn back for a second to return to the owners. They only retrieved the dog because the bike rider turned around to help. One other important point is that not all dogs are friendly. Not all dogs are well trained. Not all dogs like "saying hi" to other dogs. If an off leash dog approaches an aggressive or reactive dog on leash, and that off leash dog does not return when called, there will and have been issues.
- Once again there is no need for a new by-law just enforce the existing by-law
- There is no clear definition of what "appropriate" interactions are. Opinions vary vastly between dog owners.
- If a dog is upsetting another and the owner is asked to please call their dog away, the other owner should respect the request. My dog and I have been harassed (even nipped at) by dogs whose owners were a ways away, I've called to them to please call their dog because it's stressing my dog, and they refuse, say "he's just playing," or even become hostile. It's important others know it's not an insult if someone asks this, we're just trying to reduce stress for the animals and prevent a potentially negative situation.
- Most dog owners will agree that even dogs that come when called do not always in off leash parks so behaviour and attention of owners is important.
- Understanding dog body language in order to accurately assess dog-dog and dog- human interaction
- Have water/appropriate attire for dogs under/over a certain temperature
- Vaccinations are up to date.
- that an owner or dog walker has no more than 3 dogs under their responsibility when in the off leash are since they will otherwise not be able to control them effectively and can contribute to pack behaviour which is not acceptable.
- i
- Don't bring food into off leash areas, it drives food-crazy dogs crazy.
- Take responsibility for your dogs behaviour- do not bring aggressive dogs or dogs with unknown social ability to dog parks!!!!- if you're not okay with another dog taking a toy or ball then don't bring them
- Vaccinations and no dogs under 3 months allowed. Dogs in heat not allowed, honestly it should be unaltered males not allowed but maybe u have a time for that specifically
- Dogs should get priority. Dog friendly spaces are limited, human spaces are not. If you don't like dogs, get out of the park
- let dogs be dogs, make off leash dog parks enter at your own risk. too many sensitive people with tiny dogs then complain about larger dogs because their little dogs are scared of everything.
- regulation regarding the number of dogs that can be walked at one time by an individual.
- Cameras. That way no one gets away with their dog hurting any other animal or person ever. No one is able to leave poisoned meats either.
- Sadly you can't control stupid or irresponsible owners - [personal information removed].

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- dogs not coming at kids with owners saying "oh my dog loves kids" yeah my kid doesn't like dogs running up to them and jumping at them and knocking them over
- If someone asked to put your dog on a leash just do it if someone's a comfortable around your dog control them remove them or put them on a leash if someone asked you to pick up your dog faeces do it because you should've already been doing it in the first place. Don't take your dog to the restaurant food vendors food courts or grocery stores it's unacceptable it's a health hazard. Don't let your dog run at jump at bark or growl at strangers. Train your dog with the basics.
- Leashes can trigger an aggressive reaction in other dogs that are offleash. Dog owners that walk their dog 'on-leash' in an offleash zone should be more aware that they are putting everyone at risk with a potential trigger.
- a massive abuse is leaving dogs off leash into the parking lot areas. This is an issue for me because my dog is not friendly to other dogs. We are trying to enter into Nose Hill Park and struggle every time because of this. This is at all of the entrances in the NW. Start cleaning this up - fine people already. They are interfering with people just trying to enter. Perhaps there should be a gate which snaps a picture of the licence on the way in - people behave better if they think they may be held responsible.
- Dogs need to come within a reasonable time. You cannot expect all dogs to be trained to the level of police dogs. Bylaw officers for dogs must be specifically trained about reasonable dog behaviour.
- No long ropes at the off leash.
- Properly dispose of dog waste
- Proper dog training.
- Dogs should have a gps tag that can be ready via cell phone app by any person with the app - that way a vicious dog can be tracked and police notified for charges to be laid.
- In off leash parks that are fenced, most people have well behaved pets, but some owners bring aggressive, poorly trained animals because of the security of the fence. I've also witnessed people drop dogs off and leave a fenced park, while their pet is left unsupervised. I've reported these behaviors but witnessed no change. I also think signage at/near off leash dog parks needs to be better as it is frequently ambiguous. There should be more garbage cans. There should be a dog area in each community designated for dogs.
- If the owner of a dog deems the situation between two or more dogs may escalate and asks for both parties to separate their dogs, the owner must comply and the dog must be able to listen well enough to do so.
- Vaccinated. Some dog owners do not vaccinate and it puts all animals at risk.
- Current dog off leash parks are dangerous. People do not have control of their animals. SMALL children should not be allowed for safety reason until the adults can get their dogs under control.
- Safety with children in off leash areas ie: running, yelling, riding bikes in parks
- dog walkers take too many dogs and cannot control them when they are 1000's of meters behind the pack they walk.
- No toys in dog parks. It seems that every fight I see between dogs is because of a ball. Resource guarding is a natural behaviour.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Do not feed dogs that aren't your own
- Just to emphasize: WATCH YOUR DOG
- City should provide separate areas for small dogs as they often antagonize larger dogs, yet are considered the victims by uneducated by-law officers.
- Knowledge of canine communication, and knowing how to recognize if your dog is not suited to a dog park. Also, once again, no children at the dog park.
- Dogs are on leash until in off leash area
- What do to if your animal is harassed by other animals.
- People with children must educate them on how to approach dogs. There also needs to be regulations on the dog park being for dogs and is not a playground for children to run around wildly.
- No monitoring by city of too costly for results. People using off leash should help monitor. Off leash should be used to help train dogs for proper behaviour and exercise.
- More respect for the by-laws. There seems to be a "that doesn't apply to me" attitude with many pet owners
- Keep an eye on your dog at all times and don't be distracted by being on your phone or in a conversation with someone.
- Responsible pet owners should be allowed to play fetch at the park.
- Be mindful that a lot people may have to use a path to get to where they need to go and don't want to worry about an animal approaching them or their children.
- Slow speed for bikes that ride through parks - high speed commuter biking is dangerous for the rider and the dogs in an off leash park.
- Enforcement is required. The same irresponsible dog owners allow the same behaviors in or near off-leash parks as outside of them. It is more than ignorance of the rules; it is intentional flouting of the rules. The city needs signs to not merely state WHERE dogs must be on-leash but to state the reasons WHY, e.g. to maintain the safety of non-dog owners and bike riders and to protect their basic rights to enjoy public spaces, for the protection of wildlife habitat. Without clear explanations, dog-owners see anyone who suggests rules be followed as "dog-haters", or someone who's against anyone "having fun", or they argue, out of willful or actual ignorance, that "my dog isn't doing any harm anyway". See the sign at Anne and Sandy Cross Conservation Area (Nature Conservancy of Canada) for an example of an INFORMATIVE sign: "The quality of wildlife habitat may be NEGATIVELY IMPACTED by the presence of YOUR DOG! Studies have shown that the presence of your dogs... -caused bird numbers to drop by an average of 41% at some sites and the diversity of species fell by 35%; - can contribute to energetic loss in birds through premature flight or reduced food intake and reproductive disruption due to nest disturbance; - alters the abundance and activity of native mammals near trails; prey species numbers decrease and wild canine numbers increase; - can introduce infectious diseases such as toxoplasmosis, sarcosporidiosis and rabies, parvovirus and canine distemper to native wildlife; - can result in the chasing, killing and physical injury of wildlife; -modifies the natural vegetation found in an area; - can attract and bring cougars, bears and other predators back to you increasing the risk of human and wildlife conflicts. The mere sight and smell of dogs may cause non-lethal, fear-based alterations in behavior, habitat use, and physiology

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

among wild animals. The ASCCA was set aside for the protection of native habitat - this means NO DOGS!" For any protected wildlife habitat within the city, the same considerations must apply!

Further, despite the extensive public consultation that occurred a few years back re. dog use in Bowmont Park, the signage around on-leash/off-leash areas remains an incomprehensible disaster.

- If dog has history of aggression, must be muzzled. Use training pens provided for socialization.
- off leash parks should be banned. ignorant owners who knows their dog does not like some dogs and yet bring them to off-leash parks - they are setting their dogs up for failure.
- That people do not drop their dogs off at off-leash parks and go to do errands. Yes, this really does happen!
- Owners with dogs at off-leash areas are 100% responsible for the behavior of their dog. If your dog is out of control in any way it should not be off-leash.
- Limit number of dogs/adult. Adults (over 16) in control of dogs at public dog parks.
- carry identification that is legit when something goes badly, and take responsibility for the issue and potential damages
- When I think of dog parks I just think of diseases that are brought out of the dog park
- What to do in the event of a conflict resulting from owner and/or pet bad behaviour.
- I think it should be an expectation that dogs come when called but some leniency also expected if it is clear that they are at the park to practice recall. Some owners do not have access to a safe fenced place to do this other than publicly fenced off-leash parks.
- Make known the presence of an aggressive/violent animal. Have knowledge/training of animal ownership and dog training.
- Many dogs do not come when called and many owners don't seem to care. This needs to be better enforced!
- That humans come first before any animal
- not a fan of off leash, as to many little dogs, harass large breeds
- near should clearly be "on leash" and the owners need to be respectful of these rules for often it is the owner of the pet that is not acting appropriately not the dog! Many think its their right to have their dogs off leash everywhere cause they think they are trained and just don't follow the bylaws. Also dog defecation has gotten bad everywhere in this city, again many pet owners think its their right to not pick up and if in a green space its even worse, think why bother! Also many dog owners need to be respectful that other dog owners do not want interaction with their pets or if they are training and using the other persons dog as a training decoy!
- Dog owners need to focus and be aware of what their dog is doing at all times. Stay off the cell phone.
- Again if your dogs does not have good recall, don't let them off.
- ensure dogs remain in the designated space, ensure dogs don't run at people inside or outside the space, off leash areas should be enclosed as much as possible
- Most people don't seem to understand the non-verbal cues of a dog and what they mean. E.g.: ears back, tail down, whale eye etc. Signs of stress in a dog and potential for a negative stress reaction.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dog walkers must be limited to 6 dogs maximum. I am at the off leash area every day with my 2 dogs and will often see dog walkers with up to 15 dogs. They cannot and do not see what all their dogs are doing and often will not see when they have to pick up after them. Often with this many dogs they start adopting a “mob mentality”. That is absolutely too many dogs to watch at one time!!
- Recognition of what is and what is not an off leash area
- Pet owners with aggressive dogs who keep taking their aggressive dogs to dog parks should be held liable for any vet fees that occur because of their poorly trained animal. Its not fair people with GOOD dogs get punished because people with poorly trained dogs dont have to pay vet bills due to the dpg they never trained that keeps attscking other dogs.
- If a dog has a history of being vicious. He or she should not be at the off leash park.
- I think off leash areas should be for any pets. Some would not benefit from being off leash but the would benefit by having a 0lace to get out to.
- The leash does not come off until you are in the dog park. Train the dog and the owner. This is a “pet” peeve. Why bother with a fenced dog park if it has no gates and the dog owners don’t respect the concept of on and off leash areas? Waste of money at the end of Riverdale. Small fenced in areas nearer homes would be better. Opening the car door and they bound out and run off is not appropriate In a big city.. in a big city.
- All dogs must be spayed and neutered at all times in the city when over 1 year of age. Veterinary notes required for special cases
- I go to walk my dogs in a legal off leash space. It’s not a free for all. My dogs don’t like playing with strange dogs and people who use parks shouldn’t expect all dogs want to play with other dogs. Mine come to parks to walk and play with me and we don’t stop to interact with others. Dog parks should be a nice walk for a dog and it’s person. Dog parks are not a wrestling arena for those that don’t know how else to exercise their dogs
- Understanding of normal dog interactions and behaviors. When their dog is being aggressive- it can be subtle.
- Split dogs by weight/size.
- I feel most of these should be done and monitored by themselves as being a reaponsible pet owner tou should be doing these things.
- Really, really hard to enforce but I appreciate the City’s efforts around having local volunteers helping out
- If an incident occurs the dog owner must stay and deal with any medical bills etc.
- Responsibility of dog owners to manage animals should be increased
- Dogs should be on lease when not in off leash areas.
- More inforcement
- come when called would also be good, but there is a time of training that has to occur before this is expected initially
- Dogs should come when called - however - proofing a dog to be able to come when called in a space with a lot of distractions (e.g. other dogs, rabbits, squirrels, other people, traffic noises, etc..)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

is a learning curve. So you create a catch 22 if they can't learn in an off-leash park - even though this means not 100% recall to begin with

- This should go without saying, but also DISPOSE of dog waste responsibly - do NOT pick it up and then leave the tied bag on or near the path.
- Other pet owners should not approach other people's dogs unless given permission
- Don't let your dogs charge pedestrians
- If asked to call your dog away to not ask questions and respect the request of others.
- I think dogs should come when called but as a puppy owner sometimes if the dog is learning this might not be perfect; the off-leash park is often a place to reinforce skills and improve training.
- Actual and serious engagement of the above..
- That the neighbours approve of the nearby off-leash park (not that it be imposed on neighbours who don't want one nearby).
- Properly socialized in a controlled situation before let into an off leash.
- Muzzles for dogs that have shown aggressive behaviours on the past.
- Monitor and take immediate action to prevent or change behaviour if it is not appropriate.
- Dog should be good with other dogs- not reactive
- No large packs of dogs. These packs intimidate other dogs and owners. Also dog walkers of large packs are not capable of picking up poop and monitor all the dogs at the same time - this is a real problem when dogs first arrive at a dog park and disperse in different directions. Dog walking numbers should be limited to four.
- Have a pre qualifying test for all dog parks? People watch their children, it's not a playground
- Dogs not responding/following commands should NOT be allowed off leash.
- No dogs in Nose Hill Park
- Being respectful of other users. If another owner asks you to call your dog, call them, no questions asked.
- Do. Or bring your dog to an off leash park when it not neutered or spayed!!! Also, do not bring to an off leash park if it doesn't like the company of other dogs. So many times my dog has calmly approached another dog only to be snapped at and the owner say "oh sorry, he/ she doesn't like other dogs"
- don't used balls in the dog park
- dogs are not loose in the parking lot, children are not riding bikes/scooters in off leash parks, do not give treats to other people's dogs without consent from the dog owner
- Unneutered male dogs should not be allowed in offleash parks. They cause most of the problems I have seen.
- Watch your children when at an off leash park. It is not ok for a 2 year old to run free chasing dogs while mom and dad are 50 ft away looking at their phones. Dog owners should not be held responsible for bad parenting. I chose to not have kids, therefore I should not have to monitor yours when at the park

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dog owners with their dogs should not approach other people's children without first obtaining the parent/guardian's consent. This happens a lot at Rotary Park. So many dog owners think this is okay because their "dog is friendly"
- When your dog bites/attacks others, you must provide luscencibg info and medical info to victim. Pet owners just grab their animal and run away to avoid getting in trouble for vicious dogs. This applies EXACTLY AS MUCH to chihuahuas as it does a bulldog or mastiff
- Owner must be present at park.
- definitely pick up your waste. Nose Hill Park & other off leash areas are really bad for it not being done.
- One person (usually a dog walker or from a dog daycare) that brings several dogs to an offleash area and just lets them "go" is a problem in many ways. Dog waste is not getting picked up. Plus dog behaviours cannot be controlled when one person is responsible for all those animals This puts other people and animals at risk.
- Control the number of dogs owners are allowed to have. Canada has the most dog ownership worldwide! Calgary has the most dogs per capita in Canada!
- Avoid having your dog approach dogs that are on leash
- The only way to locate dog waste is to have a dog on leash. You can't pick up defecation when it's running around because you don't know where it defecates.
- Dogs should be socialized or owners should have good understanding of when a dog is no longer acting appropriately
- If you bring your children to an offleash park with your dogs you also need to monitor the behaviour of your children
- Put dog waste in a trash container. Monitor pets so that they do not enter wildlife areas.
- No aggressive or violent dogs allowed. No bitches in season.
- Limit number of dogs a dog walker can have the dogs off leash
- Meeting city ran training checkpoints
- Dog must be close enough so you can intervene if needed (not across the park). Aggressive dogs should not be allowed or at the very least muzzled.
- Many dog owners do not realize the dog must be on a leash on a pathway, even if the area is designated as off leash. Some of the off leash parks have become an eye sore and helath hazard from over use. There is an off leash above and west of Sandy beach. The grass is basically gone for urine burn and compacted from over use. Do not even attempt to go down the embankment to Sandy beach. The amount of dog feces in the trees is unbearable. The last couple of years the city has issued a do not swim advisory in the Elbow river downstream of the dam due to fecal matter deteted in the water? Where could this be coming from? Another off leash area that is getting out of hand is the embankment south of Cresent road. Large volume of dogs, off leash running the hill side with owners unable to see what they are doing. A lot of these dogs are also running freely on the walking trail areas used by pedestrians and cyclists. Yesterday I spotted two dogs approximately 0.5 kms from their owners. Owners must produce I.D. or dog license I.D. when requested by anyone trying to identify them.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Some dogs cannot come when called; deaf, senile, not learned the command yet, or are just bitchy.
- Make sure dogs are vetted and have shots
- Walking with a dog off leash means paying attention to the dog not walking ahead and missing when the dog does it's business. Dog walkers must be able to see all of the animals they are responsible for and pick up after them. Too many dogs at once makes this very difficult.
- Stiffer fines for not abiding by the rules.
- And for owners not to stand in a group with other talking with their back to their dogs or on cellphones not paying attention to what's happening around them.
- Should be a limit of how many dogs are with dog walkers. I've seen some with 10. Too many to control plus it's very intimidating.
- The most important safety rule is having dogs on leash while in pathway. Numerous times have been riding bike in NoseHill Park and have dogs chase, nip and bite while riding by. Owner is far away from dog.
- Again, continuing from above comments... we cannot enforce 'common sense' or the 'laws of nature'. To write laws that say 'your dog MUST come immediately, every single time' is ridiculous. How can we think we are so smart as humans yet fail tests all the time and then expect that another species performs at 100% according to our rules. Get a grip! Again, as to 'proper interaction', almost 100% of people with pets have no clue what that means, and the pets pay the price. I see people discouraging their dog from 'sniffing butt' because that stupid human finds it offensive. Sniffing butt is an instinctive dog behaviour! NOT something to be discouraged. It should, in fact, be rewarded and encouraged. Having said that, well adjusted dogs 'know who they want to talk to'. Dog sees another dog approaching and chooses to just 'walk on by', human intervenes to 'encourage dog to interact' by, if necessary, forcing a face to face meeting. AGH!!!! 'Face to face' is the LAST thing dogs want to do, and they recognize instinctively other dogs that they just want to 'walk past'. And we humans think we are going to 'fix' this.... NOT A HOPE!
- control over dog
- I do not believe in off-leash parks. they are the cause of many dog attacks on other dogs because of the irresponsible owners. Owners are the problem, not the dogs.
- ban off-leash parks
- I think there needs to be some latitude in expectations when, dogs especially, behave according to their nature. Off leash is their playtime so if they chase a squirrel up a tree, so what. I won't let them catch it. Also, I don't think most ordinary pet owners actually really train a dog like a professional would.
- my biggest concern is the lack of responsibility for other in an off-leash park, my kids can't play soccer in the park 6 houses from us without having dogs bother them even though they pick an area of the park where the dogs don't hangout and it is the part of the park that has a down slope. My kids also have the right to run free in the urban parks without worrying about a dog running at them and having a owner not call the dog but rather say" don't worry they are friendly" - it seems that if my kids was running at their dog with a stick in an aggressive manner I would be held accountable.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- People don't often understand the boundaries of when on-leash and off-leash begins. They also think that any parks or pathways that do not have a sign saying "on-leash" means that it is off-leash when the opposite is true.
- and that there are City staff who actually monitor parks for appropriate behaviour. Have seen dogs chasing geese at Princes Island.
- Monitor to ensure your dog does not harass other people.
- Do not expect all people with or without other dogs to think that your dog is "friendly" when it is showing signs displaying otherwise.
- Fencing the bike paths that go through offleash areas.
- Off leash parks shouldnt have a bunch of unenforceable rules like making it that dogs mist come. How on earth can you enforce thatof stupid? Unenforceable riles
- So many rude people not picking up waste! No consequence enforced.
- Human must be in relative close proximity to their dog while off leash and human should not be distracted at length eg on the phone the entire time and unaware of dog's actions, behaviour. If dog is unable to be successful at off leash, do not bring them on leash and keep them on leash - other dogs get entangled, dog reacts to not having freedom
- Put away toys in off-leash parks where there are a lot of other dogs.
- Your dogs should have to be spayed and neutered to be at an off leash park. Especially males as Intact males are often more likely to display dominance to other males and ice versa making them more likely to have an altercation. People should also not be allowed to have puppies under the age of 4 months as they are not fully vaccinated and risk contracting parvovirus and distemper
- Just need to pick up after dog and be aware if dogs behaviour in the space. Should be no more strict than Small children
- Owners MUST have full and total control of their pet at all times. I have been pushed down by powerful dogs who run into me or jump up. Owners must be able to see their pet at all times if off-leash to reinforce that owners must pay attention to their pet.
- have seen so many dogs (not their fault) that are not properly trained and the owners do not think they have to have them under control
- Restricting bike use in off leash areas.
- Why in or NEAR. It should state ONLY IN. If a dog is not controlled enough that it can stay in an off leash area then it should not be off leash. You have just pointed out the issue with Calgary. Dog owners can get away with anything and everyone else in the City do not matter.
- We need some help from Parks on this one. There are many great off-leash areas that would benefit from better fencing to help keep the peace between off-leash dog owners, other park users, and wildlife.
- To many dog walkers At Edworthy. At times there are two or three dogs walkers walking together. ThAt means 20 - 30 dogs in a pack. Scary for me and my two☺☐ Also, how can they possibly know when their dogs are defecting, they are busy talking or on their phones. After walking in Severl

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

times a week for 20 years, I have never seen any type of bylaw officers or any monitors. Dog Walkers should have permits to use certain areas as to limit the numbers using a particular Area.

- able to control animal (physically able to retrieve animal )
- If someones dog has snuck away and they are trying to get them back and the dog stopa to get pets keep the dog there instead of letting them run further. Put training pens closer to entrances of park.
- Watch your dogs not stand in the middle talking ignoring all the dogs. People think its a place to go and let the dogs fend for themselves not taking any responsibility or jumping in when their dog attacks another dog or even calls their dog away from a leashed dog or a person who asks to keep your dog away. A person should be able to open the gate without having to worry about 5 other dogs that aren't theres
- That owners shouldn't be on their cellphones and should be watching their dog(s). Must have eye contact with their dog(s) at all times. People walk ahead of their dog(s) and can not see what their dog is doing behind them. People are visiting with others and not paying attention to their dogs because socializing with others is more important than watching their dogs.
- Owners must be within a reasonable distance to their dog to interject in any potentially negative situation that develops
- Rather than "come when called", owners should be in control of their dogs, and monitoring/managing their behaviour. It would be great to have separate areas for small breeds and larger dogs.
- To know your surroundings. Know natural areas and the wildlife that call it home. Get off your cell phone and pay attention.
- Why do you say near off-leash - "near" means ON a leash!!! And all rules would apply in a dog park and outside a dog park. The only difference is a leash or no leash.
- Monitor and immediately respond if dog acts inappropriately
- In an urban setting with wildlife, dogs should not be off leash. Ie. Nose Hill Park
- Clear signage for the boundaries of on and offleash - the signage is changeable and inconsistent and when it changes frequently, people don't pay attention.
- Only off-leash in off-leash areas!
- don't blame the dogs for inappropriate behaviour, blame the owners
- If you want to see how NONE of these happens, visit Nose Hill Park ... but watch your step.
- I realize the first box addresses this however, pet owners need to adhere to this and the only way to get the attention of many is through some sort of fining - if they do not carry evident that at least they look like they intend to clean up after the animal they should be fined.
- I understand that rules are that the dog must 100% be under the control of the owner, however I don't believe this is actually possible. No dog is 100% under the control of the owner. Owners are horribly unaware of what appropriate dog behavior is. Off-leash dogs in on-leash areas has become a major issue.
- Proper dog language and behaviour. No aggressive, fearful or unsocial dogs
- Need more fines given out so that dog guardians realize there are consequences to not following the rules.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not to get defensive when people ask for the dog waste to be picked up, for the dog owner to get their dog under control.
- Signage stating there is wildlife in the area and what wildlife has been seen/resides in the area
- Up to date vaccinations and shots
- Please set a maximum number of dog that walkers can take!!!! What I see daily at Deeridge off-leash is unbelievable!!
- many dog owners are not responsible for their dogs in off leash parks. their dog is not being appropriate and they are nowhere near or even close to the dog.
- ALL of the above, but most dog owners appear to think that their dog is a "good boy". Few owners seem to think that their dog is the problem.
- I think dog owners should be in control of their dogs at all time and be able to redirect them on command.
- People need to be responsible for their actions including their children. I think dog owners forget that dog parks are for dogs so having your child sitting on the ground eating a bag of chips is not ideal. I know dogs should be well trained/mannered but people need to sit them up for success also.
- These are all expectations now. People are busy and lazy and most of these expectations are not followed. They would also be impossible to enforce.
- If another person in the park (dog owner or not) is scared of a dogs behaviour ie. barking, running towards, jumping on the person. They should have a right to ask for that dogs leash to be put back on. I have run into this many times at nosehill park and dog owners do not see why this is wrong. I have been attacked by a dog badly in my past and when i see a dog running towards me and barking and me yelling 'stop' or 'down' doesn't stop the dog I get scared. Owners usually say 'oh don't worry he's nice' or 'he won't hurt you' it's not fair. They need to control their animal.
- some dogs don't come when called right away in off leash but they are not dangerous or vicious. I don't think that should be a requirement. I often call my dog (french bulldog) who if he is playing with another dog and having fun doesn't answer. But he doesn't bite, act aggressive to dogs or people. I have to go get him sometimes which is annoying to me but not hurtful.
- Do not allow your off-leash dog to approach a dog on a leash
- I admit, at the dog park my dog doesn't always come when I call her, BUT I always know where she is and if she is being a nuisance.
- No headphones or other distractions. Must focus on the dogs.
- The majority of ""doggy people"" don't use off leash dog parks or go at hours to avoid ""crazies""
As responsible dog owners, our biggest fear is irresponsible dog owners
- Control
  - need by law officer/ enforcement in off leash parking lots
  - need to license dog walkers
  - How do you ""monitor""?
  - How do you define?
  - Watch the wording
- When dogs approach

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- - Signage for dogparks starting 25m inside park
  - Education
  - Enforcement and education
  - Share land use
  - Bylaw Addresses this very well
- on leash or no dogs allowed, signage in playgrounds, bikepaths, athletic fields and public green spaces
- TAKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR YOUR DOG IF/WHEN IT INJURES ANOTHER DOG- dog owners who just walk away need to be fined and banned from owning a dog.
- Knowing when to NOT take their dog to an off leash park. Most owners are unaware of their dogs inappropriate behaviour. Perhaps all dogs must pass an off leash “test” to be able to use the parks offleash
- -Children need to be held or holding a parents hand at the dog park. -consequences for not abiding by the rules. (not picking up waste, or bringing an aggressive dog)
- Expectation that all dogs come every time they are called is inappropriate. Puppies and dogs constantly need training but how can you train them if the one area you are allowed to have them off leash doesn't allow them because they don't come back right away. Dogs won't always get along but proper ownership can allow them to co-exist in a shared off-leash space regardless.
- Dog owners to be respectful of non dog owners who would like peaceful enjoyment of parks without being bothered by dogs or their owners.
- If your dog harms another dog or person you need to be held accountable and be responsible for any associated costs.
- No off-lease pets in public parks and gardens
- Actually,, in a city our size. All dogs and cats should be on lease in public spaces. Safety first! Off lease areas - Off Lease only!
- Properly placed garbage bins. High number of garbage bins. Properly emptied garbage bins.
- Legal requirements when your dog attacks another pet or person.
- Dogs go on leash if there are small children around or if there are other activities going on that will be impacted negatively by dogs runn
- That dog owners are using actual designated off-leash parks, not just any regular park.
- Owners need to ensure that their dogs do not run up to and jump up on children
- It needs to be about socializing your dog, and not yourself, at least not so that you are distracted from what your dog is doing.
- Again it can be the best behaved dog and something can happen. Just like people not all dogs get along with each other. Once in a while maybe a dog doesn't come or gets snappy with another dog. People need to have some leeway with dogs and their owners.
- do not bring young children into the park unless they are in strollers or within arms reach of a parent. kids squeal, run, jump, and often carry food - it isn't fair to dogs to be perfectly behaved around kids in this setting.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- what do you do when there is an incident and the people don't want to take responsibility for dogs actions
- Dogs that are overly aggressive should not be in off leash parks.
- gan off-leash parks.
- To understand that often is not the best for pack dynamics to have an on leash dog at a off leash park.
- Proper training
- Bylaw officers should be patrolling off leash parks.
- I have encountered more aggressive owners than aggressive dogs. People also need to recognize that not all dog play is friendly.
- Don't bring dog of off leash area if they are territorial of owner
- i think all of the above are too relaxed - at all times a pet owner (dog or cat) must ensure that their pet does not pose a risk to other people or animals. "Monitoring" can be done from a significant distance, opens up the potential if you are not actively engaged
- DOG WALKERS need to be qualified and licensed as well as limited to the number of dogs they bring to the park. There is no way they am responsible watch and make sure they clean up after large number of dogs running loose. Again, it depends on the walker and the dogs in their care how many they can manage I have met dog walkers who are challenged to manage one dog let alone a pack.
- There needs to be enforcement of the above and those who do not act as responsible pet owners need to be disciplined (high fines, pet removal, etc.)
- There should be a maximum number of dogs per walker in off-leash parks. Some "professional" dog walkers have too many dogs, can't pay attention to all of them to monitor behaviour and pick up waste.
- In our neighbourhood nearly all green spaces are off-leash areas, so non dog owners have no choice but to use these spaces. Owners do not keep their dogs from running up to and even jumping on strangers. This is dangerous and stressful for non dog owners. Owners should be required to prevent their dogs from approaching strangers unless the stranger consents.
- Expectation that people will interfere when Behavior starts getting out of hand. This always occurs when people are in an off-leash area where they just stand around and drink coffee and watch their dogs. The dogs get more more ramped and many dog fights happen and the owners never jump in
- More signage stating on leash only areas. People think no sign means green light to off leash
- Toys at the offleash park have often caused territorial and aggression at the park. I would prefer toys and balls be kept for play at home.
- Dogs tha t exhibit aggressive barking, growling, or jumping up on people must be on a leash even in unleash areas.
- Aggressive dogs should not go near dog parks.
- Owners must be responsible when their dog acts inappropriatly and hurts someone or another dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't see the point of wasting resources to monitor people, check ins yes so behavior can be observed but not monitored, that's a waste of tax payers $.
- If a dog is on a leash in an off-leash park, give them distance! They are probably a rescue who is just now getting socialized, and nobody knows if they have triggers or if they are fearful of you asNd your dog
- Aggressive dogs, muzzled. Specified off-leash areas for small dogs only.
- Dogs should not be allowed off leash until they are inside the off leash park!
- Do not approach dog without owner consent - same as people without dogs
- I am running on paved bike/pedestrian paths in off-leash area in my neighbourhood. I am very tired of pet owners who feel that it is fair game for their dogs jump on me, bite me and knock me over (this is a routine experience). When I politely ask them to call their dog, I have been yelled at for not liking dogs and that I shouldn't be running in the park because it is for dogs. If paved trails are multi-use then there have to be clear rules on the boards for owners to know what is acceptable behaviour beyond picking up dog waste. Many owners are just oblivious and gather on the sidewalk with several walker-friends talking and drinking coffee with no awareness of what their dogs are doing. I've been running for 40 years and I bought my house in Collingwood partly because of the nearby running trail below John Laurie. This became an off-leash area several years ago and now I have to find times when dogs might not be in the park for my daily run. To top if off many of the dog owners drive to the neighbourhood to walk their dogs there. Please put up some rules for the dog-owners beyond cleaning up waste and having their dogs under control at all times. That appears to have little impact and the number of dogs in the park is increasing.
- A basic knowledge of dog behaviour and body language
- respect that others may not like dogs or may have allergies
- Dogs that have attacked another dog/person lose their off leash rights
- That the dog is under control - "appropriately" leaves way too much room for (mis)interpretation
- Animals in heat not allowed to be in off leash areas. It would be helpful if there were specific areas for small dogs and large dogs only
- I didn't tick off dogs must come when called because dogs don't always come right away when they're having fun meeting and playing with other dogs in an off-leash park even though they may be well trained and generally always come when they're called. There has to be some leeway there. Don't be fining people just because their dog is being a dog and is not responding to commands instantly like a trained soldier.
- If an off-leash dog attacks a leashed dog then the leashed dog is allowed to defend itself without repercussions from the city.
- I think dogs running loose on public property must pass an accredited canine good citizen course and its owner must wear a button or lanyard indicating such.
- Dogs should not be off leash unless they have a proper recall against distractions, should be tested
- Should only have fenced space where they go in a few at a time. Otherwise off leash parks should be banned..you will not have enough money to properly monitor them for bad behavior. If people

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

could monitor their dogs properly you wouldn't have the issues you have. As a breeder, it is in my contract that my puppy buyers are not allowed to take their dogs to off-leash parks.

- No toys
- Inform dog owners with dogs who have behaviour issues that off-leash dog parks are not suitable for those dogs.
- Re: coming when called should be expected, with leeway allowed for a dog who is learning
- That dog does not chase bikes or other moving items
- Education about dog interactions. Mandatory obedience classes. Education regarding small children not being in off-leash dog parks.
- Dogs should not be interacting with people who do not invite the interaction. (Dogs should not run up to people and jump on them).
- Remove dogs from Bowness Park. [personal information removed] Several other dog owners let their dogs run loose. I want to feel safe in a park. Dog poop on the sidewalks there as well.
- Not taking your dog to public areas if you suspect they may be ill in order to lessen the spread of diseases such as parvo and kennel cough
- Responsible owners/handlers with their dog or dogs at all times. An understanding of dog body language and control of dogs that are being aggressive or bullying.
- Limit amount of dogs one person can have under their control.
- Appropriate recourse when rules aren't followed.
- Maybe starting to support muzzle conditioning because the reality of it is not every dog will get along with every dog.
- I don't believe bikes should be allowed in off-leash areas. There are a ton of parks and pathways and only certain areas for dogs to be free and sooooo many are fearful. Off-leash parks should not be treated as playgrounds
- Dog walkers not bringing too many dogs that they cannot reasonably control them & be aware of when there is dog waste to be picked up. Living by an off-leash park I've seen them not pick up waste, pretend to pick it up & not have complete control over the dogs as there were too many. One time I saw a person walking her dog be surrounded by the dogs of two different walkers - it was 15 dogs plus the owner's one dog.
- If your dog attacks you are responsible for the vet bills
- For people with dogs. Still don't approach without consent.
- [personal information removed]. I think dog parks are a bad idea. Too many irresponsible owners and out-of-control dogs. I refuse to use them
- Allow the animals to behave like an animal and not impose human behaviour onto animals.
- Owners should not be on phone and chit-chatting with friends not looking after their dogs
- Keep your dog off-leash in an off-leash area and on-leash in a leashed area. Not the other way around as it is not fair to leashed dogs.
- Humans behave appropriately around off-leash dogs

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs must come when called within reason - sometimes things just smell too good to recall the first time.
- be able to see when pet needs to be short leashed
- Be able to control the dogs you bring (for example, dog walkers who cannot monitor multiple dogs).
- educating the pet owners. off-leash parks are not a free for all to do whatever they want.
- An understanding of when a park is on leash and off leash, such as, if a pathway is near an off leash park, can dogs be off leash on the pathway?
- *****Put your dog on a leash while in the parking lot. The parking lot is not an off leash park.*****
People stand around their vehicles and talk while the dogs run around other vehicles and the lot.
- Understanding body language of patrons who are uncomfortable with dogs approaching
- respect for persons who are not comfortable with dogs.
- Many of the walkers walk dogs off leash in back lanes and the dogs run across streets there is no control, people also run dogs in off leash while driving their car in the back lane there is no control and is dangerous
- In a perfect world they come when called...its not practical in an off leash setting all the time like excited kids they lose focus at times. Some Off leash areas should be fenced for safety just like kids playground areas.
- Muzzles on dog if fishy
- I don't go to off leash parks because of the risks.
- clear identification of off-leash areas (what signs to look for; how to identify off-leash areas on maps); clear identification of areas where dogs are not permitted - too many dog owners think all open green spaces are a place for their dog to be off-leash.
- In off leash parks please place a minimum age (12+). Too many young kids are there who are NOT controlled and run up to dogs and harass them. Off leash parks are for dogs, not kids.
- Non aggressive and not in heat
- that people stop claiming fear and taking friendly dogs' owners to court.
- close all off-leash parks, they are the worst idea ever.
- Information about what is considered proper human behaviour when in the company of dogs!
- Dogs under control of owner, on leash or off.
- Mitigation of risks in park: toys and treats should not be permitted in any off leash park due to risk of fights over guarding
- Having a separate area for smaller dogs.
- Owners who go to a dog park and stand in the middle ignoring their dogs which they gossip is not respectful to other owners who they need to teach those people's dogs how to act or to break up a fight
- Owners carrying poop bags anytime they are in the off leash areas. Owners carrying a flashlight at night
- Don't take dog off leash until in the designated areas.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Know normal dog behaviour ie. do not pick a dog up and not expect other dogs not to be curious or jump up to investigate.
- When walking your dog and approaching people with dogs keep yourself between them and your dog.
- Other park patrons are not taken over by dogs; especially in very small green spaces.
- Off leash dogs should not jump on persons or false charge them or chase and kill wildlife. However off leash dog parks drive away other park users and wildlife anyway.
- Dogs should not be walked on leash in off leash areas, dogs who have bitten people or other dogs should not be walked in off leash areas.
- Knowing some dogs are being trained/socialized so patience/understanding may be required. If a dog is possessive about a ball or toy, expect other dogs will also want it so don't bring it out unless willing to to share.
- Dog must be in view of owner. Often, i am walking along and a dog runs up to me. In a large beautiful park like Nose Hill, dogs just run up to you (including pitbulls) and there is no owner in sight. It is terrifying.
- Dogs must be vaccinated
- Not assuming everyone loves dogs as much as they do
- Obey the laws, and observe the "rules"
- Monitor that dog stays within sight, monitor that dog stays within bounds of off-leash area (lots of these areas aren't fenced - they ALL should be), control barking, ensure dog does not interfere with cyclists on pathways.

Reasonable expectations in or near off-leash parks for people without dogs

- Ask the owner if something is concerning or questioning about the dog rather than making personal assumptions.
- Possibly be cautioned about small children in the off leash parks. We have seen unsupervised kids being approached by dogs that think they want to play. Always looked like it could go bad quick.
- I once saw someone picnic on the ground at an off leash park then flip our when dogs approached them. Leave off leash spaces for dog owners only please.
- If you are in an off leash area, be prepared to be approached by dogs
- Do not walk in an off-leash park if you do not want to be approached by a dog.
- Teach kids basic dog safety rules if you choose to bring them to off leash park.
- Bicyclists in off-leash areas need to SLOW DOWN or even get off their bikes.
- How to speak to Owners when you have a concern about animal welfare or behaviour
- Accept that people have dogs and if you don't like that, stay at home and never go outside
- Knowing what is appropriate dog behaviour and how to report concerns
- If you are afraid of dogs do NOT scream and run. Do not be in an off leash area.
- Many areas where dogs are allowed off leash are not dog parks. They are multi-use areas.
- Only allow off-leash in FULLY FENCED AREAS. Never as a part of general pathways.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Keep bikes out of off-leash areas and in parks make sure they ring a bell or yell when passing people with dogs - most don't
- Understand fundamentals of animal behavior if they wish to be in an offleash environment.
- Same information in regards to their children and not harassing and annoying the dogs so as not to create a potential incident.
- Accept that an off leash area means they are to be shared. Dogs play, and bark. And that's ok.
- Appropriate reactions for people who do not like dogs I.e. standing still and screaming at the top of your lungs as my dog peacefully walks by you is pretty inappropriate.
- There is an issue with cyclists and dog walkers. Cyclist go too fast in off leash areas. It is impossible to keep dog interactions completely off the pathway 100% of the time. Pathways through dog off leash areas should be included. Walkers and cyclists can act accordingly. However if the off leash area is wide enough dogs should be kept away from the walkways
- Respect the off-leash areas
- Owners of dogs NEED ACCOUNTABILITY and there is little to NO consequences right now for irresponsible pet owners to change their ways
- Not biking or jogging through off leash parks
- Do not expect dogs and their owners to want to engage with you.
- No children/ unsupervised minors in dog parks without a dog
- Respect dog owners' requests. Too many people approach and "rough up" dogs despite being asked not to.
- An education about what constitutes unacceptable or aggressive behavior on the part of non-dog owners. I've found that many people don't know or don't care when they are mistreating someone else's pet
- Be reasonable in your expectations. Dogs (and people) are not perfect. You cannot be in an offleash area without expecting some sort of interaction with a dog. If you are terrified of dogs, why go to an off-leash area? Seems some people do it deliberately to create trouble.
- Do not bring your children to an off leash park.
- Better enforcement of none off leash areas
- Respect of people and dogs
- In off leash specific parks, citizens with or without dogs should not be tobogganing, have kids on bikes, or having picnics
- If you don't like dogs, don't take a walk in an off-leash park.
- Understanding K9 behaviour and body language
- While I wouldn't try to pet a dog without owner consent, often the dogs approach me, not the other way around.
- To be able to enjoy public parks without fear of pets and owners who flagrantly ignore the rules.
- ASK ASK ASK
- For people with children . Signage indicating how unsanitary the ground is and to recommend not rolling around in the grass and shoving random pieces of grass and sticks in chickens mouth

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Be kind.
- So i guess you think people are so braindead that they need the city to tell them to be aware of their surroundings. As for approaching dogs without owner consent. It is impossible to guarantee you will get consent when dogs are running around a dog park. The question is pointless.
- Do not get mad when in an off leash area, that a dog is coming up to sniff you, or that you have to slow down while riding your mountain bike.
- Teach your children how to interact with dogs.
- DO NOT TOUCH OR REACH FOR OR APPROACH ANY DOGS EVER!!!! Allow a dog to come to you so STOP closed palms relax and the dog will let the human know if it wants to engage. It's not hard to gage a canines willingness but human ego kicks in.
- Understanding of the boundaries of designated off leash areas.
- Don't be aggressive to animals. Knowing how to react properly when feel in an unsafe situation with a dog as your movements and actions will determine theirs
- Dog parks are not the same as playgrounds for your kids. People that choose to bring children to the park should be aware of the dangers of your child approaching or inappropriately interacting with (taunting, hugging, running toward or away from, etc.) a stranger dog and should enter the park at their own risk.
- educate children on proper behaviour around dogs
- Awareness of biking - that many dogs chase bikes.
- Dog parks should be fenced off entirely with no access to public parks or bike paths. People without dogs should not have to try and avoid dogs.
- General safety around animals. A surprisingly large amount of people overreact to animals, not just dogs.
- how to avoid dog bites
- Stay away from off-leash parks if you don't like dogs - there are plenty of beautiful places dogs are leashed
- Have a base knowledge of dog behaviour and what is appropriate and not
- Appropriate activities for an off leash area (i.e not skateboarding through sue Higgins)
- Don't go to an off leash park if you dont want to run into a dog
- Have bells on bikes to make people aware of their approach. Use lights between sunset & sunrise. Similar rules for people on skateboards etc.
- I would like to see a limit of 6 dogs per dog walker. I have seen some with 12 dogs and there is no way they can watch everyone of them and pick up after them. I have seen some that have lost dogs due to too many.
- Discourage frisbee throwing between people (without a dog), discourage riding a bicycle through a dog park
- We need to feel safe if we do not own a pet. I do NOT want to meet their pet.
- Appropriate human behaviour such as what is considered to be antagonizing for a pet
- If you're in an off-leash park and you don't want animals approaching find another route.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Sharing space on sidewalks and using wheeled vehicles like skateboards/scooters/wheeled shoes with caution around leashed dogs especially when approaching from a corner or behind
- Keep bicycles out of off leash parks
- Citizens shouldn't have to adapt their behaviour to accommodate dogs. Off leash areas let dog owners be lazy. If your dog needs exercise, walk it on leash.
- Don't speed through off leash parks on bicycles for the safety of everyone!
- Contact 311 if observe negative encounters between owners and others, pets and others.
- People without dogs should expect to be able to enjoy dog free spaces in public.
- Much like the previous point, owners NEED to understand that dogs do not understand things the way that humans do. You should be asking the owner, and NOT the dog if their dog can greet their dog. It happens way too often that people walk up to another person and before anyone can agree or disagree, the dogs are face to face.
- everybody has the right to use the parks such as Nose Hill and dogs need to be under control. I did walk a dog up there off leash but kept him a way from people and bikes.
- Don't feed them anything without owner consent, teach kids not to tease dogs through fences, and that small dogs are often the most likely to cause harm.
- Respect owner requests about interacting with their dog
- don't be eating food or have food on your person when in the off leash area
- Know how to approach a dog properly once consent is given
- should never have to worry about being attacked
- Don't walk in dog parks if you don't like dogs
- Expectations of when you meet a dog outside of off-leash areas. (Runners quietly approaching from behind without announcing their presence.)
- Ask permission to pet the dog.
- Dogs should get priority. Dog friendly spaces are limited, human spaces are not. If you don't like dogs, get out of the park
- happy that others may want to approach dogs, but again. at your own risk, don't blame the dog or owner if something happens because you don't know how to behave or read a dog's behavior.
- no bike riding in an off leash area
- How can a person get consent from an owner if the dog is off leash & roaming freely (as is usual)?
- There are few off-leash parks yet dog owners are automatically at fault if their dog chases a cyclist riding through the off-leash, or a child running with food in their hand (yup, that's happened). A dog - even a good dog - might find this irresistible. BUT, it's the owner's fault, not the fault of the [removed] riding through an off-leash park. My dogs encountered a jogger at Edworthy who looked annoyed every time they barked at him. He was running (dog thinks 'HEY that looks FUN'), jogger gets pissed off and yells at me and threatens me. YET, he can jog ANYWHERE. I can't off-leash my dogs anywhere.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dog owners should be responsible for their dogs at all times. if I'm out for a walk the dog owner should be aware that there are other people in the park besides them not the other way around. Dogs don't rule, not even in dog parks!
- Bicycles in an offleash area can trigger predatory responses in dogs (even the most friendly ones!), or simply a very eager greeting. Children on strider bikes, strollers, bikes are sometimes seen. Signs should be posted to alert these park users of the risk they are creating.
- Please stop putting cycle paths through off leash areas. Cyclists are always aggressive and will openly challenge you for having your dog off leash. This is another living creature that I care for, it's more important than your midlife crisis hobby
- Education and signage advising people not to let small children run around in off-leash areas.
- Persal behavior, not screaming around dogs, running, etc
- Do not call or try to attract a dog's attention. It's not your dog. Don't call it over so you can play with it or cause a potential issue.
- Be cautious when riding bikes through off-leash areas, do not have picnics in off leash park, do not set up temporary camps in off-leash park, do not leave food, be cautious about young children running around, do not use off-leash parks for fitness classes
- Don't acknowledge my animal and he won't acknowledge you. Education is key. Too many cultures are against animal ownership, and since our city is such a smattering of different cultures, I think it's fair that the newcomers are informed that yes, having a large dog is common in Canada. Stop trying to kick him
- What is appropriate behavior in off-leash parks - ie - sledding is NOT appropriate.
- Please be patient with dog's, not all yet come back to their owner's on command and some can be very exuberant. Patience and kindness needs to be applied.
- What areas are animal free and posting of no dogs allowed areas (like parks with playgrounds)
- People with children must educate them on how to approach dogs. There also needs to be regulations on the dog park being for dogs and is not a playground for children to run around wildly.
- If you're in a dog park you should expect a happy or inquisitive dog to visit. I'd hope scared of dogs choose another park
- Monitor your children and don't expect dog owners to be responsible for them. Excessively fearful people including children should not go to dog parks, it causes issues even with well behaved dogs if they start running and screaming. Don't ride bikes through off-leash areas, some dogs have strong herding drives.
- There is a huge problem with recreational users of dog parks and their lack of understanding of how to act around dogs. Quietly jogging up being a dog and owner can startle the dog and result in a very bad situation. All users of off-leash dog parks must share in responsible etiquette.
- The onus needs to be on dog-owners, not on others! Make it clear whom the bylaws are aimed at and why!
- ban off-leash parks
- how to respond when bitten by an off leash dog in an on-leach area.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That people who choose to go to an off-leash area not complain that dogs are running around and playing.
- Be aware of dog behavior so that you act accordingly. If you are afraid of dogs or don't like them, do not go to an off-leash dog park.
- Do not tease or threaten a dog or its owner/walker
- I know there are rules about dogs being in a river but nobody follows that
- Education on how to report bad behaviour and/or infractions and what said infractions are.
- take responsibility when they are the casue of an issue and do not automatically blame the animal and have it punished.
- Expect the owners have animals under control ...
- you have to be aware of surrounding everywhere not just off leash for people constantly allow their dogs off leash on sidewalks, alleys, green spaces, play parks/fields, parks. This is a huge issue and needs to be addressed!
- Know how to behave when approached by a dog, at least stand still - do not scream or run.
- do not play/toboggan/jog in off-leash parks.
- If riding a bike in an off leash area use a bell, license the bike so one can make a complaint about a biker, speed on pathways must be enforced, may a camera would work! Also when riding a bike in the off leash parks, don't cross country your bike, STAY ON THE BIME PATHWAY, be respectful of people out just walking.
- there needs to be very obvous and clear signage and there needs to be ways for people to manouver through parks WITHOUT having to go through off leash areas and encounter other people's dogs.
- Dog training is a life long endeavor. Never encourage bad behaviour but don't expect every young dog to be completely trained immediately. Be kind.
- People need to be more aware of their surroundings and be understanding that they are in an off leash area and that they have a responsibility to ensure the safety of the dogs in the area. I have had multiple people on bikes get angry at me because they were not paying attention and ran into my dog. I have also seen people on bikes go out of their way to kick my dog while she is on the pathway. Because of this I no longer feel safe taking her to multi-use areas and have to drive 20 minutes to the nearest area that is designated as only an off leash area
- Carry mace.
- Reiterate that off-leash areas are in fact people areas that ALLOW dogs to be off leash, not dog areas that allow people to use.
- Warnings about choosing to bike and run in an off-leash park. Dogs chase
- It is not ok to take your kids sledding in an off leash off leash dog park.
- People and children without dogs should be able to expect that they will never be approached by an off leash dog when outside of an offleash area. Kids should be able to assume safety (with respect to dogs) at all playgrounds

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Do not bring young children to dog park just to “play around” these parks ARE NOT for your kids! Stay away!
- Don’t tease a dog or try to make them bark when they are in their own back yard. Also don’t throw food for them to eat as it can make them sick.
- An expectation to not be harassed.
- Yes post up the hours. But really why do the small children need to walk through the off leash area to get to their playground. This is wrong. City dogs need fenced in off leash areas. See other great cities. Fenced areas mean the
- dont ride a bike through an off leash park. you will likely get chased. City shouldnt have bike paths through off leash parks or put fence around it.
- Running in off leash areas, causes dogs to bark and chase runners. Not appropriate and could cause harm to everyone. Runners without dogs seem to cause the most problems vs runners with there dogs offleash as well or running with them.
- People should teach their kids to never run towards a dog, no matter how friendly the dog appears.
- Adults need to keep themselves and especially they’re children away, unless given permission. The child HAS to be taught how to be kind to an animal!
- Be aware of animal behaviour and signs that a dog doesn’t want to be approached
- Knowing what normal dog behavior is and why they behave the way they do.
- As I said education about dogs and how to interact or avoid interaction...NOT RUNNING AND SCREAMING!
- Tolerance and less paranoia.
- Dog owner should be held liable for any vicious animal incidents.
- Ignore dogs please. Don't let your children run up to dogs.
- Do NOT bike/scooter in off leash areas because you and the dog could be seriously injured when in motion.
- If your in an off leash area, expect that a dog will approach you. Children in off leash areas should be educated about how to approach a dog & always asking consent first.
- Be aware of normal dog behaviour
- A sign in off leash parks, entry at your own risk to life and limb.
- Teach children how to properly approach a dog in all situations. The people on bikes in parks should not ride through a park as some dogs can be fearful. I've seen dogs get hit by cyclists in dog parks.
- Instructions on how to respond when being attacked or faced with aggressive dogs
- do not eat food in the off leash park especially do let children eat/carry food in off leash parks
- Basic animal behavioural education
- If you are walking in a designated dog area, do not get all upset when a dog approaches you. You’re in their space
- People without dogs should feel safe walking near an off-leash park because every off-leash dog should not go anywhere near them if the owner is doing their due diligence and keeping their dog monitored.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Go elsewhere.
- Do not approach with out consent. Give right if way to dog walkers (people with multiple dogs)
- Do not enter off leash area if you do not want to interact with dogs
- More signage is needed to ensure dog defecation is collected from parks like Edworthy where there's an off-leash area above the park.
- Signage needs to tell non-dog owners how to report dog defecation and irresponsible ownership
- Do not bring children to an offleash dog park
- Make it clear to not touch service animals
- Do not leave children unattended or let children run around in off leash areas and approach dogs
- Do not ride your bike in the designated dog park area - stay on the paths. (ie Sue Higgins)
- Make it aware to non pet owners that these area have large amount of urine and fecal matter present. Not a good area for children to be playing. Basically they are dog bathrooms.
- Do not intentionally antagonize dogs in order to provoke a response.
- Be aware in areas with dogs accidents can happen. If scared of dogs don't go to those areas.
- Have proper protection to ward off dog attacks.
- Be brave enough to ask for pet on leash or pick up mess.
- Let people know if their dog did something wrong in a polite way
- Continuing again from above... 'Be aware of surroundings' should not be an unreasonable expectation. Having said that the great majority of people nowadays have NO idea of their surroundings. I see it all the time, they've got their heads in their devices, they're walking along the sidewalk without any device and yet, ask them 'did you see that dog/cat/coyote/skunk that just crossed the road
- It's not my job to learn about other people's dogs. I'm too busy learning in other areas of my life.
- Understand you are going to likely be approached by dogs if you are walking in an offleash park and accept that.
- People without dogs should not be allowed to roller blade, skateboard, bike, etc. through off leash areas. They are designated off leash so that people have a safe place to spend time with their dogs without getting run over or having their dogs spooked that can create behavior issues.
- be mindful of young children...i understand off-lease spaces are shared and dogs need to be well behaved. But sometimes kids can run/charge at dogs. Our dog listens, is obedient but fearful of children. Parents have to understand the space is shared and kids can't run up to strange dogs screaming at them, just like my dog can't run up to them barking and growling
- Off leash parks should be areas that are specifically designated for dogs. There should be no off-leash in a park that is regularly used by the general public, unless it is its own fenced off area.
- I feel that dog owners rights have surpassed people rights at off leash parks (Specifically Rotary Park). My kids don't run free - they stay on the sidewalk because they have been charged by enough dogs in this area. The boundaries at Rotary park are not meeting the bylaws of distances from sidewalks and playgrounds.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If you don't like possibly being approached by a dog do not come in. I see this many times people are afraid of dogs approaching them even when the dog is under control. Why are you in a dog park if you are afraid of dogs? Sadly this happens more than it should
- go somewhere else.
- Report dog owners who do not clean up after their dog.
- People are responsible for their children and teaching them
- No cycling in off-leash areas
- No children under the age of 6 walking in a dog park without being in a arms reach of a parent
- Face it, the policy of not having signage on non-off leash greenspace areas is not workable for the dog-owners who have a vested interest in such things... how is it ever going to work to inform the non-dog owners.
- If you choose to sled, bike, run, play in an off leash park you must be comfortable with dogs approaching you and being interested in your activity, if not then do these activities at a park not designated as off leash
- Slow down on bikes in off-leash areas.
- They should also be making sure their children if they have any are respectful and calm when around dogs
- Teach children how to safely interact with Dogs.
- Expect to share the space and think about the effect your choices will have on dogs. For example sitting and eating on ground.
- Monitor and watch children in off-leash areas. Teach children that loud, screaming running behaviour attracts dogs. Pick up small children or stay close by in off leash parks. Require cyclists to slow down in or near off leash areas. Teach immigrants and others who are terrified of dogs that there are areas they can walk where there are no dogs
- Signage ensuring people know when they are in an off leash area, so they aren't surprised when dogs come up to say hello
- We need some help from Parks on this one. There are many great off-leash areas that would benefit from better fencing to help keep the peace between off-leash dog owners, other park users, and wildlife.
- Limitation of city's responsibility
- Proper interaction with dogs
- Do not call someone else's dog
- Don't freak out !!!!! Know canine behavior as well.
- Don't judge a dog by the way it looks
- If you are scarred of dogs, then stay out of off leash dog parks.
- cyclists on bike paths that run through dog walk areas need to be aware and slow down considerably in these areas. It should not be a fine to dog owners where dogs go on walking/cycling path s in areas where the off leash area is shared with the pathway.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- better signage so those who don't want to be involved in normal animal interactions they can avoid off leash parks all together. there are regular parks they can go to instead
- they should know it's a shared space, and if you choose to run or bike in an off-leash area, there's always the possibility that dogs will run up to you, jump on you, and in some cases chase you. Please be patient and understanding as the dog owner gets control of and manages their dog. g.
- A general person might not be approaching, but needing to pass an owner and a dog. It should not be the other person needing not to approach; it should be the dog owner needing to detour. There should not be any off-leash areas unless it is in an enclosed dog park or out in the country. The owner and dog can run and walk together with a leash connection at all other times.
- No tobogganing or any sleds /wagons within a offleash .. dogs don't understand what they are and will chase them
- If the dig approaches you I believe you should be able to interact IF you know how to do so correctly. But I believe you should never just come at someone's dogs without asking.
- Don't scream, don't run away from dog, understand dogs.
- eliminate off-leash areas in public parks.
- Do not leave out open garbage (back alleys) or other poisonous materials (washer fluid)
- Don't act scared while in a dog park.
- Don't go into an off leash area if you don't want to be around dogs. Do not allow children to play in off leash areas.
- Not to attend unless you're comfortable and familiar with dog behaviors
- Be aware you are sharing a multi-use space and may be approached by young or excitable dogs.
- I never approach a dog, but they often approach me even though I don't want them to. Even in off-leash areas, dogs are supposed to be controlled AND on leash when on the bike path. Few owners comply with this on Nose Hill.
- If you don't like dogs then don't go to an off-leash park.
- How can we keep them out of our yards for those who just let them run free. Why cannot we enjoy our own yards without picking up their dogs excrements all the time.
- No off-path bicycling through off leash parks
- Do not ride a bike/tricycle in an off-leash park
- Do not rollerblade, bike, sled, skateboard, scooter in off leash areas. Child must always be accompanied by an adult. If children do not respect the park rules then they should not be allowed
- They need to have more education on how to behave around dogs, especially in off leash areas.
- Ban retractable leash or more education
- Partially the responsibility of dog owners and non dog owners
  - signage - educations
  - Expectations around conduct in off leash park and non -petowners
- most Calgaryians do not own a pet and pet owner/ non owner respect should be endorsed
- Bike riders and joggers with dogs on leashes on sidewalks dominate sidewalk and force other users off the path. They're hazardous.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- More focus on teaching children how to interact with unknown dogs
- If you do not like dogs no matter how big or small avoid dog park areas or places where dogs are allowed off leash. City could provide a map on Calgary website
- Children not left to wander, or too far from the parents (ex: pulled by a snow sled!!)
- Understand that dogs may come say hi to you and be alright with it.
- Lighten up!
- No off-lease pets in public parks and gardens. REsponsibility of owner to have animal under COMPLETE CONTROL AT ALL TIMES in public parks and gardens
- Watch your children to not approach a dog without owner consent
- Safety of the general population regardless of age and ability should be first! Not the love of an animal or convenience of owning an animal.
- Off leash park designations are dated in the city and many of them are now highly busy with people who do not have dog and have a right to be safe from overly aggressive dogs
- Dog behavior, not approaching dogs or have children running, chasing and screaming at them.
- Young children should not be allowed to roam freely in off leash parks. Bicyclist need to slow down
- Dont go in off-leash areas unless you are comfortable with dogs running free - I am always surprised when people stroll through off-leash areas and then don't want to be around dogs - yep this happens!
- if you are afraid of dogs or do not like dogs, stay away from off leash areas
- Do not bring open food in to dog parks. Do not allow unattended children at dog parks.
- Do not feed dogs without their owner's consent or leave food around
- Be more cautious when in off-leash areas (e.g. slow down when on a bike); recognize that dogs are dogs and will behave as such
- Education and respect
- Do not take little kids to an off leash park with a stroller or otherwise. It's not safe.
- Keep toddlers within reach. I have seen too many incidents where toddlers are running far ahead of parents and have been knocked to the ground by dogs simply running.
- Not all dogs are aggressive
- Be aware that no matter how conscientious a dog owner is about their dog, dogs are animals. If people are afraid of dogs, they should stay out of dog parks. When I go into a dog park I go knowing that accidents can happen and that if dogs are running and playing there is a chance I could accidentally get knocked down by a dog no matter how well trained that dog is and how conscientious the owner is. People enter dog parks at their own risk and should be aware of that
- We should have the right to say 'no dogs' and have the dog-owner prevent the dog from approaching us. I have been jumped on by large dogs (retrievers, labs) without even an apology by the owner.
- No riding of bikes, skateboards, scooters, anything with wheels in off-leash dog parks. This encourages predatory behaviour in dogs. Dogs need a place to be off leash if they are socially able. It should be the humans that can ride somewhere else.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- When bike riding or jogging through an off leash park stop pedalling/running if a dog starts chasing. Allow the owner time to collect their dog before continuing on. If you continue to act as prey the owner will have a hard time reigning in their pet
- to not kick or throw rocks at my dogs who are in off leash designations, bikes to let me know when they are oncoming if coming from behind. Not to yell at me, or freak out as dogs will be drawn to the energy.
- Don't walk through an off leash dog park if you do not like dogs or do not want to be bothered by them, and then they get upset at the owner that a dog is near them. Had happened multiple times.
- Do not allow your dogs to approach cats, in public space, and that offices, in pet stores...
- Again, education is key! People who don't own pets need to know the rules of how to behave themselves when at or near an off leash area.
- People need to be informed on the proper way to approach a dog, what to do and not to do. Most people are totally ignorant of this information which is why a lot of people get bit.
- Don't walk/ride in an off leash park if you don't want to be around dogs.
- Please teach your children proper behavior. 1) no running, screaming towards a strange dog. (Or familiar one) 2) ask and actually wait for an answer before approaching a dog 3) get away from the dog's face, don't pull fur, don't hit, stop provoking dogs etc.
- Information on the website i.e. dog behaviour perhaps , appropriate human behaviour with dogs to help those that wouldn't have any knowledge because they are not dog people might help eliminate some negative interactions and feedback. Knowledge is illuminating.
- Clear "off-leash" area signage
- Do not expect to not be approached by dogs or have them come near you. You're in an off-leash area where dogs are allowed to be free and off-leash. Many dogs are friendly and like to meet people so will go up to people when they see them. If you're afraid of or don't like dogs then don't go to an off-leash park because it's for dogs and dog-owners. At the same time, you should be safe to walk there so you shouldn't have to worry about being attacked but if a dog just comes up in a friendly way to say hello and get a pet, don't get bent out of shape and start telling people to keep their dogs on a leash.
- If you own a home that backs on to an off leash park and you don't have a fence you should be prepared that a dog might enter your yard for a few moments.
- ban on bicycles/tricycles in off leash parks
- No feeding with out permission
- Do not bring small children into an off leash area to see/play with the puppies, and then complain if they get knocked over.
- Education on proper dog etiquette for their kids.
- If the person does not have or is not accompanying a dog, go to a park without dogs, if they cannot accept dogs behaving as dogs.
- People walking through an off leash park need to understand that it is an off leash park park and dogs may be around them/ come say hello.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Do not allow children to play in offleash areas. There is a real risk of injury due to accident (i.e. being knocked over by running dogs). Do not bring picnics/human food into offleash areas. Again, this is behaviour that can cause a conflict with dogs -- there are many more areas which are designed for human use with dogs on leash/absent, that people shouldn't infringe on offleash dog areas for that.
- Do not bring small children to an off leash dog area.
- I can never go out behind my house (we back on to an off leash area in Dalhousie). I had a dog jump over my chain link fence, into my yard, chasing a squirrel. There are 2 dog walkers that drive there. One has five dogs and the other has 10 dogs along with several other dog owners.
- It would be nice if people were educated about not running away if they are afraid of dogs and to not go near areas that are designated off-leash if they are afraid of dogs.
- Don't go to an off leash park if they are fearful of dogs?
- Off leash parks are not playgrounds for children.
- Aware that dog savvy awareness is expected when you're in a dog designated area.
- dont bring small children into an off leash unless you can be near to pick them up
- Be respectful around other peoples dogs and recognize both the dogs and owners rights in situations such as at a dog park
- why would non dog folks be in an off leash park, designated for dogs?
- Get off your bike
- Proper behavior around animals. Some people panic and cause a situation where there should not have been.
- Leave the snacks at home, especially if you have kids. If my dog jumps on your toddler to get to the food, it's me and my dog that get in trouble, and that's not fair.
- When out for a walk, be aware when entering off-leash dog areas, especially if you do not understand dog behaviour or do not like dogs.
- Dogs cannot be expected to know the boundary of the off-leash area; pet owners should therefore be mindful of where they let their pets run offleash.
- Ask for what they need from the owner when approaching
- Just because a park is designed off leash does not mean that they "own" the park, it is still multi-user, which I feel they (dog owners) sometimes forget. They call it a "dog park" not "designed off leash park". Important distinction
- do not lead with your face!!
- Bike should not be riding on grassy areas on off-leash parks. They should only ride on the paving path (19th Ave NW Off-leash park is a perfect example)
- Each person has a responsibility to act appropriately around any animal.
- Learn how to move around off leaah dog... not act like a play thing or prey
- If you are afraid of dogs, stay away from the dog parks so you are less inclined to make accusations.
- Do not call or talk to someones dog with put consent
- Parents with children identify risks to children in off leash areas. The parks are for dogs not unsupervised children

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- When walking your dog and approaching people, keep yourself between them and your dog.
- Other park patrons are not taken over by dogs; especially in small parks.
- Some folks are scared of dogs but they should realize that staring a dog in the eyes can be a sign of aggressiveness.
- Most off-leash parks are completely taken over by dogs and their owners are no longer multi-use parks which is unfair to the majority of user groups and taxpayers.
- All parks include a level of risk which must be accepted. Scratches, dirt, etc happen.
- Especially for men: try not to be a large overpowering hulk. Avoid black clothes and hoodies. Walk properly.
- I don't expect anything of people without dogs. I hate when dogs run up to me when I am just walking along in Nose Hill. They could attack me and no one is around.
- Aside from pet owners, responsible community members should also not be littering. Pets & wildlife will pick up food improperly disposed of which can be dangerous & lead to expensive vet bills for pet owners. It is also a blight on the community. People picnicking in off-leash zones or multi-use parks need to be aware they are in off-leash zones and not leave food accessible to pets/wildlife. Homeless shouldn't be defecating in parks, or disposing needles/other trash. Cyclists and runners with pets need to be aware of pet activity and pick-up. They also need to know pedestrians have the right of way and not push their way through. Cyclists should be using bells and provide appropriate time for pet owners to corral their pets. They also should be obeying speed limits and when appropriate adjust to lower speeds as necessary.
- How to report feeling threatened by or an attack by an off-leash dog
- Information on how to communicate with non-compliant pet owners.
- Don't complain when you are walking without a dog through an off-leash dog park.
- People without dogs should be allowed to roam in dog parks but with the expectation that not all dogs are well behaved and that involuntary interaction is likely.

Expectations of dog behavior in other public spaces that are not off-leash areas

- Dogs MUST be on a leash. And owners must be in control of the dog at all times.
- I think that owners (and non-owners) are not as aware of appropriate dog behaviour as they could be. It's really hard to get affordable dog training and behaviour help in this City (hundreds of dollars for basic classes). That a lot of people just don't do it and their pets are set up to fail.
- Waste pick up!
- I expect dogs to not lunge or impact other users of public spaces. Many people do not care for dogs and do not choose to interact with your pets and training for public spaces is critical. I expect that waste is picked up immediately. I expect that vaccines are up to date.
- On leash and under control. Muzzled if dangerous.
- Same expectation as for humans - respect other people and the nature.
- On leash on pathways, under control, not harassing wildlife

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Owner responsibility for ALL dogs. It seems that those with small dogs seem to think rules don't apply to them and when their dog starts something with a larger dog it gets blamed on the bigger dog. ALL dogs need to be trained and follow the bylaw even if your dog is 10lbs.
- Good behaviour;
Be on a leash
- Keep to the right.
- Dogs must be on leash. Dogs must be in a heel position. Dogs must not be allowed to run up to other pedestrians/pets without the consent of the other party. Dogs must have good recall.
- calm and focused animal under control
- The pet needs to be managed in away the ensures that they are not a tripping hazard.
- That dogs are controlled (ie not lunging or jumping on people). I expect people to move off to the side of the pathway if their dog is not able to be controlled.
- To keep them on a leash. Many automobile accidents happen when dogs run into the road when they have not been leashed
- non-aggressive
with the owner
- We have dogs on our lawn frequently. They come up on my front deck when I'm sitting there and find poop periodically on my lawn. It is frustrating that people are feeling so entitled to have their dog with them at all times. The restaurant and mall's allowing dogs is getting out of control too.
- Polite, not in the way of bikes, under control or muzzled if need be.
- They should be on leash and under control. I don't want to run over off leash or out of control dogs when I'm biking.
- controlled dogs on leash.
- if near people, they should be leashed; if away from people, I don't see leashing as an issue
- dogs should be on leash
- Owners always have animal on a leash unless in a dog park area
- I expect the dog to not be aggressive. Jumping or barking is fine, I just expect to be able to walk away from (or near) your dog without issues.
- Same as with off leash parks, additionally the dogs should be taught to yield to traffic (example - cyclists)
- Dogs should be under control, and the walker should pick up waste.
- Dogs need to be on a leash/harness. If an owner knows his dog is aggressive, he/she needs to be sure that the dog is also muzzled.
- Keep the dogs on a leash and pick up the dog waste....especially in the winter. It creates an awful mess when the snow melts in the spring. Yucky.
- I am more concerned about people who have their dogs off-leash in on-leash areas and let those dogs run up to leashed dogs, and the fact that I could still be charged if my on-leash dog reacts - this is where your officers don't have a clue about dog behaviour as they told me this is the case.
- Well behaved and listens to commands. Not trying to pull leash in order to get other animals/people.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No lunging at people or other dogs. No barking
- Leashed with hold of 2 foot range (close to human), same as in stores and patios. I don't want a dog to be able to come up to me on a long lead or leash.
- Dogs should have at least minimal training so as not to be wandering back and forth across the pathway.
- Remain on leash unless otherwise specified. Do not use an extendable leash. Keep your dog beside you.
- That a dog does not run up to strangers and are kept on a leash.
- Non-aggressive, respond to owner commands
- People seem to designate any area they want as an off leash park - or have their dogs off leash in public spaces or yards without fences as they want. No defecation or urination on property that isn't their own. Should be a clear method to report violations, or tickets should be handed out.
- Dogs should be on leash in all areas that are not off leash parks. They should not be allowed to travel down pathways off leash to get to the off leash park. Areas near off leash parks should be clearly signed to indicate all dogs must be on leash in this area.
- Do not use retractable leash - keep dogs beside you and under your care and control. Keep dogs on leash
- I expect the dog to be on leash and under control.
- Basic safety (not actively trying to bite passersby). Pick up waste.
- Animals should be fully under control. They should not chase geese onto Memorial drive, chase runners, leap in front of cyclists or be anything but the best friends we've created them to be.
- Control as best as possible. If your dog is aggressive, it should wear a muzzle.
- To remain on leash and be close to the owner , not on a 20 foot leash wandering.
- Please ban retractable leashes! :) Dogs are kept under control and within 6 ft of owners. Dogs are not interfering with other pathway users (walkers, joggers, cyclists, etc) from passing safely on the left. Not allowing dogs to greet other people/dogs/animals unless the other people give permission
- Will retreat from the full extend of the leash when instructed.
Will cease or initiate a proper greeting when instructed.
Will hush or quiet within a reasonable amount of time when instructed.
- Leashes controlled and pick up after dog
- Be on leash!
- On leash and under control (i.e. not at the very end of a 20 ft Flexi with no owner awareness of the dogs behaviour)
- Owners should ensure dog is staying in it's proper walking lane or off path. ALWAYS pick up after your dog. Don't allow your dog to approach children without parents consent
- The dog is "unnoticeable" meaning they are not causing any ruckus or disturbing anyone, if this can be done offleash and the dog stays in a close distance to handler that should be allowed.
- Dogs should be on leash. If they are reactive they should be muzzled to protect other dogs and people.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- A dog should be attentive to its owner and not approach other dogs and people without being asked. (Also people should not approach dogs with out asking).
- People should listen when you say your dog should not be approached! Some dogs are fearful and may be fear aggressive but people don't listen. If you are in an off-leash, understand dog behaviour and know the difference between play and aggression or just assertive behaviour.
- - be in control of your animal at all times. being on leash does not excuse your dog coming into contact with mine without my permission
-pickup waste
- Dogs should be well mannered when on leash and are not to interact with others unless asked to do so.
- Not lunging or out of control
- Dogs MUST BE leashed. This needs to be enforced. Too many dogs not on leash that cause problems.
- There are WAY too many people in Calgary who feel that they can use ANY area as an offleash area. Both of my current dogs are fine, but I had an elderly dog who was not very stable walking but still enjoyed a short walk eachday and she was twice knocked over by offleash dogs on residential streets.
- They should be on leash (often they are not). Owner should be in control of their dog and not let it lurch toward pedestrians and children. Owners should pick up the doggy bags they leave (and conveniently forget) along the pathway.
- That all dogs are on a leash and the owners are able to control them.
- Dogs not to jump or tug towards others. and if dog barks, owner should be able to assure their pet to calm
- No off leash AT ALL. Owners must be able to handle their dog (eg, don't allow your dog to run up to another without permission).
- That people keep their dogs on the leash!!! I've seen many people, especially in suburban greenspaces, take their dogs off leash there it wasn't safe for people or the dogs. Give people a choice if they want to interact with your dog or not.
- Dogs should be kept on leash and handlers must make sure their dogs respect the space of others.
- Dogs under control and not a safety hazard, such as to cyclists, walkers, runners.
- Maximum 6' leash. Flexies are often improperly used.
- No barking and lunging at people or other dogs.
- I expect a dog to be under their partner's control regardless of location. The dog may be agitated or barking, but the handler should manage that appropriately
- Dogs on short leash and always kept to the side to not harm/interrupt people using pathways. Keep dogs away from playgrounds. Not allow dogs to bark repeatedly. Not skim along/approach and bark at private fences. (Harassing dogs/people in their own yards)
- Keep control of your dog at all times. It is not acceptable for a dog to approach a human or dog without consent of owner. Humans should also not approach dog unless given consent by owner.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I believe dogs must be managed in a way that does not impact other users of common spaces - this includes barking and approaching others. Even friendly dogs can pose a risk or create fear, for example, if they jump up on a child.
- My expectations are more for the people on the end of the leash. They should manage their dogs to ensure that they are not allowing their dogs to reach people or dogs, they should move aside and give way to others.
- Dogs must be leashed. As long as the owner has control, I'm good with most dog behaviour. Some barking is ok, but the owner must know how to control the dog.
- I expect not to be bitten and approached by a dog. The owner must have care and control of the animal.
- Should always be kept on a leash & under control, the owners should pick up their dog's poop, move aside when bikes are passing, be courteous to all park & pathway users.
- Should be on a leash and the pet owner should have control of the leash and dog at all time.
- Dog must be under control, if not they should be on leash and held close to owner. If dog is off leash, they should stay close to owner and come when called.
- Under control, other will not approach without asking
- Dog under control
- Dogs should be on leashes
- dogs must be on a short leash, not those extendable leashes, the dogs might as well not be on a leash then..dogs must have proper behaviour training so the owner(s) will have better control of their dogs..the owner(s) must lead their dog(s) not the other way around!!
- Zero tolerance for hostile dog behavior, and poop.
- People with and without dogs should be respectful of each other. If an owner appears to be trying to train dog to do better people without dogs should be aware of that, but people with dogs should also be aware of those around them.
- Dogs should always be on leash and under control.
- That owners keep dogs on leash at all times when outside of off-leash areas. No exceptions, even when dogs are "well behaved."
- Under control, on lead and keep respectful distance from everyone.
- Pickup up dog waste
- If your dog is not friendly, please go to the other side of the street
- Dogs should "leashed n" when approaching people or bicycles on pathways. Dog should be under control at all times. No flexi leashes.
- Under control and respectful of other patrons on the pathway.
- Dogs should be on a leash. I see many who do not follow - they let their dogs roam freely even when the area is not an off-leash area. Especially at nose hill where they have no control of their dogs at all. The city should have bylaw officer ticketing people at nose hill who don't follow the rules.
- Dogs should be on their leash if it is not a designated off-leash area.
- Respect for everyone, owners and non-owners. Owners must pick up feces!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I expect pet owners to have their animals under control.
- Clean up
- Must be leashed and under control, no sign of aggression
- If not an off leash area then dogs must be leashed.
- Pet owners should not be allowing their dogs off leash on the pathways no matter how well trained they are. On the owners right side except when there is also a bike pathway. Dog should be on whatever side of owner that is farthest away from bike path. Control their dogs on pathways as well.
- Dogs are on leashes and poop is picked up.
- Pick up and DISPOSE pet waste! Don't let your pet relieve themselves on peoples lawns/gardens! Don't let your pet approach/jump on/lick others, especially children!
- On short leash only, keep control of your animal.
- In public non-off-leash spaces, dogs should be on-leash and controllable by the person minding the dog. Therefore, as long as the dog is well-behaved, for example a 7-year-old can walk a dog on the sidewalk. The dog should have 'proper dog behavior' as explained by city information.
- Well behaved and aren't bothering other people I am ok even with them off leash.
- dog should be under owner control/command. if they aren't fines should be issued.
- Do not interact with dogs or allow your dog or child to interact with other dogs unless you have been invited to do so by the owner of the other dog(s).
- Dog is not aggressive
- Far too many people think that their dog does not always need to be on a leash on pathways.
- Enforcement of leash laws and pet waste pick up. The inability to control a dog when on leash.
- They are under control. They are
- Dogs should be on leash and under control, little to no lunging or barking while on leash. Other people should seek permission before approaching or attempting to interact with any dog that is not their own.
- Dog on a leash, owner is aware of surroundings
- Dogs should always be on a leash in highly populated areas, parks etc.
- -They are under control
  - They are not on a long flexy leash if on a pathway.
  - They are not off-leash if on a pathway
  - They will not luge or snip at other pathway users.
- Under control on a leash.
- Walking calmly on leash. Not barking and lunging.
- It is ridiculous that they are required to be leashes on a path.
- To be able on command to listen to all commands of owner. To always be in immediate area of owner should the pet require help or pet is causing a nuisance. Must be muzzled at ALL times on/off leash while out in public with owner

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That you understand your dog's behaviour and can identify to other people. I have a dog who likes to jump when greeting, I always warn someone and continue to try to get him to not jump. People should know if their dog is leash aggressive and be able to let people walking other dogs know.
- Listening, responsive, if tied up outside without an owner present the leash is short enough that the dog can sit or lay down but cannot lunge across a sidewalk
- Short leash, not being intrusive to other dogs and people.
- Have your dogs on leash and under control. Do not let your or expect other dogs to engage with other on leash dogs.
- It's mentioned above, but if you can't recall your dog, or it won't sit or stay, it is not "under control" in an off leash area. That said, I feel like smaller fenced enclosures are an appropriate place for more "out of control" dogs, since the owner can intervene quickly (smaller distances).
- They must be on leash and under the Walker's full control. People that do not have control over their animals need to be fined
- People who choose to let their dog loose in a leashed area need to be penalized financially. I see this all the time and when someone or their dog is bitten by the unleashed dog they say, "she's never done that before."
- Well behaved, listens to owner
- Full Control of animal at all times
- They should be on a short leash at all times
- You must have control of your dog when on pathways, particularly when encounters with pedestrians, cyclists and others are common.
- I expect the dog to be on leash and controlled.
- Must always be in control and ON A LEASH. High fines and no warnings for dogs off leash in on leash areas.
- Come when called, drop things it's picked up. Socialized. No barking constantly
- Kept on a leash and the person needs to be able to control that animal. Have seen people who are overpowered by their pet.
- I expect dogs be on leash and controlled at all times. Dogs get frightened or feel threatened by other dogs so they will bark to let those around them know. Not all dogs that bark are vicious.
- pick up poop
- Pick up your poop!
- Proper dog walking on a short leash. The 'clothes line' leashes should be banned. People have no control over their dogs with leashes 20 ft long. Dogs need to walk at the persons side and mindful of their owners.
- Similar to off leash areas, pick up waste, proper dog interaction with other dogs and humans. Must be on leash, under control
- I would expect a dog to not bark randomly at people or animals approaching them. Making sure your dog is at reasonable length when walking on a leash
- On leash and waste removal and proper disposal

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- We have had a dog for 10 years and most often a walk in the off leash requires 2+ bags for waste...I continue to see dog walkers with many (5+) dogs with one or two bags as they move along the park , Can this please be addressed?
- Education for dog owners that dogs must be on leash on regional pathways, even if they run through a off leash area.
- Short leash, especially if children are present, and especially on bike paths.
- I expect dogs to behave on and off a leash park or not. I expect the owners to control their pets/dogs and not expect everyone to be happy to have a dog run or jump on them. Dogs are not humans, they are a animal and should be treated as such and not more than a human life.
- Control of your animal.
- That they are leashed and controlled (not barking, nipping or snapping at other animals walking nearby).
- My expectations relate more to the dog owner than the dogs. Many don't even attempt to manage their dog, which makes outings for people with, and without, dogs extremely challenging at times. There's a problem where off-leash dogs "charge" on-leash dogs walking on paths through off-leash areas.
- Awareness of boundaries, i.e. paying attention to which lane you're in, how much space you're taking up, if the dog is a distraction or potential obstacle. Allowing free movement around and past your dog.
- I would like to see more enforcement of on leash parks. Larger signage stating MUST be on leash. I have a dog that doesn't like other dogs so I don't go off leash, but have been on paths like fish creek park where owners let their dogs off. That's not fair to my dog and puts both at risk.
- Dogs should be on leashes and not approach people and not bark.
- Make sure dogs are respectful of other people's personal space. Behaves well on leash, friendly to people who may not ask before touching. If the dog isn't friendly to random touches get it a please don't pet patch
- ALL DOGS ON A LEASE AND LARGER DOGS MUZZLED. ALSO OWNER SHOULD BE BIG ENOUGH TO CONTROL THE ANIMAL.
- Dogs must be on leashes, per owners must clean up after their pets. Dogs should not be allowed in school grounds or on play parks.
- Owners do their best to ensure their dogs don't interfere with other people's enjoyment or activities
- Dogs should stay on leash. Signs that dogs are required to be leashed. Signs to pick up dog waste. Education for pet owners that they should not let their dogs approach other dogs without owner's permission.
- Dogs not allowed to be off leash in non designated areas and need to be a certain distance away from school yards. Not allowed in school yards even if it's in the evening.
- I always step my dogs off the path and put them in the sit to meet people. Common courtesy but so many people are off leash in on leash areas it is often hard to walk my dogs safely
- Owners respect that not everyone likes animals or may have allergies. Owners should not allow their pets to approach people, unless they ask to see the pet. Animal should not be aggressive.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Respect other peoples space whether they have a dog or not.
- Dog should not behave in an aggressive and hostile manner to an encounter with a person passing by, dog must be on a leash, and it's owner must insure dog does not escape leash from owners grip.
- On a leash and under control. Clean up dog waste. Do not encourage dog to "meet" others on leash.
- Healing, not approaching other peoples dogs, not lunging and barking at people/pets walking by and NO retractable leashes. Dogs way up, all over the place and tangling in other people. Ban those leashes!!
- They should be on a short leash!!! I'm sick of tripping over dogs and leashes!! They should not be at large busy public events! It's too hot in the summer for them to be amongst the masses.
- Owner should be in control of their pet at all times
- That they always be under owner/walkers control, leashed, not allowed to chase wildlife. ALWAYS be cleaned up after & not allowed to defacate on sidewalks
- Dogs on leash, pick up after your dog.
- Must be under control at all times by owners and pick up waste and feces at all times
- If it's not an off-leash part, people should have their dogs on-leash. Of course, dog waste should still be picked up.
- Should be on leash, controlled by owners, shouldn't be allowed to approach/jump on pedestrians
- Dogs must be on leash, pick up after your dog.
- That they are under control or being trained to be under control.
- Non aggressive. Barking within reason but no lunging, chasing, snarling, jumping.
- I expect the owner should have complete control and knowledge of their dogs behaviour. Vocalize if the animal is aggressive or fearful and needs space, but also the passerby should respectfully automatically give space to the dog and owner.
- That the dog is on leash and controlled. More compost bins in common areas so people can actually pick up their dogs waste and dispose of it properly. I find people tend to pick up less when they know they have to carry it longer then they'd like.
- Dogs should be leashes and under control in public spaces.
- Dog should be well socialized and know how to behave
- LEASH YOUR DOG ..... I cannot express this enough. Too many people believe the world is their off leash park and it makes me crazy. Owners need to have control of their dogs which requires training.
- Dogs should be trained properly and disciplined.
- That dogs are on leash.
- Be leashed and controllable .. I regularly pass owners who have a very large dog or small who have no control even when leashed and worse when not leashed .. scary Dogs that bark or dogs who are roaming free.. I have called 311 and they say nothing they can do
- Remain on the leash at all times. Muzzled if dog prone to biting/attacking
- Under control dogs at all times.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Pick up dog poop, Keep the dog off of people's lawns when you walk it, do not take aggressive dogs out where other people/dogs are, train & socialize your dog, if you can't handle society's rules then don't get a dog!
- Flexi-leashes in public sidewalk/pathway areas are a hazard. A person does NOT have control of their dog if that dog is 20' away. Standard leashes are 6' and even that is difficult to keep out of the way of a dog/owner on a walking path
- Not allowing dog reactive dogs off leash, reactive dogs should have a warning I.e : bandana giving warning "nervous"
- No jumping at others or vicious behaviour, human or dog. Be under complete control of owner.
- On leash, on correct side of walkway, shorter leashes
- That the dog can walk past me and my pets on the sidewalk without greeting us unless given Express permission by its handler.
- Interaction with speeding cyclists who think they own the path
- The dog should be well within the control of the owner and waste should be removed.
- same as in off-leash
- Dog under control, do not run in front of in-line skaters, cyclists, etc.
- Not worried about the dog, but the owner. All dogs should have good manners, and the owner is responsible, not the dog
- Social & well trained.
- Respond to owner. Under control of owner.
- Should be on a leash if it's not an off leash park
- Too many people use off leash areas as unsupervised dog play ground. Owners stand around chatting not watching their dog and allow their dogs to run amuck. Owners need to be held responsible and I don't believe there is enough enforcement for that to ever happen. Strict Fines should be issued.
- Owners should not allow their dogs to weave up and down off pathways so bike riders don't have near-miss incidents. So many pet owners have no control of their pets and have a sense of entitlement their pet can do whatever it wants in an off or on-leash area.
- That dogs be on a leash, well behaved, and are picked up after
- On leash and under control at all times
- DOG MUST ALWAYS BE ON SHORT LEASH. PICK UP AND DISPOSE OF POOP.
- Should be on leash on pathways. Green space -dogs should not interact with other dogs or people
- All animals in a public space need to be under control, and not allowed to wander off leash
- If your dog is not friendly, please go to the other side of the street
- To be on leash, to pay attention to owner, to not be trying to lunge or attack other dogs, people, etc.
- That the dog is on leash and not displaying aggressive behaviour.
- Ban retractable leashes, dogs should be within arm's reach of their owner.
Owner is paying attention to the dog (not on cell phone or otherwise distracted)
- On leash always

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Pick up poop

Hold on to your dog when passing someone or another dog

- If they have aggressive behaviour the owner should discipline or remove them from the park
- Manageable and controllable by the handler. Have witness incidents where a small child is left to walk a larger, disruptive (protective) animal
- Not aggressive towards users of the bike path. On a leash and follows commands. Move off to the side for cyclists and walkers.
- Owner has control of their dog
- Should be on a leash at all times.
- Dogs should always be leashed and controlled in non off leash areas
- Not acting aggressive or threatening in any way. Public has every right to feel safe on public pathways. Should be huge fines for dogs being off leash in or on a on leash area
- Dog leashed and not jumping or running loose. Stay in own side of path with owner in control.
- As there are not enough fenced off-leash areas, properly trained and controlled dogs should be allowed to be walked off-leash by their handlers, wherever it can reasonably and safely be done.
- Dogs must absolutely be on a leash attached to a physically capable person at all times.
- on leash and under control
- Obedience, good behaviour towards other pets and people, and ALWAYS leashed.
- All dogs should be on a leash!!! Any waste should be picked up!!! People make these areas their off leash places because they are too lazy???? Elderly, less active people often use these areas for exercise and to walk their dogs it's unfair they need to deal with dogs racing around off leash!!!
- For people to actually keep their dogs on leash in these on leash areas!!!! I regularly encounter entitled jerks who have their dogs off leash in on leash areas. Then they yell and curse at me for walking my dogs there on leash particularly when my dogs get upset by being charged by off leash dog
- I have no issues with pets being off leash as long as the owners are in full control, responsible and they return when called.
- All dogs should be on a proper leash regardless of training. Flexi leashes should be phased out and disallowed as they provide no control. As long as the dog is under control they should be allowed.
- No extendable leashes, pay attention, pick up, and don't assume people wanna pet your dog.
- Dogs to have learned good manners. Young or rescued be actively trained to be respectful citizens
- Clean up their dog crap, including the baggies they leave around fish Creek everywhere! Thanks for half a job
- Similar but unsure always on leash
- That I don't have a dog jump on me and almost knock me over ... Or my child
- Dogs must be in control at all times which is already a bylaw
- For many, many reasons I expect dogs in these places to be kept on leash AT ALL TIMES, no exceptions. However, I frequently see dogs off leash in these types of spaces. I would like to see these types of locations better monitored by bylaw.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The list is too long . I expect dogs will be dogs . Most dog owners are clueless as to how dogs behave and why they do. Signage as to what common behaviour is , ideal behaviour unacceptable behaviour and star of the week shining trophy as to what is good behaviour
- Dog can be off leash if well trained otherwise needs to be on leash.
- That the dog be under reasonable control of the owner or walker.
- Don't expect to be harrassed by a dog or it's owner
- Dog does not approach strangers (i.e. run up to strangers, sniff strangers, jump on strangers). Owners seem to think this is acceptable and call out that the dog is friendly but it is invasive and unwanted especially with little children. Feels unsafe and intimidating.
- I have no problems with dogs, non dog people shouldnt touch dogs with out permission, dogs on public places should no jump or touch non dog owners without permission
- Dogs should be on a leash at all times.
Pick up after your dog
- I expect the dog owner to be aware of their dog (get off your phone).
- Dog not to be aggressive in diving, lunging for other dogs.
- I expect the owner to manage their dog, hopefully have trained them well to not mind passing strangers.
- No 20foot extending leashes. Ever. They are so dangerous for both dogs and people and cyclists. No control of the dog, crossing paths, getting tangled, interfering with other dogs and people. Stay on the right side of the path except to pass
- To be well behaved and not at risk or hurting people.
- Dogs should be under control, either by leash or clear behavioural control. However I would welcome relaxing rules on where dogs are permitted - I would like people to be able to take dogs into restaurants etc., with obvious expectations on control and monitoring.
- I expect dogs to act like dogs. But of course what your really asking about is dog owners and how they should handle their dogs in public and what rules the city should impose on them.
- Dog is under control. Dog faces are picked up right away. Dogs do not enter private property without owner consent.
- Leash your dog! Do not allow onleash greetings without explicit owner consent. No flexis please which are dangerous and can snap. Pass eachother with care and give space when needed
- an owner should always have control of their pet
- Similarly rule of being mindful of the rules and regulations
- Dogs are on a leash and controlled so they do not pose a safety concern to others.
- The owners must be able to control their dog. I've seen too many owners barely able to hang onto their dog as it tries to lunge at passerby or other dogs.
- My expectation is that off-leash areas are a safe place to let our dog run free without the confines of a leash. It also allows a safe place for interaction with other dogs, allowing for greater socialization of our pet.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs should be under control. If there is nobody around, dogs that stay with their owner should be allowed off-leash.
- Should not be allowed - ever! We have dog owners come into our neighbourhood and walk their dogs off leash and we have seen the dogs chasing the deer which, I'm sure, causes stress in the deer. The owners scoff at you if you mention anything to them. Heavy fines should be levied.
- Dog on leash & in control
- Owners pick up after dog and bylaw upholds bylaw. Dog is kept under control.
- Age and breed Appropriate behaviour.
- They are 100% on leash.
- Under owners control
- Dog under full control of the owner including leashes.
- They must be on a non-extendable leash.
- Keep dogs on a leash and clean up after them.
- Dogs should not be allowed to urinate on private property unless it belongs to the owner
- None
- Keep your dog on a leash. Don't let the dog off leash because "it will stay off the path." If it's an empty area, and you are off leash, the second you see another person, put the dog back on leash. Dog walking services don't have dog off leash in non-designated areas.
- pick up after your dog or get fined, we need more enforcement as the pathways look like a dog outhouse
- That they remain on leash. All dog owners should provide each other with dove on pathways. Do not use extended leashes!!
- Leashes! I hear all the time "oh he is friendly". It does not matter if he is friendly. My father, actually, was severely injured by a German shepherd when working in high school. It does not matter how friendly the dog is, dogs are real trauma for him and many others.
- Dogs mind their own business and so do non-dog owners.
- dogs need to mind their own business unless a discussion is had between people and agreed to interact. People need to clean up after their dogs!
- I expect that the dogs are on leash - a 6 foot leash and not on a flexi
- Good socialization skills and proper recalls.
- I think a dog should be well-mannered in all situations
- All dogs on leash and under control at all times period. If it is not designated as off leash then the dog is on leash. People never understand the pathway laws and assume if its in or near an off leash area their dogs can run free. My expectations are of human behavior as it relates to the animal
- Non dog owners should be aware of off leash areas
- Dogs should be on leashes and owners need to be in control of the animal at all times. Amount of leash should be limited so they can't wander into the path of cyclists, etc. Animals should not be allowed to approach others unless invited.
- They must be on a leash.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same rules as off leash parks.
- An owner/walker that knows their dog well, and can control them when necessary.
- On leash.
- Dogs should be on a 6 foot leash and under control by the owner at all times.
- Same as in off leash areas. Pick up after dog. Make sure your pet is safe and others around you are safe.
- The owner is aware - can communicate with the dog or other people around and control over the animal if they may be defensive. Not letting them roam on a long leash.
- Leashed and controled
- they are on a leash
- I expect pet owners to be in control of their pets on leash and to be aware when the pet approaches others.
- Dog is kept on-leash and you keep your dog in control. If your dog is in training, reactive or exuberant please advise people moving towards your dog and/or move aside to let people pass. Clean up after your dog ALWAYS.
- The dog should not be allowed to be off leash and it must be okay with approaching individuals / cyclists Etc and if it shows aggression in any way it needs to be removed
- Dog should remain close to their owner and return when called. Dog should be trained to leave people alone who are not their owners. Share the space responsibly.
- Owners collect and dispose of waste appropriately, leashed at all times.
- Walking beside owner, not barking unless something spooked them.
- Pick up your dog waste!! Move over for pedestrians without a dog. Give space, don't let animals jump or approach strangers unless permission given. Only move closer to another dog on leash with permission from owner to let dogs meet.
- Dog MUST be leashed and must not be allowed to approach other dogs or people without consent.
- Dogs should be on a leash
- Trained by owners in safe behaviour
- keep your dog on leash, ask for permission before approaching another dog, pick up the poop!
- Reasonable barking and approach are fine, not jumping at people or barking viciously.
- I expect the dog to be under control (leashed or well trained) and the owner to be situationally-aware.
- Dog must be under control of owner at all times. Waste must be picked up.
- Dogs MUST be leashed - please enforce this. Dog poo must be picked up every time
- If the dog has shown aggressive behaviour, it should not be allowed off leash until the behavior has improved.
- Dogs will be leashed, always, regardless of breed. The owner will be in control of their animal. They should NEVER be permitted in playgrounds meant for children. They will be cleaned up after / not urinate or defecate on sidewalks, yards, etc.
- On leash

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Collared licensed

- They are leashed and in control of the owner. The owner picks up pet waste.
- For a dog to actually be on leash.
- Leash length requirements (less than 6 ft.), picking up waste, dogs kept under control (leashed)
- None
- Keep your dog on a leash and keep it under control at all times.
- Dogs who are not friendly should not be off leash with other dogs.
- Similar to off-leash parks
- Dogs should be controlled at all times, they should not be able to approach or interact with others on pathways unless invited. Retractable leashes, and long lines should have to remain at no longer than 6 feet when on sidewalks and in heavy traffic areas.
- Dog must heel beside owner when walking on pathways.
- If your dog is psycho (barking at everything, snarling, chasing, snipping, etc.) you shouldn't be taking it out in public. Just like Grandma.
- I expect that the dog is on leash and the owner can control the dog.
- Dog's should be leashed, under control, quiet and clean. Honestly I'd rather have dogs outside of the owners house/yard or dog park.
- Kept on leash, be in control of dog and always pick up after them.
- BE ON A LEASH. Can't believe I have to say this, but it's a huge issue.
- That the dog be leashed and under the control of the owner. Poop needs to be picked up.
- A well-behaved dog, simply. If you are a dog owner you must be in control at all times and if not, either keep it on your own property or in the house. No one should have to deal with your bad dog.
- Dog only on 6 foot leash and on the correct side of the path. Dogs should always be on the owners right hand side on paths, sidewalks etc. so the human is the barrier between their dog and oncoming joggers, bikers, etc.
- It's often not the dog's fault. Just because they don't have a voice, you're trying to target them? It's the owners who have no sense of responsibility.
- I see a lot of dog owners allowing their pets off leash in common and public spaces. Would love larger fines and clearer info on who to call when this is an issue.
- On leash only.
- dogs to be licensed & leashed, and display appropriate social behavior with humans and other dogs.
- somewhat calm responsive to owner
- Clear signage. Garbage cans that are not overflowing.
- Dogs should be on-leash in mixed-use areas. When leashed and off-leash dogs interact, it is often unpredictable. Off-leash dogs may be a hazard to runners, bikers or families with small children. Nose Hill is an example of a park ruined by off-leash dogs (new signage has only made the issue worse)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs must be always be well mannered and in full control of the owner. Owners must be respectful not everyone likes dogs. Ban retractable leashes. Introduce seasonal rules in SOME areas...in below zero temps allow dogs off leash on the few bike paths that run adjacent to the off leash area.
- Owners must pick up dog waste, be in control of their dog, and prevent their dog from approaching people and other pets unless invited to do so.
- I expect the OWNER, not the dog, to be responsible for the dog's behaviour and to pick up after the dog.
- They are kept on leash! There are many pathways that have individuals walking their dog off leash because they're good dogs.
- Under control at all times, limit length of leash
- Dogs startle just like people. Path users must slow down when passing. Whether running or cycling etc. Most just wizz by old people, toddlers, leashed pets etc.
- To be trained to walk calmly on a leash. For owners to pick up waste AND to ensure their waste bag is deposited in the appropriate receptacle. For owners to walk their dog on the outside (right side) when on walking/cycling paths. For dogs to be on a leash of an appropriate length (6 feet).
- Under control of the owner, not on a retractable leash, not harassing others in the space
- If a dog cannot be recalled from any distraction while off leash - it should not be off leash. Too many pet owners do not understand what true control is and education needs to be given with what constitutes control.
- That all dogs will be on a leash. This is becoming a huge problem as many people feel entitled to have their dogs off leash everywhere, as "their dog is friendly". I personally don't care if your dog is friendly, just follow the laws, This law needs to be enforced and have heavy penalties
- To be on a leash, for owners to be mindful of others using the pathway (if they now their dog is bothered by others, give a wider berth)
- That owners actually have them leashed, and their pets are appropriately behaved, eg do not jump at people when walking past. All waste to be picked up.
- Be on a leash at ALL times
- Others asking permission before approaching leashed pet. Whether with another dog or not.
- No jumping on people, no aggressive posturing
- be kept on a leash, no lunging, be kept on correct side of path away from cyclists, runners, etc.
- Be cool.
- Dogs must be leashed.
Don't allow dog/dog greetings unless both owners agree in advance.
Keep your distance if the other owner is staying away.
- That owners pick up waste - too many do not!
- I expect that dogs walked anywhere except for off-leash areas to have a leash and collar on. They should also be kept with their walker at all times and poop should be picked up and thrown out.
- Leashed and under control

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs should be on leash, or respond to their owners commands. There needs to be more education that dogs aren't allowed in playgrounds. The city removed the signs years ago and people feel they can go anywhere
- that people follow the rules - I go to a number of on leash walkways to find offleash dogs ( that run up to yours and owners just yell they are friendly - not always the case if a single dog runs to a multiple dog walk
- People and animals can share the pathways. Both need to be respectful. Move off to the side when needed. No flexi leashes on pathways/sidewalks as they are hard to control.
- Be on leash. Just because you think your dog is so good off leash, doesn't mean they always will be. Dogs on-leash when approached by an off-leash dog will react negatively.
- Dogs should always be on a leash and the owner must have control of their animal at all times
- dogs must not chase, harass, bite or in general annoy other dogs or people
- always on a leash and always under control
- Dogs under control at all times (leashed or not). Appropriate interactions with people and other dogs (no barking/biting/jumping)
- Clean up after your dog. Leash your dog. Be responsible for your dog.
- Dogs should be on leash, and under owners control. Education about the dangers of leash greetings, and fear signals.
- The same courtesies that apply to humans. Stay on one side of a path, let faster people pass you, clean up your mess.
- similar behaviour but on leash
- Pick up waste. Dogs on 2M leash. Interactive dogs kept aside.
- Picking up of dog waste no matter the time of year / weather. I would also like to see a limit on the use of flexi-leads as they are quite dangerous to the dog and others if not used correctly
- No comment
- Respect/consideration for others in the area, follow the rules. Just because your dog can be off leash doesn't mean it's appropriate in certain areas
- Not aggressive.
- Dog to wear city tag & must be under control. Definitely on a leash when near roads. Always scoop poop.
- Dog under leash control, including restrictions on extendable leashes, pick up dog waste
- Have a well behaved dog that is on a leash.
- 100% approve of off leash parks. Many people consider the entire city to be an off leash park. IMO off leash parks should be fenced-in areas so that everyone is aware that they are in/out of the park. Dogs should only do their business on their owners property or on city property. (no excuses!!)
- Dogs under control and cleaned up after. Stricter rules on fake service dogs.
- Dogs should be leashed and under full control of its handler at all times. All feces should be cleaned up immediately and appropriately.
- On leash. Often people ignore owners request of leaving their dog alone which isn't acceptable

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- clear definition of "under control" if an animal does not respond to voice commands immediately, they are not controlled.
- Dogs walking onleash furthest away from approaching human.
Leash should be short when approaching human.
- Dog must be under control and not bothering other people/dogs with nuance behavior (barking, lunging, growling)
- dogs are on leash and properly socialized
- Not aggressive towards people or other animals when on a leash
- Not attacking other dogs, no humping/dominating people or other dogs
- That dogs are kept on a 6ft max lead and that owners are able to control their animals in the event of a reactive scenario.
- Dog must be able to interact in a social manner with both other animals and people (including small children)
- I expect dogs to be ON LEASH. Owners should clean up after their dogs.
- On leash, controlled
- Dogs on leash.
- As above
- Owners take responsibility for dogs that injure people and other dogs
- People MUST have control of their dog. If the dog will not listen or come when called, they must not be off leash, in a park or pathway or neighbourhood.
- There is a space for learning and improving behaviour but eventually the dog must try being outside on leash in public space. It is on the other pedestrians to avoid a reactive dog if they feel uncomfortable and the owner is already doing their best with the dog. Don't surprise a dog on a sidewalk.
- Dog owners need to know that alleys are not off leash areas. This goes back to the lack of enforcement of existing bylaws.
- Dog owners need to maintain control of their dogs in these areas. Do not let the dogs approach or get into the path of other dogs or humans who are out and about in the same areas.
- Dog should heel, be trained not to jump on people, or owner should draw dog to the side if it doesn't yet know how to behave.
- All dogs must be on leash in common or public spaces with the exception of designated off leash area's.
- That they remain leashed and under control.
Being on leash doesn't mean having free reign over a 20' lead.
4' max and responsive to the owner.
Also, the dog shouldn't out weigh the person handling it.
The amount of times I've encountered a child trying to handle a mastiff is laughable.
- pet owner to respect private property, pick up after your animals, be responsible for your pets manners and behaviour.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs must be under owner's control
- That they are under control of their owner.
- Pick up poo
- Dogs should be leashed at all times when in a space that is not a designated off leash area, regardless of dog behavior/temperament.
- Dogs should be leashed. Cyclists or users of other wheeled conveyances should be aware of dogs and make an attempt not to interfere with them.
- Dogs must be well trained and under control
- On a short leash, under control at all times, and waste picked up.
- More numerous off-leash pathways would help dog owners with a desire to actually walk their dog off leash, rather than stand around in a small area where more dog attacks tend to happen. In on-leash areas, obviously dogs should be controlled and picked up after.
- Pick up waste!
- The dog owner needs to understand their dogs and behave appropriately. If the dog is reactive they need to provide it with more space if approached by people and other animals. Other people need to be respectful of the people with dogs and not approach if the dog is uncomfortable or owner requests
- They should be on a leash at all times, except in off leash areas
- That they stay on leash and under control. No use of flexi leashes with an out of control dog. Serious injuries occur with this type of leash.
- dog is on a leash, well behaved with humans and other dogs
- Dog should be in control, this does not necessarily mean on leash. If you have a very well behaved dog that listens to instructions and can be trusted to react accordingly, leashes should be optional. This means the dog needs to be WELL TRAINED.
- Dog under control.
- That the animal is on a leash and under owner control.
- Dog must respect other people/users of pathway and not run towards or invade their "bubble" especially if large dog. If dog is unable to do that, owner must move dog off pathway to allow pedestrian or other dog owners to pass.
- How to approach and on-leash dog in an off leash area etc. when your dog is on leash. Proper courtesy. What to do on shared paths.
- All dogs should be on leash under the control of the owner or person walking them
- If the dog had aggressive tendencies then the owner need to be able to control the dog on a leash no matter what.
- Owners should keep dogs away from people, bikes, other pets, etc. Pet behaviour should not interfere with others use and/or enjoyment of the space.
- Dog's are under reasonable physical control -- they don't physically interfere with other users. Allowance needs to be given for dogs who bark/react to stimuli should be accepted as long as physical distance is maintained.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs have to be properly trained, and people educated not to or how to approach someone else's dog.
- Same expectations that are listed above for off leash parks
- Respectful behavior. Some aggression/animosity can be tolerated, but truly aggressive behavior should disqualify a dog from offleash/public spaces.
- If a dog is leashed and not approached by another person/dog, the majority of issues are solved.
- If not in an off-leash area, the dog should always be on leash. Must pick up waste.
- Owners to follow bylaw and city needs to enforce bylaw with irresponsible owners. Not only if there is a bite with broken skin. Don't wait for the bite to occur.
- Well controlled dog on short leash (eg., 1m max), not long extendable that reduces ability of owner to quickly control.
- No aggression
- The dog should be leashed at all times, regardless of character, as not every pet is friendly under all circumstances. So long as the dog is under complete control of the owner, no problem should present itself regardless of the dog's behaviour.
- dogs must be fully controlled. If a person has any concerns about their animal they should be making use of the safety equipment that is available from local retailers.
- Signs on school fields "No Dogs area"
- Should be leashed. Should not defecate or urinate on any private property. Should not be allowed in businesses or hospitals (unless it's a service dog: ESAs do not count) unless it's a pet store. Should not be allowed on public transit (again except service dogs not ESAs).
- That the dog will be on a short leash on the "safe" (usually right) side of its guardian. That the dog will not be allowed to interact with other dogs without their guardians' permission, or allowed to interact with humans (esp kids) without their consent.
- Dogs always under control of the owner, not jumping on people or harassing other animals, always clean up their messes. Not too much barking either but some is OK because they are dogs and dogs bark.
- On a leash.
- Filled in survey before adding: Would like to see designated parks/open spaces throughout city where NO pets are permitted at all. Dogs owners have access everywhere (except sanctuary, they go anyway). No natural areas where people fearful of dogs or with small children can safely go without dogs.
- All dogs need to be on-leash! This also needs to be better enforced/patrolled. So many people don't follow leash laws because they are never caught so they don't care. It doesn't matter how 'well behaved' your dog is or if they 'have perfect recall', on-leash unless designated otherwise.
- Dogs should be on leash - this should be enforced
- If a dog is not under control it should not be allowed off leash
- dog should be trained to have good manners, calm, listen to owner call, friendly

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That the dog will not be snapping and snarling at passers-by. That the dog will be reasonably under control on leash.
- Dog should be under control and must have a safe and effective recall. Does not approach other people, animals or wildlife, unless in training or the behaviour is being managed. Fearful/aggressive dogs should be muzzled or under strict control.
- Consider a muzzle, if dog is
- Under control, on leash
- Leashed and picked up after. Not everyone enjoys animals.
- That dogs will not chase cyclists, and that [removed] owners will not string the leash across the pathway causing collisions
- Dog is under the control of the owner and not a hazard to others.
- That they are under control at all times.
- Dogs should be on a leash if it isn't an off leash park. The city should be posting more signs regarding this.
- Be respectful!
- Dogs Must be under control at all time that includes lunging and barking at other dogs and people
- DOG HAVE TO BE ON LEASH
- Dog on leash, under-owner control, not excessively loud or disruptive. But I think the same should be true of children and that doesn't happen, so...
- On-leash or under control
- That dogs are actually on leash even if they are good with others and that waste is collected and disposed of appropriately.
- Dogs should be taught not to constantly bark at everyone without end.
Dogs should not be aggressive towards anyone.
Dogs RELY on their owners to speak for them when it comes to meeting other dogs/humans. No one should approach or even attempt to greet a dog without full consent by the owner.
- Dogs under control.
- All dogs must be on a short leash which is held by the owner, not dragging on the ground. Dogs must heel on the owner's right side, on the right side of the path. Dogs do not cross over the centre line. Multiple dogs must all be to the owners' right on a short leash.
- I expect dogs to always be on a leash in common areas, but especially near playgrounds with children. We live downtown [personal information removed] and love having space to take both our small child and our dog - but it's stressful when a random dog comes running up to either of them without an owner nearby.
- control your pet
- I don't know because I never go in an off-leash area.
- On leash at all times.
- Dog must not be aggressive and be responsive to owner commands
- Able to walk on leash and respect from those who do not have dogs ie bikes to respect space

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- In my area (Aspen Woods), there are more off-leash dogs wandering the streets and pathways oblivious to others who may be fearful, allergic, etc. Further, owners who do not pick up after their dogs in the pathways and parks is a major problem. Dogs in playgrounds is also a problem.
- dogs should be on short leashes and not allowed to go up to people or other dogs.
- I would like to see better enforcement of the on-leash laws in Calgary, specifically in my community of Bowness. Many owners seem to think the by law doesn't apply to their dog, even when it isn't responsive to its owners commands.
- The problem with defined off-leash areas (even more so when fenced) is that they create a space "for" dogs, while all other space is predominantly "for" people. Would prefer to see expectation of good dog behavior in all shared public spaces, with more freedom as an incentive.
- If off leash they are well trained, to be on leash if not, and that the owner is monitoring them at all times
- Dog owner is aware of surroundings at all times. Not distracted by phone.
- keep their dogs close and within reach for immediate control in an event where the dog gets triggered.
- Dogs needs to be on leash - no exceptions! Do not assume that I want to meet your dog. Be courteous - if I am moving away from you and your dogs do not keep coming toward me.
- Stay off bike paths and shared paths
- Dogs leashed and in control of owner, harnessed if leash alone isn't enough to retain control, respect other people's space, don't harass people or other pets or wildlife, not chasing bikes or skateboards, relieving themselves in appropriate places (ie not on benches, people, etc)
- Proper behaviour in interactions, as long as the owner is actively monitoring their dogs behaviour, and removing a dog from a potentially reactive situation, they should be allowed to walk where they need to.
- No aggressive behaviour. Should be allowed anywhere as long as dog is well behaved.
- To be able to walk my dog without people attempting to pet it without my consent
- On a study leash at all times, can properly heel and stay close to owners. No jumping on strangers, no barking, no aggressive behaviour.
- Not to jump up on people.
- Don't have a dog offleash in an onleash area. Don't assume every dog is friendly and ask permission before allowing your dog to approach another dog or person.
- Dog is on leash. Too often dog are roaming free on user pathways
- Owner is in control of dog(s)
- Be leashed and in control. Appropriately sized leash, not 5m long.
- Always on leash, muzzle on all medium and large dogs.
- ON LEASH AT ALL TIMES.
This survey is useless if the laws are not enforced
- Dogs must be on a leash, but not a super long leash. Retractable leashes are great But they are also a hazard. Ultimately everyone needs to be aware the path is shared.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Be considerate. Don't let your dog jump on someone. Don't let your dog approach children unless it is obviously welcome. Don't let your dogs jump on tiny dogs.
- Dogs in an ON-leash area must be on a proper leash (no retractable leashes, no leashes longer than 10'). Dogs must be under the owner's control. Dogs should not be allowed to run at, jump on, or bark at people. Waste must not only be picked up, but also properly disposed of.
- Should be leashed
- All dogs should be on leash, licensed, and under control by the owner
- People need to understand that the dogs need space. Dogs are getting exercised and may not be friendly to dogs or humans. Education is lacking in many
- Dogs must be under owner control
- As in off leash digs and people should be respectful of those around them.
- Kept on leash, pick up waste,
- If the dog reacts to something, that the owner knows to leave and others respect their space while leaving.

I don't like kids running up to our dogs...

Small dog owners allowing their dogs to behave differently than what they expect of large dogs.

- Every off leash park should have at least 1 or if very busy 2 smaller areas that are fenced in. These smaller areas are important especially to help dogs socialize with others, or if they are fearful from other dogs from being attacked, or if they have had surgery and need a smaller alone spot.
- Your dog is behaving. If not heavy fines with exceptions of puppies learning.
- Dogs under control and not posing a danger to anyone or any other animal
- Well trained and under control.
- All dogs are different. They are not robots that all behave the same way. There should be some tolerance to those differences, and to dogs in training. However, a reasonable level of 'good' behavior is helpful.
- I expect a dog to be a responsible citizen, but I also expect that of the owners. I expect the dog to be under the control of its handler - with an understanding that some dogs must be leashed to be under control, and other dogs do not require a leash.
- What about expectations for other users? I move off pathways and sidewalks if I don't trust my dog to react appropriately.
- Not off leash then don't have your dog off leash.
- Pathways should dog sound be on leash and in control. Dog poop should be picked up
- Dogs should always be leashed unless in designated off leash areas regardless of their training
- Respect the humans. I always get my dogs to sit and never approach anyone. Not appropriate for humans to run to strangers..dogs too.
- On leash and does not approach you or bark unnecessarily.
- Walk nicely on a leash, not lunge at people as you pass them on the street, sit to greet small children
- Not barking and lunging at everything in sight.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Do not allow on leash greetings between dogs without consent
- Areas that are not off leash should be strictly enforced for people who are using that space to keep off leash animals away. People should not approach leashed dogs. Dogs should be controlled to be kept away from other leashed animals and humans using the space
- Pick up poop, keep on leash
- Don't bring dogs that aren't park worthy .
- Pick up after your dog. Dog must be under control. Not be allowed to approach a person on the sidewalk or pathway without their permission or request to pet etc...
- They should be on leash. Retractable leashes are not sufficient. Dogs shouldn't greet other dogs on leash without permission from both owners.
- Ask before introducing new dogs.
- That dogs are appropriately monitored
- They should be on leashes or highly well trained.
- Other people's dogs should be controlled and not be jumping on strangers. Dogs should be on leash at all times unless it's an off leash area. I find many dog owners do not leash their dogs.
- Leash not too long, less than three feet.
Dog is supervised and well socialized.
- Don't allow your dog to be a nuisance to your neighbours by allowing it to constantly bark for a period of time while in its yard.
- Dogs should always be leashed in public spaces
- On leash. Under control.
- I'm a dog person and I am attuned with my dog so I am liberal with allowing dogs to explore and be curious. Dogs should be within close proximity to their owners, puppies are learning especially so people should be patient, knowing the signs of your animal should tell you when you need to control it
- Under control ie- not using flexi type or long leash
- Dogs need to be on leash when not in designated off leash areas
- Not vicious and on a leash.
- Dogs must be on leash or under control (ie come when called)
- Owners don't allow dogs to jump up on humans. For me, the issue is more people approaching dogs without asking rather than the dog behaviour. Maybe having designated colors a dog can wear if they're shy or not good with kids.
- Comes when called, does not fight with other dogs and doesn't jump up on children or adults.
- If it is not a designated off leash park your dog should be on a leash. If there is no off leash park in your community either drive to one or advocate to the city for one.
- Under the control of an owner paying attention to their surroundings. An acceptance that regardless of how "harmless" you perceive your dog to be I should have a choice as to whether I interact with your dog.
- Dogs should be kept on a leash and under control at all times.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That they be under control (not walked by a child, for instance) and the humans using the space have priority
- The owner has control of their pet and is respectful of other pets in the area
- it would be nice if we could be a city where as long as dogs are under control they can be off leash on pathways etc. would be nice if dogs were allowed to tie somewhere in front of a store for a short period of time while owners may go inside for a quick stop, and relax rules on restaurants for dog
- Dogs on leash on pathways and not meandering onto the opposite side of the path
- dogs should walk safely on a leash no longer than 6 ft. Retractable leashes should be banned.
- Cyclists should not be on sidewalks and should ride at safe speeds and signal to dogwalkers before they're on top of us.
- That the owner is in complete control of their dog. Therefore, I could walk by and the dog is not going to jump on me or bark or get in my way.
- Dogs should be leashed. Non aggressive. Muzzled in public if they are not comfortable with strangers.
- Owners need to keep dogs on leash when not in off leash areas. This is a huge problem in our city. People think their dogs are fine but don't understand that they are placing other dogs, kids, people at risk.
- That the owners and public understand dog behaviour
- On pathways that are not deemed off-leash, all dogs should be on leash and in control.
- That they be on a leash at all times. That the owner not let their dog approach others without their consent first. That the person without the dog have the right of way to the path - the person with the dog should get out of the way, keep their animal out of reach unless permission to come close.
- Pickup pet waste, dogs on leash at all times, dogs in control on leash, awareness of environment (wildlife, other people/pets), paying attention to your pet (not on phone)
- People have socialized their pet so they won't be as aggressive. Have control over this pet. Non pet owners should be made aware of how to approach a pet and how to interact with them so they won't be the cause of starting issues.
- No biting or clawing people, no peeing on them either. Barking, while allowable, should be reined in once owner realizes that their pet may be causing others undue stress.
- On leash areas should be monitored more
- Dogs on leash, picking up after dogs
- Keep your dog on leash and be aware. Just like driving. Don't text and walk!!
- Dogs must be on a leash. Never off leash. Not on a long leash if on a popular bike path as that can cause major accidents. Nor on a long leash if in a busy area. Shorter, more manageable leashes then.
- I don't mind if a dog is off leash on a public pathway as long as it listens to it's owner and comes to them as I approach and they give me the option to interact.
- Leashed.
- They should be leashed at all times, even when considered friendly

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- pathways. Can you make it CLEAR to dog owners the expectation of the dog on pathways. I have been knocked off my bike, been nipped at, charged at, jumped at because dogs or NOT on leashes. It drives me nuts!
- On leash, not lunging at people, waking politely
- On leash. Near others, on leash right beside you, don't make others go around you. Do not let your dog run, sniff/lick, bark/growl at people, control or remove them. No peeing on pavement/near vehicles. Don't take pets for groceries/eat out, leave them at home! Dogs sit on floors, not transit seats.
- On leash, well behaved, picked up after, non-confrontational, no barking
- On regular pathways, I expect that owners take precaution to ensure the safety of others, by ensuring the dogs are not aggressive or overly excited. FENCES need to be maintained.
- Your dog may be friendly but not everyone likes dogs. Be considerate of others. Keep your dog on leash if it is not an off leash area and step to the side to allow people to pass if they seem uncomfortable with being approached by your pet.
- on leash
- That owners pick up after their dogs and KEEP dogs on leash. Having them on a certain side of the path as is now required in the bylaws is ridiculous. When dog owners are approaching another person with or without a dog they need to get out of the way a reasonable distance.
- Dogs should be on leash under the control of the owner.
- Owners will move to the side/edge of path or sidewalk so passing is easy.
- People should simply have their dogs on a leash and under control. If the dog is acting out and bothering people, consider walking somewhere else.
- Dogs always kept on a leash. Give information boards as to why some dogs cannot be off leash for public to understand. The stress on some dogs who are fearful or reactive and owners can have piece of mind
- It is okay if the dog is well behave walking along side of owner.
- Dog on leash. Kids in my neighborhood bike to school on sidewalk. We step off to give them room. It is a simple courtesy that seems to be really appreciated.
- Dog should be under control, leashed etc. Muzzle if it is aggressive. If your dog does not like people or is protective, think twice before taking him into an environment where he will be stressed
- I expect dogs to be on leashes, and muzzled if necessary. And the owners cleaning up after them.
- Please please please pick up dog waste and carry the bag to the nearest bin. The owner should be attentive to the dog and their surroundings and be capable of restraining the dog if needed. Also, retractable leashes should be banned.
- Well behaved/ trained. Listens to owner. Stops barking when told.
- No aggressive behaviour towards other dogs/humans and must be kept under control by owner.
- Pick up waste. Owners should not just let their dogs run at people.
- Aggressive dogs or dogs who do not listen should not be at an off leash park

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs MUST be kept on leash. Its very common to see dogs off-leash in certain areas of my neighborhood. I have encountered difficulty in the past with other dogs approaching dogs I'm walking which are not friendly with other dogs. This can potentially be a dangerous situation.
- I think we have gone to too much trouble defining off leash areas. I understand leashing my dog on the pathways because that's for their safety with bikes wizzing past. But walking through deserted green spaces offleash should be no diff than an off leash park. Same good behaviour expected no matter
- dogs are on-leash and under control and are not causing an impact on wildlife
- i expect owner's to keep their dog at least six feet away from me when passing each other on a sidewalk.
- I had a huge problem with finding dog feces on my front lawn last summer on an almost daily basis. (I don't own a dog). I was never able to find the culprit but people dont' pay attention when walking dogs, let them roam and now I have damage to my lawn. I shouldn't have to resort to video surveil.
- I expect dog owners to stop treating every public space as if it were off-leash; show some bloody respect for non dog people.
- Doesn't jump up on people, doesn't shove snouts into people's crotches... basic manners.
- I want dogs to be approachable, friendly and under control.
- I really REALLY don't want to be subjected to incessant barking.
- No treats allow in dog parks
- Dog should be social and under control
- Proper on leash behavior. Well trained. Under control.
- Be considerate of others - if your dog has a tendency to go say hi to others, hold them close in case others do not feel comfortable around dogs. Ensure you are picking up waste!
- Pick up your dog waste!!! Winter is awful, people seem less responsible for picking up waste... people who don't own dogs don't understand proper etiquette when approaching a dog (especially with little kids)
- Should be on-leash, waste picked up, and not attacking or harassing other people.
- I would like less restrictions on off lease areas. It is inconvenient to have to walk around parks instead of through them, of a dog is safely in leash, I don't see why this is required. I would Laos like to see more off leash designated areas.
- Dogs should be free in all spaces. If something happens then there is recourse through the normal judical system.
- Actually being on leash, not running at other dogs, good owner recall.
- Must be on leash. All dogs should be on leash when outside of an off leash area. Other than that...dogs bark and act up (just like kids do) so that's normal. But the dog should be on leash or a hefty fine.
- ALWAYS on a leash and in control by the owner. Leash on pathways should have a maximum length. Too often people are not in control. The leash is around their waste and their hands are on their phone.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs are like pedestrians- therefore people on bicycles, e-bikes, scooters etc need to give dogs on leash right of way, i.e. prevent dogs on leash and people getting injured.
- Leashed and behaved both with humans and other dogs and wildlife. Do not allow dogs to lung or leap at you. Non aggressive behaviour.
- Dogs should be leashed and, if aggressive, a muzzle should be worn.
- Keep dog on leash, do not use retractable leashes
- Dogs should be on-leash and under control at all times.
- That the dogs don't act aggressively towards us. We are a dog friendly household and comfortable around dogs, so as long as the dog doesn't present an immediate danger to us I'm not concerned.
- Same as off-leash areas
- Dog should certainly be leashed and should not be displaying aggressive behaviour towards me or my dog or even children when they are being walked.
- All dogs should be on-leash in that situation
- Dog waste must be picked up. Dogs must be monitored by owners to ensure safety of other dogs and members of the public.
- On leash at all times, under control, do not allow dog to jump up on people, pick up after dog
- Be non vicious
- If a dog is aggressive towards people or animals, it shouldn't be in public. On or off leash. No one should be getting lunged at on the bow River path.
- Clean up dog waste, city needs to provide garbage receptacles on pathways at a regular interval so owners have somewhere to put the bags.
- To listen when called, not bark aggressively,
- on pathways dogs should be on leash
- in control at all times and on a leash
- On leash at all times
- I expect dog owners to have control over their dog. No jumping up on people and come when called.
- Leashed
- Pick up waste
- N/a
- Dog is on a leash.
- People should know that their dog needs to be close to them, especially when encountering others. People using flexi leashes need to be educate.
- Strict control of the dog
- That dogs are ACTUALLY kept on-leash. That people with dogs give others space, even if their dog is "friendly". That waste is picked up. That if a dog needs to be muzzled, it should be.
- Dogs to be ON leash, owners to pick up after them
- They need to be on a short leash and under control.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

I bike 12 kilometers on pathways everyday. It's a rare day I do not see a dog off-leash near a path. Having had multiple close encounters with dogs that have nearly caused accidents for me or fellow bikers, this need to be enforced.

- Dogs on leash at all times and dogs kept on edge of path way when approaching others (not walking them in middle of path). No long leashes near any pathway (running leash across bike path so riders are not aware of the leash as they approach)
- I expect the dog owners to be cognizant of where they are and to keep their dog close to them when passing other people, some folks are very scared of dogs. I think it is more 'Owner behaviour' rather than dog behaviour. And of course, ALWAYS pick up after your dogs, ALWAYS!
- All animals should be in direct control of the handler and should always be on leash. Mess pick up is very important for EVERY dog handler. Other walker should respect the handler when given warning or notification of animals behaviour (fears, triggers, etc.)
- Be on a short leash and near owners in case it needs to be recalled.
- Dogs that are not trained or are learning need extra care so they are safe and don't scare non-dog people.
- Always under control, whether on- of off-leash. Cleaning up poop.
- Dogs are on leash and under control.
- The dog should come when called and not be aggressive. If there is any chance the dog might hurt a person or another dog it shouldn't be there. Dogs shouldn't be on-leash any longer than necessary in off-least parks as that can lead to aggressive behavior.
- Dogs are under control of the owner, they don't approach unexpectedly or jump on people.
- Dogs must be leashed on a non-extendable lease.
- That owners and their dogs with known reactivity issues need to ensure their dogs aren't coming into physical contact with anything they would be triggered by (i.e. not allowing your reactive dog to pass another dog on a sidewalk within a distance wherein they could come into physical contact)
- Kept on leash, no biting, no jumping on strangers, owner in control of animal.
- That all waste is picked up. Dogs need to stay away from kids or other people.
- Leashed, under control. Feces picked up. I feel strongly that dogs should be kept out of restaurants, shopping centres, businesses. It concerns me greatly that dog owners expect their animals to be treated like humans and carry them into shops, usually without a care for anyone else.
- Always on a short leash (not stretchy leashes). Always pick up messes and have something with you so you could. Not taking dogs to school yards, soccer games, etc. Not tying your dog in a public place which you leave them.
- Off leash should be fun places for owners & dogs. Implementing extensive "rules" are ridiculous & impossible to enforce without a lot of wasted time & money. Been using off leash for 30 years & majority of users are responsible. Don't make it unattractive due to the very low percentage of abusers
- Dog on leash and under control.
Pick up waste.
Yield to other pedestrians ( to avoid unwanted interactions with the dog, or leash tangling in legs)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Clean up after you pets. Keep the dog in control at all times.
- Without a doubt, dogs MUST be on a leash and this should be enforced.
- Bylaws and citizen obsession with off-leash animals – behaviour of animal should be taken into account.
- Dogs are well behaved and return to owners when called - under control. No vicious dog should be off leash anywhere.
- Dogs always on SHORT leashes.
- Under control (that doesn't necessarily mean on leash), proper recall
- that the owner is not putting the animal in a situation where they feel threatened or scared...too many people or loud noises
- That owners will effectively control their dogs while walking them on leash to prevent attempted interactions with citizens whether the dog has good intentions or not.
- Pet owners need to be aware of their surroundings and where their dog is at all times. No retractable leashes!! Dangerous on many levels. Picking up pet waste AND disposing of pet waste. Having a 5 lb dog does not give you the right for it to be on a 20 foot leash with no recall barking / lunging
- The owner must leash their animals and maintain control over them at all times. They also MUST clean up after their animals.
- Should be under control, on leash and the owner should be ensure others are comfortable with their pet approaching people. See do not approach dog with owner consent above - how about do not let pet approach me without my consent.
- Dogs should be kept on leash when not in off-leash areas especially when children are around. Waste must be picked up. One person should not have more dogs on a walk than can be controlled safely.
- That the dogs be kept on a leash that is 1 1/2 meters long at most.
- Keeping dogs ON LEASH and under control, i.e. not lunging at other dogs. Do we even have bylaw officers anymore? I continuously come across people who are walking with their dog off leash on sidewalks or in non-off-leash parks who feel the rules do not apply to them.
- As long as the dog is under control by the owner any behavior is fine. The owner may be trying to train the dog on behaviors by doing walks in places where the dog may be stressed which is a part of the process. Some dogs don't react well to things, but as long as the owner has it under control.
- Be polite, sniff everything, pee on stuff. people should not get upset over peeing
- Dog should behave better than a toddler.
- If the only thing keeping a pet from lunging angrily or biting someone else is a leash the dog should be considered vicious and removed from society
- Etiquette!
  - 1) If you pass a person without a dog: call your dog, leash it up
  - 2) If you pass a person with a leashed dog: call your dog, leash it up
  - 3) If you pass a person with off-leash dogs, feel free to leave yours off-leash

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Ability to behave properly with other animals and that if they do not do well with others ability to make sure you can move them away from the path of another animal
- Dog must be under complete control i.e. no aggressive behaviour towards humans. A pathway in an off-leash park should be designated off-leash.
- Share the space.
- Well trained and listen well.
- That dogs are on leash and that they stay next to their owner. Please banish flexi-leads, which gives dogs too much freedom and too much confidence!
- Dogs should be on leash and under control. There should always be an adult in control. Maybe an older teen if they can physically control the pet.
- Dogs should be leashed and under control, not running free in non-off leash areas. And pick up your dog's feces, PLEASE!
- WEll behaved, obedient dogs
- Keep your dog on a leash in off leash areas! Fines or warning for not having dog on a leash. It is dangerous for responsible owners of reactive dogs. We go to leashed areas to keep our dogs safe, if your dog is off leash it creates danger for everyone involved.
- To keep dog leashed and away from other people in area. Pick up dog waste and dispose of it in garbage.
Other people want to enjoy paths and parks without worrying about getting their children and themselves attacked!
- That the dogs are not violent and remain close to the owner
- Dog MUST be on leash. Owners must clean up after animals. Owners with reactive animals should be trained to deal with aggression towards other dogs or humans.
- To be on leash and well behaved.
- Same as off-leash except the dog is on leash.
- That dogs are on-leash unless in a designated off-leash area. That dog waste is picked up and disposed of appropriately.
- Keep dogs on leash
- Most dog owners in my area are not considerate. Often taking up whole sidewalk. Leaving fecal matter in bags all over the place.
- No aggressive behavior, on leash unless in familiar area with familiar people, following commands from owner.
- Each dog has a personality and we shouldn't get too tight about what is acceptable e.g. coming over to sniff a person. Dogs that jump on people should be on leashes. Dangerous breeds should be under tight control.
- I expect that other dogs will be on leash - however - this is NOT at all enforced and more and more people are treating pathways as offleash areas (ie. the ridge in Cranston for example). (I guess this is more human behaviour, but it's my biggest issue)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Lots of people walk their dogs before or after day light hours so they don't have to clean up after them. Our utility belt is a PRIME example. It is not an off leash area but most are and then they stop and my fence and cause my pet stress which results in a barking fit.
- My expectation is that dogs will ALWAYS be on-leash and UNDER CONTROL (not on 40' leashes or allowed to approach passersby) on pathways and outside of off-leash areas. Sadly, this most minimal of expectations seems to be largely beyond the ability of most dog-owners in the areas I visit.
- Pickup dog waste; do NOT have your dog off-leash on the pathway; if you use one of those leashes with retractable cords, give your dog a short leash so it does not impact walkers, runners, and cyclists. Do NOT all your dog to jump up on people and then smile and say "Don't worry, he's friendly!"
- I expect that no dog will be off leash unless in a city designated off-leash area. I have repeatedly engages 311 regarding issues in my community regarding the constant issue of off leash dogs and little has been done. Therefore I see enforcement, or lack there of, as a major issue.
- Under control of owner at all times.
- Dogs are leashed and controlled (Heeling) especially when on pathways (shared space)
- Animal must be under control.
- That dogs stay on leash at all times And people and other leashed dogs don't approach without permission
- on a proper leash. Not the nylon thread retractable crap
- Dogs should always be on leash and owners should always pick up after their dog.
- They should always be on leash if it isn't designated off leash.
- Do not approach a dog without owner consent
- People need to pick up after their dogs!! People with small dogs especially! They think because it's small that nobody will notice. I have a small dog and don't leave for our walks without a roll of poop bags.
- Keep dogs on leash, pick up dog waste and monitor interactions with people, dogs and wildlife.
- That people keep their dog on leash, under control, no flexi leashes, watch that their dog is not bothering anyone and keeping their dog safe from the people around them.
- Kept in control by leash, waste removed
- Dogs must be leashed.
- Ensuring all animals have a collar with proper tags. Hi
- The dog is under control
- Walk properly beside the owner and not jump at people to say Hi. This can be mistaken from some people as showing aggression. Pick up after your dog regardless where it is.
- clean and securely enclosed. well behaved owners and pets.
- Dogs must be on leash and completely under control.
- Dogs must be controlled by an adult (over 16) at all times, in all public spaces. Leashes must be shortened to heel when approaching others.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Pick up poop, control your dog, ensure that people know if your dog can be aggressive. Proper leashing and muzzling if necessary.
- I ride my bike everyday on the city pathways, and everyday I encounter the following: A dog off leash running on the pathway; and an owner with a dog on a long leash with the dog across the pathway making the leash a deadly tripwire. People need to understand pathway etiquette.
- Keep the dog leashed and must obey all rules specifically pick up the feces immediately.
- No retractable leashes, as they are dangerous to other users of the pathways and sidewalks. Dogs must heel when commanded, and be under the control of their owner at all times.
- Always kept on a short leash.
- people should not be accosted by others animals. Barked at, growled at or sniffed at.
- That it behaves and is under the control of the owner.
- under control of the owner, on a shorter leash if others/wildlife around and picking up after them and disposing in a garbage can.
- On a leash on a pathway.
- Yield to bikes and other walkers/runners
- All waste must be picked up and CARRIED with the owner until placed in a garbage.
- Dogs should be on leash. Owners should be in control and aware of the situation, such as removing their dogs from a situation they react to (children playing/bikes/specific other dogs) Ideally, pulling the dogs to the side and making them sit if being passed by bikes or pedestrians.
- Everyone needs to be aware of surroundings. Extended leashes should be reeled in when cyclists or pedestrians are in proximity. Cyclists need to exercise some common courtesy.
- I think it should be expected to respect the runners/walkers and cyclists are priority in these spaces and need to be respected.
- dog behavior ? no OWNER behavior. know your dogs comfort in all situations.
- keep them close when others are approaching. Do not let your dog walk way up on a retractable leash into someones yard. Non aggressive dog
- Typically, it's the owner's behaviour that is the problem, not the dog's. It is the owner's responsibility to leave the leash on. It is the owner who says, "Oh, don't worry, she's a good dog." I don't know the dog and I don't want it approaching me, sniffing me, or barking at me when I walk.
- Shouldn't be in public unless they know how to behave and follow rules no jumping growling or running
- On leash always on pathways. No dog with vicious designation should be allowed in public areas.
- I expect a dog not bark at me or try to jump on me as I walk by.
- In control and not acting aggressively
- That they listen to their owners and are not behaving aggressively.
- The dog is not aggressive
- A dog should be able to respond to common commands.
- the dogs must be in control of their owners

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- they should be under the control of their owners and cleaned up after, just as the rules apply for dog parks
- just follow the bylaws and City to implement its laws.
- Expect the owners have animals under control ... and leashed ...
- well behaved, no jumping. service animals only in all food service areas.
- On leash under control ask before letting dog interact with others
- That they are leashed! Sooooo often, this is not the case!!!!
- I have expectations of the dog *owner* -- complete control of the animal, pick up waste, be respectful of other people's (and pets') personal space.
- I think same rules apply. The public should not approach a dog without owner consent. The public needs to be educated to make sure they are not doing anything to instigate a fearful or reactive dog, and owners need to be aware of their surroundings and monitoring so they have control of their pet.
- 1. The dog must be on a leash
- 2. The dog should not jump on passers-by
- 3. Dogs that are aggressive to people should be muzzled
- 4. Dogs that are aggressive to other dogs should be controlled close to the owner
- Basic manners and attentive owners. Welcoming spaces for well behaved dogs and owners.
- Same as above in question 3 with added requirement for appropriate dog walking and pathway use.
- I expect dog owners to keep their dogs on leash close to them. To keep their dogs on the sidewalk and not let them walk on people's property. Not allow their dogs to urinate or defecate on people's property. To keep their pets quiet and not allow persistent barking at anything that moves.
- I expect owners to keep their dogs off of all private property and to pick up their dog feces on common/public spaces. We have a real issue with this right now in our area.
- ON leash at all times.
- Keep dogs ON A LEASH! And IN CONTROL! Sick and tired of being approached by other people's badly behaved dogs! Complete nuisance. Most owners balk or get offended when told they need to leash their dogs. This needs to be ENFORCED. Walk down the Elbow River and in community parks and TICKET them.
- All as above, plus that dogs stay off yards and easements -
- Not lounging at other dogs, people, animals, owners to pick up after their pets, no on leash meetings
- Keep on leash
- Not crossing in front of others on extendable leashes, pick up after pet, not chasing bicycles, etc.
- That dogs are on leash where required, without exception, and that regardless of whether or not off leash is permitted, dogs should not be a nuisance or threat to other people.
- The dog should be polite, and easily removed from the situation if it is required.
- Not a danger to the public.
- leashed or not the dog Must be Under control.
- do not tell me that ""Your"" dog needs to socialize and should meet my dog!
The get mad when i say NO.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Again, most times its the owner that isn't behaving properly, most dogs follow the lead of the owner and some owners think they can do what they want when they want, especially allowing pets off leash in leashed areas. You cannot assume everyone knows any space not signed off leash is leashed!
- Problem dogs should be kept on leash
- Dogs must be in control of their owners. Owners must be considerate and aware of other people and also aware of their own dogs temperament and limitations. Owners must be there dogs advocates and defend them from inappropriate behavior from others keeping them and other people safe.
- Keep dog leashes, in control, close to owner
- The dog be kept on a short leash and not allowed to jump up on people. Pick up feces. Share the sidewalk/pathway
- Must be leashed
- parts of calgary have off leash areas, bike paths and playgrounds all together. This is very confusing and hard to control, dogs running through the playground, non pet owners trying to ride their bikes through the area. Lots of arguments, accidents and injured people as well as dogs.
- Pick up waste
- controlled behaviour (i.e., not lunging at people/dogs).
- Our pathway is filthy with feces and is almost unusable. People caught not picking up their dogs poop should be sentenced to community service picking up poop the first offence. After multiple offenses they should lose their dog.
- - Owner MUST be able to physically control dog while on leash
- leashes of a proper length
- Always on leash.
- Respect for owners and non owners.
- I don't want strange dogs jumping on children or adults. I don't want dogs bullying others nor wanting to fight.
- Be muzzled if they may bite or snap. Be under the hacker's control.
- That dogs be on leash and that their owner keeps them on the same side of the pathway to allow others to safely use a walkway. That poop is not only bagged, but also disposed of in a garbage can. Aggressive dogs should be muzzled.
- That the dog is controlled and on a leash at all times. No dogs on the busier multi-user commuter pathways like At Edworthy. It can be dangerous for users if the dog is not in control and starts wandering along the pathway.
- Dogs should be "in control" on a short leash within arms reach.....not released on the long leash to be able to pull the owner out of control and bite the citizen.
- That the dogs are on-leash in these areas and owners are mindful of their dog's behavior. We live in Parkdale where we have seen an increase in off-leash dogs walking along the river, which is an on-leash area. these dogs are not always minding their own business and causing trouble, chasing wildife

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The dog should not interfere with any other person using the path or area. Frankly, some owners are pretty useless at controlling their dogs, they are on a leash but still allow the dog to "clothesline" a cyclist and still feel entitled to use the path.
- On leash and again under control.
- on leash, controlled, pick up waste, monitor interactions with other dogs and people. SHORT leashes so there are no tripping hazards across pathways when dogs aren't immediately beside their owner
- Do not approach another owner / dogs unless invited. If someone takes their dogs off the path it usually means they don't want to be approached. A curved path around those dogs is polite. Cyclists or walkers approaching from behind should make owners aware if they are passing.
- On leash and under control and supervision
- Must be controlled and held responsible for any aggression
- Respect signs where it says no dogs. Be kind. Talk to the owner with respect if you have an issue. Call bylaw if you don't feel comfortable.
- Pick up food and garbage that dogs might eat.
- That they be leashed and not allowed to come into very close proximity or contact with other people without the dog owner obtaining the permission of people that may be affected.
- That they go not block my path or engage with me without my consent.
- Even when a dog is on leash it still must be under control. Our dog had been bitten while ours and the other dog were both on leash with owners right there.
- dog on leash and owner in control
- Be on a leash
- I expect my dog to be calm and under control on a loose lead. A dog that is lunging and straining is a danger to themselves and others.
- I expect owners to follow bylaws and keep their dogs on a leash at all time and pick up after them. I expect dog owners to actually HOLD THE LEASH and not let it drag while the dog runs around at will. I expect owners not to have their dogs in and near playground equipment or on skating rinks.
- Dogs MUST be on leash. Dogs should be capable and taught to obey simple commands, Sit, Come, and Heel. Dog owners should be told this is an expectation. Dogs DO NOT understand long sentences in any language. ' I told you not to that that etc etc. Owner MUST pick up dog waste and dispose of it.
- Dogs should be under control and listening to their owners at all times.
- Most dogs should be leashed. Rarely, superbly trained dogs do not require leashing. If a superbly trained dog is heeling & under perfect control that should be acceptable.
- on-leash, and either socialized or wearing a muzzle.
- Dogs should be on leash and under control of his or her master.
Poop should be properly cleaned up.
- People pick up after their dog, dogs stay close to owners and are on an appropriate length leash.
- Under control. Not to intimidate others.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Be. On. A. Leash.
- One must have control of their dog at all times. People. Need to, pick up- after their dogs!
- The dog is always under control. A well trained dog does not need a leash to achieve this.
- Must be on leash
- dogs are on leash and owners are aware and responsible with the public.
- On leash, under complete control walking on the far side of the owner from me to minimize risk of interactions unwanted by another citizen. Again, off leash opportunities are privileges in a big metropolitan city. When not in a designated off leash areas, at assigned times, be on leash, controlled
- Always on leash! No barking, biting or lunging at people.
- -dog should be controlled
  - dog should be on a leash
  - dog and owner should not be taking up whole bike path
  - dog and owner should be on correct side of bike path
  - owner should not be walking dog while on a bike
- Will not chase people or bite
- Dogs be on a leash and under full control of their owner
- Dog parks are for dogs to run and play. If they bring their children that are afraid of dogs or riding bikes or tobaggans or aren't steady on their feet, expect that dogs may run over to investigate. They may be curious. They are not allowed offleash in that many places in town. Please don't get ups
- They should be on a short leash not a retractable type. Handler should not be riding a bike or skateboard or inline skates. They should be on foot and in total control of the animal.
- Calgary is really dog aware city and people are generally great with knowing there dogs and places they should or shouldn't go. Please dont change the wonderful dog culture calgary has!!!
- Dogs should be kept on leash at all times. While it is the law, too many dog owners ignore it. Dogs should be taught to ignore other dogs and people while on leash. They should be taught polite greetings if/when there are interactions.
- Dogs must be under control 100% of the time. No matter if they're in an off-leash area or not. However, CHILDREN Must be in control as well! I've seen bad kids out there.
- They should be under control of their owners at all times. And off leash areas should be more strictly enforced. I'm don't appreciate having my kids at the park and having off leash dogs running around them in an area that it supposed to be on leash only
- Even when on leash it is the dog owners prerogative on approaching and interacting with the dogs
- Dog on leash. Person holding the leash can control the dog. ( no small children with big dogs) Flexi leads should not be allowed to be used on dogs ever.
- Dogs typically should be on leash, but also shouldn't have bylaw called on them if their dog is behaving well and sticking to the owner (almost as if it was on leash). Pick up poop. Be considerate of others that are uncomfortable with dogs.
- Close to the owner when the public space is busy

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The owner should be aware and in control. If the dog isn't friendly it shouldn't be taken to high traffic areas
- Under control by the owner or dog walker
- Under control and reaoectful
- As long as the dog is well behaved and not bothering anyone, leave them be. I hate dog parks because most dogs over the age of 3 don't enjoy strange dogs. I'd love to responsibly play fetch in any park with my well behaved dogs who won't leave me or bother other people. Leave well trained dogs alone
- Have your dog under control. Retractable leashes are unsafe for me and my dog. We are both safer if he is free to protect himself. Use common sense and know your dog. Respect others and how their dog is leashed. Not everyone likes your dog, don't let them lunge at or near me, my child, my dog.
- Owner must have the dog under control and muzzled. If the owner does not have a social dog, don't take it in to areas with heavy foot traffic or lots of animals. Don't bring dogs to events.
- Owners must always be aware of what their animals are doing and how they interact
- Do is not going to attack other dogs. Owners are present and doing their best to deal with a dog if it's being too silly.
- That the dog will not defecate on the pathway. That the dog will not be in my personal space without invitation. That there will not be aggression towards others.
- Dogs should be under the control of owner at all times and should behave in a responsible manner.
- Dog must be friendly, no agression.
- As long as the animal is on leash and under control of thier owner.
- I am understanding of some dogs behavior, for it could be due to their past if they are a rescue. I do expect in these cases that the owner (or person walking the dog) is able to handle and control the dog appropriately.
- well behaved
- Not lunging or growling at other occupants and wildlife
- That owner is present and in control of dog.
- Under control and happy
- Pickup mess and on leash.
- Dogs should be on leash and owner should be monitoring their dog
- On leash AND under control. Lunging at people on leash is not good etiquette, especially on busy pathways. PICK UP POOP. Carry your dogs' license and be respectful. I honestly think that Calgarians are very good compared to other places I have lived.
- No jumping on pedestrians, no incessant barking, and the owner should always have a strong hold on the leash.
- Dogs should not approach a person or other dogs on leash walking past them. Dog waste will be picked up immediately. Dogs will remain on leash 100% of the time in any space that is not designated as off leash.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Aggressive animals no matter what size should be reported and the owner to have mandatory training with the animal upon a proven complaint.
- If your dog is well behaved than people should be able to do whatever they feel comfortable with their dogs
- Zero aggression to people or other dogs and if necessary a muzzle.
- On leash.
- Not jumping on people, or being aggressive.
- The dogs should be on leash at all times. Anyone who has an aggressive dog, should not only be on leash, but under complete control of the owner. They should not allow an aggressive dog to approach other people/dogs unless invited. Owners should always clean up after their animals.
- I don't understand why I cannot walk my dog near parks even if he is on-leash. If a dog is on a leash I should be able to follow a path and walk next to a park, as long as I am not putting him in the slides
- Please keep all dogs leashed on pathways. A dog getting in the way of a bicycle could lead to very serious injuries. If dogs are aggressive on leash when other dogs pass, muzzles should be worn.
- Dogs should be on leash. If owner is using a flexy they should have it locked at an appropriate length to control the dog and not be a danger to other people or animals.
- Dogs on leash, owners pick up after dog.
- Calm and controlled. Not aggressive in behaviour or body language.
- Don't let your children approach an animal without having consent.
Teaching children and adults why yelling or calling to the animals when you're across the street is unacceptable, it encourages the dog to try to cross an unsafe road.
- DOGS NEED TO BE ON-LEASH. I can't stress this one enough and see it ALL the time. And people don't care. "Lighten up" "my dog is fine" "don't worry, he's friendly"
This is my #1 pet peeve.
- They be kept close when people are passing as some people are scared of dogs and dont like them coming close
- That you are able to control your dog
- On leash and respectful or muzzled if not no harnesses and no leash longer than 3 meters
- No jumping up on people. No biting. Waste removal.
- Dog owner should be held liable for any vicious animal incidents.
- That your dog is kept on leash and under controll. And if not, more inforcement.
- Similar to above.
- Pick up the poop. Dog should be under control.
- Dogs should not be let off leash in spaces that aren't off leash and let roam where they shouldn't be roaming. The person with the dog needs to pick up dog waste.
- Pick up poop! Leash your dog at all times unless in an off leash area.
- pick up dog waste
- no aggressive behaviour, have your dog under control at all times
- Not jumping on people.

Not interfering with cyclists.

- On leash. Controlled in both behavior and barking.
  - Dogs should be on-leash everywhere in public that is not an off-leash area. This is not just for non-dog owners' comfort (which it is) but also that some dogs do better when on-leash, and should not have to risk being approached by off-leash dogs in on-leash areas.
  - no aggressive behaviour at any time. On leash at all time. Too many hikers-joggers-bikers doing their stuff with the dog in front or behind with no idea of what happens when encountering other users.
  - Owners need to be in control at all times
  - Not to see dogs off leash, well mannered, friendly. Usually dogs off are leash even not a off leash area.
  - That's dogs are onleash in all areas that are not off leash. That your dog doesn't constantly bark when put into your yard, especially at 1am.....
  - Pick up after your dog!!! Respect the rules. No off leash on paved pathways in communities. Have control of your dog. If your dog is not social then don't let off leash.
  - Non-threatening behaviour towards people and other animals and if not, muzzled.
  - Dog is under control.
  - Dog remains at the owners side or otherwise does not impede the progress of others. IE, running across someone's path or approaching others without acknowledgement.
  - They need to be on leash, if aggressive tendencies they should be muzzled (regular muzzle or even basket muzzle). Ask before you let your dog say hello to other dogs, pick up waste, proper walking gear (no choke chains, spike collars, retractable leashes). These endanger so many pets
  - Come when called - I say this instead of "be on leash" because we will never have 100% compliance with on-leash and I am personally okay with a well-behaved dog off leash in public.
  - On leash.
  - That the dogs are on leash
  - Owners need to clean up after their pets! The fine for not cleaning up should be higher and enforceable. I live on a walk way and I'm really tired of cleaning up dog poop.
  - Human behaviour is the problem - On leash in on leash areas, keep the dog on your right (outside), no flexi-leads, ask permission to greet.
  - Pick up dog poo, don't leave poo bags hanging on trees or fences, keep the dog under control.
  - Not harassing others enjoying the public space.
- Good leash manners.
- Not trying to jump at or on others.
- Dog should be in control (ie, leashed but also able to walk near owner and not be zooming all over the sidewalk or on a 20+ foot leash), and if not then owner should be able to gain control to allow other people to pass on pathways or sidewalks. Owners should pick up dog waste.
  - If your dog shows signs of aggressive behaviour towards people or dogs they should not be allowed in off leash areas.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Yield to other pass biers
- Dogs should be leashed at all times.
- Dogs should be on leash and under the pet owner's control at all times
- The owner has full control of the animal and it is always on leash. Also that they pick up the poo and dispose of it in proper waste container.
- I have noticed that dogs are frequently off leash in areas that are not off-leash (eg. Glenmore Park.) I have frequently been aggressively approached by dogs in off leash areas as well. There needs to be better enforcement.
- Owners must pick up dog waste, must notify people approaching.
- Leashed and well-behaved at all times
- All waste to be picked up. Stay off private property (lawns), do not let dogs run up to people.
- Everyday I see people walking dogs with no leash, with a 30-foot leash, in playgrounds, schoolyards, on pathways. The 'dog behaviour' is a direct result of the 'owner behaviour' and I wish you would do something to enforce the existing bylaws.
- Properly socialized in all areas.
- Keep dogs on leash, no extendable leashes allowed, leashes dogs must be kept away from children, adults and other pets in pathways.
- Don't take your dog if you can't control it.
- Clean up poo!
- Pathways, common/public areas are not designated off leash areas. Owners must keep dogs under control at all times.
- Unless you're in an off leash area your dog should be on a leash. I have seen way too many people who think that the rules don't apply and they can do whatever they want. Also I think more people should be educated on muzzles and how useful they are.
- Move for people, quiet, non-aggressive towards other animals or people. Owner's must control their animals to prevent contact with other animals or humans unless permissible by the other person. Clean up after your animal.
- Dogs are leashed
- Dogs should be leashed when not in off-leash spaces.
- Dogs should be on leash and well behaved. Dog waste should always be picked up - Need more Bylaw officers to police this. Use Licence information to visit and educate owners and check that they have the means to clean up. Large packs of walking dogs should be stopped due to intimidation to some.
- Dogs should always be on their best behaviour. It's ok for the odd bark or outburst. Things trigger dogs. We have to understand the dogs better and not be quick to vilify them when acting up
- Not to invade my space. I'm not a dog person and I do not appreciate dogs running up to me/jumping on me.
- Dogs should be leashed and people should call out to let you know if a pet is not friendly.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If you do have your dog off leash and you see another person or dog, call them and leash them, no questions asked.
- Dog to be well mannered (or in training). To be conscious of those who may be afraid of dogs
- If it is not an off leash park then leash your dog. Unleash parks are a safe space for dogs who can't be off leash.
- Short leash at all times. No dogs at all in wildlife areas.
- None from the dog. But the owner needs to have it on a leash and be able to hold that leash and not let go. If it barks or growls I don't care. But do not let it get near another dog or human if it isn't friendly, just keep a safe distance and hold the leash and dog firm
- Dogs should be on leash and the owner held responsible for the dogs actions.
- must not jump up
- Dogs should be leashed and owners should always pick up after their dogs.
- Dogs should always be on a leash. Dog owners should not take dogs onto property that is marked as dog-free (city playgrounds, public school property, etc).
- Dogs should be Behaved. Humans should not have to be afraid for their safety. That said, non pet owners need to be aware. Dogs sense fear immediately & can behave in response to that. Owners should be aware & ready to respond. Rescue dogs can also be unpredictable. We can all coexist.
- Dogs should be on-leash at all times and within a few feet of owners (no extendible leashes), & under control -not running and jumping on strangers, barking at ppl and wildlife. If dogs are not trained to do this, they should only be in fenced off-leash parks.
- Same as off leash...well mannered, obey owners commands, pick up after them, owner is responsible for their behaviour
- That the dog is under control, and that the owner corrects the dog immediately if they are not behaving properly.
- owner has dog on short leash (plea ban extendileashes), dog is not aggressive to people, owner pick up dog poop
- if on pathways like community side-walks, your dogs should always be on leash.
- Good
- Controllable by owner, on leash
- Leashed, tethered, 6 feet away max. Leashed
- Dog must be under owner's control (leash or command in off leash areas) pet waste MUST be picked up and disposed into waste bin. Vicious dogs leashed and muzzled.
- Make sure dogs are on leash unless in designated off leash areas. Prevent them from getting too close to other dogs or people without permission.
- Dogs interact in different ways - sometimes they will be more aggressive then others, this can be normal - the issue is with untrained animals which is once again an issue with the owner and the dog just requires training

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Some dogs are trained to be off leash from day one, I think that if an individual and their dog are calm, responsible and interact well with others than they should have some leniency when it comes to not wearing a leash. Collar and tags are still a must!
- Same as the above plus ensuring their dog is on a leash.
- Dog owners must be in control of their dog at all times. Too often I've had dogs run up to me with their hackles up and the owner telling me they are friendly; that's not friendly. My dog & my sister have been attacked - in both cases there were no consequences to the dog owners even tho reported.
- I expect dogs to be on leash and the owner to have care and control of their dog or dogs.
- Waste pick up and enforcing people who let their pets off leash in non off leash areas.
- Do not jump at pedestrians when sharing the pathways/ sidewalks, etc.
- Owners need to keep dogs on leash when not in a designated off leash area. Need more city enforcement of this.
- Good behaviour on leash.
- Always picking up waste and not allowing pets to use private property
- Dog should be leashed or at least we'll trained and under control.
- Dogs should be either on leash or under the strict control of the caregiver. The city should also be asking about the behaviour of other pathway users. As a dog owner, I have had the most problems with cyclists on walking paths that are not considerate of other users and travelling too fast.
- This is a dog area and dogs are running free so let them be dogs but nothing it affects people.
- That residents keep their dogs on leash even in open fields. Huge issue in my area and my dog is not friendly with others ESPECIALLY when off leash dog approaches her on leash it's a disaster waiting to happen
- I expect dogs to be leashed when not in off leash areas, and to be responsive to me as the owner/handler.
- owners to be responsible for their dog and to respect the space of other dogs. If you can not control your dog then they should not be at the dog parks. People
Need to stop being ignorant about their own dog and that their dog is not perfect.
- That the dog does not come toward me for any reason. It does not growl or bark. It does not keep me from going about my business. The dog is securely affixed to a permanent fixture with a leash when owner is not around.
- Always be on a leash. Not letting them approach other dogs or wildlife. Always pick up dog waste.
Be liscensed
- Dogs should stay near their owners and not approach people with children unless they have the parent's consent.
- Not barking at every other animal a d/or person. Seriously. Nobody likes that neighbor.
- On leash.
Pick up after dog.
And for non-pet owners to respect distance.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

For parents not to allow kids to approach leashed pets (or unleashed) without owner consent.

- that they will be leashed at all times and on the not more than 6 ft leash if other people or animals are around. that the dog will be under control and not approaching others without permission from the other and the owner.
- Leash rules, what to use, not those extend a leash things.
- I expect good behavior or an owner who is engaged in trying to train their animal. An off leash dog park is a place to train your dog to come when called, proper etiquette with people/animals. Perfection is unrealistic, we don't expect it from people, why would we expect it from animals?
- Be under close control and on leash.
- Pick up waste
- That they are on leash! I live in Tuscany and interact with many dog owners who have their dogs off leash curing "it's ok they're friendly". I do not take my dog to off leash parks because of how those dogs react, now I have to be worried about off leash dogs in an on leash area too.
- Dog owners need to ensure their dogs are not scaring children, when passing other people, stand between your dog and other people and move your dogs away from others. Not everybody feels safe around dogs
- Dog must be leashed and under control.
- keep by your side & don't get in way of people. Have them trained to be polite & not vicious. Use a muzzle if required.
- Basic courtesy and good citizenship. It's more about human behavior than animal behavior, to be honest. It may be Inappropriate", but I'll say it anyway--your animal is not your "fur baby", and doesn't get the same rights and privileges.
- Simple....they behave and well trained...owners need to be in control
- Keep dogs on leash in designated areas. Often people will say their dog is friendly so they feel entitled to let the dog off leash. This will result in a problem when the off leash dog approaches the dog on leash. Happens all the time..
- Reinforce people to clean up after their dogs. Especially, having extra consequences of their actions!
Give Greater fine!
Have more Officers present to reduce animal waste and give fines! No warnings!
Make greater fines if caught in action!
- Dogs should all ways be on the right side of owner when on public walkways, and not on a 30foot lease.
- Leashed. Under control. Would really like to see a bandana system implemented in Calgary
- Dogs are kept close to their owner or controlled by owner so that none dog owners feel comfortable in the shared space.
- That the dog be on a leash and under control, sharing the pathway and/or public space in a reasonable manner.
- Dogs always on leash and in close range to the owner. Most owners always say their dog is friendly when they go close to other in the park area. Owners need to understand that with an immigrant population, most of them have never been around pets and panic, scream, run when a dog approaches them.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs obviously have to be trained, but it's their abundance and the stench of their urine. They need to be limited to certain parks. When the snow melts their defecation spaces reek of urine. We live across the street from one of these parks and we and our neighbors want to start a petition.
- Dogs must be kept on short 6 ft leash).
- Not aggressive. Dig behavior is dependent on owner behavior
- I don't think dogs should be able to approach people or other dogs while leashes and in common public spaces (need to give people their room)
- City parks reek of urine with the spring thaw. It's so bad that dogs should only be allowed to use the parks between certain hours. Otherwise, go to an off-lease area.
- Dogs are leashed and under owners control
- They should be composed and manageable for the owner or walker
- Dogs must be monitored by owner
- KEEP DOGS ON LEASH!!!!!!!!!! And fine all that don't private property is begin damaged and wild life is be harassed on a daily why do you think we have a raise in wild conflicts!!!!!!!! OFF LEASH DOGS!!!!!! We need to step up and stop people walking dogs off leash on private property, city property green
- On leash
Not jumping on passerby's
Picking up dog waste
- Respectful of people, wildlife and the space.
- Owners must pick up after their pets. If pets are aggressive, this should be clearly noted and dog should be on short leash and muzzled. Dogs should be on reasonable leash length to not unnecessarily disturb others' use of public spaces.
- I don't have any expectations, every animal is different and should not be approached without the consent of the owner.
- Under control and giving other people space on pathways.
- The same as off leash areas.
- Owners/ dogs give space to other owners/dogs and individuals without animals. Do not let an untrained dog off leash to run up to other individuals/dogs
- Non-aggressive dogs
- Pick up waste and dog should be friendly
- Same as on leash/off leash
- Persons with dogs should have the dogs on leashes not longer than 6 feet. Owners need to demonstrate awareness of their own dog's(s') comfort level when encountering other people or animals and respond accordingly by standing off to the side, or crossing a street.
- I expect them to be dogs. Pee, poop, walk, sniff and probably get pet by non dog owners

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- In a perfect world dogs trained well enough that they don't require a leash. But otherwise relatively friendly, generally undisruptive (as possible with higher regulations dogs should be allowed in more spaces.
- Puck up faces.
- Pick up dog waste
- Well behaved, no threat,
- People do not let their kids or dogs approach other dogs without invitation. Dogs on retractable leashes should not be lunging/ growling at other dogs - if the owner can not control, they should be on a fixed shorter leash
- That they are kept on leash and courteous to others using the pathways/spaces. No flexi-leads that allow the dogs to be out of owners reach and control.
- I expect the owner to have their dog in control so it does not hurt or attack my dog.
- Be leashed. Pick up dog waste. Control your dog on leash - don't let it approach other dogs on leash.
- Must be on a leash and owner is in good trim if dog
- Dogs should not be on leashes that are too long. I believe the bylaw states 2m? Leashes should not cross a path way. Owners need to keep the animal off others. No lunging, barking , etc. I should not have to detour around an animal and his owner because they are taking up the full pathway.
- People do not pick up after their dogs....I'd like to see more waste bins and free doggy bag stations
- Dogs should be walking with their owner, or under control of their owner. I don't believe all dogs should be on leash, as some are trained very well and do not need a leash to remain by their owner. I expect dogs to be able to mark, and scent public property, and to interact with their surroundings.
- I'm pretty relaxed. As I have animals.
- Don't be aggressive towards any other living things. My PITBULL has been bit twice by a Scottish terrier and not once retaliated.
- Leashed. Muzzled if needed. Watch the length of your leash, just because your dog is 10 lbs doesn't mean it can be at large while my dog is on a 3 foot lead and can't get away from your ankle biter. Don't blame a big dog for the mess a small dog created.
- On a leash and under control
- They must be on leash and owners must pick up waste.
- They are on leash and in control not jumping move to the side.
- We live along a ravine and pathway and dogs are constantly off leash - even though 2 signs have been posted. One of our dogs gets upset when other dogs run up to him. We can't even take our dog out sometimes because it is like an offleash park to some people. Very frustrating!!!
- None
- I expect owners to be respectful of other's space and follow all bylaws, including leashing and pickup after their dogs. There have been more and more instances of people walking their dogs off leash in areas not designated as such. This includes not only green spaces but down the streets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dog is well controlled and owner shows respect for other peoples enjoyment of the area.
- Under control at all times--on a short leash--not an extending roaming leash
- That dogs be on leash and that pet owners pick up after their animals, take your dog waste home ! Owners abide by the rules!
- Dogs must be on a leash and not allowed barking.
- on leash or under control
- Reasonable responsibility from everyone at the park. Owners that have no reactivity to their dogs large or small are hugely problematic. Also dog walkers with 10 dogs and no ability to control the herd mentality.
- No retractable leashes on pathways! Such a hazard. Dogs walked on busy multi-use pathways should have other users in mind for those passing and coming other direction.
- To be on a leash and have the owner pick up after them.
- Dog owners should NOT have pets off leash ever! Once 1 or 2 do it they number increases of other doing it. Dogs should always be on the right hand side, if left handed move your dog away to the right for that short time of passing so that it's the people passing each other & not dog/ dog/person
- Have recall and not jump on people .
- On leash controlled,
- On leash unless obviously training dog in advanced obedience.
- Similar to above. Treating people and other dogs with respect. Keeping the ground clean.
- Be respectful to people walking that may not like dogs. Step to the side with your dog to let people pass without the dog jumping.
- Clearly. Dogs not in off-leash zone need to be on leash. This is a safety issue (pathway) and should have zero tolerance. There still needs to be a part of NoseHill park that a person can walk without being bothered by dogs. Currently, people don't even have a leash on their persons when walking dog
- My expectations are for animals to be animals, and humans to mess them up with ridiculous and unrealistic expectations. 'Oh! Oh! Your little dog with 1.5m leash attached and trailing is a hazard to my large mastiff!' The trailing leash is very likely for good reason but there's no convincing others.
- The owner needs to know their dog and only let them off leash if they come when they are called in a reasonable amount of time.
- New Canadians are amazing, but need extra education in their own language on the requirement to keep dogs on leash on bicycle pathways. And likely in other aspects of responsible pet ownership. You guys took the no dogs signs down from schools, so now people bring their dogs to poop on playgrounds.
- dog should be on a leash or body harness at all times. Pick up waste. Dog should have some training to listen to owner.
- Owner should always have control, and one leash and not in/near children play grounds.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- you should ask, what expectations do you have of owners in other common/public spaces - owners are the problem, not the dogs. Owners are the cause of their dogs not behaving. Obedience classes is a must.
- No retractable leashes. Dog must be controlled.
- Guardians must always have control of their dog. A maximum 6' leash must be used. Flexi-leashes must be banned. Guardians must respect other people with or without dogs. Always ask before approaching other people.
- No jumping on people
- walk dog not in the middle of pathways.. Keep them on the right
- The city of calgary needs to look at limiting the number of dogs being walked (i.e. "professional walkers) I've personal seen walkers with 10+ dogs and it is very dangerous and unhealthy for the dogs. <https://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/saskatoon/saskatoon-dogs-rules-1.5453562> - Other cities are looking
- Guardians must always have control of their dog. A maximum 6' leash must be used. Flexi-leashes must be banned. Guardians must respect other people with or without dogs. Always ask before approaching other people. [DUPLICATE]
- dogs must be on leash. There is nothing worse than having your dog on leash, or walking by myself and someone has their dog run up and out of control. As a dog owner there is nothing worse than assuming that everyone wants contact with my dog.
- Ability to control your dog and know how to anticipate bad behaviour
- dog on leash, owner in control, if dogs have issues, owner should cross street avoiding confrontations with other animals, thus avoiding miss behaviour
- if your dog is off leash they need to be respectful of other dogs and people. If they are not then they should NOT be off leash.
- When taking your pets into public spaces, your dog should be under your care and control at all times.
- Calmness no jumping
- Dog is under control of an adult. Most kids can't control a large dog.
- They're on a leash and in control of the handler
- pick up poop; controlled on leash - and for owners to understand what triggers their dog! If your dog barks/lunges within 10 feet of another dog while on-leash- don't let them get that close! You're only making it worse
- That dogs should be kept on leash and in a controlled state, ie: not given freedom and space to approach others without their consent.
- My expectations are that the dog is under control of the owner.
- It seems that the current bylaw of not having a dog off leash within 10 meters of a pathway isn't beginning applied at the Rotary Park. Making it very unsafe at heavy traffic times to allow dogs to go off-leash.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- well behaved on a leash, owner should be able to control their dog while on leash, if aggressive then either harnessed or some sort of muzzle used
- I feel that Dogs should be expected to behave normally when it comes to noise, and under the same rules as the public. It can be expected that a dog will bark and will bark more if antagonized by someone. But they are quite during regular Noise Bylaw times.
- That dogs are on leash and on their "side" of the pathway. Bikes and dogs/long leashes do not go well together.
- On-leash, pick up poop
- That people keep their dog on-leash - many people don't do this. I meet at least one or two on any walk I take my dog in parks. That they should not allow their dog to harass wildlife.
- On leash.
- Enforcement. Dog attacks are so scary and often!
- Always on a leash no matter where you are. Also a length of leash that you can pull short so the dog can remain inches from you If nessecary for safety If you want to play fetch in a park go to the off leash instead. Plus pick up after your dog or don't own one!!! Frustrating this is a problem
- on a leash
- All dogs should be on a leash and controlled.
- IT annoys me to no end, people that have dogs off leash in on-leash areas.. this should be strictly enforced.
- I don't think you can police dog behaviour, it's just not going to be possible. All dogs are different and will react in their own way to circumstances. What you can expect is for the owner to understand their dogs behaviour and have controls in place like short leashes, muzzles or whatever to help.
- on bike paths, dogs should be walked on a short leash, or off to the side of the pathway so that leashes do not create a safety hazard
- I expect owners to monitor their dog's behaviour - ensuring it doesn't jump up on people; stray across the cycle pathways, chase wildlife. And don't say 'he's friendly, don't worry.'
- Please find a way to communicate that having your dog off leash in a area not deemed so, that you will face fines. I am TOO TIRED and FRUSTRATED dealing with all the pet owners who use the school field behind our house as an off leash park. There are signs, yet I have never seen any accountability.
- All dogs need to be properly trained, with good recall. Pick up after their dog in off leash and not off leash areas. BIG Fines for not picking up after your pet.
- On leash and under control.
- Owners must keep dog on leash. Many let them run off leash in non off leash areas. This endangers children and others. Fines need to be issued to offenders and since timely enforcement isnt done they know there isnt any risk of consequence. Responsible owners have to put up with repeat offender
- Have the dog on a leash at all times. Allow citizens to report dog owners who do not do this.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Well behaved, well controlled, if on an extendable leash do not let your dog have a wide berth as non pet owners/ bikers/ runners cannot see the thin leash, no dogs chasing after you when running/ not growling/ not lunging, pay attention to the signs to obey when it is an on leash area.
- Dog on leash and under control.
- On leash
- Dogs MUST be on a leash and under control.
- Owner should not allow dog to pull ahead to the point where they have no control over the dog. Ban Flexi leads!!! They are so so dangerous to the dog wearing them, the owner, and other dogs! Do not allow your dog to approach another dog on leash without explicit consent from the owner.
- Respectful dog behaviour
- Pick up waste, on-leash, monitor dog to ensure it interacts properly with other animals and people. Owners should not allow anyone to approach their dog without their consent.
- Now that it is allowed to bring your dog in to breweries/restaurants etc. it should be common knowledge about what a dog handler can and can't do with their dogs
- Keep dogs on leash. Too many people ignore the rules.
- Under owner control at all times.
- Pathways : current overview of expectations are clear clear; the public needs to be made aware of these expectations.
** Needed: new by-law stating it is illegal for dogs to be pulled on lease, even with a harness, behind any wheeled vehicle ON THE ROADS. There is no law or clarification on this.
- Dogs being quiet (no barking or lunging). Staying to the proper side of pathways, not disrupting other people using the area.
- PICK UP POOP!!! No aggressive behaviour
- Dogs should be on leash when not in off-leash areas.
- Owners need to be diligent about picking up dog waste
Dogs should be on leash
- Dog controlled in close proximity to owner, not going up to or interacting with other dogs or people without mutual consent. Cleaning up after dogs
- Dogs are to be on a leash and under the control of their owners
- No running dogs beside bikes or while wearing roller blades. Always ON-Leash and under control.
- The dog be no more than four to six feet away from he's owner, it on an extension leash. The dog does not chase bikes, skateboards, joggers, etc
- On-leash dogs should be in control always.
- Stay close to owner, respond to owner commands, able to redirect attention and focus back to owner
- Under control at all times
- I expect my dog and others, to be well behaved, respectful of their surroundings. Walk well on their leash
- All animals should be leashed and should be proven to be safe for the General Public

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Under the owner's control & on leash
- I have grown up with and have dogs (all large) and I would expect that dogs always be kept on a leash, unless they are extremely obedient/elderly. All responsibility for the dogs behaviour should fall on the owner. Dogs not accustomed to humans/other dogs should not be out before they are ready.
- Non aggression
- The owner has full control of their dog while on leash and the non-owner doesn't approach without consent.
- I expect people who have animals to know their pet and to be aware at all times. Mistakes and anxiety can happen unexpectedly. Stay off your damn phone
- People are so stupid. They let their dog attack other dogs they meet and they just stand there and watch. They do nothing to control their dogs.
- More signage in on leash parks eg. Bowness Park
- The dog isn't able to harm other people or animals.
- They owners should have control of their dogs on leash. They should be mindful when approaching other dogs and respect space as not all dogs are overly friendly on leash
- Under control
- That they behave like dogs. But that if not leached they don't charge at people. Friendly approaching for pets is always good.
- I have no expectations of the dogs behavior, I have expectations of the owners behavior and how they control their dog. They should always have their dog walking on the outside (right side) of the path, away from oncoming pedestrians or cyclists, not running all over the path, even on a leash.
- In control at all times
- I would love to ban retractable leashes on pathways because people permit their dog to be too far away and the very thin type of leash is a safety hazard. Owners must have total control of their dog - ie. lunging, aggressive approach.
- They stay on the path and aren't aggressive.
- Keep dogs on leash at all times!!!! I don't care how well trained you believe your dog is !!!
I own dogs and I believe people should be fined heavily for allowing their dog off leash anywhere but the off leash park and their home
- All dogs should be on leash to ensure the safety of them and others. Dog owners should not allow their dog to approach other dogs without owners consent.
- Well behaved, move to the side if you worry your dog may jump/pull.
- dog under control and owner aware of their particular behavior. Other people and children respecting the dog and the owner.
- Be on a non retractable, under 6' leash when on shared use pathways.
- Dogs should not approach other people while in public places. Many people are fearful of, especially larger dogs, and pet owners need to be in full control of their animals at all times.
- Dogs should be under control. And not allowed to approach others unless invited. Pick up waste

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs not on flexi-leashes, dogs not being able to have enough leash space to jump or go up to other people, on leash on pathways, poop always picked up
- N/A
- Respectful behaviour from all users. Conflict arises more often from non-dog owners than from owners.
- Not aggressive
- dog is on leash.
- Keep your dog on leash, pick up waste, do not allow your dog to approach others, keep dog away from play structures etc. Where kids are playing.
- Should be on a leash, owner should know and understand how their dog reacts to situations and they should react to their dogs reactions
- No lunging at people or other dogs.
- Dogs really should be kept on leash when not in an off-leash park. We have quite a few off-leash areas in Bonavista Downs, and people often don't re-leash their dogs when going to another area. This has resulted in dogs almost being hit by cars and almost causing car accidents.
- That they don't lunge, bite or jump on you.
- Ban flexi leads. They aren't safe. Dogs should be on a 6 foot leash or less, and the owner should have control. Never approaching another dog or human with your dog without permission
- Complete control of the dog and respect for others.
- the animal should be on leash and if aggressive, must be under control of the person holding the leash
- Owners to bring their pets indoors to stop their successive barking
- on pathways dogs should be on leash, especially when bicycles and strollers are in the area
- I expect that dogs will be leashed and that owners will pay attention what their dog is doing. I would appreciate if people would keep their dogs under control so they are not running at people.
- Dogs walking nicely on leashes, and owners paying attention to what is happening around them to help avoid possible conflicts. And ALWAYS pick up after dogs. Parks can help out by ensuring enough garbage cans are available.
- Dog is on leash at all times.
- I expect people and people with dogs on leash to keep distance from me, It is never a good idea for dogs to meet when on leash.
- Take your dog to obedience school. Owners need to take classes on what it means to be a responsible pet owner. There are some people who should never be allowed to own a pet. KEEP YOUR DOG ON A LEASH IN PUBLIC AREAS. Respect your neighbour's property & pick up your dog poop.
- The dog is not aggressive towards me, my children, or my pet. The dog is not destructive.
- No jumping on people. Being able to tell when your dog is playing vs being a pest.
- On a leash and under control
- Kind to other dogs and people, not vicious

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Must be on leash. Small dogs should be judged to the same standard as large dogs.
- Dogs that can walk alongside their owner can do so off-leash as long as they are responsible to be called.
- The same as #3
- rules should be the same including having dog always in full control of the owner (proper leashing)
- Dogs should be on a leash. Owner must pick up after them.
- Same as off leash but your dog is on leash. Outlaw retractable leashes.
- Dog not being aggressive towards the other pathway users.
- Always keep leash on, monitor dog behaviour and clean up waste of dog.
- Responsible owner behaviour regarding dogs.
- Keep your dog on leash.
  - Ask before allowing your dog to approach another dog.
  - Dont take your dog outside to meet other dogs if it is a small neurotic bully.
- Most dog owners figure everyone should like their dogs. I do not like dogs & don't want the dog coming near me. Don't tell me that your dog is friendly. Just keep it away from me.
- Well behaved, manageable on leash
- Keep a dog on the leash at all times.
- Dogs to be on leash which they are supposed to be but its not enforced so few are on leash dogs should not greet on leash and if I have walked off the path 5 feet with my dog to avoid another person who then lets their dog come after me is just mind blowing
- Dog must be on a short leash when not in an off-leash area. They should not lunge at other pathway users.
- That dogs do not roam from side to side of a pathway. That owners also pick up after their fogs no matter where they are. That dogs are ON leash unless otherwise indicated. That owners bloody well pay attention & get OFF their friggin' electronic devices.
- That people and dogs do not approach until asked and permission given. NO ONE asks, and that becomes unsafe. Also, if your dog is reactive have control of it.
- That the dog not bark or lunge aggressively at people.
- On leash at all times. Non-aggressive behaviour.
- Picking up their waste
- Same as when walking anywhere else
- On short leash
- My small son has been charged by a large excited dog several times on the sidewalk and it was scary for him. I think that it should be clear to dog owners that no matter how sure they are of the friendliness & harmlessness of their dog, it's bad manners to just let them charge around.
- My understanding is that people walking have the right of way on the paths. However, I find people riding bikes feel that they have the right away and want you to move off the paths. This needs to be clearly defined on the pathways. I also feel that as a pet owner you need to bring your dog near

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Owner is able to clearly maintain control and responsibility of their dog. Owner is always within arms reach of their dog. Dog is always on leash and demonstrating appropriate good behaviour. Inappropriate barking and growling are the owners responsibility to immediately correct and or remove dog
- Owners should not allow their dog to approach non owners at all-unless asked or solicited by that person, they should not sniff or jump on strangers
- Dogs need to be leashed on paths. Owners let dogs run everywhere & dont watch and there is dog shit all over. See Bowmont Park running along 40 Ave Nw NW from 53 St Nw.
- same as above . the owner should be responsible ,clean up after their pets and respect the public at large
- Dogs should be reasonable well behaved, considering age, breed and other factors.
- Pick up feces, ensure animal is strictly controlled if not friendly with other dogs, children or other people.
- On leash and under control at all times.
- If a person is in an off-leash dog park and they don't like dogs they should not be there
- On leash, stay close to owner and owner picks up
- Waste pick up, ensure dogs are leashed in neighborhoods. Too many kids play and dogs run around.
- Owners have control of their dog, the leash is not obstructing the pathway, and the owner and dog are sharing the pathway, the owner is picking up dog waste and disposing of it properly (not leaving bag by pathway)
- they should be on a leash and be well behaved
- Dog comes when called (especially if it's approaching other people/dogs) , stays close to owner, isn't running in front of cars/bikes, will not be aggressive towards other people or animal, owners clean up after their dog
- Minimal barking. Proper behaviour towards others. Not engaging with other people who do not wish to be approached by a dog. Owners picking up waste. Not allowing dog to defecate/urinate in someone else's yard.
- To be on leash!!! But people don't seem to get this. To not be on long leashes getting in the way of bikes or approaching other dogs or children without the owner close by. To be cleaned up after.
- Walk nicely, don't bark at cyclists, don't bite or growl. Don't pee on everything
- That they be good around the public and other animals.
- The dog needs to be under the owners control at all times.
- Owners should have control of their dogs. Dogs shouldn't be off leash and running around.
- Have your dog on leash and pick up poop and respect all around yourself, not all people are comfortable with dogs, or other dogs.
- Kept stopped and away from people passing. Kept off all lawns and hedges - poop / pee your dog at home before you go on your walk. It can be done, from experience I know this. If you and your

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

dog have an accident (yes owner because you didn't poop/pee them before left) pick it up. On leash always

- Same as dog park. Must be in control of animal.
- Socialized properly, or owner verbal to oncoming people if dog has health issues or not social
- Dogs always behave well, problem is some owners leaving them off-leash in non-designated zones
- The animal should be in control.. pick up any messes.. common sense.. honestly I'm not concerned if it's off leash playing ball in a field having a great time .. as long as the human cleans any messes and is aware of the surroundings have a great time
- Some people have extreme control of their dog due to excessive training. I believe if you have full control of your dogs a leash should not be required while using public pathways. If you do not have FULL control I believe a leash should be required.
- Dogs must be under owners control at all times.
- If a dog is not comfortable in that environment not to take them. Also to be aware of health concerns ie not taking an unvaccinated puppy to a dog park where they can be exposed to parvovirus.
- On pathways, dogs should be onleash and within 3 feet of their owners. The pathways can be congested at times and it can be dangerous when dogs wander (on or off leash) across the path of other users.
- NOT off-leash, close to owner, respect other users. Having said that, cyclists need to respect walkers and dogs.
- City needs to provide a lot more education on dog body language either through courses in person or on line. Most dogs on leash have some form of leash reactivity that people are completely oblivious to.
- Same rules as an off leash park, but with a leash.. ie. pickup after dog, do not approach dog without consent, ..
- on a leash (believe me when I say I see people let their dogs loose when it's not an off-leash park), the owner is to blame
- I expect dog walkers to always have dogs on leash , especially as most of them are now walking upwards of 15 dogs at a time. Pack mentality occurs with just 2 dogs , I am concerned dog walkers are not placing any importance on what could easily happen if a pack attacks a single dog.
- Limited aggressive behaviour unless cornered by a stranger. No biting or lunging
- on leash, a short leash when approaching others on the walkway. pick up droppings and PROPERLY dispose. I see so many poop bags just dropped on the side of the walkways, or thrown into nearby bushes. disgusting.
- 1)Owners should not let their dog lick my kid's face as we cross paths. 2)Owners need to TIE CLOSE poo bags before tossing in my green bin. 3)Owners fined if throw poo bags in blue bin. 4)Owners to pick up poo CLEANLY. 5)Same dog should not pee/poo on my lawn more than 3 times a week -- ruins lawn
- not jumping up on people, minimal barking, social interaction with other dogs and people
- People NEED to pick up after their dogs. Both on and off-leash areas are RIDDLED with feces.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs be adequately trained or muzzled until such time as they are trained to avoid biting of people specifically children. With dog ownership comes responsibilities no different than having children running about.
- Dogs must be on leash. Owners should discourage dogs from ""visiting"" unknown dogs and people who do not engage or ask to visit with their dog.
I have had repeated off-leash encounters in on-leash areas in multiple parks and streets in the city - multiple times per week.
- Pick up dog waste!!!
- None. It is upon the owners/parents to ensure proper dog etiquette. Unfortunately some parents don't get this, and ruin it for everyone else. I very hesitant about how much the city needs to be involved, the same way I don't feel the city has much say on how I raise my children
- I expect dogs in pathways should be on leash to have dogs navigate past each other. I have dogs that are not ok with other dogs and always have them on a leash. I've had multiple occasions where people have let their dogs off leash and they run up to my dog without any recall to their people.
- Not to let people assume they can just walk up to your dog with their dog. All dogs MUST be leashed. Always pick up after your dog. Even if it's-40.
- I try to keep my dog on the same side of the path as I am on.
- Dogs should be able to heel, not be aggressive, waste picked up and disposed of properly
- On leash, under control, muzzled if appropriate, pick up waste, only walk as many as can safely be controlled
- They should be on leash and move off the path so others so others can pass wherever reasonable
- That DOGS WILL BE ON LEASE WHEN IN PUBLIC SPACE! AND THAT THE CITY WILL BE OUT IN FORCE TO TICKET, REPEAT TICKET THE OWNERS THAT DO NOT OBEY THE BYLAWS.
- I expect the dog not to jump on me. I expect a dog not to race up to me or chase after me.
- Not allowing leash to cross the path, obstructing others. Not allowing dogs to jump up or bother other pathway users
- Dogs not be allowed in fountains/spray parks (i.e. Olympic Plaza), not left unattended or off-leash in spray park areas. That dogs are not allowed to bark outdoors for a period longer than 10 minutes. That dogs are not left outside in their yard unattended/monitored for longer than 30 minutes.
- Dogs should be respectful, quiet, under control, non threatening. Waste picked up immediately
- Dog's on leash should be under control. If you have a dog that you are training, take the proper precautions to keep them safe. Cross the road, wear proper footwear etc.
- Pickup up dog waste, Dog(s) must come when called,When dog(s) should be on and off leash
Monitor to ensure your dog(s) interacts with other dogs appropriately
Monitor to ensure your dog(s) interacts with other park patrons appropriately
Monitor to ensure your dog(s) do not harass wildlife
- Not aggressive/reactive. Don't bark nonstop at people or other dogs--mostly this is little dogs I've noticed the owners don't care or think it's cute...

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs should be under control at all times, leash or no leash. No lunging at people or other pets. Owner must pick up after the pet.
- To actually not see dogs off leash. No one pays attention to it and I always see dogs off leash even downtown.
- Remain on-leash regardless of how “well behaved” your dog is or whether they like other dogs and are just playing.
- Be well socialized
- The dogs should be under control at all times, proper leashed and collars or harnesses should be used as well so no retractable leashes. Dogs should not be allowed to approach other dogs on leash without owners permission
- Dogs should be non aggressive and under control, owners should be within close proximity . Dog owners should take responsibility for their own animals knowing accidents can happen and have a leash available at all time
- Not all dogs are comfortable with all dogs and all people. Just common courtesy and respect is required. If someone isn't comfortable keeping their dog off-leash then an off-leash dog should not approach the leashed dog.
- Aggressive dogs must be muzzled and under the owners control at ALL times.
- all expectations are on the person handling the dog
- Keeping a safe distance between pets before letting them greet, do not let pets charge each other to greet as it can lead to possible conflict or other unwanted situations.
Ensuring the leashes of pets do not tangle while greeting as it will lead to problems if difficulties arise.
- Dogs on leash and totally under control.
- On leash of reasonable length and no approaching of other humans or animals without consent.
- Peoples behaviour towards dogs they are passing ie dont touch them
Dog must come when called if off leash
- I am so against people in public trying to pass their animals off a service animals with fake vests that should be illegal.
- leashed and walking with in or able to be recalled back to walker to within 3 ft. of walker
- If it is not an off-leash park, all dogs should be on a proper leash (not ones that attach to collars). On pathways people with dogs should move off to the side to allow people without pets to pass in case they are nervous around pets. Pet waste should always be picked up by owners.
- On-leash dogs, people don't approach without asking (with or without a dog)
- Leash animals at all times. Clean up after them.
- Walk dog on the right hand side on a path as bikes/ folks overtake on left. So many accidents when they walk on . Insistence dogs under control, and keep on leash. Folks do not throw their dog shit in other folks garbage cans...they trespass on your land as they are too lazy to take it home .
- there should be some kind of warning system in place for less friendly dogs
- Length of leash (distance from owner), picking up after dogs, clear effort to maintain control of dogs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I expect the dog to be on a leash when it is not in a designated off-leash area, and under the control of the owner. I expect the owner will pick up any dog waste, and will keep the dog close to them when approaching/passing other people. I expect bylaw to enforce the bylaws.
- I am a dog owner, but I can't STAND people using non off leash areas as off leash. Some dogs are reactive or unsocial due to circumstance and personality. Responsible owners of such dogs DO NOT go to off leash parks on purpose. There is no regulation or penalty for people not respecting the rules
- pick up dog waste, monitor to ensure dog interacts with other dogs and other park patrons appropriately, no barking
- Owners should be well aware of their dog's behavioural tendencies, and be alert and ready to jump in when needed! Be smart and responsible about it.
- KEEP YOUR DOGS ON LEASH!!!!!!
- dog moves off sidewalk to allow others to pass. individual without an animal should not have to move off sidewalk to accommodate animal.
- Dogs should be on-leash, should not jump up on passers-by, owner should be close by.
- Dogs do not approach small children without parent consent.
- That dog is under owner control and that dangerous dogs shouldn't be out where others are if not muzzled
- If a dog is well behaved and well mannered, I believe they should be allowed everywhere. Patios, parks, etc. Ultimately the owner should be responsible.
- Appropriate walking on leash
Dogs under control
Pick up waste
- The pet owner needs to be alpha; they need to recognize the body language of their dog, and know when to intervene to avoid a situation and how to properly train the dog to avoid said situation. Dogs should not charge at runners, cyclists, etc. Humans should control their dog with ease.
- Under control.
- Polite behaviour- not running at people or pulling on leash.
- Being under control so they are not allowed to be at the end of their leash approaching other people/animals. Respect other pathway users and don't act like your dog is entitled to do whatever it wants.
- Dogs must be on leash
- Leashed and respectful. Muzzled if unsafe
- Extendable leashes should be locked at 6 feet on multi-use pathways
Dogs should not be in places where children are
- Aggressive dogs should be muzzled because even a leashed dog can attack another dog or person.
- That I will NEVER feel unsafe or threatened by a pet. Unfortunately, that is not the case, and frankly, I feel it is because I NEVER see a bylaw officer handing out tickets for pets running amok. Pet owners have told me I shouldn't be on a pathway running through an off-leash area!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No expectations of the dog's behaviour - just the owner. Such as if the dog is excited to see another dog then the owner should restrain their dog if they see a potential problem or cross the street and walk on the other side.
- Well behaved dogs on leash with owners that are not distracted with phones.
- I think dogs on leash should be kept on leash when they are not in designated areas. They should wear a muzzle if they have aggressive tendencies or an aggressive past.
- Staying on the proper side of the pathway!!! Giving other people/dogs their space!! Just being under control in general. BAN RETRACTABLE LEASHES !!
- That dogs are on leash and under control and that the owners pick up after their pets. Owners must be strong enough to control their dog(s).
- Leashed and controlled on a no extension leash. Again hard to enforce.
- Dogs get excited and are barky it is to be expected. But if your dog is aggressive or shows predatory behaviour then you need to take it to some obedience or classes to correct that.
- Understand how your dog or how other dogs may or may not wish to interact. Just because your dog is "really friendly and loves everyone) does not mean that the other dog wants to interact the same way. Respect boundaries. Keep your dog on a leash when not at a designated off leash area.
- I have no expectations of the dog. I do expect the owners to have the dog on a leash and to pick up droppings.
- Not to be bit.
- Keep your dog on the far right of the path so others can walk past without fearing a dog bite or getting jumped on.
- On leash, under control, yield to pedestrians/bikes, not excessively loud
- I walk my dogs in fish creek often and pass lots of animals off leash. This always makes me nervous. But as long as your dog is leashed i dont' really care how he acts its your problem.
- On a leash. For the safety of the dog and others passing by.
- They should be on leash
- Dogs often not under control on pathways, parking lots, sidewalks. Have been jumped on, had dogs run in front of my bike or into my backyard if gate is open.
- ok
- Friendly
- Should be leashed while outside of off leash parks.
- Clean up after pets, on leash, stay right when passing others. Be in control of your pet at all times
- Dog is on leash and under control.
- Do not let your dog approach a person unless they've stated that the interaction is welcome, pick up after your dog, keep on leash
- Dog is well behaved and responsive to owner.
- Hav control of it
- Owner needs to be in control of dog at all times - dogs should not lunge at pedestrians/cyclists.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Respectful behaviour including giving space between pets and anyone who is not the pet's owner, unless there is consent.
- If you have aggressive dogs, harnessed and muzzlef
- Well behaved and trained.
- Keep dogs on leash if they are not on your property.
- Not allowed to be aggressive towards other animals or people.
Those with friendly dogs need to be aware that other dogs may not be friendly and not allow their dog near another dog unless they have asked the owner.
- Owner should have control over their pet.
- Leased, share walkway, no harassment of wildlife,
- Respect. Training happens in these areas as long as dog is on a leash and moving to make room for others I'm happy
- Pets kept on leash,
- always on leash, muzzle if vicious or have social anxiety with people or other dogs
- no jumping on people, no growling, showing aggression to other dogs, always on leash
- Your dog must be socialized properly with other dogs. Dogs should be allowed to play. Dogs should not chase people
- Dog must be on leash. Dog should not be on an extend-a-leash. Dog must be responsive when being called. Person walking the dog should not have headphones on or be on their cell. Their focus should be on what their dog is doing.
- Dogs should behave in a reasonable manner when in public spaces. Whining and excited jumping are ok but lunging/nipping are inappropriate and dangerous. General public should also be educated to know that dogs can become frustrated when on leash, this does not mean they are aggressive just frustrated
- Kept on a leash, listens to its owner and doesn't lunge or jump up
- See #3.
- Dogs should be on a leash and well trained. If the dog is known to be aggressive toward strangers and has shown that it may bite people, then it should have a muzzle while in public.
- Dogs should be under control at all times.
  - ""Even if I'm at a greenspace, and a dog is under control & being picked up after, I don't care if they're off leash""
  - ""our whole lives revolve around our dogs being well behaved.""
- - Dog should be on leash without doubt
- - Competent dog handlers
- - Education
- that they listen to the owner and not attack or come to me unless I call them.
- no dogs in school grounds, playgrounds, athletic fields.
on leash in public parks , bike paths, all public areas, all pathway systems groomed and natural its not the dogs behaviour its the owners behaviour that needs to be educated and addressed

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Consideration for other parons and other dogs.
- should be under the control of owner at all times,
- I firmly believe that every dog who utilizes an off leash dog park should attain a Canine Good Neighbor title from the Canadian Kennel Club.
- i think it would be great if NEW dog owner would have to take a course to get a licence for their dog, and learn the appropriate behaviour required to own a dog. most dog owner think off' leash is free for all ? they need to learn that the dog MUST be monitored and come back on recall.
- We live along fishcreek park in Deer Run and with our last dog we were in constant fear while walking her. She was reactive so we kept her on a leash. Yet the number of people that walked their dogs off leash was astounding. This needs to be patrolled and fines given out along with proper signage.
- Everything currently listed
- They are well behaved and non aggressive.
- Under control and observation of owner
- I expect dog owners to have their dogs on 6' leashes (no retractable leashes!) to have a proper handle on their dog and to be respectful of the people around them.
- in control while on leash - no barking, lunging, running wild.
- Same really
- Pick up all waste. Be on leash. I am sick and tired of off leash dogs on pathways approaching my reactive dog on leash... then the off leash owners getting after my dog which is immediately and directly under my control.
- People should NOT be letting their on-leash dogs swerve around the entire path and make other users have to slow down or go around their dogs. This happens way too often!
- To be leashed and not out of control.
- No biting, chasing, or other aggressive scary behaviour. Otherwise, it is all good.
- Owners must have control of their animal, either through obedience or leash, at all times. Too many ppl think it's a free for all. It ruined my dog to be able to go to off leash because he was attacked by a dog at a young age and is now fearful of other dogs. Dog parks should have by law patrol.
- That people will respect how I handle my dogs, ie not just interacting with them at their own discretion. If I have multiple dogs if they could provide room for me to pass safely and promptly. Clean up after my dogs.
- I don't think owners should be on their phones and unaware of what their dogs is doing. A dog is leashed for a reason, keep your dog in check
- Friendly dogs. (or muzzled dogs for those that have aggressive tendencies) -Choke chain or like(Not harness), for those who have a dog too strong to control with a normal collar or harness.
- on a leash or heeling properly
- Existing bylaws regarding no dog areas currently ineffective due to lack of signage, fines and enforcement. existing rules regarding on leash requirements ineffective due to lack of enforcement

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

and fines. In general the entire city has become an off leash dog area due to lack of enforcement and sign

- I expect
- I expect that they're trained to obey they're owner, and will not attack other dogs/ people.
- That current rules and regulations are respected by pet owners and non-pet owners.
- Pick up dog waste. Dog owners leave excrement everywhere: on sidewalks, pathways, and in our parks. Again, no enforcement and dog owners know that and look the other way and often willfully do not pick up their dog's waste. Dog owners often don't respond well when asked to pick up their dog's waste.
- If it's not off-leash your dog should be on a leash no matter how good/okay you think they are. Always pick up your dogs poop and throw the bag in the garbage, don't just leave it on the ground.
- Dogs should be on leash and able to obey their owner, the owner needs to be able to control their dog.
- Keep the dog under control / clean-up any messes / keep the dog off others property / be sensitive to people who may not like / may fear dogs.
- well trained dog and owner
- Let dog be a dog. Dogs shall be on leash all the time unless the owner can control. But neck harness shall be baned, but using shoulder harness.
- I have had dogs for 25 years & lately there has been a small dog population boom & they either have them on these long uncontrollable leashes ,or even if you have your dog on a leash they let theirs run up barking & snapping If you had a Rottweiler or something that would not be accepted
- n/a
- Keep dogs under control, don't let them go back and forth across the path, don't take up the whole path, allow others to pass. And always clean up after your pet
- A dog must be under control by it's owner, MUST BE ON LEASH
- Dogs are under control.
- That they are on leash on the right hand side of the owner.
- User beware..
- Leash trained, not aggressive
- Always on a short lease and under full control
- Keep your dog on a leash, keep your dog on the outside of the pathway so they have more room.
- ALWAYS On Leash. That's sharing public space responsibly and fairly.
- I live close to an offleash dog park between braeside and southwood. I have been attacked while walking my dogs on leash on the sidewalk with someone who thinks they can walk their dog offleash on a sidewalk. It is necessary to print bulletin boards at the offleash to say - Your dog must now be lea
- Dogs should not jump up on people or approach cyclists, scooters, skaters, joggers etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dog is under control near pedestrians and cyclists, move off of pathway with approaching pedestrians and especially cyclists due to collision potential.
  - Dogs are kept on leash and do not come up to me and smell me.
  - For dogs to be on leash
  - Every day I see dogs off leash in the green space behind Woodbine Elementary School. People know they are breaking the law, but also that nothing will be done about it. There is also a huge amount of dog mess on the green and the pathways that does not get picked up. It is not a child friendly area.
  - That the dog is under control by the owner or the dog walker. The dog responds immediately to commands .
  - That dogs not negatively affect other users of the space. They are not to interact with bikes or other users of the space. Even as a dog lover, I can't know if a roaming dog is friendly or well-socialized. There should not be freely roaming dogs in public spaces or on pathways.
  - I expect that dogs will be leashed. It isn't happening. I don't like unleashed dogs running up to me, and the owner saying "he won't hurt you" Not everyone likes dogs...I should have the right to run or walk without someone else's pet running up to me.
  - The the dog respond to the owner and not jump up on people. That dogs are controlled and held away from other people until some common understanding of the interaction is established. That dog poop always be picked up -
  - Safety is essential. Owner must be in control.
  - Not allowing leashes to cross the sidewalk or path hindering other's passing; making non-pet owners to be fearful when passing a dog on public sidewalk
  - That they are on a short leach, that they do not lunge, growl or bark at people.
  - I expect the owners to be just as responsible. Pick up poop control them when around others.
  - Expectations of people should be to not approach or forcefully touch other people's animals without permission. Any dog behaviour is fine other than biting people.
  - Dog owners should know No dogs are allowed in city playgrounds, school yards, cemeteries, playing fields and made to sign an affidavit every single year, that they will obey dog bylaws before dog license is granted.
- Tuscany playing field along T. Springs Blvd. is now ""The""dog walk area. Yuck!
- on Leash is ideal, not barking or lunging.
  - Dogs come when called. Dogs are not running on multi-use pathways. There should be a limit to how many dogs are walked by paid dog walkers. I have often seen up to a dozen dogs being walked by one person.
  - Should not jump on on people come when called stay with owner at all times.
  - Ask first. Do not allow children to approach screaming and flailing.
  - If it is not off-leash owners should be expected to follow that by-law and maintain pets on leash, they should be expected to clean up after their pets, no aggressive or dangerous dogs, ensure dogs are kept under control and not permitted to jump up on people walking by.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Have great recall and to be leashed at all times, and make sure that the owners are aware at all times of dogs reactivity to different situations.
- Pick up waste, leashed at all times when in public when the potential of coming into contact with people or other animals is a possibility
- Dogs on leash, but when I have my dog on the far side so it does not come in contact with another dog I don't expect somebody to let their dog come to my dog. My dogs are friendly but if I'm out running their run is different than an off leash run. They are on the far side for a reason.
- Dogs on leash,
People should ask before approaching other people's dogs.
- On leash unless specified, owner walking only not on bike
- Comes when called, is not aggressive to people or other animals, that they are on leash
- Dogs not off leash along pathways, unless it is marked that they may be.
- Dogs should not approach strangers without consent just as strangers should not approach dogs without consent
- Dogs should be under control and behaved. Leashed on a 6 foot lead. No flexi leads
- Dogs should be under the control of their guardian, whether leashed or just very well trained.
- On leash where it is on leash
- same as above
- Under owner control.
- Should be leashed
- To be leashed and owner to manage appropriate behavior when passing other pets (leashed cats or stroller cats) and other people, children
- Dogs should be under the control of an owner, at all times.
- Dog should be on a 6ft lead no longer. And kept close to the owner not jumping or bothering other people on pathways
- Dogs should stay near their owners and not bother others. Owners should be able to demonstrate their control over their dogs.
- That dogs be on a leash and under owners control. I constantly see and meet dogs that owners can't control, and it really disturbs me. Has made me start to fear dogs.
- Dogs should be leashed or if not leashed should have 100% recall.
- Not pulling the owner. Not showing aggression towards people or other animals. No jumping on people. Dog is socialized with other dogs. Owners pick up waste.
- If the Owner expects their dog to be aggressive it should have the proper collar & Lease to control the dog so it cannot lunge at another dog/person. And to ensure the dog wears some sort of muzzle if very aggressive.
- Dogs should be on leash and owners should get off their phones and pay attention to the dog's behavior.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As long as a dog is leashed, every dog is different so if the owner takes proper precautions then there shouldn't be rules for dogs on leash. Everyone needs to Exercise their dog, so be respectful of that and their space.
- They must be leashed and not lunging at people.
- Dog be leashed and under control. And treated well!!!
- owner has control, dog on leash, dog listens to owners, owner uses cleanup bags, owner respects others and other dogs and allows space between pets while walking
- I see so many off-leash dogs in areas that are not off-leash. I do not want to be fearful of off-leash dogs when walking the pathways in my neighbourhood. Dogs should be on leash, period.
- Not be off leash. Have control of your dogs and monitor interactions with other people and animals, pick up after them
- your question should be: expectations of the human behaviour in other common/public spaces. humans need to understand that we are not all Gods and we know everything. we don't. behave appropriately and your animal will follow. take obedience classes.
- Do not harass other people, other dogs, or wildlife. Be polite and reasonably calm when allowed to greet.
- Dogs should be leashed.
- I expect that people will know how to keep their dogs close by even when they are leashed. People will be fined (and fines increased each time) people don't pick up their dog's waste.
- Respectful of others, safety behaviour depending on the situation - eg. dog walks on the side away from other pedestrians/bikes/cars vs requirement to be on a specific side of owner.
- Dogs must always be leashed. A proper size leash is a must as many are way too long.
- That the dogs are leash and under control. Preferably not on a Flexi-lead.
- Control big dog behavior towards little dogs, so aggressive!
- always keep your dog on leash they may seem fine to you but you do not know if the other dogs are friendly
- Campbelltown, New Brunswick bylaw
Barking is considered excessive when it exceeds:
240 barks per day between the hours of 7.00am and 9.00pm, or 35 barks per night between the hours of 9.00pm and 7.00am, or regularly exceeds 30 barks per hour during the day or 4 barks per hour during the night.
- Do not approach a dog without owner consent ... anywhere.
- That owners keep their dogs on-leash when not in off-leash areas that the person walking the dog is physically able to control/redirect should the need arise.
- That the animal is under the complete control of the owner, at the end of an extenable leash in a busy area is not under control. I also expect that if an animal is not friendly or properly socialized it shouldn't be put in situations that could have a negative outcome for the animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Following by laws, do not let your animal touch other people. Do not let your dog chase people or jump up.
- I expect owners to keep their dogs a sufficient distance from other walkers so that if the dog lunges, the owner has enough control over the leash to prevent contact. This sometimes means that the dog owner/walker may need to step away from the main path with the dog to make room for the passerby.
- Should be on leash at all times, not tangling others up in its leash, exhibiting socially acceptable behaviour
- Dogs should be on leash. They should walk politely on leash without pulling or barking. I can do it with 10, (and do daily), why can't people even try to do it with one?
- All dogs need to be on a leash. Stay off private property. Stay on the sidewalk. Pick up after your pet.
- Pet's need to be taken care of. It's the responsibility of the owner to know their dog's behaviour and act accordingly based on it. Don't have an issue with flexibility as most dog owners know if their pet is super friendly vs shy or easily scared to trigger a response (bark, run, etc.).
- Dog is on leash and if reactive that they take a wide berth around people
- Dogs be leashed at all times.
- Dogs are well-behaved (for dogs); that they are kept to their side of the path just as expected for people; if at a street festival, that they refrain from excessive barking or jumping and that the owners recognize when their dog is uncomfortable and bring them to a quieter spot.
- Clean up after your pet. Pet is in control on leash.
- Have appropriate leash, collar, etc. Know your animal. If they are aggressive or over excited regarding strangers, for instance, keep dog off to side of sidewalk and allow others to pass.
- On leash
- Dog should be leashed, not barking Karma and owners should have some control
- dogs are on leashes and under control of their owner
- Leashed and passive and obedient.
- In care and control of a responsible and knowledgeable person
- To be generally well behaved and under control. This becomes a bit complicated when you are trading a dog. This also applies to off leash. It is difficult to train a dog to be well behaved in an off leash area if they can't be off leash until they have learned.
- Listen to owner commands, not chase joggers or bikes
- On leash
- For others to control their Pets when others are in the area.
- All dogs to be on leash and under control. Dog owners must ensure others are safe around their dog, non-owners need to learn how to properly interact with a strange dog. Any informed dog owner know it is the owner's behavior in question not the dog's.
- Must be in control at all time. Regulations on retractable leashes for people if have their dog out to the very end of the leash and it's interfering with other people or pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Human should have control over animal at all times. Not allow dog off leash in areas that are on leash
- Not letting dog poop without picking it up!
- Why are you focusing on dog behaviour? Focus on owner behaviour because with a well educated owner, the animal will be well behaved. An owner SHOULD recognize when their animal's behaviour is not acceptable should be able to correct it with proper training. Sidewalks=leash always!
- That they be kept on leash and picked up after.
- That people can coexist. Dogs on leashes
- Dogs are clams and allowed to enjoy pathways. Also that there are pathways that are off leash for owners and dogs to use. New Off leash area at nose hill has very few paved or gravel pathways to walk on - dogs and owners cannot be expected to walk in tall grass.
- dogs must not pose a safety risk to public or other pets. The owner is responsible to ensure it doesn't pose a public safety risk
- Dogs should be under control. If off leash they should not be a threat to people or other dogs.
- Better signage for people to be aware of exactly where off lease areas are. IE: elliston park- many dog owners permit dogs to run free in on lease areas when the only off leash area is the top of the hill
- That dogs be properly restrained and controlled.
- Dogs must be under control
Dog owners must pick up after dogs
Limit the number of dogs that a dog walker can walk at one time.
- Owners need to clean up feces after their animals. Owners should not take their pets off leash in areas that are not off-leash (public pathways, parks, etc). Owners need to control their animals (barking, growling, etc.) when on leash on public paths, in public parks, etc. )
- There will always be dogs with behavioral issues, and people need to be allowed to use training tools (prong or ecollars included) to maintain on and offleash control
- Dogs must be trained and must respond to recall.
BAN EXTENDI-LEASHES. These are so DAMN DANGEROUS. (I chose not to use other four letter words)
- That in a leash area they are on leash
- Many owners do not leash these dogs on these spaces; this should be enforced. Owners need to restrain their dogs when other pedestrians/bikes approach. I have been nearly bitten and have been chased by dogs even on leash on designated bike pathways. Owners leave the leash too slack.
- Always on leash and owners pickup and carry out or properly dispose of dog waste. Glenmore pathways are lined with dog-shit, some bagged but most not demonstrating too many dog owners are NOT responsible.
- Clean up after dogs, always.
- Aggressive dogs should be on leash and under control.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The same expectations, but owners should be allowed to maintain their dogs behaviour. People who own dogs are FAR more likely to be utilizing the cities open spaces than non-dog owners as dogs are outside nearly every day.
- Dogs must be leashed and under complete owner control, including not barking excessively.
- Expect good manners from human and canines. Like humans, dogs are not going to best buds with everyone they meet. If you know that your dog is friendly and LOVES other dogs, don't assume the other dog is friendly and loves other dogs. Keep a safe distance and check first -whether on leash or off.
- Common courtesy (both ways)
Dog under control
Not bothering other people
- Pick up after your pet. Keep pet on leash. We walk in city parks at least 1 or 2 days a week. We have NEVER seen a bylaw officer enforce on leash rules or poop pick up. Dog owners are very defensive and aggressiv if they are reminded of the on leash rule. Enforcement Signage & education needed
- Absolutely stay on-leash, stay on designated pathways, dog to be under control when passing other dogs / people, pick-up after your dog, not leaving bags containing your dog's excrements along the trail
- Not to bring aggressive and reactive dogs to the parks.
- Control of your dog, pick up after your dog.
- keep your dog on a 6 foot maximum leash. Dogs running off leash on leash-only areas are a hazard to me when I walk my dogs.
- To be on leash at all times and not be in school grounds.
- Listen to their Handler. Ability to be redirected. But again, the bigger issue is people. People allow their children to run right up to dogs and many people just think it's their god-given right to go and pet a dog. It's super dangerous
- I expect to feel myself, my child and dog are safe to go for a walk free of lunging,biting,jumping, charging dogs not under owners control. I expect to not see more dog poop than grass once the snow melts.
- Dogs be on a leash
- Dog listening and obeying owner. Owners should not be distracted and paying attention to their dog (ie: joggers dragging dog behind them and not stopping when dog poops while running)
- That owners be walking dogs on leash, and that if you have a yard facing a pathway that your fence be high enough for the dog to not lunge over if it's not friendly.
- they should be friendly and well behaved
- not lunging/barking at people passing, even small dogs and puppies need to be trained not to jump up on people. That needs to be told to non pet owners too who state "it's ok" when a dog is small, depleting the training the owner may be doing to stop the behaviour
- All dogs should be leashed in public/common areas.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- dog is leashed and under control. Dog owners yield to pedestrians. All dog waste is picked up and properly disposed of immediately.
- Dogs should be on leash and be paying attention to the handler, no lunging or other excessive behavior. I expect dogs to not be barking at strangers, and to not try to sniff, i expect the handler to move off the path if people with or without dogs are on coming, watching for different behavior.
- On leash, owners aware of surrounding,
- Calm controlled behaviour in public places. If the owner can not control their dog, other measures such as muzzles or gentle leaders should be used to protect other dogs and people.
- Must be on leash, pick up waste, must be controlled by owner
- Dogs should be leashed. Dogs and owners should be courteous and respectful. Owners should pick up after dogs.
- I expect dogs to be under control and to stay away from me and my dogs and give us space.
- Remain on leash under control
- Pick up after your pet, fines for disobeying off leash (if they are off leash or leash dragging). Non retractable leashes shouldn't be used either on public pathways etc.
- Dogs must be leashed. The dog must be under control of the owner, not stretched out and strained at the end of a 25' leash. Leashes NO longer than 6' in the presence of other people and animals.
- Mutual respect of the surroundings.
- Be on leash and do not charge people.
- Pick up after your dog.
If a dog is on a leash in an off-leash park, give them distance! They are probably a rescue who is just now getting socialized, and nobody knows if they have triggers or if they are fearful of you and your dog
- I expect dogs to be kept reasonably close to their owners, so that on a very open pathway, the dog has the opportunity to sniff/roam, but when there are many bikes/scooters/people, the dog is not allowed to endanger itself and others by stretching its leash across the path.
- Under control by owner.
- same as off-leash areas in addition to extra safety for other pets and people. Example: aggressive dogs, should be muzzled or not allowed in the general public. Example: Bit Bulls
- I wish there were more guidelines and less absolute rules. For instance my dog loves biking but all pathways require your dog on leash. Maybe major commute ways but other places they could be off leash ?
- They should be leashed. Many times dogs on a leashed walk do not do well in dog parks, or are in training, some consideration of others is always appreciated
- Owners should keep dogs close so they don't chance getting in front of cyclists (who can be as much at fault as dog owners for not obeying rules). If biters, should me muzzled. Keep distance from other dogs just in case.
- Not to chase bikes
To listen to owner's instructions

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs on pathways are a danger to cyclists and roller-bladers. Owners need to keep their dogs in the correct "lane" on the pathways. Owners must also ensure their dog does not threaten/scare anyone nor jump on people - control your dog! Know the bylaws.
- Dog is leashed and under full owner control. Waste should be picked up and disposed of in garbage can. Garbage cans should be available along pathways.
- Owners should make sure their dogs don't harass other dogs and people (one of my own dogs is reactive and is closely monitored). By harassing, I mean lunge at or jump up on other dogs or people. Barking is okay — it's dog communication and owners can choose public spaces less busy.
- I expect the dog owner to take full responsibility of their dog. Dogs should NOT be off leash in public spaces. Dogs that are on leash must be under control; if the dog is aggressive to dogs or humans a muzzle must be worn to not only protect others but protect the dog itself.
- If I am on a paved pathway in an off-leash park I expect the owner to have the dog under their control at all times as posted. I find it exasperating to be told that I have no business running in an off-leash area. I've paid enough taxes and I am running 4 blocks from my home.
- We need to respect that others may not like dogs or are scared of them. Strangers need to ask if they can touch a dog first or before they come up to them. We all have to share the pathway.
- That owners are being sure to keep their dogs from meeting other dogs unless consent is given. That people ask first to pet dogs and keep their children from interacting with dogs without permission.
- Well trained & respectful of others. Exceptions within reason for those in training.
- owners should not let dogs approach other people or dogs without permission, and should retrain their dog if the other party specifically requests they do not interact with them/their dog.
- Owner should also have exceptions that they need to follow.
- Being under control and not on a flexi leash. Not having the length to jump at people. Not continuously barking
- that the rules are followed. too many owners think it's okay to break the rules if few or no people are in the park.
- Pets should be excluded from attending large venue events
- Dogs must be kept on-leash. Dogs need to come to their owner when called (rather than the owner saying "don't worry, it's really friendly"... that doesn't matter if you have a phobia of dogs and are confronted by a dog trying to sniff/bark/jump on you). Poop must be picked up.
- That the dog is beside the owner when on a path. Not lunging at bikers and other walkers. I walk my dog in Bowness and Baker everyday and we are constantly met with dogs off leash that just run around with no supervision. It's not an off-leash area!
- uncommon sense... manage your dog, be aware of environment and other citizens
- Dogs should always be on a leash and held closely to the owner. Waste should be picked up. If the animal is at all hostile, they should be muzzled.
- Always pick up after your dog
- Leashed and under control.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs should be on leash , if someone's dog is known to be aggressive, they should move to the side or cross the street
- Dogs should be under control of owner, not run away and up to other people or animals.
- People should be in control of their pets and have them leashed in public areas.
- Owners MUST have control of their pets at all times. In common/public spaces as in dog parks, owners tend to socialize with each other (which is great), but often their pets not behaving appropriately. I've almost been knocked over in the dog park and in common spaces - owner not paying attention.
- They should not be off-leash!
- Dogs will chase wildlife, this shouldn't be a bylaw infraction.
People should be aware that dogs will be in off leash dog parks, and should not expect to be able to sled down hills without meeting a dog.
- Just because you have a small dog, it is not exempt from having appropriate behaviours.
- that people follow the rules of on or off leash, pick up after your dog and that your dog is under control at all times.
- Dog comes when called & are leashed when wildlife is present, owners pick up after pets (need to provide receptacles/green bins - there isn't one at area behind my home & result is lots of poop bags launched into our townhouse's garbage enclosure & it's disgusting.
- dogs should be under the control of the owner (not pulling on leash to approach people), pick up waste
- Dogs are leashed and well behaved. Dogs being walked on a bike path are on a SHORT leash so the owner has control & can pull in the dog when bikes go by
- That the dog is under control and isn't aggressive to other people on pathways
- Well mannered
- Dogs should be on leash and should not be barking/lunging at others.
- Owners should not use those long leashes that allow dogs to wander 30 feet or more from owner. They tangle the leash around pedestrians and cause safety issues
- Nothing really - -if they are on leash, then let them be happy.
- That non designated areas should be considered off leash when in forest and wetlands.
That animals respond when regarded and that owners have leash present if needed
- Again, that the dog is under control.
- proper manners, be respectful, pick up ur dogs belongs,
- Pets MUST be on-leash and Owners MUST keep pet away from other people.
Non-pet owners do NOT appreciate being approached or sniffed by another's pet.
- I would expect owners to be aware of their surroundings and not allow their pets to interact with other people or pets without express permission. I would expect dogs to walk calmly on a non-flexi leash next to their owners, and that owners understand techniques for reducing excitement/reactivity.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They have recall and are supervised. It is aggravating when owners just take off the leash in an off-leash park and watch their phone or talk on their phone paying no attention to their dogs behaviors or cleaning up waste.
- Consideration of others.
- The client needs to be in control of their dog. Training is highly recommended to help with that process.
- Dogs should be under control at all times - I've seen far too many poor interactions with lazy pet owners who ignore their dog's bad behaviour - more enforcement needed.
- Dogs that are undergoing socialization need to be on a leash and kept a certain distance away from other users if they deem the dog a risk to them (dog or person).
- That people keep their dogs on a short leash when coming up to people with or with out dogs and all dogs should be leashed
- Common sense stuff. Dogs should be on-leash, well behaved and under control not harassing other dogs or people.
- Dogs are leashed and not on a retractable leash. Retractable leashes should not be allowed.
- Dogs who can sometimes be aggressive must be leashed at all times
- Heeling, auto sit, within arms length. 6" leash max, owners actually pay attention to their own dogs so they are not bothering mine, I don't care if their dog is a puppy it's 100% inappropriate
- No aggressive or insecurity behaviour
- Pick up. No rgressive behaviour. No flexi-leashes on sidewalks.
- Dogs should behave appropriately around other patrons of the public spaces (eg. bicycles, rollerblades, children, etc.) and dog waste picked up. Well-behaved dogs should be welcome with their owners. Encourage community usage, responsible dog ownership included.
- That both dogs and people are respectful of one another
- pick up waste, dog under control - either leashed or verbal,
- Yield to bicycles on pathways.
- Dogs should be well trained and obedient to their owners.
- Dog on leash under control. Pick up after dogs.
- Dogs need to be leashed to prevent unwanted interactions.
- All people approaching someone with dogs should not assume the dogs are okay to approach - all dogs need to be leashed regardless of whether the owner says they have control over their dog. I have heard from people with off leash dogs 'no issues it is friendly' and then it goes after my male.
- To be on a leash and under control
- People be able to control their dogs. If anything happens causing the dog/s to yank on the leash, the handler must be able to restrain the dog/s.
- On leash dogs should no be meeting unless owners have both given consent to the meeting. If a dog is for some reason off leash in an on leash area, the owner should have 100% control of the dog, as if it were on leash.
- That the dog does not interact with others

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If you have a dog that is on leash aggressive, keep it away from other people/animals you may encounter on pathways/public spaces. Do not allow your "friendly" dog to approach another dog without a controlled interaction to ensure safety for both animals.
- I don't expect to be jumped on, barked at or chased.
- No lunging at passerby, handler will move aside when approaching person or people on walkways, dogs are lead trained in order to prevent leash aggressive behavior.
- The dog should always be under control of the owner/handler and be neutral to its surroundings
- people should be neutral. Ask before petting and dogs MUST be on leash. I also think municipalities should have at registration a leash colour system for dogs if your dog is reactive. Or the city should have a dog behaviourist test the dog and owner, upgrades are free if the dog is trained correctl
- Dogs should be on leash and in control. People without dogs should not approach or reach out to a dog without permission. Share the space respectfully.
- Dogs should be leashed at all times and under control
- Dogs leashes and not bothering anyone else sharing the pathway
- If you have a reactive dog, keep in out of dog parks! Don't take it to a place with a population of animals!
- Polite manners
- Pick up after your animals, maintain control of your animal
- Dogs on leash, dogs should not be dog or human aggressive.
- Dog should be on a leash and kept under control at all times. Dog should be taught to not jump up on people.
- Your dog must not pose a danger to others and must be under your control
- They are on leash and kept within a foot of owner when approaching or passing other people/dogs
- Polite leash manners
- Respectful
- Obedient
- Owners need to pickup dog waste!!!
- dogs should be on leashes - 6ft, and should be under control of the owner. dogs will be dogs and depending upon circumstances react differently. people should know their dogs and act accordingly. I have dogs and am a breeder, my dogs have formal training. all dogs should have obedience training
- No lunging, barking or other general obsessive behaviour that an owner can't control. If they are doing training - it must be clear.
- Should be leashed
- Dogs must be on foot leashes. If on flexible leashes, they must be shortened to 6 feet, or less, and the dog must be brought to heel when other people are around. Do not let your dogs approach other dogs on leash without owner consent. A lot of dogs are more defensive on leash.
- Be under control of the owner at all times
- Have their dogs on leash. NO EXCEPTIONS

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs should always be respected. Kids need to ask before touching. Owners need to be in co from at all times.
- Well behaved and socialized
- I expect owners to be aware of their dog and it's behaviour. I don't mind reactive dogs, or even dogs off leash, but you need to respect other people.
- owners keep dog under control
- Dogs need to be under control at all times
- All same as above for in off leash areas
- Not to long of a leash.
- Not barking or lunging at people or dogs.
- Dogs on a leash. Pick up after dogs.
- No barking at people or lunging at them.
- Dogs should be leashed in non off-leash areas using a leash that adheres to the maximum leash size allowed! Too many dogs off-leash in the school field behind my house!
- On-leash and controllable
- The dog is social and not aggressive.
- That dogs are kept on leash and not running unleashed up to dogs on leash. That they are controlled and not harassing people or other dogs.
- Dogs should be on leash, or very well trained to absolutely stay at heel. Dogs should not bother other dogs or people, no matter their size.
- All the same rules as an off leash park except dogs remain on leash
- Leashed and under control.
- They behave safely
- They are not aggressive
- Dogs should be under control and close to their handler. They should not approach strangers uninvited. And strangers should not approach the dog without handler consent.
- People should follow on and off leash areas to not cause disruption to others. Dogs should be behaved or precautions taken if you have a reactive dog. (le. basket muzzle) if your dog has aggressive tendencies
- Dog on leash .
- Pick up waste, don't let your dog off leash, don't use extendi-leads on busy pathways, share pathways with other users (be aware of cyclists).
- No over-excitability when greeting people & other dogs.
- Leashed, controlled
- Under control and ON A LEASH.
- No off leash walking. No letting your dog greet other dogs or people without consent
- My dogs dont go. Dog parks are dangerous for the dog.
- Allow the dogs to be dogs but take the time to find help for you and your pet before issues become out of control.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That a dog and owner do not pose any safety threat to any human.
- Good leash manners, not behaving aggressively toward people/dogs.
- On leash, pick up waste and have dog under control at all times.
- Keep your dog on leash and under control
- Ban Flexi's
- Dog needs to be under control of the owner in place and observing their dogs.
- Controlled on a leash or reliable re-call, non-reactive behavior in all circumstances
- They need to be on leashes, and should still not be approached by people/not the dogs owners. Dog waste should be picked up.
- That dogs should be well mannered, walk appropriately on leash. No flexible leashes or long lines in public spaces. Nothing longer then a 6ft leash. Dog owners need to have control of their dogs and should be be well behaved.
- They should be on a leash, close to the owner (not those 20 foot long leashes). They should not defecate or urinate on private property. They should not be pulling on the leash and lunging at people or other dogs.
- I expect dogs to be well trained and to stay quietly by their owners side. Should they have to go to the washroom, I would expect the handler to pick it up immediately and dispose it properly.
- Dog on short (not retractable) leash, owner paying attention to what the dog is doing, picking up after dog, dog comfortable in public, owner not allowing dog to approach other dogs without asking first.
- That the person with the dog controls it.
- If a dog poops it needs to be cleaned up or a $500 fine and that the owner must be able to control the dog. (with in reason obviously there are some very bad situations that may cause a dog and owner to be terrified)
- They have to be leashed.
- All dogs should be leashed and not causing a disturbance of any kind .
- Under control at all times, either through verbal or leash
- Your dog is on a leash. That should include the front area of your home so that people can walk their dog through their own or another neighbourhood without getting attacked.
- I think we need to be more understanding of dogs who bark at other dogs or people, as long as their handler is clearly trying to work on the issue. There is an expectation that dogs should be perfect all the time but behaviour modification takes time when done ethically.
- Always be on leash. Always
- Mutual respect. Keep dogs on leashes. Have people be respectful of those owners who do have dogs on a leash and give appropriate space.
- Manitory muzzles on all breeds. So dogs can be allowed to go anywhere with owners
- Dogs should be leashed, not allowed to make contact with strangers without their approval, and not be noisy

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs should be able to sniff and check out their environment (Not be a robot) but should not be pulling towards people or other animals. They should be under control or their owner working on training their dog in these environments with positive reinforcement. No retractable leash. Max 6ft leash.
- Keep dogs close to the owners and not on a LONG leash. I have had a dog jump up on me (was off leash in a leash area). Owners think it is cute and I dared not say anything.
- Dogs are on leash at all times, licensed and controllable by owners... No retractable leashes
- Close supervision by owner.
- Able to walk on leash properly.
- The dog should be trained to be respectful of people and other animals. Dogs should not be on retractable leashes. A 6ft or shorter leash is a good length when in public.
- None. Most people have enough common sense that they don't need a long list of rules to tell them how to conduct themselves in public.
- Dogs to be on leash, and under control. Not letting your dog approach another dog with consent of the owner and letting reactive dogs have their space, giving them lots of room to pass.
- I expect the owner/handler to be able to control the dog or dogs that they have with them. I also expect others to respect the dog and owner/handler.
- Dogs must always be on leash and controlled. Ban flexi leads.
- Walking on leash and picking up after your pet.
- Dogs must be on-leash and owners must pick up after them.
- That they be on a leash! Inglewood has people walking their dogs off leash everywhere- even on the sidewalk! It's not safe for others that have their dogs on a leash
- Proper etiquette, if your dog is not good at greeting other dogs, know that other dogs may correct your dog but some won't. Understand what good play looks like. And pick up poop!!
- People have proper leashes and are able to keep their dogs under control
- I expect dogs to be leashed and owners to be in control of their dog.
- I expect dogs to learn how to behave in these areas and for other people to allow the handler a few second to achieve this. It is hard to teach a young dog immediate behavior without the help of everyone involved. We try to achieve calm before anyone else approaches but some times we don't see someone
- Waste pickup.
- Proper leash walking and not lunging.
- That the dog is well-behaved and responds to their owner. It is up to the owner to dictate what the dog can and cannot do. Asking for the other owners permission for another dog to approach and meet your dog. If an owner pulls their dog aside then that means that they do not want to meet other dogs.
- Owners must have dogs on leash at all times unless in an off leash park.
- they must be on leash at all times - pick up after your pet and no harassing wildlife
- short leash and friendly dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Leashed, in control, calm, quiet.
- I feel that dogs should be under control. Getting over excited it drastically different that signs of anxiety and aggression. Unfortunately this ALL falls on the owner. The public also needs to respect the dogs space and their owners.
- control of your dog while on leash; being able to walk by/share a sidewalk and have no lunging or aggressive behaviour
- Enforce on leash rules. Dogs should be on a 6 foot leash in urban areas. If owners use a retractable leash, the dog should not be allowed to wander more than 6 feet away from owner.
- Make room on pathways for those walking by.
- First and foremost, the dog must be on a leash!!!
- Always on leash, no exceptions. If aggressive to humans, muzzled. Bright colored leash and vocal to other owners if aggressive to other dogs.
- Good recall, their humans paying attention to them - not just turning them loose then standing around drinking coffee and chatting.
- My dogs are expected to remain at my side, if I am in a busy place then a shorter leash is used. Because I have a reactive dog he is muzzled anywhere we might run in to another dog.
- Dogs must be on a leash (nt retractable) pick up poop
- Under control, on leash, no barking
- On leash at all times, even in parks and fields. City needs to patrol and post signage around fields and parks as a reminder that leashes are required. Waste needs to be picked up. Even if your dog is friendly not everyone or all others animals appreciate them
- To be under control
- That a pet is under control by its owner/handler and animal waste is promptly removed.
- Dog owners should follow the by laws & be respectful of others
- Owners must control their dogs, dog will sometimes unexpectedly react. As long as the owner is controlling the dog and not allowing the dog to harm another, it is okay. Dogs will not behave 100% of the time.
- Dog handler has control over their dog.
- Dogs should be on a leash and in owners control
- Have them on a leash
- Dog is attentive to handler, not outwardly aggressive towards passerbys. Dog listens to handler and responds to commands given by them.
- That the animals are properly trained, are not aggressive or if they are generally aggressive/learning to overcome aggression that they are properly controlled and muzzled. The animals should have a right to live their lives as well, owners should be able to work with them to overcome barriers.
- Quiet, respectful, obedient. Should not be a disturbance in the send of acting poorly. Should be kept on a leash & asked to focus on the handler until strangers & stranger dogs pass.
- People teach their dogs good behaviour and if your dog attacks some other dog or human take responsibility and own up to the damage and pay for the vet bill or doctors bill/ambulance

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs and humans sharing space, if you see a person with their dog and they move over it's only fair you do the same.
- Dogs should be under control.
- Well behaved and well mannered. Responsible and respectful ownership
- Dog must remain on leash at all times.
- If you walk multiple dogs be able to control them especially around children. Pick up after all of them.
- i expect dog to be well-behaved and not approach strangers without permission. no barking.
- On leash. Pick up. Pedestrians need to learn to share with those walking dogs.
- Dog under control
- mussel if aggressive,
- Dogs be on a leash and under control at all times.
- Should not lunge at people or animals
- Dogs should be on a leash and be obedience trained.
- To not aggressively lung at passer bys
- Owners should control their own dog and everyone can get along
- Dogs should always be on a leash. They should be well mannered and respectful and the owner should have complete control at all times.
- to be on leash and under control of their owners so that they do not attack or harass other dogs, children or people
- Leashed, close to owner.
- Staying on leash. I have seen many dogs running around in yards and streets while the owner was walking nearby but not paying attention
- As long as the owner is actively trying to train/control their dogs. I don't expect owners to have full control 24/7 especially with young dogs. But if thats the case 6 foot leash should be a rule.
- Pick up after your dog. Have your dog under control.
- Quiet, well-mannered, biddable dogs
- In regards to recall and other behavior it should be evaluated in taking a holistic view of the dog, their background and age. Recall on a 10 month old whose behavior is being proofed will differ from a 5 year old trained dog.
- Reactive dogs be contained appropriately, and their space respected by other dogs/ park users
- Dogs on leash and under control.
- For them to be leashes and respectful
- That their owner has control of the dog at all times and is picking up their waste
- For the animals to be comfortable and for the caretaker to be properly socializing their pets.
- Control of dog and/or communication. Training has to start somewhere, so owners should at least communicate if their dog is reactive.
- Not all dogs can be perfectly behaved, for example puppies, but I expect no excessive vocals/lunging. No flexi leashes, they do not provide proper control of any dog, and most importantly not letting them greet other dogs, even if yours is friendly doesn't mean mine is.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They should use their common sense
- That there is more emphasis of what proper dog behaviour is - maybe this can be part of the licensing process where they watch a video on behaviour and what is appropriate and what is not. Again too many dog owners can't fathom their dog is 'bad' and look to blame everyone else.
- Dogs to remain on leash at all times
- That they are able to be managed responsibly. ie. Come when called.
- On leash, under control. Dog waste picked up
- Keep your dogs on a leash
- Similar to dog park rules
- Do not assume all dogs get along
- Dogs should be leashed until inside designated off leash areas.
- Owners to be blunt many owners off leash or not seem to misread situations with their dogs or forget to pick up waste. It should be mandatory that if you own a dog you should take them through at minimum a beginners obedience class by the time the dog is 18mths or face fines.
- On leash and under control. Dogs should not meet while on leash as this causes issues between the dogs and is potentially dangerous
- Dogs should be on leash in these areas,
- Dogs are to be leashed and under control.
- They should be calm and under control
- An animal that is under control or that can be put into control quickly. Keen owners that are well versed in dog body language and have the proper training tools necessary to manage their dog
- Under control (ie not leaping or lunging at people/other dogs).
- Even more than off-leash, the owner should be monitoring the dog (not sitting on a park bench reading while their dog terrorizes nearby people and animals.)
If they're on a leash, that still means the dog should generally be in a close proximity to owner to control them properly.
- Dogs should remain off personal property (not allowed to wander around on privately owned lawns, etc).
Dogs shouldn't be permitted to be walked on retractable leads. This totally eliminates the owners control and puts them and others at risk.
- Dogs should be on leash on pathways/when not in an off leash area. My dog had been approached by many aggressive and reactive dogs on pathways and the owners did not have the dog on a leash and under their control.
- I expect that dogs will be on leash and have had training so that they do not jump on people with out dogs
- If it is not an off leash park, all dogs should be leashed. If paths are to be shared, everyone has a responsibility to keep our dogs safe.
- leashed and proper control of dog, dog not intruding on people's space.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Keep dog on leash in on leash areas even if they are friendly. Don't let your dog approach other on leash dogs without owner consent and actively make space to avoid on leash greetings.
- Calm behavior, no lunging, limited barking.
- Dogs should be on leashes outside of off-leash areas unless the dog is trained so well that it doesn't need a leash.
- Again to be on a leash at all time when not in a designated off leash area ,except when in their own yard. Not to be left in their yard , barking all day long or for extended periods . Owners responsible to clean poop up in public areas and in their own yard so neighbours do not have to smell.
- That the dog will stay with its owner, and that it will be on a leash.
Here in Silver Springs, I often see dogs off-leash in the playgrounds.
- Control of animal at all times, leashed. Picking up after the animal
- Stay on your leash, don't bark too much, don't lunge at people.
- On a leash, short leashed in large crowds, not jumping on people, owner understands when it is time to remove the dog based on its behavior.
- That the dog is on leash, and that the owner has control. Also, that a dog is not left alone and tied up outside businesses.
- Dogs kept at close range on leash, get rid of flexi's in public, owners acknowledge behaviors their dog struggles with and respond appropriately
- Dogs need to behave whether on leash or off, owners need to clean up.
- Polite on leash
- Lots. Dogs always on leash. Do not approach me without consent (my child is afraid of dogs), ensure your dog is not a nuisance (running at large), pick up poop.
- That they are under control of the owner at all times, and feces is picked up immediately
- Owners should be aware of other pets on pathways - being aware of signs that their pet or other pets they meet are agitated and know what to do to mitigate altercations between animals.
- Owners always have them on a leash to avoid issues. Just like humans, dogs wont like other dogs or people and there will be posturing occurring from the dog. Owner needs to extract their dog from the situation immediately to avoid harm from all involved.
- pet owners have taken their dogs to obedience classes so that they can be educated as to how to avoid putting their dogs in bad situations. never set your dog up for failure, this is what people do not understand, then the animals is blamed, when the person is to blame.
- respectful behavior period
- Strangers not approaching my dog without my consent. Dogs to be on leash. Ability to bring dogs to most public spaces.
- Dogs need to be on a leash and dog owners have them under control while on the pathway. Dogs should not be able to jump on, walk in front of, or snip at runners, walkers, or bikers. As someone who all of the above has happened while running on the pathways, I feel unsafe when dogs aren't on a leash.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Young children walking dogs that do not have control of them. Too many dogs in play grounds and school yards even though there are signs. Dogs should not be tied up outside stores, they can become frightened and bark, bite or lunge.
- on leash and under control
- People keep their dogs on leash. I have seen people crossing busy streets with no leash.
- I have no concerns about dogs being off leash in an off leash area if I can see that they are obedient and well behaved.
- Dogs on leash
Within reasonable distance of owner
- Friendly behaviour.
- Non reactive dogs off leash in public environments
- same as above
- Gentle, non-aggressive
- Same as noted above.
- In other public places keep your dog on a leash and keep it under control.
- The dog is under control and the owner warns if the dog is not friendly
- Not aggressive to people or other animals.
- Do not let your dog interfere with other people or animal enjoyment of the area. Never allow your pet to harass wildlife. and if they do injure an animal it should be mandatory to get the injured animal to help.
- Healthiness
- Red eyes! ( I've seen more dogs with red eyes. Concerned that this means they want to attack me)
- Listen to owner
- - don't bite - don't bark - stay close to owner
- show respect
- Lesson - Pick up dodo, Leash/muzzle, coular
- keep your dog away from people and other dogs, as on leash is maybe used by people and other dogs not good with other dogs
- The dog should be kept under control and not be threatening other people or animals
- All dogs should be on leash, period.
- It creates a scary situation for pet owners when blame is unilaterally placed on the animal/owner. It seems all regulation is designed to do to do this. A better balance is needed to ensure that there are repercussions for members of the public who interact inappropriately with animals/pets.
- I expect the dog to be on-leash at all times when not in a designated off-leash area. The owner should be in control of the dog at all times. Owners should shorted the lead to bring the dog closer to them when approaching others in common areas.
- Be on leash and under control of the owner. Even if you have a somewhat aggressive dog - you need to be able to remove your dog from any situation (ie. walk off the pathway & keep distance to avoid an issue with another dog coming towards you).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The dog is not aggressive towards humans or other dogs, such as growling or constant barking at passersby. I think if the dog(s) is/are well behaved and on-leash, no issues at all. Dog owners should be aware/monitor their dogs, and remove them from the situation if the aggression continues.
- Don't let your dog come too close to me unless i express interest in your dog.
- Always on a leash and in control
- it on a leash, that the owner picks up, that the owner is not walking more dogs that is reasonable to control ( this might be linked to dog size)
- Pick up waste , no lunging
- I do not frequent off leash parks as there has been such a huge increase in dog attacks on people and other dogs. Although I know it's impossible for the city to fully monitor off leash dog parks I really do think that with proper proof of an attack.
- Dogs must be under control at all times. Any dog can be unpredictable and owners and walkers must be diligent.
- On leash at heal as best one can. With in 6 feet. With an awareness that some dogs need more space when passingnother dogs and humans. That being reactibe dogs not mean aggressive
- To not have dogs allowed to run up to you, allowed to bark or jump on people.
- That anxious and aggressive dogs stay far enough away from others that their behaviour does not affect other people.
- My expectations are that bike riders are courteous of people with dogs on leash. We cannot jump out of the way in a millisecond just because they are zooming down the pathway and they do not wish to slow down.
- owners are the issue not the dogs, owners need to take their dogs for obedience classes to understand how to read the dogs body language.
- Dogs should be on leash and under the owners control.
- Pick up waste
- On leash at all times, owner responsible for keeping dog near them so it can't harass people or get in their way (or scare them - the common/public spaces are for all humans, and not all humans are comfortable around dogs.
- No excessive barking/growling.
- Dogs should always be leashed and under control. They should be licensed and vaccinated.
- Still under owner control with or without leash
- I think every dog owner should be trying, even if their dog is not perfect walking on a leash around the neighbourhood, the owner should be teaching them proper behaviour. If your dog is not ready to walk on a leash or be around other humans and dogs then start small and try to avoid others.
- Frenzier barking, aggression, or letting your dog wander on a long leash with little supervision is not acceptable
- Dogs jump. Dogs bark. Dogs have to be around other dogs to be taught how to behave around them, which means they need the opportunity to learn. I only expect them not to bite while walking past a person or other dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Awareness
  - Other reactive dogs
  - Leashed
  - Pick Up waste
  - Muzzled when appropriate
- Dogs should be on a leash, owners should walk dog to the right of the pathway so those who want to pass can go on the left, share the pathway as others use it, shorter leashes so dog remains in control should a bike or scooter come by.
- Dont assume everyone with a dog wants your dog to approach there is a reason dogs on leash are not in off leash areas medical, fear aggression Experts say dogs Shouldnt meet on leash in the first place as well If I Move away from your dog why are you then letting you dog come near me?
- Must be on leash. Stay on footpaths and off designated bike paths (leashes are a danger to passing cyclists). Owner needs to be able to manage their pet (i.e. small owner/child relative to pet size). Barking should be controlled.
- Appropriate interaction with people and other animals.
- -dogs kept on a leash
  - owner being able to control their dog
- On leash and under control, not barking, growling or jumping at other people or dogs
- To be on leash at all times
  - To be under control on leash at all times
- Your dog should not charge another individual/pet/wildlife, and should be responsive to commands (on-leash or off-leash should not matter if the previous statement applies).
- I would expect dogs to be on leash. Perhaps this seems as though I'm stating the obvious, but my partner and I have stopped going to some parks (the Weaselhead, North Glenmore Park) because there are so many off-leash dogs in areas where signs state dogs must be on leash (or are not allowed at all).
- NEEDS to be on a leash!! Owners think their dog is non-threatening or friendly off leash but not always the case. I don't want to have any interaction with a dog on or off the leash when on a walk. Need to be serious consequences for dogs off leash-more bylaw officers/large fines and confiscation.
- Owners keep their dogs on a leash, clean up after their dogs, what responsibility is the city taking to educate pet owners and the on going problems in neighbour hood parks where dog owners are not following the bylaws
- awareness
  - other reactive dogs
  - leashed
  - pick up waste
  - muzzled when appropriate [DUPLICATE]
- to be under owner control and do not approach public without consent.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I expect a dog owner to be in control of their dog, to follow the rules for on-leash behaviour, staying away from playgrounds, picking up dog waste, and not letting their dog run around a public area with its leash on and not in the owners hand.
- Owners need to keep their dogs from walking across our lawns. PLEASE keep them on the sidewalk. We have to garden in all of that dog urine on our shrubs and lawns as well as all of the contaminants of dog poop etc. that they carry on their feet. We are also tired of shoveling the snow knocked down.
- Dog must be trained to obey owner
- They should be kept under control, on leash, muzzled if required, poop picked up but dog owners should be encouraged to take their dogs in public spaces for socialization
- Don't have off lease parks. Dog owners should pick up poop everywhere including off lease areas.
- People need to train their dogs by professionals if they are unable to.
- Non aggressive, muzzled if bite history. Education of leash reactivity
- that the dog is friendly and will respond to owner's verbal commands at all times. Many pet owners are clueless.
- If anyone is disrespecting the rules, there can be a decent and respectful conversation about it. That everyone stops and considers the rules. Ex: a biker shouldn't charge past an off-leash dog in case there is a physical risk. Similarly, all bikers should use a bell when going past an on-leash dog.
- keep pets under control on a short leash
- They should be on leash, dog waste should be picked up, dogs should not false charge or jump on people, should not chase and kill wildlife or destroy nests, should not defecate in Calgary rivers and create dangerous ecoli for health and safety reasons. Dog owner should not threaten or attack persons
- Dog owners do not follow laws. You have to be blind not to see this. Just go to a playground that has a sign over a bench that states no dogs allowed and you will see an owner with a dog sitting there. Calgary does not enforce laws and the city of Calgary is the primary offender. You pretend.
- Basically, that the dog is under control. This does not necessarily mean that it needs to be on a leash. Part of being under control means it should not approach strangers to interact with them uninvited, even if it's just a friendly pup, as some people are scared by or are not interested in dogs.
- Dogs must be leashed.
Owners must remove waste.
Dogs must not be reactive to people or other dogs (barking/lunging/snapping/growling)
Dogs should be muzzled when appropriate.
- Make the extending leashes vanish as they are a safety hazard for dogs and people. People still don't seem to know they are not legal or their dangers. I expect to be able to have my dog around (on leash) and not be harassed by a dog who is not in control (dragging their keeper around for instance).
- Dogs should be in control of the owner/guardian. They should be ON Leash. Dogs with bad behaviour, are vicious or cannot be controlled should not be on pathways.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs should be under control. Some dogs do not need to be on leash if well trained. Excrement pickup is critical for dog owners.
- under control, not necessarily on leash.
- Under no circumstances should dogs be jumping up on other users of the park.
- on leash and controlled by owner. Dog owners often think everyone loves their dog. When the dog pulls on their leash, dog owners often let the dog come right up to you. I don't want that.
- Dog on leash and well behaved. Vicious dogs should not be allowed
- Dog waste must be picked up, owner must be able to control dog, strangers must ask owners consent before interacting with pet.
- Make sure your dog is well behaved. You have to work and do your best to train your dog and give it enough exercise.
- Awareness, other reactive dogs, leashed, pick-up waste, muzzled when appropriate
- On leash and under reasonable control of owner.
- Dogs on-leash. Dogs under control, not jumping up on people as they meet and pass. No biting dogs, or those who may bite, without a muzzle to prevent bites.
- If the dog is on leash on a pathway, they all have the same right to the pathway when it comes to accessibility. Dogs however shouldn't be jumping up on people. People should also react in a calm manner as pets will sniff people. If people are nervous, they should make it known in advance.
- If dog is on leash and under control by the owner, there is very little behavior that should be policed (other than using the dog to threaten someone).
- Generally, it is the same as a vehicle, i.e. having "care and control" over your animal to ensure the safety of people (especially children) that may be using sidewalks, pathways, playgrounds, etc. and - quite simply - following the rules (that is, keeping pets on-leash unless in an off-leash area).
- Same as off-leash dog parks.
- If the status quo is maintained, Calgary will continue to be a city truly "fit for dogs."
- A dog should have appropriate behaviour, be on leash, and not lunge at people, or bikes, skateboards and so on. Dogs should be on a short lead, and in control at all times
- All above, plus do not let dog approach / jump on others without asking them first (or having them ask you).
- Common courtesy. Ensure that problem animals comply with the rules in place.
- would like to see stricter enforcement with respect to cats and dogs on other properties, and roads. Actually following through and not having to have video proof as this happens during the day when people work. If the problem is a tenant that is being uncompliant the owner of the property needs to then be responsible. Feels like the rules are in place but are just not enforced.
- That dogs be under control

Reasonable number of dogs' rationale

- I think it should depend on the size/square footage of the residence. Pets need space.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Most Yards in Calgary are not very big and dogs create a lot poop. Winter can be very long and snowy and yards can fill up with poop very quickly. Also, it's difficult to control and monitor many dogs at an off leash park.
- I don't think there should be a specific limit. It depends on the home situation and so many other factors that can't be predetermined. A small condo with 15 dogs is a lot different than a larger farm-like acreage with 15 dogs. It should be about the owners ability to adequately care for their pets.
- More than 2 dogs can be difficult to control in all situations. Packs of dogs bark. Waste Clean up can become difficult/challenging with several dogs.
- I love that the city of Calgary is the one safe haven of foster homes and does not limit the amount of dogs per household. Some people can manage quite a few dogs and some should never be allowed to own more than a stuffed dog.
- I think it depends on the household. You're probably going to get a lot of "4s." I think potentially 5 or 6 dogs would be ok. But when you put "5+" it includes the potential for 99 dalmatians which is just getting cartoonishly unrealistic.
- Personally, one is a lot for me. But who am I to deny people their pets? If they are properly cared for, and there is enough space and love, then you do you.
- This is hard to say and not so fair to generalize. As long as dogs are treated with dignity, respect, have enough of space and all their needs are met, one can have as many dogs as they can take care of. You don't control a household's number of children, so the same goes here.
- I think if someone has more than 2 dogs and take them out alone, it is very difficult to keep watch and control over all three at the same time
- i personally know plenty of GOOD dog owners that own 3 to 4 dogs perfectly fine, but people need to be well trained and good finances when owning that many animals.
- Depends entirely on the owner and the individual's capacity to care for X number of animals.
- I don't think it is okay to necessarily limit people from owning more than 2 dogs, but this feels like a reasonable number
- They are like family, but no one person can effectively walk and "control" a large pack of animals at once
- Calmer when 2; aggressive when more than 3.
- Too crowded if more less attention paid if too many dogs hard to train more dogs
- Dogs require a lot of training, and having more than three may mean that some of that training would suffer. I would rather there be a few well-trained dogs than many poorly trained ones.
- The number of dogs should be based on one's financial situation, living environment and space require for the specific breeds
- Personal experience (a puppy, an adult and a senior pet).
- If the dogs are being cared for appropriately I do not think the city should be mandating how many dogs per household.
- Dogs are social animals and need at least one friend
- Depending on the size of the dog and access to off-leash areas would determine the number.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It seems reasonable that 2 dogs can be controlled safely and also to have 2 barking dogs in a back yard is the most noise I could take. Dogs like a buddy so it seems fine with 2.
- It's not the amount of dogs that matters, it's how responsible and well trained the dogs and dog owners are. I know lots of people that shouldn't be allowed a single dog, and others that can easily manage a 10 dog pack.
- More than 3 dogs in any household that isn't a breeder seems excessive? If there are more than 3 dogs I feel like there is a higher chance for a dog to be neglected or a problem missed.
- i have one dog...having more than 3 would be problematic when exercising them on or off leash. also making sure you can afford food/vet fees
- two dogs is reasonable; but someone might want to introduce a new dog when an existing dog is getting old - so three.
- There should not be a limit on how many dogs an owner can have, so long as the owner is able to provide a safe and healthy life for the dogs.
- No more than 6
- 5. I believe the number should be 5, unless the household applies for a special exemption (for example, a breeder)
- Three is about the limit that one person can control when walking dogs, and I would use this as a maximum, unless the person is a reputable breeder, in which case there could be times when this number could be exceeded.
- It's expensive to own a dog, especially if they live long lives. The dog(s) need a good home, good food, enough attention and proper vet care. If an individual/family is burdening their finances with a dozen dogs in their lives, these animals are not getting the care and attention they deserve.
- It depends on the person and circumstance. I know people that rescue and foster and are able to take care of many dogs.
- I love dogs?
- Most people are untrained handlers and can manage 2 dogs, only trained handlers can reasonably manage 3-5 at a time
- Dogs are pack animals. Having a solitary animal may not be the best thing for that animal. Having too many dogs can get out of hand what with vet bills, food, proper care.
- I do not have any issue with the number of pets - as long as they are being cared for, fed, veterinary, etc.
- I think it depends on the size of dog and dwelling. I think 4 is acceptable if they're small and well-behaved.
- I guess it depends on the size of the house / dog
Are they taken care of
- Dogs may require companionship so more than one should be allowed. Due to space constraints a larger number should not be allowed. Exceptions should be made for dogs with puppies until the have found new homes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I have no issues with number of pets if they pets are cared for with proper feeding, exercise, medical, and licensing.
- I think that the size and type of household needs to be considered. Someone with a large house with a yard could be allowed more dogs than someone in an apartment for example.
- The average house could likely comfortably accommodate this many dogs. Unless very well trained, more than four dogs would put the people to dog ratio at risk, which leaves opportunities for dogs to become out of the control of owners.
- Animals - that we have bred into existence- stress our ability to meet climate goals, they create waste and generally add to our overall footprint. They are cute though.
- Dogs come in a variety of sizes and care requirements. Forcing an arbitrary limit is unfair.
- More dogs means more barking. It is harder to control each additional animal.
- Very few people have the experience to manage more than two dogs.
- I believe it depends on the household, and their abilities.
- As long as the pet is well taken care of, the number should not matter.
- It is not the number of animals a person houses but more how they are cared for both physically and mentally. Ethical breeders can have a few more dogs than the normal household due to the nature of their breeding program. It never should be capped. Make owners responsible for their animal number
- Minimum number of well-trained dogs a responsible, experience individual could properly have oversight and control over
- One per adult hand in the household.
- 2 is companionship, 3 is too many, think about the feces and smell in the yard and you should be charging extra after 2
- Do not believe in limits due to the multiple of different situations that can occur.
- I believe if your dogs are under your control and you are able to properly care for them and your property, it shouldn't matter how many there are. I would just want to see all dogs in a residence licensed
- The more dogs the more walking, the more waste to pick up, more vet bills, more food/medication costs, more licensing fees. I am comfortable with 2 but perhaps 3 if they were small dogs.
- This is not a limit, just an average number per household.
- Seems like a reasonable and managable number but Calgarian should be allowed to keep as many as they want as long as doing so doesn't negatively impact any other Calgarian and the health and safety of the animals can be maintained.
- Most people have trouble keeping up with picking up poop and responsibly walking more than 3 dogs at once.
- The number of dogs is irrelevant. It's the people that matter. Some people can handle 10 dogs, other people can't handle one dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It depends on the 'owner', the type of dogs and how often they are walked and interacted with. More than 4 becomes unmanageable, especially when walking. Hard to monitor behaviour and pick up after four dogs let alone more.
- Don't know. What do animal advocacy or other animal rights groups recommend as a suitable number of dogs per household?
- If people can properly take care of their dogs and have the resources necessary, who cares how many they have in their house. it's their property and they should be able to do with it what they please.
- If the animals are being well cared for with a healthy environment then it should be up to the individual to determine the number of animals.
- Every person is different. Some people can easily handle 7 dogs (provide food, training, exercise) while others can barely handle one. If you are a responsible owner, the number of dogs you have isn't relevant.
- There isn't a set number. Some people can care for many dogs and some can't even care for one. Plus sometimes houses have roommates that have their own dogs.
- Three dogs are more than enough for one home due to backyard size. The costs associated with owning a dog can get expensive.
- It really depends on the household and what the role is of the family members. I have seen homes with 1 dog that is not well looked after and the home and yard is a mess, and homes with 6 or 7 that are extremely well cared for and their home and yard are spotless.
- It allows one to be a companion for the other. A person has only 2 hands... one for the leash of each dog when they are walking it.
- Really I think as long as they are all being cared for and treated if ill who am I or you to decide. Some breeders have multiple dogs at a time depending on who's visiting and when for breeding purposes.
- It all depends on the number of the household (humans :) ) the size of dogs. the size of house. and even maybe income of household they can provide for that dog. There is no right answer.
- More than that would compromise the ability of the owner to handle them.
- Dependent on circumstances, breeder, rescue etc. Should someone have 30 dogs sitting in the house while they are off to work all day, probably not. But, having said that it would depend on breed and how they are housed/managed etc. Also how many caregivers are there for the number of dogs?
- It is not the number of dogs, it is the behaviour and care of the dogs that is important. My multi-dog household is better behaved than the neighbour's 1 terrier, left to bark at people walking down the alley.
- It could be two, but since we have so many 'apartments' included in household put '1'
- it depends upon the size of the dogs, how responsible the owners are
- Yards aren't big enough in Calgary for more than that.
- Three, each individual dog will have their set of needs and wants. And I feel that more than that wouldn't be meeting the dogs needs and could potentially have effect of the dogs quality of life.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It is not the number of dogs that causes issues, it is irresponsible ownership.
- No more dogs than one person could reasonably control off their property at a time.
- Depending on the means and ability of and given person. Some have the means and skills to care for 20 dogs. Some zero.
- This is based on reasonable attention owners can give to their dogs and also the impact of multiple dogs (even well behaved ones) on surrounding neighbors.
- Prefer no arbitrary limit. Responsibility is not contingent on number. I think Calgary has been very forward thinking in its approach to dog ownership in the past and would hate to see that eroded.
- It really depends on the size of the dogs and the space the owner has for them to roam and run.
- Depends on what your criteria is for household. If I look at Calgary Housing, I think it is reasonable that one does not own more than two dogs.
- Same as the beer rule...you're allowed to order as many beers as the number of hands you have.
- I think this all depends on the size of dog and size of property. Small property 2-3. Larger property and homes 4-5.
- If an individual is responsible, there should not be a limit. Limits are there to control individuals that are not responsible.
- Walking more than 2 makes it harder to control the dogs. The more dogs there are together the pack instinct kicks in.
- I think a max of 4 dogs and 5 pets in total is reasonable.
- Companions when people are away working all day
- at least the one dog will have a companion..if people are so passionate about dogs, go volunteer at the shelter(s)..again we live in a city, close confines, not a farm/acreage...
- In an urban setting this number should be zero or two. Dogs need jobs and/or interaction to be happy. If an owner can't have two, they need to have zero, and if they can't have zero, they need to have two.
- It's more about how responsible the owner is, not about number of dogs. I've known some very good owners of 5 dogs and less than ideal owners of just 1.
- 2 dogs per one person. Otherwise care and time lacks.
- I think that the number of dogs per household will vary based on the household size, yard size, care of the animals, ect. Should be pets only, there should be limits if using for breeding, or leaving the dogs un-fixed and allowed to have puppies.
- Although I do not have that many dogs I believe that it should be an individual choice
- I think anymore than 3 is too hard to handle and monitor (unless it's puppies, or a litter just was born)
- As long as the owner is being a responsible owner, providing good care and being respectful of neighbours I have no issue as to the number of dogs. We have a neighbour who has 1 dog that is more of problem than my 3 dogs.
- If the pet owner is responsible, there shouldn't be an issue
- It is a good size and the dogs have a companion.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Some people have different limits than others. My limit is 1 dog and my sister has 4 who are very well cared for.
- This is difficult. If the residence has more space, then possibly the limits can be extended. After 3 dogs it is impossible to have responsibility/cleanliness for them all.
- I don't believe that this is a fair question. Factors need to be considered including size of house, number of residents caring for the animal, size of yard/exercise area, financial resources.
- No limit
- Doesn't matter if they are taken care of and trained
- Why do they need more? Less is more.
- People can responsibly care for many dogs. A limit does not ensure good care of that the animals won't be a nuisance to others.
- I think this depends on the owners' ability to care for multiple dogs and dependent on the size of the owners' home and yard. There are people who foster who have multiple dogs and they have the space, resources and knowledge to handle this.
- Depends on size of house/available space and also size of dogs.
- Owners generally don't take in more than they can responsibly handle, give enough attention to, provide vet care and love. Different sizes and ages dictate the home environment. Numbers won't change behaviours if hoarders and breeders.
- Most yards are small and ownership commitment is low
- Noise and environmental considerations for neighbors are more important than someone's want for more animals.
- As long as the animals are being properly fed, vaccinated, and with vet care there should be no limits. Decisions should be based on quality of care not based on the number of dogs in the home. For some even one is too many and they lack the ability to care for the dog appropriately.
- My choice is based on what I think a typical family can handle appropriately, in terms of giving each dog the proper care and attention they will require. Obviously, this number will be higher in some families and lower in others based on location, number of family members, etc.
- An owner can typically afford the feeding/grooming/veterinary care & licensing fees. Barking dogs are better controlled with 2 or under.
- It isn't the number of animals you have it is how you care for them.
- I think it depends on the ability of the person to properly provide for the animals. Do we limit the number of children a family can have?
- As long as the animal is well taken care of and is not a nuisance, there should be no limits.
- One dog per adult seems reasonable. If a household wants more dogs than that they should apply and neighbours can comment.
- It completely depends on the dogs and the household.
- It is dependent on the individual and what they are able to handle. The animals' welfare must be taken care of and safety of the public understood.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As long as the dogs are trained, and properly taken care of and follow bylaws, the amount of animals shouldn't be limited.
- More dogs = more noise, waste and smell
- If a family is able to control a number of dogs they should be able to. Some people cannot look after 1, experienced dog owners can handle more.
- Sanitation is a primary concern of mine. Since very few dogs or cats are trained to use toilets I'm concerned about Faecal buildup and contamination.
- Depends on the household. I don't think this needs to be limited.
- You need to be able to control your pet at any second, must be able to walk properly and you only gave two hands thus you can only properly walk one or two dogs but not more at once
- If a person can handle it 3 dogs is not unreasonable.
- if at an off-leash park with more than 3 dogs it is difficult to track them and ensure their interactions with others as well as their waste management is maintained. I also do not think you can restrict dogs based on square footage so this would be suitable for apartment and oar House styles it wou
- Some people can't properly care for one dog, while others can provide excellent lives for multiple dogs. The number shouldn't be limited as the abilities of different dog owners are vastly different.
- Dogs are very time consuming and require a ton of mental and physical interaction and we have off leash parks for other dog interaction. Most people don't have enough extra time for multiple dogs.
- On average this ought to be lower, but as a maximum, 3.
- I believe that as long as the members of household can adequately care for those animals they should be allowed to have them, perhaps special permits could be considered for breeders and such. I would put a limit at four but with puppies being exempt
- Depends on the house
- How does someone give total support needed for their dogs...Financial and emotional as well as physical like walking their pets.
- Not necessary to have more than 2 within the city
- When over a specific number people get overwhelmed and pets end up in humane society or given away.
- Depends on any negative affects on neighbors or property value
- As long as the multiple dog owner complies with all bylaws in place and is not causing a problem to their neighbors it should be left up to the owner as to what they can care for properly. Trying to limit people will only drive them underground.
- I think that multiple dogs are fine, but in an urban setting I wonder if more than 3 is reasonable given the expectations of responsible pet ownership. However, I am not aware of best practices and am more receptive to more pets if owners are responsible. Irresponsibility is the bigger issue.
- Dogs are family and 3 is the right number
- It depends on the home and type of dog. Many people live active lives and can happily and safely house many dogs. Breeders etc also have larger numbers of dogs at certain times, and it's a slippery slope to limit this number.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Any more and you can't watch them all in the parks.
- As long as all dogs are healthy, taken care of, licensed, and have space.
- Possible noise and I believe that is a controllable number.
- I believe it depends on the size of the house and breed of dog. One person can usually control 2 dogs depending on size.
- If you are a responsible dog owner you should be allowed to have 5+ dogs. But if you get caught hoarding then all dogs must go.
- It depends. 1 for a 40 +kg dog, a couple for a small breed. what is it with the need to have a pack?
- I do not believe it is universal, one household could have one dog that is out of control and another could have 5+, all of which are well behaved and controlled. It comes down to the owner, not the number.
- No more than 2 per adult caregiver.
- Allows for breeders/ show animals
- We have a large/medium do who is well trained, and well cared for. That being said , neighbours have one small, extremely vocal and poorly cared for dog that impacts a lot of people with noise. We think that the bob cat is hunting for this.
- That is a reasonable number considering that every household could have a dog. The amount of dog feces in the city should be considered in this question. There is a large amount that is not picked up. Environmental concerns rise with the increase of dogs in the city.
- To many and u can not provide properly
- Three dogs can be managed by one person, but more than that would be too difficult for one person to properly care for - picking up waste, properly exercising the animal, cost for proper veterinary care.
- 1 or at most 2 dogs per household and only depending on the type of dogs and also the dwelling where they live. It can be cruel to keep a certain breed under certain conditions.
- Unless someone is on a large property, 3 or more dogs is not fair to the animal. Urban settings are not meant for multiple animals and neighbors should not be bothered by others pets.
- One or two is a reasonable amount, one can be lonely if owner at work all day so a friend is ok.
- Enough to provide companionship for the dogs, while at the same time limiting impact on neighbours.
- I know there are people who have multiple dogs and I think that's a choice based on their personal situation and feeling. But I think overall four dogs is the upper limit of what most people can handle
- Manageable in a city urban environment and provides company for the dogs. Less mess within a community.
- I don't care how many dogs are in a household. If there are no complaints and the owner can provide appropriate care it doesn't matter how many dogs are in the household.
- Im okay with 5. It really depends on the household. For me personally I'd never have more than two cause I can't handle that much! Others can handle it amazingly and should. More than 5 is hoarding.
- ONE PET AND A COMPANIONFOR THE PET.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- This seems to be a fair number and a number that is manageable. More could mean that dogs get neglected.
- Some people can easily handle having a large number of dogs, while some people shouldn't even have 1 dog. I have known people with 12 dogs in their household and you would never know there were 12 dogs living in their spotless house.
- Depends on the dogs and weather they are nuisance to the neighbours /community. For dog breeders they should be registered with the Canadian Kennel Club in order to have multiple dogs. Dog breeders should not be limited on the number of dogs if they are responsible and registered.
- With current life styles, rare for people to manage walking more than two dogs.
- If there are no complaints or issues who cares. I have had 6 ish for over 30 years in Calgary with no issues. When you add my current competition dogs, my retired dogs and my upcoming dogs it is easy to have several. The single dog in my neighborhood that barks all night is much more annoying.
- Maximum 3, but preferably less but only if you own a house with a yard. Otherwise only one if in an apartment or condo.
Animals are expensive and an owner should be able to financially take care of all animals and pay for food and vet bills.
- You can have one dog and not be a responsible owner. You can have 5+ and be a great owner.
- Too many dogs on a residential property can have problems with excessive barking and owner not regularly picking up dog feces on their property, which results in bad odors and a health hazard for adjoining property owners and their families, and animals can't safely live in crowded conditions.
- Assuming two are easily handled when on leash, etc. And average yard is fine for two, including how much waste.
- I don't think there can be a specific number. If you bred a dog, you'd have puppies, well over 5. If you are not breeding, a good rule is a number that can be loved by each person. 2 people=2 dogs. (Adults) but personally, 2 is plenty to ensure good care.
- One MAXIMUM in the city and then only small quiet dogs. Big dogs deserve a full home and yard to roam in. Two, maybe three in a rural area...more if on a farm *with enough people to take care of them!
- Not too many- this of course counts as permanent pets, not a new litter.
- Seems like a reasonable number for proper control & financial obligations
- 3 should be the limit. Most households cannot responsibly care for lots of animals under the APA
- More control and not overpopulated
- Completely depends on the person, their finances, and the amount of space, size of dogs, etc.
- In urban areas more than this isn't necessary except for mother dog with pups until pups weaned and moved to new homes
- As long as the dogs are licensed, owner can care for them, they are not excessively noisy or cause for concern I think if the owner is responsible within reason no number should be placed

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It may depend on how many family members are in the household, however I do know the time, responsibility and financials it takes to care for multiple pets. Ppl should not live beyond their means. They should be able to provide each dog with the proper amount of exercise, attention & stimulation
- Any more than 2 is difficult to control and indicates a 'collection' or possibly even a hoarding or unlicensed breeding operation. Citizens should have to have and pay for a kennel license with 3 or more dogs.
- I think it depends on the size of the home and the care that is given to the dogs. A mansion with a large yard could carry 5+ dogs, where an apartment can only have 1 small dog. Subjective question.
- 3 and below for responsible pet owners like myself. 4 and above should be assessed and approved by the city per household.
- A reasonable number is different for different people. Some people can only handle one. Others are fine with lots of dogs. The current rules work fine. As long as the pers are licensed and well cared for that is what is important.
- As a breeder I do have multiple dogs I obey the bylaw and have lived inner city for 30 years and have never had a complaint about my dogs. With education and enforcement of the bylaws we should not have to limit numbers and basically punish good owners
- As a breeder you need to have several dogs - the number isn't important - your responsible behaviour is
- I believe it depends on the situation ..... people who show and breed their dogs will have more than people who do not. So long as they are licensed and well cared for, contained and trained there should not be a limit
- Dogs can learn from each other.
- Seems to be a reasonable amount
- How can an owner control and monitor more than 2 dogs?
- Noise from animals - two can keep each other company - three becomes a crowd!? Noise again! Be considerate neighbour.
- Responsible pet owners should not be limited in number of pets on site as long as bylaws are followed. There is no limit on number of children per household, nor should there be for pets as long as owners show responsibility for their animals behaviour
- Average household has 2-3 people living there, 1 or 2 dogs per person will allow sufficient care of all animals as well as maintainability of defecation areas.
- Two dogs tend to keep each other occupied, any more and you have a greater chance of a pack that can be harmful to the public
- Most people don't have a house or backyard that is big enough for more than two dogs. The more dogs, the more noise (&poop) there will be.
- I have 5 dogs... It would also depend on the type of dog. A household with 5 giant mastiffs or 5 high drive dogs would not have the same impact as a household with 5 teacup poodles
- if there's multiple people in a household you just divide up who your watching vs who the others are watching

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 2 is manageable & provide adequate companionship for each other & their humans.
- Depends on breed, specifically size, size of home and property, level of care and quality of life in the home.
- 3 allows for people to own and foster dogs but also maintain control and meet the needs of animals and neighbours.
- I don't think we should limit the number of dogs per household- if you own your property and have the resources, you should be able to have lots of dogs. I know many loving, responsible owners with 5+ dogs (I work in vet med.)
- It's none of the city's business if the animals are licensed and behaved.
- More than 2 is a kennel
- Numbers would be determined by size of breed, size of house and yard. Some people can handle more dogs while others could probably handle none.
- dogs are pack animals; may depend on size also, if someone has two 150-pound dogs or two 15 pound dogs
- Any number ok as long as they are well cared for, kept under control, and don't disturb neighbours. Restrictions should only apply to those who have abused dogs or allowed them to disturb neighbors (ongoing).
- As long as the amount of space in the home suits the amount of dogs, there should not be a limit as long as the dogs are healthy.
- It really depends what type of house/property one has. And how much time to take care of the dog...
- Quality of the dog's environment & life is far more important than the number of dogs. There are members of the public that should not own a dog.
- Noise and excitability seems to increase when there's more than 2 dogs, and to last for longer periods of time. Very annoying for neighbours.
- Dogs are a big responsibility. Many people can manage one pet well enough.
- No restriction as some people can deal with a large number.
- Size of the house, yard and human to dog ratio should be factors in determining
- More than 3 creates dog poop and pee smells lingering in yard, barking, and potential neighbour conflict.
- Multiple pets usually leads to unsanitary conditions fostering the spread of disease. Additionally the noise quickly disturbs the neighbors.
- Why is more than one dog necessary? One idiot dog-owner creates a lot of mess and racket in a quiet neighbour when his / her dogs are not properly trained. Two double are double the idiocy. My neighbour across the alley has two badly trained mutts Barking is constant...and it is NOT cute.
- It depends on type of dog, type of household.
- Two animals is enough for anyone to handle at one time
- I think anymore than 3 is too hard to handle and monitor

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- the rules in place work well. There are hundreds of legitimate ethical kennels in Calgary and the pet population is the better for it. Those who are causing grief are the unethical people who often only have a dog or two. It is not the ethical people with 5+ who cause trouble but they get blamed
- I think it depends in part on breeds of dogs, (ie harder to have multiple large dogs in a home than smaller), it depends on the owner's ability to take care of the dogs there. I think having a set limit doesn't cover all situations
- Two is reasonable. depends on how responsible the dog owner is and how well the dogs are trained.
- As long as you can provide for them, pay for them, keep them in good health and avoid incidents with the public there should be no limit. People who follow the rules should not have a limit imposed on them because others can be responsible
- Dogs are social animals and 2 is manageable by one person if they're well trained (both dogs and the human)
- It depends more on the house really - I would say three dogs would be easy to manage and maintain in an average sized house in Calgary
- With smaller pets, it's entirely reasonable to have 3-4 pets (they are company for each other) however getting into larger numbers can cause more pack mentality (with dogs especially) and may limit ones ability (cost) to care for them appropriately (unless a breeder)
- Lots of people foster for rescue organizations and so I don't feel there should be a limit on pets in a house so long as they are being properly cared for. 6 small 10lbs dogs is very different from 6 large 100lbs dogs
- no real preference on that as long as they are trained and well taken care of. Also depends on size of home etc.
- But much depends on size of house, you wouldn't have 3 German shepherds in a one room apartment.
- I think more than two likely leads to space and noise issues.
- Anything over 2 becomes hard to handle
- This question is improperly framed and biased because it presumes that a limit is required. The # of dogs is not the issue; the issue is management. One annoying dog can be tremendous problem whereas multiple well behaved dogs are a joy (and a $ make for the City in license fees).
- More than 2 should be considered a kennel and pay subsequent fee for such.
- I think it's a reasonable number
- any number as long as they are well taken care of and have ongoing training and socializing.
- As long as the owner has the ability to properly care for the animals without interfering with neighbours, etc. the number doesn't matter. (This includes financial means)
- This was hard for me to chose as I feel it really depends on the person's ability to take proper care of the dogs, the size of the dogs, how much exercise they need.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It's not really the specific number, it's how someone is responsible for them. People can have as many kids as they want, and they aren't my cup of tea but I have no say over how many kids are running around screaming, riding bikes on sidewalks, etc.
- Any number of dogs as long as the home/garden is large enough, the dogs are well cared for and loved. They get plenty of exercise, veterinary treatment and the owners are responsible.
- Provided that the dogs get enough exercise, stimulation, and care, I do not believe there needs to be a cap. Dogs thrive in packs.
- No more than 2. More than that, you should have to have a certain size of yard or house.
- It depends on the individual, some are more capable than others.
- If the owner has been adequately trained and has enough space for the dogs
- I think people can have as many dogs as they want if they are cleaned up after trained adequately and healthy.
- I've met plenty of people who cannot manage 1 dog and met plenty who can easily manage over 20. There are plenty of bylaws in place to address someone not taking care of their dogs. Why punish the ones who are? It won't be the violators who will be affected.
- 2 is reasonable for me due to the time commitment, amount of extra work it would require and the cost to have more than that. Some people's lifestyles can accommodate and do well with more than 2.
- if the animals are well cared for, have medical treatments when necessary, and owners are not overburdened, it should be fine. some people are overburdened with 1 pet and don't treat their pet well, and someone who has the means to care for 5 animals or more if it means they're not on the street.
- 4 is a safe number lots of family's have 4 kids so why not 4 dogs!
- There are a multitude things that can go south quickly . I would max out the limit to four dogs per household . If they would like more dogs within the household - education and training courses should be mandatory .
- It depends how many people are in the family and how much room you have. In a two person home 4 dogs are easily managed with the educated owner.
- For a house, in an urban setting, 2 gives a companion to play with, while 3, you will tend to get 2 ganging up on one. I like 2 as a minimum if you have more than 0. 2 is not a limit. If you want to legislate a limit, lets say 6 adult dogs - litters of puppies don't count. Number 6 is arbitrary.
- Have always had at least 3
- Dogs require adequate space. Dogs can begin to exhibit pack behaviours in large groups which can be dangerous.
- Two so they have a companion, the third is normally when one of the dogs is getting older, you get the third dog so it can learn the other dogs behaviours
- I think it should be a matter for each household to decide the number of dogs they wish. I think a maximum of 5-6 is not unreasonable.
- Depends on the size of the house and if the wellbeing of the animal

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals do best in pairs usually but a household should not be limited to 2 IF they are cared for, controlled and loved.
- It depends on the number of people committed to helping, the access they have to fenced yards or other walking areas.
- 1 or 2 is enough or it will be too crowded, dirty, expensive. Time management won't be good to make sure they are walked, washed, loved properly.
- A pair is plenty
- One dog can get lonely, two play and keep each other company.
- A household may very well be properly responsible for half-a-dozen dogs... another household may not take proper care of 1. I don't want an arbitrary limit.
- Breeders exist and will have easily at least 6 dogs in their place at any given time (2 parents and 4 puppies minimum)
Or some private owners have a dog who has pups and they keep them all
Private dog daycares also exist
I think there's too much nuance to set a definitive amount
- The size of house, type of house, nor the number of people per household is stated; so an appropriate answer cannot be given.
- 4 dogs can be reasonably cared for in the typical household, which is one to two adults. More than four dogs and there is a proliferation of feces, an inability to properly exercise the dogs, and general animal welfare is a concern due to the inability to pay for a vet, food, etc.
- Two MAX. More than that is border line hoarding and I do t believe the dogs needs can be fully met if more than 2. Not fair to neighbors Otherwise.
- 2 would ok with proper training. If there were more it could be allowed under certain conditions ie foster or proof of a well trained dog from a certified trainer. It would be fair to the animal and owner
- If small breeds 2 for medium or large due to environment living in noise causing or inadequate space
- The number of dogs allowed per household should be based on the space available to properly support the number of dogs being maintained.
- The backyards in the city are not big enough for several dogs. Nor would the owner walk several dogs so they could get exercise.
- 2 is generous. I live in the beltline and I'm appalled at the number of large dogs that are kept in apartments.
- Needs to be a reasonable number of pets that can be managed.
- It's like kids. You should not have more dogs than you have hands, especially if you are taking them out in public.
- Just thinking the average size of a home and people out walking dogs. Two seems manageable and two in a home seems to be a good number for the animals.
- It really depends on the size, training and responsibility of the owners.
- Respect for neighbourhood.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- You're trying to find a way to limit ownership. This should not be your consideration. If there are issues, the city can seek the legal route, however having multiple pets myself and never having a complaint, I feel you're trying to single out those that do own multiple pets.
- It depends on lot size. A large property can accommodate more dogs than a small City lot
- Obviously the size of the dog and the house matters. 5 or more Chihuahuas is not a problem but 5 or more huskies might be. That being said, it all depends on how they are cared for. Too many dogs rarely seems to be a problem. Should be case by case.
- Apartments should be limited to 1 dog due to square footage and possible disturbance to immediate neighbours.
Single detached homes could have up to two dogs given square footage of house/yard.
Any dogs beyond 2 / dwelling would require City review/licensing.
- Some owners should not have 1 - some owners perfectly capable of managing a dozen
- 2 you can still control
- Good balance between enjoyment of pet owner and chances of negatively affecting neighbours.
- Three fixed dogs is reasonable to care for & provide love and attention to each of them. More than that and it becomes too difficult, even for people who claim they could own 4+ dogs easily.
- Dogs need companion and socialization. Too many dogs could end up having sanitary issues or noise control issues if the dogs are territorial and reacts to noise outside. Also this may limit the backyard breeding that is going on.
- We have small homes and yards and are close to our neighbours. Clean up and noise are a problem for some owners.
- Every other city in Canada has limits but we don't. My next door neighbours came here with 5 dogs because they could not live anywhere else. The dogs bark and fight all the time and they cannot control them. I see this as a real problem all over Calgary. Give your bylaw officers some leverage!
- I think 4 dogs is reasonable if a person wishes to own more than perhaps a special license could be made available after a home visit is conducted in which it can be proven that the person has the means (financially, emotionally, and mentally) to provide proper care for that many animals
- More than 3 dogs decreases your chances to de-escalate a conflict in a safe manner alone. This should apply to dog walking services who like to walk 8+ dogs at one time alone. Not safe. Need to also be able to provide necessary medical costs as they come up. If you can't afford the vet bill....
- I don't think this is a fair for the city to dictate. There are too many factors to consider.
- I have 3 kids and know how different it is to contain 3, compared to the two we used to have. Dogs and kids are basically the same, right?
- It is not about the number of dogs, rather , about how they are cared for and if someone is respecting their neighbors.
- The current bylaw is fine how it is - all dogs in a house hold should be licensed. Putting in caps will discourage people from licensing existing dogs.
- The number of dogs someone can have is dependent on finances, property, and number of helpers. It also depends on breed and size. Some breeds do better in packs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I have had 3 dogs before. In an off-leash area, it becomes challenging to monitor their behaviour as well as clean up after them
- Depending on number of family members and size of yard and space and attention care etc. For example I live in an area with suited homes. at one time the neighboring home had 6 dogs! 5 of which were all over 75lbs. That is ridiculous and we had to change our fence. Permits for more than 2 is good.
- This needs to be evaluated on a case by case basis. 10 pocket dogs is very different then 10 large breed dogs. Property size can also make a big difference.
- Because dogs are social animals, 2 is enough to provide companionship to each other.
- Safety and hygiene
- Some people who have multiple pets do no care for them properly. No vet visits. Cheap food. Not spay or neutered due to cost.
- I just don't think people need to collect animals like some kind of hobby. Two pets can keep each other company, and it's not too much work/time for the owners. It's manageable. Anything more can lead to hoarding with some people, as we have seen time and time again. Very sad.
- Two dogs is a lot. But it depends on the size as well. Two big dogs vs. Two small dogs is a different thing.
- I would have said more than 4 but I feel is there is no limit, that opens things up to back yard breeders, mills, even hoarders... so it is a tough one.. for example I could have 5 or 6 with no problem, because I am a trainer and respect the laws. But other people maybe not so much....
- LOL. I have three dogs. :-)
- Depending on the size of your house and backyard. 4 is the max I would allow because more than that is is hard to control
- No restrictions as long as they are cared for
- I think people can self-monitor; but hoarding and puppy mills need to be identified and stopped
- I believe one person can reasonably handle one leash in each hand. If there is an incident walking can animal this could be controlled.
- Dog ownership should be a function of your ability to properly care for them. 5+ dogs in the home of a responsible dog owner is better than one dog in the home of someone who doesn't care or understand their responsibility to the pet and how they affect their neighbour.
- Just make sense to me don't get me wrong I love pets but. Pets are becoming more important than people in that is my concern.
- Unless you have an acreage or sufficient room to be a dog babysitting service, I would struggle to imagine having more than 3 dogs without it becoming a sanitation and safety issue.
- Depends on the owner(s)
- It is dependent on house size, owners capabilities, dog size. We should not be legislating maximums, we should be legislating ownership abilities. You can't care for and manage x amount of dogs? You should not be able to have that many.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 4 is more than enough. And it should be counted for small dogs more than big dogs. Small dog owners get away with a lot more than big dog owners wherever they go. They are the ones the most aggressive at the offleash and nothing is ever done about it.
- Sometimes a house already has 2 dogs and they need to watch a friend's dogs. If the house and property big enough for 4 dogs. Size of dog, living conditions should play a part in decision and level of responsibility of person
- Allows dogs to have a buddy while not being an added burden on the household.
- It really depends on the home and who lives there and their management style. For some people 2 dogs is too many, for others they can handle 5 or more better than some owners handle 1 pet. It should be up to the home owner as long as all dogs are licensed
- This is depending on the species. Having a Mastiff and St. Bernard is very different than having a Sharpei and Miniature Poodle. The former require greater control than the latter
- complete freedom of choice as long as all the bylaws are being respected
- No reason just three seems like enough work! If you're a good owner and take care of them, number shouldn't matter.
- Depends on a household, but it seems hard to manage a household with more dogs - not sure there should be a limit and certainly higher numbers can be cared for well with good planning and lifestyle.
- Three is enough dogs to have companionship, and can be kept in a reasonably-sized Calgary household.
- How can a person spend time, train and exercise any more pets than 2?
- As long as the owner can properly care for the animals, they are not constantly outside they should be able to have as many as wanted)
- Dogs are social animals and need company. More than two are justified only when there are pups.
- Most homes can only really accommodate 2 dogs need for space and attention. Perhaps a larger number based on a larger home.
- Multiple animal home must be controlled by owner. Kept clean and safe for human and animal health. Control over animal behaviour should be apparent.
- The majority self-limit, the few who don't are special circumstances. I have 5 small dogs, I am home most days so that they are not left in the yard on their own, I clean up my yard and have a cleaning service come in once a week as well, take them to the vet, have a large home...
- I do not believe that numbers matter in this case. Care of the animals including training and husbandry and impact on neighbours are the keys here. If the home provides enough space for the number of animals and the care required and neighbours are not impacted by constant barking or damage
- I would think any number would be appropriate depending on the owner's ability to responsibly care for their dogs, walk them all regularly or separately as needed, pay for their vet bills, etc. For most Calgarians, this would be a maximum of 3. Puppy mills should be banned and enforced.
- Any more than 3 is hard to control, meaning the owner is not in full control of their pets at all times
- People should be able to have as many animals as they can reasonably care for.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- This is a number which the owner can reasonably manage.
- It completely depends on the size of the household and the owner's ability to care for the dogs.
- I don't think restrictions on the number of dogs is necessary. Someone with one poorly trained/contained dog can make far more trouble for the community than multiple well-behaved dogs. I think public education, and following up on complaints is a better way to monitor and control dog ownership
- A pet must be given very good care and exercise. Too many folks have been known to have more animals than they can take care of.
- Obviously it depends on size of house, size of dog, size of yard. Dogs are pack animals and, while they're fine on their own with humans, they thrive with other dogs. But common sense must play a part.
- Some people can't own or handle one dog. Others can easily handle 5 without issue. Not the government's job to tell somebody they can't own a lot of pets.
- 5 or more is just too many
- What's the house? What's the situation? I have no right to tell people what to do and if they have the space and inclination to keep 5+ dogs (say an acreage) that is their right.
- As long as a person is financially able to care for their dogs, and the animals are living with healthy, safe conditions and are not being nuisances to neighbours, there should be no limit.
- Too many dogs leads to unsanitary conditions, financial constraint, not enough proper time spent with each dog to ensure proper behavior training. Noise levels increase and the possibility of dangerous situations increase.
- This should not be dictated by the city.
- Dogs require a lot of attention, regular walks/exercise, proper health care and training. The more dogs you have, the more expensive all of these things are and the harder it is for an individual or family to make sure they are meeting all of these needs.
- If maintained and clean and healthy and fixed.
- as long as owners provide adequate care, enrichment, and are not bothering others, there should not be a limit
- i think depending on the size of the house and if a person is taking good care of their animals they shouldn't be punished
- Many Calgarians have a love for pets, and are involved in many sports, training, dog showing and it would be unfair to limit that choice and right. Can we limit the number of children people have?
- Proud pure bred dog fancier. Often have dogs being shown that I do not own, or puppies that will not live permanently with me. If they do not bother neighbours or cause a nuisance, are healthy and provided for, then it is nobody else's concern how many pets I own.
- Home/yard square footage and dog breed/size are important factors.
- Dogs need exercise. Two hands two dogs. Owners need to always be able to manage their dogs. Not respectful to neighbours to have a yard full of dogs next door. . . Regardless of size. multiple dogs do form a pack mentality... can be worrisome.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It depends on the owner. If you own a dog daycare or are a dog trainer then I have qualms about you owning as many dogs as you believe you can handle. If you are an average joe then I don't think it's reasonable that you have the attention to have more than 3 happy balanced dogs.
- It is my experience that the more dogs per household the less compliant the owner becomes with picking up after the dogs.
- Manageable for members of the household.
- A mature and responsible person should be capable of owning 2 dogs.
- too many dogs can bark too long and poop can accumulate in yard
- As a pro dog-walker/boarder, I know one can only have responsible control of a limited number of dogs. When you are picking up one poop, another is happening behind your back. If an aggressive dog runs into your group you cannot stop a fight. Some owners leave poop in their yards all winter!
- As a dog walker and trainer I believe that having more than 4 dogs in a home is unreasonable, more likely to be a nuisance to neighbours and unlikely that all animals would receive appropriate amounts of exercise and attention.
- I feel it is a matter of experience. Some people can easily handle owning 5+ dogs and some people can not adequately care for even one. 4 seems like a reasonable number for common pet owners, but there should be some exception made for responsible breeders who may have more than that.
- If the pets have adequate living space and are having their needs met or exceeded, there should be no problem.
- That way the dogs can have a companion, but not be too many to be a nuisance for neighbors etc
- Unfortunately my opinion is that it varies depending on household make-up and income. Responsible pet owners need to be able to afford upkeep (vet, food, groomers) and need to have enough time to give to their pets.
- Huge difference between 2 dogs in a 1000sq ft condo with neighbours on all sides vs a 3000 sq ft single family home with a large lot...
This is the issue... It should be Dog per sq ft... not just a cut and dry number.
- I think 4 is a reasonable number for people who have a few smaller dogs. Im not saying this is a limit!!!
- I feel strongly that you can be a responsible pet owner with multiple animals. People can have 1 dog and be a disrespectful pet owner "allow the dog to bark, have zero control over dog, allow cats to roam, not provide adequate care for animal"
- In the city, a household does not and cannot look after ie: clean-up after, control more than 2
- It should honestly depend on the owner. But maybe it should cost extra or have additional steps to have more than 3 dogs per household.
- As long as the animals are cared for and trained appropriately and the house is clean, the number should not matter.
- I think the more dogs in a household the less proper care and attention they get.
- Depends on a number of factors.
- Difficult to manage and train more than 2.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Give proper attention to each one.

More affordable.

- Anything beyond that cannot be properly controlled and cared for by owners.
- It really depends on the time the owner puts in. If the owner just leaves the dogs in the yard, one dog is too many. If the owner takes great care, walks the dogs etc. I can't see a reason for limiting the number
- Caring for dogs is expensive and requires a lot of responsibility. I believe that in order to own more than 3 dogs in one household, an individual must be able to provide proof of ability to maintain proper care for those animals (finances, yard space, sq ft. in-home, etc)
- Whatever someone can provide space and adequate care for. Some owners should have no more than 1 and some handle 5+ well.
- The more dogs in a household the more chance there is of noise complaints ( one dog barks and sets off the others). Also, some people aren't very good at keeping waste picked up. The more dogs, the more smell.
- I would say 4 as it is maintainable ( unless of course someone has a litter of pups that would be there for a short duration
- This depends on the individual. People who have dogs for breeding, competition, show, may exceed this number of animals while still providing adequate outlets and care. If you move to put a limit on the number there needs to be an exemption process for people who have multiple dogs for this purpose.
- I'd say 3 or 4...maybe 3 larger or 4 smaller...
- Depends on the home and the reason for all the animals and whether or not the owner/s have the capacity to care for this number of animals in a clean and healthy environment and that the animals are not neglected or suffering in any way
- barking, management
- beyond that within the city a home does not have the space to safely accommodate more than this and provide fair and proper care
- I know many bad owners that have one dog and I know many amazing owners that have 10 dogs. I don't believe limiting the number of dogs makes people better owners.
- Three is the outer limit of what most people can handle
- At 3 or more dogs there needs to be more than one owner to properly control the dogs and observe them. Also pack mentality is dangerous in off leash parks
- There is no reasonable number. I have seen terrible owners with dog and amazing owners with 8 dogs. The number of pets does NOT indicate how responsible you are.
- This should be left up to the dog owner themselves. Many people view their dogs as their children and have no intention of having human children. People are allowed to have as many kids as they want, should be the same with dogs as long as they are adhering to requirements and animals are healthy.
- More dogs often means more noise.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- While many individuals are able to understand the needs of multiple dogs, the average owner within the city does not have the physical space for the well-being of more than 2 dogs. As well there are behavioural issues that arise when several dogs live in one space that not everyone truly understands
- No restriction unless Canada agrees on a federal level. Municipalities have different household limits so it restricts people's abilities to move for jobs, family because it may result in pets being given up and that is not right. If you meet/exceed requirements for care taking it shouldn't matter.
- Dependent on type of dog and size, ability to follow the bylaw regarding caring for the animal appropriately
- a litter of puppies would go over this limit. For adult dogs 4 is more than enough
- I believe that any more than 3 dogs the owner has less control if walking them together. Also take into consideration noise and smell from the house/yard if the owner is not responsible.
- It depends on the property size. Perhaps there could be restrictions Or additional licensing placed on 4+ owners, but I wouldn't want to see hard limits, especially with foster and rescue situations
- I believe that is a fair number unless you are a breeder.
- Even two dogs being walked on the path is a nuisance. Two dogs and their owner(s) take up a lot of room. Sadly many dog owners think their dog has more rights than people. The rules that are already in place are too difficult for some. Go for a walk east of the Southland dog park and have a look
- I've seen more issues with an irresponsible owner of one dog than a responsible owner of ten. Rules should penalize issues, not numbers.
- Animals are social and should be able to have a "friend". To ensure appropriate care can be provided, to keep the community clean and to keep the community at an enjoyable noise level, two dogs should be the maximum per household.
- There is no one correct answer. A person may be incapable of caring for one dog while another person may be capable of caring for 10 dogs. This question lacks context.
- Situation specific. A bitch with 5 puppies might be very appropriate in a larger household. Same bitch with 5 puppies might be unhappy and too noisy in a tiny condo.
- the maintenance of the private property (picking up dog waste and managing urine issues) becomes overwhelming after 3 dogs. the smells and unsightliness can get out of control too easily
- Pet ownership creates excessiveness in the use of our resources. Why are we paying for "toys" coming from Asia for pets? The manufacture and transport of these super big pet stores is wasteful in my opinion. I question the food for these animals: why is good food used for pets when humans need it
- Depends on household. Size of property etc. Five pugs is different than five st.bernards. Should be dealt with on a complaint/neglect basis.
- As long as the dogs are not bothering anyone it isn't the city's business
- Its not about how many dogs you own its about how you properly care for the dogs. People can be negligent owners with one dog.
- More than 3 dogs would help limit the amount of feces that can accumulate on a property

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- We live in the city. Most people can care for and train 2 dogs. Once in awhile you can find a responsible pet owner of 3 dogs but it's not the norm
- Really depends of the size of the dog. Having an amount restriction is inane. Have how many per sq ft or based on size.
- Depends on the size of the dogs, size of the house and ability of owners to provide proper care.
- One is a companion for the other.
- This is quite a number of dogs but often there are dogs who need a home and people are willing to care for 3.
- It doesn't matter how many you have, it matters if you are taking good care of them. Also, a litter of puppies or kittens can't count.
- Depends on size of both dog and home.
- Depends on size of home, number of people living there that are able to manage the dogs (responsible-maybe older teen and up, able to arrange proper healthcare/training/exercise/picking up after), maybe no more than "responsible member + 1", so a lone adult could own 2 dogs for example.
- City 3-
Depends on lot size, noise and control of pets
- This totally depends on responsible ownership.
- Some dogs are bonded pairs, some dogs like having a friend or two.
- Depends on the size, breed and ability to control the animals
- It depends on the household, # of people in the home, #of other pets, responsibility of the owners,
- I don't feel a limit should be implemented as many I individuals have multiple dogs in their household and make sure they are well cared for exercised, trained and non disruptive to neighbours.
- Unless someone is specifically trained to breed, train, groom or otherwise care for dogs, more than two dogs leads to dogs that are poorly cared for.
- All dogs require and thrive on individual personal interactions with their owner(s). I can't imagine a situation where there are four or more dogs in one household where each dog would get the individual personal interactions needed.
- Most people don't have the time needed to properly train or care for one dog.
I think as you pass three - unless you're breeding or running a dog daycare and they're literally your business - it just becomes to much for a responsible owner.
- As long as their animals are being cared for properly and not neglected or abused, it's up to an individual to decide how many pets they have in their household.
- Not your business how many dogs someone has as long as they are being cared for.
- As long as people can feed and maintain and clean up after the pet then this shall not be an issue
- Dogs can be a lot of work, money time. They also need adequate space and enough attention/training.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There shouldn't be a limit - it's a question of whether the owner is responsible. You can have ten dogs live with a great owner and not even know they are there, versus have one bad owner with one dog that causes a lot of problems. Hoarding does not qualify as responsible pet ownership.
- "household" is a vague term. Also one must consider the size and requirements of the dogs and the capacity of the individual owners.
- I haven't given much thought to this question, but I know I wouldn't ever want more than 2 in my own house.
- I think 1 would be lonely - 2 is fair to the animal. More than 2 would be hard for most people to manage and you rarely see people walking more than 2 dogs. We know there are many households with more than 2 dogs so that means they do not get proper exercise and therefore proper care.
- I think a responsible owner can have multiple animals that are well cared for and trained and there should be no restrictions.
- There should not be a limit. Hoarders will find a way around the law, and limiting pet ownership only faults responsible owners/breeders
- I think the owner should be allowed to make that decision themselves ONCE they can support the animals by vets costs, neutering/spaying etc.
- 3 can be reasonable with proper management and dedication. More than 3 is not reasonable for most households. Too large of a pack.
- It really depends on how large the household is and how well the dogs are being cared for. If one dog is not being well cared for, then that may be too much for the household. Other people may have the time and resources to care for 5+ dogs in their household.
- If you are a RESPONSIBLE pet owner, that means you provide your animals with appropriate exercise and mental stimulation and you ensure they are not a bother to neighbours ( excessive barking etc) There are sadly few truly responsible dog owners in Calgary. Most are very entitled.
- There should not be restrictions on the number of dogs, but harsh penalties and ownership bans for people who mistreat their animals, regardless of numbers.
- If the people can care for multiple animals including healthcare there should be no limit.
- AS LONG AS THEY ARE BEING TAKEN CARE OF PROBABLY AND NOT BOTHERING THE NEIGHBOURS. AS IT DOES NOT MATTER IF THERE IS 1 DOG OR MANY. IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE PET OWNER TO CARE AND LOOK AFTER THEM AND TO KEEP THEM UNDER CONTROL WHICH INCLUDES BARKING AT ALL HOURS.
- The reasonable number depends on the size of the house and household. No more than 2 dogs per adult.
- Some dog owners like to have a friend for their dog and so 2 dogs is appropriate. But there will be times where one dog is possibly aging or sick and so the family might want to bring on a third dog to help with the loss of the aging/sick dog. Or you have dogs merging from blended families.
- 1 or 2 is normal, 3 is a lot but also not weird, 4 starts to feel like a lot.
- There is no reasonable number. What is more important is are their needs taken care of (medical, physical, social, nutritional), and are they infringing on anyone else's rights or laws (barking etc).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I believe the limit should be subjective, based on financial viability, and potential for noise complaints (attaches homes, condos, apartments)
- I would have preferred zero as an option. I don't support keeping pets in urban environments.
- Any number as long as proper care is provided, there is adequate control of noise during quiet hours per noise bylaw and waste managed on a regular basis.
- It all depends on each individual case. Hoarding is not a good choice.
- Dogs are high maintenance and to properly own then requires time and effort. Too many makes this difficult.
- Absolutely dependent on whether the dogs are foster, rescue, etc. I am fine with having an individual limit on dog ownership, however some cases of high ownership are dogs unadoptable through normal methods, medical cases, fosters etc, which require living in multidog households.
- Size, breed and temperment are a big factor in this - the number is reflective only in the ability of the owner to control & keep them from being a nuisance to their neighbours.
- People have various needs and ability to care for pets. I don't want to see this restricted unnecessarily. I train dogs, compete in dog sports, buy dogs from responsible, ethical breeders that maintain the integrity of what a dog is. There are times when a person can reasonably have more than 5 dogs
- People should not be restricted from having as many dogs as they can provide excellent care to. This can vary by the household and so shouldn't be regulated by the government.
- I feel like more than this is a bit much, especially with the sizing of houses in Calgary. More than that, depending on the type of dog, could be too much to handle and control.
- the more the dogs, the less likely the owner will be able to control all in a public setting. At home, the amount of feces quickly accumulates with more dogs and quickly makes it unpleasant for neighbours.
- It depends on the house for size of the house, yard etc. An apartment vs a mansion, the size of the animal should be considered as well as the area in the home designated to the animal(s)
- Being able to properly exercise and care for more than 2 dogs is challenging, especially for those who have busy lives. It is unfair to the dogs themselves if their owner is unable to give them enough attention.
- The correct amount of dogs per household varies. Some people should not be permitted dogs and others could have a kennels worth of dogs. The amounts base on the size and breed of the dogs and how much training or experience the handler/owner has.
- As long as the animals are healthy and happy, it isn't the business of anyone.
- Most people can't seem to care for or train one dog it seems, so more would amplify the issue. Walking more than one dog seems to provide opportunity for hazard. I also think large dogs should not be kept in small apartments or condos.
- 3 is a lot, but as long as animal guardians can manage their animals and control their behaviour i'm ok with 3.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- One is usually good, two is OK too. More is harder to control though if they are well trained more is OK. Most people don't train well though. I don't think the LIMIT should be two, just a good number. The limit should be how many you can responsibly take care of.
- I would think four is plenty, Calgary yards aren't very large and houses are located close together. could be bothersome for close neighbors.
- Why would someone need more than 3 dogs. Not many people are responsible pet owners to begin with and the more dogs you have the more difficult it would be to care for them all properly
- I think it depends on how many people are in the household to care for these animals AND the property size. If its a family of 4 with teenage children living in a large home, they can easily care for 4 dogs at a rate of 1 per person. If its 4 dogs living in a small apartment with 1 person, no.
- More dogs generally equates to more noise. Any friends that live next to multiple dog households always complain about the noise.
- The number is irrelevant as long as they are being adequately cared for
- it all depends on the area of the house and the availability of back yard space.
- Depends on the household. Some people should have zero dogs, because they're terrible pet owners. Good owners can have as many as they can competently care for. Who cares?
- As long as dogs are properly cared for, including vet care, exercise, waste pickup, there should be no limit. Some people make care better for 5 dogs than others take care of one.
- As long as each dog is being cared for, fed, safely contained/controlled and socialized properly, there should not be a limit on dogs in a household.
- Generally, there are two adults per household, and discipline for two dogs can be handled by two adults.
- Bylaws shouldn't limit how much property a citizen owns. Currently bylaws and the Animal Protection act should be enforced to limit unreasonable amounts of animals
- More than 3 is unnecessary, and you probably can't care for them properly. Even growing up on a farm where dogs were work animals, we never had more than 4.
- One for each hand. Countless people with too many to handle on walks
- Any more than 2 starts to feel excessive and unnecessary.
- Number of dogs depends on size of the dog and the size of the home and yard
- Basing on average house size. Should be dependent on space available to ensure humane conditions.
- One dog is more than enough for most households.
- Company for each other
- Many people are well able to manage their multiple dogs. Many people cannot even manage 1 dog. It is not the dog number that is the problem rather it is irresponsible people who cause the problem. Don't blame the responsible dog owner
- Doesn't matter how many dogs its how responsible the owner is.
- This depends on dog size and whether or not the owner can afford to care for multiple dogs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I believe that a good dog owner could successfully run a household with up to four dogs; however there should be guidelines for dog behaviour. If someone had four poorly behaved dogs and get reported multiple times, they should receive a mandate to improve pet behaviour or have pets removed.
- More than two is difficult to manage and I would question how well the animals are being cared for.
- There are people who are irresponsible having one dog, yet many who have multiple dogs who are wonderful caregivers or foster parents. The number of dogs should not be restricted, punishing good, responsible owners who are honest about their animals is not the way to address the underlying issues.
- This is dependent on the type of dwelling. Most apartments should be maximum 2.
I would also say it depends on the family. 2 per adult seems reasonable.
- I think 4 is a lot of dogs personally, but manageable if you are really dedicated. It's really hard to walk 4 dogs alone, but could be managed with a partner
- Two is reasonable for a person to keep under control, pick up their feces, and can keep each other company.
- I think 4 is a reasonable number
- Owners of pets need to be able to properly take care of them. Though I feel 2 is reasonable, I guess it depends on the owner. We cannot say folks can only have 2 kids per family?
- 3 dogs permanently at a home would be the max, given barking, poop cleanup etc.
- I only have one dog currently but believe a person can handle 2 dogs. If there are more than 3 dogs, most people cannot properly monitor each dog and ensure it get the correct amount of exercise and mental stimulation.
- The existing by-law works if licensing is enforced. Putting a limit on numbers does not. Enforce the licensing and the numbers will take care of themselves
- If a household can properly care for the dogs and follow the bylaws then there should not be any restriction.
- Dogs need to be walked, and I don't believe that an individual can safely and responsibly walk more than two dogs at a time.
- unless you are a licensed dog breeder I do not see that you need more than two dogs. a male and a female. It is difficult to control more than two leashed dogs on a walk
- Dogs are social animals and do well in packs. I think 3 is reasonable for an average sized household.
- I don't think there should be a limitation on pets in a household. The limitation should be whether the pets are well taken care of (e.g. whether vet care provided for all animals), and that they don't constitute a nuisance or hazard.
- I think if you have the space, money, patients and ability to handle more than a few dogs at once, you should be able to take on As much as you feel is reasonable and not in anyway abusive, neglecting or hoarding behaviours
- Depends on the owner and what they are set up to handle.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- manageable number where you can still track of training an allot quality time
- Dogs require lots of work and attention. If an owner has too many dogs, they can't adequately provide for all mental and emotional needs. While every home is different in time and skill, I believe 5+ dogs are too many for one household, and a limit of three per person is reasonable.
- Some people love to have multi- dog homes but walking more than three dogs becomes too much for passing on the sidewalk safely. Dogs bark and more than three can be loud, even if they don't bark often, and people should live on an acreage if they need more dogs.
- Just a guess. Some companionship for pet.
- Depending on the amount of people living there four is manageable if they have enough property and enough time to devote to their care
- I think there should be consideration for environment dogs are in and breed. I know of a calgary breeder who has 6 Bernese Mountain Dogs, 1 Bloodhound and 7 cats in a duplex. However if an owner can provide all necessities, clean environment & lives in a larger property then more should be permitted
- Anything more and the welfare of the animals inside the house can be concerning
- My issue at dog parks is not with responsible pet owners, it is with people employed as "dog walkers" that often have 5 or more pets with them. When they have this many, it is difficult to keep them all accounted for and ensure that all feces is picked up.
- I think that if a person has more than 4 dogs they should have to prove they can adequately care for all dogs before being able to get any additional dogs. There are plenty of reasonable owners with lots of dogs, and irresponsible owners with one dog.
- Depends on the household and the person. In a big house with an owner who is good at handling dogs, have 10 great danes, what do I care?
- Depending on size and owner. More if smaller, less if bigger dogs. Owner must be in full control of multiple dogs
- Responsible pet owners can have a large number of well cared for animals. It's not about the number it's about the capacity of the owner, even 1 is too much for some people
- I have 3 already!
- Depends on the owners and their dogs. Some can have one done 5+.
- Pets require care and unless breeding, 2 dogs per person is a reasonable number to love and care for
- As long as the dogs are cared for there shouldn't be a limit
- Any number is fine if they are cared for, trained and well behaved.
- Over 2 makes me think of a pack. Also barking concerns.
- Unless you're a superstar dog trainer, 3 is reasonable to keep under control. Also, vet costs. You should only have the number of pets you can afford.
- As a dog owner I don't think city yards are big enough for more than 2 dogs. I also don't think people can properly take care of more than 2 dogs (daily walks, training, etc). The only exception should be SHORT TERM fostering situations, where 1 dog is fostered for no longer than 3 weeks.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depending on breed and size
- It depends on size of yard, experience with animals, level of care provided, including licensing, vet care, spay/neutered, etc
- I have marked three but there are many of my friends that have more than that and their dogs are very well cared for. I also know many that have ONE and the dogs are not mentally stimulated/exercised. So really it's not the "reasonable number" as it is properly exercising/mentally stimulating
- No need to restrict pet ownership as long as the owner is properly caring for their animals
- anymore than this and the animals will begin to display pack behaviour.
- It depends a lot on the individual owner. I know trainers that have many dogs and it's ok. I know some people that have a single dog and probably should have no dogs. This isn't black and white.
- The number is not important. Care and training of the dogs is more important
- There is a fine line between having a lot dogs and hoarding. However if someone is fostering and it is short term then having more than 4. Should be fine
- Basing this on average household size.
- Too much poop yards too much barking
- Kinda a one per adult idea.
- I see some people put in 8 dogs in the off leash park and then sit on there phone and do not keep track or clean up after their pets. 2 is plenty unless you can prove that you are more than capable of taking care or more. Example breeders or some trainers here (have 4 superdogs), but should be 2.
- We had three well trained dogs and they were no problem to anyone.
- Depends on the situation and level of care by the individual
- Animals are not property, a household must be able to at all times meet the needs of the animal. Both financially and socially.
- I don't like the idea of restricting the number of dogs per household, it discourages pet adoption for experienced and responsible owners.
- Everyone has their own limit to which they can be a responsible pet owner. For some, zero is too many. For others, the limit is excessively higher (10, 12, 15+). The onus should be on the dog owner to decide; with a supporting role from bi-law enforcement, managing the less-than responsible owner
- Depends on the situation. 5 Great Danes is not as reasonable as 5 chihuahuas.
- Maybe a better question is to ask how many kids in a family is reasonable. If the dogs are cared for, being trained and active, why should I care?
- It should depend on breed/size. I really couldn't care less if someone owned five pugs.
- I think 2 is manageable for someone to walk. More than that is hard to manage and hard to watch behaviour at off leash and be vigilant about picking up the dogs poo.
- This is difficult to answer, some people can manage many dogs and others can barely manage one
- I loved having 6 dogs when we rescued and I know some people with 10 dogs who are well cared for and responsible.. i love that Calgary doesnt have a limit even though I only have 3 now.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs need exercise and more than 2 becomes a chore for a lot of people so they leave them in the yard to bark and annoy neighbors.
- That is not a simple question. Depends on the size and the behaviour of the animals. Some large animals can be wonderful house pets and some small dogs horrible. Breeders do have more animals as the puppies come and go. Must be healthy and safe.
- I personally don't feel like there should be a rule on how many dogs to a household. HOWEVER, if a household has more than 3 dogs they need to be able to provide proof that all dogs are taken care of properly, up to date on shots, fixed, and all dogs are well behaved; or are in training.
- I would worry that with more than three it would be hard to provide all the mental and physical stimulation the dogs need and deserve.
- Three is enough and more will certainly shift to pack mentality
- Hard to make a restriction... some folks do great with 6 Yorkies but not so great with 2 Great Danes. I'd probably cap it at 6 to discourage puppy mills.
- I have 4 dogs
- In the city I do not think there is sufficient space in a residential space for more than 3 dogs. There are too many people that have more than that and they are not properly cared for and yards are not properly maintained therefore causing odors in the neighborhood
- 2 seems like a good manageable number of dogs.
- I think it depends on the number of people, the yard space, and the size of the house.
- Responsible pet owners can manage multiple dogs. Dogs are pack animals and limiting never works to address hoarding issues. Focus on mental health to prevent hoarding.
- I think it is entirely on a case by case basis. Someone with a large house with lots of land can accommodate as many animals as healthy.
- The dogs can keep each other company and one person can handle two well trained dogs. Also, more dogs could work depending on size and training level.
- More than 2 is too hard to keep under control.
- Depends on number of people to care for and train dogs, expertise and time available.
- Depends on how responsible the owner is.
- Depends on house size, size of dogs.
- It depends on the owner and as well the goodness of fit of the owner and dog breed. Many people pick the wrong breed for their lifestyle. If it's a good fit, three or four dogs isn't an issue.
- If all dogs are cared for, under control and not negatively affecting the neighbours, number of dogs should not be limited
- Depends on the household and the living conditions of the animals. If space permits, multiple dogs is fine
- Dont need an army.
- The city should not dictate what is a reasonable number. 1 dog can be as disruptive as 10. Proper care is the most important thing.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on the household and the dogs. A big house could have more but a one bedroom condo can't have a lot. There's no one answer to that question.
- It's hard to say as some homes are big enough for 1 and others for 5.
- Allows for owners to give proper attention to each dog.
- It makes no difference to me.
Be a responsible owner
- Two dogs are enough for any family. If they want more they should have to fill out an application and pay an extra fee.
- No one needs more than two
- I believe this number is the maximum that you can have while being able to provide a clean, healthy environment with appropriate medical care for each dog
- as long as they are well cared for, and happy, and relatively well behaved, i don't see why its anyone elses business. people can have as many kids as they want or can reasonably take care of. why is this any different?
- I have 3 well behaved dogs that interact well with others .
- Exception should be only for registered breeders and or fosters for dog rescues
- Depends. For breeders needs to be some allowance for more.
- With houses being so close together and yards so small there is no need for more than one.
- Dogs require their owners to have enough time to give them individual enrichment (i.e walks), and the financial means to provide veterinary care to all of them. Depending on how may people are in the house, more than this is cost and time prohibitive.
- Related to physical house size and number of people per household.
- 1-3 allows for the owner to have control. Anymore and it feels as though an owner would not be able to control be dogs when necessary.
- Fewer dogs are more likely to have all their needs met just for economical reasons. One is not always the best or healthiest choice for the animal(s). Most do better with a canine companion and that brings the bonus of two dogs having been homed with it.
- A household should be able to focus full attention on each dog. If they are not, they should not have so many dogs. 3 is a reasonable number but the real number depends on the willingness of the owner to focus their attention on the dogs as individuals.
- Too many and people won't be able to keep track of their care. Good to have more than one so the dog can have a companion and be better socialized.
- Given the average nuclear family (4.5 people) it seems reasonable that each person should be responsible enough to care for an animal. Families like this would bond with their animals and each other, thus strengthening their ties as a family unit.
- Regulating household pets numbers does not inhibit hoarding tendencies.
People who neglect or abuse animals will do it regardless of numbers and some of the best pet owners I know have multiple pet homes.
- If the owner is responsible it would not matter how many. I'd say 6 to 7 limit.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 2 large size dogs, maybe 3 if smaller. Two large dogs is even a lot for some breeds. When on a walk must be able to control them. I know with a strong breed one could take off and be stronger than owner, let alone several more. Also consider dogs wellbeing. People with too many cannot afford that.
- Any amount given it's not disturbing other property owners, and the animals in question are not at risk.
- As a dog care professional, I know it takes a lot of work to be able to control and maintain control of more than 2 dogs. Without them becoming their own pack.
- It's usually one person taking the dog out for a walk and they only have two hands.
- Depending on what a household is considered, if you have reasonable space, and are respectful to community members, neighbours, and not neglecting your dogs, 5 dogs is reasonable to me
- manageable for owners
- As I said earlier it should not be based on the number of animals it should be based on the owner. You start restricting then people will still have the pets but then won't licence them. I have 6 and my dogs live better than most humans but there are people with one that abuse and neglect
- I believe there are way too many dogs in the city. 1 is enough especially for people who reside in apartments condos or any type of condensed housing. 2 is acceptable for properties with private yards. We are in the city not on farms. Apt dwellers are putting puppy pads on balconies, it's disgusting.
- People buy dogs, then hire walkers and doggy day care because it is a status symbol rather than a family member.
- The larger the pack, the more likely that a disease will spread. Within an urban environment, there is no reason to have multiple dogs, assuming that they are not true working dogs, but rather they are companions. Four dogs reflects the avg space that could be offered to comfortably keep the dogs.
- I believe a household with more than 2 dogs might not be able to provide sufficient individual attention and mental stimulation required to give them the best life.
- As long as there are no issues created, people should be free to live as they choose. There should be a limit, but the limit should be one which maintains a healthy home environment in general. I would suggest it land somewhere around 8.
- For dogs over 50 lbs, only 4 dogs per household. Under 50 lbs = 6 dogs allowed. Any mix of small and large dogs = 5 dogs. Breeders are exceptions but they should be limited in the city to 6 large or 8 small dogs and require a business license.
- However many the owner can take care of responsibly. Must be able to feed and provide health care.
- Especially if they're big dogs, more than that's just impossible to actually control.
- Depends on the size of dog and the size of household. Six pekingese shitzus are not the same as six border collies.
- It really depends. Some people can handle multiple dogs and will take the time to train them, while others cannot handle even one dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- most people complain about vet bills and proper training fees. Some people don't think their dog is important enough for such bills. Which is not in the interest of the dog. The more dogs the higher the bills and their training and health will be neglected. Less animals can be less stress.
- One or Two is my choice. They can keep each other company if there are two.
- 1 per adult
- 2, except when breeding (1yr leeway for young dogs)
- I've only ever had one dog at a time, but in my honest opinion more than three dogs has potential to be more than many people can handle.
- It totally depends on the household. I don't think this should be regulated.
- I think if you have the room, and are walking them, and keeping your yard clean, you should be allowed, as pets need company too! I wouldn't even put a restriction, if it wasn't for the noise, and smell. It is sad that some people start hoarding animals, so restrictions are necessary.
- It really depends on the size of the household. As long as all of the pets are well cared for and spayed/neutered, I see no problem. However, I am opposed to backyard breeding due to ethical concerns.
- As long as the dogs are properly exercised, fed, and loved, you should be able to have four. This allows for each dog to have a companion
- Really depends on how big your place is and how big the dog is. And your mental health. And if your fostering or rescuing.
- There are plenty of dogs in shelters. Having an increase in number allows people who are willing to adopt more decrease the amount of dogs in shelters.
- Hard to control more than that, esp walking. Also, barking and behaviour.
- My neighbour has 8 and all I hear is them barking and her yelling. More than two animals and you can't afford pet food or vet care. Neglect happens.
- Hoarding situations are sad and difficult, but I believe they are also somewhat rare. I don't think there should be any household restrictions because I believe people are capable of properly caring for several animals at any one time. Such is the case in fostering situations with local rescues.
- Maybe one or two per person?
- beyond 4 and you should consider running a kennel
- how about the combined weight of all the dogs should not be more than the weight of the owner. not joking about this one. think about; it makes sense.
- Dogs are a lot of work and can do a lot of damage. While there are many good dog owners there are just as many if not more bad ones. Don't see the need for more than one.
- One dog can be a meaningful loving and loved member of the family. More than one means the owner(s) generally can't monitor their dogs outdoors properly and they run rampant - humping other dogs, biting and harassing my kids. It should be legal to shoot these kind of dogs.
- Difficult to take good care of many dogs and to have a good handle on their behaviour. Although this number is flexible - more responsible owners could have more if they show obedience school training.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It depends on the breed and the household, if dogs are well behaved and the owner is responsible why should there be a maximum, we don't tell people they can only have x number of children
- Walking more than two dogs is awkward and potentially dangerous. Also, health care is expensive and few people can afford to care for a lot of dogs properly.
- 4 dogs are enough to keep under control
- This would be maximum! I have 2 very senior dogs who will not be with us much longer. I have opportunity to adopt new pup. I won't, but I could see this as a case for 3rd dog in someone's home, or when family volunteers as foster for homeless pets.
- Seems a reasonable number.
- Having multiple dogs can be a gratifying household, however, in my opinion >3 would be hard to continue to be a responsible owner. I also think there should be exceptions to allow more dogs for breeders.
- I feel like I am a responsible pet owner with one dog, and I can't imagine how difficult it would be to take care of more than two, REGARDLESS of size.
- There is a large variance in the size and ease of handling for dogs; it is difficult to write one law that covers all cases.
- If people want more, move to an acreage.
- Most people have on average 2 dogs. Having 3 allowed in a house accommodate fostering of dogs which helps Calgary's shelter system pressures. When you get over 3 dogs, then there is the question of illegal backyard breeding and puppy milling.
- I believe if anyone would like to have more than two dogs in the city then they should have to apply. The type of dog and the size of yard should be considered.
- I really don't know. Whatever would be respectful to your surrounding neighbors, and if the animals are taken care of properly.
- Calgarians who choose to foster dogs or breed dogs need to be accommodated.
- this depends on the size of dog but generally for a mid sized dog, unless you are diligent, folks just toss the animal out back and the neighbour is stuck listening to the constant barking, the mess and over all disruption of poorly maintained dogs and property.
- depends on the size of the breed how much room the household has outside space etc.
- +4 dogs generally develop a "pack" mentality. Regardless of training, this will lead to excessive barking, guarding, etc.
- The number of dogs one person can monitor and handle on their own (on leash). Or two dogs per adult.
- Ownership includes proper health, training, feeding, clean-up and companionship to foster a great relationship with your animals...more than two dogs may put a strain on your ability to enjoy your pets.
- It depends on the household, the size of the dogs, how they are cared for...
- You can not possibly monitor any more than 3 dogs at a time whether at the off leash area or on leash.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- One per human; varies on household size.
- Dogs are pack animals so they like company. But no single human should care for more than two dogs at a time. They deserve the love and attention of their owners, it's hard to control more than two dogs when out on or off leash, and a bigger pack means more barking and noise for neighbours.
- Doesn't matter how many dogs as long as they're walked, well exercised, fed and loved
- Often 2 adults in a household, pets often like a pet companion.
- 3 dogs is enough responsibility for one owner.
- - as an owner of a 76 pound Lab cross, I find one dog more than enough for the household; however, I recognize others have their own opinions. That said, I definitely feel there should be a hard upper number of allowed pets in a household to try and minimize the occurrence of huge numbers of pets
- Noise- barking, owners not picking up after dog in own backyard is not enforceable but accumulates and smells
- This 100% depends on so many different factors. There shouldn't be a limit. I know irresponsible people who have one dog and shouldn't and I know someone with five and they have the best life ever. No. As long as they are licensed, there shouldn't be a limit.
- Noise levels increase with the number of dogs someone has and often one dog will get the rest excited and barking. Waste levels also go up and people aren't the best at cleaning up after their dogs as it is.
- I believe 2 or 3 dogs is reasonable as long as they are taken care of properly and get along with each other because they have each other to play with and interact with therefore making them easier to get along with other dogs.
- Same number of dogs per adults in the household to keep control
- You need to be able to control, recall, keep an eye on, and clean up after your dogs. More than 2 becomes hard for 1 person to manage. Also more than 2 dogs creates a pack mentality that can become an issue
- Depends on how responsible an owner is
- People that live in the City need to considerate of others especially neighbors. Most people do not know how to properly train their dogs therefore barking and other issues arise. People tend to get lazy with their pets as they get older.
- I would base this mainly on the basis that unless they are small dogs it is borderline unethical to have more than 3 dogs in Calgary's small housing/small lot sizes.
- That's about all the poop I would want to scoop!
- It's not really about a number but rather the level of care that's needed to take care of them.
- It depends on the dogs' behaviours. I have neighbours with only 1 dog in their household who make a lot more noise than households with multiple dogs.
- Max number of dogs per area, not household. Higher density areas would have way too many dogs if each household were to have multiple dogs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I feel that 5 should be the maximum. Dogs are a huge amount of work and I don't believe that anyone who has more than 6 dogs is able to provide adequate care. I do know several people with 5 or less dogs who provide outstanding care.
- It depends on the household, care given, the amount of space they have (you would not want 2 dogs in a condo for example as there is no space)
- Any number more than 2 means they don't get the proper attention and care. It's also poor environmental choice
- I think it is hard to have a firm number - as long as dogs are receiving sufficient physical and emotional care, and have sufficient space, then people can have as many dogs as they like.
- More than 2 risks noise, smell impact for others
- Personally I have 2 dogs and I guess it really depends on what size the dogs are and what size your home is. I know a lot of folks with more than one dog and they are extremely responsible and have a very fine household
- It is expensive to care for more animals through their whole life. Little or large more animals become harder to control and monitor.
- Between 1-3. 3 is a lot to handle. Over 3 and you start losing focus on your dogs which means less training, less attention, more dogs running away etc.
- It depends on the person and the dogs and where they are. I don't want to limit someone without knowing the situation.
- However many dogs the owner can take proper care of.
- The number depends not on the house hold but on the available space. Having 5 dogs in an apartment doesn't make sense, but in a single detached home with a large yard no issue. As long as the dogs are under control and not a disturbance why have a numerical limit?
- I would say 1 if dogs didn't enjoy companions so much.
- It's good for dogs to have other dogs in a household, but if there are more than a few, it can be difficult for the owner to ensure their yard is kept clean, dogs are controlled and to ensure barking isn't an issue for neighbours.
- It is not the number of dogs that a household may have but the owners that cause neglect. Someone with only 1 dog can have a disruptive or neglected animal where as someone with 4 or 5 can have healthy, happy and friendly animals.
- It completely depends on the sizes, temperaments, and behaviour of the individual dogs, as well as how much physical space is available in the household, as well as the owners' ability to provide adequately for their husbandry, medical needs, mental enrichment needs, and physical exercise needs.
- The reasonable number of dogs is the reasonable number that can be appropriately cared for in a home environment. If the home owner has the funds and time to see the animals properly fed, housed, vetted and socialized.
- Personal choice
- 3 adult dogs unless they are puppies of a registered breeder - This allows owner to plan for having a mix of dogs ages, on young dog, on middle age, one elderly dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Size of lot and size of dogs is a factor but if someone has a lot of time to give their dogs this changes my opinion. If someone has the time, $ and space for more dogs they may be a better more responsible owner than a person that only has 1 dog and doesn't properly care for it
- The amount of dogs depends on the size of the household (how many people in the house), the type of household (apartment vs large property), size of dog. I have had three dogs in the past, and dogsit 5 at once, and 3 was the maximum manageable amount for one person.
- Any more than one and they start barking at each other.
- Excellent and responsible dog owners should be allowed to have 5 (or more) dogs. I see no issue if they are altered, healthy, licensed and looked after.
- City shouldn't be limited citizens on what they do on their own property if there aren't societal impacts. 10 small dogs on a large property that don't bark should be allowed. 1 dog that causes issues shouldn't be allowed.
- Potential for barking and poop control is better with limited numbers. I lived beside an owner who did not pick up poop from ONE small dog in his backyard and the odour was considerable.
- I'm a very responsible pet owner and couldn't imagine the chaos of owning more than 4.
- depends on the size of the animal, the size of the house and the size of the backyard and the care provided by the owner/s
- More than 4 dogs results in a nuisance level regarding noise for other citizens, and it's imperative that the city curtail hoarding behaviours of some owners for the safety and welfare of the animals.
- 1 dog ideally is best for most households. More than 1 dog things become challenging to walk the dog properly ensure barking is kept to a limit. Dogs are pack animals so more than 1 then things can get out of control, behaviour escalates
- This is not an appropriate question. I think there shouldn't be a limit, but people should have a special license or people who have more than 4 animals. The license will need to ensure animal welfare and monitor for backyard breeders and puppy mills.
- Zero was not given an option here.
- For urban areas, too many dogs are bothersome to those around them if they are not well behaved. Cost to keep too many dogs and train them is high.
- Please explain to me why I need to explain my choice.
- I chose two but it really depends on the person and the type of house they have. My vet has 21 pets and is able to provide them with proper care and attention. I have one dog and am able to provide her with proper care and attention, but one is enough for me.
- Anything more than this is getting excessive, especially if they're big dogs as having adequate space for them to go outside/play is hard when there are so many, as well as waste disposal.
- There is a point where taking care of animals is off set by the individual amount of animals
- Dogs are like toddlers. Having 3 kids between the age of 1 and 4 keeps you very busy.
- The number of dogs depends on the size of the house and yard. Two dogs may keep each other company.
- If you need another for your existing dog ie to transition ok but beyond that it seems like a lot to me

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As long as they are well-cared for and well-behaved I don't care how many dogs you have, but I'm hard pressed to believe that one household can give more than 3 dogs the exercise they need. But if you can, go for it. Get all the dogs!
- If you have ability to care and you know what to do to care for those dogs you should be able to have more plus it would allow for the ability to foster dogs that need foster parents before permanent family is found for the dogs
- Dogs can develop out of control pack behaviour.
- In order to handle the workload from owning a dog.
- Live next to a home with 4 to 5 dogs at any given time. Four adult owners cannot control what has turned into a 'pack' of dogs.
- Dogs become very stressed and noisy when they're cramped. Also it produces a lot of waste for others to smell.
- One dog per 18+ person in the household (responsible handling)
- Dogs like companionship - but anymore than 2 is a kennel, not a home.
- Dogs left alone all day may do better with a companion. More than 2 dogs and I believe people have difficulty keeping them under control out walking.
- Generally speaking 3 should be a max but this is dependent on breed, house/yard size, pet behaviour or if the owner is in a special circumstance which allows them to have more ie a professional dog trainer.
- It depends on the household
- It depends on the size of the household and economic status. There is no one size fits all number of animals that should be allowed. If you have the space and means to keep many dogs, it should be your choice.
- they are always hanging around outside on other peoples property
- We like to see dogs rescued and so sometimes having more than one or two dogs is reasonable. To have too many can encourage more barking and smells from poo and pee harder to maintain. Even three is pushing it.
- There needs to be a limit on the number of animals permitted in each household. Too often do people have excessive numbers of animals (e.g., 30+ dogs) and the welfare of those suffers. We need a limit on the number of animals for their safety. This will also help identify hoarders.
- A reasonable number of dogs would be 1 per adult in the household, as they need to be able to walk the dog on a daily basis and have the time and resources to give the animal the attention they require.
- We do not live in a nanny state. If an owner can responsibly care for multiple dogs, it should be their prerogative. If they fail to responsibly care for multiple dogs, the penalties should be significant including the potential seizure of the animals.
- Two dogs are companions to each other. There is less barking then when there is only one dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It is hard to set an absolute limit, as it depends on the size of household, amount of time the household has to care for the dogs, etc. However, it is possible for people to be responsible owners of several dogs.
- 4 seems excessive for the average home, especially if they are large. Imagine if they were all barking outdoors at once
- Not a fan of urban dog ownership. People don't have the time to adequately care for more than one. I find most owners in my area simply let their dog out in their yard as opposed to exercising them. As a result dogs in my area are always barking at each other all hours of the day.
- Depends on the dog breed, number of responsible members of household.
- More than 3 requires a lot of cleaning, walking and vet care. More than that will likely cause issues with health and cleanliness. That said, that is a notion, and not based on research. What does the research say in terms of impact on dog or human or public health? That is the real concern.
- I can't really answer this as it varies so much. My husband and I (no kids) have three dogs. We are very much able to keep them happy, vetted, etc. If we were a blended family with inlaws/kids living with us, I feel that more dogs wouldn't necessarily be obscene.
- It really depends on size, space and breed. I've never had more than 3 at any given time and found that a reasonable number to care for and walk safely.
- Large dogs - 2 per household; this is a number that might conceivably be under control by one person when on leash. Small dogs - 3, for the same reason. Also dependent on owner's financial ability to maintain them properly, e.g. provide food, sanitation and regular and incidental vet care.
- This is three dogs licensed to a single home. The more dogs in a home, the more the dogs seem to bark. Also, I think that our lot sizes really cannot handle more than three dogs.
- Unless specific cases where support animals are needed I don't think it is reasonable expected that a family can care for more than 3 dogs at once.
- A single, competent adult should be able to adequately care for up to 3 well trained dogs at any given time.
- Many foster dogs, or breed puppies, or take in older dogs from shelters. As long as they have the proper room go for it.
- It depends upon the size of the house/yard, and the size of the dogs. Two Great Danes take up more space and resources (and require more space for a healthy life) than three Basset Hounds.
- Should be none of the city's business unless there is a care issue.
- It depends on how many adults are in the family, in a household with one adult, 3 dogs is more than enough. However, 2 or more adults are responsible for the animals, it's ok to have 5 or more dogs. It also depends on the size of the dog and the family income.
- don't judge everyone the same. Some people own 1 dog, others more. Everyone different. Dogs are fed, taken care of, vaccination/rabies, see vet when sick, no restriction. Start restricting #s, you will be creating a huge problem you will have to deal with. people will dump, you will be culprit
- That is hard to say....small dogs vs large dogs, attention of owners to exercise, ability to properly feed, ability to keep property clean etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- You only have 2 hands, one hand for one leash. Dogs do well in pairs.
- It's none of your business how many dogs I have
- we do not need near-packs in households with noise and sanitation problems.
- Any more than 3 would just be pure chaos. Your neighbours start to hate you for the amount of noise and dog poop in your yard (especially in the spring)
- I have 3 large dogs, 2 of them are working dogs and getting older. It was out Vet's advice to introduce a puppy to help with playing and exercise for the 2 older ones. If you can afford your pets food, shelter & welfare, keep them trained (friendly) & respect noise bylaws there should be no problem
- Space, reasonably manageable by 1 or more people, quality of care that is able to be provided, reduced improper breeding
- I have had three dogs at one time and that really is all one person can handle. Even if there is more than one person in the household, there may be a time when only one person is looking after all of the dogs.
- This does not apply to responsible/registered breeders
- My preference is one dog per household, but realize that some dogs do better with a companion and that owners might have an old dog and want to bring in a younger dog. I also wonder if breeders need a permit to operate in the city.
- you can easily walk 2 dogs on your own or with family members. They are a pack animal so 2 is good. At most 3 if they are smaller dogs I guess
- More can cause lapse in training from owners
- I don't think one blanket number can be applied because dogs and households vary in size
- I believe much more than that they are harder to keep and eye out to make sure they are behaving and not causing problem at off leash parks . Cheaper also for vet bills, food and licensing.
- not too many, but not too few.
- I have not selected any number because I think there are too many factors involved here. I think the biggest factor is how many dogs an owner can handle/support in a way that is fair to the dogs. For some people this would be zero, for others it may be 4.
- Overcrowding stresses animals. The ability to manage health, waste, noise, odour and debris decreases as number of animals increases.
- It obviously depends on how large the home is but in a regular single family home I think 3 dogs is the max someone should have to ensure that the dogs are comfortable in the home and that they do not feel threatened or that they wont have enough food or love and attention.
- Manageable
- Unless they're well trained, more than 4 dogs tend to get out of hand
- It depends on the size of the dogs, behaviour, size of the house and capabilities of the owner. Generally, I think most detached houses in Calgary can provide a yard and adequate space for 3 dogs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on size of the dog(s) Is the owner capable of caring properly for the animals? Do they bark and is it a nuisance to neighbours?
- One dog per person in the household, plus one dog (e.g. 3 people means 4 dogs). This is to ensure that the people can provide the care and attention required for the animal.
- No more than 2 per adult.
- 2 will at least keep themselves company whilst owners are absent.
- It is reasonably easy to be in control of, and care for 3 dogs if alone, if others in the household I believe more would be acceptable as well. (other considerations as well as size of house/yard, availability of owner etc
- This is an individual choice. The City of Calgary does not get to decide this. It is the pet owner's responsibility to meet their animal's needs.
- I have 1 and have had 2. Two is a lot of work 3 I think is too much work and corners will be cut re following the rules
- Concern with animal safety after 2, as well as nuisances to neighbors
- It should be the number that can be exercised, given attention and love, and controlled by the owner(s). That can vary by household, but 2 seems like a good number. More could be handled by someone who is devoted to that goal, but that's a lifestyle choice, rather than something for everyone.
- It depends on the owner. There are currently laws that address hoarding. No need to increase municipal red tape. The city would be better off simply better enforcing current bylaws.
- But I also don't believe that I have the right to decide how many dogs people should own. If they are happy and well taken care of then it's none of my business
- I believe that 2 is reasonable and allows an owner to provide companionship for their dogs. However in some instances 4 might also be reasonable for someone with a lot of space and proper dog setup.
- I think it depends BIG time on the size and breed and Owner and their knowledge of their dog and the breed's needs.
- we have 4 , 3 are tiny and one is medium size. If you can afford to feed, water, vet visit 1/year per, medicate and license, maintain your yard space from poop I feel you can only provide a love and affection and everything fore mentioned to 4 in a 3 person house.
- Most of my neighbours don't walk their dogs, they just leave them in the back yard. They don't have the time or attention to care for more than 2 dogs.
- Unless you have a large yard two dogs is definitely a limit so many dogs living in apartments locked up all day annoying other people also dogs have taken over population of children ridiculous
- It might also depend on dog size, yard size too.
- I feel that one household should not have more than ten dogs
- This should really depend on square footage of home and yard space. 4 huskies in an apartment is animal cruelty.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I say 2 dogs if the house is in the city or suburbs. Calgary lots are not very big and you get neighbours with more than 2 dogs and the barking can be deafening. I also find dog owners don't pick up their dog's waste in the winter so come spring, the smell can be quite unbearable.
- I would have said 1, but I believe some dogs are happier and behave better with a companion.
- Depending on property size.
- Assuming 2 adults in the home - 2 adults could walk 2 dogs each. Otherwise limit of 3.
- The dogs should have companionship as well, so it should be more than one. Owner can only control so many animals at once - if an average adult can handle 3 kids, 3 dogs is about right. So there should be at least 2, and due to life expectancies, 3 allows for transitions so that dogs are not alone
- There shouldn't be a set number. It'll depend on type of housing and the experience of the owner. Condo vs acreage. Experienced handler/trainee vs first time owner
- i don't think one person wan walk more than 2 dogs, so having more than 4 in a normal household is too many.
- I believe that is up to the owner to a degree, provided the animals are cared for appropriatley
- Smells, waste, on grounds aurrounding houses. Noise, barking and disturbance in nights and afternoons.
- Dogs need attention from their owners ... becomes more difficult beyond one ...
- depends on size of home, care provided etc. you can have a great dane in an apartment if you walk them lots and provide good care. some people have one pet and are terrible owners others have 10 and no one could know.
- Any more is detrimental to the dogs and starts to create a pack effect
- I don't think a hard limit is the right way to approach the issue. For some owners, 2 animals would be too many; others could responsibly take care of a much larger number. Only in individual cases of irresponsibility should a limit be imposed.
- This is completely subjective (can the dogs handle the space they are in, some big dogs do better in small spaces e.g.having 3 great Danes in a 2br appt might actually be okay), and the owner's ability to manage (are they a certified trainer? Do they genuinely like animals? are they able to monitor)
- Only very experienced dog owners with expertise in dog training can safely and effectively train and care for more than 3 dogs in a household.
- Dogs are pack animals, they should always have a companion. Sometimes if one is elderly and sickly you need a new companion starting out for when the senior pack member passes away.
- Two dogs can provide companionship for each other when owner is away for short periods.
- Dogs make a lot of mess and many owners don't pick up after their dogs. Dog pee and poo is a major pollutant. Do your research. Other cities who have restrictions on # of dogs have way less pollution and nuisance problems. We could spend less of our tax dollars just catering to dog owners.
- I think that it benefits both animals and humans when there are a limited amount of pets in the household.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- A dog per adult in the household. My household has two adults.
- You only have 2 hands, so the maximum # of dogs you can pet at a time is two.
- More than three dogs can more easily result in dogfights at the house when two dogs are playing and another interrupts this. Even well trained dogs can get into fights, and it becomes difficult to manage more than two dogs at once in the event one is injured.
- Two dogs are the most that can be properly controlled by one adult person.
- As someone who participates in dog sports I do not feel having more animals is unreasonable. I know many highly competitive dog owners who can care for 10+ animals to a higher level than some individuals with only one animal.
- Prevents hoarding
- A large house with a large yard and responsible owners could certainly handle more than 5 dogs, depending on size and breed. It is the quality of the owners more than the quantity of dogs.
- Depending on the amount of space a person has, as long as all dogs are well cared for and the person is able to provide a safe environment I don't see an issue.
- Individuals should decide what a reasonable number of dogs is, not the city. All dogs should be raised responsibly.
- the number of dogs a person can manage is dependent on the home, yards, dog size/breed, home owner work. the number is not as important as requiring the dog receiving proper care.
- who am i to limit what a person can resonantly keep? i don't know their capacities.
- Not sure, it depends on how many people are in a home to care for them. Over 5 may be getting to be a bit much
- Shared accommodation when can be a problem with the current limit aswell as fostering, I have 2 dogs and when I want to foster I have to have mine removed to make room, maybe a foster licenses that allow for more than the limit for short times.
- Hard to look after too many dogs. Smaller dogs maybe can have more but all should be neutered so as not to cause issues and unintentional breeding.
- It's none of my business nor anyone else's.
- If the household has the room for them dogs are good in packs. As long as they are well behaved, follow the bylaws and aren't extremely noisy this shouldn't be a concern
- Barking, running loose. Annoying neighbours
- Average three - depend s on the size of dog and size of property
- depends on the size of yard and house.
- Three is a family. More than 3 is a pack. Personally I only ever want one, but i can see that a larger family with a big house could accommodate more
- I think 4 dogs should be the max for pet households as it allows them to care for and maintain healthy dogs within a reasonable amount. I believe if you want more you should have to obtain a licence from the city to do so, including breeders as sometimes puppies stay with them over the age of 3 mont
- - Beyond 3 dogs it becomes difficult to monitor dogs welfare, as well as control nuisance issues

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- behavior deteriorates with more animals in house
- Assuming it's a family of 3. You should never let the pet outnumber the people in the household. In a worse case scenario (i.e dog fighting, fire, etc), each person can grab one.
- If they are cared for properly and don't bother anyone, the number is not an issue.
- More than 3 is too many to manage and can involve a lot of barking
- 2 large dogs, may have more small dogs. Loud barking that can be heard by neighbours.
- It really depends on the family, number of people, house size and then dog breeds, their sex and age. I think this is very personal and the city should not interfere. Provided the dogs and adults have an agreeable life the city should not interfere.
- I dogsat 4 dogs once, and it was mayhem. More than that would be a literal nightmare, and I'm certain the dogs would behave terribly.
- The number should vary based on the size of the home. Apartments/condos should be limited to two to keep noise and smell down. Homes with more space should be able to have more. Really it comes down to responsible ownership.
- I don't have dogs, but this seems a reasonable and manageable amount.
- This depends on the household....how big it is...how big is the yard and if they are properly taken care of and given relief from bad weather.
- It really depends on how well cared for and trained the dogs are. Hard to put a number on this. One household could have five well behaved dogs, another could have one unruly dog. Depends on the dogs and owners.
- Properly caring for an animal is a lot of work and expense I would question how well a large group would be cared for.
- I know of a lady in Dover that has approximately 10 chihuahua's and 4 or 5 Aussie's. She only has a few licenses that she switches between certain dogs, not all dogs get walks. (She used to have 12 cats as they passed away they have been replaced by the Chihuahuas brought in from the U.S.
- more than two dogs are hard to properly control and monitor
- Whatever the owner is comfortable and safe managing. Circumstances vary a great deal. Personally I would not have more than 3.
- I don't see a need for a limit as long as all dogs are properly and humanely cared for
- This is a difficult question. I know people who have more than 5 dogs and they are more responsible than some owners with one. I believe that there should be unlimited numbers unless the owners continue to get charges. You can then use section 55 to impose limits or other conditions
- Dogs have strong affiliation with whom they believe to be in the pack. More dogs creates more opportunity/ risk. I would say 2 cats are lots as well.
- Depends on the household, size of yard and the owners ability to lead and care for their pack.
- Really my preference is zero, but I'm trying to be reasonable. However, I also feel sorry for dogs that are left alone by so-called "dog lovers" for hours and hours every day.
- I believe that one should be enough but I know others may want more and 3 seems reasonable.
- I think once owners have too many dogs, the care is sometimes compromised.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- if you have space and the ability to care for X amount of dogs why not
- I think two is reasonable, though depending on the size of the home, or the size of the dogs, that could differ.
- 2 for large, 3 for small dogs. Providing appropriate space and decreasing noise levels.
- I have had five dogs with no issues, though it is a lot of work to give them all appropriate exercise and to clean up the yard every day. Problems result from the owners, not the dogs.
- One per human.
- One dog can already be significantly disruptive to neighbours (noise, etc).
- Way too many dogs already licenced. Improper waste disposal concerns, barking when dogs are left in back yards and a general lack of by law agencies to enforce the existing bylaws for the existing number of dogs. General attitude of some dog owners that bylaws do not apply to them.
- Three's a crowd.
- I can't imagine taking good care of more myself?
- A male / female. An older dog with a younger one that will eventually replace them. Temporarily after puppies are born a household may exceed this number. Once there are more than 2 dogs they pack & become less under control & more disruptive / dangerous.
- I guess it depends on the size of the house and dogs. You cannot have 5 large dogs in a tiny rental property. Its nkt fair to the dog. But I would say the number should be more than 1 as various dogs do not do well alone
- this number should be decided on size of house and size of yard. A single dwelling should just have 2. Unless they foster animals, (which count as temporary )
- I think as long as people are able to take care of their dogs well, They should be allowed to have them in their property.
- It depends on the person. I know people where 1 dog is too much, but also know a lady who has 6 of her own and 1 foster and they're all well taken care of and happy
- More than 2 dogs are challenging to give proper attention to. When on leash, un trained owners have a hard time controlling more than 2.
- But owners need training and type of dogs. And type of building and space to run and play
- I've seen responsible pet owners with 6 dogs, and irresponsible owners with just one. The number of dogs isn't relevant, but the owner's behaviour is.
- Any more than 2 you shouldn't live in a city plus having two gives each dog a companion so they are never alone
- Whatever number the owner can adequately care for.
For me, it is 1.
- Some people support volunteer for rescuing dogs. We should not limit groups like these.
- I think that it is great to have dogs as pets but too many become a nuisance for neighbours and the public. There should be exceptions made for dog breeders and maybe a special permit for such.
- One possibly two.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 3 maximum. No need for more in a family household. Issues arise when there are too many. Barking, aggression, lack of exercise, territorial, feces amount.
- As long as the dogs are respectful- non barking the number should not matter. One is too many for some people and others can deal with numerous.
- I think that is a reasonable amount to handle, and in terms of noise and cleanup.
- This is a floating number depending on whether you are dog sitting for family and friends, or if you have a litter of puppies, or if you are fostering. It is not the number of animals as the ability to properly raise and provide appropriate behavioural expectations for your dogs.
- It gets chaotic over that amount and creates a lot of waste as well
- If someone can afford it, why restrict them to less, as long as they follow the rules for picking up after them and ensuring they don't get into fights or show inappropriate behavior
- It totally depends on how many humans are able to help care for the dogs. Also depends on the experience level of the owners. I truly don't think that there should be a legal limit imposed since circumstances can be widely variable. Economic factors need to be taken into account as well.
- People should have the right to own as many pets as they can. As long as they are properly taken care of, the number should not matter.
- It is someone's home, the city does not have a say in how many kids people can have in their homes why put limits of dogs. UNLESS there are suspicious activities that lead others to believe in mistreatment or quality of life issues. property size and dog size can effect ability to number of dogs too.
- It depends on the dog owner. Extremely skilled and knowledge dog owners can have multiple confident and well balanced dogs in a household. Some dog owners are challenged with just one (and likely are not suited to have a dog to begin with).
- A family member has 3 large dogs. It can be noisy. The upkeep of the yard is hard in the winter, so when spring comes around, it can be very smelly
- I don't think you can properly take care of more dogs
- As long as the dogs are managed and care for responsibly, the government has no right to dictate any limits on dog ownership or otherwise. We are supposed to be a free and open society, punish those who break the rules, not over-regulate the majority.
- Most people cannot reasonably care properly for more then this. Medical, behavioral and other needs cannot be met with too many animals.
- I think that people should be allowed to have as many dogs as they like, providing that they give proper care and clean up after them. Be considerate of neighbours.
- This is dependent on size of dog, size of house. But is an average
- I think for the standard household 3 dogs are reasonable. I think a lot of people may start to neglect their dogs if they own more but this is not true of all households.
- Unless you are a breeder I don't think more than 4 is necessary.
- It should be based on how the dogs behave and are trained.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on the person and situation. Dog enthusiasts often have 4-5 dogs responsibly kept. I can take better care of my four dogs than some people can their one dog. Don't limit the amount. Penalize those who are irresponsible and causing problems.
- A number I'm happy with. But could be a few more depending on space.
- After three, dominance may play a part. There's also no way of knowing if pets are being properly cared for.
- If you are a breeder of purebred dogs, and are responsible, license your dogs, provide proper nutrition and clean shelter, care including health testing that is certified with the offa.org, clean up after your dogs and respect your neighbors, the number of dogs should be your choice
- Really depends on how good the owners are. Problems could be dealt with under other parts of the bylaw without limiting people who are responsible owners of many dogs
- We are an urban area and the dogs deserve appropriate space,
- Anymore than that and you have potential of a pack. Maybe even with 3 but its easier to control 3 then 5! I couldnt imagine
- Depends on the size of the household and competency of the owners.
- Dogs require an awful lot of care, I can't see more than 2 dogs getting adequate care in a single family home
- It's tough to take care of more than 2 dogs but I think owner's should be able to have more as long as they treat them well and take care of them.
- It depends on the size of the house
- No one's business really. I have had 6+ dogs in this city for decades with zero complaints, from anyone. Responsibility is not a number of pets. Some people take better care of their numerous pets, than others can care for one child.
- Depends entirely on size of home/yard, size of dog, and experience, lifestyle and means of the owner
- I think it should be based on owner history and their experience with dog ownership. I personally would not have 5 dogs in the city but I know GREAT dog owners who can handle it. I think not everyone should be allowed - maybe a city application for any more than 3.
- If the dogs are cared for and well behaved it's not an issue
- Noise and mess. Most can't clean up with one dog.
- Some people who have dogs foster therefore may have multiple at a time
- Less barking compared to more than 1.
- I think we all can manage effectively different numbers and do not believe the numbers is the issue. I would like to see a multi-dog license option that requires us to do more training and knowledge (maybe pass a test like the CKC "Canadian Good neighbour") or have a veterinarian certificate.
- Dogs are high maintenance. Depending on the number of the people in the household, it would be hard to properly care for and attend to all dogs needs beyond 4.
- I think this depends on the person, I know some people with up to 10 dogs and they care for them like their children. I think the number of animals depends on the persons capacity to care for them.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Reasonable based on the ability for an adult to manage.
- Some people want their pet to have 'company' when they are away from the home. But, it is difficult to control even 2 dogs, let alone any more than that.
- No need to restrict people's amount of pets
- I think four is probably enough. Maybe exceptions if some are temporary foster dogs. If people clean up after them and they don't bark excessively, I don't care about numbers.
- It depends on behaviour, not number. Need allowance to foster puppies, senior animals.
- Depends on size. 3 st bernards is outrageous 3 dachshunds is reasonable. Depends on size of house and years too. What's reasonable to keep them safe and cared for too.
- As long as the household is capable of licensing, feeding and caring for all dogs in their care and they do not become a bother to neighbors around them, I dont see a reason to limit the number of dogs per household.
- Depends on the size of dog and size of household. 4 chihuahuas in a standard size house is more reasonable than 4 mastiffs in an apartment.
- It mainly depends on the size of the household and the size of the dogs. But I think no more than 3 dogs would be reasonable for a detached house.
- I feel that dogs are very costly to care for properly (food, vet care), and also take a lot of work and time. Many dogs on one property in the city could lead to excessive barking, smell from feces, and could lead to poor neighbour relations.
- Houses are different sizes as are dogs. There are already rules for maintenance of property, enforcement cost, freedom of choice. Deal with problems under existing regs rather than adding more invasive and costly regs
- I don't believe in having a limit. As long as the owner is a responsible dog owner and is able to care for the animals, keep their property clean and not disturb the neighbours why limit? One nuisance barker is worse than 5+ dogs that are well behaved.
- It's hard to walk more than two leashed dogs at once.
- In my experience, people with many dogs or cats have a hoarding mentality, and do not necessarily provide good care for the animals. A couple of dogs can provide company for each other, after that you have a pack, with associated pack behaviours. Needs experienced, strong owner and a lot of room.
- Depends on size of the animals and of the space. No apartment should have multiple large active breeds. Multiple small dogs isn't an issue unless they're constantly too loud.
- I have no opinion on this. It is the individuals choice
- I don't believe that people should be told how many dogs they can have. There are responsible folks that have multiple dogs and irresponsible folks with 1 dog. It comes down to the owner, not the number of dogs.
- All should be spayed and neutered. Owners must be able to care for all animals in their home. No puppy-millers or backyard breeders. No breeding permitted.
- 4 provides a lot of doggy love. But still manageable.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the person can afford their care and vet bills theres no reason for a limit
- It depends on the owner, the space, the purpose and size .too vague
- It needs to be bylaw officer's discretion there are households that should not have one dog that are households that have 5 plus dogs and you wouldn't know because of the care and extras that go into being the dog owners I believe an average of 3 but with approval more
- To control the amount of dog poo, barking, smell, interaction with nature.
- Depending on the size of house and size and energy levels of the dogs, and how many people are in the household to help care for the dogs. I chose 3 as a reasonable middle option but I think more would be fine in a very large house, for example.
- depends on the house. A condo two is more than enough. A house 3 seems enough. A property with land could house more. That's a tough restriction to place. Seems that it should be more based on condo rules or community rules or safety as judged by the humane society (not 20 cats ex)
- Noise!
- Depends on the owner.
- 4 is a lot
- If properly controlled
- It's all space dependent.
- That is a guideline. It depends on how big the home is, what people can afford, and if the dogs' needs can be comfortably met.
- Depends on the type of dog and the space available for the dogs.
- More dogs can cause noise and waste issues for neighbors.
- I think some people can reasonably handle more than three dogs (e.g. breeders, those who engage in dog sports or other performance-type training) and so maybe they should be able to get a permit?? But, the vast majority of people can't manage more than that without unduly impacting their neighbours.
- No reasonable to think you can control more than 2 dogs. I have seen it many times in the off leash areas I use (John Laurie's pathways); just too many dogs. Biking to work at slow speed and ringing bell: bitten twice and one crash which put me out of work for one week.
- We at one time had 4 dogs and they were always in the care of 2 adults, more dogs and less adults equals trouble
- I feel two is reasonable. Money wise and space wise in a household.
- Really depends on the size of the dogs and the size of the house and if there is access to a yard
- One person has two hands, can only properly walk two dogs at once. Houses and yard size. Healthier for the dogs.
- I don't think the city needs to impose limits. Obviously hoarder situations are a concern, but those are a rarity. The city doesn't have the right nor the ability to determine if someone can or cannot adequately care for 1 dog / cat or 10 dogs / cats.
- 3 dogs for pets, more if you are involved in breeding or showing, perhaps.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It is people choice to determine how many animals to live with. Unless the SPCA or other investigatory bodies deem they are living in squalor and need to intervene, people have the right to live as they choose.
- This is a hard question because it depends on the house size, and the care the pets are getting. Ideally though, I would say 3-4 should be the maximum, not including if you have a dog who just gave birth to puppies.
- I think it depends on the size of the dog and room available, as well as availability of owners to spend time/resources on the dogs. Every situation is different. Maybe there could be a review of a household if you have 4+ dogs to make sure they are in good care.
- Multiple dogs is a choice, so long as not a nuisance to community (noise, smells, etc). Should all be licensed.
Some people like to foster dogs as well as have some of their own.
- As many arls they can take proper care of
- As long as they are being taken care of then why does it matter, what if the amount in the house hold belong to different people
- Selection based on the ability of an owner to properly care for the dogs. I have two larger dogs myself and I walk them separately to ensure control. If I had 4 I would never walk more than 2 at once, again to ensure control.
- Number of animals is not the issue. It's the care of them. Someone can care for 6 better and with less nuisance (noise/odour) than someone with 1
- The number of dogs does not matter. It matters that they are properly cared for. One dog can be inproperly cared for.
- Dont have one
- I don't care as long as they're cared for and not a nuisance.
- It depends on the size of the dogs. But I really think there should never be more than 4 dogs in one household as they will lack the attention they deserve.
- Some people have various dogs and may foster dogs.
- As long as all the animals are provided for physically and mentally and the owners have the means physically, emotionally and financially to provide for the animals through out their life span. And as long as the animals are not a nuisance to the community the limit should be lifestyle dependent.
- It really depends on the owner and the sizes of the dogs
- Two large or small dogs are manageable but more than that, it would be up to the owner's skills.
- This is too broad. It's unreasonable to just choose a number when there are many factors that would impact this decision. How big is the home if there are five or more dogs? Five dogs in a one bedroom apartment is very different than five dogs in a 5 bedroom home with a yard.
- Most people I know own 2 pets. Companionship for a dog
- I think more than two is to many for a healthy house. If someone wants more than that, they should move to the country and have them in a barn

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It depends on the dogs.
- It depends on the size of the dog. If you have two big dogs and two small dogs then that is fair. If you have 4 big dogs then no. That's how I see it.
- I get uneasy about laws that tell us how we can live at home. I don't think anyone needs more than one dog in the city, but some people can care for more responsibly, and so I don't feel it is my business in that case. The main consideration- can they afford to care for them, and not bother neighbors
- Originally I was going to select 2, but sometimes a third is nice. However, the size of the home and yard dictates that size of your dog allowance. Don't want a Great Dane living in a 2 bedroom condo with a fake grass balcony!
- Any number that can be properly cared for.
- 1 if the bylaws are respected (maybe 2 so they have company if alone much of the day).
- I don't think there should be more than two dogs in a household inner city, unless living on an acreage or area that has enough space for more than two.
- Four seems too many.
- I've owned more than one dog at a time and although my dogs were well trained, they tend to want to listen or follow each other when there are multiple dogs, rather than the person in charge of them. If you love animals and have well trained animals, 3 is plenty. No need for more.
- We foster. At any given time we have our three dogs PLUS 1-10 limiting the number of animals I can have in my care means I can't foster.
- Really a case by case basis. If dogs have enough space to roam, are fed and cared for then 5+ could be fine.
Some people have one dog and can't manage. It really depends.
- Dog walkers are a necessary profession. They provide for people who have animals and can not get there dog or while at work. Dogs behave well in packs and dog walkers do not take dogs that don't interact well with others. A living can not be made by taking any less than 5 dogs at a time.
- Dogs are social creatures, they stay calmer with company when owners not around. Three or more are too many in an urban setting.
- If people can afford to keep that many dogs why shouldn't they? As long as they're all looked after and healthy I don't care how many people have.
- More animals means that owners are less able to control their animals appropriately
- I believe it depends on the size of the house and dogs
- Noise, pet waste, and pack behaviour would be a concern beyond four dogs. Perhaps allow more with a permit?
- As a Labrador retriever dog owner, I would say that one was enough. However for smaller dogs two might be appropriate as company for each other. The cost of vet care and the cost of living could preclude good care of more than two dogs. Barking dogs can be disruptive especially in large numbers.
- Depends on size. 3 little dogs or 2 big dogs. More than that and you cannot watch them properly

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- My Aunt owned 4 dogs at one time because she has a dog obsession and it was very obvious that the care of the dogs seemed to diminish with the more she decided to take in.
- We have 5 dogs. We have had 6. We try to keep them quiet and inside out of respect for our neighbours. We scoop at least once a day and bleach the run in the summer so it doesn't smell. We keep our dogs fenced or on leash. It's about respect, not numbers.
- Too me the number is not an issue as long as each individual has their needs met. Basic needs but also, training, exercise, enrichment.
- I believe that unless you are a dog trainer or involved in the animal world professionally most individuals do not control animals
- The number of dogs depend on space and behaviour control and manageability.
- Selected "1," as "0" was not an option. Barking, excrement, and other unavoidable issues make dog ownership problematic in many parts of the city.
- Many people are capable of owning, caring for, providing for, to an adequate and humane level, 5 or more dogs. Number of dogs in a household is not an accurate indication of their well-being, noise level, safety, concerns...
- # of dogs is irrelevant to a point. I know people with 4 dogs who are incredibly responsible pet owners. While some with one or two let their dogs run rampant. I've had 3 dogs, successfully. 4 seems like a lot But more than 4 should require a special license to board, foster or breed.
- Depending on the size of the property more than 4 dogs would be acceptable.
- in the city backyards could be large enough for four dogs to run comfortably, or for the small dogs, four dogs on leash at the same time.
- 3 seems to be manageable for an owner based on personal experience.
- As a volunteer with a rescue and foster dogs, there should not be any limit so long as all dogs are provided with food, water, shelter, love, and are licensed and taken care of. Unfortunately cases of hoarding animals also exists
- It's actually dependent on the type of dog, for me. Three small dogs would be fine; three large dogs would not be able to be controlled by one person.
- Depends on the size of a house/space. Including type (an acreage may have multiple, a condo may be limited. The owner must be able to afford all the accompanying expenses. As well as manage them for outdoor activities. If they are breeding, the. Owner must be flexible for periods of time.
- This the max # I think is reasonable to walk at once and be able to control and intervene in case of an incident. If there are more dogs, and the owners are not responsible, it more easily leads to issues.
- Crazy dog people
- I Don't think it has anything to do with how many you can have but how well they're looked after and that they're not a nuisance to neighbours
- household unlimited, but off leash 3 maximum by 1 owner (if you have more, walking by group by 2-3)
- really depends on breed, size of dog, number of adults in home, size of the home

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on the size of the house and backyard space honestly... I have seen an owner with 5 huskies and they regularly pull sleds for fun. So even with a lot of dogs, if they are exercised regularly and have responsible pet owners I think it's fine. It comes down to the owners at the end of the day.
- Depending on size of breed and size of house/ property.
- It takes work and time
- Dogs have big litters of puppies. You need to keep them together until weaned and ready to sell/give away. Can easily surpass 5 animals.
- Depends on the size of the home and yard. Maybe only one in an apartment. Maybe more for a large property.
- I think the rule for number of kids and number of dogs should be the same...
When there are so many dogs needing rescue, how can you put a cap on it?!
- Depends on the house / job - if you're a professional dog walker or a stay at home parent living on an acreage, or a responsible dog breeder - who is the government to say how many dogs someone can have?
- If an individual feels they can responsibly take care of 3, than 4 really isn't that much of a stretch. The individual(s) would need very structured rules, plus there are people with 2 to 5 children in the household which to be honest is more costly and time consuming and no one seems to mind that
- I picked 5 but really it depends on the dog and owner and size of home and property.
- It depends on the size. Two big dogs or three little dogs. They are social animals and enjoy the companionship. It is difficult to provide proper care for more animals and barking dogs are loud and annoying.
- I don't believe that limited numbers of dogs is the answer. If people know how to train dogs and are responsible then this is not an issue. Too many people buy dogs and then don't know how to handle them. Maybe licensing should include training.
- I feel 3 is an appropriate number as then they have a buddy. Unless you live in a big house with a yard. Dogs needs space and care.
- It's really up to the owner, I think depending on the situation. Some people should only have one, some can handle three.
- Dogs need to be socialized in a healthy way by regular exercise and consistent behavioural training. An owner with more than 2 dogs, is unable to provide adequate care and attention. Dogs who bark and howl regularly in a yard (for Mins often or an hour one in a while) are not being properly care for
- If they are small dogs and have responsible owners, it is entirely possible they can have more than 5. Some people will rescue small, senior dogs that may never have a chance at a home if pet limits are imposed.
- I'd consider this an appropriate average. More than 3 seems irresponsible.
- Depending on the household, size of the dogs and owners, 3 dogs can usually be handled by one person. I think more than 3 is hard to manage, pick up after etc.
- It depends on the amount of living space, the number of responsible individuals who are able to help take care of the dog(s).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Eg For an individual who is unable to care for themselves or is unable to see to regular feeding, walking and cleaning of a dog, even 1 would be too many

- There is a pack mentality as soon as more than 2 dogs enter a space. When a person with more than two dogs enters public space, it becomes much more difficult for them to maintain care and control of their dogs.
- More than 3 is a business
- If you exhibit proper responsible pet ownership have as many as you can handle! That should only involve the city in mistreatment or hoarding cases
- I feel the number of dogs is relative to size of dog, of owners situation, meaning is the owner involved in dog sports. If so the Dogs are usually well cared for, exercised, and responsive to owner/handler and trained.
- As long as dogs are all taken care of. Not referring to hoarding. Meaning food and clean water daily. Waste is picked up, barking is controlled, and health of animal is monitored. Vet visits. If one can not afford an animal then they should not have one. Numbers should'nt include people that foster
- I believe the max. # of animals (whatever animal) per household should be limited to 2. The city should implement this. It would cut down on stray cats, reduce the number of animals in shelters. Find a way to track pet ownership.
- I think 4 is the absolute max for a lot of people. Maybe being able to apply for some kind of license to allow for more if certain criteria are being met
- The dog should have a friend. Owners have two hands - one for each leash.
- Upto two small breeds, maybe more considering livibg situation
No more than one larger breed.
Dependent on number of actively training owners
- It is a reasonable number.
- it depends on the location and whether or not it is a mother and puppies: one in an apartment, puppies not included until they are 8 or 10 weeks old, condos and apartments often restrict numbers
- I think if people are responsible pet owners it shouldn't matter how many they have.
- If the animals are safe, cared for, well loved, and provided with proper diet, medical care and exercise I don't particularly think a numerical limit is necessary. For instance, there is a large difference between having 5 Great Danes and 5 pomeranians. Hoarding cases can be dealt with separately.
- 2 is manageable, most people do not control their dogs well when they have pack mentality
- Personal opinion. Anything more than 3 dogs turn in to more of a pack than a family unit and can't be properly controlled by one person.
- Dogs tend to motivate each other to bark, when everybody has more that one dog, barking becomes very annoying to those of us that have no dogs.
- In order to have more than 4 adult dogs, a business licence should be required. It's OK for breeders to have more dogs as long as they are responsible and as long as neighbours are not adversely impacted.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- With large numbers of dogs in the house How does the animal receive proper and adequate attention, training, or exercise?
- too many lead to excessive barking, smells in outside areas, etc. Example is woman that was just charged with excessive amounts of dogs. Woman that babysat them, knew the situation & did nothing about it should be charged or fined also for not reporting it, neighbor or not.
- I would say 3 is the maximum--and even that many seems a bit odd to me, especially in an urban environment. Proper care of that many or more animals within a city becomes pretty challenging, in my estimation.
- People(responsible) pet owners can have as many as they want,the key is `responsible' know their limit,which 4 is good for most,but some can handle more,size comes into play I would think
- This depends on a lot of factors. Size of the dog, how much exercise they get, behaviour of the dog and owners.
- As long the pet are well care of, and doesn't cause chaos, I don't think numbers of pets matter.
- The amount of dogs in a household should depend on the owners ability to provide quality of life for the animals
- Depends on size, 3 dachshunds are more reasonable than 3 goldendoodles. Also depends on the space the dogs live in.
- I think there has to be a balance between the right to own animals, and the right of individuals who choose not to as far as noise, waste, and the ability of the owner to control the animals. A numbers cap also limits the financial exposure of people who can't figure that out for themselves.
- Decreases the burden on animal shelters and having to put them down. They too are living beings and should be given an opportunity to feel special like any member of the family.
- One dog-per-household means dog owners are not breeding dogs and can control the amount of defecation and urine. With one dog, owners are more interested in keeping their dog indoors on days when temperatures dip below 30. Noise from dog barking is less. Stench is less. Owner control is better.
- Two dogs are enough and easy to control. This does not include licensed breeders or the occasional and temporary puppy litter.
- Any more and you should have to get a special license or training on responsible ownership and behavioural characteristics.
- Dogs improve residents' lives, increase activity, reduce stress and provide companionship
- I think this should be the maximum. More dogs is just a lot in one space.
- The most reliable statistics come from the American Pet Products Association which reports that 67% of households own a pet. They know these numbers based on pet food purchases.
- Depends on the size/context. 5 Great Danes in a condo maybe not. 5 wiener dogs in a condo sure why not.
- Some people have the time and resources to care for many animals and they should be allowed to do so

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I would say two based on dog waste produced and upkeep of clean up also size dependand, large dogs two , small dogs up to four.
- Depending on the size of dog, history of owner, size of property, access to green space/walks.
- Depends on size of home and dogs. Dogs require a lot of care.
- If a person is able to walk groom and care for them there's no reason to limit animals it a problem when they are not tended to I think I should be based on a person to person based on their ability to care for the animals
- I think for many folks, the costs of responsible dog ownership including vet costs can be reasonably managed with 2 animals. I don't have an issue with people having more than 2, they just need to be able to afford their care
- Any more might open up noise issues, or potentially neglect issues. Depends on size of house and yard.
- I don't think it's appropriate to say/limit a reasonable number of dogs per household as it would be dependent on each household and their situation, similar to how households have their own discretion for number of kids, etc.
- I believe any more than three dogs for one household is too much in terms of keeping them under control, insuring they all receive proper exercise.
- This is entirely dependent on the household. How many humans are in the house? How big is the house/yard? Are the owners taking responsibility and exercising their dogs etc etc
- I really do not like this question, it depends on the dog and owner. 1 is too many for a bad owner, where as a great owner could have 5+.
- I've seen lots of people with 2 or 3 dogs and they can handle them fine and appear to be able to provide the care and attention that the dogs need and deserve
- Any more then 2 dogs is unmanageable for a single person to control should they be aggressive towards each other or someone else/s dog.
- Too many dogs in Calgary
- Most people are incapable of caring for multiple animals. While there are exceptions to this, I feel this would help reduce the number of animals being re-homes or surrendered
- I don't think this should included temporary animals like fosters or dog sitting
- We have 2 currently and have only had more after breeding our dogs- 3 is a reasonable number
- 2 is "reasonable" within the city in my opinion, but I am not against more so long as they are treated and fed properly, vaccinated and have a clean home. If noise is or becomes an issue, then fines. If someone lives on a large property they can have many.
- Bill Bruce had such an intelligent approach to this question - it is not the # of dogs, but the behaviour of the dogs that matters. I have 3 well behaved dogs and listen daily to the barking of neighbourhood dogs who live in one dog families. Deal with the problems not the numbers.
- Most families shouldn't be out numbered by their pets

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Unless it's an animal rescue or fostering, there is no reason any household requires more than one dog. Most who buy three or more dogs are not mentally fit to have such a privilege. Psychological evaluation should be given to those who wish to have more.
- Households in 2020 can be multigenerational and many dogs may be appropriate due to individual circumstances
- As long as the dogs are adequately fed and cared for, with excellent veterinary care and safety, then a household can have as many dogs as they want.
- The reasonable number of dogs per household is not a number that can be assigned. Depends on lifestyle, breed and age of dog, exercise, training, space, etc. some people cannot take care of 1 dog suitably, others can take care of several with no problem
- Depends on the home. If you live in a large home with a large yard and the space and means for many dogs it should be allowed.
- Dogs are a lot of work and anything more than three just seems like overkill to me personally. Especially if they are big dogs
- I think it depends on how many family members there are and how large the household is. More than 5 dogs is obviously unreasonable in an apartment but could be very doable on a large property.
- I don't believe there should be a limit on dogs. People with 1 dog can be more irresponsible than those with 5+. Hoarding situations won't be stopped by restricting number of pets. It shouldn't be able how many pets but how responsible the owner is.
- As many as can be responsibly looked after by the owner
- One per property owner. Not house hold. Do we really want a city over run by dogs? I keep track of the dogs that pass my house in a day. Average on a nice day 85. (Some of these are local, 2 and 3 trips)
Shitting hour is what I call it. Right after work, everyone is out for a walk.
- My fiancé's parents have 2 dogs and they have their hands full with them, I think after three you have less time to properly care for them and monitor them.
- I believe that three dogs are easy for a single person to take care of and control, and most houses have enough space for each animal. I don't believe in putting a limit of three dogs per household. Pet limits should be put in place on a case by case basis based on quality of care.
- Once it gets beyond four it becomes difficult to give them the care, attention, grooming needs, walks per day, and the large expense
- Who are you to judge how many dogs someone has? As long as they are all loved and cared for. If you can love and care for them all, go for it. Be responsible. Know what you can handle.
- Depending on sizes, and number of family members, you don't have the space or time for more.
- I don't think someone could reasonably have control over more than 3 dogs.
- This is just a personal opinion - as 2 dogs can keep each other company. Dogs require a lot of work and I feel more than 2 can just get overwhelming.
- I think a reasonable number of dogs to have is two, however I don't want to decide how many dogs people should get to have.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There should be no limit
- Unless someone is breeding responsibly or fostering animals to be adopted I do not see why someone should have more than 3 dogs
- There are many dogs and cats that require homes. Three would be responsible to allow rescues to be placed in adoptive homes without running the risk of hoarding situations.
- Each situation is different as is each persons ability to properly raise and provide for pets. 5 chihuahuas's is also a lot different than 5 great dane's. There should not be a limit placed on this.
- This depends on the space and how many other people live in the house. A person living by themselves with a large home shouldn't be restricted to 1 dog when their space allows it. Perhaps do space and people ratio. 1 dog per 600sq per two people(doesn't have to be this math but something similar)
- Proper attention to dogs could lack if there is more than 3, anymore than 3 could be a health concern for both the owner and dogs.
- We are getting too many animals in certain areas of the city and the number of interactions with non dog owners is increasing.
- depending on the breed and space available
- There are many people who have fosters and rescues that can manage that amount, but I do believe it has to be managed by looking at individual cases. Small apartments with one big dog are more than enough, let me tell ya.
- seems like a manageable number in terms of Leash-walking, cleanliness of home and yard, noise.
- It really depends on the size of the dogs and the house.
- Most owners cannot control 1 dog so 2 is enough for most especially factions age and strength of owner. Same with paid dog walkers. They never pick up as they can't and how can having 8-10 dogs give your dog a proper walk!!!!
- Good company for each other.
- Depends on size and breed
- I do not care how many dogs someone has as long as they are properly housed, and cared for and supervised if outside for more than 15 minutes.
Yard must be clean of feces. I think the owner should sign an agreement making it okay for the Humane Society to check housing conditions.
- I think two per person is reasonable. So having a couple with two dogs each is fine. I would say 3-4 is reasonable. They are pack animals. More than that and it's something else.
- If the owner has more dogs they better have the money for vet and training. More than 2 can create negative dog behaviours depending on the owners
- I know many people who love and can give the attention to multiple dogs in one home that meet all the individual dogs requirements for great quality of life. Training and medications and proper food quantities

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It's a random number picked out of the air. You cannot legislate common sense. Living on urban acreage with lots of room and limited to two small quiet dogs? Crazy. Living in 200 square foot apartment condo and limited to five malamutes? Give me a break. Can't legislate common sense.
- 3 dogs I would say is the maximum before their noise can get out of hand.
- In today's world, where more and more people are being squeezed into households, where families are blended and people have roommates to make ends meet, you have to be flexible. We've squeezed people in like sardines, so why not pets?
- dogs are pack animals and do well with pals. A household can have multiple dogs, as long as they have care and training. If the dogs are provided with food, shelter, vet care, exercise, then that is what is important. Possibly home inspections if a household has more than a certain number of dogs.
- seems reasonable to me. not pack.
- every ind. is different. some, care for 1 dog, others more, excellent food, excellent vet care. we are all individuals. if animals are healthy, happy, fed, then the numbers should not matter. If the city decides to lower the # of animals, then you need to GRANDFATHER the people who have more.
- More than this I find it hard to believe that they are being properly cared for with the huge costs of vets.
- For the majority of people who understand canine behaviour to a greater or lesser degree, why should there be a limit. For the few individuals who are acting in a commercial capacity, there needs to be different rules in place. Don't penalize the majority for the behaviour of a minority.
- Dogs require training and love and this would be difficult with more than 3 dogs
- 3 is plenty. SO much hair, animal waste and time. How can you properly care for animals when you're outnumbered.
- "Generically limiting is an odd question" In a 800sq ft condo (1) in a 8000sq ft home - 2 or 3. Dogs need room.
- It is NOT the amount, it is the care!!!! I have seen people with one dog no care. People who love dogs provide above and beyond, no matter the amount of dogs!!!!
- For the majority of people who understand canine behaviour to a greater or lesser degree, why should there be a limit. For the few individuals who are acting in a commercial capacity, there needs to be different rules in place. Don't penalize the majority for the behaviour of a minority.
- 3-4 at the most. Total pets is a better number. two dogs is reasonable 3 is pushing it and 4 is not fair or normal
- I do not think there should be set number defined in the bylaw. As long as the dogs are clean, well behaved, well cared for and do not cause a nuisance then it should be left to the house hold to determine the appropriate number.
- Depends on the size, 3 large, more small
- every household is different. treat them as such. if you are considering capping the # of animals, then you need to take in all those animals that are over the requirements in your care, your expense etc... animals are happy/healthy/fed/well taken care of, then grandfather those.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I look at this in two ways. For guardianship of pets, I feel the limit should be lower, maybe 3 or 4. IF they are a rescue then the number should not be applied.
- It depends on the person and the dogs, some people can handle a large number of dogs or maybe fostering dogs in addition to having their own. I do think that anyone under 18 should be required to have a responsible co-owner for the dog as well as anyone with mental health challenges and seniors.
- Depending on size of house
- It's hard to unlove a dog once you adopt it, and its easy to love more than one. I think the size of your home and time to look after them is what limits the number.
- If all dogs are being cared for (with all previously stated responsible ownership needs being met(, it doesn't matter the number ex: fed/watered, clean, healthy, stimulated, vetted
- Ok, I have 1 dog in a good-sized house. That is a lot of work to have a well trained, well-exercised dog. 2 gives them companionship, I struggle even with 3 as 3 dogs can create trouble. After three: what kind of space do you have for exercise? The more you have, less likely you can train them well
- If you have more than 3 cats and/or dogs, consider that there might be something wrong with you. The ability of an owner to provide an appropriate environment for their pets generally goes down accordingly with the number of animals living in that environment.
- The number of dogs in a household should not be of concern to the city provided all animals are liscened and being looked after responsibly.
- I don't really care as long as the dog owner is responsible and the dogs are taking away of their neighbors rights.
- Under 10. If the owners are responsible then it shouldn't matter really. If they clean up after the dogs and care for them..
If laws change then those houses/rescues/fosters with multiple dogs should be grandfathered into account so they are not punished by having to give up a dog
- Seems reasonable - 4 seems like too many to keep under care and control while out and about, and I can't imagine having the opportunity to walk them individually.
- Too many would be hard tontrack
- It really depends on size and how big your household is. 7 small dogs would be fine, but 7 large dogs might not be.
- Hard to control more than one dog at a time nevermind 3. But it depends on the dogs.
- 6 or so would be a hard limit, but it depends on whether you are a licensed breeder and live in a ranch or in an apartment. Very different.
- I just think more is a potential for unwanted pack behaviour which can make it more likely to be unsafe for people and other dogs. costs of pets need to be taken into account. Many people cant properly care for to many more dogs then this. It's unfair to the dogs in most cases.
- It really depends on the size of the dogs, how well trained they are and on how responsible the owner is. A good owner with 4 dogs can be a better neighbour than a bad owner with one dog.
- as long as they are well cared for no limit should be imposed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I'm a senior and have two small 10 lb dogs and we had a large dog 65 lb but we have an enclosed yard and dogs had obedience training and did attend off leash park. I believe it's the size of the animals and the space available for them & that they are pets not breeding animals.
- Far too many people have a large number of dogs, that then don't have the time to provide responsible pet ownership. This includes sport and competition breeders. Their dogs are not getting properly exercised or have the proper enrichment.
- Strongly believe that there is not enough time in the day to exercise, and provide proper enrichment to more than 3 per household. Even with people that compete in sport, they should be limited to the number of dogs.
- The city of Okotoks has a three dog limit and it works for them. The amount of calls bylaw, Calgary Humane and the Police make to irresponsible pet owners and breeders is staggering. After three it is reasonable to assume the level of care is incrementally declining.
- Dogs need socialization each day, a playmate or 2 at home helps engage them and teach them social skills as well. While some people are great owners, exercising and providing quality care to multiple dogs take time and money. I'd be concerned for the welfare of the animals with higher numbers.
- This really depends on the size of the dogs, and how much noise they make. One dog can be too many if it is barking/howling all the time.
- I have no problem with lots of dogs, as long as they are cared for properly, fed, walked, etc.
- I put 5+ but I really think 5 should be the max. Airdrie has 3, and I think that is too small. I foster, and sometimes you can have 2 resident dogs and 2 *temporary* foster dogs, or even 1 resident dog and multiple puppies. I think 5+ dogs is not manageable, but 3, 4 and maybe 5 is.
- Depends on size and owner being responsible for their animals.
- Two small dogs. Dogs over 50 pounds only 1 per household.
- Owning between one and 3 dogs is reasonable unless you are a registered breeder. I don't think most people provide enough attention to their dogs when there are more.
- 2 per Adult in the house.
- Most yards are not that big to have any more than 2 dogs running around plus anymore than 2 are not just pets anymore. 2 dogs ensure they have some interaction and companions while owners are busy working or not at home.
- It completely depends on the owner. As a general rule maybe 3 but it shouldn't be difficult for responsible owners to have more. Maybe a different type of license or test could be in place?
- Not the city's business. Responsible dog owners can have many dogs. The city shouldn't set a limit they should just set the criteria for it to be safe.
- I don't mind an owner having numerous dogs so long as they maintain healthy welfare, and their yard is maintained. Some breeders for example will have multiple dogs, and that is ok as long as they are well cared for.
- It depends on the size.
I wouldn't care if somebody had five little dogs or five cats but five big dogs not a chance.
- If they are being taken care of and aren't causing issues, it doesn't bother me.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

If rules are to change. The city must grandfather those already in homes. The city and rescuers could not handle the amount of pets that would be required to be rehomed. The cost to the city would be devastating.

- 3 dogs can be easily handled. More than 3 becomes very difficult. Only caveat is if they are a breeder.
- However many they can take care of and keep healthy.
- Most dogs, even small ones, need space. Dogs are expensive to take care of and require a proper commitment by the owner. I think two, for the dogs company and owners is sufficient and responsible.
- 2 dogs/responsible adult. 2 dogs is a reasonable amount to have control over and to be able to fully supervise. Average house has 2 adults.
- My sister has 3 chihuahuas and a cat. 4 animals seems reasonable....or make an exception for new pups, (make a time limit) until owner can find them new homes.
- The number of pets in a home does not make a difference if they are well behaved and under control. The owner is responsible for their care and the care of the community and their pet in the community
- Many dog owners foster dogs & should be allowed (if they have space & can give proper care) to have any number they'd be comfortable with. It is a win-win situation to overcrowded shelters & socializing dogs for purposes of adoptions.
- Reasonable amount of animals without being too limiting in terms of space noise and waste.
- Limiting the number of pets is not reasonable, owners ensuring their pets are cared for, fully licensed, vetted and in control is more important. To ensure a functioning community.
- If you are not a breeder, it's reasonable to have 1 elderly, 1 middle-aged dog & 1 puppy as a succession planning option. I use them for security & protection, family companions & for help w/ my health. More than 3 is more suited for an acreage. I currently only have two, a 3 and an 8 year old.
- I've owned dogs for over thirty years and have almost always had two. Three is still a reasonable number to walk, clean up after and be a responsible owner. More than that runs the risk of neglect, all be it unintended
- it is just the right amount.
- Higher numbers can result in increased noise issues and can increase inability to properly and sustainably care for the animals.
- A manageable number
- Plenty when you live in the city. Lots have more but bad owners are awful but econstantly barking dogs are worse
- Obviously, it clearly depends on the pet owner(s) themselves. They must be responsible and have their dogs spayed/neutered, licensed, regular vet checks.
- Three is manageable especially for a working household who is limited to the amount of time they can spend with a dog
- Most people who have multiples are serious dog people and they can handle that many. Plus a lot of people have 2 and that still allows people to foster/housesit others

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If responsible pet ownership guidelines are followed why is a reasonable number required?
- Ultimately it depends on the size of the house and the time the homeowners can give. A large ranch with a big family can have more dogs, but a typical city home should have 3 max. Honestly it should be 0 or 2 though as most dogs I see are left alone all day while the owners are at work.
- 1-2 if large ; 3 if they are small like a cat. All choices made due to space constraint in an urban area
- Its easier to control them when outside. More than that and at least one will be neglected and for example feces not picked up
- There are many households in our struggling economy that have more than one family living in them, there are people that foster dogs for rescue, so therefore 4 is reasonable.
- One can have several dogs and be excellent pet parents. Government should never mandate what we have in our own homes
- I just think that is enough, especially with all the poop in the backyard.
- The exception is if puppies are born. No reason for three. Just sets a limit.
- I think if you have 3 or more dogs in your household you should be required to provide proof of employment and/or that you have the means to properly care and provide for that many dogs
- One person usually can only walk one dog on a leash
- Depends on house size and if the dog gets exercise and is kept in a clean place.
- Four- Five is fine, as one could end up with a fifth through chance or circumstance, but more than 5 would be excessive unless They had adequate space.
- I said two but I think it depends on the size of the dogs. Large dogs are harder to control in certain situations. One person is not going to control two or more dogs when they want to chase other dogs or wildlife. You see dog walkers out with 5 or 6 dogs of all sizes and no control of any of them.
- This depends on the dog owner, some people can't seem to be responsible dog owners for just one dog, while others can have several dogs that are all very well looked after and behave well in public. I would be strongly against putting a specific number of dogs per household.
- I have 2 dogs and it is a lot of work to train, care for and maintain their optimal health. I can't imagine having more. I think the majority of people would choose 4.
- I think that as long as pets are properly cared for and have an appropriate amount of space people should be free to have as many as they like. I do understand that providing limits is a way to manage the chaos though so 3 in that way may be more reasonable.
- As long as the owners take care of the animals, are not damaging the home, do not pose a health risk, they are well looked after and are not a nuisance to the community, what right do we have to tell them how many pets they should keep. The only exception would be extreme hoarding situations.
- There shouldn't be a restriction on the number of dogs as long as they are adequately and responsibly cared for. The current bylaws with no limits should remain.
- As long as they are happy and well care for good on them
- No more than three dogs to ensure all have a good quality of life. Including training time and proper excessive which can be hard to do with more than 3 pets

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It varies so much by the size of the space, large or small dogs, number of people in the household to monitor dogs. To put a blanket statement on the number of dogs allowed/household seems extreme. There are responsible pet owners with numerous dogs/pets.
- Temperament of the dogs and financial situation are factors. Having companions can make a home happier for all concerned.
- Depends on size, temperament, number and other types of animals present, number, age and condition of people present, type of knowledge and training of owner, size of home and land available and proximity of neighbors. May require a special license for households with more i.e fostering
- Two dogs is a reasonable maximum under any circumstance in a city. Residents who use dogs as business, or desire more than two dogs should relocate to a rural area.
- Maximum of 3 is because usually after that point you cannot properly supervise your dogs. As a result they are usually untrained. More than that number should be reserved for breeders only.
- Being a CKC member I know people who breed and have multiple dogs. As long as no complaints there shouldn't be limit. If I have multiple dogs and I take care of friend's multiple dogs then this puts me over limits. It's all about responsible dog owners
- It's still a manageable and affordable number
- N/a
- A lot can depend on the number of people in a household - 1 responsible person in a household per 2-3 dogs. 3 is what I believe one adult can manage if dogs are well trained.
- As long as pets are properly cared for there should not be a limit
- I believe the limit should be based on size of the home, size of the dogs, and financial capability. If you can't provide a healthy sustainable home then your amount of dogs should be less.
- That seems like a very reasonable number.
- Seems reasonable.
- Less likely to display pack behaviour and be super loud for neighbours. More than 3 would be super hard for one owner to wrangle/handle should they get out.
- I do believe it depends on the person, some people are really good with dogs and can have 5 and be fine. But 3 is a good number of dogs to avoid them being neglected and the house being overwhelmed
- 2 or 3 depending on the size of the house.
- 1-3 seems reasonable because it is more likely that the dogs are being taken care of properly, and that people can be sure to afford all of the things that come with being a responsible pet owner.
- Two is manageable. It is easy to walk and control two dogs. They tend to keep each other in check.
- 4 dogs is more than enough to have in a city. Walking 4+ dogs becomes a challenge that the general public do not have the skills to handle.
- Dogs are pack animals so typically more than one makes for a better environment for the dogs. Once there is more than 2 typically competition for Alpha starts to increase.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- anyone currently caring for more than the allowed amount should be grandfathered, providing the animals are being properly cared for
- I have seen owners with more than 1 dog where care is not given.
- More than two dogs of any size becomes challenging to keep track and control of on and off leash.
- Pets are expensive.
- one is ideal, but two would be a maximum for within the city. Many people can barely manage a single dog effectively and add dogs to entertain each other versus actually looking after their dogs. More than two and waste in yards creates problems as well as noise.
- I don't think this matters. We're happily maxed out at two dogs, but there are irresponsible owners with one dog, and highly responsible owners with 6 dogs; might be show dogs, competitive sport dogs, etc. What should matter is how the animals are cared for.
- This would vary on the size of dog and the size of house. But usually two adults reside in a household allowing them to walk one each while out in public. 5 dogs for 1 person seems a lot to manage
- It would depend on the person/s ability to care for more than one dog and that the animals are spayed and neutered.
- Two is enough. Company for each other.
- I don't want to live next to someone with more than 3 dogs, especially if they are not well behaved.
- Depends on house type and dog size. Also how the person can handle the dog.
- Greater than 3 dogs becomes difficult to manage
- I think reasonable dog owners can choose how many pets they want
- Some dogs (especially rescues) may benefit from living with a pack of dogs
- 4 is as much as I think 1 person could manage. Assume minimum household size of 1. Allow for special assessment and consideration (ie: keeping a whole litter of puppies could lead to 7+ dogs but if the household was managing this well they could be allowed to keep them)
- For me this is a reasonable number however depends on the situation. Have a larger home, live outside the city have the ability to care for more dogs. Ability to afford food, vet care etc.
- An average family of 4 can each have their own. More than 4 can become a cleanliness and management issue.
- There are many responsible pet owners who can manage/afford taking care of 3 dogs. If people have a reason to have more than 3 dogs, they should pay more for each licence and require a special permit .
- No limit provided the animals are looked after and not allowed to roam.
- I strongly believe that Calgary should maintain their no limits on pets. Although I only have two dogs, I have had up to five and been able to manage it just fine. You will lose out on the licensing fees from responsible pet owners and hoarders and other won't care if there is a limit or not.
- Dogs need engagement and exercise. I think it is incredibly difficult to walk more than three dogs at a time, keep them under control and pick up after them.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- More than one Dogs the owners might have hard time controlling them specially if they are big breed dogs. Usually the owner would take both the dogs or all dogs for walk at the same time.
- Max. two dogs per household because dogs need a partner.
- Owners should be able to own multiple pets until the animals health becomes a concern.
- A reasonable number is the amount where one can properly take care of the animals.
- 4 pets maximum. (Does not include fish)
- There are too many dogs in Calgary. Everyone is bringing in rescue dogs from all over the world.
- Able to maintain cleanliness and noise without being overwhelmed
- It really depends on the size of the dog and size of the home. Larger dogs require more space etc.
- I dont think a dog walker should walk more then 4 dogs and most people can not be responsible for one dog let alone more nor do they have appropriate space time and energy for more dogs if they have more space up to four. Which I think should be the max for a dog walker
- Any more than 2 dogs, dogs end up packing up and can cause issues.
- In an urban environment it doesn't seem reasonable that dogs would have enough personal space if there were more, unless they are very small dogs. But I don't really know enough about dog ownership to fully understand the situation.
- The perfect owner can have more than 4. Irresponsible people should have none!! 4 is not too many at all for responsible people.
- Depends on the size of house, size of dog, how much access the dogs have to exercise, impact on Neighbor's (do the dogs bark constantly, not pick up waste, ect)
- Up to 5 dogs can be reasonably live in one household, especially as more people rent houses together and want to keep their pets. More for houses, maybe 3 for apartments.
- Key word is "reasonable". Two dogs keep each other company when the owner is away. Another consideration is the size of the animals. More than two Corgies might not be a problem, more than two Great Danes might take over the back yard.
- One person can only handle 2 dogs at a time.
- I'm going high, because of rescue organizations. They can sometimes have quite a few, before they go to foster homes or to their forever homes.
- It really depends on the size of the property. 4 dogs would be fine if they have a lot of space, but excessive in a cramped townhouse.
- more than two could result in behaviour and of aggression if they are in a large pack.
- We have owned up to 3 dogs at a time. I believe you need to have the proper outside space and inside space to provide the dogs room to roam. You also need to be able to care for the pets and the yard not to cause your neighbours stress or make them not enjoy their property because of yours
- They are naturally pack animals and do better with their pack(people or other animals) but 2 seems reasonable in the city. It's more manageable for the owner too.
- The number of pets allowed is a not really the issue- if they are fed, healthy, quiet, not crowded. 6 Rottweilers in an apartment or 6 Yorkies in a 4000 sq ft home? A 'specific' number doesn't address the size of the dog with respect to it's home or care. A 1-dog house could be neglected/abused

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The owners can't really control more than that
- avoid pet hoarding, health, behavioral and financial stress issues in an around the home.
- It completely depends on size of yard, and house. Some households should only have one, while others could easily manage 5+.
- Can dogs be manageable and not a nuisance in an urban setting ? Can yard be maintained ? Is adequate time spent with dogs, walking, playing etc. No one wants constantly chained up barking unhappy dogs in their neighbourhood. They end up angry and loose.
- Three dogs is a reasonable number for one person to handle.
- Three is sufficient because a dog should have a buddy and if one is super old and near passing they should be allowed a third.
- I don't care how many dogs people have and neither should the city
- The average person can walk two dogs at once. Any more than that and it is impossible to keep them from getting tangled it is also impossible most times o keep them going forward.
- If a rescue or foster they should have all they need as long as animals cared for with food water and outdoor exercise. Love
- Two can be managed by 1 person responsibly.
- Three is a large pet family, for owners who want that, but not so large that it's a problem for the neighbours (barking, pet waste etc)
- any number is reasonable as long they are well cared for and don't bother the neighbors with barking/escaping
- Noise. Ability for someone to care for more than two dogs; i.e., proper daily exercise, financially, size of yard/house.
- I think 5 is plenty. While I personally don't want that many, I foster for a rescue and sometimes people need short terms spots for dogs, also homes for moms at rescue with puppies would go over that limit yet are necessary.
- Depends on size, 3 dogs is a lot of dogs, require a lot of time and attention to be properly cared for
- Depends on all the circumstances. Dog size, how the person manages whatever number they have and how well the animals behave. You can't cookie cutter one number.
- One or two dogs makes sense. Three would be a maximum. Fiur or more and I begin to wonder why the household requires so many. Risk of unhealthy, unloved, inadequately cared for dogs increases as the number of rises.!
- 2 is reasonable, 3 is max, as long as they are all getting the exercise/care they need
- I don't think pets should be limited "per household". People with 1 dog can be terrible owners with a poorly-behaved animal, and people with 5 can be awesome owners with wonderful dogs.
- 3 is a handful and wonderful but lots of responsibility and if you cant handle putting in the time, then you shouldn't be able to have them. Far too many people get pets then release, let go, give them up not realizing all that is needed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- One is great, if need two the rationale so they have company could work. More than that would be allowed in that space if in the zoo and compared to natural habitat expectations. Why need more than two? Can't think of a reason.
- Unsure. Would need consideration of reduce foster homes that temporarily have more then this. And homes with new puppies and Mom. Four adult dogs seems tough to manage. But I suppose it also depends on the size of the (human) household.
- More than two means breeding, which should not be allowed in the city. More than Two dogs constitute a pack, and most owners can't control packs.
- In a regular in-city neighbourhood 2 sounds appropriate per household, on acreages it should be 5+
- Fosters could have puppies and such .. 4 is also a good number as some ppl dog sit
- Depending on the size of the home and the owners. Dogs should be trained, under control and the owner must be able to fully provide for ALL their needs and requirements if the owner wants multiple dogs.
- I have a multiple dog household and if you are responsible there should not be an issue
- Urban environment. People should by a priorityover dogs
- Too many dogs become a nuisance to neighbors, possibly too loud and smelly.
- I work at the humane society and know many people who successfully care for and manage many dogs in their homes, I would say a limit of 6 would be reasonable for most people since anyone breeding should be registered with the city so allowed only short term increases to that number.
- As long as dog waste is cleaned up in visible areas and the number of dogs doesn't create a lot of noise (barking and whining) in the neighbourhood, the number of dogs doesn't really matter - it's the impact of having dogs and that needs to be addressed by the owner.
- The more dogs, the more potential for noise that will disturb neighbours, also if you are not responsible and clean your yard, the amount of waste from more than three dogs can become overwhelming in the warm months. You may have two and as one ages, introduce a pup, then when one passes you have 2
- Limiting the number is not going to prevent hoarding that's a mental health problem. If they are all licensed and well cared for we should not be limited.
- If I own the house I don't see why the city should impose this rule. Intervention on number of dogs should only happen when there's excessive noise, or concern the animals aren't taken care of. There are too many shelter animals that need homes so if I can take care of them why shouldn't I be able t
- do not judge everyone the same. as long as animals fed/cared for/vet/vaccination/spay/neuter/licenced, then ok. If u want cap, then GRANDFATHER animals over max amount. Animals over max amt must be licenced/spay/neuter to get GRANDFATHER exemption. Not spay/neuter owner apply for breeder licence
- We have an issue in the Clearwater Park area near Elbow Valley. Dog walkers are walking upwards of 15 dogs off leash in the river Valley daily as well as the City Park area nearby. For folks walking one dog this could result in a dangerous conflict. Pack mentality is dangerous for dogs and people

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Size of property and the dogs is important here as well as the owners financial and time resources to adequately meet all of their needs. Considering the small size of urban properties it's unreasonable to accommodate a large number of dogs properly on a small property
- ability to properly care for the animals
- A neighbour walks three dogs and sometimes doesn't notice when one of them has defecated on someone's lawn because the other dogs are playing. Too many dogs and it's hard for the owner to properly monitor and/or control their behavior.
- any more than 3 dogs should have to have a special license to ensure they are being well looked after
- There shouldn't be a limit to the amount of dogs allowed in a home as long as they are cared for, trained and the community is not impacted by waste
- This is a questions that is somewhat complicated because of; size of home / yard, size of pet, number of kids in the home, etc. I would place a limit that for any household within the city to a maximum of 2. Otherwise it has the potential for the yard to become odorous and unsightly.
- Enough so that multiple families living in the same home can each have two (for example). Four dogs can be taken care easily. Avoid hoarding. Four two dogs means each one has a playmate.
- While I would not own 5+ dogs, I don't think the city should set limits on ownership unless their is evidence of neglect or failing to follow bylaws
- There should be no limit on number of dogs in a household if the owner is able to responsibly care for all dogs.
- Control of animal and companionship.
- 5 is about a reasonable limit, but this must be open to interpretation also, there are rare but logical reasons why someone may have more temporarily, and an officer should take some factors into account.
- It shouldn't matter how many pets someone has, but how well they are cared for. The people I know with more pets are the best pet owners. If a limit is made, owners that already exceed that limit must be grandfathered so pets don't become displaced and families stressed or torn.
- It does depend on the size of the house and yard, but you should be able to have as many as you can safely house, feed and care for.
- Dogs also need canine company. I believe more than that is excessive.
- Some dogs need company so 2 is a good amount. Lots are not made to support more. Also having more you are a lot likely to keep track of them while at a dog park.
- A person can just as easily be a bad owner with 1 pet, or a great owner with 5+
- Any more than that can be a problem for neighbors - 2 can keep each other company and be better able to be controlled
- Dogs need proper care, excerise, food etc.
- I am an animal foster with a registered rescue. If I could... I would buy a large house and take as many in as I could care for (meaning not just food & shelter - but individual care, love, training, exercise, rehabilitation etc.). That may only be 3. Or it could be 8. I do not think a number can be

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Anything more than 2 are difficult to control during a walk
- Up to three for small dogs and likely up to only two for large dogs (ie over 60 pounds). The more dogs the mostly likely for there to be noise disturbance for neighbours.
- In the past I had 3 dogs, all well cared for and exercised regularly and well trained, up to date on vet care and licensed. 3 dogs was no issue for a diligent owner like myself, I believe I would feel comfortable with 4 even, 5 might be max. I dont think you can properly control and care for 6+ dogs
- I feel that a single owner can provide the proper love, attention, and care to 4 dogs. I feel that 1 owner is able to walk 4 well-trained dogs at once.
- It depends on space within the home and time of the individual that owns the pet. If someone has little time and little space 1 small dog would be enough where if someone has a very large home and 4 dog and plenty of time to dedicate to them i don't see why they shouldn't have 4 dogs.
- As long as the owners have enough house for them all, can afford all their care, and exercise them enough. It should be case by case.
- Should be depend on size or dogs, size of house/condo and energy level for dogs
- I believe it all depends on the owners! If the dogs are exercised daily and there needs are being fulfilled daily,there should not be a problem! I know some people that cant take care of one dog or shouldn't! I don't believe this is a fair question! This really depends on responsible owners!
- I think people should be aloud to have as many animals as they want as long they are being cared for well.
- I think two. It is easy, enough room, can afford, easier poo pick up less dogs better care of them.
- Responsible pet owners should not have limits. Exceptions for medical care, foster/rescue homes
- Rescue organizations strongly rely on fosters and there are occasions where one foster may have several dogs coming and going. The main issue should be about responsible caretakers, if the dogs are well cared for there should be no limit.
- I believe that it is a person's right to own as many pets as they wish as long as the animals are well taken care of, licensed, neutered or spayed and healthy, and if heaven forbid we did get a limit on pets in a household the people that already have more then the limit should be grandfathered.
- Any number as long as properly cared for.
- I think as long as the animals can be safely and appropriately provided for then there doesn't need to be a concrete limit set . Plus those who have home rescue or breeding should not have set limits for their business. And of course not a nussiance for surrounding people
- Walking multiple dogs in the city and suburbs is necessary; with multiple dogs it becomes more complicated; interaction with other dog walkers is inevitable and dogs need to behave accordingly to avoid problems for all parties
- Depending on the size and behaviour of the dog. Dogs tend to be more of a risk animal with behaviour such as aggression and nuisance barking.
- some people have multiple dogs and are taking good care of them, while some have only 1 and the dog is in poor condition

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I feel the household should be able to maintain, provide and care for their pets. If they are unable to provide for a single pet they should not consider getting another.
- Should be a limit of 2
Any more than 2 can become a nuisance
- 3, if there is a yard, 2 if there is no yard.
- I think anymore than 4 would require an acreage because there is not enough space in city household for more than 4 dogs.
- What is important is whether the dogs are healthy, happy and cared for responsibly. A specific number won't achieve this — for some people, one may be too much, and for others 5+ May be not a problem.
- Depends on the size and type of dog and owner and the household. I think there should be some rules that can be enforced regarding the expectation of the health and environment of the animals. However, I would say it's hard to justify more than 7/8
- Variable, it depends on the owner. As long as the dogs are all well-cared for and the owner is adhering to the responsible pet by-laws there should be no limit.
- It's less about a number, and more about care of animals. If they are well cared for (physically, psychologically), and do not bother others (neighbours), then there should be no maximum. But for the majority of people, 4 may be the limit of what they can provide for.
- I believe that if the household is properly taking care of their animals that the amount they can have could be higher. I believe that animal breeders should have a cap on the amount of animals they can have.
- I think many people can be responsible with multiple pets. There should not be a limit.
- Barking, shit control, out of control dogs...unless they are inside dogs like cats
- Too many dogs are hard to care for and may not get the required attention.
- It would depend on the yard/training/quality of care provided.
- I think exceptions should be foster homes for animal shelters and the size of the dogs.
- Some dogs need company, so two might be okay for some households (depending on size and breed). One dog is probably more than enough for most households.
- Not the city's right to decided how many pets one can have if the owner is responsible. Limiting this mean you will literally be killing rescue dogs at shelters waiting for foster. My dogs are loved, cleaned up after, exercised properly. Why don't you decide how many kids I can have while you're at i
- Because of animal rescue and foster homes. If the city caps the number of animals the city should grant the grandfather clause.
- I don't know, it really depends on the household? I don't want to see people hoarding dogs, but a responsible pet owners with the capacity to give some lovely dogs a nice home should be able to judge what they are able to responsibly handle
- I don't think the number is important as long as they are cared for properly. Spay/neuter, good food, appropriate exercise, no excessive barking

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I do not think a number is appropriate for the law. It should be about appropriate care of those animals in the home; not a restriction by quantity.
- It would be too difficult to regulate this type of bylaw without infringing on a person's right to do what they want in their own home. A competent, conscientious owner can take care of multiple animals while a "bad" owner might have difficulty caring for one.
- 2 dogs allows the dog to have another dog friend while still allowing proper time and attention can be given to each dog for training and care
- Depends on size of house and type of dogs. This is a free market!!
- This can vary per household. If people are responsible, the number isn't the issue
- I think that you can be a poor pet owner with one dog or with 5. The number of dogs will not affect being a responsible pet owner or not. Animal hoarding is also not controlled by by laws because there are many animal hoarding situations even with the 3 dog limit currently in place.
- Depends on skill level of owner.
Some should not have an animal some should have more.
- Depending on the size of home, size of dog, and number of residents, I think no more than 3 dogs per household should be allowed. For the health, well-being, and associated costs of all. The dogs can play and interact with one another, but a ratio of 1:3 for humans should be safely manageable.
- Three seems like a manageable number of dogs. In most city locations with adequate maintenance and clean up, you could keep three dogs without issue. It does depend somewhat on the size of the dogs also.
- Limits do not do anything good! I honestly cannot comprehend why, when Calgary has been an industry leader without having limits are considering it now. Good owners can have 1 dog or multiples. Bad owners can have 1 dog or multiples... there is no correlation on HOW MANY.
- All depends on size of house and size of dogs
- reasonable number to be able to meet the needs of each dog while living in a city environment.
- There is no proper number. Individuals manage dogs differently. Some people can handle 1, some people can handle 8 without blinking so a limit isn't fair
- Dogs that are well cared for should be allowed. Quantity is irrelevant in a loving caring home.
- Depending on size of animal as well as size of house a limit should not be added
- There is a large difference between owning 5 chihuahuas in an apartment and 5 mastiffs. There are several factors to be considered when evaluating this and I am not sure all can be legislated.
- If a person is responsible, even more than four dogs is okay. If a person is not responsible, one dog can be too much. Each case is unique.
- Exceptions for puppies?
For adult dogs, more than 3 seems excessive. Even 2 seems like plenty in a household.
Barking is also a problem with multiples.
- Depends on the circumstances. Rescues are helping and should be able to continue to help.
- Depends on the size and energy of the dog(s) and what the owners can handle. Plus there should be stricter penalties for families who surrender pets when they have a new baby.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 10 maximum on a temporary basis. Some owners breed pets so have more than 5 for short periods. Most owners can determine themselves the appropriate number that is affordable and can be taken care of in their space. Hoarders and puppy mills would be the exception to the rule.
- I think a person should be allowed to have any amount of dogs if they have the means to take care of their needs (feed, walk, spend time, train and socialize). I do think people who have more than 5 dogs should be given a once a year home visit to ensure dogs are well cared for.
- anything more than one should be a rare privilege
- I own 3 dogs and usually have a foster dog. My dogs are extremely well trained and well behaved. There is literally no poop in my yard. I am a working student also. If I can afford to feed and train my dogs plus a foster, then I think others can do the same if they choose to have that many dogs.
- Any more than 3 cannot be controlled by an owner. No one should walk more than 3 dogs.
- I believe that people have a right to choose. Just like we don't police the amount of children you have. Some people can't manage 1 pet while others can. It is all individual.
- I don't think it's fair to the dog if there are too many of them in the house. a litter of puppies should be excluded from that count though.
- Number of dogs per household has nothing to do with responsible dog ownership. Someone can be a very responsible dog owner with 10 dogs and someone can be an extremely irresponsible dog owner with just one.
- Dogs are companions for each other but more than that would become smelly and noisy for neighbors which would not be fair.
- Unless you are living on a ranch/farm there is no way you have enough space for them to run freely nor do you have enough time to properly care of the dog.
- Dogs require a lot of space, attention, and care. If an owner had multiple dogs they would be less able to ensure that each animal is safe, healthy, and well cared for.
- Who needs more than 2 dogs?
- Depends on the size of the house, the owner and the funds to care for pets.
- The number is very dependent on the owners. If they have time for their dogs and walk them and have the financial means I don't think the number matters
- About half the people on my street have a dog and the dog parks are full. Yards are small so little room for many dogs.
- I don't believe the city should restrict the number of dogs per household if the dogs are well behaved and treated well and doesn't disturb anyone
- I believe that a person should not have to put a number on the amount of dogs per household. If you are able to love them, give them what they need, exercise them and treat them as if they are your children, then that is what truly matters
- Calgary yards aren't typically not very big. Anything over 3 pets seems unfair to the pet. Would also worry about barking from more than 3 dogs per household
- This depends on the household and I don't think there should be an imposed limit.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think it's entirely unreasonable to ask anyone what they think a reasonable number of pets per household is. 1 dog may work for some families. 2 might be perfect for another. 4 might be a wonderful completion to a pack of rescues.
- Depends on the person
- There should be no limit as long as the dogs are properly cared for and loved. Perhaps a home visit or something could be beneficial to make sure animals have the quality of life they deserve. In my opinion and experience, animal neglect can happen regardless of whether you have 1 dog or 7 dogs.
- To allow fostering and rescues to do their job
- 4 if you breed, 3 if giant breed in high density population neighborhoods with small yards..acreages...hard to say...unless a breeder I can't see having more than 6..depends on number of people in household
- I don't think there should be a limit. Don't punish the many because of a couple of horrible pet owners
- I've fostered puppies with various rescues and it's important that pups stay together with their mom for the first 8 weeks of life. I feel a responsible dog owner Can make the decision on how many dogs is to many within reason. This should be grandfathered in if the owner has several dogs already
- No set number in my opinion. Every household is different and has different abilities to deal with their responsibilities. 1 dog may be too much for one household whereas 15 are ok in another. The right number is the number that the household is willing and able to properly care for.
- If you are fostering for a rescue organization
- If someone has a tiny breed it's probably ok to have quite a few dogs. Depends on space and behavior I would guess.
- Too many animals often comes from hoarding and leads to abuse or neglect of the animals
- The number of dogs should be based on how responsible the pet owner is. If a pet owner is in good standing and the dogs do not disturb the neighbours then i don't have any concerns with them having multiple dogs.
- 3 max, know some household that manage this number, if one dog misbehaving then 1 owner can manage it while other household member can hold the 2 other dogs. That is if a household means more then One person.
- I think that is a personal question. There are households with 6 dogs who manage that beautifully and were able to give homes to those dogs who would not have found a home. For this one I have to trust rescue agencies and breeders to do their due diligence. Our home is currently a 3 dog household.
- It really depends on space available. An apartment should have less than a large house with a backyard
- If I can look after and care for up to 4 dogs, keep them healthy with immunizations and sterilizations. Keep them on leash or in my yard, not roaming freely
- 3 is a lot of dogs. One or two is better.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think it would be difficult to manage more than 5 dogs and I worry about situations where dogs have been hoarded. There are responsible owners and there are not. I think you should have to apply to have more dogs and prove that you are a responsible pet owner. It is also very expensive.
- If the owner is a responsible dog owner and the dogs are all licensed, and well taken care of, then there should be no limit. And current multiple dogs in a household should be grandfathered in, despite any potential new bylaws.
- I have 4 dogs without issue. The success of this depends on owner engagement, size of space for animals, and size of animals
- Part of this depends on the size of house. Larger homes three, condos one.
- Any more than two, is probably too much dependant on why you own them. Examples, breeding and show dogs.
- It depends on the person & how well they take care of/provide for the pets. If all are trained/well fed/have water/get adequate exercise/are fixed/house is clean/not abused or neglected/loved/see a vet when needed, then I'm not sure there's a number. Unless it's a hoarder situation, that is not ok.
- It's not about the # of dogs, it's about being a responsible owner
- No bad dogs - only bad owners. Limiting amount of dogs isn't the solution.
- Leave the bylaw as is. This is misleading as there are no current numbers.
  - The definition - sentient beings
    - However many can be responsibly cared for
- - Numbers are irrelevant, management is important
  - Across the board bylaw save sufficient
  - Need more enforcement
  - Do not put a number on animals on a household
  - External organizations to monitor breeders/trainers
- Crowded
- Because it's like a family
- Cat regulated
- 4 is too many (too chaotic). 3 is reasonable. Harder to watch if more than 3
- One dog is good but two dogs are better! They can play with each other.
- 3 or less. More than 3 is more difficult to manage. I believe the quality of life of the dogs will decrease if there are more of them in 1 household.
- as a landlord I allow 1 pet max size 10 kg home owners can have 3 licensed pets
- There should be NO limit, as long as Dog Parents are looking after their dogs well, are controlling their dogs and following all dog rules.
- as long as the household can provide appropriate water, food, medical care the number of animals shouldn't matter - it all depends on the owner being responsible
- I do not think that a limit should be set. I do agree with the current bylaw that all dogs and cats should obtain and maintain a city license

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As long as neighbors don't complain about barking etc and the dogs are well behaved, there shouldn't be a limit.
- Responsible owners could have 8 and it would be fine. Ignorant person could have 1 and be a nightmare. It's not the number - it's the owner. Make enforcement real to weed out bad owners not impose blanket limit with no rational connection to harm.
- Depending on the size of the pet versus size of house.
- Animals help the mental stability of people. For every person living in a household should have access to a companion animal
- I think there should be no limit based on per household. You may have a family that has a big enough property within the city limits that 5+ dogs is reasonable. Foster's = saving a life. It should be based on what someone can handle.
- I believe it depends on the size of the house, yard, and people. There shouldn't be a low limit. There should be a maximum without a license, but that should be closer to 10 dogs or more.
- I think if you are responsible and financially able to properly care for many animals, then you should be allowed to have as many pets as you want. People who want to breed irresponsibly or hoard animals will do so regardless of the law
- This question cannot be answered without considering the household. I could very easily handle 5+ dogs, but my space is too small, so i have 2 small dogs.
- I feel that the number of dogs you have does not reflect whether you are a responsible dog owner. You either are or aren't. Hoarders have a clinical illness and having a restriction will not stop this behavior. People that have more dogs will only licence the # allowed or not at all.
- It doesn't matter, as long as the owner is providing proper care and is respectful of their neighbors & community
- Multiple dogs require an immense amount of care.
- People love their pets but in the city people really can't properly manage a pack of dogs at the off-leash park, etc. Also for neighbours that can be a lot of noise/smell of waste. One person has less control if they are walking 4+ dogs so it is a safety concern.
- I am a multi dog owner. I have really great dogs and I love the fact Calgary had no limit. Responsible ownership is key and if you do change to have a limit please let those who are grandfathered in to keep their pets in their happy homes. I've had 6 dogs for 4 years now. They are amazing happy dogs
- This should NOT be a hard and fast rule though. Some homes are huge, with an extended family sharing the home. If they can and do take care of their animals and do not cause real issues for the neighbors, city officials should not confiscate animals people love . So, appeals should be allowed.
- This is entirely dependent of how the animals are kept and maintained. Is it 5+ massive dogs or little rat dogs? Are they licensed? Are they socialized and friendly? compliance to health and safety should be taken into account. A blanket rule is unfair to responsible pet owners.
- For the health and safety of the animals and the discourage backyard breeding.
- Personally 3 for me as that's all I can handle but I have friends who rescue and shelter dogs who have no homes and may be euthanized so I would say 5 + for them. I dont believe there should be a

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

limit as long as you are responsible about how you care for these animals. As long as it's a clean environment

- I don't think that's anyone business but the households
- 3 because one can sit on the love seat, and 2 can fit on the large couch. more than 3 will already be a handfull to take care of, as well there is only a certain amount of yard per house.
- The reasonable number of dogs per household is the amount that can be feed, exercised, and stimulated happily - this is a personal evaluation for each household based on their economic ability, energy levels, commitment to training etc
- Depends on the size of the house and space that is being lived in (yard), and the abilities of the owner to train, spend time with and take care of the dogs. A good dog owner will know how many dogs are appropriate for a given space and how many they can reasonably care for.
- The amount of dogs that can be cared for well is not universal, and should be considered on a case by case level.
- 4 seems reasonable
- It depends on the household, size of home, etc. Also whether the owner is able to care for them.
- Maximum 2. Reasonable number for owner to responsibly walk and care for.
- The reasonable number of dogs you have should really be relative to the size of your house, yard, size of the dog and your ability to afford/care for those dogs. If I live on an acreage, 4 large dogs might be reasonable, whereas if I lived in a 1,500 sq ft house, 2 small dogs might be reasonable.
- More than this means not enough time and attention for each dog.
- Beyond a couple of dogs the probability of annoying Neighbors goes up.
- Dogs are pack animals and enjoy the company. 2 is a reasonable number. 3 is still OK. 4+ it would be hard to take care of that many animals in one household. Dogs take work.
- Small dogs, 4 is maximum per household. Large dogs, 3 is maximum per household to let them lead a human and quality life.
- That's enough to monitor.also there should be a limit to dog walkers Some have more than 10 and they don't even pick up
- I can't give a good answer as I think it depends on the household size, economic situation and time able to spend with the dog.
- More than that is difficult to manage, leading to barking while in the yard, or being more difficult to keep under control when walking
- As long as a household is able to properly provide (food, shelter, water, exercise and mental stimulation) for the number of dogs, 4 seems a reasonable number to me.
- It depends on the size of house and yard as well as who the owners are as pet owners.
- More than 3 is hard to control and can be annoying for neighbours. If an owner can be proven to control and properly feed and care for more, then maybe a special approval by the City can be given.
- This is a very personal choice and I don't think the City should limit people. However, if people have 4 or more dogs they could require a special license.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Rescue organizations and foster homes need to be able to house animals
- I don't think that an arbitrary number is the right answer. It's about the health and wellbeing of the animals and the condition of the home. Some people are good pet owners with only 1 pet and some are great with 6 or 7 or more. This should be about responsible ownership, not a number.
- three and above is a crowd
- More than 3 is too much for most residential property sizes here in Calgary.
- It's a manageable number to keep in mind as neighbours that share their living in a community minded manner. Min., neighbour difficulties and accessing resources for resolution.
- I have 6 dogs and 1 cat. I still foster & there are small and large dogs & a cat, I can help a foster learn to accept all sizes and cats. It's a valuable service. I would hate to have to "give away" my dogs if a rule was suddenly 2 this needs to be grandfathered in. Do house checks on multi pet home
- It really depends on how many adults live in the household who can control the dogs, the type of dog, and how much space the dogs have. Too many dogs might encourage a pack mentality among them.
- Size of lots, cleaning up yards, seems reasonable
- However many that person can handle. We don't have a child limit and they are far worse
- It is the owner's choice how many they have. If they are responsible for 8 and aren't an issue it's none of the city's business. It is our God-given right how many not yours!!
- 2 large dogs or 3 small dogs is more than enough.
- I have 5 dogs but I think max 5 dogs is good enough. If you have the space and time I think 5 is enough.
- It depends entirely on the competence of the owner and their ability to keep the dogs clean, well-nourished and well-socialized. One yappy dog can also be louder than 5 or 6 well-behaved dogs.
- Two are company for each other and sometimes another family dog needs a new home. Well-behaved, non-barking dogs...no problem.
- Two would be a maximum. This is a City. Dogs are pack animals and will behave as a pack with the lead dog when that is their environment
- Depends on the house and the dogs. The safety and care taken of the animals and any children present in the house is of the utmost importance.
- Two seems a reasonable number in terms of providing proper care.
- Owners can not control more than 2 (and if they are large dogs, 1)
- Dogs and the dog industry add to the carbon footprint of mankind. With the amount of money people spend on their dogs, we could put that money to good use to save human lives in other countries.
- I don't think there is a right answer because some houses have more people or owners know how to handle multiple dogs but for others even one is too much.
- Reasonable depends on the household. If someone has the financial and special needs for many animals, they should be allowed to have as many as they want. Also it is a given that the animals should be well-cared for no matter the number.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Most families cannot handle more, let alone afford their proper care.
- I am involved with dog rescues and at times I have had a couple large dogs at a time. I also feel people should be allowed to have a few dogs but a limit needs to be in place to ensure that hording is not an issue.
- I believe there should not be more dogs in a household than 1 person can properly handle. I do not believe that 1 person alone can safely handle more than 2 dogs at one time. Also more than 2 is starting a pack.
- Two is a manageable number.
- Health to all the living things in the house have to be considered too many become too hard to handle.
- The # of dogs depends on how well each individual can provide for their dogs mental and physical well being.
- To ensure animals are properly cared for and picked up after.
- Space outside to provide reasonable exercise. Being able to properly and efficiently care and love for your pets is the most important. As soon as a pets quality of life is compromised due to multiple pets that is not acceptable.
- There shouldn't be a limit especially when it comes to fosters or rescues, it's not fair that they have to be limited because then a lot of those pets will go without being adopted for longer periods of time. And won't have the socialization they need to be adopted.
- dog owners who currently have multiple dogs should have a grandfather clause if limits are set Also counts should not include foster dogs.
- I think three dogs per household is a reasonable amount to handle and care for responsibly.
- It's about what an owner can handle, their space and budgets can handle. 4 or 5 small/tiny dogs can be comparable to a couple of big dogs.
- There should NOT be a # limit. It should be on a qualitative assessment - to the point that the person can healthily manage their dogs, without posing risk to others. Having a # limit will just encourage people to not license their dogs to avoid issues & will cause harm to rescues/fosters.
- I think it is what the owner can handle. I have two large dogs and could easy have more. I see people at the off leash with 4 and 5 all behaved. I struggle to understand why the city can dictate how many you can have. I see one lady pulling 5 little dogs in a wagon or sled and has others running.
- This is mainly for people who foster for rescues.
- If someone can reasonably take care of multiple dogs then they should be allowed to.
- I don't think it matters how many dogs a person has in their home, so long as they are taken care of.
- I think the reasonable number is the amount that the household can afford to register and care for. This refers to both money and time.
- Aslong as the dogs are being cared for appropriately then it is up to the family . We don't limit children, we shouldn't limit pets

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- A lot of people have personal pets and foster as well. If they are being cared for and aren't being a nuisance then number doesn't matter
- I don't think it's the number of dogs that's the issue, it's how well they're being cared for according to commonly held standards. There are people that can't look after 1 dog adequately and others that are dedicated to providing the best care possible to multiple dogs.
- Disagree in this being policed if the dogs are safe and well cared for. No hoarding circumstance.
- depends if you are a responsible dog owner with dogs licensed, loved, and cared for.
- Depending on size of the dog and size of the house maximum 4 would be a reasonable number. I wouldn't like to restrict the number of dogs as 4 small dogs could be cared for well in one household.
- Many people can afford to take care of more than 5 dogs
As long as you have the space, $, time & love there shouldn't be a limit!! Those with big property and land can easily accommodate 5+ dogs, not to mention you can bunch all breeds together.
5 chihuahuas is much different than 5 German Shepherds
- Depends on size of house, size of dog
- As long as there is health and safety in consideration a person with 5+ pets can be a better owner than a neglectful person with one pet.
- I believe that the number of dogs is directly related to the affect on the community. If you have 10 well behaved dogs that are not causing a nuisance / disturbance or mess in the community. The qty should not be an issue. 1 dog can be just as disruptive if the behaviour is questionable.
- I do not believe in a dog limit. As long as the owners are licensing their pets and they are being taken care of properly there should be no limit.
- As long as animals are well cared for, how can you limit it? What are the concerns?
- I believe that in most circumstances people who have multiple animals are able to take care of them. If the animals are well behaved, licensed and their owners follow the rules, I see no reason to change the current bylaw
- I think dogs are social animals and having two could be good for their mental health. But I worry that more than two could lead them to start developing pack behaviour, ie hunting or chasing down wild animals, other dogs or cats, or even people.
- It depends on the size of the dog and the owner's experience and training.
- If there are no complaints from neighbors you should have as many as you like plus there are breeders so litters you can't count
- I believe that the more dogs the merrier as they are pack/social. If the owner is responsible and educated and providing all of the necessities for the dogs to live a happy stress free life, then there shouldn't be a limit providing they maintain training and socially responsible Dog ownership.
- This is a hard question to specifically answer; I guess it would be dependent on the size of the house, how clean/responsible in regards to cleanup of the dog waste within your yard. But there should be a specific number for persons to abide by.
- I don't believe the city should dictate. Should be based on the square footage of indoor and outdoor space in the home/property.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Why do you need more for an inner city home.
- There should be no limit on how many dogs one has in their household as long as they are responsible. Someone who is irresponsible should not be allowed to own a dog in the first place.
- Why do people need more than 3 dogs? Seriously, why? Barking and the volume of waste are multiplied when there are multiple dogs.
- As long as all the dogs are spayed/neutered and have regular vet care, I think people can own as many animals as they can care for.. Unless it is a hoarding situation which is mental illness, not responsible pet ownership.
- animals are social creatures and prefer to socialize with their own kind as well as human interaction. Pets need to have a companion. Two is best but in an environment where there is an ailing or aging pet, the third pet can provide comfort. Try not to split up siblings may end up with 3.
- It should be proportional to the size of the property and how close the neighbours are. Too many dogs in a small space is not a good situation for the dogs, the owner and the neighbours.
- As long as they receive vet care, training, are licensed and have a safe and clean environment and follow responsible pet ownership. This also allows for fostering which is critical, as well as caring for family and friends pet while on vacation.
- fed up being judged like we are all abusers, neglectors, starve our animals, abandon them. treat us are individual. this is not suppose to be a dictatorship country. starting to look like it. I do not want restrictions on #s of animals I have. My money, my vet bills, my food bills. not yours.
- A limitation of two seems unfair however many people are unable to upkeep more then three in an urban setting
- Rescue organizations have foster families that care for up to 10 dogs at a time. "Reasonable number" is not a rescue-inclusive question. Outside of fosters/rescues, 3 is a reasonable number.
- I don't agree with limiting the amount of dogs someone has period. But if you do, There must be an exemption for breeders, rescues, and fosters.
- I would expect that people living in single family homes would typically have a fenced back garden to accommodate up to three dogs, as well as more than one person in the household and multiple family members taking care of that many animals. However, it should be less than three in other dwellings.
- Dogs are different sizes and temperaments. If someone wants to care for more than 5 dogs and the dogs are calm, or are seniors/ have health issues, they should not be limited unless there is a valid reason for restriction (temperament, history of illegal behaviour or lack of care, vicious dogs, etc.
- 2-3 is plenty if it's within the city. Out of town could have more.
- this questions is difficult as it depends on the type of dogs in the household. If the dogs are being well cared for and under control there should be a reasonable limit.
- Company for each other but not overly populated.
- 2
- if you can afford the dogs keep them under control dogs like packs there are a pack animal

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on the size of the house and the size of the dog. Number of people in the house to care for the dogs
- Depends on the situation. The cost of feeding them is probably a limiting factor. Nothing wrong with six small quiet dogs that are no bother to anybody. I wouldn't want a government to dictate the number of dogs to me!
- Many people have their own pets, but do an honorable thing such as fostering dogs in need. These dogs are then temporary and go to adoptive homes. I don't condone hoarding situations however, where ownership exceeds 5 or 6 dogs.
- No limit. Owners with multiple dogs are most often the most involved and least disruptive as they are consistently responsible owners. Most issues surrounding dogs come from homes with only 1. a limit will not prevent hoarding issues as that will happen regardless.
- I don't believe that there should be hard number, 5 Mastiffs is a big difference to 5 Pomeranians. Also, if all animals are give the appropriate care and attention there should be no restriction. There should be tougher laws regarding neglect and abuse instead, especially for hoarder situations.
- Noise in back yards, poop pick up often not carried out, noise when owner is out, people controlling 3 dogs when walking
- I don't think we need to set a number, as it would depend on the size of the dogs, and how big the property is. Think of when a dog has puppies. Unless maybe set a high limit after which The City would be allowed to assess the situation to see if the animals are being cared for properly.
- We have had many dogs and the most we could reasonably handle and enjoy was two — three in a pinch
- Most rescues are foster based. I have seen people with 2 dogs who are not well taken care of, and I know someone with 8 who are some of the best cared for dogs I've ever met.
- One dog is more than enough for most families to look after properly.
- Depends on household, care and level of control over the number of dogs...you can have 1 really bad dog or you could have over 5 really well trained/behaved dogs in a house. This questions - how many per household is reasonable is not the right approach to answering the problem.
- I have 6 and mine are all well cared for. Mine are small, I don't think I could handle 6 big ones. I don't think a limit is the answer, most people who don't care for their dogs properly or allow them to roam only usually have one or two. Yiu never hear about 5 dogs escaping and at large
- Vet costs and animals can quickly become out of control - especially if they are not spayed/neutered.
- It is NOT the number that matters but the level of care. Please don't waste valuable tax dollars monitoring this superficial measurement. I have known many multi-pet owners who are absolutely doting with the animals in their care. Limits encourage less licensing and increased stigma for kind people.
- I do not think it is up to the city to decide how many pets I am able to care for in my own home. My pets are not and have never been a nuisance. I also foster dogs so they can live in a home environment before adoption. I am a responsible pet owner so this should not concern the city

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The number is not important to anyone but the owner taxpayer. If a person breeds animals there are number fluctuations at various times.
- It depends on the size of the home and yard, and the number of people in the household to care for the animals. It's silly to assume that a person in a 500 square foot apartment with no yard should have the same limit as a homeowner with 2000+ square feet with a huge yard.
- Putting limits does not mean people are going to be responsible that is an individual choice so I do not feel it should ever be limited
- it truly depends on the size, breed and temperment of the dogs
- For those who foster dogs or pet-sit might need to have more dogs at any given time. As for permanent pets. 4 should be enough.
- There should NOT be a limit provided they are properly taken care of. There are people with 1 dog that shouldn't be allowed to have it. There are people that have 10 that could have 20
- I wouldn't want that many but I think it is not excessive
- It's not the number of dogs, it is how they are taken care of
- This reply depends on how much space is in the house/yard as well as size of dog. I would have a max of 2 dogs at my house but my friend's house could easily have 3/4.
- As long as the animals are under control and cared for properly numbers don't matter
- Why should the city li.it how many dogs i have if i am responsible and take care of them properly
- I do not believe that limiting animals is the answer. I have had neighbors with MULTIPLE pets that are not a Nuisance to me. Yet a Person 3 houses down had a Dog that Barked non stop and a Dirty yard! I would say that as long as they are cared for the number or breed is NOT important.
- It is none of the city's business how many pets I own as long as I am a conscientious dog owner, obeying all laws and not causing issues for the dogs or neighbors
- Company for the other pets, two cats and two dogs. Often it's succession planning getting younger pet when your senior pet is in it's last years.
- People seem to be constantly losing their animals which is ridiculous so perhaps having less might make them more responsible
- 3 or less. Hard to care for more than that.
- Depending on the size of the household and income... someone can have 5 dogs. But, on average, I think that 2 allows for proper care (vet bills, food, attention, walks).
- This number is reasonable if housed with a responsible pet owner. Beyond that number it would be difficult to provide adequate training and exercise.
- Too much dog poop in a yard otherwise
- As long as dogs are being care for and not neglected....and people are not allowing dogs to be nuisances to neighbours
- So long as the dogs are being looked after it should be up to the owner to decide what is the right number for their household!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on the house hold and how conscientious the pet owners are. Some households should have 0 pets while others could responsibly have 10. Putting a number limit punishes conscientious pet owners because of problems caused by poor ones.
- I do not believe an arbitrary number would be a reasonable limitation as there are many responsible owners that are able to care for 5+ dogs within the existing by-laws, conversely many irresponsible owners are are incapable of caring for and controlling as few as one dog.
- Two per household should be a maximum. Two allows company for the dogs welfare.
- hoarders and care issues
- If people are properly caring for their pets they should not be limited to a small number. Grandfather in existing pets is this must go forward
- Too many owners already don't take care of their premises when they have one dog - the more dogs, the more likely this is a problem.
- Each person and home is different. Some people can't handle one dog while another can give 10 dogs a perfect life.
- Given home and yard sizes, and individual pet needs and costs for vet care, food, etc - a house in the city should be limited to four. Owners shouldn't be breeding either
- The number is less relevant than the owner's ability to care for their pets or ensure they are not disturbing their neighbours, but regardless once you get to 5+ it seems excessive for city living, and there is almost no way your home is not the source of a lot of noise.
- People who want large numbers of dogs should live in the country. In the city, a small number of dogs is easiest to keep calm, quiet, and under control.
- just seems like a reasonable number.
- 2 is just a number. I think this varies by household, the ability to care for an animal responsibly, with adequate space, proper conditions and in accordance with bylaws.
- I have had 6 when fostering- it was hard to stay on top of pet waste and to adequately walk them. Therefore on an ongoing basis I think more than 4 is likely to cause problems with neighbours and be unfair to the pets.
- Depends on the house, but I can't imagine any more being easy to care for or manage. It depends on size of the dogs and house as well.
- There is no legitimate reason for there to be an unlimited number of pets in a household. 'More than 5' just becomes 'more than 10', and then onwards until there is a hoarding situation.
- Depending on the size
- It depends of the size.
- Two dogs can keep each other company, any more then it can lead to control problems / pack mentality
- It's a lot of work caring for dogs. It also can get very expensive.
- It isn't about the number of dogs in a home. It is about being a responsible pet owner an quality of care. Puppy mills and hoarding cases need to be addressed separately.
- cost, cleanup, safety in walking

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It could be three depends on household and how responsible owners are.
- I don't think this is a fair question. One would be too many for some people and 5 + would be more than reasonable for others. What about educating people? What about having a mandatory online course or in person written course prior to obtaining a dog with a reduction in licensing fee for those
- I don't feel this is fair or right for bylaw to dictate an exact number. Every household is different. The health, proper care and love the dog is getting should be most important. Some dog owners are happy with 1 and others can afford to have 6 financially and safely. That right should not be taken
- I believe as long as they are responsible pet owners, they should be able to have as many as they can properly take care of
- Owners know how many they can take care of and pay for as long as they aren't hoarders or puppy mills.
- I'm not saying everyone should go out and get 5+ pets but it should be a choice.
- It really depends on the size of the property, the size of the dog, and the capacity of the owner to take good care of the pet(s).
- we have two right now but at one time we did have four. they were all looked after and loved and did not fight or hurt anyone
- We have 3 dogs who are well trained and respectful.
- Depends entirely on the number of adults in the household and the size of a dog. If there are 2 people walking them every day then you could likely handle more dogs, if they are all small, also easier to handle on a leash.
- I think more than 2 dogs could be an issue to control. We live in close proximity to our neighbors and need to be considerate of their right to enjoy their homes and yards without the annoyance or mess of our pets.
- I don't believe there is a perfect number, it depends on the household set up but I do believe the more dogs the more chance that they are not being properly cared for and dangerous conditions may arise
- Except for very young puppies, two dogs may be mutual company but more are a small pack.
- I actually do not care how many dogs someone has, as long as they are licensed and well taken care of. And owners are being responsible when it comes to the ownership of dogs, they are exercised, not being a nuisance to neighbours, and yard is clean, and the dogs are well vetted, immunized, etc.
- It's about how animals are taken care of, not how many. Lots of people can easily care for numerous dogs very well, others can't manage even one.
- I think there should be a ratio of adults to people 2:1. 2 dogs per 1 adult in the household will help ensure proper care and responsible pet ownership
- Depends on house size and appropriate space for dogs to live in
- As long as the animals are well taken care of, fed, healthy, etc. It shouldn't matter how many pets an owner has, as long as they keep the pets out of trouble, follow bylaws, and keep the animals healthy and happy.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs are natural pack animals and shouldn't be restricted to
- 2-3 is a good number. Any more and it becomes a full time job to care for your animals. Any more and usually they become neglected and just become hoarded.
- I know multiple responsible owners who own a 5 or more dogs. There's no reason to have a limit of dogs on responsible owners - changes need to be made in terms of those irresponsible people breeding unregulated dogs
- There are rescue Fosters that adopt and care for several dogs very very well that would otherwise be euthanized. I think the exception should be made in this case.
- Animals are family and as long as they are cared for and taken care of, who cares how many they have
- Consider people who foster animals to provide safe environments for them during the rescue & adoption phase. As well, dog walkers & their business. You can't impose rules on how many dogs people own; I'm aware of the fact that there are hoarding situations, reality is THEY don't register & neighb
- 2 dogs per household is sufficient. If a household chooses to have more than 2 dogs then the household needs to be registered as having more than 2 dogs - or - registered as a foster home, and also registered as a member of a registered foster organization. Commercial agencies need to be licensed.
- If you are a responsible owner you should be able to have as many as you can handle
- As many as people can reasonably look after, feed and exercise
- If you have a heart to open your home to many dogs, care for them, in sanitary, positive environments, then you should be commended!
If you are not able to care for yourself, and your animals then one is too many. Don't stop the rescuers and fosters from doing good. Instead stop puppy mill breeders
- As long as a person is a responsible pet owner, it should be up to them how many dogs they have.
- I think that 2 dogs per household is reasonable for the amount of space and exercise that dogs generally need.
- 4, for owner owned house with proper fenced yard. This should be judged on an owner's behavior and responsibility. ie an irresponsible one dog owner can be more of a problem than a responsible multi dog owner. Perhaps it is time to license/permit the owner more so than the animals
- Freedom of choice
- I really think it is difficulty to answer as a household could be a studio condo or a detached dwelling with a large yard . That is the relevant question ,
- It depends on a case by case basis. Some people can have 7 dogs with each and every one taken care of wonderfully. On the other hand, someone could have 1 dog and be neglectful.
- Depends on size I guess, but 4 big dogs would be my max
- As long as I can look after the number of pets I have, i.e. cleaning up after, feeding, health visits to a vet, clean living space for both human and pets alike it should be my business
- With the right amount of room no limit

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Don't like any of the answers Numbers depend on breed, owner control and ability to give a safe, healthy environment to each dog. Some shouldn't have even 1 and others could have 6 and do fine. I would suggest 1 per responsible adult in the house.
- People should be allowed to have as many dogs as they see fit, as long as every animal is safe, well taken care of and has optimal space and time for exercise.
- Because dog owners are not keeping their dogs quiet as the bylaw states they should. The fewer the better. Plus, greenhouse gasses - pets have a GHG footprint too.
- It isn't the number of dogs, it is how they are cared for. Many people that just have 1 don't care for them and should have none!
- I think as long as owners are responsible and take good care of their dogs there should not be a limit. There are people who can look after 5+ dogs no problem and there are people who can barely look after one. It is about an individual's ability to care for an animal, not how many they have.
- It depends completely on the owner besting responsible. Some owners cannot take care of ONE dog properly; others are amazing with five. I'm concerned that those who foster dogs as well will be affected by a limit.
- I think if an owner has their dogs registered with the city, is ensuring all its needs are met, is not a danger to others, the owner follows all bylaws it is NOBODY'S business how many dogs they have. The irresponsible owners will be irresponsible with 1 or 20 dogs.
- Too much noise in the daytime when owners are not home and the dogs are in the back yard.
- I believe having the number of dogs that you can handle and take care of appropriately. People whom are fosters for dogs tend to have several dogs in there homes. Not all of the dogs are their own. We are doing a service to help these animals find homes. We can handle them just fine.
- # of animals in home does not correlate with quality of care given. Those that should be limited aren't going to abide by laws that limit them, a limit would only cause good owners to stop licensing & to feel like criminals in their own home. Most with 3+ are more responsible than the average with 1
- I have 5 dogs that are all very well behaved. Don't discredit people that have multiple dogs and assume they are hoarding. Most of us take better care of our pets than most humans do their own children.
- Most people know if they can only handle 1 - 3. Other people are great with 5 or more.
- You can't limit each household to a definitive number. Many, many households volunteer for animal rescue groups and they cannot be bound by a number unless they are not included in this.
- per household unless citizen can prove that the are fosters and temporarily have extra pet(S) for a period of ?
- I actually don't think the city should determine how many are too many
- Depends on physical space and size of dogs, also capability of owner to care for the dogs. If you can provide them an adequate home and exercise, why does anyone have the right to limit you?
- Shouldn't have to set limits but average price of a dog should comes into play and owners knowledge,
- With 3-4 dogs, one person should be able to control on their own and break up any fights that may occur if educated.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- To me it is not about the number of dogs. Many responsible pet owners have multiple dogs who are well trained, and many have one dog who is not. Expectations should be about training, behaviour, etc. not number.
- in my experience, more dogs equals more noise. dogs also require more care and attention. square footage of the home.
- smaller number = easier to control
- I have had 1 and 2 dogs at different times. I think 2 should be a maximum inner city.
- quality of life for pet, owner and neighbors
- Four seems excessive. It is difficult to maintain training, yard maintenance, and noise levels with each additional dog added.
- Really it depends on the size of home, number of people and type of dog(s).
- I don't believe a limit on the number of pets making a difference to animal health and well-being.
- This really depends on the size of the pet and the ability of the owner to care for them
- I think a limit somewhere between 5-10 allows for pet rescues volunteers to have their own pets plus foster pets.
- It's just a "me" thing. Who am I to say that having a 3rd or 4th dog would be a problem?
- Beyond 3, they can become a disturbance to the neighbors.
- This should not be the city's responsibility
- I don't know how anyone can properly spend the right amount of time with them beyond this.
- walking two dogs and picking up after two dogs is easily manageable more than that I feel it is not. especially when they are running around in an off leash park.
- To ensure animals are under care & control of owner.
- higher numbers are harder to control when off property, greater risk of barking while owners are away (noise for neighbours)
- Dogs need room to move and have to be walked/run. I personally don't think you can properly care for more than 3 dogs. Also, 3 dogs pooping in a yard would get stinky fast.
- I think that there are people who can handle a more than average amount of dogs, and that there shouldn't be a hard limit on number of pets as long as the owner can properly care for them.
- Illegal puppy mills can hinder the ability to properly take care of each animal.
- Cost and the ability to provide proper socialization and attention.
- There is no logical reason to own more than two dogs, and the only reason for that is so they have each other for company
- We have to be careful because some people are fostering animals and that would be different - don't enforce the number 'rule'.
- This is very specific depending on size of dog, size of home and size of yard
- Dogs are very active and it's not fair to the dog if the owner has too many pets to give enough time for activities & walks to each.
- I think that number can vary based on the willingness and ability of the owner to provide proper care and training.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't feel this is a fair question. Some households can maintain multiple dogs without issue, where some can hardly handle one. I don't believe it is fair to set limitations here. If an owner is responsible, they should understand their capacity.
- 1 or 2 are great. Some dog people are really good at training and keeping their dogs happy and healthy, these people can handle more. Once over that, I am concerned for health and sanitation
- As long as there are responsible adults in the household to take care of the pet, their needs, proper exercise, there really shouldn't be a limit. 2 is plenty considering the costs of owning a pet.
- We have one dog and have considered possibly having 2 as a maximum at some point. I feel 3 or more is inappropriate in an urban environment and selfish.
- A responsible breeder may have puppies, young adults, other dogs being shown either by themselves or for others, adults and usually a couple of pets. This often equates to 8-15 dogs. It is perfectly feasible for this many dogs to be kept in one household and be cared for in a responsible manner.
- There are a lot of times one of the dogs is getting elderly and they bring in a third for the dog that is going to be left behind when the elderly one goes. They may also just enjoy three dogs or more
- We don't need the government interfering in our ability to choose how many dogs we can have but if you set the limit to 5, that shouldn't cause very many people to be out of compliance and would prohibit hoarding. Growing up, we had 4 dogs in our house and it never caused anyone any problems.
- A responsible owner can well look after multiple dogs and an irresponsible owner can not properly take care of a single pet so it should be up to the owner how many pets they choose to have so long as they are well cared for. It should not be up to the city to make that decision on their behalf.
- Because we live in a crowded city I do not believe the majority of people have the house, yard space or income to properly provide for more than 2 dogs. It's not fair to the dogs.
- They do better with a buddy
- I am a registered breeder of purebred dogs with the CKC and under federal regulations.
- 3 dogs are good enough for a pet home. However, if a person is passionate about dogs, example a breeder then they can have more as long as they can accommodate appropriately.
- The quality of care to each dog, training, good manners for polite canine citizens is more important than number. Responsible pet owners make sure their dogs are trained, exercised safely, contained indoors and out, well-cared for. Irresponsible pet owners can have one dog who is worse than six.
- Three of your own big a possible dog sitting situation can possibly arise for family members.
- I don't think a reasonable number can be labelled to fit everyone. I show and breed dogs and so I may have more than 2-3 at some points. But they are trained and I work with all of them
- Responsible owners and breeders should not be limited. Puppies under the age of 4 months should not be included in the total number per household. Bylaws with heavy fines targeting irresponsible behaviour such as not picking up waste, running at large, barking are a better alternative.
- If the household is able to contain them safely and hygienically then it shouldn't matter how many dogs you are allowed to have.
- There shouldn't be a limit on the number of dogs so long as the bylaws are followed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I feel 2 is adequate for the average pet owner. They need to be walked and worked with to insure their well being
- I am a hobby breeder that stands behind my sale agreements and is always willing to take back any dog I have produced. There needs to be an allowance for temporary increases in animals due to new litters or (rarely) dogs returned to breeders.
- I think the number varies based on the experience of the owner and level of responsibility. For example, you can have a household of 7 dogs of which all are trained, don't bark etc and you can have a household with one dog who is left out all day, barks non-stop etc.
- People should own the amount of dogs that they can afford to care for. Serious dog sport people own dogs at different life stages - puppy, young adult, peak career, mid-career, retired senior, etc.
- Number of dogs owned has no bearing on responsible ownership. A person can own just one dog and be irresponsible.
- There can be instances where people own 2 dogs and then foster dogs. Four dogs in a household I see as manageable even as a one person household as long as the owner is responsible-maybe City should have an owner class on proper pet ownership
- Responsible ownership is about care provided, numbers have zero relation to this.
- I don't feel there is a reason to restrict the number of dogs per house. I think 99% of people have a pretty good idea of how many dogs they can comfortably fit in their house/yard, depending on their situation.
- Numbers do not indicate responsible ownership. Do not put a number on it if you cannot enforce it. If numbers are used for profiling then define the profile instead and be prepared to enforce it.
- As long as your dogs are cared for, healthy and your yard is not filthy and smelly it should not matter how many dogs you have. Some people have dogs and also foster so there may be a higher number of dogs at any given time. Restricting will only cause more dogs in shelters.
- Too many ppl have animals they can't afford. Noise issues, waste issues. Exceptions should be made for breeders but only up to 12 (?) dogs or so for a brief period of time. No hoarding or breeding large quantities of animals
- Many reputable breeders are able to properly maintain a larger number of dogs for a successful program. Some pet owners do not adhere to the same humane rules as reputable breeder. The city could have a breeder registry so that CKC registered breeders are identified and allowed more dogs.
- For regular pet people 1-2 dogs is probably lots but especially in and surrounding Calgary there are many responsible and reputable breeders that would be severely inconvenienced if there was to be a limit put on how many dogs you can have.
- As long as the dog is Registered, tested, trained (responsible owner/breeder) shouldn't be an issue.
- Circumstances vary. Breeders and fosters number of dogs vary from time to time. As long as the dogs are kept in a safe environment and not a nuisance to others it should be discretionary based on the circumstances. Also said household must have the ability to care for and house the dogs safely.
- 3 for pet home and more if a rescue or a breeder

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Hoarding cannot be tolerated. I believe a person's skill level must be considered. Not everyone is capable of managing multiple dogs. Some are incapable of managing 1 dog. Responsible ownership needs to be emphasized. Reputable breeders need to be able to care for their charges and returns without fear.
- I think it depends on the person and their situation if someone can afford to look after and exercise properly. Numbers don't matter. Someone can have 1 dog confined in a yard parking all day or running loose. That is more a concern to me than numbers.
- As long as owners are responsible and the dogs are well cared for and no signs of abuse or over crowding in the space there should be no limitations.
- It all depends on the household, the owner, is it a rescue, ages of the animals.
- This is how many I have at and could appropriately manage.
- I don't think there should be a limit as long as the dogs are well taken care of.
- It isn't up to the city to determine how many dogs are allowed in a household. As long as the pet owner is responsible and the dogs are well taken care of that's what matters.
- This depends on the owner. 2 would be my limit for most households. However reputable breeders would have to have at least 4. There should be checking done to ensure breeders follow CKC standards for housing.
- Dogs require exercise, grooming, attention and space to roam. If all members of the household work full time it is difficult to meet these needs of the pet. However if the household has the time to devote to caring for dogs then more can be managed.
- I do not think it is the role of the municipality to determine this for citizens. If a person has the resources to care for 5 or more dogs then that choice should be left up to them.
- It is more important the care they get not how many. Some can have 6-8 well behaved and looked after dogs. Others can not look after 1?!
- Each household is different and can manage different numbers of dogs safely, cleanly, while still giving the dogs an enriched life.
- 2 unless you are a breeder
- Dog does not get enough attention if there are too many
- Too many would create too much noise and smell.
- hard question- probably 3-4. Exception should be made for responsible breeders and those who foster. All should be under control and trained.
- If all dogs are being well trained and cared for then the number shouldn't be an issue. It would be beneficial to assess each case individually as one bad apple rots the bunch.
- There are many responsible dog owners with many pets for various reasons (breeding, fostering, etc). They are excellent and responsible owners.
- I think it depends on the owners but it is unfair to limit people's allowances. It has been proven that those with multiple dogs are far more responsible than those in single pet households. So long as individuals are following all bylaws and are responsible in their care numbers should be secondary.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs are costly and require effort and time to care for, feed and exercise. They can be very noisy if just left in the yard. More and more ppl want dogs now, so as a society we have to manage space, noise and waste constraints. Nobody "needs" 3+ dogs. I can see 2 dogs, to keep each other company.
- A lot of people rescue and foster. Six would be my top number. As long as they're well behaved and follow the laws, I don't see an issue. Address individual cases.
- Dogs are pack animals, they thrive in pairs. Should a person have enough resources and time for more than 2 they should be allowed to responsibly own more. Should only be allowed a larger number than 2 if in a house, not apartment or condo.
- Numbers mean nothing. It's about the care and owner involvement with what they have.
- If you are actively involved with your dogs you do different sports with different dogs
- If you have a background in dog behaviour/training then having multiple dogs is a non issue. First time owners and people with no precessional dog background should be capped at 2.
- i know people who rescue dogs and they are good with 4
- I don't think it's the number of dogs- 1 or 2 dogs can cause more of Disturbance in the community then 4-5 well mannered and trained dogs it's not the dogs it's the owners who need to be trained. Some dogs are more catlike and don't bark others like terrier breeds will bark at the wind.
- I think most families can reasonably care for 2 dogs, however some people with additional training (veterinarians, dog trainers etc) should ne allowed exceptions
- So long as licensed and monitored. Not left outside when owner not home so they become bored and barking.
- If you are responsible and can financially care for 5 or more dogs and they are not being a problem then it should not matter how many people have
- 3 is a great choice, a small, manageable amount of dogs. However, this number should not apply to registered Canadian Kennel Club Breeders
- Responsible, licensed pet owners.
- I myself have 4 dogs and they are very respectful. no complaints from Neighbours ever. I am involved in Dog Shows, and I just like the companiionship of my dogs.
- As long as the dogs are not disruptive, and dog waste is picked up, I don't see a problem with up to 3 dogs or possibly more.
- As long as the owner is providing excellent care, ie. feeding, housing, vet check etc and is not being a bother to neighbours etc it is their choice. If I had to pick a number I would say 8 would be considered a good number.
- Anymore than 3 dogs in a home is extremely difficult and costly to handle in a big city. Also proper sanitation can become impossible with more than 3 dogs live in a home. For the owners and other citizens safety, a limit should be in place already.
- There are far too many variables (house location, size, size of yard, breed of dog, size of dog, etc) to put a restriction on numbers. Also it would be impossible for breeders to comply.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Most people can't handle walking more than two dogs, or if you go to the dog park (which I do everyday) you can't look more than two properly.
- This is needed for registered breeders and people who foster. If dogs are taken care of, safe, trained and getting vet care and not running free in the area then having 5+ dogs is not an issue. Licensed
- Two dogs are manageable as pets. More dogs should be allowed if owner is a registered breeder.
- There is no reason for people to own so many dogs, except in the case of a breeder and there should be an exemption for breeders for dogs under a certain age with a business license
- This should depend on the ability of the person to care for the animals. I have had up to 6 dogs and they were all licensed and had vet visits as needed and a large fenced yard to run in.
- The city shouldn't be dictating
- No right to dictate
- I can safely and effectively house train and manage 8 plus dogs. My neighbor can't handle even 1.
- Depending on the home, a breeder for example, could easily have 5+ dogs in their home as a responsible breeder will look after any of their dogs as needed.
- Responsible breeders have litters of puppies and at those times they might have 15 plus dogs. But once the puppies are placed in homes then the numbers go down.
- I have a problem with limits since it's too broad an idea. Some people can care for one pet properly, while someone else can easily manage 10 or more.
- depends on the owner's ability to properly care for. And by care for i mean give the animals proper care, cleanup after and ensure they don't bother others. Those things are more important than the number of animals.
- I don't feel number matters when each animal is being taken care of and all needs being met.
- I think any more than 3 especially if large breeds would become. Overwhelming
- The number of dogs alone isn't what's important here. It's how they are cared for and whether the owner is being responsible with them!
- Depends on the size of dog as well as the person's ability to properly care for multiple dogs. The number shouldn't count.
- Reasonable to manage and care for 3 or less
- Responsible breeders are often working through generations of dogs for breeding to improve the breed, it also can force people to get rid of senior dogs or restricted to help with fostering dogs. Number of dogs does not mean neglect, many people can handle multiple dogs. Property sizes vary too.
- 4 is an okay number for the average household if there is a caretaker around to ensure proper time is spent with dogs. This does not apply to breeders or rescues who dedicate all their time and livelihoods to dogs, I think experienced people could accommodate more animals.
- This question is difficult to answer because some households should not even have 1 dog. Others can handle (properly care for - food, vet care, attention, training ect.. and with no effect on neighbours) more than 5.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- animals are a part of life; breeders and others usually have vets involved and take care of animals; people pay taxes on home
- Depends on living situation
- N/A depending on the persons competency and how well the pack gets along I don't think this applies is in anybody's business.
- More, if a temporary situation ( less than 3 months) such as caring or fostering.
- Number is irrelevant if animals receive proper care & housing.
- The number of dogs someone owns does not determine the quality of care. It's a personal choice that should be left up to the dog owner.
- If they are responsible why should it matter how many dogs are present in the household.
- As long as your dogs are well kept, no need to limit the number of dogs
- MD I'd Rockyview limits 3 dogs and this is a rural municipality
- 4 - 5 adults with an addition of 1 litter of puppies twice/year that will be rehomed for show or companion. Greater numbers than these could result in inadequate attention and care.
- I dislike living in a nanny state. I think the City can investigate when there are complaints instead of blanketing a city of a million+ people with more rules.
- The number of dogs in a household is irrelevant--people can be irresponsible with 1 dog and responsible with 10. The criteria is responsible dog management.
- I think it really depends on the size of a household vs size of the dogs, so I said 3.
- Three, unless they are a registered breeder with valid Canadian Kennel club registration and and all dogs are registered with ckc and licensed with municipality.
Most pet people cannot properly look after more than 3 dogs.
- If you are a responsible dog owner the number of dogs does not matter. If you are a responsible breeder the number of dogs does not matter. If you look after your animals properly - the number is irrelevant.
- One alone would be lonely.
- THis is for a CKC registered household. We often keep our breeding male or female until they die from old age as they have become a part of the family. We will then have two or three younger pups to add to our breeding program
- There is not one acceptable answer to this question. "Reasonable" and "household" are both highly subjective. Some owners are capable of managing numerous dogs responsibly without creating any disturbance. Others are not.
- Many responsible owners manage multi-dog households very well, at the same time being respectful of neighbours. Limiting the number allowed does not guarantee an owner will look after the health and welfare of their animals and be respectful of neighbours. Not fair to limit!
- I do not like that the government wants to tell me how many pets..of any kind.. I "should" have. Stop it.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It should be up to the individual, what would be as reasonable and the circumstances. As well as being kept on the owners property. An example: 6 Yorkies in a mansion is very different than 6 Great Danes in an apartment which is different than 6 Golden Retrievers on five acres.
- This doesn't matter at all you cannot put a number on it. What matters is that the number of dogs are being cared for... I have seen people with 6 dogs very well cared for and 1 dog badly cared for.
- It actually should depend on the owners and how responsible they are.
- The majority of people with more then 2 dogs are going to be experienced dog owners .
- I think the current bylaw is acceptable. As long as they are registered and accounted for.
- For small dogs no more then 10 for bigger or medium size dogs no more then 4
- Every household is unique and should be allowed to determine what is a suitable number. I own two, and more than two wouldn't be suitable for my household. They might be for someone else, however.
- If people are responsible owners, can properly care for theirs dogs, and are respectful of their neighbours, it should not matter how many they own.
- With the exception of foster care, I think it is difficult to provide an adequately healthy and enriching life for more than three dogs at a time.
- It's should be on individual basis. It should depend on dogs behaviour is. If I can control 20 dogs and not have issues. This should be fine. If people can't control one dog then they shouldn't have one.
- I believe there are many owners who can reasonably handle 5+ dogs better than many owners who only have one dog. Every complaint should be on a case by case basis.
- This all depends on ownership. Good responsible owners should not suffer for bad owners
- Owners choice
- Most dog owners will have 1-2 dogs, some small dog owners will have more.
- If the family is providing proper care and exercise for their dogs and are not breaking any noise bylaws, the number should not matter.
- Dog owners walk behind my house and by the time there are 3 to 4 gathering, there can be 8 to 10 dogs running around. A dog pooped 5 feet from the owner and he did not pick it up, too busy visiting.
- We own three well behaved dogs and have had as many as 8 when we foster. I don't believe that there should be a limit as long as the dogs are not suffering
- Friends on individual circumstance. Some people should have 0.
- I think as long as you can care for them properly, vet them and feed them a healthy diet then it should be allowed.
- If they are polite and not causing issues with the neighbors as well. There is no problem.
- The economy, the amount of work and maintenance a pet needs
- Many people are responsible and knowledgeable in pack behaviour and have multiple dogs without issues.
- License Breeders should be exempt. Otherwise 4 should be okay.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Some people can manage larger numbers of dogs. I personally have 10. Some people can't even manage 1 dog. It comes down to the proper knowledge of dog care and their needs as well as caring that they aren't nuisance to neighbours
- That's up to the individual(s) who live there, and it shouldn't have anything to do with the government.
- Number of dogs does not determine conditions dogs live in or behaviour of dogs.
- I would consider a 3 dog limit to be for most pet owners. Most people would have the time/finances to train and raise and provide adequate veterinary care for 3. There should be a separate designation for breeders of CKC registered dogs that would allow for increased numbers on a case by case basis
- It is highly dependent on what an individual is able to provide, not only financially but in the way of time, training, enrichment etc
- If they are well behaved and not a nuisance people should be allowed multiple dogs. One dog can cause more problems than multiple dogs can if the owners aren't responsible
- I don't feel the dogs will get proper care and attention when there is more than 2 per home.
- I appreciate that Calgary doesn't currently have a dog limit.
- I do not support dog limits. This does not ensure the dogs are well cared for or well behaved. As long as you have adequate space and can properly care for your dogs a limit should not apply. Studies have shown that limits do not ensure responsible dog ownership.
- Responsible owners who can provide the proper care and who license their dogs should be able to have as many dogs as they want.
- I think the current rule is reasonable
- If there is enough space, and the dogs are respectful, trained well and taken care of, they are fine with 3 dogs.
- If you can afford to keep your dogs and provide care and everything they need than they should be allowed to own up to five. And if you're a breeder you would have more than five dogs as well.
- every owner has a different number of dogs that they can reasonably care for appropriately. A working person the is at work 12 hours a day should probably have none. A couple that works form home and sets their own hours could care for 5 or 6, without the neighbours realizing they have that many.
- whose business is it how many dogs someone has? mind your own business
- We have 4dogs we live next to an offleash and walk min.1hr. 2to3 times a day
- For many reputable breeders the need to keep breeding stock is a nessecity. Good reputable and ethical breeders live in cities and the ability to continue to preserve these breeds means breeders and dogshow exhibitors will need to keep more pets in the city of Calgary
- Breeders should have a license and annual CHECK of their kennel/set up to ensure the number of dogs and licenses are equal. This includes neuter and spaying. This will ensure proper breeders are breeding under city rules.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on the circumstances and also the amount of care they have for their animals. Lots of rescues are put into the same home and therefore it should be up to owner. Responsibility is up to the owner and if not taken care of them they be removed and/or surrendered.
- More than that and they become a pack and their behaviour changes.
- Many people have at least 1 dog, nice to have a companion for that dog as most dogs are left at home for 8+ hrs a day.
- No household needs more than 2 dogs ... any more than that and they should be considered a shelter or breeder.
- Really after 3 I would assume your a dog breeder or trainer of some kind. It takes a lot of work to take care of that many animals. After 3 I would wonder if a person/couple can take care of that many dogs.
- I think the average household should be allowed 3 without question however an individual working in the dog industry (breeder, trainer, performer) should be allowed more. Definition of "working in the industry" means achieving income through dogs.
- The "reasonable" number differs from household to household. One person can manage 30 dogs, while another struggles to keep one under control. Personally I know what my limit is and I won't cross it. If the dogs are becoming a problem, then the owner needs to be addressed.
- I have 4, all are well cared for and loved like family. Restricting the number won't stop bad behavior or animal hoarding. It just penalizes people like myself. Some owners are not responsible at all
- 2 for sure, but perhaps 3 depending on size of house.
- Problem is not how many dogs a person should have. It's how capable they are of properly caring for the number of dogs they do have. Each person has different capacities. Some people can take great care of 6+ dogs, while others can barely take care of 1.
- Care of pets should be the deciding factor on how many can be kept. I've seen people with 6 pets take better care of their pets than some people with only 1.
- As long as there is responsible ownership, and the dogs are appropriately cared for, there shouldn't be a limit.
- Number shouldn't matter as long as the dogs are being humanely cared for and that owners are following the bylaws including registration.
- As long as the dogs are well cared for why is it the city's business about what's going on in someone's home when they are following laws and maintaining a clean and manageable household. The amount of dogs that one person can manage varies per person.
- Any number of animals depends on the ability of meeting the animal's physical and mental needs. Some family's can only do this for 2, some can provide for 5.
- The number should be reflective of the CARE the pets are receiving. I know folks with 4 or 5 dogs that are INCREDIBLE human parents and very responsible.
- Honestly a number won't dictate how well those pets healthy, mental health are taken care of. It's education on what animals in general need.
I have multiple dogs and I know each one needs a certain thing to make them happy in life. So I meet those needs

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- In regards to barking, mess that may smell if not regularly cleaned up I think 3 is reasonable
- For the average pet home this is plenty
- This is for big dogs as more than this becomes a pack.
- The amount of cats allowed per household in Alberta is 6. I strongly believe it should be the same for dogs given that the owner is responsible. Additionally, for small breeders I believe they should be allowed to house their dogs in their homes.
- I expect no limits on pet ownership from the city and for enforcement to be related to noise and safety only.
- As long as all animals are properly cared for it shouldn't matter!
- Not too many, enough for one person to handle while out walking.
- If the dogs are cared for properly then the number is irrelevant. ONLY if the dogs are not getting proper care should the number be a concern.
- I have 6. I'm not sure it benefits the city to have a cap on number of dogs in a household.
- Only fair for the dogs to have ample room and hygiene.
- Most household have 2 people. 2 people with 2 well trained dogs each should be very easily manageable.
- There are many responsible owners who own multiple dogs and have the ability to adequately care for them. Responsible preservation breeders come to mind for this 5+ rule as well.
- Responsible people can control their dogs. Humans that are involved with dog fighting don't care about the dogs. Those are the people you need to go after and leave the responsible breeders / owners alone
- I think it should be based off what someone can handle, and as long as the animals are cared for I don't see it as a problem
- I have worked in animal control, it is about HOW someone cares for their pets, not the numbers.
- Each home is equipped to hand different amounts of dogs. If the dog is tiny (Yorkshire terrier) than multiple dogs are viable, if that same house has Irish Wolfhounds, then the numbers would be less. Some households are breeder homes, and could have a litter of puppies, where does that fit?
- If you are a dog breeder you should be able to apply for a kennel license
- I support reputable breeders. And those breeders have multiple dogs to ensure their program is diverse and improves the breed. Backyard breeders tend to have one or two dogs, with no concern of strengthening the breed. This results in more dogs in shelters. Rescue/Foster owners may have 5+ aswell
- N/a
- up to 3 dogs, but at least 1 has to be small. no more than 2 large+ dogs.
example: 1 pomeranian and 2 border collie.
example: 2 labs.
- With exception of a Ckc registered breeder I think 4 is a reasonable number.
- Depends on the house and owner. Typically, tough to be master for more than two pets without professional backing.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 2 dogs is a good number in the city gives a playmate as well as owner not being overwhelmed by dogs
- It depends on the size of the dog(s) and also if the owner is taking proper responsibility and providing care for all the dogs.
- The reasonable # of dogs is dependent on the care received. Some people can care for one pet, and some people can care for multiple pets. The number of pets does not define standard of care. Owners must provide care per their law, regardless of quantity of pets.
- I think more dogs require more open space and could potentially be very noisy.
- It is less about the number and more about ensuring proper care and training is provided
- Hard to say because the size of house matters and so would finance
- We currently own two dogs. One of them suffers from separation anxiety and needs to have another doggie companion to help keep her balanced. In a few more years, we'd like to bring in another puppy so that when it's time to let our older dog go, our younger one isn't left without a companion.
- Depends upon the size of property and ability of owners to care adequately for these animals and the reason why they have so many.
- Considered reasonable in many towns, cities.
- Dogs are easy to care for and look after their own bathroom responsibilities outdoors. Dogs act more domesticated than other animals.
- This depends on competency. I think after 2 dogs people should have to take a pet safety course to add more dogs
- Depending on how many people live in the house. Are these sport/working dogs? A lot of people like myself have more than one competition dog. But I also live with a roommate who has a dog as well
- People should not be limited to the number of pets they can have so long as they are financially capable and the pets are well cared for.
- I don't think anyone should dictate how many dogs I can own. Some people can't care for the one dog then there are others that are amazing handling and caring for a dozen. It's really a matter of time, space, dedication and finances.
- Unless a recognized breeder 3-4 is all most can handle
- Most responsible dog owners I know have at least 3 dogs. They attend many activities and events with their dogs, and it is a lifetime hobby. There is usually an up and coming pup, a working dog and one or two retired team mates. They are not house pets that sit around all day, but provide therapy.,
- This all depends on size of dog breed and training. 5 well trained Great Danes will have less of an impact than 5 barking un-socialized Yorkshire Terriers. Numbers nor size should be a factor rather the impact on the neighbourhoods.
- Responsible caretaking of animals should be the only restriction
- I think this number should be based on how many the individual person is able to care for. 5+ dogs in a crappy house is not equal to a home where the dogs may do sports, activities, well fed and vetted.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The number of dogs doesn't have a reflection in whether or not you are a good dog owner. If u suck at dog care you'll be just as bad with one animal as you are with more
- This is if they are strictly pets. Don't know how to evaluate for breeders.
- It's up to the owner to decide how many they can look after well.
- Three is a reasonable number for a household to adequately look after
- Not sure anyone needs more than 2 dogs
- in an average home 3 dogs is more than plenty. Average being a home with a backyard or outdoor space suitable for a dog.
- Each household is different. If the animals are cared for and the owners follow all the other rules, I don't see why the city should have a say in how many pets a person has.
- I believe the average household can handle 2 at most, even the most active families would have difficulty handling more than that, aside from some minor exceptions.
- A maximum of 2 to accompany each other if u can afford more then they should provide their notice of assessment. These will prevent owners to own what they can afford like owning a credit card but spends more than how much they make
- I can't say to that. An amazing dog owner that has well-behaved/socialized dog could have lots and be fine. It's the inexperienced or ignorant dog owner where one dog is too many...:but how does that get monitored? And as long as noise and smell are kept in check -?
- It should be a personal choice. If someone can care for and not neglect more dogs than another person, then why would we deny a home for the dog? Too many in shelters.
- A person can care for 5 or more dogs fine while his neighbor may not care for his one dog. We cannot base owner ability by number of pets alone.
- Reasonable number to be able to spend quality time on them.
- 3 seems to be a good limit to how many a person can control at once. It's not too many for either small or large breeds (given the person has the space).
- There should not be a limit, each case varies. I have a huge yard and am home all day so I can manage 6 dogs and care for them properly and ensure their needs are met. Limiting the number of dogs won't help ensuring their needs are met, setting a limit has no use.
- For breeders, I think it is perfectly reasonable to have 5+ dogs as that is their income source. I think as long as they don't make too much noise, it's perfectly fine. I don't think there should be any restriction
- Depends on the resources and time you have to care for them and train them. If you have 5 well behaved and well cared fir dogs it isnt an issue. If you have one dog tied up outside or that bites people, its an issue.
- It depends on the person in question, I like to have 3 dogs at a time, they wear each other out and they're not lonely. Then there's reputable breeders that usually have 3-5 breeding stock plus eventual pups. If the animals are well cared for and UTD on vaccinations I don't see a problem
- 5+ is excessive for the average household, but as some that competes in dog sports, 3 feels limited at times

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- However many are loved and cared for properly.
- This is ambiguous. This depends on the individual and their household, what they can afford and what they can manage.
If the limit is 1 and I want to foster another dog, what happens then?
- I know 2 responsible breeders who house more than 5 dogs and they are well cared for and no complaints from neighbours or issues to that nature. If monitored and rules enforced when necessary no reason as to why 5 or more dogs is unreasonable.
- In the city - makes sense due to ability to ensure they get proper exercise, noise issues, cleanliness issues
- Personally I don't believe the number of dogs is necessarily the issue. If they are receiving great care and well looked after why should there be a specific number. My children all have their own dog which is great for teaching responsibility And greAt therapy to help boost moods
- It's not the number of dogs, but the behaviour and actions of the dogs and dog owners.
- Every home is different. Some cant take proper care of one dog, others take amazing care of 10.
- I believe people should be allowed to have more lenient restriction if they are properly able to care for and manage their dogs. There should not be a cap on how many animals per house hold if they are well kept. Should not concern anyone if the animals aren't problematic
- 5 tiny dogs are entirely reasonable for some owners, while even 1 may be overwhelming for another. A household may be a 350 sq ft condo, or a 5000 sq ft house. So many variables to restrict by 'household'.
- Although a household may be financially or intellectually able to handle more than four dogs. In an event of emergency or situation, 1 person may be able to still handle 4 but not more than 5. Also wonder if size of environment can be a factor.
- Dogs have evolved to play in pairs and not groups, thus allowing even numbers makes the most sense. Exceeding 4 dogs requires massive time commitments to ensure all dogs needs for care and adequate stimulation are met, unreasonable for most people.
- Depends on size of dog, size of property, number of dogs a person wants, if a person is involved in dog activities-
- As long as the animals are well cared for, someone should be able to have as many as they can handle. This number can differ between people due to finances / time / energy so I don't think there should be a limit. If someone can only handle 1, no problem. If someone else can have 12 happily, that's ok
- I don't really think this question is appropriate. It depends on if an owner is capable of properly caring for multiple dogs. It is only unreasonable to have multiple dogs if you can't take care of them properly.
- I have a large he
And my dogs have always been licensed and I am a registered breeder with CKC so when my bitch had Uppies I would have as many as 5 or more with my two or three adults and the puppies until they went home. I have [personal information removed] never had a complaint and

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 3 dogs in a home allows for all dogs to get the attention they need and the training they require. However I don't think it should be based on home I think it should be based on square footage. I would never allow 3 dogs in 500 square feet but 3 dogs in 1500 seems reasonable.
- I currently have three dogs. I spend a lot of my time and energy providing adequate exercise and activities for them. If I owned more than three dogs, the quality of all of our lives would suffer.
- too many and it gets difficult to control. neglect may result.
- As long as dogs are well cared for, rules are followed and yard and house is clean then it's no one else's business.
- If you can care for the animals (spay/neuter/vaccinate/vet visits) and you're not annoying your neighbors, go for it.
- 1-3 dogs seems reasonable in a household in a big city. Size of home would definitely impact the number of dogs, smaller the home, less pets. More pets means more possibility of bothering neighbours whether dogs are in the house barking or outside in the yard. We must live together as a community
- I think if you can properly care for dogs and can licence and have their shots than the number of dogs are up to you. But if you do not licence or provide medical care for them you should not have them.
- Two hands, two dogs. You need room and money to care for them appropriately. Two are company for each other, but more and you may have fights.
- pending on how many 'responsible' pet owners in the house I don't believe one person can manage two dogs at one time. Dogs have their own minds and agendas and people don't always want to listen or can not get the animal to listen
- That's enough dogs for them to be company to each other. Any more dogs than that seems excessive.
- For those of us that spend our days and our finances on the multitude of dog sports there are to participate in some of us enjoy having more than 1 or 2 dogs to play at a time,. I have friends in other municipalities that do not license their dogs as they are over the limit, we can license all here
- I do competitive sports, one dog is retired, 3 are active, 1 is a puppy still learning. Why should I be limited in my dog fun if I am responsible by licensing and training them to be the best they can be
- This is a very individual question. There are many people who are incapable of or choose not to care for one dog appropriately whereas there are others who have 5+ dogs that provide exemplary care.
- I don't care about the number, as long as they are cared for. Similar to deed not breed, it's not the number, it's their care.
- This is a slippery slope. I have had multiple pets in the past, and have friends who have multiple pets. Whether it's one or more, they all need to receive the care they deserve. There are plenty of owners of single pets who should not have even one.
- I chose this because this is not a simple question to answer. It totally depends on the household and the family dynamic that exists in the home. Some people should not have dogs at all and some should be able to have as many as they wish.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I live in a duplex and share a wall with a woman that owns 12 dogs for illegal breeding. We have had noise/smell issues with her animals for 2+ years now. She has a court order to keep her dogs quiet, but we continue to hear barking inside and outside our home, and continues to breed illegally.
- For those that foster, having other dogs in the house helps with behavior issues, etc.
- do not cap. judge everyone separately. do not judge everyone the same. just because there are people who abuse, neglect and abandon their animals, does not mean that the rest are all the same. concentrate on the ones that are abusing, neglecting and abandoning their animals only.
- every home can handle dogs differently , a magic number does not guarantee a safe environment. The loudest dog on the block can come from a single dog home while the neighbor has 8 sport dogs and they are never noisy .
- I can't imagine how you would care for more than 3 dogs unless you were a dog daycare and this was your full time job.
- Most yards in the City of Calgary are quite small. Dogs need space to run.
- If they are small dogs maybe 3. Too many dogs can lead to excessive barking from our experience.
- As long as they are well cared for and kept inside I have no concerns about the amount of animals
- If the person pays property taxes and owns their home, no one should be able to dictate how many pets they own, as long as they have the means to take care of them and are not abusing them.
- In some households three dogs would even be too much. I think three is a reasonable number unless you have a dog sitting/grooming/shelter business. Dogs certainly play off of each other so when they are excited three can be a lot for one house. This is simply my opinion.
- I have 9 dogs I'm responsible for and they are well cared for see the vet 1 time a year for check ups ect , I don't leave waste When I'm walking them ect
- I don't believe there should be a cap on how many dogs in a household but their should be better regulated laws on backyard breeding
- some dogs are more manageable with a dog companion and some are family offspring with puppies that need to be included, etc..
- We have responsible breeders in Calgary who may have 5+ dogs
- Who cares? As long as they're healthy and the owners are respectful to neighbours, it's not your decision to limit who owns what kind of animal, whether they have kids, or 25 vehicles.
- If the dogs are properly cared for housed exercise it is not someone else's concern within reason how many dogs there are within a household some people aren't able to look after one properly others can look after half a dozen without any issue.
- this is a number that is easier controlled as in a pack things can get out of control
- Depends a bit on the number of people in the household. Don't think that it is manageable for one person to keep control of more than 2 dogs consistently.
- Everyone can be different. Time, cost, resources , training, behavioral work etc, food, vet attention/cost, attention all dictate the ability of the household to care for the pets properly. Unlike children where nature limits the number that you can have and care for. A limits is needed 6 perhaps?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Please allow me and my pets to enjoy our lives in peace. Our neighbours have never complained.
- I think u should be able to have as many as u can responsibly handle.
- maximum 2 large dogs. And 1 small dog. I say this because if you have a large dog you will need a friend for it, and if you have two large dogs you don't have a lapdog, someone might want a lap dog to cuddle. But for sure no more than two large dogs and no pit bulls .
- It depends
- More dogs would be considered ok if the person is a dog walker or their dogs don't bark excessively and upset the neighbours.
- This should not be an absolute number. A distinction needs to be drawn between animals owned and fostered. And, perhaps a ratio of adult:pet residents in the household.
- Most people have only one dog. Allowing up to two dogs seems reasonable. It becomes more difficult to control more than a couple of dogs.
- I believe if you are a responsible dog owner (able to take care of the dogs, train them, keep them under control, etc.) you should be able to have as many as you choose. Why should someone else dictate how many dogs you can have if you are a responsible dog owner & your dogs are not a problem.
- Depending on the size of the dogs, but mainly for large to x-large dogs, 4 is a good number. Especially if the one owner takes all 4 dogs out to an off-leash park at the same time, you want to make sure the owner is able to monitor all at the same time.
- I have 4 dogs in my house. Me and my family are more than capable of handling this many dogs. I believe the reasonable number of dogs per household is subjective and should not be dictated.
- I think pets in the home are dirty. I dont like it because their feet are bare on public roads and their bums are dirty. I prefer people dont have dogs or cats in their house. I believe that animals need space to roam and the city is too confined for them. I think a small shedless dog might beok
- I don't care how many dogs someone has as long as they aren't being neglected or bothering neighbors
- a second dog is fine for companionship and playmate if you have the means to properly care for 2 dogs
- depends on the size of the dogs. One person should be able to control all dogs when on/off leash.
- depends on living conditions - back yard or condo - size square feet - and also how many are allowed to be legally walked at once. /expense of proper care
- Three is a manageable amount of dogs to have. I do think that those who currently have more should be grandfathered in so they don't have to get rid of any pets
- It depends on the household and their financial ability to be able to provide and care for the dogs, this includes vet care.
- 2 is plenty foe any household.
- It depends on the owner and familys skill set by saying one we effect rescues and breeders. Some people can handle non and somenfar more

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It will vary for each person, however reasonable should be based solely on the needs being provided for said dogs. Some households have unique living arrangements that have multiple dogs under one roof but different owners. Some are rescues, some are working dogs, it varies too much to number.
- How many dogs in a household should absolutely not be decided by other people unless that specific household has had animal-related charges in the past.
- Dogs are a benefit to those they live with and interact with. Responsible pet owners with the financial resources to do so can easily take care of three dogs.
- concentrate on the people who abuse. look into the off-leash park emails on the city of calgary, a woman took puppy to off-leash park, puppy was overwhelmed and shut down, woman grabbed puppy and threw him on the ground. that is who you would be looking for, not people who take care of their dogs
- This is a difficult one to answer as those of us who are well experienced can train and control up to 6 dogs, however, I have met plenty of dog owners who shouldn't be allowed to own any as they are totally clueless on canine behavior and treat them as "children" ( poor dog).
- I really feel it depends on the household. How big is the property? How much yard space do they have? I don't like having catch-all restrictions unless it's very clear about the circumstances (for example, maybe the restriction is based on square footage of property, etc. - and income for care).
- As long as the owner is responsible, the number should not be restricted. However, knowing most people are not ideal pet owners I think 3 is a reasonable limit. Also condos should not be able to restrict size of dogs or number beyond bylaw limits - restrictions should be behaviour based only!
- It depends on the family; are they able to maintain a clean environment, afford proper nutrition and veterinary care, exercise and training, license their dogs and avoid the pets being neighbourhood nuisances. Some homes should only have one dog, whereas others may be able to properly care for 4.
- Most dogs do better with companion and many families have 1 big dog and 2 small
And our backyards in Calgary city limits are not big enough for more than 3
- A reasonable amount of dogs is three unless your dog has had puppies. This is so you can provide all there needs and so the dogs won't be overwhelmed by each other, have the resources they need to be happy and feel free to be themselves.
- I feel when you get into multiple dogs (3 or more) control and training tend to be an issue
- In a home with no children and perhaps one or 2 adults (or more if roomates), 3 dogs is not a difficult number of canines to care for if well enough behaved and not rowdy in nature.
- Depends on individual house hold, income, ability to care properly ie. spay/neuter, vaccinate, medical care, etc.
- For inner city living lot sizes are small and there should be a size restriction. For those with acreages or living outside of the city, you could have more dogs as long as in both situations, you have the financial means to support and care for them.
- Most people cant even control the one dog they have let alone two with then pack up on every dog as they are not trained in the first place

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I actually think one dog is enough, but two seems like a reasonable limit.
- People should be allowed to have as many dogs as they want as long as they are all cared for
- I considered this question to be the same as having children. Any more than 4 is too expensive and is much more challenging.
- 4 dogs allow owners to foster dogs
- Dogs can be intrusive to neighbours, both indoors and out. Three is a reasonable number to keep under control and avoids developing a pack mentality.
- For the least responsible owner
- I think it depends on the household. Very few people actually manage a single dog properly, even less can manage two properly, and it takes great animal skill to properly manage 3+. But, it can be done by educated/trained individuals and so the city cannot apply blanket rules.
- Dogs are being allowed to overrun a lot of natural areas in the city. Decreasing the number of dogs per household might at least help to address this (as the city does not enforce existing laws).
- We have seen that most people can't control more than one dog be it charging fences as people walk by or barking at all hours of the day or night. I notice some fences don't seem high enough or strong enough to keep dogs inside and protect walkers passing by.
- Each require individual space and care
- Depending on the size of dog and home 2 would potentially allow for enough space and personal interaction between a dogs and humans. Perhaps dogs like to have a roommate too?
- We have a neighbor with 5 rescues. We already have waaayyyy too many dogs, why are people "rescuing" more from other places!!!! Actually I love dogs & other animals but the contamination & lack of sleep is affecting our health!
- Whatever number someone is able to care for. Some people should not have any pets, while others are capable of caring for many.
- I don't think there should be a limit - it depends on an owner's ability to care for the dogs. Few could handle 5+ dogs but it should be determined by an owners ability to care for the animals. What about individuals who foster dogs?
- Three dogs is outrageous, smelly, noisy etc. Two is pushing it.
I'd like to see dogs banned from the city. They are vicious, kill wildlife, are dangerous to children, and are noisy and affect the peaceful enjoyment of one's property. Dogs should not be allowed outside ever alone on a deck or elsewh
- If all dogs are altered, properly cared for, trained and not bothering your neighbours.
- To allow for better training and following commands. Less is more.
- I think this is a more complicated question then just a number. If you have 8 dogs and they are all well looked after ( i.e annual vet check-ups, neutered and socialized) I would have no issue with that many dogs.
- 1 to 3 dogs is manageable for one person. One individual can manage to walk three dogs at most. I would say it is more appropriate to consider the size of the dog. 1 extra-large or giant dog. 2 medium-sized dogs, 3 small dogs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- More than 3 is irresponsible and often a problem for neighbours. Yards are too small to have more dogs than that.
- The impact of dogs on our City parks is huge. Cause soil erosion, trample vegetation, compact soil, kill mature trees and all vegetation with urine, chase and kill wildlife, push out other stakeholders and groups from using parks which are good for mental and physical health. Ecoli pollute our river
- Depends on the size doesn't it? Your question must be better posed.
- Excepting when a litter is being weaned and moved to new homes
More that two dogs are hard to keep well behaved. They are pack animals and as the pack increases in size I think the pack identifies progressively less with the owner. However, I'm sure there are expert owners who can manage more.
- As long as all dogs in the household are provided reasonable care, including yearly vet examinations.
All animals in the home should be spayed/neutered.
- Define "per household" please. one house...a duplex...a fourplex? If 3/household is that per lot or does a fourplex get to have 12? Are fosters or visiting dogs included in the "household" limit? Can't pick a number unless I know criteria for "household", what about proper breeders vs backyard types
- Dogs require enough room, ideally a yard. Too many could cause a nuisance in the yard.
- How big is the house? is there a yard? How many people look after the animals? Are these large animals? small? well trained? rescued from desperate lives? The law should be kept as is and allow for as many animals as can be responsibly looked after , not a specific number
- The number should be calculated by the number of people in the home looking after the animals e.g. Three animals per person responsible. So six if there are two people in the home.
- Two so they can keep each other company. Two is plenty of companionship for a person. They don't need 3. Three poop a lot more (Hygiene). Three hunt as a pack and put people at risk and other smaller dogs and animals. Why would anyone ever need more than 2 except if they are puppies?
- Limit to 3 to manage noise and space in the yard and waste collection. If people want more than three they should be able to apply to have more where it would be considered on a case by case basis.
- One dog tends to get in more trouble than two dogs. My personal limit would be two dogs but trying to leave some room for people that want more. Three seems to be the most that one person can generally handle at a time.
- Owners should be allowed as many dogs as they can properly provide for. All dogs should be vaccinated, fed, sheltered, exercised, spat/neutered and monitored/treated for behavioural issues.
- It depends on the size of house you have and how much time you have to make sure it's needs are met.
- Likely varies and depends on owners ability and financial and other means to care for the animals. Lots of multi dog/cat/pet households that are 5+ with very responsible pet owners.
- Old dog and a young dog is the farm model. Provides companionship to humans and dogs.
- More than 2 (or 1 large dog) can be an issue for owners to pick up poop after (depending on dog size) and definitely is a problem for owner to control and monitor.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 5-6 for dog walkers. However, ownership should be limited to 3. An additional exception would be for those who are fostering rescue animals.
- Dogs can vary in size, almost all have similar responsibilities. 3 dogs would keep the average owner from getting over-burdened due to unexpected circumstances. It would also be nice if the city mandated that one of those dogs has to be a dog adopted from a registered shelter.
- I understand that dogs are social beings... but to a point. Having more than two dogs (or any pet that is put outside on a regular basis) would result in a serious nuisance to neighbours and likely become a health issue inside the home.
- The number also depends on the size. Nobody needs more than 2 Great Danes. I don't care if someone has 5+ chihuahuas.
- If it is not obvious, pet ownership is a privilege. Anything more than 2 is an irresponsible indulgence that compromises social harmony, threatens health and safety.
- It doesn't matter if you have 1 dog or 5. A person can mistreat 1 dog, while another cares for 5 exceptionally well. If you are worried about anymore than one or two dogs, state that you will do welfare checks on anyone owning more than 2 dogs
- This really depends on the type of household (apartment, house), the size of the lot & yard, the proximity to neighbours.
- It entirely depends on the dog(s), the owner(s), and the location. Perhaps an equation can be formulated that considers size/type of dog, square-footage of dwelling, exterior property, and the owner's history/capabilities.
- Sometimes a dog needs a companion as well.
- This depends, of course on the owners, but having too many dogs leads to the stench of dog poop in people's back yards, which drifts over the fence, and also noise from barking.

Reasonable number of cats' rationale

- Again, dependent on size of residence.
- Cats are not pack animals and prefer a solitary existence. Too many cats affect their standard of living.
- I don't think there should be a specific limit. It depends on the home situation and so many other factors that can't be predetermined. It should be about the owners ability to adequately care for their pets that matters and not an arbitrary number.
- Because cats typically stay inside they would not be a bother to the public.
- As many as can reasonable be cared for by a household. Again, some are perfectly capable of owning quite a few while some should never even have one.
- I'm not really a cat person. I can't imagine someone needing more than 4 cats.
- See above.
- This is hard to say and not so fair to generalize. As long as cats are treated with dignity, respect, have enough of space and all their needs are met, one can have as many cats as they can take care of. You don't control a household's number of children, so the same goes here.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends if they are indoor or outdoor I think. If outdoor, 1-2 because they can be a nuisance to the community. If indoor maybe 2-3.
- I don't think it is okay to necessarily limit people from owning more than 2 cats, but this feels like a reasonable number
- Meow Foundation lets you test your cats with others before adoption. No more than 3 litter boxes per home, svp.
- Cats are easier to care for than dogs, but too many can get out of control. Having more than 4 can become unsanitary in smaller homes, or create a higher likelihood of fights between cats.
- The number of cats should be based on one's financial situation, living environment and space require.
- That they are actually in control of the dogs with them and that they are picking up after their dogs.
- If the cats are being cared for appropriately I do not think the city should be mandating how many cats per household.
- Cats like interacting with other cats
- two cats act as companions when the owner is away during the day (work) or vacation (even with a cat sitter)
- I am not particular on cats in a household as long as they're not in my yard. It's nice they have a friend at 2 and it seems better hygienically to not have a ton of cats.
- See answer above. It doesn't matter how many, it matters whether you let them roam, take care of them, etc.
- More than 3 cats in any household that isn't a breeder seems excessive? If there are more than 3 cats I feel like there is a higher chance for a cat to be neglected or a problem missed.
- making sure that you can afford food/vet bills
- There should not be a limit on how many cats an owner can have, so long as the owner is able to provide a safe and healthy life for the cats
- No More than 8
- 5. I believe the number should be 5, unless the household applies for a special exemption (for example, a breeder)
- Three adult cats is a reasonable amount of animals to keep track of. Again, if the owner is a reputable breeder, there could be times that this number is exceeded.
- I'm a dog person. I don't dislike cats, but I prefer dogs. Again, cats need care and attention. No one needs to have a house full of cats. Two is plenty.
- Indoor environment only.
- Cats tend to be more solitary. A large number of cats in one residence might not be the best idea.
- I do not have any issue with the number of pets - as long as they are being cared for, fed, veterinary, etc.
- Same as above
- Are they taken care of?
I guess it depends on the size of the house

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As above for dogs.
- I have no issues with number of pets if they pets are cared for with proper feeding, exercise, medical, and licensing.
- I had four cats at once in a 2 bedroom apartment, but as I am responsible pet owner they did not cause problems for my neighbours and were all in good health.
- The average house could likely comfortably accommodate this many cats.
- cats come in a variety of sizes and care requirements. Forcing an arbitrary limit is unfair.
- More cats means more chances of unwanted breeding
- As long as the pet is well taken care of, the number should not matter.
- Same as above
- 3-4 cats - the likelihood that someone with more than this does not provide appropriate care/oversight increases when there is more.
- I don't care as long as they're indoor cats that are being cared for properly
- Think of the feces produced,
You should be charging for more that 2 per address!
- Same as above
- Same as above for dogs.
- Cats are smaller & don't require that much space. If indoor only they provide good company for each other. I feel the cost of ownership of 4 cats is probably the same as 2 dogs.
- This is not a limit, just an average number per household.
- Seems like a reasonable and managable number but Calgarian should be allowed to keep as many as they want as long as doing so doesn't negatively impact any other Calgarian and the health and safety of the animals can be maintained.
- As long as the cats are kept inside and well looked after I think it should be up to the individual.
- Same thing with cats. It is the responsibility level of the people who matter not the number of animals.
- Cats are not social animals and often don't bond with other cats so it creates a stressful household. Unless this is a foster situation, two should be plenty.
- Same as above.
- If people can properly take care of their cats and have the resources necessary, who cares how many they have in their house. it's their property and they should be able to do with it what they please.
- If the animals are being well cared for with a healthy environment then it should be up to the individual to determine the number of animals.
- Same as for dogs. Each person should know their limit. If they can't provide the necessities and properly care for their animals, there are laws in place to deal with that.
- Same as above
- The costs associated with owning a cat can get expensive.
- Same as above.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Two cats are plenty (being an owner of 2 cats), unless there is a litter. It allows one to have a cat companion, if needed/wanted.
- Again, as long as they all are being cared for appropriately, why should anyone decide what they can handle but the owners themselves.
- It all depends on the number of the household (humans :) ) the size of house. and even maybe income of household they can provide for that pet. There is no right answer.
- More than that would compromise the ability of the owner to handle them.
- Not a cat owner, cannot say.
- Equal to dogs.
- Unless you have a large household you should not have more than two. They are very independent in nature and need place to breathe. Any more would in my opinion affect quality of life.
- Same as above
- Not necessary to hoard animals.
- 6
- same as with dogs
- Ditto
- As long as people keep their homes clean and pets healthy, I don't care.
- Same as above.
- Have as many as you want, but keep them inside your house and away from me.
- I think this all depends on size of property. Small property - 3 cats max. Larger property - 10ish. As long as cats stay indoors, I don't really care.
- If an individual is responsible, there should not be a limit. Limits are there to control individuals that are not responsible. As long as the cats are healthy and cared for, it should be up to the individual
- Cats are independent creatures and used to roam but nowadays they are confined to inside a house which I consider cruel.
- I think a max of 4 cats or 5 pets in total is reasonable.
- at least the one cat will have a companion..if people are so passionate about cat(s), go volunteer at the shelter(s)..again we live in a city, close confines, not a farm/acreage...
- Cats are highly independent. Truly any number of cats is reasonable if the owner can manage. What is better than a fixed number, is owner testing. If the human can manage 100 cats, go for it. If any of the cats become a neighborhood nuisance, the maximum allowable drops to zero.
- I personally wouldn't want 5+ cats in the house but again it's more about responsible ownership not just number of pets or of a given species.
- 2 cats per one person. Otherwise care and time lacks.
- Will vary by the household, and ensure that cats (pets only) are well cared for, the home is clean and sanitary, and that people and cats are safe. While I would never own more than 1-2 cats, I don't see why someone with the space and time to care for multiple cats shouldn't be allowed to.
- No cats her but same as above

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not a cat person at all so have chosen not to answer. But again it comes down to being a responsible pet owner.
- Since cats use a litter box, more than 2 cats create unhygienic conditions.
- Same as above
- Cleanliness needs to happen.
- I don't believe that this is a fair question. Factors need to be considered including size of house, number of residents caring for the animal, size of yard/exercise area, financial resources.
- No limit
- I don't like them.
- Why do they need more? Less is more.
- Same as above
- Same as above
- Same as above. But spay neuter is important to ensure they don't become an overpopulation.
- One animal also lowers the possibility of unintentional breeding
- Have as many as you want. INDOORS.
- As long as the cats are being properly contained to the owners property, fed, vaccinated, and with vet care there should be no limits. Decisions should be based on quality of care not based on the number of cats in the home.
- Same reasons as above. The number is slightly higher as cats are lower maintenance in terms of exercise and socialization than dogs, and therefore more cats could be properly cared for with the same resources.
- An owner can typically afford the feeding/grooming/veterinary care & licensing fees.
- it isn't the number of animals you have, it is how you care for them.
- As above.
- As long as the animal is well taken care of and not a nuisance, there should be no limit.
- Same number of cats as residents in the household. 2 adults 2 kids 4 cats. Again can apply for more subject the discussions with neighbours.
- It completely depends on the cats and household.
- It is dependent on the individual and what they are able to handle. The animals welfare must be taken care of and safety of the public understood.
- Again as long as they are cared for properly and follow bylaws it shouldn't be an issue
- Cats are more difficult to control and roam.
- These are living creatures and we owe them some of our time.
- After 4 the amount of litter boxes required would be hard to manage
- Don't think this needs to be limited.
- Cats require less hands on attention. ie-cats rarely need to go fir a walk outside every day like that if a dog. Two to three cats is found by experts as ideal and more can cause stress upon other cats
- Cats are easy to care for and can be quite good in a multicastr household.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cats are chill. I don't have them but I know people who have many and they are well loved and cared for.
- Cats like to be the "one in charge".
- Cats need space and are less so pack animals.
- I believe that as long as the members of household can adequately care for those animals they should be allowed to have them, perhaps special permits could be considered for breeders and such. I would put a limit at four but with puppies being exempt
- Depends on the house
- Any more that three would be a challenge
- 3 is enough for one house.
- Depends on any negative affects on neighbors or property value
- same as above for multiple dog homes.
- I'm not sure there needs to be a limit if the cats are kept inside and kept clean, healthy and safe. Again, I think responsible ownership is more important than the number of pets.
- You don't know how the personalities of cats are going to interact so you
Have to be careful 4 is a good number to stop at
- Many people can safely and happily house many cats without any issues. Providing an appropriate environment for animals is totally dependent on the pet and is impossible to limit.
- Two indoor cats is enough, otherwise they start wanting out all the time.
- Same as above.
- Depends on whether the people keep them inside all the time. No need for a cat to be loose outside. Speak from experience.
- Again it depends on the size of the house. I find cats can be messy so too many cats can wreck a house.
- Owners tend not to neuter their cats so less is best.
- While cats are solitary, they can enjoy the companionship of another cat. The house needs to accommodate cat traffic and needs—catification and super highways. Also it starts to cost to keep cats in good health. 3 cat boxes, toys, playtime, as much canned or raw cat food vs kibble. Good vet care.
- Same as above
- No more than 2 more per adult caregiver.
- Allows for breeders/ show animals
- no real comments again taking good care etc.
- Having a pet is a privilege, people should be happy having one. Loose cats kill songbirds. This is a fact.
- Cost factors.
- two cats is enough. There is no reason to have more than two cats per household.
- Cats should not be allowed to "roam free" and be a nuance to neighbors.
- I'm not a cat person.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cats are low maintenance and don't need a lot of space, but their health and hygiene gets more difficult to manage as their numbers increase. Three is as many as most people can maintain.
- Same as above.
- I don't care how many cats are in a household. if there are no complaints and the owner can provide appropriate care it doesn't matter how many cats there are.
- Again depends on the household. I grew up on a farm with over 20 cats! But in a house in the city that's excessive!
- PROVIDED THEY ARE NOT ALLOWED TO ROAM. ZERO CATS IF OWNER THINKS THEIR CAT SHOULD ROAM.
- Cats are more independent and more could do exist in a home.
- If the cats are indoor cats and they are being well cared for, there shouldn't be a limit.
- Dogs or cats should be the same.
- Again as long as they are contained and not disturbing others, who cares?
- I don't really care, but no more than 3 as long as they are kept indoors
- Same as above. You can have 5+ spayed or neutered cats all indoor and licensed. Or you can be my neighbour who has one cat that he lets roam the neighbourhood. Number does not make you a good owner.
- Too many cats on a property can cause problems for adjoining property owners when the cats stray off their residential property to defecate in other people's yards, or dig up other people's gardens. Also there have been too many cases of large numbers of cats living in filthy conditions in homes.
- Easier to keep indoors and under control.
- Same as for dogs
- One, deep on the size of the home, two.
- No reason
- Same as for dogs
- To control the amount in household to prevent over population
- Completely depends on the person, their finances, and the amount of space, etc.
- As above
- See above
- Again in order to provide adequate husbandry and simulation to all cats in ones care takes time and can become costly, especially vetting which is not something any pet owner should ignore. Ppl should live within their means.
- Same as above
- Cats evacuate their bowels indoors, spray if not neutered. If neglected, the house can become very unclean qu
- No explanation just think that's pretty reasonable.
- Same as with dogs.
- Same as dogs
- Depends on how they are kept

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same as above
- Same as above
- If they are indoor cats have as many as you grossly please .. outdoor cats just add to nuisances of the area as to many owners don't have to follow the rules
- Cats are not outside and can live companionably indoors.
- Responsible pet owners should not be limited In number of pets on site as long as bylaws are followed. There is no limit on number of children per household, nor should there be for pets as long as owners show responsibility for their animals behaviour
- Any more than 3 and it's going to be difficult to keep home safe and sanitary.
- two would be my max, why have more? if people want more than 2 then special licenses should be issued and fees increase and yearly inspections to the home and care of the animals.
- If people need more than two cats, they may have some insecurities and embedded emotions of loneliness they need to address with a therapist.
- They really only need 1 other companion but are fine being independent
- 2 is manageable & provide adequate companionship for each other & their humans.
- Depends on size of home and property, level of care and quality of life in the home that the owner is able to provide.
- Can be friendly grouping, siblings, fosters etc but not neglected.
- I don't think we should limit the number of cats per household- if you own your property and have the resources, you should be able to have lots of cats. I also know many loving, responsible owners with 5+ cats (I work in vet med.)
- It's none of the city's business if the animals are licensed and behaved.
- As above
- Same reason as above.
- cats are more solitary animals
- Any number ok as long as they are well cared for, kept inside house or yard, and don't disturb neighbours. Restrictions should only apply to those who have abused cats or allowed them to disturb neighbors (ongoing).
- As long as the amount of space in the home suits the amount of dogs, there should not be a limit as long as the dogs are healthy.
- Same as per dogs
- Quality of the environment & life is the most important aspect of pet ownership.
- As long as they're kept inside, cared for, and house is maintained, it's nobody else's business.
- Seems reasonable. You have other issues if you need more than one cat.
- Cats kill birds
- Same as 5
- The more cats in a home the more likely they let the cats outside. Tey than roam the neighbourhood and poo in our flowerbeds
- Multiple pets usually leads to unsanitary conditions fostering the spread of disease.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Why does anyone NEED more than one cat? They kill songbirds.
- See previous
- Same as above
- if the cats are contained then there is no issue with higher numbers
- As above, I don't think limiting numbers if numbers are being taken care of well helps.
- Well is said 2 for dogs and cats are smaller so 3 seems bout right.
- Same answer as dogs above
- Same as above.
- Similar to above
- Same as above for dogs
- No real limit on that either as long as they aren't outdoor cats as they say.
- Depends on size of residence
- I think more than 3 likely becomes a problem for the cats in terms of space and getting along (unless it is a mother and her kittens)
- Not a cat fan
- see above
- 2 animals of any kind is plenty.
- any number as long as they have a healthy living condition. are well looked after with the proper food, cleanliness and health checks
- Same as above
- As long as they have space to roam and well cared for and the owners are responsible, I see no reason to restrict pet numbers
- Again, provided all of the animal's needs are properly met and their environment is nice and clean, many cats do well in large groups.
- Same as above. It depends on the individual.
- If the owner has been adequately trained and has enough space for the dogs
- As long as they are healthy and the property is clean and the cats are well cared for I don't think it should matter.
- I've met plenty of people who cannot manage 1 dog and met plenty who can easily manage over 20. There are plenty of bylaws in place to address someone not taking care of their dogs. Why punish the ones who are? It won't be the violators who will be affected. Replace dog with cat
- Cats are very low maintenance compared to dogs.
- if the animals are well cared for, have medical treatments when necessary, aren't stressed, this is ok. #'s dont affect quality always. some are overburdened with 1 pet + dont treat their pet well, or someone who has the means to care for 5+ animals well. less cats on the street in my opinion
- Same as above
- As long as they are litter trained and not posing a health risk, cats are pretty low key but I do believe they need to be neutered/spayed so it doesn't get out of hand.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- For a house, in an urban setting, 2 gives a companion to play with, while 3, you will tend to get 2 ganging up on one. I like 2 as a minimum if you have more than 0. 2 is not a limit. I've seen cat foster houses with 6 cats operating well. Limit should be on conditions, not an arbitrary number.
- Don't like cats
- Cats are territorial and will fight. Cats will spray to mark territory. Cats are smelly.
- Same as dog..
- I think it should be a matter for each household to decide the number of cats they wish. I think a maximum of 5-6 is not unreasonable.
- Animals do best in pairs usually but a household should not be limited to 2 IF they are cared for, controlled and loved.
- The natural problems of a litter box, even with the auto ones harder to maintain.
- 1 or 2. Same as above.
- Cats are less needy. They tend to do their own thing and don't encroach on other people.
- A household may very well be properly responsible for half-a-dozen cats... another household may not take proper care of 1. I don't want an arbitrary limit.
- Breeders exist and will have easily at least 6 cats in their place at any given time (2 parents and 4 kittens minimum)
Or some private owners have a cat who has kittens and they keep them all
Private animal daycares also exist
I think there's too much nuance to set a definitive amount
- The size of house, type of house, nor the number of people per household is stated; so an appropriate answer cannot be given.
- Some cats need a buddy but two should be max
- 3 is manageable with indoor cats, indoor cats have better health so not as costly
- Too many cats and smells can be horrendous and cat's are territorial so it's more of a suggested thing depending on the cat
- Cats like all creatures need companionship. Exception 8s when a female has a litter of kittens, then the allowed number should increase until the kittens are weaned.
- Depends on the size of the residence BUT the owner MUST abide by the bylaw and keep them inside. Methinks that the cost of kitty litter would be sky high but it's their choice.
- Again a reasonable number that can be managed.
- Any more and you might become one of those "crazy cat people".
- No reason.
- Depends on the responsibility of the owner.
- Sanitary reasons.
- Let responsible ownership speak for itself. Deal with issues as they arise on a case by case basis.
- Not a cat lover.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on how they are cared for. Ten cats can live together if they have proper litter facilities and appropriate medical care/vaccinations. The problem is that people with mental health issues don't follow the rules. I don't know that responsible owners should be penalized. Should be case by case
- More than 2 cats, may be unmanageable of one dwelling. Can get messy, and unsanitary.
- See above
- People don't seem to keep them indoors.
- Same.
- 1-2, depending on cat. Cats are solitary animals and most cats would actually prefer to live without others - the idea that they "need a friend" is often misguided. Plus, you need one litter box per cat + one - few people would be willing to own more than 2 litter boxes.
- To avoid cats running out the door roaming and getting lost or killed.
- They should be kept indoors.
- Calgary seems to be a place where people with mental health problems end up filling their houses with numerous pets because they know there is no limit.
- Same answer as the above for dogs.
- Most people don't adequately house their cats. Should have, for litter boxes, the number of cats +1 for litter boxes. Also need to be able to monitor for medical conditions and provide veterinary care as needed.
- Same as above.
- People make the mistake of multiple cats for companionship. But cats are not pack animals and are actually stressed by sharing space with another cat. I wish more people were aware of that. They may seem okay, but one way the stress is observed can be obsessive marking of territory.
- It is not about how many cats are in a household, rather, that they are cared for and under control and there is respect for neighbours.
- I often read that there are high volumes of cats in rescue looking for homes. Limiting household numbers to a couple of cats would make it harder for rescue cats to find homes - or the owners would not license their additional cats.
- If they are under control (not bothering the neighbours) and you aren't cranking out kittens every week, you should be able to have as many cats as good animal husbandry practices can sustain.
- I think it is again about providing reasonable care
- Prevents animal hoarding
- This depends on property size and ability of the owner.
- Cats are not social animals. They are okay on their own.
- Safety and hygiene
- Same reason as for dogs
- Same reason here. Maybe 3 cats but definitely not more than that. Cats seem to be the favourite for hoarders.
- Cats are easier than a dog and need less dedicated care and attention.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Similar thinking to the dog number, and again it comes down to being responsible... ideally would want to prevent a hoarding situation.
- Same as above - there is no need for more than that with the mess
- No restrictions as long as they are cared for
- same as above, I think people can self monitor; but hoarding needs to be identified and stopped
- Cats should be registered with the city and kept inside, period. A responsible pet owner will care for 5+ cats as well as 1. And irresponsible pet owners won't. You penalize responsible people by limiting pet ownership because some people are irresponsible.
- The same answer as above
- It depends on the size of the house, but I think two bonded pairs at an absolute maximum for permanent residency is a ton.
- Depends on the owner(s)
- It is dependent on house size, owners capabilities, cat size. We should not be legislating maximums, we should be legislating ownership abilities. You can't care for and manage x amount of cats? You should not be able to have that many.
- 4 is enough for vet bills.
- I don't care on amount. I care on how they are housed. Keep them on your property or on leash and stop the free roaming as it's costing me dearly health and money wise and I don't even own a cat.
- Allows cats to have a buddy while not being an added burden on the household.
- It really depends on the home and who lives there and their management style. For some people 2 cats is too many, for others they can handle 5 or more better than some owners handle 1 pet. It should be up to the home owner as long as cats do not become a nuisance and are kept on the property.
- Cats are not as domesticated as dogs. Dogs are content with the owner(s) as partner and friend. Cats require another cat for companionship.
- Again, if you are mean or a neglectful cat owner, 0 is appropriate; if you're clean, caring and can afford to take good care, number shouldn't matter.
- Depends on a household, but it seems hard to manage a household with more cats - not sure there should be a limit and certainly higher numbers can be cared for well with good planning and lifestyle.
- Three is enough cats to have companionship, and can be kept in a reasonably-sized Calgary household.
- How many pets does a person need?
- Same as above answer
- More than two are justified only when there are kittens.
- Most homes can only really accommodate 2 cats need for space and attention. Perhaps a larger number based on a larger home? More than 2 cats and often they are being allowed to roam the neighborhood and urinate/defecate and hunt.
- Responsible pet owners should be able to choose the number of pets they own.
- See above

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No opinion. Again, as many as the owner can responsibly accommodate.
- Same as above
- See above.
- This is a number which the owner can reasonably manage.
- It completely depends on the size of the household and the owner's ability to care for the cats.
- Cat people are strange, I think even if you made a bylaw limiting number of cats, it's likely to be unenforceable and difficult to even monitor.
- Same as the above. Size of animal/house/yard, all factors to consider. Of course if you're letting your cats outside unleashed all the time, you shouldn't have any at all.
- Shouldn't be the gov't's role to regulate numbers, rather enforce issues when they arise (which has nothing to do with numbers of pets).
- Again 5 or more is just to many
- See above answer.
- As long as a person is financially able to care for their cats, and the animals are living with healthy, safe conditions and are not being nuisances to neighbours, there should be no limit.
- Too many cats leads to unsanitary conditions, financial constraint, not enough proper time spent with each cat to ensure proper behavior training. Noise levels increase and the possibility of dangerous situations increase.
- This should not be dictated by the city.
- Same as above
- If house is clean and pets are healthy. And fixed.
- as long as owners provide adequate care, enrichment, and are not bothering others, there should not be a limit
- again if a person is taking good care of their animals and they are in a clean safe space all is well
- see above answer.
- They are not supposed to roam free so in theory I should never even know who owns cats or not.
- Hygiene.
- Depends on the owner. If you work with cats then I have confidence you know what you are doing. The average person though can handle fewer.
- Too many owners allow their cats to roam, destroy wildlife and defecate everywhere. The less cats, the less roaming.
- Manageable for members and keeps the cats healthy and happy.
- This would seem to be an adequate number.
- litter boxes get smelly
- Lions aside, cats don't naturally live in groups. Studies have shown it can be stressful to them. 4 sounds reasonable
- I believe that having over 4 cats in a home would be unreasonable as it would be difficult for an owner to provide adequate attention and care to any more animals at one time.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the animals are well cared for, vetted frequently and in a clean, healthy environment multiple cats can live together easily and most tend to do well in a group
- The cats can have a companion but not enough to create a nuisance
- Unfortunately my opinion is that it varies depending on household make-up and income. Responsible pet owners need to be able to afford upkeep (vet, food, groomers) and need to have enough time to give to their pets.
- Less noise risk to disturb neighbors.
- If kept indoors then as long as they're cared for I don't see why there should be a limit.
- Same as with dogs, as long as the cats are cared for and aren't a nuisance there is no difference than having 1 cat versus cats. I know many families in Calgary with multiple cats that are responsible pet owners and I also know people with 1/2 cats that are causing issues by letting their cats out.
- Clean up after more than 2 would be a lot of extra waste
- Same as listed for dog.
- As long as the animals are cared for and trained appropriately and the house is clean, the number should not matter.
- more cats = more odours.
- Depends on a number of factors.
- I had 5 cats once and they would pee in unwanted places. Undue stress on the animal. Two - they keep each other company without being territorial.
- Anything beyond that cannot be properly controlled and cared for by owners.
- Again, it depends on the owner and the care they take of the animals
- Cats are far more easy to care for than dogs, and often also have more difficulty being adopted. It wouldn't make sense to me to enforce a limit on the number of cats per household on the general public for that reason.
- Same as above
- Larger numbers of cats is likely to lead to neglect.
- This depends on the individual. People who have cats for breeding, or show, may exceed this number of animals while still providing adequate outlets and care. If you move to put a limit on the number there needs to be an exemption process for people who have multiple cats for this purpose.
- Not as much a cat lover as dog lover here. Cats and their litter boxes can be a tad aromatic... 2 seems smelly enough. LOL
- Depends on the home and the reason for all the animals and whether or not the owner/s have the capacity to care for this number of animals in a clean and healthy environment and that the animals are not neglected or suffering in any way
- as indoor animals, they do not annoy neighbours
- beyond this would be very hard to keep the environment clean and to safe living standards
- The number of animals in a household does not relate to how good an owner is caring for them.
- Reasonable

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think cat behaviour is not well studied enough, their social structure is very complicated and we do not understand it well enough to keep them happy. To Void aggression and elimination behaviours issues
- The number of cats you have had zero bearing on how responsible you are. I have several friends with 10+ cats who are extremely well cared for, kept indoors, etc.
- Same as above, needs to be left up to individual owner. Some people are able to handle a larger number of animals than others, rules need to be followed and animals need to be kept in good health
- Cats kept inside don't bother neighbours
- see above comment
- Same as above
- A litter of kittens may put this over. Adult cats 4
- This would be cat specific and would depend on the happiness & health of each cat in the home. More cats = more inter-social problems with them.
- I don't feel there's an issue with multiple cats as long as the animals are treated properly
- This lets the cats have some feline company and prevents the owners from being branded as crazy cat people.
- As above. Aside from hoarding issues if the animals are cared for and not causing any issues.
- See above, minus the noise issue.
- See above.
- Again: situation specific.
- similar animal waste issues can start to impact neighbors if too many animals are allowed.
- same as above
- Should be handled on individual basis.
- As long as the rules are followed and the cats aren't bothering anyone it isn't the city's business
- Again its about how the owner cares for the pets not the number of pets.
- Limiting the number of pets can reduce the possibility of neglect/abuse and help prevent hoarding of animals
- Cats do their own thing so there is no controlling them unless you are a responsible pet owner. If they are indoor cats and remain on a leash when outside then have more. I would think 2-4 cats is plenty
- More than 5 in a house when not a foster is too many to properly care for but they are easier to care for compared to dogs
- As above
- One is a companion for the other.
- I t doesn't matter how many you have, it matters if you are taking good care of them. Also, a litter of puppies or kittens can't count.
- Depends on size of home.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Two or three, again depending on size of home, ability to care for. For cats or dogs, consider wellbeing of a lone pet vs having a companion.
- As long as indoor- and well taken care of
- This totally depends on responsible ownership.
- As long as cats are kept inside or in the owners yard and properly cared for.
- I don't feel a limit should be implemented as many individuals have multiple cats in their household and make sure they are well cared for exercised, trained and non disruptive to neighbours.
- Again, if not a trainer, breeder, etc., more than that becomes a care problem.
- Cats require an adequate amount of personal space In a home. Multiple cats require multiple litter boxes.
- As long as their animals are being cared for properly and not neglected or abused, it's up to an individual to decide how many pets they have in their household.
- Not your business as long as they are being cared for.
- As long as people can feed maintain and properly take care of the animals it should not be an issue.
- Cats being indoor pets shouldn't be restricted at all. Well cared for cats can live in large colonies and societies. Again, hoarding is not responsible pet ownership.
- Same explanation
- Same as above for dogs.
- Cat litter! Cat urine has an extremely strong smell and is a landfill environmental nightmare. 2 is good for company of the Cats.
- I think a responsible owner can have multiple animals that are well cared for and trained and there should be no restrictions.
- There should not be a limit. Hoarders will find a way around the law, and limiting pet ownership only faults responsible owners/breeders
- Sorry not a cat person so don't really care
- I believe 4 cats can be cared for adequately with some effort and planning. More than 4 would be challenging for many households and unfair and stressful to individual cats within a household as cats are not pack animals and can be territorial.
- as above
- Again, if you're a responsible pet owner, you go to extraordinary lengths to ensure your pets' well being and that they are raised in a safe and sterile environment.
- There should not be restrictions on the number of dogs, but harsh penalties and ownership bans for people who mistreat their animals, regardless of numbers.
- AS LONG AS THEY ARE BEING TAKEN CARE OF PROBABLY AND NOT BOTHERING THE NEIGHBOURS. AS IT DOES NOT MATTER IF THERE IS 1 CAT OR MANY
- The reasonable number depends on the size of the house and household. No more than 2 cats per adult.
- Not sure why anyone would want more than 1 cat as I imagine they fight. But 4 seems reasonable. Any more and you become a cat lady.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 2 or 3 cats is pretty normal, 4 is a lot, after 4 it's weird.
- Same as above with dogs.
- Should be subjective based on financial viability And whether they are "outdoor" cats or not. If you have 5 cats and let them roam free, what's the point. If you don't want them in your home, have less cats.
- I would have preferred zero as an option. I don't support keeping pets in urban environments.
- Any number as long as proper care is provided, there is adequate control of noise during quiet hours per noise bylaw and waste managed on a regular basis.
- It also depends on situation in individual case and cat's personality.
- Even though they exist inside a home, too many become difficult to manage.
- same explanation as above. Whelping homes require that pregnant animals coming into care are able to deliver and nurse their offspring until they can be adopted. Creating limits can suffocate foster/rescue efforts, but are also useful for by-law for those not involved with foster.
- Size, breed and temperment are a big factor in this - the number is reflected in the ability of the owner to control & keep them from being a nuisance to their neighbours.
- People should not be restricted from having as many cats as they can provide excellent care to. This can vary by the household and so shouldn't be regulated by the government.
- Many people let their cats out of the house so limiting the number of cats per household would reduce environmental impacts.
- It depends on the house for size of the house, yard etc. An apartment vs a mansion, the size of the animal should be considered as well as the area in the home designated to the animal(s). Realistically most people will not have more than a couple.
- Cats are more independent and therefore do not need as much attention, however, they are still social animals that come with a lot of responsibility and thus need attention from their owners.
- As long as the animals are healthy and happy, it isn't the business of anyone.
- Cats are easier to care for than dogs and don't (or shouldn't) go outside. Still, to many animals is not healthy for the animals.
- i wouldn't want any more than 3 because of potential for hoarding, breeding.
- Cats need space and too many would be hard to have. If they are well taken care of and don't wander more is fine but one or two seems a good amount to me. I don't think the LIMIT should be two, just a good number. The limit should be how many you can responsibly take care of.
- Cats should be an indoor pet.
- Why would someone need more than 3 cats. Not many people are responsible pet owners to begin with and the more cats you have the more difficult it would be to care for them all properly
- As long as they are being well cared for health wise (fed, watered, clean litter boxes etc). Cats are smal
- I'd be okay with a higher number if they were never loose outside
- The number is irrelevant as long as they are being adequately cared for
- it all depends on the area of the house and the availability of back yard space.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on the household. Some people are bad cat owners, and should have no cats. But if they can properly care for all the animals in their home, then who cares??
- See above.
- As long as each dog is being cared for, fed, safely contained/controlled and socialized properly, there should not be a limit on dogs in a household.
- Some cats like companionship - >2 becomes unwieldy, difficult to maintain cleanliness and sufficient attention to those cats
- Same as above
- Too many cats will end up with poor quality of life for the animals, and increase the likelihood of feral cats which are bad for the environment.
- I know a few people with 3 cats, but again more than 2 starts to feel excessive and unnecessary.
- They like company.
- Cats generally do not need as much space as dogs. Similar concerns about available space determining number of cats. Also depends on how many other pets are present.
- Two indoor cats should be the limit.
- Not a cat lover and cats don't like anyone
- If the owner is responsible then any number is fine
- Same as above
- Same as for the dogs. Need to maintain a hygienic environment and have well-behaved pets that don't roam around outside. Consequences or removal if this is not upheld.
- More than two is difficult to manage and I would question how well the animals are being cared for.
- Same as above. Taking good care of the animals, ensuring they are not a nuisance etc is not determined by the number of animals. It is determined by the owner. Hoarding is a mental illness that will not be addressed by restrictions.
- Same as above - but this also depends on how many other dogs and cats are in the household and what other pets are present.
- as above. Unless the house is HUGE, the cats would not have a lot of alone space
- Cats often need a companion to keep them entertained, especially if they are indoor cats.
- Owners of pets need to be able to properly take care of them. Though I feel 2 is reasonable, I guess it depends on the owner. We cannot say folks can only have 2 kids per family?
- 3 maximum for cats that are outside/inside cats. 2 for all indoor cats due to exclusive litter box usage.
- Same reason as for dogs above
- Same answer as above if you actually ensure licenses are purchased the numbers will take care of themselves
- See above for dogs. Same applies
- I once had two cats and they were never outside or roaming loose. more than 2 and health hazards start to occur for people and the animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cats, especially indoor cats, don't take up as much space as most dogs and can adapt well to cat colonies when introduced properly.
- I don't think there should be a limitation on pets in a household. The limitation should be whether the pets are well taken care of (e.g. whether vet care is provided to all animals), and that they don't constitute a nuisance or hazard.
- Cats can be isolated or sociable the amount isn't that concerning as long as the owner can care for them properly.
- Same as above.
- manageable number where you can still track of training an allot quality time knowing there's a 2 pets=1 adult ratio in the household.
- Cats require less time and attention to be happy and healthy. They're easier to care for, and so long as all their needs are being met the limit should be higher. Still, a cap should be in place to help ensure proper care and prevent hoarding. Perhaps a limit based on space should be considered.
- As long as they are kept inside it is the prerogative of owner although the average household does not have enough space as animals do need their personal space.
- Just a guess. Some companionship for pet.
- Cats are fairly easy to care for but you should have ample space, toys, and adequate litter boxes, usually 1-2 per cat
- Anything more and the welfare of the animals inside the house can be concerning
- Again, as long as the owner is properly caring for them, who cares how many there are?
- Not a cat person
- Responsible pet owners can have a large number of well cared for animals. It's not about the number it's about the capacity of the owner, even 1 is too much for some people.
- Multi cat households are generally not as sanitary - it causes for people to not want to rent to multi pet households because of the fear
- See above answer.
- Unless breeding, 2 cats per household is reasonable to love and care for
- Again, as long as they are cared for, there shouldn't be a limit.
- They are company for each other but they don't take over the house.
- I'm not really a cat person
- Again, as a cat owner I don't believe one can properly look after more than 2 cats at a time.
- I had 5 cats at once. They were strictly indoor cats, all licensed, up to date health/vaccinations by vet, all spayed, followed bylaw. Every cat owner whether with one or 5 cats must abide by those expectations.
- This is the same as the dogs. If the cats are cared for mentally and physically then more than 3 is fine. Hoarders will hoard whether there is a limit or not.
- while it doesn't really matter so long as the cats are inside I don't think it is reasonable to assume that anyone with more than two cats is keeping them contained on the premises at all times.
- I don't know much about cats, I assume breeders have lots of them and it's somehow ok

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- My answer is the same as with dogs
- If and only if they are 100% indoor cats
- Average house hold size.
- Then you become a cat lady!!!
- I dont really have a reason. Just seems like a number that is still reasonable to clean up after, afford vet bills, groom etc
- 2 or 3 cats are lots for most people to take care of. I would say only 2 but if one is getting sick or elderly sometimes a person will get a third just so when the other passes the one that would be left alone will have another one as a friend.
- Seems reasonable. Keep a kitten. A little family.
- Level of care and control by owner
- Cats require less socializing but, a household must be able to financially support the animal at all times.
- I don't like the idea of restricting the number of cats per household, it discourages pet adoption for experienced and responsible owners.
- See above
- Maybe a better question is to ask how many kids in a family is reasonable.
- Is there house large and the cats are elusive? I don't really see an issue as long as it's not hoarding.
- Same as above
- I assume cats are easy
- The average house can accommodate 3 or even 4 cats as they sleep most of the time.
- If the owner is responsible and the pets are healthy, safe and cleaned up after numerous cats can live in a house happily.
- I don't think there should be a limit so my choice is the same as what I said about the dogs. As long as said household can prove they are taken care of and not causing any issues with surrounding neighbours.
- I don't have a strong opinion about this
- Cats are chill and can enjoy each other's company
- As long as cats are in even numbers (research shows they do better in even numbered groups than odd) I'd cap it like dogs at 6 to discourage the hoarders or bad kitty breeders.
- I have 2 cats
- 3 is plenty, similar reasons to above. Proper care is essential.
- Responsible pet owners can manage multiple dogs. Dogs are pack animals and limiting never works to address hoarding issues. Focus on mental health to prevent hoarding.
- I think it is entirely on a case by case basis. Someone with a large house with lots of land can accommodate as many animals as healthy.
- If they have more than that they are more likely to let them loose in the neighborhood.
- If cats are happy/ healthy, neutered and have enough space and enrichment, and enough people living there have time, energy and funds available, no limit needed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on how responsible the owner is.
- Cats are territorial.
- Provided they are indoor only and are cared for physically and emotionally, this should be up to the owner. Especially since there are too many homeless cats and rules on pet ownership and animal rights are seriously lacking.
- If the cats are all healthy, have space, have clean litter boxes, are kept inside, etc limits should not be imposed
- Cats are frequently not pack animals as dogs are.
- Again you don't need an army
- Government should not dictate and infringe on animal ownership rights. If they are cared for it is of no concern to public welfare.
- Depends on the household and the cats. A big house could have more but a one bedroom condo can't have a lot. There's no one answer to that question.
- Unless it is a large house, this is an appropriate number of cats to allow them to socialise, and have appropriate eating and litter box areas. One litter box per 1.5 cats. 3 cats, 4 litter boxes.
- It makes no difference to me.
Be a responsible owner
- Indoors cats are not a threat to the public and not a nuisance. They should still be micro chipped!
Mandatory!
- No one needs more than two
- Cats are a bit more low maintenance but 4 should limit hoarding
- same reason as above
- Ensure adequate care for each
- I hate cats zero would be best.
- They are smaller and do not require as much space, but 4+ cats is cost prohibitive for providing medical care, and should have # of cats +1 for litterboxes, most people do not have room for this many.
- Cleanliness
- Fewer cats are more likely to have all their needs met just for economical reasons. One is not always the best or healthiest choice for the animal(s). Many do better with a feline companion and that brings the bonus of two cats having been homed with it.
- I don't know much about cats but 3 seems like a reasonable number to be able to properly care for cats in terms of cleanliness and maintenance.
- Companionship for the pets, as well as company. Are pretty independent to be in the house while at work. More cats need good homes.
- Second verse same as the first. Given the average nuclear family (4.5 people) it seems reasonable that each person should be responsible enough to care for an animal. Families like this would bond with their animals and each other, thus strengthening their ties as a family unit.
- Again, numbers don't dictate care and cats are awesome so the more the merrier!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 2 pairs. Is fine if they are properly cared for
- Many cats like to be in a “colony”. They don’t require walks like dogs for that leash control to be an issue. But too many can lead to a sacrifice in well being if the owners can not afford them. That is an issue. So definitely not 5+
- Cats are solitary animals. So long as the animals are not being harmed and are being properly taken care of, they’re not bothering others, who cares.
- If a cat is being locked outside it’s usually by one person. And they only have two hands.
- As long as the animals are taken care of in a responsible way, 5 cats is also fine.
- I fully own that I don't really enjoy cats
- Same answer as above! Number of animals is irrelevant as long as they are being taken care of. It should be based on the human not the number of animals
- 1 is enough especially for people who reside in apartments condos or any type of condensed housing. They shouldn’t be allowed to wander. 2 is acceptable for properties with private yards. I have tripped on my neighbours wandering cat at the top of the stairway in our building.
- I see no reasonable argument for more.
- Disease and stress management. In an urban environment, it does not make sense to have a high number of cats as they are not working animals (mouse hunting)
- no specific reason
- I do feel there should be a cap on cats per household but this is due to health concerns, for the people as well as the cats living there. They have different living habits than dogs and the environment is effected (indoor elimination).
- I think of cats like small dogs so 6 cats maximum unless you are a breeder, then 8.
- However many they can responsibly take care of.
- Because cats don't go for walks, there doesn't need to be a limit or it can be higher, perhaps 10.
- Really depends on the house and the people who own the cats.
- I don’t have cats so it’s hard to say, but if 3 dogs is reasonable, then 3 cats should be reasonable as well.
- Same as for the dogs.
- 1 per adult
- Same as dogs.
- Once again it depends on the household. This should not be regulated.
- Again in order to prevent any hording problems there should be a restriction of 4 or no more than 5 maximum. Any more than that would smell disgusting! Some cats are better with company, but not my cat...
- It really depends on the size of the household. As long as all of the pets are well cared for and spayed/neutered, I see no problem. However, I am opposed to backyard breeding due to ethical concerns.
- Depends on how big your place is and your mental health. And if your fostering or rescuing.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Plenty of stray cats in shelters. Please make it easier for them to go to families who have space for them.
- Depends on size of home. In a one bedroom condo no more than 2, otherwise more is fine. Cats are quiet and usually indoors.
- Hoarding situations are sad and difficult, but I believe they are also somewhat rare. I don't think there should be any household restrictions because I believe people are capable of properly caring for several animals at any one time. Such is the case in fostering situations with local rescues.
- as above
- Same as above.
- Why on earth would you need more than one? Explain why there should ever be more than one in a household.
- Same as dogs - hard to know what's happening with each cat if you have too many.
- Same answer as for dogs
- Again, maximum but I cannot speak to another's lifestyle.
- Seems a reasonable number.
- Same as above. People think cats are easier to take care of and think they can have more. I think that as quantity of pets goes up, quality of care goes down.
- Cats are easier to take care of than dogs. This rule should possibly be considered as a ratio of caretakers to animals rather than a hard limit.
- Smells
- Most pet owners have 2 pets. Allowing for 3 cats creates room for those who foster animals and help the shelter system. Once you go over that number then the issue is the animals' health.
- Same as above. If you would like to have more than two cats then you need to apply to own more than two.
- I really don't know. Whatever would be respectful to your surrounding neighbors, and if they animals are taken care of properly.
- Calgarians who choose to foster cats, breed cats need to be accommodated.
- This depends on the overall size of the residence. Beyond two animals, the home is much harder to keep clean, and damage to property increases. Health concerns due to poor cleanliness also increases. People are often gross, throw an animal in the mix and it's compounded.
- most cats in this area are outside cats whether the bylaw says so or not
- If the cats are strictly indoors and well-cared for, there should not be a problem with +5 cats in a household.
- Same answer as in 5) above
- Depends on the capacity of the owner to care for them properly without disrupting other people.
- One per human; varies on household size.
- Reasonability should apply.
- Often 2 adults in a household, pets often like a pet companion
- 3 cats is enough responsibility for one owner.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- - see above. I don't have a problem with setting the bar high (ten, for example), but the city needs to have a limit over which they can move against an irresponsible owner
- Consistent with dog count vote, less opinionated for max cat count especially if kept indoors
- Same as above. And I stand by my idea for discounted, multi year indoor cat licensing.
- As long as the cats are kept indoors, and are neutered and spayed they can be together in larger numbers. Waste is contained inside a litter box, and cats aren't noisy and don't create sound issues for neighbours.
- Cats are boring and don't do anything.
- too many situations of cats overrunning a house causing health issues for the owners, the cats and the community.
- Depends on how responsible the owner is
- I think it is a slippery slope when people start to accumulate cats. They think they can fend for themselves and therefore not properly take care of them therefore they become the public's issue.
- Same as above without the cats being able to go outside
- Arbitrary number. I don't know what's reasonable. Should it depend on square footage of the residence? Like, 400 sq ft per cat?
- Same as above. Not about the number but rather the care they receive
- Max number of cats per area, not household. Higher density areas would have way too cats if each household were to have multiple dogs.
- I chose 4 as 5+ could include ridiculous numbers like 67 cats, but I think it's reasonable to ask that people have under 10 cats. There should be at least one more litterbox than the number of cats in the home, so I have a hard time believing that people with more than 10 cats are responsible.
- almost the same as the above answer, cats do not need space to run and play
- v
- More than 2 can increase risk of noise and smell impact on others
- Same as above
- It is expensive to care for more animals through their whole life. More animals become harder to control and monitor.
- Same as dogs.
- I'm not actually sure...
- However many dogs the owner can take proper care of.
- The number depends not on the house hold but on the available space. Having 5 cats in a small apartment doesn't make sense, but in a large single detached home no issue. As long as they are under control and not a disturbance/ health issue why have a numerical limit?
- If you feel like you need more than one cat, you might want to talk to a therapist about figuring out what's missing in your life.
- Similar issues with ensuring cats are kept in a clean environment and that they aren't wandering the neighbourhood in larger numbers.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same as with multiple dogs - If they are healthy and happy animals it should not matter how many live together.
- It completely depends on the temperaments and behaviour of the individual cats, as well as how much physical space is available in the household, as well as the owners' ability to provide adequately for their husbandry, medical needs, mental enrichment needs, and physical exercise needs.
- Again, the reasonable number of cats is the number that can be appropriately cared for - proper medical attention (including spay and neuter), food, water, living environment, socialization and housing.
- Personal choice
- Available indoor space.
- Same response as for dogs
- As long as they are indoors, with the appropriate number of litter boxes, you can have more cats than dogs. There will probably not be as many noise complaints for cats as there are for dogs.
- I don't need cat ladies in my neighbourhood. One pet is plenty. Cat hoarding should be illegal.
- Again responsible pet owners will look after multiple cats.
- depends on the size of the house....cats need their own space.
depends on the care provided by the owner/s depends on whether the cat can go outside into an enclosed safe catio environment
- More than 4 adult cats approaches a level where health of the cats becomes a concern and it's imperative that the city curtail hoarding behaviours of some owners especially with cats, for the safety and welfare of the animals.
- Again comes back to the owner being responsible for their pets fully at all times.
- See above.
- Zero was not given as option here
However, this number is a function of how responsible the pet owner is and the behavior of the animals
- Cost to keep too many animals is high. No reason to have too many animals in an urban area.
- Please explain to me why I need to explain my choice.
- Cats are awesome and more is better. However, the household has to be able to demonstrate an ability to provide enough food, attention, and litter boxes for their cats.
- As long as the cats needs are being met, they're lower maintenance than dogs, and some people love to have many cats. Above 3 is getting a bit much though.
- There is a point where taking care of animals is off set by the individual amount of animals
- Too many can lead to bad care for the animals.
- Two cats may keep each other company.
- If you need another for your existing dog ie to transition ok but beyond that it seems like a lot to me
- Cats stink. Any more than 3 in your house and we can smell your cats on you when you leave the house.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Because there is more distinct possibility of cats fighting due to the territorial aspects some cats have especially toms and that you need to have an ability to spay and neuter any cats to make sure there is no serious damage to the other cats living in the household
- I hate cats so no comment!
- Depends on size of house.
- Ppl can't control their cats as it is.
- Any more than that and your house would start to stink... (I have cats; I know!)
- As above cats like companionship - but anymore than 2 is a kennel, not a home.
- Cats need their own space in order to avoid territorial/behavioral issues. Some cats do well with a companion but others do not.
- It depends on the household
- It depends on the size of the household and economic status. There is no one size fits all number of animals that should be allowed. If you have the space and means to keep many cats, it should be your choice.
- they are always hanging around outside on other peoples property
- Cannot explain other than there are people who let them breed and before one knows about it, there are enumerable numbers in one house,
- There needs to be a limit on the number of animals permitted in each household. Too often do people have excessive numbers of animals (e.g., 30+ dogs) and the welfare of those suffers. This will also help identify hoarders.
- Same as above, 1 animal per adult in the household.
- We do not live in a nanny state. If an owner can responsibly care for multiple cats, it should be their prerogative. If they fail to responsibly care for multiple cats, the penalties should be significant including the potential seizure of the animals.
- Same as for dogs. Two cats are companions to each other.
- Cats are community-based animals and do best when they are not solo animals.
- Cat are cool and don't often cause issues for others in the community.
- Depends on household members, level of care able to be provided
- Same.
- Same as above.
- Indoor cats are quite happy if they have others to play with and socialize with. Again 4 in an apartment wouldn't work, so space is the issue really.
- Two max if allowed to roam (despite bylaws). If the cats are kept strictly indoors or only allowed access to the outdoors via "catios", the number of cats kept may correspond to the owners financial ability to keep them properly, e.g. provide food, sanitation and regular and incidental vet care).
- These must all be licensed and kept indoors.
- I do not see how a family can care for more than 3 cats at a time. This means by maintaining and keeping a safe, proper living environment for both cats and humans in the house.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- A single, competent adult should be able to adequately care for up to 4 cats at any given time without distressing naturally territorial cats.
- Same as the dog question.
- As with dogs, it depends upon the size of the house and the size of the cats, as well as the ability of the owners to provide for, and clean up after them.
- Should be none of the city's business unless there is a care issue.
- Cats are harder to keep inside, that's why having many cats is harder than having many dogs
- if they can afford to have numerous cats and they are well taken care of, vaccination/rabies etc.. no restrictions. must be all spayed/neutered unless if they are a cattery and registered with TICA, CFA etc.. and licensed by the city
- You didn't offer 0? :-) Same as above....ability of owner to properly care for the animals and keep property clean.
- Cats do their own thing but you need to regulate the and keep them indoors. If they go outside, they need to be on a leash. You force dogs to be on leashes, why not cats as well. Cats are more dangerous than people realize and there are more stray cats out in the public than stray dogs guaranteed.
- It's none of your business how many cats I have
- Anything over 2 makes you a crazy cat person lol
- You might have 1 or 2 older cats and then bring in a baby kitten. If you can afford the responsibility, why not?
- Space, reasonably manageable by 1 or more people, quality of care that is able to be provided, reduced improper breeding
- More than four is complicated and can you really look after all of them.
- Again, not including registered breeders
- My response is similar to the one for dogs.
- More animals can cause damage
- I don't think their can be a blanket number because cats and households vary in size
- I think 2 or 3 would be adequate again for the cost of licensing, food, vet bills.
- not too many and not too few
- Same response as for dogs.
- Overcrowding stresses animals. The ability to manage health, waste, noise, odour and debris decreases as number of animals increases.
- Same kind of reasoning above, but also coming around to cleanliness. Cats are a lot dirtier in the house than dogs typically are and you should have 2 litter boxes per cat which takes up a lot of square space and you need to ensure that every cat has someone to seek safety in needed.
- Cats are quiet. If they aren't roaming outside and have enough litter boxes then there's no harm done
- Is the owner capable of caring properly for the animals? Do the cats stay indoors or have they become a nuisance to neighbours?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- One cat per person in the household, plus one cat (e.g. 3 people means 4 cats). This is to ensure that the people can provide the care and attention required for the animal.
- Arbitrary
- 2 will at least keep themselves company whilst owners are absent.
- same as pervious statement
- This is an individual choice. The City of Calgary does not get to decide this. It is the pet owner's responsibility to meet their animal's needs.
- Same as above.
- Concern with animal safety after 3, as well as nuisances to neighbors, birds,
- Number of litter boxes should be number of cats, plus one. 4 boxes is a bit crazy. If someone can keep the litter boxes clean, I guess go for it.
- It depends on the owner. There are currently laws that address hoarding. No need to increase municipal red tape. The city would be better off simply better enforcing current bylaws.
- Same us the above
- I believe 2 is reasonable for the average household. It allows for an owner to provide companionship for their cats. In some instances more cats are probably totally reasonable.
- if they are indoor cats and well looked after, I believe the choice is that of the owners, i had three cats at one point and it was a lot of work and responsibility.
- litter box pet. anymore may be hazardous to the owner
- People who want more than 3 cats may have difficulty understanding healthy boundaries. They need help in making healthy limits on pet ownership.
- Just means more cats on the street
- Seems like a reasonable number to afford to feed and maintain for the average person
- I feel that one household should not have more that ten cats
- Again, square footage of home and as long as they are well cared for and kept healthy...have 30 if you so choose.
- I think it's nice if you are able to have 2 cats so they can keep each other company. Any more than 2 I think would be excessive.
- I would like to say 1, but I think if I had a cat I would probably want the option of another.
- (Depending on the size of the home) If >4 cats more likely to have inter-cat conflict leading to unwanted behaviours (often house soiling) leading to surrendering.
- Same. Most families have 3 kids... 3 cats is about right.
- Depends on situation
- Do we limit the amount of children that can be in a household? As long as you can take care of them and ensure good health this should not be a question.
- I have no reason why you would need so many cats.
- same as previous answer
- Similar to 5, but less agressive animal by nature
- Cats do not get along with each other ... there is no reason to bred ... SPCA has lots

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- same as above.
- Nobody needs more than 2
- I don't think a hard limit is the right way to approach the issue. For some owners, 2 animals would be too many; others could responsibly take care of a much larger number. Only in individual cases of irresponsibility should a limit be imposed.
- again, totally subjective - how much space to they need, temperament, owners ability to care for and manage all equally as attentively
- Increasing the number of adult cats in the household increases the likelihood of inter-cat aggression and subsequent house-soiling as a result of that aggression.
- I think cats are somewhat solitary and need their own space. Plus people seem to have a tendency to hoard cats.
- Two cats can provide companionship for each other when owner is away.
- They can keep each other company.
- Same as above response.
- Two cats per adult in the household. My household has two adults.
- There is nothing wrong with the massive accumulation (same may call hoarding) of cats. it is entirely normal.
- More than 4 cats is a burdensome number to have in a single household in terms of appropriate care of the animals.
- Belief that there is a reasonable number of animals one should have is naive. There are many individuals who can care for large numbers of animals to a high standard. Putting a restriction on number of pets will not prevent poor owners from not caring for their pets
- Prevents hoarding
- I don't like cats. In truth, it could be many. It is the quality of the owners, rather than the quantity of cats.
- Depending on the amount of space a person has, as long as all cats are well cared for and the person is able to provide a safe environment I don't see an issue.
- Individuals should decide what a reasonable number of cats is, not the city. All cats should be raised responsibly.
- the number of Cats a person can manage is dependent on the home, and home owners life style/fininal needs. The number is not as important as requiring the cats receiving proper care.
- who am i to limit what a person can resonantly keep? i don't know their capacities.
- same as above
- Some people foster and own.
- Cats are easy to look after but they must be neutered.
- It's none of my business nor anyone else's
- I debated between 2 and 3. Cats are loners. Since most cat owners keep them indoors the number of cats in a house can stay well hidden and not healthy for the cats. I could see certain exceptions

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

being made for short term/foster cats thought. I have a cat and feel she would hate more than 2 others

- 3s a crowd
- Size of property
- depends on size of house.
- Cats escape more than dogs and are less controlled. 2 is lots
- I think 4 cats should be the max for pet households as it allows them to care for and maintain healthy dogs within a reasonable amount. I believe if you want more you should have to obtain a licence from the city to do so, including breeders as sometimes kittens stay with them over the age of 3 mont
- - Same reasons as for dogs
- if you own two cats, you would know the answer
- Assuming it's a family of 3. You should never let the pet outnumber the people in the household. In a worse case scenario (i.e cat fighting, fire, etc), each person can grab one.
- If you follow the rules the number shouldn't be an issue.
- Too many is hard to manage
- Cats kept indoors and cannot make a lot of noise
- Same as in 5). The city can provide statistical data but there should be no limit.
- I don't understand why anyone would want to own one cat. More than 4 is just insane.
- Space and responsible ownership is more important. I feel that three is a reasonable number to take care of while keeping a home liveable.
- This seems like a reasonable number to take care of.
- Again, all depends on the size of house, yard, how they are taken care of and provided for. If any animal is suffering, then it should be adopted.
- See comments above
- See above, but cats are more sedentary and self sufficient and there is little or no yard waste.
- I would say just 5 or 6. I know how much work multiple pets can be and I honestly know that the attention needed is quite a bit.
- more than three cats are hard to properly control and monitor and ensure that they don't try to get outside
- Providing the owner is providing a safe and clean environment and the animals are healthy then it is a personal choice.
- I don't see a need for a limit as long as all animals are properly and humanely cared for
- Same as above
- Animals - cats, dogs etc. take time, money and effort. Bigger the number of animals, bigger opportunity for issues to arise.
- Depends on the owners ability to care for the animals.
- Same as above. One is good enough for me and cats are smaller.
- Again, the most important issue is someone being able to care for all their pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- if you have space and the ability to care for X amount of cats why not
- As a guidance counsellor, I have always found that if a kiddo has anymore than 2 cats in their house, they smell.
- Independent animals, small, quiet
- I have had 5 indoor cats with no problems. I'm not sure they all appreciated living in such close quarters but I made sure they got exercise and affection and kept the litter boxes clean, clean, clean. I know of one person who has 8 cats, which is too many for her but might be ok for someone else.
- They are disgusting and don't belong on the streets.
- Cats must stay inside (or on a leash) and do not make noise therefore having more than one is less disruptive to neighbours than dogs which are constantly outside
- Cats have to remain inside more than 2 cats is unsanitary in a dwelling!
- 2 cats can coexist fairly peacefully & provide company for each other. Getting into higher numbers starts to get into unhealthy pet modes
- Cats are generally smaller and require less exercise than dogs
- Cats need friend
- See above. Same goes for people with cats.
- Again, depends on the person, I have had 4 with no issues. I also know of a lady who's had 7 and everything was clean, they were well fed and healthy and happy
- More than 3 cats are hard to give proper attention to . When on leash, 3 cats fan be controlled. More becomes a challenge for untrained owners.
- Cats are loving animals and all have such different oersonalities
- Number isn't relevant, but how responsible the owner is is relevant
- You need to have as many pets as you can afford. Having two provides company for each other
- Some people support volunteer for rescuing pets. We should not limit groups like these.
- Cats are also good pets but can also become a nuisance if they are let out to roam.
- One to two.
- Cats keep to themselves mostly. Less of a hazard if more. They use litter boxes unlike dogs. Dont bark.
- Again the number truly is not the issue- are they being cared for properly and in a safe environment.
- Cats should only be on the property, and don't make much noise, that feels like a reasonable amount
- If the cats are indoor animals and properly cared for, then owners should be able to provide several cats.
- Three seems to be a happy number of cats in a home.
- It gets super smelly after two in my opinion, and I guess landlords can restrict vs the city but would be nice to be less when it's an animal that voids and defecates inside
- Three animals are enough for the average household to manage time wise as well as economically. Again it depends on how many people in the household are active in caring for them and the economic situation. I don't believe there should a legal limit imposed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same as above
- If there is enough space and all cats are treated well, then there should be no limit to how many cats people should have.
- Too many cats can be hard on the inside of a house. Not everyone would have 1 litter box per cat. Yuk!
- See previous
- Same as above.
- I think that people should be allowed to have as many dogs as they like, providing that they give proper care and clean up after them. Make sure they are not pests in the neighbourhood.
- This is an average, I believe animals should not vastly out number people. I think other cities have a +1 animal. So if there are 4 people in a household you can have 5 pets
- I think for the standard household 4 cats are reasonable. I think a lot of people may start to neglect their cats if they own more but this is not true of all households.
- They should have the adequate room to live in the home comfortably
- If all the cats are under control and indoor then it should be up to the responsible owners discretion.
- Same as above. If your cats aren't roaming and being a nuisance and you're happily caring for them, I don't see why 4+ cats is a problem.
- It's about cleanliness.
- Cats are less demanding than dogs. More than 3 and there can be behaviour issues.
- I don't have cats but I believe it should be a choice
- Really depends on how good the owners are. Problems could be dealt with under other parts of the bylaw without limiting people who are responsible owners of many cats.
- Indoor cats can provide companionship and stimulation for each other. Does not interfere with others. Maintenance is a similar demand on the owner as for one.
- I had 3 cats and it can cause issues with territory and behaviour. I'm not saying it would affect anyone but the owners but I think sometimes people need help controlling how many pets they have.
- Same as above
- Cats like to have a companion
- Not a cat person. As long as cats are taken care of then get more if you want.
- Small animals take up less space and are lower maintenance
- Some people can be very responsible for swaths of animals, and others can't hardly care for themselves lol! I do not believe in limits.
- Depends entirely on size of home, and experience, lifestyle and means of the owner
- Again - same opinions as with dogs ... based on owner history and experience
- If the cats are cared for and well behaved it's not an issue
- Cat litter filling up garbage trucks. Making messes in neighbours gardens.
- Again, I don't believe numbers is the issue. Some people can care for multiple cats well and others cannot care for one.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cats are inside animals thanks to the city's bylaws. If the space is big enough, there shouldn't be any restriction (maybe no more than 8) on the number of cats. Additionally, cats are relatively low maintenance compared to dogs.
- Again I think this depends on the person. You can potentially have 10 cats and take wonderful care of them. Some people only have one cat and they don't care for them properly. I would not set a limit for those who have the capacity to care for them.
- Reasonable based on the ability of an adult to manage and care properly for them
- Same as per dogs. Cats seem to present a larger problem with more incidents of people keeping huge numbers of cats, which cause stink, health concerns, and noise. A concrete number might make it easier to enforce problem homes. More humane for the pets as well.
- Also no need to determine how many cats people can afford or care for - This is a tough one. If they are all indoors, it doesn't affect others. But there needs to be proper care.
- Same as above.
- Indoor 2 to 4 is fine. They don't make noise and they're inside. If their outdoor cats, which they really shouldn't be, then I think one or two.
- Same reasoning as for dogs.
- I don't think anyone really needs more than 4 cats in their house, unless they are a rescue or breeder or something similar.
- Same as my explanation for dogs.
- Cats can live indoors, and are smaller animals so 4 would be an appropriate number as long as they are fixed.
- Houses are different sizes. There are already rules for maintenance of property, enforcement cost, freedom of choice. Deal with problems under existing regs rather than adding more invasive and costly regs
- Same as my answer for dogs except for the barking issue.
- Depends on the size of the household. Cats generally need another cat so 2 - 4 is a reasonable number. However, some condos are small and do not offer the space for appropriate exercise for cats. Since they must be indoors, owners need to ensure they can get appropriate exercise.
- As above
- Unless there is an imminent danger to the animals or the owner, I don't think there should be a limit. People take things to the extreme so it should be monitored. As long as a happy caring home is provided. Maybe cap children instead.
- I have no opinion on this
- I don't believe that people should be told how many cats they can have. There are responsible folks that have multiple cats and irresponsible folks with 1 cat. It comes down to the owner, not the number of cats.
- All should be spayed and neutered. Owners must be able to care for all animals in their home. No kitten-millers or backyard breeders. No breeding permitted.
- Lots of purring on laps but totally manageable number.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If someone can afford their care and vet bills theres no reason for a limit
- Again size of home , etc etc
- Again bylaw discretion
- To control the amount of poo and smell.
- Depending on the size of house and how many people are in the household to help care for the cats. I chose 3 as a reasonable middle option but I think more would be fine in a very large house, for example.
- For 'most' people I think this is a reasonable number.
- Depends on the owner.
- Cats are easily scalable.
- Cats are never reasonable.
- That is a guideline. It depends on how big the home is, what people can afford, if the cats are a bonded colony or not, and if the cats' needs can be comfortably met.
- One per is ample.
- While there are always exceptions to the rule - my observation is that much more than three cats in an average household creates compromised sanitary conditions and or management of the cats' behaviour.
- Proper care of pets would be better if less, no more. Only a vet office can take care of many at the same time.
- After 4 I think without them being spayed or neutered may cause them to be put out on the street
- Three because litter box is manageable, and the cost is affordable
- Really depends on the size of the house
- Socialization, smell, feces,
- I don't think the city needs to impose limits. Obviously hoarder situations are a concern, but those are a rarity. The city doesn't have the right nor the ability to determine if someone can or cannot adequately care for 1 dog / cat or 10 dogs / cats.
- Cats raised together can remain friends and they enjoy another's company. I also like the ability for cats of different ages to be in the same home so when one passes, the remaining cats are not alone.
- It is people choice to determine how many animals to live with. Unless the SPCA or other investigatory bodies deem they are living in squalor and need to intervene, people have the right to live as they choose.
- Cats are not pack animals. They are independent animals. They do better by themselves typically. Therefore cat ownership should be limited as many behavioral issues such as inappropriate urination can develop when there are too many cats in a household, this leads to unnecessary euthanasia of cats.
- Again, it comes down to resources that the cats have access to. I would also say a review would be acceptable if you have 4+ cats.
- Same as above.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As many as they can properly care for
- As long as they are taking care of shouldnt matter
- Number of animals is not the issue. It's the care of them. Someone can care for 6 better and with less nuisance (noise/odour) than someone with 1
- Same as above
- Not a cat person
- I don't care as long as they're cared for and not a nuisance.
- The stay inside and as long as they are well taken care of and not being guarded and have baskets, toys, food, water and love, it's fine.
- As long as all the animals are provided for physically and mentally and the owners have the means physically, emotionally and financially to provide for the animals through out their life span. And as long as the animals are not a nuisance to the community the limit should be lifestyle dependent
- People should have to right to own the amount of pets they are capable of taking care of
- I know nothing about cats but one of my friends has two and it seems a fair amount
- This is too broad. It's unreasonable to just choose a number when there are many factors that would impact this decision. How big is the home if there are five or more dogs? Five cats in a one bedroom apartment is very different than five cats in a 5 bedroom home.
- Cats are pretty independent so 1 or 2 is fine
- I think more than two is to many for a healthy house. If someone wants more than that, they should move to the country and have them in a barn
- It depends on the size of the house.
- Too many cats needs homes.
- See explanation above.
- Cats are a lot easier to own. However, we don't want people to have too many. However, if a person has dogs and cats, then it would be maximum of 4 pets total amount.
- Any number that can be properly cared for.
- 1 if the bylaws are respected (maybe 2 so they have company if alone much of the day).
- One cat per person in a typical family.
- Same as above.
- Same as above except for cats.
- Because cats poop indoors 5+ could be excessive for health reasons. Again if cats are cared for and have enough space then it's discretionary, case by case.
- So many cats need homes. Better to have lots in a home then over populating shelters. As long as regular maintenance is done and cats are taken care of.
- Three or more are too many in an urban setting.
- Same reason as dogs.
- More animals means that owners are less able to control their animals appropriately.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I'm a Realtor, I see hundreds of houses, I've never been to a house with more than two cats that didn't stink of cat and litter box, I can't imagine what four would smell like.
- Not being a cat owner, it would be harder for me to comment. However, cats are also costly in terms of vet bills and too many animals in a home can lead to cleanliness issues for some people.
- Only for companionship
- Cats are pretty self-sufficient, but I still don't think people should own more than 3.
- Per above, if animals are healthy and cared for and neighbours aren't being disturbed by smell, or animals at large, I don't think there needs to be a limit.
- Same as dogs. I find space is more of an issue for cats. Maybe it should be based on sq footage?
- Same as above
- Too many cats especially if roaming outdoors is a nuisance. Again welfare of animal is important.
- Provided they remain indoors at all times, two is plenty.
- See above
- It honestly depends on the situation and household. 4 or 5 cats is ok if well taken care of. The 5+ is vague. That makes me think of people who have 20 cats living in horrid conditions.
- While they are smaller than dogs typically, I worry about hoarding cases where animals may be neglected or mistreated. I don't see a reason to have more than 4 cats in the city.
- four for the health and wellbeing
- This is an educated guess, having not owned cats.
- As an animal rescuer, no limits should be placed so long as pets are taken care of and living conditions are good.
- This would be assuming they are indoor cats who don't leave the property.
- Same as above.
- As above response for dogs. It could be 3 if the owner does not allow the cats to leave the house unleashed, and provides enough mental stimulation and interaction with their cats.
- Crazy cat people
- The same answer as above, don't let your cats wander and have the means to look after them and not let them be a nuisance to neighbours.
- depends on size of home, number of adults in home, time people have to interact with the cats
- don't know about cats, but don't they usually loner-type animals and require more personal space? Too many cats would just create stress on each of the cats.
- Cats tend to wander around
- Cats have big litters of kittens. Can easily surpass 5 if it has babies.
- Again, depends on amount of space but if there is space and the cats get along it's fine
- Above
- Cats are self sufficient creatures, as long as they are properly fed and cared for they pretty much do their own thing and do not occupy that much space
- My choice depends on the owner and the care they take of their animals.
- Cats are smaller, quieter and easier to care for.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't know anything about cats.
- Same as above.
- Again, some people are responsible and take care of their cat(s). Some don't, it is depending on the situation.
- Two for companionship, more than two are a pack and aren't suitable for inside habitation.
- It again comes down to responsible pet owners. If people can provide the care, life and attention necessary, they should be able to have 5 or 20. Cats are small, quiet and live mainly indoors, so present no problem or threat to the community.
- See comment regarding number of dogs. Same applies for number of cats.
- I don't believe a person can responsibly care for more than 3 pets at a time.
- More than 3 and there is a greater possibility they are not cared for by a vet
- Same for dogs
- Not a cat fan. If inside then okay. Cats should be monitored the same as dogs. Licensing etc.
- Above
- A cat should have a friend.
- Keep them in your household! Seriously, it's neglect to think they can roam the public freely.
- It is a reasonable number.
- kittens not included until they are 8 or 10 weeks old, condos and apartments often restrict numbers
- If the animals are safe, cared for, well loved, and provided with proper diet, medical care and exercise I don't particularly think a numerical limit is necessary. Hoarding cases can be dealt with separately.
- No need to encourage crazy cat ladies (or 'people')
- Personal opinion. I have 1 cat and that is enough for me.
- As long as cats are being taken care of and prevented from roaming around, it doesn't bother me
- No more than 4 adult cats - special permission can be granted.
- If kept inside like they are supposed to they are companions for each other.
- Same as above.
- Cats...that is plenty!!
- If the cats are let outside to roam, then one is too many. If the cats are inside and they have clean litter boxes and are well looked after then 3 is lots. Otherwise it becomes a hoarding situation.
- Same as above, regarding dogs
- The amount of dogs in a household should depend on the owners ability to provide quality of life for the animals
- Similar answer to dog count. Depends on space and on the ability of the owner to maintain a hygienic home.
- I chose this amount because again it balances the ability to control and provide care, with ownership. If people can't care for their animals it burdens the City and other agencies with that care. By having a numbers limit it reduces both public and private liabilities.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Decreases the burden on animal shelters and having to put them down. They too are living beings and should be given an opportunity to feel special like any member of the family.
- With one cat, breeding, fixing, control, and safety is optimal. I worked for the Humane Society.
- Two are enough and easy to control. All must be indoor cats. This does not include licensed breeders and the occasional and temporary kittens.
- Space and care for an average family
- Do people need more than 2 cats?
- CVMA reports inaccurate pet ownership numbers. They claim that Canada has 8.2 million dogs. This isn't likely if the U.S. claims that 67% of households own pets.
- Same as above. As long as the pets are being well cared for and are not agitating others no reason why not
- Some people have the time and resources to care for many animals and they should be allowed to do so
- n/a
- Same as for dogs.
- Pets need space and care.
- Once again each individual case should be considered ive seen people able to care for multiple animals
- Same as for dogs
- Cats are easier to care for, and don't make much noise. Maybe 10+ issues could arise.
- Same answer as above.
- This is entirely dependent on the household. How many humans are in the house? How big is the house? Are the owners taking responsibility and litter box training their cats? are the conditions clean?
- 2 cats is the maximum a person could deal with should they fight or become aggressive.
- Too many cats in Calgary
- Most people are incapable of caring for multiple animals. While there are exceptions to this, I feel this would help reduce the number of animals being re-homes or surrendered
- Same as dogs
- Same as above, so long as they are well cared for and have a clean home and are vaccinated.
- As above - if the owner is a responsible, knowledgeable cat owner, and the cats are properly housed and cared for, the number is not a problem.
- Most family should not be outnumbered by their pets.
- Similar to dog ownership. Three with in the bounds that there is enough people to provide for each animal. Including playtime engagement.
- As long as the cats are adequately fed and cared for, with excellent veterinary care and safety, then a household can have as many cats as they want.
- Same answer as above

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depends on the home. If you live in a large home with a large yard and the space and means for many cats it should be allowed.
- I think it depends on how many family members there are and how large the household is. More than 5 cats is obviously unreasonable in an apartment but could be very doable on a large property.
- I don't believe there should be a limit on cats either. People with 1 cat can be more irresponsible than those with 5+. Hoarding situations won't be stopped by restricting number of pets. It shouldn't be able how many pets but how responsible the owner is.
- As many as can be responsibly looked after by the owner
- No real reason. More might be acceptable but less than 100. (Not supporting crazy cat people.) Also as long as they are not running free.
- Cats are easier to care for than dogs
- I believe that three cats are easy for a single person to take care of and control, and most houses have enough space for each animal. I don't believe in putting a limit of three cats per household. Pet limits should be put in place on a case by case basis based on quality of care.
- If cats need to be indoor, four would be an adequate number to care for them, and give them enough space (as cats are not social). Plus, cat litter gets smelly fast.
- Who are you to judge how many dogs someone has? As long as they are all loved and cared for. If you can love and care for them all, go for it. Be responsible. Know what you can handle.
- Cats need less than dogs for the most part. But people who have more than 3 cats usually have issues around the cleanliness in their homes.
- Cats should have the same rules as dogs. Keep them in your property and maintain control.
- Don't really have a reason!! If they are all indoor cats then it would really be up to the owner if they can handle financially the cost of looking after 3 cats and if they could deal with the cat litter odour!!!
- There should be no limit
- Same as above
- Please see question 5 explanation.
- See above.
- Same as above for dogs. And to add, some people foster pets temporarily so this will also control how many to foster without putting too many limitations on the number of animals.
- Proper attention to cats could lack if there is more than 3, anymore than 3 could be a health concern for both the owner and cats.
- We are getting too many animals in certain areas of the city and the number of interactions with non owners is increasing.
- depending on the breed and space available
- I don't care about cats
- Same as above.
- Cats are small and some often hide away in the house and they're not seen or disrupting anything. It's important to make owning cats and dogs easy so they can be adopted and have a good life with a good owner.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They are predominately house bound so have a few should be ok and not too much trouble for person to care for.
- Same as above.
- Again, as long as the cats are kept inside in a clean area And allowed outside in a secure enclosure only, fed and watered, spayed and neutered unless owner pays for a cattery license to breed, I am good.
- Same as above. I only say less because they aren't naturally pack animals.
- If one house can have 4 dogs then a house should be able to have 4 cats as cats are smaller and usually require less attention. Animals are in need of homes. If people want the animals they should be allowed
- See above regarding dogs.
- 4 max. If a cat hoarding (like more than 6 or 7) is discovered, someone needs to go in and remove some. It's a sickness that people need help with.
- My husband's family had five cats, because they were a blended step family in a large house. They had n+1 (so six) number of litter boxes and 5 food and water bowls per cat. It was fine.
- Cats are much easier to care for. They do not need to go outside for walks. As long as the owner is providing food, shelter, vet care, and love, the number should not matter. Possibly do home inspections if a household has more than a certain number of cats.
- same as above. everyone is different.
- I find many people with multiple cats will let them run the neighborhood and they don't live as long with vehicles.
- Until cat guardians in the majority demonstrate proper guardian behaviour there should be a restriction to 1 cat per household. In future, when proper behaviour is demonstrated this limit can be expanded.
- Less work for cats
- 2-3 cats. Same reasons as dogs.
- Same as above
- If the cats are inside and are taken care of, why would the amount matter.
- Until cat guardians in the majority demonstrate proper guardian behaviour there should be a restriction to 1 cat per household. In future, when proper behaviour is demonstrated this limit can be expanded.
- 4 is getting into the crazy realm
- each household is different, treat them as such.
- I look at this in two ways. For guardianship of pets, I feel the limit should be lower, maybe 3 or 4. IF they are a rescue then the number should not be applied.
- Again, it depends on the person, their age and mental capacity to care for the cats.
- House size depends
- Depends on the size of your household and your ability to look after them.
- Same as above

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I would say none because I find the fact they dig in their litter box then go on your table, counters, or bed quite disgusting. Again, it comes down to being able to manage, maintain, and care for the animals. dogs or cats, more than three this gets more difficult
- Same as above.
- Same reasoning as above.
- I feel that cat owners even take less responsibility for their cats allowing them to roam the neighbourhood without any concern for the cats coming on to their neighbours property. On the block of 3 ave NE there are about 6 cats that all roam and often come into my backyard uninvited.
- Under 10. As long as they are kept indoors I don't care how many cats you have.
- Gotta be fair with dogs ("my dogs are as small as cats, why can cat-owners have more cats than me).
- Too many too much work
- Cats can get out of control quickly.
- 0 is not a selectable option.
- Cats are easy, it's okay to have a few! Many need companions.
- I just think more for cost so you can care for them properly. Not sure to much on this since I don't own one but just picked a good middle number. They need to be kept within the property though or on leash like a dog.
- same as above.
- as long as they are well cared for no limit should be imposed.
- Crazy cat lady is a true fact. There never seems to be enough cats per household. The reality is that care, health, food is a requirement and animals being neutered. There are more cats then dogs so if more cats are allowed this might help with the animals in the shelters.
- Same as above. It is reasonable to hold people accountable to caring for their animals. Three is reasonable to care for and provide for both physically and medically. Anything beyond that gets into a grey area around the ability to properly care for an animal.
- Same as above, good for keeping each other company and having a playmate.
- They don't take up a lot of space -- but they do need care and attention. The number is less relevant than the impact the cats have on the home itself (is it clean/safe) and on neighbours (noise, disruption, etc).
- I have no problem with lots of cats, as long as they are cared for properly, fed, etc.
- Again, max out at 5.
- same as above
- Anymore than 2 become just possessions and not pets.
- Same as above but to a lesser degree.
- Not the city's business. Responsible dog owners can have many dogs. The city shouldnt set a limit they should just set the criteria for it to be safe.
- I don't mind an owner having numerous cats as long as they are healthy and well cared for.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I'd say five the maximum But it depends if there was more than one person living in the house. 5:1 ratio
- With 2 cats they would have company but I would not want them to roam. They poop in my gardens and kill songbirds. Only indoor cats please.
- Same as above
- same as above
- However many someone can take care of and keep healthy.
- Cats also require space and proper care is considerable. Two should be sufficient for both the company of the cats and the owner.
- More than three and it's hard to properly care for the animals
- I have lived in a residence with 3 cats and one Med/lg dog. It worked very well. No issues.
- The number of pets in a home does not make a difference if they are well behaved and under control. The owner is responsible for their care and the care of the community and their pet in the community
- Same as for dogs
- Reasonable amount of animals without being too limiting in terms of space noise and waste.
- Limiting the number of pets is not reasonable, owners ensuring their pets are cared for, fully licensed, vetted and in control is more important. To ensure a functioning community.
- I consider cats different because people are not so dependent on them for help & protection. If the cat owner lets them go outside as many do, and more than 2 cats, equals unhappy neighbours. I try to produce food for my family and I don't want cat feces in my garden soil, thank you very much.
- Cats are territorial and need their own space. Many find it stressful to live with more than one, two at most
- 3 are just enough.
- Higher numbers can increase risk of proper care.
- A manageable number
- Easy to look after and cause minimal issues
- And they must be kept inside the house. Put on a harness if allowed out in their OWN yard no one else's!!!!
- 3 is Affordable with the vet fees in Calgary so outrageously High it would cut down on disease and abandonment and more people may be responsible and put up catios
- Cats don't tend to like lots of other cats
- If responsible pet ownership is met why does a number need to be applied?
- Cats are smaller in general and require less social interaction with the dogs, but I still thing every creature deserves its own amount of space that is clean and comfortable. More than 3 seems excessive unless the space is very large and the homeowners are very exceptional.
- Cats are clean & really just sleep all day
- There are many households in our struggling economy that have more than one family living in them, there are people that foster cats for rescue, so therefore 4 is reasonable.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- See above
- Cats are easier to manage because they don't need walks and can stay indoors.
- Reasonable limit.
- Same as above
- This should be presented as a range. 5 is fine but 8 might be too many. It depends on the living space and persons capacity to care for the cats.
- As long as the owner does not allow them to roam free, keep them in the house or yard, like dogs. No pet should be free to roam the community
- same as above
- Same reason as the time, energy and money it takes to responsibly care for a pet. I doubt most people would agree.
- Same as above
- As for 5
- There shouldn't be a restriction on the number of cats as long as they are adequately and responsibly cared for. The current bylaws with no limits should remain.
- As long as they are well cared for good on them
- Same response as above.
- Cats can be social animals too. They keep each other company.
- Same as above it depends on persons ability to properly care for and manage the total number and types of pets vs a specific number.
- Same as above
- Supervision issues
- Depends I. Owner if they are indoors and well kept them fine. I am against cat houses with 18 unfixed cats. But this is not responsible ownership
- It's still a manageable and affordable number
- N/a
- As long as pets are properly cared for there should not be a limit
- I believe the limit should be based on size of the home and financial capability. If you can't provide and healthy sustainable home then your amount of cats should be less.
- That seems like a very reasonable number.
- Seems reasonable.
- Same as dogs, 3 is a good number because the cats will have a better chance of getting along
- 2 or 3 depending on size of house.
- See above response for dogs.
- Two is manageable. You can give the attention needed and they are not competing for it.
- If they are kept indoors, and on property, as long as they are cared for I believe that's the owners choice
- Cats may be independent but are social animals so should not be left alone.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- anyone currently caring for more than the allowed amount should be grandfathered, providing the animals are being properly cared for
- None
- More than two cats becomes a lot to keep track of for health and wellness purposes
- No comment
- Keeping cats in doors or at least in your own yard is important. Same reasons as two dogs: people can't seem to properly look after one and add others to entertain/provide company for the other. More than 2 and people seem to struggle more with proper care.
- I don't think this matters. We have no cats due to allergies, but there are irresponsible owners with one cat, and highly responsible owners with 6 cats; might be show cats, emotional support cats, etc. What should matter is how the animals are cared for.
- Same as above I think 2 is fine I think going above that is getting questionable
- same as dogs
- Two is enough. Company for each other.
- Cats are not as bothersome as dogs, in general. The number should balance with the expected costs to care for the animals.
- Again goes on house size.
- Greater than 3 cats becomes difficult to manage
- Personal choice
- Cats can form communes easily and are lower-effort than dogs. I think 10 per household would be the ideal limit.
- Ability to afford food, vet care etc.
- Cleanliness/odor can be a larger issue with cats as they do not normally go out to use the bathroom.
- Same reasoning as for dogs.
- No limit provided the animals are looked after and are not allowed to roam.
- I strongly believe that Calgary should maintain their no limits on pets. You will lose out on the licensing fees from responsible pet owners and hoarders and others won't care if there is a limit or not.
- As long as they are not at large outside and are cared for properly.
- Cats usually stay home.
- Cats always run around outdoors.
- Owners should be able to own multiple pets until the animal's health becomes a concern.
- A reasonable number is the amount where one can properly take care of the animals.
- 4 pets maximum. (Does not include fish)
- Same as dogs, ability to maintain cleanliness of home and prevent roaming/escapes
- I don't care for cats ;)
- I don't think most people have the space for more cats if they do then more but the average house is only big enough for two
- Any more than 3 cats and there becomes hygiene issues

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- We have owned cats and after 2 the smell increases and personal space among cats becomes problematic.
- Again, depending on the owner, the number can be more. Responsible people are perfectly capable of looking after a small zoo !!
- Depends on the size of home, other pets in the home, the availability for proper waste management (enough boxes per cat)
- Any more and the litterbox situation gets crazy.
- Strictly due to care and the number of cat litter boxes as I believe all cats should be indoor cats.
- I don't know. Never had a cat
- As they have to be inside, or leashed outside, I'd say 3 is probably max. Unless you have a large home.
- Cats don't need a whole lot of space to be happy so more per household seems ok to me. If they are all roaming the neighbourhood, that's a whole other bylaw to deal with.
- better managing.
- I believe you need to have the room and space for the animals to keep them happy and not to cause any undue stress to the animals or to your neighbours.
- Seems like a reasonable and manageable number for a city household.
- The number of cats is not really the issue-if they are fed, healthy, quiet, not crowded or neglected. Perhaps there be a cat/square foot bylaw, probably better, as cats are pretty much all the same size not like dogs, so easier to calculate.
- See above
- avoid pet hoarding, health, behavioral and financial stress issues in an around the home.
- Again, this depends on the home.
- Have managed three Cats in the past, mainly indoor pets. Cleanliness. manageability and proper care are the key factors.
- Cats are smaller and if kept indoors four is a reasonable number.
- Same as above
- I j
I feel that two pets per household are plenty. They are company for each other. There has to be an exception made for fostering helping homes
- Unless a rescue or foster then as long as animals are cared for well
- Two can be owned responsibly.
- any number is reasonable as long they are well cared for and don't bother the neighbors with escaping
- Same as dogs.
- I think 5 is plenty but may need exceptions for foster homes especially those with mama and kittens.
- 3 cats is a lot of cats to care for
- Too many cats create smells quickly. But again depends on how well the owner looks after them. No cookie cutter number.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- See above
- 2 is reasonable, 3 is ok too.
- I don't think pets should be limited "per household". People with 1 cat can be terrible owners with a poorly-behaved animal, and people with 5 can be awesome owners with wonderful cats.
- pets like space, just like we do. Pets can also be expensive, shots, food ect. Many have them roaming, without knowing the dangers to them and others.
- One is enough, but two if the rationale is need company. More than that would not likely be condoned in a zoo if looking at density needs for the specific animal and its behaviours etc. In any case - taking care of them is another reason; two is difficult enough.
- Cats do not disturb neighbours, so the number does not need regulated. .
- Whatever makes ppl happy as long as the animals are taken care of properly
- Depending on the size of the home and owners. All owners must be able to fully provide for ALL their needs and requirements if they went multiple cats.
- As long as owners take responsibility for not letting cats roam unchecked and animals are neutered / spayed
- Cats don't front generally bother other neighbors, but two would be enough.
- Same reason to keep it fair they should be the same at 6 in my opinion. That is already alot but some families can manage vet care and enrichment for that many. Any more and things are getting a but out of hand and likely not comfortable for the cats or people.
- I don't really care how many cats people have as long as they don't poop in my yard.
- It really depends on the owner and how they are taking care of the cats - are they letting them roam free? Then they shouldn't have any. It is hard to judge but I think there should be a cap. Would also help landlords who do allow pets have the city behind them. Same with dogs.
- The same as for dogs. Limiting numbers will not prevent hoarding.
- As long as they're in the house and not running wild on the streets!
- same as above.
- Depending on space and financial considerations, as long as they are adequately cared for and sterilized, multiple cats could be accommodated.
- ability to properly care for the animals
- I believe cats need less supervision than dogs and hence have selected a higher number than my selection for dogs. However, I think if someone lets their cats roam free outside, four would be a reasonable number.
- I don't like cats
- I think two would be manageable by most people however, any more than this has the potential for the animals to be neglected, the yard to become an eyesore, and neighbors complaining or worse.
- Same as for dogs. Avoid hoarding. Each has a playmate. If multiple families reside at one house, they can each have two.
- While I would not own 5+ cats, I don't think the city should set limits on ownership unless there is evidence of neglect or failing to follow bylaws

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There should be no limit on number of cats in a household if the owner is able to responsibly care for all cats.
- Control of animal and companionship.
- Officers discretion. If someone is keen on rescuing cats from shelters, has a proper facility, and exhibits proper boarding, that may be the best environment for a number of cats
- It shouldn't matter how many pets someone has, but how well they are cared for. The people I know with more pets are the best pet owners. If a limit is made, owners that already exceed that limit must be grandfathered so pets don't become displaced and families stressed or torn.
- Same reason as for dogs.
- Same as above
- so that the animals are not alone i say two.
- As above.
- Two can keep each other company but any more seems unnecessary
- Two cats make for two very happy cats.
- I am against HOARDING. Before I adopted my first cat a year ago - I would've said 2 or 3. Now I say it doesn't matter as long as it is not a hoarding situation. They must be cared for, individually loved, and rescues.
- Less impact to the public, so this isn't as important.
- The more cats, the more likely the pet owner will have difficulty in managing their pet waste, resulting in strong odors, health issues and possible decrease in neighbouring property values.
- I believe 4 cats in most houses is no issue at all. I worry about cats reproducing and turning into a hoarding situation. Depends on owner, I have a friend with 8 cats, all licensed, healthy well cared for, clean tidy house and a cat patio built for them. No issues.
- Cat's are relatively easy to care for and I think that any reasonable person who desires to have 4 cats would easily be able to provide them with the care and love they would require.
- It depends on space within the home and time of the individual that owns the pet. If someone has little time and little space 1 small cat would be enough where if someone has a very large home and 4 cat and plenty of time to dedicate to them i don't see why they shouldn't have 4 cats.
- Same answer. As long as they aren't neglected it should be up to the owner how many they can take care of.
- Cats will have more smell and do not get out for exercise as per dogs
- All depends on the owners! As long as the cats are healthy and happy, there shouldn't be a number!!
- Same as above.
- If a pet is being given full attention and looked after properly, that can only be done to the fullest degree when concentrating on a single pet.
- See response to #5
- As above, as long as the cats are well cared for, there should be no limit (within reason), ie: not 100, a hoarding situation
- Same answer as before

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Again as long as they are well maintained and looked after ,vetted and are not a nuisance to anyone
- Cats should be kept indoors, and I believe that as long as there isn't a hoarding issue, an owner is capable of dictating how many cats they are capable of caring for. Many people also foster cats for rescues and limiting numbers could greatly affect that ability if they also own cats of their own.
- for territorial purposes
- Should only be 2
- Dont need as much space as other animals
- Depends on the size and type of dog and owner and the household. I think there should be some rules that can be enforced regarding the expectation of the health and environment of the animals. However, I would say it's hard to justify more than 7/8
- Limitless, again depends on the situation. If all animals are happy, healthy, and basic needs are met as well as the owner adhering to all of the responsible pet by-laws. The owner can have as many as they can responsibly care for!
- It's less about a number, and more about care of animals. If they are well cared for (physically, psychologically), and do not bother others (neighbours), then there should be no maximum.
- I believe that if the household is properly taking care of their animals that the amount they can have could be higher. I believe that animal breeders should have a cap on the amount of animals they can have.
- I think many people can be responsible with multiple pets. There should not be a limit.
- They are inside so do not bother anyone. It is forced pet responsibly ownership and i am ok with it
- Too many cats may not get the proper attention
- Depends on the quality of care that can be provided.
- Would be fine with more IF the owners maintain regular vet visits of all cats, to ensure there is no poor hoarding situation. I would cap it at 5.
- Same as my answer for dogs. Foster is imperative and limiting will kill animals. There are bad apples, but why limit and penalize those being responsible and trying to make a change in the world.
- Because of animal rescue and foster homes. If the city caps the number of animals the city should grant the grandfather clause.
- Same answer as above! Depends on the house and the owners!
- I don't think the number is important as long as they are cared for properly.
- I do not think a number is appropriate for the law. It should be about appropriate care of those animals in the home; not a restriction by quantity.
- It would be too difficult to regulate this type of bylaw without infringing on a person's right to do what they want in their own home. A competent, conscientious owner can take care of multiple animals while a "bad" owner might have difficulty caring for one.
- 2 allows the cat to have a cat companion, while ensuring proper time and attention can be given to both animals
- Depends on house and size of cat. You have no place in this.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- This can vary per household. If people are responsible, the number isn't the issue
- Same as above, really. For the health, well-being, and associated costs of all humans and animals residing in one household, 3 should be manageable.
- Cats need space, separate litter boxes. It seems like a reasonable number to safely accommodate and care for.
- Again good owners and bad owners. Doesn't matter how many they have provided they are controlled, contained and cared for.
- As above, ability I meet needs to each animal beyond basic care.
- Unfamiliar with cats so picked the middle ground
- Same as dogs
- Depending on the amount versus size of the house as well as capability to care for
- Size of the cats, space available, income all impact how many animals can be cared for and I don't think this can be legislated
- If cats are indoors and the owner is responsible and can afford the cats , I don't see why it would matter to neighbours.
- Same as dogs, except the noise isn't a problem. Cats can also be kept inside, unlike dogs.
- Depends on the size of the house since there should be a cat box for every cat plus an extra one. And if the owner is able to commit to changing this amount of litter boxes every day and if they can afford the up keep of a clean litter box.
- More than 4 tends to turn into a hoarding situation unless they are reputable breeders.
- I think a person should be allowed to have any amount of cats if they have the means to take care of their needs (feed, walk, spend time, train and socialize). I do think people who have more than 5 dogs should be given a once a year home visit to ensure dogs are well cared for.
- Same as above really. Many cats are better in pairs and especially when fostering kittens.
- There's no reason to own more than 3 cats.
- See above.
- same as dogs
- Number of cats per household has nothing to do with responsible ownership. Someone can be a very responsible cat owner with 10 cats and someone can be an extremely irresponsible cat owner with just one.
- Cats can be companions to each other but not overwhelm with smells and sounds.
- Cats are quite easy to care for as they do most of it themselves. Just remember to feed, water, and change litter and you're set. As long as cats get along well and it's not stressful for them.
- Cats require less attention than dogs, have less potential to cause harm/public destruction and they don't require regular walks, so people should be allowed a higher number than dogs. Too many though and the health, safety and well being of the animals would be compromised.
- I have to say cats are funny because they can be chill or crazy. Anything over 4 is not really being a good cat owner. we are passing into hoarding at that point and that is dangerous.
- Cats are easier to care for.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the cats remain inside the number of them per household does not impact me. Number should be determined based on healthy environment for the cats and their needs.
  - Same as above
  - I believe that a person should not have to put a number on the amount of dogs per household. If you are able to love them, give them what they need, exercise them and treat them as if they are your children, than that is what truly matters
  - Who needs more than 3 cats?!
  - Cats often escape and are Difficult to catch or fall prey to wildlife. Reduce the risk of feral cats.
  - Same explanation as above. It's unreasonable to expect every single calgarian to fit into an average when not every since city member understands individual circumstance.
  - No specific number as long as they are cared for, loved and have quality of life
  - For fosters and rescues
  - Too hard. Depends on space and people in household
  - Cats are easy. They stay inside
  - If they are cared for, and provided for, and are inside Spayed/neutered cats, why does it matter if they have several?
  - Same as above. It is all about how many people are able to properly care for.
  - Again depends on the space available. Maybe 2 in apartments, but 6 or 7 in a large home would probably be just fine if they are well tended.
  - need to be good standing.
  - More of a solitary animal, smaller in size, indoor for most people
  - Again this is a person to person question and rescue agencies and breeders should be responsible for their due diligence.
  - not a cat person
  - 3 is a lot of cats. One or two is better.
  - Same as above.
  - They are a good company for each other. An extra litter box and maybe another can of food is all you need to keep them happy.
  - I don't have cats
  - Too many irresponsible owners out there. Too many they are apt to be wreaking havoc on the city (and peoples gardens) and causing more problems than it's worth!
  - Same as above.
  - - If they're well taken care of, it doesn't matter
  - - I don't have in the neighbourhood but maybe elsewhere?
  - - Same as above
  - - more enforcement
- NOTE: More clarification on municipal versus provincial regulations on vicious dogs
- Hair & Furniture
  - Because they're a family uinit

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not regulated
- - You can have more than dogs
  - Easier to watch
- More than 4 cats can increase the chance of diseases and infections developing and being passed around.
- one pet for rental 3 pets for homeowners
- There should be NO limit, as long as Cat Parents are looking after their cats well, are controlling their cats and following all cat rules.
- as long as the household can provide appropriate water, food, medical care the number of animals shouldn't matter - it all depends on the owner being responsible
- See above
- Same applies to cats as dogs. See above.
- The number isn't relevant. The care and conditions are. See comment above.
- Animals help the mental stability of people. For every person living in a household should have access to a companion animal
- Same as dogs
- Same rational as for dogs
- I think if you are responsible and financially able to properly care for many animals, then you should be allowed to have as many pets as you want. People who want to breed irresponsibly or hoard animals will do so regardless of the law
- i would say none, but 2 is reasonable- sometimes they need a friend. 3 TOPS.
- same as above for dogs
- See above
- Multiple cats require an immense amount of care.
- If the cats are cared for and abiding by the rules of staying on an owner's property then they can have as many cats as they'd like
- As long as they are cared for and not living in bad conditions. Then why not?
- This should NOT be a hard and fast rule though. Some homes are huge, with an extended family sharing the home. If they can and do take care of their animals and do not cause real issues for the neighbors, city officials should not confiscate animals people love . So, appeals should be allowed.
- Depends on the owners. Are the animals in good health? Home in clean and sanitary order? Unfair to responsible pet owners for blanket rule.
- For the health and safety of the animals and the discourage backyard breeding.
- Again personal for me as I couldn't handle more then 2. But if someone is responsible and it's a clean caring environment I believe they should be able to have 5+ more. Some people are just trying to care for these animals who would otherwise be homeless.
- Not your business to decide
- cats need space to roam.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The reasonable number of cats per household is the amount that can be feed, exercised, and stimulated happily - this is a personal evaluation for each household based on their economic ability, energy levels, commitment to training etc
- Depends on the size of the house and space that is being lived in and the abilities of the owner to take care of the cats.
- The amount of cats that can be cared for well is not universal, and should be considered on a case by case level. If there is a restriction imposed those with more cats than allowed should be grandfathered in.
- Cats are perfect pets as long as you are not a hoarder, you clean up after the cats and do not exceed 10 with multiple people living inside the home owning the cats.
- It depends on the household, size of home, etc. Also whether the owner is able to care for them.
- Reasonable number for owner to responsibly care for.
- Same answer as above.
- same as above.
- Assuming the cats are kept indoors at all times this likely matters less than dogs, but how many cats does one person really need?
- Cats are pretty self sufficient. They are solitary creatures though, and need food, human company and litter. Having too many cats in a household would create unsanitary conditions and the cats would not be well taken care of.
- To lead a human and quality life.
- Why more?
- Same answer as above
- Same as with dogs, as long as all cats can be feed and sheltered appropriately, and the owner has time to provide exercise and mental stimulation, 4 is reasonable. And keep them inside!!!!
- It depends on the size of house and yard as well as who the owners are as pet owners.
- same as for dogs, above.
- See previous note.
- Again, this is a question of the pet owner and their ability to properly care for 1 or 100 pets. Can they financially and physically care for the animals in their home? Is the animal or human health at risk?
- Why would anyone need more? See above
- Cats needs space to be cats. More than 3 can create more conflict I think.
- Same as above.
- Same reason as for dogs. should be grandfathered in for homes with more. Gives rescues access to multi pet homes and l's hate to give up animals because of a number - do multi pet home visits.
- Again, it depends on the owners.
- No reason just seems reasonable.
- As many as they want if cared for and kept indoors
- Their god given choice not yours!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That is enough.
- Same reason
- Same as above - a competent owner can reasonably keep many cats. In incompetent one would be problematic with even one cat.
- Company for each other. I am not a cat person....
- Cats are less social animals.
- Depends on the house and the cats. The safety and care taken of the animals and any children present in the house is of the utmost importance.
- Two seems a reasonable number in terms of providing proper care.
- Again there is not right answer. Who can say? The city should not be telling me I can have 2 dogs and 2 cats or what ever animal. most people are smart enough to know just the few are not.
- Reasonable depends on the household. If someone has the financial and spacial needs for many animals, they should be allowed to have as many as they want. Also it is a given that the animals should be well cared for no matter the number.
- Proper care of animals is costly and many cannot afford the necessary expenses leading to their I'll health and well being.
- I feel it's more reasonable to have a few cars at a time but limits should be in place to reduce hording and ensure animal welfare
- For proper care and attention to the cats
- Two seems reasonable inside a home.
- Cleanliness and disease.
- As long as owner can provide everything the cats need both mentally and physically, I don't see an issue.
- same as above
- quality of life for the animal
- They are just the same as dogs they need fosters and if there aren't enough fosters there it's going to be tougher on the humane society or brick and mortar rescues to hold them all.
- Grandfather clause should be there for people who currently have multiple pets.
- I don't have cats, but I think three could be manageable.
- If the cats get along, and are well cared for, what is the problem, and why is it anyone else's business, esp the City's?
- There should NOT be a # limit. It should be on a qualitative assessment - to the point that the person can healthily manage their cats without posing risk to others or to the animals. Having a # limit will just encourage people to not license & will cause harm to rescues/fosters
- Same as my previous answer. As long as they are well cared for and they are. It a nuisance the city should not dictate.
- For people who foster
- I don't think it matters how many dogs a person has in their home, so long as they are taken care of.
- Same as above.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As long as the cats are being cared for appropriately then it is up to the family . We don't limit children, we shouldn't limit pets
- Same as above
- Same reason as above. If someone has the means and time to properly care for multiple animals at once, then they should be permitted to, provided they aren't using them for breeding purposes.
- same as above
- Same as above
If you have the time, money, space and love!!
- Same as above
- As long as there is health and safety in consideration a person with 5+ pets can be a better owner than a neglectful person with one pet.
- Same answer as above.
- As long as animals are being taken care of properly and being seen by a vet on a regular basis and licensed there should be no limit
- As long as animals are well cared for, how can you limit it? What are the concerns?
- Same as above. As long as they're not roaming around and their owners are responsible for them, the current bylaws are just fine.
- Two is enough for the cats to provide company for each other. Any more could lead to behavioural issues, such as toileting outside the litter boxes.
- Again, it depends on the owner and whether they can provide a good environment for the cats.
- Same as above
- Shouldn't be a limit as long as all cats are provided for a few from any stress or suffering.
- See above dog comments...same for cats.
- I don't believe the city should dictate. Should be based on the square footage of indoor space of the home/property.
- Why do you need more for an inner city home.
- Same as my reasoning for dogs.
- Why do people need more than 3 cats? Seriously, why?
- As long as all the cats are spayed/neutered and have regular vet care, I think people can own as many animals as they can care for.. Unless it is a hoarding situation which is mental illness, not responsible pet ownership.
- highly social creatures that require interaction with their own kind. Pairs of anything is always better than having a 'third' wheel that will cause stress.
- It should be proportional to the size of the property and how close the neighbours are. Too many cat in a small space is not a good situation for the cats, the owner and the neighbours.
- Need to be cared for in a clean, safe environment, licensed, vet care, follow responsible pet ownership, spayed/neutered and not allowed to roam the neighborhood. Again not allow excessive numbers.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- if you cap #s of animals, then grant the GRANDFATHER clause so that the extra animals are protected under that clause. how wld u like it if all men and women were judged the same? all rapists, women abusers, thieves, con-artists, serial killers - that is what you are doing. I don't appreciate it
- Same as above
- Two is plenty for a non-rescue-oriented household.
- I don't agree with limiting the amount of cats someone has period. But if you do, There must be an exemption for breeders, rescues, and fosters.
- If it's a single person, in a small space, I would expect that they would have a maximum of two cats. However, if it's multiple people in a really large home, then three or four seem appropriate. However, if people have both dogs and cats, they should be allowed fewer animals; e.g. 2 dogs & 2 cats
- If someone wants to care for more than 5 cats and the cats are calm, or are seniors/ have health issues, they should not be limited unless there is a valid reason for restriction (temperament, history of illegal behaviour or lack of care, vicious, etc.
- 2-3 should be manageable.
- Same
- 3
- cats are independent creatures and like there space if you have lots of space 3 should be good
- I don't like cats.
- Many people have their own pets, but do an honorable thing such as fostering dogs in need. These dogs are then temporary and go to adoptive homes. I don't condone hoarding situations however, where ownership exceeds 5 cats.
- No limit. Again, should only be limited by the owner's mean's and abilities. a limit will not prevent hoarding.
- I don't believe that there should be hard and fast number. If all animals are give the appropriate care and attention as well as no nuisances there should be no restriction. There should be tougher laws regarding neglect and abuse instead, especially for hoarder situations and repeat offenders.
- These are kept indoors
- Same explanation as for dogs - it's not a set number but more about have a trigger after which The City can visit the property or re-assess the licences. If cat has a litter of kittens, obviously the number could shoot up to 10+ cats quite easily.
- Generally, one cat is enough, but some people may have two (brother/sister cays, etc)
- Again, the number of cats dictate the owners level of competence.
- We are a multi cat household. My cats are well cared for and licenced. As long as the cats are in a healthy environment, well cared for there is no reason for 5 or more 20 or more is a bit much, because then they are not being mentally cared for
- Cats require less attention (mostly) and like company. Any more, and owners may not be providing appropriate care.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- This question - how many cats per household is reasonable is not the right approach to answering the problems. It depends on household's capacity, ability, and know-how to care for and provide a healthy life for their pet(s)
- I don't have cats but same as above
- Vet costs and animals can quickly become out of control - especially if they are not spayed/neutered.
- It is NOT the number that matters but the level of care. Please don't waste valuable tax dollars monitoring this superficial measurement. I have known many multi-pet owners who are absolutely doting with the animals in their care. Limits encourage less licensing and increased stigma for kind people.
- Again it is not up to the city to decide how many pets one can care for.
- Doesn't matter / none of your business - they don't go outdoors
- It depends on the size of the home, and the number of people in the household to care for the animals. It's silly to assume that a person in a 500 square foot apartment with no yard should have the same limit as a homeowner with 2000+ square feet.
- The number of pets does not have any indication of how responsible or irresponsible a pet owner will be
- cats are unique and their situation and numbers are the same. i =
- For the home reason as dogs. But for permanent pets. 4 is enough.
- Provided they are properly taken care of then who cares
- see above
- Same as above.
- As long as the animals are under control and cared for properly numbers don't matter
- Cats usually don't get along well with other animals
- Previous answer pretty much Same.
- It is none of the city's business how many pets I own as long as I am a conscientious cat owner,
- Cats should be kept indoors or supervised outside by the owner at all times.
- Not necessary
- Playmates are fine for 2, but the smell and hair get to be a lot.
- I am not a cat person
- Human safety.
- They stink if there are too many
- So long as they are not put out at night to run at large same concept if they are being looked after then it should be up to each individual household!
- Same as #5
- Same answer as above. I do not believe responsible pet owners should be penalized.
- Two allows for company for the animals.
- hoarders and care issues

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If people are properly caring for their pets they should not be limited to a small number. Grandfather in existing pets if this moves ahead
- Same as above.
- Again same as above. As well if you limit you will end up forcing people into not registering there pets a lieing due to that I do being used against them.
- Given home and yard sizes, and individual pet needs and costs for vet care, food, etc - a house in the city should be limited to four. Owners shouldn't be breeding either
- If outside cats, they should be limited to 3 because of owner's inability to contain them, monitor them for pet waste pick-up, etc.
- Cats dislike living with other cats, unless they are siblings. Having multiple cats in a household causes stress for the animals.
- just seems like a reasonable number.
- 2 is just a number. I think 2 is just a number. I think this varies by household, the ability to care for an animal responsibly and in accordance with bylaws.
- As above- more than that seems likely to cause problems for both neighbours and be unfair to the pets.
- as long as they're in the house, they generally don't make noise either, as long as someone is caring for them properly there would be no issue
- There is no legitimate reason for there to be an unlimited number of pets in a household. 'More than 5' just becomes 'more than 10', and then onwards until there is a hording situation.
- No real science behind choice but just seems that 3 each would be a reasonable number that a person could responsibly care fo as far as paying for food, vet, toys, boarding but also being able to pay enough attention to all 3 and provide regularly exercise to all 3 (which would be 6 pets!).
- They have to be kept indoors. One litter only
- Cats do not need a companion
- Same as above
- If they are indoor and carried for.
- space, cost
- Except if a cat has had kittens. We do have a problem with wandering cats.
- Again, when is too many for some + 5 + is more than reasonable for others. Trying to put people in a box set your system up for failure
- Same answer for dogs
- I believe as long as they are responsible pet owners, they should be able to have as many as they can properly take care of
- More than four tends to multiply quickly for cats.
- I'm not saying everyone should go out and get 5+ pets but it should be a choice.
- It really depends on the size of the property and the capacity of the owner to take good care of the pet(s).
- i do not have any cats just the strays that people do not want

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There needs to be one more litter box than cats in a house to avoid the worst of cat behaviours which lead people to boot their cats outside or surrender them. Cats also need space, and the safety of not being in a hoarding situation. They should always be neutered if not used for breeding
- I don't believe there is a perfect number, it depends on the household set up but i do believe the more cats the more chance that they are not being properly cared for and dangerous conditions may arise
- as above
- Once again, I think if cats are licensed, well taken care of, vaccinated and vetted annually to prevent spread of disease then it should be to the discretion of the owner.
- Same as above
- Again, proper adult to cat ratio should be 2:1. Depends on house size as well to discourage hoarding situations
- Again, must have reasonable space to live comfortably
- As long as the animals are well taken care of, fed, healthy, etc. It shouldn't matter how many pets an owner has, as long as they keep the pets out of trouble, follow bylaws, and keep the animals healthy and happy.
- Too many people let their cats outside ....
- 2-3 is appropriate. Any more and you're just hording animals and taking a lot of time to care for them.
- I volunteer with animal rescue and we often adopt animals that have a hard time finding forever homes. It's not unusual for people involved in rescue to have multiple cats.
- Same as answer above.
- Same answer as above
- Again, you can't impose rules on pet ownership and if they are hoarding, maybe someone will know (harder with cats than dogs) and neighbours will report.
- Same comment as previous.
- If animals are well looked after it's not City's business
- If you are a responsible owner you should be able to have as many as you can handle
- As many as people can reasonably look after AND have altered.
- As long as a person is a responsible pet owner, it should be up to them.
- Except for fostering situations, I believe that 2 cats per household can get along, and have enough space.
- 6 max. Cats if properly looked after and reasonably contained to the property are not much of a problem.
- Freedom of choice
- Cats in your household are your responsibility and do not effect anyone else .
- It depends on a case by case basis. Some people can have 7 cats with each and every one taken care of wonderfully. On the other hand, someone could have 1 cat and be neglectful.
- Seems reasonable

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same answer as above
- Cats aren't as needy as dogs but I still think that 3 cat per responsible person is fair in general. If people can prove they can handle more than they should be allowed, same as for dogs.
- People should be allowed to have as many cats as they see fit, as long as every animal is safe, well taken care of and has optimal space and time for exercise.
- Again, it isn't the number if they are properly cared for!
- Same reason as dog answer above. Many people can look after multiple cats and many cats prefer to live with other cats. There should be an expectation that as long as owners are licensing their cats and being responsible owners, they should not have an arbitrary limit set on how many they can have.
- Same as above. If owners are responsible, number doesn't matter.
- I don't care how many cats someone owns if they're not letting them roam outside, are following all bylaws, and are providing for all their needs effectively.
- two is company.
- I don't own cats so I do not know what to say exactly. I believe three would be enough. Keeping cat litter boxes clean and keeping the smell out of your home would definitely be an issue. I have been in homes with several cats and their homes smell like cat urine and ammonia.
- See above. I have 4 dogs & foster dogs & cats. My neighbours love visiting them & I keep everything clean & quiet. The dogs get 2 hour daily walks; if they bark at all at home or in public I redirect them immediately. My foster cats are indoor only & have their litter changed twice daily.
- Same as above - some people love cats and others are fostering or rescuing these animals to find loving homes. Again does discredit multi animal homes due to some bad seeds!
- As long as they are properly cared for. Some can handle 1 - 3. Others can care very well for many more.
- See above
- It depends on the person what is reasonable. 4 is a fair amount for the average city home.
- Same
- I actually don't think the city should determine how many are too many
- Depends on size of house and ability to maintain a healthy and clean environment.
- Cats smell
- For sanitation reasons and not wanting too many in one space that could cause harm to each other
- See above.
- cats are quiet and require less care
- avoid escalating numbers where hoarding can happen
- quality of life for pet, owner and neighbors
- Cats are a bit different and I am a cat person, 100%. However, this does depend on size of home, personality of cat(s) but it also comes down to the cleanliness and treatment of the animals. Cats are good at taking care of themselves but I believe ppl take advantage of that and neglect them.
- I don't believe a limit on the number of pets making a difference to animal health and well-being.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The ability of the owner to care for them
- I think a limit somewhere between 5-10 allows for pet rescues volunteers to have their own pets plus foster pets.
- It's just a "me" thing.
- This should not be the city's responsibility
- I don't know how anyone can properly spend the right amount of time with them beyond this.
- two cats are easily maintained more than that your vet bills are higher and cleaning up after them is more work.
- To ensure animals are under care & control of owner. If fostering, depends on the size of the home.
- more difficult for owner to properly care for higher numbers
- I think that there are people who can handle a more than average amount of cats, and that there shouldn't be a hard limit on number of pets as long as the owner can properly care for them. There are people who take wonderful care of many cats and people who are unable to care for just one.
- Same as previous
- Cost and the ability to provide proper attention.
- I don't know really -- but too many of any animal in a house can become difficult to clean-up after.
- Same as comment above
- I think that number can vary based on the willingness and ability of the owner to provide proper care and training.
- Not a cat person, not fair for me to answer this question.
- Same answer as above
- A responsible breeder may have kittens, young adults, other cats being shown either by themselves or for others, adults and usually a couple of pets. Because of the nature of litter boxes, you may not be able to keep as many cats as you could dogs, but with proper management could still have a numbe
- As long as they are kept indoors they should be no bother to neighbors
- Same reasoning as above. Setting limit at 5 gives most people the freedom to have the number they want while prohibiting hoarding.
- A responsible owner can well look after multiple cats and an irresponsible owner can not properly take care of a single pet so it should be up to the owner how many pets they choose to have so long as they are well cared for. It should not be up to the city to make that decision on their behalf.
- I do not think most people reasonably can care for more than 2 cats but I do know many that have 3. I do feel that 2 is a better choice based on vet fees though.
- Buddies help stave off boredom
- If I can have unlimited dogs, same should go for cats, however... cats indoors or on leash! Just like dogs. Tired of them pissing on my deck and digging up my garden.
- Responsible pet owners make sure their cats are well-cared for, have a number of litter boxes, have safe space to exercise (such as catio outside), and do not harrass wildlife such as birds. Irresponsible cat owners can have one roaming cat who is worse than several contained cats.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No preference as I do not own a cat. I do believe if dogs are licensed cats should be as well. They should not be able to roam at large unless on rural property doing a job just as a dog may.
- Again up to the person. Not everyone should have 5+. But if you are responsible and taking care of them
- Number is not as important as responsible ownership. Kittens under the age of 4 months should not be included in the number count to not penalize responsible breeders. Roaming should be fined as it the animal is not under control and will eliminate in other peoples gardens and flower beds
- Must be safe and hygienic
- Same response as the dog question. However, more needs to be done to ensure cats aren't roaming off of their property.
- 3 is adequate to care for.
- I don't have cats due to allergies but if I did, they'd be coming from responsible breeders and cat breeders should have similar rules and allowances.
- As per above.
- People should own the number of cats that they can afford to care for.
- This is a manageable amount of cats for a one person household
- Responsible pet ownership has zero relationship to numbers.
- Once again, I feel that people generally have an idea of how many cats they can comfortably care for and house, depending on their yard/property size.
- Same as dogs. Responsible owners are everywhere. An irresponsible owner is not defined by a number!
- As long as the animals are cared for, well kept and not living in a dirty home, it should not matter how many pets a person has. No one should tell people how many pets they can/should own as long as the animals are not in danger.
- The smell, the fact that they are allowed to roam free and crap in my yard. Loose ones attract coyotes.
- Same idea applies as with dogs, created a city breeder registry.
- Unlike dogs cat reproduce at a much faster rate and people are often careless when it comes to the spay and neuter of cats. A pair of cats can produce close to 100 kittens a year and when people abandon their animals it is adding to the stray cat population which is already large enough.
- As long as the dog is Registered, tested, trained (responsible owner/breeder) shouldn't be an issue.
- I do not have cats, but again cleanliness and ability to care for them (both physically and medically as required) is the first priority when it comes to numbers.
- I really dont care unless the number undermines the powers ability to care for them and that they are inside cats
- Cats need companionship. Too many can create health issues and if allowed outside, cause inconsiderate deposits at the neighbours. Roaming cats are not pets.
- Same answer as above for the dogs. As long as cares for properly numbers don't matter to me.
- Same as previous.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Because if they are all fixed and healthy, and stay inside, it's no one's concern.
- Same; have two
- I don't think there should be a limit as long as the cats are well taken care of.
- Same as above. As many as is appropriate for that specific household. The city shouldn't have a say unless there is concerns for animal welfare.
- Too easy for cats to become feral
- Cats are very individual like people. Some like to be alone and others like company and a playmate. Cat owners should try to accommodate the cats preference.
- Please see my answer regarding dogs above.
- Same as above..its about their care, not how many there is.
- Cats are much easier to care for than dogs.
- The smell is too much for a small place
- Two many cats stink
- Too many may be smelly.
- hard question. it depends upon the owner. as long as the house is clean and the cats are well cared for, the number does not really matter
- See above answer.
- Nobody needs more than 2pets
- Six. Hard enough to manage, especially as indoor animals.
- Cats are indoor animals (unless bylaws are not followed) some cats tend to mark in houses, especially if the house has too many cats and not enough clean litter pales (rule of thumb 1 box per cat) no one wants or has space for 4 or more boxes
- If the cats stay on it's own property, are well cared for - does it matter how many someone has?
- More than 3 is hard to keep sanitary.
- I know there are people who rescue and sometimes households are combined due to economy
- Indoor cats or outdoor cats- it totally depends on the owner and how dilegent they are about cleaning up and looking after their animals. Some people 1 is even too many.
- More is not necessary.
- Too many cats have a tendency to not get along but also need to be kept inside and licensed.
- Same as above. As long as cats are not let out to roam and are kept as indoor pets
- Cats need to be kept indoors unless leash trained to be outside.
- cars can do a lot of damage to a house and are also a danger to wildlife.
- Again I believe it is up to the owner how many cats they want, as long as they are well cared for
- Anymore than 3 cats in a home is extremely difficult and costly to handle in a big city. For the owners and other citizens safety, a limit should be in place already
- For some of the same reasons as above. As well cat's don't go out in public so sort of a non issue. It's apples and oranges. I really hope the intent isn't to use this stat to play with the numbers
- Need to be cared for, safe, vet care, in a clean environment and not roaming free. Also needed for registered breeders. Licensed

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Two cats are sufficient for company for each other, unless a registered breeder.
- I haven't met anyone with more than 4 cats whose home didn't stink like ammonia from the litter boxes. If that can't even be managed properly, that leaves doubt as to the quality of the rest of their care.
- The city shouldn't be dictating
- No right to dictate
- Again I can't stand cats but a friend safely manages 10 plus. Everyone is different
- Some people offer caring homes to cats in need. It is not hard to imagine several cats looking for shelter and being cared for by one individual
- A solid fence can contain dogs. No fences can contain cats and many cat owners say that their cats need to be outside even though there is a bylaw starting otherwise.
- See above.
- Same as above
- As long as all needs are being met number should not matter
- Same as above any more than 4 would become overwhelming
- Same as my answer for dogs.
- Same as above except for size. Cats should not be allowed to run outside untethered.
- Reasonable to manage and care for 3 or less
- Same as dogs. Providing the animals are well cared for, there shouldn't be an issue
- Same as above.
- See question about number of dogs
- cats keep down mice etc. people like animals their a part of life, again people pay taxes and buy their own home, as long as their taken care of and not using neighbours yard for crap...people can build cat runs in yard
- Not a cat person but other people can be
- None of our business!
- Number is irrelevant if cats receive proper care & housing.
- The number of cats does not determine quality of care. It is a personal choice and should be left up to the cat owner.
- Cats are disruptive and messy. As long as they are kept indoors or outdoors on a leash, more would be fine. But people do not abide by those rules and let them run loose.
- Mouse control
- Indoor cats fixed this is a reasonable household size to maintain care for.
- As above unless a reputable, responsible breeder of PUREBRED cats for conformation.
- Why are bylaws opinion/survey based. Shouldn't it be fact based? Like review other cities that have limits and don't have limits. Anyone can have an uninformed opinion.
- As above--responsible management of the animals is the crucial fate.
- Again, It depends on the size of the household. 3 is my middle ground answer.
- three seems to be reasonable when dealing with veterinary care and other needs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Responsibility - period. Someone can have one cat and not look after it properly. Other homes can have multiple cats that are looked after!!
- If I had cats myself, that would be my limit.
- Because cats multiply so fast. Cats carry many germs.
- Same answer as above - but for cats.
- However many a responsible owner can easily manage re the animals' health and welfare.
- I do not like that government wants to regulate my decisions and limit animals I feel I can be responsible for. Stop it.
- It depends on the circumstances, as long as they are in and on the owners property.
- I have seen homes with 6 Cats very well cared for, people 1cat badly cared for. Given that a cat has 4/5 kittens you cannot put a number of 5 cats total as this would put foster carers at risk and would impede efforts for stray feline population control.
- It depends again how responsible the person is.
- Same as for dogs
- Same as dogs
- 4 cats is enough if they are fixed and go in and out side.. If cats are strictly inside and fixed 10 is fine as long as kept inside
- Same as above for dogs. Small hobby breeders are of great value in producing quality companion animals, and they must have multiple animals to breed properly. Leave animal numbers up to the owner's discretion provided they are being properly cared for.
- Same as above for dogs as long as the cats are not free to roam the neighbourhood.
- Same as above.
- Same as dogs
- Same reasons as with dog owners. Same rules. Keep those cats indoors and not free roaming. Stiffer fines for reoccurring offenders.
- Again. Good responsible cat owners
- Owners choice
- If the owner is providing proper care and sanitary conditions with proper mental stimulation, then the number should not matter.
- I would rather see cats roaming around and keeping the mouse population down. Cats must not roam (by-laws).
- Cats are not a high maintenance animal and do not require a heavy amount of care. Cleaning waste and hair are the biggest issues. Most people can reasonably do this
- Same as question 5
- I think as long as you can care for them properly, vet them and feed them a healthy diet then it should be allowed.
If they are polite and not causing issues with the neighbors as well. There is no problem.
- Same as above
- If cats are kept contained the number is irrelevant.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- This is providing they are indoor cats as per regulations. Licensed breeders could have more.
- Cats are [removed]
- If they are indoor only and their needs are met why should anyone care how many a person has. Now if they are allowed to run wild then there is a problem.
- Again, up to the individuals. Not my business and it's not the government's business either
- As above
- Again, has to do with ability of owners to care for that number of animals.
- It is highly dependent on what an individual is able to provide, not only financially but in the way of time, training, enrichment etc
- Should not be allowed to roam outside
- I don't feel the cats will get proper care and attention when there is more than 2 per home.
- See above.
- Same reasons as above.
- If proper care and licensing ensues, have as many cats as one likes.
- same as above
- Same as with dogs, they have to understand how many litter boxes to have and how often to clean the litter boxes.
- If you can afford to provide the animals with proper care and housing than you should be able to house five or more. There is a major stray cat problem in many cities and if someone can take care of a few than it shouldn't be an issue.
- see above
- whose business is it how many cats someone has?
- Cats like other cat company and most stay indoors
- Same as dog breeders.
- Breeders should have a license and annual CHECK of their kennel/set up to ensure the number of dogs and licenses are equal. This includes the neuter and spay.
- Depends on the circumstances and also the amount of care they have for their animals. Lots of rescues are put into the same home and therefore it should be up to owner. Responsibility is up to the owner and if not taken care of them they be removed and/or surrendered.
- After that number it becomes difficult to care for them and keep their litter clean.
- Nice for cats to have a companion for company.
- no more than 2 and they should have to remain indoors so as to not be a nuisance to neighbors and their property
- Same as previous.
- I think the average household should be allowed 3 without question however similarly to my opinions re dogs tho rare, an individual working in the cat industry (breeder, trainer, performer) should be allowed more. Definition of "working in the industry" means achieving income through cats.
- Same as above

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Restricting the number wont stop bad behavior or animal hoarding. It just penalizes people like myself. Some owners are not responsible at all whatever rules you put in
- 2 for sure, perhaps 3 - but again, the size of house comes into play because *city* cats should not be allowed to roam freely outside.
- Same for dogs. See above.
- Care of pets should be the deciding factor on how many can be kept. I've seen people with 6 pets take better care of their pets than some people with only 1.
- Same as above.
- Same as question 5
- Any number of animals depends on the ability of meeting the animal's physical and mental needs. Some family's can only do this for 2, some can provide for 5 or more.
- The number should be reflective of the CARE the pets are receiving. I know folks with numerous cats that are INCREDIBLE human parents and very responsible.
- Again it's not about how many it's about if those cats are being well cared for.
- Personally I don't find cats as annoying as barking so I care less about the numbers of cats as long as they are properly cared for. I wish they could roam free honestly because they were great at keeping the mouse population down
- Also this is plenty of pet cats for one household
- Cats in the house are independent and not an issue to others. over 10 you may have issues.
- Breeders and responsible cat owners
- Same as above.
- As long as all animals are properly cared for it shouldn't matter!
- The amount of cats are a different story than dogs. As long as the cats are being treated well and having thei litter box maintained, the amount isn't too concerning for me.
- If the cats are cared for properly then the number is irrelevant. ONLY if the cats are not getting pepper care should the number be a concern.
- As long as people are following the rules and not allowing cats to roam, what does it matter?
- Hygiene
- Anything more than 4 I don't think 2 people would be able to give proper attention to each animal.
- Same as above about dogs.
- Same as dogs
- As long as they are being cared for, I don't see the amount being a problem
- Same as above.
- If the cats are completely indoor cats, then the household needs to decide how many cats that house can handle. On the other hand, if those same cats get to run free in the neighbourhood, then the numbers need to be lower, as then they are a neighbourhood issue
- Solong all cats are well taken care of & free of neglect, I have no issue with how many cats someone owns.
- N/a

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- 4 would not fit in an apartment though. cats do not require as much active training as dogs. cats should have more than one litter box/food/etc.
- Typically, tough to be master for more than two pets without professional backing.
- No reason
- Most cats are not 'completely indoor' animals and most people let their cats out to roam the neighbourhood.
- Same as above reply.
- Not a cat person but think two is a reasonable for anyone.
- Again space and money make all the difference
- Same reason as I stated for dogs above. Some animals need a companion.
- Cats are harder to care for... clean litter boxes, food, natural instinct as predators.
- Cats are easier but there is no controlling someone with poor cleaning skills. A cat requires more cleaning than a dog (ie. Litter box)
- People should not be limited to the number of pets they can have so long as they are financially capable and the pets are well cared for.
- Same answer as above in the dog question
- Unless a breeder of quality felines and kept indoors, then there could be 4-5 individuals.
- As long as the cats are not allowed to roam free and are licensed the same rules should
- See above
- As above
- The number of cats doesn't have a reflection in whether or not you are a good dog owner. If u suck at cat care you'll be just as bad with one animal as you are with more
- This is for strictly pets. Unsure of what would be appropriate for breeders.
- It's up to the owner to decide how many cats they can look after well.
- Three is a reasonable number for a household to adequately look after
- Not sure anyone needs more than 2 cats
- Svery family is different this answer is only for me and my circumstances. I have a home where 3 cats could live comfortably and thus that is the amount that should be kept.
- Same as for dogs. If all the cats are cared for, are in good health and all of the by laws are followed I see no reason why the number of animals should be limited.
- Again, the average family could handle two before it gets out of hand.
- Same as above
- Same as above. As long as the cats are well cared for, inside cats and not an odor or noise nuisance...? But their is hoarding for pets so their needs to be some limit for cats (and dogs)
- *same as above/dog
- It all depends on the owner. I have had 6 cats at one time, all were happy, got the food and care needed, etc.
- Waht does it have to do with a dictatorial city as long as neighbours are not unduly affected and cats are well looked after?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Reasonable number to be able to spend quality time on them.
- Cats are less demanding than dogs. Thus it is possible to have more cats than dogs in my opinion. But I think once you have more than 4 you get into crazy cat person territory. And its harder to care for them all.
- How ever many you can properly take care of, again I have a 2600sqf home and can happily take care of 5 or more cats.
- I don't think there should be any limit on the amount of animals a person has as long as they are well taken care of.
- Same as above for dogs. Its about the resources the person has to ensure they are well cared for and not neglected.
- Again this depends on the person in question some people like dogs others like cats, they should be able to have as many as they want providing each animals needs are met.
- Same as dog, 5+ is just excessive
- However many can be loved and cared for properly
- Again, depends on the person and the household.
- Many cats are allowed to wander neighborhoods unattended and most of the time have no info or collar attached to them so there should be stricter limits on cats
- Same as above
- As long as they are well looked after, should a number be assigned?
- Again, it's not the number of animals, but their behaviour and actions and those of their owners.
- Again, its situational. Size of home, and responsibly cared for ie spayed and neutered etc
- Same as above. Cats should stay indoors only because they destroy native wildlife ecosystems
- Same as above for dogs.
- Cats and dogs are behaviourally different. Commonly, cats may need more room to adjust, vs. Dogs have quicker pack mentality to live along with each other if given the right training and indroductions, cats too but they need more space than dogs most times.
- The rule stated by feline behaviorists is that you should not exceed one cat per room in your home thus this should be based more on the size of a homestead to ensure a happy feline. Cats aren't as demanding of their owners and can be more easily cared for in larger numbers then dogs.
- Same as above
- As long as the animals are well cared for, there should not be a limit.
- I don't really think this question is appropriate. It depends on if an owner is capable of properly caring for multiple cats.
- Don't have cats
- Again cats are easier but still need attention.
- See above.
- too many and you become a cooky cat lady.
- As long as the house is large enough to give cats enough space as they are territorial. Smaller homes should have less cats.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If you can care for the animals (spay/neuter/vaccinate/vet visits) and you're not annoying your neighbors, go for it.
- See above.
- I'd ban cat ownership. My neighbourhood is overrun with feral/stray cats despite the City's many rules. Cats kill untold numbers of wild birds (billions globally). The individual's right to cat ownership is less important than everyone's collective right to not see nature destroyed
- Same as above. Level of care is more than most comprehend. I don't believe one person can handle more than two fairly (to both animals and themselves, never mind neighbors etc)
- That's enough cats for them to be company to each other, but I just can't see why you'd need more than that.
- If you are a cat person and follow the bylaws why limit
- If you are abiding by the by laws why limit the number
- If they're well cared for it's not my business.
- I don't care about the number, as long as they are cared for. Similar to deed not breed, it's not the number, it's their care.
- This is a slippery slope. I have had multiple pets in the past, and have friends who have multiple pets. Whether it's one or more, they all need to receive the care they deserve. There are plenty of owners of single pets who should not have even one.
- Cats are social creatures so having a play mate in the home is helpful to behavior. All cats should be indoor pets only.
- For cats to feel comfortable and have minimal stress they need safe places to retreat when necessary. When I think about the average home size (1500 sqft) 3 cats I believe would feel comfortable in that space.
- Cats don't need other cats as they are not social animals.
- no capping on number of animals in a household. same as above
- numbers do not define a family's abilities to care for their animals - limits do not change the community except to take away a well educated and earned title as the most pet friendly city in Canada
- Cats care is more than most people realize.
- If there are too many it's difficult to keep the home clean.
- If cats stay indoors it doesn't really matter. If they are allowed to roam then 0.
- As long as they are cared for and kept inside I have no concerns about the amount of animals
- Invest in resources to help with animal hoarding or animal abusers instead of dictating how many pets a responsible pet owner should have.
- Animals require attention and even though cats are small they do shed and use a litterbox. Again, I say three as a personal opinion based on thinking the upkeep of having more than three cats could get to be unsanitary but I do not feel strongly about the number.
- I don't own cats but if the owner is responsible it shouldn't matter

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Again no cap but all cats should be fixed (unless their are health concerns) and no back yard breeding
- I would need to write you a book on this and a litter needs time following birth as well.
- Again there are breeders
- Who cares? As long as they're healthy and the owners are respectful to neighbours, it's not your decision to limit who owns what kind of animal, whether they have kids, or 25 vehicles.
- Again it boils down to being able to properly provide for the animals and not being overrun with them or living in filth.
- This is a good number for companionship of the animals
- Everyone can be different. Time, cost, resources , training, behavioral work etc, food, vet attention/cost, attention all dictate the ability of the household to care for the pets properly. Unlike children where nature limits the number that you can have and care for. A limits is needed 6 perhaps?
- same answer as above
- cats are a nuisance and spray and smell there's no reason to have more than two cats.
- Same as dogs.
- Same as above
- I think any more than 4 cats in one household is too many, as they each need their space and in a smaller 1-bedroom apartment, that would be too cramped for more than 4.
- "reasonable" is subjective and I don't think giving people a 1 - 5 selection is a "reasonable" thing to do.
- cat hair is disgusting. people should vacuum everyday and clean their catbox daily.
- Don't care how many as long as they are healthy and aren't bothering neighbors
- size of home / expense of proper care
- See answer as for dogs.
- Non of our bees wax. If the house is clean and cats are health how many cats in a home is not up to us. Nor dogs frankly
- The same would apply to cats, as long as they are appropriately housed, cared for and maintained there is no set limit that can apply per household at it varies on each persons abilities to care for pets.
- How many cats in a household should absolutely not be decided by other people unless that specific household has had animal-related charges in the past.
- same as above, concentrate on people who neglect, abuse and not care. then follow-up to ensure they never can have another animal.
- Same answer as above. Some people are quite capable of looking after a number of animals well, others aren't. I don't think the answer lies with the number of animals, but instead with the quality of care and training.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I really feel it depends on the household. How big is the property? don't like having catch-all restrictions unless it's very clear about the circumstances (for example, maybe the restriction is based on square footage of property, income to care for the animals, etc.)
- Again, as long as owner is responsible, the number shouldn't be restrictive.
- Same answer as #5
- They are inside so no one but the owners should be concerned!
If roaming then neighbours do have a right to complain if too many from 1 house
- A reasonable amount of cats is three unless your cat has had kittens. This is so you can provide all there needs and so the cats won't be overwhelmed by each other, have the resources they need to be happy and feel free to be themselves.
- Large numbers of cats may create unsanitary conditions in the home
- Cats are easy animals to care for and maintain and clean up after. 4 cats are reasonable in a household with 0-1 children and 1-2 adults.
- I am not a cat owner, but I would say 3 in the inner city, and more if out on an acreage.
- Attention and I dont think most places are big enough for more
- I actually think zero cats is enough, but two seems reasonable.
- People should be able to have as many cats as they are able to care for
- Same as above.
- This is not an unreasonable amount
- Cars are smaller than dogs and not intrusive to neighbours when inside. Owner control still diminishes as numbers grow though, there should be a limit.
- For the least responsible owner.
- Similar note to above.
- Cats have little impact on the natural environment (as long as they're kept indoors).
- Most cat owners keep them inside so I don't have a problem with someone having a few cats if properly cared for.
- Each require individual space and care
- My choice of course doesn't include when your pet has babies.
- Whatever number someone is able to care for. Some people should not have any pets, while others are capable of caring for many. If someone is able to give animals a good home they should be able to care for as many as they can, given the current pet overpopulation crisis, especially with cats.
- I don't think there should be a limit - it depends on an owner's ability to care for the cats. Few could handle 5+ cats but it should be determined by an owners ability to care for the animals. What about individuals who foster animals?
- If all cats are altered, properly cared for and not bothering your neighbours.
- It's hard to integrate cats and can be stressful for them with multiple
- Cats are smaller.
- However many cats the crazy cat lady had from the Simpsons was too many.
- Unsure.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Random guess. Cats should be inside ONLY - so don't really care how many my neighbours have.
- When released outdoor cats kill millions of songbirds each year and most songbird species are headed toward extinction
- They are small.
- Its really hard to keep cats from going next door to defecate
- As long as all cats in the household are provided reasonable care, including yearly vet examinations. All animals in the home should be spayed/neutered.
- Again, define household. Cats being indoors would be a different issue than dogs as they would rarely interact with neighbours. Would also like to discourage irresponsible breeders/hoarders and such but encourage fostering.
- Hopefully cats would be kept indoors (for their safety and to avoid issues in the neighborhood, bird kills, etc), but I do not think there should be a high number in a household.
- As for dogs.
Furthermore, what if you have both dogs and cats? Better just leave the bylaw as it is with no fixed number of animals, just an obligation to be responsible
- 2 plus kittens that must be given away/sold by the time they are 1 years old. Hygiene can become an issue.
- Limit to 3 to manage waste collection. If people want more than three they should be able to apply to have more where it would be considered on a case by case basis.
- Cats are pretty solitary creatures. My personal limit would be one cat but trying to leave some room for people that want more.
- Number of cats should depend on whether or not animals physical, mental and medical needs are able to be met.
- It depends on the size of your household
- Likely varies and depends on owners ability and financial and other means to care for the animals. Lots of multi dog/cat/pet households that are 5+ with very responsible pet owners.
- Same as above.
- Tempted to say 1, but 2 is definitely a reasonable limit. Gets to be a problem re litter disposal.
- Again, for those fostering rescue animals, an exception should be granted. Cats should be licensed and not permitted to roam the neighbourhoods freely.
- Cats seem to be the #1 species that is discovered in pet hoarding cases. Having more than 4 cats increases the possible spread disease on surfaces through the household. Cats allowed to roam contribute to falling wild bird populations in north america so cats should be kept indoors, make 4 the max
- As per my answer for dogs, I understand that cats are social beings... but to a point. Having more than two cats (or any pet that is put outside on a regular basis) would result in a serious nuisance to neighbours and likely become a health issue inside the home.
- Maybe 1 per person in each household as a maximum. Enough manpower to take care and clean up after them all.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- as above
- A person can have as many cats as they can care for. However, you want to have more than 2 cats, be subjected to an inspection once a year. Always have more litter boxes than you do cats, and be able to provide vetting for them. House checks would enforce this
- This really depends on the type of household (apartment, house), the size of the lot & yard, the proximity to neighbours.
- Let it be, unless complaints pile up.
- Cat may need companion.
- People can't afford to pay for the food and vet care for a large number of pets. If cats are kept inside, then the number of cats

Exceptions to placing limits on number of cats and dogs

- No exception for personal ownership. Animals require space, time for proper care, and money to purchase food and medical care properly. People should not be allowed to own more animals than they can properly care for.
- Home Breeders?
- Fostering or other licensed home pet care business.
- If the person has any animal bylaw infractions or charges there should be an imposed limit or ban.
- Polar expeditions. Unplanned puppy pregnancy. Licensed and inspected dog breeder.
- When an individual has more pets than space. When care becomes neglected.
- The size of a household and people's previous convictions or any violent behaviour (or such) records.
- Rescue or foster situation but they still need to follow the rules of the community and the dog parks
- There is no need to have more than 4 dogs living in a home unless dogs are licensed to other owners if I have my 2 dogs and roommate has there 2 dogs. I believe if one of us decides to get a 3rd dog it should be an exception.
- Fostering situation where there are frequent check ins on health and safety
- Responsible breeding
- I don't think there should necessarily be a strict limit. People should be free to have as many animals as they want if they are able to care for the animals appropriately (can afford to feed them, cleanliness) It makes sense for people to have more than one or two if they are fostering.
- If they are a licensed breeder -but not a puppy mill. Animals can not be caged and let put to breed only.
- none
- Never
- Fostering animals through valid rescue organizations and animal shelters. Service animals or emotional support animals. Reputable breeding operations.
- Condo and apartment living
- ? I household that requires 4 Service Dogs for the 4 disabled persons living in the home?
- The animals are in danger/at risk

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- any disruption to neighbours
- Grandfathered until the pets pass away. Sad but makes sense to not have someone give away their dogs. Legitimate, kennel club breeders maybe? Registered rescue centres? They would have to be strictly monitored I think or have some rules to keep it from getting out of hand that could be enforced.
- Obviously puppy mill and hoarding situations need to be recognized.
- Responsible breeders should be knowledgeable and capable of handling a larger number of animals. If an animal had a litter of kittens/puppies there should also be an exception to allow the babies to be properly socialized, but they should be re-homed before adulthood.
- non
- fostering, kennel care, doggie day-care
- in cases of the owner being convicted of animal abuse or failing to provide a healthy and safe environment for their animals, or in the case of an owner losing the ability (like through disability or financial means) to provide a safe and healthy life for their animals.
- If you were helping out an adoption agency
- There could be an application process for another dog in extenuating circumstances . I.e. if a family member/friend passes away and you want to adopt their pet but have already met the limit of pets.
- There should be no limit. Only a person who is unable to provide a clean and well-fed environment for their pets should be the exception.
- Breeder, rescue organization
- As stated before, if the owner is a reputable breeder (e.g. CKC member), then the limit could be exceeded when puppies or kittens are born. They will be sold in any case, so the number of adult dogs will remain the same.
- no exceptions.
- If you are a breeder, or a trainer, or if you are fostering animals until they can be adopted. But most importantly, the household must still be able to care of them fully.
- Rescues and fosters.
- Low income housing needs a limit to 1-2 non-caged animals per household.
- Pet sitting
- Yes, apartment and condo buildings should be supported to establish their own limits on animal type and limits per household.
- Puppies/kittens. If the female animal is pregnant, leniency on numbers until litter is weaned properly.
- I do not think there should be a limit on the number - unless the person has already demonstrated they cannot properly care for their pets.
- If you are pet sitting for someone and the dog/cat properly license to that other person.
- Fostering
- When cats or dogs are nursing kittens or puppies an exception should be made. Temporary permits to shelter strays may be appropriate.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The only case where there should be a limit is if they person has been shown to not have the ability to care for them properly.
- I think we need to consider those who foster rescues, or care for other people's animals while they are away.
- Recent litter of puppies/kittens. Larger homes/properties. A justified need for that many and proven resources to support them
- There should be no limit unless enforced as a court ordered response to a bylaw violation due to lack of care
- A persons capacity to care for the animals. Both mentally and financially.
- Someone that goes through training?
- None.
- Same as above as long as all animals are licensed and cared for
- if there are family/friends visiting and animals are staying at that location temporarily (
- Working animals - shepherds, pest control, guide
- Licensed breeder or bonafide rescue volunteer
- There should be a limit if person is fined, regularly does not follow rules, bylaws or anyone charged with abuse
- When there have been complaints about animal behaviour, feces, noise etc.
- Size of the house/yard. I don't feel 2 large dogs should be in an apartment but a large house with large yard could be fine for 4 dogs. If you have a business license providing pet sitting in your home.
- The pets are cared for well and under good control. Not a nuisance.
- There shouldn't be a limit on the number of animals in a household.
- Temporary dogs like fostering for a rescue org.
- I don't believe in setting definite limits.
- As above, in foster situations or on fenced acreages.
- I feel that owners who have been charged with animal abuse or neglect should be limited to number of pets (if allowed to have any).
- Breeders of registered animals, people who compete in dog sports or work with dogs for a living
- No exceptions.
- If people have demonstrated that they are financially unable to look after multiple pets, including vet care, then maybe it should be limited. When pets are diseased, underfed, not well looked after, neglected, they should definitely be limited in how many pets they can own.
- 1)Registered Breeders, not puppy mills.
- 2)land size- acreage vs, condo
- when owners are not able to take care of the minimum number.
- If you have a big house with a large yard and multiple rooms.
- The ability to house, care for (feed, veterinary care, proper socialization, exercise etc) should all be factors.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- “Exception” implies that a decision has already been made... If a limit was in place, CKC breeders or people who actively compete with their dogs will typically have dogs of varying ages in the house.
- If someone is known to be abusive, the number should be zero.
- Only when the owners have shown irresponsibility with their animals should there be a limit
- Foster situation, or temporary situation.
- To those who have a greater square footage of their property. Those who have enough time and resources to properly provide for additional animals.
- Perhaps a kennel license or something similar.
- The person asking for an increase must demonstrate they have the space, time, physical ability to exercise the animals responsibly and are responsible enough to care for more animals. Must not negatively impact neighbours (leaving dogs to bark/letting cats outside)
- The odour, noise etc interferes with neighbours ability to enjoy their outdoor spaces.
- Limited period of time such as a pet has babies.
- see above
- No exception.
- If the person already has more than the allowed number of pets, they should be able to keep them if they are properly cared for in a sanitary environment.
- No exceptions.
- Larger house. Large yard/yard is private. Dogs are very well behaved (not see or heard).
- If the person has a record of neglect or non-responsible care.
- foster care, breeder
- For a registered breeder who has puppies or kittens available only.
- Breeding of purebred animals.
- we can't think of any other circumstances for exceptions to the rules...
- None.
- See above
- House size, outdoor accessibility, amount of persons in the household. Clear care of household, property, and animals.
- When the dogs or cats are not kept in hygienic conditions, are not well cared for, socialized, fed, or given proper veterinary care. There should definitely be a limit on number of dogs or cats for those breeding, and I would support a ban on breeding at all unless a permit is applied for.
- Prior hoarding issue, landlord choice.
- Service animals.
- Dog sitting, new litters,
- If the person is a breeder registered with the Canadian Kennel Club then there maybe a need for them to have more dogs. Or if the City were to have a Breeders license where the limit may be exceeded.
- A responsible breeder.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If somebody adequately demonstrates that their pets are all well cared for and their house is maintained.
- Possibly space of the residence - large home, acreage?
- I don't believe that the number of animals should be limited unless the owners are unable to properly care for them. While I don't agree that 25 dogs is reasonable, I have lived in a house with 4 dogs where all were well cared for.
- No limit
- Shouldn't be a limit
- Nursing puppies, kitties
- Lack of care, being a nuisance to other people (aka unable to responsibly manage their pets), breaking laws regarding pets.
- When they are not being cared for properly, lack of medical care, living in filth, lack of reasonable space.
- If they are fostering animals, rescue, breeder, and get approval to have more for a specific purpose.
- When the house has a suite for tenants. When there is fostering. Training for service animals.
- One of each
- Perhaps if a loved one is killed & the animal needs to be re-familied.
  1. Emotional support animals
  2. Proof of exceptional care of the animals. I.e. vet references and history of animals in the home
  3. Breeders
  4. Rescues
- I am not sure. Being a shelter animal foster home probably. Breeding I suppose, but they would have to be a licensed and inspected breeder.
- If the person is on welfare/assistance (one pet is probably all they can afford and that way the indiv. & pet don't suffer from basic needs). More than 2 dogs is too noisy for the neighborhood.
- if the owner has been in violation of rules owning the animal(s). if they are not taken care of in a clean respectable environment they shouldn't be able to own any.
- Breeders, trainers, and other dog related businesses. People who participate in competitive dog sports with their dogs.
- Temporary situation
Death/illness of family members requiring transfer of ownership
- Inability to manage or provide the necessities.
- If they are not adequately taken care of or they are a nuisance. Some people should even have one pet.
- After neighborhood consultation and perhaps a site visit by a bylaw officer granting another license would be fine.
- I do not feel there needs to be a limit. Responsible pet owners will care for their dogs no matter what the city decides and the irresponsible people will do the same. The number of pets shouldn't be the issue, the level of care the household can provide should be appropriate for the number of pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- N/A
- If the animals were there already before a limit was placed. Service animals should also not be counted if a limit is given as well as emotional support animals
- none
- See #5 above. Experienced dog owners/responsible breeders should not be limited.
- A litter of puppies or kittens.
- When it's obvious they are not being well taken care of properly
- If you live in a farm-i.e.-some farms need more cats for mousing, etc. Some farms require more dogs for herding cattle/sheep/livestock above their dogs for home as they require working dogs as well
- There has been a reported and proven case of neglect. The owner is not able to provide reasonable care, and does not have reasonable control over the behaviour of their dog(s)
- I think there could be short-term exceptions such as caring for foster animals or supporting in a short term but not long-term
- If someone isn't properly caring for them.
- Service animals
- By special license, such as dog sitters, trainers, etc. Accompanied by bylaw inspections.
- Breeders and rescues though I think both should be regulated to some degree
- Very small pets such as Yorkies or shitzus.
- Never
- There should be no exceptions. That is why population is out of control.
- as long as all bylaws are followed I don't believe there should be a limit to begin with.
- When they are emotional support animals ko
- If there has been a record of abuse of bylaws. However, if the abuse relates to treatment of the animals, the number of pets should be limited to ZERO.
- If neighborhood is being affected or the health and welfare of the pets.
- If they are fostering or a registered animal rescue
- -breeders
- -foster homes
- -good owners
- -show homes
- -working dog homes
- -pet sitters
- -anyone who can capably care for an appropriate number of pets
- Multiple residents and rooms.
- Legal fostering.
- If the animals are being taken care of then some exceptions could be made.
- Breeder

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None. Both species evolved to roam and can put on the miles. We have an obesity problem with our pets. Some households are run by their pets, not humans. It seems too easy to get to hoarding animals, without any intervention until animals have died or are in terrible stress.
- If a number is going to be approved for bylaws, responsible owners over the limit should be grandfathered in. Also, animals that are assistance/service animals should not count in the tally.
- When they are registered as fosters with an accredited agency.
Also if the animal is registered as a service or emotional support animal.
- Puppies or kittens under 6m of age
- established problems with proper care, worries about negligence
- Official guide dogs.
- Fostering, large property.
- if the dog /cat has a litter, they should be allowed until a reasonable time in order to find homes for the young. or if caring for a friend/family while on vacation etc.
- If they have an acre or more of property.
- Registered and licensed breeders.
- I think the most important factor is space and ability to care. Maybe a standard of ownership could be drawn up as criteria?
- Depending on the number of adults. One on one ratio.
- Never. Too many animals is animal abuse.
- NONE
- Pets in foster care through animal rescue organizations. Rural properties.
- Not sure why you need to legislate a limit to numbers of dogs and cats allowed in a household. If the animals are well cared for and the immediate neighbours are not inconvenienced in any way, why should it matter how many animals there are? Do we limit children?
- Registered dog breeders with the Canadian Kennel Club should have an exception.
- Merging homes ( marriage or common law) But must register with City for an exception which would expire and with understanding once an animal passes away you cannot get another as you are over the limit.
- Preservation breeders
Licensed Rescues
Trainers and competitors in dog sports
- If the owner has had previous warnings from bylaw and is constantly not following the bylaw
- Small breeders of purebred dogs. As we age as a society, many friends have made arrangements with friends to take in their pets. You may have 3 pets, your friend dies and you just re-homed her 3 pets. Keeps these pets out of the shelters.
- There have been too many cases of excessive numbers of animals living in over crowded, filthy conditions in residential properties in Calgary, and the city needs to bring in laws that will put an end to this terrible practise by irresponsible owners, and it needs to be stopped right now!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If had unexpected litter and can't find homes for all (not commercial), if one dog is quite old and want to bring in puppy to more easily adapt, temporarily looking after someone's pet (not commercial)
- IF you were breeding; family moves in; family passes away and leaves behind a pet(s) to care for; temporary fostering/training; emergencies (floods/fires etc)
- Working farms or similar environments in a rural area ONNLY!
- When there are multiple families or a new litter
- Only if there's a pregnancy
- Responsible breeders: one litter at a time.
- Should not be any circumstances..limit of two per household
- I don't like the idea of a limit.
- Dogs with puppies or cats with kittens until babies weaned and moved to new owners
- Noise, attached home or apartment, size of the home, if an owner cannot properly care for animals
- In a situation where they are a CKC (or other kennel club) breeder with registered pure bred dogs.
- If a household has a kennel license for breeding or rescue organization.
- The complete care of the animal. There could be one cat or dog in the household but is not being taken care of properly, or you could go the other way where there is more than the limit but the environment is cleanly and animals taken care of properly.
- When someone is in rescue and can prove it
- Registered breeders of CKC.
- Yes as for breeders or fosters they should be accountable to not be a nuisance it really is how they are raised and expected to behave. I would really like to see a change in the bylaw restricting dogs left outside when owners not home. Most noise complaints would be down
- If you limit animals you are infringing on my rights - try to limit people per house and boarders instead
- Not sure they needs to be unless the household has been investigated for abuse or hoarding
- If the home isn't big enough
- Where it is clear the animals are being abused or neglected
- Age of animals or families living in one home
- Rescues, registered boarding facilities/businesses
- Proven ability to handle difficult behaviours (or willingness to learn), temporary foster homes for pets, or day homes (kennels, short term boarding) where the amount of pets is down to 2 or 3 each night.
- if the person is in care to rehabilitate the animals or temp foster care.
- If they are a breeder or if they live on an acreage.
- CKC or other type of registered breeder. A home that fosters dogs/cats or emergency shelter
- I think when the person is in the animal care profession; trainer, groomer, vet, canine rehab therapist there could be an exception because they have the knowledge/ access to resources to care for multiple animals, that regular households do not I.e retail sales associate, doctor, general manager.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- For someone fostering or a mama who just had babies. Perhaps a time limit on how long the household can be over limit.
- Sliding scale-type, case by case scenario. If running a rescue or pet sitting, boarding, etc, be registered as a business.
- Fosters and rescues, registered breeders
- When you cannot prove that you can handle the financial burden and do not own your home- renting has a decent amount of extra instability
- If the bylaws are not being followed.
- If one is a service dog
- If the issue becomes a health concern, then less is better.
- licensed breeder
- For those who foster or rescue homeless animals from shelters.
- If the animals are healthy and cared for.
- Apartment, no outside space
- There should not be a mandated number of animals.
- Property size.
- Can't think of any.
- People should be grandfathered in - if they already had a certain number of pets they should be allowed to keep them, but if they are acquiring new pets over the limit that's not allowed. Maybe if your pet is dying you could be allowed to get a replacement pet before they die? Or don't regulate it
- Never
- See 5
- All. People should not have more than 3 dogs or 3 cats etc. The more animals allowed the less likely they may be well cared for and could have some individuals start collecting pets.
- None.
- Animal rescuers or fosters pets
- None
- Fostering, location within the city (rural vs downtown condo)
- No exceptions. One is sufficient.
- A licensed certified breeder.
- If there is a recent litter of puppies or kittens
- with a kennel permit, proof that the dogs are used in competition.
- I think a registered (CKC) breeder should have an exception
- If there is past history of the owner not providing humane conditions or they've received warnings from bylaw (barking etc.)
- If the owner is neglecting the animals and putting their welfare at risk. Or if they put the public at risk. Or if they are profiting off of them (using them for breeding irresponsibility or dog fighting)
- If more than one support dog is necessary.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The size of the house is really the only thing that should dictate how many you have, other than personal financial ability
- In all circumstances - makes sure that safety of animals and neighbours is considered, helps control or maintain those anomalies (breeders)
- Fostering, caring for other people's pets, sizes of animals in the home and number of people in the home
- Should maybe based off square footage of home and how many occupants in the house. Not sure of the right answer for this. Some people are equipped to own animals and some are not unfortunately.
- Animal foster homes
- Through application to the City with an explanation that a trained animal expert deems is an appropriate reason to allow more.
- Service animals or temporary fostering
- I am extremely concerned that the City proposes to enter a residence without probable cause and a search warrant. The City has no legal right to do so in a criminal case; there is no legal justification to breach the Charter to intrude into private homes over pets.
- Multi dwelling buildings should have a 1 pet limit and size limit
- If they are service dogs in a group home. Or a foster home with a litter of foster puppies.
- In the case of puppies or kittens born. But all must be adopted or sold by the time the animals reach an appropriate age. ie: 12-14 weeks seems reasonable
- abused,
neglect,
not proper living conditions, health checks, etc bothersome (cats running free) (dogs left outside unsupervised, ie never allowed in house summer or winter).
- As far as more dogs- a responsible show breeder could be allowed more animals. The optimum word is Responsible! The majority of show breeders fall into this category.
There does need to be rules in place to prevent backyard and puppy/kitten mills.
- No limit require. People just need to follow the rules.
- None
- As soon as the care or living conditions deteriorate or can not be maintained at optimal levels.
- House size and or lot size. If you live on a massive property with room and resources, more pets would likely be acceptable. Also some people foster pets, so there should be some consideration toward that service. Also if your dog sitting or someone is visiting
- Only time there should be a limit is if an individual is unable to handle the animals in their care.
- If the space isn't adequate or if owner can't fulfill duties
- In smaller houses like apartments, condos, or basement suits.
- The bylaws are not broken. [personal information removed] More rules will not fix the problem , competent staff working with responsible pet owners is what is needed. [personal information removed]

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Situations where the pets are not being adequately taken care of, lack of food water or untreated medical conditions poor husbandry or abuse. Also hoarding situations.
- when the animals are well cared for and not stressed. this could easily be evaluated by a vet visit and/or animal behaviourist. Humans have 5 children or more, is this restricted? pets are family.
- If lots of complaints from neighbours or the owners are unable to care for the pets
- Rescue
Breeder
Temporarily housing for displaced animals
- Rescues, fosters, breeders, dog sitters
- Fostering and qualified breeders. Or pet sitters. Or exceptionally competent owners.
Frankly, if a numeric limit is ever put in place, it should probably ONLY be enforced when needed - if there is an excessive number, but the owner is capable, ignore the limit.
- Responsible Canadian Kennel Club breeder of purpose bred purebred dogs NOT backyard breeders of the latest designer craze who feed the puppy mill market
- Large property and distance to neighbours.
- Emotional support animals, or when the owners can prove they are able to fiscally take care of the animals
- If the pets are not in good condition
- Exception should be made if you are a breeder of pure bred dogs, have a registered Kennel Name and are a good standing member of the CKC. They are healthy and vet checked regularly and live in a clean environment, and do not cause a disturbance to neighbors.
- If a new family member/friend moves in and has their own pet (example, elderly parent moves in)
- Responsible breeders and catteries. Especially if they show because they usually have pets/retired dogs, young babies, up and coming youth and the actual breeders. If the animals are well cared for, maintaining hood standards and considerations given to their neighbors, it should be allowed
- Animal Foster parents, breeders, farmers who have the space
- A marriage that resulted in more living in one house
- If the person is a breeder or a foster parent to animals.
- I don't think you can quantify a limit, I think reports of too many animals in a house should be a strictly case by case basis so you're better able to grasp the situation and make a judgement call from their
- Yes we hear you loud and clear, you want to impose limits on the number of animals people should have. I resent the fact that you are using the format of a survey to get peoples consent for you to add more rules to our lives. we don't need this manipulative nonsense.
- An exception would be the birth of a litter of cats or dogs and time to raise the litter to a proper age. Also, dog breeders - who should have to register with the City.
- None.
- Fosters or rehabilitators. It would also be dependant on the housing of the pets and the care they would receive.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None unlike visitors who are from out of town I suppose but that's a limited time event
- See answers above.
- There isn't one. Why do you possibly need more than 2 dogs? It's not good for the animal to be housed with several dogs.
- If there are more than 2 people in a household that require guide dogs then the law can be waived on application.
- If you are a registered breeder with a new litter of pets waiting to go to a new home.
- I can't think of any. It's not about what is best for the person. It's about what is best for the animal.
- Proof that the owner can handle more than the limit allowed and an inspection of the home and space where the animals are kept. Cats should be only allowed indoors unless they are on a leash outside.
- When the animals are neglected and start to be in distress.
- Licensed by the city to own more by special exception. IE Foster family CHS.
- There should be no limit.
Vet records and ownership history should speak for themselves. Why would you penalize owners who have never been an issue?
- Dogs under 1 year of age, larger lot sizes.
- When cleanliness (health for people and animals is compromised) is below standards. Health and wellbeing and quality of life for the pets are below standards.
- Licensed breeder.
- There shouldn't be a limit. My property my choice. You can deal with it if there are problems ie poop noise etc but if I'm not hurting anyone or bothering anyone and my dogs are healthy and safe the city has no business interfering. Focus on responsible pet ownership.
- When they start interfering with the neighborhood
- Permitted on a temporary, short term basis after births of puppies or kittens or if visitors have pets or looking after another pet.
- For HEALTH TESTED breeding of purebred dogs (no doodles!). Proof of health testing and even CKC registration should be necessary to own more. No backyard breeding.
- Foster care - lots of foster care people spend money and time caring after animals waiting for adoption. They should be exempt as they are doing this for charity purpose.
- No exceptions.
- None. If you want more move somewhere else. Stop letting the minority dictate to the rest of us.
- Partially answered this above. I think many people truly have big hearts and the means to care for animals properly so why not let them. This is very different from people who horde animals
- Breeding permit, but the premises should be strictly monitored, and all records/financial/medical costs provided at any time.
- I don't know that there should be a limit. But rescues and fosters should have the ability to exceed one.
- Always a limit. People are crazy.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Housing type, suburban/rural/urban distinction,
- This question is very odd.
If a cap is put in place there should be leniency to those participating in exhibition or sport events.
- Anyone who has the finances, knowledge, and help to sustain numbers. Being a bleeding heart doesn't count. There are small hobby breeders that are fighting to save some breeds from extinction who are better than the average home with ONE animal. Not all homes or owners are created equal.
- If the individual is an ethical and humane breeder
- Individual permit applications. In city breeding operations should have to post on their laws just like suited properties or zoning proposals do and see how their neighbors feel about it.
- Hard limits should not be established as horders are already in violation of provincial laws regarding welfare of the animals. Adding bilaws will do little to prevent the situation from occurring.
- If there is someone visiting a household for a period of time less than 7 days.
- Unless they are a licensed breeder, None.
- If someone has acreage maybe allow more pets, but that too can lead to puppy mills/overbreeding to generate revenue. People should need a license to breed any animal for profit.
- Fostering, breeding, service animals
- Square footage of a space should be a factor.
- A person who has been convicted of a hoarding/mill crime, etc.. a person who has had multiple bylaw complaints such as noise, defecation, etc..
- When it becomes unmanageable. When the environment is not healthy for the community or animals.
- Fostering
- breeders should have some flexibility - if they are purebred animals.
- I honestly don't know the answer to that question. As long as a person can handle the removal of waste and control the pets I guess.
- Landlords should have the right to set pet limits. Owners that have complaints against them (noise/necessities of life care/ abuse etc) should be investigated and pets seized and future ownership limited IF they fail to meet care standards.
- Seriously you have my answer
- Daycare services, animals caring for a litter, temporary fostering, etc.
- Neglect
- You should be able to have as many as you can properly care for.
- A foster home for a dog or cat, the owner can afford it, the animals are well taken care of.
- Property type, living arrangements(like have a big lot, on a farm, or dogs used for a job and taken care of properly) community, persons age, money that can feed and care for them properly and fully. Should enforce animals to be insured. if accident happen in public there is accident coverage
- Show dogs; CKC, AKC, UKC approved breeders; if therapy or working dog is required for the house.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- When the quality of life of the animals is impacted or when the animals become an unreasonable nuisance to surrounding community
- Only if the animals are there for the purpose of breeding (i.e. Miniature Dachshunds) and the breeding is licensed as a business and approved to be done on that location
- if someone is temporarily fostering animals for an animal welfare organization, if the animal is a service animal, registered pet therapy animal, or emotional support animal
- Not applicable. Number shouldn't matter except based on a person's ability to be a good pet owner.
- An accredited breeding operation.
- When it exceeds the capacity for the owner to care for the animals and maintain good hygiene.
- Licensed businesses
- None
- If the owner is a "rescue" or "foster"
- If the owner has a larger than average home. Maybe special training on caring for more animals / breed consideration.
If there is any history of animal abuse, frequent "re-homing" on social media, or frequent litters (other than licensed breeders) the city should consider not permitting animals
- If city opens up a breeder application for multiple dog/cat ownership.
- People who have a history of neglect with animals and have been flagged with not cleaning up their yard spaces.
- Rescuing and fostering animals or an animal with babies.
- If proper care is no being provided, the space is not adequate or there is impact on neighbours that is not considered reasonable for city living.
- Registered and responsible dog breeders.
- None
- If it is a registered breeder, rescue or foster
- Low income housing (because of financial constraints to caring for animals).
- Designated rescue, foster, or service animal training household
- An owner should be allowed additional or fewer pets depending on the size of their home and their ability to provide proper care to the animals (e.g., food, water, vet bills)
- When there is any question to the care of the animals in the home. Potential hoarding situations, or homes where it is deemed that veterinary care is required and has not been completed.
So case by case,
- I would say no exceptions - but the one I would consider is a reasonable grace period if your animal has a litter. They should have time to find new homes for the little ones.
- If there have been charges due to neglect/abuse.
- If it's a foster home
- fostering or other SPCA type support... for limited time
- If fostering for a rescue agency

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If it is a multi-family dwelling or the household is clearly not set up for having a lot of animals living their.
- Physical disability or service animal, the home owner is a groomer operating out of their house, the home owner is a performer and uses their dogs for a job (like I do. I have 3 dogs.)
- There should be no limit. [removed]
- Foster caregivers, pet sitting
- Crazy people.
- any previous investigation into hoarding; any evidence of commercial activity.
- an acreage or a very large house.
- under 18, handicapped, and anyone over 70
- Owners with prior animal welfare convictions/charges.
- If the household is fostering or temporarily housing the animals and there is adequate space/resources to ensure the wellbeing of animals.
- If dogs or cats are having litters. Dog sitting. Need limits on times. Multiple animals lends to hygiene issues in the house, the yard and off leash area. Real concerns with dog walkers in off leash areas.
- Responsible breeder
- If owner can demonstrate they have an above average understanding of cat/dog behaviour and needs through their occupation or experience.
- A registered breeder who breeds and sells responsibly. Selling responsibly refers to vetting the buyers, contracting with new owners to spay/neuter and following up on the owners to ensure compliance of same and well being of the animal.
- If they are assisting rescues with fostering.
- If a service or therapy pet is required.
- fostering, houses with no neighbor complaints, breeding, no by-law complaints
- If it is temporary - part of a rescue organization with adoption as the goal, e.g. foster family keeping a litter together until adoption. Individuals can't take in untold numbers and say they're "rescuing" them
- For any guardian or foster home with a litter. In emergency circumstances such as a sick family member or sudden death in a temporary situation.
- Ethical, licensed breeders who may have many dogs/cats at a time. Foster homes for rescues that may be raising litters
- When the number affects the animals ability to be properly cared for.
- If someone is a licensed breeder or in extenuating circumstances. For dogs, they should need to have approval from all Neighbour a working a certain radius of their home
- Private breeders
- None.
- You shouldnt impose a limit. Its not up to the city to police every decision people make. If animals are looked after then why shouldnt they.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There should not be a limit. Again as long as animals are being provided with proper care and aren't a nuisance there shouldn't be a limit. Animal hoarders will connote to hoard with or without a limit. Their acts of cruelty would fall under the APA for not providing adequate care.
- None
- CKC certified breeders. Certified being key here. To help prevent backyard breeding.
- If a person has shown that they are unable to provide adequate care for the animals they should be limited in the quantity. If a person has previously been convicted of harming animals they should not be allowed to own any.
- If there is proof they are competent breeders following all rules.
- Owners, house size, types and size of pets.
- If once has an older animal that will be passing soon. Could start off with a new one.
- None.
- When someone is fostering cats or dogs for an organization with the purpose of adopting them out in the near future (or whenever a suitable family is found)
- The size of the house and backyard, physical/mental ability to care for pets, children, financial capability, criminal history, and home-environment are all factors that should be considered when deciding the appropriate number of pets in a household. A one-size fits all approach won't be effective.
- when there is a litter of puppies or kittens, but the exception should have a time limit - maybe only until the young are ready to leave their mother.
- as 5 put not so if multiple litters are being bred at the same time. Or if someone is fostering or dog sitting for a short duration of time
- Previous history of hoarding.
- When a female has a litter... give them time to wean and adopt out the babies.
- Depends on the home and the reason for all the animals (are they breeding the animals in a safe and healthy environment). Do the owner/s have the capacity to care for this number of animals in a clean and healthy environment and ensure that the animals are not neglected or suffering in any way
- licenced breeder or temporary dog-sitting
- when there is kittens, dog sitting for a limited amount of time and fostering if it is within a few weeks time limit
- case by case
- Registered responsible breeders
- There should not be a limit! If one is put in place, it needs to be a high number, above 15. That would give people the ability to continue to have multiple pets, foster, etc . Also, existing animals need to be "grandfathered" in and there needs to be a permit people could obtain.
- I dont think there should be a limit, as long as animals are cared for and in good health. Calgary is known for being a dog friendly city and imposing a limit for people who generally take care or a large number of pets very well is unfair.
- New litters, for a period not to exceed 10 weeks.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If you cannot properly look after an animal restrictions should be applied
- Possibly for fostering if the animals can be properly taken care off and all of their needs met
- Verified foster home, monitored to make sure it does not become a hoarding situation.
- There should be no exceptions. The bylaws are put in place to protect the owners, pets and public.
- If there is a limit, I would like to see the option of a special foster/rescue license that could involve stricter standards but allow more animals
- If you are a responsible dog or cat breeder you should be able to have more.
- New litters should be allowed but only for a specified period of time.
- If there are no reasonable, ongoing complaints, no limits.
- If a household is operating a registered, licensed animal care business.
- Repeat offenders (ie dog bites, loose dog) should maybe be subject to limitations on owning ANY pets. Reducing the number of pets is unlikely to change the persons behaviour.
- You might consider making bylaws on basis of square meters per kilo or the like.
- never
- none.
- The number of pets in a household is not the city's business
- Many people with show dogs have multiple dogs, they are trained, well cared for and very rarely a community problem. Limiting pet ownership numbers will not stop those who choose not to follow bylaws and general animal husbandry rules, you are only punishing good owners.
- When there is a litter of puppies or kittens
If the household has a business license and is a licensed breeder or kennel
- None
- If you are registered as a foster home for dogs and cats. But you must be registered with an agency or somewhere!!
- Really depends of the size of the dog. Having an amount restriction is inane for dogs. You can reasobly care for more shitzus than dobermans. Have how many per sq ft or based on size.
- As above
- If the household is a qualified and licensed breeder. This still carries the responsibility to ensure that others living in the immediate area are not negatively impacted.
- Only if it is a foster home and the numbers are temporary
- Fostering rescues, whelping mothers, temporary situations.
- Maybe temporarily increase slightly to accommodate people who would like to foster animals.
- Lot size- house size
- Breeders need policing, licensing and monitoring. Anyone could be subject to inspection or investigation if wanting a large number of animals.
- Mental or physical incapability to care and afford the animals
- Size of yard and home, ability of the person to provide care in both financial and physical aspects.
- Breeders, trainers, groomers,

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Perhaps a case by case evaluation. Animal foster homes may need to have more dogs or cats in the household for short periods of time when necessary.
- Licensed/responsible breeding, daycare center.
- the ability to support, and care for should be the first thing to be considered.
- If there's an issue around animal hoarding, or abuse or neglect, then there should be a ban on having any animals.
- In situations of neglect.
- After a birth ...
- Application for exceptions should be allowed, the city could do reference and health checks to determine eligibility.
- Size of household. Capacity of owner.
- If the animals or living environment are unhealthy or unsafe. If the number of animals are impacting neighbours negatively.
- Acreage or farm scenario with more space for the animals and a possible need to have them.
- No exception for Cats (because of the defecation/amount of litter). For dogs, if one or more of the dogs is senior (older than 10).
- I do not believe there should be restrictions, but if there are the exception should be for animals in temporary care, such as foster homes for rescue agencies.
- Breeders, foster homes, most regular people. Should be no limit.
- if you cannot be responsible for all of them with food, vets visits, good behaviour, clean up from them and walk the dogs!
- With special licensing and strict guidelines regarding size of home and yard, barking, and commitment to training, ability to pay for medical care as needed.
- if they are not well-cared for
- Mental health issues, although how do you police that???
- Past history of animal abuse.
- If people cannot afford proper care they should not have animals
- IF THAT PERSON HAS BEEN BANNED FORM OWNING ANIMALS
- Legacy pets (as in family pets) , fostering and depending on the household/land size.
- As mentioned, blended families that move in together could bring multiple pets together living under one roof.
- Approved breeders, fosters, etc.
- Registered CKC breeders could have a litter of 10 puppies plus three adult dogs. Technically this is 13 dogs in one place, however the puppies would be rehomed.
- Structure type Ie. Shared walls etc. more animals means more noise potential.
However the size of the home should not matter. 3 100lb dogs don't need any more space inside than 3 20lb dogs.
- Each resident requires a service animal and the number of residents exceeds the dog limit.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Only where public or animal health is at risk due to the owner being unable to maintain sanitary and safe conditions.
- Foster homes that take a good care of animals, and very responsible and educated owners.
- Breeders could temporarily have more animals as long as it's the exception and not the norm.
- Explained above.
- Breeding and/or foster arrangements
- If they can provide a safe, comfortable home with the love and attention the pet nets and they can demonstrate that they are financially prepared
- Fostering, caring for litters of puppies or kittens.
- Fosters. I know AARCS, for example, uses fosters. If there are, for example, a pet who has a litter, then that should be taken into account.
- breeders with approval; people whose pets have litters and intend to give them away or sell them.
- If they are part of a rescue, if they have a huge home and can designate large spaces etc.
- An exception should be made for trainers and families associated with animal rescue groups (volunteers and foster families)
- service animals should not count in the tally
- If the animals are not being cared for properly and then only enforced on the individual.
- You mean to allow more pets? I'd say no exceptions.
- registered breeder, fostering or raising animals for a short amount of time, perhaps under a special licence from the city
- Limits are arbitrary and there are always special circumstances. If a limit is in place it should be allowed to be exceed if someone can demonstrate an ability to take care of more animals, feed them, give them medical care, give them attention and keep them controlled.
- I guess an exception could be made if there are puppies born and if required for a therapy pet.
- Animals are not well taken care of
- None.
- House size, number of inhabitants of care taking age and ability. Previous history with pets e.g. do they have offenses
- While a breeder has a litter of puppies/kittens
- There should not be a limit. If there are issues arising from an abundance of animals inadequately cared for, they are usually for financial or mental health reasons, which would not be prevented or resolved with a limit.
- it all depends on the area of the house and the availability of back yard space.
- When the welfare of the animals is threatened, or when the health of the people sharing the dwelling is threatened.
- Service animals and foster animals should be exempt
- If the individual has had a problem with controlling a vicious animal, or animal hoarding, or any form of irresponsible ownership in the past, there should be an exception to what I think should be the *lack* of a limit OR have regular visits from animal control.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Service dogs - e.g., if there are several members of household that need service dogs, more would be appropriate. There should be no more cats than number of adults in household.
- Exception should be limiting animals based on property size and analogy for owners to maintain proper standard of living
- In the case that the animal just had a litter, there should be a reasonable time period where the owner can distribute the animals.
That is the only exception I believe is necessary.
- No exceptions
- If you're volunteering for a rescue or foster agency and not causing any problems.
- registered breeders, service dogs
- Licensed pet related businesses that have specific rules and regulations that must be followed
- There should never be an exception. Unless they are service dogs. But real service dogs, like those that service the blind. Not ridiculous emotional support chickens. There should never be a reason to have chickens or pigs within city limits.
- I don't think it should be a hard and fast rule
- Improper care. Cruelty. Neighbour justified complaints re noise, smell etc.
- Breeders, or temporary homes for rescues animals
- If someone is a registered breeder
- Rescue/fostering
- Fostering, good homes, proper animal care provided.
- If the house is providing some sort of daycare service or is looking after a couple of dogs for friends/family.
- If the household has a large property with dedicated dog storage locations. Also in the case of a dog of cat having a litter until homes can be found.
- none
- A licensed breeder should be allowed more.
- when the owner appears to be unable to care for the animal(s) and they exceed 4 pets
- Owners of pets need to be able to properly take care of them.
- Puppies born or an owner with 3 dogs may be minding a family member's dog that doesn't live there full time due to travel, illness etc
- If the dog or cat is a mom that has given birth to a litter and there is a short time period while the puppies or kittens are being matured until they go to a new home.
- There doesn't need to be limits just ensure with enforcement licenses are purchased
- Limits should be in place with attached housing.
- reputable breeders should be allowed more as at times there will be a litter of puppies or kittens. with puppies you keep them for 12 weeks before adopting them out.
- Breeders would need to have an exception to the rule as long as they are actively breeding their animals. I believe a license should be required for anyone that intends to breed their pets, or that has an accidental litter from an unaltered female animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't think there should be a limitation of pets in a household, but e.g. temporarily pet sitting someone else's animals, fostering for a shelter or rescue, families of animals (e.g. adoption of bonded pairs, litters until weaning), households with several pet-owning adults.
- Apartment or small homes, inexperienced owners, and people who have a tendency to neglect or harm any animal.
- If someone is not a responsible pet owner they should not have any or have less. And rescue organizations should be able to have more if shown to be responsible.
- 2 pets=1 adult ratio in the household. (2:1)
- Breeder
- Guests who drop by for the day or weekend, visitors such as family staying for a little while but less than 6 months, birth of puppies/kittens, fostering for reputable rescue groups
- Fostering or adoption organizations, or if someone has proved they can hold that many smaller dogs (bigger need space). Or puppies that are to be rehomed.
- Shouldn't
- Foster families and adoptions often have multiple animals and limiting them could have a harsh impact on a rescues ability to operate
- Space, backyard size, breed size
- Reputable breeders, animal rescue services.
- Temporary rescue/fostering
- As long as people are responsible and look after the animals (vet, food, water, exercise, clean up waste, ensure no nuisance barking etc.), then they should be able to have more than the limit. But if they neglect any animals or bother neighbors or don't have the money to care for them then no more
- I don't think there should be a hard limit, only a way to report concerns about someone who is not providing the necessities for their pets.
- If someone receives a violation of bylaws then that could lead to a limit on the number of pets they are allowed to have in the house
- Proven ability to care for each and every pet appropriately.
I think size of pet should be considered as well - 3 large dogs are different then 3 small dogs.
If one is considered a service animal it should not count
- Owners being unable to properly care for their animals.
- Breeder only with required license
- There shouldn't be a limit.
- None
- If the owner demonstrates that they can afford more, take care of more, not allowing litters of kittens and puppies, their house doesn't look like a cat box or a hoarders'.
- Only in SHORT TERM fostering situations. I have 2 dogs and 1 cat. I will regularly Foster a dog for a rescue group for anywhere from a couple of days to a couple of weeks. It's definitely a big job looking after 3 dogs, which is my reason for only fostering on a short term basis.
- If someone is running an animal rescue out of their home.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

If they are caring for a friend of family's pet, along with their own.

- I believe a service animal, ESA or therapy animal should NOT be counted in the total number of cats/dogs allowed per household.
- When the owner cannot properly care for the animals
- when the person is raising them for future adoption e.g rescue agencies and volunteers
- For a responsible and licensed business.
- When fostering.
- Amount of square footage in the home, financial means to care for all the animals,
- Foster animals or other temporary situations.
- Would have to prove that you have the room, time, finances and a valid reason to have more than 2 or 3 pets.
- Size of house and yard and noise. But one dig can worse then a pack. Numbers aren't a good measurement.
- Breeding kennel properly supervised
- Short term boarding. Emergencies. When licensed as a breeder.
- Obviously, hoarding conditions where the health and welfare of the animals has not been maintained.
- Breeding programs; training programs; any owner's ability to maintain responsible pet ownership
- Dog sitting businesses, rescues or temporary fosters, or ability to prove you are financially capable and responsible enough to care for a greater number of animals
- Hoarding situations.
- Depending on size of land, where in the city they are. If they are a business (boarding) or fostering animals.
- Fostering, breeders for the short time there are puppies/kittens
- I don't think the city should have a limit
- When their home is a hoarding situation and there is neglect present.
- If they are a therapy animal.
- Unhealthy animals living in an unkept space. Vicious animals.
- Say there is a limit, an exception can be make if a household fosters animals for a rescue.
If there is NO limit, an exception made if the household has a history of animal abuse/horrible care, hoarding, aggressive animals, has 3+ bylaw complaints on any animal, or known back yard breeders.
- If owner can demonstrate proof animals are trained, exercised and mentally challenged appropriately. They also need to be fed and groomed properly. Sorry no sugg on how to qualify this.
- When there is a litter of puppies from a legitimate breeder
- Reputable licenced breeders, OR reputable animal rescue groups.
- Under no circumstances. It's the law.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If a cat or dog has had babies, 4 to 6 month maximum. Of course that could be up to 8 or so babies. Someone who is fostering a rescue, but IMO there should never be more than 5 dogs in a household. Maximum of 5 cats too.
- If it is unreasonable for the number of people in the same household to care for and clean up after that number of pets.
- No limits. They do not work.
- When it is not feasible to provide a healthy and happy environment for the animals
- Small or close buildings like condos or apartments. Also if the amount is over the limit of what the household could reasonably care for.
- When fostering a cat or dog temporarily.
- As stated above, when care is good, health and humane standards are met, no limits need be imposed.
- Size of house. Size of animals.
- When a good owner can demonstrate an ability and interest in caring for many cats or dogs. We need more people to provide homes for animals due to poor laws and unfortunate people.
- When the animals are at risk.
- Acreage/ large land area
  - Authorized breeder
  - Owner works at / owns an animal specific business that allows for the animal to be brought to work (aka daycare for dogs, training facility, veterinary office)
- Registered Breeding or foster homes.
- Animal fanciers and breeders
- Big house with a person who has the resources to take care of them.
- When it is a bothersome issue to neighbors.
- Size of property and/or house
- An application to the city to do so and an extra fee per year.
- If the animals are temporarily there like in a foster or rescue situation or if it is a large rural property
- When fostering for a rescue agency where there is a standard that is upheld
- i think it should be the opposite. impose a limit when problems occur, eg complaints that there appear to be pets that are in distress. then upon investigation, then limits can be placed. i challenge you to give me a good reason to over-regulate things like this.
- Fostering and animal rescue
- For AKC registered breeders and or registered fosters for recognized rescues
- If someone's pet has babies they may temporarily exceed the limit (although ideally pets are spayed/neutered).
- Maybe breeders. Should have allowance for more.
- There should never be an exception. Unless it is a service dog. This does not include emotional support animals because that is stupid.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If they are fostering for a responsible rescue and are temporary residents (does not include hoarders who just think they are helping). Or if the person can prove that they can keep a sanitary environment and give adequate vet care including all vaccines yearly.
- Trainers, fosters, specialized cases.
- I never said there should be a limit. That should be at the discretion of the owner
- Larger houses/yards.
- If individuals decide to foster animals through registered adoption agencies.
- If the guardians can prove that they have adequate resources to provide well for all of the animals (shelter & finances & knowledge of appropriate care). Some people could manage well with 3 or 4 dogs or cats and there are far too many of both in need of good homes for them to be denied.
- If the household has more than one person that is able to have the animals under control and be attentive to each animal. This ensures the animals are well trained
- A reputable breeder or a responsible owner. Do not judge people on a basis of how many pets they have. Even people with 1 pet can be a bad owner. Quantity of pets is NOT synonymous with bad ownership.
- Any charges of any abuse or misconduct in the care of any animals.
- If a person is unsuitable for pets, limit them to none. If a person is able to commit to many animals in an exceptional manner and the relationship is beneficial for all members of the household allow them to surpass the limit. Use common sense, and your best judgement (in other words be human).
- In the case of actual hoarding or animal neglect .
- Large outdoor space, training animals, fostering, running a business
- To be determined. Possibly rescue? Foster situation
- Farm, or somewhere that houses extra animals and has the space for the animals to run around.
- Fostering or rescue situations or pet sitting for a friend who is away. Otherwise no other situations I can think of would apply.
- If the person has history of animal neglect or harm
- For dogs :if they have done a recommended training class providing the adequate knowledge to have a well mannered dog .
- Only if they are breeding the mom and the dad. And their litter till they are sold or given away
- It would be beneficial if animal homes were inspected if there are more than 5 pee household to ensure there isn't a hoarding or breeding situation, or mental illness related to hoarding because those situations are unacceptable and either the animals or humans need help
- I don't really care how many animals someone has as long as they don't impact me and my family
- There shouldn't be a limit
- Never. Households don't need more than two large animals each (cats, dogs, pigs, etc) Its smelly & noisy. Less burden on disposal of all fecal matter. A limit would prevent mass abandonment after job loss. Rivers/lakes would be cleaner w/less animals peeing in them. Breeders should be on estates.
- Licensed breeders only should be exempt.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Income and ability to pay for adequate veterinary care.
- Size of the property. It's not necessary to have a big yard in order to give your dog a good life. But I don't think there should be more than 1 dogs in say a 1bdrm apartment ...
- acreages, large lots.
- See above. Breeders should be allowed 2 more than other residents, but require a business licence. People should be allowed to have 2 extra dogs/cats temporarily for the purposes of dog or cat sitting or training.
- If the owner has ever been caught and charged with neglect, abuse or failing to provide for animals.
- Due to puppies/kittens in a breeding facility: limit should be only for animals older than 6 months.
- There should not be a limit unless there is a good reason for it. Like the house being teeny tiny.
- Perhaps if a household is fostering the animals, then they could be allowed more. Or if someone is running a dog sitting/boarding facility out of their home.
- City approved animal establishments or temporary animal foster homes that have a strict screening process.
- Living in a condo or apartments
- Service dogs
- When breeding
- History of animal abuse or negligence,
Space constraints (size of animals vs house)
Mobility and ability to care for that number of pets.
An elderly animal hoarder with 15 cats and 9 dogs cannot adequately care for them despite feeling compelled to 'save' these pets etc
- emergency fostering, or pet sitting. unexpected litter...?
- Emergency situations that necessitate temporary shelter for other people and/or their pets
- For people with financial limitations, certain mental health problems, anger, rage, or abuse problems.
- Fostering, rescuing, person dies and you assume responsibility for the animal...
- Amount of animals in house hold and amount of space.
- Lots of space can accommodate more animals. If dogs are trained well, more may be ok but should be monitored.
- They prove they can financially afford more than two dogs or two cats or one of each.
- In fostering/rescue situations. There are many volunteers in this city trying to help abandoned animals find homes, and avoid overpopulation. I don't think there should be restrictions or difficulties for people fostering animals.
- permit or other means to demonstrate that the owner has appropriate training, the animals are not causing disturbance and that facilities are in place to ensure the health of the animals
- none whatsoever.
- People living on an acreage.
- Never an exception.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Responsible owners who have passed training classes for each animal and whose houses are big enough to support many animals.
- None.
- Mentioned above, when family pet(s) are palliative, or when fostering homeless pet waiting for permanent home.
- If this going to become a bylaw households that currently have more than the allowed number should be grandfathered in. It would be unreasonable for someone to get rid of a loved pet due to a change in the bylaw.
- If they are a responsible breeder they should be an exception - sometimes this is a full time job which allows individuals more time to properly care for the animals.
- Never.
- Pet shelters such as MEOW Foundation
- I. Cases where you are rescuing an animal and find one that turns out to be paired to another animal. In cases where a house is reviewed and deemed capable of supporting another animal safely and comfortably through a review process.
- Owner is able to prove financial and maintenance ability to care for the animals and people who foster for a rescue.
- If the person is a certified foster parent attached to a legitimate shelter or animal rehabilitation centre.
- A course and a license/permit to own more than two. If my neighbour wants 4 dogs than I know that they know all the bylaws and have agreed to abide by them and would be responsible pet owners.
- I'm not sure.
- Calgarians who are in the "Pet-profession" need a reasonable mechanism to have more than 4 dogs and/or cats. Also, there should be provisions for temporary cases where a Calgarian takes care of friends' pets during Christmas holiday or for people away on an expat assignment; up to a year maybe.
- Larger homes/yard or smaller animals. The same reason you wouldn't put 10 horses in a pen designed for 1.
- new litters obviously temporary care of more than the allowed number for specified no. of days
- Dogs/cats under the age of 6 months should not count towards that total per household. Registered breeders should be allowed an exception.
- No opinion
- Not sure
- Accredited dog or cat breeders. Not backyard breeders.
- Landlords should be forbidden from restricting pet ownership -- see similar legislation in Ontario.
- Foster Homes who are registered with and fostering on behalf of a registered pet rescue charity or adoption agency.
- No exceptions
- More than two blind people needing guide dog

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If an individual was fostering adoptable animals.
- - there are lots of reasons someone should not be allowed to have large numbers of animals: hygiene, misery for the neighbours, etc., but most importantly, the animals themselves suffer the most. Whatever the reasons the owner has for owning them all, they simply cannot look after them properly
- No exceptions
- Breeding
- When SHOULD there be a limit then, is what you want from me. I think if you live in an apartment- it's valid to maybe not have eight dogs and eleven cats. Everything is within reason. Animal hoarding shouldn't be allowed [personal information removed]
- None.
- If there is feces everywhere and the own is not able to keep up with cleaning. If they cats/dogs don't get along with eachother. And/or causing harm to anything or anyone.
- If it's temporary - watching a friends pet for the weekend for example.
- anywhere within city limits as this impacts neighbors and the community
- If there had been any proven complaints by neighbours
- If someone is a decent reputable breeder they should be allowed. There should be a permit process involved and a home inspection done yearly.
- No exception. Reduce the number of dogs/cats to a reasonable level. [personal information removed]
- Breeders. They should have an exception and a business license.
- When someone is not able to take care of them.
- Rescue dogs by a responsible pet owner
- None
- Households that currently exceed the limit should be grandfathered in, but no exceptions after that.
- Condo, no space for dogs , foster homes for animals
- none
- -when there is not sufficient space in the household for the number of dogs
- -when the owners are not able to provide adequate physical and emotional care to each dog
- Puppies or kittens for limited time
- Exceptions would be puppies/kittens being born, rescued animals and fostering animals
- Rehabilitation or fostering for re-homing. Any other large scale homing and all breeders should be licensed and the excess numbers should be limited to a short number of times in a year (not every cycle of breeding available). Breeding dogs should be limited to 2 or less and bred once per year.
- Farms who use dogs for livestock cattle herding and farm work.
- no exceptions.
- Maybe for fostering animals.
- If someone is offering 'daycare' to animals and they are keeping a clean environment and not disturbing neighbours.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Service animals should not be counted in the number as they are a necessity to so many. They should however be required to abide by the same rules and regulations of all other animal owners.
- Perhaps if the owner has to submit to periodic random check-ins by bylaw to ensure all needs of the animals are being met and all of their documents (number and types of registered animals, etc) match what the municipality has in their system. Also, a licensing system requiring education courses
- If you must put a limit on # of animals in a household then the exception would be showing that additional animals could be properly cared for or in foster situations. I once fostered a momma and her 8 kitten litter - including my own cat that means I had 10 cats in my house, all were cared for.
- Temporarily if they reproduce.
- Temporary fostering perhaps
- I think all dog and cat breeders should be registered in Calgary (and in order to sell their animals). Registered breeders can have one litter of puppies/kittens, in addition to the adult dog/cat limit, at a time with all being re-homed by 6 months.
- See response for dogs above. Limiting pets per household is like limiting kids. If u choose to have lots and can look after them properly with love, space and health (food, shelter, exercise, no smell from them or their excrement) we shouldn't be restricting it. Health guidelines should be followed
- Foster care homes for pets, if there are more people to take care of the pets, if the house/property is large enough to accommodate more pets without complaints from neighbours, and any petsitting/temporary arrangements.
- None
- Obviously if a person is fostering for a licensed and regulated rescue organization, and they are a whelping home.
- Health issues of the pet or the owner, moving into the city with more than this number - almost a case by case situation.
- Old one on the way out.
- For people that are fostering strays.
- n/a
- When the animals have offspring and while the offspring are being appropriately weaned. There should also be a sort of 'respite care' policy so that citizens can apply to temporarily keep animals above the allowed number for another person in ill health or old age.
- Exception for support dogs / animals that are a necessity to the person emotionally wellbeing.
- Breeders and foster homes will have large numbers of animals. This is ok but they should register somehow with the city
- None
- Under no circumstances. The city should not infringe on people's freedom to own pets.
- Properties that are large enough to handle multiple animals and owners who are proven to be responsible.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None.
- The size of the house, and the ability of the household to provide care and attention to said pets.
- Fostering or having a litter.
- If basic needs and waste disposal is not being met. So cats urinating in the house outside of a litter box, or if they yard space for a dog is just full of waste.
- Case by case, if the owner can prove they can support and feed them
- Breeder, special license, special reason.
- There are no exceptions to the rule. If a litter is born then this household needs to be licenced as a business and I assume that other City regulations apply.
- Healthy for all in household
- Temporary or adverse circumstances ie You have three cats and your mom has 3 cats and then then your mom dies and you want to make sure her precious cats are cared for. Or if you want to take it upon yourself to adopt an old senior animal to let it ride out its final years in a home not a pound.
- Those who wish to foster animals until the find a forever home
- puppies
- Personal choice.
- Fostering
- None.
- ESAs, fostering/rescuing, petsitting and temporary housing, inheriting a pet from a deceased relative
- Only if it is temporary, guests staying, pet has had a litter that will be rehomed, etc. Actual breeders should need a business license though.
- If someone needed to take a friend's/family member's pet into their care. This would be preferable to having to surrender to a shelter.
- When the health and well being of the pet and or humans is compromised
- In large homes or properties with proper facilities for keeping many animals. In he case of home run rescues within the city.
- shouldn't be an exception unless u live on a farm
- No exceptions other then if a cat or dog have babies then they should be permitted to be in one home for a specific length of time that is reasonable to sell or give away.
- Breeders - but they must identify themselves as such and be monitored by bylaws. When animals are less than 6 months of age.
- If a household is fostering or rescuing animals, they should require some sort of license and training. If licensed, these households would be able to have more than the limit.
- There should be no limits.
- There should be no exception. If one lived on an acreage or farm then you can have more, but not in a city.
- Exceptions should be made when people can demonstrate that they are responsible pet owners, or in the case of service/support animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Licensed breeders
- Ability to care for said animals. Everyone loves their fur babies, but many are unable to properly attend to their needs. Often impacting other community members.
- Rescue/foster homes.
- Some registered breeders may need 4 or so in order to breed responsibly.
- I don't think there should be a limit. I think if there's an issue, by all means, address it and give owners resources and assistance but the city does not know each household's personal situations and thereby isn't in a position to enforce limits. Please enforce the current bylaws first.
- Space and care. If you do not have the know how and the income to care for multiple pets, you shouldn't have them, some people think they are helping when in fact they aren't. Some people have 1 and can't do it right. It's a hard one. Apartments should have limits for sure.
- If the cats are kept strictly indoors or only allowed access to the outdoors via "catios", the number of cats kept may correspond to the owners financial ability to keep them properly, e.g. food, sanitation and regular and incidental vet care. This should not be interpreted to condone "hoarding".
- If someone is a licensed breeder.
If someone is temporarily taking care of the dogs or cats at their home (someone dog sitting or cat sitting): the limit should be based on the animals' home address where they are licensed.
- When dogs or cats are properly licenced, with the city, as support animals.
- Limiting number of pets per household is subjective to the size of the dwelling and the number of capable, adult caregivers.
- If you do not have space.
- Foster/Rehabilitation households where cats and dogs are often cycling through residency, and the 'fosterers' are more educated and focused on the animals
- Should be none of the city's business unless there is a care issue.
- I think that every household above 5 animals should analysed whether there are enough adults to take care of the animals and in that case, all adults should sign a contract saying that all of them are responsible for the animals wellness
- if the person has been charged/prosecuted by the law that they are cruel, negligent, have abandoned etc., then they should have a ZERO tolerance and be monitored closely. There should be a BLACK CHECK MARK on their DL to identify them so when they show their ID to rescues, they can't adopt.
- Based on ability to properly care for the animals.....if not then limit the number.
- If someone is fostering them for a business or the city but this needs to be outlined with that business.
- foster homes
- Animal hoarding, public nuisance, safety
- NONE
- None

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the animal owner cannot provide health, safety and well-being then they should not have any pet(s). I am an animal lover and have the right amount of pets that I can afford. The public shouldn't be able to dictate how many animals a person owns as long as the pet is cared for properly.
- licensed breeder
- Limits imposed through the courts or if the owner is a problem - not being responsible.
- Registered breeders, exceptional sized houses, foster care
- When a parent or family member moves in with you so you can help take care of them, but they already have a pet.
- Transitional family, pet sitters.
- If there is no yard for the dog then there should be a limit. You should be allowed a number of cats per adult in the house.
- Perhaps depending on how many hours they would be alone, the cleanliness of the back yard should be taken into consideration also.
- perhaps a licenced breeder or foster home of a registered charity.
- Always this should be a case-by-case basis looking at the owner's capabilities and reasoning.
- If a litter has just been birthed, the pups/kittens can remain in the household until they are weaned. Then back to the limit.
- If the household is registered as a shelter or if it is a farm or a large home that has lots of space and multiple caregivers.
- None
- Being a responsible pet owner, working with a shelter/rescue or being a breeder
- If the owner is a licensed breeder not running a mill.
- licenced: breeder, dog trainer, pet sitter
- If you are fostering animals on a temporary basis.
- Why would people need to have more than 2?
- if there are a higher number of people in the household, size of the house/yard, special needs (service dogs)
- If the pet owner is unable to provide for their needs. In that case the SPCA should be contacted, not the City of Calgary.
- For cats none. Dog perhaps for health issues as seeing eye dog etc
- multiple individuals needed support animals, or possibly multiple animals being trained by a certified trainer for eye dogs, etc.
- Foster homes
- Animals owned for competition or breeding (which should be regulated). Owners that run a business focused around pets, such as trainers, daycare staff or shelter employees, where their lifestyle is centered around providing care might also require exceptions.
- Service animals should always be exempt.
- Fostering. Indoor cats and a home owner not a renter.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Previous or history of problems with pets, bylaw complaints, etc. We need to start going after owners who don't understand how to be responsible and not penalize everyone. Size of residence might also be considered.
- if the animals are not getting the necessities of care and owner can not provide for more than one.
- if animal is having babies. pets are under a certain age.
- Animals are starting to overpower the city I look at it is not a clean City more animals than children
- None
- Kittens or puppies
- Home and yard size. Bigger square footage should allow for more animals as long as the pets are well taken care of and not neglected (ie animal hoarding).
- Perhaps if you are fostering for the SPCA or one of the other agencies. That would be the only time I think their should be an exception to the limit.
- Limited timeframe fostering, or register as a business that adopts.
- Large property owners
  - Farm/acerage where animals spend a lot of time outdoors/in barns.
  - Registered breeders (to account for litters, not to allow more adult breeding animals.)
- If they are fostering animals. Time period after litters arrive. Number of people in the household (i.e. more people = more animals).
- If it is out of control.pets are not being taken care of.
- When the health and care of the animals can not be met.
- when its a problem for others
- Rare exemption. Unless the houses in neighbourhood are in acerages.
- None ...
- totally depends on care provided.
- Replacing one about to die if kids are in the picture
- Never
- If the owners are responsible, there should be no limit to pet ownership -- responsible owners will, by definition, self-limit.
- I think that there should be exceptions to a 5 animal limit if 1) they are running a not for profit/fostering/other aid type of work, 2)if they are a certified trainer/behaviouralist
- Certified dog trainers could be excepted, as could cat and/or dog breeders. (Note: I'm defining "household" as a home and its occupants as a unit. If a house had a separate basement suite containing tenants, for example, then each suite would be entitled to a maximum of 3 dogs and 3 cats.)
- Temporary circumstances helping out friends or family.
- Some additional considerations include type of residence, square footage inside the home, available yard space and available appropriate locations for litter boxes for cats. Financial ability of owner to care for animals is also important.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Can the owners look after them well enough so they don't become a nuisance to those around them. Many people buy breeds for the wrong reasons. Then the pets are neglected and become a nuisance to others. Come on City of Calgary, most dog owners have horrible attitudes about responsible ownership.
- None.
- If there is proof that the cats and/or dogs would be well taken care of.
- If a person is mentally ill, old, frail, or highly allergic to cats, they should be allowed to own and keep as many cats s they water.
- Living on an acreage, or if one house has multiple separate units for different residents to live in and have their animals separated from others.
- Breeding/commercial license.
- Kennel, breeders, competitive sports, working animals, responsible owners. Limiting numbers of animals has been shown to be ineffective in preventing bad owners from not caring for their pets.
- Breeder. Then they must be liscened as a breeder. Provide care, space and provide capabilities.
- Strict limits and bans should be enforced on people who have demonstrated poor ownership in the past.
- If a person is a breeder or fostering/pet sitting animals I could see this being a reasonable exception.
- City shouldn't have a limit as long as the pets are raised responsibly.
- Animals under 6 months or animals that are seniors.
- when the owner proves that they can not reasonably care for the animals
- caring for friends/family pets, someone who has enough support help to care for them.
- Foster homes
- Rescue and temporary situations should be exempt. All breeding operations of any sort should need to be licensed and subject to inspection by the city. No exception for the number of adult dogs. Breeding is no excuse to have an excessive number of dogs. Otherwise it is a kennel.
- Combined total should be less than 8. Max 5 pets?
- Breeders
- Fostering, babies, if they are cared for well there is no problem.
- if its a temporary situation and all animals are well kept.
- Service animals. Over 3000 square feet of space
- Breeders / obtained a licence to be able to care and obtain more cats or dogs thus allowing bylaw to check residence
  - - Appropriate licence/permit from the City, with a required inspection
- short term visitors
- Medical assisting dog (not therapy dog) should be excluded from the count.
- Rescue groups or emergency shelter.
- Licensed breeders or rescues

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It's the other way around. There should be no limit. There are some natural circumstances like when there is a litter that more than usual pets may live in a house.
- If there is some reason someone wants to own a large number of animals, they should be subject to licensing and inspections like a livestock facility or animal shelter would be. This would ensure the animals were being properly cared for.
- When the living conditions are kept in a safe condition and the purchase of an additional permit has been made. Neighbors should also be contacted.
- Service animals
- If animals are not properly taken care of - period. Also, the adoption fees need to come down to a sensible amount of fee - its a total rip off and therefore too many animals are not given a home. [personal information removed]
- Owner's willingness to care for and ensure animals are good citizens and not disturbing others
- No circumstances, unless it can be shown that there are proper facilities and resources to care for the animals.
- I cannot think of a exception, if Calgary were to put in laws regarding this ai do think that the ones that already have an over limit should be grandfathered in.
- license breeders should be the only exception
- I don't believe in specific numbers as a limit as mentioned above.
- Don't see a need for a limit. If one is imposed , persons who care for animals in their home should be exempt.
- The type of dwelling house someone lives in
- Past charges under the Bylaw or any provincial acts (especially hoarding)
- Service animals recognized by an accredited institution like PALS, or the CNIB and documented support papers from a physician and a mental health provider. You can buy 'service animal' vest on the internet. How do airlines decide what is a service animal or not. What have other cities done?
- Fostering rescued animals for short periods of time.
- When the owner clearly can't care for the animals they have, maintain their yard or residence or manage the noise of the animals they have.
- None.
- The city might decide to grandfather an existing owner, who would then reduce the number through attrition or they live on an acreage.
- The owners property needs to be appropriate for multiple animals which means space and fenced in.
- if space is abnormally large
- Within city limits, none.
- No opinion
- In Quebec, they made an exception for kennels and breeders so everyone just registered as a kennel or breeder and carried on. I don't think there should be an arbitrary limit set.
- Land size, dedication to full time care.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Multiple family buildings, cases where there are frequent neighbour complaints re noise or odour from animals and in cases with inhumane treatment of animals
- If the owners can care for the animals appropriately, and is able to prove extra animals are well taken care of, It would be fine (not unlimited numbers though, under 6 Perhaps.
- Shelter, acreage, vet.
- Breeding times / purposes and also rescue operations in which people temporarily take in rescued animals to heal them & find appropriate homes for them
- If they have a very large house and yard I could understand having more. OR if they foster as those animals are not kept long term.
- Fosters, people who train dogs/cats, people who temporarily have animals, registered breeders
- Double the number normally allowed if it is a temporary situation - maybe 72 hours?
There should be no permanent exception in a household (non-commercial) environment.
- If the person can't take care of the dog(s) or cat(s) they shouldn't have them.
If someone is in the habit of hoarding animals they should seek help from a mental health agency to prevent it from happening again.
- It depends on the individual
- The owner is a trained animal expert.
- Visitors, inability to look after animals,
- If you're to limit the number of dogs/cats, allow exceptions for people rescuing or fostering animals.
- I guess as long as you can look after them properly and have a big enough house then it should be left up to the owners how many you want
- Rescue organizations and volunteer
- If people are breeding animals and they have a permit with some oversight to ensure the numbers don't get out of control
- Temporary cat or dog sitting. Going to grandma's.
- When there is a nuisance like barking, feces. When there is a risk of the animal and the public's safety. Aggression involved.
- Are the dogs part of an organization being trained.
- If the household temporarily takes care of animals for shelters.
- Temporarily assisting others with dog or cat sitting. Be a competent pet owner and handler.
- When fostering or delivering/weaning infant animals
- Reputable breeders need to be allowed to keep larger number of animals to allow for litters of pups or kittens.
- Anything above 5 should be looked into, urban/rural perhaps are treated differently or size of home/condo. Animals quality of life needs to be top priority and if all are licensed it should be easy to track.
- If people have limitations regarding financial means, space and/or knowledge, they should limit the number of pets to the number they can reasonably provide for. In some cases that would mean no pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Maybe foster homes. But it should only be short term. (Less than 6 months)
- For all free, tax paying citizens.
- Only of owner can prove that adequate care is being given to all animals.
If a breeder must be licensed and inspected and limit on number of litters allowed per year.
- Acreages. If proper care is able to be provided to that many dogs.
- Foster for a short period of time. But requires a license so the city can inspect
- If a member of the family is able to care for the pets as a full-time job (meaning they are a stay at home partner) or if they hired staff. The size of the home also plays a factor.
- If the person is a registered breeder or foster parent to the animal. Also maybe a pet to person ratio in communal living situations?
- When the animals are not appropriately cared for or in distress.
- There should not be a limit unless a person has caused a problem. That individual should be limited.
- Licensed breeding. When land size allows for more animals safely and without bothering neighbors.
- If there are more responsible adults than the number of pets, and there is a very large space.
- Responsible Breeder of purebred dogs or cats, someone who actively participates in dog or cat events for the betterment of their breeds
- A person how doesn't treat animals well or has an animal hoarding history should be limited.
- When someone must temporarily take in another's pet due to that owner's ill health or death. There should be a grace period but then it should be adopted out.
- If there are service animals. If the animal has a litter that is being cared for prior to adoption.
- Breeding but with a permit to breed in my opinion is the only time.
- Charitable organizations/fostering situations, or businesses (so a self employed dog trainer)
- If any of the pets are a service animal
- When households don't have the means to take care of them
- inability to proper take care of the animals
- I don't think there should be a limit. Limits would only punish people who own multi pets responsibly. [personal information removed] I already know that there are plenty of very adequate laws to deal with neglect/hoarding no matter the number of pets. And this is with antiquated protection laws.
- There shouldn't be limits but if there are, then rescues, fosters, and breeders should have exceptions and should be monitored
- Genuine foster home or rescue.
- Unkept property and real public health issues
- Registered and certified breeder..not a puppy/cat mill...so premises should be inspected for the safety and welfare of the animals
- A pet fostering home.
- Based on house location and available space
- Non compliance with the bylaw

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think we should be able to get a multi-dog license that incorporates training (eg. CKC CGN testing, human knowledge and care (maybe a sign-off from a vet). I have multiple dogs because I do agility and therapy with my dogs. I have 1 in training (>age 4), one that is working (age 5) and 2 retired.
- If it is large enough and if there are enough people living there to care for the animals.
- Farms or very large estates where the room for animals is greatly increased.
- In any case where it is clear an animal is being neglected in any way. Or when a household does not have the financial means to cover the animals basic needs such as food, water, and medical needs.
- Max 4 animals.... Exception for 3 cats based on only 1 dog in household. But MAX 2 dogs. No exception.
- No exceptions.
- Obviously animal offenders should not be permitted any animals
- Fostering animals.
- Rescue puppies/kittens (note: this is not the same as breeding animals for sale - that's a business and should be managed as such).
- When there's extra fees to licence And there's space for the animals.
- Service animals shouldn't count against the total number of animals in the home as they are medically necessary equipment, not a pet.
- Rescues, foster parents for rescues, responsible breeders, and therapy animals or places like cat cafes.
- If the homeowner is a breeder they will need the ability for have more dogs in their house
- Only short term if family members move in or need help with their animals due to circumstances. As long as proper care for them is taken, and an appropriate amount of time frame exists (ie. less than one year).
- Health violations and property maintenance violation
- I don't believe in limiting however if an owner doesn't license their animals and there is a hoarding situation then some sort of limit could possibly be imposed.
- Foster care
  - Mother animal and puppies/kittens
- Registered breeder that has just had litters
- Multiple tenants
  - Large enough yard space
  - An inner city acreage should be allowed to have more than an apartment.
- Health concerns for the animals
- There should not be a limit on animals as it boils down to the owner and their sense of responsibility. There are people out there that shouldn't have 1 animal.
- Known hoarders should not be permitted to have more than two dogs and two cats perhousehold..
- Fostering homes. Perhaps an application for emergencies.
- If the person is on fixed income, assisted living, or if the home is ynfitted for the amount of animals being kept

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- When they are able to provide and that the home is maintained.
- When actions prove that the animals will be well cared for. With an application to exceed normal limits
- Medical and psychological
- It's not a city question. It depends on where the home is located. Is it a condo or a house or a property with land. You can't make a judgement of one size fits all. It doesn't work.
- A certified animal breeder.
- If the owner has been charged with animal cruelty or cant keep their animals under controll.
- Fosters for rescues.
- As long as they're well cared for, who cares?
  1. If a cat or dog gives birth to a litter.
  2. If someone is fostering puppies or kittens.
  3. You have a bonded sibling group who would be better off all living together.
- Support animal situations.
- if a pet has a litter - there will likely be more than the above number.
6 month grace period (sometimes people inherit pets and need a chance to rehome)
- Puppies or housing pets for adoption.
- No exceptions.
- Perhaps a permit for licensed breeders (could also help with ensuring quality of life for breeding animals) - true for more than just cats and dogs. And perhaps for those who are dog/cat sport or working animal owners (E.g. competitive dog sports, service animals, etc)?
- none
- If the person is a CKC registered breeder in good standing
- I think either way the city should have a limit. I know people with up to 15 dogs in houses. I think this is awful.
- If it's a temporary situation, like watching a pet for someone.
- New puppies or kittens, family emergencies, watching pets for friends or families while they are on vacation.
- Exemptions could be made for breeding purposes, but a separate licence should be in effect along with a time limit for having the pups and kittens off the premises. Also, exceptions could be made for those looking after someone else's pet on a temporary basis.
- There shouldn't be a limit. Only hoarder situations should be a concern and those aren't solved by imposing a pet limit to the general population.
- In the cases of breeding or perhaps showing.
- Passed experience with animal court, including squalor living conditions, animal welfare/abuse. Limitations imposed by stratas.
- If it is a large property, if they are a business which breeds pets and if they can prove they have the time/resources to appropriately care for more pets. Many people don't and pets are unintentionally neglected.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Case by case basis. If there is a good reason like the owner has permanent animals and foster animals. If they have adequate time and resources to provide for the animals. If there is a certain amount of free space for the animals. As long as the animal's quality of life is not hindered by crowding.
- When fostering with a registered organization.
- When they are deemed unfit to care for them or if they have 1 or more vicious dogs
- Size of household
- Exception for larger properties and the size of the breed - have 4 small dogs is more manageable than 4 large dogs (from a walking and space perspective)
- The only time limits should be imposed is if there is a history of not being able to care
- As above, if they are properly cared for the number of pets is irrelevant. One animal can be improperly cared for.
- Not sure
- Bigger property should allow more animals.
Fostering/rescuing animals but only in association with an established rescue.
- When they can't be taken care of. Hoarding, left in cages, no water or food or vet care.
- In no situation should the animals' wellbeing be over looked. If the animals are suffering due to over crowding or the physical/mental/financial limitations of an owner to care for a certain number of pets, then alternative arrangements should be made.
- I can see how if someone is a professional dog or cat breeder, there would be times when more than that many animals were living in a household. Maybe if there was some sort of licensing system for breeders or an exception for puppies/kittens until a certain age?
- If the owner is unable to care for and clean up after the animals
- For owners with specific permit and training.
- The size of the house and owner's skills
- Without context of the situation I am unsure.
- If pet owner is not providing the proper care to their pets
If pets are causing disturbances in the neighborhood or inhumane treatment of the animal(s)
- Hoarder houses should not be allowed any. There should not be an exception for more than two.
- Grandfathered in when moving from another area that allows different number of dogs so the owner doesn't have to give up
Their pet or chooses which one to give up.
- not sure. that would probably need to be case by case.
- Rural areas. A city resident finding or rescuing cats and dogs and they are unable to get them to forever homes through no-kill agencies.
- A limit should be a guideline.. and not attached to the "reasonable" number given above.
Applications should be required to go over 2 of any mammal though.
- Multi family dwelling.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- When the person who owns animals repeatedly ignores the bylaw, illustrated by fines or a quick City Admin canvas of surrounding properties prior to pet ownership (to get candid insight as to whether or not the person(s) can handle additional number of animals in a responsible and respectful manner.
- An acreage, larger yard/house. Fenced areas.
- Fostering, pet daycare
- Grandfathered only got owned pets and maybe extend the number to 4 if a person is fostering only.
- If you can't care for them then you need to limit the amount. You have. Clean up after them and feed them, ensure you can take them to a vet.
- Dog Breeders, kennels, but again as long as there isn't abuse or neglect one could have many pets with no issue.
- Not being taken care of.
- None. Households are not a place for breeding animals.
- If someone is fostering, or if it's some kind of emergency situation, or a dog just had puppies.
- Certified/trained rehabilitation homes for shelter animals. Temporary housing for vacations or owner inability to manage (3 month max).
- When owner can't provide necessary care or manage behaviour
- People could apply for a large pet household permit, have it renewed every five years assuming there have been no complaints.
- Limits could be exceeded on a case by case basis. Reasonable animal care would have to be demonstrated and reviewed annually. The animal homes in Calgary have been overwhelmed by abandoned animals due to cost and inability to care for them - but animals are also part of a family.
- Multiple people needing service animals.
- Scenarios of fostering, or pet-sitting for extended periods of time. Otherwise people should not be personally responsible for more than a couple animals.
- Not in the household, but there should be a limit on the number of dogs one person can bring to an off leash area. You can't watch more than 4 or 5 dogs all the time, while you are trying to pick up after them. Dog walkers and their unruly giant packs are annoying and can be a threat to other dogs
- When owner is unable to properly care for individuals
- None
- If rescued, fostered, or well managed and healthy and happy.
- None
- There should not be a limit on number of dogs in a household. Other indicators of invasiveness and animal welfare would be more productive avenues to follow
- Fostering, boarding, breeding, your pet became pregnant and you are taking care of the litter until adopted. NOT a registered breeder. You should need to apply for (free) license if you have already scheduled a date to spay your pet. But you receive a fine if you fail to show proof of spay
- Foster family's and size of the house. If a house is big enough to support more than 4 cats and dogs while maintaining healthy living spaces for all animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- temporary care, or end of life of the animal care etc, foster,
- Perhaps a temporary situation where someone is fostering a cat/dog in need.
- Rescues, foster, animal rehab, etc
- Special licenses to do so for small rescues
- People who have shown an inability to care for animals or not be able to manage a number greater than one should have that number restricted.
- Type of housing, size, ability of owner to care & afford the animals.
- Registered breeders who have litters (i.e. intend to sell the offspring)
- Litters, temporary pet sitting, family members pass away and best people to take animals already have the max
- If they're well looked after and owners can afford them, then let them be. If they're back yard breeding or living in deplorable conditions then they need to be removed and the owners be given a limit to how many they can have. It just seems wrong to have a bylaw on how many pets you can own.
- Farm/ acreage, or if it is a working animal.
- no need limit! just control about city fee for all pets in the house.
- if owner is a vet or vet tech
- if they have land space for the animals, or if they live in a house with proper facility to make sure each dog or cat receives equitable care.
- If you can not take good care of the animals
- If a pet has recently given birth, if there are multiple families/roommates sharing a space
- Breeders, baby sitting, size of living space
- If there are multiple family units/roommate situations
- Limits if owner is unable to care for animals: must be able to provide health, food, water, shelter, for animals and sanitation of property.
- Proof that animals will be well cared for and have adequate space. Temporary foster situations.
- Inability to provide for them properly
- Rescues, sanctuaries, new litters
- Fostering animals , temporary care, after birth of pups or kittens.
- If they are a licensed breeder.
- It is the people that don't know how to train or don't take responsibility for their animals once they have them that are the problem. Have people take training so they learn about behaviour before they are allowed to adopt, and then with the dog after they adopt.
- If they are service animals or on an acreage.
- Responsible owners.
- Inspection from health board, input from neighbour backing onto the owner's yard (biggest noise impact), both side neighbours and front neighbour of any portion of yard is across from neighbour (ie: neighbour's house faces side yard).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Fostering (for a rescue) a litter of puppies or kittens temporarily. Fostering (for a rescue) additional animals temporarily (perhaps increase limits by 1 in this instance). Breeders should be required to pay for permits.
- If the owner is neglectful and not providing proper care and attention or not following current bylaws. Pet limits should only be in rare and proven cases of neglect on a case by case basis.
- mental health concerns/frequent contact with social services should preclude one from being a pet owner without a vetting process
- If the animals are not being fed, cared for properly.
- Perhaps a foster situation where the animals are not full time residents but are temporarily in the home
- Breeding or business
- Hoarding multiple offenders for mistreatment etc
- In the event the owner is a breeder.
- Monetary value in the household. If you can't afford them don't get. It's all about good pet ownership and responsibility. Knowledge helps as well.
- No exception
- Being able to prove all will be cared for to the highest standard. ie all vetted, fed a healthy diet, no complaints from community, yard kept up,
- Never
- Outside municipal limits, within a reasonable number of pets for living situation and space. Cats cause health problems for even non-allergic people. none!
- When breeding puppies. When temporarily housing animals to support a crisis situation, such as the floor of 2013.
- newborn animals not included until they are 8 or 10 weeks old, condos and apartments often restrict numbers
- Fostering pets. Rescues. Hospice situations.
- Fostering/rescue organizations
- Unsure
- Service animals
- Within the city there should be some kind of restriction on owned dogs (that doesn't count fosters for rescues). People who have been marked as potential hoarding cases, abuse cases, etc.
- Space available, cleanliness (odours), noise. Dogs that bark need to be trained or kept inside. Non dog owners shouldn't have to suffer because our neighbours let them bark.
- If someone has ever been convicted or warned about improper animal welfare practices.
- None.
- none
- Maybe if you're a (licensed, inspected, responsible) breeder??? Or perhaps a trainer/provider of service animals??? Other than that, I'm hard-pressed to think of anything
- Responsibility

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Foster

- Temporary situations. However, not temporary in that dog day cares are run out of houses. If the house is on an acreage and the dogs have lots of room to play then that would be an acceptable exception.
- Noise complaints.
Unclean environment.
Not well provided for the wellbeing of animal.
- Properly licensed breeding facilities. Registered foster households
- If the pets are used in companion situations or if the space is large and the hygiene of the home isn't compromised.
- Perhaps under a licensed foster situation or where an animal has babies for a short term while homes are being found. More needs to be done to encourage spay/neuter.
- If there is an individual that requires a service dog.
- No exceptions. Calgarians with hearing, eyesight, and other impairments can get away with one pet.
- City-licensed breeders or occasional and temporary puppies or kittens or temporary pet sitting.
- Large house with lots of space or only small animals, if they went through a pet Care and optimal living course.
- The city should not be providing blanket limits on residents' decisions. Any issues created by irresponsible ownership can be dealt with through other means such as health of the pet and interference with neighbors or public spaces
- Rescue homes or foster homes
- Dog and cat breeding in farms is under-reported and unlicensed. Most impaired people can get away with having one pet. In Canada, many pets freeze in sub-zero temps and this is under-reported according to the Humane Societies.
- Owner has had previous issues with animal neglect. Owner has restrictions on home.
- Space should be a factor in regards to choosing how many pets should be allowed in house hold.
- Can't think of any
- If the people are unable to provided love food and shelter or if the animals are neglected
- Some sort of a "means" assessment
- If the person has a large enough property and the resources and intent to care for all animals for their whole lives, and it's not causing an issue for neighbors (no constant barking etc).
- Larger house or farm, proof that you are AMAZING at walking/running dogs.
- Service animals or professional animal trainers. Licensed Breeders as well, but only for litters of babies - aka 1 breeding pair only.
- None
- Individual should not be on welfare, they must have a job that allows them to support more than themselves, own their property-not rentals. Rescue organization/fostering
- Fostering, pet sitting

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- When people are breeding and have a litter for 2-5 months or when looking after a pet or pets for friends or family members for no more than 3 months consecutive
- Indoor only cats and animal foster homes.
- Where the dogs or cats are an ongoing problem to others in the immediate neighbourhood, OR if it is demonstrated that the owner is does not give them adequate care.
- Foster care, respite care, puppies/kittens, licensed care provider
- Foster homes, large households with large families to provide a high quality of life, service animals, and animal daycare/babysitting
- Size of property, number of human inhabitants, resources to care for same.
- If a person has shown that they are financially or mentally incapable of caring for their pets (inadequate veterinary care, unclean environment, not spayed or neutered) then a limit could be imposed by the court. Otherwise there should be no limit at all.
- Responsible breeding, rescue/ fostering, working or competing dogs
- Is there space and adequate support for the pet.
- If a person is fostering dogs for a rescue organization
- Proof the animals are all being cared for properly, trained, etc.
- Rescues, foster homes, responsible breeders and owners who are extremely responsible - provide proper care, compete with their dogs in dog sports, and are responsible pet owners should be allowed to have as many pets as they can reasonably care for.
- If the animals are being neglected or abused they should not be allowed to have them in their care
- Valid support animals.
Temporary care for animals that need medical assistance.
Temporary stay , animals being looked after well the pet owners are away.
- If someone is temporarily dog/cat sitting (I.e. less than two weeks) or if someone is a professional pet sitter/breeder and has the appropriate documentation and training to keep all the animals under one roof or if a mom has puppies/kittens and is still nursing
- Pet limits should be put in place on a case by case basis based on quality of care. If a household has exceeded the city limit of ownership, but all animals have a good quality of life and are under reasonable control, no act should be taken to enforce the bylaw of limitation of pet ownership.
- That they were already in the home, before the new bylaw.
- If your not caring for them and providing a loving home, then that person should have restrictions on the number of pets.
- Unsure where you put the line. Shelters and rescuers should have a short term allowance
- Not sure. Fostering? Even then I don't think there should.
- Fostering
- Not really sure!!
- Households with more than 2 people over the age of 18, households temporarily fostering animals, and breeders.
- There should be no limit

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Responsible breeders or foster homes
- Any fostering situation in which an animal needs to a home prior to being adopted out. This relieves some stress from our shelter system.
- There should not be a limit.
- See above comment; when fostering pets for a rescue organization
- Proof of obedience training for dogs and the proven ability yo care for more
- If the cats are aloud to go outside.
- In multi family homes. Such as apartments and condos.
Also if there is other animals in the home.
- None
- if it borders the neighbours
- People with past problems with animal neglect and on the other end of the spectrum those who foster and appropriately rescue dogs
- Someone running a licensed pet care business. Exception during day, But overnight care should be limited to 4.
- Emotional support, having these pets prior to any law changes, responsible ownership
- When house is under a certain square foot and dog owners MUST have a fenced in garden. In Discovery Ridge their are a few with dogs and they don't have a fenced in garden for their pet to have some free time or play. They need to have fenced in play space &not let off leash to give them exercise
- Yes within reason.
- Breed and history of dogs or owner
- Not applicable
- Fostering!!!
- For breeders or foster homes (in which they have the experience to deal with so many cats and dogs)
- A combined number of cats and dogs should reach a limit to ensure a proper quality of life in the home is being provided. Not sure what that number should be.
- Animal fostering
- Common sense, which is woefully lacking in our society and no amount of legislation is going to create it.
- Responsible breeders, people who have had puppies or kittens until they can find a home for the rest.
- You guys are ridiculous authoritarians. You ignore blatant abuse but pick on responsible people. Sheesh. I guess you want to do a welfare check. But I think it should be complaint based.
- Licensed breeders.
- none
- pets are happy, well cared for, go to vet when sick, fed etc... as above, GRANDFATHER those individuals, as their pets pass away, their #s come down to what you require. Image how many

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

animals the city would be responsible for if you do not GRANDFATHER. Consider minimum of 10,000 in YOUR care

- Rescues and after giving birth.
- As stated above, why limit dogs and cat limits can be raised when guardians demonstrate proper behaviours.
- Large property, special training for dog/cats - vet tech, groomer, trainer, etc.
- none.
- Service animals.
- Foster based Rescues and and if a family already has dogs already. How would the city of Calgary take care of the overload of dogs? Not going to happen. What a expense! Where will they go to shelters and Rescues? Do not take a few bad apples and make everyone else pay for their irresponsibility.
- As stated above, why limit dogs and cat limits can be raised when guardians demonstrate proper behaviours. [DUPLICATE]
- under all circumstances, no one needs more than 4/5 animals in their house
- If the new rules reduces the number below what a household currently has. Old rules should be grandfathered. Not doing so would be devastating to families if they are forced to get rid of a pet. Rescue organizations should also be exempt.
- Large property/house. Someone is always home to attend to them. Rescue/fostering animals
- grandfather the people who have surplus, animals are happy, healthy, taken care of, vet etc... as their pets pass they can not add, that way their #s go down to the required amount and the City is not taking in thousands of animals to feed/care/vet/special diet/meds - lot of $$$$ out of your pocket
- If the household/person has a history of animal hoarding or have many complaints about the animals, ie: excessive barking, poor living conditions, etc.
- Anyone underage, over 75 or with disabilities/mental health challenges should be monitored on a regular basis.
- House size and cleanliness
- If the household is located where the animals won't bother the neighbours.
- If there has been previous animal abuse/neglect. Or the owner does not have the capacity to care for all the animals.
- if the owners have been fined for a vicious dog. They should either not be allowed to have a dog or only that one so that no other dogs fall victim.
- In a household that is licensed for the breeding of animals, in which case it becomes a business and should be subject to periodic inspections.
- If the city were to change the bylaw, they need to grandfather the number to current. Also there should be a clause re rescues and temporary (foster) homes to have flex in the number.
- depending on complaints, area, proximity to other neighbours
- If the owner is barely able to care for themselves let alone the animals then there should be a limit for sure.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If a limit is set, there likely shouldn't be any exceptions.
- None other than it being a vet office etc.
- Previous issues
- Unsure.
- Foster homing if experienced owners. No topic for this but dog walking services should be licenced if more than 1 dog walked at a time. I have observed a service (2ppl) walking 8-9 dogs at a time in a park and did not pick up any feces.
- When a family already has the amount before the bylaw comes into effect, and service animals shouldn't count.
- After a person has a certain number they city should require house visits by rescues or bylaw to prove this person can properly care for these animals before being able to get more than the limit placed on each animal.
- Other pets might be just visiting for a short stay.
- This should be reviewed on a case by case basis. Some people should have no animals and others can have many, but how to locate people who hoard cat/dogs. People believe their pets are their children & have the right to have as many as they want. This is a touchy issue.
- By special permit only and after proof that proper ownership is occurring.
- When there are babies that cannot yet be separated
- If there is a business license from a vetted breeder, then I think the number of adult animals should be capped at 3 and puppies/kittens should be permitted up until a year old.
- * Your bylaw officers have the APA in their appointment from the solicitor general. They could do more to help animals.
- For rescues and fosters helping save lives.
- Odour from the household, bad behaviour of animals observed and not improved after warning.
- Kittens/puppies being born - a reasonable period of time for the home/pet owner to arrange for homes for the babies.
- if temporary or short term.
- Breeders, rescue foster homes
- I think anyone with a prior conviction or history of animal abuse should be limited to less (aka 0), and perhaps someone can apply for an exception in the case of larger property or fostering.
- When they are being cared for _short-term_ by a responsible, experienced person.
- Licensed breeders
- None.
- Foster pets
- for registered breeders
- The owner is unable to feed, and keep the animal clean.
- None

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The owner has demonstrated appropriate knowledge of dog behaviour and is able to manage the dogs in the household and in public. Similar to the canine neighbour test maybe there could be a handling test for the owner.
- There should be no limit.
- Breeders should be an exception.
- Registered animal rescue and can prove they have the reasonable resources needed to properly take care of more animals then allowed
- As long as cats and dogs don't run around outside I don't care how many they have. Roaming cats kill songbirds and pee and poop in our gardens.
- If they aren't cared for.
- Known hoarder or someone with previously seized animals should not be allowed to keep more.
- Temporary, monitored care of animals in a fostering/adoption situation such as with an organisation such as PAWS.
- When fostering for permanent placement or during a recovery period from trauma, injury, surgery, etc.
- Closeness to city, suburbs can have more. Special licensing
- Fostering situations.
- When the cleanliness and care of an animal is at risk, is the only time their should be an exception. Changing the current rules to limit responsible pet owners in the number of pets they can have will cause a crisis within rescues and animal service areas of the city. Limiting will cause death.
- Only when the owners are found to be incapable of handling or supporting cats/dogs with proper nutrition, exercise etc.
- Breeding, service or working dogs. Private properties of a certain size may be suitable to have more.
- Only when there is a risk of distress to the animal should a limit be placed. Owners need to be responsible in their communities. Limiting the number of animals is not the solution and will cause stress to rescues and animal services. This will also cause death for many animals.
- There are reputable breeders and though most do not live in the city, there could be some in certain cases. Reputable breeders do so because they love the breed, they are trying to keep a breed from extinction or trying to preserve the purpose-bred characteristics and health of a breed.
- Licensed breeders, recognized foster homes of rescue animals. They're should still be a limit, but the numbers could be slightly higher
- no exceptions.
- Rescued groups who foster cats and dogs with litters.
- None
- None
- In the case of grandfathering of pets, pets brought into the home due to circumstances beyond family control. If the family receiving grandfathered dogs, but they already have 2 or 3 dogs, then by grandfathering, the receiving family will not bring in more animals until beloved pets pass on,

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Under no circumstance should a homeowner or a foster home be allowed to have more than three cats or three dogs
- If they already have them. If they are temporary ie fostering or pet sitting. If they run doggy daycare out of home and so temporarily more dogs.
- There should ONLY be a limit if there are problems with the animals & their interactions with neighbors and/or owner is not taking appropriate care of them.
- The space is very large, such as a farm or a ranch, or the homeowner(s) are around very often and are excellent at caring for animals.
- If the owner is not taking care of the animals properly ( medical , food , exercise & sanitation needs)
- Fostering for rescues and people who already have over the household limit prior to the new limit being set should be grandfathered.
- If someone has been convicted of negligence or cruelty, they should NEVER be allowed to have any pets. EVER
- If someone is fostering rescue dogs, they should be able to have more since fostering is temporary.
- If the owner is a breeder. They should be a special license. There may be other circumstances I can't think of but a license should be required
- Breeders, boarders, trainers, foster homes.
- Farm or large acreage etc. If they dogs have the room ie. yard within the city and large house. For that breed.
- Farmers, working animals
- If the owners can provide proof that they can adequately care for the number of pets they have.
- Exceptions should always be considered. If someone is within 2 of the limit, and the animals are well cared for the limit should be irrelevant.
- Maybe if you live on an acreage, no exceptions in the city.
- I am strongly against putting a limit on the number of cats or dogs in a household. If they are well taken care of and well behaved then the number doesn't matter.
- None
- A temporary situation of a mother with a litter, or emergency fostering.
- When someone has been found to be abusing or neglecting their animals.
- Anyone who currently has more than the max amount at the time the bylaw changes should be grandfathered. Obviously as the pets pass away, they shouldn't be allowed to replace them if still over the max.
- If it has been proved that the person/s cannot adequately care for the number of animals in their care.
- If basic needs like food shelter basic grooming and health needs aren't met or abuse
- If the owners has proper means to provide training and exercise for the pets.
- If the individual responsible for the pet (based on the license) has received bylaw infractions or charges due to irresponsible pet ownership.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depending on the square footage of the house. If it's a apartment and they have 5 cats and 3 dogs, that might not be the best situation! But if the animals are looked after properly and they have the room and have 3 cats and 3 dogs for example there is no issue !
- Exceptions are for breeders. They can have more animals and if they are reputable breeders they know how to handle a number of dogs or cats.
If the person has been found to not provide proper care or has abused any animal they should never be allowed to have an animal in their care.
- Reputable breeders, documented rescue and fostering homes. Individuals who can prove they can responsibly care for all animals in home and not negatively impact adjacent homeowners and animals
- There should be no exceptions. Practically, socially, and environmentally two dogs or cats per household should be the maximum in an urban environment.
- Breeders, rescue organizations
- Breeder rescue home
- If a residence has an illegal suite, then making sure there is a distinction in the household between the two areas.
- Breeders
- A breeder who is raising and selling puppies. Or a person who has decided to raise a litter. One litter at a time
- Fostering animals
- If you can solely confirm that you are willing and able to provide a great quality of life then you should be allowed to have a higher number of cats and dogs in your household. Also the size of the living area should be quite large.
- a specific application should be made and the owner should be assessed for financial requirements and condition of the home of the animals.
- When there is a litter involved.
- If they are a licensed breeder or pet care service.
- A foster parent, someone who has proven their ability to care for the animals, multiple families (renting out the basement while the landlord or another tenant lives upstairs)
- If there is a licensed pet-related business that operates on the premises (e.g. dog day home, dog-walker, breeder, etc.) then an exception should be made as long as the bylaws are being followed and all humans and animals are safe and happy.
- If you are also fostering for an organization
- Fostering for rescues. Or if they have an acreage inside city limits.
- Licensed Breeders
- anyone currently caring for more then the allowed amount should be grandfathered, providing the animals are being properly cared for
- if a litter was just born and is being weaned, if multiple pets that are known to get along are over for a bbq (short period)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Ability to maintain a habitable space for both owner and neighbours. No one should have to reside a home with excessive odour or crap.
- When there is a licensed business (ie: grooming or boarding). Although there would need to be regular, unannounced checks to ensure there isn't hoarding/abuse.
- Hoarding circumstances. When there are too many animals to be properly cared for, they need to be taken. Also, smaller properties; a townhouse or apartment are not appropriate homes for large numbers of animals, but a 1 acre property can easily accommodate quite a few. And again, quality of care.
- I think depending on the lot of Amount of space. Basically if for you have a big acre out back you have the means to excercisr and care for the dogs it's different
- Prior convictions on animal cruelty or hoarding
- If they are a licensed breeder. Residential homes do not need packs of dogs or cats. Any owner should have the financial resources to look after their pets humanely.
- If one of the pets has had a litter, then more allowed until litter is old enough to rehome, with timelines on how long can take to rehome. Perhaps people can apply for temporary exceptions, such as if they need to care for an animal of a friend or family member.
- Vicious animals, the owners healt and ability to handle the animals.
- Type of resident/size and density of community
- In hoarding situations
- If it is a Foster home for pets
- There should be an appeal process with a site visit to be granted permission for extra pets. They must be pets and not inventory. High penalties for people caught breeding animals after being granted special permission.
- Unreasonable noise or smell.
- Again depending on experience and house size
- If the home is used for fostering or rescuing animals. They should be required to be licensed for these.
- If the dogs are companion/service dogs.
- After an animal has a litter.
- no exceptions, instead put restrictions on those who cannot be responsible pet owners and don't punish those that are.
- Registered breeder
- If they are companion dogs you can have more of them as per the number of people needing their comfort.
- Owners have enough space and be able to take care of them.
- Limitations should be in effect when an owner shows irresponsibility or cruelty
- If there is a concern for the animals health.
- When the living space is too small for a lot of animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The pets have come to visit from other households and are going to return home. Pet sitting.
Temporary
Or one of the pets had babies and the babies need their parents care.
- There is now reason to have a house full of animals.
- Rescues
- Apartment vs detached house. Size of yard, size of house .
- Required Space or a litter has been had.
- Fostering situations
- Foster homes obviously. So many people are uncaring & there are too many unwanted animals because of this human downfall, the few Foster homes that do exist always have a multitude of animals. Unless the city can come up with mandatory spay/neuter LAWS, and/or a way of providing more foster homes
- Number of dogs or cats per adult living at a residence would make more sense. 2 each per adult.
Exceptions for litter of puppies/kittens until 6 months or 1 year old to find suitable homes.
- More people in the house ensuring all of the animals are cared for and under control.
- Foster families
- Rescue organizations and their foster families
- Temporary babysitting someone else's pet
- If the owners can easily show that the welfare of the animals is not compromised and their ability to keep the animals under control remains intact, I think anybody should be able to challenge a limit.
- if they are grandfathered
- I think that there can be exceptions for animal rescue groups that care for animals in homes prior to the animals being adopted. We have had several rescue dogs and it is great for them to be in a home setting. This is the same for cats.
- Unless they are a registered dog and cat sitting business
- Some people foster animals, to help reduce the burden of adoption centres and they may have need to have more animals at any given time. It's up to veterinarians, animal care specialists to decide what amount of space gives a pet a 'quality of life' in addition to food, shelter, love, health.
- Hoarding
- a litter is born and is awaiting adoption . but if we had spay and neuter mandatory for house hold pets we could start to manage stray , feral, roaming and over population of dogs and cats
- Base limit per square meter of home and yard, no two circumstances are the same.
- Past performance and problems with cats / digs seem to forecast future difficulties. Some people one is too many!
- If the householder is a licenced/registered breeder.
- If the owner is fostering or has a doggie daycare.
- There shouldn't be a limit
- The exception must be for fostering situations or whelping homes

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- A limit on animals - if applied - should be grandfathered so current households with many animals don't have to give up any pets. Rescues and fosters should be immune as long as animals well taken care of!!!!
- Fostering/adoption, depends on number of residents in home. Some families have 4-5 adults at home in which all pets can be looked after.
- Temporary fostering
- there are so many animals there is inhumane crowding of space or unsanitary conditions. owner is unable to contain / care for / train that number of animals. owner has a history of hoarding/exploitation/abuse of animals. number of animals becomes a danger to people (ex. kids with allergies)
- Unless someone is a licensed kennel/breeder and can take proper care of multiple animals.
- When animals are not cared for, health & safety issues, causing issues for neighbors and of course hoarding.
- People who train/show animals as a career. People who foster animals
- Single dwelling and responsible reasoning when asking for permit.
- Perhaps 'service' dogs.
- when it's temporary-fostering homes for animal shelters or vet clinics, dogs being trained for therapy, etc.
- If the house needs a service animal along with house pets
- I don't think there should be a limit, but if the City were to limit # of pets, I think they should consider basing it on property size.
- neglect is seen, smelled and calls made by concerned public.
- If every person in the house needs a service animal and each animal is a service animal and there is also a person in the house who doesn't need or have a service animal so he/she can help the others with their service animals. Otherwise, no exceptions.
- Inadequate care or pets and/or causing a nuisance
- no exceptions.
- Therapy Pets
- Acreages, larger spaces should be an exception
- Foster homes .. maybe an urgent temporary thing where a person Needs to move in with another person due to a personal reason and their friend may already have animals (abuse, in between homes etc)
- Breeder
- Breeding purposes if the breeder is ethical and does not over breed. Personal rescuers caring for pets or people who have been through an approval process to ensure no animal is neglected.
- Where irresponsible breeding is taking place.
- Only when a dog has a litter
- When they are not cared for properly or become a nuisance to neighbors and the community.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- People who do short term foster for animal rescues, accidental litters I really wish people would just spay/neuter - can that be a bylaw?
- When it creates a hazard for the animals and their care.
- When puppies/kittens are born or if fostering for a licensed rescue agency
- Can't think of any.
- All licensed, vaccinated and well cared for.
- Foster care for rescue.
- GRANDFATHER clause for all households that have more than the max amt of animals.
- The well being and health of a pet should be first and foremost, is the pet getting good nutrition , all their shots , etc.
- If a cat or dog gives birth to a litter or (fosters through CHS for example) households caring for young animals until they are ready for adoption. A person owns a registered pet boarding or walking business (temporary or transitory dogs and cats)
- dog care business - the numbers are transient, not permanent
- None that I can think of at the moment.
- Maintain a healthy living environment, no smells or waste left around. a very good reason why they should have more than the limit
- None.
- Only in cases of neglect, abuse, or failing to follow other dangerous bylaws (vicious dogs, dogs at large, etc).
- n/a
- If a litter is born, time limit for re-homing
- Rescue, rehabilitation, unforeseeable circumstances
- If the limit is changed, families that exceed it must be grandfathered in. Homes providing pet daycare or foster animal volunteers should be exempt.
- If someone is Fostering or owns a pet that has recently had a litter. Or of dog sitting.
- Size of house/lot. Are the owners able to support the animals correctly.
- History of animal neglect, hoarding, etc.
- Special consideration if there are other family members staying in the home temporarily.
- If the owner has the proper space for the animals, proper food, water and vet visits, no smell and no noise.
- Fosters, rescues, "special circumstances" such as a person with a proper clean set up who is NOT breeding or buying - but rather adopting, saving.
- Not sure if there should be an exception....difficult to judge when to apply exceptions
- If pet owner is breeding the animals and needs time to arrange for the puppies/kittens to be old enough to be handed over to new owners.
- Rescue organizations or fosters. Puppies, although I believe dogs under 6 months dont need to be licensed anyway

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think that small apartments or condos would reduce the number of pets allowed. I also think that if a person lived on a very large property the number of pets may be able to be increased.
- In a household that has more then the new limit we should GRANDFATHER the people that have more than the required number. That way it will protect the animals that are already in a home with caring families.
- Service Animals should not count towards limits
- Reputable rescues! They should be monitored every so often for the animals well being!
- When someone has a history of mishandling their animals
- Maybe grandfathered in. But, I don't think there should be.
- Only if a temporary situation where one is looking after dogs or cats for other people.
- Medical, foster, rescue, situations. Responsible pet owners should not have limits. Are you prepared to examine EVERY situation on a case by case scenario???? You cannot have a one size fits all!!!!
- Rescue organization fosters only.
- Well for one if these animals were already there before this law they should be able to stay, and if an animal was a service animal ect it should be an exception
- If there have been prior issues with animals in the home from neighbors, vets . If the person is on income assaistance as limited income can affect the care of numerous animals at once and ability to afford food and vetting . Rental buildings, low income housing should have limits
- If the household is involved in breeding somehow, or providing services that require dogs/cats
- I believe currently owned animals must be grandfathered in if number limits are imposed. People should NOT be expected to get rid of current pets if their numbers exceed any newly implemented laws. I also believe exceptions should be made for households with both owned and fostered animals.
- if it includes a vicious dog, if the handler has been convicted of any violence acts
- unable to provide adequate care for pets. If household is over crowded and issues arise
- None
- If they are not taking care of the animals reasonably or allowing the animals to interfere with others who are permitted on or in the space.
- Trainers
  - Foster homes
  - Adequate space
- Unless they are fostering for rescues.
- If a limit exists, there should always be an exception for a rescue or fostering situation. If the rule changes, households which would find themselves suddenly over the limit would need to be given an exception. An animal should never be abandoned from a loving home in order to satisfy a new rule
- Depends on the size and type of cats and owner and the household. I think there should be some rules that can be enforced regarding the expectation of the health and environment of the animals. However, I would say it's hard to justify more than 7/8

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Shelters/People that Foster Animals
Any case where animals needs are not being met (hoarders).
- It's less about a number, and more about care of animals. If they are well cared for (physically, psychologically), and do not bother others (neighbours), then there should be no maximum. Especially if the person is a dog trainer or responsible breeder, they may have more dogs than average.
- If their needs are not being taken care of.
- Never
- It's a large house with a large backyard and enough people in the household to care for the animals
- Fostering should not count towards number of dogs/cats, as quality of care can be monitored by organization.
- Animal foster homes associated with an organization (ie. AARCS, Meow Foundation etc.)
- Exceptions will likely lead to more issues for bylaw to deal with. Might want to have an exception for looking after someone else's dog, but that should be temporary (two weeks or less).
- FOSTER AND RESCUE
- Exception should be granted to animal rescue and animal foster homes, and exception should be granted to homes with licensed cats.
- If the owner has a history of animals abuse, they should not be allowed to have ANY animals at all. Or if the home is an extremely small space, a limitation would make sense.
- Foster situations and breeders, private daycares.
- When the animals are properly taken care of. IE: larger estates, co-living homes where multiple people pay rent each might have one animal they care for.
- Foster animals, puppies/kittens
- If the owner can demonstrate they have the time or the money to ensure the animal will recieved the attention it needs
- There shouldn't be a limit. If they are on private property you have no place to stop them
- Farms or acreages can have more
- I don't agree with a limit on the number of cats or dogs in a household. as long as the dogs are well behaved and mannered and the owner is responsible.
- When health of animals is in jeopardy. Deemed by living space, size of yard, owner level of training,
- If they are in a foster program, with a recognizable rescue group; if there is an emergency such as fire, flood, etc, where individuals need a place to stay for a period of time for safety concerns; if there are puppies under the age of 8wks old, who are too young to be weened.
- If someone has been deemed unfit of caring for a pet, has mistreated animals or subjected them to harm or neglect.
- Rescues. Breeder license.
but individual owners should not be limited either.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None come to mind. My answer to the above questions for “reasonable” would not be exactly the same as “maximum” as different people have different lifestyles and capacity to meet animals’ needs.
- Owner disability, not being able to properly care for the basic needs of your animals (eg. Hoarding)
- When there is proof of animal abuse or neglect.
- When someone has been charged with animal cruelty or neglect they should have limits
- If a person has a history of not claiming their animals, animals running at large or aggressive animals I think a limit should be imposed.
- Proof that the animals are treated humanely, conditions are clean and not a concern for animal or human health, the pets are well cared for, and they are not a nuisance to others in any respect.
- Puppies or kittens on a short term basis.
- The only circumstances should be if the household is a registered charity for homeless pets or a boarding facility.
- Temporary litters or rescues for only a few months.
- I think more than 10 dogs that someone OWNS and is licensed (not fostering) should be limited, unless there is a reasonable explanation as to why they have that many dogs and to ensure they have the means to care for them properly.
- No exceptions
- Foster homes which need to be approved by the rescue organization and have a temp license per foster animal. Same with reputable breeders. I think this could reduce backyard breeders also. I would have no problem registering/licensing my foster animals.
- None.
- Anyone who has had a hoarding charge or animal abuse incident or an aggressive animal. Limits should then be imposed.
- Litters or if someone is taking in a pet temporarily
- The ability to provide a safe, secure and healthy environment for cats/dogs should be the only factor which impacts the number of animals in a home.
- Fostering.
- If you are merely fostering a third animal for adoption. If you have a legal suite.
- Larger home and backyard/green space. As well as prove the ability to care for all of them and show that they are not stressed with other animals.
- Those with more than limit should be grandfathered if they had more before limit was set.
- Emergency short term animal shelter relief.
- If someone is a vet, or a dog trainer. If your training is in animal care you should be able to own more because its your career and you know what you are doing and most likely will take great care of any pets you own.
- ?
- If the cap exceeds what an owner already has the pets should not be taken away unless they are not being cared for.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None unless a breeder and the pups or kittens are living there temporarily.
- If the animals are mistreated and it is a hoarding situation
- If it appears that an animal may be neglected the household should be reviewed to determine whether the owner can care for their pets
- Foster homes for pet rescuers
- Fostering, training
- Foster situation
- All dogs currently licensed with the city at the time of the change should be grandfathered in. There should be a warning period for people that have not realized how important licensing was in the past. Ex. 90 days to register all animals in house before changes go into effect.
- Temporary
- Housing size
- If people move in together with existing pets
- If the rules are to be changed, those who already have more pets than allowed should be grandfathered in. Also foster animals should be exempted from the household limit
- Grandfathering and fostering/rescues
- Number of people vs number of pets in households
- Complaints.
- Fostering should be an exception. And if you already have several pets I don't think they should be taken away. That's wrong to dictate people's fur-kids.
- There should be no limit.
- Hording
- Homes which foster animals.
- Doggy day care (temporary residence), or a business reason where certification is required?
- if they are a nuisance, noisy or if there are odours that may disturb the neighbours.
- Litters. On an individual basis consider- eg. a family may suddenly need to take on a family's member pet to care for, being with people the animal knows is likely the kindest thing rather than being placed for adoption as family already at max number
- If a cap is put in place, reputable breeders, animal foster homes, merging families that already have animals, inherited pets of loved ones who get placed in care or for another reason cant care for them
- Hygiene, not being taken care of properly, unable to control animals,
- Responsible breeding
- if unable to care for them
- Kittens or puppies and their parent(s) up to weaning age.
- An approved application process to prove that you are a responsible pet owner. Ie. you have not to let from bylaw, pets are healthy and up to date on vaccines, quality of life of the animals and finally appropriate space for the animals.
- Hoarders. Abusers. People who have been convicted of abuse. People who have very small places to live. People who do not have the financial capability to care for their pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Size of occupancy/ number of residents
- For dogs, size of house & backyard
- Breeders and those that show their cats/dogs.
- When the animals are not properly & well taken care of. If it is a hoarder situation. If the person is abusing or neglecting them, or using them to breed for profit. If the house is not suitable. If the person has any history whatsoever of animal abuse. If they can't afford to properly provide.
- Hoarding is a disease. This is where the inquiries about #'s of pets are coming. Some curiosity/discussion around underlying stereotyping against people who have large #'s of pets. There needs to be a place to call without judgement. The SPCA used to have a "'holding area"' where you could drop off your pet. Would like to see this return.
- - Prior offences
  - animal cruelty
  - Neglect (court proven)
- If they are in a farm or a huge house with multiple adult caretakers.
- temporary rescue, commercial reason, or medical
- Someone verified not to be of sound mind.
- If living in apartment/condo's - per the buildings guidelines
- I do not believe that the city should limit the amount of animals. Their current bylaw is one of the most forward thinking and well respected bylaws within Canada.
- Fostering, rescues.
- If or when a litter has occurred, only until the litter is rehomed. When fostering short term
- Fostering families for the animals
- If the family is unable to provide a safe loving home for the pet.
- Humane reasons. People should be able to get a license for excessive animals that get approved only if they can look after all the animals safely for the community and humanely for the animals.
- I think its a case by case issue. There are people who can properly take care of multiple dogs while others shouldn't/can't properly take care of one.
- size of the home v. size of the animals. - if we're talking about placing a cap on ownership, this needs to be grandfathered in.
- no exceptions this should not happen.. Rescues, breeders everyone. Not in agreement of restriction
- Previous charges under the RPO
- When the dog or cat had had a litter. If there is more than one adult in the home.
- If they are not properly cared for, if there is a history of negligence or issues following bylaws, or the limit could be argued to be exceeded if a person lives on the edge of town or has a large lot (perhaps more dogs in that case would be allowed)
- Maybe limit a person from having 30+ dogs... if that person has had multiple dog fights or the animals are not getting the care they need and deserve.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the people take care and love the animals and the neighbors are not being affected, it should be allowed.
- How well they are kept is the key. Are they a nuisance to the public? Is the owner responsible by keeping yard and house clean?
- Rescue organizations that foster animals.
- If someone is a shelter worker or volunteer where these animals have no other options and the person is responsible they should be an exception. Or if someone owns their own home and has a yard etc. That should be an exception because it's their property and their lives.
- I still don't think it is your business but emotional support animals and fosters of animals. All you are going to do is have people not tell you the number they have. I don't know what you people are thinking
- depending on size of home. (if in an apartment, there is less room and NO yard. this is unfair to the animals.
- Fostering and rehabilitation
- Extenuating external circumstances. Loss of a loved one and inheritance of a pet that pushes a person past the limit (for example).
- Multiple family members or roommates living inside the home and owning the pets.
- It depends on the household, size of home, etc. Also whether the owner is able to care for them.
- No exceptions.
- Animal hoarding and health/wellbeing and cleanliness of the people/animals/residence in relation to the number of animals. The number of animals being a nuisance to neighbours.
- none
- I can't really think of anything that would justify an exception. Temporary situation?
- Licensed sanctuary's or rescue organizations. Animal foster homes (short term care)
- Foster rescued dogs and cats.
- If they bother the neighbor, or they are not being cared for ( spayed neutered etc
- see above
- In the case of a registered breeder. A breeder should have to provide proof that they are in good standing with a recognized association, to help eliminate 'backyard breeders' in the city.
- It depends on the size of house and yard as well as who the owners are as pet owners
- Temporary fostering, or temporary rescuing.
- see previous comment
- No
- I dont believe that a limit is the right answer. You may discourage registration and promote poor behaviour like hoarding. Focus on health and wellbeing. Can you commit to caring for the animals and humans in your care? Financially and physically. Check ins with owners may help?
- Breeder on a farm
- Property size and home size.
- Not in a city our size.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Mostly, because in neighbourhoods that advocate for community life; it includes those of all ages and with all abilities; which begs for some to have a great advocacy to support.

- When you receive complaints, if a check on home is done and animals aren't treated well. When current owner has multi pets and there have been no complaints registered. Don't want to euthanize animals do to a number that is not representative of how the animals are cared and loved for.
- Pet sitting, when owners have to relocate and need to find a home for their pets, when the household proves it has the resources to support more pets. Really, I think the owners should be licensed, not the pet.
- Not sure if dog breeders need to be licensed as any other business. If a home owner wants to breed dogs there should be a public consultation process. We have a breeder across green belt. Do not know if they had a process to follow or need a business license.
- Grandfathered households: I wouldn't expect people to have to give up pets if a new limit was in place. Service animals: on the off chance that a number of people in a household need service animals.
- There should never be a limit. Separating families without just cause is disgusting. I can't go around taking peoples kids away just cause i dont like them. Stay out of my yard.
- You think those who have more than a number you decide are going to get rid of them then you are fooling yourself. You have no right to touch anyone's pet cause you changed your bylaw
- Fostering/rescue agencies/pup sitting
- The history of the owner should dictate. There will be some who, through prior neglect, should not have a single animal. Responsible breeders could have multiple animals in the same household without issue.
- When Family members move in with a pet, or families are taking in a pet because of death/ nursing home etc.
- I cannot think of one unless it is a temporary situation
- If an animal has a litter, if they are a foster home for pets. If they are taking care of a family or friends pet for a vacation, hospital stay, forced relocation, death in the family, etc.
- Cannot think of any...
- If some one has had a problem in the past
- First, they should be grandfathered in. No person should have to deal with their animals being taken away. Also, if they can prove they have the financial means to care for the animals, and they are in good health and condition, there should be no limit.
- A person whose pet has had a litter, making temporary increase in numbers.
- If someone has a rescue situation or puppies. (Breeder) assuming at all times the best welfare of animals
- Households that foster dogs.
- If a dog gives birth to a number of puppies they should be allowed to live in the house until they are weaned from their mom

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Hoarders, those with problem animals, those who create issues in their neighborhood with their Animals.
- not sure
- Large property, and hired help to care for animals properly
- Rescues and registered fosters if they have the man power and resources to help them in their own homes then they should be allowed to.
- If the dogs or cats are seniors above the limit they should be exempt..
- Whether or not they are taken care of properly. Nothing else matters. The City needs to let people live their lives, and as long as no human or animal is being neglected, butt out.
- None
- Fostering, rescuing, if they already have the pets. But there should NOT be a limit on # of pets. It should be a qualitative assessment based on quality of life of the animals and if it's having an effect on other people.
- Again I don't think the city should dictate how many a person can have. Maybe a selfish answer but I am a responsible pet owner and if I can afford it then I should be able to have them.
- Rentals and income
- If they are not following rules or bilaws
- If limits are in place - fostering animals
- There needs to be greater penalties and charges imposed on people who prove they are incapable of caring for pets - people with history of animal cruelty, neglect, etc. They should never be allowed to own or care for any pets.
- If their is a bylaw complaint about the household regarding noise or cleanliness
- There should not be a limit
- There shouldn't be a limit on the number just for the sake of having a limit in the first place. But if there were, then the exception should be for fosters/rescuers.
- Hoarding and threat to health and safety
- if an owner is not responsible and does not license or register
- Fostering animals.
- Shelters should never have a limit! And as I said depends on the breed. I could have 5 little chihuahuas around in a average house and decent yard without any issues.
Now 5 larger dogs I can't.
And I know that.
Depends on the individual
- Size of property, type of dogs - size of dogs
- If a person has neglected an animal, cannot provide for one, is charged with animal cruelty then the number of pet should be limited to none.
- Perhaps is multi unit apartments or townhouses.
- People who do Foster for rescues
- Why should there be a limit of they're cared for? A

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the owners have surrendered animals for any reason or if the owners live in an attached home or condo the limit might need to be reduced
- if someone was temporarily fostering animals for a rescue organization, like Pawsitive Match.
- Previous issues with unsafe conditions or ability to responsibly look after the animals in the home
- If the space is not sufficient or if any of the needs are not being properly met by the owner.
- If you reside on a small acreage you are only allowed so many animals, so why shouldn't that pertain to persons living within the City Limits. An exception would maybe be if the animal is pregnant and a litter is born maybe a timeframe as to how long the litter is allowed to stay in the home.
- Documented inability for the person to care for their animals, continued disregard for licensing and city bylaws.
- None
- When someone is fostering. Without fostering, so many animals would be dying.
- Case by case to avoid pet hoarding issues
- Not sure - maybe if someone is caring for animals temporarily for friends on vacation, or fostering rescues temporarily?
- When a person is identified as a hoarder, when they are unable to provide the animals with regular veterinary care, or they are abusing their animals.
- Breeders must have business license; or heavily fined and considered 'breeding mills'. Where there are multiple families living together and each family has pets; the numbers should be restricted differently. Where there are duplexes sharing a yard; restrict numbers and ensure home owners are aware.
- When there are puppies/kittens.
- Not sure.
- If the owner is not caring for the in a safe, clean environment, no vet care. They have been found in violation of proper care in the past, they are backyard breeders.
- grant GRANDFATHER clause to all. grace period for everyone to licence their animals, all spay/neutered. pure breed breeders with a breeding licence to operate. if not, then they must be spay/neutered. you hold up your end of the bargain with the GRANDFATHER clause and not lie 2 us.
- Limited outdoor spaces
- If the owner is a foster for a rescue organization.
- All circumstances. Limiting how many animals people own is like limiting how many cars, hats, or TVs someone has.
- People in very large households with a lot of space; e.g. acreage or property with multiple buildings and fenced space, may be able to responsibly accommodate the care of more animals.
- Size of property, owner history.
- Hard to say, case by case basis as some might have more justification than others (litters, rescues etc.)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Anyone who has had multiple dogs in the household should be grandfathered in.
- Farm, working dogs
- again it comes down to cost of looking after a pet if you can afford it fine
- Foster homes
- There should be no limit on them unless it becomes a public health issue.
- See above
- No exception as there should be no limit. If one is put in place then foster dogs/cats should be exempt from the limit and not counted.
- I don't believe there should be a limit, the restrictions should be tougher penalties and consequences for abuse and neglect. To penalize those few that do not deserve the right to have an animal. By placing a limit on a household you are punishing the many because of a few.
- Dog sitting, training or puppies in a litter prior to leaving
- If there was a limit, should be an allowance for kittens or puppies up to a certain age before limits kick in.
- If a litter has just been delivered, people need time to wean the babies and sort out where they'll go for homes
- Rescues, PROPER breeders, and grandfathering in those who already had the dogs before the bylaw.
- More than can be financially cared for. More than can be reasonably cared for ie un-kept litter boxes/ no litter boxes. Sick or injured not seen by vet.
- Only if the owner is REGISTERED breeder. Then the limit should be only 2 adults and one litter. To be a breeder, then owners need to be licensed and pay a fee.
- If you live on an acreage-like property, if you have them for a means of living - work business (e.g. approved Pet café where patrons pay to have a drink and visit with cats, or perhaps a cat breeder, or animal agility/trick trainer/entertainer business)
- Any existing pets should be grandfathered in if changing the rules and maybe if they are just fosters they should be included
- If the owners can provide adequately and prove they do take all animals to the vet.
- IF THE ANIMALS ARE OFFERED GOOD CARE. The numbers is a superficiality that encourages hiding from the City, wastes tax dollars, and stigmatizes people providing genuine sanctuary to animals. Only respond when there's a real issue - an owner can have 1 neglected/abused pet or 8 blissful ones.
- The exception should be specific to each individual. If an individual was deemed unfit to care for X-number of pets, then that should be regulated. The bad deeds of one, should not affect the deeds of the whole.
- Breeders
- Large homes (by square footage) and large lots should be able to have exceptions.
- Registered breeder
- Registered animal daycare

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Registered dog walker

- I do not believe there should be any limits on pets in a household
- if they are under control and well cared for then why should there be a limit. I know some homes where there are 10 large dogs and they are under better control than my 2
- Only for pet rescues, trainers or pet-sitters.
- Prior non compliance by owner. Inability to properly care for pets
- Breeders, dogs participating in dog related activities, responsible owners
- Responsible breeders only who use their dog me for exhibition and purpose sports only after extensive health testing and titles are their dogs bred. Not "rescues" that steal and import dogs for sale and not backyard or puppy mill breeders designer breeders selling mutts for profit.
- Fostering. If they ate cared for properly
- If person has been deemed to be abusive they should NOT be allowed any animals.
- Stay out of my business. A limit should only apply to those who are not conscientious owners.
- If they are not licensed....but how would you know? Restrictions to condos or apartments with no yard. Limited to people with a record of not abiding by the pet bylaw.
- Professional, registered and licensed breeder
- Therapy dogs.
- If there is a fostering situation, large yard, multiple care givers, healthy home.
- Temporary exceptions for dog breeders (while raising a litter) or dog sitting services.
- Rescues and breeders. Not in town city kennels or daycares should not be permitted In Residential areas
- If animals not healthy (physically or emotionally, mentally)
- just because I think there is a reasonable number of pets to have, doesn't mean I think the city should limit the number of animals in a household. The city would be overreaching otherwise. Does the city also think it limit the number of cars or children per household?
- Inability to properly care for the pets and insure that having them does not interfere with their neighbours right to live a peaceful and undisturbed life. People who to fail to clean up after their pets - ie yards filled with animal waste - should also be limited.
- Size of house and size of dogs
- When an owner has demonstrated that they are incapable of caring for the number of animals in the household within the existing by-laws.
- A visitor to the home. Pet rescue or fostering.
- No exceptions.
- emotional support animals
- Grandfather in existing pets - give people a chance to license them all prior to implementing rules, etc.
- With a permit (higher fees) and regular un-announced inspections.
- If there is a true concern for the well-being of the animals. However again this could even be one animal so number doesn't always matter.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- For fostering for a licensed rescue within the city and not for personal possession. Or temporary pet sitting
- If cats are strictly indoor cats.
- If cats are siblings; perhaps if the dogs are very small more than 2 would be acceptable.
- Any sign that pets are a problem or nuisance to neighbours or in poor health or neglected should trigger bylaw enforcement.
- This varies by household and the caregiver ability to properly care for an animal responsibly and in accordance with bylaws.
- Temporary care- if it's 6 all the time (even if they're turning over) that seems like too many! But occasionally have more, if managed properly, may be fine.
- Large house, breeder, foster home for animals, etc. Case by case basis though
- None. No exceptions.
- Well, if there are lots of people living in the household. For example, multigenerational (a grandparent with a few animals moves into their (adult) children's home and there are already 4 or 5 animals). Perhaps consider more for people fostering animals for a registered and legitimate rescue org.
- Does the person have the capacity to provide for a high quality of life for all animals under care? Love, time, money, space to run, essentials of life amply provided: food, water, shelter, waste regularly collected etc...
Is there independent evidence of that?
- One litter only.
- Daycare for dogs/cats
- Licensed Breeders or Fosters
- If it is a rescue, fosters or care facility, Legit breeders (not puppy mill)
- no exception
- Type of home, ie condo living.
- Licensed breeders, other businesses related. Again I don't think you should have a limit on number. So I can't really answer the question
- Hoarding and neglect situations should be handled differently than average pet households. That should fall under abuse and a criminal offence. Those types should have limits and be closely monitored for the animals well being. Or animals are removed and rehomed if situation is out of control
- Temporary situations such as dog sitting, fosters or breeders waiting for puppies to get bigger to sell.
- Anytime it seems reasonable. Perhaps when fostering, for example. Keep an eye on this in case there are folks running puppy mills, though.
- if it is a rescue that is able to handle and look after the dogs. sometimes it is hard to find fosters. and if you limit the amount of dogs to each house. it could make it even harder for them to get fosters.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Homes that own and foster animals, there should still be a limit but higher since some animals are short term stays. Responsible home breeders, family melding situations should have a "grandfathered in" rule.
- Breeders should have allowance.
- Properly trained/licensed breeders, rescue situations, if there is enough space and food for all animals, if it is not creating a dangerous situation, if the owner is experienced/trained and willing to have checks done on the animal's welfare
- Fostering, or breeder under the responsible breeders act.
- I don't believe there should be a limit unless people have a history of neglect or abuse.
- None
- When fostering animals or when taking in another pet due to unforeseen circumstances. If it's not a permanent situation there should be exceptions
- If it is a small space without a backyard
- I don't believe there should be, to an extent. Like stated prior, it shouldn't matter how many pets there are, as long as everyone follows bylaws and pets are healthy and well taken care of (including sprays and neuters). If that isn't being followed, NO animals should be allowed in that household.
- I think dog professionals (daycare owners, dog walkers, trainers, rescues, etc) should have a much higher limit (I think 10) because they are professionals; they know what they're doing and they are helping animals which is awesome!
- Attached vs detached housing - attached having lower limits.
Size of yard available for dogs to use.
- I don't think people should be able to own multiple dogs for breeding purposes so only spayed/neutered animals should be exception for limit
- Same as answer above. Regular vet visits maybe a requirement to ensure all cats and dogs are in good health and up-to-date with vaccines and spay and neuter
- Financial reasons
- Condos, apartments, 4 plexes, places with no yard.....
- See #5.
- Foster homes
- No limit to dogs unless it's a breeder.
Lifetime bans on animal abusers. No more of this small fine for animal torture ridiculousness.
- Condos/apartment buildings etc. If a person has not proven them to be a responsible pet owner. I think there should be an exception to allow people to have a higher number of animals if they are fostering for a rescue agency.
- In situations where people are fostering dogs and/or cats, then it should be allowable to have a number that the household can maintain safely.
- Emergency situations, temporary boarding and the occasional breeding of registered purebred animals. If the bylaw changes to restrict numbers, the owners should be able to keep the ones they have (grandfathered) at the time the law come into effect.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If earning income, boarding, grooming etc., dogs or cats not owned by household may increase numbers for income purposes only, not for love of pets.
- See above
- Fostering, litters
- Breeding and maybe lot size of property
- If the home is filthy and an unhealthy environment then I would say an exception is needed.
- Small homes
- People should be allowed to have as many as they are able to properly care for - giving proper love, affection, food, water, shelter and enrichment with health and safety concerns covered for all people and pets. .
- Neighbour complaints about excessive noise/smells, vet concerns about animal wellbeing
- Fostering, no matter how long - some animals take more time to rehab
- If they are not cared for properly or not spayed and neutered
- If a limit ends up being set, then owners who have already licensed dogs/cats above the limit should be grandfathered. If no limit is set but an owner is found to have dogs/cats in a hoarding situation or they are not adequately caring for the multiple animals in their care, they should have a limit
- Any limit should be grandfathered and animals being fostered should not be part of the limit.
- As an avid dog lover and foster for multiple rescues. Limiting the amount of dogs one can own/have is detrimental.

I also would like to add that non residents of Calgary should have zero say in this.

- Circumstances where the animals are being looked after appropriately. As in being fed, walked and loved etc. Not being neglected. Foster moms and dads should have a special amount to have in their homes as long as they are being well looked after.
- ONLY if the individual owner is abusing or neglecting animals. I live in Didsbury with a limit of 2 dogs and am selling my house to move to Calgary because of how forward thinking it is and so that I can resume registering my dogs! Didsbury is losing my business because of their backwards thinking.
- When people already own these animals, are a rescue or breeder. Don't make people choose which pets to keep and which to give up, would you do that to a family that has 6 or more kids...oh pick your favorites and the rest...see yeah. Not logical to pose on Calgaryans
- If they have a good reputation for caring for them well. Fostering rescues. Running a dog sitting business from the home.
- See above
- puppies/kittens, a proven responsible breeder.
- Under application and review of city and bylaw
- If there is a hoarding situation or if the person has had animal issues before
- None
- Exception if the owner can't care for them and they are living in inhumane conditions
- A licensed breeder that has puppies or kittens.
A short stay from a pet that does not reside there

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There should not be a limit. Rather, clear expectations about care, training and behaviour.
- in rural areas.
- More if approved as a reputable, licensed and trusted breeder
- none
- If there is a bylaw change, anyone who already has multiple pets should be allowed to keep them.
- Perhaps for people that are fostering (approved and licensed!) and trainers.
- I don't believe a limit on the number of pets making a difference to animal health and well-being. It would also make fostering difficult/impossible.
- Temporary pets eg. fostering, dogsitting
- Looking at houses with separate suites, each suite should be considered separately if the secondary suite is a legal registered suite with the City.
- Local pet rescues rely on fostering animals in temporary homes. If household pet limits are as low as 2-3 pets, some people will be unable to foster because they own pets and cannot take in any more. Even if fostering can be viewed as an exception - this could make the process more complicated.
- Size of home and property. Proper care and attention given to the pets. Someone at home for the pets during the day.
- If the household is licensed for home boarding.
- People who are professionals and people who have the time and resources for the pet.
- the number of people in the household who are responsible to look after the pet.
- When someone is a registered foster with an animal rescue (like me!) they can have up to a certain amount based on the square footage of their home.
- difficult to state a limit as circumstances between households vary greatly. I've stated numbers above as what is reasonable, but I'm not in favour of a limit under a bylaw
- Licensed breeder
Fostering animals until they can be adopted
- Short Term foster/rescue care. Legal breeders who will be adopting out puppies within a reasonable time eg: six-eight weeks old
- I don't think there should be a hard limit as long as all the animals have ample space, attention, and care.
- When someone is known to the law and who keeps getting fined for certain things relating to dogs, cats etc. If they have an illegal operation regarding animals as well
- Foster care
- none
- When people are fostering animals -- especially in emergency situations.
- Fostering or breeding
- Based on the size of property
- None

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If a person can provide proof of extraordinary care and training, and minimal disruption to others there should be no reason they can't have additional animals.
- Multiple confirmed complaints by bylaw. But I feel it is necessary that bylaw confirms citizen complaints as without verification, these can't be considered valid.
- Proof of responsibility. And the regular checks on them. Exceptions creat loop holes for hoarders and such.
- If the pet is cared for properly, not causing damage or harm, there shouldn't be any restrictions
- Maybe for a multi family dwelling
- Breeders of purebred animals, especially those who actively participate in events or shows with their animals to promote the responsible breeding and keeping, and using of those animals in jobs and services
- If you are a reg breeder with the Canadian Kennel club. You may have a litter or two a year and therefore will have the pups till they are a t least 12 weeks old and up to 6 months
- Permaently or temporarily? If you've got a few dogs and you have guests stay temporarily and they have some dogs, that shouldn't put you out of compliance. Exceptions could be made for people who dog-sit for a living or side-incime. Maybe for people who volutarily foster rescues as well.
- Canadian Kennel Club Registered breeders should be exempt from a dog limit
- Responsible breeder households
- The exception to dogs would be if someone had a large piece of property for the dogs and excess income to provide for them also
- Rural area or home size
- Individuals qualifying or receiving low income benefits, individuals solely in CPP, or unable to work.
- If the owner does not comply to animal safety and welfare. Some people think that they are doing good by having more rescues/pets but they are overestimating their capacity. Unless a show/champion preservation reputable breeder, everyone else should have spayed and neutered animals.
- Breeder or rescue. Or proof of responsible care. le vets , cleanliness.
- Responsible owners who have achieved Canine Good Neighbour certificate with their dog, or other CKC titles. Responsible breeders of CKC registered dogs who maintain CKC standards of ethics. Responsible breeders of registered cats. Responsible owners of cats who provide safe outdoor and indoor space.
- If responsible and ethical breeder are breeding. However animals should have access to food 2x daily and water 24/7 including requirement to vaccinations and flea/tick/worm preventions
- There shouldnt be a limit. This is something that if the person is responsible and taking care of their animals why does it matter how many they have
- Responsible breeders should be an exception to any limits. Multiple neighbour complaints about barking, odour or waste should trigger an evaluation of the exception.
- Those who are unable to properly care for themselves first, unable to provide the safety and well-being of their pet, those who are unable to keep a clean and healthy environment

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Only if the owner has a history of noncompliance to the bylaws, resulting in repeated fines or other corrective actions.
- If you want more than the limit, you should have to apply for a kennel license explaining why you want more. The application would be reviewed by a board consisting of qualified personnel ie trainers,
- When breeders are proven to be responsible, with well cared for animals, tidy properties and are breeding purebred REGISTERED dogs & cats
- If other by-laws are being observed ie, noise, picking up after pets, leash laws, fed, watered, sheltered, I don't believe there should be a limit. Responsible people should not be limited.
- Breeders will own more dogs or cats than the typical city limit as they raise a litter. They own breeding aged and retired animals.
- People who are reputable breeders
- Fostering or breeder
- If they are responsible breeder and have the resources to pay for them and not being abused
- There should be no limit period. You can be just as shitty an owner with 1 pet as you can with 5+, and just as responsible with 5+ as you can be with 1.
- There should not be a limit. If there is a limit, proof of being a responsible breeder (registration with a kennel club) should allow more dogs, or some additional screening possibly.
- In the area of zoning where there are staff to enforce zoning bylaws. Private ownership of property where the owners can enforce the numbers ie rental.. do not use public money to enforce something that is not currently a problem. Money can be better spent endorsing Real criminal activity!
- When someone has been convicted of animal abuse/neglect, they should not be allowed to have any pets. Rescues should be allowed to take in any amount of pets they can handle and/or foster out to willing families. Limiting pets leads to shelters being full, higher stray animals on the loose.
- A fostering situation, a breeder, providing they are breeding one dog or cat at a time and not cages and cages of them.
- A CKC registered breed "kennel".
- For dogs responsible and ethical breeders should have the opportunity to prove themselves in order to keep their breeding stock but the city could benefit by breeders having to complete some kind of test/home inspection to be allowed to continue breeding. It would help weed out backyard breeders.
- If the owner is not proven to be a responsible owner (RO)
The definition of the RO must be very concise.
- Hoarding....Also the basis for defining this needs to be carefully examined based on circumstances.
- breeder or rescue
- Responsible CKC registered breeders need to be able to take back animals they breed. Returned animals that don't work out. Death or illness of a pet owner. This keeps them out of the shelter which is psychologically damaging for animals. Breeder is better able to evaluate and find proper homes

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If numbers not limited no exceptions required. Calgary has always maintained numbers don't matter. I hope they continue to be a pet friendly city and not get bullied in to changing what really isn't an issue.
- I do not think there should be a restriction.
- No
- Size of house, size of dogs, capability of owner to control their animals
- Rescuing, fostering and breeding
- If the human cannot manage the health and well being of the animals in their care.
- Always until proven otherwise
- For reputable breeders. If you aren't a puppy mill you won't have a lot of breeding dogs however until puppies are sold you may have more than 12
- Breeders should be allowed to have more cats/dogs as they often have puppies/it tends for a short time. The breeder should be reputable and belong to the CKC or other to ensure animals are not part of a puppy mill.
- I do not support household limits.
- Member of Canadian kennel club, purebred dogs
- There should not be a limit. If they are looked after its fine. If a person has one and they are not looked after that is a bigger problem. If someone is found guilty of animal abuse, they should be banned from any animal ownership for the rest of their life..
- Why impose a limit if all animals are being cared for properly and not a nuisance to their neighbors.
- Registered breeders
- Foster homes
- When there are signs that the owners cannot handle it such as sight of messy lawn.
- breeders, rescue organizations working from home and foster homes.
- The person is a foster, breeder, trainer, or has the appropriate education on caring for those animals
- If an owner has previous convictions of animal cruelty or behavior issues (pet is causing harm or distress to general public). Then a limit should be imposed.
- Rentals.
- When someone has demonstrated unexceptable care of animals.
- If the owners are not physically or mentally able to care. Homes without fenced yards. People with multiple bylaw offenses or any singular case of animal abuse.
- Breeders
- None except farms, outside city limits
- Rescues and fosters.
- When the owner has proven they are able to provide vet care and responsible household management (no injuries from infighting, all animals are appropriate weight, all animals are reasonably trained, no unplanned breeding, all animals are housetrained) to all animals. Require a vet reference?
- Reputable Breeders, Doggy Daycares

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- All purebred breeders (registered dogs) know how to maintain their households and only keep what is a controllable number.
- Qualified breeders
- In home boarding or professionals.
- those who are fostering for rescues and more than one family in the home. ( ie combining households
- People who show or exhibit dogs should be able to keep dogs that they are planning to show
- Responsible breeders/kennels,homes that actively work their dogs,etc
- As above, people with additional training and skill should be allowed more
- If you are a CKC breeder and take good care of your animals.
- Responsible breeder or responsible foster home
- Service Dog training, Canadian Kennel Club breeding
- Responsible breeders and groomers.
- The only circumstance I could see is for Breeders who are Registered with the City or province AND the CKC
- Not being taking care of, living conditions are horrible. Or if they are show dogs and are out with a handler, and all the dogs do not live in the house but are there for a few months.
- If the owner can honestly afford having more animals,
- Let me clarify I don't believe the city should be imposing limits!
- if your caring for an animal while their owners are away. If you foster animals for a short period. If your animal gives birth.
- If not cared for properly, do not clean up after them & mistreat should be restricted to less. Fosters & registered breeders should be allowed more than what the limit might be. Grandfather for those who currently have more than what the limit might be. Pet sitting allowmore (prof & 4 family/friend)
- If the person is short term fostering through a rescue. or is a registered breeder.
- Grandfather the current number so no one is having pets removed due to a new law; breeders (see conditions above); foster pets as they are not owned by the people fostering them (with proof of ownership by the rescue, still having a limit apply - like limit of 6 in household whether pet or foster)
- For breeders and fostering
- The city shouldn't be dictating
- No right to dictate
- There shouldnt. Be limit. Or limits based on individual households. Dogs in a house should be trained , excersized and vetted
- Responsible registered Ckc breeders with registered kennels, or training facility. Or a foster/shelter home with regular inspections.
- When a responsible breeder has a litter of puppies. This doesn't happen every month. Sometimes it might happen once a year or less
- Breeders should be able to have more dogs/cats for their program.
People with animal neglect, ect. charges should not be able to have any pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- People should be free to have as many pets as they like. Government should not be in the business of policing this. If maltreatment occurs then step in. Do we limit the amount of children people have ?
- Basic needs not being met, abuse and neglect, hoarding.
- Breeders/ accidental pregnancies fostering litters of puppies
- A responsible breeder should not be limited.
- Hoarding situations (more in cats than dogs.) Ability to properly care for multiple animals - i.e. proper food & clean water; fenced area for bathroom outside (dogs); proper number of litter boxes for cats; if caged, cages must be appr size & cages should not be main area of keeping animal. CLEAN.
- Responsible pet owners/rescues and breeders should be allowed more dogs. They should be on a case per case basis. Or if a loss of a family member that had a pet and you were the only one who could care for it without it being surrendered.
- Apartment buildings and people who have been deemed incapable of proper care of animals.
- REGISTERED breeders with CKC for dogs, TICA OR CFA for cats or accredited rescues.
- Dog competition trainers and handlers. These dogs get the best care (as I outlined above)
- when a new law is brought in and someone already has the limited number over
- Breeders
- Only when the owners are unable to manage them properly
- If someone is working to foster for a rescue, a breeder with valid membership in the CKC or UKC, someone with a litter of puppies or kittens.
- Under no exception should there be a limit.
- Of they belong to a rescue or foster foundation
- If the owners cannot afford vet bills, food, etc then they should be limited.
- Registered breeders should have the option to be reviewed for pack size based on accommodations to adequately keep and care for their pack.
- Show performance, serious sport involvement or working dog environments may deserve flexibility in numbers.
A boarding kennel also should have close supervision and regulation!!
- There is only a small amount of offenders. There are people who won't follow the rules anyway. So why add regulations to all the other people who reasonable to their pet ownership.
- Foster families who hold animals pending forever homes, fostering puppies/kittens as they are often born in numbers greater than 3. Temporary animal sitting circumstances
- That they are a registered breeder with Canadian Kennel club or nation cat club.
- Breeders that are responsible should not be limited to a number. But seriously - nobody should be limited. It is all about looking after your animal properly!
- None
- Only if one is a CKC registered breeder and would have puppies for the short amount of time required til the pups reach the age of going to their new homes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Registered, reputable breeders. Breeders should be members in good standing of the Canadian Kennel Club, and be able to provide veterinary records/health test results for all breeding dogs in the home.
- There are many responsible dog breeders in this country — people who health test their animals before breeding, raise puppies in a careful manner and find responsible homes. This supplies the public with a source of carefully bred and raised puppies. Allow this to continue without undue hardship.
- Mental health
- If the person has a kennel license.
- Households should not be limited it is like putting a limit on how many children you can have, as long as people are caring for the animals and have the means to do so leave them alone.
- You can't safely have 50 cats and dogs in a household unless you're in a gigantic house or acreage, so it would take more time to actually discuss this to decide.
- If you are a known hoarder.
- Breeding
- There shouldn't be an exception.. What I wrote is generous. For breeders they shouldn't have an excess of dogs as they won't be properly loved and cared for if they have to many
- Small breeders -- to adequately ensure genetic mixing a breeder requires at least two males and three females, with young animals constantly being brought in/rotated out -- this should be at the breeder's discretion, and not municipally controlled.
- Complaints from neighbours or other concerned citizens.
- Foster homes and licensed and ethical breeders.
- If there are issues and they cannot be controlled. If you cannot walk all your dogs at once without incident then any number should be allowed.
- An exception would be for reasonable breeding purposes or those households who participate in dog related venues such as sledding, conformation and other dog related activities.
- I think kennel licensing should be offered, so long as conditions are met.
- Responsible breeders, dog/cat sitters watching an animal(s) for friends or family
- If their animals are not licensed, they are not providing proper medical, physical, mental care for the animals, they should be limited in the number of pets in their home.
- Off topic. There was an attack as one large dog had the other dogs head in his jaws and the dog walker had a difficult time prying it open. She was bloodied and one of her 10 dogs ran away. Kids on trampoline were told, days later, DO NOT LOOK AT THEM!! DO NOT LOOK AT THEM!! They wanted to attack.
- Rescue groups, adoption volunteers and rehoming and foster homes
- How they are looked after.
"Owner responsibility".
- Service needs. Self training when and if one washes, them it is very hard to rehome to get your next. You have such a strong bond to them working so closely.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

If you are caring for them accordly then there should be no problems.

- mouse infestation, security
- Responsible breeders and owners.
- If the animals are being mistreated due to numbers.
- Breeders who are not licensed to do so. AB has so many supposed “breeders” that are cashing in for $$$. Selling sick /unsocialized dogs/cats . This should include ppl in rural areas . Having more than 3 dogs is too much IMO.
- If the person is unable to manage their basic needs. The animals need to have mental stimulation as well and food and housing.
- If that person has been convicted of an offence against animals, and as such has been restricted from owning pets. Otherwise, stay out of it and leave people alone. Free country?? Really?? I can't even believe this survey exists! Ridiculous
- When the owner of the home is unable to care for them in a healthy way.
- Breeders of CKC registered dogs could have more on a case by case basis. With veterinary inspection of the premises to ensure that the increased numbers have adequate housing and care. Basically a kennel license. This was done years ago in Winnipeg.
- Some foster situations, in the case of a litter of puppies or kittens, if there is adequate proof that the animals are well cared for (not just provided with shelter, water and food).
- A litter of pups/kittens. In the rare case more than 2 family members need a service dog
- If animals are not being cared for properly.
- I do not support limits, however responsible hobby breeders should be exempt from this rule. But again Calgary has been a shining example across North America as well written and enforced animal bylaws . I see absolutely no reason why Calgary needs to change its animal bylaws.
- Foster homes should have an exception.
- breeding facilities (only regulated ones)
- If there is adequate space; i.e. an acreage or a farm, they have the space to allow for more animals.
- If they're a breeder or rescue a dog or cat from a shelter. There are problems with rescue animals and there being so many strays that if someone can provide a loving home and proper care it shouldn't be an issue.
- Many communities have a "hobby kennel" license that allows breeder to have a higher number of adult dogs and any number of RELATED puppies under 4 months of age. This licence moves with the owner, so the community can track complaints(or lack thereof).
- Breeders are at times going to have more animals
- Canadian Kennel club member breeders need the ability to keep their breeding stock. Many donT want to be forced to place their older show/breeding dogs just because they want to continue a generation. Many of us like to keep our dogs for the entirety of their lives. It's responsible.
- Breeders/breeding.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Responsibility is up to the owner and if not taken care of them they be removed and/or surrendered. The dog's well-being and veterinary care should depend upon the owner of the animal and their veterinarian. Yearly check-ups with the vet should decide whether the animal is being well cared for.
- Licensed breeders (2 adults plus one litter maximum) or rescue foster homes (4 animals maximum over the age of 3 months with an exception for fostering moms with new litters).
- Only in the instance of a fully licensed and monitored breeder or shelter. Both those should be CLOSELY monitored considering the tragic consequences in past of numerous animals in poor living conditions and bad health. And NO chickens or farm animals in yards ... or we WILL end up like China.
- breeders, trainers, working animals, large families.
- An unreasonable square footage of inside and/or outside living/exercise area to accommodate the pets
Indoor/outdoor Hygiene issues, provisions or vet care re necessities of life.
- Breeders should automatically be exempt. Reputable breeders dogs are RARELY a problem. It's the back yard mutt producers and the "rescue" groups that often produce the most problems. Having multiple dogs from iffy or unknown backgrounds is just asking for trouble.
- Medical reasons or for therapy. Each situation is different.
- registered breeders, daycares/homes etc
- Registered breeders who are breed club members, not just registered with CKC. There are many backyard breeders and puppy mill operators in the CKC
- If the person can't properly take care of their pets or their environment.
- If you are a responsible breeder, you would most likely exceed 5 (especially if you had a litter of puppies/kittens), so that should be taken into consideration.
- When the owner is not able to humanely care for the animals and when they aren't adhering to the bylaws.
- If you are a breeder registered with the Canadian Kennel Club, your breeding animals are fully health tested, each animal is CKC registered
- Kennel name license from the CKC...proof of well maintained animals, inspections within reason to prove the animals care
- If the family is able to meet the physical/mental and space needs of more.
- Service / support animals, foster animals.
- If it gets to be out of hand like a hoarding situation
- Registered breeders (not backyard breeders) and obviously rescues
- If you are a breeder, you will occasionally have a litter, possible hold one or 2 back for a short time to evaluate.
- Puppies/kittens under 10 weeks
- taking care of them for short terms friends or agencies waiting for adoption
- When charged with abuse to animals or hoarding. Poor welfare in animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None. If animals are being neglected or behaviour is a problem, enforce other existing legislation related to noise complaints, safety or waste management.
- A licensed breeder or someone who fosters dogs &/or cats
- If animals are suffering then SPCA needs to actually enforce the law, not just oversee it.
- the amount really doesn't matter. It's how responsible a person is regarding their animals is the concern.
- When the owner is not caring for the animals properly.
- Breeders often have more dogs on their homes.
- none
- I think if they're a registered, reputable breeder who health tests and is trying to better/improve the breed that they're working with. I believe that in this case, there should be an exception, but there should still be strict bylaws in place to ensure it doesn't get out of hand (no puppy mills).
- As a responsible breeder, dog trainer/walker, occasional dog-sitter (non-professional etc. watching neighbours dogs on holidays), show dogs, able to register their animals and receiving an official exemption to the rule proving why they should be allowed to have more for any above reasons.
- If the owner has proven that they are responsible and their pets are responsible. Maybe request that at least half of the dogs in their ownership have passed CGN or equivalent tests (SPOT, CGC). I'm honestly not super familiar with cats, but I think it would be fair to request photos of animal areas.
- Known criminals animal abusers dog fighting
- Grandfathered in, if a household currently already has let's say 4 dogs if those rule gets made then they should be able to keep their animals.
- Breeder/fanciers
- Homes of CKC members that breed registered, Canadian Kennel Club breeds, for dogs and the same registering body for cats.
- Company from out of town visiting with their pets
- When reports of abuse, hoarding or negligence are there.
- Breeding, one litter of puppies temporarily allowed in a household
- Service animal
- small residence, line of work. people should not keep animals if they work out of town for extended periods.
- licensed registered ethical breeders that show etc.
Possible short term foster for animal rescue situations
- If there is more than one person who is the pet's master. If the owner has professional background with animal handling.
- Foster homes and litters of puppies as well as service animals
- If they aren't being taken care of. If dogs are barking and being a nuisance to neighbours.
- All circumstances - there really shouldn't be legislation about the 'number' of pets. It is the care received that is important. We have laws against animal neglect/cruelty. Enforce them, be it 1 pet or 100 pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If a females is pregnant and has puppies, but then you sell the puppies and go back to two dogs.
- With a specialty licence for breeders 9r rescues
- Can't take care of them and/ or provide the necessary care for life
- Yes. Responsible breeders should be able to file for an exemption, but only after meeting certain specifications.
- If someone is HOARDING pets without proper care and training to have an abundance of unlicensed pets that are not spayed or neutered or receiving proper vet care.
- None, no exceptions.
- Breeders, rescue homes and foster homes should be an exception to a limit.
- If it's a foster pet, foster homes have the training and due diligence to keep a home clean and animals under control
- When the owner can no longer provide proper care and management
- Mistreatment of animals should result in a ban on pets.
- Preservation breeders
- Registered breeders
- Working dogs, and reputable breeders of quality registered animals.
- An exception can be made for a properly certified CKC/AKC breeder or a properly certified trainer be it for therapy or obedience.
- No number restriction unless animals are not being cared for according to existing bylaws.
- Ckc registered breeders who can prove registration and obey all codes of ethics of the ckc and their parent club.
- Square footage of dogs personal space, per dog (like livestock pasture allotment)
- If animals are well looked after and fed well and get enough exercise. Don't know rules for breeders.
- Foster homes for rescued animals.
- Breeders, people in the veterinary industry and rescues should be able to apply for exceptions
- None
- If the house is big enough and the owner has resources to provide for all the animals.
- All animals should be well cared for, in good health and regularly visit the vet.
- Responsible, CKC registered, purebred, well bred, animals from fantastic local breeders. Also, when people foster animals, they could temporarily handle an extra for those periods I think.
- A notice of assessment calculations
- If they have had any complaints to by-law in the past that were proven, or many complaints by more than 2 complaintents in separate households or more than one visit from by-law
- If neglect or abuse is found at the house then yes, there should be a limit or ban for that person.
- For reputable breeders to keep the purebred bloodlines to continue
- Someone who is a breeder. But they should have a special permit with bylaw that allows them to have more than the legal limit
- Careful breeders of working, show, performance dogs.
- Where there is a connection to a rescue organisation there should be no limit.

Get out of people's faces, period.

- If fostering rescued animals
- When an animal has a litter and you are raising the young. When you are fostering animals. When you are training an animal either as a guide dog or support dog.
- I don't think limits should be set.
- Breeding
- If you live in a condo. If your pets are repeatedly causing issues.
- If the animals are not taken care of properly
- Reputable breeders, they take the time and energy that is needed to effectively own more than the limit, and generally spend a lot of money doing so as well
- Apartments, people who are elderly, or terminally ill
- CKC registered breeders should be able to apply for an exemption & be allowed to have multiple animals. This enables them to continue breeding healthy animals & take back a dog they have bred if the owner is not able to care for the animal.
- A very responsible caring owner that has been vetted by bylaw services to get the exception and regular checks from bylaw to ensure they are adhering to the rules
- If service animals are needed
- If someone can obtain a licence for breeding? Therapy dogs/ pets? Prove that they are adequately looked after.
- There should be no limits on dog/cat numbers.
If there is a limit, exceptions should include foster animals and also responsible pet owners who apply to have more than the limit.
- A reputable breeder often has more dogs than an average person.
- People that are irresponsibly breeding (no kennel club, health testing of animals, jobs or titles for animals.) People with aggressive animals (many could be too much to manage properly,) and people with outdoor cats.
- An owner who demonstrates proper animal husbandry for whatever number of animals, has a reason for higher numbers, and the facility to care for those higher numbers.
- Maybe foster care/verified registration, showing that there is 2 or more persons with the animals 16 hours a day or more a day.
- Within city limits I don't think there should be an exception, besides additional pets brought by short term visitors.
- Space, size of dog,
- If someone has been proven to overexert themselves to the detriment of an animal. First offense of sub-optimal care determined by a vet (not abuse) should limit the person to 1-2 pets. 2nd offense, none.
- Some people are breeders and will briefly have multiple puppies in the home.
- Breeders need an exception and perhaps foster homes for rescues

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- When someone chooses to foster an animal (please get foster city licenses); or when there is a service animal.
- Breeders, kennels, dog or cat professionals of any kind should be granted exemptions to the 'pet' limit.
  1. known foster households during peak rescue periods.
  2. reputable purebred dog breeders (not backyard breeders cross breeding willy nilly)
- House size
- Owner's ability to care for animals
- Foster families for rescue organizations. These groups need all the help they can get to deal with the homeless animal population, especially during breeding season. They are a valuable community resource for spay/neuter/adoption.
- Short term care is needed.
- Again see answer to number 5 . Also if you live on an acreage and can still licence and provide Medical needs ie. vaccinations than the number of animals can be increased.
- I don't know that there should be exceptions.
- Very rare circumstances that I can't imagine right now.
- service dogs are the only thing I can think of.
People have not proven themselves responsible enough
- I think if you were a licensed pet sitter, or just looking after someone's pets for a short period of time, or if your pet has puppies/kittens and it's not feasible to separate them.
- Breeders, competitive sport people, rescues with fosters
- Breeders, competitive sport people, foster homes with rescues
- There should be no limit. Quality of care is what's important - not numbers.
- Mixed dwelling (condos, townhouse etc).
- This is a slippery slope and I don't agree with a limit. I have had multiple pets in the past, and have friends who have multiple pets. Whether it's one or more, they all need to receive the care they deserve. There are plenty of owners of single pets who should not have even one.
- Professional breeders, trainers, People that raise and train show dogs and competitive dogs.
- Fostering, but if someone were to have beyond the limit of animals they should be have discussions/permission from neighbors. If noise/smell becomes an issue they should respect noise bylaws and neighbors requests for changes to the situation.
- Past owner irresponsible behavior should have a zero limit. Having a pet is a privilege and not a right.
- if u decide to cap, city to grant GRANDFATHER clause to everyone, provide written guarantee that all animals licensed are guaranteed the GRANDFATHER clause for those animals.
- If you are running a dog daycare/overnight business in your home.
- Larger homes or yards, say homes over 2,300 square feet.
- breeder or foster home
- Condos, apartments and tighter congested housing units.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If there have been issues with hoarding or neighborhood complaints
- It's nobody's business how many animals a household can own as long as they have the means to take care of them and are not abusing them. There's already too many animals in shelters that can go into good homes, limiting ownership will just make the problem worse.
- When there is a litter of puppies or kittens or an animal care business.
- None.
- If the house hold is a responsible breeder or owner
- If they are backyard breeding
- ie: litters needing time at and following birth and/or housing for homeless animals under consideration.
- Pure bred breeders need exceptions
- There shouldn't be a limit unless those animals are unwell.
- When someone can reasonably care for all needs of the animals within their care. Not just food and shelter but stimulation training that villes cleanliness and that sort of stuff. As well as having enough space for them.
- breeding for a short periods until the puppies are ready to be sold ie eight weeks
- Service animals. Fostering animals while they are awaiting adoption.
- If an animal has a litter of young. you would not euthanize the extras. If spay and neuter is mandatory this would not be an issue. Many hoarding situations could be reduced if mandatory spay/neuter were in place. Individual permits for larger number could be considered. Limit breeding strictly.
- Cleaniness
- A farm or an achrage where there's lots of room
- History of Abuse
- - pet sitting
- - live rural area
- - less neighbours
- - support animals
- - well trained
- Exceptions would make the bylaw less clear, so better to avoid having exceptions.
- special service dogs / breeder licences / short term new litters to a certain age.
- No circumstances. Firm numbers are more easily managed by the City Admin. Wiggle room becomes just that and therefore not easily managed.
- Combining households / families can result in multiple pets. Keep them with family versus having to rehome or adopt out just because of a bylaw or rule on total number
- Exceptions just lead to more people bending the rules with are broken anyways. Whats going to stop someone from having 8 dogs but only registering 2?
- Healthy environment, proper care, noise issues etc.
- Some owners can handle one more responsibly.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement
June 29, 2020

- Can't think of anything.
- Fostering
- If there are more responsible people in a household to train, exercise and keep their pets content then so be it.
- For a reasonable time after a litter is born.
Professional trainers or breeders
People who take in strays to socialize them and prepare them for adoption provided an animal by law officer is persuaded that the person is both competent and genuine
Folk who live on acreages and farms
- Not sure. I suppose there could be commercial breeding operations, but I would not want to encourage puppy mills or cat equivalent.
- babies
- The larger your house the more you can have. It also depends on what your business is and/or you run it from home
- People who foster animals, crazy cat ladies, pet breeders.
- I don't see a circumstance for an exception. I suppose if dog or cat has a litter but there should be a time limit to reduce to the limit.
- None. A limit of two "traditional" pets (i.e. cats and dogs) should also apply to so-called "foster homes" for animals. I have no problem with people taking in abused or abandoned animals, provided that they understand that these are transition arrangements if they have a pet of their own already.
- A household with 5+ blind people probably needs 5+ service dogs...
- If there is more than 2 blind or otherwise handicapped people that require dog assistance to function.....
- If the number is temporary - e.g. temporary dogsitting, maybe fostering. Also, if the animals are approved therapy animals.
- Whether or not that space can handle the number of pets in the space without issue to their or owner's health.
- If cats are kept inside, then the number of cats could increase, but not if cats are allowed to roam free – then they kill birds and also make a mess in other people’s yards. I can’t see a reason to allow for more dogs, since they are usually allowed out into a yard to poop.

Licensing

Primary reason for not licensing cats

- No retail place should sell animals, this isn't china. Regulations should be placed on breeders and encouragement in adoption should be paramount. Many Calgary homes are big enough for a cat at least. Chip all pets and prosecute abusers.
- To avoid the fee. This should not be tolerated. People who do this should be fined, put on a ban list, and have their animals removed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- My cat never leaves the house, why would I spend money yeraly to licence them when they never leave the house?
- Cost? They see now benefit from having one?
- cost, or cat does not go outdoors
- Not essential, doesn't provide much benefit for indoor cats.
- Cats are indoor pets. Those who don't are probably responsible enough to know this. Also, have you ever collared a cat? Some just WON'T wear one no matter how much you try. What a waste of money licensing a cat is, when he won't even wear the dumb thing.
- Likely that they don't typically let the cat out and therefore don't see a need to licence them. OR they don't know that they do have to licence them.
- low income or they think it wont get outside.
- ignorance, or lack of responsibility, laziness, or even a lack of care for the animals they own. So many reasons not to unfortunately. Cat owners that let their cats roam may not license either so there are no repercussions for their choices.
- Cats stay at home so they might think that there is no need to do so as cat won't get lost or anything like that.
- cost
- Its impossible to enforce.
- They think it is unnecessary, are unaware of the requirement, or do not know what the cost of licensing pays for or how it benefits them
- Lazy + lack of education. Necessary.
- Pure selfishness. Feel rules don't apply to them. Fine these people
- If the cat is inside all the time you shouldn't have to license it
- Money grabber, why do we need to do this? Most animals now are being chipped so whats the point.
- Cost
- Responsible pet owners probably don't let their cats outside and don't think the City needs to know about them. Or they may not know how or know that they need to.
- Irresponsibility or financial hardship.
- Expensive and pointless. What is the city giving in return? No off leash parks to fund like you do with dogs, and the people who actually care about their cat being returned microchip already, a vet office can return the pet without city involvement.
- my cats are indoor pets and have chips in their ears which provides owner information. if they are outside, they are on a leash and under supervision
- Lack of enforcement means no consequence for not licensing.
- Cats are not allowed outside and have no reason to be licensed. This is nothing more than unnecessary cost for the pet owner. They can be chipped and tattooed, have engraved collar with name/phone # for reunification. Licensing a cat should not be mandatory.
- lazy or cheap

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Pet owners may underestimate the risk of their pets escaping, and feel that licensing is unnecessary. Cost may also be a barrier for some families.
- They assume indoor cats don't need licenses or it's a money grab
- I have an indoor cat, he is never and will never be outside.
- They feel that cats don't need to be licensed because they should be free to roam and be nuisances in our communities. and they feel like there is no resources for cats that should cost them money.
- So they're not responsible when it gets caught/trapped, entitled that they do not have to follow the rules. Nobody enforces it anyway.
- Lack of money, or just plain stupidity.
- Cost.
- If a cat is kept indoors and has few or no opportunities to escape, licensing seems redundant. The owner has already chosen to take total responsibility.
- Why would they pay a large amount of money to register their cat who will never leave their home?
- Financial, lack of education and safety (having a collar on a cat puts it at risk for choking).
- N/a
- Don't want to pay money.
- Laziness
- Because they believe cats should roam free, and if they license them they will be caught.
- They are indoor pets
- As a former owner of 2 cats that were indoor only cats, I see no reason for them to be licensed. Licensing cats that are not supposed to roam free is just a cash grab as 99% of owners don't take their cat for a walk, so there is little to no chance of them getting out of the home in the first place.
- The cat may never go outdoors, so why license? It is expensive and time consuming to license every year. It should be a one time item.
- Can't be bothered. Don't think their cats will get out. Disagree with the rule to license ?
- Cost, value added. How is it more effective than a tag with owners address?
- They believe that is their cats right to wander free and unnecessary to register them. Possibly lack of education.
- Lack of enforcement or incentive for registration
- Cats are indoor only and/or cost.
- Lazy and old school and ignorance
- My cat does not go outside, I follow the rule. I've paid to have him chipped. I pay enough taxes I get nothing out of.
- The people I know that don't license also let their cats roam. They don't get why it's important. But they feel their pets aren't a problem, even though they roam for hours a day.
- Cheap!
- cost
- Laziness and income

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If my cat stays indoors I don't think I should have to license it. I don't let them wear a collar in case they get choked so if they were to get out it is their microchip that identifies them. Having said that I license my 3 cats every year and I think it is a money grab.
- Laziness and knowing they can get away with it as Bylaw officers to not go door to door to verify that cats are licensed. These would be the same owners that let their cats run loose outside.
- They truly believe it is unnecessary as their cat never leaves their house.
- If something is not required why would one go through the bother of doing so if there is no incentive?
- Cost.
- I would think because their animal is strictly indoors and not a nuisance. So what would be the point other than a cash grab? Or cost?
- Think they won't go outside. I think it should just be for the privilege of having a companion animal and to help out with animal services budget.
- I would think people with indoor cats, especially in apartment buildings, feel no need to licence as the cats really never leave the premises. They likely see it as an unnecessary expense.
- Cost vs. benefit. Eg. if you have an indoor only cat what benefit does licensing offer? Re-unification is available to all pets microchipped and many pet adoption agencies include these with adoption fees.
- Not feeling it's important or their cats have value
- They are lazy and they likely don't think they need to because they have inside cats
- cost, don't want to take time out of their day
- Ignorance, cost, laziness, and not believing that it is in their best interest.
- 1)They are strictly indoor cats.
- 2)They do not leave the house or yard.
- 3)Owners never intend for them to be left out unattended.
- cost.
- Avoidance of fees, free-roaming animal, or irresponsible breeding
- Money, pets are already expensive as it is and sometimes dont have the cash flow to renew licenses And Feels like a money grab. If your cats stay inside. Whats the need to license then??
- People typically have no money to spend on making responsible choices and people don't like following the rules. Especially when they are easy to break and get away with.
- Cost or laziness.
- Cost and awareness
- money
- Cost
- Uneducated on bylaws. Have indoor cats and don't think they'll get out.
- Cost or they believe it isnt necessary to licence pets who are inside only like cats.
- N/a
- Costs
- I think many people don't know it's required or don't feel that it's necessary

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Laziness and cost. A cat owner may not license because the cat is indoors only.
- Money
- The cat never goes outdoors.
- The ease of which they can get away with NOT licensing their cats. Most people keep their cats indoors and those who are outdoors are rarely reunited.
- If there inside cats why should you licence it? Seems silly to me and I don't have a cat. And it doesn't seem to help with the car population or people abusing animals and etc.
- Money
- they don't think they should have to
- No knowledge about licensing laws and thinking the cat won't leave the house so they hope to save the money.
- Because they don't have to. No one is fining the owners of the cats. It is unfair to fine owners of dogs, but not cats.
- They think their cat(s) will never go missing so they don't need a license.
- don't know
- My cat doesn't go outside, so he does not need to be licensed. Microchip and tattoo should be enough if my cat gets lost, plus he has a collar.
- Their cat is an indoor cat who should never be outside.
- we believe money is the reason, however, if the owner(s) can't pay for a license how are they going to take care of the pet??!! again the pocket book is a good deterrent..we strongly suggest when an animal is licensed they MUST have a chip inserted into them..
- They don't think its necessary and don't understand what would happen if their cat ran away.
- The yearly expense.
- As a former City Pound manager, because they do not want to pay money for it. Cats are a pet manageable with very low income and people expect that to be consistent across the board.
- People seem to think they are a disposable animal and do not put the same value as dogs. I think licencing should also include a microchip. Microchips are cheap and I know many people who allow their cats out of doors and I never see a license tag on them.
- Indoor only cats are a real possibility. I licensed my indoor only cat anyway, but it felt totally ridiculous. An unnecessary financial and administrative burden.
- Cats are indoor only and the belief is if they are never outdoors the risk is negligible. People also do not feel they receive anything in return for the fee collected. This could very well be an education opportunity.
- Excess cats
- they are not allowed to roam outside even if they are licensed so whats the point. Money grab.
- I don't have cats but since I need to license my dogs I feel that any cat that is allowed outside should be required to be licensed. To me it is part of being a good pet owner.
- Cost or letting them outside and not being a responsible pet owner
- They think it's a money grab for cats, especially as they are housebound.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I license my dog but fostering dogs should not require a licence .This appears to be a gray area.
- Cost or cats are indoor pets.
- I think they feel that the cat never goes out so it doesn't need to be licensed.
- They think keeping them indoors means they firstly won't get caught, and secondly don't need to pay fees for something internal.
- Cost
- Perhaps they feel the license is to expensive or their cats are solely indoor and feel there is no need for licencing.
- CAS only enforces rules on responsible cat owners and only tickets them not the irresponsible cat owners, I do not blame people for not. I work in the industry & it is terrible hearing the stories. CAS also refuses to actually HELP cats & do not attend cat at large calls try to send to CHS
- In my opinion, people choose not to license their cats because they do not think it is important , either because they have an indoor cat who they don't feel is at risk, or they have grown up with outdoor or farm cats that had free reign to roam.
- The cats are indoor cats and never go outside.
- They know they can get away with it
- Cats should need to be licensed
- Defiance and unwillingness to take responsibility and to put out cost. The cost is reasonable. I used to have two cats and they were always licensed.
- Cats aren't allowed outside so they aren't needing city services
- If the cat is in house only and not allowed out, I don't think they should have to be licensed.
- The cat is 100% indoors. Seems ridiculous to have to pay for indoor cat lience.
- The primary reason for this choice I think with many people is they do not want to pay a fine if it is caught because they've let it run around loose. Cats should not have to wear collars with tags, instead they should be microchipped. at least that should be an option
- fees
- Not necessary
- Cost and perhaps lack of understanding this is a requirement.
- Because the cats are allowed to roam free.
- They have indoor cats.
- Cost of licensing
- That they keep the animals inside.
- I license mine
- Cheap and irresponsible!!!! Do not care about being a polite and responsible citizen nor do they truly care for the well being of their animal. If their animal should ever get lost, run away then responsible pet owners have a much better chance to get their pet back if it is licensed
- I feel like I get nothing in return. My cats are microchipped and tattooed so reunification is not a problem. They are indoor and have never gotten out in their lives. So it seems like there is little purpose or benefit.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Don't see a benefit.
- I think it would have to do with their having their cats indoors only.
- laziness, cost
- Fees
- Cost! This is just a money grab for the city. I have indoor only cats. They are not causing any harm and are not a problem for the city. If one of my cats were to get out and I needed city services then I would expect to have to pay and license my cat.
- No benefit for responsible cat owners who keep their cats at home
- No. Should license.
- Indoor cat only.
- They don't feel that the same rules should apply to cats, those people are wrong
- Waste of money for an owner. As someone who lost a cat who was licensed, the city didn't even have the decency to advise me of his pick up when they were called. He was tagged, and chipped. The homeowner who found him called me. There is absolutely zero benefit as an owner, and it's a city cash grab
- Laziness.
- I believe those who choose to forego licensing of their cats have animals that are indoor pets that never get out of doors. If by chance the pet does escape, most are chipped or tattooed. Financial constraints is likely another reason
- Cheap and not responsible
- Many people think that because they keep their cat indoors, they don't need to license. However, as a responsible pet owner I think licensing fees to help pay for other animal services are important. This could be stressed as part of the licensing. Also important if a cat accidentally gets out.
- Because they are indoor animals like fish, gerbils, snakes, etc
- Prices or a day who only lives indoors.
- My cat is totally indoor only, and has never been outside the house in 12 years. There is no reason for me to pay to license him.
- A sense of entitlement
- Cost
- They don't see cats in the same light as dogs. My cat has been licensed since I got her because I believe it is my responsibility to care for her and to help support animal services. It is a privilege, not a right, to own a pet.
- City does not use its funding for the animals
- No consequences.
- I think people don't want to license their cats because most stay indoors. So why bother to pay the money if they don't go out.
- I would guess the cost involved. Or they have outdoor cats they don't want linked back to them?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cat owners may feel, why? If a cat is kept indoors all the time, why bother? If it 'escapes' and then captured, there's still a huge fine. There's no options. Cats are supposed to be indoors and nothing else obvious is provided to responsible owners. And, a vaccinations are still expected.
- They do not care.
- Indoor cats
- Na
- Cats are treated as more disposable pets than dogs. People still let them out to roam the neighbourhood, stating it is cruel to keep them indoors. Then when their cat doesn't come home, they simply get another kitten and continue the cycle. Licencing their cat is a waste of money in their minds.
- Money, negative view of the law, laziness, carelessness, irresponsibility.
- Possibly lack of income
- Cost And laziness
- No idea dont own cats
- they do not want to give the government more money. Pets already cost money to take care of, paying a yearly fee just so the government is aware that you have an animal is not ideal for most owners
- Lazy and don't thing an indoor cat needs to be. Also the City wont do anything , the fines are so low they will take the risk... make the fines high and people wont take the chance at being caught!!!
- Money
- People think cats who stay indoors need not have a license
- Money. No reason to. Most cats, outside of feral, do no harm.
- Cost. Hassle. Not necessary.
- Cost and that they just simply forget. Why are there no reminders to license your pet OR options for multiple years to avoid the nuance? I think may people simply forget (I do!).
- All cats must be licenced, and a cat owner who does not do this is an irresponsible pet owner. If the cat has become lost and is found, and put in the custody of Calgary Humane Society, the city licence tag will see cat gets returned to it's owner, and that's a good thing.
- Cost, administration requirements (i.e. you need to be looking after things), lack of awareness
- Strictly indoor cats, how does licensing actually service those animals.
- Lack of respect for both other people and the pet itself.
- Cost and apathy
- Indoor cats...too expensive
- Some simply do not want to pay, others don't think they will ever be caught or ticketed. If you can afford an animal you can afford a license!
- Too expensive

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They're jerks taking advantage. If a license is required, they should get a license. Why require a license then ignore people who don't bother?
- Irresponsible owners. Don't care about their cat and will let it roam.
- I don't see what licensing any pet does for the safety of a pet. It is better to have a cat or dog microchipped and / or tattooed. What does the city do for cats with the license fee?
- They aren't a responsible owner. They don't care about the bylaws or losing their pet. If you can't afford a license, you shouldn't own a pet
- Owners believe since the cat is an inside cat no one will check on licensing
- Don't want to pay, don't care about the animals being returned and do not want to be held accountable for their animals behaviour and keeping it at home and trained.
- I assume they keep their cat indoors at all times, and that licensing is for the purpose of controlling animals roaming and then contacting the owner.
- Little to no punishment for infractions.
- They think they are exempt because their cat is inside most of the time or is small or non-violent or, they don't walk them however, we've had cats in our "condo" building who escaped through a window or open door! Then they end up in some city facility or a vet site or other, costing tax payers!
- I think that people think that no one will know, if they do not register an indoor cat.
- Knowing how and where to do it.
Forgetting to renew.
Believing that since it's going to be an « indoor cat » it's not necessary.
- They think that they won't get caught, for indoor cats that never leave the house and even for those who still let their cats roam freely. Need more information about the benefits of licensing.
- Cat owners think they're above the law.
- THEY ARE SELFISH, SELF CENTERED AND IGNORANT.
- They figure if their cat doesn't ever go outside, why should it need to be licensed? I'm inclined to agree with them - even though I don't have cats.
- They think that it is not required because they never get out of house
- They can't be bothered to pay.
- I have no idea why people wouldn't. I suppose those who keep their cats indoors don't think they need to be (but what about if kitty unexpectedly gets out?).
- I believe these individuals are predominantly the ones who allow their pet cats to roam. I believe they don't think it's necessary.
- They don't know it's mandatory or they aren't let outdoors
- They have an inside cat and don't let it outside.....or they feel they're above the law and it doesn't pertain to them. Financial issues.
- I have a licensed totally indoor cat. I believe in supporting the cities S/N programs. Other people may not feel this way. It can also be a financial burden to low income or seniors.
- Skirting the expenses, that may not see any benefit.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Maybe cost. Not knowing how to do it or that it is required. Not wanting to be traced back to the animal if it's injured or lost because of cost - sky high vet bills are beyond the ability of many to pay. Pet insurance is costly too.
- Price and no value
- Don't think they have to because they are indoors
- Their cats live indoors only
- Indoor, not wandering, not boarded, fees
- Financial barriers, no enforcement and no consequences for their cats to roam and have multiple litters.
- Cats are always kept indoors and there is no risk of them getting outside
- Cost and lack of transparency of where they go.
- Lack of responsibility for their animal, they chose to have one and should be financially stable to afford all aspects of caring for that animal.
- They stay indoors
- Cost, and desire to have an outdoor cat without facing bylaw implications
- I believe a lot of people feel like it's pointless. Plus I think they don't want to pay a fine if picked up by the city.
- They assume the cat will never leave the home or attempt to escape the home.
- Above the rules
- They think it's a money grab by the City? Don't see the benefits?
- No excuse.
- Lack of enforcement (no fault of officers/system, just logistics). Cost. Indoor animal, so less risk of being lost or picked up.
- Cost, convenience
- Some cats don't like to wear collars? Cost?
- Society seems to think cats are disposable.
- Cost & accountability.
- Money
- They feel there is no reason to license a housecat, who will spend the majority (if not all) of its life indoors
- They are socially irresponsible.
- The fine is not high enough to force people to license their cat
They believe that cats have the right to roam
- They may not know and/or cannot afford the cost
- Financial. Most cats stay indoors as well
- The cat is only an indoor cat. Don't think they'll get caught.
- Not being responsible pet owners
- No idea
- The cat is an indoor pet and therefore owners don't feel they should have to license it.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They are cheap
- Cost
- Irresponsible pet owners
- Erroneous impression that their cat could never get outside, and therefore that they can evade the law without consequence.
- Never leave the house
- Cats are indoors and not permitted to wander outside. When cats leave the house, they are kenneled.
Also, not likely to wear a collar/tag!
Waste of money to license a cat.
- too expensive.
- I have no idea.
- Cost
- Cost! It's only $45 but that's something which some cannot do ... which is a barrier for one to apply for the free neuter/spay program
- Not seen as a pet or bothersome animal
- To not get caught or fined for letting them out unattended. People can't afford or forget to do it. Indoor cat so they don't think they need to to save a few bucks.
- All pets must be licensed. If one cannot invest in proper care including licensing they should not have pet.
- Cost.
- Cost
- Financial and what is the point? I have my cats micro chipped so why do I have to license them?
- Dont leave the house. Cost
- They think they will never escape and theirs no repercussions if the city isn't aware of the unlicensed cat
- Ignorance, lack of concern for the common good.
- Cats are considered less dangerous, less nuisance than a dog.
- Laziness and cheapness, if you can afford to have a cat, you should be able to afford a licence
- Lazy and cheap
- Cost
- The price might be too high
- The cost is prohibitive and the animal is no burden on the City administration.
- Price
- Lack of understanding regarding the importance of licencing their pet.
- The city's blatant cat racism. Dogs can poop in my yard all year long, and they're amazing!
Dangerous pit bulls are a threat to all children on the street, and the city does nothing. An owned cat goes for a walk in the neighborhood - LIKE SCIENCE MEANT IT TO DO - AND HURTS NO ONE EVER!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Probably cost?
- Likely ignorance or laziness.
- Cost and burden
- My cats are all licensed.
- The collars, cats don't typically like collars. Have you ever tried collar training a cat it's nearly impossible.
- Inside cat
- nothing, defiance
- That indoor only pets never escape.
- Anti nanny-statist activism or the money. Seriously, make it free.
- Cost
- Can't afford it or cat is a totally indoor animal
- Possibly not wishing to spend the money when their cats are indoor only.
- Lazy , anti system
- Cost only.
- Don't want to pay the fee. Are not afraid of enforcement so low incentive to do so.
- They think being an indoor cats its unnecessary. Lack cognitive insight on the dangers or value if their cat inadvertantly gets outside. Cost, lack of education and ease to license. Dont value the animals enough. Many dont value cats as much as dogs.
- Indoor cats. Don't think they would ever get out.
- Too expensive and the city wants to control what you do in Your own home (limit how many). Licensing an animal that stays inside or on your property (if you're responsible) is strictly a money grab from a city that doesn't know how to manage their responsibilities.
- It could be cost. I know it may seem low but it may have an impact if the owner has a few to register. It's cheaper for neutered animals - great but spaying and neutering is not! Make this as cheap as possible and I guarantee more owners will licence!
- The issue is not licensing a pet, it is the fact that you have to re-license them every year. That is a very transparent money grab by the government
- They think that their pets dont leave the house so why should they.
- They don't feel the need to.
- It's a cash grab.
- There is no real reason to have a registered cat. By law it is my understanding they should stay inside.
- Most folks don't see a point in licensing a cat. The majority of owners keep their cats inside and don't let them out. A cat isn't like a dog where they are going to training classes or animal salons or daycares etc
So licensing them is really unnecessary
Also the cost is too high

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Strictly indoor cat - NEVER goes outside. Cost of license. Owner just does not care, maybe considers cat just a cat ie disposable. Wow, that's harsh!
- The reason is, that it is unreasonable. Having a pet licence is not a guarantee that the owner will be responsible nor does it provide assurance that a pet will behave appropriately. It is just another piece of annoying, unnecessary, wasteful, government oversight.
- Can't afford it, or they don't let their cats out.
- Coat and the belief that cats do not have to be registered.
- many people think licensing is just for dogs, especially those that have indoor cats.
- Honestly, the people are too cheap to pay. If they can afford a cat then they can afford a license once a year. If the fee is a hardship an assistance might be helpful. I don't think people understand where the money goes or what it supports, it would be nice if the city made it common knowledge.
- Few reasons some are can't afford to pay the fees due to their tax bracket low income etc and then they have the ones who can afford it but purposely ignore it sometimes because they feel entitled some just because they may have had an issue in the past involving animal abuse
- expense. unwilling to be held responsible for pets
- Likely they are indoor only cats.
- Cheap
- They are probably going to let it out and do not want to be responsible.
- Don't care
- Am sure the owners would say that "my cat" would never be allowed outside so I shouldn't have to license it.
- I think they think that if an animal never is out why bother paying for a license.
- They are kept indoors ... but licensing is good if a cat "escapes".
- Lack of finances.
Constant rotation of pets through the home.
Over reach of by law officers creating distrust/distaste of the organization.
- Don't realize it is a requirement. Don't realize the cost it how to register.
- No excuse for this minor charge.
- 1) They feel that cats are not controllable and fly under the radar. If they are truly indoor-house cats then the need to license is not as important to some owners.
- Not sure but likely avoidance of paying.
- Indoor cats only. Should not have to license indoor cats.
- I feel that indoor cats should have a minimal amount for licensing. If the cat is microchipped and escapes one time...no fine. If it happens a second time then consider a fine. These cats that do not go outside do not spread disease or get onto roads or other peoples property.
- Cost. This should be free.
- Cost
- Costs too much. Money grab from the city.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost, and I also believe that if your cat is staying indoors you should not have to pay as much as someone is letting their cat outside off leash.
- Why bother. What are we regulating for? Money ?
- Laziness .
- Cost
- No need to license an animal who is 100% inside and has a microchip to identify the pet
- They don't want to pay licensing fees or be held responsible for what their pet does when loose.
- If the cat is indoor only, they won't license.
- Cost? Inconvenience? Forgetfulness? Seems silly to license an animal that is expected to stay indoors. Should we also license our hamsters then?
- Cost, and doesn't make sense for indoor cats.
- People believe it to be a cash grab and if their animal remains inside should not have to do it.
- There is nothing stopping them from not licensing and indoor cat. Nothing is monitoring this.
- They maybe have a cats that never goes outside. They perhaps don't understand how licensing works.
- People choose not to licence their cats because it is the direct tie to fines in cats are caught off property. The fine in many cases is enough for people to simply abandon the animal.
- They don't care. Their animals stay inside and aren't a nuisance to their neighbours.
- Cost. Feeling no need if their cat never goes outside.
- If a completely indoor cat why is it necessary. Budgies and fish aren't licensed.
- They say the cat never goes outside
- Cost or amount of effort required to license
- I just don't think the city needs to keep track of cats like they do for dogs. I would never license my cat.
- If it is solely an indoor cat, why does it need a license? Microchip, yes, license, no.
- IF their cats are indoors, they don't feel a need to licence. Perhaps also money is an issue....maybe they think because they are 'smaller' (compared to dogs on the whole) they don't need to pay..
- People don't like paper work and dealing with the government. They don't like the fee even though it's small. They don't want their irresponsible behavior to be traced back to them ie: they let their pet free roam.
- Cost. And the fact that these cats never go outside. They remain indoor cats with no reason to be licensed.
- All cats and dogs should be licensed- there is no excuse
- they think that since their cat stays indoors, they don't need a license; or they cannot afford it
- Cost, convenience
- A lot of people consider cats as disposable pets and don't want to pay for a license.
- If cats don't go outdoors....or because they know they can get away with it easier than dogs
- Dereliction of duty of owners!
- Not willing to pay, concerned about being caught, avoiding retributions.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Multiple cats, indoor-only cats, laziness.
- Their cats are indoor or don't meet the requirements for licences or are too expensive (not spayed/neutered), also they are less likely to be picked up if they do get out of the house
- Cost
- Indoor cats that never go out, but given some felines propensity for escape, I believe all should be listened.
- Knowledge. Cats have only just recently been required to be licensed the past few years and there really isn't any advertising for it like there is for dogs.
- They don't go outside and have no means of getting out
- Inconvenience and habit - there's little in the way of checks and balances to ensure the cat is licensed until something goes wrong (i.e., the cat vanishes and is picked up by bylaw control)
- They either have too many or just think they are better than dog owners!
- Cost
- Lack of consequences.
- Lazy, irresponsible, entitled, cats and dogs should follow same rules, same licensing and same standards. They are just as much a nuisance or danger to community as a loose dog
- Cost
- Cant afford it...City fees are up every year
- Being lazy? Possibly ignorant about rules or fees?
- To be honest, stupidity and a sense of entitlement. Cats should be treated the same as dogs, should be controlled and licensed. Cat owners think they are entitled to not pay registration fees and to allow their cats to roam free.
- Cost or the fact that they let their cats roam and don't want to be caught doing it
- Probably price? Contempt about rules, laziness.
- Cost
- People are cheap. They won't go out of their way to pay if they don't have to. "My cat isn't like THOSE cats, and it never leaves the house!" Yeah, right.
- Refusing to pay what is essentially a tax for owning a pet.
- I think the choice not to licence an animal stems from the lack of knowledge to what the 'license' represents, and where the funds go.
- Their cats are indoors, spayed/neutered and have permanent ID. It infuriates me that R.P.O's are paying for cat licensing. My cats have both microchips and Tattoos so if they went missing it would be those ID's that would get my cat home not their license. Especially since cats hardly wear collars
- "It's a money grab"
- Too expensive, especially since taxes in the city continue to go up and services decrease. They know monitoring and enforcement is a joke and they wont get caught so why pay.
- Unaware or uncaring.
- Cost and that they are responsible owners who do not let their animals out intentionally.
- Cost or convenience

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Being cheap/lazy. If it's a money issue those same people cannot afford to be pet owners. The only other reason I could think of is if they are 100% an indoor cat.
- Indifference.
- Likely the cost and they don't feel it is of value to do so
- Probably cost or unaware of CoC requirements
- Licensing costs money and no value is received for these fees when the cat is kept indoors.
- If they are not roaming cats, meaning live inside, they don't license cats.
- Indoor cat, unnecessary expense
- They don't go outside
- Licensing is a money grab for the city
- Apathy to the reasons cats should be licensed.
- Cost and/or an overstep of city authority.
- They are not responsible pet owners and do not want to take the time/money to do so.
- if an animal is microchipped what is the point. cats are indoor animals they are not going to get out
- Probably because they are indoor cats, or they just imagine that it won't be enforced
- You ever try to keep a collar on a cat? Seriously, do the people writing these questions have any experience with animals at all? And really, when's the last time there was a vicious cat attack on a person that required tracking down an owner? It's all about money and control for the city...
- Too many animals, not wanting to get caught having roaming cats. Unaware, forgot
- Because it's annual!!!! You make a monstrous cash grab and don't send out renewals. Make it a ONE TIME registration. You fine the hell out of us if the registration lapses. Many of us have multiple animals registered it's not unreasonable to assume they aren't all registered the same Time.
- What do they get for it?
- Lack of enforcement
- They are strictly indoor cats who will not go outside. They have a clean bill of health from the vet and are not required to be reported. Fostering for a rescue or otherwise watching them temporarily.
- Cats are indoors only or they don't care what might happen to the cat if it got out or ran away. Or they don't want to spend the money.
- If the cat is an indoor cat, it is pointless for it to be licenced.
- Expensive yearly. Family pets should only need to be purchased once for each owner.
- Perhaps the cost. Perhaps that their cats never go outside.
- Cost and laziness
- They think their cats are inside and not interacting with other animals or have the opportunity to run away. Cost may be a factor
- lack of funds, and they keep cats indoors at all times.
- They are keeping the cat indoors and see it as another way for the city to make money off of them for no good reason.
- That their cat never goes outside into the public arena

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They don't feel that it is necessary or don't want the City to know the animal lives there
- They're selfish [removed] who think they are above the rules.
- Cost and usually people don't feel like they need to license indoor cats
- Indoor cats. Forget about the renewal.
- cheap ... cat never goes outside...
- Don't think it is required as "they are kept indoors"
- Perhaps the cat is always indoor, never allowed to roam free? Perhaps a money issue as well? I think there should be different license rates for a indoor cat vs a cat that is let outdoors all the time and that may encourage owner of indoor cats to buy a license?
- if you keep your cat indoors it doesn't make economical sense to license your cat. They don't have a collar to attach a tag to so it comes across as a money grab. Especially when you pay for a $100 microchip from your vet. Maybe get vets/Calgary to create a microchip licencing program.
- ignorance of law and cost for irresponsible pet owners
- cost
- They think they are exempt from the rules or they have not bothered to look in to what the city rules are. Ignorance? Laziness?
- Indoor cats, do not see the benefit. Also, dangers to cats (and dogs) wearing permanent collars and tags, I would not have my cat wear one. Reduce fees for microchipped animals.
- Lack of understanding of benefits, allowed to get away with not paying, cost
- They are lazy, or don't feel they should have to pay for it.
- Cost
- I think people don't want to go through the effort, especially for indoor cats. Some might find the cost unreasonable.
- Being an irresponsible pet owner - if you cannot spare a few dollars and do not have the time to get a license maybe pet ownership is not for you
- Because it's useless? You tout the reunification of lost animals is the primary benefit but, since cats don't carry their license around, how does it help? Microchipping and tattooing (which our cat is, as well as being licensed) are more useful.
- Cost, belief it isn't necessary
- Owners may feel their cat does not go outside therefore does not require a licence, or cat does not roam far and does come home so no need for a licence.
- Cost
- They are irresponsible owners and likely allow their cats to roam.
- My cats are licensed, however they are indoor only and do not wear collars or tags but are microchipped and tattooed. A tag and license will not serve to return my cats home if they get loose by accident. The cost of registering cats in many cases does not seem worth it. Esp if funds are short
- Cost
- Money and lack of care if cat goes missing cats are seen as easily replaceable animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stay inside?
- Many think that licensing does not pertain to cats, they also know its rarely enforced.
- They aren't aware of the rules. I think people new to the city tend not to even think about it. People also believe that cats should be allowed to roam
- Indoor cat.
- Dont care about their cats, consider cats dispensable
- Maybe cost or lack of knowledge? It's easy not to get a cat licensed. Especially if it's exclusively an indoor cat
- Arrogance. The only purpose for a license for a cat is to give the city admins an idea of the number of cats that are currently in the city. Beyond that, it is just a cash grab for the city.
- They are lazy or have no money
- Ignorance is probably the number one reason. Poor and irresponsible pet ownership. Thinking that cats aren't worth it.
- They're never outside, why would they need to? It feels more like a cash grab against cat owners. Might as well lisenxe exotics and rodents if you demand indoor cats.
- lack of education & considered an unnecessary expense ('my cat will eventually come back' attitude)
- Cost and not believing that cats need to be licensed.
- I assume it's because the cat remains in their home, therefore they might feel it's not a threat or concern of the public.
- Unable to afford; figure they can't get in trouble if the City doesn't know they have pets
- Lack of understanding of the need or benefits.
- Cost, laziness
- No benefit to the cost.
- the lac of proof that licencing cats provides any benefits to our animals. the feeling that this is a financial grab on owners.
- Costs for licencing costs is expensive, especially considering they if the owners follow the bylaws they are not free roaming.
- Ignorance of the requirement to license, lack of understanding around the need and purpose of licensing, or complete disregard for the responsibilities of pet ownership.
- Wish this was easier. I have 2 pets and i got them at different dates. I can not pay them at the same time. Also indoor animals so they need licenses as well ?
- Can't be bothered, cost, lack of education regarding this.
- Because cat is indoor only. This is reasonable only if the cat never tried to escape outside, otherwise it should be licensed.
- They are ignorant? There is no excuse - cat licenses are low cost.
- Unaware or laziness
- Unnecessary if the cat is living indoors 100% of the time. Cat doesn't wear its collar, and so isn't wearing its tag so if it accidently gets out, hence the licencing is of no help.
- If it's an indoor cat who cares? Not really any of your business.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost and laziness
- Either cost or ignorance.
- City doesn't take it seriously. City must actively require licensing. Adopting agencies should be required to have people license their animals and that information be given to the City by law enforcement.
- Lack of responsibly with pet ownership
- They just don't think they have to bother, it's an attitude of just not caring about it.
- They are housecats and not roaming free outside, apathy, and money.
- Laziness.
- Laziness, lack of consequences
- They are indoor cats.
- Cost
  - Not knowing about licensing
- Won't spend the money even if they had it
- Probably not bothered or cannot pay the licence. Should not be a choice in the city - you have an animal you follow the rules i.e. licencing & spaying/neutering etc.
- Their cats don't go outside.
- PRICE AND JUST ANOTHER TAX
- The perception that is it is an unneeded cost or a money grab.
- Unaware that it's a requirement; I didn't know cats need to be licensed.
- They are not responsible pet owners or citizens. They proudly post about it on FB, saying they have outdoor cats. When someone points out they should be licensed so that a fine can be issued, they laugh, say they didn't know that. Why would they want to be accountable?
- Cost - as well as if the owner keeps the cat indoors, why license?
- Cat is kept indoors so see no need to license.
- They see no benefit and some people just believe that nothing applies to them.
- I am not sure, may be individual decision that differs from one person to another.
- Disrespect/ignorance of the law.
- Expensive and some feel it's not worth it.
- I think they don't believe in licensing due to cost or there pets never leave home.
- They don't think it's necessary
- I know I have friends who do not have their cats licensed as they are strictly indoor cats and don't see the point in it.
- I cannot license one of my cats as he is still licensed to my ex and in order to license him I have to physically go to the city with my ex to complete the transfer. No thanks, I don't want to spend that much time with my ex. Make the transfer process easier please.
- Money and the fact they don't want to be held responsible.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Ignorance. People understand dogs should be controlled but many think that it's OK to let cats roam around just because 'they want to'. This needs to be corrected with education first but enforcement of fines can work as well.
On the other hand with an indoor cat someone may feel it's not needed
- Still a mentality that cats are different and more independent than dogs and have a right to be. The idea of cats being licensed is a lot newer than dogs. I feel bicycles should be licensed!
- Either cost or don't think they will be caught.
- "I keep my cat in the house - why should I"?? Don't want to pay.
- Laziness and not taking responsibility for their pet. If something happens to their cat, they are not responsible if there is not traceable paperwork to the owner.
- They don't want to pay and don't let their cats out of the house and don't think they will get caught having unlicensed cats
- Don't know that it's a requirement
- They are old school in thinking because it isn't expensive.
- weighing cost against service received for the cost. Most permanently indoor cats are at low risk of getting lost.
- Lack of money or they forget.
- They don't see the need or consequences.
- they do not understand why they should license their pet. and see no benefit on doing so
- Cats are "indoor cats" and/or do not see the benefit for the cost
- Many people think cats are not harmful, or see it as being ok for them to be semi-feral. Education is an important piece here.
- For me, I've never licensed by cats because they are indoor cats and the licensing requirement felt like a cash grab from the city.
- The cost and the fact that their cats may be indoors only so they think that they do not need a license. Not knowing why a license is required.
- They're [removed] people, who believe [removed] "Cats are outdoor/roaming animals", and who don't want to get in trouble for their cat constantly being outside.
- Cost
- Keeping the cat indoors at all times and having them chipped are 2 reasons for this choice.
- Their cats are indoor only.
- Lazy
- Cats are strictly indoor cats and have been spayed/neutered.
- I have no idea. Licensing makes complete sense to me
- Don't know cat people
- Expense, negligence, or potentially because their cat remains indoors and they do not think registration is necessary.
- Don't let their cats outside
- Cost and irresponsibility.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Complacency and lack of consequences
- They are strictly indoor cats
- They do not want to pay the fee, they feel it is their right to have unlicensed animal (when it should be a privilege). They consider that cats are different than dogs and do not harm, they have a lack of knowledge.
- $$
Outdoor cats don't linger long usually, so harder to catch or control.
- the cat is a largely indoor animal that doesn't frequently leave the house. They see little value in licensing the animal so this is an easy cost-benefit analysis
- Cost and ignorance.
- Likely cost and belief that cats should be allowed to roam free
- The cats are inside so no need to.
- I think the cost of licensing is primarily the reason why folks don't get their cats licensed. For many cat owners they tend to be housebound pets so I can see why they may not license them.
- They don't go outside and are already microchipped
- I cant understand it. I have a dog and have had others in the past and they owners are simply too lazy
- Lazy and they don't feel it is needed. Their cats always come home. I'm not allowed to let my dog roam, why should cat owners
- They may only live indoors and don't affect others.
- No enforcement
- Financial, or perhaps think because cat is indoors only that it's not necessary, not realizing that cats can sometimes sneak out and potentially get lost.
- the cost of getting the license
- they didn't have the need to walk a cat outside.
- Pricing, and the hassle that if you cannot pay the fine that you're animal will be taken away even though you are responsible and caring to the animal
- Dont see why they have to and no penalty not to
- If cats remain as indoor only cats and don't leave the property, licensing seems unnecessary. I do think all cats (and dogs) should have proper microchip identification in the event they get loose.
- Cost.
- They allow their cats to roam and if the cat is picked up there is no way to trace it. Owners are not committed to the ownership of the cat.
- Their cats do not go outside so what is the point if they are not a concern to the public. If the city finds the cat, fees are in place for finding the cat and housing it.
- Affordability.
Indoor vs outdoor cats
- Because they strictly stay indoors and are never outside nor escape to go outside.
- income levels, irresponsible in other areas of their life so this is just a transient effect

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Laziness, greed.
- I would guess it is because A) cats are indoors or B) owners don't want to be fined
- Cats are indoor only and don't impose an extra burden on the community
- It's a rip off. If a cat is strictly an indoor cat (which all cats should be) than there is no reason to license them than to seek money
- Laziness, ignorance, or a belief that their cat will never get out.
- Financial
- Ignorance based on why it is important/cost
- Financial. Sense of entitlement. Laziness.
- For those with indoor only cats, I think they feel it's an unnecessary expense. For those with roaming cats, I think they're just plain irresponsible.
- The cat never goes outside.
- They see cats as disposable and not a family member. They are lazy. If they don't follow existing bylaws of only allowing cats outside if tethered/secured on personal property, why would they pay for licensing. The cost is minimal so maybe they just do t care or think its needed.
- Cost and if the cat is strictly indoors, licence shouldn't be required.
- cheap,lazy,and dishonest with animal cotrol
- Because they don't want to be fined if the cat ever gets picked up by bylaw and are basically jerks.
- If they are indoor pets, as they should be, they should not require a license.
- They don't care. OR they have no idea that it's a bylaw. They are not responsible. If a cat is only an indoor cat (or patio/yard only), licensing is really not important, in my mind. It's the free roaming cats that are the issue. Owners are not following the bylaws.
- They never go outside and don't use any city facilities
- Mostly because they are kept indoors due to the bylaw.
- It's a waste of money / cash grab. Plus, since cats aren't allowed to leave the house, what's the point? And cats don't have to wear collars, so even if they were licensed, if they don't have their collar/tag on, they still can't be identified using that means.
- cost, inconvenience, put primarily that they do not care to be a considerate citizen
- I don't have a cat so I don't know
- I think it's possible that they may not be aware of the bylaw. Whereas it's commonly known that one must licence a dog, it's not as well known with cats.
- The city is just trying another money grab.
- Ignorance, apathy and entitlement. The licenses are affordable.
- They are indoor cats
They don't use dog parks
- Strive for them to be primarily indoors.
- No purpose besides govt keeping tabs on you and collecting more money in any way it can.
- Laziness.
- Cost !!!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- laziness
- Cost
- Time and cost factors. A collar with contact tag should suffice.
- Its a bylaw so why not follow the rules, it is the ideology like letting their pets run at large all over the neighborhoods mentality they think they can do what they want.
- Minimal consequences
- Money; lack of knowledge
- I see no point in making people license their cats if it is indoor. Outdoor cats should be more $ as they cause a lot more problems- especially to homes w indoor cats.
- They dont care
- They never go out. Usually animals are tattooed or have a chip implant.
- I personally license my cats however I have a hard time doing it. They are both indoor cats and would have a stroke if they went outside. The front door opens and they hide until it closes again. Both have microchips if they do escape, which they won't. Why are they licensed?
- They think the cat is an indoor cat and will never get out. But when or if it does, the licensing, via tatoo and microchipping will allow for the cat to be returned to its owner. This needs to be emphazized.
- They say they are indoor cats. Too expensive
- Cost, cats don't leave house
- If the cat never leaves the house why license it. Seems like a money grab not a safety net for if by chance my cat gets out.
I'd rather out a collar on my cat ( breakaway) and my info on a tag
- 100% indoors.
- Cost
- Don't see a point. Too expensive. Never leaves the house. Didn't know animal had to be licensed
- Cost. Or lack of knowledge that they need to do so. Mainly cost. It's not a lot but it's prohibitive for some.
- They don't go outside
- No idea there is no good reason not to licence
- If cats remain indoors as is the bylaw they are on private property so why should they need a licence. I'm not sure how cats cost the city money so why should a fee be collected. My cat does not wear his licence because I worry about the collar getting caught and causing injury.
- They don't go outside so people don't see the need.
- They have cats that they consider indoor animals
- Irresponsible, don't want to spend the money as they think they will get away with it.
- Cost. Laziness.
- With cats it is likely that the owner has an indoor cat and does not see the point. My indoor cat is licensed because I'm paranoid she will get out accidentally and I want every reinforcement in place to find her.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost and that the cat never leaves house.
- They think they don't have to because their cats are "indoor cats"
- They don't agree with controlling their cats.
- not sure.
- It's stupid. Why should someone license an animal that doesn't leave the house. Charge people if it gets out and picked up.
- The primary reason is that their cat doesn't go outside.
- They think that as the cat remains indoors it doesn't need a license, no fines or policing of unlicensed cats
- If the cat lives only indoors, it seems unnecessary to pay the fee
- Cost and that they don't go outside
- Trying to save money because their cat is likely an indoor cat
- They are too lazy. And don't want to have to put cat on a leash outside.
- They do not value them, often consider them as disposable/ not a member of the family. Let them outside frequently against bylaw and do not want to get caught.
- They are unaware that licenses are required or they don't care.
- They tend to have indoor cats who do not get access to the outdoors or the cats have no interest in leaving the house so they don't see the point.
- Ignorance of the benefits.
- Not wanting to pay money out
- Cost per year
- "too busy"/lazy/irresponsible
- They are all house cats and never go outside minus their luxury patio... Spoiled buggers!
- Cat licensing does not work and is a money grab. Cats have break away collar designs, so there goes the tag! Instead any cat brought to vet could be chipped. If cat is found outside, I think fining the owners for negligence is the answer. Cats shouldn't be outside to get attacked or hit by cars, etc
- Cost - cats are usually indoor animals, they probably don't feel the need to license them if their impact on public is non-existent
- Money and They probably believe if it's inside no one will know if they are licensed or not.
- That the cat doesn't leave the house
- Cost, not outdoor animals
- Indoor only and not utilizing city services. Mandatory spay and microchip would've better
- Probably people with indoor cats don't license them as it does seem silly.
- Irresponsibility
- Their cats are not outdoor
- Cats are typically indoor animals and generally are not outside.
- If the cat never gets out I don't think it's feasible or necessary
- Their cat is an indoor cat and they don't see the benefit.
- They don't think they have to because their cat stays inside

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Because they are indoor cats. Or the owners are just too lazy to do so.
- Their cat does not go outside.
They don't think it is necessary.
- Cost
- Perhaps if the animal is strictly indoors, they might not think they need them licensed
- Possibly cost or just don't care about the bylaws.
- Think it's stupid, unnecessary or too expensive, or they're just lazy & dumb.
- Cost and a belief that their animal won't escape
- the high cost for the license for low income or the homeless or they could not care less.
- Do not want to pay
- I don't know anyone who hasn't licensed their cats
- Easy to get of without paying
- Laziness, or they only keep indoors
- Indoor pet only- lazy - not aware it is required
- The lapse in responsibility that cat owners seem to treat ownership more like sponsoring a zoo animal.
- Probably that if they aren't allowed to let their cats off of their property for any reason they shouldn't need a licence. Dogs go for walks around the neighbourhoods and around the city and therefore need regulations however I'm not sure if cats need the same regulations if they don't.
- the fee & having to redo it annually.
- Can't afford to, money grab, big brother is watching --- privacy issues, freedom to own a animal without having to deal with documenting, lazy, don't see the value, should we start licensing other pets too?
- Lazy, want to save a few bucks. Not sure why cats are licensed, though. In many European countries it's just dogs.
- Their cat is indoors at all times or they don't agree with the price of the license.
- They are irresponsible, and can not afford an animal.
- don't think it's necessary - esp. for indoor animals
- My indoor cat doesn't need to be licensed
- Expensive.
- Cats are primarily kept indoors and have little impact on city resource-compared to dogs.
- They are indoor
  1. They're cheap
  2. They're irresponsible
  3. They think people won't notice
- Laziness
- No Input

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Laziness and fact they know no one follows up. We license our indoor cat. No one every checked up ever. Same with out dogs. The cost is really reasonable. Maybe a low income rate for those suffering economically right now.
- They believe that the cat is indoors-only and there is no benefit to registration.
- They think their cat doesn't go outside and therefore they should not license the cat or they believe they would not put a tag on a collar.
- because they not their cats see any value, especially for indoor cats. responsible pet owners tend to not need outside controls to continue to be responsible. those that are irresponsible pet owners probably aren't licensing. when launched, intent was education - has that been effective?
- It's an indoor cat, it has no contact with the public.
- Probably the cost is prohibitive for some owners-big red flag. A responsible pet owner will only own as many pets as they can afford.
- money they don't want to be held responsible
- Because he cats don't leave the property so they don't feel they have the need.
- Not aware that it is available.
- Indifference
- Laziness
- Cost. I also have spoken to a number of people who don't seem to understand why licensing of cats is necessary. They don't see any benefit. It seems like a money grab.
- If it's meant to be an indoor cat there is little reason to license it compared to other indoor pets like birds
- It's easy to not license your cat. Cats don't often wear collars and the majority stay inside. There isn't an off leash cat park.
- Its expensive
- Laziness and an attempt to skirt the system....it's not overly expensive so to me those are valid reasons
- No fear of punishment. Same with letting cats roam. They know what the law is but choose to ignore. Penalties should be stiffer. Dog owners could never get away with this.
- Cost. They are indoor cats and stay indoors
- I don't see the point when my cat is an inside pet and he is chipped so if lost he will be returned to me.
- People think it's a money grab. They aren't aware of the benefits.
- Effort and possibly lack of knowledge
- Cost
- No perceived benefit for license process. Feels like a cash grab.
- Irresponsibility.
- Money
- Cats should be licensed and should be the same cost as a dog. People don't because they can get away with it

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stubborn.
Entitled.
Lack social responsibility
- lazy, and cheap
- I do not see any reason for licensing a cat that is never out doors. Only cats who are allowed outdoors to roam or on leash should be licensed. Cats are an affordable pet for seniors and low income and one more bill is more than they can handle.
- Laziness. There is no excuse for having an unlicensed pet.
- I think this is due to the fact that they are not roaming freely and that are an in-house animal. If they did get out most cats do not wear the tag and are either micro chipped or tattooed so that is the method that would be the step to reuniting them with their owner.
- No idea. It seems pretty easy to do and it helps them be reunited if their cat gets out.
- Laziness, if it's an indoor cat they probably think it's not necessary - until they get out.
- Lazy ignorant owners who believe that cats should be allowed to live their lives outdoors killing birds and crapping in neighbours flowerbeds.
- Be afraid of paying a fine in case they run away from home
- Lazy, cheap and unorganized. Finances?
- That the cat is an indoor cat or that they don't harm people, so licensing isn't necessary. Someone who has lots of cats may not want the City to know how many they have.
- Indoor animals, because Calgary has said they are not allowed to roam so why should they be licensed if they don't go outside. Also the cost, and people are stupid, sometimes valuing cats less than dogs.
- Some believe that their cats are indoor cats so they don't need to be licensed if they're not out and about. It could also come down to finances, especially for some seniors.
- They never go outside anyways
- Greed and stupidity
- Probably trying to avoid the cost.
- Not enough enforcement on missing licenses.
- money concerns
- They are idiots.
- I don't have a licence for my cat, but he is an indoor cat. The only time he is outside is on a leash, in our backyard. Plus, he is neutered, so why would I licence him? He is, however, microchipped.
- Cost.
- Lazy or do not know that they need to.
- Lack of funds and equally a refusal to acknowledge that the city has a good reason to license cats.
- They know they won't get caught.
- I think the reason is that the cat is an indoor cat and does not impact anyone outside of the home.
- It's a money grab from the city.
- Owners are too lazy

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They don't want to pay the fee for an animal they feel never leaves the house.
- The annual fees involved.
- Lazy. Cheap. Scofflaws.
- Too cheap to contribute.
- If the cat is indoor all the time, why would you license it?
- N/A
- One reason might be that the cat is an indoor cat and the cost would be my guess.
- If the cat is in the house, it's furniture. Requires no resources so no licence makes sense
- Safe money, too much work
- Cost, inconvenience, having to renew every year
- Financial reasons
- I think people feel that cats are self-sufficient and don't cause problems, so they don't feel the time and money to get a license is worth it.
- Money or ease of payment.
- Stop trying to make me license my dog or cat. You guys are actually really annoying [removed].
- For some pet owners there may be a financial reason for doing this, but I think the main reason is because Calgary is a leader in requiring that cats be licensed and remain on the owners property. Some people are just not used to this idea, but it is essential we keep this place to avoid feral cats
- Cost.
- Laziness.
- Lack of the money to do so
- They are just too cheap to do it.
- I do license my cat but I live in a hi-rise so don't see the benefit of it. Feels like a cash grab! Are there any repercussions to owners who don't license their cats? Only if the cats are picked up out on the street, unlikely when you live in a hi-rise.
- Cannot understand why they would refuse. If their cat gets outside, easier to find their pet.
- A lack of understanding about why. My cat does not go outside - the only reason that the community at large knows of his existence is his active Instagram and Facebook accounts. The only reason the City of Calgary knows about him is that you get my money once a year. Does my fee even cover admin?
- Lack of awareness, selfishness (want cat services subsidized by non-cat owners).
- The cost.
- This could be a financial concern or due to the lack of understanding on why licensing their cat is important.
- Lack of knowledge that an indoor cat needs to be licensed. It is unclear what purpose is of licensing indoor cats. And what the benefit is to the owner. May seem like a cash grab to some. I think it's a lack of clear communication from the city.
- Laziness, a general "I don't care" attitude towards pet ownership, cost.
- that cats should be allowed to go outside

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost and logistics. If your cat is outdoors any type of collar comes with risks. Micro chipping is a much better choice for a lost or injured pet. If your cat is always indoors and has a microchip or tattoo? Why does it need a license?
- Laziness or belief their cats will never go outside
- Cost.
- Cost. Don't care. Indoor only and so do not think they need to.
- That they're primarily indoor animals who "won't get out" or that no one will find out if you don't register them.
- It's an unnecessary fee imposed.
- Lazy; don't want to. Plenty of the ones I have seen can afford it, but don't think it's something that they should have to do, nor do they want to pay for.
- If the cat never leaves the house should it be licenced? (this works up until the cat gets out somehow e.g. door left open, house fire, break-in, etc.)
Also the cost can be viewed as an issue. Discounted multi-year licensing could help mitigate that
- Ignorance
- Lack of understand of cat bylaw and laziness as cats aren't in public the same as dogs
- Cost and Accessibility
- The cat is an "indoor" pet and is never outside.
- Money and access to services. If the registration is too far away and inconvenient people won't go.
- They don't believe anything will happen to them due to lack of enforcement by bylaw.
- Laziness? Cost? Don't believe in regulations? If the animal is truly always kept indoors then the rules are different than for other indoor pets like birds and guinea pigs etc. License all pets sold at a pet store?
- They think their cat will never be in the public
- too expensive
- Probably only if they have indoor cats. I, personally, wouldn't see the point.
- They are indoor cats and paying $15 a year is bonkers. A one time fee for indoor cats makes A LOT more sense.
- It may be cost for people on low or no income. Other people don't know or don't care.
- cost
- cost, forgetful
- Cost.
- Financial and not understanding why an indoor cat would need a license.
- House cats I'd say. That seems logical. Fine them if they are caught outdoors.
- If the cats are housebound they should not need to be licensed. Unfortunatley some cats escape from the home. If they become a nuisance the owner should be required to license to retrieve, be fined and/or have the cat removed
- Ignorance - they don't understand the benefit. The City has a responsibility to educate people. Adoption agencies can inform the City of new owners; vet clinics can do the same.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cat never leaves home
- laziness and disruption, arrogance. Nothing to do with welfare of animal or community.
- I have no idea. Imbecility? License your cat!
- indoor cats do not need a license
- Likely they think it is an indoor cat and no one would ever know. Also, they probably don't see the point as it never leaves the house so it just seems a waste of money.
- They are irresponsible and ignorant on the services that are funded by those fees that the rest of the taxpayers have to fund
- Cost. Think its useless.
- The cost. Same with vaccinations. And the inconvenience.
- Probably because the cats are indoor-only cats, that would not be allowed outside. However, we all know that cats do escape.
Secondarily, they probably see the ~$18 licencing fee as expensive.
- There is no good reason but I'd guess the main reason is a simple intention to flout the bylaw. Also, possible ignorance of the bylaw and the benefits of licensing.
- No enforcement
- They don't want to be held responsible for their outdoor pets or they cannot afford the yearly fees? Or they don't know about the bylaw.
- Cheat
- its a [removed] cash grab
- Laziness, they don't believe they need to.
- Lack of understanding of why; not knowing they need to
- Because if their cat die in a run over accident in the middle of the street without their supervision, they can pretend they don't know that cat.
- No return on investment. It is expensive and a hassle.
- If a cat is kept indoors as it should be, licensing should not be necessary
- I have two cats, whose licenses have expired. They live indoors and I have no plans to renew.
- It might be ignorance of the system, I didn't license my cat until I got a dog and realized that my cat should have been licensed as well.
- it seemed a money grab by City, but I appreciate the idea of my cat being found and returned.
many cats roam and defecate in flower beds... if they have a licence maybe they owner should get a fine?
if it is not their flower bed being defecate in.
- I feel this is an example of lazy ownership, the responsibility rests with the owner to license a cat to protect the animal and help the management of feral populations which pose dangers to other animals and is inhumane.
- Stupidity. The belief that cats NEED to go outside. Lack of responsibility.
- They don't think they have to! Currently if cat gets caught & catcher doesn't know pet's address, owner gets away with it! No consequences! Pet should be taken and owner have to pay fine to get

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

pet back! Also, 311 should accept address OR ph number to notify owners (increasing amnt) of captured pet.

- cost is prohibitive.
- Indoor cats really don't require a licence. it is just a tax grab. Licences should be required for outdoor cats only. It would discourage people from allowing cats outdoors, and provide an incentive to have indoor cats.
- Don't see it as necessary for indoor cats
- They think no one else has the right to know what's going on in their household.
- They do not care about the rules and think it does not apply to them.
- They want a pet but they can't afford it
- they do not want to be responsible for their animal
- Indoor cats should not need to be licenced.
- Cost and they may be strictly indoor animals
- the cost
- Either laziness, poverty or most likely the cats are kept indoors. Indoor cats should not be licensed.
- Laziness and cost are probably the main reasons. I have heard that people who intend to let their cats roam also do not want to have them traced back to them.
- Less necessary/thought of when most cats are indoors and already identified by microchips.
- Financial reasons I assume. Also, if you have a busy family life I feel that something like this would fall fairly low on the priority list.
- They don't believe that their cats leave the house, so why should they be licensed.
- Indoor pet
- These are the same people that try to break all rules ... it was how they were raised ... fine them to death ... good luck ...
- laziness, not believing that cats should or can be confined
- cost
- cause they are indoor only. never outside = never lost. Should not have outdoor unless leashed secured same as dogs or other pets.
- It seems like a money grab. Most cats never leave the house anyway.
- They don't roam outside much
- Because the cats live indoors and are never expected to be outside, run away or get lost.
- Belief they won't get caught
- Most cat owners do not put collars on their cats because cats often resent them and pull them off. There is no point in licensing a cat in the hopes of reuniting the lost cat and owner if the license tag isn't with the cat. Microchipping is a much more reliable method of identification.
- Lack of knowledge and lack of enforcement. Limited consequences of not licensing if identified as being non-compliant.
- lazy, cost

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- A pet owner may feel that the need to license is an expense that isn't necessary if their cats stay indoors. The owner may license their cat because it is mandated but indoor cats seldom, if at all, wear their license while inside their owner's home. Hence their decision to go against the mandate.
- If a cat does not go outdoors ever why do they need a license, also could be the cost
- Cats have naturally occurring allergies to license. We must be sensitive to their condition and not force license upon them. Instead, we can slowly transition them to license over a 17 year period.
- People don't want to pay the fee for indoor cats. I think it isn't logical as when an indoor cat escapes is the time when a microchip and ID is most helpful.
- Costs, inconvenience, forgetting, or if owners are otherwise irresponsible with regards to how many animals they have, then there is no formal record of them owning these animals.
- Owner laziness.
- Ignorance. If cats are indoor only these owners don't see the need. Other owners don't care. Also few cats wear collars. Even though my cat is licensed this is not an effective identification for her. She is microchipped for that purpose.
- They have already microchipped or tattooed them - or don't care
- They don't feel they should have to pay for their indoor cat - no one knows they have it, no one knows it's not licensed.
- Unaware cat licensing is required
Lack of flexibility of payment methods on the website requiring a person to pay in person for a license (need to offer more bank payment options, or paypal, not just credit card and limited bank direct pay)
- They all should be licensed. Why not, probably cost. Then they shouldn't have animals.
- Often shame at not being able to afford, or not prioritizing it as an expense. Also a lack of understanding for the consequences of stray cats.
- In my experience, people do not license cats for one of two reasons. They either keep their cats indoors with no intention of letting them out of the house or they want to be able to let the out to roam without having to deal with fines as a result of them getting picked up (at large).
- Cost, forget, not aware they should be.
- Not go outdoors, cost, not want to be subject to regulation
- their cat does not go outside. My cat never leaves my apartment and if she did she is microchipped. Microchipping works regardless of whether or not you have a license...
- not knowing that they needed to as not every city requires cat licensing.
- cost
- Don't see the value.
- Unnecessary and a cash/tax grab by the city.
- Cost or "my cat doesn't go outside"
- I am guessing this would be because these cat owners did not think their cats would ever be outdoors and therefore would not require any services provided by licensing fees.
- Cheap

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Lack of notification.
- They are indoor cats - so they may be seen like a hamster and you wouldn't listen either that. If a cat goes outdoors then it should be licensed.
- Cost and the fact that there doesn't seem to be much reason if the cat is indoors 24/7
- cost? Not sure
- They likely don't want to pay for an animal who mainly spends their time indoors thus never thinking they will be fined. Price of License is likely the issue
- - Lack of knowledge of requirement
- - Can't afford
- - Lazy
- Laziness and/or the arrogant belief that the rules do not apply to them
- I am not aware of this. I'm ok with it being optional as it seems the main purpose is reuniting the pet with their owners in case it is lost. There are other means to guarantee this and it should be optional.
- Cats should never leave their house, so I can't imagine why they do need a license.
- Lack of knowledge.
- Cost, they don't see or understand the necessity
- Likely cost, and not considered necessary if it is an indoor cat.
- They are Solely indoor cats
- 1. If a cat is in their own house or within the confines of their private property they should not be licensed.
- Privacy. Too much information is gained by the city through data collection of pets' owners
- The cats never go outside.
- they are irresponsible. they are trying to avoid the rules and not follow them.
- I don't know.
- Cats are hard to catch and owners will not pay if they know they can get away with it! They are not responsible pet owners or law abiding. These owner just do not give a damn.
- They don't believe an animal that does not leave the property should need a license. Unfortunately animals escape and costs are high to investigate complaints. Licenses also allow the cat to be returned home easier.
- General laziness and overall petty cheapness
- Probably because a lot of cats are indoor cats so someone doesn't think it would ever get outside.
- Cost, not wanting to be controlled, having to remember to do it.
- Cost and awareness.
- Cost, annoyance, not seeing any benefit.
- Probably because they're typically inside the house. All animals, both cats and dogs should have to be licensed.
- Cats are indoors.
- They have indoor cats and don't think they will get out.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Maybe they don't know about the requirement or they are hoping their cats doesn't get impounded, at least for a few years, so they save some money.
- Money? Desire to allow them to roam?
- A cat that has never in it's life been outside the house & never will doesn't need a license. A cat found or caught outside its house must not only have a license but the owner must pay a fine for loosing the cat outside.
- They are probably indoor cats, or perhaps the fee is too expensive.
- Cost!
- Cost, dont want to fill paperwork.
- The cat is an indoors and the cost is too high
- There is really no effective way to enforce licensing the animal, so why bother.
- cost!
- They plan on the cat being an indoor only cat so want to save the cost.
- Cost and cat's are indoors
- Cost
- Some people believe that cats should roam freely without the burden of collars or license tags.
- Cost and it's inconvenient.
- Because they are always indoors.
- You get nothing for it.
- They don't think that it is important. Inconvenient.
- Not cost. Fees are reasonable except for upfront cost of neutering. That might be a deterrent for low income owners. Lack of knowledge of rules for some?
- Indoor cats perhaps. Cost of licensing or maybe they simply dont know they should.
- It feels like a money grab. You won't let cats outside. Why do I have to register something that is confined to my house?
- It's ridiculous for a fully indoor animal
- Expensive
- Cost and hassle
- Cost. You get nothing in return for doing this with a cat, they aren't allowed outside and don't benefit from any city programs.
Most cats don't wear collars, the tags are too large.
- Most people take in strays and don't want the cost.
- Not worth the cost for an indoor animal
- It requires time and costs money.
- Money grab and not necessary
- Cost or not feeling a need to
- Their cats don't leave the house so they don't see a need is what I imagine. I don't have cats, though.
- Could come down to cost of it and or just lazy and irresponsible.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They think their cat is only going to stay inside and nothing will happen to them.
- The cost is high. And cats with collars makes no sense.
- Having a cat that is strictly an indoor cat.
- Cost. The fact that a pet is an "indoor" pet. Worried about "the man" knowing too much.
- Perhaps their cats are indoor only and the owners feel that since the cats don't go out they shouldn't need a licence. Or perhaps they feel it's not the city's business to bill them. FYI I have two licenced indoor cats myself.
- Many people think House cats don't need a license however, it seems most pets that get lost are cats, same rules should apply as it does for dog owners
- They are likely neglectful of other things in life. Do not see any purpose with the license.
- Cost
- Cats stay inside so what would be the point? They aren't using any city services or land. If you just want to track why bother changing a fee
- Lazyness, inept at following rules and possibly cheap.
- Because they are indoor cats and the odds of being fined for an unlicensed cat are very small.
- House only cats
- Cats are not allowed outdoors now the rabbit and mouse population has exploded. Now other predators are moving into urban areas. Cats should only be tattooed or micro chipped .
- Uneducated and uncaring, probably look at the animal as disposable and do not spay or have the animal vaccinated. vaccinations
- This is probably because the cats are indoors and are not taken anywhere. If they follow the bylaws for keeping cats in doors then they don't need to worry about licensing and getting outside.
- Lots of people don't take cat ownership seriously. Couldn't tell you why people are jerks.
- *3) I've seen folks who license become immediate victims of law changes. Suddenly bsl or pet limits enacted, and responsible owners with license the first targets. I have many dogs of breeds targeted for bsl.
- if the cats are strictly confined to perimeters of their own yard
- Habit
- Cost..and cat never goes out
- Irresponsible pet ownership
- "Old school" perspectives that cats do not need licensing.
- Because there has not been a benefit introduced to cat owners for this license. Absolutely appears to be a cash grab with no benefit seeing as most cats are indoors always.
- It's expensive and seems unnecessary when Calgary has a leash law for cats (which in reality means they can't go outside at all). If the cat is staying inside at all times, licensing seems unnecessary. It's not like we license hamsters or birds.
- I think most people choose not to license their cats because of cost. It feels like a money grab. Pets are expensive and people don't see the benefit of a yearly fee to the city.
- Their cat doesn't run away

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost
- If the bylaws say the cats can't leave the owner's property, it seems silly to have to pay to license them. I think this is the primary reason people don't do it. Why should they, if the cat is never going to be outside?
- There is no acceptable reason. It's an animal in a city. Licenses are mandatory.
- People may assume that licensing requirements does not apply to indoor cats. Cost of licensing is probably an issue for those with a limited income.
- They don't let cats out.
- Cats are indoor cats.
- Lack of understanding of responsible pet ownership, costs, inconvenience. It should not be a choice - there need to be barriers to pet ownership so that only those truly committed to responsible pet ownership have pets. It would solve a lot of issues.
- They think that because the cat is an "indoor" cat, a license is not necessary.
- Cat stays indoors
- Unnecessary, another way to be monitored. Honestly there is also very little information unless you go looking very detailed for it.
- I don't see a point in doing it. It's just a money grab. My cats are indoor animals and have been microchipped so they can be returned to me if they get lost
- Maybe they are unaware or have limited income?
- A majority of cats are now kept indoors so it is seen as a cash grab over anything else
- Cost. While I feel our licensing fees are reasonable, I suspect the reason would be costs. Maybe a sliding scale fee structure?
- My cat does not go outdoors. He is micro chipped so if found I would think you will find me .
- Finances and assuming that because they don't go outside they shouldn't have to pay for them to be in the city
- inconvenience, cost
- Possibly the fact that having to license a cat seems to be contradictory to regulations stipulating that cats are not actually free to be outdoors!
- Cost.
- Not transparent with money raised from licensing or information on Calgary spay/neuter program. CGY has a state of the art facility that isn't being used to its full potential. CGY should no longer have the issue with unwanted/homeless cats & kittens. Look to other cities who have solved this problem
- Laziness
- Cost
- It's bizarre to those of us not from Calgary and who have indoor cats. It feels like a cash grab from the city to get money for cats that are never leaving their homes.
- cost, inconvenience, not wanting to be accountable for their roaming pet
- No clue. But if I had a cat and chose not to license it, it would be because if they're outside they are elusive and tougher to catch than a dog.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Irresponsible. They think because they have an 'indoor' cat they do t have to license it. But they let it out.
- Cost and lack of enforcement.
- They do not want to take responsibility for them or they think that their cat will never leave their house or get lost.
- cost, a lot of people have a lot of animals, lady next door had 10 cats, Stunk.
- Laziness
- I think when you register your animal and get the registration metal tag it should come with a silicone wrapper so it doesn't jingle all the time I don't keep my tags on my dog for that reason which would be better for the city if my dog always has tags on it doesn't because they jingle. 10 cent Fix
- If they are indoor cats they shouldn't need to have a license. If your pet gets out you should look for it. Licensing isn't going to help with lazy pet owners who don't search for pets when they are lost
- Lazy, cheap, think their cat is indoors only so not necessary.
- Not sure
- Their cats probably never go outside / leave their house.
- Cost
- Responsible cat owners keep their cats inside and do not allow them to roam free. Those who choose to have their cats roam free and be a nuisance should be accountable by licensing their cats. In addition, licensing tages are too large and unsafe for most cat collars.
- For indoor cats, there is no penalty/consequence for not licensing their cats. It isn't like the city keeps track of how many pets you have per household and if they are licensed. If the cat is indoors, the only way the city would find out they were unlicensed would be if they escaped.
- My friend has a cat she did not license and said 1) it's a cat and won't leave my house; and 2) car licensing is a stealth tax.
- Either the cost very reasonable rates in my opinion) or too lazy. Some think of the cat isn't going outside why license? All animals should be licensed.
- They think it's a indoor cat so it's not needed
- Cats that are strictly indoor pets should not require licensing.
- Greed, laziness, uneducated, denial that the cat will never get out, away or be stolen.
- They keep them inside
- Cats are not outdoors/don't see need for licensing, cost barrier.
- No idea
- Cats don't use as many city resources as dogs
- Irresponsible owners. They might not be able to afford it or simply ignore it. Microchipping your cat might be best if you want your cat returned if it goes wandering off. Licensing cats increases the # of cats picked up by animal control and brought to shelters. High #'s end up being euthanized
- Cats don't really leave the house
- If the cat is not leaving the home it feels unnecessary

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They don't want to pay the fee and they don't want to follow the rules. They say their cat is an indoor cat, so why licence it. But sometimes the cat gets out.
- Why should people pay for a license for a pet who is never supposed to leave your house? I did not mind licensing the cat before that ridiculous bylaw was put into effect, but I feel it is just a cash grab now.
- 1) Cat is indoors and does not impact the neighbors, public or City property.
2) Cost of license is not proportionate to the value of service received. The lifetime license fee could be as high as $400 and the only cost to the City is entry of info in the data bank.
- Probably seems like an unnecessary expense for animals that don't leave the home.
- Annoying and they can abandon their cats anytime or sell them, or just leave their cats outside. Also so the authorities do not know if animal abuse.
- Indoor cats only. Cost. Tax grab. Does no good!
- They don't respect laws, their neighbours, nor their community; are self-important, and know they won't be penalized. KeyThe lack of enforcement (no neighbour wants to raise the issue and the City is not proactive dealing with this, so it continues, as does most of the lawless behaviour in Calgary).
- Cost, the fact that if the cat isn't aloud outside anyway, why licence it?
- No value received from licensing (ex indoor cat only)
- Cost, inconvenience, If the cat never leaves the house I could see not wanting to pay for a license but the fact remains that pets in general should probably be licensed as this keeps owners accountable in case their pet is involved with damaged property or injury to human or animal.
- Neglect to follow local bylaws.
- Indoor only cats. And cost.
- Lack of enforcement
- It's a cat. Haha. Most don't know you have to license it, I'd say
- Expense.
- Irresponsible or unaware of the requirement
- They dont believe they will get fine
- If they were 100% indoor cats I'd have no issue. But if you choose to let your cat out you risk using City of Calgary 311 (for lost pets), humane society etc. so should pay into the pet fee to support those programs. Hard to differentiate cat owners inside vs outside. So... all cats need a license
- I am a responsible cat owner and keep my cat indoors at all times. there is no impact to the neighbourhood or community, nor does my cat need to be registered for people to log complaints as with dogs. I would rather a small fee upon pick up of a found cat at the city shelter, then an annual renewal
- Because they're indoor cats and don't ever leave the home.
- Mine is licensed & has been since day one. They are an in door cat, but likes to door dart. If he escapes from our house, he is microchipped, as he doesn't wear a collar. Microchip would be better than a license. Penalties for non- licensed. No excuse. My cat is important to me.
- Don't feel cats are "worth" licensing

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- So that if the cat gets out they are not held responsible.
- be use they are strictly indoors
- cats are indoors
- think its indoor cats and haven't relations with city infrastructure
- see the dog section
- Avoid spending money, lack of responsibility
- Lack of funds.
- Their animal doesnt go outdoors
- People do not licence their cats, so if the cat roams, damages or poops on another's yard, the owner can deny ownership and responsibility.
- Unsure, maybe laziness?
- Because it's a money grab by the city
- Cost, cats live indoors, lack of understanding how licensing helps lost cats.
- Costs.
- Two primary reasons would be that the cats are indoors only, or the cats have a microchip or tattoo for identification.
- Laziness.
- They are indoor and cost
- Lazy, lack of money, don't want to have animal tracked back to them when they break the rules of at-large.
- The think they'll never leave the house so there is no reason to.
- Cat lives inside only.
- If a cat is allowed to roam outdoors it makes sense for them to be licensed. An indoor cat, under bi law not allowed outdoors, makes no sense to license. It is a money grab on the part of the City.
- They think cats are "free" and should not be controlled in the same manner as dogs. There is also a factor of cost and convenience.
- Ignorance or entitlement.
- Maybe if they are indoor and they think they will not escape.
- The cats live indoors and the City doesn't enforce it. The City needs to find a better way to enforce cat licensing and with that record pet ownership, put standards into place on how many cats a household can own thus cutting down on shelter costs and strays.
- A fine should be imposed and if not paid or the person continues to not obtain a license, remove the cat. Drivers should not drive without a license, neither should pet owners own pets without a license, for the sake of the animal and for others.
- The ridiculousness of a bylaws stating cats can be controlled to a yard.
- lack of knowledge
- Financial, laziness.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Ignorance. If you own a pet, you can pay the small license fee to get it back to you IF they should ever get lost. Even if you abide by the laws and keep it inside, if your house was broken into and the door left open or animal stolen, you have a better chance to get your beloved back!
- Lack of awareness. Or forgetfulness. I forgot to renew my cat license one year after I had moved. Also rebelling against the fact that they have to do it. Thinking that the cat stays inside anyway so what's the point.
- They are cheap.
- They are cheap.
- Cost, laziness, don't care, disdain for bureaucracy, and thinking they don't need a license if they don't leave the house.
- To save money
- It is a risk to the cat to wear a collar, so most people won't have a tag on the cat for ID. Micro chips work for that.
- Laziness
- Laziness or not wanting to pay the fee. Many owners are unaware of the requirement.
- They seem to think they don't really "need" to. They think it's ridiculous and/or "intrusive". They're cheap, lazy, irresponsible, and selfish. Most of all selfish.
- They believe their animal is at no risk of getting lost or sick.
- I think for indoor cats, it should be an option on whether or not cats are licensed, and for those who allow their cats to roam, the law isn't strict enough, they get too many chances before fines, if found ever!
- Expenses, $$
- They don't want to pay
- Cat does not leave the house. Most cats have a tattoo that is registered to owner
- Money.
- Liability. They are quick to deny ownership as they do not want to be liable for their cats harassing or causing damage to others. They just claim they are caring for a stray, despite the cat being invited into their home.
- Unknown
- No extra cash.
- tracking purposes, as there is not shortage of missing cat posters every where you go.
- Cats shouldn't need to be licensed
- Uninformed?
- Cost (money grab) and annoyance and cats not being a issue especially if they are an indoor cat.
- Probably just being lazy and a cost thing especially if the cat is strictly indoors I do not see why it would be necessary
- May seem unnecessary if the cat never leaves the house.
- Cost, laziness/forgot/lack of time
- It is a house cat that does not leave the house
- We license our cats but have friends that don't because "they never leave the house"

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Price, inconvenience, lack of info
- The thought that they can get away with it because a cat stays inside.
- Cost
- Because licensing an indoor cat seems ridiculous when they aren't leaving the house.
- Money
- I have indoor cats and live in a condo and do not license my cats. They have no chance of getting out, therefore no reason for the expense.
Most cats are micro chipped or tattooed at the vet, so why pay to also license the cat?
- Money. And cats often do not leave the house so why bother.
- I don't use collars. My cats don't leave my yard. They are chipped.
- It's practically pointless and another way to squeeze money out of people.
- people do not feel it is a "real" law that will be enforced.
- High cost with limited benefit. Often cats do not venture outside, does not seem necessary.
- Cost. It cost money that I don't have.
- There is little consequence.
- Not necessary - indoor cat. And/or the cost.
- 1:) No accountability. How will you catch them?
- 2:) Save money.
- 3:) Lazy
- 100% indoor cats with little chance of escaping outdoors. Cats unable to wear collars due to safety concerns. The cost of licensing a cat.
- Their cats do not go outdoors
- The only reason that I could think of would be the cost. It is an extra annual fee that is not mandatory, so I could see many members of the public opting not to pay it as they don't see the value in it.
- If cats are microchipped and/or tattooed, why are people supposed to get a licence? Especially if you cannot let your cat outside. People know the risks of letting their cat outside
- Cause it's a cash grab from responsible pet owners to pay for the cost of the pets neglected by negligent pet owners. It's expensive when you consider all the taxes we pay on literally everything from property tax, income tax (30%), sales tax, provincial tax, carbon tax. Don't we pay enough to gov?
- Laziness. Think they are above the law. Responsible pet ownership
- laziness
- I think people don't license their cats because of a difference of social standard which is unfair to dog owners. Other reason is cost or the cat never leaves the house.
- The burden of paperwork
- Cats not going outside
- Perhaps their cat is always indoors and the main reason for licensing is to return them back home if lost.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think this is two spectrums far left they are entitled and dont care and will risk getting caught far right they are impoverished and cant afford it. I also think Vets should be required to report to the city unlicensed animals.
- Animals are never off owners property--ie outside
- The owners don't see the value or reason to license. The education is not out there. It appears to just be another fee to pay.
- Stupidity and lack of disrespect of the law. They think that they are above the law.
- Financial reasons or they plan for the cat to remain indoors all the time.
- What are the chances of getting caught.
- usually kept at home not seen in public
- Possibly cost. And annual renewal
- Laziness and a feeling privilege. This is something that many Calgarians feel. They think they are entitled to do they want. I've never met so many self absorbed people in my life who think rules are not for them.
- The cost.
- they're very irresponsible people
- Lazy and too easy to get away with it
- Cost in their eyes unnecessary for an animal who never leaves the house. As long as they are indoor cats and stay there.
- Indoor cats? Probably don't know, don't want to pay it, don't think they will ever be caught cause they are indoors.
- Zero return on investment. The responsible cat owner, not wanting their cat to become coyote/bobcat food, does not let the cat out so, does not license the cat. Those who let the cat out see no reason to license either.
- I didn't know you could choose not to do this. I think licensing cats that never get out just a cash grab by the city. Ours are chipped and tatoo'd if they got out. If they roam, they should be licensed (or if you love your cat, don't let them roam).
- indoor only cat, affordability, no access to computer, not sure where to license,
- not sure. maybe the fact that the fees keep going up every year!
- rebel thinking
- Cost, not responsible
- Cost. Maybe also time and not wanting to support bureaucracy.
- The cat never leaves the home.
- Price, don't see value in this
- lazy?
- Laziness? I have to admit, my cat is strictly indoors and I don't have him licensed. There doesn't seem to be a strong benefit or need to license. Even though I know the potential benefits if he should escape, it seems fairly low risk.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cat people in general simply don't understand the responsibilities that come with pet guardianship. I see this over and over again. There is not enough punishment for these people; they need to understand that the underlying cost to society of cats and dogs is equal and act accordingly.
- Old school thinking that cats should be free to roam. Cats' like dogs need to be licensed.
- Cost, can't be bothered.
- Probably a) the expense of the license and b) for people whose cats spend time outdoors, the owners hope to limit their potential liability for any harm or damage caused, since the animal cannot be identified.
- Have no idea. Maybe too expensive for some?
- Their cats don't go outdoors, so why spend money that most can't afford.
- they don't think it's necessary or understand the purpose. Also, why does it matter what I think of this? Shouldn't you ask "as a pet owner, do you license your pet? Why or why not?"
- Because they're forced to be indoor animals and the cat never leaves the house. Most owners don't even bring them to the vet.
- Cost
- Finances
- It's a cash grab by the city if the cats are indoors
- That their cat never leaves their home.
- Money. Plus people might think "why should I license a cat when it stays in my home most of the time".
- If a cat is just an indoor cat why does it need to be licensed? Licensing for cats is simply a money grab. Cats that are microchipped don't need to be licensed too why duplicate work>?
- Because it is not needed. A license is only a way of politicians to make easy money.
- Don't see the benefit. Think it's just another tax.
- When I tried to fill it out I had to gather a lot of information like microchip numbers and exact dates of birth, which I didn't have all of. If the form were simpler, I would have licensed my cats
- They don't think it's important? They many also think that it's no one's business but their own if they choose to own a pet.
- Money and laziness
- Because they either never leave the property and the price is to high or they do leave the property and the owner doesn't want to get caught doing this
- The cat is an indoor cat.
- no benefit to owners
- They don't know to do it or don't want to spend $$$. I wish they would.
- it's a money grab. they aren't allowed out so why do they need to be licensed? if people are worried about reunification then they should be able to opt in to licensing - otherwise it should not be required for cats.
- I feel these people think that cats always come home and dont need a license.
- All domestic pets should be licensed

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost or forgetfulness
- Money and the belief that they don't go outside ever.
- Because the Bylaws do not have a history of cat-specific enforcement; society perceives cats are not an aggression/attack concern nor ongoing over-population concern to the public. The aggression is more of a concern for dogs; large dogs may be perceived as dangerous or aggressive.
- Cost and if the cat is an indoor pet it feels unnecessary.
- Often those owners are the ones who let their cats wander as they please day and night. I would be worried about their safety! It is easy to be that kind of owner.
- Because they are indoor only, and have other identification available such as a tattoo or microchip
- Crazy enough, but the main reason I do not license my cat is because he CANNOT WEAR A TAG. He has a condition called PICA where he eats EVERYTHING, even his own tags. I understand the importance of licensing my cat, and I will do quite happily, but please find a way with no tags.
- See it as a cash grab by The City.
- They are lazy and irresponsible. They think their cat will not get out.
- I would guess they are lazy, & also do not wish to incur the expense.
- They think it's a money grab
- Cats remain inside, licensing is not necessary. Main reason is that owners are not allowing their cats outside.
- I think people have in door cats and think it is not necessary. I also think it costs a lot to license an animal and to do this every year.
- Animals that do not leave the house
- Cost
- Not sure? Maybe money. Maybe the thought that it's a cat and they wander the neighbourhood and catch mice. The fact that they crap in other people's property is not their concern. Or maybe that it's just a cat and not a pet.
- Ignorance and cost cutting.
- That they're indoor cats probably. I imagine people don't get the purpose and the economy is down so no lone is looking to spend money unnecessarily. Hard enough to get ppl to take their cats to the vet when they should.
- Cash grab. The city shouldnt ask people to license pets that do not go outside. It's none of the city's business.
- Laziness, avoidance of city bylaws, cat is only indoors
- Kept indoors.
- They don't understand the importance
- they are indoor cats only
- I think those individuals are lazy & just can't be bothered. I'm sure they feel that because cat owners are not usually out walking their cat (such as with dogs), no body will know. Personally, I am ok with not having people license cats as long as they remain indoors. Not too many out on leashes.
- Cost, irresponsible ownership, think they won't get caught.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cat is indoor only
- The cat doesn't go outside, it's 'just' a cat are the reasons I've heard
- I believe it is because they have not been held accountable for licensing their cats! They have gotten away with it for years and years and years! It is unfair that dog owners are held accountable. It all come back to responsible pet owners
- I really think they are cheating the system and are basically lazy. They need to be shamed into compliance in my opinion.
- Too expensive and very dangerous for the animal
- Awareness of the need to lisencc cats
- Apathy, don't believe it is important
- If you're a responsible pet owner you have your pet microchipped, licensing is just a waste of time and money.
- In my experience the cats are always returned to the owner and the owner is not find. Enforcing the fines it's a huge issue with me. False calls on responsible owners with license pets is also an issue that needs to be addressed. Microchipped and altered animals should not have to be licensed
- They don't want to pay for the licence.
- Cost
- Cost &/or lazieness
- They either have a cat that's always indoors or else they think the freedom to roam is just normal for cats.
- Not concerned that their cat will run away/need a license
- Na
- Indoor cats?
- Cost, forgetful, don't want to be accountable if cat roams
- Cash grab
- It is unnecessary administration with no benefit.
- I would assume that if the cat is and indoor cat, that the owner probably thinks they won't need to license it since it doesn't go outside. or alternatively they may have the cat microchipped and feel this is adequate for identification if the cat is lost.
- Want to let them outdoors and not be held responsible for their actions
- It's not automated. Take a cc and have the option to have it automated. It be able to buy a 5 year license.
- the cat is an indoor animal
- Indoor only so don't see need to license.
- They don't feel the need to license their indoor pet. Cost.
- It's the mentality of some
it's a cat why bother
- Cost
- Cost and lack of necessity (if it is an indoor cat people do not see the point).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Because cat is a house cat..
- I believe only cats that are indoor bound should not have to have a license but only as long as they are microchipped/tattooed and wearing a collar. Cats that escape the house frequently should have a license just to ensure their safety and security in the chance they get lost or picked up.
- the thought of 'what is the point'.
- Honestly I keep forgetting to renew. A longer lasting license would be awesome!
- laziness. If my cat doesn't go outside, they don't need to be licensed. Lack of understanding of why it is important.
- Laziness. If you can't afford to license your pet, you shouldn't be able to have one.
- - They believe their cats will return home
- - Think the registration program is a City of Calgary money grab
- Lack of responsibility as a pet owner. I think they believe that if the cat is an indoor cat it's not necessary.
- They are cheap and do not want the expense.
- Likely an outdoor cat, probably not a responsible owner. Or they have too many they don't want anyone to find out. I also believe there is a stigma that people think it's a cash grab
- If the cats are indoor only, they really shouldn't need to license them because they are not taking the Animal Services programs. If they are letting their cats loose as well as not licensing them, they are irresponsible owners and their cats should be confiscated. The license is cheap!
- They tell me it is a house cat & do not allow cat to go out doors. Any cat in Calgary should be licensed.
- it takes time and money
- They believe it doesn't apply to them. Plus identifying ownership of a loose cat is difficult and most people aren't concerned about their cats being caught.
- Don't want to spend the time or money
- Money?
- Lack of responsibility and do not care
- That their cat does not exit their dwelling.
- Cost?
- Indoor and assumed that it is just a cash grab. Opposition to government oversight.
- Cost? Time?
- Cats always stay indoors and don't wear a collar. If they are lost they have ID through microchip/tattoo
- Cheapness. And they feel that cats should be allowed to roam free.
- Don't feel a need, indoor cat, money
- No one enforces any of the rules regarding cats so why should anyone that has a cat follow them?
- they plan to keep the cat indoors so they feel a license is not necessary
- They leave their cats to roam and do not want them to be tied back to the owner and fined

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They never go out side so whats the point. Its just a money grab. I can understand if they are out side more but you cant get a collar on 90% of cats in The first place. So they ar licensed so what who knows even when they are out side a chip in pets is more useful thou even its not 100%
- They feel that they are above the law and continue to let their cat(s) out and do not think the cat can be traced back to them.
- For cats that remain indoors at all times it doesn't make much sense to have to license them (although we did license our cats when we had them)
- The fee, and having to do so every year.
- not sure? lost pet recovery?
- Lack of available funds
- Primary reason is likely because the owner doesn't want to spend the money each year. Some people may need the company of an animal but lack the funds to license. Also maybe some people don't believe cats should be licensed.
- Cost
- So if the cat roams, the owners won't get fined?
- If the cat ever escapes and found. With the owners information they can be reunited.
- The cats are indoor cats or cats do not wear collars.
- too lazy to do so
- They think they don't need to because it's too expensive for a cat that probably doesn't go outside
- The current bylaw states that cats can't roam, therefore they shouldn't be outdoors, so people don't licence to avoid getting caught and there are those that can't afford it. Allow them to roam as long as they are licensed.
- some might be cost? but most I believe just don't care. they are the ones who don't spay/neuter either and have multiple cats
- Cats aren't meant to be locked up
- Indoor cats, that do not ever roam outside, should be exempt from licensing. Cats also frequently cannot safely wear collars, so proof of licensing is challenging for them.
- Some people don't believe their cats will ever get out. It can be dangerous to put collars on cats, so no where to hang a license anyways. Licences fees go towards fixing cats that are not their own. Some just don't want to pay. They dont value their cat enough.
- The cost, and for what benefit really.
- Owners that fail to licence their cats likely feel that they have no responsibility to ensure bylaws are followed as the licence fee is reasonable.
- More than likely the non licensing of cats is because they do not go outside
- Not sure
- They don't want to take responsibility for their cat. Their cat doesn't like to wear a collar with the license.
- they don't think it is important

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't see any reason to license an indoor cat. It's probably not possible to separate licensing indoor /outdoor cats but it would be nice if it could happen.
My cat is tattooed and as a chip this should be enough information to get the animal back to me if it happens to sneak out.
- they can't afford it or they just don't care and are lazy
- Not wanting to pay the fee or else thinking their cat will always be inside and they should not have to license.
- Seems silly that you have to pay the city to have a cat inside your own house. There aren't any cat parks or similar amenities obvious to cat owners, seems like you're paying for nothing. Inconvenient to pay annually
- Cost, inconvenience, irresponsible
- The owner has an indoor cat only.
- My friends with cats say that there's no benefit: they've said the City won't contact them if their cat is turned into the pound/humane society.
- Being lazy and the cost
- lack of enforcement, lack of understanding of benefits
- They don't go out.
- Why, there is no point. They don't really get anything for having a license and not perceived benefit. Also should be a one time license I am guessing - paying every year I am guessing causes people over time to really say, why? Plus less city man hours (tax payers' money) needed for one vs many.
- No reason to, bylaw doesn't appear to pay attention to roaming cats
- Education
- They are inside cats and Don't roam outside
- The animal is kept indoors only.
- If I lose my dog they're licensed and if found I can generally find them. My cat doesn't leave the house. He is terrified of doing so. I'm extremely confident that I will not lose him and if so he wouldn't go far. If he doesn't leave the house and isn't in the public then why does he need to be?
- Financial reasons
- Idiocy. Poverty.
- Money , laziness, lack of awareness, negative attitude towards the city
- Seems pointless if they are kept inside.
- A waste of time and money, they do not spay/neuter their animals, are not educated on why licensing is important, have lived in rural areas where rules are different, animal does not leave the home so does not see the point
- Cats are beyond rules. And if they are keeping them indoors, why pay for a license? However, cats can escape and those that roam free should be identifiable.
- They do not think that the cat will ever get loose from the home.
- It is too expensive.. If the cost was lower or every 5 years I bet more people would license their pets and because cats don't tend to kill each other like dogs would if in a fight.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- increase of fees every year
- I would assume cost and perceived hassle. Perhaps they don't know why licensing is important?
- don't see the need, don't want to pay the government.
- Cost, and if they are considered indoor only I think many people don't see the point.
- Inconvenience and cost
- cost and active decision not to
- The cost and the harassment to re-license yearly.
- They don't believe they should need to if the cat is "indoors". I do not agree and like that they are licensed providing funding from licensing goes to spay/neutering etc.
- They don't care
- They probably have strictly indoor cats.
- I think it is because they are indoor cats and see no need to be licensed. If you let your cat out, then I can see why they would license it.
- Can't be bothered and their feeling cats should not be controlled in any way as well as the cost of the license.
- I don't understand why you wouldn't license a cat. The fees are reasonable. My cats are both indoor cats and they are both licensed.
Maybe people with indoor cats don't think it's necessary.
- It is an expensive cost that some may feel is unnecessary for an animal that is confined inside a private property and is not let out to roam or come into contact with other animals.
- "Indoor only" and don't think it'll get out.
- Cost and an I don't care attitude.
- Lazy
- N/A. My cats are licensed. Having said that - I think people are cheap and don't want to pay.
- I assume because cats mostly stay indoors?
- Laziness, belief that their cat stays indoors so shouldn't need to be licensed
- Can't afford it?
- Do not care if licensed or not. The city does not need to know how many they have
- Lazy or irresponsible. All my pets are licensed.
- N/A
- Doesn't seem necessary or needed.
- Price/indoor only
- Probably that the cat is an indoor animal and the owner doesn't think that licensing would be of benefit.
- Cost
- Cats are indoor only cats and owners are not worried that they will become lost.
- cat does not leave house/home
- Financial

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Honestly I am not too sure, for those that have strictly indoor cats which is very good on their part probably figure they dont need it because their cat is never outside, but on the contrary if your cat were to ever escape it would be good to have them licensed so they can be returned.
- Cost and having purely indoor animals
- Not informed, lazy, or can't afford it. But if money is a consideration, should someone own a pet? Pets still need to be fed, and that costs money.
- Inconvenience/cost.
- money and no control
- They are indoor cats
- Id guess money.
- It is silly to have to license something that is never allowed to see the light of day. Is the city going to license fish, hampsters, reptiles next? Only animals allowed outside should be licensed.
- Cost, indoor only, money grab for the city
- cost and not knowing the requirement
- House only
- Cost
- Lazy
- unable to afford it, don't feel they need to license, lazy, irresponsible
- That these owners let their cats free roam Calgary
- Unknown, I don't have a cat.
- It's expensive and my cats are completely indoor animals.
- Financial reasons. They don't have the time. They don't know where to go.
- I would think they do not see the point in it and the expense
- They do not know it is a requirement of the city
- Laziness.
- Strictly indoor
- lazy
- I have no idea why they would not license. Perhaps laziness, lack of awareness, lack of consequence. The cost is so low enough that if your pet is altered I don't see cost being a factor.
- They do not see why it's necessary, seems like a money grab.
- Cats shouldn't need a licence as they can't really do any real harm.
- Cats stay indoors all the time.
- Financial barriers. It can feel like an unnecessary cost, especially if the animal is primarily indoors. Also it's annoying to have to do it every year.
- Cost
- Annual renewal
- Because the cat is indoors. Also many people probably don't even know that they should
- cost
- They don't care

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They mainly keep the cat indoors
- Their cats are indoor only cats.
- Don't know or are too lazy to bother.
- Cost
- Because they are cats. Cat owners and dog owners are completely different. It is believed that a dog is bigger and will therefore do more damage, so they are not trained or treated the same at all. Imagine if I just let my dog wander the neighborhood and come back whenever it felt like it!
- Too expensive.
- Placing a lower value on their cats than on their dogs. Ignorance about what the license fee is used for and how registration can help their cat. A belief that as long as the cat is kept indoors there's no need for a license. Cat licensing is a recent thing and it takes time to change attitudes.
- They are kept indoors only. However, I feel the point of ID on pets is for the offchance they escape. You do not plan on this happening but should be prepare in case it does.
- An annual pet license is a bogus fee that does not benefit the owner in any way. A reasonable one time licensing fee (eg. One $50/charge or something) to enter your animal in the system should suffice.
- Not sure, I'm not as familiar with cats
- Indoor cats pose no threat and aren't an inconvenience to neighbours. Most cat owners probably feel no need to license their pet, and if they are in a lower income bracket, licensing cats is not a top priority.
- They believe that their act never leaves their property- see it as a cash grab
- Cats live indoors only and never leave the home. The yearly cost is to high.
- Price and cats not going outside.
- They can't afford it. They forget. They no longer have the cat and are too embarrassed to report it. They don't see a need for it.
- Price or they no there is no consequence
- Money. Laziness. Lack of awareness. Because their cats are "inside cats".
- They know no one will find out and penalize them.
- I don't know. I don't have cats.
- If the cat doesn't go outside then they don't think it's necessary. Otherwise, laziness.
- Expense.
- Habit and old ways. Especially if they are not out in the community. People don't see a need. With microchip that is how people have their animals returned.
- Cost?
- Lack of education/laziness/escalating costs
- Cost, having to renew every year especially if cats are indoor. Silly in my opinion. Indoor cats don't wear collars so the tags just sit in a drawer.
- No idea. Throw the book at them.
- If it is a house cat only it seems unfair that it should be licensed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If a cat never is allowed outside why does it need a licence? seems like a cash grab
- Cost.
- Did not take the regulations seriously.
- Cost
- Cost
- Cost and not likely to get caught if cats kept inside.
- Price point and if they are indoor cats only
- Indoor cats.
- Expense, disregard for health and well being
- Can't afford it or want to breed their animal
- Cats require much less commitment by nature, cats are not brought out to public places such as dog parks, cats do not tend to interact with the public
- House cats
Cats lose collars
- Cats who only stay indoors
- Unsure
- Affordability
- Money
- Belief that their cat won't get out, don't understand how it benefits them.
- They have indoor cats and don't see a reason to spend the money when their cat is unlikely to be impounded.
- They may not expect their cat to get loose if it is an indoor cat. They may not be able to afford it. They may not be aware of subsidies.
- Cats do not leave the residence to it seems unnecessary
- They assume their cat will not get out of the house / don't want to pay the fee
- Cat does not go outside.
- They see cats as disposable and not worth the effort.
- Lack of money, irresponsible, indoor cat so doesn't need one.
- Likely can't afford it or view it as unnecessary
- the cost and just being lazy. These people should understand that if they want to own a pet they should be responsible to pay for a pet license.
- Indoor cats that typically don't go outside
- expense
- Finances. I worked in low income areas of the city for 12 years. People would rather decrease their own food than their cats, let alone licence them
- Cost. Many cat owners have multi cats, a good portion of low income persons have cats as they cost the least, until the altering fees that do NOT equal out the reduction of license over the life of the cat ($30/10yr not worth the $4-500 spay) and unaltered license fees too high, esp for multi homes
- The cat does not go outside in public. COST

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Unknown, I do not own cats and wont sumise why others do not follow the bylaw.
- Not responsible, can't afford it. Probably should not own pets!
- Irresponsible.
- To avoid paying as well as not providing an avenue to back track ownership
- They don't go outside and don't want the cost
- cost, and if the cat is an indoor cat
- Lazy - or money. Also they may feel that if they don't take there cats out of the house it does not matter. more education is really all you can do. I believe in licensing both cats and dogs
- Willing to take the risk to save some money
- N/a
- Indoor only, cost, own unhealthy number of animals
- Expense or they are house pets only.
- Cost and responsibility
- Cost
- You aren't allowed to have cats outside of the house so why on earth would anyone pay to licence an animal they aren't allowed to have roam free
- The rule is already that they stay in the home only so people might think what's the point. People get cats because they're easy and might see licensing as an unnecessary expense that they can easily get around (due to the cat staying in the privacy of home)
- cats are indoor only animals, have microchipping or tattoos
- There are no benefits to licensing
- They think there is no need...
our cat is solely indoors however I believe all cats should be licensed for the odd time they escape.
- Indoor cat that doesn't leave the house? "Unnecessary" fee.
- They don't feel the need to take responsibility for what their cat might do when roaming free, unidentifiable
- If cats are to remain indoors, what's the need for licensing? I think many don't license due to the cost.
- The cats are indoor cats and never go outdoors.
- Money
Keep them inside
- They don't want to pay the fee.
- a pet owner who is selfish and does not think of their cats or other people.
- Avoid a money grab from the city licencing cats that are exclusively indoor animals.
- Their cats are indoor cats, or they can't afford the annual fee.
- Cost as a major factor for indoor cats not believed to ever escape or wander. To owners I have heard this often, they're pet is indoors and as such does not affect city workers, etc,. The other is that even licenses when cats are picked up it's too expensive to 'bail' them out of animal services.
- Cost

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- cost
- They are inside cats and do not go outside
- Cost
- The cost and effort - if they are indoor cats then they may not understand why it matters. If they never go out then why worry about it?
- cat stays indoor all the time?
- My cat stays inside and is afraid to go outside. My cat that does escape sometimes is licensed. My dog is licensed as well
- People are lazy and they haven't felt the repercussions of not licensing. For some they may not be able to afford it on top of pet food, perhaps.
- They do not think it is necessary. Their cat doesn't go outside lack of education on licensing/purpose.
- I feel like they just don't want to, they don't feel that it is necessary, they also often don't think it will be enforced
- Uninformed and cost.
- Cost of money or time.
- Don't have one
- Likely because their intended to indoor cats and therefore owners feel they will never be outside..
- Cost, indoor pets, not knowing the laws
- They intend to keep there cats indoors, but they should still be licensed and spayed -neutered.
- Cost - and an independent streak
- They don't know that they have to.
- Too expensive or just simply do not want to comply; viewed as an unnecessary imposition.
- Price or they don't care about their pet. To me licensing is a bit of a joke because some pets are licensed and others are not. If I don't license them then I don't have to pay if they get picked up and the city can deal with them.
- We all know it is just a cash cow, cats do not need to be licensed. Responsible people have always been responsible before licensing. Cats are not licensed in most countries. When you fine people to retrieve their unlicensed cats, some will opt to just get a new cat and you end up with a surplus
- Irresponsible ownership
- Cost of the license as they are primarily indoor cats that never leave the house.
- Since the cost is low I think it's about forgetfulness or disdain for the process- or feeling it's a cash grab. Low income options should always been available.
- The belief that an indoor cat does not need to be licensed.
- Financial.
- I believe in not being taxed for owning a cat, if you are responsible and keep your cat inside.
- I am happy to pay a small licensing fee for my cat, but I don't really know what it's for. I think if people had a better understanding of the purpose, they may be more likely to comply. Also, people may not license because they see it as an unnecessary fee.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think for most the cost, they would rather have that cost go towards care of the cat or other costs and just don't think it's necessary.
- Too lazy, want to allow their cats to roam and so don't want to get in trouble for it. Don't want to pay the cost. Don't want to immunize animal.
- Too expensive
- Because they don't let their cats outside and in the case of them sneaking out, they likely have a microchip. For those who follow the rules around not letting their cats out and do have their animals chipped, the licensing is a cash grab.
- Misinformation, finances, laziness, lack of access to the Internet to find resources such as the MeowFoundation.
- Lazy or costs .
- They don't think cats need to be or they stay inside so no point
- The cat is not allowed outside.
- Liscencing fees mainly pays for liscencing enforcement
- Combination of laziness and old attitudes about cats being free roaming and historically exempt from such regulations. Also many people with indoor-only cats probably don't see the point.
- The cat stays in the house, so why register?
- NA
- cost and laziness.
- Not wanting to pay fees or general lack of ownership/being responsible.
- They maybe ignorant of the law, or feel that their cats are indoor and do not require licensing
- I believe their primary choice would be because the cat stay in the house.
- Because they don't think the pet ownership applies to cat owners and cat owners are not policed like dog owners are.
- Their cats are indoor only.
- Indoor cats that will likely never step foot outdoors
- Cats are generally in your home and therefore there is no need to be accountable... they don't feel they will ever be caught for not licensing
- indoors only
- Probably the cost, all mine are licensed even though they are all indoor cats but I'd like to know where all the extra money is going from the cat licensing since it started.
- Because they don't understand why the public wants cats to be licenced, they can't be bothered or think they are above the rules because the cat "never leaves the house"
- Most likely because the cat in indoors mostly. Perhaps money. I'm not sure.
- They keep them indoors so don't think they need to
- lazy, don't want or think they need to, these are the same people that let their animals roam free even in terrible weather conditions so they aren't going to pay anything, most of them don't take their pet to a vet either, and they don't care if the animal returns, it just irresponsible behavior
- Too cheap

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- For some, their cat stays inside and is unlikely to get lost or be in contact with any person / animal outside their home. For others, they're either irresponsible, uneducated about the reasons for licensing, or don't have the money.
- Cat is never outdoors unless harnessed and on the owner's property, or, owners are too lazy to bother.
- Most people get their cat for free, so they're not about to spend extra money on it. It's the same reason they don't get neutered or microchipped- a sad reality.
- Little to no benefit
- I think the primary reason for alot of people is their cats are not outdoor cats. They never leave the residence they live in.
- Laziness, being too busy, or an unwillingness to pay the tiny fee for licensing.
- Cost, what benefit is there to owners licensing their cats? Cat promotions? Discounts?
- Shows lack of responsibility
- The cat is an "indoor cat" and never sees the outside. Which is the rule in Calgary. So why license something when the cat can't be outside. I do not support this view but it is the main view. what if the cat escapes - plus the fee is extremely reasonable.
- Expense. If you have an indoor cat, what's the point?
- Cost and laziness
- They are indoors, never going to get out (hahaha) They are just cats (cat don't have the same value as dogs) . Can't afford the licence
- That they assume that it will never leave the house so they shouldn't have too.
- Years ago it was mandatory to license cats, I doubt that is in forcible.
- I don't have one but I think people who dont let their cats outside shouldn't to pay the fee. I disagree, that comes as part of pet ownership
- If it's an indoor cat, then it seems less important to keep a collar and license on the animal. Many people, especially those new to the city or new to cat ownership, also don't know about the bylaw.
- All pets who go outdoors should be licensed- shouldn't be a choice. No money to pay for licensing?
- Cats are meant to be indoor pets and I feel that many cat owners feel the risk of their cat getting loose does not warrant the cost to license their cat. A license is the best way to find an owner for a lost pet.
- I think people don't understand the reason and value of licensing. I think the price is also a barrier in some cases. It makes sense to pay more to get an intact lost pet home (like a fine) but if you're responsible owner it shouldn't cost more just to license an intact pet.
- No idea
- Likely that they have an 'indoor' cat and don't plan to have the cat leave their home, so don't see the value in licensing the pet.
- I'm not understanding why a cat license has ever come out if cats are not supposed to roam free. If my cat happens to get out it's his tattoo in microchip that are going to get them back home. Cat licensing has also doubled in cost since it started

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The cats don't go outside therefore don't bother anyone
- Cost.....recurring expense
- It seems like a cash grab
- they keep them indoors
- cats are difficult to contain
- No clue!
- My cat is never outside.
Cost
- Not being responsible or think their cat will never go outside or be lost.
- Cats should not need to be licences, they pose no danger.
- Money
- Cost, and no perceived benefits.
- I don't know.
- I don't understand cat people.
- There is no reason to license domestic cats.
- Cost?
Inconvenience?
Misunderstanding?
- N/a
- most probably don't know it is a requirement, or they assume they will never get caught. why don't you advertise cat licensing more?
- Indoor only cats should not have to be licensed. Personally my cats are afraid of outside. Since they are contained indoors with no risk of getting lost or being a nuisance, they should not have to be licensed.
- Most cats are indoors and licensing doesn't return them home like microchipping, etc., does.
Cost.
- Just plain lazy
- Cost and not seeing value out of it
- Perceived high cost. The perception that they will get away with not doing so.
- For exclusively indoor animals, with a slim chance of getting out - the price is absurd. As someone who has worked for animal control, I understand the reasons behind it but for multiple, neutered/spayed indoor cats who will never use city services, it's a lot for the average owner to swallow
- I think this is foolish, I appreciate above all the chance to register my cat's microchip number so that she can be returned to us if she ever gets out of the house and gets lost.
- Money grab by the City. Remove the cost but require owners have a licence.
- Likely cost. Depending how an animal has come to be in someone's life (ie a stray, taking in an animal from someone, etc), there may be true ignorance to the responsibility of pet care and ownership.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost, and thinking it doesn't matter (ie licensing is just a tax grab)
- Laziness or cost
- They plan to keep their pet indoors at all times.
- Cost and fear of accountability
- indoor cats don't go out and if they escape, chances are the license will fall off.
- Licensing not only with owner but all rescues.
- Arrogants and being cheap, cant afford it. Or feel indoor only pet means it shouldnt apply.
- They undervalue the cat as a pet and see them easily disposable and replaceable.
- I think people who dont license thier cats have indoor cats. I dont think cats should need licenses, but I do think they should have a form of ID (tattoo, microchip)
- Ignorance of the law and apathy.
- I would guess that their cats are indoor cats.
- Having to pay money to tell someone you have a pet, and not seeing how that information is relevant to anyone other than the pet owner.
- do not have a cat. but do feed the strays in the area
- No, it should be for all pet owners. If they cannot afford it, lower the fee.
- They think their cats won't go outside, cat's are second class citizens in many homes so they don't consider them as they do dogs
- A responsible pet owner has their animal tatoood and cared for by their vet, at their own cost. I think licensing cats is an extra, unnecessary cost, as their is no benefit to the owner or cat for this. The money from this goes where?
- Cost and convenience.
- they believe as strictly indoor cats there is no need or benefit to licensing; cost of licensing
- Distain for the bylaws of the City.
- They think that because their cat is an indoor cat there is no need, however, kitties get out. I feel that people are uneducated about the risks and sometimes don't care. They feel its a waste of money perhaps.
- Likely the cost. Especially if pet never leaves household.
- Its their personal freedom.
Cats & dogs should not require a license
- I think that the primary reason is that people don't expect their cat to be outside, and therefore it doesn't need a license.
- the cost or the desire for privacy from the city knowing "everything"
- I think people assume if their cats are indoor cats that they do not require licensing.
- Save money
- Too dangerous for the cat to wear a collar or harness so they probably think it is pointless and a waste of money to get a cat license, especially when most animals can be identified with a micro chip
- It's a money grab

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- N/A
- Cost and ignorance!
- They are unlikely to let their cat outside so they don't think they need one and don't want to pay for it.
- They are indoor and we so not avail of any services paid through licensing. You can place your own tag on cat, not necessary to license through city.
- Laziness, money, don't feel like they have to/don't need to
- Being cheap and lazy and not a responsible member of society
- That the cat is primarily an indoor cat and that they were "unaware" of the requirement to license and indoor cat
- He is micro-chipped - what's the purpose of licensing besides The City collecting money wherever it can?
- lack of responsibility and no consequences
- Cost. Also it is more dangerous for cats to wear collars, even inside the house. So having a license that isn't worn seems silly.
- I know that I would find it easier to more regularly license my pet if I had only one account for my household instead of a separate account for each pet.
- Price. If it could be clearly demonstrated that the licensing fee goes directly to the care and programs for animals, it would have greater impact
- My cats are licensed.
However, it is not practical to have cats wear their licenses with a collar.
- What are the benefits? Ignorance of laws, more education required perhaps. People don't view cats the same as dogs, not as messy or loud so they tend to be ignored but can also cause problems for neighbours.
- I can't imagine because they absolutely should be licensed. I can't say that it is cost, because the cost is the same for dogs and cats.
- Cost, lack of awareness on need & how to do it, marketing.
- many people don't let there cats outside, maybe these people feel they don't need to license their cats if the are indoor only.
- not seeing the benefit
- For multi-cat households it is a financial burden, and may consider it unnecessary, especially if all of your cats live indoors
- they are indoor cats that are never outside and shouldn't need a licence to be able to find the owner if they go missing.
- Lack of enforcement.
- because they are indoor cats
- cat does not leave the house
- Cats stay indoors.
- Money and believe there cat will never go out

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- My cat is only ever outside on a leash so therefore there is no point in her being licensed.
- No good reason - - licensing should not be a choice.
- Monetary.
- If cat doesn't go outside, why license
- Laziness and a right wing attitude that doesn't feel like they should have to do it.
- Primarily cost most likely. Can it be done online for ease?
- They think their cat is strictly an indoor cat and doesn't need a license or their cat won't tolerate wearing a collar.
- They just don't want to pay the fee or they think that since their cat isn't allowed outside it's a waste of money? Not sure
- Cost
- It doesn't leave their house, or are feral.
- Price, couldn't be bothered
- they probably think the rule does not apply to them, their cats are inside so therefore why should they be licensed.
- Convenience and Laziness
- The cat is only indoor
- Indoor cats.
- People see license as a means to return a stray cat to its home. If your cats are strictly indoor cats you don't see the need for this.
- Ignorance
- Most cats are indoor cats, and I don't think people should have to license their indoor cats, responsible pet owners should not let indoor cats out, period. It's part of the responsibility of a pet owner. For those that have outdoor cats and do not license, I think do not license because the cost
- Over stepping government
- Cats that are in the house have no need to be licensed
- They feel they are entitled to not register their pets.
- Laziness. My cats are strictly indoor yet are vaccinated, sterilized and licensed.
- Cost and the fact that they are strictly indoor cats.
- Expense and accountability
- what right does the city have to charge me for my pet that costs the city nothing. piss off
- Saving money.
- Indoor cats. Outdoor cats must be licensed or not allowed at all.
- cost
- cost
- Cost
- cost though I do as I like the program
- Likely unaware of license expiry date.
- Unaware that cats need a license.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Do not want to have to pay to license or renew license.

- cost
- Ignorance to the actual cost to the municipality for control efforts.
- ignorance. cost. laziness.
- City of Calgary charges quite a bit, with no discount to multi-cat households.
- Cause they can
- Cat owners don't want to pay out money to license their cats. Another reason could be laziness.
- Cost for indoor animals
- They own only indoor cats who never go outside.
- Not sure why cat owners should not license their cats. It should not be optional at all - it should be part of the by-law that they have to.
- We do not pay to license children. Licensing and the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw is demeaning towards animals.
- Indoor cat that is not allowed outside. Cost
- They may not see a point if they have a 100% indoor cat and/or see it as a 'money grab' by the City. Probably could push the 'what if' that if their cat gets out they have a better chance of being returned if they are licensed
- I think people believe the cat is indoors so no one needs to know they have cats
- They don't agree with licensing, do not see it as anything necessary, don't wish the city to take money from their pocket and put it in the city's coffers to waste.
As the Calgary's mayor said at the time - a solution looking for a problem
- The idea that their cats are kept indoors and there is no point to it.
- They are unaware that they have to do so.
- Privacy
- No clue. I license my cat
- Maybe because those cats are indoor cats and don't leave the house, so they always stay within private property. I think cat owners should license their cats.
- cat is kept indoors only. cost.
- They don't think they will get caught so why pay for something that is not policed
- They think it is expensive, they say they are only indoor (but accidents can happen), they have no faith that they will get their pet back, they think they will still have a ticket if the breakaway collar is gone.
- Ignorance, cost or resentment of government. But you should ask them. I've always licensed my pets.
- I would assume the primary reason for not licensing a cat, is that it will be inside your house and never out so why pay the money.
- I licence, but for many indoor cat owners, they don't understand the benefit. I licence my cat because I like to support the many programs that support other animals like the spay program,

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

senior programs etc. I also like the comfort of knowign that if my cats escaped, they are more likely identifie

- They don't go outside and are microchipped.
- Laziness
- Laziness and being irresponsible.
- price increases when we are in we have been in a bad economy for the past 12 years!
- COST , Cats rarely are off property so folks do not see how they impact the community .. also lack of knowledge what the city can provide. Plus fear of policing.. the world is to judge and peopel are fearfull of loosing their loved ones
- They keep their cats indoors (as per the bylaw) so don't think it's necessary.
- see no value in it
- Laziness. No consequences from city.
- Don't want to pay money to the City,
- Cats are house cats probably, so no need to get a license.
- people are poor or they are unemployed with limited income or they just want to spend their money on other things and/or they do not want to give any money to The City of Calgary.
- It's a cash grab. Licensing does nothing other than keep track of who owns what animals. Why there is a cost associated with it is beyond me.
- I think cats should be licensed however it should be last for longer
- They believe cats are free spirits and do not fix their cats to keep population down
- - No enforcement
- - No value
- - Go to humane society
- - Indoor Cats
- - Less licensing
- - Different resources required for cats
- Bec indoor cat, it's just a cat
- - Apartment cats
- - Education
- - Cost
- - What benefit/no service used
- They might not have enough money or don't want to give money to the government.
- - Costs too much
- - time/inconvenient
- Indoor cats only
- Do not want to pay the fee
- the cost and just being lazy. These people should understand that if they want to own a pet they should be responsible to pay for a pet license.
- Indoor cats that typically don't go outside

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- expense
- Finances. I worked in low income areas of the city for 12 years. People would rather decrease their own food than their cats, let alone licence them
- Cost. Many cat owners have multi cats, a good portion of low income persons have cats as they cost the least, until the altering fees that do NOT equal out the reduction of license over the life of the cat ($30/10yr not worth the $4-500 spay) and unaltered license fees too high, esp for multi homes
- The cat does not go outside in public. COST
- Unknown, I do not own cats and wont sumise why others do not follow the bylaw.
- Not responsible, can't afford it. Probably should not own pets!
- Irresponsible.
- To avoid paying as well as not providing an avenue to back track ownership
- They don't go outside and don't want the cost
- cost, and if the cat is an indoor cat
- Lazy - or money. Also they may feel that if they don't take there cats out of the house it does not matter. more education is really all you can do. I believe in licensing both cats and dogs
- Willing to take the risk to save some money
- N/a
- Indoor only, cost, own unhealthy number of animals
- Expense or they are house pets only.
- Cost and responsibility
- Cost
- You aren't allowed to have cats outside of the house so why on earth would anyone pay to licence an animal they aren't allowed to have roam free
- The rule is already that they stay in the home only so people might think what's the point. People get cats because they're easy and might see licensing as an unnecessary expense that they can easily get around (due to the cat staying in the privacy of home)
- cats are indoor only animals, have microchipping or tattoos
- There are no benefits to licensing
- They think there is no need...
our cat is solely indoors however I believe all cats should be licensed for the odd time they escape.
- Indoor cat that doesn't leave the house? "Unnecessary" fee.
- They don't feel the need to take responsibility for what their cat might do when roaming free, unidentifiable
- If cats are to remain indoors, what's the need for licensing? I think many don't license due to the cost.
- The cats are indoor cats and never go outdoors.
- Money
Keep them inside
- They don't want to pay the fee.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- a pet owner who is selfish and does not think of their cats or other people.
- Avoid a money grab from the city licencing cats that are exclusively indoor animals.
- Their cats are indoor cats, or they can't afford the annual fee.
- Cost as a major factor for indoor cats not believed to ever escape or wander. To owners I have heard this often, they're pet is indoors and as such does not affect city workers, etc,. The other is that even licenses when cats are picked up it's too expensive to 'bail' them out of animal services.
- Cost
- cost
- They are inside cats and do not go outside
- Cost
- The cost and effort - if they are indoor cats then they may not understand why it matters. If they never go out then why worry about it?
- cat stays indoor all the time?
- My cat stays inside and is afraid to go outside. My cat that does escape sometimes is licensed. My dog is licensed as well
- People are lazy and they haven't felt the repercussions of not licensing. For some they may not be able to afford it on top of pet food, perhaps.
- They do not think it is necessary. Their cat doesn't go outside lack of education on licensing/purpose.
- I feel like they just don't want to, they don't feel that it is necessary, they also often don't think it will be enforced
- Uninformed and cost.
- Cost of money or time.
- Don't have one
- Likely because their intended to indoor cats and therefore owners feel they will never be outside..
- Cost, indoor pets, not knowing the laws
- They intend to keep there cats indoors, but they should still be licensed and spayed -neutered.
- Cost - and an independent streak
- They don't know that they have to.
- Too expensive or just simply do not want to comply; viewed as an unnecessary imposition.
- Price or they don't care about their pet. To me licensing is a bit of a joke because some pets are licensed and others are not. If I don't license them then I don't have to pay if they get picked up and the city can deal with them.
- We all know it is just a cash cow, cats do not need to be licensed. Responsible people have always been responsible before licensing. Cats are not licensed in most countries. When you fine people to retrieve their unlicensed cats, some will opt to just get a new cat and you end up with a surplus
- Irresponsible ownership
- Cost of the license as they are primarily indoor cats that never leave the house.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Since the cost is low I think it's about forgetfulness or disdain for the process- or feeling it's a cash grab. Low income options should always been available.
- The belief that an indoor cat does not need to be licensed.
- Financial.
- I believe in not being taxed for owning a cat, if you are responsible and keep your cat inside.
- I am happy to pay a small licensing fee for my cat, but I don't really know what it's for. I think if people had a better understanding of the purpose, they may be more likely to comply. Also, people may not license because they see it as an unnecessary fee.
- I think for most the cost, they would rather have that cost go towards care of the cat or other costs and just don't think it's necessary.
- Too lazy, want to allow their cats to roam and so don't want to get in trouble for it. Don't want to pay the cost. Don't want to immunize animal.
- Too expensive
- Because they don't let their cats outside and in the case of them sneaking out, they likely have a microchip. For those who follow the rules around not letting their cats out and do have their animals chipped, the licensing is a cash grab.
- Misinformation, finances, laziness, lack of access to the Internet to find resources such as the MeowFoundation.
- Lazy or costs .
- They don't think cats need to be or they stay inside so no point
- The cat is not allowed outside.
- Liscencing fees mainly pays for liscencing enforcement
- Combination of laziness and old attitudes about cats being free roaming and historically exempt from such regulations. Also many people with indoor-only cats probably don't see the point.
- The cat stays in the house, so why register?
- NA
- cost and laziness.
- Not wanting to pay fees or general lack of ownership/being responsible.
- They maybe ignorant of the law, or feel that their cats are indoor and do not require licensing
- I believe their primary choice would be because the cat stay in the house.
- Because they don't think the pet ownership applies to cat owners and cat owners are not policed like dog owners are.
- Their cats are indoor only.
- Indoor cats that will likely never step foot outdoors
- Cats are generally in your home and therefore there is no need to be accountable... they don't feel they will ever be caught for not licensing
- indoors only
- Probably the cost, all mine are licensed even though they are all indoor cats but I'd like to know where all the extra money is going from the cat licensing since it started.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Because they don't understand why the public wants cats to be licenced, they can't be bothered or think they are above the rules because the cat "never leaves the house"
- Most likely because the cat is indoors mostly. Perhaps money. I'm not sure.
- They keep them indoors so don't think they need to
- lazy, don't want or think they need to, these are the same people that let their animals roam free even in terrible weather conditions so they aren't going to pay anything, most of them don't take their pet to a vet either, and they don't care if the animal returns, it just irresponsible behavior
- Too cheap
- For some, their cat stays inside and is unlikely to get lost or be in contact with any person / animal outside their home. For others, they're either irresponsible, uneducated about the reasons for licensing, or don't have the money.
- Cat is never outdoors unless harnessed and on the owner's property, or, owners are too lazy to bother.
- Most people get their cat for free, so they're not about to spend extra money on it. It's the same reason they don't get neutered or microchipped- a sad reality.
- Little to no benefit
- I think the primary reason for a lot of people is their cats are not outdoor cats. They never leave the residence they live in.
- Laziness, being too busy, or an unwillingness to pay the tiny fee for licensing.
- Cost, what benefit is there to owners licensing their cats? Cat promotions? Discounts?
- Shows lack of responsibility
- The cat is an "indoor cat" and never sees the outside. Which is the rule in Calgary. So why license something when the cat can't be outside. I do not support this view but it is the main view. what if the cat escapes - plus the fee is extremely reasonable.
- Expense. If you have an indoor cat, what's the point?
- Cost and laziness
- They are indoors, never going to get out (hahaha) They are just cats (cats don't have the same value as dogs) . Can't afford the licence
- That they assume that it will never leave the house so they shouldn't have to.
- Years ago it was mandatory to license cats, I doubt that is enforceable.
- I don't have one but I think people who don't let their cats outside shouldn't have to pay the fee. I disagree, that comes as part of pet ownership
- If it's an indoor cat, then it seems less important to keep a collar and license on the animal. Many people, especially those new to the city or new to cat ownership, also don't know about the bylaw.
- All pets who go outdoors should be licensed- shouldn't be a choice. No money to pay for licensing?
- Cats are meant to be indoor pets and I feel that many cat owners feel the risk of their cat getting loose does not warrant the cost to license their cat. A license is the best way to find an owner for a lost pet.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think people don't understand the reason and value of licensing. I think the price is also a barrier in some cases. It makes sense to pay more to get an intact lost pet home (like a fine) but if you're responsible owner it shouldn't cost more just to license an intact pet.
- No idea
- Likely that they have an 'indoor' cat and don't plan to have the cat leave their home, so don't see the value in licensing the pet.
- I'm not understanding why a cat license has ever come out if cats are not supposed to roam free. If my cat happens to get out it's his tattoo in microchip that are going to get them back home. Cat licensing has also doubled in cost since it started
- The cats don't go outside therefore don't bother anyone
- Cost.....recurring expense
- It seems like a cash grab
- they keep them indoors
- cats are difficult to contain
- No clue!
- My cat is never outside.
Cost
- Not being responsible or think their cat will never go outside or be lost.
- Cats should not need to be licences, they pose no danger.
- Money
- Cost, and no perceived benefits.
- I don't know.
- I don't understand cat people.
- There is no reason to license domestic cats.
- Cost?
Inconvenience?
Misunderstanding?
- N/a
- most probably don't know it is a requirement, or they assume they will never get caught. why don't you advertise cat licensing more?
- Indoor only cats should not have to be licensed. Personally my cats are afraid of outside. Since they are contained indoors with no risk of getting lost or being a nuisance, they should not have to be licensed.
- Most cats are indoors and licensing doesn't return them home like microchipping, etc., does.
Cost.
- Just plain lazy
- Cost and not seeing value out of it
- Perceived high cost. The perception that they will get away with not doing so.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- For exclusively indoor animals, with a slim chance of getting out - the price is absurd. As someone who has worked for animal control, I understand the reasons behind it but for multiple, neutered/spayed indoor cats who will never use city services, it's a lot for the average owner to swallow
- I think this is foolish, I appreciate above all the chance to register my cat's microchip number so that she can be returned to us if she ever gets out of the house and gets lost.
- Money grab by the City. Remove the cost but require owners have a licence.
- Likely cost. Depending how an animal has come to be in someone's life (ie a stray, taking in an animal from someone, etc), there may be true ignorance to the responsibility of pet care and ownership.
- Cost, and thinking it doesn't matter (ie licensing is just a tax grab)
- Laziness or cost
- They plan to keep their pet indoors at all times.
- Cost and fear of accountability
- indoor cats don't go out and if they escape, chances are the license will fall off.
- Licensing not only with owner but all rescues.
- Arrogants and being cheap, cant afford it. Or feel indoor only pet means it shouldnt apply.
- They undervalue the cat as a pet and see them easily disposable and replaceable.
- I think people who dont license thier cats have indoor cats. I dont think cats should need licenses, but I do think they should have a form of ID (tattoo, microchip)
- Ignorance of the law and apathy.
- I would guess that their cats are indoor cats.
- Having to pay money to tell someone you have a pet, and not seeing how that information is relevant to anyone other than the pet owner.
- do not have a cat. but do feed the strays in the area
- No, it should be for all pet owners. If they cannot afford it, lower the fee.
- They think their cats won't go outside, cat's are second class citizens in many homes so they don't consider them as they do dogs
- A responsible pet owner has their animal tatoood and cared for by their vet, at their own cost. I think licensing cats is an extra, unnecessary cost, as their is no benefit to the owner or cat for this. The money from this goes where?
- Cost and convenience.
- they believe as strictly indoor cats there is no need or benefit to licensing; cost of licensing
- Distain for the bylaws of the City.
- They think that because their cat is an indoor cat there is no need, however, kitties get out. I feel that people are uneducated about the risks and sometimes don't care. They feel its a waste of money perhaps.
- Likely the cost. Especially if pet never leaves household.
- Its their personal freedom.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Cats & dogs should not require a license

- I think that the primary reason is that people don't expect their cat to be outside, and therefore it doesn't need a license.
- the cost or the desire for privacy from the city knowing "everything"
- I think people assume if their cats are indoor cats that they do not require licensing.
- Save money
- Too dangerous for the cat to wear a collar or harness so they probably think it is pointless and a waste of money to get a cat license, especially when most animals can be identified with a micro chip
- It's a money grab
- N/A
- Cost and ignorance!
- They are unlikely to let their cat outside so they don't think they need one and don't want to pay for it.
- They are indoor and we so not avail of any services paid through licensing. You can place your own tag on cat, not necessary to license through city.
- Laziness, money, don't feel like they have to/don't need to
- Being cheap and lazy and not a responsible member of society
- That the cat is primarily an indoor cat and that they were "unaware" of the requirement to license and indoor cat
- He is micro-chipped - what's the purpose of licensing besides The City collecting money wherever it can?
- lack of responsibility and no consequences
- Cost. Also it is more dangerous for cats to wear collars, even inside the house. So having a license that isn't worn seems silly.
- I know that I would find it easier to more regularly license my pet if I had only one account for my household instead of a separate account for each pet.
- Price. If it could be clearly demonstrated that the licensing fee goes directly to the care and programs for animals, it would have greater impact
- My cats are licensed.
However, it is not practical to have cats wear their licenses with a collar.
- What are the benefits? Ignorance of laws, more education required perhaps. People don't view cats the same as dogs, not as messy or loud so they tend to be ignored but can also cause problems for neighbours.
- I can't imagine because they absolutely should be licensed. I can't say that it is cost, because the cost is the same for dogs and cats.
- Cost, lack of awareness on need & how to do it, marketing.
- many people don't let there cats outside, maybe these people feel they don't need to license their cats if the are indoor only.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- not seeing the benefit
- For multi-cat households it is a financial burden, and may consider it unnecessary, especially if all of your cats live indoors
- they are indoor cats that are never outside and shouldn't need a licence to be able to find the owner if they go missing.
- Lack of enforcement.
- because they are indoor cats
- cat does not leave the house
- Cats stay indoors.
- Money and believe there cat will never go out
- My cat is only ever outside on a leash so therefore there is no point in her being licensed.
- No good reason - - licensing should not be a choice.
- Monetary.
- If cat doesn't go outside, why license
- Laziness and a right wing attitude that doesn't feel like they should have to do it.
- Primarily cost most likely. Can it be done online for ease?
- They think their cat is strictly an indoor cat and doesn't need a license or their cat won't tolerate wearing a collar.
- They just don't want to pay the fee or they think that since their cat isn't allowed outside it's a waste of money? Not sure
- Cost
- It doesnt leave their house, or are feral.
- Price, couldnt be bothered
- they probably think the rule does not apply to them, their cats are inside so therefore why should they be licensed.
- Convenience and Laziness
- The cat is only indoor
- Indoor cats.
- People see license as a means to return a stray cat to its home. If your cats are strictly indoor cats you don't see the need for this.
- Ignorance
- Most cats are indoor cats, and I don't think people should have to license their indoor cats, responsible pet owners should not let indoor cats out, period. It's part of the responsibility of a pet owner. For those that have outdoor cats and do not license, I think do not license because the cost
- Over stepping government
- Cats that are in the house have no need to beocensy
- They feel they are entitled to not register their pets.
- Laziness. My cats are strictly indoor yet are vaccinated, sterilized and licensed.
- Cost and the fact that they are strictly indoor cats.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Expense and accountability
- what right does the city have to charge me for my pet that costs the city nothing. piss off
- Saving money.
- Indoor cats. Outdoor cats must be licensed or not allowed at all.
- cost
- cost
- Cost
- cost though I do as I like the progame
- Likely unaware of license expiry date.
Unaware that cats need a license.
Do not want to have to pay to license or renew license.
- cost
- Ignorance to the actual cost to the municipality for control efforts.
- ignorance. cost. laziness.
- City of Calgary charges quite a bit, with no discount to multi-cat households.
- Cause they can
- Cat owners don't want to pay out money to license their cats. Another reason could be laziness.
- Cost for indoor animals
- They own only indoor cats who never go outside.
- Not sure why cat owners should not license their cats. It should not be optional at all - it should be part of the by-law that they have to.
- We do not pay to license children. Licensing and the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw is demeaning towards animals.
- Indoor cat that is not allowed outside. Cost
- They may not see a point if they have a 100% indoor cat and/or see it as a 'money grab' by the City. Probably could push the 'what if' thatbof their cat gets out they have a better chance of being returned if they are licensed
- I think people believe the cat is indoors so no one needs to know they have cats
- They don't agree with licensing, do not see it as anything necessary, don't wish the city to take money from their pocket and put it in the city's coffers to waste.
As the Calagry's mayor said at the time - a solution looking for a problem
- The idea that their cats are kept indoors and there is no point to it.
- They are unaware that they have to do so.
- Privacy
- No clue. I license my cat
- Maybe because those cats are indoor cats and don't leave the house, so they always stay within private property. I think cat owners should license their cats.
- cat is kept indoors only. cost.
- They don't think they will get caught so why pay for something that is not policed

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They think it is expensive, they say they are only indoor (but accidents can happen), they have no faith that they will get their pet back, they think they will still have a ticket if the breakaway collar is gone.
- Ignorance, cost or resentment of government. But you should ask them. I've always licensed my pets.
- I would assume the primary reason for not licensing a cat, is that it will be inside your house and never out so why pay the money.
- I licence, but for many indoor cat owners, they don't understand the benefit. I licence my cat because I like to support the many programs that support other animals like the spay program, senior programs etc. I also like the comfort of knowign that if my cats escaped, they are more likely identifie
- They don't go outside and are microchipped.
- Laziness
- Laziness and being irresponsible.
- price increases when we are in we have been in a bad economy for the past 12 years!
- COST , Cats rarely are off property so folks do not see how they impact the community .. also lack of knowledge what the city can provide. Plus fear of policing.. the world is to judge and peopel are fearfull of loosing their loved ones
- They keep their cats indoors (as per the bylaw) so don't think it's necessary.
- see no value in it
- Laziness. No consequences from city.
- Don't want to pay money to the City,
- Cats are house cats probably, so no need to get a license.
- people are poor or they are unemployed with limited income or they just want to spend their money on other things and/or they do not want to give any money to The City of Calgary.
- It's a cash grab. Licensing does nothing other than keep track of who owns what animals. Why there is a cost associated with it is beyond me.
- I think cats should be licensed however it should be last for longer
- They believe cats are free spirits and do not fix their cats to keep population down
- They stay indoors. Nobody sees them. Hoarding of cats.
- They claim their cat is an "indoor" cat so it is an unreasonable cost. They don't think about the possibility or the consequences of when their cat ends up outdoors.
- My cat is an indoor cat and never goes outside.
- They probably assume their cats will never leave the house if they are only house cats, or they may not know this is something they need to do.
- They cant afford it
- No need, they stay indoors and it's expensive
- Cost is the primary reason. Licensing of indoor cats should not occur.
- There is no apparent value to purchasing licenses for pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The cat is 100% indoor
- Because their cats do not go outside
- The primary reason would be that cats are never on the streets but often cats are on the streets. Cats should be licensed.
- Why are we doing this anyway? If a cat stays inside and never leaves who cares?
- Cost, going to registry
- Finances
- I believe people think that if the cat is indoors and not roaming, it doesn't need a license or collar.
- Apathy
- Why do we need to license? It's a city way to see how many animals and a cash grab
Not necessary when as responsible pet owners we already pay extremely high immunization costs yearly
- Waste of money/no service provided in addition to license or not aware of requirement. May be completely indoor pet and owner does not see benefit to licensing.
- Not educated that its required
They dont want to pay the yearly cost
They don't want the city to know how many animals they have
- Feel it's not necessary if their cat does not leave the house. Laziness
- most cat owners dont allow their animals out side due to the threat of wild life encounters in city of calgary, the liscence to those owners is just another money grab.
- Their cat is not an outdoor cat or The animals' previous owner did not license the cat
- Finances
Legislated annual warning before enforcement action taken
Lack of return
Indoor cat
Value of animal
Relatively new process
Ignorance of importance/value of licensing
- They don't want to spend the money.
- We suspect these are most likely to have cats roaming free and do not want the responsibility of paying fines if/when they are trapped.
- The cat may only stay in the house
- The cat is strictly an indoor pet.
- Laziness
Lack of interest to pay
- Lazy
Irresponsible
- Most likely because the cat never goes outside.
- N/A

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- finances
  - legislated annual warning before enforcement action is taken
  - lack of return
  - indoor cat
  - value of animal
  - relatively new process
- It's extra effort and cost and they don't see the value. These are often the same people who are irresponsible, don't spay/neuter, and let their cats out. People view cats as disposable and this attitude needs to change before everyone will license their cats.
- Laziness, forget to renew, keeps cat indoor only, finances (although if you can't afford this fee, can you afford to have an animal)?
- probably because of cost and it is not the City's business if a person has a cat or not. Privacy concerns. It is totally unnecessary; cats are quiet.
- Government legislation has allowed people to consider animals as disposable, causing many to be ignorant rather than uneducated. A cat is a different animal compared to a dog & more dangerous for a cat to wear a collar/license regardless of whether it's a house cat or an outdoor cat.
- Cat never leaves the home.
- expense, laziness, owners above the law, owners not responsible
- I feel like cat owners believe their cats never go outdoors so a license doesn't make sense. I would agree but still require an indoor license to be required and offered at a lower price. It would be interesting to see all the cats and dogs on a street via a map.
- Not sure
- Ignorance that cats don't need licenses.
- Indoor cat, cost of license, lack of return.
- No idea, all pets (except fish?) should be licensed, part of the license should be a declaration that they are properly vaccinated and neutered.
- They don't care if they get the cat back. They don't want the administrative hassle.
- The cats do not go outside.
- Laziness
- I think the licensing is not appropriate that would be like licensing a family member. Also the licensing fees are very high
- Irresponsible pet ownership, then financial issues.
- Finances; Legislated annual warning before enforcement action taken; Lack of return on investment (don't see/know what benefit they are getting); Indoor cat (feel they don't need to license as cat not outdoors); Value of animal; Relatively new process
- Not wanting to pay the fee. Libertarian approach to life.
- Mostly I expect they object to spending the money, being told to and not seeing any return from doing so and some perhaps do not have money.
- Laziness and a feeling they don't need to.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They are justifiably confident that no one has the courage to report them and even if they do you won't do anything about it, and even if you do, the penalties are trivial.
- I can't surely say but if it costs money then I for one might choose not to license an animal (haven't owned one yet in Calgary). Additionally if they don't let their cat(s) outdoors then they may not see the need to.
- - People don't understand what their licensing fees go towards.
- - People are cheap, a large percentage only provide their pet with it's basic needs, so they are loathe to give up their money to the city for some invisible service.
- - Lax enforcement fuels fee avoidance, especially due to the economy
- Lack of money and lack of education.

Primary reason for not licensing dogs

- What is the reason for a license for a dog?
- Same as above, to avoid fees. They should be heavily fined, banned from future pet ownership, and have their animal removed from their care.
- Cost? They see no benefit in having one?
- cost- if a pet is micro chipped then a physical license should be one-time payment and done. The chip scanner can replace the license database going forward.
- Cost
- Probably money. I've lived in many cities in this country and Calgary was the only one where I've had to renew my pets license annually.
- Likely that it slips their mind and/or that they don't want to incur the cost.
- low income or they do not walk dogs in the city they walk them in the country.
- I don't know why anyone wouldn't. Same as above I would wager.
- Not sure. Maybe they don't take their dogs to off leash areas and believe that they have them under control at all times.
- cost
- It's a cash grab.
- They think it is unnecessary, are unaware of the requirement, or do not know what the cost of licensing pays for or how it benefits them
- ignorance
- Same as above.
- Money
- Money grabber, why do we need to do this? Most animals now are being chipped so whats the point.
- Cost
- Cost? Not know how?
- Irresponsibility or financial hardship.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Yearly licence renewal is absurd. Another major problem is that dogs must have the license on them. Completely impractical for small dogs or dogs that can't wear heavy tags. Microchips are way safer for lost dogs anyways.
- perhaps the same reasons as noted above
- Lack of enforcement means no consequence for not licensing.
- No idea.
- lazy or cheap
- See previous answer.
- If the dog doesn't go to dog parks or that it's a money grab
- Maybe they forget?
- Cost, nobody really enforces it. Not as big of an issue as cats.
- Same as above.
- Cost.
- Not aware of the requirements.
- Not sure.
- Financial and lack of education.?
- N/A I license both of my dogs.
- Don't want to pay money.
- Laziness
- Money or attitude. Either they think they can't afford or, or they have the attitude that rules do not apply to them.
- Cost
- Outstanding fines is most likely the reason for this, the location of where you can buy the licence (as a lot of people don't have credit cards to pay online) is inaccessible by transit and beyond inconvenient. More portions of where and how to pay.
- It is expensive and time consuming to license every year. It should be a one time item. They may be afraid of the stigma of owning a 'violent breed'
- Unsure. All my dogs have been licensed. Perhaps if you have many dogs cost or not wanting the city to know how many you have and not be targeted by bylaw or SPCA?
- Cost, value added. How is it more effective than a tag with owners address?
- Possibly lack of education.
- Trying to follow regulations and hope that my fees go towards improving the program and animal care services
- Cost. Illegal breeding. Dog fighting rings. Stolen animal.
- Same as above. Perhaps cost?
- That their dog is always under control, well behaved and don't cause problems. Dogs are smart, so they think dogs don't need licenses. The mindset that if their dog isn't a problem dog, it doesn't need licensing.
- Cheap

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- cost
- Laziness, income and ignorance.
- We microchip our dog. Also, I honestly don't see the value the city brings to pets. We called animal services Sooo many times about off-leash dogs by our house and they never came. So why pay?!
- Stupidity.
- I don't know as every responsible owner I know licenses.
- They are being cheap and lazy, or they are keeping a dog they shouldn't own (in terms of having a vicious dog and not following the laws for owning a vicious dog).
- The penalty and risk of it being assessed of not licencing the dog is deemed to be not worth the bother and cost of licencing. Greater penalties and greater enforcement will increase licensing compliance.
- Cost.
- Cost? or a more nefarious reason is they want to remain anonymous for fighting rings or they have a vicious dog and don't want a trail?
- As above. These licenses aren't expensive. Perhaps for low income folks and seniors there could be a lower fee.
- Could be the dog or owner rarely leaves the property (older, handicapped) and see it as unnecessary.
- Cost
- Cost
- They are lazy
- Cost. fee for intact animals is too high. Responsible owners who have intact animals should not be subject to higher costs when their animals are not an issue
- Too cheap/lazy. If you can't afford to license your pet then you can't afford to have one.
- 1) Maybe it's a senior pet that never goes out
- 2) The dog has an illness and isn't going to live very much longer
- 3)New to Calgary and has come from a place that didn't have an animal bylaw
- cost
- Avoidance of steep fees for intact dogs, free-roaming animal
- Money. Cash flow for calgarians is tight. Doesnt come as a priority to license your dog. Especially if they never attend off leash parks.
- Cost is likely a factor.
- People typically have no money to spend on making responsible choices and people don't like following the rules. Especially when they are easy to break and get away with
- Cost or laziness.
- Cost and awareness
- money
- Cost

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Uneducated on bylaws. Cost for those acquiring puppies for free and can not afford vet care, let alone licenses. Don't think they'll get caught without a license.
- Cost and they think they will never get caught.
- N/a
- Costs
- Cost
- Laziness and cost.
- Money
- For people who show dogs, we are penalized because we must keep them intact to show them. Our dogs are not the ones that will be roaming the streets as we have too much time and money invested in them. For regular pet owners...laziness.
- Just the yearly cost. It can add up when you have more than one animal
- Not aware of it, lazy, plan to breed them for a puppy mill
- Money
- they don't think they should have to
- Lack of knowledge about licensing laws, ignorance, lack of means to pay for license.
- I don't know.
- Laziness...irresponsible behaviour.
- don't know
- Don't understand the point of licensing. Microchip and tattoo is enough to locate my pet if he's lost.
- You shouldn't have to renew your license each year, this is probably why people don't bother with this.
- we believe money is the reason, however, if the owner(s) can't pay for a license how are they going to take care of the pet?!! again the pocket book is a good deterrent..we strongly suggest when an animal is licensed they MUST have a chip inserted into them..
- Either they don't think it's necessary or they don't have the money to license the dog.
- The yearly expense.
- I don't know as I license my animals. Thoughts- Expense? Ignorance in thinking rules don't apply to them? Not sure
- Cost. And the fact that if their licensed dog is picked up by animal services, they are still paying hundreds of dollars in fees to redeem their dog from the city pound. If these fees were lessened then people would pay for the service.
- I think every license should include a microchip. City can set up microchip clinics. Every pet store animal should require a microchip.
Cost, uneducated and since you rarely see bylaw at any off leash park or driving down the street checking why bother buying one.
- Holes in their head.
- They are not clear on the value return for the dollars given. Could this be somehow considered a donation that is tax deductible? Again this is an opportunity for education likely.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Excess dogs
- To get reunited if lost or got loose from yard.
- For some I know that it is due to the cost as I do know of breeders who live within the city limits and it would be expensive to license all their dogs. Some people feel that their dogs are “house” dogs and only have access to the house or backyard/dog run.
- Same as above
- Laziness and price.
- $
- Not sure.
- Lack of responsibility if the dog gets picked up. If the City doesn't know who owns the dog, they can't fine them for the dog being loose.
- Lazy and disrespectful of the bylaws.
- Cost and lack of understanding and transparency as to where fees go.
- Cost
- Cost or perhaps they feel the license is paying for people with problem animals.
- Cost. CAS is all about tracking down dog owners who don't license unlike cat owners, I believe it is not knowing they need to or cost that stops people for dogs.
- In my opinion, people choose not to license their dogs due to the cost (ie. have multiple dogs), or the fact that they cannot keep the tags on the dog successfully. People also seem to think that dogs are more easily found than cats when lost, so they won't require city services should that occur.
- Cost.
- Same as above, In my 21 years in Calgary I have yet to see any bylaw officer checking dogparks for licenses, does this even happen?
- Dogs should need to be licensed
- They don't like to be told what to do. I have known people like this. The cost. But it's a reasonable cost. I have a dog which has always been licensed.
- They think they keep dogs under control and won't need city services
- Same for dogs If they are not outside at all then they shouldn't have to be licensed.
- The current system punishes responsible pet owners who choose to keep their animals intact. Despite the propaganda that the humane society pushes, spay/neuter comes with some very serious health concerns and owners should not be punished for making decisions in the best interest of their dog.
- Probably lack of money. It's another expense for pet owners that some may not be able to afford.
- Believe it or not the main reason people don't license their dogs is they don't like to hear the license jingling around the house. Or they may license a dog but then not put the license on the collar which puts them in the same place again and not being able to be reunited with their animal
- fees
make it free to register your animal and huge fines if your animal if found not registered, is caught at large etc. to pay for the admin.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Costs, time consuming
- Cost
- Cost,
- The cost.
- Cost of licensing
- Cost.
- Laziness.
- I license Minecraft
- Same as above -CHEAP & IRRESPONSIBLE
- It's too expensive and should cost about half as much. Again, my dogs are chipped, tattooed and have a tag with my contact information, so reunification is not a big selling point for me.
- Don't see a benefit.
- I don't understand people who don't license their dogs. If it gets away from them it's chances of return are lessened. Perhaps those owners don't actually care. In that case they don't deserve a dog.
- laziness, cost
- Fees
- Unfair biased to responsible owners who have intact pets
- Everyone should license.
- Amount of dogs or costs
- Yearly cost as I am on low income
- They are lazy
- Depends on the dog. I understand no longer licensing an older dog that doesn't leave the home. Others maybe just can't afford it.
- Laziness
- I believe financial constraints may be the primary reason for not choosing to license your dog; another may be that the animal is an indoor pet (consider small dogs); or that the resident is new to the city. Again, pet is tattooed or chipped for return if needed.
- Cheap and not responsible
- Probably cost for a dog as most people take their dogs outdoors. Perhaps there could be a program for those who cannot afford it - to ensure their pets are at least licensed regardless of the owners ability to pay.
- Because they can't afford the cost of altering or licences
- Price, dogs who are identified in other way, hassle, lack of repercussions.
- The city abuses license lists to target certain types of dogs as alleged bite risks or accused biters, and abusers their power to remove these dogs from the city. The city has a trackable and admitted bias against rescue dogs and certain breeds of dogs, and people have to protect their pets.
- A sense of entitlement
- Cost

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They are cheap!
- Same as cats
- No one checks
- I think people choose not to license their dogs because of the expense. Fixed dogs are less expensive than non fixed.
- Cost of license
- No idea. Dog licensing has been around a long time. Cost?
- They do not care.
- Not too sure. Maybe money?
- Don't want to pay fee, too much effort.... People are lazy
- They either don't want to spend the money, or they simply don't care.
- Same as above.
- Financial
- Cost and laziness
- Cost is so high when you own more than 1 pet.
- they do not want to give the government more money. Pets already cost money to take care of, paying a yearly fee just so the government is aware that you have an animal is not ideal for most owners
- Lazy and don't thing an indoor dogs needs to be. Also the City wont do anything , the fines are so low they will take the risk... make the fines high and people wont take the chance at being caught!!!
- Money
- Money?
- Money.
- Cost. They think their dog will not get lost/run loose.
- They forget! Either that or they are negligent.
- Dog owners who do not licence their dogs should not own dogs in the City of Calgary. A dog on the loose and running at will in the city streets poses a danger to adults and children in all areas of Calgary.
The dogs owner tries to escape liability with no dog license, when dog attacks people & pets.
- same as cats
- Cost?
- Owners think their pet is never at large.
- Cost and apathy
- Same as the cats....too expensive and privacy. Why the difference in price to spayed or not spayed. If they are a responsible pet owner it should not matter
- Same as above.
- Too expensive
- As above.
- Irresponsible owners who don't take ownership of a pet very serious.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- My dog is microchipped, why should I have to buy a license too? I'd like to know how these fees are used by the city to enhance my dog's life. In France I didn't have to license my dog and he went almost everywhere with me, restaurants, bars, shops, etc., so he's better socialized than most dogs.
- Same thing as above.
- They are irresponsible or think their dog is so special they don't need to license it
- Same as cats!
- They may have the same reasons as cat owners if the dog is kept confined to the yard.n
- Little to no punishment for infractions
- They don't care! They're dog is perfect, will never escape or hurt anyone! Obtuse. Many don't want to pay the fee.
- I am shocked by the choice. The people I have known who do not licence think that they are an exception to the rule, or that rules don't apply to them.
- Knowing how and where to do it.
Forgetting to renew
- It could be money or it could be that they think their dog will never get lost so that it doesnt matter.
- Money....many just don't have the money.
- THEY ARE SELFISH, SELF CENTERED AND IGNORANT.
- People who don't license their dogs are usually anti-establishment, redneck types. There may be a few people who can't afford a dog license - perhaps the City could have some sort of special waiver of fees for lower income Calgarians.
- It's the cost yearly. It should be a one time cost .
- Cost of license and too much trouble to come to animal bylaw office to acquire one
- Irresponsible.
- I think this is far less common. I would assume these are mostly dogs that are bred or owned for nefarious purposes.
- I'm not entirely sure why, perhaps they can't afford it?
- Can't afford it or don't care
- Dog never goes out of their yard. Probably mostly financial.
- Again it could be a financial burden. Or lazy.
- Cost.
- Same as above.
- Price and no value
- Money
- They don't feel they need to
- Same as above
- Financial barriers and lack of enforcement to do so.
- Cost - especially multiple pets
- Same as above.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Lack of responsibility for their animal, they chose to have one and should be financially stable to afford all aspects of caring for that animal.
- Can't afford
- Cost, laziness,
- I believe a lot of people feel like it's pointless. Plus I think they don't want to pay a fine if picked up by the city.
- They are under control and would not likely not leave their owners.
- Above the rules and don't want to get caught when incident happens
- Don't see the benefits. Risk-takers—would rather not pay yearly & take their chances on not being caught.
- There is no benefit to having a license only a penalty if caught without one on your pet
- There is no excuse.
- There is no perceived benefit, only penalty if caught
- Lack of enforcement (same as above), and cost.
- Cost, convenience, vaccine requirements (vaccine requirements need to be adjusted for the current needs, for example rabies every year shouldn't be required, as it's accepted that vaccine is good for much longer.)
- Cost?
- Their dogs are never out of their control, never causing a nuisance, and have permanent identification (microchip, tattoo). Makes no sense to pay the same amount as for a dog with no permanent ID.
- Cost & accountability
- Money
- Cost
- They are not responsible citizens.
- The fine is not high enough to force people to license they don't believe they have too
- They may not be able to afford it or not know when to or where to go
- Forgetfulness
- Paying it doesn't come with any benefit. Don't think they'll get checked/caught. As a dog owner for 20 years have never had check for dog licence by anyone anywhere.
- Same as 1
- Lack of education on how important it is for safety sake...lack of funds
- They don't like rules
- They are cheap of hiding a dangerous dog.
- Cost
- Irresponsible pet owners
- Cheap or the dog is dangerous
- ?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- too expensive
- Cost. Other people I know have simply forgotten in all the excitement of getting a dog to get the licence. Not a choice, but still a cause in some cases.
- Cost
- Cost ... and/or maybe have restricted dogs
- It's a hassle to get a licence
- Expensive
- Using the dog for illicit purposes
- Think their dog won't get out or loose so they don't need too, no money or just forget to renew the licence if previously done.
- Probably cost however if cost is a problem, don't have a pet.
- Cost - it's part of pet ownership but many people want to own a pet but now try to avoid extra costs.
- Cost
- Lazyness
- They never do anything with the dogs - rarely get walked or leave the yard so they won't spend the money on a license if they don't require one on their own property.
- Ignorance, lack of concern for the common good.
- Don't want "the man" to know they have a dog. Their dog has a low risk for ever being caught by animal control and thus no risk of fine. Microchip is more reliable and permanent form of identification to bring a lost pet home.
- Laziness and ignorance.
- As above
- Cost and possibly lack of value. Most stray dogs can now be reunited with their owners by a simple scan at any vet clinic. Microchips seem to be the norm and no longer the exception
- The price of licensing
- The cost is prohibitive; and for those owners who take excellent care of their dogs, especially multiple dogs, they are not rewarded with a discount, but penalized financially. One irritating dog can disturb an entire block for hours, but that person pays the same as the responsible owner.
- Price. There are so many costs associated with pet ownership. Vet fees in Calgary are astronomical. On top of that most people have families too that cost money. People prioritize what bills they can afford and what are necessities. Unfortunately, licensing might be the last on their list.
- Same as above.
- I'm more concerned that people all over my neighborhood barely pick up dog shit around my yard ever! I'm also very scared of pit bulls being walked by small people who could never control them. Do something useful instead of focusing on owned/spayed cats strolling around peacefully!
- Probably cost?
- Ignorance or laziness.
- Cost and burden
- I'm not sure maybe the feel it is redundant, or to expensive.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Lack of money
- nothing, defiance
- Expense?
- Anti nanny-statist activism or the money. Seriously, make it free.
Or, they (the owner) are the vicious type, and really shouldn't have a pet (or child etc.) in the first place.
- Laziness, money
- cost
- Can't afford it
- Probably money.
- Lazy and anti system
- Cost only. or if people have too many dogs then the allowed number
- Don't want to pay the fee. Are not afraid of enforcement so low incentive to do so.
- Same reasons as cats...dont value their pet enough, believe their dog is an indoor dog and doesnt need the license, lack of education, cognitive insight and or ease of licensing.
- Annual renewal is a pain
- Cost
- Too expensive and the city wants to control what you do in Your own home (limit how many).
Licensing an animal that stays inside or on your property (if you're responsible) is strictly a money grab from a city that doesn't know how to manage their responsibilities.
- I believe it is the same. Lower the spay and neuter costs do it is affordable to all and more will be licenced.
- The issue is not licensing a pet, it is the fact that you have to re-license them every year.
That is a very transparent money grab by the government
- I personally have struggled with this, I have a neighbour that has dogs that bark at all times of the day and night and bylaw has not helped in resolving the issue(we're moving because of them). I wonder whats the point of paying a pet licensing fee if I don't personally see a benefit.
- They don't feel the need to.
- Its an annoying administrative burden that should be setup to be done automatically without having to manually remember. The bad owners with bad dogs have no repercussions for not paying the fine anyhow
- Cost.
- Likely the cost is too high to maintain
Or the dog isn't leaving the house
- I thought most dog owners, compared to cat owners, licensed their dogs.
- Look at the previous answer.
- Can't afford it.
- They are cheap and stupid.
- Lack of education and poverty

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same as above
- This is pretty much same as cats affordability and the people who flaunt entitled attitudes or have problems in their past with animal abuse
- expense
- No good reason exists.
- Cheap
- They do not want to be responsible for what the dog might do in their community.
- Avoidance
- Can't imagine why they would think that. Dogs are outside all the time.
- Trying to buck the system. If you( the city) don't know they exist they can get away with not paying.
- Bad policy.
- Don't realize it is a requirement. Don't realize the cost it how to register
- No excuse for this, if you own a pet, it must have a licence.
- Irresponsible owners! Immature or arrogant!
- Convenience to pay, little to no incentives as in penalty or reporting for non licensers. Value proposition is not clear, ie benefits of licence
- Don't want to pay the fee.
Annual requirement to renew is not an easy process.
- I honestly feel like its my own business how many dogs I own. I think there should never be a cap on the number of dogs you can own...it should be about being responsible about dog ownership. One license for overall pet ownership per home.
- Cost. This should be free.
- Cost
- Money grab from the city.
- Cost, and perhaps they don't see the benefit of paying a yearly fee
- Same as above.
- Laziness and being cheap
- Cost, maybe breeding in house want to avoid being on the radar if they have multiple dogs neither spayed or neutered.
- No idea
- They don't want to pay licensing fees or be held responsible for what their pet does when loose.
- Stupidity. Possibly declared vicious? Possibly a breeding dog/puppies which will potentially go to new homes?
- Cost? Forgetfulness?
- Cost, hassle, personal dog tags and micro-chipping take care of re-unification anyway.
- They do not believe in the purpose for generating this revenue and they do not want their dog traced potentially. Public ignorance to the value of licensing and the use of the revenue. People do not associate the facilities and resources needed to oversee programs and believe money just appears.
- Price, laziness

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They might find it expensive. They are not responsible pet owners.
- People are cheap. Maybe a lower price for low income.
- Their animals stay inside and aren't a nuisance to their neighbours.
- Cost. Irresponsible owners.
- Don't want to spend the money. See no need. Small dogs may never be out of the control of owners.
- They don't feel it's necessary or don't want to spend the money. They see no return on their money.
- Cost, amount of effort, or trying to hide their ownership of the dog.
- For some people it may be financial, for others laziness or they may think it's not worthwhile.
- Cost.
- Perhaps a money thing or in defiance of the government. Also, maybe people don't realize what they money they pay goes to and what difference it will make to them personally?
- People don't like paper work and dealing with the government. They don't like the fee even though it's small. They don't want their irresponsible behavior to be traced back to them ie: they let their pet free roam.
- Cost. Or micro chipped and normally you licenses your dog in case they will get lost but micro chips have far more information and no risk of losing the tag.
- Cost
- think they can get away without getting a license, because the dog won't be outside; or they cannot afford it
- Cost, convenience
- They do not consider it worth the money to license a pet.
- The price! 2 dogs...120.00 a year...maybe a low income fee???? Please
- Dollars and costs for responsibility...IF you can not afford to care and license you should not have an animal
- Same as above
- Laziness, cheapness.
- Lack of knowledge, too expensive
- Cost
- I can't fathom - makes me think only people who are otherwise irresponsible would do this - needs to be harsher penalties for people who are cruel to or neglect animals. Backyard breeding should be BANNED.
- Have no idea, must be cost but again very shortsighted.
- Ignorance or they own a dog that they are trying to keep "quiet" for house insurance or licensing reasons.
- Confusion. Trying to find out how and where to get a license is confusing. Also fear of fines for doing so late.
- Inconvenience and habit - there's little in the way of checks and balances to ensure the dog is licensed until something goes wrong (i.e., dog cat vanishes and is picked up by bylaw control)
- No perceived benefit to the owner or animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Most people I know license their dogs.
- Cost
- Lack of consequences.
- Lazy, irresponsible, entitled and shouldn't be allowed to care for an animal if they can't follow the rules. Just like having a car. Responsibilities are to be followed and not just for your safety.
- Cost
- Same reason
- Being lazy? Possibly ignorant about rules or fees?
- Hoarding of dogs (more than bylaw allows)
Lack of funds
Vicious dog that they are trying to hide pure negligence and lack of care
- Cost
- Price, laziness, contempt about rules
- Cost and administration
- Same thing. Being cheap, "my dog isn't like other dogs", etc.
- Refusing to pay what is essentially a tax for owning a pet.
- 'License' is thought of as a tax and that we have to pay for the privilege of owning a dog in that jurisdiction. I think if it was made public to where the funds go for the purchase of a licence, it would make paying this fee less painful.
- Their dogs are spayed/neutered and have permanent ID so if they go missing they have a ticket home. Also the cost is too high. Once again responsible owners are targeted. Same as cat licensing. Even more so for cats seeing most live indoors.
- "It's a money grab"
- Too expensive, especially since taxes in the city continue to go up and services decrease. They know monitoring and enforcement is a joke and they won't get caught so why pay.
- Unaware or uncaring.
- Cost
- Cost or convenience
- Cheap/lazy.
- Affordability.
- Not sure. I license my dog.
- Likely the cost and they don't feel it is of value to do so
- Probably cost or unaware of CoC requirements
- Irresponsible dog owner
- They are ignorant. I have had dogs and I licensed mine.
- cost, time, not easy
- Too expensive
- Licensing is a money grab for the city

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Apathy to the reasons dogs should be licensed.
- Cost and/or an overstep of city authority.
- They are not responsible pet owners and do not want to take the time/money to do so.
- if a dog is well behaved and microchipped they should not get away or if they do the microchip can locate them
- Laziness, lack of knowledge,
- Because they like fruit loops for cereal? What an idiotic question. Maybe ask the owner of an unlicensed animal.
- Too many animals. Unaware or forgot
- See above. ONE TIME REGISTRATION. stop making our animals a cash grab. Mail out renewal 3 months prior to the expiration. But for frig sakes stop making animal registration annual.
- What do they get out of it? I went (2) years without licensing my dog (when i had one) because there was almost no risk of fine.
- Lack of enforcement
- Fostering for a rescue or otherwise watching them temporarily. Do not have the money to pay for a license. Dog is always within their sight and will not be lost.
- They don't care what happens to their dog if it gets out or runs away. Or they don't want to spend the money.
- It is a money grab or too expensive. Very low costs and a one time licensing fee would encourage all dog owners to license their dogs.
- For some it is likely the cost. For others it is a belief that their dog will never stray and therefore a licence is not needed. They do not realize that the money is helping the City provide services to pet owners. This could be an area of advertising.
- Cost and laziness
- Cost (also some may think licensing is complicated - which is not true)
- lack of funds.
- Dogs should be licensed since they are going out. Primary reason is probably lack of education.
- They are never off the owners property except on a leash.
- They don't feel that it is necessary or don't want the City to know the animal lives there
- Ditto.
- Cost, and laziness
- Cost. Forget about the renewal.
- ignorant... dogs need to be licensed.
- Cost and neglect
- Not sure why they do not license their dogs, dogs are always outside even if it is only in their yard so there is always a risk of them getting out. Could also be a money issue
- They are lazy and cheap. I should do what Rocky Country does and make licencing mandatory but free.
- irresponsible pet owners

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- cost
- They think they are exempt from the rules or they have not bothered to look in to what the city rules are. Ignorance? Laziness?
- I never licensed my dog as she did not wear a collar. She was almost choked to death 3 times witching the first year of her life by other dogs getting stuck in her collar. Also don't see the benefit for a microchipped well trained dog. It's expensive. Reduce fees for microchipped animals.
- cost, lack of understanding of benefit when dogs are under control and not running away
- Same reason
- Cost
- Cost, or they dislike the idea of licensing in general
- same as above
- Expensive? Not of any use?
- Cost, belief it isn't necessary.
- See no benefit to licensing as dog is microchipped for identification. License can fall off collar or dog can escape when not wearing a collar so using it as identification is not effective. Microchip is permanent, dog license is not.
- Cost
- Possibly the fee?
- Possibly cost. I do think requiring licensing and donning city tags and ID tag on dogs makes more sense. Many people take their dogs to a dog park without collar, tags and leash. They seem unaware of what would happen if training failed and their dog took off.
- Cost
- Money, hassle.
- Can't afford it
- Cost, assuming if its on the owners property only it doesnt need to be licensed.
- They forget
- Indoor dog.
- Don't think it is important or realize the fines associated with it
- Cost, lack of knowledge, or the inconvenience to get the initial license? I honestly don't understand dog owners who don't license their dog. My dogs have always been licensed
- Arrogance. The only purpose for a license for at dog is to give the city admins an idea of the number of dogs that are currently in the city. Beyond that, it is just a cash grab for the city.
- They are lazy or have no money
- Poor and irresponsible pet ownership
- Cost. Process is burdensome and not streamlined and people are penalized if they forget to liscense or renew. Stop penalizing those trying to participate.
- lack of education & considered an unnecessary expense ('my dog will eventually come back' attitude)
- Cost.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They might not understand why they have to license a dog, or they feel it's unnecessary.
- As above.
- Lack of understanding of the benefits.
- Cost, laziness,
- No benefit to the cost.
- financial
- Cost.
- Primarily, irresponsible pet ownership, possibly financial limitations, or the process is seen as inconvenient. I found the online process for licensing and annual renewal to be simple and easy.
- What is gained by licensing? Most people think they will not lose their animal, and often they are tattooed, micro chipped, and have collars all to help identify them.
- Lack of education, irresponsible attitude, cost
- They're idiots? Dogs must be walked, can escape, may not respond to recall. It makes no sense to not license a dog.
- Ignorance first then cost.
- Laziness
- Cost.
- I choose not to register my dog as I feel it is completely unnecessary. I'm not paying the city so they can know I have a dog. My dog is chipped and I don't feel that her being registered will be any more help than that if she gets lost.
- Cost and laziness
- Cost
- Cost
- Same as above
- Lack of responsibility with pet ownership
- Probably trying to be cheap and save on the license.
- They think their dogs won't run away, apathy, and money.
- Laziness.
- Laziness, lack of consequences
- They are indoors, in fenced yards or on a leash with a responsible pet owner.
- Cost
- Not knowing about licensing
- Probably not bothered or cannot pay the licence. Should not be a choice in the city - you have an animal you follow the rules i.e. licensing & spaying/neutering etc.
- It's expensive.
- SAME AS CATS PRICE--PRIVACY AND JUST ANOTHER TAX
- The perception that it is an unneeded cost or a money grab.
- Possibly cost as most people know that dogs should be licensed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think people just don't know they have to. Rules should be better enforced. I've never seen a bylaw officer checking licenses anywhere
- Cost
- Cost and not remembering to renew.
- Laziness.
- I am not sure, may be individual decision that differs from one person to another.
- Disrespect/ignorance of the law.
- Expensive- where is the benefit for pet owners? Where does the money go?
- I think they don't believe in licensing due to cost or there pets never leave home.
- They don't think it's necessary
- Not wanting to be held responsible.
- Some people may not know about the rules, others probably don't want to pay the cost because 'my dog won't run away'.
- Either feel they can not afford it, or feel they do not have to or just do not want to.
- Either cost or don't think they will be caught.
- "My dog is always with me why should I?" Refuse to pay license
- Laziness and lack of responsibility. If someone genuinely cared for the wellbeing of their pet, they would license it so that if the pet ever got lost or impounded, there is irrefutable evidence that the pet belongs to them.
- They don't want to pay and think they won't get caught
- The cost
- cost, laziness?
- Irresponsible.
- They don't see the need or consequences.
- they do not understand why they should license their pets. and see no benefit on doing so
- Ignorance. Do not see benefit for the cost. "My dog is never off leash".
- cost and/or laziness
- Ignorance of the requirement, or just generally being an irresponsible person.
- The cost and not knowing why a license is required.
- They don't understand what the license is for, and they think "Oh, my dog will never go missing!"
- Cost
- Having them chipped.
- I'm not really sure. Perhaps cost is a factor?
- Lazy or they own vicious animals and partake in criminal activities
- I have no idea. Makes sense to me and if a dog does get lost at least they would be registered if wearing a tag
- Perhaps we need a higher fine for unlicensed dogs. That may be a deterrent.
As to people's reason perhaps their dog is never out of its own backyard so why would they licence
- Expense, negligence, forgetting to re-register, not thinking that registration is necessary.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Don't see a need to
- Cost
- Complacency and lack of consequences
- Being irresponsible
- They do not want to pay the fee, they feel it is their right to have unlicensed animal (when it should be a privilege). They think that it is another government control measure
- $$
Stupidity
Don't want to be told what to do or how to deal with their pet.
- They are lazy and irresponsible is the likely primary reason. I acknowledge the cost a barrier to some
- Cost and ignorance.
- They believe they won't get caught with an unlicensed dog and they are lazy and cheap.
- Irresponsible and don't want to spend the money.
- Cost is primarily the reason.
- Think it's a cash grab
- No idea
- Laziness
- Save money; so many dogs in Calgary that there is little chance of getting caught without a license
- Again enforcement is lacking
- Financial or ignorance. Some go through tough times and can't afford to renew right away. Perhaps they think because dog is chipped it's not needed. There are also those who simply don't care.
- same as the last question. The cost of getting the license
- cost to register does not reflect the amount of time the dog is always out, or even a chance of losing their pet outside.
- Expensive. A lot of people cannot afford to lose the extra money by have for this, but that doesn't mean they are bad or irresponsible owners.
- Don't see why they have to and no penalty not to
- The cost? Being honest in all my years of owning dogs I've never once been asked to see their license. I think the only reason people do register their animals is to avoid a fine.
- Cost
- Laziness
- Because they might think they will never get caught or that it's pointless because it doesn't do anything for them. And if they get lost a lot of people have microchips now.
- Affordability
- All dogs should be licensed as they go outdoors.
- income levels, irresponsible in other areas of their life so this is just a transient effect
- Laziness and greed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- age, circumstance- ie dog may not be getting fixed until later due to breeder contract and possibly cost.
- Service provided does not match licensing fees.
- Cant afford it or don't know
- Laziness, ignorance, or a belief that their do will never run away.
- Financial
- Ignorance based on why it is important / cost
- Financial. Sense of entitlement. Laziness.
- I believe cost is a factor. And, I think many people forget to renew.
- Cost of license
- People may see their dogs as disposable and not a family member. I think they are often people who are lazy, do t care about licensing issues, do t see it's necessary. I know people who don't license and they don't vaccinate, spay/neuter or follow on leash rules.
- The pet never leaves their property.
- if you can't look after them or afford to look after their health and welfare don't get them and then let them run wild
- Again, avoiding fines. Setting up puppy mills?
- Most animals are microchipped now, sort of makes licensing not necessary, and is an extra cost.
- They don't care. OR they have no idea that it's a bylaw.
- Cost. Waste of money
- Cost, ignorance
- It's a waste of money / cash grab. But most people license their dogs since they regularly leave the house.
- cost, inconvenience, put primarily that they do not care to be a considerate citizen
- I licence my dogs so I don't know
- Potentially cost
- As above
- Not enough money to pay for license Money grab
Pet is microchipped
- They think they won't get out? Can't afford it?
- No purpose besides govt keeping tabs on you and collecting more money in any way it can.
- Multiple dogs
- Laziness.
- Cost
- Cost
- Cost... privacy
- Time and cost factors. A collar with contact tag should suffice.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Many dog breeds, especially large ones, should not be spayed or neutered until they are older. The availability of hormones is crucial to their development and longevity. Responsible pet owners should not be financially penalized for choosing to leave their dog unaltered until they are older.
- Costs money and doesn't seem to have any immediate benefit.
- Its a bylaw so why not follow the rules, it is the ideology like letting their pets run at large all over the neighborhoods mentality they think they can do what they want.
- Minimal consequences, oversight & enforcement
- Money; lack of knowledge
- I think people either see it as a cost they can't or don't want to manage. I think since dogs are outdoors and sharing space with other dogs and children they should be licensed and fined if not. Although if cost was an issue I would hope help would be available to offset costs
- Didnt know they needed to be licensed?
- So they don't get caught if their dogs run loose.
- Irresponsible owners and possibly a cost issue.
- This would only apply to small dogs for the same or similar reasons as cats. Some people think their dogs will never get away.
- Too expensive and their dogs are under control and in their care all the time
- Cost. Pets have ID which will help with their return if they get lost.
Forgetting to renew
- In this market most likely affordability or maybe they have a ton of animals and to license them all would be insane.
I'll bet this is all about money.
- Owners are cheap and lazy.
- Cost
- Too expensive. Don't see a reason for it. Didn't know animal had to be licensed. Older animal so it never leaves the house
- Cost. Or lack of knowledge that they need to do so. Mainly cost. It's not a lot but it's prohibitive for some.
- Easy to forget to renew, not sure of the process/where to do it.
- No idea there is no good reason not to licence
- Save money, lazy?
- Don't want to pay a fee.
- Cost or unable to see benefits?
- Irresponsible and don't want yo spend the money as they think they will get away with it
- Cost. Laziness.
- Laziness, lack of care or concern for the animal. It's cheap to license them so there really isn't an excuse. They likely perceive their pet as just an animal and not a family member.
- Cost.
- Feel it's a "money grab" by the city

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Possibly they can't afford to own a pet but love having their dog. They keep it inside and don't feel they need a license.
- cost. its expensive.
- People don't realize how inexpensive it is.
- The primary reason for not licencing their dog is either cost, or thinking no one will check anyway
- Cheap
- Laziness
- Irresponsible
- Laziness
- Laziness again they shouldn't own one of they are not going to be responsible and license it.
- Irresponsibility, don't' want to pay.
- Laziness or apathy.
- Most likely cost.
- Ignorance of the benefits, not being socially responsible.
- Don't want to do another cost, or are doing illegal things with the animals.
- Cost per year
- "too busy"/lazy/irresponsible
- Pure forgetfulness
- Laziness, arrogance, stupidity, etc.. many reasons. Dogs are different than cats with licensing. They are always needing our for walks, they don't have breakaway collars, they go to dog parks, and other reasons. They should be licensed.
- Cost or feeling like it's unnecessary - that licensing them will have little to no impact on their wellbeing
- Money.
- Cost?
- Don't want to pay, feel their dogs won't become lost
- Cost
- I do licence my pets. However, I can see how some would not understand how they benefit. The avoidance of punishment is not a great deterrent. They should see some tangible benefit if they are going to part with their hard-earned money.
- Expense maybe! Maybe lower cost of licensing. I do think it's great that Calgary doesn't have a limit on the number of pets a person can have and believe this would encourage people to licence their dogs more. If you put a restriction on number people will just still get more pets but won't licence
- Irresponsibility
- Stupidity, laziness, cost
- It's an additional cost that does not seem to have an appropriate reason. Also the rocky view county doesn't charge people for a license now. There is no indication either as to where this money goes or how it is used.
- Dogs are often out with their owners. Licensing and chip or tattoo is helping to return lost pet.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not sure
- Lack of knowledge of when to renew
- Because they are too lazy to do so, don't know how to do it and just can't be bothered.
- Cost.
- Unware that licensing is mandatory or don't want to pay for fee
- Possibly cost or just don't care about the bylaws.
- Don't want to pay.
- Cost.
- S/A
- Just doesn't want to pay
- I do not know anyone who hasn't licensed their dog. My dog hates the jingle of the metal tags so I am supporting a local business that makes a little pouch to Velcro onto the collar - Annie loves it.
- Resources money,
- Laziness
- Not aware, insufficient income to do so, lazy
- Cost?
- They don't think pets should require regulations?
- the fee & having to redo it annually.
- Can't afford to, money grab, big brother is watching --- privacy issues, freedom to own a animal without having to deal with documenting, lazy, don't see the value, should we start licensing other pets too?
- Bigger issue. They don't want to comply.
- They may not agree due to living circumstances of dog. Such as the dog may be a senior who no longer has energy for walks and biggest trip is to the yard. They may also not agree with the price of the license.
- They are irresponsible, and can not afford an animal. Also perhaps they are breeding dogs fro nefarious purposes and dont want anyone to know how many animals they have.
- don't know or don't care
- Expensive.
- No reason not to license a dog.
- The price of licensing is too high
  1. They're cheap
  2. They're irresponsible
  3. They think it doesn't apply in their circumstance
- Laziness
- Lack of understanding of the licensing requirements. The fact that you have to license annually.
- Laziness and no one checks up. We liscense our dogs but no one checks ever. Dog owners usually say, why should I no one checks. Right now given the economy there should be a reduced rate for those struggling because otherwise the dog may be abandoned causing more issues.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Expense
- Who's going to check or know that I have a dog without a license? I can put a name tag or two other tags on the collar and no one will know, or they don't believe their dog will be lost or roam free.
- responsible pet owners tend to not need outside controls to continue to be responsible. those that are irresponsible pet owners probably aren't licensing.
- Probably the cost also - fines should be much larger for unlicensed pets. Plus the city is losing out on revenue from unlicensed pets.
- the same
- I'm not sure, maybe the price?
- Cost.
- Indifference
- Cost. I think people in general understand the reasoning behind dog licensing, but either can't afford it or don't bother because as long as nothing happens, there are no consequences.
- Money or lack of knowledge that it's required. Also licensing should be provincial it can be confusing for those who move around the Province
- When you license a dog who has two owners (spouse/ partner) only ONE persons name can be attached to the license. Which makes you the "owner". I was the dogs primary caregiver. I split with my ex, and he kept them because his name was on the license. They were MINE. But legally his, such a joke!
- Cost. There's no reason to not license your dog besides financial.
- Its expensive
- Same as above, laziness and an attempt to skirt the system....it's not overly expensive so to me those are valid reasons. If you can afford to buy the pet, you can afford the license fees.
- No fear of punishment and not willing to pay the fee. Sadly this is an issue that needs to be rectified. In my 10 years owning a dog I have only ever had 1 bylaw officer check to see if my dog was licensed.
- Price.
- Cost
- Same reason for dogs. They see it as a money grab and not necessary.
- Effort and possibly lack of knowledge
- Cost
- No perceived benefit for license process. Feels like a cash grab.
- Irresponsibility.
- Money
- Cost, as well as some just don't feel they should have to
- Lack social responsibility
- lazy, and cheap
- Cost
- Laziness and disrespect of their animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same answer as for cats.
- Stupidity, laziness. Money's not a reason - if you can't afford it then you can't afford to have a dog. What happens if the dog is lost and can't be returned - what a scary thing for them.
- Lazy and ignorant owners who believe that they are above the law. These are the same people to ignore leash laws and are backyard breeders.
- Be afraid of paying a fine in case they run away from home
- Finances?
- It is somewhat expensive, they may not want the City to know how many dogs they have, they may not understand the benefits of licensing.
- Money I'm guessing, laziness.
- I think they believe that the dog is never out of their direct care and control so why bother. I could also come down to finances, especially for seniors.
- cost, no perceived benefit
- Same as above
- Probably trying to save money.
- Not enough enforcement on missing licenses. No reminder systems in place for renewal.
- money concerns. Also don't see the benefit in it and what the City provides for licensing the dog. dogs may be microchipped through the vet and have id tags therefore can be returned safely if lost without the need for a license.
- They are idiots.
- don't know
- Cost without any known benefits.
- Cost.
- Lazy or do not know that they need to.
- Lack of funds.
- They know they won't get caught.
- Cost of licensing. If their dog escapes the yard and is caught by bylaw the fines are too large.
- It's a money grab from the city.
- Owners are too lazy
- They are cheap
- The annual fees involved.
- Lazy. Cheap. Scofflaws.
- Inconsiderate personalities.
- Cost.
- N/A
- Cost would be my guess.
- If the cat is in the house, it's furniture. Requires no resources so no licence makes sense.
- Not aware of requirement or cost.
- Safe money, too much work

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost, inconvenience, having to renew every year
- Financial reasons
- Time and money.
- Money or ease of payment.
- Because it's a stupid money grab
- I think the main reason people do not license their dogs it a disrespect of laws and bylaws.
- Cost.
- Laziness
- The cost of the license, and the website is nearly unusable
- Lack of the money to do so
- They are just to cheap to do it.
- Don't want to pay, don't want to co-operate.
- Cannot understand. perhaps some folks cannot afford?
- Lack of understanding about why licensing is important and lack of consequences for not licensing.
- Stupidity, selfishness.
- The cost.
- This could be finances, concern regarding breed-specific discrimination in a living situation, or just not understanding or caring about the licensing program.
- Likely irresponsible pet owners that don't respect the system.
- Laziness, a general "I don't care" attitude towards pet ownership, cost.
- don't want the city to know that they are breeding without a license, or they are puppy mill
- Cost. Again many owners now microchip their pets. It is the best option for a lost pet. I think the licensing situation is out of date, but perhaps a cheaper option for some people.
- Dog never leaves home/yard or goes off leash in public
- Disinterest.
- Cost. Don't care. Do not recognize that the city has an interest in pets and services.
- Cost.
- They can not afford it. It should be a once per lifetime of the dog not annually. Or they are irresponsible dog owners.
- Lazy; don't want to. Plenty of the ones I have seen can afford it, but don't think it's something that they should have to do, nor do they want to pay for.
- Usually cost. Sometimes laziness or inexperience.
- Ignorance
- Cost
- Cost and Accessibility. Why Licence your Dog? It does not allow you to access any more services or advantages than unlicensed.
- Unable to afford it, and those who have these animals as emotion support/service animals are just paying an extra expense that they really don't need.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost. A desire to be free from City Bureaucracy. The fact that there are better and more modern ways to facilitate re-unification without incurring the costs associated with City Animal Control.
- Money and access to services. If the registration is too far away and inconvenient people won't go.
- They don't believe anything will happen to them due to lack of enforcement by bylaw.
- Laziness? Cost? Don't believe in regulations?
- Same. Think they will always have their dog under control
- too expensive
- No idea. My family always licensed our dogs
- Don't understand people who don't license their dogs but suspect it's the annual fee.
- It may be cost for people on low or no income. Other people don't know or don't care.
- cost
- cost, forgetful
- Cost.
- Financial and a belief that licensing represents over-regulating their lives.
- There is no excuse.
- Some owners can't afford the license, others simply do not want to license.
- Ignorance - they don't understand the benefit. The City has a responsibility to educate people. Adoption agencies can inform the City of new owners; vet clinics can do the same.
- Monetary
- laziness, beligerance, arrogance. nothing to do with animal welfare or community.
- I have no idea. Imbecility? License your dog!
- the cost of the license is NOT an acceptable reason; fines should be higher
- Probably they don't see the point and are not worried about enforcement.
- Pure ignorance and a feeling of the law does not apply to them
- Cost. Think its useless
- The cost and inconvenience. Same with vaccinations.
- Probably because they think that the fee is too expensive.
- There is no good reason but I'd guess the main reason is a simple intention to flout the bylaw. Also, possible ignorance of the bylaw and the benefits of licensing.
- No enforcement lack of funds
- Same reasoning as above
- Cheating
- Laziness, they don't believe they need to.
- Lack of understanding of why it's necessary
- Probably they just don't care much about dogs but they still have one, and are not good dog owners, don't want spend money.
- No return on investment. It is expensive and a hassle.
- Some people are cheap, lazy and really shouldn't own pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I have two dogs, whose licenses have expired. I have no plans to renew. Buying an annual license does not serve the need to meet community expectations or enhance public safety.
- Not wanting to pay for something that they don't think they need.
- being ignorant and maybe the cost.
- I feel this is an example of lazy ownership, the responsibility rests with the owner to license a dog to protect the animal and help the management of feral populations which pose dangers to other animals and is inhumane.
- Stupidity.
- Lazy and cheap. NO excuse not to license your pet. Should be fines (increasing amount per event) for no license! FOLLOW THE RULES if your'e going to own a pet!
- Cost is prohibitive. I have 4 dogs, all licensed, but I find this is very pricey and 3 of my dogs are more like cats (tiny) and rarely leave the house. Why can't we have a household fee instead of a per pet fee?
- Some people just don't care to follow the laws.
- No reason not too
- Education - they don't understand their responsibility to neighbours and being a good citizen.
- Same as above.
- They want a pet they shouldn't have a pet not being treated right there being held hostage in apartments I also cannot afford to have a pet
- they do not want to be responsible for thier dog as licensing is a vey easy process
- Cost
- Costs, dogs stay in the yard only, and the appearance of a cash grab
- the cost
- Laziness, poverty, bad memory with annual renewal.
- We're tired of being "taxed" on everything the city can use to extract more money from us. Most of us feel that a yearly license is just another cash grab. There are many better ways to take care of lost animals that don't require a yearly "tax".
- Laziness and cost.
- Don't think of it.
- See above answer. It also matters that certain drugs cost more to license which is completely unreasonable.
- Cost.
- Laziness
- These are the same people that try to break all rules ... it was how they were raised ... fine them to death ... good luck ...
- no idea - but I believe it is wrong not to license them.
- cost
- cost is primary reason not done. not everyone can pay on line with a cc and not accessible for everyone t get to place to do this.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It seems like a cash cow. I don't see the purpose in it and the owners will almost never see any benefit from it. Maybe license once for life, but to always have to renew it is expensive and inconvenient.
- Cost, not sure what the value is
- It's a cost for something that seems archaic with social media, tattooing, and microchip. The tags are big and metal, and small dogs should have smaller tags. And a replacement fee is charged despite paying an annual fee.
- Belief they won't get caught
- Microchipping is a much more reliable method of identification because the microchip stays within the animal. Collars and tags can come off. Also, the jingling sound of the tag can be annoying to some people.
- Lack of knowledge and lack of enforcement. Limited consequences of not licensing if identified as being non-compliant.
- lazy, cost
- Irresponsibility and non-accountability are the primary reasons. Every dog owner needs to license their animal because every dog eventually goes outside, unlike indoor cats. Absolutely NO exceptions when it comes to dog licensing. Make owners accountable if their dog becomes a nuisance or threat.
- the cost
- It is my understanding that the City doesn't require dogs to get their license. That's strictly for humans, as dogs do not have proper anatomical positioning required for the safe operation of a motor vehicle.
- Cost and not responsible citizens. Rebels.
- Costs, inconvenience, forgetting, or if owners are otherwise irresponsible with regards to how many animals they have, then there is no formal record of them owning these animals.
- Owner laziness and willful irresponsibility. Dogs that are not licensed are not properly controlled. Sick and tired of ill-controlled dogs in this city!
- Those who do not license their dogs just can't be bothered. All responsible dog owners have their dogs licensed. Possibly the ones that don't aren't the best owners and don't want their dogs traced back to them if they should get into trouble.
- ???
- They don't feel they have to, or they just don't want to pay the fee
- Lack of flexibility of payment methods on the website requiring a person to pay in person for a license (need to offer more bank payment options, or paypal, not just credit card and limited bank direct pay)
Higher cost of license for intact animal multiple animals (multi animal discounts may help)
- Cost.
- Often shame at not being able to afford, or not prioritizing it as an expense. Also a lack of understanding for the consequences of not registering.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- For people with multi-pet homes, it can be quite costly to have to license each pet separately. Others may not if they don't utilize off leash areas and do on-leash only walks within their neighborhood.
- Cost, forget, not aware they should be.
- Cost and taking time to complete registration
- Cost
- cost
- Don't see the value.
- Cost, unaware that it's required
- Dog owners may think their dogs are always under their control and therefore not at risk or running away. Cost might also be a factor.
- Cheap
- I don't know. I make sure my dog's license is always up to date.
- Cost
- Cost and fear of being fined if they dog runs loose and is caught
- as above
- Expensive and do not wish to pay, think they will never get checked / caught / lazy owners
- - Lazy
- - Cant afford
- - Lack of knowledge
- Laziness and/or the arrogant belief that the rules do not apply to them
- I don't agree with this. My dog has a tag and an embedded chip for identification. I don't agree with neutering your pet. It affects them physically and its purposes can be achieved otherwise.
- Forgetting to renew?
- Lack of knowledge.
- Same as above
- Again cost, but there is no good reason.
- Not sure. Maybe the cost? Personally my dogs are licenced and microchipped. If they ever went missing, I want the most amount of identification on them as possible
- 1. If it's a very tiny dog and it's never off leash, no licence.
- See above.
- Perhaps they feel that their dog will never be out of their house without them and will not be at risk of running away or getting lost.
- they are irresponsible. they are trying to avoid the rules and not follow them.
- They are cheap.
- Irresponsible pet owners. Why pay if you can get away with it? Also if their dog is picked up by the city they do not want to pay a fine to get it back. Nor do they want to be made to feel guilty for the dog getting away in the first place.
- They feel that it is a money grab and they don't get value for their money.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- General laziness and overall petty cheapness
- Many people who have animals have no money to support them fully. I think if theres a way to make licensing fees based on a sliding scale of income more people would licence dogs.
- DK
- People are dicks. Said otherwise, social loafing
- Cost and awareness.
- Cost, annoyance, not seeing any benefit.
- I am aware of a household that refuses to license their dog until cats are required to be licensed as well.
- Cost.
- Irresponsibility.
- No one is checking whether dogs are licensed or not so the real reason to get a license is so the dog is returned faster should it go missing. Maybe they aren't planning on losing their dog.
- Money?
- Not sure - cost perhaps?
- ALL dogs should be licensed, due to the fact that they are out in public. There should be large fines for those who do not license. Fees are probably the main reason.
- Cost!
- The cost is too high. Often it seems like they will not call owners if the dog does end up in city care. People expect to be contacted if they license the animal and its wearing its tags
- There is really no effective way to enforce licensing the animal, so why bother.
- cost!
- Cost
- Cost
- Cost
- People who do not license their dogs feel the City Bylaw does not apply to them, or they are too cheap to pay the fee.
- Cost and it's inconvenient
- Dont see value in it.
- You get nothing for it. It is simply a tax. People doing paperwork and shaving it. Use the tax money to build dog parks and even a couple with playgrounds for dogs. Smaller fenced in areas on unused city lands in each neighbourhood within walking distance for most - think elderly, families.
- They don't think that it is important. Inconvenient.
- See above.
- They're cheap!
- Cost, process, not aware
- Cost
- Expensive
- Cost and hassle

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- People are dumb and irresponsible.
- The cost is too much in today's economy.
- Don't see value in this
- It requires time and costs money.
- They feel it's a money grab and not necessary
- Cost or not being reminded to renew. Also new pet owners should be told this is necessary as I was not and simply didn't know until I was ticketed
- Honestly it's a waste of money. My dogs have been licensed for years and I've never had to use their licenses for anything besides the city performing polls about what breeds are most popular in which areas. I'd like to see the cost of licensing lowered.
- Can't be bothered
- That their dog will not wander and nothing will happen to them.
- Cost. There is a lack of benefit to doing it overall. It's an annoying yearly hassle. It should be a one time deal. There is little to no benefit to doing it.
- Do not want to pay the hefty licensing cost.
- "Indoor" dog. Worried about "the man" knowing too much.
- Maybe they just see it as another tax and dislike taxes? Or maybe they disagree that the city has a right to charge pet licence fees.
- Cost, irresponsible
- Do not understand the purpose of doing so. Likely neglect other matters in life.
- Cost
- Cost.
- Lazyness, inept at following rules and possibly cheap
- People believe they will not get caught - no expectation of consequences or they are unaware of the laws
- Too costly
- Lazy. Tax money should go into off leash parks.
- Don't want to bother or can't afford licencing. Probably not spaying or giving vaccinations either.
- I don't know why someone would not license their dog. It makes more sense because the city is able to identify them right away with their license number and micro chip. Some owners might not want to pay to register their family member.
- I stopped in Calgary some years ago despite being proponent of licensing . 1) couldn't ever walk my dogs during your ACO hrs without several "he's friendly!" offlead disasters anyway 2) you once gave license info for the Herald to publish online which I was greatly appalled by. 3) I've seen..
- if the dogs are confined to the perimeters of their own yard
- Don't care
- Cost..most expensive fee I've ever paid
- Irresponsible pet ownership
- Money. And the fact that it is enforcement is very time consuming and costly -- eg. difficult.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cheap and irresponsible. Dogs migrate, fact. If they get free and are not exercised properly they will 'migrate' most dogs are found away from home because they are migrating and following their noses. Licensed dogs get returned to owners. Responsible owners know that they want their dogs back.
- Probably barriers in price. Also it's easy to forget to relicense.
- Same as above
- Their dogs are always under control or they don't have the funds
- Cost
- Cost, and inconvenience
- There is no acceptable reason. It's an animal in a city. Licenses are mandatory.
- Cost may be an issue for a certain percentage. Some people just don't respect the laws.
- Laziness.
- Cost
- As above.
- Cost
- Don't know. They should
- Price and convenience?
I plan on getting my dog done but I was also given false information. This is information that should almost be provided at the vet when you're getting your puppy's shots done. Or new information package including all this information
- Maybe they are unaware or have limited income?
- They view licensing as a cash grab and that it only comes in handy to save money if your dog ends up at the pound
- Cost. While I feel our licensing fees are reasonable, I suspect the reason would be costs. Maybe a sliding scale fee structure?
- They travel outside so I feel they should be licensed.
- Finances,
- No comment
- It's a money grab by the city.
- Cost.
- CGY doesn't do enough to solve the issues of unwanted pets. Nor do they support rescue shelters. Program btw CGY and rescues to spay/neuter should be in place. CGY vets should be mandated to volunteer at City s/n clinic to help end the issue of overpopulation/homelessness/unwanted animals
- Laziness
- Cost and convenience
- I would imagine it'd be financial.
- cost, inconvenience, not wanting to be accountable or regulated
- Not sure why a person would chose not to license a dog?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Perhaps cost? Don't know the rules?
- Think the laws don't apply to them. Lack of enforcement.
- They do not want to take responsibility for them.
- Laziness
- Lazy People
- Lazy, cheap, don't like government restrictions
- Not sure, lazy?
- They don't want to pay for it.
- Cost
- The purpose of licensing is unclear. Most dogs are not a nuisance or aggressive. Those that are aggressive or nuisances should have to be licensed to deter further irresponsible pet ownership.
- There is no consequence or penalty and no way of tracking if a dog is licensed unless it actually escapes and is caught by the city. Therefore, not a huge incentive to license, especially since a license isn't cheap.
- Again, maybe it's because they consider the licensing a stealth tax?
- Same as above.
- Cost or convenience
- Affordability, repetitive renewing, lack of knowledge
- Most dog owners that choose not to license their pet is simply because of the fee and denial that they will be caught and fined.
- Forgetfulness or foolishness. Not licensing your dog makes it exponentially more difficult should they run away.
- Cost barrier, not aware of need to license dogs.
- Cost
- Bad citizenship
- Irresponsible pet ownership.
- Don't understand the process
- If they don't take them out and pricing. It costs me 100 for 3 pups but I don't ever have them off leash and mostly take them out of city limits for walks
- They don't want to pay the fee and follow the rules.
- Either a lack of finances, or I have known people who just thought they were so responsible they always knew where their dog was.
- Money and disregard for the rules.
- Animal abuse.
- Indoor dog only. Cost, tax grab. No point in a licence.
- They don't respect laws, their neighbours, nor their community; are self-important, and know they won't be penalized. Key The lack of enforcement (no neighbour wants to raise the issue and the City is not proactive dealing with this, so it continues, as does most of the lawless behaviour in Calgary).
- Cost or the hassle of going down.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No value received from licensing. Feels like a tax on pet ownership.
- Cost, inconvenience. They don't see a benefit.
- Neglect to follow local bylaws.
- Maybe they don't take them out of the house often. And cost.
- Lack of enforcement
- Not aware. The city does a bad job at letting us know. I also don't think we need to waste money on letting people know or even licensing your dogs
- Expense - why wouldn't someone licence their dog otherwise. It would make it easier to find dog owners if dogs were licensed and chipped.
- Irresponsible or unaware
- I don't know. My dog escaped out of the yard years ago. It was helpful to be able to call 311 to report her missing, knowing that if found, her city of Calgary tag would help ensure I got her back quickly. That, and I assume pet licenses help pay for dog bag stations, which anyone on a dog walk uses
- Because they're indoor dogs and don't ever leave the home.
- I don't know. We have always licensed our dogs. They are also microchipped. They are both rescues, loud noises can spook them. I'd want them to be found & able to find us. I think the price is fine. If a pet owner can't afford it, they shouldn't be a pet owner. Pets are expensive.
- They don't want to be held accountable for their pet
- irresponsible dog owners
- irresponsible owner
- i don't know, just illegal behaviour
- People are lazy or they lack access to technology to do it online. Upstream wise, lack of public education on pet ownership is a big one. A lot of people don't know you can register your pets with city of Calgary, so incentive to building public awareness is lacking on city's part.
- Cost, lack of responsible ownership
- Lack of funds.
- Cost
- People choose not to license dogs if the dogs are a dangerous breed or are an attack dog (drug dealers)
Also to avoid responsibility for roaming, damage by dogs.
- Again, laziness?
- Because it's a money grab by the city.
- Same as above
- Costs and liability.
- Money or the dog has a microchip or tattoo for identification.
- Laziness.
- Cost
- Lazy, lack of money, don't want to have animal tracked back to them when they break the rules of at-large.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Assuming they have the dog under control at all times, so the need for a license isn't necessary (won't be lost).
- Cost
- I believe dogs should be licensed and microchipped.
- Cost primarily. There are also people I know of who do not license their dogs because they are small breed that are never out of the house or off the owner's property
- If you have a microchip or tattoo already in place licensing feels like an unnecessary fee
- Same as above. No excuses. A law is a law or do not own a pet.
- Laziness. It's inexpensive and easy to do
- Impose a fine and if not paid or the person does not obtain a license during a certain period of time, remove the dog.
- Cost.
- cost and the regulations that go with it
- Financial, laziness.
- Again ignorance.
- Same as above.
- They are cheap and think they will not be caught.
- They are cheap and think they will not be caught.
- Cost, laziness, don't care, disdain for bureaucracy
- To save money
- Ignorance of the bylaw or they live on their own acreage.
- Perhaps cost, lack of responsibility?
- Laziness
- Laziness or not wanting to pay the fee. I think most people are aware of the requirement for dogs.
- See cats.
- They're not responsible
- Can't afford it, owning pets come cost but just another cost people can't afford, push push to adopt yet most can't afford, some also feel I am sure, why should they license if their dog is a house/yard pet why should they!
- Expenses, $$
- They don't want to pay
- Forgetting to renew
- Money.
- Liability. Having a long record with multiple pet ownership, some of which may have had issues in the past on City files.
- Unknown
- No extra cash
- It adds no value to the owner and should already be included in the exorbitant property taxes
- Cost of licensing fee's and fear of bylaw taking their animal away.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Money
- Uninformed?
- Probably same as above. However, dogs most always are out and to dog parks or walking so important to be licensed
- Definitely the cost
- Cost? Lack of benefits? Not sure.
- Cost, laziness/forgot/lack of time
- May not know about the licensing or the fee may be too expensive.
- I do not know, but I am not sure why this legal. If you avail yourself of public dog parks, you should be licensed or fined.
- They are irresponsible jerks.
- Price, inconvenience, lack of info
- They think they can get away with it
- Cost
- I honestly think we shouldnt have to pay for a licence for each pet. We shouldnt have to pay to register our pet that we are paying already to take care of, love and spoil.
- Money
- I am guessing it would be the expense.
- Money and the hassle to do it yearly etc.
- I licence my dogs because they leave my yard.
- Possibly the same reason. Perhaps hiding their dog ownership from landlords.
- Lack of enforcement. People think they will never be caught or fined.
- Cost and limited benefit.
- Also cost.
- They feel it is a waste of money or costs too much.
- Great question.
- 1:)Save money
2:)Lazy
- No excuse for this, but likely cost?
- Cost
- Again, likely the cost of the annual fee, or they don't see the benefit in licensing their animal.
- Money. I think it should be discounted if you license for 2, 3 or 4 year license, or if you have a few dogs & cats.
- Same reason as above. It's a stupid fee. I'm paying so that other people can have there pets spayed at low cost while I have to pay $700 to spay mine as a responsible pet owner. How is this fair? The responsible are penalized while the negligent get subsidies? Can't afford a pet? Don't get one.
- Laziness. Think they are above the law. Responsible pet ownership
- laziness

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It seems unnecessary to have to do it every year and becomes another added expense to pet ownership.
- Cost or the dog stays in the house.
- The burden of paperwork
- Money
- All dog owners should license their dogs. Dogs get loose more often than any other pet
- I think this is two spectrums far left they are entitled and dont care and will risk getting caught far right they are impoverished and cant afford it. I also think Vets should be required to report to the city unlicensed animals
- Little house dogs in enclosed yards.
- See answer to question 1.
- Stupidity and lack of disrespect of the law. They think that they are above the law.
- Financial or for privacy concerns over their information.
- What are the chances of getting caught.
- didn't know or think needed
- Cost and annual renewal
- Same as above Laziness!!! And entitlement that they are above this. These people are the same ones who don't pick up after their dog & have their dog/dogs off leash. I'm tired of being a responsible dog owner surrounded by people who just don't care how their actions affect others in the community
- The cost.
- they're very irresponsible people
- Lazy and too easy to get away with it
- Cost.
- Don't know. Cost is always one. Remembering to do it?
- Economics. People find a way to (maybe) afford the dog, and then the bills for food, veterinary care etc start rolling in and licensing is just not affordable.
- I don't have one but I would assume cost. Dogs should be licensed as they are outside all the time.
- affordability, no access to computer, not sure where to license,
- don't know.
- rebel thinking
- Not responsible, household finances
- I'd like to know more about them. Are they experiencing housing insecurity? Are they unable to afford it. Maybe ask them.
- They don't want to get caught when the animal does something they shouldn't. Or if the animal gets away.
- Price>value
Dog is senior/little likelihood of roaming, doesn't leave property
- lazy

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

not wanting responsibility for the dogs actions.

- I'm guessing laziness and/or cost. I think a dog escaping is higher risk than a cat, and even though I don't license my cat, I would license a dog if I had one.
- I've always licensed my dogs so I have no frame of reference from which to offer an opinion on this.
- Think they won't get lost.
- Too many dogs in one home to license. There should be a limit on the number of dogs allowed.
- I would imagine the same as for cats.
- Probably too expensive. Or maybe they have a nasty dog they don't actually want to be responsible for.
- Too expensive. The money for licensing does not do anything for the dog or the owner. It lines the pockets of City Hall. For example, Carstairs has free licensing in January every year...it's not about making money, but keeping the furry residents safe.
- as above- they don't understand the purpose or agree with it
- Cost
- Same as above, or lack of funds
- It could be the expense. Or that the dog remains at their home at all times.
- Money.
- Again I don't see why when a dog is microchipped why it needs to be licensed to it seems silly. for example you can scan for a microchip a dog tag falls off.
- Because it is not needed. A license is only a way of politicians to make easy money.
- Don't see the benefit. Think it's just another tax.
- Doesn't make sense to me. Can't help you here
- They don't understand why you need to license your dog. Or they feel that their dog is never out of their control so they shouldn't have to license their dog.
- Laziness and money
- Sometimes I think they just don't know. I got my first dog ever from a rescue and did not know I had to license him until a bylaw officer stopped by. Otherwise it may be a dog that is never let off leash or the property so they think it is unnecessary.
- No benefit to license for the owner. Just a tax cost. I can microchip, put a gps tracker on , collar tag with identification , etc with no requirement for city intervention
- no benefit to owners
- They don't know to do it or don't want to spend $$.
- cost is too high
- Maybe these individuals feel that they are not getting their monies worth.
- Cost
- Cost or forgetfulness
- Money and the inconvenience of payment. There is only credit card and a very limited number of banks on the internet. I would like to see Paypal or e-transfer. Some of us don't have credit cards.
- Freedom of choice; sees no benefit; or unaware this is required (education).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost.
- To me it is irresponsible, I would want my dog to be found in the event it was lost. Some people don't like rules or don't want to make the extra effort when buying a pet. And they may not want to pay the fee.
- I don't know.
- Same thing as above, my CAT will eat my dogs tag (she a big husky but my cat has the power in the family). Please find a way for alternatives for people like us. I want to be responsible, but refuse to pay money for something that I will still be fined for anyways just because they don't have tags.
- have no idea.
- They are lazy and irresponsible.
- as above
- Probably the same.
- Dogs need to be licensed as they are outside. Main reason is the owner does not respect authority.
- cost
- Not sure
- Cost
- Again not sure? Maybe that it's just a dog and not a pet.
- Ignorance and cost cutting.
- Poverty or laziness.
- Cash grab. Prices should be reduced.
- Laziness, avoidance of city bylaws
- Don't want to spend the money.
- They don't understand that it is important and why
- not remembering to license the dogs
- I feel licensing dogs is an absolute MUST!
- Cost, think they won't get caught, don't understand why they have to pay.
- Cost?
- Ignorance about how important licensing is
- The majority of dog owners I know and come into contact with, license their dogs. People with cats however, laugh in your face because they "don't have to". The double standard is very offensive
- If this is happening, it has to be due to the economic conditions. This could be the same reason people abandon their animals. I would suggest a 15% reduction in fees to help.
- Too expensive
- Cost
- Apathy, don't believe it is important
- It is not the cost, because the cost is reasonable, they simply don't want to spay or neuter and is probably hiding the reason for having an animal
- Same as above.
- Cost

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost &/or laziness
- Stupidity.
- Not concerned their dog will run away/need a license
- NA
- Cost
- Same as above
- Cash grab
- It is unnecessary administration with no benefit. Use funding towards dog parks, pet infrastructure etc. And make this clear and people may licence.
- They may have their dogged microchipped and feel that is adequate for identification. Some people just don't want to pay for a license.
- Dogs are not trained or hard to control
- Pain in the butt
- The cost.
- Lack of funds, already have pet microchipped or have own identity tags.
- Cost. They don't understand what the money is used for.
- Fees associated with costs to have needles and spaying
Not educated in/ on benefits
- Cost
- Cost and lack of education/knowledge re: need of a license.
- All dogs need to be licensed.. any animal that is not house bound needs to be licensed..
- All dogs should be licensed especially those who are off leash capable.
- the thought of 'what is the point'.
- Keep forgetting, a longer lasting license would be cool
- Laziness. If you can't afford to license your pet, you shouldn't be able to have one.
- Price! The fees are high especially if your pet is not neutered. For those who are affected by the changing economy, the price to register may not be within their means. There should be a social assistance program for low income Calgarians
- Lack of responsibility as a pet owner.
- Same
- People believe it's a cash grab, and don't see where this money is being spent - specifically to benefit the dog community. It's just another tax.
- Irresponsibility. I don't believe it's an affordability issue because the licenses cost far less than dog food, collars, toys, etc. I happily license my dogs because I want them to be cared for should they ever get loose in a park and need to be picked up. Also I want to support the care of strays.
- Owner says it is strictly an indoor dog. Any dog regardless of size or living conditions, must comply & buy the annual licence.
- time and money

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They don't think they need to. They don't understand how a license will help them if the animal gets lost.
- Don't want to spend the time or money
- The cost?
Ease of licensing. Not having a credit card.
- Lack of responsibility and do not care
- That their dog does not exit their dwelling and/or behaves responsibly in public
- Cost?
- I think all animals should be licensed. I also think the public needs to know where the funds are going and how they are being used. This may increase compliance. Why are intact dogs costing more than spayed and neutered dogs? Intact dogs don't bark or poop more!
- Thinking they won't be caught. Opposition to government oversight.
- Cost?
- Cost. However, having said this, I have a dog that never (and I mean ever) leaves my side when outdoors. He is lazy and never goes for walks. He goes outside to do his business....that is it. He would never walk away from me, let alone run away. I have been very tempted not to license him.
- Money?
- Cost
- don't think it is necessary and don't think they will get fined for not having one
- Cost, low income household
- Dont want to be charged with aggressive dog or are in criminal activities Or they dont care if they lose their pet
- Unsure
- The fee, and having to do it every year
- cheap and or avoiding vicious dog label
- Lack of funds
- Primary reason may be stubbornness--or simply a red neck reaction to rules.
- Cost
- They don't walk them, or allow them out unless they are in their fenced yard with supervision?
- If the dog ever escapes and found. With the owners information they can be reunited.
- The cost for the license. It is nice that it is online, so that's the easy part.
- money and laziness.
- They don't think they'll lose their dog
- Many people don't have the extra money to afford it.
- Might be cost but I have met many who think that dogs should still roam free ?
- Disregard of the law
- I would assume cost and difficulty in licensing. Not everyone has credit cards or easy access to the licensing location.
- If their dog isn't fixed, its pricey.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- See above.
- Dog owners that fail to licence their pets seem to think that the rules don't apply to them and feel the likelihood of getting caught is low.
- I think they would be more licensing of dogs if there was, say a week every 6 months where it was free.
- Lazy and cheap
- Forget mostly. Needs to be reminded and make it easy
- They don't want to take responsibility for their dog.
- they don't think it is important
- they can't afford it or they just don't care and are lazy
- Not wanting to pay the fee. Some people may not take their dogs out often on public property so don't want to bother paying the fee.
- Money, forgetfulness
- Cost, inconvenience, irresponsible
- They probably don't want the licensing department to be aware of a high number (over 3-4)! dogs in the home
- Same as above, I'd think?
- Being lazy and cost
- COST and convenience
- lack of enforcement, lack of understanding of benefits
- old
- Why, what is the point, there is no benefit seen. Also should be a one time license I am guessing - paying every year I am guessing causes people over time to really say, why? Plus less city man hours (tax payers' money) needed for one license vs one for every year.
- Expense and no added service, essentially feels like paying for nothing
- Education
- Cost/ laziness
- The animal is kept indoors or enclosed in a secure area when outdoors
- I do license my dogs. If they get lost they have their license tag and will hopefully return to me when found.
All dogs SHOULD go outside so they should all be licensed.
- Financial reasons
- Idiocy. Poverty.
- Same as above for cats
- They don't see the value.
- Same as above
- Usually bad pet owners that do not follow any of the bylaws including issues around vicious dogs and being off-leash wherever they choose.
- I think it is because people do not want to pay the fee.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It is too expensive..
- same as above
- I would assume cost and perceived hassle. Perhaps they don't know why licensing is important?
- negligence, and no consequences.
- same as cats, but also maybe stupidity. Dogs can run away ...
- They don't want to be responsible for them.
- Inconvenience and cost
- cost and active decision not to
- Cost, time to complete process, lack of importance. I personally don't even like to put a collar on my dog, I use a collar as punishment for behaviour issues.
- The cost and the harassment to re-license yearly.
- They do not want to pay the fees
- Fee
- No idea.... I don't understand why you wouldn't.
- Money.
- Can't be bothered and the cost
- I think it is either that they have something to hide, they are cheap, or maybe they don't understand the rules
- I believe cost is probably a contributing factor, especially if there's an up charge for certain breeds. It is a recurring cost, which is difficult as well. Also they may move frequently which makes the process more of a hassle.
- Laziness? Cost? Not sure.
- Cost and an I don't care attitude.
- Lazy
- N/A My dog is licensed. Having said that - I think people are cheap and don't want to pay.
- Negligence. Because they think it's not necessary? Not sure. My dogs are all licensed.
- Laziness. Cost?
- Cost, or the animal doesn't leave the property so they think they don't need to. Not informed on the laws and benefits
- Do not care if licensed or not. The city does not need to know how many they have
- Lazy or irresponsible. All my pets are licensed.
- N/A
- Doesn't seem necessary or needed.
- Cost.
- Price
- Probably that they forgot to renew and it is unintentional or that they can't afford the license.
- Cost
- Most dogs get microchipped so if lost vets can identify their owners that way do city of Calgary animal license is not needed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- price
- Financial
- Once again I do not understand why people would not license their pets especially dogs who are more oftentimes than not the ones that like to go on their own adventures.
- Cost and again only having the animal confined to their home
- Not informed, lazy, or can't afford it. But if money is a consideration, should someone own a pet? Pets still need to be fed, and that costs money.
- Inconvenience/cost. Difference in registering an altered dog/cat requires no differences yet the cost is higher for a dog, no explanation for extra cost, suspected cash grab.
- money
- Cost. I register mine though
- Id also guess money.
- Cost. You should pay one fee, not annual.
- Cost, money grab for the city
- cost and not knowing the requirement
- Cost
Difficult to license pets
- unable to afford it, don't feel they need to license, lazy, irresponsible
- Price, irresponsible pet ownership
- Not sure why someone wouldn't license their dog. Maybe they don't see a need if it's leashed anytime it is out of the house.
- I do not have a dog, but i assume its because its expensive aswell.
- Financial reasons. They don't have the time. They don't know where to go.
- They may not see the benefits to the cost
- There is little enforcement for this, so there is little need to comply. Public education campaigns go a long way. Calgary was way more successful with compliance in previous years.
- Laziness.
- lazy
- I have no idea why they would not license. Perhaps laziness, lack of awareness, lack of consequence. The cost is so low enough that if your pet is altered I don't see cost being a factor.
- They do not see why it's necessary, seems like a money grab. For most, pets are family members, not an owned object.
- Dogs should require a licence because they can do harm and their owners should be held responsible. If they get out of the yard and are not causing harm they may not be able to find their way home. I support the at large ticket, but only to fund the animal control.
- Lack of knowledge on bylaw requirement, too expensive, no perceived value, unsure where funds go.
- Same as above, it can be a financial barrier to low income families, and it's a hassle to do it every year.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stupidity
- Anti-institutions. And also That they didn't even know it was recommended-required.
- cost
- They don't care
- They are uneducated to the benefits of licensing their animal or are involved in back yard breeding, hoarding or some other illegal activities
- Uneducated about what the fees go towards
- I really feel that it is just a forgotten thing. I got a new dog and literally forgot to get her a license, because she isn't free roaming and doesn't use city of calgary off leash parks etc. It was just a simple oversight after I bought her per insurance, did her microchip etc.
- Cost or too lazy to bother.
- Cost
- Cost. For newcomers, possibly a lack of knowledge that it is required.
- Too expensive.
- irresponsibility. Dog licensing is a well established thing and helps ensure responsible ownership.
- Cost and laziness.
- Same reason as cats, annual licenses fees are a cash grab that doesn't benefit the pet owner in any way after your animal is entered into the system.
- They don't see the value in it
- If the owners are low income, it is not a top priority for them.
- Misunderstanding of the purpose and use of a license- see it as a cash grab
- Not sure.
- Price 100% i shouldnt have to pay double what a spayed/neutered dog costs to have my dogs intact. People dont have to lisenice their children, why do i?
- Same as above.
- They are not afraid of consequence
- Money / cost. Laziness. If there is a limit on the number of dogs, they just won't get a license for some.
- Bylaw officers are not checking regularly and they chance it. Others feel their dogs never leave their property so it isn't necessary.
- I do not know. I license my dog. Maybe people are not aware or realize the benefits or negative consequences.
- Laziness. Cheap.
- Price , having to renew each year, mabey a one time licence ata small charge
- Expense.
- Same as above. They don't allow for off leash or any area where they animal can get into trouble. Identifiable with microchip.
- Cost?
- Lack of education/laziness

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stupidity and inconsideration. Throw the book at them as well.
- They are irresponsible owners.
- forgetfulness, not understanding why they need a license, hard to pay
- Cost
- Did not take the regulations seriously.
- Cost
- Cost
- Cost, no deterrent if caught.
- Price point
- All dogs should be licensed.
It pays for off leash areas, pet conservation officials.
- Expense, disregard for health and well being
- Can't afford it or want to breed their dog
- Cost?
- Price...especially for non puppy status and gender/ reproduction status. Should be the same. Many people get pets as therapy or support or on guardianship programs which means they have to allow breeding by the seller...intact animals cost significantly more to license
- Not aware of requirement to do so
- Unsure
- Affordability
- Money
- Not a responsible pet owner. Don't see how their actions affect others
- They do not want to spend the money and think they won't get caught.
- They may not expect the dog to escape. They may not be able to afford it. They may not be aware of subsidies.
- Cost
- Don't want to pay/ live somewhere they don't think their dog could escape
- Cost.
- Cost. Just not bothering to do it.
- Cost. Must have license before being neutered which costs more than if neutered. It should be the same regardless. Less active dog. Senior dogs.
- Same as above
- the cost and just being lazy. These people should understand that if they want to own a pet they should be responsible to pay for a pet license.
- Cost. Licences should be a one time fee per pet.
- expense
- Same as last answer for cats
- Likely cost.
- as above.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Laziness, inability to follow one of the most forward thinking well respected bylaws this country has.
- Not responsible, can't afford it. Probably should not own pets!
- Irresponsible.
- Fees for licensing based on the cost of sterilization. When they can not justify several hundred dollars for fixing, it is easier to hide the animal from bylaw or stay out of the system.
- Financial and not seeing the need of a pet does not go outside
- Cost. And people don't understand why they have to license there pet.
- Cost
- Lazy - or money. Also they may feel that if they don't take there dog out of the yard it does not matter. more education is really all you can do. I believe in licensing dogs
- Lack of education/awareness of the requirement
- Money, maybe dogs never go out, not sure.
- Cost
- Expense? Negligence?
- Cost
- Cost
- Cost. The cost to take care of animals go through the roof with food, vet bills etc. You charge people if their animals end up in the pound and you charge them for the privilege of owning animals? what kind of BS is that
- Don't know -- dogs are in the public sphere of every community so there shouldn't be any reasons not to license. Perhaps costs or low-income people might not be aware
- have microchipping or tattoos
- There are no benefits to licensing
- lazy...
all dogs need to be licensed.
- Unwillingness to pay the fee. Laziness. Not worried about getting fined.
- Cost and also not wanting to take responsibility if something happens with the dog, unidentifiable
- I think many don't license due to the cost.
- The dog doesn't go outside, it's older or to small for walks or off leash parks so stays on the owner property. Or maybe it's to pricey.
- Money
- They don't want to pay the fee.
- same as above.
- Likely to avoid the licence fee / sense that the fee is too high. Licencing a dog makes sense as they will spend a lot of time outside and the probability of getting lost is much higher, and when lost dogs put themselves in danger.
- Just plain irresponsible
- Lack of education and what licensing does for the owner. Lack of a benefit for them, especially if they're dog does not use city dog parks . Cost of retrieving a pet from the "pound" ends up too much.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost
- cost
- They do not want to pay for it
- cost or illegal hoarding or breeding
- Cost and effort. Or laziness.
- not being able to afford it. not knowing that this is a thing they need to do.
- can't afford it. adverse to administration & bureaucracy.
- see previous comment
- They do not think it is necessary. They do not know the purpose or care about the purpose of licensing the dogs.
- The same as with cats
- uniformed and cost
- Cost of money or time
- Their dogs are never loose.
- All of mine are licence even with the high fee
- Lack of knowledge about the rules and regulations. Not receiving or paying attention of expiring licenses.
- Cost, not knowing the laws, ignorance
- Neglect, totally wrong. Perhaps economic reason, but how can you afford to keep and look after a dog then, as it is not cheap owning a dog
Dogs should also be spayed - neutered ,
- Cost - and an independent streak
- They don't know that they have to.
- Too expensive or just simply do not want to comply; viewed as an unnecessary imposition.
- Cost pets are expensive as it is.
- Same as above, especially as you seem to increase the cost every year for an email which costs zip to send, you don't even supply collar attachments anymore and make people pay again if the dog loses it.
Suggest all animals be microchipped and you can do away with the whole licensing system.
- Lack of responsibility...trying to save money
- Cost of the license as it should be a one time rather than a yearly thing.
- I've honestly just forgotten. I think that the cost is reasonable but having to do it yearly is tedious.
- Primary reason is likely cost,
- Financial.
- Facilities, such as dog parks, are created by the city for dog owners, so a tax is more fair in that case.
- Same as cats the cost, just one expense that they don't want to worry about or can afford.
- Laziness, don't want to get caught if they let their animals roam free. Don't want to pay the cost.
Don't want to immunize animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Too expensive, what is the benefit / point of licensing?
- They may think their dogs don't leave the yards so they don't need one.
- That they don't have the proper vaccinations up-to-date to get their license. Just a theory.
- Pretty much same. People think it's not important if the animal is well trained.
- Avoiding costs
- Lazy, money, don't care enough
- Financial.
- Same as above
- Can't afford it or don't like being regulated "by the man".
- Lack of funds, they don't see the benefit to them, the dog is stolen, they forgot to renew.
- NA
- not being a responsible dog owner
- Avoid spending money, lack of ownership/being responsible, avoiding accountability for dog behavior.
- Financial or ignorance
- There is no reason that they shouldn't be licensed. It is irresponsible not to.
- They do not know the bylaws.
- Stupidity
- Financial reasons
- No idea as they are traceable of lost and the money is supposed to support other pet initiatives
- do not understand process
- Probably the cost but mine are licensed.
- It's just another tax that the city collects and the owners of their pet get nothing out of it. Your dog gets caught you still have to pay to get him out whether he/she is registered or not. I personally don't use dog parks or anything along the city off leash areas.
- Because they aren't responsible pet owners (sorry there is simply no excuse to not license your pet) and think they don't get value for the money
- Not sure, my dogs have always been licensed.
- Lack of understanding of the benefits in terms of finding the owner if lost and not knowing where the license fees go.
- lazy, don't want or think they need to, these are the same people that let their animals roam free even in terrible weather conditions so they aren't going to pay anything, most of them don't take their pet to a vet either, and they don't care if the animal returns, it's just irresponsible behavior
- Too cheap
- They have the animal for some nefarious purpose, are irresponsible and don't care, or don't know the benefits of licensing.
- Laziness
- Tags are expensive and annoying. I paid one year and didn't bother renewing because I forgot/didn't feel like I was getting anything from it.
- Little to no benefit

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Those that do not license their dogs, either don't care if the dog gets lost, unable to pay for licence.
- Laziness, being too busy, or an unwillingness to pay the tiny fee for licensing.
- Possibly fostering for rescue,
- Shows lack of responsibility
- Stupidity and irresponsible dog owner. Costs them money of which they see no benefit. My experience is a dog owner who does not license does not care about their animal.
- Not sure, this one doesn't make sense to me
- Cost and laziness
- Can't afford, can't track "person"
- Cost.
- Not licensing, probably price.
- I have 6 and license them all, people who don't just are people who think the rules don't apply to them or possibly they think they can't afford it
- Income restrictions, or lack of awareness
- No money to pay?
- I have many dogs and I always fear that licensing them will alert bylaw and I will be hassled for my pets. They are all cared for, vaccinated and properly vetted but bylaw has not been friendly to me in the past.
- I think people don't understand the reason and value of licensing. I think the price is also a barrier in some cases. It makes sense to pay more to get an intact lost pet home (like a fine) but if you're responsible owner it shouldn't cost more just to license an intact pet.
- Cost
- It can be cost prohibitive for multiple animals. Beyond that, I think I'm the majority of cases people who are not registering dogs could be doing this to avoid raising red flags about potential 'backyard breeding' situations.
- I think part of it is cost, some completely irresponsible and there are many backyard breeders who turn their animals over so quickly to license them would draw attention but they don't want and if you complain about your backyard breeding neighbour it takes a very long time for an investigations
- Again the animal doesn't go outside.
- Cost- recurring expense
- too expensive
- cost
- Cost possibly!
- My dog is never outside.
- Cost
- Irresponsible
- They are already chipped and tattooed
- Money and rebellion
- Cost, and having a number of animals exceeding the allowed limit.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They don't want to spend the money or they don't care if they lose them.
- they want to be off the grid or don't have the $$ to license their dog (if they can't afford it, they can't afford a dog!)
- There is no reason to license domestic , non aggressive breeds of dogs.
- As above
- Cost, nuisance, forgot to renew
- they city doesn't advertise animal licensing requirements. they also probably don't know what the fine would be.
- Cannot afford the licensing fees
- Other, better identification such as microchips. Cost
- Just plain lazy
- Cost and not seeing a value out of it
- As above.
- Ignorance or costs most likely.
- Laziness? All owners should be required to have pet licenses.
- Money grab by the City. Remove the cost but require owners have a licence.
- Likely cost. Depending how an animal has come to be in someone's life (ie a stray, taking in an animal from someone, etc), there may be true ignorance to the responsibility of pet care and ownership.
- As with cats- perception it's just a tax grab and doesn't matter
- Laziness or cost
- They cant afford it. Or they are an irresponsible pet owner.
- Cost and fear of accountability
- can't afford it
- Irresponsible.
- same as above
- I think they take a chance thinking you'll never be seen by bylaw with your dog or that the dog never leaves their yard dot-dot. Which is a responsible dog ownership. Also some people have warrants and they're probably worried but they will get arrested
- They cant afford it?
- Apathy.
- Lack of financial resources
- Possibly cost.
- Having to pay money to tell someone you have a pet, and not seeing how that information is relevant to anyone other than the pet owner.
- The cost right now money is very tide. And we have two dogs that never leave my home or yard. We do walk them down the street. and never let them off leash
- Laziness or cannot afford it.
- They think they won't get caught

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Licensing pets made sense years ago but doesn't now because people work with their vets for pet care and identification. Why aren't city taxes allocated to manage abandoned animals? Licensing costs a lot of money to administrate and is an additional tax to pet owners.
- Cost or in some cases, neglect or hiding a number of animals, as in 'puppy-mills'.
- cost of licensing; not aware of benefits
- Ditto
- I have clients who have dogs who were not licensed prior to me walking them, this is because they think if they are on leash they do not need to be licensed, or because they are not 6-12 months old they do not need to be licensed.
- Likely the cost. Especially if pet never/rarely leaves household and/or is always under constant supervision.
- If I have a house dog that is chipped & spends all it's time indoors or in my yard that pet imposes NO cost to the city. If I take my dog for a walk, that pet still does not impart any cost to the city. I pick up after my dog so that also imparts no cost to the city. So why a license?
- Its their personal freedom.
Cats & dogs should not require a license
- I can only imagine that it's viewed as a cost-saving measure.
- the cost
- I believe it is generally laziness or a monetary issue.
- Save money
- Cost, laziness, lack of responsibility.
- It's a money grab
- It is an absolute unnecessary expense. It makes no sense at all to need a license to own an animal. Just the government trying to make money any way it can.
- See above
- Cost, forgetting
- Not sure
- Money or thinking they won't get caught
- Being cheap and lazy and not a responsible member of society
- Cost of the license is too high
- Money perhaps.
- lack of responsibility and inability of City to enforce
- Probably cost. I think knowing where the money goes would help.
- Same as above
- I don't have a dog.
- Unrealized benefits, cost, laziness... ignorance... again, more education may be required.
- Same. I can't say that it is cost, because it is the least expensive thing I do for my dog.
- Cost, lack of awareness on need & how to do it, marketing.
- unsure

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- avoiding the risk of a fine
- They may not know it is required or be burdened financially from licensing fees
- they are stay in the yard dogs that are never go outside the property and shouldn't need a licence to be able to find the owner.
- Lack of enforcement.
- cost and potentially behavioural issues
- lazy
- Purely money driven
- No good reason - - licensing should not be a choice.
- Monetary.
- I believe that many think it's a money grab.
- Increase in fees
- Laziness and as above.
- Primarily cost, also can it be done online?
- They just don't want to pay the money and aren't worried about the consdquences if they don't.
- Fees? Not sure
- Cost and time
- My dog is never unsupervised.
- It doesnt leave their house and a fenced yard
- Same as above
- inability to afford the licensing, and perhaps thinking the same....their dog is indoors therefore does not need to be licensed
- remembering without reminders. We all have lots of 'other' prioritizes in mind. Should be an auto-renew with an opt-out feature (instead of opt-in), and emailed reminders should be standard. Lots of options, could be added to property tax, could be paid via vet clinic etc.
- Cost /
- Maybe the cost?
- Laziness, forgetfulness, and yes cost even though it's not that much
- Ignorance
- Cost, and laziness
- Overstepping government. So many taxes and fees already on everything
- If the dog is microchipped it can be reunited with its owner should if get out of the yard. Having a license on a collar is dangerous for the dog when alone.
- No idea
- Laziness.
- Cost and time.
- As above
- what right does the city have to charge me for my pet that costs the city nothing. piss off also, its way too much money.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Saving money.
- They don't let their dogs out unattended ever.
- cost
- cost
- Cost
- They don't know it is a law.
- Unaware that their license needs renewal.
Do not want to pay for license.
- cost
- Ignorance to the actual cost to the municipality for control efforts.
- cost. laziness. maybe ignorance.
- City of Calgary charges quite a bit, with no discount to multi-cat households.
- Cost? Unaware of what the fee provides
- Dog owners don't want to pay out money to license their dogs. Another reason could be laziness.
- Cost of license as well as by law fines if your dog gets out
- Cost?
- No idea why someone should even be allowed to choose not to. Licensing for dogs and cats should be mandatory - if they choose not to, they should be fined if caught.
- We do not pay to license children. Licensing and the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw is demeaning towards animals.
- Cost. Perhaps a reduced fee if you renew. Also reduced fee for multiple animals.
- I don't know. I did have a neighbor once who didn't see how paying the fee would benefit her dog or her.
- I think if a dog is unlicensed it is because the owners don't believe there is anything in licensing that is a benefit to them. It is just a money grab for the city.
- No idea
- Probably cost
- They are unaware that they are required to do so.
- Privacy
- No clue. My dogs are licensed
- Dogs are different from cats, in that some cats never leave their home. Dogs need to exercise and socialize. Perhaps dog owners who don't license their dogs, they may not be able to afford the yearly license or may not treat their dogs the best if these rules are not followed.
- irresponsibility. cost.
- They are irresponsible
- Bad owners. No reason for this. Maybe hiding an aggressive dog, or hoarding.
- See above.
- I suspect people don't license their dogs because they think they're above it, and rules shouldn't apply to them.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't own a dog, but I think people assume a tag with their info will suffice. Again, highlighting the many benefits of licensing for your own dog, but others. Highlight our collective responsibilities. Also highlighting the high licence rate, that's it's normative to licence here.
- Cheap. They don't like authority or their dog doesn't like wearing a collar.
- Irresponsible owners
- same as above
- COST , lack of knowledge what the city can provide. FEAR of policing.. the world is to judge and people are fearful of losing their loved ones
- Too much money or lazy. Some folks truly have trouble affording it.
- don't see the point
- As above. Disregard and respect for bylaws.
- Don't want to pay money to the City, does not want the City to know how many animals they own
- Cost, plus no reminders.
Need online Expiry reminders!!!!
- same input as above.
- It's a cash grab. Licensing does nothing other than keep track of who owns what animals. Why there is a cost associated with it is beyond me.
- I think forgetting to re new is a big thing. Possibly paying for a few years at a time would help?
- Not sure, cost of licensing isn't too bad
- - No enforcement
  - Know they won't get caught
  - No value
  - Does re-unite dogs and owners
  - Not clear that money is being used as it should
  - No guardians & owners
  - Animal rights taking over
- -Voice not same as animal rights groups
  - Not guardian but owner
  - Not as advertised anymore
  - Why penalize if not spayed
  - Should be no diff between spayed and intact in fees
  - Dogs don't go out
  - Seniors
  - Mindset is fixed - either they do or don't
  - Education requirements for getting license
- They might not have enough money or don't want to give money to the government.
- - Cost
  - It's a house dog & never gets except for the yard
  - Had it a long time & never saw the need

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Do not want to pay the fee
Their dogs are well trained
- the cost and just being lazy. These people should understand that if they want to own a pet they should be responsible to pay for a pet license.
- Cost. Licences should be a one time fee per pet.
- expense
- Same as last answer for cats
- Likely cost.
- as above.
- Laziness, inability to follow one of the most forward thinking well respected bylaws this country has.
- Not responsible, can't afford it. Probably should not own pets!
- Irresponsible.
- Fees for licensing based on the cost of sterilization. When they can not justify several hundred dollars for fixing, it is easier to hide the animal from bylaw or stay out of the system.
- Financial and not seeing the need of a pet does not go outside
- Cost. And people don't understand why they have to license there pet.
- Cost
- Lazy - or money. Also they may feel that if they don't take there dog out of the yard it does not matter. more education is really all you can do. I believe in licensing dogs
- Lack of education/awareness of the requirement
- Money, maybe dogs never go out, not sure.
- Cost
- Expense? Negligence?
- Cost
- Cost
- Cost. The cost to take care of animals go through the roof with food, vet bills etc. You charge people if their animals end up in the pound and you charge them for the privilege of owning animals? what kind of BS is that
- Don't know -- dogs are in the public sphere of every community so there shouldn't be any reasons not to license. Perhaps costs or low-income people might not be aware
- have microchipping or tattoos
- There are no benefits to licensing
- lazy...
all dogs need to be licensed.
- Unwillingness to pay the fee. Laziness. Not worried about getting fined.
- Cost and also not wanting to take responsibility if something happens with the dog, unidentifiable
- I think many don't license due to the cost.
- The dog doesn't go outside, it's older or to small for walks or off leash parks so stays on the owner property. Or maybe it's to pricey.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Money
- They don't want to pay the fee.
- same as above.
- Likely to avoid the licence fee / sense that the fee is too high. Licencing a dog makes sense as they will spend a lot of time outside and the probability of getting lost is much higher, and when lost dogs put themselves in danger.
- Just plain irresponsible
- Lack of education and what licensing does for the owner. Lack of a benefit for them, especially if they're dog does not use city dog parks . Cost of retrieving a pet from the "pound" ends up too much.
- Cost
- cost
- They do not want to pay for it
- cost or illegal hoarding or breeding
- Cost and effort. Or laziness.
- not being able to afford it. not knowing that this is a thing they need to do.
- can't afford it. adverse to administration & bureaucracy.
- see previous comment
- They do not think it is necessary. They do not know the purpose or care about the purpose of licensing the dogs.
- The same as with cats
- uniformed and cost
- Cost of money or time
- Their dogs are never loose.
- All of mine are licence even with the high fee
- Lack of knowledge about the rules and regulations. Not receiving or paying attention of expiring licenses.
- Cost, not knowing the laws, ignorance
- Neglect, totally wrong. Perhaps economic reason, but how can you afford to keep and look after a dog then, as it is not cheap owning a dog
Dogs should also be spayed - neutered ,
- Cost - and an independent streak
- They don't know that they have to.
- Too expensive or just simply do not want to comply; viewed as an unnecessary imposition.
- Cost pets are expensive as it is.
- Same as above, especially as you seem to increase the cost every year for an email which costs zip to send, you don't even supply collar attachments anymore and make people pay again if the dog loses it.
Suggest all animals be microchipped and you can do away with the whole licensing system.
- Lack of responsibility...trying to save money

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost of the license as it should be a one time rather than a yearly thing.
- I've honestly just forgotten. I think that the cost is reasonable but having to do it yearly is tedious.
- Primary reason is likely cost,
- Financial.
- Facilities, such as dog parks, are created by the city for dog owners, so a tax is more fair in that case.
- Same as cats the cost, just one expense that they don't want to worry about or can afford.
- Laziness, don't want to get caught if they let their animals roam free. Don't want to pay the cost. Don't want to immunize animal.
- Too expensive, what is the benefit / point of licensing?
- They may think their dogs don't leave the yards so they don't need one.
- That they don't have the proper vaccinations up-to-date to get their license. Just a theory.
- Pretty much same. People think it's not important if the animal is well trained.
- Avoiding costs
- Lazy, money, don't care enough
- Financial.
- Same as above
- Can't afford it or don't like being regulated "by the man".
- Lack of funds, they don't see the benefit to them, the dog is stolen, they forgot to renew.
- NA
- not being a responsible dog owner
- Avoid spending money, lack of ownership/being responsible, avoiding accountability for dog behavior.
- Financial or ignorance
- There is no reason that they shouldn't be licensed. It is irresponsible not to.
- They do not know the bylaws.
- Stupidity
- Financial reasons
- No idea as they are traceable of lost and the money is supposed to support other pet initiatives
- do not understand process
- Probably the cost but mine are licensed.
- It's just another tax that the city collects and the owners of their pet get nothing out of it. Your dog gets caught you still have to pay to get him out whether he/she is registered or not. I personally don't use dog parks or anything along the city off leash areas.
- Because they aren't responsible pet owners (sorry there is simply no excuse to not license your pet) and think they don't get value for the money
- Not sure, my dogs have always been licensed.
- Lack of understanding of the benefits in terms of finding the owner if lost and not knowing where the license fees go.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- lazy, don't want or think they need to, these are the same people that let their animals roam free even in terrible weather conditions so they aren't going to pay anything, most of them don't take their pet to a vet either, and they don't care if the animal returns, it just irresponsible behavior
- Too cheap
- They have the animal for some nefarious purpose, are irresponsible and don't care, or don't know the benefits of licensing.
- Laziness
- Tags are expensive and annoying. I paid one year and didn't bother renewing because I forgot/didn't feel like I was getting anything from it.
- Little to no benefit
- Those that do not license their dogs, either don't care if the dog gets lost, unable to pay for licence.
- Laziness, being too busy, or an unwillingness to pay the tiny fee for licensing.
- Possibly fostering for rescue,
- Shows lack of responsibility
- Stupidity and irresponsible dog owner. Costs them money of which they see no benefit. My experience is a dog owner who does not license does not care about their animal.
- Not sure, this one doesn't make sense to me
- Cost and laziness
- Can't afford, can't track "person"
- Cost.
- Not licensing, probably price.
- I have 6 and license them all, people who don't just are people who think the rules don't apply to them or possibly they think they can't afford it
- Income restrictions, or lack of awareness
- No money to pay?
- I have many dogs and I always fear that licensing them will alert bylaw and I will be hassled for my pets. They are all cared for, vaccinated and properly vetted but bylaw has not been friendly to me in the past.
- I think people don't understand the reason and value of licensing. I think the price is also a barrier in some cases. It makes sense to pay more to get an intact lost pet home (like a fine) but if you're responsible owner it shouldn't cost more just to license an intact pet.
- Cost
- It can be cost prohibitive for multiple animals. Beyond that, I think I'm the majority of cases people who are not registering dogs could be doing this to avoid raising red flags about potential 'backyard breeding' situations.
- I think part of it is cost, some completely irresponsible and there are many backyard breeders who turn their animals over so quickly to license them would draw attention but they don't want and if you complain about your backyard breeding neighbour it takes a very long time for an investigations
- Again the animal doesn't go outside.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost- recurring expense
- too expensive
- cost
- Cost possibly!
- My dog is never outside.
Cost
- Irresponsible
- They are already chipped and tatoood
- Money and rebellion
- Cost, and having a number of animals exceeding the allowed limit.
- They don't want to spend the money or they don't care if they lose them.
- they want to be off the grid or don't have the $$ to license their dog (if they can't afford it, they can't afford a dog!)
- There is no reason to license domestic , non aggressive breeds of dogs.
- As above
- Cost, nuisance, forgot to renew
- they city doesn't advertise animal licensing requirements. they also probably don't know what the fine would be.
- Cannot afford the licensing fees
- Other, better identification such as microchips. Cost
- Just plain lazy
- Cost and not seeing a value out of it
- As above.
- Ignorance or costs most likely.
- Laziness? All owners should be required to have pet licenses.
- Money grab by the City. Remove the cost but require owners have a licence.
- Likely cost. Depending how an animal has come to be in someone's life (ie a stray, taking in an animal from someone, etc), there may be true ignorance to the responsibility of pet care and ownership.
- As with cats- perception it's just a tax grab and doesn't matter
- Laziness or cost
- They cant afford it. Or they are an irresponsible pet owner.
- Cost and fear of accountability
- can't afford it
- Irresponsible.
- same as above
- I think they take a chance thinking you'll never be seen by bylaw with your dog or that the dog never leaves their yard dot-dot. Which is a responsible dog ownership. Also some people have warrants and they're probably worried but they will get arrested

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They cant afford it?
- Apathy.
- Lack of financial resources
- Possibly cost.
- Having to pay money to tell someone you have a pet, and not seeing how that information is relevant to anyone other than the pet owner.
- The cost right now money is very tide. And we have two dogs that never leave my home or yard. We do walk them down the street. and never let them off leash
- Laziness or cannot afford it.
- They think they won't get caught
- Licensing pets made sense years ago but doesn't now because people work with their vets for pet care and identification. Why aren't city taxes allocated to manage abandoned animals? Licensing costs a lot of money to administrate and is an additional tax to pet owners.
- Cost or in some cases, neglect or hiding a number of animals, as in 'puppy-mills'.
- cost of licensing; not aware of benefits
- Ditto
- I have clients who have dogs who were not licensed prior to me walking them, this is because they think if they are on leash they do not need to be licensed, or because they are not 6-12 months old they do not need to be licensed.
- Likely the cost. Especially if pet never/rarely leaves household and/or is always under constant supervision.
- If I have a house dog that is chipped & spends all it's time indoors or in my yard that pet imposes NO cost to the city. If I take my dog for a walk, that pet still does not impart any cost to the city. I pick up after my dog so that also imparts no cost to the city. So why a license?
- Its their personal freedom.
Cats & dogs should not require a license
- I can only imagine that it's viewed as a cost-saving measure.
- the cost
- I believe it is generally laziness or a monetary issue.
- Save money
- Cost, laziness, lack of responsibility.
- It's a money grab
- It is an absolute unnecessary expense. It makes no sense at all to need a license to own an animal. Just the government trying to make money any way it can.
- See above
- Cost, forgetting
- Not sure
- Money or thinking they won't get caught
- Being cheap and lazy and not a responsible member of society

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost of the license is too high
- Money perhaps.
- lack of responsibility and inability of City to enforce
- Probably cost. I think knowing where the money goes would help.
- Same as above
- I don't have a dog.
- Unrealized benefits, cost, laziness... ignorance... again, more education may be required.
- Same. I can't say that it is cost, because it is the least expensive thing I do for my dog.
- Cost, lack of awareness on need & how to do it, marketing.
- unsure
- avoiding the risk of a fine
- They may not know it is required or be burdened financially from licensing fees
- they are stay in the yard dogs that are never go outside the property and shouldn't need a licence to be able to find the owner.
- Lack of enforcement.
- cost and potentially behavioural issues
- lazy
- Purely money driven
- No good reason - - licensing should not be a choice.
- Monetary.
- I believe that many think it's a money grab.
- Increase in fees
- Laziness and as above.
- Primarily cost, also can it be done online?
- They just don't want to pay the money and aren't worried about the consequences if they don't.
- Fees? Not sure
- Cost and time
- My dog is never unsupervised.
- It doesnt leave their house and a fenced yard
- Same as above
- inability to afford the licensing, and perhaps thinking the same....their dog is indoors therefore does not need to be licensed
- remembering without reminders. We all have lots of 'other' prioritizes in mind. Should be an auto-renew with an opt-out feature (instead of opt-in), and emailed reminders should be standard. Lots of options, could be added to property tax, could be paid via vet clinic etc.
- Cost /
- Maybe the cost?
- Laziness, forgetfulness, and yes cost even though it's not that much
- Ignorance

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cost, and laziness
- Overstepping government. So many taxes and fees already on everything
- If the dog is microchipped it can be reunited with its owner should it get out of the yard. Having a license on a collar is dangerous for the dog when alone.
- No idea
- Laziness.
- Cost and time.
- As above
- what right does the city have to charge me for my pet that costs the city nothing. piss off also, its way too much money.
- Saving money.
- They don't let their dogs out unattended ever.
- cost
- cost
- Cost
- They don't know it is a law.
- Unaware that their license needs renewal.
Do not want to pay for license.
- cost
- Ignorance to the actual cost to the municipality for control efforts.
- cost. laziness. maybe ignorance.
- City of Calgary charges quite a bit, with no discount to multi-cat households.
- Cost? Unaware of what the fee provides
- Dog owners don't want to pay out money to license their dogs. Another reason could be laziness.
- Cost of license as well as by law fines if your dog gets out
- Cost?
- No idea why someone should even be allowed to choose not to. Licensing for dogs and cats should be mandatory - if they choose not to, they should be fined if caught.
- We do not pay to license children. Licensing and the Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw is demeaning towards animals.
- Cost. Perhaps a reduced fee if you renew. Also reduced fee for multiple animals.
- I don't know. I did have a neighbor once who didn't see how paying the fee would benefit her dog or her.
- I think if a dog is unlicensed it is because the owners don't believe there is anything in licensing that is a benefit to them. It is just a money grab for the city.
- No idea
- Probably cost
- They are unaware that they are required to do so.
- Privacy

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No clue. My dogs are licensed
- Dogs are different from cats, in that some cats never leave their home. Dogs need to exercise and socialize. Perhaps dog owners who don't license their dogs, they may not be able to afford the yearly license or may not treat their dogs the best if these rules are not followed.
- irresponsibility. cost.
- They are irresponsible
- Bad owners. No reason for this. Maybe hiding an aggressive dog, or hoarding.
- See above.
- I suspect people don't license their dogs because they think they're above it, and rules shouldn't apply to them.
- I don't own a dog, but I think people assume a tag with their info will suffice. Again, highlighting the many benefits of licensing for your own dog, but others. Highlight our collective responsibilities. Also highlighting the high licence rate, that's it's normative to licence here.
- Cheap. They don't like authority or their dog doesn't like wearing a collar.
- Irresponsible owners
- same as above
- COST , lack of knowledge what the city can provide. FEAR of policing.. the world is to judgy and people are fearful of loosing their loved ones
- Too much money or lazy. Some folks truly have trouble affording it.
- don't see the point
- As above. Disregard and respect for bylaws.
- Don't want to pay money to the City, does not want the City to know how many animals they own
- Cost, plus no reminders.
Need online Expiry reminders!!!!
- same input as above.
- It's a cash grab. Licensing does nothing other than keep track of who owns what animals. Why there is a cost associated with it is beyond me.
- I think forgetting to re new is a big thing. Possibly paying for a few years at a time would help?
- Not sure, cost of licensing isn't to bad
- Hiding number of animals and price of license
- It is cost prohibitive.
- My dogs are always in my house or my fenced in back yard and are never walked without supervision, on leash in all public areas and very rarely taken to off-leash parks.
- They did not know this was a requirement (I was a part of this statistic, but have since licensed my dog after learning this information).
- They cant afford it
- Too expensive and a pain if they aren't nuisance dogs. They should only have a 1 time registration fee unless you move or sell the dog, not annual fees
- Cost.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There is no apparent value to purchasing licenses for pets.
- People just don't want to pay the price to license dogs, although I think it is reasonable
- Laziness, money
- There is no reason not to license a dog.
- Cause it is yet another way government sticks thier nose into our privaye business
- Cost, going to registry
- Finances
- Not entirely sure. To me, it seems like a no-brainer for any animal - especially those going into the community - to be licensed for its own protection as much as for the protection of others.
- Apathy
Puppy mills staying under the radar
- Not necessary! Just another cost with no benefits to owners
- Waste of money/no service provided in addition to license or not aware of requirement.
- Not educated that its required
They dont want to pay the yearly cost
They don't want the city to know how many animals they have
- Laziness. A lot of animal owners do not bother with licenses or regular or health care for their animals
- perhaps they keep their dog tied up and so no threat to running at large and just a unnecessary expense to pay for no reason if animal is contained
- Lack of information on how and where to license their dogs, and having to pay a higher price.
- The facilities provided by the city are far from sufficient: no fenced off leash are within 5km from my place, not enough garbage bins. Seems the license fee ist just another money grabber without any real justification.
- Finances
Return
Exploitation (breeding etc)
- They don't want to spend the money
- They cannot afford the cost.
- They may not be able to afford a license
- Unknown.
- Laziness
Lack of interest tonpay
- Lazy
Irresponsible
- Cost
- Fees, hassle, in select cases likely from trying to get around bylaws for number of dogs allowed.
- Probably cost and maybe they don't want to reveal their breed of dog, eg. Pitbulls (I assume that the city tracks this information re how many potentially dangerous dogs there are in the city.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- finances
return
exploitation (breeding etc)
- Avoiding having to know the rules around responsible dog ownership. Avoiding any potential interaction with the city and it's administration.
- Probably extra cost and effort and they don't consider the value of doing it.
- Laziness, forget to renew, something nefarious going on (stolen animals, puppy mills), finances (although if you can't afford this fee, can you afford to have an animal)?
- Irresponsible pet owners who don't want to be caught when their dog is noisy/nuisance/vicious.
- Government legislation has allowed people to consider animals as disposable, causing many to be ignorant rather than uneducated. An older dog with health issues should not have to be licensed if they don't leave one's property for a walk.
- Not responsible.
- expense, laziness, owners above the law, owners not responsible
- Money and expenses. Lack of knowledge on where money goes too
- Same reason as the cats.
- Don't see the benefit. Seems like an extra cost. They don't expect there to be any consequences if they don't.
- I'm not sure, it has been around as long as i can remember so there is no excuse.
- Cost of license, exploitation (breeding, etc), dangerous dogs.
- Recently rt'd to Calgary; and have no interest in a license when there is no park for me or her. What do I get for my small dog now that I have mobility issues? No city parks address this need. Before I was disabled I had parks for my dog, now it seems I have to drive to Airdrie. Sucks!
- ignorance
- They don't want the administrative hassle or cost.
- Cost.
- Laziness
- I think licensing in general is not appropriate that would be like licensing a family member. Also the licensing fees are very high
- Irresponsible pet ownership. I believe these are also the people who don't bother to vaccinate, spay or neuter their pets.
- Finances; Lack of return on investment (don't see/know what benefit they are getting); Exploitation (breeding operation, etc.)
- Not wanting to pay the fee. Libertarian approach to life.
- Mostly I expect they object to paying the money and not seeing why they need to do so and no return. Some do not have the money.
- Unaware of the need or the cost.
- They are justifiably confident that no one has the courage to report them and even if they do you won't do anything about it, and even if you do, the penalties are trivial.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same as my comment for cats. Perhaps there is an issue with breeders or import/export that I am unaware of but ultimately it comes down to money (unfortunately). If I'm forced to pay to register a pet I would likely oppose. Otherwise no big deal.
- - People don't understand what their licensing fees go towards.
- - People are cheap, a large percentage only provide their pet with it's basic needs, so they are loathe to give up their money to the city for some invisible service.
- - Lax enforcement fuels fee avoidance, especially due to the economy
- Lack of money and lack of education.

What would encourage pet owners to license more consistently

- remove fines and ask owners to microchip their pets
- Create a business licence for dog/cat sales in Calgary. As part of this Business Licence make it mandatory that the business require new owners to licence pets.
- what about adding benefits to licensing like discounts with local businesses? They used to have that, but it was poorly executed.
- Automatic renewal - have owners sign up for it and then send them a yearly reminder when its being processed
- You could also link licenses to a microchip to further ease of reunification.
- Licensing is an administrative exercise. Every animal should be microchipped.
- easier to access location to make payments by cash or debit, allow online payments via Paypal
- Licensing should be a one time only fee. If the information changes, an admin fee could be addressed.
- Partnering with rescue associations to give them complementary one year license or discounted license at time of adoption if they are a Calgary resident. Providing info pamphlet for the adoption agency to send off with the adopted animal on renewing that membership, regulations going forward. Restricting access to offleash dog parks to registered animals only. Have a fine if unregistered animal is using off leash area
- Require all pet rescue/adoptions have animals registered and then transferred to new owner. Cannot take home pet until proof of license provided.
- Discounts for breeders
- Help pay for microchips
- Enforcement.
- Have it mandatory for vets to report unlicensed animals.
- Really I would think the cost may be a sticking point.
- I don't necessarily agree with pet licensing/see the value
- Not charging more for intact dogs especially if they're show dogs.
- fee reduction
- Discounts for multiple pets in a household.
- Incentive programs for responsible dog ownership. For example a reduced cost for dogs who have obtained a Canine Good Neighbour Certificate from the Canadian Kennel Club, title in obedience or

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

rally obedience. All Canadian Kennel Club performance sports and the Canine Good Neighbour Certificate are open to non-purebred dogs.

- Cats who are primarily inside only could have a way cheaper cost but still a reunification means.
- Not having higher fees for intact pets.
- lower fees for multi-year licensing
- on line licensing, e mail reminders
- A single, one time license fee when you first get the pet
- when animals are licensed they must be chipped as well...
- A one time license registration. Why am I doing this every year??? Or, why is it the same price for each year....why not $100 to initially register, and $5 each year after? The city is financially punitive for so many things, why also on pet ownership?
- no charges if animal is found ( if it got loose)
- Multi pet discount, no charge impound fee
- Notifications (again, via an app?)
- Subsidies for low income (i.e., grooming/vet/etc)
- Discounts for microchipping
- Actually work with people not just enforce. Make affordable options for people in a tough spot. Possibly offer cat licenses for free for first year to get cats licensed in the first place. ACTUALLY Attend cats at large complaints from neighbours and track down owners
- Fees that are less for cat owners who do not ever let their cats go outdoors.
- Seniors should have reduced rates.
- The option of registering their microchip instead of having to wear tag.
- No fees like Rockyview has done.
- Reducing the cost of the license (ie: renewal is half the cost)
- Discount for multi-dog homes
- Taking the animal away from them.
- Education, it's a small price to pay to ensure your pet is returned should the unthinkable happen and they become lost.
- no licence for cats and reduced licence fees for dogs that have been through training classes.
- Promote responsible pet ownership by giving incentives
- Cheaper for inside animals
- My pets have visible identification and fully updated microchips. A city tag would not help and I would not be motivated to register them.
- Perhaps have the same fee for 2 years rather than one
- Anyone who uses a vet, can get it chipped or ear tattooed. May work with vets?
- Multi animal discounts. Early licencing discount, multi year licensing. Make it a benefit for owners to do it, so they get something out of it.
- Lower fees.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Discount for those animals left intact with CKC titles and health testing proving responsible pet ownership
- License and then a rebate back that can be used at their vet clinic. .
- Combine with micro chipping for a good price
- Year reminders! Why have the notices stopped?!
- Discounts for early payment and senior citizens
- make it easier for people with financial/ oranixzational challenges. pets are often a hug plus in quality of life for people that have emotional, mental, life challenges, Make it easier for them to comply with city expectations.
- Mandatory microchipping of the pets
- Vet care requiring pets to be licensed.
- Microchipping and or tattooing is better id method; if the dog has lost his collar or doesn't have license id on him, how do you reunite pets with their owners? Why not require people to pay for tattoo/microchip at purchase/adoption.
- After 10 ( or 12) years of continued licensing without any reports or never being late with licensing fees, dogs should then get a free license until they pass. A dog always licensed and never the subject of complaint should get some "reward"
- Smaller fees. In today's economy, people are struggling. More than you realize
- Some municipalities offer a no cost registration if their dog is a 'good citizen'. Meaning they pass behaviour tests that show excellent socialization skills and recall ability. In turn the city waives the registration fees or reduces them. Another idea is reduced fees for producing yearly proof of immunization
- Multi-animal home discount.
- maintain dog parks and off leash areas. I currently pay for my dog and have nothing in my area (Coventry Hills) I would pay more if the city would give me a proper place to take my dog and was well maintained and not just a mud pit!
- Maniditory tagged or chipped
- Benefits of licensing
- Reasonable fees
- Perhaps for seniors handicapped or low income a small fee is charged to enable location of a lost pet
- Should be a cheaper rate for strictly indoor cats
- Microchip
- Similar to the neuter/spay program ... fee should reflect to the fair entry guidelines
- This seems like a cash grab. I don't believe the money goes to reunifying pets and owners
- Lifetime? As a option for each pets life....
- No fees - there is fees/tax on everything. Pets are therapy and having to pay a fee is ridiculous and can stop low income families having a loving pet..

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- License fees linked to income levels; discounts for households with multiple pets that are complaint free homes.
- One time licensing fee.
- Free or bonuses like free bus fare for a day
- Cat owners should be able to have a virtual license for their cats. My fear is a cat getting caught up on something by the collar and getting strangled to death.
- going back to the old system of every animal coming due at same time rather than all over the year if you have multiple animals
- Microchipping and just having a tag on their dog instead of a license.
- No charge on fees - but a service charge upon discovery/return. Waivable in the event that the owner is impoverished.
- EDUCATION and many outlets such as social media, through vet clinics, etc.
- Seizing of animal after x warning
- Ease to license. Ex: Done through a vet or with an adoption.
- Remove the 'how many you can have rule' - have by-law officers do random welfare checks on homes that have more than 4 animals. Offer FREE informal informational 'animal care' sessions by partnering with local vet clinics - they love to share and teach.
- Lower cost of spay and neutering.
- You should only have to licence your pet once.
- A larger one time licensing fee and then a renewal fee that is cheaper each year following.
- Late fees or extra fines aren't the answer, make a sliding scale or make licensing 5$ or free and you'll see a drastic uptake in licensing
- There are other ways to reunite pets with owners. Licencing is not the only answer.
- If person truly can't afford it and shows that animal is major positive influence their lives than maybe waive the fees
- No more fines! Due to my personal experience years ago that I tried updated my dog's license info of my home address and I never received the mail to pay the license to my new address.
- Unlicensed pets are deemed feral animals to be captured and disposed of.
- A single licensing month per year during which time a media blitz could remind pet owners about the benefits of licensing their animals.
- Benefits, reduced costs on first offenders should the animal go missing.
- You need to alter requirements. It is also a fallacy about the reunification process. Irresponsible owners do not go searching for their pets.
- Microchipping is the BEST way to get a pet home...not a license.
- This should be free.
- Discounts for multi pet homes
- One time license
- With my now deceased cat, I had a chip inserted, and a tattoo. Both provided details for reunification. So a license, for an indoor animal seemed like a cash grab.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't think licensing is necessary.
- Breeders and rescue organizations must include licensing as part of the adoption fee and provide it. All animals are delivered neutered/spayed and licensed.
- Park patrollers checking! 3 warnings, your out! Ban from using parks if not licensed.
- Rewards/discount for people that consistently licence pets
- Proof of regular vet visits to be submitted as part of a license issued
- discount for all spayed.neutered animals, discount with completion of Canine Good Neighbour test,expanded discount programs like the "Love Your Pet" one
- Should make the fines have more weight like when you get a speeding ticket you have to pay it before you get to renew license or registration. Need to make more accountability or punishments on irresponsible owners
- Dont increase fees every year..simple as that!
- An automatic payment option would be great. Set your credit card (which should be manageable online) and away you go.
- No fee. Tatoos and chips worked just fine before licences.
- Multiple animal owner discounts
- The fee should be minimal or free for full compliancy. Those with multiple animals should be given a break. Again Permanent ID in the forms of Tattoo or Microchip are more affective for reunification as they are always on the animal unlike tags which often fall off.
- Disallowing ownership of pets for repeat offenders; enforcement.
- Automatic renewal option on property tax form or other annual mailout
- For cats: one-time lifetime licensing fee
- Lower licence fees for older rescue animals.
- You're wrong about licensing, if you license them once you'll have the information. Licensing annually is a money grab. Encourage microchips.
- it should be cheaper. if the obstacle is locating your animal and verifying it's yours then why such an expensive fee. if someone has 3 animals let's say it gets very expensive.
- How about overall lower licensing fees? Oh right, this is the City of Cowgary. They don't know how to reduce fees, just increase fees and overhead.
- Partner with some training companies to get a discount upon licensing or renewal, or just for proof of license
- ONE TIME REGISTRATION FOR ANIMALS. Scrap annual license renewal. They are family members not cars on the road.
- Low cost and one time licensing.
- Advertising about the overall benefits to the City of licensing pets regarding the monies received. Also, pets are getting stolen more often so if a dog doesn't roam, it may still be found & traced if it has a licence. All breeders/importers should sell dogs/cats WITH a City licence that can then be transferred to the new owner.
- That the money goes to help pets in need, pet-friendly city areas

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Confiscation of pets.
- Discount for having more than 1
- If you don't perceive any benefit, why license? There needs to more than reunification. Most pet owners don't think their pet will get lost, so why bother?
- Mandatory microchip is more effective. Dog licenses feel more of a cash grab for the City
- only a minimal fee for a renewal license
- Permanent forms of ID should be considered (license your dog and bring him in for free microchip). Tags are not permanent.
- Discount to owners who haven't had to use the reunification year over year.
- more education for few residents - I know 2 people who didn't know licensing pets was required until I told them
- Reduce cost dramatically.
- What is gained ? My pets already are chipped and tattooed
- There's honestly nothing that would make me register my dog, unless it was free.
- Multi animal household license discounts
- Discounts for housecats
- Do not release the animal until they pay the fine and ensure the animal is cared for following all the rules.
- multi pet discounts
- Multi year licensing discount rate.
- Easier transfer process if the pet previously was licensed by someone else.
- Education. If someone doesn't pay in the first place fees and fines won't work on them.
- Do not reunify if not liscensed. large large fines
- Lower cost for indoor-only cats/higher cost for outdoor cats. Or free licensing/registration but then pay the fee to be reunited when the pet is lost/found.
- If the animal is microchipped or tattooed, reunification shouldn't be a problem
- Greatly reduced fee, in any fee at all, for chipped animals.
- Discounts for multiple pet owners
- Lower licensing fees and larger incentives for spayed and neutered animals
- one time fee to get the tag, to re-unite their pet with their owner in an event where the pet gets lost. not yearly.
- More affordable and less threats to people who choose not to.
- I have 2 dogs, I would prefer to licence them on the same date but it isn't an option
- Investigate if Veterinarians, pet food stores, other dog services would offer discounts to pet owners with city registered pets in exchange for advertising on a web page on the City of Calgary site.
- I think if an animal is microchipped, they should not have to be licensed
- Free
- One time fee.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Free vet check ups paid for by licence fee. No one wants the city grabbing more money. My cats are chipped what's a licence fee going to do for me?
- No need to at all— responsible owners ensure their dogs are chipped and/or tattooed and/or contained and/or trained. As such the city need not get involved. If city picks up lost dog owner can contact city and find it that way— NOT the other way around. You're also assuming a lost dog will always have a collar or id of some sort. This is purely a money grab.
- Ease of obtaining licences; online program helps. More advertising or email program?
- Eliminate the fee (like Rocky View County)
- Discounts for pet supplies and services.
- Register with no fees
- Yearly decreasing discounts until a base rate is met that is super affordable. Multi pet discounts. Partner with the VCA! They are buying up clinics left right and center. Anyone who licensing their cat or dog or whatever gets a discounted service at the VCAs around the city.
- Cheaper licensing fee's. Living in the USA for years the fee was between $10-$20 depending what state we lived in. Many of the states do multi year or one time only fees and you just have to update when the pet passes.
- Discounts are nice too but access to highly desirable off leash areas. Or lie a register your dog and bring to a brewery event.
- Some real value for the cost. As a responsible pet owner, I am paying for the irresponsible ones.
- Increased public awareness about the benefits to them & the animals at ABS.
- A low income option.
- Multi animal discounts
- No cat licenses. That's a money grab with too few actual benefits
- When a pet has a microchip, and has been fixed, the license should be free.
- Include the licenses on microchips so that if they get lost without a collar then reuniting is still possible
- Discount on vet bills or pet supplies or a small tax write off. Or access to free or inexpensive training.
- License required at time of purchase. Done deal. Fines for those caught.
- please consider auto renew? AMA and Service Alberta are trial for auto renew and I have signed up for Jan 2021. Leave my license plate and credit card on file. A few weeks before the transaction email goes out
- A one time licensing fee, why are you milking money out of us?
- How about microchips instead of licensing?
- Decrease in price may encourage for people to license their pet.
- Free for low income, easy to do online or with an app
- Education. Show the public how a licensed dog was returned to the owner sooner because of the licensing

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- microchipping is known to be more effective (tags fall off, collars fall off) - offer a discounted microchip program along with licensing
- start taking animals away from those that don't want to follow the rules
- Require that all pet sales include all relevant licenses.
- One time licensing fee
- Indoor licensing for cats. Offer it at a better rate. Think of it like insurance: if you drive your car around everywhere, your insurance will reflect this. If you have it parked with fire and theft insurance, it's a HELL of a lot cheaper. If the City offered multi-year, CHEAP indoor cat licensing, I can promise you'll have way more folks doing it. On the sole fact that the cat MIGHT get out and need to be returned. Not a lot of people can afford a 'what if' preemptive action that is too costly. Example) having multiple indoor cats.
- Fixed pricing. Why is a neutered dog cheaper than a non neutered dog?
- Exceptions for small, indoor only pets especially for seniors and those on AISH
- If an animal is found unlicensed repeated, the option to seize and re-home the animal should be an option.
- Education from a more human perspective on why it's important. Include stats about the number of animals unable to be reunited, or that are lost and never found each year
- Stray animals are put down after 3 days of capture.
- Make them aware of stress on animal
- No charge if not financially able to pay.
- Why bother with an unlicensed pet. It's the owners responsibility.
- Auto-renew option
- Immediate seizure of unlicensed pets.
- discounts for owners who renew licenses every year.
- Permanent Licensing. Often pets are tattooed or other identification but it is not unified with the city licensing system. So why have it.
- Instead of licensing, microchipped or tattooed animals are much more beneficial. Considering not all animals wear their license. Vets and pounds scan the animal and its much more effective.
- Make it affordable. 10 or less.
- Cheaper license fees
- a one time fee to register pets vs annual licence fees
- Impound/destroy unlicensed animals.
- Perhaps work with vets to make licensing a requirement of getting an appointment.
- More information on the benefits
- household pet ownership membership fee. It is too expensive and many people just avoid paying altogether. With 4 licensed pets, I have considered not paying (It is getting expensive and I am compliant and always have been.), but I am a law abiding person, so I do pay.
- Education of public. Focus on reunification rather than punitive reminders.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- ALL RESPONSIBLE pet owners would do ANYTHING to find there lost pet, absolutely ANYTHING. Checking in with the local shelter is usually the very first thing every RESPONSIBLE owner does. If your pet is rescued by the shelter simply charge an appropriate fee that pays the cost of this service ...ie $300 etc.. If the person is NOT a RESPONSIBLE pet owner then they won't care about checking with the local shelter, and therefore probably should not be reunited with any animal anyways...
- Very low fees and free renewal. Don't fine or impose late fees. A tag on the animal is all that's needed, not continual renewals.
- Licensing should be a one-time cost per animal, and it should include microchipping the animal
- online renewal, renewal notices
- Public ostracizing. Occasional stoning.
- License required at the time of adoption & microchip
- refunds for licenses if pet passes away, multi-animal discounts, no difference in fees for intact animals
- If you need to see a vet, you should have to provide liscence first.
- Licensing based on how many pets are in your household with a discount based on numbers and by their size, age and activity level.
- More reminders.
- No fees!!
- Reduced fee for microchipped pets
- Require registration to receive veterinary care
- If reunification is truly a priority, perhaps integrate the licensing with chipping, or discount the license if the animal is chipped.
- Not being penalized when their dog/cat is found on the first offence - mistakes do and can happen.
- Walk in licensing with little to no information gathered of owners.
- First year free & better education on re-unification and fines based on ability to pay.
- Annual reminders by text or email - like you do with garbage pickup.
- Fines dont encourage people to register pets. Convenience does, keep that in mind.
- free licensing for pet owners with low incomes, and seniors
- Licences once. Have it indicated on your driver's license. When you move and update your drivers licences you get a reminder to update your pet licences.
- Multi pet discount
- Give the responsible dog owner who never loses his pet something for the tax. Give it more value. Most vets put chips in the ears or similar. They have identification.
- Option for donation to central pot for low income pet owners to enable them to licence/neuter at reduced fee.
- 1 license for every animal in the house. Pay 1 fee per house not animal.
- Vet discounts could be offered for yearly vaccinations for licensed animals or other incentive programs could be offered (chew toys could be given out at the time of licensing).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stop charging for it.
- Threats and punishing fines are not the way to increase compliance. Provide more SERVICES for licenses. Take lost and found reports at minimum for crying out loud. I once lost my friends very shy newly adopted dog... 311 just wanted info to fine me/owner. They refused to contact me if people called in sightings. This was a dog ACOs were never going to be able to catch. I felt like they would rather let the dog run in traffic and catch her themselves so they could do fines.... than help the dog live, by helping me and people she will approach, find her. It was very dissapointing because cities were I did animal control maintaining up tomdate lost/found repts was CRUCIAL to reunifications. In Calgary you let randoms on Facebook do this which is quaint, but kind of embarrassing.
- dog tatoos and gps chips
- People know how hard it is to manage fees. Maybe have "spot checks" where people take their dogs frequently? Not often but a couple of times a year.
- System to control how people purchase pets - shouldn't be off of kijiji - this is the earliest point of intervention
- Providing information when you first get your puppy either from the person selling or a vet, this information is not readily available. Leaving it with a health care professional would encourage others to take it more seriously
- One time licensing. Most people have their pets microchipped, but city pounds refuse to contact the info on the chip unless the animal is also licensed. If its not licensed they charge 4-5 times as much to retrieve it.
- Big discount for lifetime license
- replacing licensing with a subsidized program to Chip the animal
- Only charge for the tag, it's a money grab.
- Dogs might live for 10-15 years. Issue a 'lifetime dog license' to a dog owner. If owner moves, licensees address has to be updated within 30 days.
- You need to be transparent in fees collected, what they are used for, how many pets are s/n in your state of the art facility, more engagement from the City to end overpopulation. Do not feel you are doing enough to end issues of overpopulation therefore don't feel licensing is something people with indoor only cats wants to contribute to.
- It's really not that hard to license a pet. You fill out a form and every year it just auto bills a card.
- One time licensing
- Responsible pet owners have their animals tattooed or micro chipped when Spayed or Neutered. Vets maintain accurate documentation of this, thus are a excellent method of reunification.
- Lower cost
- I don't believe that the goal of licensing is reunification.. I think it's a cash grab
- Free to license for life.
- $10,000 fines for non-compliance; public shaming in the news (print the names and addresses of offenders like they do with drunk drivers).
- Discount on vet fees

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Re-unification isn't enough of an insention, other benefits should be explored.
- Pets are microchipped are vet. Just use that.
- I do not beleive indoor only pets should require licensing. Microchipping is the best way to identify my tabby cat from all the other tabby cats etc. and this is becoming more and more the standard
- discounts for regularly licensing your pets! There are currently no appropriate incentives to reward those of us that follow the licensing rules. Its cheaper to not license your dog because tickets for unlicensed dogs are rarely given, people get out many warnings
- discounts for those who continuously license their dogs
- Whatever you do, it needs to be STRENGTH BASED, negative punishment will only result in poorer results. Provide easier access.
- This service should be free! Do parents have to pay to license their kids?
- Immediate pet removal, no pet sales without proof of licensing
- Lower price
- Program needs better monitoring
- reminder notices
- Making it a required condition of sale. Make the seller just as responsible as the buyer. Or get vets involved somehow.
- No fee licensing
- Reminders
- Cats and dogs can be tattooed to help with loss and reducing the yearly fee far to much for indoor cats. I can see it for outdoor cats and dogs.
- Animal siezure / ban if they are caught repeatedly skipping licensing. Not licensing is irresponsible & shows they should not have animals.
- One time license (for life of pet)
- Its rediculousti have to pay to register and own a pet.
- Indoor cats not requiring licensing. People tattoo and microchip their pets, so why license them in addition to this?
- Be cheaper.
- Include training in fee if licencing is necessary. How to manage an animal effectively similar to a vehicle licence.
- I have known animals that have been picked up by animal services and are licesenced but owners are not contacted. More trust would help.
- For me, if the cost of licensing was cheaper if your animal has permanent ID and is fixed.
- Maybe vetrenarians must be able to see a license before providing services. Same for pet supply stores. Do not sell pet items to people who can not show a license for their pet.
- Owners should also be encouraged to tattoo and microchip as well as licensing. Perhaps offering a discount for pets who also have this permanent form of ID.
- Discount for paying for numerous years and for numerous animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Multi pet discount in addition to early licensing discount. Or just don't charge one. And fine the people who are negligent.
- Provided services paid for by licensing fees
- Education on the benefits of licensing.
- Free for first time pet owners.
- pet owners have other ways to re-unite with dogs through microchip and tags, so lack of necessity
- Much lower costs for licensing
- If officers can confirm the existence of an animal at a residence the home owner should be sent the license and bill via registered mail and be forced to prove the contrary vs licensing being forced to try and gain licensing compliance.
- There needs to be a refund option with the multi year licensing such that if the animal passes I unexpectedly, they would be prorated back their fees.
- Overall lower fees.
- very high fines for not doing it, with better bylaw enforcement and more patrols.
- As I said, if people aren't licensing their pets it's most likely because they are irresponsible owners hoping to limit their liability. Fines are probably the only way to encourage that population, though I can't imagine enforcement would be feasible.
- perhaps some help for seniors who may not be computer literate
- Free during a short period of time (like Carstairs...free in January, but have a small fee the rest of the year)
- this is getting into incentivizing/deincentivizing behaviour. Absolutely not fines or fees: many people likely are low income, fines will only burden them further making them less likely to license. Notifications in the mail, an option to tag it onto property tax if they are home-owners, something like that would probably work better. Make it easier for people.
- Lifetime license for animals. Also maybe don't give cats and dogs up for adoption after a week. It should be a fine paid by owner after a certain time. Not a countdown to the city breaking up a family.
- A discount would be attractive, but those who don't believe the license are a real need but a way of politicians to make easy money won't fall for that.
- Describing what the fee is for to people better
- All pets are chipped and tattooed the city license is obsolete. If you want owners to license their pets give a larger discount, like the city used to, for pets that are spayed or neutered. The current discount is a joke..
- it's too expensive - for the price of the license we get very little. zero benefit if you have a cat. a bit more if you have a dog but the dog parks aren't maintained and there aren't enough - so again - not much benefit.
- Incentive programs, like winning a prize for a free yearly basic checkup if pet is licensed.
- More options than just tags (perhaps include a licensing number, that we can include on our own collars (I get mine made, has my pet's name, my cell phone number, and could also include licensing

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

number if this option was available) - perhaps could offer a cheaper option for those your are only giving licenses numbers and no tags.

- Let owners be responsible to pay for and tattoo their animal to help them be found.
- Free and available online for licensing. One time per pet.
- Could discounts be applied as licensed animal ages, with bonus for owner not having any infractions or instances of at-large animals?
- A no charge license for seniors
- Free licensing
- Forced microchipping and not having to pay a license fee
- One time licensing - flat fee. Literally no reason to renew each year. This creates an administrative burden and cost,
- Not sure what you mean by scalable fees, but how about a discount for each year the dog is licensed. Lets reward people that do the right thing.
- Educate yourself and others
- Go back to lifetime licensing on cats at least. The fees are insane now... I definitely thought twice about actually paying this year.
- More knowledge on why licensing is benefitting the pet community in general
- Taking into consideration why the animal was picked up vs fining everyone regardless of the reason. Sometimes pets get loose from perfectly responsible owners who have licensed their pets, and I don't think they should be fined. However, if it's a repeat "offender" and/or circumstances that were very easily preventable, then a fine would be warranted.
- Give licensing for free if they bring their pet in for vaccination, or vice versa
- Lower cost.
- Basic license fee for all animals spayed or neutered
- Discounted microchipping for license holders (since the reunification argument is being used)
- More reasonable license fees. Seriously.
- Impoundment of the animal
- Give lower incomes a break...
- Discounts based on income or as mentioned above short periods of time the year where it is free
- Why isnt tattooing and micro chips enough!? Can't the micro ship information be sent to the city or registered with the city when the pet is adopted? Are 3 forms of identification really necessary for animals?
- Late fees will make people less likely to comply
- better understanding of the benefits of licensing pets (helps in the re-unification process), and what the fees go towards
- One time only fee - ie make it count (not sure what it is now, but let's say 10 per year, make it 50 for life. Also no license, no reunification just euthanasia - they will license pretty quickly if that if the only option.
- Lifetime licensing

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Reduced rate options for those that have adopted from shelter or having multiple pets
- I'm sure that is not the only reason why you want people to licence their pets i.e. reunite them! What other reasons can you provide for people to licence their animals???? You want the money and know how many animals people have so you can control them.
- e/mailed reminders?
- Perhaps discounts for multi-dog families that have not had impound experiences in the past
- Lower costs significantly and have the ability to update information such as address and contact info on an online portal or app.
- Mandatory licensing. You cannot purchase or adopt a cat or dog without licensing.
- other benefits added that benefit the dog or owner. Responsible pet owners don't fear losing their dog.
- Cheaper options
- Discounted fees for low income households.
- Using fee's is bad practice.
- discount for licensing several animals
- Discounts for licensing more than 1 pet for the same household.
- Maybe vet offices can aid in this administration by offering licensing forms at the time of yearly vaccines. Vets should be compensated for this administration time though.
- My cats are both microchipped incase they get lost. Yearly licencing is really annoying. Mutiple pets also make it expensive.
- Doesn't micro chipping animals help with this? Maybe you need to advertise licencing as a way to help with re-unification, rather than just an obligation.
- Able to easily change who owns animal at any time (ie: via website or app)
- Don't remove the animal or owners details from the system for 25 years and develop a proper database. If a pet owner does not renew annually, don't just invalidate their information. One time fee at registration and never bill again until the next animal.
- Free lisencing with owners info attached so they dont go to the city pound.
- Change to the permanent microchip instead and make it mandatory before the animal leaves the adoption site.
- License by way of microchip instead of tag and give a continuous price Break to seniors and puppies or kittens that are licensed before 1 year old.
- I've always thought that licensing your pet (specifically dog) should have a relationship with Calgary trainers and/or vet clinics. Once you license, you get a rebate or a promotion of sorts to use towards a training session with whatever trainers agree to be involved etc. Same goes with spay/neuter. Almost an incentive but also promotes responsible pet ownership.
- One time licence for each pet
- Discounts for multi-pet households anand low income subsidized licensing.
- Family plan for multiples. Geared to income
- massive fee reduction for a microchipped or tattooed animal registered with city

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Auto-Renew, lower fees, reminders.
- Same fees for intact and non intact animals
- Reminders!
- Free for low-income and rescues
- That's BS. You put pets up on your website. The second a pet goes missing, they look there. How about you make the pound more accessible? How about you don't treat the people who's animals escape not like criminals? Fee for an animal being on the loose? Give me a break. You nickel and dime calgarians and wonder why they don't trust you
- My dog was caught And he was registered and I never received anything they found him I found him on there web site under the adoption ready page So why bother giving the city more money and receive nothing. When the pet is registered and he was about to be sold from them.
- if someone does not want to license they just wont. they don't see a value in registering their pet. I think they feel pets are disposable. For those who have never licensed, run a 'Free licensing blitz' once a year. everyone like free stuff. Provide a reminder notice/email/call/text
- Really, how about showing statistics and a public report about how many pets are brought in to pet services and how many found their owners . Clearly show how a liscence is helping the process. Make it an advertising campaign. I guarantee 90 percent of calgary believe a liscence is a cash grab and dies nothing to help reunite owners.
- Licensed for 10+ years & no complaints = Free life license
- - Give perks to breeders, adopters, pet perks
  - 1st license year free through rescue/breeders
    - adopt - partnership, more pro-active enforcement
  - Pay as you go license fares, micro-chip
- It would lower admin charges
- Less expensive license price
- I don't agree with the licensing system when microchipping is so prolific. I think it's an unnecessary step and a lot of extra paperwork when a microchip does the same job.
- Ability to take pets to daycare facilities.
- Licensing is a rip off for responsible pet owners. Another abuse of people of this city and their pets. The city abuses both owners and pets, if they are microchipped there is ZERO need to license
- Licensing of indoor cats should not occur. Offer a coupon for free pet food (dog or cat).
- There would have to be some kind of value for pet owners. It there is value, it would need to be known as right now I am not aware of any. I was told that if an animal is lost it is returned to the owner. My neighbor has discovered that this is not the case. Rather, more fines are levied.
- Chip/ tattoo . One time tag and license
- Online registration, Education on the purpose and help of doing so
- One stop shop - immunization, chipped, Spayneuter
- Smaller license tags with built in tracker (similar to existing v accident tags. Automatic text reminders.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- An option to license more than one pet on a single license (eg. A cat and a dog in the same household)
- A pet registration should be a one time fee.
- More info about why it's a good thing.
- Offer one time license fee & low cost microchipping to those whose pets are already altered.
- For those of us with small dogs, abled bodied or not, the city offers us nothing. We need safe small dog parks that include everyone. I'd pay for that but as it stands, no park, I can't walk, my dog isn't likely to get out so what am I paying for? what's in it for my dog?
- Triple license fees to discourage ownership in the first place the back up with heavy fines
- To provide the option for one time registration with one time reasonable fee.
- Free license. Or provide information about what the city does with the fees that is beneficial to pet owners.
- Link up with vets to ensure that vaccinations are tied to licensing. In addition, work so that licensing can be accomplished through vets.
- Fines that are substantial & a reasonable expectation that they might be caught. Same same DUI practice.
- Free! Pets are expensive as it is.

Benefits that owners expect to get from licensing

- Fines won't help anyone who's already in debt. Chipping pets is cheap and lasts a lifetime, there's no need for multi yr license. For a chip record it could be $25 a yr to hold your details on database for linking pets with home.
- Easily locating lost animals. Increased support from bylaw services in finding lost animals.
- Security that the animal can be returned safely if lost or stolen
- expedited return
- reunification with their pet after loss
- Not sure but there aren't any currently, other than because we have to so we don't get fined if they escape. The microchip makes city licensing redundant.
- Honestly?
None, if they're responsible owners. They should be chipped or tattooed already. What other benefit is there? Personally I think it's not the best way to have pets.
- The previous 'discount' program was a nice touch. Access to city-owned dog parks is also another nice touch. And finally, the ability to be quickly reunited with a lost pet is pretty important.
- any type of discounted offer or grooming coupons, food coupons, discounted vet exam
- re-unification being the main one. Accurate statistics for another.
- An educational sheet of rules and guidelines of responsible pet ownership, and maybe a discount in any of the pet shops on some items.
- Easy reunification, no costs to use The City's animal services

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Reuniting without penalty if the licence is paid in good standing. Sometimes dogs just get out from a failure to properly close the gate, which can be the fault of someone like meter reader/beyond owner control.
- Shows responsibility. Too bad cyclists don't have a license so we can report the owner.
- Not getting fined. Not sure what licensing fees are used for but maybe adding poop bag dispensers at dog parks will help to encourage people to actually pick up after their dogs
- Coupons for shots or food
- nothing
- Discount on subsequent licensing
- Other than not having to deal with Animal Control?
- Assistance for lost pets.
- Subsidized vet check ups would be nice. It is very expensive to own any pet as it is and vet fees are astronomical. Pets, however, are proven to be beneficial to one's emotional health and well being which could reduce cost of mental health requirements if pets were more affordable to own.
- re-unification of lost pets
- My pets are licensed but it doesn't help return them to me. I see no benefit. I'm just being compliant and avoiding the fees if they do escape.
- Easy identification of lost/found pets. using resources like dog parks.
- Finding lost pets
- A program to re-connect pets, not getting charged with no licensing (fines could be higher).
- Ability to reconnect with your pet. The money should also go towards animal control.
- Not being issued a fine if their pet is found to be unlicensed!
- Ease of return if the animal is lost.
- Easier process with reuniting lost dogs and owners.
- Education at dog parks and in neighborhood sand schools. Microchipping.
- Tax rebates with City of CALGARY
- Lower vet costs. ;P
- The benefit of getting their pet back should be enough
- Phone call when pet is found. Reduced fee for having pet at large if it is licensed.
- I think a discount on training (dogs) would be a good incentive to do both!
For both cats and dogs, discounted vaccines.
- The licencing fee should cover the $40 'cab ride' that is charged when a lost dog is returned, especially for first time 'offenders'. The 'My Pet' discount card is a waste of time and resources and is not any sort of 'incentive'.
- Re-unification. Why else would a pet be licensed?
- I would expect my pet to be returned to me immediately instead of impounded and vaccinated. Vet clinics are not given owner Info when a dog is brought in.
- Discount for services. Or it should directly pay in to off leash park maintenance.
- Reduction on fees for training classes

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- System for returning lost pets; access to discounted programs for pet training or educational sessions; access to using offleash parks
- None, it's a civic duty.
- Being reunited in case of lost dog or cat escaping the house without a huge cost. Confidence that paying for licensing waives or discounts impound fees - a first impound is free maybe.
- My pet finds their way home
- The above, help with finding lost pets
- pet to be picked up and cared for until the owner arrives for pickup. First offence to be waived.
- Nothing, a tag that says "licensed" is enough.
- Actual help from bylaw officers
- All the services of 311 if their dog goes missing.
- Safe return of pet if lost.
- Discounts at pet stores, bring back something similar to the I Heart My Pet.
- The privilege to keep a pet within city limits - anything else is a bonus.
- I am not sure about the re-unification reason as the majority of responsible owners I would think either have a tattoo or a microchip so not sure of any benefits.
- The ability to be reunited if the pet gets out.
- peace of mind on reunification and services from The City.
- None, I believe it's a part of responsible pet ownership.
- What benefits do pet owners currently get for licensing their pets?
- I miss the 'I heart my pet' program. Business discounts were nice but I understand the expense in management. Would be nice to see something replace that program.
- animal included in registry so it can be returned if lost
- Pet re-unification. Rehoming and caring for ownerless animals.
- I am not sure if it is already included by a reminder of what being a responsible pet owner looks like. Maybe a map of off leash areas in Calgary.
- re-unification (period)
- Safe return if lost, discounts on Canine Good Neighbour certification and training. Allow delay of spaying until 1 year of age for large breed dogs (health benefits)
- Discounts to pet stores? Or coupons towards food?
- Security in knowing that their pet will be safely returned.
- Reduced veterinary bills/vaccinations? Free neuter/spaying services? Once the animal is in the system from the free service the animal can be tracked and if the owner decides to stop paying they can be fined and it should go to collections if not paid. People need to be held responsible.
- Easier reunification. An expectation that if the city finds your pet, and you've kept your records up to date, they will contact you.
- That they won't receive a fine from the City.
- animals returned within 24 hours without fines
- Easy reunification

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Besides what is already included. Free microchip for those who cannot afford one.
- Care of animal in case it's lost and PROMPT contact if animal is located.
- I feel what is currently in place is sufficient
- Tips and advise about pets.
- I do too think there are benefits. Its a money grab from the city.
- There really is no benefit other than the potential ease of re-unification which microchips can handle
- Discounts at pet stores
- Well, I suppose the right to have a pet. After that re-unification is a big one. Space to take their pets like the dog parks. Not sure beyond that as I don't have a pet myself.
- The right to keep a pet in the city.
- only reunification.
- No fee for picking up a lost pet from bylaw if they are properly licensed.
- Education events & materials, safe on and off leash areas
- Don't really see any benefit, more of a hassle and expense than anything. Pet has other forms of identification already.
- responsibility for their pets and reunification...
- Being able to be reunited with their pet.
- At the current rates, free spay/neuter. Why not have it be a requirement...first registration is more $ and includes spay/neuter. Then $5 each year after.
- Lost pet services. Off leash dog park education and enforcement of bylaws. Special spay/neuter clinics that are low cost. Animal/human protection
- Option for Animal Services to bring that animal home directly before bringing it to the city pound. Along with current benefits of Animal services that already exist.
- Microchip if they do not alr day have one, discount if they do and stop charging those of us with intacted dogs a greater licensing fee. We have a lot of science for not spaying and neutering early or if at all.
I'd love to see your stats for intacted dogs running at large who also are licensed
- Bulletproof re-unification.
- [personal information removed] I know first hand that the registered animals list was never shared with teams removing animals from homes or during reunification. Please explain how YYC is any different.
- no charge at pound if dog gets loose and is caught
- If your pet is lost it would assist in tracking down the owners but from experience collars can get lost. Access to basic pet information and care (housetraining, grooming, nails) also where to go to get further information like the Calgary Humane Society, private facilities.
- Faster Reunions when lost
- License approved parks.
- Best for locating pet owners.Reduces dog thefts and fighting rings.
- Possibly more responsible owners.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The biggest benefit has always been that if my dog got out, and was picked up by Animal Services, I would be notified that he was okay.
- Well serviced and available off leash areas, reunification services and safe facilities for lost and stray animals with spay and neutering. You hope if your animal ever ended up there there'd be room and they'd be taken care of.
- Free neutering (reduce unwanted animals!), free chipping and re-unification
- I know people who have lost their licensed animals and the city did pick them up but didn't phone the owner. I believe if this happens, the owner should be contacted. Perhaps there could be training courses for people and their pets as well.
- I do not expect any real benefits just another tax we have to pay but it would be GREAT if:
TAKE stray rabbits IN ATTEND CAT AT LARGE CALLS
TRAP FERAL AND AT LARGE CATS
HANDLE the feral populations of rabbits and cats
- Reunification services as currently supplied; maybe e-mail health alerts to owners for species-specific information (dog or cat pandemics, groupings of poisoning incidents to be aware of in a park, food recalls).
- Funds being put into pet owner education.
Funds put into developing additional off leash parks.
- Why should they get a benefit? The benefit is the use of dog parks that all taxpayers pay for
- Means of identifying pet (tattoo or chip number) on file with city to assist in speedy reunions of lost pets
- To be able to find the pet if separated. As a theft deterrant. Safety of the pet first and foremost. To provide faster vet aid if need be if dire decisions have to be made.
- Proactive reunification - city run lost/found pages like on Facebook
- In Coquitlam when we lived there a license provided an opportunity for a free" reunification. If your pet was picked up they would try to return it to you immediately. If that wasn't possible they would hold the animal for 24 hours to allow time to pick it up. After that costs started.
- For a dog, for sure of it gets lost.
- The only benefit people believe they're going to get is that if there animal is lost it will be found and returned to them.
- "I believe that they should not be licensed but rather registered.
benefit is a lost animal can be brought home.
if an animal is seen running at large, being vicious etc the description of the dog can be crossed with the registry to track down the owner and fine them of the misbehavior.
- Access to reduced vet costs.
More off-leash services and city products
- Cleaner off leash parks. Reunification with lost pets.
- Discounted training in basic obedience

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Discounts on the license itself.
- Reunification
Identification
- For their pet to be returned if lost.
- The comfort that if their pet should get lost or away from their owner that they have a GREAT chance or reunited with their pet at a much faster and safer way if licensed. That bylaw would save lots of time and money on at NEED cases as your pet would already be in system and save resources
- Other than reunification, I think there should be some “freebies” (ie: a get out of jail free card once a year).
- Upkeep of dog parks. Bylaw officers that are current with science based education regarding pets.
- identification so they can be returned home
- By-law enforcement
- There are currently no benefits for indoor only cats it's just a cash grab for the city. For dogs, help with re-unification with a lost pet, training and advice
- Reduced fees for responsible pet ownership
- Easier to locate. Notice to police and fire.
- Multi animal discount
- Getting their pet back when it is lost.
- Maybe a break on all the stupid fees charged if a dog does get out?
- Stricter penalties, deals made with pet stores for discounts, discounts at vets since a license represents responsible ownership.
- Return of pet without consequence of fine unless repeat offences are recorded. Notification of any issue that may affect said pet/family in the city such as disease or possibly wild animal sightings (maybe through a registration process?)
- Pet reunited when they lose control of their pet
- Ability to re-unite but also the understanding that licensing can help with other services such as enforcing the bylaws for everyone's protection.
- Same as now
- The only benefit is the ability to have a pet, the community should benefit by some $ going to animal shelters, etc which might include returning lost pets to owners
- City run animal programs
- Discounts or coupons for services
- I think a licensed pet owner should be able to expect not to have to pay a fee if their pet gets out for a first time. Perhaps a warning. Habitual offenders could be fined.
- I believe owners of licensed pets should be exempt from certain fines like Animal at large if their dog gets out... within reason of course.
- Yes, recovery if lost. Also stats on pet populations. Forward looking programs.
- If they are lost, there is a good chance you will be able to be reunited with them.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think the benefit of being reunited with your pet should be good enough!
- Team up with a few trainers in town to see if they will offer discounts for licenced dogs. See www.albertaforcefreealliance.com for a list of educated and science based trainers
- Access to low-cost spay and neuter and vaccination programs.
- The knowledge that their pet will be reunited more easily.
- Better services, to reunite families with pets, pick up lost pets at no cost, to shelter lost pets at no cost as licence fees should go towards this
- Maybe work with a pet store or something that if people licence they get a 10% discount at select stores.
- discounts on yearly registration, input to a new and/or re modelling of dog parks. Possible partnerships with pet stores/organizations for a small discount in services, food, animal care, etc
- It helps if and when a pet is lost and needs to be sheltered when found until reunited
- Safe return of lost pets.
- Discounts at pet stores?
- Dog parks kept clean. Ability to reunite pets. Monitor pet stores for compliance on sale of pets.
- To be contacted when lost.
- That they are being a responsible pet owner and they accept liability for any harm their animal inflicts on innocent people and other people's pets. Also the pet will be returned to owner should it become lost if it is licenced with a licence tag on it's collar as required by pet bylaw.
- re unification if lost
- Safety in probable return of animal if it is at large.
- I don't care. Extra benefits just seemed like a waste of money and administration effort when I don't think they provide any incentive at all.
- Large fines.
- Ability to recover pet if lost.
- Free impound and no penalty if their dog or cat gets out. Perhaps a one time exemption.
- I think pets should be allowed in more public spaces. Also many landlords charge a pet fee for rental accommodation that is non refundable, that should be illegal. I am happy to pay an extra deposit, but it should be refundable since my pets have never caused damage to an apartment.
- Reuniting lost pets with owners.
- I would like a licensed dog to be held longer and a greater effort to re-unification. It is a very short time at the moment, I believe just a few days, and then adopted.
- Ability to locate if picked up by City.
- Quick id and reunion of lost pets.
- A chip should be required for all pets thus ensuring speedy return HOWEVER, all cost associated with the keeping and return of said pet should be billed back to the owner ALL costs!
- Help with getting reunited with pets.
- Coupons from companies on food, toys, training services, etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- that they will be reunited if they are lost
- Re unification if pet is lost.
- For dog owners who use off-leash areas, why doesn't the City provide poop bags at the parks? Other cities in Canada do this. Dog owners should have access to off-leash areas that are well-maintained (i.e. parking lots), with garbage bins and benches.
- Support and incentives to programs and discounts to stores that provide services
- Speedy return of lost and found pets
- If their pet gets out or away from them, it is probably the easiest way to get them home again. Having to renew annually (I decided against selecting the "multi-year licensing option" for this reason) is better for keeping contact info up to date.
- If their pet goes missing, reuniting them with the pet. Keeping the pet safe until the pet is picked up. Discounts/incentives at Canadian pet stores.
- If they're ever lost instant notification from city if pet is found or has been seen
- No fine if their pet get loose and bylaw brings back.
- The hope of a safe and quick return home if lost. I have had a licensed dog for 45 years and never needed this service. I do hope that my license fees help pay for other services at Calgary Animal services. It is wonderful that it is a no kill sanctuary.
- Reunification feels like the only advantage. It is an excellent reason but there should be more beyond The free ride home.
- Getting their pet back if lost.
- Discounts for following rules
- Option for health clinics
- Reuniting them if they ever become lost
- Discounts on programs (training), decreased vet costs, stores, any pet related business, access to parks, events, track/return if lost.
- Calls if their pet is found and not big penalties if a pet accidentally gets loose. Maybe discounts for pet training classes, a list of off leash parks, and better reinforcement on picking up poo and disposing properly.
- Fast repatriation when pet is lost.
- Percentage of fees go towards maintenance of dog parks (more lights, surveillance, sanding in winter, watering areas in the summer).
- Some kind of discounts especially as the animal gets older, multi pet discount
- Reduction in fees for consecutive licensing
- There should be a little incentive to licensing your pets. A pet card with different companies in the city to shop at discounted prices.
- well maintained off-leash areas in the neighborhood where the owners live. I've paid for over 20 years and still don't have anywhere close to take my dog! So I just goto the nearest park and let my dog off-leash. Not fair for a responsible pet owner who picks up after him. Wish I could write more.
- Animal services dealing with the issues not home owners

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Re-unification & the care given to their animals while in the City's care.
- No benefit. If our pet is lost, we can find it.
- That if their pet is lost it will have a higher chance of being reunited.
- Discounted future licensing
- Find lost pets
- A discount for multi year
- Support for questions about animal behavior, health, etc.
- Contact with the owners when pet is lost is most important
- Cheaper vetting
- Well taken care of off leash parks
- Free pass if dog found off leash but is completely under control.
- If lost they are reunited with owners
- Most responsible pet owners micro chip/tattoo their pets now so tag is not the only way to identify a lost pet. Access to chip scanners
- Discounts, coupons, education/training options
- More accessibility for the dog
- It should free
- Being a responsible pet owner
- The ability to own a pet. This is not a human right, it's a privilege that can be revoked.
- Provide more secured/fenced off-leash parks to take my dog free of/monitored for wildlife.
- Vet discounts
- building and maintenance of dog parks. Cheap spay neuter programs. Euth services at no charge.
- Support to the community for helping to re-home lost or unwanted pets. Can be done directly or indirectly through 3rd party funding. Pet ownership leads to the inevitable problem of unwanted pets. I expect this to be, at least in part, addressed through funding/support.
- Pet reunification but good pet owners would microchip anyway making registration redundant
- Avoid fines, safe/quick animal returns
- A tax write off
- Some sort of online training resource access
- Peace of mind if they get out and bylaw picks them up. Other than that nothing really. I have licenced my dog every year and haven't seen any benefits for doing so.
- Perhaps discounts at pet stores upon showing license or provide code.
- Reunification, benefits and credits to pet related activities, direct correlation to our for dog parks (as an example)
- It would be helpful if the benefits of licensing were known, I don't think they are known (ex: reunification).
- I don't know if any. I only do it to avoid a fine. But I resent it.
- If lost can be identified
- The Comfort of knowing their pet will be returned to them wearing identification

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No benefits necessary. It is a requirement and should be treated that way.
- Reunification and bylaw officer presence
- To encourage licensing maybe free microchipping
- Than they would be able to locate their animals faster
- There are zero benefits to licensing cats or dogs.
Pets are microchipped, which is a very reliable way to find lost pets.
- More time pursuant to the by-law for notification if a pet is found (48 hours is inadequate to presume receipt of mail) and more time to recover the animal 3 weeks is more reasonable if the owner is on holiday and a pet is lost. More by-law enforcement presence in off leash parks.
- Discount at veterinary clinics. Free spay and neuter.
- I think the ability to locate their animal more easily and knowledge that they are a part of a vaccinated, tracked population of pets with responsible owners is enough.
- Less cat racism. More protection from dangerous pit bulls
- Reduced fees via animal services, prolly a high five.
- They won't get a ticket from a bylaw officer
- Mainly reunification
- Pets returned when lost.
- A discount on some veterinary fees would be awesome.
- discounts for multiple pets, early renewal discounts, discounted training classes, more free spay and neuter spaces within the city
- Dog services
- If licensing is paid for, some kind of insurance against liability, and free returns of found lost pets. If licensing is not paid for, return with fee (Waivable in the event that the owner is impoverished).
- Dog tags
- longer holds at CAS. Reduced fee when animal is caught. most cat owners who license and chip their cats keep their cats indoors (i could be wrong about this) but I have 4 cats all indoors, or supervised on harness in an enclosed yard, chipped and licensed.
- Hopefully getting them back if they get out. Otherwise not much
- I don't think there need be any benefit. Licensing your pet is part of responsible pet ownership.
- Discount at local vets, pet store etc.
- Choose the size of the tag. My chihuahua can't wear the provided tag as it is for big dogs and he's 5 pounds.
- Reunion with their pet if it is lost. The ability to have a pet in the city limits.
- Longer reuniting process. Its heartbreaking to learn that only after a few short days a pet can be rehomed. Not enough time for pet people to actively search for their missing pets especially if they were away over a long weekend, hospitalized or have a lack to social media (elders)or dont drive.
- Reunited at lower cost.
- Re-unification is the main reason I license.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Being contacted if their animal is found in a caring, non-judgmental way with a fair investigation BEFORE fining is involved. Perhaps even bringing the animal home and helping figure out how it escaped.
- Micro chipping is the only way for owners to be reunited with lost pets. Tattooing doesn't work as per my personal experience with the SPCA. give discounts for microchipped pets as micro chipping is $$$!
- You offer me zero benefits in licensing my pets
- More of the fees collected put into animal-centred education. Easier access to spay/neuter or even low-cost maintenance vet care.
- Not sure. Insurance maybe?
- Free training classes
- With microchip technology I don't think there is much of a benefit to licensing an animal with the city.
- I honestly don't know of any benefits from licensing
- Re-unification of lost pet. Perhaps notification of communicable disease.
- It should be free and non-mandatory.
- Additional benefits like discounts at participating pet stores would be nice.
- Figure out a time ya to make it more appealing. People in poverty will not bother if the only perceived reason to register is to avoid a fine if the dog is impounded. Have community pop up license events in impoverished communities with low levels of licensing. Make it fun. Help them understand.
- Neutering and such free and mandatory unless they are licensed breeders for any animal
- reunification if lost or reported missing/stolen. maintained recreational areas for animals
- Pets are returns if found. Security and comfort that other animals that they come in normal contact with are not a danger.
- Return of lost pets, and control over numbers of animals in one residence
- Pets returned if they are lost - huge benefit! Perhaps a discount on certain pet items? Knowledge that they have contributed to making the community safer for animals and for people.
- Not being fined, not having their pets captured and impounded and, if found having their pets returned to them - if they love their pets and really want them returned.
- Return of pet should it be lost then found by city impound. Lower cost for return of lost pet on first offense/ incident as sometimes pets are Houdini and can find an escape route not predictable or may be a fence jumper. Cats sometime escape and are hard to catch.
- I do believe there should be a once a year 'oops' clause. Let's face it, animals by nature are unpredictable and even the most responsible pet owner can have a pet get out.
- Reunification with their lost pet.
- I don't expect anything for my license fee. I feel it makes the city aware of how many pets there are at a resident in order to better control and have knowledge of a situation.
- Re-unification. Quick identification of a pet that has caused harm or is a nuisance and can then be reported, should the owner decide to decline responsibility

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Easy recovery/return of pet.
- Exactly...what are the benefits? I don't know that there are any. Reunification if lost with a fine? That is a benefit sort of.
- No benefit
- Use the money to have more garbage bins around neighbor hoods and bags to pick up dog waste. Other cities have these set up but not Calgary.
- I don't believe there should be any further benefit than reunification, however if you have a pet that is at low risk of becoming separated from its owner then paying the yearly fee is much too high
- No benefits. Because not required.
- Recovery
- The primary benefit is to reunite the pet with the owner should the pet get lost.
- You get your pet back if it roams free.
- I think the benefit belongs to the city, not the pet owner.
- No to have to pay the city to keep a pet. That's ridiculous.
- A public system that helps them find and reunite with their animal if it is lost.
- -discount at recognized veterinarian's
- I would like to see all the money go to providing low-cost spay/neuter and education about pet ownership.
- That licences are not just a tie to hand out fines.
- Safe return on their pet should it wander away.
- Pet can be identified and returned to owner.
- Using parks, free poop bags
- I don't believe that there should be benefits, aside from the ability to reunite animal with owner. I believe it should be mandatory, like a driver's license to drive. I also don't think there should be scalable fees, as animals are expensive and people should have good financial standing to own one
- The main benefit would be re-unification. This is why i license my dog.
- A return of a pet without cost. There shouldn't be a fine for dogs to be reunited unless the dog is a repeat offender.
- More off leash parks, especially in the deep south. Poop bags provided at the parks. More bylaw presence at the actual parks. In the last 10 years I've ever only seen one bylaw truck at a park, and they only sat in their vehicle and didn't come into the park. Officer presence is important!!!
- Better pet reunification. Better enforcement of irresponsible pet owners.
- Free bandana color code for aggressive dogs.
- Easier to be reunited
- compliance with city bylaw; know that if you pet happens to get away from you - that they can be identified and returned to you.
- The ability to have a pet returned if it should wander or get lost.
- Not having to pay to pick them up if they do get out
- No benefits, just a compliance with the law

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Assurance that if your pet is lost, it will be returned to you.
- Decreased fee if dog is lost and caught by bylaw services and then picked up to return home, multipet discounts
- Free tags every few years.
Training class suggestions.
Listing of animal friendly areas; parks, off leash, stores.
- expanded discount programs like the "Love Your Pet" one
- Catch and return, identification and notification if deceased
- If impounded, they are scanned right away for chips and owner is called multiple times to come retrieve. Must be proof of trying to contact x times prior to it being put up for adoption.
- Findability
- I'm unaware of any benefits right now. I'm not sure what I'd expect from the city. To be honest, other than demographics I'm not entirely sure why the city licenses them in the first place.
- Access to free or discounted services.
- If lost they are easier to track.
- A kickback program, perhaps? Discounts and partnerships with local stores for those who can provide proof their pet is licensed?
- Tax break on property taxes. Pet ownership can be a deterrent for property crime and has health benefits. I would suggest a flat break as opposed to per pet option to discourage irresponsible pet ownership.
- There shouldn't need to be. Don't get benefits for licensing ourselves. You want to own something you get a license, car, trailer, etc. Just because one decides to get an animal shouldn't mean the city gives treats to owners where this that taxes pay for when this is not a responsibility of the city
- Easy recovery if the pet is lost.
- We get NONE
- I believe pet owners should face fines or not be allowed to have pets if they refuse to license.
- for owners who license their pets every year, a "loyalty discount" or multi-pet/multi-year discount.
Offer some incentive for those who do register, and increase penalties for those who dont
- Faster reunion and no fines if your pet is caught and picked up.
- Discounts on microchipping. Reduced cost for spay/neutering.
- Beyond the ease of reunification, I don't know what else I would expect from it.
- Lighter wallet.
- Knowledge of where these fees go and how they are utilized.
Quick return of lost animals to owners
- The only benefit I see is that the city has a spay/neuter clinic that operates 7 days a week to address low income and feral cat populations.
- Contact if lost and off leash areas
- Discounts on veterinary visits

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- License fees should be $5. I see fees continuing to go up year after year and we get nothing more for it. Then taxes go up, then services are decreased, then the city wastes money on expensive, unnecessary projects. Licensing is a money grab and only a hindrance for responsible pet owners.
- Facilities (i.e. dog parks) and return of lost pets.
- a DNA test when getting the pet licensed might be a creative option to provide incentive to get a pet licensed. IE. breakdown of breeds in a mutt (50% shepherd, 10% golden, 25% heeler, etc)
- A better chance at retrieving their pet if they are lost.
- Return of the pet if they go missing. City had a good discount program for a long time with local pet businesses for licensing your pet, and I'm not sure why this ended, it was a fantastic, successful program.
- Prompt re-unification, discounts/ incentives for holding a license
- Pet-owner reunification, some form of medical history database to assess health of pet from previous owners
- The city already provides lovely dog parks and trash bins for dog waste collection.
- Some lower cost euthanasia services for older ailing pets.
- Perhaps a way to tie licensing to the microchip so if a pet is lost it is significantly easier to reunite
- You don't get any. My dogs don't roam and have other ways to be ID'd and reunited with me that are more secure than a dog tag.
- Absolutely none
- The benefits that are presently in place.
- I can see none.
- discounts and rewards maybe after a few years of not having to use it. more input on off leash parks
- That if they are ever lost that they can be reunited with their owners. To assist in paying for bylaw enforcement
- None aside from possibly easier to find the owners of lost animals. Nothing more. It's forced on us to begin with, so it's difficult to see any benefit at all really.
- Assistance with finding lost animals.
- I don't see any benefit except possibly getting your pet back. But if it's not registered they won't give you your pet back til you fork over hundreds of dollars. Many of us can't afford that and had to leave our pets because We couldn't afford to bail it out. Shameful.
- Pet owners shouldn't get anything extra for licensing. That money should be used to provide proper bylaw and areas for the pets exercise.
The benefits should go to NON pet owners, which is keeping non off leash parks clear of off leash animals and other bylaw enforcement.
- Discounts for training courses or pet stores/food would incentivize. Demonstrated record of licensing pets on time annually results in discount for licensing. Higher chances of re-unification.
- Knowing if they're lost that vets can track them.
- Mostly reunification
- Could you look at a getting a discount at pet businesses if you have a city licence?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If their animal is lost and seized, the owner should be contacted to pickup the pet.
- Maybe discounts on training classes, maintained off leash areas
- having the animal returned to them in cases where they get loose or if in car accident with owners and get away.
- Cat owners should be allowed to let their cats roam free provided they aren't causing issues. Any issues should be resolved without the city trying to make money and should be dealt in a calm, cool manner between neighbors. Uneducated people who cause issues for no reason should be fed to the cat.
- Abundance of dog-waste bins, emptied before over-flowing. Safe apprehension and return of lost pets. Safe, off-leash areas, away from roads and bikepaths and well-lit
- Nothing other than it helps reunite them if it's lost
- Being allowed to keep their pets.
- Coupon codes to local pet stores
- City needs to know how many dogs/cats are in a residence. And it gets the pet back to the owner.
- Can't think of any
- The biggest benefit is they can find the owners if the animal is ever lost and found by someone other than the owner
- With the widespread use of microchips and other identification options traditional licencing should go the way of the dodo.
- no fine the first time the animal is picked up by bylaw
- None. It is a requirement of being a responsible pet owner.
- Unsure. Permanent identification is more effective in returning pets to owners. Perhaps reducing fees for microchipped pets
- If the pet becomes lost the city will look after the dog if brought to the city. Additional facilities for people to engage with their pets (off leash facilities: indoor and outdoor, places animals can go if they have reactivity issues)
- Proof that pet is their pet, in cases of lost or stolen pets
- Getting their pet back
- Help with reunification, seeing some of what animal services does in the city
- Not sure there are many. It's seen as a control issue by many and they don't want to be controlled. Shouldn't you be asking about the benefits of licensing to the general public -- control issues such as numbers owned, general care?
- Funds should not be marketed as simply a way to reunite lost pets. Funds should be allocated to maintaining pet spaces, enforcement of bylaws. I have owned many dogs and never has one been reunited with me due to its city tag when lost.
- Not being fined.
- Careful effort to care for and reunite lost animals. Provide plentiful outdoor areas (off leash parks, walking areas), access to highest quality health care for strays and shelter animals, and also to animals of families who would otherwise be unable to pay for vet care: especially preventative care

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Help in returning pet
- Quick contact if lost pet is found by bylaw services staff, pet returned in same condition as found (no non emergency procedures are done)
- A benefit is a funny way to look at it. I get the “benefit” of my pet being returned and being fined. It seems the license is more to know where to send the ticket to.
- Ongoing education could be available to all owners. A brush up on the bylaw would be a valuable thing to pet owners.
- easier to have pet returned if it is lost
- Honestly the annual license is so affordable that other benefits besides reuniting me with my pet aren't necessary in my opinion.
- Nothing,.
- Active search in finding their pet if lost
- Reunification is the number one reason, and using licensing fees for animal services
- Better communication to owners if pet is lost and subsequently found by city officials. Awareness of pets in the home in an emergency. You're all linked, share the information
- Accountability and access to knowledge.
- Tax break for registering their pet.
- Education on responsible pet ownership and resources for where to go if they need help, eg. change in circumstances and they can't afford vet care/pet sitting
- Reunification, reduced cost of an animal is found and returned.
- Free pet recovery when recovered or delivered to the city
- Re-unification when pets are lost.
- along with the reunification, the offer for education classes, ie, healthy pet, obedience, spay and neutering, public manners,
- If a licenced animal is found the owners should be contacted by the city and they should not have to keep checking to see if the animal has been picked up. Many people do not realize that the onus is on the owners and checking can be delayed or not done at all.
- Re-unification should a pet escape and become lost.
Funds collected from licensing could go towards spay and neuter programs and possibly towards responsible owner incentives.
- Unsure ... this is a great idea to explore
- reunification, support for impounded animals,
- Able to get pet back if it is lost.
- Re-unification and reminder to be responsible.
- At least a voucher or something to a locally owned pet store
- Easy reunification process in the case of a lost pet
- If lost, they can be reunited with family and owners don't get as 200$+ fine

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The city should partner with pet related businesses to offer incentives, such as discounts, to owners who register. Registered pet owners should also be able to add animals to their household for a reduced rate (multi-pet discount).
- Better reunification
- Reunification if pets get lost
- As a licensed dog owner, I don't expect anything. My dog has a chip implant and if the city finds him I would expect him returned.
- Indoor offleash dog park for cold weather.
- Reunification if the pet gets out
Access to off-leash dog parks
Not sure about the cats
- None, its the duty of the person living in the city of calgary!!
- Help finding lost pets and a recovery period window
- LOWER FEES AND NOT HAVING TO PAY TO GET YOUR ANIMAL BACK IF PICKED UP BY THE POUND
- Off leash areas for dogs
- You already provide them. There is really nothing else you can promise.
- To continue helping them finding their pets if they are lost.
- Satisfaction that their dogs are accounted for, obeying civic duty.
- I'm not even sure what they do get
- The benefits of reuniting with there pets should they be lost and retrieved by the city.
- Coupons for food
- A microchip included
- Easy reunification if they are lost and then found by someone. Maybe add some discounts to microchips, vet care, etc.
- If lost and found the owner should be notified right away where the animal is, no delays.
- Information on responsible pet ownership, quick calls to retrieve found pets, lower fine for animal at large, possibly fun events
- Reunifying. Responsibility. Identify dog challenges without owners. Bylaw coordination
- Security in the fact that their pets are able to be traced back to them in the event that they are ever separated.
- The cost paid for the license should be put back in to bylaw to be able to increase patrols in problem areas and respond to calls
- Coming home when they are lost without penalty unless they have multiple offenses.
- re-unification
programs for people who have aggressive/biting dogs to prevent bites/euthanization
- Discounts on rates for the next year.
- reunification
dog parks

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- discounts are pet stores/grooming places. Play days, free basic training lessons, on-line training manual, vet perks.
- Safe keeping and return from animal services.
- I think what is provided is good. Licensing should just be an expectation if you would like to have a pet.
If the budget were to ever exist, subsidized emergency vet care would be great.
- If the cat is lost , the City should be able to look up the information to find the owner.
- Access to private dog parks! Discounts on training/pet supplies.
- It's a money grab.
- Safe care and return of their pet.
- Ease of pet retrieval when separated. Perhaps some kind of discounts or incentives would be beneficial in improving licensing rates.
- Knowing that if their pet is lost and wearing a license tag, the correct owner can be found
- If my dog should ever escape, I would expect my dog to be humanely treated until I was able to get him back to me. If I locate a loose dog, I expect the same care be taken of that until until owner is notified
- Not sure, other than potentially a reduced rate for early registration. Might be worth increasing awareness of the benefits of registration. Maybe a yearly registered pet fair or something. Show proof of registration and get an ice cream.
- Being able to be reunited if your pet accidentally gets out/ free from its leash and is caught by the city or another person and brought it
- Reunification, discounts at vets would be beneficial.
- Reunification, maybe a tax discount.
- -pets which are adopted should have less of a fee than pets which are purchased (to encourage adoption and discourage breeders)
- If I have to pay to keep my pets safe I want bylaw out doing their job and monitoring people not following the bylaws. le offleash dogs where they should be leashed
- a one time discount at a store with supplies for pets
- If my pet is lost, I hope that by licensing them, I will get them back when found.
- free return of pets that are lost and found. Though repeated escapes may need to result in a fine
- Discounts. Included accessories such as tracking devices
- Know that if the pet is lost they can be tracked back to the owner or the vet clinic they go too
- Programs in all areas for the community to provide a better quality of life for all cats and dogs.
- Discounts for pet food and supplies that the government can work with pet stores?!
- Tracking of pet if lost; reduced fee if pay early
- Discounted bylaw fees if your animal does escape and is picked up
- If a pet is lost they can be returned to their owner. Bylaw officers actually enforcing the rules.
- Actual enforcement. [personal information removed] animal control is non-existent

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Help locating and being reunited with pet. However, tags can fall off and with pets no longer being tattooed, an animal can look like a stray to the general public. We need education for ALL, because it happens a lot that someone's pet gets lost, doesn't have visible ID, and is kept but the finder!!
- re-unite pet with owner in an event they get lost. that can be updated by the owner as a fee. similar to how when babies get registered in a hospital when they were born. one-time, not every year.
- No cost to relocate and find
Reunification
Less threats or hrsrd time getting your animal back (unless evidence used that showed abusive or neglect action)
- Reunited with owner
Money used for offleash park maintenance
- Dog parks, garbage containers for waste disposal along pathways.
- Events and or benefits on training or information opportunities. (It has become very expensive to have an animal and if the licensing could be sponsored or linked with events, information, discounts or benefits that help out pet owners, that would be helpful and would motivate people.
- Discounted City if Calgary venues
- Free microchipping at participating vets.
- Being allowed to have a pet.
- Access to areas such as dog parks, or indoor facilities
- Poop bag stations and waste bins in highly frequented areas
- I liked the discount cards.
- Reuniting if lost.
- Education programs, better bylaw enforcement for offenders.
- No recovery fee if picked up when lost.
- I've never benefited from licensing my animals because they've never gotten lost. But, accidents do happen and it's reassuring to know that if my cat or dogs manage to get out one day that they'll be more likely to find their way back to me.
- Quick return if found.
- Ensuring if separated from owners, every effort would be made to reunite pets via phone calls, email, etc.
- Discounts through vet clinics, at pet stores, etc.
- protection and name and number on their tags in case one day the go strolling and you don't realize they've got away on you if your busy then people can see where they live and belong and hopefully give you a call to come and get them
- I like the relationship now, thanks!
- Discounts on veterinary care and food costs maybe.
- If the animal ever is lost, the animal can be traced back to the owner. But of course that means current information must be submitted. Multi-year licensing option may not have current contact info updated.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Pet owners already pay tax. Don't need to charge pet owners twice
- More clarity on reuniting lost pets with owners
- Literally the only "benefit" of licensing a pet is that they can be reunited IF they are wearing their tag. A license fee should include a microchip as well or a discounted cost to neuter/spay them.
- to signal to other owners that the animal is cared for properly
- Reunification by the city. Not just them being listed on the website but an actual effort to find the owner. Maintenance of public spaces and facilities for dog owners. Enforcement of responsible ownership bylaws
- It helps with the up keep and care of the pets housed at animal services
- Return if lost
- Free or subsidiary vet checks
- They already do. Off leash parks. Waste despicable in the parks. Reunification. The spat and neutering of strays.
- Reunification. That's it. Otherwise it puts a target on your back if a neighbor complains of a dog, and you get a letter advising you to stop the behaviour. It's stressful. And may not even be your dog.
- Incentives? Sure, lets approach it this way. Reduction on cost of recall training. Free/reduced microchipping. Etc.
- Pet owners could get discount or a rebate for vet or pet store. Very cheap licensing fees based on a persons income and if the pet is fixed.
- For it not to be used as a guide to fines
- 24hr access to veterinarian nurse via the phones
- Where is the money going that we pay for the licensing fee?
- Like.. anything! For someone with a dog with an amazing recall and already microchipped and tagged.. I am having difficulty seeing any benefit for it
- To identify dogs that are lost and have the tag to identify them, to care for those that are found roaming, etc. ,
- Lost & found
- Something obvious - otherwise it can feel like another tax
- Maybe coupons to places or discounts (similar to AMA)?
- Finding their dog safely
- Returned to them.
- Safe return of their animals.
- Money put toward reunification, maintenance of and creation of new off leash parks, access to pet owner education, and discounts for pet supplies and services.
- Identifying their pets if lost.
- Discounted services for vets
- Cheaper jail rates for escaped animals

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Expectation of prompt notification if pet goes missing. [personal information removed] Also educate as to where the funds go SPECIFICALLY. If folks know the true bang for their buck, they'll be more compliant, IMO
- Discounts at pet stores, a licenseID
- Get a booklet with information about proper dog behaviour and info and things to do in Calgary with your pets. Maybe the city can work with different pet services and shops to have some sort of discounts with them if their pet is licensed. Or get a coupon book when you get your license renewal.
- The city actually doing due diligence to check microchips when Pets land in shelter or are hit by cars. Discounts on spay and neuter (or free!!!!)
- Discounts or benefits, positive reinforcement
- Maintenance of off leash areas. Bylaw officers paroling off leash areas for safety and to ensure owners are picking up after pets.
- Easier if pet is lost.
- Mostly it's a means for identification if the animal runs off
- Quick identification and reunification if lost.
- Reassurance that the likelihood of being reunified with the pet is a bit higher.
- Free tags, maybe a discount on training books or classes and poop bags. And a free bag of treats to boot.
- None. I believe it's reasonable to expect this and is common practice by most modern cities.
- Assistance if their pet is lost.
- if anything every happened, vicious or lost, i would expect owners who have registered pets have points in their favor for demonstrating responsible pet ownership by having pets licensed.
- I have seen no benefits in all the years I have owned dogs.
- Pet owners should receive discounts on other licences, such as licencing their vehicle discount, city gym discount, or city child services discount, equal to the licencing fee paid
- Use of city run off leash parks, early re-unification with lost pets
- It would be good to have the city about to scan microchips that many animals have now. Perhaps that could be included in the licence?
- Finding your dog if it goes missing
- discount on training sessions run at Calgary humane society
- None they are making the choice to own a pet. Why should you get something if you want it?
- Assistance with getting an animal home quickly if lost, would be nice for the city to negotiate a veterinary care discount with VCA and independent clinics for people who responsibly license their animals
- Re-unification is enough.
- Knowing that their animal can be returned. Also, if they are fully licensed, owners shouldn't have high fees when they come to pick up their animals. I believe many get left behind at the shelter because of the fees associated with picking up lost pet.
- No shelter fees if pet I should found and reunited.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Microchip registration in Calgary or Money put into services that benefit animals - parks, training
- Easy reunification and identification
- Lost dogs returned. Cats, not much since it doesn't work. But any pet who escapes should have owners fined for being irresponsible. Too many people need a wake up. Increase fines each time a pet is caught too.
- Free programs for fixing, and or being microchipped.
- Education on pet management.
- Reunification of lost pets, maintenance of dog parks (garbage removal)
- Search and rescue service if needed
- The city should notify families if pets are found dead on the road etc. As I understand it, this doesn't happen - even if tagged and collared. This is a real fail if it's a licensed animal.
- I don't really think it benefits pet owners. Most pets have micro chips, tags and tattoos these days and that is what reunites them more than the licence
- None other than lack of fines and eventual prosecution
- There should be no benefit, it's a requirement of responsible pet ownership
- Free poop bags in parks. No charge for tags that have gone missing.
- Proper scanning and reading of chips tags tattoos and reasonably quick contact of owner. Do not automatically find someone who has lost their dog listen to their stories have a heart
- On top of reunification, as above discounts, tax write off, access to inexpensive training.
- If their pet is lost it can be identified and traced back to them. If an incident ever occurs with another dog they can hold the owner tied to that licence responsible. Being able to report bad behaviour to the city related to a tag number.
- Off leash park maintenance.
- A microchip for their pet to aid in reunification with the initial license purchase
- To be reunited with their pets if lost.
That their pets will be vaccinated at a regular bases.
- Free training classes
Know ing that the fees help stray animals and it does not all go to the government
- Peace of mind
- Not sure how the logistics would work, but discounts on expenses that are pet related would be awesome (pet training, food, etc.)
- If the animal control is close to the home of the animal at large they should attempt reunification without a fine.
- Ability to have their pet returned if lost and collected by animal services.
- More than just a tag
- reunification as soon as possible, should a lost pet ever be reported/turned in to the city
- What are the benefits? It seems like a money grab.
- Don't really know.
- No fines if animal gets lost. Unless it is a recurring issue.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- What was mentioned earlier. Being reunited with your pet. That should be enough.
- animal is protected if found stray and returned
- Incentives (like one free vet checkup). They shouldn't expect it but that would really help license the pets.
- On and off leash areas for dogs, reduced pet insurance for licensed pets.
- My dog is chipped
- Quick, easily traceable owner for expedited reunion with family.
- That if found animal control will contact them and not put their dog or cat up for adoption. That is why we license ours. But every other year there are stories of how animal control fails to follow up and an animal is destroyed or adopted out.
- Making it easier to locate the animal if it is lost, centrally-tracked documentation of the animal's ownership
- Knowing that it is a tax that helps to offset the cost of places like off leash parks and bylaw, city animal pick up etc.
- none whatsoever - i don't believe the value is to the pet owner. the value is in how those funds are used to educate and protect animals who are in the care of irresponsible pet owners. sad to see i (heart) my pet go away, that was the one direct benefit to me.
- Reunification is the primary one.
- the reunification is most important to us.
- Identification, pre- or post- mortem.
- None, other than the safety of their own pet.
- Perhaps a discount on neutering and spaying with veterinary services.
- No fines and reunification with their animal
- The discount program was great. Access to off-leash areas; dog daycare/kennels in Calgary can only accept licensed dogs
- Any, would be nice. Work with pet stores, get discounts for licensed pets. It's not rocket science.
- A call if it runs away and is found
- The reunification aspect mentioned. Also, that funds will be put towards bylaw enforcement of dangerous animal reports, etc. Possibly monitory of on-leach/off-leash areas for those who break the rules.
- re-unification is the biggest one, but also understanding what the fees are used for.
- I think licensing should be optional - where the benefit of getting it is better re-unification.
- Free poop bags
- I don't really see any benefit
- Perhaps people should get waivers for vet offices, maybe for reduced vaccination fees or something. I think people should also be made more aware of what programs their fees are paying for.
- Assurance that should their pet be lost they will be returned to them swiftly.
- Reunification and some form of digital notification when pet has been found.
- Money goes into programs like TNR

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Notification if their pet is impounded
- Animal sheltering for a safe place in case your pet is at large.
- the ability to re-unite
- I do not see any benefits,
- I believe the benefit of re-unification is sufficient.
- Availability of support for behavioral issues and reunification, as well as support during disputes between neighbours regarding pets living in close proximity (barking, messes, etc)
- Multi-pet discounts
Upgraded off leash pet areas
- If the pet is found that it is humanely taken care of until I am located; effort to find the owner.
- The current licensing program is just fine.
- Discounts on vaccines and discounts on pet fees when renting a house
- Rehoming and you won't euthanize my cat !
- Re-unification of lost pets with owners is excellent. Safe and proper caretaking of animals who end up being "in the pound". Don't know if license fees help support off-leash park areas, but that's great, too.
- Actively trying to reunite the animals with their families.
- The biggest benefit is re-unification if your pet gets lost.
- fast return of pet, and enforcement from bylaw at off leash parks and elsewhere
- No other than what is in place
- Increased animal bylaw services.
- I don't think there is any benefit. Make microchipping through the vet mandatory.
- The right to own a pet. This is prepaying the city services and bylaw officers needed to take care of the problems with pets.
- Quick reunification if the pet is found.
- Lost pets can be reunited with owners. Populations of pets can be monitored to provide information for potential outbreaks of disease.
- Dog parks, bins to dispose of waste. Ability to track if it is lost.
- If you try to impose late fees or fines the result will just be citizens refusing to show up to license their dogs and it will only become an issue for them if their dogs are captured while on the loose.
- The rewards card was nice, but not many stores accepted it. Brining back the card and getting business on board with providing discounts would go a long way
- Their pet could be returned if lost.
- You're basically crowdfunding animal bylaw services so the city should do EVERYTHING in their power to reconnect lost pets to their families.
- knowing that if they animal was lost that they would get them back
- Personally the knowledge that my pet can be found in the shelter is enough.
- Not having their animals put down after 3 days of capture.
- Any benefits should be for everyone, not just the owners of the pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Pet recovery, and maybe some discounts at affiliated stores/services in the city.
- I have yet to experience any benefits. I just pay some money for a tag that falls off in the forest two weeks after being attached to the collar.
- More dog parks, poop bags provided at parks
- More support for off leash areas. Cyclists seem to get a lot more support than dog owners.
- None.
I also have to license a car.
- If pets are impounded they should be contacted. Pet owners who don't cause complaints (that are considered reasonable) should get discounted fees. Off leash areas should be better maintained and not open to nuisances like bicycles. More places for pets to swim - some are not able to go in the river.
- The security that a quick unification will happen and that they won't be possibly be given fines for loss of the dog
- I have four pets, all licensed, and I do not feel I get any benefits.
- Re-unification if pet gets lost.
- Hahahaha exactly, if you have to ask...
Waste of our money.
- Reunification is the biggest one. I wonder if there is some way to offer other incentives such as when a pet owner gets a multiyear license for their pet, they get a coupon for discount on vaccinations: the vet community would obviously have to be on board with this.
- Know that their pet will be safe if found. Access to city animal programs. Access to parks.
- I have never once seen a benefit to licensing.
- Maintain a safer environment for pets within the city. (ie: control the coyote population)
- They should benefit from avoiding fines.
- Haven't seen any benefit from licensing my cat. Only benefit I would imagine would be if someone's dog ran off, or their cat left their garden and was picked up, to be reunited with owner.
- The ability to find their owners if lost.
- I liked it when I got a discount at local pet stores. Honestly, I count on reunification with my pet should he escape and get lost because he is chipped, tattooed and has a collar - not because I pay the city my cat tax.
- Reunification is the primary benefit, as well as control in community.
- Any benefit for the owner.
- Support for re-unification with lost pets, discounts or free courses (online or in-person) regarding responsible pet ownership and caring for the pet needs. Dog owners should be required to complete a course to understand why dogs must be on-leash when walking on sidewalks/in communities.
- Money collected from licensing should be spent on community education programs, maintenance and restoration of dog parks, and new technology tools like wildlife sighting apps. This should all be very transparent to the public.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The licensing system seems like a cash grab from the city, as there is currently zero benefit to the owner for licensing their pet. Perhaps there could be benefits offered to responsible owners such as discounts on vet care, daycare services, training & courses.
- Perhaps a discount for spay neuter for people who don't qualify as low income. I think more education on where the license money goes and perhaps a discount for multi pet families
- None beyond what is current
- Perhaps some form of an incentive. Is it possible to do a group plan for registered animals for (otherwise quite expensive) pet insurance?
- Subsidy on vaccines.
- -Forgiven/reduced fees if your pet does get out. (ie. first time free, second time reduced, third time full price). Accidents happen and if someone has proven they're ""responsible"" by registering their pet, some lenience should be given.
- -Free training booklet ?
- Safe, fenced, maintained dog parks. Slacker bylaws regarding where dogs can and can not go. Re-unification when dog is lost
- The satisfaction that their pet will be returned if they get loose somehow.
- The proactive return of their pet by bylaw services: Rather than having to call around searching for their animal, they are contacted/ informed that their animal has been found, is available for pickup at whatever location; and delivery back to their owners if they can't pick it up themselves.
- Keeping track of all the animals in the city, if they do get lost, they can be found easily by their license tag.
- Ease of reunification and discount on licence for up to date vaccinations
- None I would rather not have to license my Dog or Cat.
- Discounts at every pet store on pet products and food.
- That city intervention in pet disputes is supported in a timely manner and enforceable manner.
- There should be no benefit, there should be automatically fines and and extra fees for not doing so. Secondly these rules need to be enforced by bylaw and the city.
- Reuniting when pet list. Money for park garbage removal.
- their pet not getting executed for getting free
- Lowered annual fees or discounted rates for those that license their pets every year
- I think we already have a lot of benefits from pet licensing.
- discount at local vets.
- To be able to be reunited with their pet if it gets lost (why chipping is a REALLY good idea... Have regular chipping clinics run by the City, at very nominal cost, for people to bring their animals. HUGE cost savings for Animal Control if an animal is lost! And much better for the animal.)
- I believe that licensing helps the city to have a good pet management system, e.g. dog parks, animal services department and to return pets to owners.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the licensed dog or cat is found and calls the city, it would be wonderful to be able to return the dog or cat to their owner rather than stress the animal further by impounding. Accidents happen. We could have a check box indicating our contact information could be shared to the finder.
- Free ID tattoo and a City maintained "up to date" registry so the pets can be quickly reunited with their owners thus minimizing the trauma of losing a pet
- Tags, help finding when lost
- Not having their pet impounded. Licensing is about the benefit to others to identify the animal, not about benefit to the pet owner.
- Very few. Sure, if they're lost the license could be used to re-unite dog and owner but most dogs wear a tag with owner contact info on it (which is a one-time fee to buy for $10). Also, a lot of dogs now are micro-chipped which is way more reliable to re-unite them as it can't be lost with a collar
- Animal control
- Getting returned to their owners
- The safe return of their pet. Identification of their pet.
- by-law pick-up should be 24/7 OR 311 should be able to contact the owner on record! I found a stray dog & called 311, but it was "after hours" and bylaw wouldn't come. my only option was to leave it outside or drop it off at a clinic. luckily, i had a car to take it to a clinic.
- An expectation of possible reunification with lost pets (this is already in place); knowledge that licensing fee goes to care for animals in custody awaiting reunification or adoption, and towards spay/neuter.
- Reduced rates
- If they're animals are trapped by the City they should get a significant discount on the reclaiming fee. Most people who have licensed their animals do not have outdoor pets, they likely just escaped from the home and the owners are probably worried sick and likely cannot afford the crazy fees.
- A tag with owner identification and contact info.
- Reunification, and care until reunification occurs, guarantee that the pet will not be euthanized or adopted out until all reasonable efforts have been undertaken to facilitate reunification.
- Easy to find them if they get lost. The city keep control about how many pets people have.
- Discounts at retail pet stores.
- Enforcement,
- We've always microchipped our pets, so I don't usually consider the license as a reunification tool. If you could link it with the vet somehow. Maybe a small discount on annual vet checkups? Allow renewal at annual checkups? Renewals are easy to forget.
- the lost and found and returned is enough for me!
- Possible reduction on any fines that might be incurred. A cost for a licensed versus unlicensed animal.
- Assistance if dog gets out accidentally. No fine for first time. I have had a dog as a pet for 40 years and never had a problem or had one picked up so I would be upset if i was fined or charged for an accidental escape

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Quick return of pet. Easy and fast way to find them/discover if they've been captured. Right now it's a zillion Facebook pages of people searching for or reporting lost animals. Should be one place to call/look for lost pets.
- lower licensing fees, and multi-pet discounts. This would encourage people to be more honest when they have an animal or many.
- animal returned without cost
- Discounts on impound fees if animal escapes.
- Retrieval if lost
- City bylaws and follow-ups
- I view the licensing as a money grab or the city , with no benefit to the owner
- There should not be a fee for bailing the dog/cat out of the city animal services.
- Reunification. Easier to track problem animals. I do believe proof of vaccination with annual renewal then further benefit to public would be to know that all animals are vaccinated.
- Don't believe in licensing.
See above.
- Pet retrieval.
- Discount options for other pet-related facilities or programs.
- Reunification in case of lost.
- One free drive home for licensed pet that gets out due to unforeseen circumstances
- Return of their pet when lost ... no vicious animals to threaten their pet ...
- I believe that the funds should support enforcement and maintenance of dog parks.
- re-unification between the owner and their pet if the pet is lost.
- bylaw action and monitoring of off leash areas for licences pets, aggressive pets, dog walkers with too many dogs.
- I really don't know of any. It's already harsh that people receive fines and charges for retrieving a lost dog. It's also ridiculous that the animal can be put down if you can't pay the fines.
- Better maintenance of off leash areas, cleanup, bags for poop
- Different sizes of tags, maybe switch to plastic? Lower fee and charge for recovery instead?
- If a lost pet is found, the owner should be notified promptly. The animal should be treated humanely and respectfully while in custody of the City.
- A reliable method of re-unifying the animal with the owner. A license tag, alone, is insufficient in the year 2020.
- Potential for reuniting pet and owner if separated.
- Security knowing that if their pet had a license around their neck that they may be lucky enough to have their 'lost' pet returned to them rather than checking shelters. Not always the case as the collar and license can be easily removed by individuals that decide to keep the animal for themselves.
- Complimentary head-shot photo shoot (for the pet), city-paid obedience training, free weekend pass to the wave pool, a chance to ride the ride-on lawnmower along the Crowchild Trail median during the summer, scuba-internship at a golf course in collecting the golf balls from the water hazard.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Helpful pet return. More awesome off-parks.
- Something more than an ID tag would be nice.
- Owners should be severely fined for complaints against unlicensed pets (particularly dogs). Unlicensed pets are uncontrolled pets and a nuisance.
- I would like to see some portion of my license go towards animal welfare for those that can't afford the sometimes high costs. Anything to encourage more people to neuter their pets is welcome, especially cats.
- Unsure.
- Knowing that if their pet is lost it will be returned to them.
- I license my pets because it is required, not because I gain any benefit from it
- Accountability.
- Re-connection if lost, quality care at public facilities.
- Obviously being quickly reunited with your pet should they go missing and if they are licensed then no fees or fines if the animal is picked up within a 24 hour period once per calendar year.
- Biggest benefit is re-unification. Establishes that it is your pet.
- Animal services including notification if found at large
- as a cat owner it give me the reassurance that if he is lost there is a higher chance of return.
- safe return of their pet when found.
- Re-unification with their pets. Also providing fees to help other animals not owned.
- Reunion if fluffy escapes
- I do it because it's the law, and because i care about my dog.
- Are there any? I thought the purpose was to make the city money to pay for services
- Discounts for multi pet households would be nice
- - Quick reunification if pet is lost
- - Notification and response of there is an emergency situation in their area
- - Not getting charged with an offence
- They should be allowed to keep licensed animals and those who are not licensed should be apprehended and, if necessary euthanized. A registration should be required for veterinary care. Registration is a good measure of owner responsibility
- I don't think this is necessary at all.
- Easier to find a lost dog.
- Reunification. Discount on spaying/neutering and chipping to encourage responsible pet ownership.
- A feeling of confidence that if their pet does go stray, they have a good chance of getting it back.
- Apart from reunification, I do not see any benefit to the owner. If a pet is chipped and can be traced, I do not understand why licensing is needed. The owner can be found and held responsible for any issues.
- Well if it's the law no benefits , I know that in some states in the U.S. vets are required to report an animal that does not have a license.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Being notified if their dog becomes lost and knowing the dog will be safely kept until they can reunite.
- the knowledge that the pet can be reunited with them if something happens. knowledge that they are helping support the city's animal department, sense of responsibility.
- I license my dog because I believe in responsible ownership more importantly if I lose her it's a way to get her back home.
- re-unification of lost pets. Information on proper care and immunization.
- Great animal control and fast return of licensed dogs. You could look at higher impound fees for those that choose not to license animals.
- The safe keeping and return of any lost pet recovered by the city of Calgary
- It should help pay for animal shelters.
- Discounts? Show your tag get 10% at city run places?
- Access to off leash parks. (Which we do) help with finding uniting lost animals
- I feel responsible pet owners should do this, however, perhaps giving out 2 free passes to a city pool or skating may help encourage people to licence.
- A safe return of their pets if lost.
- Reunification is a big benefit for me.
- Multi-animal discount after a few years. We have four dogs that are all licensed but have never had to use animal services in the past 7 years. Maintaining a license for older dogs should be cheaper. Especially if same pet is being maintained.
- I hope they get one free ride home before the fines start. I license because it is identification for my pet.
- Good question.
- Dog walking aids like waste disposals. Ability to reunite with owner. Animal granted a stay of execution.
- If lost, they can be returned.
- A phone call if found lost and 24 hours of care at no additional cost. I honestly don't understand what they do provide for my yearly payment for 2 cats who have never been and hopefully never will be lost. It's just more money the city/government get from me.
- Free spay/neuter or reduced fee at the pound or discounts for certain licences.
- A better chance of reunification.
- If their dog or cat is lost, they can be found and reunited with their owner easier.
- Use the money to fence more areas for off leash dogs. Small areas and more of them on unused city land. People should be able to walk to dog parks not use cars. This should be in city planning. Not just regional dog parks. It's a privilege to have a pet in a major cosmopolitan city. more respect pl
- Reunification.
Knowing other animals have not been nuscence animals in the past.
- Finding lost pets, access to other services

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The possibility of having the pet returned should it go missing.
- Lost animals can be returned.
- Discount at pet retail store. (sponsored by local retailers)
Training or grooming discount
- 1 free warning.
- Finding your dog if it's lost.
- Fenced in dog parks close to citizens to walk to. Water access for drinking. Park benches to watch the dogs interact with each other, teach children about dog breeds, involve the neighbours more in dog activities. Regional dog parks are segregating. Many people like to enjoy dogs, let us watch.
- Finding their pet if lost.
- Tags
Reunification when lost if possible.
- Dog poop bags at the park!
- Promote the reunification factor, discounts are local stores. Nothing crazy people should license their dogs.
- Do not pick up dogs. Improved services in the city. Access to plus 15s in the winter.
Dog parks need fences, benches, Shade, path clearing and interesting features for the dogs to explore. Allow dogs to be in more businesses and public spaces.
- Cheaper vet bills.
- I would rather licensing cost be lower and lower the amount of services offered. I have never had to use services associated with licensing my pets
- Dog parks.
Should have access to lower cost spay and neuter.
Fast returns.
Free microchips.
No impound fees
- There is no benefit
- Animal registry, taking care of other animals not under care
- Pets should be reunited with their owners. The City should make it optional for owners to disclose medical needs of their pets during licensing and ensure medical needs are met while in care and awaiting to be reunited (at the cost of the owner).
- I don't know if there is much of a benefit to licensing.
- Easier to find a lost pet
- A multi pet discount would be nice, as would discounts for early licensing. Perhaps lower fees for those of us who never cause problems. All pets should wear personal ID tags to get home if lost.
That's more useful than a license.
- Sense of peace that if their dog went missing there is a higher chance of being found.
- Safe return of my furry family member.
- Only having to do it once.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- City run programs at a discounted price like training or indoor play areas that can be used by licensed dogs, especially during rainy days and cold snaps.
- Speedier reunification, less fines/a warning if a pet is caught roaming. More and better communication if a pet is found.
- Free return of their pet should it become lost and caught by city or by shelter.
- Quick return if by chance your pet is lost and picked up by bylaw
- Quick pet reunification. Recognized as responsible pet owners.
- Tags with your phone number or address so there is a first option to return the pet directly to the owner of you find it. Or city could let you know where they live if someone calls.
- The benefit of finding their pet if lost and knowing they are accountable for their pet
- If I license my dog I expect a hassle free experience and don't believe I should be fined upon the return of my dog. Unless of course the dog has caused damage or something like that1
- Free poop bags at off leash parks
- Notification if their pet escapes and is picked up or turned in to animal control.
- They should expect the city to be able to quickly identify their pet and bring them back home immediately
- Reunification is cheaper and just as likely with a petstore tag and a microchip. U don't do enough to reunite. 311 seems more about getting info for fines for stray pet owners than reunification. You don't take lost/found reports, FB volunteer groups do better at reunification. As do other cities [personal information removed]
- free ride home. free impound for 2 days or till owner is notified
- Means of getting pet back should it get away, care of off leash areas for dog owners
- Accountability to those who don't license...reasonable effort to reunite lost pets..chip option for pet management
- The ability to have a pet in the city. Use of dogparks and parks.
- The opportunity to keep pets in our homes in the city, tracking so that the pets can be returned if the pet escapes, information and maybe training on best care practices
- Reunion with lost pets. Use of off leash parks,
- Easy reunification, although that's not true with cats who have snap off collars (there is literally no benefit to cat owners is what I'm getting at) - microchips work better.
- I am honestly not sure what benefit people could get. Microchipping a pet is a great way to be able to identify a lost pet and works across borders.
- I don't think there are any besides the city having control
- Re-unification is the main thing for me.
- I didn't know there was any benefit other than identifying the animal and the city making money
- Benefits?? It's their choice to own a pet much like it is their choice of what car they drive. There are fees. NO benefits. The benefit is the love of a pet. End of story
- Help finding pet if lost.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- IDK - My cats are licensed, but they are also microchipped. They are indoor cats and do not wear a collar. If they go missing, a license will not reunite them with me, their microchip will. I do not get any benefits from the licensing program.
- Not getting fined or their pet seized, knowing they are not contributing to overcrowded animal shelters. Having a pet is a privilege and responsibility - licensing should be accepted as a basic mandatory requirement to owning cats and dogs.
- I think there should be grades of licensing depending on the level of training for a dog. Dogs with higher levels of training should be allowed more freedoms than dogs who have not had training.
- Find their pet if lost. But I have never had that benefit me, the microchip is what reunited us.
- No fine.
- I don't think there is a benefit. It's just a money grab for the city. I only licence my dogs so I don't get a fine when I'm walking them or at a dog park. Again, they're microchipped and they have my phone # on their collars so they will be Reunited with me if they get away.
- The peace of mind knowing that if they get lost, you have a better chance of finding them
- I personally think if we must license our pets we should be eligible for tax deductions as they are dependants.
- Perhaps discounts provided by partner companies? Training, vet, supplies?
- Discounts on spay and neuter
- Financing programs at local rescue organizations
- None. It should just be a licensing, fee for tag and done. My dog is tattooed and microchipped. In the event he got away from me the city wouldn't be the first method to locate me.
- No ideas here. Do not own a dog. Never will.
- If people saw Calgary as a leader in how they are tackling issues of unwanted pets, homelessness, overpopulation, how CGY uses their state the art facility, how they help rescues, people would happily participate in pet licensing. Need to see CGY taking ownership of the problem & eradicating it.
- None. It's the law license your pet.
- Aid in reunification. Vaccination discount.
- I should be able to provide a current picture of my pet with licensing if the point is to reunite lost pets.
- discounted micro-chipping program information package on location and etiquette at off-leash parks, cremation services, re homing options etc
- Dog training advice!
- Safe return if lost. Fees should go to monitoring and maintenance of parks. Public education on animal behaviour and how to report issues and adhere to rules.
- Off leash parks.
- Dogs must be licensed to visit the off leash dog parks. If an unlicensed pet is picked up wandering around somewhere then the owners must pay to have it licensed before it is returned.
Coupons for pet food or accessories, or free admission to a pet event like a pet expo.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Free micro-chip or Reduced rate, and Fixing their animals.
- Reunification, discount on fees,
- Reunification of lost dogs; dealing with stray dogs.
- Contact upon finding of pet.
- Accountability to those who own aggressive and nuisance animals.
- Lower licensing prices in the years to follow. Perhaps a partnership could be made with vet clinics, pet stores or grooming that if owners can produce proof of current license, they receive discounts?
- Reunification with animal, off-leash park amenities.
- Rebate or lower rate for spay / neuter.
- Discount on renewals; free entrance to city leisure facility
- Be sure that their pet will not be rehomed or euthanized if picked up when roaming (within a timeline). That their pet will be kept safe provided for until the owners can be contacted to retrieve their pet.
- A discount on food or vet bills would be nice. My cats are licensed, chipped and tattooed . I love them and want them to be found if they ever ran out and got lost.
- You shouldn't have to pay to get them out of the pound the first time.
- Support if dogs/pets are lost.
- The current ones
- Proves your dog is properly vaccinated
If your dog gets lost they have a better chance of being returned to you
License fees are cheaper than the fines
Its the law in many cities
Sometimes, it is a money grab and we don't know what the money is used for
- More garbage disposal in the city.
- Discount for multi pet home
- The peace of mind knowing that if their animal is lost, they will get it back. Maybe you could offer a free leash with a licence or free poo bags.
- Quick return of lost pets.
- The only benefit should be the return of their pet should it escape from custody. The licence should be a onetime lifetime of the pet licence. Owner's should pay extra if the pet is apprehended and returned to the owner.
- I don't think this makes sense.. don't charge the huge fees in the first place and then offer to give a little back...
- Nothing much licensing of cats and dogs should be law and no one should be allowed to own them unless they have a license and license can be transferred easily. Licensing will help city and authorities identify animal abuse and the population of certain animal.
- Nothing if the license is free.
- The privilege of having a pet within city limits where their neighbours have to put up with the barking, excitement, and running at you on the pathways when you are out walking (and yes, I love animals).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cats - should be aloud to roam. And at a certain age of the pet it should be free - why am I paying for a year If my elderly dog isn't going to last for a year??
- Refund on municipal tax, discount on vet services, discount on spay and neutering,
- Brownie points? Let's be honest, this is mostly a cash grab for the city.
- Possibly reunite with lost pets.
- The ability to reunite with your pet in the event of an escape seems like a pretty good benefit.
- They are allowed to have a pet.
- A while ago, coupons or something similiar were offered when license renewed. Some bonus such as that would work?
- It's a money grab. There are no benefits now and we certainly can't afford to spend money on bribing people to be good pet owners
- Reunification in the event of lost or abandoned dogs. Bylaw officers who police poor pet owners - especially those who do not pick up dog waste. All dogs should be chipped to trace owners.
- Free unification if lost then found.
- What there getting
- Maybe a discount towards a dog obedience class? Partner with a training Center and offer a 10% discount for people who license their puppy or dog within 30 days of adopting/ buying the dog. Might help reduce the number of vicious dogs or bad dog owners too.
- If a pet is lost reunification is easier
- licensing dogs should allow for the poop bag supply at parks
- Lost pet recovery, supporting shelters
- Lost pets can be reunited with their owners.
- That my pet will be found if lost. Should be connected with microchip - multi year is ok for a young dog, but not senior.
- Reunification,
- The knowledge that if their animal is lost or gets away then the city has a way of reuniting owners to their pets
- a discount after continuously licensing a pet for several years ie once your pet is 8 yrs old if you have consistently licensed them you receive free licenses for the rest of the pet's life
- free license once the pet reaches a certain age
- discount on the rabbit vaccination
- Information and education brochure on pet-ownership should come with their licensing letters. Or do it through email subscriptions
- Discount perks for local pet stores.
Free training classes.
Discount on timely or proactive licensing.
Discount or multiple pet licensing
- Retrieving lost pets.
- Discounts on vet care, water facilities at the dog parks and multi pet discounts

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Identification tags so that pets can be returned if they escape.
  - Nothing. Most of us have other ways of tracking our pets
  - Easier reuniting lost pets. Sometimes a pet gets spooked- sirens, hot air balloons hit by a vehicle, escapes from yard if children or maintenance people don't latch a gate.
  - Return to owner and financial support of the free Spay Neuter Clinic with cat licensing
  - Maintenance of offleash parks, lower fines to get your pet back if lost. You're doing the right thing by licensing, so fine non-licensors more and decrease cost of recovering lost pet from city pound.
  - Discounts to places the city owns
  - Licensing should fund bylaw enforcement.
  - Finding your pet if lost. Off leash dog parks are a great area to redistribute monies from dog licences.
- Cat licensing only makes sense if the cat bi law is changed to allow them outdoors.
- Maybe a pass on fines for a pet found at large the first time the animal is picked up if it's licensed.
  - Animals returned to owner.
  - If they escape you will get them back
  - The City could offer a spray/neuter program with licensing. I realize there is such a program with Fair Entry, but what about everyone else? The incentive does not need to be large, maybe 10%.
  - The right to own a pet
  - better chance of return of pet
  - The costs involved in my responses to the questions in the other topics of this survey.
  - Discounts on pet food. All pets eat...if you could get a fraction of the license fee back...you would purchase a license!
  - Is there any benefits? Other than getting a call when the animals are found?
  - The main benefit is higher potential for reunification and fees going to fund all the services we enjoy in such a pet friendly city.
  - Free return of the animal to the owner, way lower costs should the animal need to stay at the facility.
  - Easier unification when the animal is lost, proof of ownership for someone who finds the Animal instead of the finder assuming it's finders-keepers
  - Funding of bylaw enforcement. Identifying owners of lost dogs/cats.
  - Maybe some sort of rewards program, where they can get an occasional discount on food/supplies? Basically, it's kind of like insurance. If your animal is licensed and gets lost, you might have better luck getting it back.
  - an identification tag as well as papers to travel with.
  - Discounts...more than 1 pet
  - Free check up for the pet(s) or discounts
  - City of calgary need to properly check tags/tattoo/ microchips or animals that are impounded and contacted owner's of animals with identification

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Traceable to the owner. I'm not even sure what else a license does cover. Except that it seems that dog licensing subsidizes cats that are out roaming about not following the rules.
- Discount on vaccinations. Discount on pet insurance. Access to more venues. Allow for dog friendly events around the city
- Renew before due date discount.
- No fines, easier return of escaped animals.
- Off leash parks with more bins and biodegrade bags, access to most public and private buildings, better facilities and resources directed to pet owners
- Discount on pet insurance programs. Maybe even coupons for pet supplies once a year?
- Referral to vet services, as well as insurance companies that aren't gouging customers for services that aren't covered under plans, stream line the types of insurances and what is offered in clear structured manor.
- More off leash dog parks
- Reunion
- Lower yearly fee don't see it necessary to charge this much.
- Perhaps a discount on pet food or vet services
- Maybe training discounts or discounts on other important services, particularly veterinary, like shots.
- Maintenance and development of public pet-friendly areas (off leash dog parks).
- Ease of mind knowing if the pet gets lost that it should be no issue returning it to the right owner.
- Great dog parks!
- I am fine with what the license provides now. I don't think late fees or fines is the way to go. With that said I'm always late because January is a tough time. So I tend not to get to it until the end of January. I think multi year options and early discounts would make me do it in dec
- Nothing really...
- If people choose not to microchip or tattoo, then licensing is the next option to retrieving their pet, if lost.
- Pet friendly city event discounts (like lilac festival coupons) or perhaps a discount to spade/neuter dog. Free bags at off leash parks
- If done my way, incentive increases drastically for licencing pets so even less pets go missing. The human animal relations could be come consistently positive with training every few years and animal neglect and abuse would reduce!
- Better enforcement and resources for animal welfare complaints in the community, more off leash dog parks, animal welfare advocacy from Calgary to the province.
- Help with lost pets.
Help getting microchips.
- Should I expect to get a benefit for licensing my car? I believe the licensing system has gone wrong. It should be to make the pet owners accountable and responsible. Imagine how people would drive if you took the plates off all the cars? A bigger more visable way to identify a pet is required.
- Discounts / access to dog training classes would help increase responsible pet ownership.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Reassurance
- If their lost pet is located, they should be contacted immediately and not have to pay to retrieve their pet (that should be covered by their annual licensing fee, as most owners do not lose their pets).
- Certain percentage off.
- Anything other than just handing over $80 a year to receive nothing in return. Literally taking food off my table just because others don't take proper responsibility or care for their pets. I get no benefits out of that money spent. It does not benefit my animals in any way. My pets never run away.
- Easier to find your pet if they get lost, responsible pet ownership
- Maybe get some coupons or something for after as a thank you or to encourage people to license.
- Monthly payment options.
- return of their pet if lost
- Places to take their animals for recreational purposes
- The city's attention when the animal becomes lost
- Discounted rates on vaccines for licensed pets. Responsible pet ownership rarely gets acknowledged.
- Contact from the City to pick up their pet if found.
- Fees to go towards re-unification of owners and lost pets, as well as enforcement of bylaws.
- More respect from others in the community.
- Re-unification should be enough of a benefit.
- Lost pets returned.
- Maybe a discount on vaccinations. Not all owners vaccinate their pets regularly and they don't have their proper tags on the collar either when walking.
- A future discount, or a donation made in their name to a dog/cat charity, an update on how that licensing money was spent, the positives behind that money- it's important to feel it's not just wasted on other city areas and overpaid city staff.
- accountability
- Contacted / re-united if lost
Perhaps work with major vets for perks to licensed dogs.
- Benefit is if you do lose your pet that they will be easier to locate the owners to get them back.
- The reunited piece is a big one. Might be nice if we had special access to parks or some other perks like coupons or access to events. Just something to sweeten the pot and reward those of us who responsible may license our pets.
- As far as I know we don't receive any benefits. If it was $5 a year and that paid to call the family to come get their animal, that I would understand.
- a central data base to reunite their pet.
- a discount for renewing every year.
- if lost can be found
- Pets returned to their homes as first option before shelter.
- A system that is supportive of reunification, not punitive with fines and fees.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- You will get it back if it gets away.
- Perks- dog bags, discounts on kennels, private dog park access.
- What is in place is fine.
- maybe informing citizens of the cost of the services provided through licensing revenue would increase the sense that we are ethically bound. Just answering these questions makes me feel bad for not licensing. I'll probably go do it now ;-)
- An educated City of Calgary workforce as it relates to pet interaction.
- find them if they get lost.
- Responsibility to others in the community.
- Reunification when a pet is lost
- Reunification if the pet gets lost and found
- Should their pet "escape" the yard and caught by Bylaw, there should be no fees to get the pet back.
- first, I would like to know if there is a correlation between people who have complaints against them /their pets and the rates of licensing. Maybe they should get discounts on classes/courses for dog behaviour?
- Free "first pick up " if they are found
- Just the reunification benefit.
- No fee or payment.
- A responsive animal services division. That other animals that do end up separated are cared for.
- Consider discounted vaccination, discounted vet visits
- I think that licensing needs to be a little more about education. It shouldn't just be paying $ and getting a tag. I think that people should have to take a test so they understand the by-laws and rules they need to follow when owning a pet.
- I think it should help pay for off leash park matinance and maybe even go towards a indoor off leash run by the city. Where pets have to prove their license to get in. Also to cover costs of getting lost pets back to their owners. I think adding bags to parks would be great as well
- I am not aware of benefits. I utilize several pet identification services if he is ever lost.
- How about if your pet accidentally escaped or got lost, the city would return it to you without a fine? That would be a tangible benefit of having a city license.
- A monetary benefit like a vet discount (or a fine at the vet without proof of ownership)
You must be licensed to enter dog parks.
- something..anything..right now we get no benefit for a cat. at least have decent dog parks if you're going to charge.
- I have three pets that I license and I do not expect any benefits.
- Reunification and knowing everyone has an obligation to the city and the community
- Trackable if the pet is lost. I would also like the city to have a list of certified behaviourists that they can recommend.
- Being reunited with the pet if lost.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If a pet is accidentally lost a license can help an agency find the owner. That should be incentive enough.
- Low fees for licensing.
- It would be nice as a responsible pet owner, to know that those who are NOT responsible are actually fined. I have never met a person who has been fined, so not sure why there is even rules if there is no one around to actually give out fines.
- The features currently in place - ie possibility of re-unification, possibility that a stray animal will be cared for by the City.
- I'd like to link my dogs microchip number to his license in case he's without his collar for some reason
- Dog parks.
- I license my dog annually and do not believe I get anything from it. It is a tax that allows the city to operate animal services.
- Help with reuniting you with a lost pet. Upkeep of local dog parks. It would be great to have fenced small dog parks
- More bylaw patrols at off leash park
- Help in re-uniting the owner and pet if the pet is lost.
- Potential re-unification
- I don't really see the benefit when people's animals are microchipped.
- Contribution to the overall health and welfare of the city's pet population; opportunity for potential reunification, support for the humane society. I pay for my licenses because of these things, it's not just for the benefit of my pets alone.
- Reuniting pet and owner
- Possibility of reunification with pet. Great dog parks! Like Southland Dog Park!!! (BTW...need waaay more places to park there...or no ticketing for side of toad parking!!!!!!!)
- Exclusive access to dog parks (monitor entrances for unlicensed dogs)
- Reuniting pets and owners
- Perhaps fencing some suburban off leash areas. In my neighbourhood the off leash area is adjacent to a four lane road on one side and the main exit/entrance to the neighbourhood on the other.
- Pet owners who are honest and license their dogs, as well as spay and neuter them, should receive a discount or coupon for grooming or dog food of their choice. Maybe everyone would be on board, both cat and dogs owners
- Free ride home if picked up at large by animal control, once per year, per animal. I don't use the discount card thing, it's not easy to use. Some other form of reward or discount.
- Actually nothing if your pet has a chip it would be helpful other than that it's a cash grab
- If the pet is lost, then the city should know who they belong to quickly.
- Reunification if lost, part of being a member of a responsible society
- To be allowed to let their cat roam free

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't think responsible owners who continue to license animals should have to continue to pay for those that are irresponsible and not licensing. Giving a free license doesn't solve the problem
- My being fined for bylaw picking up a lost dog that has a current licence.
- Shouldn't have massive fees for retrieving lost animals
- No more than we already get
- Reunification information release (allow City to release phone number to veterinary offices if pets dropped off), license renewal reminder, information on pet ownership in the city
- Pound
- Off leash dog areas
- There are no benefits
- More Pet friendly spaces. More advocacy for pets in public places including apartments condos etc. Educational material about the benefits of pet ownership.
- Waived fees associated with lost pets
- If pet gets lost they can be quickly connected with family
- Help to get the pet home if it's ever lost.
- One time forgiveness fee at shelter if pet accidentally gets out and lost.
24 hour grace period in shelter without penalty and 48 hour reduced penalty.
- Decreased reunification cost!
- The ability to share information on your pet quickly and effectively
- Reunification and bylaw enforcement
- Returning the pet if found, or at min a phone call from bylaw if the animal is picked up. Clean off leash parks and more dog friendly areas.
- Responsible thing to do.. and if pet is lost then you can find owner.. but all pets should be chipped.. maybe discount on license if pet is chipped.
- When pet owners license their pets they should receive a break down of where the money is used within the city programs.
- Maybe like a discount card for certain pet stores or services would be cool
- None. They should do it because they are supposed to.
- - A tag that isn't heavy considering some dogs are small
- - Reuniting with pet if returned
- Reunited with a lost pet. Notification if the pet has been found dead. That the fees are helping to provide useful services towards pet ownership.
- Perhaps a credit on account for good standing owners. Or more widespread knowledge on where those monies go.
- Most importantly, reunification. Secondly, knowing their pets are in good, caring, safe hands while with Animal Services. Also, knowing that they're helping to support the ongoing care, treatment, rehabilitation, and rehoming of stray, abandoned, and abused animals.
- Education courses on what responsible pet ownership means. Animals are living creatures, they are not disposable material objects.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- reunification possibility is the big one
- Definitely be able to identify owners to ensure lost pets are returned. Perhaps some kind of training/information opportunities.
- Assistance in finding pet if lost.
- A nice tag with name/phone number. Some type of perks or something back. Like a gift certificate to petsmart?
- Finding the owners(s)
- Access to exclusive off leash areas
- Community discounts
- Contacted when dog is lost, perhaps information sessions to be a better dog owner and training opportunities
- Don't know what we get now so that needs to be public.
- Funds should be used to run animal services, but animal services should be no-kill. Funds should not be used for any other city services.
- Access to behavior classes, community support if your pet goes missing, discounts/credentials with pet stores/services (kennels, dog-walking, etc)
- Reunion when lost.
- Reuniting. Problem solving by by-law.
- There is a possibility that pet owners could benefit from licensing pets?
- lost pet tracking, to be reunited with their pet should it be found
- education on where they can and cannot take their pet
- Promotions or discounts to city events/areas with proof of license
- Better quality tags and free replacement after 5 yrs as dogs just wears to unreadable unless covered.
- Return of animal if lost
- Not sure, all my pets are Microchipped. Maybe a goodie bag of pet friendly things?
- besides reunification if lost? can't think of anymore. Maybe much higher fines for those caught not licensing.
- Returning lost cats to owners
- Main benefit for me would be that if my licensed pet were lost/found it could be returned to me.
- Information about bylaws and off leash dog parks/areas.
- None, and I'm a pet owner.
- Could there be some discount with vets on spay and neutering?
Could there be some discount with yearly vets visits?
- safe pet returned to owners if pet gets lost, etc.
- I assume they get called if lost pet is found, not sure what other benefit, discount on vaccines would be good.
- reconnecting owners with lost pets
- lower fines if they do get out / escape and don't have multiple "on the loose" records.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Reunification or rescue when needed
- Obviously, reunification with lost pet although, given that this can be done via microchipping registration, there should be other benefits, perhaps a personalized cost tag for dogs, pet health insurance... pet store discount? Just thoughts...
- Re-unification.
Their animals are not killed by Animal Services.
- With databases and ear tags officets could issue a notice that fido or kitty is out before they get to the pound and a big fat expense. Fines don't seem to ensure compliance.
- As above, reuniting with a lost pet.
- If your pet is registered with the City of Calgary you have a profound likelihood of having your pet returned to you I am not a fan of nor do I endorse exotic animals as pets sugar gliders monkeys I do not feel that they should be allowed
- Re uniting if lost and respect
- There is no benefit to me as a pet owner to license my pet so it is not a priority
- Free admission to things like the Pet Expo. Coupons for pet supplies.
- re-unification.
- Attempts a reunification if the pet is found not getting fined for having an unlicensed pet
- Perhaps partner up with pet stores for a discount with proof of license.
- Lost pets returned. Free poop bags at dog parks even though some people abuse the system.
- Increases the likelihood of finding a lost pet
- I think owners should be contacted when their pet is brought in to the pound or humane society.
- maintaining off-leash parks, enforcing rules/regulations...
- Finding their pet. Control of dogs and number of dogs
- Just re-unification. It is us taxpayers without pets who subsidize the dog parks, etc. It is not the dog and cat owners they don't contribute I am guessing but a drop in a bucket.
- Waste bins on paths (ie Nose Hill where there are only two, both of which are essentially on the same path).
Being contacted if the city picks up your pet.
Input on changes and spending on parks
- Reliable way to ensure return
- Maybe a discount ?? Or if the pet gets out we don't get charged an impound fee
- Found pets should returned to their owners if they have been lost. A fee should be in place if the pet needs to be boarded until the owners are contacted
- I believe it shouldn't be as expensive as it is to have my dog registered. If they do get lost and found you have to pay fines/ retrieve the dog anyways. The OPTION of multi year would be nice for convenience.
- Financial incentive at local vets for yearly vaccinations and neutering / spaying of animals.
- Information on healthy pet ownership. Contact from the City when a lost pet has been located.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Peace of mind their animal will be reunited to them. A strong animal bylaw team who provide support to the city when there are concerns or animals at large
- It pays for animal/dog related services and park space. Primarily, identify the dog if lost.
- Coupons or discounts on food products/pet supplies (may encourage more licensing), fast reunification with owners, high communication with other cities/provinces for cats/dogs reunification
- Perhaps a discount on their property tax - the cost of licensing one animal. If multi-animal home, still only one as we can't expect the city to pick up the cost of every animal.
- Maybe some fun promotions like on the spot gifts or treats when a bylaw officer spots a licensed animal at a park?
- Can you please make smaller tags for small dogs? Our license tags are too big and heavy for our 6lb dogs so they can't wear them.
- I don't see any benefit in it.. unless my pet is lost but most cases go to the vet instead of impound and the amount to ask to get them out is ridiculous !! sometimes pets get out as an accident and people should not be penalized for that.
- a lot more than the above excuse.
- Reunion of lost pets to owners is huge. Finding programs for low income owners to have their animal spayed or neutered is huge. It's important that unsterilized animals are more expensive to register to encourage sterilization.
- A very good re-unification process. (Even if the pet is found and has died)
- The benefit of licencing their pet is that in the event the animal gets out and about they can be reunited with their owners. Other benefits of ownership is that they are contributing to the cost of capture, removal and clean up of others.
- Fund pet reunification and adoption services. Bylaw enforcement
- A discount for vet services/daycare/grooming.
- None, licensing is not practical. All my dogs have chips implanted to assist in reunification.
- In the instance of cats, the expectation would be to provide funding for spay/neuter tattoo animals. Responsible owners that do this usually have no problem with re-unification. But without having the animal fixed they do not get tattoo's or microchipping. Vets are far to expensive
- If your dog is not picked up by city you should get a discount
- Unsure....
  - Lists of pet resources?
  - Vet clinics
  - Holistic vet clinics
  - Emergency vet clinics
  - Pet friendly stores
  - Pet friendly patios
  - Pet friendly events
- Not much except that if the animal is lost, the city can return it to it's owner. If you have a name tag and a telephone # on your dog, that would serve the same purpose.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Assistance with reunification
- There used to be a discount card that you got with participating pwt stores. That was nice.
- It should be a reduced one time fee with online access to update contact information and addresses.
- Help in reuniting pet if lost.
- Quick reuniting if lost
- Prompt reunification if lost. No cost in retrieval of a lost pet.
- licensing my pet should ensure that they are returned to me if ever lost
- Most importantly the ability to reunite with my pet should they become lost. I use city dog parks frequently and dont mind paying licensing fees to the city as some funds may go back in to maintaining this
- We have many great social media groups that help reunite pets with owners. So other perks or advantages would help people register, like discounts on vet trips
- Nothing but the piece of mind if pet lost you will be reunited
- Helps reunite pets with owners. Even better if that money stays in animal control to help officers help animals.
- Discounts throughout the city
- Maybe a discount on yearly vaccinations could be offered? For new / early licencees could get discounts or gifts from pet stores to help gain all the supplies they need to start out.
- None aside from re-unification
- Lenience/no fines if picked up at large by city. Escape artists exist.
- Trust that they're animals will be returned quickly and taken well care of when in care of the city.
- I have yet to experience any benefits of licensing my pet. And if he became lost he is also microchipped.
- discount at local stores
- Animal bylaw services
- The free return of the animal of found at large
- The assurance that if your pet is lost it will find it's way back to you using licensing to get in touch.
- From my understanding the only benefit is the return to home if lost. More benefits would be ideal, convenience organization of documentation for example i.e. allergy's, behaviour, vet visits/up to date shots etc etc.
- in some city, the city put at disposition poop bags for pet owners.
cats should be able to go out if they are licensed and wear their tag
- Lower costs
- Im quite happy to get my dog bacm. Ive had two dogs returned to me multiple times over the last decade thanks to their licenses.
I havent given it much more thought.
- Pets returned to them.
- They receive nothing now. And I dont see that changing. The city collects the money and really nothing is done for the pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Impound fees should be reduced, they should not make it as difficult as they do to reclaim

- Confidence in being reunited with pet
- free new license tag each renewal, and documentation mailed. I think it would be a good idea to provide a discount or reward to owners every year they renew their pet(s) licence.
- Discounts at vet clinics and pet stores
- Ease of re-unification when lost. Discounts in Calgary pet stores.
- A frequently updated website of lost pets with their licence # would be helpful for people and give them incentive to register their pet. If you lose your pet, there is no website where multiple vet clinics and facilities could update the whereabouts of the animal.
- To be reunited if the pet is lost
- Highlight what they are paying for. More than just if their pet is lost, as many rely on microchips alone and think that is sufficient
- The benefit of having their pet returned to them should they have tags.
- Any benefit would be nice, there really isn't any benefit at all right now. Maybe partnering with some vets for a discounted vet bill...
- Reunification is the big one. Perhaps an idea would be if a stray is picked up and they are licensed, they do not have to pay a penalty to get their animal back. I lived in BC and there were officers walking around parks ticketing unlicensed dogs. That is both a revenue earner but also incentive.
- I really don't see why there needs to be a fee associated with licensing your pets, if they are already regularly seen by vets and are microchipped.
- knowing that if their animal is lost... that they can be located.
- No benefit per se, but a better feeling that the money is being used to support animal-related (or other social) causes.
- Fast, easy identification of animals if their pet goes missing.
- I think pet owners are unaware of the benefits they already get.
- A warning if their pet is running at large, not an immediate fine
- Free tattoos or microchips. The tags are easily lost.
- Cheaper vet visits
- Finding their lost pet
- If I could get a multi year license for my dog it would prevent me from forgetting to license her. And a promo/ad reminding people that pets in the city need licenses.
- That if city finds their animal it will be returned to them.
Otherwise nothing.
- Access to parks
- How are the monies applied, currently? Could we not put small posts along pathways in neighborhoods full of doggy bags, for example? Could we apply some of the funds to assist lower income families to attend dog training classes? Could we apply funds to supply lower income families with pet food?
- I am not sure what benefit licensing provides; it seems like a pet tax.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Making it easier to trace the owners if they stray is the direct benefit. The more indirect benefit is funding animal services to ensure that stray and abandoned animals are cared for and to provide low-cost spay and neuter clinics to avoid pet overpopulation.
- Animal services (shelter and programs currently existing), but I also expect to deal with reasonable bylaw officers. There really has been some power tripping on their behalf lately. Common sense used to reign but since Bill Bruce left the city's animal services are falling back into the dark ages.
- Pet owners should have the benefit of knowing that if they've registered their animal [one time] that it is saved in a database that can be accessed at any time in the event of a pet and owner being separated.
- Not sure...?
- Multi pet discount. Benefits to licensed animals.
- I believe it's an outdated money grab. The license should have my info not the city's.
- That their pet would be returned back to them should it become lost (provided the owner keeps their information up to date).
- Discount of multiple year licensing
- Re-unification with owner and pet.
It provides a way to contact owners with info, such as outbreaks, immunizations, etc.
- Neighbourhood parks and paths should have poop bags available in dispensers along with trash bins. Annual updates on numbers and breeds of licensed pets in YYC neighborhoods, discounts at pet stores & vets and more available off leash parks in outer communities.
- I believe they should get a benefit such as pay for licensing for 3 years and the 4th year is free. Or, something like that.
- Basically what I said above. Plus knowing your pet has another form of ID etc.
- Discounts at city-approved Vets of licensed, incentives regarding pet supplies, perhaps a way to combine licensing and microchipping services.
- Maybe subsidized vet care or incentive. I know it's unlikely but I think it would have to be a big return.
- More pet friendly spaces in the city. Fenced in off leash parks.
- I think that re-unification and identification in case of issues should be enough of an expectation of licensing. Perhaps if there were discounts for pet related services/stores (similar to the AMA membership model) that could be interesting
- Discounts on vet visits or some sort of insurance for vet emergencies
- It's simply a tax. I've always licensed my dogs, but there's no benefit to it. My dogs are micro-chipped, so if I ever lost one (which has never happen in over 30 years of ownership), I'd go to the pound, pay my fine and get it back.
- Dog parks. I see no advantage for cats. Reunification with owner if lost I guess.
- knowing that if a pet gets out for any reason and is fixed microchip and licensed the owner will be contacted and given lenience for first time occurrence.
- A quicker rehoming of their pet.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Reunite when pet gets lost.
- A quick return of the pet when lost
- Get contacted if their pet is found, perhaps know funds are used to help other pets.
- Off leash parks, list and found.
- Immediate contact from shelters if pets ever turn up there, free or discounted training/obedience classes
- More free training
- I would expect the city to protect the animals licensed with them, as opposed to threats of removal or death, if the animal is found outside of the home by accident. I also expect the city to use the proper information on the license to reunite the proper owner with the animal.
- No license...no off leash dog parks
- Reuniting with lost pets. To be honest, I don't expect any benefits from $30 per year as I'm confident the money is well used for animal services
- If they happen to get out, you can get your pet back
- FREE reunification.
- That the city's main goal is for re-unification. For those who aren't re-unified, that the city develop relationships and work with local rescues to transfer pets to appropriate rescues who may be able to give them more dedicated attention.
- Courtesy call if animal is picked up by animal services rather than going straight to the pound?
- Free ride home or discount on impound fees of animal is impounded
- - dog recognition if they ever get lost
- - promotes responsible pet ownership
- Safe return home
- Incentives at vet offices. Lower ticket fees from bylaw officers
- Giving their pet a chance to be found/ re-united if lost should be enough. Maybe be able to claim cost in income tax.
- Finding lost animals.
- Discounts for: food, training, percentage off if continue to license every five (?) years, grooming, kennelling, etc. Owning a pet is expensive. Good discounts would definitely encourage pet owners!
- If your pet is missing more time is allotted to claim your pet before adopted out reward points/ system, coupons, for specific stores, automatic notification to social media to main locations for lost pets that automatically links your licence to owners contact linking pet to owners
- The animal being brought back to the owner. I should be able to type into your website, the number allocated and get a phone number or email to contact the person rather than having them dropped at the shelter. BYlaw picks up an animal CALL THE OWNER! You do this for profit.
- I am sick of people using the Tuscani playing field as the "go to" place to walk dogs, dogs relieving themselves exactly where children play their sports, play in playground, people using grass for sitting, etc. Totally against Dog Bylaws. No one will address. Probably same across city.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No fines when picking up your animal or Immediate return to your home even when the pet has no tag on. More option to tell a person who found a pet where it lives. Many owners dont keep a collar on at home for whatever reason and having the pet wear the tag seems outdated. A chip should suffice.
- quick return of the animal. assistance in finding their animal. educational info session with helpful take home information possibly breed specific - how to be a good neighbor - expectations of caring for the pet - support if they have an animal displaying behavior issues.
- reunification, special access to events (host pet days at certain places/fairs), discounts on pet foods & products during the first months the person has the pet, real acknowledgement from City when someone calls to say their pet has died and won't be renewing license
- I had to look up what my payed license does. Currently it is to ensure if separated the animal can be returned to owner; covers costs associated. Honestly, the fee for one seems fair. But, I could see how if you had a couple animals it adds up. Maybe a group discount option scale/owner if more pets?
- I don't think a benefit further to knowing that if your dog is lost, your chances of being reunited are raised exponentially by having the animal registered with the city. I think we also get a discount card currently with the registration, but I've never personally used it.
- Dedicated dog parks that aren't just dusty hills with tall grass. This is addition to Fire Response awareness of pets in your registered address would be a good idea. The city should be able to use the licensing information to let Fire response know there are pet occupants as well.
- I think that the pet needs to be kept safe if they are picked up by your Officers.As well, pet owners should expect proper discretion with Officers. Eg, if someone's had 15 years of no fines, paid licenses, and the dog rain out the front door from lightning scare there should be discretion not fine
- I feel that owners should have peace of mind knowing that should their dog/cat be found that they will be returned without worry of fines (1st & 2nd offence), they should be able to get discounts with city businesses such as dogwalkers, trainers, pet stores, But this should benefit everyone involved
- Access to off-leash areas should be controlled via your MyPet app (or card) and you should have to scan in. 1 card per pet.
If your pet is not registered then you don't get access! That way the city also knows which owner and dog is in each park at any given time (if a problem is reported)
- Support for pet owners, as mentioned, if the dog is lost. Also assist with advice and guidance for responsible pet ownership, that means provide assistance and encouragement for animals to get proper training and socialization, and also help low income families as well.
- I think incentivizing vs. punishing is more appropriate. Also., offering free licensing for low income people. I like the idea that my licence $ supports programs like spay/neuter programs, etc. Calgarians licence because it's normative, so explaining the benefits, and that everyone does it!
- Transparency of where fees go
  - won't walk in off-leash
  - no benefit/improvements in off-leash parks
  - knowing dog would be returned is a benefit

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- * off-leash - rent a private field to run dogs
- - Multiyears, discounts on multi-year
  - Discounts
  - Life license
  - Grandfathered after 10 years
  - If you license for 10 years -> free license for the rest of your life
  - 311 - without licensing, there would be no dept. call to complain
  - offleash = too dangerous
  - pets returned
  - enforcement, no control owners
  - free drive-home for first offence
- If something happens you can get your animal back
- - If pet gets lost easily found
- The animal being brought back to the owner. I should be able to type into your website, the number allocated and get a phone number or email to contact the person rather than having them dropped at the shelter. BYlaw picks up an animal CALL THE OWNER! You do this for profit.
- I am sick of people using the Tuscan playing field as the "go to" place to walk dogs, dogs relieving themselves exactly where children play their sports, play in playground, people using grass for sitting, etc. Totally against Dog Bylaws. No one will address. Probably same across city.
- No fines when picking up your animal or Immediate return to your home even when the pet has no tag on. More option to tell a person who found a pet where it lives. Many owners dont keep a collar on at home for whatever reason and having the pet wear the tag seems outdated. A chip should suffice.
- quick return of the animal. assistance in finding their animal. educational info session with helpful take home information possibly breed specific - how to be a good neighbor - expectations of caring for the pet - support if they have an animal displaying behavior issues.
- reunification, special access to events (host pet days at certain places/fairs), discounts on pet foods & products during the first months the person has the pet, real acknowledgement from City when someone calls to say their pet has died and won't be renewing license
- I had to look up what my payed license does. Currently it is to ensure if separated the animal can be returned to owner; covers costs associated. Honestly, the fee for one seems fair. But, I could see how if you had a couple animals it adds up. Maybe a group discount option scale/owner if more pets?
- I don't think a benefit further to knowing that if your dog is lost, your chances of being reunited are raised exponentially by having the animal registered with the city. I think we also get a discount card currently with the registration, but I've never personally used it.
- Dedicated dog parks that aren't just dusty hills with tall grass. This is addition to Fire Response awareness of pets in your registered address would be a good idea. The city should be able to use the licensing information to let Fire response know there are pet occupants as well.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think that the pet needs to be kept safe if they are picked up by your Officers. As well, pet owners should expect proper discretion with Officers. Eg, if someone's had 15 years of no fines, paid licenses, and the dog ran out the front door from lightning scare there should be discretion not fine
- I feel that owners should have peace of mind knowing that should their dog/cat be found that they will be returned without worry of fines (1st & 2nd offence), they should be able to get discounts with city businesses such as dogwalkers, trainers, pet stores, But this should benefit everyone involved
- Access to off-leash areas should be controlled via your MyPet app (or card) and you should have to scan in. 1 card per pet.
If your pet is not registered then you don't get access! That way the city also knows which owner and dog is in each park at any given time (if a problem is reported)
- Support for pet owners, as mentioned, if the dog is lost. Also assist with advice and guidance for responsible pet ownership, that means provide assistance and encouragement for animals to get proper training and socialization, and also help low income families as well.
- I think incentivizing vs. punishing is more appropriate. Also., offering free licensing for low income people. I like the idea that my licence $ supports programs like spay/neuter programs, etc. Calgarians licence because it's normative, so explaining the benefits, and that everyone does it!
- If they are lost and found then the owner should be called before impounding the animal
- Of course the main reason to have them licensed is for the city's lost & found services, but having some sort of incentive to get it done, rather than pushing the fact you will get fined if caught without a license. Maybe something like "a free 1-hour behavior training class" thru the city.
- A certificate or maybe a free leash or something.
- To have their pets returned
- Support for pet owners. Today if someone complains about a pet, immediately the pet owner is treated like a criminal.
- Do you informed if your cat or dog has been picked up by the humane Society or the Calgary animal services division. No fee if your dog or cat is picked up
- I think it is the dogs and cats that benefit most from licensing.
- Nothing. If an animal has a tattoo or chip those do not fall off like a tag can or be removed if the dog is stolen
- Being able to unite with a lost pet is enough of a benefit for me. Also, not having a penalty if the animal gets out and is captured by the city. Sometimes animals get out. Maybe first offence should be free (not sure if there is a fine now, but I think there is).
- Lost pet gets returned to owner
- Discount on immunization
- Ability to add name/personal contact to tag, no fee for reunification of pet is lost/picked up (maybe once or twice in the life of the pet. Discount for early/on-time renewal.
- Reunited if lost
- free no fine stay at impound if a licensed animal is picked up. had a licensed dog got out and picked up. checked pound right away and were told they weren't there but when we checked back 3

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

days later he was there and we had to pay for 3 days stay regardless, they said he was picked up after hours

- Animal tags to have on their collars, ease in finding a lost pet, the ability to be the only person (the owner) who has the ability to sell or remove a pet from the home (not the owner's father or sibling)
- There are many other services offering identification for lost pet at much lower cost (medal with phone number and owner database)
- Re-unification of a lost pet. Tracking of potential future disease outbreaks. Statistics are valuable to the city for policy decisions.
- To be unified with their pet ASAP and be rest assured that their animal will not be harmed
- Locating lost pets!
- - increased rate of return of lost pets
- Peace of mind
Knowing they'll be returned if lost
- Special pricing at pet stores or vets would be motivating if it could be worked out. Definitely help in finding lost pets, such as lost pet posters that can be easily customized.
- They are easily reunited with their animal that has been lost; proof of ownership
- The city needs a more aggressive approach to spay & neutering cats to reduce their overpopulation, rather than send bylaw officers to pick up strays who would then be doomed.
- Help for a lost pet.
- that their pet is returned to them, however in the case of cats some people just open the door and let them go when they get tired of them.
- Discounts at certain stores or products as an incentive
- Pet recovery and access to improved dog parks that are created from the licensing costs. A pet license should be both the pet's and owner's ticket to fun dog parks that are well maintained and programmed. What would be amazing is an indoor dog park operated by the city for when temperatures plunge
- Reunification if separated. Is there any way to do GPS tracking? Maybe there is a discount through local pet stores to incentivize people?
- Proof of ownership, assurance of return.
- Services and community for us and our dogs. Calgary has most of it but has completely missed the boat on safe parks for everyone. Nothing here if you aren't able bodied and can't walk far. Nothing here if you want safe fully fenced areas for small dogs to play/run.
- as they are now.
- Return of their pet.
- Prompt reunification.
- No penalty for first one or two captures/recoveries
- In my opinion there are no benefits at all.
- Additional information regarding low-income spay/neuter and vaccination programs.
- Proof of ownership; assurance of return if stray and picked up by City (for dogs only) and found

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stray animal roundup and reunification with owners.
- The ability to re-unite with their pet, otherwise, I am not sure. There is the ability to dispose of litter and fecal matter.
- Use the licensing fees to help with the funding of human society -- let them know this, and even perhaps rescue organisations. In addition, try working with businesses like Starbucks, Tims, independent pet stores to give a coupon for purchases.
- Uniquely the privilege of owning a pet. What benefits should I get from licensing my car? None, except that I may use my car.
- Maybe a subsidized / free health check up for their pet.
- The benefit of re-unification if they are accidentally separated from their pets. Assistance at home in the case of a fire. The inability for a thief to license a stolen animal, and therefore creating a deterrent.
- - Reunification Support
- - Municipal Support for Stray & Unwanted Rescue Services For Licensed Species
- - Plebiscites & townhalls for licensees to vote on how those fees are being collected and utilized.
- - Small Business Grants for ethical, animal-oriented businesses to increase pet care and wellbeing
- The ability to get your pet back if its lost seems like the biggest benefit.

What other pets should be licensed, why?

- In the UK, many keep Rabbits. Apart from that, no wild animals need to be kept as pets
- Any urban livestock if that becomes a thing. As well as birds, rabbits, anything bigger than a fish and that could get lost.
- Birds, they can literally fly out a window and into the world at large.
- I believe that it should be up to the owner if they want to license their pet. If an animal is outdoors on a regular basis, it would be valuable.
- Personally, I don't think cats should be licensed. Where the heck are you planning to put them?! Don't do it. This is a TERRIBLE idea.
- Any urban livestock should require similar licensing.
- Bunnys! people are letting them loose and it would be nice to fine the people who think its okay to let domesticated bunnies out.
- Any that access public spaces. Most others only impact the personal property of the owners.
- all pets
- Any pet that leaves the owners property
- no thoughts
- Any pet that does or can leave the home.
- Anything that has the potential to be dangerous or multiply quickly. Also exotic animals.
- All Reptiles (because irresponsible ownership leads to them being abandoned in apartment building and multi-family housing).
- I genuinely believe you need to do away with the licensing scheme as it is and do it based on animal microchips instead, so no other animals need to be included.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think any pet that is going to be exposed to the public (outside of it's owners private property) should require a license.
- any animal that is kept as a pet
- I would assume it helps the animals get back to me quicker but in my experience, This is not true.
- none, most other animals are indoors only and aren't anyone else's business.
- All pets that go outside, or potentially go outside so if there is an issue, there is a record of an animal in a household.
- Any pet that goes outside should be licensed, in case it strays. A pet that stays 100% inside, such as a guinea pig or a lizard, should not require a license.
- Pot belly pigs should be considered pets and licensed.
- Large birds potentially. Reptiles and rodents, since if they escape they can become significant invasive species.
- Pigs, chickens and any emotional pet.
- Any type of support animal
- Pot belly pigs, birds, fancy rats.
- Any pets that are treated in the same way as a cat or dog. So, for example, if they take their pet for a walk it should be licensed.
- I think If they're exotic-domesticated, they should also be licensed. And if a person has a support animal such as a pony, pig of monkey, these should also be licensed.
- Only dogs should be licensed. Licencing animals like gerbils and hamsters and snakes is nothing but a cash grab as these animals do not access any public areas. Charging proper fines to by-law violaters should be your revenue stream, escalating fines for frequent violators based on owner not pet
- Service animals. This allows them to be identified and returned if lost.
- Less red tape - 1 lifetime fee for a pet
- Any pet that has the potential to leave their home (escaped or walked) should require licences.
- Focus on dogs and cats being registered and strengthening this program, then maybe in the future consider expanding to other animals that may go out and interact with public (e.g. rabbits, birds, ferrets) depending on the numbers
- All pets that can be let outside a dwelling, not limited to but including birds of all types, and rabbits. Especially rabbits holy crap so many of those are set free without a tattoo or a chip and then they ruin the ecosystem.
- There seems to be a large amount of abandoned pet rabbits - any pet should be licensed. Reptiles/snakes etc should also be licensed. Birds too. Responsible pet owners will be ok with this.
- Any animals that go outside
- Exotics like snakes, reptiles, spiders. Anything that if it escapes, could potentially cause harm.
- Any that can be out in public
- I don't think our system sees waste or damage re-enter the environment like that of cats and dogs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If cats need to be licensed so should every other house pet. There really isn't a difference if the cat owner is responsible and keeps their cat inside.
- Any animal that may be walked outside.
- All animals, to track any issues that may arise. Excluding smaller pets that would never be released in the wild like fish, hamsters, and reptiles. Including rabbits though.
- All pets should be licensed. All pets need to be visually identifiable as having been licensed while on public property.
- Not really any come to mind.
- With urban agriculture becoming more common, I do wonder if those animals should be licensed.
- Neither - listed above.
- I have no thought on this
- I think dogs yes. I think Cats is a little much, I think if a cat is an escape artist or an outdoor cat yes but in Veterinary medicine it is made very clear to owners that the best thing you can do for your cat is keep them inside. So to even add on another animal would be looked at as a cash grab!!
- maybe birds. if they fly away from home.
- Large reptiles, such as boas, tegus, iguanas, and pythons. Should go by weight not length of animal. It discourages irresponsible owners from getting animals they cannot handle.
- Any that could run away..
- Chickens, livestock, snakes, larger birds...
- Any other pets that can survive outside the home for long periods without human intervention. E.g. rabbits.
- Ferrets as they can escape and are quite ferocious. Rats as they are controlled in Alberta. Poisonous snakes, in case they escape.
- Any other large animals
- Potentially rabbits. We have a lot of domestic rabbits dumped in our neighbourhood and it would give you an idea of who has done this.
- An animal that leaves the door of the owners residence should have a license.
- I
- If it is an animal that could/will be outside your home then it should be licensed because there is a change it will interact with the public. For example... fish in an aquarium - no; pot bellied pigs - yes
- Ferrets, snakes and other large reptiles
- Both
- Any pet that will be unsupervised outside/in a yard by it's owner at any time.
- small companion animals - no unless breeding for sale chickens - only if more than 4-5 per household larger animals - yes
- Any animal that leaves the property, unless they are microchipped/tattooed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't think that a city should have the right to say you must license your pet. It's as simple as if you didn't license your pet you don't have to options to get the city to help you find them. That's a risk that should be a choice not a demand.
- any animal used as a pet within the confines of city living should be licensed and chipped..it wouldn't hurt for acreage or large land owners on the edge of city limits to do the same...
- Any pets that go outside should be 100%. And licencing should be on condition of education about that specific animal's needs to be healthy. Might be 10 hours for some, like livestock. Might be 10 minutes for a hamster. Two hours for cats, three for dogs.
- Pigs, if pets should be licensed.
- Only vicious animals on a case-by-case basis. AKA, if an owner had a vicious python snake.
- I sound like a broke record but every animal should have a microchip including birds.
- no, if pets are not allowed to leave the residence then why should they be licenced?
- Well you could say any animal only to ensure it is receiving the proper care and treatment. Also to prevent hoarding issues.
- Rabbits because they're often released
- I had a dog licence and the court issued Warrants for my arrest.I have spent seven days in jail because they said I didn't have a dog licence.I will win in court but is this really you what you want to put people in jail for bylaw issues?I have never had a issue in my life but this is what out world
- Any animal that is outdoors, and can potentially escape from his/her pen/cage, should be licensed. If you have pigeons, they should be licensed with a leg band.
- Horses, birds and domestic pot belly pigs. All of these would create records to encourage responsibility, adequate care, follow up if needed, reunification, and succession planning since these animals have long life spans
- All pets, for the same reasons - reunification, reduce strays and unwanted breeding. Also provides valuable data to policy makers.
- I think almost any "pet" should be licensed since there is a licensing schema. If people want an animal, livestock, domestic pets or otherwise, it should be all of them.
- NONE, you need to actual deal with the cat licenses before you more to other animals. Animal services does need to deal with the feral rabbit population in this city before it becomes a major problem like Canmore had.
- Any animal larger than a large dog should be licensed, for the health and safety of the animal and those around it. So a miniature horse, goat, pot-bellied pig, wallaby, deer, or any other legal pet in Canada that would be as big as a large dog or have potential to cause physical harm.
- None, the other pets are kept indoors and do not cost the city anything to clean up after them, which does not happen either
- Any that may reasonably leave house, intentionally or not.
- Cats/dogs are allowed (by those who don't abide by the rules) to roam free as they know the way back home. Other pets do not/so are for the most part always cont'd in cages. I think to lic other pets

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

would be a greedy money grab by the city. Or perhaps a good way to allow other types of pet to exist

- I think only outdoor animals should be licensed. All indoor pets should be exempt. Cats generally have a microchip when getting fixed, this tracks them if they are lost for some reason, therefore the licensing of indoor cats seems more as an extra cost that is really not necessary.
- For the life of me I can't imagine licensing a bird or fish LOL. But in the case of an urban farm animal that I think the city has a right to ask for a specific permit in order to have those animals in the backyard
- I believe any pet that may leave an owners private residence, by any means - going for a walk, riding in a car, escaping the residence etc should be licensed.
- Dogs only
- Every urban pet should be licensed so taxpayers aren't footing the bill for enforcement.
- Dogs and cats are all
- I don't believe that other pets should be licensed. Indoor cats shouldn't need to be licenced either.
- Any other animal, besides dog and cat, that is consider an emotional support animal.
- Only one's that may encounter people.
- Birds(ie-pigeons,etc) that are allowed to fly freely at times of day. Bees & all livestock in urban setting as all have opportunities to escape, get lost , hurt public if there is NOT responsible human ownership and ACCOUNTABILITY must be present
- I really only think licenses are needed for animals who are inclined to be off of the property.
- Cats and dogs are the most likely to be found on the street so that is the primary concern in my opinion.
- Any animal that is kept as a domestic pet should be licensed. Ie rabbit, hamster,parrot, etc.
- Nope.
- Cats shouldn't be. Most dogs should be. Livestock if we're ever allowed should be of some kind
- All pets that can cause harm to people or destroy property
- If dogs and cats are required to be licensed, then other pets should be as well - rabbits, chinchillas, snakes, reptiles, birds - all others. If the reasoning is that dogs and cats need to be registered for return, then the same reason applies to other pets
- Even it is possible animal control may be involved
- Any pet that is outside or could get lost.
- Rabbits they are inside and outtside animals like cats and dogs. They can escape as well.
- All pets where owners might have an expectation of public monitoring /return if lost should be licensed
- All animals should be licensed as city provided services may be needed in case of emergencies
- I believe any pet that is able to get out of the home should be licensed.
- I don't think that any other animals need be licensed
- Urban farm animals, bee hives. If pigeons, leg tags. Statistical info for policy and future plans. How many dogs, cats, bees, chickens can a city have? The number shouldn't determined by random.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Cannot think of any other pet that needs to be.
- Livestock should be for sure if able to have within city limits
- All animals need to be licensed
- Pet pigs.
- Large snakes
- All should be licences
- dogs and cats should be licensed if they are not micro-chipped, this way in case one goes missing there is a way to return the animal to its owner. Not all dogs and cats where their license tag all the time, so most people see buying a license for their dog as not beneficial
- I think all pets should be licensed ... if you do one group do them all
- Anything outdoors that may be a nuance to neighbors (smell, noise) or attract predators. Chickens should be licensed.
- Any pet that can run at large should be licenced to show who it's owner is and what the owner's city address is should the animal create a problem or become lost.
- not sure about that
- None, dogs and cats only.
- I think chickens should be allowed in Calgary and they should be licensed.
- No others as some of it is just another tax
- Yes they should. If I am charged for my pets, all owners should pay for theirs
- Snakes.
- I would rather animals be tattooed/microchipped. Pet licenses are a money grab for the city with little benefit to the owner.
- Any service animal
- I think chickens/urban agriculture should at least be registered/licensed to comply with the number permitted to be owned.
- Rabbits. I've seen domestic rabbit loose and feel they should be treated same.
- Exotic/ venomous reptiles.
- Any pet that you allow in the urban centre with this new bylaw review should have to be licensed!!!!!!
- Reptiles
- Anything that goes outside, ever.
- No other pets should be licensed
- Yes, all animals (other than gerbils, guinea pigs, rabbits) should be licensed
- ANY AND ALL ANIMALS SHOILD BE LICENSED.
- None really, since they aren't usually seen outside of the house.
- I'm not sure other pets go missing as often, and I see that as the biggest benefit.
- Parrots may benefit from licencing, for the reuniting aspects.
- I think it's fair to require licensing of any "domestic" animal over a certain size/weight but I'm unsure as to what that number should be.
- No other pets need to be licensed. Fees are killing us already.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Really? Now it's a cash grab. Let's remember my neutered, chipped, never ever been outside in his life cat, but I still buy a license each year.
  - None. No other pets needs to licensed. That would be over regulating.
  - Any sort of exotic animal, if that is still allowed.
  - Any animal that could possibly escape a household and get lost should be licenced
  - Therapy animals
  - Any exotic pet should be licenced which hopefully helps by law know if there is a poisonous snake for example in area. Farm animals are not pets and should not be in urban neighbourhoods.
  - Large snakes or reptiles
  - Cats and dogs are more likely to become "at large" so I can't think of other animals that would need to be licensed.
  - No, this is a cash grab and not enforceable
  - Live stock that could be within city limits
  - I only believe cats and dogs should be licensed
  - any animal should be licensed or tagged to help the city find the animal if lost or got out of a cage. fees should be a one-time thing.
  - A pet is a pet so should apply to all pets who leave the home owners land area ..
  - Any animal that would be taken out in a public setting or could be dangerous.
  - Any animal that could leave the house/enclosure.
  - None. Voluntary licensing could be an option, with very low fee.
  - All mamals
  - Possibly rabbits. There seems to be a large number of one-time domestic rabbits roaming streets and parking lots
  - Any animal living within city limits
  - Can't think of a reason someone would need a license for a bird or a guinea pig
  - Rabbits. It may help with people dumping them.
  - For the purposes of reuniting, any animal that is outdoors should be licensed
  - Licensing really is a waste
  - Any pet that could potentially escape should be licensed.
  - None
- What benefits are there besides a cash grab?
- All of them! [personal information removed] that experience gave me the raw insight into the importance of being able to locate and estimate numbers of animals living in our communities. I see that having tremendous value in planning and emergency management, big or small.
  - Depends if any other animal becomes as popular.
  - All animals should be licensed
  - Reptiles should be licensed
  - Anything that can escape and get loose. I have seen household rabbits running around the city from people letting them free etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- All pets must be licensed regardless what type they are. Even bees ..owner should license the colony as a whole.
- When and if they spend time outdoors, or if there is some opportunity for them to disrupt those around them (neighbours, etc) there needs to be a way to manage and control them somehow.
- Rabbits as there are many in our city and it is hard to know if they are pets or not.
- None of them should!
- Any that could interact with the public
- So called comfort animals but mostly all animals kept as pets should be licensed
- No as dog and cats are mostly the one needed to be licensed
- No pet should need a license!!
- It is absurd that the by-law permits emotional support livestock in the City; but is trying to justify limiting the # of dogs and cats. It is also inappropriate to use the term "handicapped" . The correct term is person with a disability
- I believe that birds should be licenced.
- Probably the agricultural ones, ie chickens and bees. Not individually, but obtain and maintain a license to have these things.
- If urban farms like chickens or goats come thru they should be. Also there should be a max on how many pets one home can own.
- None really.
- any animal that could interact with neighbours and the community, ferrets, pigeons, etc
- I don't think any other pet should be licensed.
- Licensing only really makes sense at the municipal level for pets expected to escape (and survive escape), or be a menace to the public. Probably should extend licensing, on a universal fee structure to any larger mammal (eg, rabbit/cat size plus - like pigs etc.). MAYBE birds, not sure about them
- Any exotic animal or reptile that could be a danger if it got out
- Any reptile over 10lbs
- If pigeons are allowed as pets they should also be licensed due to the high risk of loss.
- Domesticated rabbits....although most that are now feral where intentionally dumped. Some people quite literally don't care about the animals they are entrusted with. So I'm not sure it's licensing domesticated rabbits well help reduce the feral population.
- Yes. In case of emergency to evacuate pets like in the fort McMurray wildfire. Many animals were left behind and they didn't know how many until they went house to house. It will help to have all animals accounted for
- Larger reptiles, snakes
- Free deworming or free pest control in pets
- I don't agree with licensing because it's really just a 'we hope your animal gets out so we can fine you but we won't let you know we found him/her and then the fees will be hirer'. I think exotic animals like snakes or reptiles should be. It's in humane to have them period.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As long as the fee is reasonable (poor people benefit from having pets too) but I don't think mice or gerbils and the like will be licenced as their lives are so short. Death by their owners means no humane death dealt. Euthanizing is also big $$$ at vets. Lower those costs too!
- not really... other pets dont cause the same issues as free roaming cats and dogs.
- Any pet that can run away and an owner would want it return should have it licensed like bunnies, rats, lizards.
- It's ridiculous already, why make it worse
- Any animal that has the possibility of escaping.
- I don't think other pets should be licensed
I struggle to think cats should be licensed
- If urban livestock / bees / pigeons are allowed, they should also be licensed. How else do you know how many are in a neighbourhood & if challenges (too many, communicable disease) crops up, how do you track / get in touch with people?
- It is very obvious that these questions are geared toward licencing along with more rules being imposed on people being the only option the city is willing to look at. This is just sad; you should be ashamed of yourselves for thinking we are to stupid to see this.
- Any animal that is not contained in a small enclosure (tank, bird/rodent cage,etc.) should be licensed.
- If urban livestock are permitted, a reason able licensing fee would be a good idea to cover the administrative costs of such livestock and to help enforcement identify irresponsible owners.
- All pets should be licensed
- emotional support animals, they are also pets
- Spiders scorpions snakes lizards and fish exotic animals that can produce a bit more dangerous of issues such as misidentification of a type of spider and end up with a venomous animal that has not been defanged
- any animal that is allowed to be legally kept, traded or sold should be licensed. exotic animals can pose a hazard to others and are hard to rehome if given up
- All pets should be licensed and requires to have an identity chip.
- Any pet that has the ability to roam free.
- Any animal that could impact the surrounding community in any way should be licensed. Bylaw services are not free and all animal owners who may require their time should help cover the cost.
- Probably should be any pets/livestock so that the City knows what is happening in backyards.
- Chicken, rabbit, pigeon, rodent, reptile, bugs ownership annual ownership license ; so that the city can safeguard against over population, abuse or over crowding. Some people raise them for food consumption and regulating allows for health safety and environment inspections funding.
- Licensing quite honestly is a money grab off responsible owners. Irresponsible owners rarely license their pets yet they are 98% of the issue. While I do agree that licensing is required. Responsible owners should be rewarded by lower fees. This does not include mandatory spay and neuter.
- Any pet that could get free & lost should be licensed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think dogs and cats only.
- No others need to be licensed. Seems like too much oversight for a very minimal issue. The city doesn't need to know what pet each and every house might have. Too much intrusion.
- Any animal kept or except used outdoors such as an emotional support animal
- Any pet that may leave the confines of a dwelling.
- There should not be any other kinds of pets. Your bylaw officers have enough problems just dealing with dogs and cats. Don't make the problem bigger
- Remove licensing for cats. Instead make tattoo or chip technology the requisite.
- I don't think pets need to be licensed.
- RABBITS!!!! I am an animal lover and detest rabbit ownership because of the problem created by lousy animal stewardship. Look at Canmore.
- Any pets leaving a house must be licensed
- Any animal that leaves their yard at any time should be licensed.
- All pets need some sort of licence.
- If you decide to encourage urban "farms", owners and animals should be licensed. Fees should include covering the costs of cleanup should the city have to step in. Notice should be given to the neighbourhood prior to allowing setup so that they can protest.
- Any pet that goes outside should be licensed.
- Oh, I meant to say, no in tact male dogs allowed at off leash parks. It causes all sorts of issues and dog fights.
- I believe birds should be licensed, even if it's a one-time thing, because they are one of the pets that can travel far distances quickly, so are at higher risk of getting lost.
- I think the idea of licensing pets other than dogs is a huge waste of administration time and money for the city. Seriously, this city can't afford to keep bloating its budget on needless bylaws. What are you going to do - come into my house and see if my iguana has a license???!
- No. I don't think indoor cats should even be licensed.
- I don't really think other pets need to be licenced..
- Not sure of others.
- Emotional support animals, Any animal that may be outdoors.
- None besides cats and dogs
- cannot think of any typical pets
- If the pet is able to get outside, or could be lost outside, I think they should have to be licensed.
- Any animal that may wander out of its owner's control.
- Only animals that leave the house...
- ALL should be licensed so that owner is responsible for ANY required treatment
- That's great but who really enforces this law? I have Stray Cats in my yard all the time.
- All pets that are capable of mobility, i.e escaping their surroundings.
- Parrots and other exotic birds since they have a habit of escaping and are highly intelligent.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None. I think that dogs should be licensed since they are out and about more often, but cats should be indoors and as a result, not have to be licensed.
- any emotional support animal - they should also have to be certified by a veterinarian and undergo temperament testing if the owner is expecting to take them out in public everywhere. It's not a lot to ask that they can at least pass the Canadian Kennel Club's Good Neighbour test.
- Bunnies, with identity chips given than some consider releasing them okay.
- Other pets typically do not leave the house so do not see a reason for this. You aren't going to mandate a lizard wear a collar and tag... If pigs became allowed I would require this but I doubt that is in scope.
- Bunnies.
- If cats and dogs, it would make sense for other animals too. Though I can admit given the life expectancy of animals like mice or fish it would be a big inconvenience.
- All pets from dogs to pigs & chickens and whatever else in between should be licensed.
- Yes, licensing provides information on the pet population.
- Any pet that is to be on public property or have potential to escape off private property and onto public areas
- Pets that reside exclusively in the home should not need to be licensed.
- No..its a money grab
- Any domestic animal that leaves the home regularly should be licensed. To enable reunification and to hold owners accountable for the actions of their pets. Small animals (rodents, reptiles, fish, etc.) shouldn't need a license unless classified as "exotic"
- All animals who are considered pets and could end up way from their owners. Rabbits, birds, dogs, cats, etc
- Any domestic animals that regularly go off their own property should be licensed.
- Any that get outside for any reason. Maybe dangerous pets like reptiles or spiders.
- I think only animals that go outside need to be licensed.
- Anything that goes outside. Rabbits, man. On that note: how much headache would it save if animals could be licensed at the point of sale? Go to Petland, buy a rabbit (or dog or cat or whatever else can survive outside on its own), and the license is done at the till. Boom.
- I don't think that cats or dogs should be licensed either.
- I think of Licensing as a form of tax levied by the jurisdiction in which we reside. I think trying to extract money from owners to own other pets is ridiculous.. and another 'cash cow' idea for the jurisdiction to extract money from responsible owners!
- I don't think other pets should be licensed. I do feel you should have a license however to raise animals in the city. For example breeders should have to pay for a special license.
- Birds, as they do have the ability to escape
- Dogs should be licensed once and then forever in the system. Why have it annual? Its just a city money grab.
- Any animal reasonably capable of leaving their owner's residence.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Strictly in terms of dealing with a lost pet, any pet that you want to retrieve easily should it run off.
- Any animal that leaves your property and enters the community. Also, any dangerous reptiles (snakes, spiders, etc.) that could pose a serious hazard to the community if they leave your property.
- None. Dogs and cats can be a nuisance to neighbours. Other household pets should not be licensed.
- Rabbits. I see posts about domestic rabbits being found (whether abandoned or lost) in all areas of the city and it would be great to be able to find the owners more easily
- It would be ineffective to try to license other indoor pets.
- Rabbits aren't licensed?
- Emotional support animals. Livestock living in the city.
- Absolutely not
- Animals that leave their habitat and enter the public domain should be licensed due to risk of being lost, stolen, etc.
- Currently, pets are defined as property in Canada. When someone gets divorced they don't decide custody of an animal, they decide ownership as one does over the silverware or the car. I don't register my spoons with the city and as such see no reason to register my rabbit.
- No no no. Just stop. Stop. No other animals should be licensed.
- Anything that goes outside.
- All - to promote responsible pet ownership.
- Any pet needs to be licence
- There should be a licence for any agricultural animals. Not individual licences but a licence to keep bees, chickens or pigeons and the number allowed for that individual property.
- Pigeons and potentially other animals that may be outside for periods of time.
- Any pets that are taken outside of the house should be licensed - ferrets, rabbits, pigs - so they can be returned to the owners if something happens.
- Possibly some livestock provided the fees are reasonable.
- Should you need a license for a guinea pig? A dozen of them? Some "teacup" dogs probably weight less than a rabbit. Rodents can do a lot of damage, left to their own devices. Why license the dog and not the rabbit? Look what happened in Victoria with the rabbits escaping. Tough question.
- Dogs, cats as they are most likely to get out.
- Bees. LOL each bee needs a little teeny weeny license. LOL dogs, cats, and exotic pets ...does Calgary even allow exotic pets? Hope not. Poor things.
- Any animal that is allowed outside should be licensed
- how about 'emotional support pets', livestock and homing pigeons
- none at this point
- Any that are being kept as a domestic pet or emotional support animal. Doesn't matter if it's a goat, a pig or anything else. If it has the potential to escape the pen/house and could cause harm to another person, animal or property it should be microchipped and licensed.
- No!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- dogs, cats, livestock (pending further regulations), should not be extended to small animals such as rabbits, snakes, hedgehogs, birds
- Any pet that could interact outdoors with the public. Or escape. Including parrots, ferrets rabbits etc. It may increase the burden of these animals in shelters and also hold owners accountable for their pet.
- Potentially anything that could get out in the public - maybe exotic birds and rabbits
- Any pet that would leave the confine of your personal property on a regular basis
- All pets that could possible escape. If the main benefit is reunification, why not license snakes, turtles or budgies? Don't their owners want them back?
- Birds - any pet that can get loose
- See response in #5. I do not see a benefit of City Licensing of animals as bylaws are not enforced actively other than this one.
- Any dangerous or venomous reptiles/snakes/frogs etc .
- Racing pigeons. Our neighbour has over 40 that are allowed to fly over the neighbourhood multiple times daily, and they sit on nearby houses and leave droppings everywhere.
- Chickens, bees, any other animals that would use city resources.
- None, no other pets should be off of private property.
- No, other types of pets are cage/aquarium types and the chance of them getting loose is extremely low. Also very hard to enforce that bylaw.
- Any pet that could escape the owners property should be licensed
- Pot bellied pigs. Ferrets.
- Exotic animals including snakes or big lizards, pot belly pigs, goats and other livestock
- Anything other than cats and dogs. This would provide control over those who want to keep livestock and other strange animals in the city
- All pets that can "escape" the home should be so that they can be returned
- If you're going to enforce indoor cat licensing, you might as well liscence all of them. I suspect the amount of actual outdoor cats to cats total is drastically different. The more rules, the less people will be honest and participate.
- Cats should have to be licensed
- Any pet that is taken off the owners property.
- There needs to be a license for exotic pets to help ensure proper awareness for care.
- Any animal that has the potential to leave the home, and be introduced to the public.
- Maybe support animals.
- Anything that could be outside the home.
- All pets should be licensed so that emergency departments know about them.
- owners of multiple pets ie, owners of 3 or more animals need to have a more tracking and education.
- I believe licensing should be extended to exotic pet ownership as a means of improving the pets' living conditions , owners' education, and the realities around the illegal pet trade.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Pigs if there are pet pigs in calgary that are a pet and not livestock.
- Any animals used for comfort/ptsd/etc. should be licensed. But there does need to be a limit on what types of animals can be used this way.
- Any pet should be licensed (even at a minimal cost to ensure registration) to ensure proper care of them. There are too many people breeding pets to make money and they are not being well taken care of. A neighbor had a turtle that was abused/not taken care of and I know it suffered a horrible life
- I think animals that go outside should be licensed. So if you walk your iguana, yes, license it.
- No, no licensing at all.
- Chickens should be allowed and the city should license those owners.
- Any pet which could be outside should be licensed. Birds hamsters etc should be exempted
- If urban livestock is allowed, owner must have an up to date license for keeping it
- Other pets? No I don't think they should be licensed.
- Exotics, particularly those with complex care needs like Sugar Gliders.
- If dogs and cats need to be then any pet that could walk or fly out the front door should be.
- Ferrets - if they escape they can bite
- Exotic pets - snakes, spiders, etc. Also pose a danger if they escape
- Only animals that are outside and in public.
- None. I don't think there are others that would go outside.
- NO--JUST NAOTHER TAX AND PRIVACY
- Cats, Dogs or any animal that is permitted outside for an extended amount of time. As an example, a oet pig but not a pet spider or reptile. The pig can survive nicely outside, the reptile or spider cannot.
- For sure any that pose a safety risk; possibly large snakes like pythons.
- Perhaps all pets should at least be registered. This will help us better plan emergency evacuation requirements by understanding what types of animals may need to be evacuated.
- Not needed.
- Any exotic animal.
- Any type of pets that can escape and get lost and only the type that would be retrievable.
- Any animal that is kept as a pet by a large number of people and could reasonably escape and wander. For instance, many people keep lizards or fish but they aren't getting loose and wandering the neighbourhood. The main purpose of a license should be reunification if they get out.
- Support animals should be licensed as well, even a nominal fee, any large exotic pets like snakes or otherwise.
- any pet that the owner lets out of the house, or that could be a danger to the public
- Anything in the yard or in public. With the slightest chance of having ability to get out. Includes emotional support animals.
- Any animal that has the potential to roam free. Primarily cats and dogs, but under some circumstances, birds or pigs and other domestic animals that could escape their household.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dangerous pets such as venomous snakes because they should be monitored for public safety.
- if you have statistics on other pets that could benefit from re-unification. Otherwise no
- I think all pets should be licensed. or perhaps called it pet registration list. it helps not only reunite pets with owners but also in case of fire or emergencies, emergency services should have access to this data to make sure everyone including pets are safe.
- Bunnies have become a problem
- any rare, threatened, or endangered species.
- Urban bees, livestock, and pigeons should probably all be licensed too.
- Maybe birds? They can often escape while their cages are being cleaned, and can be hard to link with their owners, even after they're caught. Also maybe ferrets?
- I don't
- If they are likely to be outdoors and interacting with other people and could possibly cause a danger to them.
- Dogs, cats,
- No - others pets do not need to be licensed
- Any pet that has four legs and the potential to escape or be let out of your house, should probably be licensed.
- Rabbits - To discourage release of domesticated rabbits. They should be licensed at the point of sale in pet stores, that would eliminate a much larger issue later on.
- Discounts for vaccinated animals.
Livestock like rabbits, chickens, pigs etc. to control numbers)
Reptiles, rare mammals and birds (to control numbers, illegal trade)
- Any pets which may end up outside on a regular basis (pigs). If a pet remains indoors, it should not be a problem. licensing a fish or a hamster would be silly
- Any animal that is outside at all and any animal considered dangerous, like poisonous snakes.
- Any pet that spends time outside and is likely or able to survive in our climate
- Any pet that is brought out into the public should be licensed. That way there is accountability as well as the ability to re-unite lost pets. Pets such as small frogs, fish, lizards, would never leave the house to begin with so it wouldn't make sense to have to license those.
- All pets that go outside should be licensed if they are permitted to be in the city
- I believe only dogs should. Licensing helps with the stray dog population which Calgary has a very low rate.
- I don't think other pets should be licensed.
- Any pet that is outside the home (people in my neighborhood walk their rabbit so should be licensed.
- By household rather than by animal: chickens and bees. Ensure adequate education and provision of safety (for the animals as well as people).
- Any pets that are outside and can interact with other people/animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Emotional support pets should be licensed, regardless of species, as they are out and about and at risk of separation from owner. Urban livestock, if approved, as they're just as risk of loss as cats and dogs. Repeat-offending birds who escape home should also require a license.
- any animal that goes out more often that has the biggest risk of getting lost such as dogs and cats.
- Snakes for the same reason. Reunification
- Pigeons - to add funds to cleaning buildings.
- Therapy animals that are not cats or dogs.
- I think that rabbits should be, just today I saw a rabbit that was not a jack rabbit in someone's yard. This is incredibly irresponsible ownership or someone lost their rabbit and can't find it.
- I don't see the point in anything else.
Other than emotional support animals
- All pets should be licensed. This will give the city an accurate depiction of how many animals are under the care of an individual. There's a difference between owning 1 dog, and owning 1 dog and 18 birds.
- Exotic animals to ensure proper care
- None, as they incur little cost to the community.
I do believe exotic pets need to be regulated for animal welfare reasons (especially large parrots) and there need to be guidenlines for welfare and husbandry (e.g. birds and reptiles).
- Exotic pets as they are often abused and/or negelected.
- Pets that could be deemed "dangerous" to others.
- Domestic rabbits should require a license. Like cats, people purchase without understanding the care they require then neglect and release them. They die from predation, starvation and vehicular death and breed causing nuisance populations that destroy property and require municipal intervention.
- I suppose any pet that is allowed out, or that is likely to "escape" should be licensed for the same reasons dogs and cats require a license.
- All pets, what ever their specie, must be registered and licensed
- If livestock is permitted, they should be licensed.
- ALL animals should require a livense, paid or not.
- None. Licensing is a waste of time, money and resources
- Rabbits & ferrets as they easily escape/are abandoned frequently
- rabbits because of the likelihood that they are released and they breed In the wild.....e.g. canmore
- Bees, just kidding, none
- All of them except rodents and snakes
- i believe cats and dogs should be licensed. However if people are allowed to keep Livestock then licenses should apply. If only to register. Small animals, reptiles, fish and birds who don't go outside should not be applicable.
- None

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

My extra note ....If the animal is microchipped you shouldn't have to buy a license as this is also a way to reunite pet with owner

- Maybe any that spend time outside? Or have the ability to escape?
- None. Ever.
- Exotic pets should have a rigorous licencing program to ensure that they are taken care of responsibly, for their welfare as well as humans.
- Yes they should be licensed because you can keep track of them and it should responsibility.
- Yes
- Exotic pets only
- Potentially
- With the range of emotional support animals coming into focus, any animal bearing that label should be. If there is another species that routinely causes issue for the city, they should be considered. Rodents, birds, reptiles, amphibians etc likely need not be.
- None that are house bound
- Dogs and cats
- If you license one then license them all.
- Rabbits and birds, they both have a chance of getting out and being licensed would aid owner reunification.
- If agricultural animals are allowed, or if they are support animals that frequently go outside, they should be licensed.
- Animals like ferrets , indoor cats , indoor anything should not be licensed.
- Until Calgary allows livestock as pets, I can't think of any others to be licensed.
- Yes. If dog and cat owners have to license then so should owners of any type on animal.
- It's good for data collection but if I am told my guinea pigs need a licence, I'll call it a cash grab because the city literally offers no service to them. I can't even feed them grass from my lawn because of pesticide drift from city spray programs.
- Reptiles birds and other unusual Or rare animals used pets like pot belly pigs. To monitor and stop trafficking of rare snd endangered species and to generate revenue for the city.
- Not at this time.
- Skunks, parrots, rabbits.
- venomous animals like snakes frogs, reptiles. because it would be nice to know if there's anything scary around if needed.
- If an animal is outside. Otherwise, why does the city care?
- I believe rabbits should be licensed
- Any that could go outside and potentially escape. Rabbits, pot belly pigs, birds.
- Urban livestock (if the city decides to allow it).
- No not necessary
- Anything that could get out of an owner's yards and cause damage to another's property or ha an individual.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Rabbits. Calgary has an enormous problem with people dumping rabbits and creating feral communities, This may help dissuade irresponsible people from getting them.
- Any animal that has a chance of running at large (even if only by accident) should be licensed. As in, also license ferrets, rabbits, emotional support animals, working dogs, etc.
- Domesticated rabbits possibly as they have a chance of escaping if they have outdoor time.
- Rabbits. Would make people more responsible for these pets instead of getting just for Easter. Any reptiles and such. Make more responsible when poisonous or dangerous reptiles are brought into the city, and less to be released.
- Since cats are a money grab, why not enforce it all? Goldfish, guinea pigs, snake, hamsters..... if you ever need to capture a lose goldfish and send it home, you'll find the owner. Oh wait, they don't wear collars just like a cat who can get their breakaway collars off easily!
- Any pets that spend time in public areas
- Any pet that has the ability of escaping from the home or yard.
- Any pet that leaves your house, some birds?
- Dangerous pets
- If you have to license indoor only cats than theoretically you should have to license all animals
- none - the other types are indoor animals (small animals). It would be an obvious money grab to try to license animals who reside solely in the home - what benefit is provided to the pet owner? Cat lisencc is a stretch as it is. Dogs have a high interaction with society at large and can get out/lost
- I think indoor animals shouldn't need to be licensed. It sort of seems like a cash cow
- None that occur to me.
- Birds, because they can escape and go very far distances.
- Cats probably. But if the law in Calgary is to keep your cat on your property then it should never be off the property mine stay in the house always.
- I think most pets/reptiles should be registered somehow. What if they escape. Or special permits to have certain animals should be considered as a method of registration.
- Not sure it would be necessary.
- Any large animal cats , dogs ,pigs etc. Anything that could be dangerous to others if it got out like snakes/spiders. Anything that can be problematic if released because it is not a local species i.e. special fish that could become an invasive species in our local lakes and rivers, like carp.
- Exotic animals, like iguanas, large parrots.
- I think pet licenses are a scan to make money.
- Pigs, snakes,
- Any animal kept as a pet that is a predator must be licensed and The City can impose conditions to minimize risk to humans.
- Ones that could be in the public
- Anything large enough to walk on a leash that is not kept in an enclosure.
- If farm type animals become allowed they should have to be licenced. Other animals that stay in houses shouldn't need licenses unless they are exotic.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- dogs, cats, possibly rabbits. any animal that can be chipped and/or tattooed, and could potentially escape from the home, especially if they could cause environmental or property damage (e.g. cats killing small wildlife).
- I don't think pets should have to be licensed. I think responsible pet ownership can be encouraged with better laws that can protect animals from cruelty and ensure they are treated respectfully and humanely.
- Reptiles.
- I don't think any others should be licensed because to my knowledge we don't have issues with overpopulation or strays like we do with cats and dogs.
- Beehives, and the keepers should have to show they've passed a course.
- No pets other than dogs.
- All pets with access to the outdoors should be licensed to help city reunite pets and families.
- All pets should be licensed. Especially reptiles like snakes. Urban livestock most definitely given the disease risks.
- I think all pets should have to be registered or all households will have to register and carry a license ie beekeeping or for you hen or emotional pet
- all pets that meet the same criteria for your reasons justifying dog and cat licensing - those aren't clear. for example, a leashed ferret or lizard on a walk seems more appropriate for licensing than an indoor cat.
- Any pet that has an impact on the public or neighbors.
- Honeybees should be licensed
- Any pet that goes outdoors.
- I can't think of any that wouldn't be super difficult to enforce (like rabbits for example).
- That's fine.
- Rabbits, ferrets, rats (sadly there's a trade for them in Calgary), pigeons — because they stray and cause problems
- Dogs and cats as these are the most popular pets.
- Any animal who is regularly brought out of the home other than vet visits should be licensed
- All pets that may reasonably cause problems if escaped. Pet hamster or fish are examples of pets who would not need license; all multiple unit animals such as bees, pigeons, livestock need different mechanism but with quantity controls
- Small-Large Mammals kept as domesticated house pets: pigs, capybaras, foxes. Anything that is generally wild, has a life expectancy of over five years and is being kept as a pet.
- None. What's the point? Do a registration instead
- If the pet can leave the home, it should be licensed.
- any animal that would be within city limits and spend some of its time outdoors (possibly escaping and needing to be tracked to an owner). This also allows the city to get an accurate count of animals and types within the city.
- I think licensing should be optional.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None. I can't think of any enforcement issues with other animals
  - I don't think other pets need to be licensed. It would be incredibly challenging to enforce
  - Reptiles particularly snakes. And Birds. I believe licensing introduces accountability and this may encourage more responsible purchasing of animals
  - Any pet that can be out doors. Dogs, Cat, Chicken, Pig, etc.
  - All pets that could leave the property on their own should be licensed.
  - All animals should be licensed in an urban area.
  - Not sure. Like licensing a hamster would be pretty ridiculous
  - Backyard chickens?
  - If indoor cats must be licensed all pets must be licensed
  - All large mammals.
  - House rabbits, any emotional support animals, small house pets (all rodents or weasels), large birds, all exotics and large snakes. There should be a determination between pet and food animals.
  - no opinion
  - Spiders, snakes, birds of any kind, lizards, rats, guinea pigs. Because it will be easier to retrieve them back to their owner. And some of those pets might be dangerous if they get loose.
  - All pets if there is an expectation of rehoming. Or a huge rehoming fee should apply when you find someone's pet
  - If we have livestock in the city, these animals should be licensed, too.
  - Any animal that goes outside should be licensed.
  - I think that any exotic or poisonous pets should also need to be licensed. For the exotics, it's to protect species. For the poisonous pets, it's to protect people.
  - If you can't stick a collar on them, licensing is silly.
  - All pets should be licensed for their protect and for added income for the city
  - Anything venomous because of their potential for harm if loose.
  - Rabbits -easy to escape and people take them outside.
- Livestock - so their numbers can be tracked and any issues links back to a particular animal or owner
- Basically any animal that people take outside of their house, or one that has a reasonable likely of escaping or being set free.
- Anything that could pose a risk or danger from disease to venomous snakes.
  - Any that can get away & cause damage to public/private property. Anything that is dangerous to other people/pets/wildlife.
  - I don't know if snakes require a license but I can see a need to license those snake species who might cause injury to citizens if they were to escape their owners.
  - Absolutely not.
  - Anything that could escape your house.
  - Any animal that is taken outside and is around the public in general.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Urban Agriculture animals should also be licensed, as they administration of those animals by the city (inspections or handling complaints) will be a burden on the city. So the city should ask for a fee for potentially handling that.
- Snakes. I want someone other than a snake owner to be aware of the existence of a snake in a residence.
- All pets should be licensed. This would help in re-unification between owner and pet. It would also make the city aware of all pets and if a pet is deemed vicious & licensed then the surrounding area residents should be notified of a vicious animal in their area.
- Anything that costs enforcement or monitoring should have a small fee BUT consider equity (ability to pay) and the huge social and individual benefit for some of owning a companion in whatever shape it comes
- All pets that enter/live in a backyard or can be a noise/smell problem for the neighbors. Pets that can be dangerous when escaped or let free.
- Anything that can cause an impact on the surrounding community should be licensed. Anything contained in an aquarium or cage that isn't dangerous, no, but most other things, yes.
- I do not think any other pet needs to be licensed because the other form of pets do not typically go outside of the enclosures or spaces the only reasonable thing would be if you had pigeons or livestock
- I think licensing is more about controlling nuisance animals so I can't think of any other animals in Calgary that would present the same issue.
- No other pets.
- None should have to be
- Domestic rabbits, because too many of them end up becoming feral. Large pythons and boas, and venomous snakes that have not had their venom glands removed. Any pet that is taken out on a leash (pot belly pigs, ferrets) and this increases the change they will get lost.
- Any that could potentially survive and multiply in the wild
- Pretty hard to license a turtle so only those creatures that could be a threat to public safety. Although some cannot hold a tag, at least the city would know where there are dangerous creatures.
- I'm not sure of the purpose of licensing any pet as I don't buy your reunification reason.
- I believe that all pets should be microchipped for identification, but animals such as hamsters, gerbils, parrots, turtles should not require licensing unless they live outside.
- Birds. Pet birds are often found and it is difficult to find the owner.
- Any animal that may be in a public place should be licensed. But it should be very clear what the licensing fees are being used for by the city.
- Exotic pets (reptiles, rodents, etc) should also be required to be licensed because they can carry diseases, and are more subject to trafficking and unnecessary breeding.
- The goal is to have animals safe and looked after. I understand the premise of the license fee - but I would rather see more effort in reducing populations and controlling back yard breeders than say, licensing a chicken or a rabbit.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't think other pets need to be licensed. Unless there would be an advantage like group pet insurance.
- Any dangerous animal or an animal if let loose would harm the environment or alter the normal balance.
- I don't think others should be licensed but perhaps registered. [personal information removed] I think this is useful information to know (ie. in a fire) - that in this house there is a dog and cat and two guinea pigs, for example.
- Birds and reptiles and rodents I don't think need to be, but perhaps BUNNIES. Those guys get let go and nobody knows where they're from; people just abandon them with no consequences. Chip and neuter/spay those bunnies before they're even sold!
- Urban Livestock
- Snakes, birds because snakes aren't everyone's favorite and if they are in a private property and something happens, if responders need to go there, they shouldn't be surprised if a snake is loose. Birds are loud and keeping a limit to them will detour the noise level as well as the mess they make.
- All, may help with illegal pets
- Why Licence pets at all? We could get rid of a lot of cost to the taxpayer by eliminating this governmental cost.
- No other pets should be licensed. Leave people alone.
- Any pet that can interact with a negative impact to anyone, such a relative , neighbour, first responders etc. ( a goldfish can't harm but a ferret may bite)
- I can't license my honeybees but they are insured
- Maybe rabbits so that people will realise that they have value to and stop dumping them.
- bunnies. birds. chickens. Because they can 'escape' a property.
- Any pet that will be out in public.
- There should be some sort of system for livestock animals, and I favour a permit that stipulates how many animals the permit covers, but I have a hard time imagining having to license a gerbil or a parakeet or a lizard or fish.
- If the animals are housebound and/or properly housed they should not need to be licensed. Unfortunatley if they escape from the home and become a nuisance perhaps the owner should be required to license to retrieve their pet, be fined and/or have the animal removed
- No, just those two
- All pets that are not constrained to indoors (ie, fish/reptiles/hamsters/etc.). It's about the benefit of identifying the animal and associating the owner of the animal.
- cats & dogs are enough
- Dangerous or exotic pets.
- Cats and dogs, no exceptions
- Birds. Birds get out and caught.
- Any pet that is allowed outside the home must be licensed, so that the animal can be identified and returned. Also, any livestock animals should be licensed, for the same reasons.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Happy returns to owner.
- Dogs and cats are most visible and popular, and likely to cause problems when irresponsible owners flout bylaws so licensing is clearly valid, but a case might be made for licensing of rabbits, rodents, etc. that frequently also end up at shelters & require care and rehoming.
- Birds should be licensed, I see posts about escaped birds all the time! It would be nice to be able to make sure the owners are able to get their bird back if it's lost.
- Emotional support and service animals. Service animals have specific requirements to meet and should be identified as such.
- yes. The city need to know how many animals and people live in the city, helps with planning.
- Should be the owners decision. The only reason to licence is for rescuing lost pets. More pets would be licenced if the cost was less expensive.
- No other pets need to be licensed
- None. Licensing a pet is ridiculous. Why don't you have people license children?
- I think it would be hard to get people to renew smaller or more indoor-only pets.
- All pet should be licensed. Yes, ALL, including goldfish - no exception. Among other things, this will bring in needed revenue to the city,
- NONE ... that seems a money grab for sure.
- Cats, dogs, and approved livestock (if this changes), snakes, ferrets, bunnies are anything that can escape and create an anchor population or foreign species.
- Any domesticated animal that goes outside regularly should have a license (ex. ferret, skunk, pig, etc.)
- any that have the potential to escape. Once again, why not offer a pet membership for households instead of licensing fee per animal, and register anything that is not human under one membership?
- Nope. Totally unenforceable.
- Exotic pets - to encourage responsible ownership and ethical/legal purchasing
- None others
- Large snakes chickens rats
- Any animal that if escapes from the house can cause damage-
- Any large urban livestock if eventually allowed by City. For the same reasons that dogs and cats are licensed.
- No. Licensing is a cash grab that is simply not necessary
- Anything that could be reasonably outdoors and potentially get lost. I can't think of anything, unless we can have chickens and goats.
- Ideally all pets even if for documenting only to avoid potential hoarding situations.
- Any animals that are left alone outside, even on their own property (i.e. backyard).
- If they are caged ... no ... if they spend time outside ... yes ...
- I don't think any others should be licensed/
- any that could escape and people would want them back, or could be an invasive species if left to multiply

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- any urban farming animals should be registered to be able to monitor for humane housing and meeting regulations for housing.
- Maybe dogs, but low fees and free renewal. Also low fees if an animal is retrieved from the pound. Punishment deters people from wanting to use the system. No other animals should be licenced.
- Only animals which could reasonably be expected to wander off the owner's property need to be licensed. (However, I also believe that with certain other animals (e.g., urban agriculture) it's reasonable to require the owner to be certified in some way.
- If the licensing program remains similar to what it is now, the bylaw should not be mandatory for any pet (cat, dog, or other), as it does not provide the service it is intended to provide.
- Any pet that has the ability to regularly spend time or be lodged outdoors (i.e. rabbits). Another consideration could be for long life-span animals (i.e. parrots).
- Unless the licensing was tattooing it would be difficult to have other pets wear a physical license. Just like the rationale on why indoor cat owners do not feel the need to license their own pets as they do not wear a collar and license inside the owner's residence and do not go outside.
- hamsters, rabbits, bees (each one, 5cents), budgies, lizards, aquarium fish, snakes, reptiles, turtles, giraffes (for obvious reasons), tape-worms, hatchimals, disobedient children, crayfish, ungulates (look it up), horses and/or zebras, pigs (separte fee for its sty). Why? Duh, increased revenues!
- All pets that have the ability to get outdoors.
- Dogs and cats are the most likely animals to require licensing. Most other animals are strictly indoors. Birds can have bands in case they are lost, but these are not easily exchangeable or removable to license.
- Certain reptiles come with specific care needs and potential to become a pest (for example, loose snakes) and should be licensed.
- People with exotic pets, boa for example should be required to license them. It is important that the city be aware of were these animals are and have some sense of if they are a risk to the public.
- All animals that either go outside or are potentially a danger to others even if kept indoors
- I believe large birds/parrots/reptiles should be licensed.
- I do not feel licensing of less common pets should be required
- Agriculture pets. But they don't belong in the city.
- All mammals, all reptiles, all birds, but probably not fish or insects, unless there are concerns about invasive species.
- Personally, I think reptiles that are larger and can potentially escape and injure someone should have to be licensed, such as larger pythons, boas, monitors, etc. Also, large birds such as parrots and macaws.
- No for reptiles but yes for other pets
- Any pet that will be outside, such as rabbits, ferrets etc. as this allows a higher chance of return.
- nope. As those pets are primarily kept indoors and not taken out side to free walk.
- Ferrets and bunnies
- Rabbits, because they could be in danger of being lost or separated from their owner.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Giant ass snakes.
- rabbits should be licenced but not wear a tag more of a microchip, too many pet rabbits let go and then become feral. unknown if someones pet got out or if its feral
- - Larger livestock
- - Exotic animals (large snakes, etc)
- Exotics, any snake over 4 feet, anything that could impact the local ecosystem if it escaped
- No pet should have to be licensed. It should be optional.
- Any emotional support animal.
- Any pet that spends time out doors.
- Ferrets and pet bunnies
- Please see above. I suspect that licensing is done out of habit because it's always been done that way but what does it accomplish and can it be done a better way?
What does a license allow you, or the pet, to do? It should be seen as simple registration.
- Again if this animal does not leave the property and is being responsibly looked after why license. I know of a few people who have small dogs who get well exercised in their own yard.
- Exotic animals could be licensed. These are trafficked I've heard.
- all properly accredited support animals should be licensed as part of the proof of accreditation. any animal that would be let outside into a yard or that could escape, anything that could be dangerous or pose a threat so 1st responders could be aware before entry in emergencies or if the pet escape
- I can't think of any other animals.
- No, I don't believe we have excessive complaints about any other animals.
- Any animal that is taken out of a home for walks or fresh air should be licensed
- Any pet that has the potential to roam or get lost
- Snakes often escape and are found elsewhere.
- Pigs, if they're out for a walk and treated like a pet, perhaps a licence? Though... I don't even know if people are allowed pigs in Calgary?!
- Cannot think of any others.
- Emotional support animals.
- Only exotic animals that may carry disease.
- I don't think other individual animals need licensing but I would hope backyard chickens would get a group permit, mostly so the conditions they are kept in could be monitored.
- If certain others become legal and are kept outside the house they should be licensed. For example - chickens or a true beehive set up.
- The only pets that should HAVE to be licensed are those that consistently leave the home and or property. Service/support/wiring animals or any species. Dogs, cats(that go out without a leash more then once per week), birds that are capable or flying away and bunny's as they're a big wild problem
- Bunnies! Too many in the city.
- if a animal can be free to roam outside of their home it should be licensed.
- All pets but small things like fish, turtles and hamsters. Snakes should be or ferrets,etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- All animals kept as pets or domestic livestock within the city
- Rabbits because they're is a huge overpopulation. The spca took in more than 400 last year
- Only animals that may be a nuisance if they escape. Dogs, cats, large exotic animals.
- Birds
Exotic animals
Rabbits
- None! Just dogs and cats.
- -birds
-any animal that can run away from a dwelling
- Maybe chickens to avoid cruelty?
- I think that's fair to just be cats and dogs
- Exotic animals or large reptiles. Livestock and horses or birds probably not.
- 1 fee per house. Not per animal.
- Rabbits
Pigeon keepers
Exotic species- snakes, lizards etc. To eliminate possibility of illegal species
- If the city allows livestock I think the owner should have a license.
I also believe that dog walkers who walk more than 2 dogs should be required to be licensed
- All pets should be licensed. All pets can get lost and need to be reunited. Being a responsible owner extends to all pets.
- I think backyard livestock should be licensed and exotic pets simply to keep track of what kinds of less popular pets are in the city
- Pigs
- None. I think licensing is a cash grab that has little impact. It should be a one time fee.
- If the true intent of a licensing program is to re-unite pets with their owners, any pet that has a means of 'escaping' from their homes should have to be licensed.
- All pets should. If a rabbit got loose, it still needs to be returned.
- Chickens and any pets that spend a lot of their time outdoors and could get loose.
- None that I can think of other than cats and dogs
- Not at this time as those mentioned are the primary pets which roam in our city limits.
- No. Only pets that go out in public
- Inthink outdoor pets should be licenced or pets at risk of escape. So if its at risk of getting out it should be licenced.
- Any animals that pose a threat to a person or child should it get loose should be registered, but maybe not licensed.
- NO this is a cash grab
- Any support livestock. Encourages responsible care of animal and ensures return if lost.
- If you're going to make it mandatory for dogs and cats, then there should be rules that require you to license other pets such as birds, horses, reptiles etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No I do not believe in licensing beyond cats and dogs as other misc pets hardly cause the city reason to need to step in to mediate concern$ (ie strays, aggression/attacks), so you have no reason to license misc pets, except greed.
- Flighted birds, rabbits, ferrets, exotic swine, livestock if allowed - tag size and mechanisms options need to be available
- All pets who may be outdoors should be licensed...it helps the city to keep trac6of the urban animals
- All pets that can leave a private property with the petowner and interact with others; or any pets above a certain weight that create manure issues.
- I think all pets should be licensed. Perhaps not individually licensed though -- eg. maybe a bee hive or a chicken pen, instead of individual. Or maybe the city could have a new license system for multiple pets (eg. over 6) where we are licensed differently.
- Dogs should be licensed. Cats should be licensed voluntarily if the owners allow them outside and are concerned with their return if they go missing.
- No need for any other pet to be licensed as most others would not leave the home
- I don't think that licensing any pet is really a necessity, other than for ID purposes. But even that is outdated, because most pets are microchipped now, and quite a number of pets that get away from their owners have no collar to identify them with anyway.
- All pets that would ever interact with the public either by walking or by escape should be licensed. Fish don't wander far in the yard. Those don't need a license.
- Any pet that goes outside.
- Urban livestock, emotional support animals.
- Backyard bees, chickens, pigeons, etc., any breeder, any other pets that require some level of monitoring due to issues in the community or significant drain on city resources.
- If it leaves the home it should be licensed
- If someone loses a lizard, no one is going to be checking an ID on every lizard they see. Takes it into just a money making level, if the animal isn't or can't leave the house. No.. tag all 21 fish I own? But large reptiles like snakes that reach a certain size should be
- None. You're just trying to tax pet owners.
- Birds maybe? We have done across birds in occasion that are clearly lost and have no way of finding their owners
- I dont believe an animal should have to be licensed. I could understand a 1 time registration fee to prove you own said animal but i also believe that any animal not being taken outdoors should not require licensing.
- Any that go off the property or out of the house. If there is a chance they could be lost, licensing would greatly improve chances of reunification.
- Any livestock, and exotic pets
- I think if the pet is strictly indoors there should be no need for a license, including indoor cats. Any animals that have contact with the public should be licensed.
- None, I'm not convinced that licensing is the best approach.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Licensing is not the issue. Pet cats, dogs, bunnies etc. should all be spay/neutered & microchipped. Licensing a pet does not make an owner responsible. Many pets remain intact contributing to overpopulation. CGY needs to revamp the entire process. Look to other cities to see how they have solved issue
- Depends on the animal.
- Birds. Anything that can live longer than 5 years.
- Any pet that can be both reasonably lost outside and reunited with their family should be licensed.
- Any pet that leaves the home and yard of the person.
- Any pet should be licensed. Even if only for rescue purposes in emergency.
- Any and all pets should be licensed so the city has an understanding of how many animals are really in the city.
- Any animal that spends time outside of the house, such as in a back yard, should be licensed in case they escape. For animals unable to wear a collar, a microchip or tattoo should be applied.
- This would be a cash grab.
- I think bee keepers and if we get backyard chickens they should pay a yearly licensing fee. This would make it so people who are serious get them.
Maybe certain reptiles.
- No other.
- None, animals which are maintained within parameters of ones personal property should not be deemed to be licensed.
- None. There are no other pets that are potentially brought into public places or get lost frequently enough
- Pigeons? If they're racing? And any animal that goes into public as a service animal or emotional support animal.
- Any the size of a rabbit or larger. Maybe by weight? Rabbits chickens, birds. Mostly all pets should be licensed.
- No. What other pet species wear collars to help find who they belong too which was your previous reason for the license. Also animal services doesn't take in any other species.
- Birds, or any animal that may be taken for walks or escape. Indoor only pets should be exempt
- Rabbits, birds, and any other pet that is a large escape risk.
- Cats and dogs are all.
- Pigeons. They poo everywhere.
- I think pot bellied pigs should be licensed
No other animals. Recently, read a story of a miniature horse on an airplane as a support service animal. That is ridiculous.
- any animal that goes out into the public space
- Perhaps rabbits, people release them and it can create a lot of problems for communities

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- All pets should be licenced. If people are going to keep pigs, or chickens - any type of animal that could escape a yard/house - they should have to licence it. It is not fair that only dogs and cats face that rule. Even if it is an emotional pet - it should be licenced.
- Not sure? I believe there are laws already about owning potentially dangerous animals.
- The argument for licensing is weak at best, and therefore I see no reason to expand the program.
- Any animal that is big and can not be picked by an eagle should be licensed. Especially animals that may cause harm to other animals, humans and property.
- None! What is the point?
Cash grab, big brother watching?
- Maybe ever animal in city limits should be licensed.
- None. That is just a money grab.
- Rabbits, as unneutered pets create a pest population if escaped.
- Emotional support pets that are outside the home.
- Any pet that can go AWOL from owner should be tagged and licensed.
- ALL animals/pets should require licensing. Includes birds, reptiles, amphibians, barnyard animals. For the same reason cats and dogs - in the event the escape, they can be relocated with owners. Not to mention, some of these animals can be more unpredictable then a cat or dog.
- Poisonous, venomous, large, small. All pets should be licensed.
- If you require one pet, you must require all pets.
- Bird keeping or excessive numbers of pets should always be controlled in urban areas such as the City of Calgary. Animals can be a nuisance to some people, birds are not always appreciated as they can be noisy and dirty.
- Exotic pets like pythons and birds. All pets really. But I don't believe any other than dogs and cats should require payment. Free registration for all exotic animal types might help understand city pet numbers, and help return randomly found pets to their owners.
- only dogs need be licensed or irresponsible cat owners who let their cats live outdoors. Tagging the feral cats with the cropped ear would also be a better practice, than licensing indoor cats.
- No, that's reasonable
- pot belly pigs
- in the future, then will be good work bylaw for dogs and cats
- any venomous or foreign exotics because of public safety.
- Domestic game,
Exotic Birds, exotic animals, big snakes, monitors, big lizards
- Pot-bellied pigs should be legal, but only with a license.
- For agricultural animals (bees, chickens, dives and rabbits) a single all encompassing agricultural licence to ensure people are capable and responsible to keep them. Also, if there are frivolous complaints from neighbours, the owner can prove permissions.
- Urban livestock if things like chickens were allowed. Maybe rabbits because they can become feral and spread if they escape.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- NONE. This is getting ridiculous. I'm sure that 'Rainbow the fish' would benefit greatly....
- Cats.
- None. The added cost of license administration for other pets would be enormous vs the benefit and the statistically much lower number of other pet species such as snakes, birds, hamsters. Also predict an almost zero compliance rate by owners of these species
- Emotional Support Animals and Birds.
- Yes; all emotional support animals (excluding fish) and any animals that may get outside ie: birds, chickens, pigeons, snakes over a designated weight/length.
- Livestock if made legal.
- All animals outside or allowed to roam should be registered or licensed.
- Just dogs and cats. Perhaps rabbits but I don't think people would Comply
- All animals should be licensed. For example, if you want the fire dept. to remove your lizard in a fire, that's a public service. If a person keeps an any animal in their possession it should be recorded (licensed).
- All pets should be licensed - how do you track them otherwise?
- If dogs and cats are to be licensed, so should ANY pet that is potentially harmful - snakes, spiders, reptiles. If bees and chickens require PID numbers in outlying counties, At minimum, the same should be held within city.
- None, no need.
- Bunnies and reptiles. So many people have been releasing unwanted domestic bunnies or they are getting out of backyard hutches. Reptiles have been stolen or escaped during summer months.
- Any animal that has the ability to escape the home should be licensed.
- Any animal that has the ability to escape the home should be licensed. [DUPLICATE]
- Livestock for obvious reasons
- Rabbits should be registered in some way for a very low cost, with extreme penalties for people who randomly breed and abandon them. Having feral rabbits is not good for the life of the rabbits or the wildlife around them. Pet stores should be banned from selling them.
- If it has the potential to be out in public or in public spaces, it should be licensed
- Any other mammal.
- ALL of them. And people should have to have some kind of background checks.
- /
- Any emotional pet,it would put a stop to those who use that as an excuse to have the pet,without the responsibility as a pet owner(no matter the type)
- Rodents- infestation possibility
- Rabbits- infestations
- Birds to assist in reunification
- Any pets in a home should be licensed for tracking purposes if nothing else.
- I think that owning an animal that is not regularly going outdoors is does not require licensing.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Any animal that is let out of the house. If you want to take your ferret for a walk, go for it, but gotta license it. Also any exotic or high maintenance pets.
- Cats and dogs, and special animals emuus etc should be licenced as if they are lost they can be returned.
- Any pets that have a possibility of getting loose requiring assistance. Birds, snakes, reptiles, could be considered.
- Stop ! REALLY ?????!!!
- Maybe animals that live a long time and are often surrendered like parrots.
- Any pets that would be outside of a private home or pose a danger/threat to others.
- Any pet that may be out in public or has a chance of getting out and lost in public. This way if there are issues with the pet the rightful owner is responsible and if the pet is lost it can be returned to their owner.
- I think pet goats should be licensed
- None. What you going to start requiring licenses for fish
- Birds would be a good one to license, simply for ease of returning a lost parrot home.
- Indoor cats shouldn't be licenced. It's the same as any indoor animal. Cats have tattoos and microchips.
- Snakes and other exotic animals
- None and neither should cats
- Just dogs and cats should be licensed.
- Livestock should be registered with the city (so their whereabouts and numbers are known and so care can be monitored). Not necessarily individually licensed.
- Anything that would leave the home should be licensed. Maybe ferrets, cats, bunnies
- Anything that goes outside often. I think if you have a pet you take anywhere outside of your home (and yard), other than to the vet, should be licenced.
- Any pet that is able to be taken out in public. The license needs to be easily availibe for non-pet owners to identify the owner so that by-laws can be contacted and the owner reported if not following the by-laws or dangerous activities encountered. Presently it's a free for all for owners.
- Other pets are usually caged pets. Perhaps rabbits as Calgary really struggles with an overpopulation of wild domestic rabbits. So something to help with this.
- Any pets that go outside
- I don't think that exotic pets or farm animals should be licensed as they general do not wear anything in which a license could be attached to, and are not generally lost. All service animals should be licensed in order to be able to quickly be reunited to their owners.
- I think your license system is robbing my back as is. Please don't introduce anymore licenses. This is stupid.
- Only if they go at large and out of the house / off the property
- anything that could possible become "at large"

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Birds and rabbits. Health reasons. Plus we don't want to have the bunny problem that Canmore had years back.
- No I don't think other pets need to be licensed because it's not common for them to leave the house.
- Dogs and Cats can cause lawn damage, property damage, and inter species damage. Licensing should be used to offset the damages. Also it helps people identify your animal if lost.
- No licences should be required
- All and any sort of pet that can escape from the house should be licensed. If the pet is let loose or accidentally leaves th house, it should be the responsibility of the pet owner to have the pet returned.
- Pigs and goats
- Any pets that have a reasonable potential of getting separated from their owners, such as rabbits. Animals that would not reasonable be separated, such as fish, should not require registration.
- Rabbits as we are now in a crisis situation in some areas with the number of domesticated rabbits that have been released.
- Any pet that can travel and any exotic pet. Especially pets that could become invasive.
- Any animal that goes onto public lands or non stereo typical pet animals eg: pigs, chickens
- livestock or any special or dangerous animals should go through checks and evaluations to ensure safety of everyone
- All the categories asked about in this survey should have some sort of license, in the hope it will encourage responsible owners ship. On another note., cyclists too should have to be licensed in this city esp for all the lanes they now have, they have more rights than walkers :(
- all pets as the issue of stress animals is being abused ie stress chickens come on people this is bs
- Anything dangerous or venomous in case emergency services needs to attend the residence they should know of its existence. No charge for those licenses.
- Rodents do not have a long enough lifespan to license. Shouldn't give anyone who would want to give them a good life a reason not to have any
- I think that's good.
- Rabbits. To prevent when rabbits get loose and then start reproducing quickly (like around Repsol sports centre for example!). If urban agriculture is allowed for them to be licensed.
- None. The next questions dealing with dog walking you forgot to leave room for comments. In a nutshell - common sense should prevail, but it is woefully missing so, forget legislating it. Walking 12 chihuahuas on leash is not the same as 12 male Dobermans. COMMON SENSE! And you cannot legislate CS!
- I think the city should leave pet owners alone and stop doing the cash grab wherever they can.
- Any animal that resides in Calgary, that has the possibility of free roaming should be licensed for its own safety
- Nothing. What, you going to make a kid license his goldfish?
Hedgehogs used to require a special permit from the province. We finally realized that was idiotic red tape and bureaucracy.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If you have a pet in the city it should be covered by the same bylaw no matter what the pet is.
- Birds for obvious reasons (roaming)
- Anything that can have the ability to roam free
- Rabbits. It's obvious from seeing the feral domestic rabbits around the City that people do not take responsibility for these pets, and they really should be held accountable for letting them go free, or not housing the appropriately so they don't escape.
- I don't think there's a sufficient population of other animals to warrant licensing. If there are a lot of escaping bunnies for instance, then perhaps they should fall under the same licensing requirements as dogs and cats.
- Good question, I'm not sure.
- Chickens, bees
- Any pet that poses a threat to other people or property
- Snakes, alligators or any kind of animal that might be harmful.
- I think licencing is not about the pets, it's just another way for the City to grab more money from its citizens. It doesn't do anything for pets of any kind or their owners.
- ok, let's not start licensing hamsters and guinea pigs. We had hamsters, and I have zero ideas what that would have done to benefit us or the hamsters.
- None of them. Everything else stays in the house. Stop trying to profit off of pets. Imagine licensing a hamster they last like a year.
- If dogs and cats must be licensed, it should be all animals that go outside. For example ferrets.
- I don't think other pets should be licensed as they are mostly in home pets.
- Any pet should be free from the license as an obligation. It should be a choice as a service. If it has no consent, it should be a crime against the population.
- No, I do not believe other pets (birds, rabbits, rodents, turtles, fish) should be licensed.
- Any animal not a small rodent (hamster, mouse, etc), not fish, or with dangerous potential such as snakes or venomous creatures. Anything with potential harm or with reasonable potential to be found and returned should be licensed
- I think that maybe if people had to get a license before they got a pet that might reduce the number of people who abandon their pet because they don't understand how much effort it is.
I think that any exotic pet should be licensed to reduce the trade in illegal wildlife (snakes, birds, spiders)
- Rabbits due to the high number of abandonment in the population
- I think pets that never leave the property or home. Like pets normally in cages should maybe be registered with the city but not licensed. Rabbits may be a good one to look at though since many roam free in houses and therefore could still escape and alter the natural population of rabbits.
- License reptiles, birds and any livestock. There is no difference between a bird or cat or reptile if they are indoor animals. All face a risk of escaping their "home" and need to be reunited.
- The city has more important things to do then go around soliciting ideas on what other pets should be licensed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- License long living pets.
- why license anything but dogs. it's only dog owners who get even the smallest benefit from this program. cat owners get zero benefit. what benefit can you possibly provide for any other kind of pet. You're delusional if you think you're providing any service.
- Can't think of another animal that should be licensed.
- All domestics pets
- Dogs, and roaming/barn cats.
- It would depend on the pet I guess. If they can wander and interfere with other people or pets then yes.
- Any pet that is taken outside for exercise.
- Any pets that go outside should be licensed - and I can only think of a few instances where this is applicable, such as rabbits, birds or rodents. Why should only cat / dog owners have to pay for licensing?
- any animal which may interact with people, property; that go outside or can be heard outside. Whose quarters can be seen outside (e.g. pens).
- I think only animals who are permitted outside should require a license.
- Any animal that might be outdoors should be licensed
- Dogs, cats, and exotic dangerous pets if released.
- Can't think of any.
- Any animal that is rare or endangered
- They shouldn't be
- Reptiles, rabbits, birds. It is about the welfare of these animals and contributing to the health and welfare of all of our pets. It doesn't have to be a steep fee, but we should all be contributing.
- Pigs pot bellie
- ?? Not sure
- Any animals that may be in public
- Anything that is likely to be exposed to the public
- No, with the exception of exotics such as snakes, iguana etc. Bylaw simply don't have time to track down unlicensed rabbits
- Like what?? Pot bellied pigs?? Birds? Dog owners are held to different standards that cat owners. Let's get that sorted out before licensing ferrets!
- Pigs and chickens as the transmission of disease between animal and human is well documented
- I only think pets that are outside at any time should be licensed.
- Exotic animals should all be microchipped and licensed the number of reptiles that are escaping or being let go is on the rise
- Any pet that has the potential to escape to the great outdoors so that it can be reunited quickly with its owner.
- Any pets that are the same size as household cats or dogs, or imported exotic pets. Anything that's costing the city a lot of money.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Are you kidding? Maybe fish?
- Yes, specifically for those in apartments but would need to apply it to everyone
- I believe all support animals should be licensed, regardless of species.
- Any pet that can safely wear a collar and goes outside would potentially benefit from licensing. Any animal who has special care requirements or whose presence and care may impact health and safety of others should have specific requirements attached to licensing.
- No need, unless wild or exotic, to ensure pet is properly cared for.
- Exotic pet owners
  - So they are educated on the care required for the pet
  - Reducing the rehoming to inexperienced people who have no idea what is required
- Pets that are allowed into public spaces should be licensed. Mainly to ensure accountability of actions.
- Anything that can become lose and be found by a member of the public.
- All pets should be licensed or chipped if in the city and outside.. cats, dogs, emotional support.. etc..
- All dogs should be licensed with the exception of recently adopted dogs. There should be a 6 month grace period. As for cats they should only have to be licensed if they go outside regularly.
- Think this should apply to 'all' pets. However pets that stay in the house solely make it optional. For example fish - not 'necessary' to have a licence as it stays put in the house but for a snake though it stays in the house it would be beneficial as it holds accountability.
- anything that could get out or is dangerous
- Pets that really don't ever leave the home for any reason (birds, reptiles, fish) don't need to be licensed. If there are going to be issues around poor ownership and hoarding animals, those people won't be licensing pets anyway. I can't see how it would help with those issues.
- Reptiles, as they often go missing and pose a threat to others (snakes, lizards)
- Any pet that can get outside should be licensed whether it be a tag or a registry.
- Any that are taken or kept outdoors regularly, such as outdoor rabbits, leashed ferrets, etc, as all can escape and need to be picked up. Also anything exotic, especially if kept outdoors. Ex. outdoor parrot aviaries, wild cat and dog species, etc.
- If you want to have back yard chickens, your flock should be licensed.
- any pet that goes outside should be licensed
- Perhaps anything over a certain weight threshold
- Any that have the ability to escape outside.
- Any animal that is permitted to leave the inside of the home.
- Rabbits
- Bunnies and ferrets
- I think cats and dogs only is fine
- Exotic pets, especially those not endemic to Canada
- Bunnies, snakes, reptiles, - if they escape they can disturb the eco-system

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think Calgary should consider exotic animals in their bylaws, I don't know the current rules, but I don't think wild animals or exotics have a place in our homes (large snakes, etc)
- I think you should need a license to keep farm animals on your property
Pet pigs
- Any urban livestock should have to be licensed. Any animal that would escape.
- any pet that could potentially be outside of the home should be licensed
- Any animal that is domesticated and going outside free roaming or engaging in public activities should be licensed
- Rabbits as my neighbour breeds them and every year lets 10 or so go in winter on a cold night . If you by a rabbit registered so you just can't let it go free to succumb to the elements when it's served its purpose
- Rabbits, as they can easily be released and multiply fast.
- pet pigs - although are they even allowed? Snakes of certain kind/size as they could escape.
- Only potentially dangerous pets should be licensed
- I believe it is sufficient at this time to ensure that all dogs and all cats that are allowed to roam are all licensed.
- None, not even sure why these pets should be licensed.
- I would think large reptiles like snakes. This would be a safety issue for bylaw officers, police and fire departments.
- cats, same reason as for dogs.
- I think a ONE time minimal fee could be considered fair for rabbits, since there are many stray rabbits around, but it must be affordable and not a yearly financial job in the pocket of the owner. But how would you know when you found the rabbit, they don't wear a collar anyhow....
- no other pets should be licensed . cats and dogs are more likely to be out with owners/ in yards. I would think most other pets depend on enclosures of some sort, rabbits, snakes, birds etc. it would be just be another tax grab
- Why would you license a bird or a ferret or a hamster except as money grab?
- Any animal/pet who spends time outside should be licensed.
- No other licences
- Alligators, cougars, sharks, pythons.
- Any pets that are taken out in public spaces other than dogs and cats should also be subject to licensing. Licensing should also ensure that pets are vaccinated.
- I feel that licensing reptiles or insects ridiculous including snakes. I am a strong proponent of not owning exotic pets I feel that should be completely illegal
- If animals are out in public then yes but not sure which animals. Pigs? I'd leave it as it is right now
- Licensing dogs and cats is a silly requirement with no benefit
- Any pets that could get loose outside of the home in case they do.
- only the ones which leave the house
- Any animal that frequently leaves the house

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Any pet that is taken out in public.
- No. Pointless cash grab
- Any that go outside and could be lost
- I think any animal that is let outside (either on-leash or off) should be licensed.
- All
- Any reptile or exotic animal (not sure why we even allow invasive species into our country). I would NOT allow any such animals to be sold or kept period. However since we do, they should have to be licensed and the license must be bought at time of animal purchase (stores, breeders, citizen sales
- All pets that leaves their residence should be treated equitably
- Dangerous or poisonous pets including all snakes and spiders
- Maybe any exotic pets .. seen pet birds at the dogs parks
- Any animal that is kept outdoors should be licensed.
- If the pet leaves the house and has a chance of running away or escaping I believe it should be licensed so there is a chance of a reunion with the owner. Make license something that doesn't leave the house or can't wear the identifying tag.
- Any animal that has the potential to harm a human, i.e. venomous insects, reptiles capable of inflicting bites or carrying diseases that can infect other animals or humans.
- Only those who have a form of physical ID such as bird band or tattoo for rabbits - this should be optional as most other animals are not going outside.
- Any large or outdoor animals.
- Any other pet that goes outside the house should be licensed, chipped and tattooed ( those smaller than a hand may not need this, or aquatic animals)
- Bee's and chickens, a reasonable rate, just so that the city is aware that they are living in the city boundries.
- None.. what does the license do? You charge so much to recover a pet.
- other pets? wow! don't forget since 2008 our economy has been in the dump and has not come back up and yet here you are trying to get more $ from people! I haven't had a raise since 2008 because of Economy! Stop taxing us and try to get more $ from our empty pockets.
- Any animal likely to incur veterinary costs could benefit from registration to allow access to funding for low-income pet owners
- I'm not likely to encounter a pet in public other than a dog. I assume there are regulations around the keeping of 'exotic' animals like alligators and snakes and such.
- Not so much licensed but we should not allow livestock, chickens, ect. I can also see license for exotic pets, reptiles, snakes, or anything that is potential dangerous if it escapes.
- Any pet that can get out and about should be licensed in such a manner that they can be identified and reunited with their owners. This would serve not only the purpose of reuniting but also the owner could be identified and held accountable for any damage the animal may have incurred.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I would think licencing should be based on surrender/nuisance rates. If bunnies or other pets are likely to end up being surrendered or causing public nuisance then licencing could be required to offset those costs.
- No, drop licence requirements, new technology like chips and online dog find websites help owners reunite.
- no others, cats and dogs are fine
- Any urban farming animals or service animals that fall outside of cats and dogs.
- I think anything that can get out or anything that has longevity. For example, bearded dragons, snakes.
Also, exotic animals, simply because if people think they have to lisencc it may cut down on smuggling
- I think larger animals such as horses, donkeys goats and cattle as they could potentially cause more damage and harm than a cat or dog
- Any pet that would reasonably be expected to go out in public (ie emotional support animals of the “non traditional” variety)
- Dogs and cats. Nothing else in my opinion.
- I think any pet that’s leaving your home property should be licensed
- I dont think other pets would need to be as its mostly dogs and cats using city of calgary animal services resources
- Allow chickens/livestock and register the lot. Registering each chicken doesn't make sense, but the entire coup
- Any livestock if that passes
- Unless it's an outdoor animal, then no. My reptiles don't need city tags.
- None. Just dogs and cats.
- Possibly birds or rabbits. I have found lost birds and lost rabbits and the only way I was able to get them back home was through Facebook.
- I have yet to see benefit in licensing so don’t believe additional pets need to Ben licensed
- All animals that occupy outside spaces should be licensed , including agricultural if found at large they would create an issue.
- To what benefit (besides adding extra income to the city) would licensing a snake prove?
- birds as they can easily escape
- License dogs. Indoor cats shouldn't be licensed since they dont go outside
- I dont think any other animals should be. Rabbits matbe, but that would be so hard to deal with with so many wild rabbits.
- Make this easy for people, and cost effective.
- All animals should require a license if cats and dogs do.
(Rabbits etc)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think all pets living within the city limits should be licensed but the cost should be appropriate. It's unlikely a gerbil would require much city resources if it gets loose. But, a python could require a response.
- Anything that is outside a cage or may escape
- if they do not leave the house hold i don't feel other pets need to be licensed (bunnies, reptiles, etc) HOWEVER i feel they should be registered at least to have a record of them
- Rabbits bc lots of people release them outside when no longer wanted
- May not be a license but animal welfare practices should be adhered to for all pets (exotics, etc.)
- Rabbits. They breed rapidly, and alot of people buy them, get bored and just let them go. Ive seen mutiple pet rabbits living in nose hill park.
- No others.
- Any animal that had access to public space.
- I don't think a small animal license is practical or enforceable. Any animal that leaves the residence regularly should be licensed.
- I don't think licensing should ever be implemented. Microchiping on the other hand, that makes much more sense. If a dog gets out of the house without their collar on (and therefore tags), how is licensing going to help?!
- I don't think cats should be licensed.
- Only dogs, and indoor/outdoor cats.
- I think that if people have an animal for the purpose of it being a pet, licensing is a good idea. Primarily for lost animal situations.
- Any animal that might need to be brought to the vet
- any animal that lives outside or spends more than 50% of their time outside, or has a chance of escaping. For example: a chicken, lamb, sheep, horse, etc.
- Any animal that wanders or has access to parks
- No matter what make of vehicle I have, I must license and insure it. Why are only cats and dogs required to be licensed in the city? I think all animals residing with humans should be licensed - on a fair scale. The city should be aware of, and benefit from, all animals residing in the city. No?
- I am not sure that the value of the license is worth the cost. When I lived rurally, we were reunited with our pets several times, and it was because of tattoos and microchips, licensing was not the reason we got our pets back.
- Every pet should be licensed. No pet should be billed annually when no service is being provided. An annually recurring cost model is more like a money making business, and less like support for the owner.
- Any animals utilizing outdoor space off the human's property
- Children. Far more risks. Essentially a pet anyway.
- Birds and bunnies because of the mentality of some whom believe that these animals could survive out in the wild if set free. This way if they are found the City could fine the owner for neglect.
- None unless they are taken into public spaces

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think all pets should be licensed to ensure proper care of them.
- I think pets that can leave the house should be registered such as dog, cats, pigs, etc. I think birds and smaller mammals should be accounted for somehow but maybe not with a licensing fee. Unfortunately it will be hard to have people follow through with that.
- All pets licenced except fish
- None. I feel this would simply cause more people not to license their pets.
- I don't think there is a need to license all pets. It will be seen as a money grab from the city. If you implement a volunteer registry at least people may do it.
- I have no opinion on this.
- Any animal that could be interacting with the greater community should require a license.
- Yes. If I have to licence my indoor cat, why doesn't my neighbour have to licence his hamster, snake, rat, bird, etc. All animals can run away/get lost. If your excuse for the licensing is to reunite pets with owners then that should be ALL pets.
- Goldfish. They're a menace.
But seriously, licensing has no benefits to the animal's owners. The primary intent is generate revenue and identify animals that cause damage or contravene bylaws, which in turn generates revenue.
- Pigs. These could pose health risk with animal to human diseases.
- Snakes! people are breeding these and they get out! there should be regulation on snake ownership.
- Dogs and cats are enough
- For pets other than dogs and cats, if there are concerns for public safety, it should be licensed.
- Any pet that could get lost outside.
- Bunnies, goats, sheep, chickens.
- No they do get lost usually
- Any kind of wild animal hybrids
- Any domestic animals which are not 100% confined to indoor space. However I still believe it would be beneficial to license them in case of accidental escape
- Probably not. Urban ag if it comes to pass.
- None. Any other pet is unlikely to go missing and be "at large" and there is no need for licensing of pocket pets or birds. That would very much be seen as a money grab and I can't imagine that it would be anything but exactly that.
- I think cats and dogs are enough.
- Bunnies. We have a large feral bunny population and this would help determine feral from stray or lost
- Exotic birds
- Rabbits should be licensed as they can easily get outside.
- Other small indoor pets shouldn't have to be licensed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Any animal brought in from another country, should be quarantined/neutered or spayed/vaccinated/and most definitely licensed! Training, is also a must as you do not know the situation from which it came! This applies to ALL animals whether they have four legs or fly!
- I don't see why pets need to be licensed. Responsible owners all have their own tracking chips. I would much rather use my personal tracking solution than my dog be picked up by the city and fined. There is absolutely no benefit (just penalty) in licensing through the city.
- Rabbits. There seems to be an issue with owners setting them free and it might help control the problem? People might think twice about getting one if they had to license it? Also, any animal being used as an emotional support animal to help keep track/cut down on people fraudulently using the term.
- I think if you have larger pets like a pig or pony definitely. Not sure whether it's worthwhile for gerbil/guineapigs/ferrets,etc. I would think that it would be better to do group pricing if you have more than X, then it costs. Definitely not for tiny aquarium stuff unless it's large exotics
- Rabbits/snakes/reptiles/ferrets. Too many animals get abandoned or dumped. If pet Shops and breeders had to provide on-the-spot licensing, legitimate purchases, that would add to the value of the animal and provide you with info, how many of these animals exist. F&W collaborative on exotics CITES check
- I think the whole business is entirely pointless. I do not support city involvement in pet licensing at all. The city is really only needed when there is a vicious animal or something of that nature. People are intelligent enough to be able to sort the rest.
- If the owner of any other pet, who so chooses, could get their pet licensed just in case that pet might become lost. For example, I had a cockatiel and wish she could have been licensed so anyone who found her could have a means to return her. Someone might want to license their pet rabbit?
- I am not sure how prevalent it is in Calgary for people to own wild animals like monkeys and wild cats, but those animals definitely need to be either licensed or not allowed as pets. Large animals that may come in contact with other animals and people too, so pet pigs for example.
- Pigs - enough to require license
  - Any animal that might be out and about
- - Pigeons or permit
  - pet rabbits
  - pot-bellied pigs
  - any animal that can get loose
  - licensing tag requirement should be changed -> no tag required to be worn
  - wording changed so tag doesn't have to be worn
- At the moment, no
- No fines for licensing
  - Easily reunited with lost pets
- Rabbits/Bunnies - easy to mistake wild/tame pets that are more likely to get lost

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't see why pets need to be licensed. Responsible owners all have their own tracking chips. I would much rather use my personal tracking solution than my dog be picked up by the city and fined. There is absolutely no benefit (just penalty) in licensing through the city.
- Rabbits. There seems to be an issue with owners setting them free and it might help control the problem? People might think twice about getting one if they had to license it? Also, any animal being used as an emotional support animal to help keep track/cut down on people fraudulently using the term.
- I think if you have larger pets like a pig or pony definitely. Not sure whether it's worthwhile for gerbil/guineapigs/ferrets, etc. I would think that it would be better to do group pricing if you have more than X, then it costs. Definitely not for tiny aquarium stuff unless it's large exotics
- Rabbits/snakes/reptiles/ferrets. Too many animals get abandoned or dumped. If pet Shops and breeders had to provide on-the-spot licensing, legitimate purchases, that would add to the value of the animal and provide you with info, how many of these animals exist. F&W collaborative on exotics CITES check
- I think the whole business is entirely pointless. I do not support city involvement in pet licensing at all. The city is really only needed when there is a vicious animal or something of that nature. People are intelligent enough to be able to sort the rest.
- If the owner of any other pet, who so chooses, could get their pet licensed just in case that pet might become lost. For example, I had a cockatiel and wish she could have been licensed so anyone who found her could have a means to return her. Someone might want to license their pet rabbit?
- I am not sure how prevalent it is in Calgary for people to own wild animals like monkeys and wild cats, but those animals definitely need to be either licensed or not allowed as pets. Large animals that may come in contact with other animals and people too, so pet pigs for example.
- Yes they all should be at least registered to stop hoarding of animals or illegal sales of them.
- I think all pets should be microchipped but should not require licensing.
- Rabbits/bunnies, so people don't just release them into the wild when they can no longer look after them and they rapidly reproduce and become pests in the neighborhoods.
- I think reptiles, amphibians and arachnids don't need a license but maybe owners should have a bill of sale like a car or a registration from the pet store in case they go missing
- I don't think they need to be licensed
- None. I don't think it's worth the money that the administration costs the City.
- I don't think any other pets should need to be licensed
- If the city decides to have livestock in the city, all should be licensed.
- Non
- Birds come to mind as they are often escape artists, released freely and often found free. However, this would have to be cheaply done and easily done online without limit to birds/species per person.
- Any exotic types of animals. Licensing would cut down on the illegal traffic of exotic animals. Some animals bring risks of disease. Knowing where these animals are would help with health and safety concerns.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- All pets, especially rabbits and small mammals
- Bunnies, ferrets, large reptiles, birds. I rescued a bird at a park once (a cockatiel), and I know of several people who have reported their budgies escaped.
- Rabbits. All owned rabbits required to be sterilized. There are far too many feral rabbits roaming around. The city won't accept strays and the Humane Society shouldn't have to be responsible for strays within city limits. Same rules should apply as those for cats and dogs.
- Rabbits, they escape often and/or released when unwanted, may deter this poor behaviour.
- All reptiles, ferrets, and birds as well. Proper identification and responsibility to owner if pet escapes or becomes an issue
- Bunny rabbits should be licensed because they can grow sizable and are similar to cats.
- All species. Rabbits as a priority due to overflowing community and shelters. Potentially dangerous species (large snakes). Perhaps permits instead of licenses.
- I think dogs/cats is sufficient, the majority of the population owns one or the other. Licensing other pets sounds like a cash grab.
- Any livestock, if that was legalized.
- No other animals
- Emotional support animals other than cats and dogs.
- Any pet that could potentially get out or be taken out of the home or yard.
- If the agriculture/livestock bylaws are put into place, any quadruped should be licensed (horses, cows, sheep, goats).
- all species/ rabbits as a priority due to overflowing community and shelters. potentially dangerous species, eg large snakes. perhaps permits instead of licenses
- Any pet that can get out of the house and get lost, like rabbits and ferrets, or a pet that can be dangerous, such as certain snakes.
- Bunnies but really any species that has the chance of getting out
- No others. The following pets should not be licensed - birds, turtles, minks, hedgehogs, chickens, weasel, etc
- Why should house cats/dogs have to have licenses while birds, rabbits, etc. do not? If licensing is to reunite lost animals with their owners, then microchipping is a better option.
- Although I do not in any way support bee keeping or urban livestock. There must be criteria for them to meet and they must be licensed and there must be a way to monitor them.
- I think both cats and dog need a licence.
- Potentially dangerous snakes, rabbits due to overflowing populations.
- Which require the services of animal bylaw or services? Which require use of taxpayer money? I have no idea. If it costs the city, it should cost the owners of those pets...but then they must receive some benefit. Otherwise no, why license something that's probably only indoors and gets no benefit?
- Birds, disease

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Nothing else needs to be licensed. Just another way for the city to make money and grow the administration.
- All pets should be licenced.
- If dogs and cats need to be licensed then all pets should be licensed.
- No benefits to licensing at all for any pets
- Dogs, cats, rabbits, parrots, ferrets or any other animals commonly found and an animal rescues or shelter should be licensed and microchipped.
- All species - Rabbits priority due to overflowing community and shelters and lack of knowledge between what domestic and feral rabbit are; Potentially dangerous species (large snakes) - maybe permits instead of licenses for some species.
- Chickens and ducks - not individually, but as a permitted number per house.
- Pet pigs, chickens, rabbits, horses, raccoons, really any pet like this. Exotic wildlife. Perhaps certain snakes? Why? So the City understands what none pet owners have to put up with, what services might need to be provided, also to know what neighbors might be having to put up with.
- Almost all household pets (rabbits, snakes, etc) should be licensed and chipped so that if they are lost or dumped, they can be reunited with owners. If a pet is dumped, easier to identify and fine offenders.
- Birds that fly.
- All. To provide negative incentives to irresponsible ownership. Pay your salaries for what that's worth. Disease control, inhibit illegal animal trade, protect exotic species, promote compatible community relations, my tranquility.
- All pets should be licensed.
- I don't know what the list of eligible/legal pets includes but perhaps uncommon animals that are not native to the region should be registered in case they escape (intentionally or unintentionally) and cause problems in nature.
- Until there is a framework to provide municipal support to owners of Fish, Reptiles, Birds, and Small Mammals like Hamsters, there should not be a license. If the city funded an exotic rescue shelter for these animals with a licensing fee, owners in those communities may be receptive to that idea.
- Any wild animals that are being kept as pets although I realize this is probably illegal so the owners are not likely to do this. Licensing of urban livestock might help control what is going on out there.

What are your expectations for dog-walking businesses?

- While I generally think that restricting where they can have dogs is a good thing, I would be hesitant to put in too specific of regulations, but could see merit in rules like "not on a bike path"
- Be trained to handle multiple dogs and animal CPR for emergencies when walking dogs in a pack ALOT can go wrong!
- Be insured and first aid certified.
- Have inspection visits to ensure health and safety standards. Treat dog daycares the same as you would child care facilities.
- Be able to control the dogs they have with them

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That they are actually in control of the dogs with them and that they are picking up after their dogs.
- They should have the same rules as pet owners unless they can provide ID and have total control over the dogs at all times. No off leash unless following basic pet owners rules. I think only 2 dogs in off leash.
- Specific regulations about liability for dogs under their care, should those dogs attack a person or animal.
- All dogs microchipped
- Increased responsibility for care and control and interactions with other dogs especially with more than one dog.
- PICK UP AFTER THE DOGS!! too many dogs per walker means lots of 'presents' left behind for the rest of us to deal with while walking our dogs.
- They need to be under control. I don't care how many as long as they have full control
- Fines for those who do not have appropriate control/oversight of multiple dogs
- By walking the dogs the dog walker can not negatively impact any other Calgarian, failure to do so being a bylaw offense that is subject to fine
- They should be bonded and insured.
- Must clean up dog feces and actually enforce it please. No one cares about your signs in the parks. There is poop everywhere. Alllll over this city.
- Fined for not picking up poop. Some dog walkers release their packs on nosehill and are not able to watch multiple dogs and where they are pooping.
- Permit must be available if requested and their should be an on line list available to be consulted but I don't know that requiring it to be carried is necessary. Not opposed to it though.;t know it is necessary
- again, animals must be chipped...
- That the person is educated and licenced via education to care for multiple dogs at a time.
- Safe transportation rules. First aid training and carrying water. Pls note for limits, they need to be reasonable. If they can control the pack, that's important consideration.
- They should pick up after the dogs which I often see not happening, they often do not even have bags with them
- That they can control the dog(s) they are walking. Its not abut how many dogs, more on behaviour and control.
- Ensure all dogs have received their vaccinations
- Ensure that the person can safely manage the number and/or size of dogs they are walking
- Provide SAFE travel (vehicle(s)) for these animals as I sometimes see multiple dogs jacked like sardines into a small vehicle and if in accident is VERY UNSAFE fir these animals
- Must have current pet first aid.
- The dogs in packs walked by businesses should be treated the same as pet owners. As a dog-walking business owner, the people in my business work hard to train the dogs we take on as clients to ensure they have good recall and appropriate behaviour in the dog parks. We ensure our clients

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

provide city tags and we clean up after all the dogs in our care plus picking up extra to help maintain the cleanliness of the our beautiful parks..

- Have liability insurance
- Have to pick up all dogs poop.
- I want to add that dog walkers should also have an education based on science and a good understanding of behaviour
- Insurance
- allways on leash and have poop bags
- It is up to you the owner to find a trust worthy person. They should have mandatory insurance to walk dogs
- Ensure dogs are tatoored/microchipped.
- Required to read a list of the rules and bylaws and sign a document stating read and adhere to them.
- Ensure dogs are licensed but it is unsafe to wear the tags. Dogs get playing and they could get caught up in the tags.
- Ensure dog-walkers always pick up after the dogs
- Have adequate waste bags & not allowing dog to defacate on sidewalks
- Be responsible for picking up after their dogs perhaps an extra person doing the patrol
- As long as the walker can control the dogs they walk there should be no limit either on walks or off leash. I dont think they need to be licence or need a permit.
- Treat my pet like their own, keep them safe, love and care for them like we do. It's my responsibility to ensure the person I choose meets the requirements I need for my pet. Dog walkers should require a police check plus checks for (Canada wide) animal cruelty.
- Limits on how many and how they have the animals in a vehicle
- Ensuring any aggressive dogs are properly supervised and restrained
- Mandate all dogs always under control
- Have control of the animals at all times. This includes being able to call the animal and have it return to them when in an off leash situation.
- Keep logs of their dog identification and photos with owners contact on hand at all times while that fog is in their possession should the dog go missing or requires veterinary care.
- All the dogs must have their shots to ensure their health and the health of the dogs they're in contact with. Also walking small and large together in a clump could be dangerous. People want their animals to enjoy the walk - walking in a clump around someone without time to sniff, pee or BE A DOG is not a fun walk. Walking while distracted by their phone (not paying attention) is so wrong. Taking over the sidewalk is also unfair to other users. I cannot believe people think they're doing a good thing for their dog by hiring a glorified post that moves. If you can't look after and enjoy your dog — give it away!
- None of the above. This is not and never has been a problem.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I do not believe they should be allowed to let dogs go in off-leash areas. There is no way that they can be in control of multiple animals, or there to pick up their feces, when they have more than two animals. These dogs often just run wild in the park and cause problems while the walker is engaged elsewhere. They should always be with the walker, on leash.
- License requirement that they have police clearances and hold insurance!
- It is not the cities job to police a business in such a manner.
- Why?
- LIMIT THE NUMBER OF DOGS WALKED AT 1 TIME TO 4 or less. You cannot adequately monitor more dogs than that, and if there is a conflict with multiple dogs, you risk greater injury to the dogs or yourself...
- I was hoping for this question. Dog walkers have too many dogs and cannot manage them. I see this everyday when I take my dog to offleash areas and walk on lead in the down town core. These people need everything I checked and MUST be restricted to the animals they manage. These dogs run in packs at the parks and there is no way 1 human can manage 8 canines I'd say 4 is tough. They also cannot manage the clean up as they cannot see everything the animals are doing.
- Limited amount of dogs per handler, 6 per handler at most. I created a Dog Management program for parks in Vancouver and i'm also a dog owner. Makes me furious to see what goes on here with other dog walkers! Often they don't pick up as they have too many dogs and can't watch them all.
- They should be insured against pet losses. We have heard of dogs dying or getting lost by neglectful or distracted dog walkers.
- background checks/bonded if coming into your home
- If they break rules regarding walking a dog Off leash in a non-off leash area that they face severe penalties including losing their licenses
- The dog walker should be ensuring the animals are licensed. this does not need to be written in a bylaw. get over yourselves and stop being control freaks.
- Not permitted to walk known vicious dogs
- Dog walkers should DEFINITELY be restricted in the # of dogs they are walking, especially off leash. At Edworthy Park there are sometimes a dozen walkers each with a dozen dogs. It is chaos! However, walking small dogs is not the same as big dogs so perhaps the restriction SB by weight. Definitely no one should walk more than 4 big dogs at one time, on or off leash. Small dog max. SB 6 dogs.
- They need to be insured should a dog in their care cause harm to another dog/person or property
- Be required to take a dog walking course - there is one offered by DogBiz that has been presented in Calgary.
- Have liability insurance.
- Be in control of the dogs they have regardless of the number. Some form of training knowledge.
- No history of (conviction for) animal cruelty or other obviously related offenses. Insurance.
- Exceptions for things like a neighbourhood kid taking someone's dog for a walk everyday after school.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- KNOW where the off leash areas are in natural spaces. Don't walk 6 dogs on a footpath on a slope where there is NO escape for oncoming humans. I see this regularly in Bowmont Park.
- Criminal background checks, any issues with previous infractions regarding animals
- Whether on or off leash, no person or business should walk more dogs than they can control. Stiffer fines should apply to a business owner as they should be held to a higher level of education/training.
- Make the limit the weight of the dogs cannot exceed half of what the Walker weight is.
- Picking up after all dogs in their charge.
- PLEASE LIMIT THE # OF DOGS! I've seen many dog walkers with so many dogs on leashes they were NOT having a good time - the little ones were being trampled by larger ones.
- Safely transport dogs to and from off leash locations
- THAT THEY CARRY INSURANCE INCASE AN ANIMAL IS HURT IN THIER CARE
- qualification should be set by The City (minimum expectations - e.g., trained by an existing qualified person, probation period, referral has accountability
- Should not be allowed to walk dogs off leash at all
- I don't care about any of the above as long as the dogs are under control. It may be less likely with more dogs or less training, but not necessarily.
- Clean up after all dogs in their care!
- Pass police checks as well as be required to keep a GPS tracker on them during walks.
- This is an area that needs enforcement of all the same rules individual dog walkers have. No single person can walk 10 10 dogs and watch them
- Require all dogs to be fully vaccinated and - if off-leash - that the walker is still in control of ALL dogs at ALL times.
- All restrained properly in vehicles, not just loose in a van with multiple other loose dogs
- If they are a full out business and are charging as much as some of them charge, they better be qualified and provide some sort of enrichment that is regulated. They should also be at least mildly educated.
- This may fall under training but they should hold a pet first aid/cpr certification just like a child care provider
- Don't tell me to leash my one dog when we get close to your "pack of multiple dogs- I've seen as many as 18 dogs with one dog walker at Nose Hill Park. Also do t ask me to go another direction.
- Be insured as a business
- Ensure they can actually control all the dogs they are walking.
- Allow businesses to run as they will and stop trying to have a hand in everything. Govt doesn't know the first thing about responsible dog ownership or training and those of us that do aren't being done any favours by your stifling regulations.
- Must let the people know if they are having any other dogs.
- Qualifications and education are key
- That they are capable of controlling all animals under their care
- Have the necessary means to pick up after all of the dogs

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Know the dogs personalities and ensure reactive dogs are kept on leash and close to the dog walker
- Dogs should be up to date with vaccinations.
- Rabies tag also owner's ph# available.
- No leaving dogs alone
- full responsibility of pets behavior should be on the walker. if pets misbehave or hurt someone, the pet should be returned to owner and business should be responsible for any damages/injuries.
- Have adequate control over the animals.
- Just a clarification about limiting numbers. I'd like to know what the limit might be? My dogs used to go on group pack walks with a licensed trainer and I had no problem with her having 6-8 dogs
- Rules for waste disposal, water Usage and chemical use regarding dog washing.
- All dogs on leash
- Be able to control the amount of dogs being walked on-leash or off.
- Ensure all waste are picked up
- 2 things. 1) mandatory pet first aid course. 2) Must carry businesses or dog walker insurance. This is a business and should be treated as such. Even if it's a one person Craigslist operation.
- Limit of dogs should vary based on the size and type of dog they are walking ie 4 huskies don't equal 4 yorkies
- re: wearing tags, isn't that a reqt of all dogs? rules should be the same. anyone walking multiple dogs (business or personal) needs to be mindful of others who occupy the same space on sidewalks, in parks. and they should have control of all dogs.
- Restrictions around how dogs/how many dogs are transported in vehicle. Have insurance to cover dog clients as well as dogs they may encounter.
- Safe transportation should be provided
- The issue of trained/qualified is a key difference between individual dog walkers and businesses. Dog walking businesses need a process to train and assess competence as an on-going basis; individuals just need to demonstrate competence infrequently
- Criminal record check to get a permit that allows you to walk strangers dogs. What if you have three-five dogs yourself? Well they'll all be licensed to YOU, so no need for a permit.
- must clean up after the dogs
- Must be in absolute control of all of the dogs. I don't believe this can be done if there are multiple dogs and they are off-leash.
- Some newer parks have 2 dog maximums per person, but dog walkers do not adhere to this. The fenced park in Killarney/glengarry often has single walkers with over 6 dogs with them. I don't think it's wrong to have 6 dogs with you, but in small fenced parks this means that they monopolize the space and it becomes like a private park just for them
- As with any dog handler - owner or not - well behaved dogs are not a problem while problem handlers should be dealt with
- My expectations is that it's my duty to get the dog walker and not the city. Stay out of it.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Limit to 6 dogs (3 per hand) and absolutely have all the appropriate (inc. liability) business insurances.
- They should not be allowed to walk pitbulls in groups of dogs. To hard to manage potentially dangerous dogs in groups.
- I don't like the idea of limits (see above selections) but it's okay if the limit is not overly restrictive. I think a dog walker can reasonably walk up to 6 dogs on or off leash.
- I have seen an overweight man, driving a small 2 door compact car with 10 dogs in it. I counted because he got out with them. I shouldn't have to specify the dangers all around for this.
- Didn't know there was a problem with Dog walking businesses. Why don't you just leave them alone?
- Hygiene rules should also be expected and liability if it bites. Who is responsible?
- ensure that the dogs they walk have up-to-date vaccinations
- Any business requires a licence. Any person walking dog(s) must be in control, courteous and responsible
- no off-leash walking
- lose business license when they use school grounds, playgrounds, athletic parks, wild areas such as weasel head wild area.
- All dogs are vaccinated
- Insurance to cover incidents involving animals in their care.
- Pick up poop!!
- Must have pet first aid. Two at a time off leash per person, maximum 4 on leash at a time per person (dependent on size - 4 small dogs are different than 4 large dogs).
- pick up after the pets regardless of area the dogs are being walked (on or off leash), and if there is an incident with another pet, show identification and be responsible for injury by the owner or themselves.
- Waste collection
- clean up after them.
- Be licensed as a business depending on revenue.
- Really none of the above, any of those will kill the business and it's a valuable service that benefits the dogs as well.
- Wear recognizable identifier that they are part of a business performing a service.
- criminal background check , to be certain no animal cruelty charges
- dog-walking business must have ratio of dog walkers to employed-poop-picker-uppers of not more than 7.
- A mandatory training course on dog behavior.
- Dogs MUST be leashed in public areas. Sick and tired of loose dogs approaching me and my children in parks and at public events. HUGE outdoor nuisance!
- Make sure they are able to pick up after dogs in their care and have control at all times.
- Ensure all dogs have uptodate vaccinations.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Be able to recall the dogs as that seems to be an issue where ai walk, no recall no control and those dogs should not be off a leash.
- be able to control the dogs easily so restrictions not only on number walked at once but size and strength of dogs to be walked at once
- Clean up after the dogs!!!!
- Have an appropriate amount of poop bags and be heavily fined without as that proves no intention of picking up.
- I resent have to step off the curb to let them by on the sidewalk. That is not a respectful of your neighbours. Senior or not I should not have to take the risk of falling on ice or whatever to accommodate a pack of dogs. Same goes for on trails. I do not enjoy meeting a pack of dogs going either way on city park trails.
- Pass a background check.
- They should not have right of way on pathways, sidewalks, etc. They are bothersome to others trying to enjoy a simple walk.
- They must pick up the poop of every dog they are responsible for at the off leash parks.
- Proven knowledge of dog behaviour and positive training methods.
- Cleaning up properly after dogs
- All dogs need to be under control to make to safe for others passing by and those with dogs.
- Pick up feces of dogs. Not happening at Southland off leash park.
- I think people walking two or three dogs should be exempt. Often we walk our neighbours' dog with our own and that should not require a license 'cause we are doing a favour. Anytime that money is involved though, a paid service, it is a business transaction and should be properly licensed.
- Pay for conducting business in parks. Like rent that every other business owner has to pay
- I think that this depends on the dog walker and the dogs, they should be able to have control over the animals at all times.
- They take on the responsibility of the animal in their control and should carry insurance for liability of said animal.
- They should also be a certain age and have a background check for any previous abuse with animals or people, just like babysitting.
- Dnsuring aggressive dogs are kept on a short leash with indentifiable markings
- I know training was mentioned above, but I want to stress this!!!! Also maybe equipment regulations? Ie. no choke, prong, slip or limited slip collars.
- the maximum number of animals could be related to the combined weight of the animals, thus more closely reflecting the individual's ability to control them.
- It is not the responsibility of dog walkers to licence the dogs - they should not be accountable for what is outside of their control.
- Full Shots and vet check documentation
- Common sense and respect.
- Business should not be responsible for the dog being licensed with the city (ie cannot be ticketed)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Strict limits on the numbers of dogs (not exceeding four) that should be permitted to be walked at any given time - especially in off leash parks where the dogs are running loose and intimidating to other dogs, especially nervous dogs.
- Provide all employees handling dogs with clear expectations (or opportunities) for basic an education on behaviour and handling skills from a certified professional. Too many incidents and costs could be entirely avoided if we regulated the pet care industry
- no extendi leashes
- limit place for walking (as example, not in the Sue dog park)
- All animals must be under control (i.e., leash or command) at all times when off owner's property.
- Dog walkers should be required to take training for handling aggressive animals as well as multiple animals. They should also be required to pay a user fee to help pay for the mess they leave in the offleash parks and the fact they are earning income at taxpayer expense.
- Respect other people and children's space in public areas
- No multiple dog walks/runs in public off-leash parks. The limit should match the limit of dogs allowed to be owned within the city bylaws.
- Make sure that they keep all the dogs within sight and availability to pick up their poop.
- Pet first aid course
- For safety reasons, should not be allowed on leash and off leash at the same time.
- I think that individuals are employing a dog walker and they should be aware of their credentials.
- Have control of dogs, follow rules, monitor dogs
- To clean up after each dog no matter where they are
- Larger fines then citizens if they fail to pooperscoop
- Just be on leash if the area requires it. I don't think the city should be involved in peoples' income- this is to be handled privincially and federally with taxes.
- I have no expectations
- Easily accessible training courses for youth needing extra income
- An easily seen license or permit. Not one you have to ask for or follow them back to their vehicle.
- Have let first aid and dog walking training, understand dog communication, and be expected to double leash dogs to prevent escaping.
- Limit the number of animals if the can't control them.
- They are able to control the situation, no matter the number of dogs.
- Clean up after the animals
- Not accepting clients who dont have licenses
- Higher fines for not picking up poop.
- Abide by the rules.
- Criminal check might be nice
- Max three at a time. Not sure this is enforceable, how could it be.
- You guys can't handle other kinds of business licensing that already exists.
- keep dogs off private property.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The only point is that it is the owner's responsibility to choose the best professional and the government doesn't need to participate on this.
- pick up excrement.
- Be physically able to control strong dogs. If the dog does not have a licence, revoke the business licence.
- To have all dogs under their control when off leash. Not to walk a dog with poor recall off leash.
- Pick up after their charges and be respectful of everyone else in the park.
- Leave them alone. Why does the city have to get involved.
- Everything at the business owner's discretion
- Maximum 2 dogs at a time. I often see dogwalkers with 3 or more and I can't pass them with my dog, it's too much.
- Quit hogging the sidewalk
- I believe if a company has trained their employees properly and are respectful to the parks and others who enjoy that park then they should be allowed to walk as many dogs as they feel comfortable with. This number would vary based on the years of experience the walker had.
- Restrictions on specific times of day dog walkers can walk multiple dogs in specific areas (such as past a c-train station at peak times)
- City should not be involved in this.
- Responsible for composition and behavior of pack
- Ensure they carry basic health information on each of the animals in their care and control
- It only makes sense that a full-on dog-walking business pay for licensing, certified training, etc.
- Limit on total weight ratio of dogs to humans. A 300lb person can easily walk 10 Chihuahuas but a 120lb person cannot walk 2 Bernese Mountain Dogs
- limits will really depend on the capacity of the person. Some dog walkers can handle more dogs than others.
- Should have regulations for safe transportation of dogs
- At this time I think all that should be required of those walking multiple dogs is that the animals are under complete control. Perhaps if this becomes more common my expectations will change.
- We are daily users of the off leash dog park. It is frustrating to see people who have no control over a large number of dogs that they are walking. We watch as they unload their vehicles and leave dogs unattended and the dogs are running around unsupervised. The feces that is being left all over is unbelievable. I strongly believe that there needs to be restrictions on dog walkers and the dog walkers businesses. I also believe that dogs in off leash areas should be spayed and neutered. There are a lot of issues with dogs that are not fixed.
- They know how to control the dogs from sniffing/jumping on people
- be responsible and fined for not picking up after the multi dog pack
- The ones around here seem to be doing just fine, Working like navvies and the owners are happy leave them alone ffs.
- Make sure the dogs are exercised and safe

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They need to pick up after all the dogs.
- No off lease dog walking should be allowed, except if they are in a designated secured off-leash park.
- Dog vaccination information available
- Carry evidence (doggy-bags) that they intend to clean up after the animals - at least then they can act like they are going to clean up any mess.
- Make sure that you don't leave the dogs in the car when it is hot or too cold. Some dogs have died.
- Pick up dog waste and dispose of properly
- Be able to control their dogs
- I would say no more than four off leash dogs. I have seen too many "dog walkers" at the parks with more than they can realistically keep their eyes on? Not picking up poops. Their dogs would attack others and they would keep walking away not noticing.
- With the exception being rescues and their volunteers . They should have separate regulations to licensure etc
- I don't think a dog-walking business should allow the dogs in their care to be off-leash in a public space
- criminal background check
- Be insured
- All dogs must be vaccinated and up to date on rabies, and must be in control.
- Pick up all defecation
- Proper control of dogs (recall, not allowing nuisance behaviour, etc)
- Be kept in a database with the City.
- Dog walkers on Nose Hill cannot possibly clean up after 10 dogs running loose in off-leash areas. There is poop everywhere up there! Dogs run into mucky areas or weedy scrub areas, and walkers / owners do NOT follow into those areas. Multiple dogs = multiple problems.
- I think a dog walking business can walk however many dogs they are able to in a safe way that does not infringe on the safety and wellbeing of the dogs being walked or the dogs around them.
- I think off leash dog walkers should be regulated way more. Not only because of the need to have all dogs under control, but also to pick their poop. It drives me insane when a dog walker comes to the park, let's 8 dogs off leash, they all run ogg excitedly, then they all go shit in different areas.
- I think most professional dog walkers are quite knowledgeable about dogs and dog behaviour. Most of them are more than capable of walking multiple dogs. It is offer. The average pet owner that can't control their pet that thinks if they can walk one how can they walk 8
- Pick up after the dogs, have them under control.
- Less dogs would make it easier to watch dogs and pick up watse. Too many times I've seen distracted dog walkers not see and pick up dog waste. It adds up when they have 7+ dogs with them.
- Insured. Bonded.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Must clean up all the feces of dogs they are walking. This is a problem when they take them to unfenced, hidden from view off leash areas. Have seen this in my neighbourhood
- have the damn dogs *under control* on leash or off
- Pick up after themselves
- Criminal background check. Dogs are part of our family, this is the equivalent of child care. Also, they are likely given access to a person's home when they are away at work.
- Must be fully responsible for the actions of the dog or anything that happens to the dog or caused by the dog while under their care. Must be fully incontrol of all dogs at all times.
- not allowed to walk multiple dogs in areas where public have an expectation of walking in peace, ex. public parks and gardens
- Ensure dog has chip or tag with owner name and number as backup
- Off leash only in off leash areas
- I believe dog walkers should be able to walk as many dogs as they see they are fit to handle. It should not be on the dog-walkers responsibility to have the dog license
- Rather than training, I think they should have to complete an online test to prove they understand the bylaws and rules. In fact, this should be done for anyone applying for a license.
- bags to clean up messes, rules "not allow dogs to run on citizens grass/yard"
- police check since they may enter a person's home
- Ensure all dogs are microchipped/ can be ID'd
- Be able to show effective control over all dogs in their care and control.
- Liability insurance
- The limit on number of dogs being walked is totally dependant on the walker. It is not about number of dogs but about ability to control the dogs.
- Be in control of their dogs. Already too much regulations in this world.
- Have certified first aid training for animals
- Amount of dogs off leash should be reasonable - walker can keep an eye on all of them at all times. Recall is vital but often lacking
- Must have and demonstrate use of litter bags
- Severe license consequences and stiffer by law fines for those companies and individuals that do not clean up after the dogs. There are so many that are walking dogs and leaving their poop everywhere or walking so many that they're not seeing the dogs poop. I saw this all the time in the bowmount off-leash area. They get angry at you when you pointed out to them. As well there are many that are walking so many dogs, it's dangerous. There's no way they can control that many dogs. An incident can happen with a child or another dog very quickly and that group of dogs is a pack. We are lucky that nothing bad has happened yet. Or that I know of. A dog walker as an individual should not be walking more then three dogs. Span of control is already limited. Please don't let and individual dog or a child or person get hurt. Please don't let them be responsible. Fine both the dog walker and The Business

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Ensure dogs are properly dewormed and vaccinated or vaccine titers were performed and the dog is healthy in that sense
- Why would the city make additional rules for this specialty small business but not others? This is really going too far.
- Dogs should be required to be chipped, not licensed. That's a one time cost. The dog could have a tag that says it's chipped, for easy identification.
- vaccinated for all required shots
- Have every dog under control at all times, and if off leash a reliable recall for every dog.
- Steep fines for non compliance.
- When off leash, be able to demonstrate they have control of all the animals.
- Be insured as a business. Carry WCB for its employees.
- Pick up after their dogs. Identify the dogs in their care. Restrict the dog walkers from multiple animals at night.
- Have a background in behaviour, there needs to be more regulation in animal care professionals
- Higher fines if an incident should occur.
- spending tax money enforcing this??? All dog owners that utilize a dog walker must have their dog get an accredited canine good citizen course that can receive an enrollment discount when liscenced. Promote responsible ownership... do not discourage. We want the dog walked! The people that do this are highly likely responsible owners, encourage them not discourage them!
- Absolutely a limit on number of dogs. There is a dog Walker in our area whi walks SIX!!! dogs with a waist leash. She would not be able to control the dogs if something happened and they would all be at risk.
- If you can name one legitimate "dog walker training school" then yes they should be trained/qualified
- Not to be permitted to take a dog previously identified as aggressive on a pack walk with other dogs or to an off leash park.
- none. stop micro managing EVERYTHING
- It does not matter to me so long the dogs are under control. I have never ran into a dog-walking business that did not have the utmost control of their dogs. They tend to do a better job of controlling multiple dogs(because its their job they take it seriously)than most owners of a SINGLE dog.
- No keeping dogs in vehicles.
- Ensure that they have no history of animal abuse.
- Liscening dog walkers is ridiculous.
- Be able to control all dogs, and pick up after them
- Too many dogs means you cannot reasonably pick up poop off-leash. Holding dog walkers responsible for dog waste.
- I think the standard of dog walking business should be left up the the industry not really a city task. However I do think there should bge some guildlines to obtain a business license .. balance I guess
- ensure dogs are healthy enough to walk.
- That they effectively supervise the animals they're charged with taking care of.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Insurance
  - safe transportation
  - Dog walker - pack is taught and stays with her,
  - remove pack
  - If dog walker walks dog they are responsible
  - Walker should have insurance
  - Too hard to handle a large pack of dogs
  - Defecation not picked up
  - Bad dog walkers not picking up - needs enforcement. Dog walker must walk over 6 dogs to stay in business - will discourage experienced dog walkers and less experienced will be doing job.
- - Private off-leash, they pay to get in, run by the city
  - outside of calgary
  - Obedience, CDC level of training -> allowed off leash
  - must pick up defecation
  - who is going to provide training? A course?
  - certification by who?
  - limit is the # you can control only walk licensed dogs
- Must clean up all the feces of dogs they are walking. This is a problem when they take them to unfenced, hidden from view off leash areas. Have seen this in my neighbourhood
- have the damn dogs *under control* on leash or off
- Pick up after themselves
- If there aren't restrictions then make statute based compensation claims for anyone affected by out of control animals. The number isn't really key it's the control over the animals' behaviour.
- Criminal background check. Dogs are part of our family, this is the equivalent of child care. Also, they are likely given access to a person's home when they are away at work.
- Must be fully responsible for the actions of the dog or anything that happens to the dog or caused by the dog while under their care. Must be fully in control of all dogs at all times.
- It is ideal if all dogs have their tags but they do fall off or you assume it's in date but it's an old tag. I think this is up to the city to educate and any repercussions needs to be to the owner not a business. Dogs should be vaccinated as per a veterinarian schedule when in public use areas.
- not allowed to walk multiple dogs in areas where public have an expectation of walking in peace, ex. public parks and gardens
- Carry insurance to pay for the damage that may occur
- Ensure dog has chip or tag with owner name and number as backup
- Off leash only in off leash areas
- I believe dog walkers should be able to walk as many dogs as they see they are fit to handle. It should not be on the dog-walkers responsibility to have the dog license
- Rather than training, I think they should have to complete an online test to prove they understand the bylaws and rules. In fact, this should be done for anyone applying for a license.
- bags to clean up messes, rules "not allow dogs to run on citizens grass/yard"

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- police check since they may enter a person's home
- Ensure all dogs are microchipped/ can be ID'd
- Be able to show effective control over all dogs in their care and control.
- Liability insurance
- The limit on number of dogs being walked is totally dependant on the walker. It is not about number of dogs but about ability to control the dogs.
- There should escalating fines for not cleaning up after them.
- Be in control of their dogs. Already too much regulations in this world.
- Have certified first aid training for animals
- Amount of dogs off leash should be reasonable - walker can keep an eye on all of them at all times. Recall is vital but often lacking
- Must have and demonstrate use of litter bags
- Severe license consequences and stiffer by law fines for those companies and individuals that do not clean up after the dogs. There are so many that are walking dogs and leaving their poop everywhere or walking so many that they're not seeing the dogs poop. I saw this all the time in the bowmount off-leash area. They get angry at you when you pointed out to them. As well there are many that are walking so many dogs, it's dangerous. There's no way they can control that many dogs. An incident can happen with a child or another dog very quickly and that group of dogs is a pack. We are lucky that nothing bad has happened yet. Or that I know of. A dog walker as an individual should not be walking more then three dogs. Span of control is already limited. Please don't let an individual dog or a child or person get hurt. Please don't let them be responsible. Fine both the dog walker and The Business
- Ensure dogs are properly dewormed and vaccinated or vaccine titers were performed and the dog is healthy in that sense
- Why would the city make additional rules for this specialty small business but not others? This is really going too far.
- Dogs should be required to be chipped, not licensed. That's a one time cost. The dog could have a tag that says it's chipped, for easy identification.
- vaccinated for all required shots
- Have every dog under control at all times, and if off leash a reliable recall for every dog.
- Steep fines for non compliance.
- When off leash, be able to demonstrate they have control of all the animals.
- Be insured as a business. Carry WCB for its employees.
- Pick up after their dogs. Identify the dogs in their care. Restrict the dog walkers from multiple animals at night.
- Have a background in behaviour, there needs to be more regulation in animal care professionals
- they clean up after all the dogs in their care, deposit waste appropriately
- Higher fines if an incident should occur.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- spending tax money enforcing this??? All dog owners that utilize a dog walker must have their dog get an accredited canine good citizen course that can receive an enrollment discount when liscenced. Promote responsible ownership... do not discourage. We want the dog walked! The people that do this are highly likely responsible owners, encourage them not discourage them!
- no matter how many dogs they walk, they must have them under control. if they cannot control the dogs, they shouldn't be walking 1 let alone multiple
- They need to respect homeowners property and not allow the dogs to urinate or excrete on homeowners property for example their lawns. They should only be off leash in designated areas such as a park.
- Absolutely a limit on number of dogs. There is a dog Walker in our area whi walks SIX!!! dogs with a waist leash. She would not be able to control the dogs if something happened and they would all be at risk.
- If you can name one legitimate "dog walker training school" then yes they should be trained/qualified
- How about you stop over legislating everything?
- Not to be permitted to take a dog previously identified as aggressive on a pack walk with other dogs or to an off leash park.
- none. stop micro managing EVERYTHING
- It does not matter to me so long the dogs are under control. I have never ran into a dog-walking business that did not have the utmost control of their dogs. They tend to do a better job of controlling multiple dogs(because its their job they take it seriously)than most owners of a SINGLE dog.
- No keeping dogs in vehicles.
- Ensure that they have no history of animal abuse.
- Liscensing dog walkers is ridiculous.
- I find the biggest problem with dog walkers is that they bring numerous dogs to the dog park, and then socialize so much that they don't do a good job picking up after all the dogs. I find them to be the biggest contributors to dog waste that is left around the off-leash areas. There should be higher expectations on their responsibilities as a service provider.
- Be able to control all dogs, and pick up after them
- Too many dogs means you cannot reasonably pick up poop off-leash. Holding dog walkers responsible for dog waste.
- I think the standard of dog walking business should be left up the the industry not really a city task. However I do think there should bge some guildlines to obtain a business license .. balance I guess
- ensure dogs are healthy enough to walk.
- That they effectively supervise the animals they're charged with taking care of.
- Absolutely a limit on numbers. Maybe 4 max on leash. Two max for off leash.
- Insurance as in liability for hurting anyone while out with the dogs
- Pass a course showing understanding for dog behaviors and ability to take control of a situation if walked dogs were to bolt, attack or otherwise disregard commands.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Penalties if they do not act responsibly when other people's animals are in their care, including dogs getting into fights or running away. I've seen dog walkers with way too many dogs with them at the off leash park. They don't watch all the dogs and sometimes there are altercations or dogs defecating and it is not cleaned up. These are not acceptable for anyone. If you're not able to watch all the dogs in your care and ensure appropriate behaviour and clean-up, you shouldn't be caring for that many dogs.
- Pick up and properly dispose of poop
- Background check to be employed (especially if service allows entry into a home).
- PPE Regulate equipment (flexi leashes etc) Pick up Waste
- PPE. Regulate equipment (flexi leashes etc). Pick up waste
- People think they can just set up a business without any kind of training or responsibility. They take too many dogs at once because they make more money if they can walk 5 dogs in one shot. Realistically they cannot handle multiple dogs. When things happen there is no way one person can control 5 dogs when some dogs are in a state of fight and others are fleeing. You can only grab one dog, which one do you choose?
- Make this industry regulated
- Pick up waste, regulate equipment (no flexi-leashes), appropriate clothing/safety gear.
- There are businesses and helpful kids/neighbours who walk dogs. Two different things and both welcome. If someone is running a business they need the same as other businesses including insurance. Can't imagine how you'd "qualify" to be a walker...is there such a thing? Who does it? No limit by number but by level of control. Some can walk a dozen without issue, some can't.
- Look to see if there are any problems. Then you know if there needs to be a license. Best to stay out of this unless there is a problem. Don't make this a make work project for more people at the City.
- PPE, Pick-up waste, regulate equipment (no flexi leashes, etc). Businesses should be held to a higher standard to avoid exploitation of animals for profit.
- Abide by all the rules that apply to any business, plus the knowledge that like other businesses successful legal suits can be brought if you transgress.
- Is it the dog or the walker? If complaints add up then disciplinary action is enforced.

What are your expectations for individual dog walkers?

- Be trained to handle multiple dogs and animal CPR for emergencies when walking dogs in a pack ALOT can go wrong!
- Many dogs are allergic to the aluminum in the city tags. I would love to see a rubberized or stainless steel (I know there is a cost difference) used instead.
- Conduct a background check to ensure that they are not animal abusers.
- Be able to control the dogs they have with them
- That they are actually in control of the dogs with them and that they are picking up after their dogs.
- Be trained in animal behaviour and qualified to work with animals for the purpose of protecting both the walker, the dog (s) and other animals and people they may encounter.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Limit 2 dogs. We see too many times when the pack of dogs either on leash or off leash become out of control due to wildlife or other dogs. It's scary to be close to that occurring.
- Specific regulations about liability for dogs under their care, should those dogs attack a person or animal.
- All dogs microchipped.
- Increased responsibility for care and control and interactions with other dogs especially with more than one dog.
- PICK UP AFTER THE DOGS!! too many dogs per walker means lots of 'presents' left behind for the rest of us to deal with while walking our dogs.
- Have control of the dogs they are walking.
- What about dogs that are visiting the city and unlicensed but staying with family that has other dogs or hired by a dog walker? Individual dog walkers should be qualified/trained to do the job. Fines for people who do not have control over the dogs
- By walking the dogs the dog walker can not negatively impact any other Calgarian, failure to do so being a bylaw offense that is subject to fine
- They should be insured. They should be trained/qualified.
- Must clean up feces and actually enforce it please. No one cares about your signs in the parks. There is poop everywhere. Alllll over this city.
- Trained to do the job. Have permit or license.
- Have a background check
- Individual dog walkers - meaning family dogs owned by a family member or friend, not for pay. I assume off leash walking means only in designated off leash areas.
- dogs SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED on individual properties/lawns (at least)..our lawns are not their pooping/urinating places
- That they are licenced via education for how to care for multiple dogs at a time and what the dogs' needs are.
- walking etiquette bth on leash and off leash. Good recall if off leash. Respect other people walking their dogs, not every dog you meet has to be friends with dogs they meet.
- Must have there dog training .We need free licensing for all senior citizens.The benefits are huge for the dogs and the health of the person.
- Difficult to know whether a dog off-leash is being supervised by a dog walker or not.
- Same as above
- Just to let an individual walk their dog without being hassled by the city.
- Again ability to safely manage the dogs they are walking.
- Have a permit or identification on them
- Safe vehicle for travel that can safely and comfortably accommodate the numbers of animals for transportation
- Must have current pet first aid.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Anyone walking a dog in the city of Calgary should have the same expectations regardless of how many dogs they have under their control or if the dogs are theirs or a paying client's.
- Business licenses
- Have control of dog at all times
- Pick up poop, have control of all dogs.
- They MUST have an understanding of dog behaviour and have experience dealing with all types of dogs.
- Insurance
- allways on leash and have poop bags
- Same as sbove
- If the dogs stay at the walkers residence they must be kept quiet. Multiple dogs will bark and play with each other, however they don't need to be barking all day long, every day.
- Required to read a list of the rules and bylaws and sign a document stating read and adhere to them.
- Same as above....unsafe to wear the tags.
- Ensure they pick up after their dogs
- Have adequate waste bags, not allowing dog to defacate on sidewalks
- I do not believe dog walkers should be allowed to gain their income by the use of city parks. They are conducting a business and should not be doing so in public areas.
- Responsible for picking up as above
- As above
- Restrictions on car safety with dogs.
- As above
- Have control of the animals at all times. This includes being able to call the animal and have it return to them when in an off leash situation.
- Keep a log of the dogs they have in their possession. This means identification photo and the dog owners contact information. Should the dog ever go missing or requires Veterinary Care
- All the dogs must have their shots to ensure their health and the health of the dogs they're in contact with. Also walking small and large together in a clump could be dangerous. People want their animals to enjoy the walk - walking in a clump around someone without time to sniff, pee or BE A DOG is not a fun walk. Walking while distracted by their phone (not paying attention) is so wrong. Taking over the sidewalk is also unfair to other users. I cannot believe people think they're doing a good thing for their dog by hiring a glorified post that moves. If you can't look after and enjoy your dog — give it away!
- Be qualified to do the job.
- Be qualified to do the job
- None of the above. This is not and never has been a problem.
- have control of their dog
- Pick up poop and don't leave the bag behind.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not the cities job to police such a business.
- Be experienced
- I have walked 3 dogs at a time...I would not want to see the number any lower than 3. But its really hard to make a blanket statement...its more about the level of control and training vs the number. A well trained group of smaller dogs could be as many as 6 walking together
- Pick up after the dog
- Really???
- Pick up after their dogs and have the dog under control
- LIMIT THE NUMBER OF DOGS WALKED AT 1 TIME TO 4 or less. You cannot adequately monitor more dogs than that, and if there is a conflict with multiple dogs, you risk greater injury to the dogs or yourself...
- Are we going to license babysitting and walk scooping? I know that this is a career for some, but it's also a great first job for kids!
- I don't think the above are issues with individual dog walkers, or at least none I've seen.
- background checks/bonded if coming into your home
- I believe they should also have some sort of license/ID on them so if there are issues the public can report them.
- They should also be trained/qualified to do the job
- That they face penalties if they are found walking a dog off leash in a non-off leash area
- Have control over their dogs at all times. On leash or off.
- Not permitted to walk known viscous dogs
- As above, each person should be restricted to walking 4 large dogs at one time, on or off leash, and to 6 small dogs at one time. No one can have control of more than this number.
- They need to be insured should a dog in their care cause harm to another dog/person or property
- I would like a definition of i do visual dog walker. Are you meaning a pet owner walking their own dog/dogs? If so there should be no restrictions.
- Have liability insurance.
- Knowledge of training and able to control all dogs under their care
- Same as above.
- The have dog on a reasonable length leash and have full control.
- Dogs should be leashed and at heel when on the path or sidewalk. Dogs should be on the right hand side of the person walking them.
- Be qualified to walk multiple dogs at one time
- Criminal background checks, any issues with previous infractions regarding animals
- Whether on or off leash, no person or business should walk more dogs than they can control.
- Picking up after all dogs in their charge.
- Must be licensed as a business and have proof of training.
- Safely transport dogs to and from off leash locations
- Should not be allowed to walk dogs off leash at all

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- the dog(s) is/are under control
- Clean up after all dogs in their care. Keep aggressive dogs separate.
- Walk on the right side of the owner, on right side of path on a short leash.
- All dogs have to be licensed and under control.
- Require all dogs to be fully vaccinated and - if off-leash - that the walker is still in control of ALL dogs at ALL times.
- Follow the rules like unleash in unleash areas
- Same as a business - be licensed, trained, and carry a permit (if you're making money it's a business)
- Compulsory canine behaviour training
- None
- Be insured
- Ensure that they can actually control all the dogs they are walking
- I don't understand this question, if I own 5 dogs and they are obedient then I expect to walk them all at once.
- Must let the person know if they were going to have other dogs - no surprises
- That they are capable of controlling all animals under their care.
- Have the necessary means to pick up after all of the dogs.
- Know the dogs personalities and ensure reactive dogs are kept on leash and close to the dog walker
- Dog walkers need commercially insured vehicles, pet first aid, proper leash and body language training and more. Paw Butler is the highest standard walker and you should see the hoops they go through to ensure everything is top notch. They have serviced over 800 clients and have over 320 five star reviews. The one owner even owns a rescue. If companies aren't holding themselves to that kind of standard of training and operating we are going to have a major problem as dog walking fly by night companies are popping up left right and center .
- Don't leave dogs alone while shopping
- full responsibility of pets behavior should be on the walker. if pets misbehave or hurt someone, the pet should be returned to owner and walker should be responsible for any damages/injuries.
- They are able to manage the dogs under their care.
- Shouldn't have to pay fees to city
- All dog walkers should be licensed as a business, and have a training course.
- minimum level of training.
- Be responsible. Respect the on leash and off leash rules. I walk my 6 dogs better than most walk one dog because I train them. Don't group slap people treat each individual as they should be treated
- Some sort of training or Permit
- They should have a really good handle on the dogs, not be pulled around by the animals, and know basic walking training skills

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They should have a permit because they're placing a larger burden on waste disposal in her household, using a lot more water possibly? Using chemicals for dog washing in their households?
- Be qualified and trained to do the job
- Limit to 3 dogs on leash for walkers under 18. Under 5 dogs on leash over 18. I don't walk off leash and do not think it is a good idea for 1 person with many dogs to take them to off leash park.
- Dog walkers should be able to walk as many dogs as they want provided they can maintain proper control over the dogs they are walking.
- Have ID on them and must provide this info on demand (in event one of their charges is nuisance) Must be able to id walker & the dog.
- Ensure all waste are picked up
- They pick up after their dogs. Have proper certified humane dog handling. Business license number so can report someone abusing dogs or misuse of dog parks.
- Individual dog walkers should be in control of the dog and not be riding a bike with a dog. It comes down to bylaws that we already have but are not enforced.
- same as above. be mindful of others who occupy the space around you on sidewalks, in parks. have control over your dogs when off leash. people who trained their dogs and are aware of their surroundings can manage multiple while others can't manage one.
- Same as above
- I have an expectation they can handle all the dogs in their charge. Dog walking is a skill that not everyone can handle.
- If they are providing services for hire, they need to conform with normal rules of a business, e.g. consultants, such as registering, a permit of some sort
- Permit required: Criminal record check to get a permit that allows you to walk strangers dogs. What if you have three-five dogs yourself? Well they'll all be licensed to YOU, so no need for a permit.
- Must clean up after the dogs
- Vulnerable sector check (since people who have harmed humans may also harm animals)
- Must be able to recall and control any animal in their care especially when off leash.
- Be licensed as a professional dog walker
- Dogs that are off-leash need to be well trained so that the owner is in control at all times.
- If we are creating further restrictions on where someone will be allowed to walk multiple dogs, it is important that we create new spaces where it is allowed. Rentable private parks/green spaces are becoming popular outside of the city. I would like to purchase or rent land to do my own dog walks but am at a loss as to how to go about this. If this kind of service was accessible by the city renting out fenced land, I would take advantage of this.
- As with any dog handler - owner or not - well behaved dogs are not a problem while problem handlers should be dealt with
- Stop trying to regulate things
- I think the regulations for individuals should be more lax than for businesses: often teenagers walk their neighbour's dog(s) for spending money.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Owners/family/friends. (ie: no one is paid for this service) Homeowners insurance likely be valid here.
- Be qualified and trained to do the job
- some people can only handle walking 1 dog because of their restrictions or knowledge. others, can walk 2 or 3 well behaved/trained dogs with no problem. restrictions on where they are allowed to walk multiple dogs - people do not follow directions. people let their dogs off-leash in parks that are not designated off-leash!
- Heavier fines for not picking up poo. Let's not get too silly about how many dogs they can walk; it is a valuable service to the owners of those pets, and it is a decent job. I'd say 8 is a reasonable limit but I really don't think this should be legislated.
- Same as the other for dog walking businesses. I have seen people with their own persons, up to 6 of the same owner with vehicles that the dogs are the owners lap, moving throughout the vehicles when moving.
- Ensure they are responsible for problems they create. Aggressiveness, Waste.
- Didn't know there was a problem with Dog walking . Why don't you just leave them alone?
- Owners must have control of their dogs even in an offleash area. I have had numerous dogs run and jump on me in an off leash area and owners were not able to call back their dog.
- Minimum standards, by taking a free course from the City, in this skill, if walking multiple dogs, e.g., how to handle an aggressive episode, either from the dog that they are walking, or another, unleashed dog.
- ensure that the dogs are appropriately vaccinated
- Any person walking dog(s) must be in control, courteous and responsible
- no off-leash walking
- entirely prohibited from playgrounds, school grounds, athletic parks, natural areas such as Weasel head and reservoir. NO Swimming in Glenmore Reservoir or Elbow river feeding Glenmore R..
- Be qualified to handle the number of dogs they are walking
- All dogs are vaccinated
- Pick up poop
- If they cannot control their dogs, they should not be permitted to allow the dog off leash. Retractable leashes are a danger to everyone and should be banned.
- pick up after pets and be responsible should the dog have an incident with another pet
- all dogs should come when called by owners, they run all over the park and are aggressive
- Waste collection
- clean up after them
- Be qualified and trained to do the job. Have photo identification on them (in event of altercation). Have a community listing/registry similar to babysitting services. Create a mandatory dog walking course for individuals.
- criminal background check , to be certain no animal cruelty charges
- A mandatory training course on dog behavior.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs MUST be leashed in public areas. Sick and tired of loose dogs approaching me and my children in parks and at public events. HUGE outdoor nuisance!
- Make sure they are able to pick up after dogs in their care and have control at all times.
- All as above
- Individuals who decide to start walking dogs as a job or side business should have to register with the City of Calgary and have a permit or ID card with them at all times. If they do not register then yes, there should be a limit on how many dogs they can walk off leash at one time and where they are able to take a large number of dogs.
- At least register as a dog walker.
- There should be no limits to the number of dogs walked at once.
- Again don't let them off if they won't listen.
- I think that is a decision of the owner. If someone walks my dogs they only have them and I advise them where to go.
- be qualified/trained, be able to control the dogs easily so restrictions not only on number walked at once but size and strength of dogs to be walked at once
- They need a permit to show they are qualified or trained to manage dogs.
- They should have insurance in case a dog is injured in their care.
- Clean up after the dogs!!!!
- Ensure they have enough poop bags to clean up after all their dogs.
- Proven knowledge of dog behaviour and positive training methods.
- Cleaning up properly after dogs
- All dogs need to be under control to make to safe for others passing by and those with dogs.
- Pick up and properly dispose of feces.
- Can we please just carry our dog license tag? I have tiny dogs (under 10 lbs) and the City tags are very big for those little dogs. Or could there be an option to purchase small tags?
- Same as above answer. Dog walkers should be able to maintain control over their dog at all times
- Be qualified/trained to do the job
- They take on the responsibility of the animal in their control and should carry liability insurance for the animal if it is in public.
- Be licensed as a business
- Age minimum for more than one dog
- Ensuring they keep aggressive dogs on a short leash with identifiable markings.
- And if owning more than one dog basic dog behavior class
- clean up after their dog and not bring them to schools and playground parks. They should be walked on the street side of their owner to ensure they don't pee on neighbourhood lawns.
- maximum of 3 dogs on the 'walk'
- Don't feel individual dog walkers are an issue wrt # of dogs as it doesn't appear people have more than 1-3 dogs. Owners who do not pick up after their dogs, who let dogs off leash in areas not

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

specifically zoned for off leash, who allow pets to chase wildlife should all be fined. Repeat violators should be fined incrementally.

- Full Shots and vet check documentation
- Animals should be kept under control at all times.
- I think the restrictions above should apply to individual dog walkers if they are working with multiple dogs and functioning as a business. .
- No more than 4 dogs at a time. Many dog walkers do not pick up dog feces and it is impossible to control more than 5 dogs at a time. Since fees are different for all dog walkers they should be standard for everyone
- As with baby sitting there should be relaxation for kids walking dogs for neighbors for pocket change.
- Dog walker can be a friend out walking a dog? Would they be expected to have a license?
- I expect them to follow the rules at all times and City Hall have someone driving around parks and pathways and handing out tickets for non-compliance so the law-abiding citizens can have some faith in their local government and what 'value' they get for their over-inflated taxes they pay every year for these compliance services.
- They walk my dog for the entire time they are contracted for. Let the people make their $30 and move along, City.
- Be qualified/trained, have a permit/Id, it's a business whether your 1 or 100
- Strict limits on numbers - not exceeding four.
- noi extendi leashes
- None
- All dogs must be under control (i.e., leash or command) at all times when off owner's property.
- Individual dog walkers should be licensed
- Respect other people and children's space in public areas
- No multiple dog walks/runs in off-leash dog parks. The limit of dogs per person should reflect the bylaws limitations for dog ownership.
- Make sure that they keep all the dogs within sight and availability to pick up their poop
- Pet first aid course. Proper training and certificate to verify such
- Limit of 2 dogs on leash. No off leash walking. This is protect them from any liability, especially as most individuals do this to help someone they know.
- I don't think this is important.
- Have control of dogs, follow rules, monitor dogs
- To clean up after each dog no matter where they are
- On leash in areas that require it. The city shouldn't make it more difficult than it already is for Albertans and Calgarians to work.
- I have no expectations
- Dogs must meet training checkpoints in high traffic areas.
- An easily seen license or permit. Not one you have to ask for or follow them back to their vehicle.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same as above
- They are able to control the situation.
- Clean up after the animals
- Keep their dogs off of other peoples property.
- Same as above Other comment
- Obey the bylaws at all times.
- Abide by the rules.
- All this needs to be backed up by the City. Why bother if I thing is monitored and enforced.
- Were it only possible to teach common sense....
- some people can walk more than one dog because they took the time to take obedience classes with their dogs.
- 2 dogs max, could be friend walking your dogs. once again not sure how this would be enforced.
- Maybe wait before stopping the kid next door from being able to walk his neighbour's dog for five bucks. Stop trying to squash entrepreneurship in Calgary.
- keep dogs off private property.
- This is a hard one. Many people do it as a part time for extra cash, like seniors. Some people are just really good with dogs and don't need training. I have seen some who are amazing with quite a large number of dogs ( a dozen) even off leash. Putting on too much regulation will hamper already existing effective dog walkers.
- I expect them to be nice to my dog and I would choose an unlicensed professional that would probably be cheaper because the government is not involved in this person's business.
- Have proof of proper training at the bare minimum on them at all times
- Have an permit or identification.
- Be qualified/trained to do the job.
- pick up excrement.
- Be physically able to control strong dogs.
- To have all dogs under control when off leash. Not to walk dogs with poor recall.
- Pick up after their charges and be respectful of others in the park.
- City should stay out of it. There is no value for more intervention.
- Keep the animal under control and clean up after it.
- They should read my body language, facial expression or words and not try to engage with us when I am walking my dog(s) unless I behave as if I want interaction. I will reciprocate.
- Again don't hog the sidewalk
- Companies like Rover are not good because they do not require the individuals to be trained in dog walking and or handling of animals.
- Restrictions on when dog walkers can walk multiple dogs at specific times of days (such as past a c-train station at peak times)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Living in Dalhousie and backing on to an offleash park, I see 2 dog walkers that walk up to 15 dogs each at a time. How are they safely transporting and watching the dogs and ensuring they are picking up the feces with that many dogs.
- City should not be involved in this.
- Responsible for composition and behavior of pack
- Ensure they have a licence for each be educated on city By laws
- They are able to exercise control of their pack and can recall all the dogs that are off leash
- Casual dog-walkers should still follow the same walking guidelines, but I don't believe they should have to be certified, licensed, etc. Defeats the purpose.
- again, it depends. If its small dogs or well-behaved dogs it could be fine, where as a number of poorly behaved large dogs would be a problem. I believe it about the ability to control, although I understand that is hard to regulate.
- How are you going to know if its a dog walker or a dog owner? Dog walkers should have specific areas to walk in and not just general dog parks or through fish creek or other natural areas they are suppose to be leashed but have them running at large in and out of contorl
- I also expect that an individual dog walker will have all the animals in his/her care under control.
- they know how to control the dog from sniffing/jumping on people
- any person walking a dog should be responsible for cleaning up after the dogs they are walking/ outings with
- See above. When you overregulate and want fees for every last thing you annoy people.
- Same as above
- None
- No off-leash dog walking, with the exception of a designated secured off-leash park.
- Dog vaccination information
- If walking multiple dogs offleash, ensure you would be able to control multiple dogs in the event of aggression. Dog behaviour is different when you introduce a pack vs. an individual dog than if two individual dogs meet.
- going to obedience classes teaches the owner how to walk their dogs on a leash, numbers doesn't matter if you are trained to different circumstances.
- Carry evidence (doggy-bags) that they intend to clean up after the animals - at least then they can act like they are going to clean up any mess.
- All dogs are on-leash in on-leash areas
- Pick up and dispose of properly dog waste
- Have complete control over all dogs at all times.
- Be able to control the dogs
- Walking dogs off-leash requires a lot of focus. Dogs shouldn't be aggressive, or approaching on-leash dogs unless they communicate with the other walker. Having more than 1 dog off-leash is hard to maintain control.
- I don't believe in any of this, some people can handle more dogs than others

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Licensed as a business if they are operating as such
- Qualified and trained to ensure they can deal with an emergency
- All dogs must be vaccinated and up to date on rabies, and must be in control.
- Obey off-leash/on-leash signage, pick up all defecation
- Proper control of dogs (recall, not allowing nuisance behaviour, etc)
- Dogs be on leash on city streets and all parks within city limits not specificall designated for off leash and higher fines for off leash dogs.
- I think a individual dog walkers can walk however many dogs they are able to in a safe way that does not infringe on the safety or wellbeing of the dogs being walked or the dogs around them.
- Pretty much same as above
- that if they know they have an aggressive or fearful dog they do not take this dog to off leash areas
- Pick up after their dogs
- Be qualified and trained
- I don't think dogs should have to wear theot license tag. Dogs have multiple collars, it's not easy to make sure they always have it on them.
- Insured. Bonded.
- As above regarding feces
- have the dogs *under control*, on leash or off
- Pick up after themselves, we've all watched them pretend not to see the mess.
- I believe that individual dog walkers should hold a business license as well as attend behavioural classes every 4 months.
- To have control of the animals in their care
- Criminal background check. Dogs are part of our family, this is the equivalent of child care. Also, they are likely given access to a person's home when they are away at work.
- Must be fully responsible for the actions of the dog or anything that happens to the dog or caused by the dog while under their care. Must be fully incontrol of all dogs at all times.
- not allowed to walk multiple dogs in areas where public have an expectation of walking in peace, ex. public parks and gardens
- Ensure dog has chip or tag with owner name and number as backup
- Off leash only in designated off leash areas
- Have some sort of proof of experience/training.
- Be qualified/trained to do the job.
- Have control of your dog at all times.
- bags to clean up messes, rules "not allow dogs to run on citizens grass/yard"
- not necessarily have a business license, but definitely some kind of dog-walker's license/registration with the city that also shows they had an up to date police check
- Ensure dogs are microchipped/ can be ID'd
- Since they do not have to have a business license - they should not be allowed to walk as many dogs as a person who is running an actual business

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Be able to show effective control over all dogs in their care and control.
- An individual dog walker to me is someone who has a pet and is walking them. Not necessarily for money.
- Individual dog walkers should also have some type of training in canine behaviour. Situations can arise when walking groups of dogs, or even single dogs and the walker should have the training to properly de-escalate these situations.
- If the individual is earning a living then they should be licensed and insured as a business. If the animals are under control at all times there should be no limits on the number of dogs
- same as a business
- Same as above
- Reasonable amount of dogs off leash in order to always maintain control of them
- Must have and demonstrate use of litter bags
- Strict penalties for not following rules and not cleaning up dog waste.
- Be kind toward the animals
- Ensure dogs are properly dewormed and vaccinated or vaccine titers were performed and the dog is healthy in that sense
- Why not wade into people's homes and tell them how to live? How people behave will not be changed by this. This will make Calgary the most unfriendly dog city in the world.
- Dogs should be required to be chipped, not licensed. That's a one time cost. The dog could have a tag that says it's chipped, for easy identification.
- as above...
- Control of dog and onleash when not in designated off leash area
- Carry proper liability insurance and a licensed, including walkers hired through an on-demand app.
- an individual dog walker could be a homeowner... if they are walking the dog or dogs and have them under control and clean up after them then who cares how many dogs they have and where they go.
- Clean up after their dogs. Restrict the use of long leads.
- Have a background in behaviour, there needs to be more regulation in animal care professionals
- Keep dog undercontrol and on leash if necessary.
- I think these people are responsible in their approach and hopefully, owners wouldn't use them unless they were responsible. Let's no over-regulate.
- Why, is it a problem... really, spend the cities money elsewhere!
- They are qualified to do the job.
- Not to be permitted to take a dog previously identified as aggressive on a pack walk with other dogs or to an off leash park.
- bugger off City of Calgary
- It does not matter to me so long the dogs are under control. I have never ran into a dog-walking business that did not have the utmost control of their dogs. They tend to do a better job of controlling multiple dogs(because its their job they take it seriously)than most owners of a SINGLE dog.
- The individual dog walkers should be able to safely handle all the dogs under their care.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No keeping dogs in vehicles. No being on the phone while walking the dogs.
- None apply
- No history of animal abuse.
- Liscensing dog walkers is ridiculous
- Teenagers should be able to do this without restrictions other than a limit on manageable amount of dogs at a time
- Pick up after the dogs
- don't judge everyone the same. we are all different people. some people can walk 4 well behaved dogs because they spent the $ and time to go to Obedience Classes. Others can barely walk one because they refuse to spend $ on learning how to properly walk your dog.
- I dont use the business but what one person can handle is different for the next as well as each dog is different sometimes you can handle 5 of one temperament but only 1 of another
- ensure dogs are healthy enough to walk.
- That they effectively supervise the animals they're charged with taking care of.
- Max of 4 on leash and two dogs off leash at one time
- These might be private untrained animals lovers earning extra money and helping those less able to get out and about so gentleness and limits on just taking a household of dogs out not combining other un related dogs into a pack set up
- Have understanding of dog behaviors with ability to take control of a situation if it were to get out of hand (bolting, fights, ignoring commands etc.)
- Penalties if they do not act responsibly when other people's animals are in their care, including dogs getting into fights or running away. I've seen dog walkers with way too many dogs with them at the off leash park. They don't watch all the dogs and sometimes there are altercations or dogs defecating and it is not cleaned up. These are not acceptable for anyone. If you're not able to watch all the dogs in your care and ensure appropriate behaviour and clean-up, you shouldn't be caring for that many dogs.
- Pick up and properly dispose of poop
- Pick up waste
- pick up waste
- Make this industry regulated.
- Pick up waste
- I don't see any reason to limit the truly gifted. If a walker can demonstrate they can handle a certain number they should carry on. Limit by skill level.
- the animals should be under control. Dont put a number on it: One pitbull may equal 5 yorkies. 6 border collies may behave better than one rotweiller
- Unless it is a problem, leave them alone.
- Pick up waste
- HOW ABOUT OBEYING THE LAW.
- Is it the dog or the walker? If complaints add up then disciplinary action is enforced.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- On-Leash Limit - 5 Dogs / Off-Leash Limit - 3 Dogs / Household Ownership Limit - 3 Dogs.
- - Licensed, yes but not wearing tags
- As above regarding feces
- have the dogs *under control*, on leash or off
- Pick up after themselves, we've all watched them pretend not to see the mess.
- I believe that individual dog walkers should hold a business license as well as attend behavioural classes every 4 months.
- To have control of the animals in their care
- Criminal background check. Dogs are part of our family, this is the equivalent of child care. Also, they are likely given access to a person's home when they are away at work.
- Must be fully responsible for the actions of the dog or anything that happens to the dog or caused by the dog while under their care. Must be fully in control of all dogs at all times.
- No restrictions as long as they are in control. From experience I can have control of 8 dogs better than someone else can be in control of one. Restrictions should only apply if someone is incapable of control.
- not allowed to walk multiple dogs in areas where public have an expectation of walking in peace, ex. public parks and gardens
- Ensure dog has chip or tag with owner name and number as backup
- Off leash only in designated off leash areas
- Have some sort of proof of experience/training.
- Be qualified/trained to do the job.
- Have control of your dog at all times.
- bags to clean up messes, rules "not allow dogs to run on citizens grass/yard"
- not necessarily have a business license, but definitely some kind of dog-walker's license/registration with the city that also shows they had an up to date police check
- Ensure dogs are microchipped/ can be ID'd
- Since they do not have to have a business license - they should not be allowed to walk as many dogs as a person who is running an actual business
- Be able to show effective control over all dogs in their care and control.
- An individual dog walker to me is someone who has a pet and is walking them. Not necessarily for money.
- Individual dog walkers should also have some type of training in canine behaviour. Situations can arise when walking groups of dogs, or even single dogs and the walker should have the training to properly de-escalate these situations.
- If the individual is earning a living then they should be licensed and insured as a business. If the animals are under control at all times there should be no limits on the number of dogs
- same as a business
- There should be escalating fines for not cleaning up after them.
- Same as above

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Anyone who is charging for to walk dogs on a REGULAR basis should have to follow the same rules as businesses
- Reasonable amount of dogs off leash in order to always maintain control of them
- Must have and demonstrate use of litter bags
- Strict penalties for not following rules and not cleaning up dog waste.
- Be kind toward the animals
- Ensure dogs are properly dewormed and vaccinated or vaccine titers were performed and the dog is healthy in that sense
- Why not wade into people's homes and tell them how to live? How people behave will not be changed by this. This will make Calgary the most unfriendly dog city in the world.
- Dogs should be required to be chipped, not licensed. That's a one time cost. The dog could have a tag that says it's chipped, for easy identification.
- as above...
- Control of dog and onleash when not in designated off leash area
- Carry proper liability insurance and a licensed, including walkers hired through an on-demand app.
- an individual dog walker could be a homeowner... if they are walking the dog or dogs and have them under control and clean up after them then who cares how many dogs they have and where they go.
- Clean up after their dogs. Restrict the use of long leads.
- Have a background in behaviour, there needs to be more regulation in animal care professionals
- clean up after all dogs in their care, deposit waste appropriately
- Keep dog undercontrol and on leash if necessary.
- I think these people are responsible in their approach and hopefully, owners wouldn't use them unless they were responsible. Let's no over-regulate.
- If any limit is placed on the number of dogs an individual owner is allowed to walk should be no less than 5. I have had 2 of my own dogs, my neighbour's 2 dogs and a friend's dog I sometimes look after out for a walk in on-leash and off-leash areas and it doesn't cause anyone any problems. I don't need big brother interfering with that and telling me I'm not at liberty to do that. To be reasonable, I'll accept the rule if the limit is set at 5, otherwise it's too restrictive on people's personal freedoms.
- Why, is it a problem... really, spend the cities money elsewhere!
- no matter how many dogs they walk, they must have them under control. if they cannot control the dogs, they shouldn't be walking 1 let alone multiple
- They need to respect homeowners property and not allow the dogs to urinate or excrete on homeowners property, for example their lawns. They should only be off leash in designated areas such as a park.
- They are qualified to do the job.
- Not to be permitted to take a dog previously identified as aggressive on a pack walk with other dogs or to an off leash park.
- bugger off City of Calgary

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It does not matter to me so long the dogs are under control. I have never ran into a dog-walking business that did not have the utmost control of their dogs. They tend to do a better job of controlling multiple dogs(because its their job they take it seriously)than most owners of a SINGLE dog.
- The individual dog walkers should be able to safely handle all the dogs under their care.
- No keeping dogs in vehicles. No being on the phone while walking the dogs.
- None apply
- No history of animal abuse.
- Liscensing dog walkers is ridiculous
- Teenagers should be able to do this without restrictions other than a limit on manageable amount of dogs at a time
- Pick up after the dogs
- don't judge everyone the same. we are all different people. some people can walk 4 well behaved dogs because they spent the $ and time to go to Obedience Classes. Others can barely walk one because they refuse to spend $ on learning how to properly walk your dog.
- I dont use the business but what one person can handle is different for the next as well as each dog is different sometimes you can handle 5 of one temperament but only 1 of another
- ensure dogs are healthy enough to walk.
- That they effectively supervise the animals they're charged with taking care of.

Rules for retail sale of animals

- On the spot checks since breeders have terrible conditions I wouldn't keep a rat in, let alone dogs and cats. No in tact pets to be sold, they're not money making machines, they're family members.
- Licensing, ensure the business is frequently audited for proper care of the animals and that they keep proper records of the animals.
- That they can assure the consumer that the animals are not from a puppy mill ie that they can guarantee the animal came from humane living / breeding conditions.
- none
- Animals should not be allowed to be sold in retail establishments. If this is allowed, the process should be the same as adoption - thorough screening and questionnaire. Animals should never be impulse purchases.
- Rescues only.
No breeder Mills. For all types of pets except maybe fish.
- Ensuring that the new owner has a licence for the dog/cat/urban livestock before they complete the transaction.
- Animals need to go for a vet checks before being sold!
- There should be no retail sale of animals period. I am disgusted that Calgary still allows this as a viable business strategy considering the documented supply chain for the very few that still do. I cannot believe that anyone on the council is ignorant enough to be in favour of this practice and the Nei himself agreed to address it and still hasn't.
- I don't have much of information on this topic to provide my input.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Humane care both during the time the business has possession, and in the place where the animals were born/came from.
- Breeders should be banned.
Animals sold by a shelter must be spayed or neutered.
Vaccine requirements.
- Safe breeding, no puppy mills, carry a licence, report how many puppies are being born at any one time, report sales
- Better Business Bureau with license
- Responsible acquisition of the animals. Monitoring of care of animals while in their possession
- where an animal can be sold
whether an animal must be spayed or neutered
the type of animal that can be sold
- The animal was legally obtained, the animal is safe to be around humans, the animal can be reasonably cared for by an individual (e.g., no extreme diet or space requirements), the animal is not endangered.
- Honesty. I would prefer animals not be sold in retail outlets.
- BAN ANIMALS BEING SOLD IN STORES. I'm absolutely disgusted that this is still allowed. If you refuse to do that, then at least make it mandatory that all animals sold in stores are already neutered.
- that the animals are sold to responsible and caring potential owners. If the owners cannot keep the pet due to some reason, that the animal is returned to the business
- I don't know about specific rules, but I think a business needs to conduct its sale in an ethical manner - in other words - animals cannot be used for consumption, excessive breeding, unethical practices such as dog fighting. The sale of animals should be conducted on approval of a background check and perhaps a buy back program should the new owner have to give the animal up again due to unforeseen circumstances in health or living conditions.
- no exotic pets should be sold. pet store should be more strictly controlled
- Retail sale of animals should not be allowed, as it dramatically contributes to the existence of puppy mills. Joint programs with local rescues to adopt animals should be expanded.
Selling pets of any kind should require a license that guarantees ethical breeding practices.
- There should not be retail sales of animals. There should be stricter regulations on rescues and breeders and only rescue adoptions and ethical breeders allowed. No Kijiji and accidental litters should not be sold, but surrendered and mandatory spaying and neutering without valid reason not to.
- responsible sourcing of the animals they are selling, such as ensuring that puppies aren't from puppy mills or supporting other businesses that are cruel or abusive to the animals they provide.
- Illegal to sell dogs from puppy mills. Online pet sales should be registered with the city and investigated before they are allowed to post.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Registered breeder. Dogs and cats for sale must be spayed or neutered unless sale to another breeder. Pet stores should not sell dogs or cats, only adoption. No sale of pets on social media (they monitor this I believe)
- The business should be knowledgeable in the care of pets, and ensure that the pets are healthy. I wouldn't want to specify neutering in the case of a reputable breeder who is selling animals for showing and further breeding.
- Maybe Calgary can ban the unregulated sale of animals (kijiji), animals can only be bought from registered breeders (registered with the city, with a business license and training)
- Humane treatment of animals for sale. Perhaps a neutering requirement would be worth investigating.
- Business's should have a home-visit to any prospective pet adoption individual or family to ensure their lifestyle and home are equipped for the type of pet.
- There should be NO retail sale of animals in stores.
- Spay or neuter prior to sale.
Microchipped prior to sale.
- Documented proof of where the animals were bred- aka no breeding mills!
- No retail sales of any animal! It encourages backyard breeding of any animal type and leads to very sick animals!
- Outlaw the sale of animals from puppy mills. Shut down puppy mills. They are inhumane
- Do not feel animals should be sold in stores. However, if they are to be sold in stores, they should have 24 hour care - they should not be left alone overnight. There should be accountability of the store owner to ensure the animals they are getting have been raised in a humane and responsible manner. Vet checks should be by independent veterinary practices, not by vets who are related in any way to the store owner. Maybe the City would determine who checks - and it should be the store owner who foots the bill for it. Part of their licensing fees to sell animals in the first place. This should also apply to those who are not store owners but are qualified breeders or backyard breeders.
- There should be a screening process, similar to that which is used in rescues.
- Proper housing for the 'breeding stock', not cages, or crates, or garages. No more than one litter at a time. Monthly inspections that are unannounced! That way the actual day-to-day operations are observed, not just what the breeder wants you to see.
- Spayed or neutered unless a breeding animal.
- Pet stores should not be selling dogs. Good breeders are not selling to pet stores. These dogs come from brokers and puppy mills.
- Mandatory inspections that occur several times over a year, and unscheduled. No puppy mills. Focus on adoption. Reputable breeders.
- Businesses that sell animals should be inspected by bylaw (maybe also voluntary veterinarians) to ensure appropriate care, disease control and animal welfare. Recommend consulting with businesses, veterinarians, shelters to establish reasonable practice checklists

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No sales at pet stores. - this causes impulse purchases and purchases like rabbits for easter that are then released
- Fully vet all employees as to whether any issues with previous animal abuse. Provide pet first aid course. Provide basic dog training course before allowing to be employed. Limited to one or two dogs at a time until proven their abilities to handle more.
- Not source their pets from back yard breeders. Should be able to provide all papers on the pups being sire and dam. What health clearances were done and demand certain health tests be done
- Legal businesses doing the selling. No puppy mills and the like.
- Health checks of animals before being available to public, checks but bylaw of facilities. Limits to volume of pets
- spade / neuter of all pets being sold. History of the pet
- Breeders should be a licensed business and have to register their litters.
- All breeders should undergo a plethora of examinations to determine they are ethical breeders. Puppy mill breeders should face imprisonment
- The city should ban the retail sale of cats and dogs, other than from licensed reputable breeders, especially dogs. Many of the puppies being sold are from Horrific conditions. I don't know much about the source of other animal so I don't have an opinion.
- They should not ever sell from puppy mills.
- No cats or dogs should be sold by businesses.
- All animals sold must be in perfect health and have all vaccinations required and recommended by all relevant Canadian authorities
- Animals should not be sold in retail.
- No sale of animals from a commercial breeder. [personal information removed] store is a disgrace to the City of Calgary. They lie to their customers. If a store sells an animal they should take it back if ther is any kind of problem just like responsible breeders would do.
- I believe in animal rights. They should not be considered property and so sale should be to responsible owners, no breeding 'farms' - properly licensed breeders, all should be spayed or neutered to prevent people buying a dog to over-breed it to make money, perhaps even 'owner' providing proof of obedience training after one year (part of first year license requirement).
- Animals need to be properly cared for while in the care of the retail operation. I would also like to see a limit to the number of animals stores can have on site as well as a minimum age of adoption (example no younger than 8 weeks). Mandatory spay/neuter should never be implemented, but I think individual rescues/retailers should be able to decide how they want animals sold.
- I don't agree with retail sale of animals (this should not be legal).
- The business must be able to demonstrate that the animals have not come for puppy or kitty mills.
- No pets in pet stores
- I think there should be restrictions on what types of animals can be sold retail
- there should be no sale of animals in retail outlets. Responsible breeders want to ensure the purchase of their animal is in the best interest of the animal, and is a good fit for the owner.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

"Breeders" who sell animals to retail outlets have no concern about the welfare of their animals.

Animal sale should be exclusive to responsible breeders and shelters

- Pet stores should not be allowed to sell dogs from puppy mills. Puppy mills should be shut down.
- For a BUSINESS I think that all animals should come from local breeders, and no animals that have been imported or have not been bred in captivity should be allowed. I also think that any breeder who sells to a petstore or directly to the public as a business needs to be licensed and fulfill certain requirements for the care and safety of their breeding animals.
- 1) They must be able to prove the animals are all humanely treated, unscheduled pet wellness visits to their stores.
- 2) They must be able to prove the source of all animals in the store, that they aren't from mass breeding facilities.
- 3) Preferably only rescues sold in pet stores.
- Adequate care of all animals for sale
- Ensure they are spayed/ neutered shots up to date. Microchipped. Proper documentation
- City of Calgary should not get involved in the private resale of animals - such as hobby breeders. For retail outlets such as [personal information removed], etc. there should be restrictions not allowing the impulse purchase of animals.
- Criminal background check related to abuse of animals or children. Financial check. Reference checks.
- Proper animal welfare. Ensure sales are only to people who haven't been barred from owning animals.
- Spayed or neutered, not purchased through a puppy-mill, no identified vicious breeds.
- animals should not be sold where parents are not available for viewing
- Pet stores should work with rescues when possible. They should not be able to sell cats and dogs. Stores should require a special license to have any other live animals and be inspected at least annually to retain the license.
- No pets sold in stores.
- No "retail business" should sell an animal. Rescue organizations have become retail outlets. The "prices" charged are inflated to cover more than shelter, spay and neuter. Retail rescues for profit need closer attention.
- Where animals can be sold and what the origin of those animals is
- Ensure the animals have up to date vaccinations and are healthy.
- There should be no retail sales of animals.
- - All animals that are being sold should be spayed or neutered
- - Thorough background checks if breeders are being used, by the city if possible
- Animals should be sourced from ethical, regulated and verifiable breeders. Sources need to be disclosed to the consumer. Transport needs to be safer and more humane. Animals need to be kept in species-appropriate enclosures and undergo frequent vet checks.
- ?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Rescue animals only (no breeding!!)
- Restricting my input to dogs: no pet store sales of dogs
- Ensure a dog breed isn't a puppy mill and the dogs are coming from a good home. Maybe all sale of dogs have to have a permit, where the city can approve whether their business is legitimate, and they aren't abusing the animals for profit.
- all animals must to be spayed/neutered as a condition of a sale including chipping the animal, unless they're for ethical breeding purposes but must be chipped as well, then they must have a license..
- Whether if they could be bred or not and a spay or neuter contract.
- That the care and health of the animal are first and foremost. The business and management require licensing via education for each type of animal that is sold, and have to prove at any given time there is adequate space provided for the Health and safety of every animal present.
- I don't think Retail selling should have specific rules. FYI Early spay neuter is not healthy for the animals and should not be something our city needs to get involved in. Responsible persons that sell animals have contracts in place for return/health info etc. It is the irresponsible people that do not - and they won't follow rules anyhow so not worth penalizing the good for the occasional bad.
- Any sales of animals should require a business license reviewed by the city. Other sales should be shut down.
- No puppy or kitten mills please.
- All must have a current veterinary exam. All must be microchipped. All should be sold a city license at time of purchase.
- No pure breeds only rescue animals
Full vaccination of animals as per their age requires
No same day adoptions or sales
An interview by a rescue as to the conditions the animal will go into
- Retail sale of animals should not be permitted
- Unless the store can prove that the parents of all puppies they are selling have had the proper health checks (eyes, cardiac testing, hip and patella, genetic testing in certain breeds) I don't agree with pet stores selling puppies. They often get puppies from unlicensed breeders who are often "backyard breeders or puppy mills".
- Only rescues. No more breeding animals when so many are put down. And mandatory spay neuter
- NA
- All should follow and be registered ckc. The rare breeds are not on ckc list and will need to be exceptions. All people breeding mix dogs need to be monitored not sure how to do this ? This will reduce the theft of dogs for fighting and breeding. Fines for this need to seriously reconsider.
- City of Calgary contract added for traceability and consistency.
- I believe the current rules are sufficient. I am an experienced responsible dog owner. I don't want a vendor telling me how I must care for my pet.
- I don't believe any retail sale of animals is acceptable. Too many pets are injured, diseased and suffer for profit. It supports bad breeders and small animals and reptiles become toys that get

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

discarded. There are enough shelters, rescues and Humane societies that have plenty of animals available. The city should be a responsible and leading example on encouraging adoptions for small animals, reptiles, amphibians, birds cats, dogs etc. I also don't think fish should be sold at most stores because of a lack of training and proper facilities.

- Licensed and reputable breeders, limit on number of animals, no exotic or endangered animals, buyers must purchase city license and chipping with sale, only spayed/neutered animals may be sold
- Type of animal is important. As much as I dislike gov't intervention, people push their limits. I don't want my neighbours to have a pet moose or something.
- *It should be illegal for pet stores to sell UNALTERED rabbits. Pet stores should be only allowed to sell altered rabbits so this population is not a problem. better yet they shouldn't be allowed to sell rabbits they should only be able to adopt out altered rabbits.
*Pet stores should be BANNED from SELLING (rescued altered cats/dogs okay) cats and dogs (they are puppy/cat mill animals not responsible breeders) Most pet stores have stopped selling dogs and cats on their own there is a only a select few who do and they are supporting horrible puppy mills to get the puppies [removed]
- They should follow the same general guidelines as for Responsible Pet Ownership, including caring for the animals appropriately, social interactions, maintaining boundaries, and providing enrichment activities (new environments, toys, etc.) Animals sold or waiting to be sold should have all adequate living conditions as required by the species. Animals sold or waiting to be sold should have regular veterinary care on a schedule dictated by species care best practices (ie. minimum annually for most species). Animals for sale should be in good condition, without obvious medical issues. Animals for sale with medical concerns/conditions should be addressed immediately and an ongoing treatment plan adopted. Animal retail businesses should be inspected by the City at least twice annually.
- Dogs should not be sold in a pet store. Often these are from puppy mills. Spaying and neutering is important but often the animal is being done too young, before the bone plates have closed when adopted through rescues.
- Stricter regulations for the conditions the animal will be kept in (should also apply to breeders)
- To ensure they go to a good home, that a cost for the value of the life is always requested (not for fighting/pet food), and anyone with pit bull have special license of ownership
- Accuracy in the animal's history, breed, medical info. Licensing.
- Animals must be healthy with stable temperaments. Facility must be clean and well maintained. Breeders should be held accountable if large numbers of dogs that that have bred are deemed dangerous dogs.
- Must not be from puppy mills etc. Preferably only animals needing adoption, not bread to sell.
- First off I do not believe that stores should be selling dogs or cats at all.
- The animal must come with a vet certification of health.
- sanitary and healthy conditions. Certified breeders
- Ensuring the animal is not part of a puppy mill. Conditions are clean. Owners are reasonable.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I do not believe pet stores should sell animals such as dogs/cats. Commercial breeding operations should not be permitted. Those that do breed, should belong to various breed clubs, Canadian Kennel Club, or organizations that encourage health testing on parents and guarantees on genetic health defects.
- Bad breeders will always fly under the radar. Don't legislate good breeders out of business.
- Reputable sales, proper licensed/certified, to prevent backyard type sales and neglect of animals.
- Take safeguards against the spread of disease. Check the animals haven't been bred by unsavoury breeders.

A person check to ensure the animal isn't being sold to someone who may engage in dog fighting, etc.

Licensing

- That the animal passes a physical examination by a vet before sale, that health checks are performed on the said animal specific to their breed/or breeds if crossed.
- Proper vaccinations are up to date. Check up on previous owner experience through searches. Must provide the animals safety above any profit.
- There is a pet overpopulation crises. It's ridiculous for anyone to be breeding most domestic pets - either on purpose or by accident. Pets should be altered before maturity, period. The only exceptions should be animals that are not practical (ie: I am doubtful you can spay a bird or a snake). Anyone who wants to breed should be investigated, licensed and held to very high standards.
- Not allowed in pet stores. Only from reputable breeders, SPCA and other rescues. Backyard breeders should be banned.
- Any business that is selling animals should ensure they are supporting good responsible breeders, they should be sharing the breeder's information as good breeders offer ongoing support for their puppies and their families. They should also be educating their customers on how to recognize and avoid puppy mills.
- All animals should be spayed/neutered. If not, these pets should cost more to buy. Animals should all have proof of health by a registered vet.
- Again promote responsible pet ownership. Many EU countries do not spay and neuter their pets and do not have the problems North America has.
Forcing spay and neutering is detrimental to dedicated preservation breeders. And detrimental to the development of our beloved pets.
If the city actually supported responsible pet ownership by having vaccination clinics, affordable spay and neuter for those that want to, education done properly without the influence of Animal Rights organizations
- Ban the sale of dogs and cats except through rescues. It is a cruel practice and it needs to be put to an end.
- There should be no retail sale of animals in stores.
- The animals must pass a physical exam by a veterinarian, they must be up to date on their vaccines, and they must be in good health

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should not be available in retail stores. They should be fixed.
- Confirmation of animal health - medical records if possible; registration as a legal entity; proper health and sanitation of the sale facility;
- I don't believe ANY responsible pet store would or should sell pets. Breeders should be properly licensed based on kennel club regulations for purebreds. Any other pet owners should be spaying/neutering their pets and if they do not and end up with puppies/kittens, they should not be able to sell them for profit. They should however be responsible for finding homes.
- They should NOT be allowed to sell cats or dogs
- No dogs for sale in pet store aka [removed]. Only rescue animals available for sale in pet stores. No mandatory spay and neuter for pets, but any non profit registered as a rescue can only adopt out altered animals.
- Respect animal rights /proper care, have liability insurance, some limit on # of animals onsite at one time, micro chipped animals sold, records of sales
- Contribute to City animal services
- There should be no free animals.... Ever. All animals sold should be healthy and be guaranteed for 30 days to ensure they are healthy.
- i think all businesses that sell animals should be monitored for the well being of the animal and I think there should be a limit to the dollar value an animal can be sold for.
- I think they should be spayed/ neutered and that animals should not be sold around Christmas time. I also think a business should make it clear the animal can always be returned no questions asked without refund.
- Exotic animals biz needs to be reduced. Too many are mistreated when entered in the pet trade from foreign locations. How many, like gold fish are released into rivers and become a huge problem?
- Proof of health, shots.
- Humane treatment of all animals.
- There should be a limit in the number of breeding bitches in the care of a breeder, one person can not do much with in respect to animal care with 10 litters of dogs Dogs should not be sold in stores and puppy mills should be banned
- It should be illegal to sell dogs and cats in stores. Small animals, reptiles, and fish are fine.
- Spay/neutered, where the animal came from, mandatory microchip and vaccinations included, very thorough application process, mandatory dog training classes as a condition of adoption.
- I do not believe in retail sale of pets. Rescues are the only way. We have too many pets in need.
- make sure that all pets vaccinations are up to date depending on age of animal, health records of individual animal and/or family.
- no animal mills of any kind
- Animals should not come from a backyard breeder or puppy mills.
- Must keep files showing where animal came from & this must be available to purchaser.. must have a license to do so

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Humane, animals kept safe and healthy.
- Ensuring animals dont come from unlicensed breeders
- Wellness and proper breeding. No animal cruelty.
- Animals should be implanted with a micro chip with information about the animal, all animals must be treated humanely , in a clean safe environment, all animals need to be given medical inspection by animal doctor to ensure a clean bill of health, animals need to be properly fed and watered, and nothing should be allowed that would cause an animal any undo stress or trauma.
- Stop selling, too many cats and dogs already needing homes. Too many puppy mills already. spayed/neutered evidence of ability to care...not sure how this would be done but maybe a screening process
- On small animals, I think having to guarantee genders would be beneficial. For example, rabbits are often hard to sex when young. This would help avoid unexpected litters and potential irresponsible wild release (especially because of how overrun rescue societies are with rabbits)
- Required application for importing live animals according to provincial and federal requirements.
- I think retail sale of cats dogs and rabbits should be disallowed unless they are rescue animals associated with a non-profit.
- Proof that it does not come from a puppy or cat mill
- Pet stores should not sell animals as they are acquired from puppy mills
- Animals are bred responsibly, animals not owned by breeders should be spayed or neutered.
- Must register to sell and transfer licensing at time of sale.
- Any business or individual selling animals should be required to provide proof that the animal has been obtained legally, and / or from a reputable breeder and is properly vaccinated, dewormed, and sterilized where appropriate.
- That the pets are well cared for. No overcrowding. Vaccinated. Fixed. The caregivers are registered.
- There is a huge difference between retail sales and sales from responsible preservation breeders and they need to be treated separately
Rescues should be considered retail sales as many now import for sale
- Not giving animals away for free (leads to abuse of pets) checking out the home/facility the pet comes from to ensure no puppy mill/abusive breeding home, ensure animals are vaccinated.
- Whatever might protect the animal from abuse, education of potential new owner, follow up.
- Not supporting unhealthy breeding practices.
- Licensing, chip and transfer of chip. All shots / immunizations.
- I am opposed to mandatory spaying and neutering laws. They do not take into account that some people breed dogs show them or do competitions with them. It also does not take into account the health of the dog nor allow people to make individual decisions with their vet. I am not opposed to the retail sale of animals so long as it's done in a responsible way. I believe that all rescues in Pet Shops are actually sales, and should be regulated that way.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Whatever prevents things like puppy mills, re-breeding too early, frequent sellers, scammers, etc.
- Need to ensure that pets that are sold are not being abused and are not kept in small cages. Any business selling pets should be licensed and subject to unannounced visits to ensure pets are being looked after. Same goes for Rescue groups, there are currently no rules in place for dog rescues and anyone can open a rescue group
- Do not buy from puppy mills.
Provide the breeders name, contact number to double check it's not a puppy mill.
- The company or individual should be qualified in all aspects to properly care for the animals.
- The animals are healthy or they will not be for sale.
- Spaying and neutering as well as having a licence to sell animals strictly for personal use
- Health and welfare of the animals
- I don't think retail sales should be allowed. If a retailer wants to "sell" pets, they should work with one of the many rescues in or near Calgary to adopt them out. Retailers use backyard breeders; if someone really wants to buy from a breeder, they should be going there to see the conditions the animals live in.
- Size of enclosures animals are kept in. There should be a limit as to how many can be kept in specific amount of space. The animals should have basic needs met; food, water, clean living space, mental stimulation.
- Spacious clean housing, not from puppy mills, ensure enough exercise & human interaction, not left alone over night or long periods ever
- Let's face it, there is a store in Calgary that claims to sell pets from responsible breeders. You absolutely know that is a bald face lie. NO responsible breeders sells their dog/cat at that store or anywhere on Kijiji or other selling sites. Why are they being allowed to sell PUPPYMILL animals?????? This is the crime you need to be focused on
- Retail sale of dogs just encourages puppy mills. Dogs should always be a rescue or purchased from a reputable purebred breeder registered with the Canadian Kennel Club.
- That the pet is sold as a non breeding animal and will be spayed or neutered, possibly include this in the price. The exception would be unless purchasing and paying more for breeding rights. Also the purchaser should be required to buy the registration/license on the spot.
- That the pets they have for sale must be sourced from ethical breeders. The pets should be vaccinated, vet checked, in good health and kept in humane conditions.
- Animals should be assessed for aggression. Not all animals are suitable as pets.
- Shouldn't happen at all with dogs and cats
- Animals should be vetted and certified vet checked to be sold as well as licensed prior so the owner is held to be accountable
- No puppy or cat mill animals to be sold. A limit on how many dogs you have and can breed. Must have humane conditions that meet expected standards. Business license and should be inspected.
- Care and well being of the animal is paramount
- Something to ensure the humane treatment of animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The health and safety of the pet should be number 1. There are too many adoptable animals out there so I don't see a need for retail sales
- No animals from irresponsible breeders, contractual obligations to spay/neuter and vaccinate all pets
- There shouldn't have to be any rules in place for a business to retail animals because stores like Petsmart, Petland or any pet store should NOT be allowed whatsoever to sell ANY animal!
- I don't know enough about the current rules to give an answer.
- No retail sales of animals as pets, period. Adoption only, via rescues and shelters. CKC or specific comparable breeders only.
- Vaccinated and spayed.
- I would love to see pet stores be encouraged to devote some space to rescue animals from shelters (eg from the city pound). Not as a regulation, but perhaps with benefits such as a reduced license fee or something similar. Strict rules about care and welfare of animals.
- Mandatory spay/neuter, mandatory permanent identification (microchip), available/accessible breeder information
- Adoption agencies revived higher percentage of retail space.
- Make sure store keeps them safe and clean
- Animals must be cared for while in the "care" of a pet store.
- Lemon laws for pet sales whether through a pet store or a rescue.
- Cats/dogs should not be sold in stores unless under the supervision of a registered charity with experience of deciding on the nature etc of buyers
- Provide proper education of the animal they're selling
- Animal history
- Regular and random inspection for quality of life/care provided to any animal, with public posting of results.
- They should not be puppy or kitty mills
- Lots of stolen animals so maybe proof of ownership, license documents, etc to prove you owned the pet. I don't believe in the 'must be' spayed or neutered with a puppy..I adopted an 8 week from SPCA and he was already neutered..that age for that XL dog type is basically criminal animal abuse
- Animals should not be sold for breeding so they should be spayed or neutered. More regulation should be created. Pet stores should only sell rescue animals. Tougher penalties for puppy farms. No fees
- Animals must be healthy and living conditions must be above grade
- No regulation needed
- They should not sell cat dogs rabbits and Guinea pigs unless They are spayed or neutered and from reputable breeders
- purchase pets from reputable sources
- Ethical breeding, care and sale practices ie do not buy from puppy mills, require that animals are vaccinated, spayed or neutered

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No puppy mills
  - Reputable, licensed breeders
  - Rescue organizations
  - No online sales (kijiji, Facebook, etc)
- the rules as they exist work. More rules and regulations and restrictions only end up negatively affecting legitimate ethical breeders. Unethical breeders do not care about rules and tend to fly under the wire so no one sees them.
- I don't believe pets should be sold as part of retail sales operations. I am a certified behaviour consultant and I cringe to think of the inability of a retail facility to provide the necessary socialization and training to produce a behaviorally sound animal for our community.
- As long as they are treated humanely. Emphasis should always be put on adopting from rescue foundations first.
- No puppy mills, proper breeding procedures, proper care of all animals
- Stop animal mills! There are plenty of animals available for adoption/rescue ... our dog was given to us and we found out she was from a puppy mill and has skin issues ... this added unnecessary costs in animal care
- Proper housing for the pet. Petland puppy windows are not appropriate.
  - Behavioural breakdown for pet owners (knowing the issues will likely result in less pets being returned)
  - A full vet work up
- not get their animals from backyard breeders who mistreat their animals and that don't genetically test them to reduce defects. All animals spayed or neutered so no backyard breeders can buy from a retail store. They can also help rescue facilities to find new homes for people as long as they are sociable pets and not aggressive.
- Vet proof for health history of animal and confirmation that animal came from a responsible owner/breeder or rescued
- No pet mills. Animals can be purchased from licensed breeders or adoption centres only that are under strict regulations regarding living conditions and animal care
- Condition of premises and care. Unannounced monitoring
- Safety and well being of animals (limits in number of animals in premises), inspections to ensure wellbeing
- I don't think they should be allowed to require spay or neuter. There is lots of research to show that waiting until a dog is 12-18 months is better for their health.
- Right to refuse sale to unsuitable home. Adoptions only for cats and dogs, no retail sales of cats and dogs in a pet store setting.
- Type of animal - not an endangered species or competitive species to our natural ecosystem.
- Not a fan of dogs being sold at pet stores. I am concerned about puppy mills or indiscriminate breeders being the supplier
- To make sure animals are healthy and vaccinated
- Ensuring the health of the animal is the top priority.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The rescue business is a profit making threat to the health and safety of animals and people in Calgary. These "agencies" should not operate in Calgary. Hobby breeders who are CKC members in good standing provide health tested, reasonably priced dogs bred for a specific purpose; and with generations of documented health history. CKC breeders need to be protected - not thrown under the bus with regulations that should be aimed at rescue groups that import diseased animals or that function out of commercial pet stores that operate within the City and sell dogs in breach of the Animal Pedigree Act's requirements.
- I think pets should come either from rescue organization or responsible licensed breeders. I don't agree with forced spay or neuter as I think it is the owners choice what is in the best interest of their pet. I don't think that there should be any restrictions placed on type or breed of dogs.
- The animal should be in good health. Regular vet checks would be ideal. Dogs, cats, and any bird larger than a budgie should not be kept or sold in stores.
- Proper care of the animal.
- Licensed breeder, no pets sold at Xmas time, vet inspected before sale with records, limits on amounts to prevent over breeding.
- Business must be conducted in a humane, safe, controlled environment and evidence of that must be provided to the city
- Reputable breeders do not retail animals.
- Stricter laws about how animals are kept in businesses. No one should be able to tap on a tank or plexiglass wall/window. Make handling of small animals illegal by children in pet stores.
- Accepting the return of any unwanted pet.
- no retail sales, breeders should be registered (free service but regulated as to amount of litters produced in a year and health and care monitored), breeding of pure-breed dogs to limit the amount of animals being bred for commercial purposes. rescues should be licensed and NOT allowed to import animals from outside of province
- No more importing dogs for resale/adoption.
- I believe the animal should be up to date on vaccines and microchipped.
- Maybe, in the case of a professional seller/retailer, a check that the purchaser is not subject to a court ordered ownership ban? Not sure though, if there is a database for that. Maybe make one, sell to other jurisdictions.
- no mills! humane!
- Subject to SPCA inspection. Absolutely sanitary. Not selling puppies or kittens too young to be weaned ie under 8 weeks old and before their first shots
- I believe in mandatory spay and neuter and feel this would be the single most effective strategy to end animal overpopulation and homelessness. I do not endorse the sale of pets on online or offline classified ads. On social media sites. Nor do I believe animals should be sold at auctions. I believe all breeders should be licensed and have restrictions in place to limit the number of litters per year they can advertise.
- Unable to comment not aware of problems
- Have to be a licensed breeder.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should need to be spayed or neutered unless the buyer has a breeders license. This would help reduce the number of stray animals and animals who end up in shelters. It would also reduce puppy mills and other unethical, unsafe and harmful breeding activities.
- The retail sale of animals should be discouraged on social media. Retailers and breeders must be heavier regulated and under greater scrutiny to eliminate puppy mill practices. Heavy fines and legislated banning of pet ownership, boarding, or breeding needs to occur and be consistently and forcefully applied. All breeders and rescues must be licensed and have adequate sqft per pet regulations, adequate # staff/volunteers and have spay/neuter and veterinary care protocols well established. Accreditation protocols should be established and followed for all breeders and rescues. All adoptable cats, dogs and rabbits must be spayed and neutered, licensed, microchipped and vaccinated before being homed.
Sale or breeding of exotic animals should be banned in the city of Calgary and preferably the province.
The possession of exotics and should be banned and heavily fined as should any wild or non domestic animal. Eg: river otter, squirrel, racoon, fox, wolf cub, deer or fawn etc
- Breeding so they have to be a business or have a hobby license.
- I think there needs to be more of a process similar to what aarcs has in place for adoptions. Especially for warm blooded pets
- They disclose where the animal came from and that information is provided to the prospective buyer. That they have a 'return policy', they vet the seller and buyer; that they know IT'S A SENTIENT BEING AND NOT A PRODUCT.
- They must be well cared for. In an appropriate space. Must be checked by vet when sick regardless of size. Limit the people who can touch them. (This can be highly stressful for some animals birds, rabbits, small rodents. I see it a lot in pet stores.) Proper diet and exercise for all.
- Only regularly inspected breeders or rescues should be able to make pets available to the public
- I do not feel dogs and cats should be available for sale or adoption in a pet store type facility, it is stressful for the animals to be there and their well being needs to be considered too, most of us would agree our pets are family, not a commodity.
- The animal must come from a safe home and healthy parents. Must have had enough time with parents. We calgarians must not allow animal abuse and neglect to be considered.
- The proper care and treatment of animals. People trained to handle them.
- Unsure/haven't done enough research on this
- Knowing where the animal came from & its pedigree (ie no puppy mill, trafficed birds, etc.). Reputable pet store sales ok with me - generally lots of eyes to notice if animals are being cared for vs dank basement/garage operation. Ideally, should be spayed/neutered; perhaps offer redeemable certificate to participating vet as option.
- We do not need any more rules.
- I believe there should be regulations in place for people selling more than a litter of animal at one time. That is a business and should be licensed and subject to inspections to prevent animal cruelty.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Can the business prove the animal is not from a mill and is from a reputable source? If a dog, can you meet the parents? Businesses should not sell dogs in any event. Dogs should not be an impulse purchase.
- pet stores are unnecessary, breeders should be licensed regardless of where they sell their dogs
- The animals welfare is kept to same standards as humans a depressed animal can be as dangerous as a depressed person if they don't have treatment keep them happy keep us happy
- pets have permanent identification, microchips,tattooing
- All animals sold must have an identity chip, which provides details on who owns the animal.
- All puppy mills should be illegal. Anywhere that animals are sold should be licensed and undergo regular inspections.
- Be responsible for the animal you are selling
- CKC and TICA registered breeders should be exempt from regulation as they are governed by the Livestock Pedigree ACT of Canada and are overseen and regulated by their respective bodies of purebred animal registries. Having said that I believe if the city of Calgary had a « Breeders licensing » option where said breeders paid a set ( reasonable rate yearly )which encompassed annual dog licenses for a breeding program that might be a good idea. This way the city could come and inspect kennel/ cateries operations as needed to make sure they were safe, not over populated, humane, clean and non crowded.this way the city could oversee and prevent puppy mills and caters mills. This could also apply to other purebred animals under the livestock pedigree act as well. Of note: I am a longtime breeder of purebred dogs and would state most breeders don't breed for the money but rather for the betterment of the breed and are stewards to their respective breeds, rather than money makers! [personal information removed]
- This is a very slippery slope. I do believe that there should be stricter guidelines on importation of animals for sale. Often the people doing this have more heart than brains and do not understand the behavioural issues associated with importing animals that have had no accredited behavioural assessments done.
The decision to spay or neuter should be between the owner and veterinarian. Spay and neuter has nothing to do with responsible pet ownership. Any study done in the last decade shows the detrimental effects of desexing at young ages. Many pets are rehomed for behavioural/health issues. Many of these can be attributed to early desexing.
- Regular inspections by city health.
- All must be permanently chipped and vaccinated before sending on to their new homes. More education and oversight to ensure animals are placed in appropriate homes. Dogs owners should be required to participate in dog classes.
- Dogs and cats should not be sold at retail pet stores.
- Sell pets only from shelters.
- nothing should change.
- There should be no retail sale of animals.
- Dogs should not be sold as retail. Go to a rescue organization and adopt or find a reputable breeder
- Ensure the safety of the animal...that criminals cannot adopt an animal

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Where the animal is coming from (no puppy mills) and for the animal to be spayed/neutered and to be in good health
- Don't sell dangerous breeds
- Genetic testing of animals so breeding is controlled n encourages adoption not purchase
- To be sold from a retail environment, the animal should be able to live comfortably in a retail environment. This excludes dogs from retail sale. They should also be bred and reared to weaning in an appropriate environment that meets their physical and emotional needs.
- Ensure the animal is up to date on all core vaccinations, is veterinarian checked for good health. Desex the animal if applicable (yes even for bunnies)... Or just stop the retain sale of animals in businesses. [personal information removed]
- Rules surrounding quality of care and cleanliness.
- All animals must be healthy.
- No importing from Mexico and foreign countries where they have street animal problems. I am all for supporting these areas and their overpopulation problems but Alberta has it's own feral animal problems and adoption needs. If companies sell animals they should have to come with licensing as part of the sale and purchaser should have recourse against the retailer built into the purchase if the animal is discovered to be a victim of mills.
- We need to ensure the breeders are ethical and breed humanely. We should ban the sale of puppy mill dogs.
- Background checks with bylaw for new animals. Laws in where and when animals can be sold or adopted. Extremely harsh punishments for those that violate sale or adoption laws.
- Licensed professionals such as pet stores should handle this.
- I don't think animals should be sold in Pet Stores. Only through a licensed breeder. No puppy mills ever@
- No retail sales in pet stores allowed, it just promotes hoarding and poor situations for pets
- I am not qualified to answer this question
- Pet shops of all kinds should be forbidden from selling dogs or cats. We don't know where these animals come from, and it encourages puppy mills. Dogs or cats should not be sold unless they are spayed or neutered. Qualified breeders can provide unspayed animals to those who also wish to breed or show. I also think that anyone buying a pet should have to show knowledge of the needs and care of whatever animal they want to acquire. A course may be required. Too many animals end up in terrible homes where they are neglected and/or abused. Not everyone deserves to have a pet.
- Where did this animal come from? Why is it being sold/re-homed.
- NO puppy mills, no pet sales on sites like Kijiji, etc, as they are often puppy mills or back yard breeders. Preferably sales at pet stores either, as most rescues have 'adoption' days at stores now so that is a much better and safer way to do it.
- Must be sourced ethically (ie no trafficked Amazon or African exotic birds and reptiles) , Kijiji sales of animals are pretty terrifying and should be limited to legitimate stores and/or licensed breeders.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Full interview with person buying an animal. Background check for animal abuse, number of animals already in the household.
- that they do own the pet; they are a reputable licensed business. I don't think you should limit spay and neutering pets, as some are purebred being sold as puppies
- Cleanliness, safety of others and pets. These business's should ensure pets aren't coming from puppy Mills who are in it for the money and not the concern of the animals
- No live animals should be sold in pet stores with the exception of the adoption of rescued animals from registered charities. All animals should be spayed or neutered.
- Proper licencing of animal before sale....might help theft of them
- All of the above
- To determine whether or not the animal to be sold will be used for companionship or breeding purposes. If companionship is the reason, the animal should be spayed or neutered.
- Type of animal, care of animal prior to being sold, ethical acquisition of animals for sale (no puppy mills for example.)
- Canine should not be sold out of a business as it encourages puppy mills to continue to raise animals in horrid conditions.
- Pet stores should not be allowed to sell animals [personal information removed] Puppy Mills should be illegal. Back yard breeding should be illegal as well as the agreements some breeders make for you to "foster" one of their dogs but return it several times to be bred (essentially puppy mills). Fee limits should be placed on all non purebread dogs (designer mutts) to discouraged even licenced breeders to Frankenstein 2 breeds together because they are "cute" or hypoallergenic - this is not years of carefully and responsibly furthering a breed standard (as a reputable breeder does) this is making a buck off of ignorance.
- Spay and neuter or licensed as a business if the owner is a breeder.
- If house is residential, there should be a limit on number of dogs/cats that can be owned UNLESS you are a breeder through CKC, AKC, etc.
Spaying and neutering guidelines are set by veterinarians and consensus has changed from fixing at 6 months, to waiting until the female has past her first heat and the male is 1-2 years depending on breed of dog. This should not be controlled by the city as the city are not vets and the laws are not changed regularly to meet the science.
- Some liability for retail sellers who fail to evaluate the purchaser about their ability to care for the animal, ultimately we'd want to avoid selling animals to people who're unlikely to be able to care for them or arrange for their care or people who might use them for criminal activity (like dog fighting). Similarly, they should be required to ensure a humane supply chain - avoiding animals coming from 'mills' and whatnot.
- Conditions the animal came from (ie. puppy mill), conditions animal lives in prior to being sold, quality of care including touch, food, engagement, time spent outside the kennel or cage, etc
- Not sure on this one.
- Businesses that sell animals (birds, reptiles, bunnies and hamsters, etc.) should be required to not only meet, but to exceed the expectations of animal welfare. They should be exemplars in pet care

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

and pet ownership. They should be required to work with only accredited rescues and reputable breeders.

Absolutely NO business should be selling puppies and kittens that are bred to be sold at a retail business. Puppies and kittens should only be available for purchase from reputable breeders and accredited rescue organizations.

- Breeders and rehoming organizations should be licensed and all pets sold in stores should be local rescues who are spayed/neutered.
- Proper living space when caged. Not being left caged with their poop in a closed in space. Be reviewed by a health code practice regularly. The cost for animals has gotten ridiculous and some breeds being classified as pure breed when have two breeds in them. Lots of scamming and get rich quick off animals and then they go to poor homes.
- Normal retail practices - the City should not be involved in this, other than providing business licenses. Many breeders are outside City limits - I do not think increased City involvement would be a good use of resources.
- Pets should not be sold in stores, end of story.
- Pets should be spayed or neutered. They should have to provide license information. No exotic animals should be sold except to properly licensed individuals. Retail locations should have to provide the city with proof they are not utilizing/buying from puppy mills/unsafe breeding practices.
- I don't have an opinion
- Cats and dogs should never be retail sold. Breeders or rescues only. All other animals being sold should be regularly seen by outside vets and the premises inspected regularly by the city.
- No puppy mills!
- Dogs and cats should only be adopted from rescue organizations - including pet stores.. All pets adopted through businesses should have a spay/neuter and microchip included in the adoption of the animal. Registered breed specific breeders that have registered animals should be exempted from this - but those animals should only be adopted through the breeder. People should not be allowed to sell animals on Kijiji.
- All of the above. If we are making bylaws to address issues after the fact, would it not make sense to try to curtail them before they become an issue? Of course it does!
- Proper care.
- Must be a certified business that follows the ruling of CKC or other purebred animal regulatory conditions.

All animals sold should have current veterinary records that are actually backed by the veterinarian in the case of an incidence of physical issue

The animals must be kept in plain view of the purchaser. Including parents of the animals.

Registration Papers DO NOT mean an increase in the purchase price of purebred animals.

Imported animals ( from other countries ) must possess appropriate quarantine papers and veterinary checks with follow up if required,

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Rescue organizations as well as breeders should have a 'cap' on how many animals in line with how many staff employed, so that animals have the ability to get proper care and governance to avoid that over population is kept in check.

- Retail stores should not be able to sell animals but instead support rescue organizations. Stores should educate owners as to why they need to look for in a reputable breeder /rescue group. Dogs, cats rabbits birds, exotics should not be sold in retail. The city needs a bylaw to end the sale of live animals such as dogs and cats like other cities have done.
- Ethical storage conditions - for example betta fish in pet stores are in tiny cups lining the shelves, with no proper water filtration or bowl cleaning, and can get sick very easily
- Animals should not be sold in stores as inventory. The city should randomly inspect ads on kijiji or ebay for breeders to discover unsanitary, inhumane conditions. The current enforcement is a joke.
- Spay/neuter, immediate licensing
- No opinion
- Anybody who breeds dogs or cats for sale should have a licence. Puppy mills should be banned, and enforced. Any animal sold over the Internet in Calgary should be spayed or neutered. Any animal who wanders away from their home more than once should be spayed or neutered.
- None. There is already provincial legislation about what animals are legal to own or not. The city should not over-regulate the pet industry.
- Sourcing the retail pets from ethical breeders, maintain the health and socialization of the animals in their care, have a vast knowledge of the animals being sold and be able to educate and prepare buyers for all stages of their new pet's life.
- Pets must be chipped, and examined by a veterinarian at most 30 days before the sale of any pet, at cost to the seller. Official results of veterinarian exam available to the buyer before sale finalized. Costs of chipping and exam may be passed on to buyer at seller discretion, but must be documented in receipt and terms of sale.
- Rabbits, dogs and cats should be spayed/neutered to prevent unwanted pet populations.
- None sold in stores that aren't rescues or from humane societies or city pound.
- Provide health care records, spay/neuter the pet or provide a discount for encouraging to do so, provide information regarding care and licensing of the pet
- Clear contracts, health guarantees. Type of housing provided for animals for sale.
- No inbreeding
- Use a reputable breeder, no puppy mills. Liaise with shelters where possible. The pet must be spayed/neutered unless it is being used for breeding purposes.
- No trade or traffic in wildlife. No sourcing animals from mills. Source of the animal must be accredited and meet every standard for the physical and mental health of the animal.
- All animals involved in the process should be in good health. Animals should not be alerted genetically or physically to fit with some kind of fad. Prices should reflect the cost of keeping the animal (and its parents) in good health rather than the "trendiness" of the breed. Animals must be kept in clean and safe environments while they wait for their new homes.
- humane conditions for the dogs a place they are loved and cared for

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- That animals are spayed neutered, have a recent health screen and current vaccinations, and not contributing to puppy mills etc
- No retail sales of dogs or cats, rescue only.
Any other animals sold should require proof that they were obtained from a responsible (licensed, if applicable) breeder.
- The biggest issue is whether the person is financially able to provide for the pet, or if their responsible enough to manage that pets needs... and these can not really be determined by a seller.. so its almost useless.
- Must be from licensed and reputable breeders and also have rescued animals alongside bred animals if selling bred animals. Bred animals cannot be sold online if not licensed.
- Animals should be spayed or neutered unless they are a registered breeder.
- Animals need to be well cared for and not come from breeders or puppy mills. Breeding animals should be against the law!! All animals should cost the same. No need to have expensive and cheap animals.
- If a retail store or broker is selling animals they must have to specify publicly where they are sourcing their animals from so that buyers can educate themselves on the breeder to prevent unwanted back yard breeding and puppy mills. Transparency is key.
- No puppy mills.
Anyone selling more then 2 animals, stores must have licence and must check in with city to advise info on how they access these animals etc. Audits done by city.
- Definitely do NOT require the animal to be spayed or neutered as this early neutering is now known to be detrimental to the health of animal. You could require sterilization techniques that leave hormones intact such as vasectomy or hysterectomy of puppies. No sale of dogs in pet stores. Cats sold need to have a City licence before being purchased. Any place, including cat/Dpg breeders and non profits in the City, should require the purchase of a City licence as part of the adoption agreement unless the owner's address if outside of Calgary.
- Animals should be spayed/neutered when sold. People selling animals should be licensed and there should be regulations on the animals living conditions and limits on prices for those animals that are being bred.
- Retail sales of dogs and cats should not be allowed.
- Provide proof the animals aren't from a puppy/whatever mill. Buyer should be required to provide proof of vaccinations and licenses within a certain timeline (age of animal) or have to return animal.
- Yes.
- There are too many abandoned animals. All animals sold should be spayed/neutered. No animal to be sold from a pet store.
- Something more needs to be in place for "backyard breeding". You must need special certification, business or criteria to be able to sell animals online etc.
- I don't think there should be regulations on spaying or neutering dogs and cats. This should be a personal decision between and owner and their vet. No puppies or kittens sold in pet stores, defined by 6 months of age or less.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There should be NO retail sale of animals. I think that rescues and reputable breeders should be able to have animals in pet stores, but that potential owners need to go through a screening process.
- animals must be in good health ( too many backyard breeders are selling to Pet stores)
- Not sure about this one. I would like to see cats/dogs banned for sale at pet stores. Also, need some heavy duty by-laws and provincial laws regarding puppy/kitty mills.
- Must be spayed or neutered. All vaccinations up to date and a complete medical from a licensed veterinarian
- A business should never sell animals unless they are selling animals from a reputable breeder as too many businesses sell animals from the puppy mills where they are not healthy and the animals being bred are held in deplorable conditions and these puppy mills need to be shut down
- There should be a complete ban on retail sale of animals/kijiji/newspaper etc sales. Only small scale registered responsible breeders subjected to random regular inspections should be permitted.
- veterinary health certificate, licence requirements
- do proper research on where the animals come from and possibly on sell rescue dogs and cats
- If animals MUST be sold as retail...Business must be licensed & spot inspected for care of animals. Small pets only i.e. no dogs, cats or rabbits. Document who each animal is sold to inc. ID of purchaser. Animals must be vaccinated/parasite prevention by a licensed vet if of an appropriate age/species. All medical records shared with new owner. Failure to comply = not allowed to sell pets, period.
- Animals are not products to be shopped for in a store. Ban all retail of dogs and cats.
- They should be trying to rehome animals from rescue, many of these animals can be sourced from independent breeders which may be more realistic for the future
- Animals should not be imported and sold in Canada, this affects the health of other pets, especially when the animals are not properly dewormed/vaccinated. Also the breeder should be the responsible business selling the animals, not "brokers" that get animals from puppy mills. Animals should not be sold on Kijiji
- I do not believe in the retail sale of animals like dogs and cats - if people want to purchase one they should source out a shelter or reputable breeder
- Keep the animals cared for, in good health and proper environmental conditions.
- Spayed/neutered; verified source (no puppy mills); licensed on site upon sale; restrictions on the sale of dogs/cats, focus on adoption. Record of sale -determine if people are buying multiples of animals
- I am not certain this is something the City should be involving itself as it is difficult to have the same regulations placed on responsible breeders / rescue organizations / backyard breeders / Kijiji type sellers. I'd question how the City would plan on enforcing such regulations before deciding what those regulations should entail.
- I don't believe in retail sale of animals, even with breeders. We prefer to adopt.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I do not condone the sale of animals. Serving to house animals for rehoming and adoption may be different however there is a lack of understanding around how overstimulating and emotionally damaging those environments can be.
- No puppy mill puppies or kittens. Ever. Animals should be sold by breeders or re-homed (with appropriate adoption fee) by rescue organizations.
- All retail animals should be spayed or neutered before sale.
- No comment
- Ensuring the animal is free of zoonotic diseases,
- Animals should never be sold from a retail business. I believe all the shelters and rescues should be required to have the animals spayed or neutered before they are adopted
- quality of life, hours spent in a cage, size of cage, time allowed outside
- For retail of pets like dogs and cats they should be spayed or neutered
- Proven qualifications to ensure that the animals being sold are safe and healthy and have been properly cared for prior to sale.
- Cruelty free sales.
- Provide veterinarian and vaccination history, source of the animal , age, breed, dam and sire info,
- Do not ever have a breed specific ban. It's [removed], punish the owner not the animal. Improve regulations on the ownership of exotics, large cats and reptiles that could potentially be released in the wild.
- All breeders/rescues should be permitted/listed with the city. All animals should be sold with a contract and if an individual cannot keep a pet, they should be returned to the breeder/rescue. Any breeder/rescue not accepting the returned animal should be penalized.
- Health checked. Responsible breeding. Spay or neuter. Exotic pets -proper care and awareness of special needs. Safety of animals.
- The animals must be sold with the animal's best interest in mind, as well as be healthy, and will thrive in their new home.
- That a vet check is done and report is shared with potential buyer; that required immunizations have been given before pet is released to owner with documents to prove same; animal should also be spayed or neutered prior to releasing to new owner (exception: registered professional kennel/breeders); animals should be microchipped to be returned to owners
- All animals should be spayed/neutered and vaccinated. Focus should be on adoption of rescued animals.
- Nothing.
- businesses selling and caring for animals need to be inspected regularly, to provide safe and adequate support. the city should set detailed regulations. when, where, and the type of animals..
- I do not believe dogs should be sold in retail businesses and there should be stronger laws regarding conditions of animals in breeding facilities. I am involved in a rescue organization and have seen dogs coming from puppy mills and have seen their appalling physical condition, and even

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

more heartbreaking how mentally broken there are. There need to be stronger laws to protect these animals.

- No animals sold in pet stores - no responsible breeder would ever allow any of their animals to be sold through a pet store. Any individual breeder who sells an animal should be required to provide a buyer with access to the parent(s), have proof of good living conditions, provide animal health checks by a qualified vet, have a return/rescue policy, prove they are not inbreeding. Prospective buyers should be thoroughly screened to help ensure animals are going to a truly responsible owner.
- Rules to make sure they are not coming from a puppy mill type situation. Place needs to be inspected that they get the animals from to be humane
- I do not approve of the retail sale of animals
- Must be spayed or neutered, in good health, vaccinated. Should give space to local rescued animals, not just bred-for-sale animals.
- I CANNOT BELIEVE THE CITY OF CALGARY IS ONE OF VERY FEW WHO ALLOWS A STORE TO SELL PUPPIES - ANYONE WHO EDUCATES THEMSELF KNOWS MOST PUPPIES COME FROM PUPPY MILLS WHERE THE PARENTS RECEIVE UNSPEAKABLE ABUSE. Who is being paid off? IT IS DISGUSTING!
- N/A
- Breeders should not be permitted, given the vast numbers of homeless pets that are awaiting adoption.
- Responsible breeding.
- Reputable and licensed. Have to be vet checked and documentation up to standard
- Business should be licensed to operate in Calgary, the animals should be in good health and come either with prepaid insurance or a health warranty. Small animals such as rabbits should be spayed or neutered to prevent population explosions in the event they escape or are released.
- Animals should be rendered incapable unless obtaining an exemption from the City. This would allow for breeders.
- None - regretfully, while in a perfect world this would be taken only for animals benefit, there are too many variables to make this fair to all ethical breeders/producers of animals, while also fair to rescues.
- Businesses that sell animals should be required to provide written proof of animal health, provide a spay or neuter voucher for young animals, have older animals altered already, not sell wildlife or wolf crosses, not sell endangered animals, provide written proof of origin of breeder.
- Animals must be healthy and well-cared for
- Retail businesses should have paperwork showing where the animal came from.
- All of the suggestions here:
- <https://www.humanesociety.org/sites/default/files/docs/ordinance-combat-puppy-mills-guide.pdf>
- Minimum space requirements for enclosures, business licence, vaccines and medical if applicable for the age of animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Spay/neuter unless selling for breeding purposes. Especially for animals that may roam like cats, rabbits. Not applicable to animals that are fully enclosed like hamsters and chickens.

- Stores should not sell cats or dogs or livestock
- Guidelines should be followed, breeders generally are good with this.
Animals sold online should come with a bill of sale, just to have record of who and where the dog was bought.
- Proof of where the animals are from, whether rescued or from a breeder. Use of puppy mills should be discouraged or any other situation where the mother animal is in a potentially abusive environment.
- FOR A PET STORE THAT THEY ANIMALS THEY ARE SELLING DO NOT COME FROM PUPPY OR CAT MILLS
- No exotic or endangered animals, clear and up to date paper trail for sourcing. A vet check before selling the animals.
- All of the above mentioned. Also source of animal; where or how did they acquire the animal to be sold? Ensure it was legally acquired. Do they have a breeders license?
- Yes, all animals should be spayed or neutered. There are far too many back yard breeders. This hurts people and animals. There must be more strict rules and enforcement
- I don't believe animals should be sold in a retail setting, rather through CKC registered breeders
- Animals should not be for sale in retail stores.
- This isn't a civic responsibility
- Animal welfare.
- NO SALE OF ANIMALS PERIOD.

Animals are not property to be owned, objects to be used, slaves to be taken advantage of, or machines to be put to work. NO urban business should be allowed to sell animals. All animals should be spayed and neutered, unless exception from a qualified vet. The type of animal should be restricted to domestic 'pet' animals. Alberta struggles with massive animal overpopulation and the sale of animals directly sabotages the ability to place animals already struggling/in care of rescues that support Albertan animals.

- I think there's some rescues [personal information removed] that need more strong regulations. I think that to sell an animal for adoption they should have to go through a big process to be allowed to do this
- To ensure health records of the animal they are selling are up to date and animals must have a certification stating so.
- Must provide proper care and should work with local shelters
- I think buyers of pets should be taken into more consideration. For example, someone with a history of animal abuse should NOT in ANY CIRCUMSTANCE be able to get another animal. Places that adopt and/or sell pets should have a way to see exactly who they are selling to and if they are fit to own an animal, for the safety and well being of said animal.
- All of these.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No puppy mills. Adoptions as much as possible. Check for diseases. Offer spay/neuter discounts or free offer. Microchip or tattoo. Ensure good conditions while waiting for sale/adoption. Offer education on how to look after an animal to avoid people giving them up right away.
- They should have a city license of what kinds of dogs they can sell and have records of sales.
- sufficient qualified staff to care for the number and type of animals they have; ethically sourced animals (no wild harvest); ethical breeders; all vaccinations and health records up to date
- As outlined above
- Legal limit imposed on the number of animals they are allowed to sell. As well, stricter regulations on who is able to buy animals (18+ with adequate proof of research and responsibility regarding the pet they wish to purchase).
- All animals, unless being purchase specifically with breeding rights, must be spayed or neutered to control animal populations!
- All dogs and cats must be spayed/neutered prior to going to their new home. Breeders should not be allowed to sell privately without a licence and being monitored for conditions. No pure bred" animals to be sold in pet stores. Rescues only. Restrictions on who can sell what types of exotic animals.
- I don't think you should be able to sell cats, dogs, or rabbits through retail. Rescues or responsible breeders only.
- They are properly vaccinated and are healthy.
- Most importantly I think the well-being of the animal and the conditions on where it was bred and raised/housed is paramount.
- " - breeding of pets, selling of pets, numbers of pets in a house, etc.
- Pets should not be sold in stores. Pets should come from a rescue organization or from a breeder in good standing with an accredited organization (ie TICA or CKC). Businesses like [personal informatin removed] store should not be in business.
- Spayed and neutered, animal history/breeding must be transparent.
- the well-being of the animal prior to sale is very important. I would also like to see it being mandatory for an animal to be registered upon sale so that people aren't allowed to have 15 cats and 10 dogs and 8 bunnies and take care of none of them.
- That they're well taken care of. Ideally I suppose there would be restrictions on breeding animals for sale, but I don't think that's going to stop anyone and they will keep going to breeders rather than adopting.
- All animals should be spayed or neutered before going to their adoptive homes. A microchip implanted and registered to the new owner.
- The animals must not be separated from their mothers prior to 8 weeks. All animals must be spayed/neutered before being sold. Animals may not be from a breeder. Animals must have their first set of shots. Owners must agree to mandatory training sessions with their pet.
- Not from a mill, not sold to pet hoarders
- Thoroughly screen the potential pet owner. Have appropriate housing for animal until they are ready to go to a forever home.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Humane conditions for animals being sold.
- Animals should be spayed or neutered.
- Unless for breeding all dogs and cats should be neutered or spayed, Cages and pens should kept clean with adequate space, water and food and toys.
- Care and treatment of the animals must be exceptional. All animals selling animals must have a current health card listing anything not healthy with the animal. Anyone purchasing an animal from them that gets sick from an illness that the dog would have had before being purchased must get a full refund of cost of animal and all vet fees refunded from that business. Also take into consideration temperament issues wit animal being sold
- Retail sale of animals should be banned in Calgary
- Regulations about where an animal can be sold, potentially a permit to sell an animal, and it would be a good idea to ensure sold animals are fixed unless given exception (breeding animals)
- Spayed/neutered. From a rescue or a reputable source (no mills).
- The sale of dogs and cats in stores should be prohibited. They are not a product to be traded. Many cities have emboldened bans on this type of activity and it is time for Calgary to finally follow suit. As for smaller animals such as rabbits, they should be spayed and neutered or licensed or their sale also prohibited. The cost of dealing with the unintended consequences (ie Canmore) are proof enough that something needs to be done to deal with this and punish the irresponsible pet owners releasing domesticated rabbits in the wild.
- Spay or neuter if the animal is not to be bred (license to breed required at time of purchase)
- -must be spayed/neutered
- -must be at least three months old to allow adequate time with the mother
- -must have business licence to sell animals to avoid backyard breeders
- -regular inspections of breeders
- No business should be selling an animal in a retail setting unless it is from a reacue
- no opinion
- All animals must have proper areas to live in. Sellers Should be vetted to ensure the animals come from safe healthy home.
- proper treatment of the animals prior to sale. No puppy mills
- Sale of animals from reputable breeders ONLY.
- Puppies and kittens should not be sold in stores. We need to adopt not shop. If we are purchasing a special breed then those breeders must be licensed, inspected and regulated.
- All dogs and cats should be spayed and neutered. No breeders only rescue animals in pet stores.
- I don't know
- There should be regulations on the accommodations of the animals as well as the number on hand at a given time
- Need ensure not puppy mills and that humane treatment of the mother and the puppies. Basic cleanliness and health certificates should be a must
- Fixed and from reputable rescue's. Not pure breeds

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should be spayed or neutered, in good health, no breeds that have a history of vicious behaviour
- Sale of pets needs to be better regulated, from how animals are obtained to how they are cared for in stores, plus buyers/adopters should be better vetted to ensure they are willing and actually able to properly care for type and breed of pet they are getting. Personally, I don't think stores should be selling pets at all, especially with options from reputable rescues and breeders willing to help potential pet owners find a pet that best fits with their lifestyle. Breeders should be regulated as well, ensuring practices are humane and that they're following best standards. I firmly believe that pets should be spayed or neutered as a condition of sale or adoption. This would help curb overpopulation, and eliminate situations where owners suddenly find themselves financially unable to do so when the time comes.
- complete description of what's included with the sale.
guaranteeing health of the breed is kinda grey knowing once the sale has been made, you don't keep track as to how they are taken cared of by the buyer, compared to when they were with the breeder.
- Spay and neuter at proper ages
Clean and large spaces for them to be kept in Water and food prices at all times
Do in-depth interviews for adoptions to ensure good people are adopting
- No retail sale. Adopt dont shop!
- That owners are educated about the animal they are about to get. Be honest about breed tendencies and try to make suitable matches of pets with owners.
All pets should be housed appropriately and be provided with species specific diet and enrichment and have adequate space to move around.
- Animals must be checked by a vet to ensure that they are healthy. The animals must be housed in humane spaces. Animals must not be on display all the time.
- Businesses should be regulated .
- NO tail/ ear docking. NO declawing. Unless medically necessary.
Pet shops must not sell puppies or kittens unless verified from an ethical breeder.
- Only accept animals up for adoption through reputable rescue foundations. No businesses should be selling any animal for any reason.
- All animals must come with appropriate documentation of their health/vet information.
- Ensure the quality of suppliers they use.
- No sale of animals at pet stores or other venues that prompt impulse buys (e.g. pet fairs). Mandatory wait period (e.g. three days) between decision to purchase and taking animal home. Stringent rules what constitutes a business when selling animals (e.g. private sales of dogs, cats and reptiles).
Better oversight over "rescues" and a clear distinction between licensed charities and privately run, for-profit sales.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Make sure they are coming from a reputable breeder with proper certification and papers; prioritise adoption over purchasing new animals; background checks on certain animals being purchased (exotics and certain dog breeds)
- I don't think pet stores should be allowed to sell cats and dogs, only act as a front window for an adoption agency. Other animals can be sold but there should be regular inspections for animal welfare and they should be required to prove they are acquiring their animals from reputable sources.
- The animals should come from a verified breeder, possibly approved by a vet or CFIA or bylaw officers. The needs of the animal must come first as many stores that sell exotics such as sugar gliders put the animals health at risk as they are nocturnal. Many stores and breeders operate in such a manner that causes great issue going forward in the animals life, from selling a sick animal, to a human aggressive animal that has become as such due to improper handling that the store has no control over.
- If selling as a purebred the business must provide: breed information, proof of health tested parents, genetic health guarantee, national dog association registry papers upon purchase, vaccinations appropriate for sale age, spay/neuter contract with age appropriate timing for breed growth rate, repatriation guarantee (so purchaser never takes unwanted dog to pound), city registration (forwarded to the city) with each registered animal. If selling breeding dogs the purchaser must be a registered breeder with the national dog association and registered with the city as a licensed breeder.

Rescue organizations should to be city registered. All animals must be veterinarian health examined/tested prior to sale. I think appropriate vaccinations and spay/neuter should be built into the sale price by way of a contract with veterinary offices who work with the city licensing program. ALL animals must be microchipped and should be registered with city tag.

- I don't believe retailers should be allowed to sell dogs, cats, or rabbits. For all other animals I believe they should have to complete a training workshop on how to properly maintain the animals.
- Must be licenced to sell animals. Must be spayed or neutered when pet stock. Permits required for breeding or showing in competition
- Dogs and cats should NOT under any circumstances be sold in retail outlets. If they are in pet stores and are up for adoption with the contact being a specific rescue that's fine. But there should be zero retail of dogs and cats allowed in the city. Existing retail stores selling dogs and cats or any age should all be closed.
- If it is a retail business, it must obtain the pets from a licensed and reputable animal shelter. They should not be allowed to sell animals they obtained for a small amount of money then sell for a massive profit. Example, a puppy is bought from someone for $20, the sell it for $1188 or more.
- LOVE THEM AND GIVE THEM CARE AND CLOSE DOWN PUPPY MILLS THEY DON'T CARE FOR THEM IN MOST CASES JUST FOR THE MONEY
- Information that is correct and verified about where the animal comes from, vaccinations, health concerns.
- The sale of animals should not be allowed. Rescue!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stores [personal information removed] should not be allowed to sell animals. Kijiji has puppy mills and backyard breeders selling animals and proper medical care is not always happening for these animals.
- Source pets responsibly, sell only healthy animals, educate potential owners
- The pet must be fixed before going home with the new owner.
Breeders need more regulation - number of times animals may give birth specifically. 1-2 times only then the female should be spayed.
- spayed/neutered for sure. force breeders to carry certification so that not anyone can just breed and sell on kijiji.
- Responsible health testing for breeders. Humane conditions.
- No selling cats and dogs. The other animals should be kept in secure enclosures not allowing random people to manhandle them.
- They should not sell dogs, cats
- Sources such as puppy mills or Kiji non registered breeders should be illegal.
- No animal mills. Reputable. Spay or neuter included.
- Absolutely no regulation on spaying and neutering— the level of damage these types of laws do to a growing dog is horrendous and the fact govt thinks they have a say in the health of my dog is laughable. No.
No pet store sales of animals— even “adoption” is questionable at best as retail rescue is becoming more and more an issue.
While I appreciate the idea of regulating against backyard breeding, in practice this will open the door to far too many regulations placed on ethical breeders, and as such I stand firmly against.
Perhaps a way around these issues would be consulting with registries for purebreds, however even poorly bred purebred can get papers so this is not a fix-all.
- Pet stores and the sale of pets for profit should not be permitted by law. Domesticated pets, particularly cats and dogs, should only be allowed to be adopted through nonprofits (e.g. Humane Society) and registered breeders. Exotic animals (nondomesticated) should not be permitted as pets.
- Strict rules and regulations for the sale and adoption of animals.
- No retail sale by a business period... private only
- Spayed or neutered
- Should allow pet owners the option to spay or neuter their dog at an older age (such as by 2 years old) in order to allow crucial hormones for development.
- No puppies or kittens available for sale. Rescue or mature animals only. Proper animal husbandry for all including city inspections to ensure animals aren't in danger!!
- Transparency
Dedication to ensuring all animals in their care are taken care of responsibly.
- Dogs are always from puppy mills if sold at a store..no reputable breeder sells their puppies that need their moms to a store not staffed 24 7

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- All animals should be bought from the rescues or a reputable breeder. Having said that breeders should be more closely monitored and should have to pay high prices for licences since they charge enormous amount for animals.
- ensure they are sold to responsible owners and that they are spayed or neutered unless they are being entered in dog shows and are going to be bred to other purebred dogs.
- Animals should have to display their place of origin to deter illegal farmed animals from being sold commercially. All animals available for sale commercially should be spayed or neutered and certificates of proper health checks shown. (vaccines, etc.). Also the availability of pet owner education.
- They must provide the breeders name and contact information. Due to the large number of rescues, retailers must only sell rescues. Breeders should be licensed and have their breeding facilities inspected without notice. Breeding facilities should be available to show potential buyers Screening to ensure animals are going to reputable owners.
- No exotics that are wild caught should be allowed in Canada. Let's lead by example . Dogs should not be on crates on the 2nd shelf where the poop likes to fall below. That would absolutely SUCK to walk on.
Prior to being allowed to sell animals the by law should investigate the location the animals come from and give approval.
- Spayed or neutered; no animal that is compromised medically or is endangered/illegal.
- Animals should only be available from reputable rescues
- Have licensing and policies on the sale of animals. Do not acquire animals from a puppy mill. Should be subjected to random visits/check-ins to prove they are properly caring for said animals and following all policies.
- No puppy or kitten mills!!! Rescue ONLY until there is no fetal pet population left.
- No retail sale of animals. All animals in pet stores should be from rescues and should be adoptable animals.
- Health of the pet
- There needs to be clear rules about appropriate animal husbandry/care. Breeders should be able to be inspected anytime to ensure animal welfare.
- Registration as an animal retailer, must be clean, can provide proof of animals health status, not animal mills, have sound knowledge about animal care, treat animals humanely such ad walking dogs, animals not caged tightly with one and another
- Animals should not be sold in a retail setting.
- Where they obtained the animals from. Whether they inform and enforce proper care for animals, both physically and emotionally. Education. In a perfect world, a screening process to assess fitness of owning an animal.
- Where the animal was obtained, conditions it was born in/kept in, restrictions on breeding of the animal, restrictions on where the animal can be transported, requirement to return the animal if it cannot be kept by purchaser for any reason
- I don't think citizens need rules about these issues.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- as long as they are licensed, leave people alone.
- No animals should be for sale, rescue only.
- Inspections of all breeding and sales locations.
- Retail sales of animals should be limited to licensed retailers who have passed requirements to properly screen animals and potential adopters
- Have a license to breed and be held to a health standard in their animals
- There needs to be transparency regarding where the animals come from. There are many animals needing homes already, we don't need puppy mills contributing more.
I also think pets should all have to be spayed or neutered unless from a breeder with some kind of exemption or special classification
- Traceable origin of dogs and ethical and responsible breeding
- That they are procured by responsible pet breeders that take good care of their animals, or even better if they sell rescue animals.
- If someone is buying a pet they should have proof of license before they are allowed to take the animal home. Kind of like when you buy a car you need to have proof of insurance.
- Require breeders to be licensed and inspected. Pet stores should also require a special license and frequent inspections, must prove they get animals from ethical breeders. All animals should be spayed or neutered before being sold from ANY store, should not be allowing pet stores (ie [personal information removed] style puppy mill fronts) to contribute to further pet overpopulation. All cats and dogs should have to have received proper vaccines prior to being sold. Do not allow stores to treat living animals like disposable merchandise. Restrict sale of exotics, as most of these are not care for properly, people do not have the knowledge needed and they rarely receive medical care. Require people to demonstrate they have the specialized knowledge to deal with these species.
- I feel that only registered breeders should be able to sell pets. No pet store should be allowed to sell pets.
- That all of the animals' needs are met. That no endangered animals be sold. That no exotic pets that can't be properly cared for reasonably easily be sold (tigers, anacondas, etc). Where an animal can be sold (no kijiji, craig's list, etc). Type of animal that can be sold. Animals must be altered within X amount of time. The buyer's information should be recorded for future reference. A license must be purchased within X amount of time. How 'bout no animals sold at all. Only rescued animals adopted instead.
- To not allow mass breeders the ability to sell through them, that animals must have a wellness check and to make sure a person purchasing an animal knows how to properly care for them.
- No retail sales of dogs - supports irresponsible breeders. City should support reputable breeders and not BYB.
- Up to date vaccines. Following up on pets sold.
- Registration of breeders. Priority for pet stores to assist with adoption
- NO animal should be sold in a pet store. Buyers should be able to research the breeder, know the dogs lineage and where it came from. Pet stores encourage impulse purchases which lead to dogs

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

being neglected, sent to shelters or sold to random people on places like Kijiji when they become too much work.

Pet stores also encourage puppy farming where breeding operations produce hundreds of mix breed puppies a week leaving the moms to live entire lives in concrete runs or kennels.

Responsible breeders will take puppies back if they're not a good fit and want to vet potential families which means NO responsible breeder would ever sell to a pet store

- Adopt, don't shop. No breeders should be allowed to sell animals in store. Stores should only be allowed to host animals from the many rescue organizations in the area.
- Documentation
- Spay and neutering the dogs/cats
- Ensuring pets are healthy, vaccinated, not bred too much, licenced, responsibility to check out buyers
- there should be no retail sale of animals. Follow the pet smart model of partnering with animal rescue to profile abandoned creatures that need homes. If you do approve retail sale of animals then prove that the pet is from a registered ethical breeder
- there should be no commercial sale of animals.
- [personal information removed] type stores should be banned! Breeders should have regulations and pet stores should only have rescue animals
- All of the above - Spay/neuter, where sold, type of animals sold and I would add that not sold to people with previous complaints, fines or prosecution regarding pet ownership.
- Background checks, subject to visits by personal to determine whether it (breeding) is being done in a safe humane/ethical manner.
- Dogs and cats should not be sold in a retail store. These animals should come from a reputable breeder.
- No retail sale of animals unless rescue animals
- Ensure animal is from a healthy licenced breeder.
- Reputable breeding
- The potential buyer has the right to know exactly where that pet came from.
- No cat or dog should be sold for profit in a store. Animals should be spayed or neutered at an appropriate age, to reduce unwanted animals which places a burden on rescues and the humane society. Animals sold out of a house should have a breeder's license, and their facilities should be monitored frequently to reduce puppy mill situations. Proof of mistreatment of animals should mean that person cannot have animals in their lives, or work with animals for at least 5 years, and then kept a close eye on. Any violation should be a lifetime ban from working or having anything to do with animals.
- I think licenses should be sold at time of purchase (mandatory), I think if the animal is dangerous there should be special rules, I think if the animal is released in the wild and can be a danger or become an invasive species there should be special rules. Some cities that are a lot older than us have actually started banning pets and the number of pets people are allowed because they have realized it has become quite problematic.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No cats or dogs should be sold in stores, except in partnership with a Calgary-based rescue organization.
- Ensuring the animals are ethically bred and not forcing someone into debt for an animal.
- The facilities have rooms for the animals.
Facilities are clean.
Detail history of the pet background available
To have all their animals nurtured or spade..
- Cannot use kijiji or anything like that. Can not give them away for free. Does not use puppy mills.
Business should only sell shelter animals. No breeders.
Have qualified employees who are able to recognize a good or bad possible owner.
Does not allow animals of prey to be around predators in establishments (rabbits around dogs) .
Strict animal safety supervision by qualified staff. Is not allowed to sell them as gifts. Steps to confirm that the household is not banned from owning animals.
- Safe treatment of healthy animals. There should be some assurances the pets are coming from reputable breeders not a puppy mill. I liked that I got a huge discount on my license when Annie was spayed.
- Adopt don't shop.... or purchase through reputable breeder... no back yard breeding for profit.
- Animals must be spayed or neutered upon sale or rescue unless being sold to a licensed breeder for breeding purposes. No breed restrictions. All animals being sold in a retail setting must come from a licensed breeder who passes a screening process or be from a rescue agency.
- No wild cross domestic pets like wolf dogs and serval cat hybrids etc.
Treat their livestock humanely and regularly get inspected to ensure the animals best welfare is being considered whilst also running their business.
- The animals MUST be treated with respect and dignity, kept in good health and adequate housing, and acquired from a reputable, TRACEABLE source. 3rd party audits to ensure good living conditions and ethics should be mandatory.
- Animals should be well taken care of --- healthy, vaccinated, vet check, free from parasites, fed properly, treated respectfully and humanely. Bill of sale and transfer of ownership. Legal authority that checks up on people who sell animals to ensure the human treatment of animals. Selling animals that come from the rainforest, oceans, jungles, etc is just plain wrong. Animals kept in proper housing not in tiny cages. Animals are groomed and allowed to exercise, properly fed and watered. Transportation of animals is done humanely. Buyer is educated in how to take care of the animal that they are buying. Seller only sells to a buyer who will and believes in the humane treatment of animals.
- Spayed/neutered unless a qualified breeder. We have enough animals for adoption.
- Animal should be neutered or spayed and have had a vet check up. Temporary living situation of animal should be important since it could potentially lead to an animal being in bad health.
- Businesses should have a responsibility to ensure that the animals they are getting are coming from ethical sources. Getting animals from places that treat animals like a product should be unacceptable in this day and age. I think it is everyone's responsibility- individuals, businesses, the

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

city/government - to do their part to ensure puppy/kitten/small animal mills are shut down, either by boycott or regulations, or discouragement.

- No puppy mills. Sell a quota of rehomed animals for adoption before being allowed to sell bred animals.
- I believe the sale of animals should be limited to rescue organizations, there are enough dogs and cats needing rescue there is no reason to have sales made in stores.
- Don't like the retail trade at all, but if going forward sales must be from regulated, licensed & randomly inspected breeder, animal must be health certified, microchipped, sterilized. Let's put unscrupulous breeders out of business.
- Prevent back yard breeders only looking to make a profit and not interested in the health of the animals.
- Retail sales of animals should be banned like they are in more cities. Licensed ethical animal breeders don't sell to pet stores. Also, there is an extensive shelter system in Calgary region that needs help. Puppy mill people are the ones who sell to pet stores. And we have pure breed dogs and know the difference. Pet store dogs come from questionable sources often.
- Not sourcing their animals from puppy mills; appropriate rest and exercise areas for the animals
- Business license and have set criteria of who they are selling too. Perhaps city rules should be distributed at the time of the retail sale. Retailers should provide the city of origin for their animals they sell.
- safe and healthy care of all animals while being sold. how to ensure that with bylaws? not sure. would love for animals to be spayed/neutered before sold but breeders won't like it and any option for them introduces loopholes for others.
- No retail sale of dogs or cats - only hosting adoption events with reputable rescue organizations
- verify responsible ownership, cooling off period before being allowed to pick up animal.
- I think that sale of dogs, cats, ferrets, rabbits, guinea pigs, and any other pets that are abundantly available in shelters should be banned. All pets should be spayed or neutered before being sold. There should also be strict regulations around any animals that are sold in a retail environment (i.e. how they are kept, how a suitable home is found, etc.).
- They're fine.
- No breeds proven to be vicious, poisonous, endangered allowed for sale. Dogs, cats, rabbits must be proven spayed or neutered pre-sale. No sales at markets
- All animals should be spayed or neutered if possible. Exotic animals should not be sold at all. Businesses should be fully licensed and accredited.
- Only registered animal shelters should be allowed the adoption of domestic animals with an exception of specialized breeders and out of country breeders but the person seeking to purchase out of country should need a permit and a complete ban of sites like kijiji advertising animals for sale
- Ethical treatment of animals
- I don't believe businesses should be allowed to have the retail sale of animals. It's cruel.
- Ensure they are properly cared for. Bigger cages.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There should be rules on where the retail business gets animals they sell from...puppy mills...not good. There should be licensing for those who sell animals to retail outlets and retail businesses should only be permitted to purchase from licensed sellers in good standing.
- d/k
- animals should be spayed/neutered.
- Sell no animals from breeders.
Sell only spayed or neutered cats and dogs.
- Pet stores should not be able to sell live animals. Period. There should be a registry for ethical breeders, where they need to pass a thorough inspection and renew yearly in order to be certified.
- Licensed breeders only
- Must be licensed to sell the pet. Must recommend spayed or neutered.
- Must be spayed and neutered. Have vaccines. No selling wild animals
- Proper space, proper handling, proper exercise and a qualified animal handler
- Stop the sale of retail animals. Get them from your local shelters!
- Ensuring they are either rescue cats or from reputable breeders
- -ensure that puppies are not from puppy mills - this means working with reputable breeders and disclosing where each puppy comes from
-sufficient space and care for puppies until they are sold
- All animals sold as pets must come from proven licensed ethical breeders and be spayed or neutered and health checked. Animals should not be able to be sold through open markets or "reselling goods websites". If an animal needs to be removed different rules should apply that take into account the nature of the animal and the home it requires.
- I feel that all animals must be accurately sexed at the time of the sale so minimizing the number of unwanted litters and that the retailers must be responsible for any unwanted litters within an appropriate time line for the species sold.
- Puppy mill operations need to be closed and stopped - and you know who/where they are once you see them. There should be more information about how to find a good breeder - there are really good breeders out there (ie registered) and they get a bad rap which is unfair. If we don't support good breeders soon certain breeds will be lost forever. Backyard breeders with no knowledge or scruples who are not registered get away with way too much with absolutely no consequences.
- For the love of GOD, Shut down the sale of animals in this city. [personal information removed] The shelters and rescues are FULL of unwanted animals looking for homes. [personal information removed] sells puppies for thousands of dollars that are from puppy mills. These animals are often sick, not socialized, and unaltered. [personal information removed] contributes the massive problem of unwanted pets in this city. Please put a stop to this. There is NO reason for the sale of puppy mill animals in this city! Disgusting.
- To ensure that the places where they take their animals from are safe and treat animals well. They should only take their animals from licensed dog reproduction centers.
Also they should not put abusive prices on dogs and they should only sell spayed/neutered dogs.
- That animals are raised and sold in circumstances that are the healthy for the animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No retail animal sales of companion animals. Dogs and cats are especially vulnerable to horrifying "breeding" practices that are not disclosed to the new owners. Other animals should have more regulation and restrictions around the "breeders" as well.
- All pets should be spayed/neutered unless the owner has a permit to breed. Animals should only be sold by licensed breeders or rescue organizations. Exotic species should need special permits to be sold/bought.
- I don't think any retail store should be selling "bed" dogs or cats anymore. Adoption through reputable rescue non-profit agency is fine.
- Just be ethical
- They should have to show where the animal came from with information about how many animals come from that supplier/breeder. Dogs and cats should be spayed/neutered.
- The sale of animals by dogs and cats at big box businesses should be discouraged or eliminated. Registered breeders (Canadian Kennel Club) and rescue associations are acceptable business for sale of animals. Problems arise from private sales for profit reasons (not surrender) and breeders of designer dogs.
- that animals come from safe, clean conditions and breeders
- Spay/neuter pets, only sell animals that are either rescues or from responsible breeders.
- Strict rules and penalties on puppy/kitten-mills, ban tail/ear cropping and other breed manipulations
- All pets must be kept in safe, reasonably comfortable and sanitary conditions enforced by unscheduled checks from bylaw officers. Checks to ensure only legal species are being sold.
- Inform customers of licensing rules & city bylaws.
- Proof that dogs aren't coming from puppy farms, actual vet monitored health clearances which should be paid for by anyone selling an animal, proof of provenance in appropriate cases to curtail theft of high value pets.
- Similar to rules just adopted in the UK, I think animals should only be bought/sold from where they were bred. No third party pet stores. Registered charitable animal shelters would obviously be an exception
- Breeding animals should be illegal. Retail stores should only be allowed to rehome rescues. Full transparency of how they got the animals should be required.
- endangered animals should never be sold
I feel animals are being spayed/neutered at too young of age....they should be but at the 6 month mark
- Not sure
- I think the retail sale of animals is inappropriate.
- All animals spayed or neutered. No endangered animals. No dangerous animals. Documented regulated breeders. Imported animals quarantined.
- Dogs and cats should be the only mammals allowed to be sold. Dogs and cats must be spayed or neutered as soon as medically possible.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- humane conditions for the animals and no use of "puppy mill" or similar businesses. Ideally stores would "sell" puppies and dogs from the local humane societies so those pets can be adopted/bought.
- The animals must be provided with space, exercise, food & water as well as human contact to ensure they are emotionally stable. Having animals in cages in a window is not healthy for the animal.
- Healthy source of animals and a waiting period so animals aren't bought or gifted on a whim
- No opinion
- Animals are sourced from humane breeders and are kept in humane conditions. Veterinary care should be available and subject to periodic checks for health and living conditions.
- That there is very good regulation that the animals sold are not coming from large breeding farms with no concern of the health of the animals and that they are in good or reasonable health and that these animals when sold be told to the new owners the health concerns and the steps to improve the animals quality of life
- I don't know if it is possible to control puppy mills, but that is a consideration. If it is possible to regulate that only spayed or neutered pets can be sold, that would be awesome.
- Check out person buying pets to ensure no abuse- past or current/future. Spay/neuter to ensure unwanted animals don't happen.
- That 50% of their dog/cat sales must be adoptions.
- No wild caught animals! The illegal pet trade is third after the drug trade and arms trade, and contributes to species declines and extinctions. This is especially true for parrots and reptiles. The City could use the Convention on the Illegal Trade of Endangered Species (CITES) to strength bylaw on this. I would also like to see only rescue domestic rabbits available for sale as pets to try to stem the tide of feral rabbits.
- Licenses and training on the husbandry of animals they acquire. Regular inspections by the city for the health of their animals.
- Do not sell cats or dogs in shops, offer preadoption courses or information about the care of the animal, offer post adoption support options, and ensure proper socialization of the animal
- It is the actions of the buyers are the key choices to be made. If people feel one way or the other this is their own path in life to follow. Supply & demand filter out eventually. laws & Regulations often can push potential issues simply underground.
- Pitbull ban
- Animals should be healthy, well cared for.
- Lots...but the big one is severe penalties and removal of creatures bred for sale that do not produce lively, healthy animals kept in humane places.
- Only qualified breeders should be allowed to sell pets. I'm not familiar enough with this to really comment.
- No sales of animals from puppy mills (anywhere), cats/dogs must be spayed/neutered when sold unless too young (put plan in place to get it done when safe for animal), inspection system in place for animal health/safety where sold.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Maintain animal health and provide appropriate mental and physical care. They must also prove where the animals were sourced.
- It is important for animals to be spayed/neutered, for a business to ensure that they are in good health, and raised/bred appropriately and responsibly.
- I do not believe there are any issues with the way animals are currently sold in retail stores.
- Calgary should ban ALL retail sale of animals, period. The only way that Calgarians should be able to get a pet is to rescue one that has been vaccinated, and spayed or neutered, by a licensed and reputable animal rescue group. Owners should also be required to complete a basic animal training course that will give them pet ownership skills and help to bond the human to the pet.
- all animals must be from a Rescue organization.
- MUST BE ALTERED! Even dog/cat breeders should only be allowed to produce so many litters - back yard breeders (the kijiji people) should be faced with surprise inspections, health checks and fines for overbreeding. Stores shouldn't be allowed to sell animals ! The staff is not educated or equipped to ensure any pet/bird is going to a qualified and caring home.
- The welfare of the animal should be of the utmost importance. Perhaps more regulation to ensure guidelines for care and adequate space and cleanliness? Inspections similar to food inspection?
- Be able to name the breeders and to have inspected the premise of each breeder themselves so as to make sure they are not promoting puppy mills (who make ill dogs and dogs with inheritable diseases).
- Animal welfare must be first and foremost and if proper sized enclosures cannot be provided or appropriate care and socialization received, the animals should not be for sale.
- Animals should not be sold for profit. if animals are being sold on behalf of a breeder, proper investigation into the practices of breeder should be documented and updated annually. Ensuring the care givers are suitable for the breed/type of animal being adopted even if it means saying no. AGAIN - animals should not be sold for profit.
- Should be spayed or neutered, chipped and / or tattooed and registered with the city. If being sold too young to spay/neuter, then have that stuff pre-paid with reminder follow-ups and fines.
- Rescue and Adoption sources as Primary source before breeders.
- When the babies are born, it should be added onto the animals license, how many were born and if they were sold. This would keep track of how many actual animals are in the household, the city and responsibility being taken if any at all. How many times have I read in the news about puppy mills with hundreds of animals, not cared for and being sold all for profit and no proper care was taken.
- Share breeder info to prevent backyard breeding.
- Normal business Cod of conduct.
- All animals must have up to date vaccinations.
- Should be no retail sales of animals.
- Background checks on all people, by the service selling animals, to ensure proper and safe adoptions/sales.
- I think all mammal pets should be spayed / neutered unless someone is a registered animal breeder.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Health inspectors regularly checking conditions of anyone who wants to sell a pet. License needed so private homeowners don't start breeding their dog just to make money
- They should be from rescue societies ONLY. Too many puppy mills and there are already so many rescue dogs that need love and affection
- Don't believe animals should be sold in a retail environment
- I don't think animals should be sold in pet stores.
- Animals (cats & dogs) should not be for-sale at retail locations as this promotes puppy-mills, etc. Animals should be available for 'adoption' at retail locations, if anything. Puppy mills should be shut down, fined and the people banned from owning more than one pet. Adopted animals should be spayed & neutered to help control the pet overpopulation crisis. People should have to apply to be able to breed cats and dogs and should have to follow strict guidelines to ensure the animals well being.
- Increased review of quality of care of the seller.
- Puppies and kittens should NOT be sold through pet stores, for profit (perpetuating puppy mills, very cruel). Pet stores offering adoption of animals from humane agencies is very good, by contrast. I am always concerned about any animals sold in pet stores (birds, fish, reptiles, small mammals). And I think that the City should be more active in monitoring the care of these animals, rather than relying on humane societies. (some horror stories in Calgary)
- periodic inspections,
must provide the name and address of the breeder from where the animal came and that breeder should permit inspections animals must have age-appropriate vaccinations
- Depending on the animal being sold, the breeder has an option to request spaying or neutering or not. One litter/year is different than someone who has multiple animal litters for sale. The latter should have a business licence and their facility inspected annually. Zero tolerance for mills and bad pet ownership!
- Spay/neutering of non breeding stock cats and dogs, less restrictive reptile/amphibian regulations of species
- I'm not sufficiently familiar with the commercial aspect to comment.
- I think these business should be monitored of where they source animals from as well as how they care for animals while in their care. I do not want to see spay/neuter restrictions put on as these animals are often young and I do not support too early of spaying or neutering for the good of the animal; I would rather see spay/neuter contracts that are actually followed up on (as they often aren't). The biggest thing for me is ensuring that animals are not being sourced from places such as puppy mills.
- Retail - spayed/neutered. Vaccines.
- No retail of vicious breeds. No mass-breeding of female animals for faster profit. No large breeding businesses within city limits. Limit number of broods per female over a period of time, and limit number of broods per female in her lifetime. Limit number of animals per household. Health inspections, all vaccinations up to date. Manage waste, noise, odour and debris.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- must be neutered; must be through a registered rescue agency; must have a full vet-check and shots
- I am generally against retail sale of pet animals - it promotes spur-of-the-moment purchases by irresponsible owners. Pet stores must not support "puppy mills" or unethical breeders of any sort; animals must be healthy, spayed/neutered, and store MUST PROVIDE HEALTHY CONDITIONS FOR ALL ANIMALS; restrict sales to captive-bred animals, no collection from the wild. I support pet stores that feature animals from shelters for re-adoption; local animal shelters are full of pets needing homes and emphasis needs to be put on rehoming these animals.
- Businesses should not be able to sell bred in captivity animals or animals that are exotic trade animals. Really only rescues and strays should be able to be sold. There really shouldn't be any retail sale of animals. It's super messed up.
- I think restrictions on where animals can be sold is a good idea, but would be very hard to enforce with online marketplaces in play.
- I don't believe individuals should be allowed to sell animals - this should be the role of a licensed business only (including a rescue organization). Regulations around breeders need to be tightened.
- I'm against sale of animals, but limit the amount of time the breeder can produce a year could help.
- Responsible breeding practices. Health and safety of animals. Proper nutrition. No puppy mills or farms.
- Ethically sourced pets. Prefer if they have adoption policy for mature animals rather than sell puppies & kittens
- The City of Calgary doesn't need to micro-manage this issue.
- Spaying/neutering should be required for non-breeding household pets (dogs & cats). Breeding operations should be held to a minimum standard.
- exotic animals should be more controlled. retail sales of exotic animals needs more attention!!
- Animals should be certified to not come from a puppy mill, sales of animals that are not rescue should have a hire license fee. animals must be spayed or neutered unless go to an official breeder. Breeder licenses and registrations
- Animals should be neutered before sale. Period. If you are breeding animals you should have to be registered and licensed specially. And monitored. No free puppies and kittens ever
- All animals should be healthy, from a reputable breeder or all info supplied if a rescue. Shots should be up-to-date and ideally spayed or neutered.
- responsible animal ownership, registration to animal clubs and orgs, medical records on file
- Pet stores should not be allowed to sell animals. They should serve as hubs for rescues only. Puppy (and kitten) mills are unacceptable.
- Ensure they are not coming from a factory that will inevitably end up with health issues.
- All rules so many dog breeders seriously out of hand why they're being brought here when we already have too many animals to deal with are they healthy they should be put under quarantine once there here and nobody takes them why is the responsibility put on Calgary please restrict the amount of animals in the city and 4 Animals per person is ridiculous

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Type of animal to be sold, the animal is healthy and all shots up to date
  - Retail sales of animals in stores or storefronts should be stopped. The sale of pure-breed animals should require special permits and be taxed. A store may provide a location for animal rescues or non-pure breeds to be adopted not for profit.
  - No evidence of breeding mills. No other restrictions.
  - Don't get into the spayed and neutered debate...this is a personal choice of the pet owner. Leave it that way.
- More regulation around protection of animals that are being sold. All retailers should expect and annual, announced inspection to ensure healthy, humane facilities.
- If possible they should check if the purchaser has ever had animals seized and banned from owning.
  - - Type of animals (prohibiting wildlife/exotic animals).
  - - Requiring animals be vet checked/UTD with vaccines prior to sale.
  - Health and safety of the animals. The number of animals they are allowed to have for sale at a given time. What happens to unsold animals.
  - Animals sold are healthy and accompanied by information on care
  - Health of the animals ...
  - I believe retail sales must provide the location from which the animal was bred, that they should not sell them before they have had their early vaccinations, and that they should be spayed or neutered, and for sure a special license should be necessary for exotic animals
  - I don't think this is a city issue.
  - promote adoption instead of buying. must spay or neuter all sold animals.
  - No puppy mills. Licensed breeders only for retail sale.
  - Know the source of the animals, healthy animals, educate young new owners on animal care
  - Any one profiting from the sale of a pet should be a licensed business (limit licensing), only allow certain breeds, spay/neuter all animals, limit breeding's, no sales at pet stores, rules on acceptable care and housing, ethics course, city inspections.
  - Provenance of the animal must be provable and appropriate (e.g., reputable breeder, not puppy mill). Staff should be well-trained on animal care. Reasonable steps should be taken to make sure the animals are sold to responsible owners.
  - 1. All animals must be acquired from reputable, licensed breeders or from rescue organizations.
  - 2. No wildlife or exotic wildlife must be acquired.
  - 3. All animals must be examined by an AbVMA-licensed veterinarian and approved for adoption/sale by the vet prior to sale/adoption.
  - 4. All animals must be fully vaccinated and dewormed for pathogens of concern, as determined by the veterinarian prior to sale/adoption.
  - 5. All cats and dogs must be spayed/neutered prior to sale/adoption, unless the buyer is a licensed breeder for that species.
  - 6. No dog breed restrictions should be placed on pit bulls or "pit bull-type" dogs. This is a prejudiced practice based in fear, rather than evidence.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Adherence to health and safety requirements for rearing, housing, selling, etc., of animals. Record of periodic inspections. Follow good business practices. Accreditation if possible with an organization with oversight. Establish relationship with BBB.
- ABSOLUTELY NO PUPPY MILLS. All businesses that sell animals MUST treat the animals with total care and respect at all times giving them all the necessities of life until adopted out. This includes care and attention to the animals well being and security and the business is held accountable for every animal in their establishment. Random inspections mandatory.
- Proof of vaccinations, vet check, husbandry of breeding pair. I honestly think the more regulations the better. People are not the brightest when it comes to profiting from animals.
- Many businesses involving the sale of animals are from puppy mill type sources. Ideally, businesses selling animals would work with rescues and the humane society to help find homes for animals that lack one.
- Number of animals people can own should be limited. Animals should be spayed or neutered; breeding should be licensed.
- No exotic animals should be sold, papers of ownership and origin should be supplied.
- Licensed, inspected, certified, and animals other than those being sold to a breeder should be spayed/neutered
- I do not believe people should be allowed to purchase an animal and bring it home the same day. There should be a 24 hour "cooling off period" to prevent impulse purchases of animals.
- Animals should not be sold in a store environment, we know these animals come from poor breeding practices (back yard breeders). Animals should not be required to be spayed or neutered, especially with all the evidence on the negative health effects or early/paediatric spay/neuter. Importing of animals from abroad with little/no health clearances and then "adopted" by rescues should be limited or not permitted
- Educated personal.
- They should be required to account for the health and welfare of the animals from birth to sale, not permitted to sell animals that are easily available to adopt, and to always have information available about animal adoption opportunities. They should also not be permitted to sell endangered, at risk, or potentially invasive species.
- If a store is offering animals for sale, there should be documentation showing where the animal has come from. It's especially concerning when a business will not disclose what breeder/kennel a puppy has come from.
- - Animals must be bred by a breeder who is a member of a recognized organization (such as the Canadian Kennel Club) that has a strong code of conduct.
- Animals should not be used to make money. Make sure animals are going to good homes and being taken care of. Follow ups.
- Spray and neuter need to be required unless the dog is a a registered PURE breed for showing.
- no, that is the responsibility of the future owner.
- Dogs must be responsibly bred
- Animals should not be sold in stores. Small cages and cases should not be allowed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- There should be no retail sale of pets. Only adoptions
- Animals should have a reasonable amount of space with opportunities for more space to exercise and be stimulated. They should be cared for by people knowledgeable about their needs, signs of distress or illness. There should be a limit of how much time can be kept for sale.
- Type of animal. No wildies
- No puppy mills!
- That the animals are legally obtained and did not come from factory breeding operations
- Do not sell on social media
- - Require detailed records of where animals came from, subject to inspection at any time with consequences for not doing so
- - Requiring that animals that are sold via retail should come from registered rescue organizations (with some exceptions)
- Quality of care, source of the animal, limit the number sold
- The business should offer a guarantee on the health of the pet.
- Animals should have a regulated amount of space each. Cleanliness needs to be important. There should be a limit to the number of pets at a facility at a time, directly related to the number of staff available.
- Not allowed for sale in pet stores. Anything to reduce puppy mills. Strict fines.
- 1. No puppy mills
- 2. Spaying and neutering should be allowed to be deferred to 1 year, at that point if it's not done and not a registered kennel with a specific club then the animal should be removed from the home, no 'family pet' needs to be left intact.
- No opinion
- Talking of dogs only I believe health testing is the most important. The rescue groups are usually good with the dogs they manage. Otherwise I would only buy a dog from a responsible registered purebred dog breeders. Emphasis on responsible.
- there should be restrictions on types of animals available (ie no dangerous pets, no rare or exotic pets, no pets that if they escape could damage our environment or ecosystem), spay and neuter all pets that aren't specifically licensed for breeding, only licensed pet stores or breeders should be able to sell pets,
- There needs to be regulations to prevent puppy mills. Perhaps they should have a license that they meet humane standards and are monitored quite closely. Limit the amount of animals.
- Too many to list. I am sure many things are already in place.
- Traceable animals so that they are not using puppy mills. Regular humane checks. Once sold, information should be passed onto Animal Control for license follow up.
- Proper breeding practices to ensure healthy animals. Adequate shelter, food and water and exercise for all animals being held for sale
- Absolutely no puppy mills. No adopting from outside of Canada, we have enough dogs here that need homes

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- All those rules make sense. I would add that the seller must have a license to sell that type of animal and they have to treat the animals they hold/breed humanely.
- Anything to prevent puppy mills
- Ensure the new owners are able to support and care for the pet, their needs and the environmental impact (clean up) that comes with ownership.
- Where the animal is from (humane breeding), the size of the cage and the level of interaction needed for the animals well-being.
- They must be licensed and sell healthy animals. Often pet stores sell animals that are not healthy.
- Puppies require significant care and training, which a business, that shuts down at night cannot provide. Therefore the City should ban the retail sale of puppies under the age of 1.
- Provide proof of humane conditions of origin. We have too many animals in need of good homes and too many “designer” breeds being sold for a premium.
- I don't think animals belong in the retail trade. At the very least, businesses should have to prove that their 'stock' does not come from puppy farming and should provide warranties/guarantees/duty-to-pay-health-care-costs for animals that have problems resulting from poor breeding.
- Anything which secured the safety and wellbeing of the animal.
- Full & accurate disclosure pertaining to the animals origins, health and type. Humane care of the animals
- Animals should be adopted not sold. We hear of puppy mills often, and I feel there should be strict monitoring of those who sell animals, for the welfare of those beings.
- Spayed/neutered, healthy and vetted and not from a breeder. I think breeders of all kinds should be banned until all the stay animal populations are under control.
- Ensure potential owners have the resources and money to keep the animal
More checks should be in place like breeders do for potential owners
- no dogs from puppy mills.
the business owner must have open communication with the prospective pet owners that allows them to see their where the animal is coming from.
- Inspected for care of the animal.
Required to follow up with the new owner 3 months later.
- No sales of breeder/ puppy mill dogs cats or rabbits in stores.
- Ethically raised, verified breeders, or rescues- in an effort to curb puppy mills or backyard breeders
- Be licensed, provide a safe and caring environment for the animals, ensuring that good quality food types are provided.
- No retail sale of animals including online sales like Kijiji. Adoption only
- Safe conditions. Education for owners and training. Dog must be licensed when sold.
- No mills. Responsible registered breeders only. Vet checking.
- -Licensing
- -inspections
- -welfare of animals

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Spayed or neutered (if appropriate) prior to purchase
Type of animal available for sale.
Requirement to show city licensing receipt as part of purchase if required for the animal.
- Puppy mills should not be vendors! [personal information removed] type retailers should not be allowed to sell animals. Regulations should be in place to ban this practice, awful living conditions for animals to be in.
- Animals offered for sale or adoption should be healthy and anyone presenting them selves as a charity or non profit should be registered and regulated
- Pet stores not allowed to sell cats, dogs or rabbits, unless throught a rescue, there are enough animals that need homes.
No puppy mills!!! [personal information removed] is a disgrace on this city.
All animals must be spayed and neutered before sale.
All animals must be vaccinated.
All stores must be inspected by a vet and animal control officers on a regular basis.
Employees must have training on care and husbandry.
Kennelling must meet aspcra requirements for housing and meet the five freedoms.
Medical advice cannot be given by petstore employees. Fines should apply to stores who break the rules.
- Know where the animals come from and the health condition of those facilities
- Pets should be born and raised in family type environments by responsible individuals. Breeders of all animals should have a license and a limit in terms of how many animals they are allowed to breed and sell. Exotic breeds should be banned from being sold in any kind of environment. People have far to little knowledge of them to give them appropriate living conditions. To avoid black markets, special licenses could be issued if certain conditions are met.
- Pets have to be fixed
- They should have to be evaluated to be sure it is adequate surrounding for the animal. Also the cost should be regulated to some degree
- Dogs and cats should never be sold through pet stores. Other small animals and fish should be responsibly cared for and bred before being sold
- Better back ground checks especially dog farms and poor breeding conditions.
- Ethical breeding, adoption options, rehoming of older pets
- Animals should come spayed or neutered. It must be ensured that all animals do not come from animal mills. Only animals needing re-homeing from shelters should be on offer at pet stores.
- Given the number of animals being housed by rescues, the sale of pets from non-registered purebred breeders should not be allowed. All animals, unless registered as breeding animals should have to be spayed or neutered by one year of age. All businesses housing animals should be inspected on a regular basis to ensure needs are being met.
- Provenience of the animal; making sure it didn't come from a puppy/kitten mill. Mandatory spay or neuter before the animal can go home. Mandatory education.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Do not allow the sale of endangered or rare species. These animals should not be kept in captivity. Do not allow puppy mills or similar places to operate. All animals sold should be spayed/ neutered and a background check should be done on the buyer to avoid known animal abusers or dog fighting ring operators from purchasing animals.
- Retail stores should not be able to sell dogs or cats
- Be fair to the animal by providing adequate space, stimulation, food, vet care. Can only have a couple of litters, then must spay or neuter.
- Ensure the animals are properly cared for in their care; do everything on their power to ensure the animals are going to a good home and will not be mistreated, abused, or used for cruel purposes. Reference checks and a qualifying process for purchasers of animals would be good. Checking in post-adoption for a wellness check would also be good.
- Healthy breeding, or just don't allow breeding as there are a lot of mutts who need homes.
- There should be accountability for where they get these animals. Inspections actually done and reporting bad conditions.
- Ethical sourcing of the animals
- Should be a responsible breeder or rescue that includes spay/neuter
- No puppy mills. Healthy and treated well
- Proper, clean cages, proper exercise, spaying/ neutering available, all pertaining vaccinations and tattooing done. You can't leave seller until buyer has a license.
- They must be verified by the city that they are not an animal mill. They are only wanting the best interest for the animals. Clean conditions, anyone selling animals as pets should be checked by the city of Calgary to ensure safe breeding.
- [personal information removed] I do not believe in hyper regulating everything. I don't think that model works well for European nations. I think our Calgary model has fantastic stats and is the envy of Animal Control over the globe because of its simple hands off simple "do what you want (number of pets, breeds you want etc) just don't be irresponsible".... the end. This is the best way to govern, anything. People don't need a million rules, they just need to be responsible for their pets and respectful to others.
- Stay out of it - other than enforcing laws regarding prohibited animals (ownership per federal or provincial, not per city bylaw) and care and condition of facilities and the animals
- Business permits required and breeders license...if it's a simple one off of kittens or puppies then veterinarians certificate of clean health...avoid the puppy/kitten mills
- Must have paperwork for all animals.
- [personal information removed] The CKC has a "code of ethics" that members commit to follow, including the need to have contracts with new owners, microchip all pups, and take the pup/dog back if there is ever a problem. I think those requirements for small scale breeders would benefit everyone. I don't agree with forcing spay/neuter but do agree that those of us that choose not to spay/neuter should have extra expectations -- higher licensing fee, maybe not being permitted in off-leash dog parks, and definitely having regular vet checks. FYI. I do not spay/neuter young dogs as I

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

do agility with my dogs and they do better if they are allowed to mature with full hormones (stronger bones and muscles) which can take more than three years.

- Proper care for the animals and responsible, verifiable sources for acquiring animals to sell.
- Ensure the owners are equipped to care for the animal and are capable of doing so.
- I think businesses should only be able to sell animals from shelters, and the breeding of animals should be strictly regulated. We have an incredible over population of animals and our shelters are overflowing, and people carelessly allow their pets to breed. It's frankly unacceptable that we allow anyone to breed their pets and I think you should have to have a license to do so. Unlicensed breeders should be heavily fined. Spaying or neutering should also be a requirement. I have spent years working and volunteering at a shelter and I wish more people knew how many animals come through those doors and how shelters struggle on a daily basis.
- Make sure the price is high enough that they aren't being bought for cruel purposes
- I think dogs should not be sold in pet stores.
- I don't think that retail should be allowed to sell cats or dogs unless they are rescued. Humane treatment and living conditions of the animals, while in the store, are extremely important.
- Mandatory training of the animal with set guidelines for when the animal and owner "pass" the course.
- Animals should be healthy, retail establishment should be knowledgeable about and meet the criteria for properly looking after the animal.
- Breeding/sale of animals for profit should not be allowed, especially from a private home.
- I believe so many of these issues could be avoided or could be reduced by regulating the purchase or adoption of a pet. If someone chooses to add a pet to their family they should be required to attend at least 1 puppy class or behavior coaching (in case of adoption done through owner to owner). This could potentially solve so many pet/owner issues including behavior at off leash parks, responsible pet ownership, etc. It's great to try and solve all these issues we have after the owner has decided to add a pet to the family, but in my opinion where there should be closer regulation of pet ownership should be from the moment a person or family decide to get a pet.
- There needs to be some way of transferring the registration to the new owner as a way of monitoring private sales of pets. Breeders should also have requirements to ensure the sales lead to city registration and requirements.
- Retail business should not be allowed to sell animals period. I would however, support adoption of rescue animals through retail business.
- Where the animal came from
- Be verified to sell.
  - Dogs must have a vet clearance and first shots.
  - Puppies are the proper age to leave their mother.
  - An amendment in the contract stating if you are going to breed your new animal later on you must go through the proper channels of contacting the breeder or another certified breeder.
  - Don't cross breed because it sounds cool (better regulations on minis or mixes)
- Safe and humane treatment of the animals

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The animals should be from a shelter or a registered ethical breeder and the person purchasing should be filled in on the duties and responsibilities of pet ownership
- Retail sale should be limited to licensed breeders with regular inspections and checks. No pet store sales.
- That the animal is from a proper breeder and prove it. They should only be sold through reputable, responsible, trained people. That the animal is not in a small kennel .
- where the animal comes from needs to be registered and regulated
- Quality care and not breeding for sale at place like pet shops- rescues only. If breeding for sale in small family sized operations I believe there should be limit on the number of dogs they are allowed to have for breeding purposes and that they live in home with the breeders.
- They should have access to a database of known animal abusers/hoarders and be required to ensure the purchaser is not in the database.
- Backyard breeders should be banned and fined for doing so. We have over populated dogs as is. They often breed dogs that have health problems or behaviour problems.
- Healthy animals with up to date vet records supplied with the animal to the new owner (animal maintainer). Animals should be electronically tagged by an authorized vet.
- There are too many unwanted pets. Pets should not be sold as a business. Too many businesses that sell pets are irresponsible and do not ensure pets are cared for properly. Out to make a $ rather than caring about their wellbeing. Breeders should have a limit set as to how many animals they bring into this world on a yearly basis. Better yet stop breeding altogether. Every pet should be spay/neutered. Too many irresponsible people to trust they will get pets s/n on their own. Support local rescues by adopting pets.
- Should be a fixed price.
- The business should be completely ethical in nature, not deliberately breed animals that will have health problems, and treat all animals kindly.
- no endangered animals should be sold
- As with all rules this is a tricky balance of intent vs impact. I think whether to neuter (FYI it's spay or castrate, not pay or neuter) an animal should not be regulated. Though if there was a way to regulate numbers of litters per animals that would sure be nice (not realistic I don't think). I have seen limitations on where, how and what kinds of animals can be sold work to reduce puppy-mill, kitty-mill operations, and could probably help with birds (or other exotics) kept or bred in compromised living conditions.
- Transparency.
- No retail sale permitted except of adoption and Ethical breeders that you purchase directly from.
- The person selling animals must have a license to do so.
- Spade and neutered animals should always be cheaper than unaltered animals. Exotic wild animals should not be sold as pets. Pet stores must provide sufficient space for animals to live in appropriate enclosures. Only healthy animals should be sold.
- No Puppy mills or private breeders which is the same thing. Dogs must come from an inspected and licensed place

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Must be spayed.
- Not sure
- No interference from the city is required.
- That animals came from a responsible breeder and not a puppy/cat mill
- Investigation and elimination of puppy mills. Maintaining adequate living condition for animals and ensuring care, including compassion by the shop owners.
- No pet store should be allowed to sell cats or dogs. [personal information removed]. It is a horrible business and encourages breeding of dogs from unscrupulous situations with multiple genetic and health issues. The only places that should be allowed to sell animals are rescue societies (that have passed inspections) and certified breeders.
- They should be licensed with somebody to ensure there is no conflict of interest, such as past abuse of animals. They should be required to provide full vet records for the animal, and if no records exist, a check up at the vet before sale. They should have to list the source of the animal, or the animal's parents in the case of breeding. There should be special registration for businesses selling exotic animals, such as reptiles, and no sale of endangered animals, as well as a guideline for what types of animals can be sold (for example, no sale of monkeys in Canada). They should not be allowed to sell to minors, or during specific seasons of the year (Christmas) without some plan in place for returned animals.
- Pet stores should not sell dogs or cats or rabbits. They should help rescues adopt them like many but not all do
- Should be a commitment and follow up to spay/neuter. Breeding should be a permit process.
- All animals should be in good physical and mental health.
All animals should be provided for and all of their needs met.
Owners should be screened to ensure they are not only educated but also mentally and financially prepared for the care of the animal.
- Ensure they are going to a home that is equipped to take care of them.
- 1) the animals must be well taken care of, given proper shots and dewormed.
2) I think animals not intended for breeding should be spayed/neutered as a rule.
3) I would love to see regulation over cat and dog breeders. To control disease, overpopulation and inbreeding. There is way too many ""backyard breeders""
- I vehemently disagree with the sale of animals and think it should be abolished in Calgary. Adoption and sterilization are so important and Calgary should lead the charge to help educate people on the harmful practice of breeding for profit.
- I'm not sure
- Certify and guarantee the dog was born and raised in expected circumstances. Same for the mom.
- I do not believe pet stores should be selling pets.
The breeders should all be licensed and pay business licenses and all should attend mandatory courses. There are bad breeders and backyard breeders who are not ethical or responsible and are in the business to gain profits and don't care about the welfare of animals. They should be fined and if they continue in other cities and provinces should be banned from owning animals and given large

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

fines. Good Breeders should be able to provide registration or parentage papers, be affiliated with local and national breed clubs or national kennel clubs.

- Ethical and healthy breeding practices. shelters to charge reasonable adoption fees
- They should do checks to confirm if people rent or own. A lot of rentals don't allow so owners might lie to acquire the pet
- People that sell and breed animals should have a business licence. Then maybe we would not have puppy mills. This would show they are above board and legit.
- I'm not sure. All of the pets I have owned have been taken in from someone who had to give them up, so I haven't thought about this.
- I would like the world to move toward the elimination of mill breeding, so if the city can be on board with that I support that.
- They are not illegally imported and no harm to animals happened. They were bought or raised by registered breeders and all paperwork is valid.
- Add not purchased/sold for food (that's why you have the owner register the pet upon acquisition and advise when the pet is deceased). If it is two weeks apart well then ... there is no current bylaw that really knows one way or the other why someone is buying a lot of rabbits (or dogs for that matter, or cats) and how long they owned them for. They should be accountable to 'why' the animal is being purchased and that it is in good care.
- None.
- Animals must be traceable to breeder with ethical breeding standards. Animals must be sterile at time of sale.
- Dogs and cats that are sold for profit should have valid proof of health, vet check and up to date shots. No puppy /kitty mills!
- Use registered dog breeders only for supplying animals.
- They MUST provide a humane environment for these animals, upholding high standards of care. No small cages for dogs or cats.
- Must be spayed or neutered. Types of animals must meet CITES and Wildlife act requirements. Make it consistent and simple (ie ALL must be licensed) and then it is easier to follow and also easier to enforce.
- Some sort of accountability for selling sick, diseases, unhealthy dogs.
- That the business is part of an animal care group/association. Should have regular veterinary visits to ensure good health of all animals.
- Make puppy mills illegal with enforcement. Breeders must be licensed and inspected to ensure well being of animals. Encourage adoption. Asd incentives to alter animals.
- Breed is irrelevant. It's essentially what race is to humans. Type of animal should always be regulated, I.e no illegal animals. Pet stores and puppy mills should be eliminated. Registered and inspected breeders, and rescues only would be nice. But there will always be people selling farm kittens and puppies, kijiji pets etc. But perhaps a fee to post a pet for sale on kijiji would help reduce poor breeders.
- Appropriate and humane expectations and regulations from animal suppliers.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Dogs and cats, at very least, should not be available for sale at pet stores. The availability of "pet store puppies" in Calgary is shameful for a city so devoted to and proud of our canine companions.

- Spaying and neutering. Making sure the business is ethical and treats the animals well. Checking if potential customers have ever surrendered an animal and why.
- clearly identifying location of origin. even split of animals for adoption/breeder animals
- Animals must be spayed/neutered at an appropriate age for development, no more animals bred than quality homes available, take-back assurance if owner is no longer able to care for animal
- Only sell rescue animals
- Animals should be certified as coming from an ethical source - ie, not a puppy mill. Animals should be kept in humane conditions at all times.
- They are coming from a safe & healthy environment. Animals are not abused. That the new owner is vetted to ensure they are appropriate owners.
- That is the pet isn't working out for the family the business must be able to take the animal back and re-home it.
- Its bad rules about spayed/neutered: new medical research find association of injuries with early sterilization
- Making sure they don't come from places like puppy mills. This area is so unregulated it's unbelievable. I originally work in the pet industry within marketing and the amount of shit I use to see is still prevalent. There are so many loopholes. If people are choosing to purchase dogs than adopt, then they need to learn to purchase it through responsible pet breeders, these breeders weed out people they see as unfit and that can eventually contribute by preventing a lot of animals from getting dumped in the first place.
- A business should be adopting out an akma
- Retail and mass breeders registration of each litter and vendors penalty against breeding or fine for each animal placed in shelter
- Only sell to those over 18 and to those who pay for their own accommodations.
- No wildlife (wolf dogs, wild cats), endangered species, diseased animals, invasive species.
- Ensure animals are ethically sourced and healthy. Most/all should be spayed or neutered.
- All businesses who profit out of selling animals should be shut down
- Not sure
- I am not a believer of early spay and neuter because of growth and health issues. A certificate
- All pets spayed or neutered prior to sale including hamsters, gerbils, hedgehogs, rabbits, etc. Ban sale of non-native snakes such as constrictors. Ensure any store that sells birds can provide certification of breeding in Canada so as to stop the illegal import and sale of wild birds.
- I don't think retail businesses in Calgary should be permitted to sell dogs and cats. There are countless rescues overwhelmed by # of animals available for adoption. Calgary should permit and limit the # permits available to breeders. I also think calgary by-laws should mandate spay/neuter of all dogs/cats except under limited exceptions (medical reasons, very small # animals for breeding -

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

require permits). Breeding permit fees could cover cost of city doing inspections and checks on breeders.

- They have full vet checks, the breeder has been investigated to ensure safe breeding and pets are spayed and neutered. They also should not be left overnight in a pet store.
- Animal must be registered and license with the city before possession, must have all vaccinations, seller must provide guaranteed certification of health and warranty of 6-9 months.
- Only licensed businesses that adhere to strict standards. Breeding should be monitored so that animals are not forced to produce more than 2-3 litters.
- Businesses should not sell cats or dogs. They should be sold from responsible and ethical breeders and from rescues
- Need to come from a reputable source that has been verified by the city. There are still stores in Calgary who are profiting off of puppy mills and awful breeders. Not only is this a horrible environment for the animals but unfair to consumers as they are unaware they are supporting an awful business. You should not be allowed to sell animals in retail. That should be left to the reputable breeders in and around Calgary.
- Animals should be neutered or spayed. No backyard breeding allowed. Proper licensing and monitoring of care.
- I don't think stores should sell cats or dogs at all. Partnering with rescues is all I can support in that aspect. Rabbits other small animals need to come spayed/neutered and have proof of a reputable breeder. Other animals should all come with contracts and come from reputable sources
- Any breeder breeding cats must have a business license and regular inspections. No kitty-mills I believe it's the rescue foundations that should only be allowed to go into retail stores like Pet Smart or PetLand to have their animals adopted.

Form a bylaw: when adopting from a retail location or rescue foundation the pet you pick is reserved for 24 hours-come back the next day to pick them up. This will cut down on impulsive decisions to adopt a pet, will lead to less strays and less animals in shelters because during the waiting period (24 hrs) it will surface if the decision to adopt was impulsive or thoughtful.

- The requirement that the potential owner has a license before acquiring an animal.
- No selling of dogs or cats in pet stores. They are known to be supplied by puppy mills. To breed animals, there should be licensing requirements. Cats should be mandated spayed and neutered unless for showing.
- where an animal can be sold; whether an animal must be spayed or neutered; the type of animal that can be sold; rules related to health and safety of the animals
- THERE SHOULD BE NO RETAIL SALE OF ANIMALS AT ALL. There are too many homeless pets in shelters.
- No retail business or individual 'breeder' should be able to sell animals. Only registered adoption agencies who comply with regulations should be able to home dogs. We have far too many animals who need homes to purposefully breed for desire. It's crazy to euthanize perfectly loving animals because people want a certain look. No retail pet sales for certain!
- Cleanliness sufficient space for the animals. Licensing when leaving the store.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The rescue operations are just as bad as backyard breeders. People should be allowed to ask WHY the animals are there to be rehomed and their medical history.
- The rescue operations are just as bad as backyard breeders. People should be allowed to ask WHY the animals are there to be rehomed and their medical history.
- I don't think retail businesses should be selling cats or dogs. It encourages backyard breeding and the animals are not being born in, raised in, or kept in retail stores in proper humane conditions.
- None of the above listed.
- Sale of animals from facilities such as puppy mills should not be permitted
- Pet stores should not be allowed to sell puppies, kittens or rabbits. Other animals should be properly housed and cared for while in the store, and not allowed to be handled unsupervised by the public. A full history of where the animal originated should be available. Full health guarantees should be provided for at least 2 months on small animals, longer on larger.
- Reputable breeders will not sell their cats or dogs in a pet store, therefore the stores like [personal information removed] should be shut down as they deal with puppy mills. Other businesses need to ensure their animals are bred appropriately and check on their living conditions
- I'm opposed to the sale of exotic pets such as monkeys. If retail stores offer pets for sale or adoption, they should be licenced and require knowledgeable staff as well as proper facilities.
- Animals must be healthy and humanely cared for at all times. Animals must be licensed at point/time of sale. Anyone selling animals must be able to provide full and accurate information about required care of said animal. Full provenance for all animals must be readily available (where they came from)--ESPECIALLY for "exotics".
- Who is adopting
Making sure it is a good home
Spayed/neutered as long as the animal isn't too young, that case they can give the buyers a free spayed/neuter
- Sourced responsibly. Veterinary records from breeder/supplier. Quality of life. Proper socialization.
- Where an animal can be sold.
Spay and neuter mandatory.
- Spay and neuter. Ensure (first time) owner and dog have MANDATORY formal training. The best dogs get put down because their owners don't know how to handle them. Also, some sort of pet ownership bylaw test. Half of these owners don't know pet ownership bylaws.
- Once again I don't think that this is the jurisdiction of a city bylaw. This is something that should fall under provincial or federal jurisdiction.
- No puppy mills
- Verify that any puppies (that aren't strays) are from LICENSE VIABLE BREEDERS. If not both breeder and store face penalties. Also all animals have high care standards and restrictions on how many can be in a businesses care based on proper care ability
- City should supply a clear criteria for the retail sale of animals based on the statistics they have and where there are gaps.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Have suitable buyers
- Be inspected by govt vet or other qualified persons on a yearly if not more basis to ensure proper care and selling and to ensure animals come from proper breeders.
- There absolutely needs to be a welfare check on the location and place that the animals are being sold to ensure that there are no puppy mills or animal abuse happening this is even essential in pet stores
- Rules to support the longterm livelihood of the animal. Background check on the purchasers.
- Ensuring humane treatment and conditions. Ensure owners are prepared and qualified to own and take care of a pet.
- They need to be a licensed business to sell animals, they need to have all possible information of the dog especially if it is a surrendered animal. Spat and neuter all animals unless selling to a licensed breeder.
- I don't even know where to start with this. Puppy mills are a big concern I think you need to focus on both breeders and retailers to make sure animals are cared for right
- Ban sales of dogs at pet stores to eliminate puppy mills
- Animals should be spayed or neutered. A basic course or questionnaire to make sure the buyer understands basic care of the animal.
- Only adoption of animals. No breeding animals for sale. All animals to be spayed or neutered before adopted.
- None. Get as many adopted/sold ad possible.
- Humane practices
- Rescue animals should only be allowed.
- They must be limited to local and high quality pet breeders. Although breeders need high regulations as well. They should POST where they get their animals.
- Regular thorough animal welfare inspection, similar to food health inspection. Regulations for where the animals are sourced from, including veterinary care and animal welfare at the breeders. Requirement of an interview of potential buyers to determine safety at new home.
- Dogs should not be sold in stores.
- I do not believe animals should be for sale anywhere.
- Animals should not be sold in stores in this day and age.
- Condo/apartment owners need some type of restriction on owning dogs. (Businesses should not be allowed to sell to non poperty owners.) One it is not fair to the animal. :( Two, a condo owner has no time invested in looking after a property(yard) but can walk out the door and destroy as many yards as they feel fit. Take a look at what is starting to happen in the downtown area along Eau Claire and the East Village. High density housing (condos/apartments). Do not even think about sitting on any green section of grass or bench. Even the park in the area where the old hospital was located is public dog washroom. It's a park that is over used by pet owners living in high density housing. I feel sorry for the non-pet owners using that park.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs and cats should be rescues only - not from backyard breeders. Pet stores also shouldn't be selling exotic pets when they are not informed of their proper care and give wrong advice to new owners. Ideally pets should be spayed and neutered to prevent over population but not at too young of an age.
- Must be neutered unless used for breeding
- They must follow strict care regulations, uphold high standards of animal welfare, ensure that all needs of each animal in care is met, including mental stimulation. Animals should be habituated to the public to ensure they are used to being handled and cared for by humans, and they should be kept in enclosures that provide enough space for the species and breed to thrive. Terrestrial animals and birds should be provided with sunlight daily, and should always have access to sufficient food and water, as well as medical care if needed. When selling animals, businesses should interview potential adopters to determine whether the animal will have a good home and the person is aware of and capable of performing the responsibilities and duties of owning a pet of the species they are interested in. Similarly, animals should not be permitted to be sold as gifts for another person, as that contributes to the population of animals that have been surrendered to animal services and the humane society, so there should be regulations in place preventing that. Businesses should ensure that they are attaining their animals from a reputable source, and they should not contribute to the illegal pet trade, or exotic pet trade. An information pamphlet on care of your new pet should be provided to each member of the public, and they should be aware of all approximate costs of owning said pet prior to adopting. Lastly, businesses should not be permitted to attempt to cut costs on quality of care to maximize quantity of animals in care (ie. Puppy mills).
- It should be illegal to have dogs or cat stores in Calgary.
The only way you should be able to buy them is at Rescue Shelters.
- Ban puppy mills, and any type of animal husbandry that is considered abuse to animals.
- Spaying / neutering contract.
Buy licence when you get the pet.
- I don't think businesses should be able to sell dogs or cats.
- fine as is
- They are healthy and cared for.
- Breeders need to be licensed and trained. I have been to people have inbred dogs or bred dogs incorrectly with genology that causes health defects. This include people who mix breed dogs btw. Animals should be sold either by a licensed pet store that screens for these problems or a licensed breeder. Both who have to be audited for safety and breeding standards.
- I believe in free trade
- It should be done through a city site or a rescue organization. Other social media platforms have no regulations and many animals are exploited and in turn cause more to be surrendered or abused.
- Dogs and cats should be spayed / neutered I'd sold in a retail setting. A person should have to show proof of Animal Licensing upon pick up OR the retail store should have to license all pets for sale and transfer the license to the owner once sold.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Retail sale of animals should be forbidden. There are far too many animals that die every year in shelters. Retail sales also encourages unethical practices such as puppy mills or backyard breeders.
- Limits on the number of animals allowed for sale to each individual purchaser.
- I don't know.
- No animal mills.
- ensure animals are healthy and treated nicely
- Sprayed, neutered a MUST.
- They must be well cared for during the whole process. Cats and dogs should be from a charity first, and breeders second and breeders must be proper and in good standing.
- background checks into the business looking for previous illegal activity
- License comes with animal (no license no animal)
Spay/neuter a must
Limit sale of trouble breeds (high adoption breeds, no need to sell pit bulls at pet store when always lots at the shelters)
- Do not take more animals than sales are reflecting. Rescue animals are encouraged to take and sell at a reduced price
- Treatment of animals is by far number one, sale of animals that are what they say they are (too many fakes on Kijiji), true country of origin.
- That a family be fit to properly care for the animal. That they receive the best education on how to do that.
- No 'dangerous' (ie venomous) or 'inappropriate' (camels, pigs, rhinos etc) animals to be sold or traded in any way.
- I think all animals should be treated humanely and not stuck in cages for many hours in stores.
- Animals should be sold from licensed rescue groups, or licensed breeders only. No back yard breeders, no illegal breeders, no kitten or puppy farms should be allowed.
- only animals from rescues
- No puppy mills, responsible breeders.
- Ensure that they are not acquiring dogs from puppy mills and that they are vetted prior to being for sale.
- The current system seems to work reasonably well.
- licensed & legitimate businesses only. Private sales should be vetted by a licensed vendor.
This only works for those that are doing this legally.
- Ethical ways to obtain animals- rescue or reputable breeder only
- absolutely no in store puppies. Encourage rescues, or list of reputable breeders that are certified.
- I think animals should be spayed or neutered, and the cost of the procedure included in the sale of the animal, to ensure it gets done.
- If you are talking about breed-specific legislation (BSL) then stop right there. Worst idea in the world, and speaks to the lack of understanding of canine behaviour prevalent in society today.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should only be sold by licensed breeders or Rescue agencies. I believe that they all should be spayed or neutered BEFORE they go to their forever homes or work with the families to be sure that its done soon after adoption. There are WAY to many abandoned unwanted animals that are stretching the rescues thin. :(
- Recall and fine if pet is not what they say it is. Limit number of pets in residential areas. Selling dogs should be a business.
- The animal must be warranted to be in good health at the point of sale and for a limited time afterward. The animals must be kept in a clean and healthy environment, which includes enough space and entertainment for the type of animal in question. All cats and dogs should be spayed/neutered before sale, unless specifically for the purposes of private breeding.
- Make sure they don't come from puppy or kitten mills. I think there should be legitimate pet farms that raise their animals with care for their health and well being without needing to be purebreds. They should be licensed and inspected and numbers limited to the size of their facility.
- absolutely no selling on kijiji/facebook marketplace. I mean, you imposed a business license on "short term rentals" (i.e. AirBBb) to cut down in irresponsible rentals. The same should be for breeders. They should only be able to sell in Calgary if they meet standards of provincial/federal regulations or agencies on breeding. I don't disagree with breeding ( i prefer adoption), but there has to be a way to cut back on back yard breeding and exploitation of animals.
- Um dont utilize puppy mills or similar. And fecal matter should be disposed of properly.
- Behaviour testing
- No animals from animal-mills. That the place they get their animals is a licensed business where strong care ethics are being followed
- I believe that the City should not offer business licenses for puppy mill operations.
- If the animal is sold thru a business/retail outlet they should have to have the animal spayed/neutered BEFORE the animal leaves the store. It doesn't matter if the animal is a rescue or purebred.
- that animals cannot be sold for commercial gain in pet stores.
- No business rather than a professional breeder should sell pets.
- Ideally only adopt policies in big stores (adopt not shop) and that all intentional breeding Should be regulated
- I think that business must encourage the responsible ownership of pets. I think that if people were allowed to return un-wanted animals back to the pet store they would be a lot more cautious about who they sold to.
- Not puppy mill
- A rule of where they can buy them from i feel is the most important. This would hopefully prevent the continuation of puppy mills and such.
- Define a business? Is it a breeder, a rescue, a pet shop, an online presence of any of the above?
- They must be humane, that's all.
- The above are great

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I believe that all animals that are to be sold are to be spayed or neutered not exceptions. These animals are to be pets not breeding stock or show animals.
- Difficult to control underground sales
Not sure how that can be done
- Humane treatment of animals
  - - individuals should be required to provide proof of vet health and vaccination.
- If seller is a breeder (ie. an ongoing business), then a license and/or permit to operate should be visible to buyers or on random inspections/audits by City.
- All pets should be spayed or neutered, pets should not be sold in stores and background checks should be done for owners to prevent cruelty to animals. People who surrender a pet should not be allowed to get a new one.
- Any association with a puppy mill is out of course. Spaying/neutering is important. Dog training 101 should be required. A pre-requisite course about the animal for first time dog cat bird etc. owners should be provided at the retail space.
- I would just want to ensure that the animals they are selling are healthy, spayed/neutered (unless specialized license for THEIR PET, but still must spay/neuter the babies they have). Animals being sold should have proper immunizations and up to date health status. Things such as puppy mills are VERY concerning and many animals coming out of them are not taken care of properly and have many health concerns before they are even adopted.
Privatized sale of an animal is also something that erks me - there should be more rules in place for people who want to get rid of their animals.
- humane treatment - only purchase animals from certified humane sources.
- It should not be allowed. How is [personal information removed] or whatever that pet store still allowed to operate? Get rid of these backyard breeders!
- Animal must be spayed/neutered. No dangerous breeds for sale. No animals bred deliberately to sell. Rescued animals only.
- I would prefer to not have businesses selling animals at all.
- None.
- I don't think animals should be sold in retail/pet stores. I think not for profits should rehome pets and responsible breeders should find homes for the animals they breed. A dog should never be sold at a store and I don't believe a responsible breeder would do that.
- Parent animals must be treated well and taken care of. Puppy mills should be cracked down on.
- No comment
- It would be nice to target puppy mills and crack down on selling those animals.
- Humane treatment. Spaying or neutering should be the decision of the owner. Again, the city should stop being so interventionist and dreaming up reasons for new bylaws.
- All animals must be spayed/neutered or agreed to be spayed/neutered if still young (with exception of a purchase from a reputable breeder with a contract for breeding). Ban on puppy mills, adoption only at pet stores.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals are kept healthy and in humane conditions.
- Be licensed, high standards of welfare and care. Certified vet work ups and checks.
- Rules to prevent sales from puppy mills.
- Not sure...??!
- Ability to provide for animals and keep them healthy and happy in the event that they are not sold without surrendering them.
- Spay/neuter
- I don't think animals should be available for sale in pet stores. By all means have rescue animals in stores to allow for greater exposure to potential owners, but not kittens, puppies etc from possible mills
- Pet stores who get puppies from puppy mills should be shut down and the puppy mills should have to pay fines so huge that they are forever discouraged! They are horrific and disgusting and every measure must be taken to stop these mills. Pet stores should also be heavily fined and monitored or shut down. ADOPTION IS THE WAY ALWAYS
- Ethical and humane common sense rules only. Do not require spay/neutering. I have interest in certain rare purposebred breeds and I might want to own one and keep it intact for the purpose of sending/sharing it to breed to preserve the breed. Animal rights activists are trying to ensure that laws are passed so that pets cease to be a thing. Don't assist them in this, it is ridiculous and shameful. Ok, we don't want the sale of tigers and some reptiles, spiders etc. Dogs are too important to people's lives. My friend has her chickens are emotional support animals and it's a wonderful thing.
- Over regulations just force it all underground. Access to affordable spay/neuter programs is critical
- Verification of origin re puppy mills etc
- Health and Safety! Must be licensed and the SPCA should have the right to visit the premises and animals. Health check guarantee from all breeders. A limit to the number of animals allowed to breed at one time.
- Inspections and monitoring for care of animals while at the business, monitoring and expectations for where animals come from prior to being at the business for sale, number of animals at the business for sale
- That they are healthy
- Rescue animals should be the only ones allowed to be sold in stores. Breeders within the city limits should have to have special license to breed in city limits. All exotic animals should not be allowed to be bred in Alberta
- No comment
- There should be regulations regarding breeding operations. I know a border collie breeder who runs basically an upscale puppy mill, churning out 50 or 60 puppies a year and weaning them at 3 weeks so their mothers will come into heat quickly again and produce more puppies.
- End the commercial sale of non-rescue cats and dogs, require all animals to be sold with a minimum 1 year license, and pre-pay for the animal's spay/neuter at a licensed vet's office (if not already spayed or neutered).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Federal regulations
  - No puppy mills
- There should be no retail sale of animals at all. Any animal sold should be required to be spayed/neutered.
- I do not agree with enforced spay or neutering for all pets. There are a lot of different medical studies that argue both for and against, and it may be breed specific for health reasons.
- Must not be an invasive species.
- All saleable animals should come from rescues, not breeders
- Don't believe in retail sale of pets from 'puppy' mills or any place that uses the animals solely for breeding.
  - Must know and have proof of origin of each animal, have staff with adequate training in care of each species. Provide daily enrichment and exercise. Restrict unnecessary handling and directly supervise all handling and interaction to prevent stress and injuries. Provide regular health checks and care. Require purchasers to take basic training and care course prior to purchasing. Require purchasers to license or register each pet at time of purchase.
- Permit and regular inspections.
- Understanding care required for the animal
  - Provide a health check
  - Require micro chip to identify
  - Required training for staff
- All animals that are sold should be spayed/neutered and offer a return policy (a return policy may ensure that people STOP turning their domesticated animals out in the wild!)
- Have to provide the buyers the source of the breeder along with their location and contact information. Cannot have more than 4 puppies on the premises for sale, just like individuals, for the well being of the animals in their care.
- Same as responsible dog ownership above.. limit of stock as in puppy mill etc.
- I stand by adopting and not purchasing an animal. When adopting the organizations work with the families to provide proper education and ensure that proper care will be provided. If someone wishes to buy an animal the same process should occur.
- clean, safe environment
- I don't believe that stores/businesses should be allowed to sell dogs and cats. It leads to impulse purchases and feeds the puppy mill industry.
- I think independent breeders who are licensed and inspected should be allowed to sell animals, but I think it should be against the law for pet stores to sell animals for a profit. I think it is fine if they have adoptable animals in the store, but considering there is overpopulation already, pet stores should not be allowed to sell animals at all. It would be nice to encourage pet stores to work with rescue organizations to help find adoptable animals homes.
- - Breeding only healthy dogs (must meet a criteria)
- - Return policy within a set period of time if the new owner has issues/problems with the health of the dog

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- fair market price
- cleanliness and health standards
- That the animals are sold through a legal business. Health and safety regulations are followed.
- Dogs and cats shouldn't be sold in pet stores period.
- The animals should be coming from fully licensed, inspected, certified, ethical breeders, and NEVER from anyone who can't prove their breeding facilities and/or where they got the animals. In terms of type, I think this should be determined by Fish and Wildlife regarding what kinds of animals are endangered, what present a danger to local fauna/flora, etc.
- Limitation on number of animals breeders can keep on their property in residential areas. Practice good hygiene & removal of feces. Provide veterinary clean bill of health at time of sale. Maintain business licensing requirements.
- I don't know, ask the professionals who work in this industry
- Where, who and what kind of animals. Spay/neuter would apply for pets that are not sold for the purpose of a breeding program. Regular welfare checks on breeding programs would be beneficial as well.
- That the information about the pet is genuine and true
- License, animals are vet checked, health guarantees.
- Not to support illegal or non-registered breeders
- That the buyers have access to breeder information, information about the parents and family history, proof of AKC credibility for certain breeds
- Cleanliness, appropriately trained staff, safe treatment of all animals, collection of full details of purchasers, primarily use rescue animals or provably acceptable breeders.
- Those allowed to sell are providing safe and clean living conditions, include spaying and neutering in sale.
- A business selling animals need to be inspected and where these animals come from are important. Are they vaccinated and do they come from out of the country. Out of the country should not be allowed.
- There are no cruelty-free ways to consider dogs/cats as inventory in a retail setting. Retail store should only be able to host verified charities and no revenue should be earned for the sale of these animals.
- Respectful breeding (normal amount of litters)
Ensuring the safe adoption of a birthing mother
Transparent practice
Fines for puppy mills and keeping offenders information in a database
Licensing (no kijiji/ fb marketplace etc)
- I STRONGLY believe retail stores should ONLY be able to have adoptable (fully spay/neutered) animals in their stores, especially dogs.
- I don't believe any businesses should be selling cats or dogs. But if they do, they should have a business license. the animals must be well looked after prior to the sale.
- Animal source from a non puppy/kitten mill

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I believe that pets such as dogs and cats should not be sold, and that Calgary should not permit the cycle of breeders. Animals can be purchased from the humane society. Cats and dogs should be spayed or neutered, and if breeders and private business are allowed to continue operating they should be able to demonstrate that they provide quality care of the animals in their possession.
- Whatever calgary is doing now seems to work fine. If people want pwts they can get pets. If they dont want pets they can not buy pets. No one can by animals like elephants except thw zoo. It isnt broken dont fix it.
- Calgary should adopt the best policies of other cities. There should be restrictions on the type of animal that can be sold, and where the animal can come from. Spaying/neutering is always important, to keep population under control. Seller should have a license to sell animals, and be aware of and in compliance with all guidelines and restrictions.
- Health of the animals, spay or neutering to control pet population
- I dont know enough to say as I rescued my pets and dont think they have the same policy as a business would
- Animals must be in good health, vaccinated, spayed or neutered; and must not be left in a business overnight alone.
- Health report and family history of health concerns from breeders.
- They can prove the animal was bred humanely and safely.
- essentially end any sales that are likely coming from puppy mills - unfortunately it seems hard to track with kijiji etc. only registered not-for profit or licensed business should be allowed to sell animals - bred or rescued.
- Difficult question. For what it is worth I have a fear/hatred of "puppy mills" and would never acquire an animal from any one who seemed to be running one. Same thing for rare birds.
- Spayed or neutered, unless you're a breeder and selling the animal specifically for breeding. Making sure dogs aren't from puppy mills. Rescues work differently, in that they have the animals fixed (if not already done).
- The animal be spayed or neutered
- no dogs or any animals sold at businesses if animals come from irresponsible breeders and of licensed and must be inspected through bylaw people first.
- The animals must be kept safe, healthy-vet checked, well fed, not overcrowded- whether it's a breeder, adoption agency or retail store. It is up to the business if they choose to sell the animal spayed or neutered, that is owner responsibility. Breed ban biased rules should not be imposed. The selling of 'exotic' animals should be monitored for safety to the public/disease assessment to native animals and environmental impact.
- Out door roaming cats must be spayed and neutered. Dogs in off leash areas must be spayed and neutered. Putting laws in place to avoid puppy mills or raising dogs for organized dog fighting. Known breeds that have a history of unpredictability such as pit bills need more regulation such as owners must have completed a certified course with the dog for behaviour training.
- stiffer regulations on breeders. shut down puppy mills and limit a house hold to two pets to keep people from hoarding pets. spay and neuter for house hold pets. paper trail for ownership of exotics

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- training? education on selecting proper pet for lifestyles . long penalties banning owning pets again for those who have cause harm/distress to animals

- Spay/neuter
- Ensure animals are healthy before sale, including responsibility for a period of at least 3 months for any potential health issues. Have a clear return policy.
- In good health. Vet checked.
In a public facility they should be from rescue orgs or certified breeders.
- Puppy and cat mills should be curtailed. Pets should be Spayed and or neutered unless sold to a licensed breeder. The humane society has a good program for interviewing potential owners. Perhaps pet ownership education programs might be a good idea. Could solve a lot of homeless, stray, feral pet problems up front.
- Retail sales of pets should guarantee a pet is spayed/neutered to prevent unwanted litters and prevent or at least limit the ability of individuals to breed their pets as a business.
- I am vehemently opposed to the selling of pets whether it be pet stores or online.
- Animals must be fed, vetted and cared for to the highest standards. I'd love to see screenings done on people buying animals but I know that's a lot to ask. Not too many dogs at once - extremely humane conditions and animals must have access to food, water and outdoor space to exercise.
- All sales are humane
- Spade and neutered animals should always be cheaper than unaltered animals to encourage people to own fixed animals.
- auditing by the SPCA
- Spay/ neuter before sold is mandatory.
- humane treatment of animals, not selling dangerous or delicate animals to unqualified individuals, providing customers with information on proper animal care and laws/bylaws about licencing etc., will refund / exchange animal if the owner buys it and cant care for it (within a certain period of time), not selling unspayed/vaccinated animals, provide customer with animal health records
- Proper care, food, water, clean environment, veterinary checks.
- No puppy mills/animal mills
Pet stores sell shelter animals.
No import of ""rescue"" animals from other countries, it doesn't make sense, and encourages spread of animal disease
- Require spay/neuter, license and microchip, shots up to date
- Verifiable health (clinic) records.
- I don't think retail stores should be allowed to sell animals. I think they should only have animals available for adoption within the actual store.
- Be partnered with responsible licensenced breeders or adoption agencies, if the business is caught using puppy or animal mills, they lose their business license and all the animals and seized and given to no-kill adoption agencies to adopt out

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The sale of wild animals/exotics should be banned. It's inhumane to keep wild birds, amphibians, reptiles in cages/aquariums where they cannot move, socialize or live in their natural habitat. People often fail to understand the requirements and care needs of these animals, or the long-term commitment required. There should also be strict laws and enforcement for breeders, and how often they can breed, and "puppy mills" should be banned. The focus should be on finding homes for rescue animals/strays.
- No cruelty of animals. Some socialization and honest pet history
- Must be spayed/neutered sounds like a good one, but not sure could be enforced. Type of animal - certain breeds should have to have inspection by animal expert on their temperament. No foreign animals - we have enough rescue animals in Canada. Restriction on number of dogs a person can own or have in a single dwelling.
- They register pets for owners to ensure it gets done ... they register all sales. All neutered unless special case for breeding
- Proper Paper work and vet checks to help stop puppy mills, stolen dogs etc
- Animals for sale should be raised humanely. Breeders should need a license. Animals should be required to be spay/neutered. Animals sold for breeding purposes should only be sold to licensed breeders. Inspections should be required periodically by animal control officers.
- Ensure they're either adopting out dogs or assisting ETHICAL breeders sell their pets for reasonable prices to RESPONSIBLE people. But I believe as a business they should mainly support adopting out dogs of all ages.
- Only ethical breeders should be allowed to sell animals.
- All of the above.
- There should be no retail sale of dogs cats or rabbits, seriously the rabbit population in calgary is out of control and pet stores sell unfixed young buns who either end out outside or at the humane society which is not set up to handle the sheer number of unwanted rabbits. Exotic animals should not be sold either if they were wild animals in their home country it is cruel to make them pets. Pet stores should work with local rescues to highlight adoptable animals instead of selling. [personal information removed] should be closed, they encourage puppy mill like conditions for animals.
- Licensed and regular inspections, proper cages/pens, not accessible to people unless supervised.
- Not from puppy mill, have a permit to sell. If litter was accidental then they can be given to shelter for sale with penalty
- Dogs and cats should be spayed and neutered unless the sale is done by a breeder and the breeder has a business license.
- I don't believe we should have any business's selling dogs. Non-backyard breeders, or rescue's only. No selling of animals on Kijiji etc. Do we really need to bring dogs in from other countries? We have enough homeless dogs in Alberta to deal with, without bringing in dogs from Mexico, Korea, US etc.
- I think that all animals that are sold must be from a humane breeder and not a puppy farm.
- No more breeding! A program to promote adoption events for shelter animals instead of selling.
- where the animals have come from.. this needs to be monitored a lot more close

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- animals sold in stores must be from rescue.
- Extremely strict limitations on individuals breeding animals should be put in place. It should be illegal to sell animals on Kijiji but I doubt the city can stop that. Backyard breeders who breed their house pets are extremely dangerous and contribute to the ongoing problem of overpopulation and abandoned or neglected animals.
- a properly licensed and regularly humane-society-inspected business (ie not a home-based puppy mill). neutered. all vet shots. licensing done at time of purchase. What about the role of the Humane Society pet adoptions?
- spayed or neutered should be mandatory unless you are a licensed breeder.
- Unless the animal is specifically sold for the purpose of breeding the animal is to be required to be spayed or neutered prior to sale. Commercial breeders not allowed within the City Limits
- As long as rescues, breeders, or sellers are meeting current bylaws for the care of their animals and are not breaking any other laws I do not believe the City should be involved in limiting owner choice.
- STOP PROMOTING STORES THAT SELL ANIMALS. Outlaw animal sales! Promote adoption! Stop feeding puppy mills. I wish there was no way to buy an animal from a store. Only a licensed breeder or an adoption organization.
- Calgary needs to take immediate steps to deal with dog trafficking and puppy mills. Strict licensing and regulations need to be applied to people who profit off pet sales. Instead of Bylaw officers chasing down owners over leashing or licensing violations, they should focus on pets for profits, where there are significant victims and suffering.
- I do not believe that retail establishments should sell pets that have been bred for re-sale. Pet-related stores should partner with registered not-for-profit organizations to host rescued animals currently up for adoption. This would benefit the business and the organization by helping more homeless animals find their family.
- n/a
- I don't believe animals are property and don't believe that they should be sold to anybody who has a visa. Obtaining a pet should NEVER be an impulse buy. I own a pet store and would NEVER sell animals in my store. No reputable breeder would ever put their puppies into those situations. It's shocking that this is still going on in our city.
- Personally, I don't think people should be allowed to sell pets. There are way too many animals out there that need to be rescued.
- They need to be legitimate and registered as a business and not a puppy mill and the animals need to pass a proper health and fitness check.
- I believe that animals should be adopted. However, if people want a specific breed,, they should only be able to buy from licensed AKC Registered breeders. No pet stores should be selling cats and dogs.
- Only certified/ licensed breeders or animal shelters should be able to sell animals
- - partner with rescues to find homes for animals in need
- -no selling from breeders/puppy mills/etc
- - proper screening of buyers (much like what happens when adopting from a rescue)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Must be spayed or neutered.
- spay/neutered BEFORE sale, no pet store sales, breeders must be licensed as a business, animals cannot be sold on kijiji/craigs list etc (including licensed businesses).
- Only reputable breeders should sell animals
- Breeders and stores selling animals need to be checked out and monitored to ensure proper living conditions, treatment and health of animals. Spay and neuter should be encouraged
- Ethical breeding, not over breeding, healthy, safe, vet checks, core vaccines, contract for spay/neuter in a timely fashion, no inflated pricing
- All should be spayed or neutered and microchipped. If you want a show animal you are not buying from a pet store
- Rescue animals only being sold in stores.
- No retail sales unless from rescues
- Must take care of all the animals needs, vaccinations and health requirements up to the point of sale as per vet recommendations.
- There should be NO retail sales of animals such as dogs and cats as there are a high number of adoptables that could benefit from the exposure.
- Use ethical breeders
- I think that animals should be spayed or neutered either prior to the sale or as part of the sale contract. I also think that breeders should be held to a high standard to prevent backyard breeding.
- NA
- retail sales should only deal with rescues (ie, ARF, ARRCS, Meow foundation)
- I am strongly against any sale of dogs or cats except from rescue organizations. There are too many dogs and cats looking for homes. All dogs and cats should be spayed or neutered.
- That vaccines be up to date, the animal be spayed or neutered, and that they are going to a good home.
- The animals must be fixed accept if sold for breeding and they should be registered as such, they must be vetted and vaccinated. They should require the new owner to purchase licensing prior to final sale with proof of such
- I do not support retail businesses that sell cats or dogs. Humane societies, rescues, breeders should be in the business of selling these types of pets. Other pets, I don't have an opinion on.
- Full documentation of the animal would be ideal, and a price cap as to not extort the consumer.
- knowing exactly where the animal is coming from, having a health certificate, rescues should always be spayed/neutered, selling animals in an unlicensed place and for private should not be allowed, only breeders and rescue organizations should be allow to sale animals
- We don't need new regulation. Simply enforce the current laws.
- Spaying and neutering for sure. And more due diligence on where the animals come from to avoid mills and illigal activity.
- You can not control spay/neuter that should remain to the pet owner, limiting breed is also a HUGE NO

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Rescues are ok but breeders need to sell from their homes where parents and environment of animals can be inspected by potential purchasers. And breeders should be licensed.
- Must be a sustainable source and not an endangered or exotic pet that might be endangered ie tropical fish
- i feel animals must be licensed by the city, have up to date vaccines and medications if any and should be fixed (spayed/neutered) if of age. I feel the retail sale of animals is OK but I think there should be modifications/inspections of the work place, staff, marketing, labor and pricing. I feel providing retail sales of animal shouldn't be allowed as we have shelters with animals searching for a home. by providing retail, these businesses feel they can over charge for pet purchases and not always guarantee the consumer satisfaction.
- That all animals/pets should be SPAYED/NEUTERED!
Outlaw and fine animal mills and irresponsible breeders.
- There should be rules around species that can be sold/owned (ex. cannot own a tiger, wolf, primate, etc.). Animals that are sold should be preferably from rescue organizations.
- There should be more regulations on breeders. Backyard breeding/puppy mills is a huge concern, these animals live in poor conditions and are often exposed to contagious infections. The Retail sale of animals should encourage adoption of animals that need homes, and not animals specifically bred to make money. Cats are also being bred and kittens are being sold on social media platforms and to retailers. There are thousands of animals who are available for adoption and need homes, and retailers like [personal information removed] are often selling animals from unlicensed breeders.
- I am all for pet stores that help pets become adopted. If pets were to be sold at pet stores I believe that the breeders should be monitored closely and have restrictions placed on them to insure the safety and wellness of the animals
- -must be spayed or neutered.
-type of animal should be limited (many exotic animals should not be pets)
-if a young animal, possible proof of a reputable breeding facility, and these places should be check on
- NO retail sale of animals in pet stores
- Must be an altered animal. No exceptions.
- There should be NO RETAIL sale of dogs or cats. I understand the need of livestock sale in agriculture, but no one should being selling dogs or cats for profit. There is no need for this in the city limits.
- NO sale of animals through Kijiji, Buy and Sell groups etc. No pet stores should be allowed to sell dogs/cats or any animals that come from breeders. Partnerships with local rescues are a GREAT alternative!
Any breeder must be assessed to ensure proper care and conditions are provided, they should be required to have a 'certificate' of sorts to prove they are reputable. Absolutely should be a limit of only one litter/female, and then they must be spayed. Must be able to provide documentation of all vet visits, and the vet must sign off on the health of the dogs used for breeding. NO BACKYARD

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

BREEDING. "Puppy Mills" and "Back Yard Breeders" need to have steeper fines and consequences.

- Do not buy puppies from Puppy Mills, maintain their health both physically and mentally. Only sell to good people.
- Dogs should not be sourced from puppy mills.
- I don't believe in selling animals for profit, so I'd love to see businesses in Calgary only selling rescue animals for a fee that covers the cost of their vaccinations, food, etc. I'd love to see private sales of animals outlawed, as well as commercial breeding operations.
- That the animals come from responsible sources, not puppy mills and poor conditions
- The place treats animals nicely
- I do not believe dogs or cats should be permitted to be sold from store fronts at all
- The sale of dogs/cats that are bred for sale should be banned. I support pet stores selling rescue animals. There are so many unwanted, stray dogs/cats in Canada its alarming. Calgary can help with that by banning the sale of dogs that are bred, I have fostered dogs from these breeding situations and it's not a healthy life for them.
- Proof that animals are not from 'mills' or large scale breeders with questionable ethics. Ensure the animal is allowed to be owned by person purchasing and that they have the appropriate set-up for the animal. IE: for reptile they can prove they have a terrarium. This could be because just purchased or photographs of set-up or discussion of needs and seller feeling confident the buyer is knowledgeable enough to handle animal appropriately immediately.
- No sale of exotic or endangered animals . Spay and neutering after growth plates are closed for non- breeding animals. Breeding animals should be registered as breeding and spay/neuter does not apply. People selling animals should have a license and be deemed a healthy/ethical provider of animals. This would mean assessing where they obtained stock as ethical too.
- My only concern is for the well-being and safety of the animals. So, they should be spayed/neutered; they should not be kept in small confinements; there should be zero "puppy mill" type operations where the animals come from; the money should always be reinvested into the animals' well-being before being re-homed, and into the care of future animals. I recently adopted a puppy from a rescue adoption event. It took three months of going back and forth to get my money transferred to a vet in Calgary, not an hour from my house in Airdrie. They promised things they did not deliver, and provided incorrect information from the get-go. With this sort of experience in mind, and the sale of the puppy I adopted, I don't know where the money went, but she certainly was not spayed when I got her, nor did I have the proper documentation of the vaccines she received. This should be a rule at the time of sale.
- Humane conditions in the businesses, practices in place to ensure animals are coming from reputable breeders, spay and neuter conditions.
- I don't think the retail sale of animals should be allowed at all. When there are so many beautiful pets looking for homes through the city and through organizations like MEOW Foundation and AARCS there is no justification for encouraging breeders and the sale of animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Dogs and cats should not be sold in stores. They should have to provide more transparency as to where those animals came from, and provide current proof of vetting (health certificate, deworming and vaccinations).
- Dogs and cats are not to be sold under 8 weeks old, and breeders should be required to provide vaccination details per specific animal.
- There should be no retail sale if animals
- Full disclosure on where the animal has come from- supporting rescue's and humane societies. Everyone else should be registered as a business or breeder, or surrender pets to the business and proceeds are donated to Animal Shelters
- No store should be allowed to sell cats/ dogs/ rabbits for profit.
I also believe breeders should require a business license in order to sell their animals in the city.
- No retail sales. Private registered breeders should be licensed and inspected and well as rescues.
- There should be no "retail" sales of animals. Especially with how many animals there are in shelters looking for homes. Spay and neutering should be mandatory for every animal leaving an adoption agency along with a microchip.
Families with children under the age of 6 should not be allowed to adopt a pet due to the amount of pets that are returned because the child became "bored", or the family "doesn't have time" for the pet, or they are "too much work", etc., etc...
Adoption agencies should be closed before and during the holidays when people get them as "gifts".
- Safe and humane.
- Stores only able to sell pets from organizations that rescue and re-home. Only reputable breeders allowed to sell directly or advertise without restrictions.
- I think people should NOT be allowed to breed dogs without being licensed by the city and having a home visit to ensure the dogs are in a safe space and have their needs met.
- I don't think any retail business should be able to sell dogs/cats. There should be breeders and rescue organizations. Nothing more. For small mammals, reptiles, fish etc. There should be regulations any and all business's should follow for the health and well-being of the animal and the number of animals they have for purchase at one time. There should also be stricter regulations in order to purchase animals from retailers.
- I do not believe puppies or kitties should be allowed to be retail products. Puppies and kitties are not products and usually come from a puppy mill when purchased for a store. I feel it should be against the law. I feel other animals should be checked in on by a regulating body to ensure proper care of all other animals.
- I don't believe pet should be sold in retail.
- There should be fines for pet stores selling animals acquired at "mills". I don't think you can tell a pet owner that they should or shouldn't spay or neuter their pet but perhaps there can be a cheaper licence fee if they do?
- I do not believe there should be ANY retail sale of animals. This is something that should be banned.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- DONT USE PUPPY/KITTEN FARMS!!!! Find animals in shelters that need homes. Babies only stay small for a short period of time. Many people give them up after they've grown only a year or two. Give those loving animals a home instead. They also need more space, how would you like living in a box hardly big enough to turn around in and be poked and picked up all day every day?
- None. City should stay out of regulating a business.
- Age of release to new owners so animal is optional health and temperament. Many release animals too soon from mom. Number of animals they may own for their business in a residence. I wouldn't want a dog or cat breeder with 4 plus animals next door.
- I don't think that people should be able to breed their pets and sell them for money. PERIOD. And if they do they have to be licensed and be liable for any health issues that are genetic that the owner was not made aware of. And no body should be breeding cats. there is a cat overpopulation crisis in alberta and its ridiculous that people are breeding cats. IF they weren't a dime a dozen people might take better care of them in the long run.
- The spay or neutering of pets is most important.
- Breeders must be licensed to ensure that they are responsible breeders. Regulations must be in place to ensure that the breeding animals have a human and quality life. Animals can not be used as reproduction machine, especially for female animals. It should regulate the interval between each giving birth and the age for stopping breeding. Have regulations in place to ensure that the animals who are not breeding any more lead a quality life. Breeders must provide an annual report of the status of the animals. Selling records shall be submitted too. Check breeders on site regularly to ensure the rules are followed. Animals are lives, not products, which can NOT be traded freely by anyone. Selling animals must be licensed and the individuals who are buying animals must be evaluated to ensure responsible owners to reduce animal cruelty and stray animals. We should speak for those who cannot speak for themselves.
- Pet stores should only be allowed to adopt shelter/ rescue dogs, cats , rabbits.
- Health and welfare of animals should be protected. Perhaps check if buyer is banned from owning animals based on previous complaints (background checks).
- Making sure the animal that they own it
- Spaying and neutering of animals unless the purchaser is given right to breed
- That the animals are healthy, spayed or neutered, and not from puppy mills or other environments that are damaging to the animals or their genetics.
- To quit bringing animals from the states and Mexico and support the strays we have here!! BARCS
- I don't believe retail sale of animals should be allowed
- Certification of Vet checks for animals health
- Animals should be spayed or neutered unless specifically chosen for breeding purposes. Potential owners should be screened for suitability as not all people are suitable pet owners (we wouldn't adopt out children without doing some background checks).
- Not encourage breeders. Only work with rescues to help with exposure. Do a thorough home check and f/u visits.
- Must be spayed/neutered and chipped

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals bred for resale are not sold in stores. Animal spayed/neutered before animal is 1. Exceptions should be noted example where surgery is too dangerous
- Businesses should not sell dogs, cats or exotic animals. They should work with responsible rescues to ensure they are not promoting puppy mills.
- Checking into the home situation. Maybe a short online class or seminar on responsible pet ownership or caretaking of the animal before sale.
Businesses should be regularly assessed and certified for their safety and cruelty free status in obtaining and keeping animals to avoid puppy farms, prolonged isolation, etc.
- Pet stores should not sell pets that were intentionally bred. Animals in need of homes (rescues, etc) should be adopted out instead. Breeders should sell direct to clients not through pet stores. Same goes for exotic animals and pocket pets.
Fish in my opinion are the only intentionally bred animal that should be sold in a pet store.
- I think only registered breeders should be able to sell dogs. There needs to be something implemented that stops promoting people to not fix their dogs.
- No business should be selling animals that were bred. All businesses who choose to sell animals are animal abusers and contributing to the cycle of violence against pets. Businesses need to partner with non profit organizations to rehome stray and feral animals
- Limiting live animal sales to only rescue organizations- retail stores should work with local animal rescue organizations
- NO store should be allowed to sell puppies or kittens. [personal information removed] This support unethical breeding and the owners care more about profit than well-being of the dogs. Pitching a puppy/dog, kitten/cat should be done by a reputable breeder or rescue organization. Not in pet stores or out of the back of a van in a parking lot
- Registered/licensed company. Signed contracts between business and customer. References from previous clients. Animals should be spayed, neutered and healthy. Business should offer to take the animal back should the adoption not work. No back yard breeders.
- I like that ordinary pet stores no longer sell cats and dogs. The rules seem to be good, as there is only one puppy pet store left in the city and it appears to be well run and it offers small dogs suitable for the city.
- Puppy mills suck! Animals for sale should be from a reputable breeder/owner, the animal must be spayed or neutered (unless buyer is a reputable breeder/owner), definitely the type of animal that can be sold...MUST come from a reputable individual! Commercial, big box stores should stop selling pets!
- up to date vaccination schedule for animals being sold.
- No business/retail establishment should be selling pets that have been bred for selling purposes. They should have adoptable animals with legitimate rescue organizations.
- This includes exotics. Unless the animal is certified for breeding by a vet, they must be spayed or neutered.
- Not from a breeder, unless the business IS a breeder, stores should house rescue animals only
- Proper care and treatment

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- What is the definition of business that the City of Calgary will use?
A preservation breeder should not be compared to a retail store who sell animals not should they be compared to a backyard breeder or retail rescue.
- Provide clear and truthful information as to where the animals came from, Forms with identification to deter unscrupulous breeders. Red flag and report to bylaw
- puppy mills are bad; crackdown on those?
- I believe that no retail store be allowed to sell dogs or cats that are not spayed or neutered and not from a shelter. I feel these stores contribute to puppy mills and do a disservice for shelters and Registered Breeders.
- I do not believe any animals should be sold in a retail business.
- Safety and care of the animals should be most important! Things to do with adequate space, sanitation, food, health.
- No retail sale of cats or dogs.
- Vet checked. Clean bill of health. Family history on the animals.
- If it's a business or breeder I think they should come spayed or neutered. If it's an owner rehoming a pet its understandable why this might not always be the case.
- I don't think you have any rights here
- Ideally people can report sellers if they sell an unhealthy or poorly cared for animal.
- that the animal comes from a responsible breeder (backyard or kennel club) - importance should be on the production of happy, healthy animals, restricting access makes it easier for puppy mills to thrive as ppl struggle to find places to purchase
- I don't think the city needs to impose rules. The market will dictate.
- -must be spayed or neutered
-Type of animal
-Breed
-From a verified breeder.
- Dogs and cats should only be sold by registered breeders or adopted. Sale of animals in a retail business should only occur if it is actually an adoption.
- know the source of the animals and health of parent animals and environment the animals come from
- I see no need for more regulations. We have excessive rules and regulations in this city.
- They must have compassion for the animals, not just see them
As a dollar sign. Ensure the home they do to are good homes Like the adoption places
- background checks
- Animals being sold are not coming from mills (puppy mills, etc.).
- Spayed and neutered, all shots given, chip insert. Same rules as the Cochrane Humane Society!
- Proper care of the animals, ensure animals are either fixed or sold only to breeders.
- adopt don't shop. must be spayed/neutered. No breeder animals sold at any retail store. Breeders should be investigated and licensed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals must be in good health
- To make sure they are following proper animal welfare standards for the animal being sold. Work more with animal welfare orgs to promote adoption. DO NOT work with breeders that aren't reputable. The city/ animal welfare orgs could work together in investigating breeders, those with top standards could be given a stamp of approval from city or animal welfare orgs, so pet shops and individuals know which breeders are best.
- No breeding facilities.
- This is a business that should no longer be permitted.
- healthy animals, not shady, making sure that the animals are treated well where they are sold.
- training on pet care for purchasers
limit on number of pets in store
- They should only be allowed to sell a certain # of animals/year and random inspections of the business to see how they care for the animals.
- I don't believe any businesses should be selling animals for retail. We have a large number of animals in rescue, they could be promoting rescue animals instead
- Businesses are not as much of a problem as Kijiji and the like who provide a platform for sale of puppy mill dogs.
- None
- -Mandatory Spay/Neuter 6 months for females and a year for males
-FULL knowledge of the origin of the animals acquired. (That they don't come from back yard breeders or mills)
-Mandatory class for first time pet owners
- No sales of dogs in stores, I work at a petstore and it would not be humane for us to sell dogs as we cannot provide a proper environment for them. No sales of wild caught reptiles, even if it hinders the sale of some reptiles. All corporations must provide proper enclosures for their animals, aka proper size, environment, food, etc. As an employee of a corporate pet store it pains me to see our small enclosures and I refuse to sell any animal that is not going to a suitable home
- Taking id and if possible some kind of check which most people will pass no matter what.
- No exotic animals, boa constrictors, etc. or dangerous animals that if released into nature could be dangerous or affect local fauna, flora. I would want them to be given a again, no animal should be allowed to be sold that is a risk to our
- If anyone is going to be selling animals, it would seem best for everyone if that person is 'licensed to sell', to prevent 'over breeding,' selling diseased animals, prevent inbreeding. Etc.
- They should submit to regular check ins and inspections to ensure no animal abuse is occurring. They should also be forced to show proof that their source they are obtaining animals from is a ethical breeder.
- It shouldn't be allowed. But if it is, there needs to be proof that these animals didn't come from "mills". I or the wild. Adequate care should be provided at all times and potentially taught to new owners. (mandatory class) prices could be fixed so as to make selling pets less profitable.
- Animals should be spayed and neutered before being sold.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should be properly and humanely cared for.
- I think commercial sales of pets should have to comply with the same standards of health and well being that apply to rescues like the Humane Society and AARCS
- They have to be from registered breeders if they are for sale not puppy mills etc. And if they are doing adoption have low adoption fees not where they also make a profit.
- No puppy mill bred animals, vaccinations up to date, must be licensed.
- Not allowed to sell from unethical breeders, should have a process in place to license ethical breeders and they must pass checks to maintain these. Must be a rigorous vetting process requirements to allow people to purchase animals
- Adoption should be encouraged for cats and dogs first and foremost and spay and neuter should be mandatory before cats and dogs are adopted.
- That they investigate where the animals are coming from. All animals for retail sale should come from reputable breeders who treat the animals with care
- No animals sold in pet stores
- Reputable breeders. Safety and health of the animal while in their care.
- I think it should be illegal to sell puppy-mill pups/cats and purposely bred animals of any kind (yes, even fish). No exotic or endangered species permitted unless for rescue/rehab purposes. Rescued animals up for adoption at a generally considered to be fair price.
- I don't know. A screening process for pet adoption/purchase.
- Health and welfare of all animals in this care
- ??
- Full support to banning retail sale which encourages pet abuse. Rather working with shelters to adopt and home millions of animals is preferred. Support to spay/neuter except where not possible due to health.
- All retail sale of animals should enforce the spay or neuter contracts if there are any. All dogs should be vetted and proof given to new owners.
- pets should not be given away for free, should be spay/neutered
- I believe Calgary should have these added. There are too many back yard breeders and irresponsible pet stores selling animals, spay/neuter should be made much cheaper and easier although I personally think it should be mandatory unless you have a license for breeding. Types of animals that are more specific should only be sold by licensed and reputable/responsible breeders.
- Registered breeder no animal mill pets.
- This is a difficult topic. Puppy (other other animal) mills are horrid places and is my primary concerns for the retail sale of animals. Is there a way to control the source of the animals rather than the retail operators?
- First, animals should not be sold in pet stores. Second, there should be mandatory licensing, regulation and inspections for ANYONE breeding a selling animals. And the current Animal Protection laws are a JOKE!!!!!!
- spay/neuter, maximum 3 pets, proof of licensing first

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They are able to show where they got the animals, and those breeders, etc. are willing to be contacted by city officials.
- Full health disclosure prior to purchase, copy of health records and vet contact info provided with purchase.
- I feel very strongly about this, stores should not be permitted to sell animals. Even my personal small animals- a bird and mice, came from responsible breeders and not pet stores.
- Dangerous or exotic animals and reptiles that a person cannot be reasonably expected to encounter on a regular basis should have regulations and only sold at a licensed retail business.
- Nothing that can cross contaminate humans ..... like SARS or Covid-19, for example.
- Safe and humane treatment and living conditions of the animals
- The business should be subject to random checks by Animal control officers to ensure proper handling and care of the animals is in place. The business needs to be licensed.
- They should be completely transparent as to where the animals come from, and should have to give that info when requested.
- The conditions that the animals are housed need to be regulated as well as the conditions that they are raised in.
- Need to be able to provide proof (history of acquisition in obtaining pets) were done under proper channels and regulations and with the right licensing. This, in order to curb unethical and illegal means of acquisition for profit. I want to know that if I'm buying - it's not derived from poor inadequate conditions that are not benefiting the well being of animals
- Prioritize and promote rescue organizations; limit breeder-sourced animals especially if there are already pet overpopulation issues (e.g., cats, large dogs, rabbits); limit exotics/non-native wildlife
- Registration and licensing at point of sale.
Spat and neutering should be mandatory.
- I do not agree to the retail sale of cats and dogs when rescues and shelters are overflowing. Adopt don't shop.
- Health certification / guarantee for at least a few weeks post purchase or adoption. Those being sold as "purebred" should be required to provide papers proving the claim.
- No sale of dogs or cats
- They should be required to prove that the animal has come from a reputable breeder. These animals should not be sold for breeding purposes in Canada, unless they are being sold to a reputable breeder. Personally I believe it should be a requirement to have the animals spayed or neutered prior to sale, or have the new owner contractually obligated to provide proof of spay/neuter within a reasonable time frame.
- I do not believe Anna levels should be sold in retail stores unless there is very good documentation of where they came from it allows too many backyard breeders to profit
- Puppies and Kittens should not be sold in a pet shop.
- Must be spayed/neutered unless bought for breeding purposes, in which case there should be a paper trail, a license to breed and a letter of commitment.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

All these if not done should result in fines, removal of pets, suspension of ownership, and jail if necessary

- Do NOT believe in Pet Stores selling pets due to IMPULSE buying and these pets ending up in Rescue situations. Pets bought thru responsible breeders DO NOT have their dogs end up in Rescue as most have a stipulation that if you cannot keep the pet you bought it should be returned to the breeder.
- Definitely do not limit dog breeds because someone thinks all dogs in the breed are dangerous. Certain animals could require license and proof of proper handling. Like reptiles. I dont think you should force spaying and neutering but it should be encouraged. Rules around puppy farms and abuse, and neglect so animal can more easily be removed from bad situation.
- The source of where the pets are obtained from is more of an issue than Pet Stores selling pets. Typically it's an impulse buy and dogs and cats shouldn't be sold in pet stores.
- All should be spayed/neutered and not dogs allowed to be sold
- I don't know.
- I don't agree that puppies and kitten should be sold in malls. They should be acquired through breeders or rescue organizations.
- Where animals are sold, who they are sold to, when they are sold (ie not Xmas). Generally agree with thoughts items above.
- all animals being sold should be spayed or neutered, especially cats. Animals being sold in stores should come from shelters or rescue groups.
- History so they are not running a puppy mills. Anyone not licensed to sell pets should be fined
- Proper sale of animals includes the seller being willing to take the animal back in event of the new owner being unable to provide the right home for it (behavioral issues, health). Not all animals should be spayed or neutered as a rule before sale - it's been well researched that dogs should be fixed after a year and not before now.
- Humane treatment
  - All animals are vaccinated, chipped and fixed.
  - Animals should be provided with adequate space and shelter.
  - Animals should not be placed in loud and stressful environments for the benefit of human bystanders.
  - Cats and dogs should not be sold in retail outlets.
  - Prospective pet owners should be educated prior to purchasing a pet. Their details should be checked and kept on file.
- Regulations should ensure that pets must be purchased from reputable breeders, not from puppy or kitten mills. Retailers such as Petland should be forbidden to leave their small rodents in open cages that anyone can reach and grab into. I have seen rabbits, guinea pigs, hedgehogs and so on at these stores constantly harassed and even hurt by grabby children and adults. The animals deserve protection. If a buyer wants to touch or hold a specific animal, they should be required to be supervised by an employee at all times.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Encourage more adoption and rescue, limit the number of places where animals are sold, specify animals that can be kept as pets, require all adopted and sold animals to be spayed and neutered.
- It shouldn't be allowed, the sale of dogs or cats in pet stores mean they came from a breeder. We have enough animals needing homes, it should be banned.
- no puppy mill dogs, only sell rescue cats and dogs in city.
- Properly vetted with a standard protocol of tests, up to date in shots, display of registered owner, and licensed which can be transferred when sold.
- Puppy mills or breeding in hoarding type situations should never be allowed or used. Ethical breeding only
- Dogs that are sold in Pet Shops are usually from puppy mills and backyard breeders. However, with online classified such as Kijiji, those dogs are sold there as well. How do you stop that? As for mandatory spaying and neutering, you're in dangerous territory. It is not a municipalities right to say whether an animal should be spayed or neutered unless they are adopted from a shelter where you understand that this is the case when you adopt. There are several purposefully bred dogs that serve many purposes in our society. This includes service dogs, hunting dogs, agility dogs, obedience dogs. There is also a ton of research now that shows if a dog is spayed or neutered before they are 2, they are going to have major ligament and structural issues. Again if it is understood the animal needs to be spayed or neutered for adopted, that is one thing. If you choose to make this part of the Pet Shop industry, I don't think that's a bad thing either. But you cannot say that every dog needs to be spayed and neutered. There is a finite genetic pool for purposefully and ethically bred dogs. The City of Calgary does not have the right to impact.

It would be better is to have mandatory business licensing and inspections for these so-called puppy breeders that sell Pet Shops and on Kijiji. That way come with your mandatory inspections oh, you can control how many dogs they have, that they are licensed and must be microchipped. And that if conditions at the home do not meet the minimum requirements for the Humane treatment and keeping of animals, then you can shut them down. This is a much better approach then trying to punish the end buyer. You have to impact these people that produce puppies for profit. I think it would be very important to have mandatory veterinarian inspections along with the officers and business licensing. This way you were impacting the supply chain of improperly and unethically created puppies. You can also continue to educate the public on adopting animals rather than buying them at Pet Shops and through Kijiji. You will always have people that will want and or need a purebred dog for a variety of reasons. But impacting the supply chain of unethical and sometimes Criminal Behavior, you can have better impact on the community as a whole.

- Dogs and Cats should not be sold in Pet Shops. Responsible breeders who are current members of Organizations such as Canadian Kennel club, which are bound by their Organization rules, should not be put in the same category as business who sell unhealthy, untested animals purely for profit.
- We MUST start looking into this more closely to ensure that there are no kitten or puppy mills. There MUST be proper space, care, and hygiene. Animals need proper exercise intervals, outdoor time, and should not be kept in cages. I do not even think that most pet stores do this.
- that they are going to a good home and getting the care they need

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Lower number of animals in the program, that all animals are getting exercised daily and properly cared for, that breeding programs be licensed to ensure taxes are being paid and poor breeding standards are being curbed
- No retail outlets should be allowed to sell pets. It encourages the behaviours the bylaw is trying to prevent - irresponsible behaviour. Making profit on selling a living thing is just wrong.
- Anyone breeding or selling animals for profit should be registered and licensed. Puppy=mills should be strictly monitored for the number of litters and breeding health of the animals being used as breeders.
- If an animal is going to be sold, I want to know it's healthy. If a fee is wanted, I want the animal thoroughly examined with sterilization and vaccines on board, etc. If an animal is being given away, that's the recipients choice to do the above. Businesses (including "backyard breeders" and sellers on Kijiji) should have licenses to be able to sell animals, so that license can be taken away at any time if things go awry.
- All animals should be spayed or neutered unless they are registered as breeding stock. An animal registered as breeding stock should be licensed and chipped, since the purpose of that is to sell the animals which then becomes a business.
- I do not know
- I am opposed to the retail sale of dogs and cats. Exotic animals such as birds, reptiles and fish are hopefully regulated. If animals are sold, I expect their habitations to be inspected, and kept clean and safe. Adoptable animals available through pet supply stores should also be maintained in safe, clean environments.
- - do due diligence research to ensure purchaser has no record of animal abuse/unlawful breeding etc
  - ensure purchaser has enough information and resources to give proper care
  - ensure all animals they sell are legally and morally acquired
- All dogs and cats should be altered prior to sale if not a registered breeder. Sale of animals from puppy mills should be illegal. Hard to care for and exotic breeds should not be allowed in general pet stores. Pet stores should be encouraged to work with rescues for cats and dogs as opposed to breeders.
- Must be spayed/neutered before sale of the animal!!!
  - Not allowed to advertise on kijiji or fb marketplace.
  - Must be a registered business for selling animals.
  - Business must ask for prof of income to show new owner will be financially able to provide for a pet.
- Ban pet stores from selling dogs, cats, rabbits, any wild caught animal. The known history and health of the animal must be provided. There should be a health guarantee with full refund of the original cost of the animal, timeline will depend on the species, but should be at least a month. Should be ok for pet stores to display/advertise animals from registered rescue organizations.
- They must ensure a comfortable environment for animals while they get sold.
- Must be regulated and licenced by city.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Must be at least 8 weeks old. should have a contract between buyer and seller to protect both parties - ex, health guarantee, non-breeding contract, etc.
- Up to date vaccinations
- Must come with a health certificate from a licensed vet
- Ensure that the animals are from a regulated and trusted breeder and not an animal mill
- Not sure.
- Spay and neuter all cats/dogs/livestock if not licenced breeder.
- I'm not sure.
- Certified kennels. Spayed /neutered. No exotic pets. associated to a club/association as appropriate
- It is challenging to respond to this question because not all pet stores sell "puppy mills" while some "breeders" are borderline "puppy mills". Some rescue organizations act more as "businesses" and "sell" their animals in pet stores, and sometimes even "import" pets from other provinces or countries to keep selling pets. It's an area that would need its own set of Laws or ByLaws.
- MUST know the breeder and that the animals are well cared for!!
- Sale of animals only by licensed & registered rescue organizations or breeders - no retail sale by third parties (storefronts). Breeders must be regularly inspected and able to provide registration papers for all animals.
- rescues only (people looking for bred animals should go to the breeders), all should be spayed/neutered prior to purchase
- That the animal is going to a good home. I think that the selling of purebred cats and dogs in pet stores should be banned as these animals often come from deplorable conditions.
- They should be a licenced breeder. Puppy mills owners should be fined.
- there SHOULD not be retail options dogs and cats to be purchased from a pet store. Rescues should ensure accurate records (vaccinations, spay, behaviour) should be issued at time of adoption. Ethical breeders should provide proper paperwork also
- Retail sale of anything but fish should be restricted to licensed sellers or breeder representatives only. Sales in "pet stores" should be prohibited.
- 1. they must be well-kept, not crowded and must be exercised with comfortable beds and some stimuli. Their environment must be clean. Good food.
- No puppy mills
- Licensed business that follows health and safety rules.
- Animals must have their physical and emotional needs met. This means clean, comfortable areas in which to live, proper disease prevention precautions taken, social needs and training taken into consideration. Length of time where the animal is expected to live in a kennel. Contracts regarding the breeding or spaying/neutering of animals and the time frame in which they have to get it done. Homes and businesses should both be allowed to sell animals, but precautions should be taken that the animals are being raised and sold in an ethical manner. No puppy mills, hoarding situations or large scale operations (meaning 50+ animals on a property).
- Slay and neuter as part of cost to purchase

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Retail to include all Sales that involves the exchange of funds, this includes animal rescue. Follow health and sanitary rules . Animal must be produced in Canada (no imports) AND each animal licensed to business that is selling them, the transfer of license must be done by new owner... you can then track how many of these animals come into animal services. Should these animals that come into services will be charged a fee to the person selling the animal...
If the boogeyman is actually the sell of animals then make them pay for it.
- No selling in pet stores. All sold animals should be microchipped before going to the new home.
- Pets should not be sold in pet stores, period.
Dog breeders should be more regulated (we bought our dog from a registered breeder and it was severely malnourished with multiple parasites at 7 weeks old)
Pet owner application should include an interview and vetting process, like the Humane Society does.
You should be required to take a course on dog ownership BEFORE you qualify to buy a dog
Individual sale of a dog should be mediated by the city or an agency
- Properly treated animals .
- Proof of origin, full vet exam prior to purchase with all documentation on display for the public, no financing allowed, a waiting period to prevent impulse purchases, a moratorium on purchases in December (and leading up to Easter for rabbits)
- All animals sold in retail should be spayed or neutered. I also think there should be a limit to how many animals, such as birds and bunnies, can be sold at a time.
- Ethical sources
- Spaying and neutering for sure should be done, no exotic animals,
- Animals should not be sold to minors, identification should be required to be shown when purchasing an animal to check against a list of people who have bans from the courts.
- That they are healthy, socialized and kept in a clean environment.
- safe storage and care
- I do not support the sale of dogs or cats from commercial retailers.
- Where it can be sold (not kijiji! or online ads!) pet stores or vets only - and they must be spayed or neutered by a professional --
- They don't come from puppy mills
- Ideally, no business should be selling animals - restrict the sale/adoption of animals to shelters, rescues, responsible breeders.
Given current existence of pet stores:
  - Must adhere to the Five Freedoms. Should be subject to inspection by officers who can enact the APA. Must also divulge the source of their animal stock and those sources must also be subject to inspection.
  - All animals in their care must have health checks by a veterinarian. Must be vaccinated/dewormed (if appropriate), spayed/neutered (if appropriate), treated for any medical concerns and cannot be sold if these are not met.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If an animal is sold and turns out to be pregnant and had babies in new home (which has happened before!), the business MUST take the babies back if the owners request it (instead of forcing the owners to have to deal with rehoming the babies themselves).
- Should accept any animals that a customer wants to return.
- Store staff that are not licensed veterinary professionals CANNOT give veterinary advise to customers.
- Where animal can be sold and to have a license to breed and sell.
- knowledge of animal care, ability to teach customer. pets should be spayed/neutered/vaccinated, where applicable. instructions/references for customer for when the pet becomes applicable. adoption questionnaire.
- Application processes.
- The animals should be microchipped for ease of return if the animal becomes lost. Adequate food, water and clean shelter needs to be provided at all times.
- Humane and ethical treatment of all animals, no puppy mills.
- The health of the animal, should be spayed/neutered, buyer must be required to license the animal
- All animals should be kept in sanitary and comfortable environments. When selling an animal one should ensure the purchaser has everything they need to care for it.
- The animals must originate from humane breeders. Vet checks are required before sale and reports provided to the purchaser
- To make sure/follow up that pets are spayed or neutered by a certain age or soon after reaching maturity. That people who sell pets are licensed to breed and sell animals.
- Too complex to answer. Puppy mills are evil.
- I think animals should only come from reputable sources. This includes small rodents and fish. We all know about puppy mills but I think these animals should never be bred and raised in bad conditions for profit.
- Animals must be spayed or neutered.
No killing or harming of animals.
They must provide information on proper care, licensing, etc.
Animals must be kept in a clean and appropriate environment for their size and health.
Infant animals should not be separated from their mothers until they are mature enough to be.
- Since retail sales of animals breed puppy mills, it should not be allowed
- Extremely important that the animals are kept in good condition. It is important to ensure that the business owners are not just focused on the money and cut corners. Also ensure the animals come from reputable breeding.
- Vet checks, certificate of health, spay neuter before going home
- I think it's important that a business that sells animals can ensure it came from a reputable source. Dogs from puppy mills are more likely to have behavioural issues which places an added burden on both citizens and the City/Shelters.
- The only issue with limiting the acquisition of pets is that it goes underground, which is harder to regulate. We need to look to best practice (for example, what does Humane Canada say about

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

this?). Having worked in a pet store I know many people lack the knowledge to property care for exotics, so perhaps those limitations.

- They come from a reputable breeder that is licensed and regulated.
- rescue animals only for retail businesses.
- agriculture Canada , responsible breeders , this is a slippery slope I don't think the city needs to be involved in ... rehoming should be easier then it is ... EDUCATION on what and who to buy from should also be more available . responsible breeders are a good thing!!
- this is a very wide ranging topic, that would require much more space then this.
- No kijiji or online sales for any animal or living thing!!!
- it should be complex with safety and perpetual care of the animals.
- Supporting ethical breeders and rescues. No puppy/kitty mills. Clean bill of health.
- When sold they should inform animal services with the name of the new owner
- No retail stores for dogs.
  - no reg. for temperaments
  - consequences for bylaw sick dog -> ""lemon law""
- - against
  - no control of health control temperment like?
  - consequences when buying pet why buyer is responsible for the vet bills on puppy
  - Define what a business is first - retail outlet different than occasional breeder
  - Rescue - retail rescue vs true rescue - Define?
  - Spaying/neutering should be owner's responsibility
    - not related to retail sale
- Pets shouldn't be sold in petshops anymore. I'd like to see uit all go through an agency, like the Humane Society. They should be pre-approved by the authorities. Health safety limits # of animals in a location. Taking good care of animals. Safety of animals needs to be enforced.
- - want to know history and health
  - training
  - type of breed
  - Animals should be spayed or neutered
  - know the breed
- up to date vaccination schedule for animals being sold.
- Responsible breeding practices
- No business/retail establishment should be selling pets that have been breed for selling purposed. They should have adoptable animals with legitimate rescue organizations.
- This includes exotics. Unless the animal is certified for breeding by a vet, they must be spayed or neutered.
- Not from a breeder, unless the business IS a breeder, stores should house rescue animals only
- Proper care and treatment

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- What is the definition of business that the City of Calgary will use?
A preservation breeder should not be compared to a retail store who sell animals not should they be compared to a backyard breeder or retail rescue.
- Provide clear and truthful information as to where the animals came from, Forms with identification to deter unscrupulous breeders. Red flag and report to bylaw
- They do a background check on the person buying the pet. Repeat animal abusers should not be allowed pets.
- puppy mills are bad; crackdown on those?
- I believe that no retail store be allowed to sell dogs or cats that are not spayed or neutered and not from a shelter. I feel these stores contribute to puppy mills and do a disservice for shelters and Registered Breeders.
- I do not believe any animals should be sold in a retail business.
- Safety and care of the animals should be most important! Things to do with adequate space, sanitation, food, health.
- No retail sale of cats or dogs.
- Vet checked. Clean bill of health. Family history on the animals.
- I would like the retail sale of pets to be banned entirely. Calgary has several excellent pet rescue organizations which can fulfill the need of supply families with pets, including kittens and puppies. All pets sold or adopted in calgary should be required to be desexed.
I would like wild caught fish / all fish retails stores closed down as these animals do not belong in tanks. As well, most are wild caught - removing them from the ocean or lake ecosystem has far reaching affects that consumers do not understand.
- If it's a business or breeder I think they should come spayed or neutered. If it's an owner rehoming a pet its understandable why this might not always be the case.
- I don't think you have any rights here
- Ideally people can report sellers if they sell an unhealthy or poorly cared for animal.
- that the animal comes from a responsible breeder (backyard or kennel club) - importance should be on the production of happy, healthy animals, restricting access makes it easier for puppy mills to thrive as ppl struggle to find places to purchase
- I don't think the city needs to impose rules. The market will dictate.
- -must be spayed or neutered
-Type of animal
-Breed
-From a verified breeder.
- Dogs and cats should only be sold by registered breeders or adopted. Sale of animals in a retail business should only occur if it is actually an adoption.
- know the source of the animals and health of parent animals and environment the animals come from
- I see no need for more regulations. We have excessive rules and regulations in this city.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They must have compassion for the animals, not just see them
As a dollar sign. Ensure the home they do to are good homes Like the adoption places
- background checks
- Animals being sold are not coming from mills (puppy mills, etc.).
- Spayed and neutered, all shots given, chip insert. Same rules as the Cochrane Humane Society!
- Proper care of the animals, ensure animals are either fixed or sold only to breeders.
- adopt don't shop. must be spayed/neutered. No breeder animals sold at any retail store. Breeders should be investigated and licensed.
- Purchasers must be made aware of medical condition of pet - checked by veterinarian and any medical conditions disclosed.
- Animals must be in good health
- To make sure they are following proper animal welfare standards for the animal being sold. Work more with animal welfare orgs to promote adoption. DO NOT work with breeders that aren't reputable. The city/ animal welfare orgs could work together in investigating breeders, those with top standards could be given a stamp of approval from city or animal welfare orgs, so pet shops and individuals know which breeders are best.
- No breeding facilities.
- This is a business that should no longer be permitted.
- Spayed or neutered. The source of the animal should be strongly regulated. Rescue animals should be promoted and if we make it rewarding for businesses to choose rescues over breeders that would be positive!
- healthy animals, not shady, making sure that the animals are treated well where they are sold.
- training on pet care for purchasers
limit on number of pets in store
- The City has the opportunity to require the retail sale of animals to be rescue animals from reputable rescue organizations.
- They should only be allowed to sell a certain # of animals/year and random inspections of the business to see how they care for the animals.
- I don't believe any businesses should be selling animals for retail. We have a large number of animals in rescue, they could be promoting rescue animals instead
- No puppies or kittens under 6 months of age. Vet check not allowing the animal to linger all day in a kennel.
- -the source of these animals should be ethical (e.g. no puppy mills)
-the type of animals sold (some exotic fish are released into the wild creating problems for native species).
- Businesses are not as much of a problem as Kijiji and the like who provide a platform for sale of puppy mill dogs.
- None
- -Mandatory Spay/Neuter 6 months for females and a year for males

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

-FULL knowledge of the origin of the animals acquired. (That they don't come from back yard breeders or mills)

-Mandatory class for first time pet owners

- No sales of dogs in stores, I work at a petstore and it would not be humane for us to sell dogs as we cannot provide a proper environment for them. No sales of wild caught reptiles, even if it hinders the sale of some reptiles. All corporations must provide proper enclosures for their animals, aka proper size, environment, food, etc. As an employee of a corporate pet store it pains me to see our small enclosures and I refuse to sell any animal that is not going to a suitable home
- Spay or neuter before cats or dogs are bought.
- Specific breeds to require enhanced rules - aggressive breeds require more training, insurance . These dogs need to be properly trained.
- I don't think dogs and cats should be sold. There are enough rescue animals that the breeding of animals is unnecessary. Adopt don't shop. If this is not going to be followed, which I doubt it will, then a portion of the sale of each animal should go to the City pound or SPCA or other charitable animal organization to support them since they are contributing to the problem
- Taking ID and if possible some kind of check which most people will pass no matter what.
- No exotic animals, boa constrictors, etc. or dangerous animals that if released into nature could be dangerous or affect local fauna, flora. I would want them to be given a second home, no animal should be allowed to be sold that is a risk to our
- If anyone is going to be selling animals, it would seem best for everyone if that person is 'licensed to sell', to prevent 'over breeding,' selling diseased animals, prevent inbreeding. Etc.
- They should submit to regular check ins and inspections to ensure no animal abuse is occurring. They should also be forced to show proof that their source they are obtaining animals from is an ethical breeder.
- It shouldn't be allowed. But if it is, there needs to be proof that these animals didn't come from "mills". I or the wild. Adequate care should be provided at all times and potentially taught to new owners. (mandatory class) prices could be fixed so as to make selling pets less profitable.
- Proof of Health checks, The business should have regular inspections to ensure the animals are properly cared for and be able to show proof of where the animals came from whether they are rescues or puppy/kittens purchased from breeders. - Breeders should also be subjected to inspections.
- Animals should be spayed and neutered before being sold.
- Animals should be properly and humanely cared for.
- I think commercial sales of pets should have to comply with the same standards of health and well being that apply to rescues like the Humane Society and AARCS
- They have to be from registered breeders if they are for sale not puppy mills etc. And if they are doing adoption have low adoption fees not where they also make a profit.
- No puppy mill bred animals, vaccinations up to date, must be licensed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not allowed to sell from unethical breeders, should have a process in place to license ethical breeders and they must pass checks to maintain these. Must be a rigorous vetting process requirements to allow people to purchase animals
- Adoption should be encouraged for cats and dogs first and foremost and spay and neuter should be mandatory before cats and dogs are adopted.
- That they investigate where the animals are coming from. All animals for retail sale should come from reputable breeders who treat the animals with care
- No animals sold in pet stores
- Reputable breeders. Safety and health of the animal while in their care.
- I think it should be illegal to sell puppy-mill pups/cats and purposely bred animals of any kind (yes, even fish). No exotic or endangered species permitted unless for rescue/rehab purposes. Rescued animals up for adoption at a generally considered to be fair price.
- I don't know. A screening process for pet adoption/purchase.
- Make sure no puppy mills.
- Health and welfare of all animals in this care
- ??
- I don't agree with retail of animals.
- Full support to banning retail sale which encourages pet abuse. Rather working with shelters to adopt and home millions of animals is preferred. Support to spay/neuter except where not possible due to health.
- All retail sale of animals should enforce the spay or neuter contracts if there are any. All dogs should be vetted and proof given to new owners.
- Animals need to be from a responsible licensed breeder or rescue.
- No animal for sale should ever come from a puppy mill! Only rescued dogs should be for sale. All animals must be spayed/neutered and private breeders should have to hold special certification in animal husbandry before breeding is allowed.
- Licensed business...paperwork showing acquisition and ownership...pricing in line with three market...health records for the animal..current vet sign off
- pets should not be given away for free, should be spay/neutered
- I believe Calgary should have these added. There are too many back yard breeders and irresponsible pet stores selling animals, spay/neuter should be made much cheaper and easier although I personally think it should be mandatory unless you have a license for breeding. Types of animals that are more specific should only be sold by licensed and reputable/responsible breeders.
- Registered breeder no animal mill pets.
- This is a difficult topic. Puppy (other other animal) mills are horrid places and is my primary concerns for the retail sale of animals. Is there a way to control the source of the animals rather than the retail operators?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- First, animals should not be sold in pet stores. Second, there should be mandatory licensing, regulation and inspections for ANYONE breeding a selling animals. And the current Animal Protection laws are a JOKE!!!!!!!
- Not be sold in a pet store [personal information removed]. Spaying and neutering is important but there needs to flexibility on age of animal when done and the ability for an individual to not spay or neuter depending on health risks and breeding.
- spay/neuter, maximum 3 pets, proof of licensing first
- They are able to show where they got the animals, and those breeders, etc. are willing to be contacted by city officials.
- Full health disclosure prior to purchase, copy of health records and vet contact info provided with purchase.
- I feel very strongly about this, stores should not be permitted to sell animals. Even my personal small animals- a bird and mice, came from responsible breeders and not pet stores.
- Dangerous or exotic animals and reptiles that a person cannot be reasonably expected to encounter on a regular basis should have regulations and only sold at a licensed retail business.
- Nothing that can cross contaminate humans ..... like SARS or Covid-19, for example.
- Bio-security, have the dogs been screened for diseases/parasites that are prevalent in the areas that they come from, i.e. heart worm. Health of the animal. Have the had vet checks/screening for genetic disease. I'm opposed to the sale of animals in pet stores but believe rescues should be able to have remote adoption locations.
- Safe and humane treatment and living conditions of the animals
- The business should be subject to random checks by Animal control officers to ensure proper handling and care of the animals is in place. The business needs to be licensed.
- Animals should be spayed/neutered; restrictions on types of animals sold (ie: endangered species should not be allowed to be sold to general public); animals should be in good health; animals should not be allowed to be sold without permits (ie: backyard breeders). I think there should also be some kind of registry for people who have been charged with or convicted of animal cruelty in the past, and they should maybe need to go through screening before they are allowed to purchase/adopt more animals in the future.
- They should be completely transparent as to where the animals come from, and should have to give that info when requested.
- There should be NO retail sale of live animals. I have no problem with a pet retail partnering with a certified rescue to have pets for adoption on site
- The conditions that the animals are housed need to be regulated as well as the conditions that they are raised in.
- Need to be able to provide proof (history of acquisition in obtaining pets) were done under proper channels and regulations and with the right licensing. This, in order to curb unethical and illegal means of acquisition for profit. I want to know that if I'm buying - it's not derived from poor inadequate conditions that are not benefiting the well being of animals

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Prioritize and promote rescue organizations; limit breeder-sourced animals especially if there are already pet overpopulation issues (e.g., cats, large dogs, rabbits); limit exotics/non-native wildlife
- Registration and licensing at point of sale.
Spat and neutering should be mandatory.
- I do not agree to the retail sale of cats and dogs when rescues and shelters are overflowing. Adopt don't shop.
- Health certification / guarantee for at least a few weeks post purchase or adoption. Those being sold as "purebred" should be required to provide papers proving the claim.
- No sale of dogs or cats
- They should be required to prove that the animal has come from a reputable breeder. These animals should not be sold for breeding purposes in Canada, unless they are being sold to a reputable breeder. Personally I believe it should be a requirement to have the animals spayed or neutered prior to sale, or have the new owner contractually obligated to provide proof of spay/neuter within a reasonable time frame.
- I do not believe Anna levels should be sold in retail stores unless there is very good documentation of where they came from it allows too many backyard breeders to profit
- Puppies and Kittens should not be sold in a pet shop.
- Must be spayed/neutered unless bought for breeding purposes, in which case there should be a paper trail, a license to breed and a letter of commitment.
All these if not done should result in fines, removal of pets, suspension of ownership, and jail if necessary
- Do NOT sell at a retail business. Do NOT import "rescue" dogs. Do NOT force a dog to be neutered/spayed prior to growth plates being closed as per the recommendation of numerous studies.
- Do NOT believe in Pet Stores selling pets due to IMPULSE buying and these pets ending up in Rescue situations. Pets bought thru responsible breeders DO NOT have their dogs end up in Rescue as most have a stipulation that if you cannot keep the pet you bought it should be returned to the breeder.
- Definitely do not limit dog breeds because someone thinks all dogs in the breed are dangerous. Certain animals could require license and proof of proper handling. Like reptiles.
I don't think you should force spaying and neutering but it should be encouraged.
Rules around puppy farms and abuse, and neglect so animal can more easily be removed from bad situation.
- The source of where the pets are obtained from is more of an issue than Pet Stores selling pets. Typically it's an impulse buy and dogs and cats shouldn't be sold in pet stores.
- All should be spayed/neutered and not dogs allowed to be sold
- I don't know.
- I don't agree that puppies and kitten should be sold in malls. They should be acquired through breeders or rescue organizations.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Where animals are sold, who they are sold to, when they are sold (ie not Xmas). Generally agree with thoughts items above.
- all animals being sold should be spayed or neutered, especially cats. Animals being sold in stores should come from shelters or rescue groups.
- History so they are not running a puppy mills. Anyone not licensed to sell pets should be fined
- Proper sale of animals includes the seller being willing to take the animal back in event of the new owner being unable to provide the right home for it (behavioral issues, health). Not all animals should be spayed or neutered as a rule before sale - it's been well researched that dogs should be fixed after a year and not before now.
- Humane treatment
  - - All animals are vaccinated, chipped and fixed.
  - Animals should be provided with adequate space and shelter.
  - Animals should not be placed in loud and stressful environments for the benefit of human bystanders.
  - Cats and dogs should not be sold in retail outlets.
  - Prospective pet owners should be educated prior to purchasing a pet. Their details should be checked and kept on file.
- Regulations should ensure that pets must be purchased from reputable breeders, not from puppy or kitten mills. Retailers such as Petland should be forbidden to leave their small rodents in open cages that anyone can reach and grab into. I have seen rabbits, guinea pigs, hedgehogs and so on at these stores constantly harassed and even hurt by grabby children and adults. The animals deserve protection. If a buyer wants to touch or hold a specific animal, they should be required to be supervised by an employee at all times.
- Encourage more adoption and rescue, limit the number of places where animals are sold, specify animals that can be kept as pets, require all adopted and sold animals to be spayed and neutered.
- That the pets are kept in good conditions and socialized well before sale. That customers are vetted to be responsible pet owners.
- It shouldn't be allowed, the sale of dogs or cats in pet stores mean they came from a breeder. We have enough animals needing homes, it should be banned.
- Humane treatment of animals.
  - Published/registered plan of the life cycle of their stock including disposition of unsold merchandise.
- Proper certification for the supplier of the animals for sale. Investigate the person purchasing the animal. Must purchase the proper license.
- no puppy mill dogs, only sell rescue cats and dogs in city.
- Properly vetted with a standard protocol of tests, up to date in shots, display of registered owner, and licensed which can be transferred when sold.
- Puppy mills or breeding in hoarding type situations should never be allowed or used. Ethical breeding only
- Dogs that are sold in Pet Shops are usually from puppy mills and backyard breeders. However, with online classified such as Kijiji, those dogs are sold there as well. How do you stop that? As for

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

mandatory spaying and neutering, you're in dangerous territory. It is not a municipalities right to say whether an animal should be spayed or neutered unless they are adopted from a shelter where you understand that this is the case when you adopt. There are several purposefully bred dogs that serve many purposes in our society. This includes service dogs, hunting dogs, agility dogs, obedience dogs. There is also a ton of research now that shows if a dog is spayed or neutered before they are 2, they are going to have major ligament and structural issues. Again if it is understood the animal needs to be spayed or neutered for adopted, that is one thing. If you choose to make this part of the Pet Shop industry, I don't think that's a bad thing either. But you cannot say that every dog needs to be spayed and neutered. There is a finite genetic pool for purposefully and ethically bred dogs. The City of Calgary does not have the right to impact.

It would be better is to have mandatory business licensing and inspections for these so-called puppy breeders that sell Pet Shops and on Kijiji. That way come with your mandatory inspections oh, you can control how many dogs they have, that they are licensed and must be microchipped. And that if conditions at the home do not meet the minimum requirements for the Humane treatment and keeping of animals, then you can shut them down. This is a much better approach then trying to punish the end buyer. You have to impact these people that produce puppies for profit. I think it would be very important to have mandatory veterinarian inspections along with the officers and business licensing. This way you were impacting the supply chain of improperly and unethically created puppies. You can also continue to educate the public on adopting animals rather than buying them at Pet Shops and through Kijiji. You will always have people that will want and or need a purebred dog for a variety of reasons. But impacting the supply chain of unethical and sometimes Criminal Behavior, you can have better impact on the community as a whole.

- Dogs and Cats should not be sold in Pet Shops. Responsible breeders who are current members of Organizations such as Canadian Kennel club, which are bound by their Organization rules, should not be put in the same category as business who sell unhealthy, untested animals purely for profit.
- We MUST start looking into this more closely to ensure that there are no kitten or puppy mills. There MUST be proper space, care, and hygiene. Animals need proper exercise intervals, outdoor time, and should not be kept in cages. I do not even think that most pet stores do this.
- that they are going to a good home and getting the care they need
- Lower number of animals in the program, that all animals are getting exercised daily and properly cared for, that breeding programs be licensed to ensure taxes are being paid and poor breeding standards are being curbed
- No retail outlets should be allowed to sell pets. It encourages the behaviours the bylaw is trying to prevent - irresponsible behaviour. Making profit on selling a living thing is just wrong.
- Anyone breeding or selling animals for profit should be registered and licensed. Puppy=mills should be strictly monitored for the number of litters and breeding health of the animals being used as breeders.
- must have proof of breeding (where were they born and to who to prevent puppy mills); must accept animal returns; must do a check of the potential owners for previous issues with animals

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If an animal is going to be sold, I want to know it's healthy. If a fee is wanted, I want the animal thoroughly examined with sterilization and vaccines on board, etc. If an animal is being given away, that's the recipients choice to do the above. Businesses (including "backyard breeders" and sellers on Kijiji) should have licenses to be able to sell animals, so that license can be taken away at any time if things go awry.
- All animals should be spayed or neutered unless they are registered as breeding stock. An animal registered as breeding stock should be licensed and chipped, since the purpose of that is to sell the animals which then becomes a business.
- I do not know
- I am opposed to the retail sale of dogs and cats. Exotic animals such as birds, reptiles and fish are hopefully regulated. If animals are sold, I expect their habitations to be inspected, and kept clean and safe. Adoptable animals available through pet supply stores should also be maintained in safe, clean environments.
- - do due diligence research to ensure purchaser has no record of animal abuse/unlawful breeding etc
  - ensure purchaser has enough information and resources to give proper care
  - ensure all animals they sell are legally and morally acquired
- All dogs and cats should be altered prior to sale if not a registered breeder. Sale of animals from puppy mills should be illegal. Hard to care for and exotic breeds should not be allowed in general pet stores. Pet stores should be encouraged to work with rescues for cats and dogs as opposed to breeders.
- Must be spayed/neutered before sale of the animal!!!
Not allowed to advertise on kijiji or fb marketplace.
Must be a registered business for selling animals.
Business must ask for prof of income to show new owner will be financially able to provide for a pet.
- Ban pet stores from selling dogs, cats, rabbits, any wild caught animal. The known history and health of the animal must be provided. There should be a health guarantee with full refund of the original cost of the animal, timeline will depend on the species, but should be at least a month. Should be ok for pet stores to display/advertise animals from registered rescue organizations.
- They must ensure a comfortable environment for animals while they get sold.
- Must be regulated and licenced by city.
- Must be at least 8 weeks old. should have a contract between buyer and seller to protect both parties - ex, health guarantee, non-breeding contract, etc.
- Pet stores or any retail should not sell live animals
- Up to date vaccinations
- Must come with a health certificate from a licensed vet
- Ensure that the animals are from a regulated and trusted breeder and not an animal mill
- Not sure.
- Spay and neuter all cats/dogs/livestock if not licenced breeder.
- I'm not sure.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Certified kennels. Spayed /neutered. No exotic pets. associated to a club/association as appropriate
- It is challenging to respond to this question because not all pet stores sell "puppy mills" while some "breeders" are borderline "puppy mills". Some rescue organizations act more as "businesses" and "sell" their animals in pet stores, and sometimes even "import" pets from other provinces or countries to keep selling pets. It's an area that would need its own set of Laws or ByLaws.
- Background checks of individuals to ensure no previous history of animal cruelty or abuse.
- MUST know the breeder and that the animals are well cared for!!
- Sale of animals only by licensed & registered rescue organizations or breeders - no retail sale by third parties (storefronts). Breeders must be regularly inspected and able to provide registration papers for all animals.
- I don't believe pets should be sold by pet stores, they lack the ability to ensure that they are going to a proper home. I would like to see a ban on the sale of rabbits, they are frequently adopted by people who do not understand them, or used as food. It leads to people believing they are disposable and they are frequently neglected. They have a lifespan of 8-10 years (not 2-3 years, if they die that young, it's probably the owner's fault due to neglect) and bond for life . They are often left neglected in cages that are too small.
- rescues only (people looking for bred animals should go to the breeders), all should be spayed/neutered prior to purchase
- That the animal is going to a good home. I think that the selling of purebred cats and dogs in pet stores should be banned as these animals often come from deplorable conditions.
- They should be a licenced breeder. Puppy mills owners should be fined.
- there SHOULD not be retail options dogs and cats to be purchased from a pet store. Rescues should ensure accurate records (vaccinations, spay, behaviour) should be issued at time of adoption. Ethical breeders should provide proper paperwork also
- extra fees for animals sold that can still reproduce, no fee for an animal sold that is spayed or neutered
- Retail sale of anything but fish should be restricted to licensed sellers or breeder representatives only. Sales in "pet stores" should be prohibited.
- we should be insuring a safe home, that they have the minimal assentials for the dog on purchase, spyeding is a good idea and if they want to breed prove they know how and have the ability to do so as a condo owner may not.
- 1. they must be well-kept, not crowded and must be exercised with comfortable beds and some stimuli. Their environment must be clean. Good food.
- License to sell animals so that buyers can see that they are not supporting puppy mills or backyard breeders.
- There should be regulations on this. There are far too many health problems that pets (esp dogs) that are bred develop.
- No puppy mills
- Licensed business that follows health and safety rules.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals must have their physical and emotional needs met. This means clean, comfortable areas in which to live, proper disease prevention precautions taken, social needs and training taken into consideration. Length of time where the animal is expected to live in a kennel. Contracts regarding the breeding or spaying/neutering of animals and the time frame in which they have to get it done. Homes and businesses should both be allowed to sell animals, but precautions should be taken that the animals are being raised and sold in an ethical manner. No puppy mills, hoarding situations or large scale operations (meaning 50+ animals on a property).
- That's a tough one. I don't think dogs or cats should be sold at pet stores. Any animal in a pet store should be kept in clean, humane conditions, properly fed and watered, etc.
- ALL animals should be spayed/neutered as a condition of sale. Vicious breeds limited or banned. All vaccines up to date and vet checks performed. Only the sale of rescues or animals from shelters.
- Slay and neuter as part of cost to purchase
- No retail sales should be allowed.
- Retail to include all Sales that involves the exchange of funds, this includes animal rescue. Follow health and sanitary rules . Animal must be produced in Canada (no imports) AND each animal licensed to business that is selling them, the transfer of license must be done by new owner... you can then track how many of these animals come into animal services. Should these animals that come into services will be charged a fee to the person selling the animal...
If the boogeyman is actually the sell of animals then make them pay for it.
- No selling in pet stores. All sold animals should be microchipped before going to the new home.
- all animals must be health tested. all business must be able to provide proof that the animals do not come from puppy mills or indiscriminate breeders.
- Pets should not be sold in pet stores, period.
Dog breeders should be more regulated (we bought our dog from a registered breeder and it was severely malnourished with multiple parasites at 7 weeks old)
Pet owner application should include an interview and vetting process, like the Humane Society does.
You should be required to take a course on dog ownership BEFORE you qualify to buy a dog
Individual sale of a dog should be mediated by the city or an agency
- Properly treated animals .
- Dogs should not be sold in pet stores.
- Proof of origin, full vet exam prior to purchase with all documentation on display for the public, no financing allowed, a waiting period to prevent impulse purchases, a moratorium on purchases in December (and leading up to Easter for rabbits)
- All animals sold in retail should be spayed or neutered. I also think there should be a limit to how many animals, such as birds and bunnies, can be sold at a time.
- Ethical sources
- Buy from a CKC breeder
- Spaying and neutering for sure should be done, no exotic animals,

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should not be sold to minors, identification should be required to be shown when purchasing an animal to check against a list of people who have bans from the courts.
- That they are healthy, socialized and kept in a clean environment.
- Prefer dogs and cats NOT be sold in a pet store or business location. This removes accountability and first hand background on breeding, expected personality, capability and health. Instead, it promotes puppy mill activity and irresponsible backyard breeding in anonymity. Public education of responsible breeder practises vs irresponsible and unregulated breeding for profit would be a positive first step. If allowed to continue, retailers should be required to provide accurate documentation of origin of pets and access to those breeders. Humane care is of utmost importance and regulation is required. Exercise, nourishment, positive reinforcement training, affection, roomy enclosures and reduction of fear stimuli are the minimal requirements.
- safe storage and care
- I do not support the sale of dogs or cats from commercial retailers.
- Where it can be sold (not kijiji! or online ads!) pet stores or vets only - and they must be spayed or neutered by a professional --
- They don't come from puppy mills
- Ideally, no business should be selling animals - restrict the sale/adoption of animals to shelters, rescues, responsible breeders. Given current existence of pet stores:
  - Must adhere to the Five Freedoms. Should be subject to inspection by officers who can enact the APA. Must also divulge the source of their animal stock and those sources must also be subject to inspection.
  - All animals in their care must have health checks by a veterinarian. Must be vaccinated/dewormed (if appropriate), spayed/neutered (if appropriate), treated for any medical concerns and cannot be sold if these are not met.
  - If an animal is sold and turns out to be pregnant and had babies in new home (which has happened before!), the business MUST take the babies back if the owners request it (instead of forcing the owners to have to deal with rehoming the babies themselves).
  - Should accept any animals that a customer wants to return.
  - Store staff that are not licensed veterinary professionals CANNOT give veterinary advice to customers.
- Where animal can be sold and to have a license to breed and sell.
- knowledge of animal care, ability to teach customer. pets should be spayed/neutered/vaccinated, where applicable. instructions/references for customer for when the pet becomes applicable. adoption questionnaire.
- Application processes.
- The animals should be microchipped for ease of return if the animal becomes lost. Adequate food, water and clean shelter needs to be provided at all times.
- Humane and ethical treatment of all animals, no puppy mills.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Breeders' homes, etc. need to pass a strict inspection before they are allowed to sell to retailers (ie NO PUPPY MILLS, etc.). Breeders need to care well for their animals, too.
- The health of the animal, should be spayed/neutered, buyer must be required to license the animal
- All animals should be kept in sanitary and comfortable environments. When selling an animal one should ensure the purchaser has everything they need to care for it.
- The animals must originate from humane breeders. Vet checks are required before sale and reports provided to the purchaser
- To make sure/follow up that pets are spayed or neutered by a certain age or soon after reaching maturity. That people who sell pets are licensed to breed and sell animals.
- Too complex to answer. Puppy mills are evil.
- I think animals should only come from reputable sources. This includes small rodents and fish. We all know about puppy mills but I think these animals should never be bred and raised in bad conditions for profit.
- Animals must be spayed or neutered.
No killing or harming of animals.
They must provide information on proper care, licensing, etc.
Animals must be kept in a clean and appropriate environment for their size and health.
Infant animals should not be separated from their mothers until they are mature enough to be.
- Since retail sales of animals breed puppy mills, it should not be allowed
- Extremely important that the animals are kept in good condition. It is important to ensure that the business owners are not just focused on the money and cut corners. Also ensure the animals come from reputable breeding.
- Mandatory obedience training. Discounted fees (or free) for obedience training.
- Must be licensed and bonded and offer a money back guarantee if the animal becomes sick
- They should be spayed or neutered and sold in good health. As well, if vaccinations are required then they should also be done.
- Vet checks, certificate of health, spay neuter before going home
- I think it's important that a business that sells animals can ensure it came from a reputable source. Dogs from puppy mills are more likely to have behavioural issues which places an added burden on both citizens and the City/Shelters.
- The only issue with limiting the acquisition of pets is that it goes underground, which is harder to regulate. We need to look to best practice (for example, what does Humane Canada say about this?). Having worked in a pet store I know many people lack the knowledge to properly care for exotics, so perhaps those limitations.
- They come from a reputable breeder that is licensed and regulated.
- Verify that the pet is licensed and health checks including vaccinations are completed. The owners have completed mandatory training before buying a pet.
- rescue animals only for retail businesses.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- agriculture Canada , responsible breeders , this is a slippery slope I don't think the city needs to be involved in ... rehoming should be easier then it is ... EDUCATION on what and who to buy from should also be more available . responsible breeders are a good thing!!
- this is a very wide ranging topic, that would require much more space then this.
- Non-profit dog and cat adoption. There are similar bans in place in hundreds of other North American and European cities; Canadian cities that have a similar ban include Toronto, Vancouver, Ottawa, Mississauga, Burnaby, Westminster, among others. The reason that this ban is important is that pets sold in pet stores are sourced from puppy mills and irreputable commercial breeders where dogs and cats spend their entire lives in small wire cages, being bred over and over again, in filthy conditions, with no veterinary care and often in poor health. They have contact with humans and other dogs only for breeding and nursing purposes. They often have genetic disorders that are passed onto their puppies that are sold in pet stores and that owners only discover after they are attached to their new pet. As the many rescue groups in Calgary are aware, there is already an overpopulation of dogs and cats. Commercial breeding only adds to the problem.
- Please provide me with an email address where I can forward you a copy of PIJAC Canada's Best Management Practices for Pet Retail Establishments. The Best Management Practices (BMP) document outlines the principles that everyone involved in the keeping and selling of animals and fish, including through pet stores, must use to protect the welfare of the animals in their care.
[personal information removed]
- Regulating where an animal can be sold; whether an animal must be spayed or neutered; the type of animal that is sold, who is selling the animal.[ IE - Registered, certified breeder,]
- Retail stores should only be able to have rescue/adoptable cats and dogs (from reputable rescues) in their stores!! No selling kittens or puppies from breeders!!
- No kijiji or online sales for any animal or living thing!!!
- it should be complex with safety and perpetual care of the animals.
- Supporting ethical breeders and rescues. No puppy/kitty mills. Clean bill of health.
- When sold they should inform animal services with the name of the new owner
- Humane conditions. Not cages and crowding
- Spay and neuter all animals to control the population and help regulate behavior.
Animals that are being sold by breeders should require the breeder to provide proof of business and certificates of health by a registered vet.
- All animal's sold in retail stores should have reliable and vetted sources for all acquisitions. All animals sold should be coming from reputable sources to ensure that the pets are all of safely bred and raised stock. This should include veterinary inspection of breeding facilities and breeders.
- I think 100% of the animals should be spayed/neutered. Businesses should NEVER support puppy mills - adopt don't shop!
- The animal should be free of disease. the animal should not be an endangered species. The animal should not be vicious in that it is bred for fighting or killing. I dont think modifications are needed on Kijji
- They should be guaranteed for good health

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Properly vaccinated and healthy animals be sold.
- I do not feel that individuals or businesses should be allowed to breed, sell, import, or resell any sentient being for financial gain.
- I only use rescues, I have no opinion on this
- I don't know.
- Ok if your talking pet stores selling animals yes.
If your talking responsible breeders and owners stay out of it. Hormone sparing surgeries done at appropriate ages and stages or at all is beyond the scope of the city.
- The health of the animal- early/young aged spay neuters be taken into account as damaging to growing animals and have this knowledge readily available along with alternate options (vasectomy and female equivalent. As well as the purpose of these animals in terms of working, sporting or others etc. taken into consideration.
Breeding licensing available online for all species of breeders around Calgary districts- easily able to register each animal to keep detailed records if so desired- but require ID number, gender and age for each animal.
- Certificate of health. Humane living quarters while waiting for sale. Include first year of licensing in the cost of purchasing the animal.
- No retail sale of animals. Especially rabbits.
- Unless you're a licensed, credible breeder, you should not be able to sell an animal FULL STOP.
The only way to ensure that animals have been properly cared for is to prevent backyard breeders and puppy mills from operating in our city. There should be extreme measures and home checks for licensed breeders, as well.
- I don't believe animals should be sold in pet stores for big profits, such as [personal information removed]. Breeders should be properly licensed and accredited.
- All animals are never ever to be sold in pet stores!
There are enough rescue places to get our pets and professional breeders for pure bred animals
We need to discourage puppy mills!
- Breeders must be licensed somehow to prevent irresponsible breeding. Pets to be spayed/neutered within a year unless a license/permit obtained. No removal of young before 8 weeks. Rules related to pen size and cleanliness in 'stores'. I wouldn't be impressed to see breed specific laws implemented!
- There should be a licenses to breed and sell ALL animals. Responsible pet owners spay and neuter their pets and should be enforced as ever way seen fit.
- Ethically sourced animals. Not from breeding mills. Affordable options for spaying and neutering to control populations
- They should check the microchip or license of the pet to make sure its actual owner has surrendered the pet for sale or shelter life, and contact them to be certain the animal wasn't taken by a family member and removed without owners consent or knowledge, and to make sure the animal wasn't stolen and sold.
- A thorough, expiring, health examination prior to entry

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Business license/permit

Quarantine period

- spay/neuter, and mandatory dog training
- I support restrictions on specific breeds based on statistically supported safety reasons.
- Highest regulations possible on all fronts!!!
- -business provide health care, vaccinations, food, water and shelter to animals
- -business have random check ups to ensure they are following the rules
- All of the above

Source

- 1 To have complete transparency about the animal with the interested party.
If they are not registered with CKC, and live Within the city limits. They should have to be registered with the city as a business.
- No mandatory rule for spaying/neutering (that's not the city's job), and wolfdogs should ONLY be bred/sold/bought by licensed wildlife owners.
- a thorough expiring health examination prior to entry
- business license/permit
- quarantine period
- I think retail sale of animals should involve rescue animals only (especially for cats and dogs) and should be checked regularly by the Humane Society or another authority to make sure animal welfare is a priority. There are too many homeless pets and breeding should not be a business.
- Animals SHOULD NOT be sold in retail locations and its unfortunate that they still are; animals should not be sold Kijiji or other site or "given away to good home for free"; its dangerous for the animals
- Regular health inspections. Vaccines records.
- There are too many mom/pop breeders of dogs/cats/rabbits who contribute to the overpopulation and unnecessary suffering of animals. Any breeder should be required to have a license. Suggest a higher fee & fines to discourage unnecessary breeding especially since our shelters are filled to capacity and healthy animals are being destroyed. This would also provide additional revenue for spay & neuter programs.
- Pets never sold in pet stores unless they are from a charity.
- I do not support pets being kept in small cages in pet stores, this should be eliminated. I would also rather support those people that are habitual breeders and have the laws, licensing and fines be applied to those people who are hoarders or are cruel.
- Humane operators that have sourced their animals through the appropriate methods and are reviewed by the city.
- Unsure
- Surprise City inspections of the premises & potentially places the animals come from.
- Business license/permit.
- Require health examinations by a licensed, practicing vet.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- NO PET STORE SALES of dogs/cats/mammals other than adoptions from rescue/SPCA. Spay/neuter is now somewhat controversial given cancer in dogs so I don't think you can insist on that. Also show dogs are never fixed. What about dogs who can't be fixed due to health issues? Keep it out of the conversation and deal with puppy mills, backyard breeders etc and leave rescues, SPCA, etc to monitor their animal placements by their standards. No one should be in the "business" of selling dogs/cats other than respected breeders, non profit rescue organizations, those involved in animal welfare.
- Dangerous breeds should be banned. The licensing fees should be tripled to discourage pet ownership in the first place. Licenses for rescued animals should be halved or waived for the first 2 years.
- Nothing the City needs to be involved in.
- Health and safety of the animals. No support for irresponsible breeders.
- ethical treatment of the animals is critical
- Animals must be spayed or neutered or included the spaying and neutering in adoption fee. The supply of animals must not come from a puppy mill or backyard breeder. Supply must come from registered breeders or preferably animal rescues/shelters only.
- Thorough, expiring, health exam prior to entry; Business license/permit; quarantine period
- Humane conditions. Verified humane sourcing of animals.
- No sale of exotic, restricted animals. Perhaps be open to return animals, refunding purchase on a sliding scale depending upon how long they have the pet. Hopefully to minimize simply dumping the animal out in the country somewhere.
- Businesses must be licensed to sell pets (not one off puppies); must be inspected annually to renew their licenses, have a police background check, no previous fines or infractions regarding pet ownership, must meeting financial solvency requirements to avoid poor treatment of animals because of financial hardships.
- Treatment of animals
Hygiene of facilities
- Puppy mills are a problem, but pet owners should be allowed to sell babies whether their production is accidental or intentional. No comment on how to regulate this.
- The retail sale of cats & dogs should remain prohibited. Large birds (macaws, cockatoos, etc.) should be banned from sale or commercial display.
- I don't think retail sale of dogs and cats should be allowed and dogs and cats should not be sold on kijiji. Any pets that are sold must be neutered or spayed.

Criteria for accepting imported animals in Calgary

- The usual, from outside Canada or areas of virus outbreak, blood checks, chipped, vaccinated.
- That imported animals meet health criteria and that exotic animals are strictly regulated.
- Tracibility to ensure the animals aren't stolen from another city and brought here to be sold to a new family.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If they have vaccination documentation and can cross the border, then the city must accept it at face value
- Stop accepting large quantities of rescue imports from random places.
- I'm afraid I'm not familiar enough with the current rules set fourth by the City and CBSA to comment.
- All required vaccinations. Mandatory quarantined period. And with thoughts around rescue groups which focus on high risk animals such as those from dog fighting rings a mandatory behavioural review from a trained expert.
- Needs to have all veterinary papers!
- I am actually horrified by the amount of animals that are imported illegally and without proper care. We have a crisis in this province and there is no shortage of animals for adoption locally or even within our own country. There should not be ANY reason to import dogs for adoption.
- I don't have much of information on this topic to provide my input.
- Humane care only. No endangered species or species that are not raised in captivity.
- Spayed/neutered, vaccinated, medical checkup and clean bill of health
- Health certification
- no ideas
- Health checks
- The animal was legally obtained, the animal can be appropriately cared for, the is just cause for importing the animal and not buying domestic.
- Why reinvent the wheel? Work with the animal rescue associations and CBSA
- Private individuals I have no problem with. I worry about the ethics of large scale rescue imports. There is no way to guarantee they are not importing from puppy mills or sick dogs.
- that they are spayed/neutered
- that they are vaccinated
- that the animals are free from disease
- Should not be accepted PERIOD.
- I have no idea.
- non exotic, proof that you want them as a pet. home inspection
- I do not have enough knowledge of this issue to offer an opinion.
- Stricter health checks by both importing and exporting countries and mandatory quarantine once arrived but with the individuals who brought them over.
- responsible sourcing
- NO puppy mill dogs
- Quarantine for a period of time. Same licensing as other animals. Must not be restricted or endangered or a nuisance to the environment if let loose.
- The animals need to be healthy, and have all vaccinations required in Calgary.
- None
- Only homeless animals imported by rescues, not organizations looking to make money on the sale of animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same as domestic - licensed, neutered/spayed and microchipped
- Quarantine and proof of health
- Mandatory week long quarantine where behaviour and health are monitored. Increased costs for multiple animals (not including adoption services).
- I can't comment as I don't know what type of animals are imported for commercial purposes.
- Unsure
- They must be thoroughly vetted prior to coming.
- No more than 3 animals imported per year for 'rescues', especially the backyard rescue businesses. Imported animals should be quarantined for 14 days to ensure they are not ill, and have recent vet check documents to show all vaccinations and a health check was done within 10 days of border crossing
- Why are we importing animals when we have plenty to rescue locally.
- They need to be more thoroughly screened. Imported dogs NEED to be tested for Brucellosis, heart worm and tick borne diseases. We do not need foreign diseases brought into this country.
- A quarantine period.
- Veterinary health certificate within 10 days of importation with appropriate vaccination records. A letter stating the reason for importation of these animals for sale which needs to be pre-approved prior to shipping.
- As above
- Imported animals should not be allowed at all. There are far too many cats/dogs etc looking for homes here.
- They should not be accepted. We have plenty of animals needing homes in Calgary and no need to bring in foreign pets with zoological diseases we do not have here
- No threatened species. Health inspection to pass and registration.
- High! Proper Health checks before sale! If fostered should be registered with city.
- spade / neuter of all pets being sold. History of the pet
- We should not import animals for sale. Rescue only
- Vaccinations
- There are so many dogs without homes available for adoption through the various rescues organizations right here in Calgary and Alberta, but they are mostly large breed. I think importing should be limited to fulfilling a need that we can't fill ourselves, like small breed dogs or non-shedding dogs
- I'm not qualified to answer this
- All animals imported must be in perfect health and have all vaccinations required and recommended by all relevant Canadian authorities *PRIOR TO IMPORT*
- Health check - not bringing in any hitchhiker critters, no pathogen that can be passed on
- Extensive health testing and quarantine for animals coming from unknown backgrounds.
- not sure what kind of commercial purposes you are talking about so can't comment. Provide a description or examples of what this means.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals imported should have to undergo a quarantine period and also have all necessary vaccines or titres.
- None. Why are we duplicating or adding layers of work already being done by Federal authorities?
- Import permits, CFIA import/export paperwork, health certificates, vaccine requirements
- The current CFIA regulations are more than adequate. Additional criteria and another level of governance should not be necessary
- Quarantine to verify animals are healthy for import
- I don't feel it is necessary to import animals.
- Importing animals for a commercial purpose should be VERY limited and for very specific needs. There also needs to be a strict quarantine for all imported animals.
- 1)At minimum they should be screened for all potential parasites and diseases from the exported country as well as a health assessment by a veterinarian within a few days of landing here.
2)Many other countries require a quarantine period, it would not be a bad idea
3)An import fee?
- health checks are completed.
- Must undergo quarantine to check for communicable diseases
- City of Calgary should not be involved in regulating the importation of animals. The CBSA needs to enact stricter rules to govern the mass importation of so called rescue dogs.
- Check what other, more developed and less archaic cities do in this regard. Calgary is so behind the times of protocols. There has to be a city on the planet that has mastered this issue. Some research would really help as the public probably isn't very well versed on this topic.
- They should be imported legally.
- Strict licensing requirements that involve spot inspections.
- Animals should be up to date on vax, med recs should be provided to the city. Rescues should be a reg business and be licensed to bring animals city. If they are investigated by CHS or do not follow protocols in places for safe transport or knowingly bring in sick animals, their license is revoked
- Mandatory quarantine. Assessment by a certified behaviourist prior to adopting out. Health check by veterinarian
- Are our pet shelters empty? Majority of dogs coming into the country are not properly vetted. Only dogs with proof of required vetting should be considered.
- None.
- Ensure the animals have up to date vaccinations and are healthy.
- I don't believe rescues should be importing animals from other countries to sell in Canada. It's risking the health of our own animals and stray animals here are not finding homes.
- - all vaccinations up to date
- animals should be spayed/neutered
- quarantine period
- Health checks upon arrival
- I don't believe we should be accepting imported animals. We have enough strays.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- fully vaccinated, free of parasites/bugs, in good health
- Dogs brought in as a personal pet or for an ethical breeding program - CBSA regs only. Importation of multiple dogs from USA / other countries as rescues - should be very limited and only under supervision of a vet with specific testing required appropriate to source, preferably not at all.
- Pet owner should be approved to ensure they can properly care for the imported animal.
- again, all animals must to be spayed/neutered as a condition of a sale including chipping the animal, unless they're for ethical breeding purposes but must be chipped as well, then they must have a license..
- Make sure they are properly vaccinated and quarantined.
- What are the conditions provided for the animal, are they adequate. Is the importer licenced via education to care for and have the required space/environment for the specific animal and amount of them.
- its not a city of calgary issue to get involved in. Federal only. CBSA has guidelines in place.
- Unsure.
- All must be examined by a veterinarian and quarantined for 14 days, two negative fecals, microchipped.
- Dogs should be below a certain weight so small in nature. There are many large dogs in Canada so import of small dogs is a different type of adopter. Dogs must not carry any blood born pathogens from ticks and this must be proven. Dogs must be sterilized prior to entry. Dogs must be rescue and have
- Health Certificate from liscenced veterinarian
- all dogs must have health clearance, dogs being brought in from other countries for rescue retail should not be allowed. There are enough stray dogs here.
- Animals brought in by "rescue" groups should be quarantined and testing repeated. There have been incidents of improper paperwork. Animals are bringing in diseases that ours have not been exposed to causing expensive vet visits and in some cases death. Have enough dogs here looking for homes.
- Mandatory spay and neuter
- NA
- We have military dogs being adopted, strays, disaster area animals needing homes. Rare dogs, show dogs ,new blood for breeding healthy dogs.I am still looking for a Bitch for my guy but She May need to come from Italy.
- Vaccinations current.
- I believe that as long as the animal has been checked by a Calgary Vet, in good standing, and has all required shots, it should be acceptable.
- Rescue animals from other countries should be restricted. A full health check and quarantine period should be required. There have been too many new viruses and infestations of new parasites introduced by the "do-goodness" bringing in street dogs and cats from other countries.
- Vaccinated and vet checked. No exotic species.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Only from reputable breeders. Imported strays only bring in diseases (dogs from Mexico). No imported livestock.
- Is the animal appropriate for urban living? Is it a danger if it escapes?
- Have to provide vet care provided upon arriving by a DVM in yyc.
Have to ALTER animals before reselling
Have business license that has to report all animals coming in, medical records and who they are being sold too
Prefer it be ILLEGAL to import to sell animals in yyc.
- They should require veterinary medical clearance to indicate they are healthy for import; and the receiver should have adequate facilities to house the animal(s). Importers should be encouraged to implement a 2-week quarantine for newly imported animals before exposing to other animals.
- That they have been vetted properly for health related illnesses that could be passed onto other pets. Should be required to be vet checked upon arrival.
- Dogs and cats should not be imported, there is more than enough in the shelters,
- Observing relevant quarantine periods.
- That they cannot push out natural wildlife. Should be natural to the area only. Ie: like what is happening in Florida with snakes.
- Accurate info on animals history, breed, medical info. Humane transport
- Top quality breeders, especially those in the US and Europe are hardly a problem, and many people in Calgary import high end show/performance dogs from other countries. Imported dogs/puppies from rescue organizations and low quality breeders are a very serious biosecurity problem.
- I feel like home quarantine is suffice. As long as they have all shots and paperwork.
- Any dog that comes into our Province or into Canada must have its full set of vaccinations. As well it must have passed certain help test for diseases like brucellosis heartworm and other diseases that can be passed on 2 the animals or wildlife in the city or country wherever they end up going.
- Don't bring in what we have enough of. Why import strays from other countries when we have plenty here. It only invites disease and over population.
- Quarantine for animals that are coming from an unknown background (most rescues).
- Quarantine and proof of all applicable tests being clear before being released for sale. Desexed
- Health check. Background information from where the animal came from. License/certified.
- Same as above.
- The animals should have to pass a physical examination before being given to the owner, multiple sick animals from the same importer should cause the importer to be flagged and fined.
- Vaccinations up to date, not a threat to humans or environment then all should be good
- The same as customs uses.
- I have concerns about imported animals introducing diseases that are not in the local population. I believe that it would be to Canada's benefit to a quarantine just like the UK does.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Health clearances. If they are coming from a reputable breeder they will have health clearances. The animals that are coming from out of country rescues...We have so many animals in need here...why do you need to bring in more.
- Ensure the animals are healthy and not bringing in diseases or parasites.
- Health of the animal is critical.
- Mandatory Quarantine
  - Mandatory behavioural inspection
  - Mandatory vet exam upon arrival and exit from quarantine
- If they could cause public harm if released
- UTD on vaccines. Quarantine if from out of Canada or USA for a certain amount of time. Heart work testing etc.
- The animals must pass a physical exam by a veterinarian, they must be up to date on their vaccines, and they must be in good health
- We should not be importing outside of Alberta/ Canada
- Confirmation of animal health; possible quarantine for a specified period if appropriate but not mandatory if not required; registration of importer and/or the pet where appropriate, especially for commercial purposes; adherence to banned animal transport
- If Similar animals are in local shelters, they should not be allowed
- This should not be allowed if it is for commercial purposes. It is different for nonprofits that have a mandate to rescue pets, but commercial businesses should NOT be allowed.
- Veterinary, we should be able to trace where to dogs are coming from to ensure that we are not importing dogs that are not reputedly bred or unethical rescues.
- No problem if the animal has appropriate health and medical documentation.
- No diseases, vet clearance at source, not pregnant, for canadian sources, and canada regs for foreign imports, micro-chipped
- If we already have them in shelters they shouldn't be allowed. We need to take care of our own first.
- I believe imported animals should be healthy so not to spread diseases. Upon arrival they should have an examination and be vaccinated.
- Imported species must be protected and their health and welfare regarded throughout their lifespan. So many have miserable lives. While one may not own local wild animals, why are we allowed to own imported wild animals?
- There are enough animals that need to be adopted here, so no reason to import any.
- Importing dogs can be important for breeding as it prevents inbreeding.
- Full vet check and behavioural assessment before being allowed to be adopted out. They should also be quarantined for a minimum amount of time to help prevent the spread of diseases not normally found in Canada.
- Approved health check of animal
- Customs should be the only one authority to refuse pets into the country. The only priority should be vaccines and having animals fixed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- need to know where they were from, any health risks associated with those areas, go under appropriate health assessments and vaccinations
- I think that the number of adoptable animals in the city should be considered before will allow large numbers of outsiders in ... maybe help and clean up our back yard first
- Must be registered with a reputable kennel club.
- Much stricter health testing for rescue animals & the animals should be quarantined on arrival . Paperwork should be checked for all animals crossing the border.
- Vet visit and if old enough shots before import
- Wellness checks.
- Use the same criteria as Canada Border Services, animals deemed to be potentially dangerous, need to be more scrutinized by the City Of Calgary, other wise the care and well being of the animal should be front and foremost , and the City of Calgary should make sure that this is taking place .
- Same as any new owner .Vet check
- immunized, clean spayed etc
- Proper medical inspection including vaccination as required in the province.
- I don't think cats dogs are rabbits should be imported into Calgary. Alberta has a huge animal overpopulation problem and this only makes it worse.
- Not for resale for a profit...we have enough animals here that need adopting because of irresponsible owners
- Make sure they are healthy and have all the shots.
- Quarantine. Imported animals are bringing diseases our country does not have vaccinations for. Imported animals should pay import fees and charges
- Animals are disease-free. It seems to me there are enough animals in need here already without importing more to "rescue" or sell.
- Don't feel it should be allowed.
- I think Canada Border Services does the job of ensuring animals are safe to enter Canada. It is quite costly to rescue and import an animal, and it would be a shame to prevent rescue organizations to be under any further financial burden.
- I don't think we should allow imported animals. They could bring disease to other animals or people. There are so many animals in Alberta that need help, I don't agree we should import them from other provinces/countries
- 30 day quarantine to their home premises and especially kept out of off leash dog parks until they can bond with their new owners ( too many get away in first few days) and this gives time to ensure they are not brewing a disease (perhaps our local animals have no resistance to)and time for training
- Ensure vaccinations and disease free (by vet certification) before roaming in Calgary! and no dangerous breeds(pitbulls). Adopters must attend training classes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't believe we should accept imported animals unless they originally left the country with owner and are returning.
- Don't agree unless shelters are empty
- Licensing, chip and transfer of chip. Proof of All shots / immunizations.
- I am concerned by the number of animals being imported by rescue groups, without always having Health requirements, or having improper or forged documents. I believe if a rescue group is importing more than a couple dogs for personal use that they should be in some form of quarantine upon arrival.
- Full medical check, shots and vaccines appropriate for our area.
- They should have to be neutered or spayed and have all their required shots and it should only be legitimate rescue groups that are allowed to bring in dogs.
- Rescues importing from out of country SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED!!
When our shelters/rescues have no more dogs/cats....then we can revisit importing from other countries.
- There is no need to import animals.
- Health certification by a licensed vet.
- Proper licensing and vaccinations
- Health and welfare of the animals
- I don't think it's a bad thing to help animals from other countries find homes.
- That they are free of disease.
- Immediately vet checked, all vaccinations up to date with proof, homes already in place
- Individuals importing animals to own as pets or for specific show/purebred breeding but some rescues are importing animals and no proper vetting is being done which brings in new diseases. Reputable rescues local are rescuing here. Reputable breeders are responsibly for the life of animals.
- These people can't find a rescue dog closer to home. I know of a couple who winter in Mexico every year then return to Calgary with rescue dogs. They get a tax write off on their vaca because of the rescues.
- Testing public behaviour or 'good citizen' licensing. Strict Immunization standards be met.
- How were the animals obtained and how will they be kept.
- They need to show both medical and behavioural clearances
- There are already federal regulations
- There should be proper paperwork but also proper vetting to Ensure that the animals are not bringing in unwanted diseases
- Licensed business/not for profit. Registered, all animals vetted both sides. Many "rescues" are popping up claiming to be not for profit and "adopting" out animals they claim to be checked that are not and charge "donation"

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Only animals which pose no threat to our environment or safety and are not available in Canada should be allowed to come into Canada. Must have special exemption status to overrule this and indicate why needed.
- We should not be importing rescue animals when there are rescue animals available across Canada.
- Proof that it was humanely acquired. Vet checks and vaccinations
- They should be 100% healthy and come with a certificate that they are coming from a reputable rescue. Too many animal (dog) brokers out there selling sick pets that are all coming from puppy mills
- Protect our citizens from disease and attacks
- I'm not aware of any additional criteria being needed (not sure current requirements aren't enough).
- So many animals need rescuing in this city. Let's focus on that. I don't understand importing animals and the cost when we have so much work to do here.
- Unsure
- Not for profit
- Animal welfare during transport and sale is assured.
- Mandatory spay/neuter, mandatory permanent identification, current health check and vaccines
- Zero import.
- No rabies
- Animals must not have a history of aggression.
This is a city, farm and other wild animals should not be kept as domesticated pets
- Rescues SELL dogs and should require trained staff and a business license. They should be forced to keep all imported animals in quarantine for at least 21 days. Some rescued dog have brought diseases and parasites to our city which we do not generally see in our area.
- No imported animals from outside Canada - we have no idea what diseases etc they bring in
- Provide proper education of the animals being imported
- That they are disease free however I believe it should be a relatively easy process
- Veterinary health inspection completed with requirement to pay for any treatment/care for any diagnosed conditions, or euthanasia.
- No exotic animals
- Canine good citizen testing...lots of dogs being imported from places where those dogs are not exposed to humans and yet adopted by families. Adopting a meat market dog from Korea will tug at heart strings but it's basically a feral dog. Health testing for diseases we do not have in Calgary
- Nothing should be changed. No fees should be charged. Calgary has a lack of small dogs and rescues bringing dogs and cats from over populated areas spaces lives. Dont make it more difficult then it has to be. As long as the dogs and cats meet health standards, then that's all the criteria.
- Animals must be healthy, have shots
- Nothing Canada does a good job
- Healthy animals obtained legally

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No animals should be imported. We have far too many in shelters and stray already.
- Require appropriate medical clearance and care. Require vaccines, spay or neuter
- Rescues!
- registered purebreds with health certificates should have no new restrictions. For animals brought in by rescues or 3 or more at a time should have to have a health certificate from export, PLUS inspections at a Calgary vet and quarantine for 4 weeks before homing AND rabies vacc +30 days
- 14 day assessment period in shelter or in a foster home before adopting out. This is considered the bare minimum to perform a behaviour assessment on an animal with an unknown or limited history. 30 days is considered ideal.
- I'd leave this to actual health experts to figure out.
- Imported animals should be banned if animal rescue and civic impound facilities are over utilized.
- They should follow quarantine procedures...if they are found to be contagious then fine the companies
- A full vet work up and clean bill of health
History of the animal (used in dog fighting etc)
- Tested, spayed or neutered by the rescue or business importing them. Socialization and proof of medical records to the correct authorities to ensure all protocols are done correctly before adopting out or selling animals.
- Vet inspected /checked/ quarantined before acceptable for adoption
- we have enough animals here that need homes. I'm not saying imported dogs don't need home just that we need to find loving homes for the ones here first. They need to be heavily screened and vaccinated for diseases!! Unfortunately other countries have diseases we don't have or want here.
- Health and disease
- Health (not carrying disease), number if animals
- Fully vaccinated and must not be aggressive.
- Behaviour assessments by qualified animal behaviorists.
- Type of animal - not an endangered species or competitive species to our natural ecosystem.
- Considered non-invasive, pose no threat to the local ecosystem
- Their shots need to be up to date and make sure their healthy
- Ensuring the owner is verified and the animal is healthy.
- The City does not have jurisdiction to regulate personal property (pets) that are imported into Canada (or Calgary) The Province has jurisdiction over personal property ownership rights; and the CFIA sets the regulations for import of animals. The City has no jurisdiction in this matter.
- I think they should have to have a full vet clearance from a vet in Calgary. People have been importing sick dogs that have supposedly been vet cleared. This is unfair to the new owners to have to pay for a sick dog.
- No idea.
- Just health regulations. When they are being rescued through a rescue agency they should receive help not hinderances

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Health of the animal and procedures to ensure its welfare
- Proof of health testing and to be disease free.
- Mandatory quarantine to insure the animals are not currently sick. All vaccinations must be up to date.
- They should not be accepted into Canada ...?
- rescues should not be allowed to import any animals from another province without health clearances to ensure health of local animals. not allowing the resale of rescues from other countries
- Require health and rabies certificates.
- That they have all shots that we give our dogs and cats here in Canada and they have a health clearance from a vet.
- Honestly, if it is legal, and the business is capable of handling them, there should be no further criteria.
- Spay and neuter, vaccines, placement into rescue or homes
- Quarantined for a minimum period of time to ensure they are disease free. If Calgary has animals available then rescues should be prohibited until they are looked after first. So stupid to feed the foreign rescue market
- Health and trade should be overseen by city
- I don't think we should import animals for adoption as we have enough that need homes here. they also bring new diseases from different climates.
- Health assessment by veterinarian, up to date vaccinations.
- Ban and consider illegal. High fines and or jail time for possession of exotics without proper papers or authorization. We should NOT accept imported pets..Rehabilitate exotic or wild animals at recognized specialty facilities with the expectation of re release to the wild or natural habitat
- Fully quarantined for a period of time.
- A lot of these are coming through for adoption and I don't believe a number of places are doing their due diligence before adopting them out, ej rescue, for example. There needs to be stricter rules in place for the adoption agencies
- They are animals that are acclimated to the climate they are coming to. That they are not endangered, dangerous, background on where they are from, truly why they have to be here AND that the same animal could not be adopted here (ie/ we have dogs here, why bring them from Mexico).
- They cannot be on the Endangered Species list. They must be transported responsibly. This includes cattle, pigs, chickens. They must not be electrocuted, punched, kicked, etc. or be abused emotionally or physically during transport. They must be comfortable. They must not be pregnant , nor deformed.
- Non profit rescues ONLY
- Quarantine period, extensive health testing to ensure they are not bringing parasites that infect other dogs in Calgary or humans! limited numbers, this has become a boutique thing and businesses are pretending to be rescues.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not carrying diseases
- The animal should undergo several tests such as behavioural tests and disease tests.
- Unsure/haven't done enough research on this
- No out of country animals - NONE. Thorough & complete history of animal (temperment, etc.) Up to date vaccinations & accurate health record.
- That they are healthy, not dangerous, and the owner can care for them. However it should not be the cities job to determine this.
- 1. Imported animals should be able to survive in a northern climate. 2. Imported animals should face a one time licensing fee to register the animals with the City.
- Proper vaccines and holding times before released but we are seeing diseases in Calgary not native to our area due to imports and that is beyond brutal.
- health checks/shots and quarantine for a period of time
- Keep records of the animals to avoid issues and deal with them as soon as they arise
- not sure
- Animals must get a certified medical exam from a veterinarian and have a identification chip.
- I love dogs but I am not sure this is always in their best interest. Some of these adoption agencies charge ridiculous fees and you know that they are about profit, not compassion. Perhaps a dog should be pre-adopted and certified as friendly and healthy before bringing them in.
- Depending on where they are coming from a 30 day quarantine
- Whomever does the importing should be responsible for the costs associated to ensure the animal meets all the regulations the City has in place. Including health, neutering and viciousness.
- Health and temperament assessments, along with strict isolation and quarantine until all clearances and treatments are complete. Limiting the amount of amount of animals imported yearly. Would also be good idea. Reasoning is these animals also import their respective countries diseases to ours!
- I'm fine with rescue animals, but there's no way purebred animals from outside Canada should be allowed. Only exception is if someone is a professional "shower" and wants to improve the bloodline. For that to apply, some kind of proof should be required.
- Until all Canadian shelters and rescues are empty, we should not be permitting the importation of pets for sale.
If you wish to permit this, there should be serious overhaul to the current standards and guidelines.
- Certified healthy by a vet.
- Seems to be working fine as is.
- This should not be allowed.
- Do not allow any animal as noted on the at risk, or endangered list as per CITIES.
- they should go into quarantine and have testing done based on the part of the world they are coming from. High risk = longer quarantine and more testing.
- Dogs should be on quarantine for 30 days in a home.
- NA

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't have enough information about this. However, I would assume that the Canadian border services agency would have stricter guidelines/rules than Calgary would/should
- Certification of good health from a vet
- Imported animals need to be quarantined for a minimum of two weeks and examined by a Calgary or Alberta veterinarian before being exposed to the public or other animals.
- Recheck immediately by a qualified Veterinarian and tested for diseases (ie heartworm, anaplasma, ehrlichia, distemper, parvo, demodex, the list goes on and on). Quarantine for x number days for things reportable like Canine Flu. Limit the # of imported animals. Focus on local rescue.
- Vet checked for health. Home quarantine for vet specified amount of time.
- I didn't read ahead from the last question where I brought this up. I am not in support of any importing of foreign street rescue animals into Canada, let alone the city itself.
- A thorough health exam, a quarantine period, medical history, behavioural history
- Consultation with bylaw about numbers and viability. Profit should never be a consideration.
- We have enough animals at the SPCA that we should not be allowing pets to be imported to Calgary.
- Vet checked. Spay or neutered.
- This should be limited if not stopped. We have enough animals in Canada that need adopting
- Should not be allowed.
- I am not qualified to answer this question
- ABSOLUTELY NO IMPORTED ANIMALS FOR SALE. This is animal trafficking and it should be illegal.
- Ensure they are checked over by a vet. Also ensure the paperwork from where they are coming is legal and checked out, along with whoever is on this end to accept the animals. Again, checking paperwork, permits, etc, so that they don't go into a puppy mill/back yard breeding situation.
- They must be sourced ethically as in not trafficked from the wild. I don't know why you would import animals when there are enough to adopt here already.
- Same as the border services - I believe in rescues and ensuring they get a great home.
- restrict countries of origin to countries we regularly work with; limit the numbers that can be brought in; preference to animals from the United States
- I believe we have enough dogs for adoption in Calgary and area that we shouldn't have to import from other countries.
- There are enough animals requiring homes in Canada without importing them. No animals should be imported for commercial purposes.
- Quarantine till deemed safe
- Healthy animals ONLY...
- Any animal that is imported to Calgary should be thoroughly inspected to ensure they have no diseases and are clean and safe
- For what end use is the animal to be imported

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Providing care of the animal before, after and during transport. Ensuring responsible breeding practices in the country of origin.
  - Calgary should not allow the import of Rescue animals that come to the city to be sold for profit.
  - Animals for adoptions should NOT be considered commercial goods - they are being rescued from horrible situations to become a part of someone's family by not for profit organizations. This is not "commerce" - adoption fees go towards the animals medical expenses, and they are spayed and neutered.
  - I don't think we should be bringing in dogs from other countries, too many parasites and health issues we may not know of. We have lots of homeless animals here in Canada, we certainly don't need any more. Special exemptions could be made for breeders or businesses.
  - Stop accepting dogs/cats for adoption from other countries - this should be at the provincial level. There are already enough unwanted pets from within the city and area to deal with that we don't need to be bringing them in by the plane.
  - Avoiding importing animals where there's a risk of them becoming an invasive species, and certainly any controlled (endangered or at risk) animals. Also adequate controls over disease spread.
  - % of surrendered animals already in Calgary requiring care
  - Do not import pets like dogs & cats!
  - Imported animals should not be available for sale. We have plenty of local animals in need.
  - Full testing and vaccination be done and cleared before entering city at owner expense. Should limit the import of animals as it just promotes more backyard breeding and stresses animals out being transported and uprooted to diff environments
  - None in addition to what the CBSA already does - this is not an area the City needs to be involved in, any more than the import of other commercial goods.
  - Healthy pets
  - All animals should be spayed or neutered. I believe the city should not be allowing the import of "rescue animals" when local shelters already have available animals.
  - I do not have an opinion
  - Up to date vaccinations and proper health unless going to a rescue intending on recovery and care.
  - I'm not sure
  - Animals should have up to date immunizations and be spay and neutered.
  - As long as its shots, etc., are up to date and its not inherently dangerous to our ecosystem, let them bring them in.
  - Free of disease.
  - These organizations need to be governed for pet population as well to only be allowed to important healthy animals.
- A Certified trainer or facility should be available to allow new adoptees the ability to train these animals or offer advice to new owners .

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't think the city can have much of a role aside from what the CBSA regulates .They set the standards and conditions so as long as those are being met I feel there is not role that city needs to play.
- Testing for infectious/communicable disease
- The city should ban the import of animals for pets from other countries. We have more than enough animals for pets available at our local shelters that demand dictates. Every animals brought in just adds costs to our already over supply of animals for pets.
- Checking vaccinations and health history
- For international arrivals, pre-licencing, proof of ongoing/regular vaccination (after the importation), mandatory spaying and neutering unless the importer is a registered AKC breeder in good standing.
- The provincial and federal legislation about permitted animals. City should have no role in this as it is already complicated enough to read the federal regulations and the provincial Act. City should take no action in this area.
- Must be in good health, fully vaccinated with no communicable diseases and undergo a reasonable quarantine period to ensure their is no parasite or disease incubating.
- Were the animals legally and ethically obtained.
- No crazy pets, kangaroos, chimps or exotic animals without a personal training license.
- no opinion
- For personal use only, rescues shouldn't be allowed to import animals. Introduces zoonotic diseases we have never seen here before!!!
- Local rescues should have priority over imported rescues. Quarantines need to be enforced, vaccination, spay/neuter etc.
- No trade or traffic in wildlife. No sourcing animals from mills. Source of the animal must be accredited (rescue facilitators included) and meet every standard for the physical and mental health of the animal.
- We should limit import of animals. Exotic animals that are not from our climate are unlikely too thrive here and animals from other countries "for adoption" are often street animals - how are we to knows their health and temperament before they arrive?
- good behaviour up to date on vaccinations
- They are have a proper health screen, they have all current vaccinations
They are able to be rehabilitated
They are spayed/neutered
- none. the owner and animal, as you just stated, have already been through a process to get here, why is the City always adding red tape and trying to be a control freak?
- Proof they were obtained from a responsible breeder or rescue organization
- A medical check to ensure good heath and the pets needs can be met while living within Calgary.
- Health checks by a qualified veterinarian
- Ensuring their health is up-to-date and they are registered and spayed/neutered.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Don't accept any foreign animals. We have plenty of our own. Have you ever seen how many animals are in shelters as it is? Rescue animals from local shelters first!!! Flying animals here is stupid!!
- Any commercial animals coming from outside of the country should be quarantined. We are receiving dogs in Canada that are spreading diseases that are not common in Calgary or Canada & our dogs are getting sick. Like canine influenza.
- I don't understand why they would be imported commercially for sale, they should only allow adoptions for regulated fees. For adoption, the animals should be spayed/neutered and have appropriate paperwork from a veterinarian stating good health.
- Animals should be treated by vet to ensure health, receive proper vaccinations, be spayed neutered, evaluated for behaviour, require new owner to license
- Ensure all paperwork is in order.
- Yes.
- That there is already an adoptee in place to provide the forever home. That there is little chance of the animal getting adopted where it was found.
- Animals imported for rescue should be spayed or neutered to minimize diseases such as brucellosis from being transmitted. Must be examined by a local vet to ensure healthy upon arrival to Calgary as when they come under the pretense of rescue many of them don't come as commercial imports.
- They should be immediately have a wellness exam in order to determine if they have any illnesses (especially those that would require a quarantine)
- Health certificates - my believe we are allowing rescue dogs/cats in from countries and they are bringing diseases with them
- Do they need to be quarantined? Is this the best thing for the animal? Couldn't they be adopted out closer to where they originated..
- Complete medical check. history if available. All vaccinations up to date. Spayed or neutered
- I strongly disagree with the importation of animals. Until there are tougher entry requirements to protect current animals from invading diseases and more humane transport requirements, i am strongly opposed to imported animals
- veterinary health certificate to assure vaccinations and no importation of dangerous diseases
- I do not believe we should import rescue animals at all, individual animals imported should follow the health regulations
- I don't believe you should import animals for commercial purposes. This is how new diseases and parasites are introduced to the area. There are already enough animals in the province that need homes.
- Much stricter testing and quarantine for tick borne diseases and heart worm. Quarantine animals that do not have proof of vaccination (rabies as well as distemper, parvo and others depending on the country of import).
- Animals have been health checked prior to entry, animals are licensed

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Much more rules on proper deworming protocols, and the animals should be tested for disease or parasites. I personally do not believe animals should be imported for commercial use, adoption or selling them. Their health and parasites are a danger to our local population.
- The safety of the animal. *IF* that animal gets free how likely is it that it will reproduce and cause problems in our wild spaces.
- The importing agency should be responsible for all costs. The animals need to be kept in proper environments and be well looked after.
- current shelter capacity rates at both the humane society and bylaw
- Unsure
- The city seems to have the misconception that imported dogs are feral and have behaviour issues (have been told this directly by a bylaw employee). This is false. ALL dogs are prone to behaviour issues should genetics and/or their environment fail them. Such ignorance is damaging.
- Don't know. I defer to people who do think about this seriously to make appropriate decisions. I can tell you though, that EXPORT of animals (horses or any other livestock) for meat is something that Calgary should make difficult. Conditions under which these animals are transported = deplorable
- Only licensed rescues should be permitted to import dogs/cats for adoption. Other buyers should be limited to number of dogs/cats they can bring in each year. Those animals should be purebred.
- A reasonable quarantine time is put in place before animal can be sent/posted for adoption/resale.
- Business that are importing animals for adoption should not be supported.
- Behaviour checks, no aggressive animals
- Quarantine for a period of time, vaccinations equivalent to Canada minimum for dog or cat
- Potential danger to people and pets already in the city. Potential for smell and noise that would affect others living in the immediate area.
- The animals must not be already for sale in Canada. It's just like immigration. You can't hire someone from abroad if there are capable workers here in Canada. Canadian business first
- Veterinarian and vaccination info, source of the animal, age and breed, dam and sire info
- So long as it does not have a negative affect on the rescue animals brought in out of country, I have no opinion.
- Commercially importing animals is a business. They must be quarantined, vet/health checked at Canadian standards for foreign disease at the expense of the rescue/business. Limit the overall annual number of animals accepted. As above, the business should be permitted and accept returned animals.
- Health checks.
- They cannot be a threat to our community.
- As above
- Rescued animals should be a priority over breeders.
- The guidelines regulated by Canada Border Services Agency. No need to duplicate. CUT COSTS!
- health and safety of the incoming animals. adequate new home supports available for the incoming animals.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Absolute proof that any animal imported is not from an animal mill, and has not been acquired through any illegal pet trade. It's a fact that the illegal pet trade produces laundered documents in an attempt to hide the true origin of animals, including dogs and cats, but especially exotic animals.
- No animals should be pets that are endangered. No dangerous animals that are wild like hippos lions, leopards.. etc. Ones that is they escape will not disrupt the eco system
- Same criteria as that of Canada Border Services
- We have plenty of animals here needing adoption, why are we importing other countries' problems? The lack of verifiable records on these animals is a problem.
- They should not be accepted to protect people from deadly viruses. It is not needed....It cannot be monitored properly. There are enough abused animals without importing more.
- N/A
- I do not believe animals should be imported until such a time that the local animal shelters no longer have homeless animals awaiting adoption.
- Has been checked by a qualified vet.
- Quarantine and valid vet checks. Must come from a reputable company. NO illegal imports of endangered animals, or prohibited animals
- Just to ensure the animal is either in good health or has prepaid insurance, and that they be licensed by the rescue or company as necessary.
- Must be rendered incapable of breeding
- Animal is healthy
- Imported animals should be reasonably healthy as specified by a full veterinary exam, no pitbulls should be imported, animals must provide proof they have never been aggressive toward other animals or humans.
- Animals must be healthy and well-cared for
- Proof of immunizations and the general health of the animal.
- Waivers for pet rescue organizations
- Quarantine period
Vaccines, spay/neuter
No invasive species
- Disease screening for zoonotic diseases from other countries
- Whatever the Border Agency deems rules and regulations need to be followed.
- THESE ANIMALS SHOULD BE UNDER QUARITINE TO MAKE SURE THEY ARE NOT CARRYING ANY DISEASES. THERE ARE MORE THAN ENOUGH ANIMALS HERE THAT NEED ADPOTING SO WHY DO WE NEED ANY IMPORTED AT ALL. AS THESE ANIMALS MOST LIKELY CAME FROM PUPPY MILLS
- Do we have a population of said animals here who need adoption already? If so, more stringent importation requirements for permits.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Importing animals should only be acceptable if there is an owner already for it. So a bill of sale to allow that animal to be imported. For pet stores, there should be a limit of number of animals imported.
- Exotic animals should not be imported for sale/adoption. Domestic animals should be quarantined for an appropriate number of days and all vaccines should be in place prior to coming into Canada.
- Vaccinated and healthy
- The status of the species in their country of origin. Not to support catching the wild animals from natural habitats in order to be sold abroad! That fuels animal poaching and extinction of species.
- ABSOLUTELY NO IMPORTATION OF ANIMALS.
The only type of animal importation should be animal rescue which provides Calgarians with a variety of dogs that are often not available here (ex. small dog imports from California via rescue). Albertan animals should be prioritized however.
- Making sure the animal is not carrying diseases unknown to the country and clean bill of health.
- I don't know what the current criteria is, but I believe that they should be healthy first and foremost, for the protection of the pets already living within Calgary.
- None. It is regulated enough by CBSA.
- Health certificates
- Must have provenance - no puppy mills, avoid stolen animals. No diseases and must be checked by a vet. Spay and neuter except if imported for breeding or showing.
- Local feral animals should be considered first. If people bring other animals into the country they should be licensed, and the animal checked for disease before entering the country.
- Proof of origin, history of the animal, ethical sourcing (no wild harvest, no "puppy mills"), health / vaccinations records
- Dangerous, invasive, exotic, infectious, endangered, inappropriate (elephant, bison), correct environment
- Limit on exotic animals able to be imported. And bans on the sale of animals considered endangered or at risk for endangerment.
- The same criteria required federally should be required municipally
- Health checks and make sure they are not being used illegally or for a mill type situation.
- Healthy dogs with all vaccines done.
- as long as they are healthy they should be allowed.
- Health check, consider quarantine.
- Ensuring the animal has been sourced ethically, and that it is not a threatened, endangered, or at risk species.
- They should be spayed or neutered. A health check and blood work done. A microchip implanted and registered to the new owner.
- The animal should be spayed/neutered, and the animal should be fully vaccinated. IN the case of exotic animals, the owner should agree to random spot checks, to ensure they don't release the animal into the wild if they get bored of it.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Documentation of health of animal.
- Checks for disease/parasites etc that may be introduced to the area that were not otherwise present.
- Calgary, nor any other Canadian jurisdiction, shouldn't be importing strays. There are enough strays already.
- Imported to or from a breeder.
- Absolute health and temperament guaranteed to person purchasing animal. Again full refund of animal price for sickness that animal had at time of sale or bad temperament
- Approval
- Licensed to import animals, or a permit. Imported animal is registered and inspected by a reputable veterinarian.
- N/A
- Same as Canadian Border Services. That they be healthy and vaccinated.
- Be sure animals are vaccinated/healthy before being given to owners.
- -we should only be accepting adoptable animals. We should be discouraging animal breeding
- Quarantine upon arrival. We are bringing in diseases from other countries
- I do not see the need to change anything at the moment other than importing rescue dogs and cats or other pets should be forbidden. There are enough pets in this province to save first before looking in other jurisdiction
- Nothing endangered!! Safe healthy conditions for animals before and after sale.
- imported animals should be for adoption only
- Again, reputable businesses only.
- if they go to a shelter then those shelters should be licensed, inspected and regulated. The fair and compassionate treatment of all animals must be paramount. They should all pass vet checks and ensure they are healthy and not able to spread disease.
- Rabies and a health certificate. I run a dog rescue there are more health concerns with dogs coming from the reservations in terms of diseases.
- I don't know
- Health check
- Need to pass health check to ensure free of diseases, up to date on vaccinations and licensed to enter city.
- No exotic animals
- Pets should not be imported for commercial sale. There are more than enough pets available in Canada for this purpose. Importing for adoption should be limited to places like Maui Humane Society, which doesn't have an adequate local population to support all their adoption needs.
- health inspection, homing/environment where the pet will reside.
- Please lower the wait time to receive an animal that is a family pet as it is frustrating and anxiety provoking for the animal and for the family to wait hours and hours for pick up.
Make sure they have their vaccines and pepper paper work.
- Health certificates

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Depending on origin that they undergo a mandatory quarantine or have documentation supporting that a quarantine period or proper testing was done prior to shipping that animal. Once in Calgary they should have to be seen by a licensed veterinarian within a certain time frame.
- no comment as I am not knowledgeable about this.
- That the people bringing in these animals are responsible for the wellbeing of these animals and if the client cannot fulfill expectations or cannot take the animals, the business should be responsible. People/businesses should prove that they are capable of providing what the animals require.
- The same as the TSA.
- Working service animals and animals that are from high risk euthanasia shelters.
- The same as any other retail sale if for a business a medical record, if for adoption the agency or individual must take the animal within 30 days or arrival to be checked.
- More checking re background of animals
- Would like to see CBSA, CFIA, the veterinary community and importers working together to identify infectious disease risk from import areas. Currently the consistently regulated disease is rabies, but as the volume of imported animals increases I would like clearer guidelines for other pathogens.
- Vet check ups, up to date on vaccinations, and spayed/neutered if a certain age before they arrive in the city
- Only that there's a home or space in a reputable shelter to take them.
- They should have proper health certificates, identification, and a piper quarantine zone
- Breeders must import with breed registration from home country, be members of our National Kennel Club (CKC), registered as a breeder with the City, pay the city pet license fee. Import Rescues need to vet certify each import , be city registered, pay license fees. All must Microchip for city tag.
- For dogs and cats imported, they should not be for retail sales. Only new owners, responsible breeders, and adoption organizations should be allowed to import dogs and cats.
- Do not accept importing to save the animals. Our local shelters have many animals for placement already.
- Up to date Health certificate, up to date vaccinations, already spayed/neutered.
- They must be fully vaccinated, vet checked and had been previously tested for disease.
- All animals should be quarantined and checked over by a vet before releasing them to a home.
- I personally feel that importing of animals should not be happening for the sale or adoption. If it is a dog that is being purchased from a licensed ethical breeder and all paperwork is in place then that is a direct dealing.
- Health certificate
- The animals (if a cat, dog, or rabbit) must be fixed before going home with the new owners
- that the origin of the animal needs to be verified and that organization deemed a qualified and humane commercial outfit.
- I don't think that rescues should be allowed to bring in animals from other countries because it risks introduction of disease.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They should not be imported unless they meet vaccination standards and are already purchased or have a home. Why the hell are we importing other countries' problems???
- They must pass a health check, be vaccinated.
- Healthy, safe
- Absolutely no importing of outside adoptable dogs without stringest understanding of reason (working, eg SAR, service, sport prospect). Bringing dogs in without owners lined up is unethical, bringing dogs in with owners lined up means the owners don't know what the dog's temperament is— unethical.
- Calgaryans should be allowed to purchase dogs out of province and out of country. But need to provide dog's ID and basic information plus how much was paid for the dog.
- The animal's individual welfare should be paramount. Who is importing the animal and for what purpose? If it is for any reason other than to enhance the health and welfare of the animal, it should be restricted.
- Consultation with bylaw. Not to be based on profit.
- Everything possible .... no commercial imports of any kind .... period... no exceptions.... we have plenty of our own right here
- Onky from within Canada
- We have enough, no additional required
- Transparency and excellent animal care
- 1 month quarantine
- We have enough here. Don't bring any more into the city.
- I honestly believe we have enough stray and abandoned dogs in Calgary that we should not be bringing dogs in from other countries. Once we get that under control we can look at other countries.
- Animals that are considered endangered or at risk should not be allowed unless going to a zoo or sanctuary. Proper medical records. We do not want infected animals to infect existing animals.
- The ability of the importer to provide proper medical attention if required and the ability to care for the animals in a clean environment. All animals must be spayed or neutered within 3 months of arrival
- Honestly it is so frustrating. The reason they are doing this is they can get the dogs free in Mexico or the states and they come fully vetted.
These dogs are not being temperament tested and there is no behaviorist here to help. This is scary when we have Canadian dogs we need to save. Bleeding
- Reputable animal rescue organizations, reputable licenced breeders.
- They should have appropriate shots (rabies? Not sure what else but I'm sure a vet could comment)
- Make sure animals are all licensed, vetted, and healthy. Make sure said animals are being cared for properly.
- Clear vaccination schedule, proper deworming, vet visit at point of origin and arrival. Quarantine.
- Health of the animal

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't think we should import 'rescue' dogs to Calgary. There are plenty of dogs in Canada that need our help. I do however believe individuals should be able to import specific dogs for themselves if they are looking for specific breeds/characteristics from breeders.
- Only zoos should import animals
- Must be spayed or neutered. Must have had all shots.
- Health checks.
- Frequency of imports from seller
- Health/condition of the animal
- Reason for import
- Health and safety
- make sure they don't have disease.
- If the CBSA allows them into the country, why is the city involved?
- They should require a vet check and a quarantine period (determined by a vet)
- Be sterilized prior to arrival with proper vaccines
- A health check
- Health checks
- No comment
- Only allow the import of altered and vaccinated animals. Must be imported from a humane and ethical breeder.
- registered dog rescues should be the only ones to bring in dogs
- Why are animals being imported at all? What animals are being imported?
- That they are vetted.
- Why are we allowing 'rescues' from other countries when there are enough stray pets here. Many bring diseases with them.
- Vaccinations before coming so no spread of illnesses to our pets.
- Vaccinated
- Imported animals should be required to be fully vaccinated, have a vet clearance for health and guarantee from the importer to cover any veterinarian expenses before being sold/adopted out to the public.
- Only animals from rescue situations in other countries should be allowed. But if imported, any animal should be quarantined until guarantee of health status is reached.
- The people should have a license. A portion of the money should be going to the SPCA or similar organizations
- Health of animal
- Ensuring pets are healthy, vaccinated, well taken care of during transit
- Subject to Canadian vet guidelines for vaccines and unless the pet is for breeding purposes (to a registered breeder in good standing) it should be spayed or neutered
- we should only open our borders to imported pets when our own unhomeless pet population is below a pre-determined threshold. Why bring more in when we have our own problem - overflowing

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

shelters. Also, imported pets have already introduced new disease here. We should look after our own back yard.

- Rabies shots
- There should, for example, only be adoption dogs from Mexico brought in when there are no more adoptable dogs in shyer in Calgary.
- Up to date on shots, not a stolen animal
- The age of the animal and if the animal is sick or has a significant medical history/requirement.
- I'm not in favour of importing animals
- Not sure
- They should have to abide by all the rules
- We need to take care of the ones we have here already.
- Health and behavioural inspection, and proper placement for when they arrive in Calgary, rescue or foster.
- I think they might need to be more strict, maybe it would cut down on the illegal dogfighting that I've heard going on.
- I don't know enough about this topic to give an informed opinion.
- Free of diseases
- The importer is fully credentialed and is not importing the animal to resell. No predators.
- That they can't negatively impact our eco system and are not dangerous to the general public.
- must be vetted prior to entry and pass a quarantine time. Animal must be accompanied by a bill Of sale and and proof of transfer of ownership of the animal. Animals should arrive in transport containers that are not crowded, well ventilated, with access to food &water &place to evacuate waste
- good health of the animal with vaccinations up to date. a plan to ensure the animal's future well being and ethical housing situation within Calgary.
- Animals should be well taken care of --- healthy, vaccinated, vet check, free from parasites and disease, groomed, humane quarantine. Bill of sale and transfer of ownership.
- For adoption is ok. Sale or breeding should have rules.
- Ensuring the health of the animal is in good condition
- That pets that we have here are not displaced by ones from outside sources. That those animals brought in commercially are healthy and not used inappropriately.
- Initial quarantine
- Nothing endangered except to zoos.
- This just should not happen, period. Animals are not commodities for retailers to financially benefit from.
- NO vicious breeds or behaviourally challenged or diseased animals
- Health standards first. And guidelines from Canadian and Alberta Veterinarian Associations. There has been an uptick in disease from imported dogs.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Licensed and legitimate organizations must be legitimate. Someone finding a street dog may have good intentions but no understanding of the health risks

- Risks to human or ecosystem health
- All animals deserve the best chance at life and be treated respectfully. We should limit the number of animals that do come into Canada to rescue organizations as we currently need to look after what is here in our own country first.
- some level of vet assessment/vaccines/quarantine if necessary to protect all of us from new disease.
- The number/capacity of shelters and rescue organizations.
- I'm not sure exactly but the criteria should be established with consultation with specialists in the area of disease control.
- importing animals from other countries for rehoming adoption should be banned we have enough here that need help
- I think that only rescue animals should be allowed to be imported.
- They're fine.
- Imported animals should not be accepted.
- Imported adoption animals should not be accepted in Calgary. There is no reason to bring in an adoptable animal when most of our local pet rescue businesses are at capacity.
- Animals that if escaped would have a poor effect on the ecological system should be banned and the place exporting should meet Canadian animal safety guidelines
- Ethical treatment of animals, address issues of consumption within the pet foodchain
- Mandatory vet-check + quarantine prior to licensing, and perhaps even an import fee.
- Ensure there is no harm to the local environment
- To me it should be the same as a retail sale scenario. The person offering the animal for sale/adoption must be licensed and in good standing. Vaccinations and other health requirement should be up to date prior to any sale or adoption.
- d/k
- Animals should be vetted with a routine exam.
- Health checks, vaccinations
- Unsure.
- Licensed importers
- Must spayed or neutered. Not have any viruses or known long term health effects (Valley fever as an example)
- as long as they are not a public health risk what benefit does additional regulations provide over CBSA? should be consistent across the province & country
- Animals should have owners first.
- No concerns here if rescues want to bring in animals.
- Vet checked, spayed/neutered
- Do not import strays/unwanted animals. We have enough of those in our own city/country!
- Imported animals should only be allowed if they are animals that are in short supply in Calgary

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should not be brought into our country from other countries unless they have been thoroughly evaluated and health checked. If we have an abundance of domestic animals to be home imports should be limited. Any incoming animal should be genetically tested to determine breed background.
- Not endangered, not trafficked.
- The whole dog rescue from other countries is getting out of hand - it's become a fraud in many cases and people are fooled into thinking they are doing a good thing. I also don't believe that any exotics should be allowed in the country as pets - birds, reptiles, etc. should be left alone.
- Certain rescues bring in "trailers" full of dogs acquired from places like California. These animals are often not altered, unsocialized and sickly, yet they are adopted out without fully knowing the animal and it's background. Rescues that bring in animals from out of country should have strict
- They should be in good health and they should be of breeds that are not available in Canada.
- Complete vet check mandatory licence by importer
- I'm concerned about diseases in animals that come from other countries. E.g. heartworm has become more common with animals coming from other parts of the world.
- Don't allow import of animals for sale. We have lots here, if someone is bringing in an animal for sale it is effectively a business good and given the issues around the treatment of animals it is one more way to exploit animals and purchasers.
- The importation of exotic animals needs to be carefully monitored. Certain species should not live as pets.
- They should be health and behaviour tested.
- Heavy licensing fees
- There should be a tariff, similar to most imported goods. There's no good reason to import most animals when there are so many available locally.
- Quarantines. Health and safety check.
- I think CATSA probably has a handle on this.
- As there is not much that can be done about animals crossing the border, the city should discourage the import of exotic species which is a throw back to another time in history when exotic animals were seen as simply objects and signs of prestige - very outdated.
- Ensure they do not harm native wildlife or people if they get out.
- They MUST undergo vet examination to clear them, for the safety of all pets in the city, and rescue groups in particular must have proof in hand that imported animals have a confirmed owner destination. It defeats their purpose if rescue animals end up euthanized here for lack of ownership.
- Not sure. Owners should have education and knowledge about exotic species. Animals also shouldn't be 'wild caught'. People should also be able to document the animal has been examined by a veterinarian, etc..
- They should only be accepted if they are importing strays from other countries and rehoming them here.
- n/a

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No. I strongly believe that we have enough of a local animal base that need help in Calgary, without importation FOR PROFIT!
- All animals spayed or neutered. No endangered animals. No dangerous animals. Documented regulated breeders. Imported animals quarantined.
- There is no need to import any at all, we have plenty around already.
- Not sure
- Don't accept them! We have hundreds of pets in need of good homes right here in Canada!
- The same rules should apply for Calgary as for CBSA.
- Health
- We should not be importing rescue animals
- No opinion
- There are some serious problem importers masquerading as rescues. They should be subject to oversight and checks regarding health and living conditions just like a retail store. Older animals should have suitable temperament for the home it goes to. Veterinarian care should be provided.
- That they are not of possible endangered species or possible of wild caught animals and that they have a reasonable bill of health and if not the new owner is aware of these concerns
- I can't think of anything that wouldn't be covered by Canada Border Services.
- We have so many animals within Canada not sure why we have to import.
- Accept them all.
- Vaccination records, breeders' records (for animals that could have been wild bred, not domestic cats and dogs). Very important to stop the trade of wild caught animals as pets.
- Vaccination records, parasite checks.
- Same as Border services
- organizations should not be allowed to import animals into Calgary from other countries while be have animals waiting to be adopted here in Calgary already.
- We should not be importing animals when we have shelters full of animals in need of homes.
- Not one that is endangered or on the edge of that. No poisonous or dangerous creatures. No exotic creatures including fish.
- ooh boy. When our own shelters are full of animals awaiting adoption, why are we importing pets? I can't even think about guidelines or regulations because it seems silly to me
- Inspection system in place for health/safety of animals.
- The animals may need to be quarantined depending on where they are coming from.
- No comment
- Animals should only be able to be imported into Calgary if they have come from a rescue group and NOT from a business that is profiting from the unnecessary breeding of animals. Exotic animals should be required to be vaccinated against disease. All imported animals must be spayed or neutered.
- commercial purposes - do you mean cows, pigs to add to their stock etc...? that's what I consider commercial purposes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I guess it depends on the situation. Imported animals for sale purposes is not ever necessary. Animals brought in due to disasters, over population or other situations for adoption situations should be a case by case criteria.
- Adequate care, which would have to be regulated and enforced, probably.
- I really think we have enough dogs in Calgary and surround. Why are we bringing in dogs from other countries? I would like to see the whole thing abolished.
- N/A - I don't believe this should fall under the city's jurisdiction.
- Clearance of any contagious diseases and viruses. Behaviour appraisal complete.
- Should be spayed or neutered, chipped and / or tattooed and registered with the city. If being sold too young to spay/neuter, then have that stuff pre-paid with reminder follow-ups and fines.
- Well to import these animals, they should have a home first, instead of the other way around. You are going to import an animal that can't be taken care of properly in it's home city where it was born, then try to find a home here in Calgary without any reassurances it will be taken care of properly
- Licences and training classes
- Prevent environmental damage for invasive species.
- Should be none of the city's business.
- City should be documented, check by vet, quarantined if necessary depending of origin and notifications to community that a animal is near. ( there's a leopard that lives two doors down). Caps on how many are acceptable. Litters of animals can destroy property and neighbourly relationships.
- N/a
- They should already have an identified owner. Not sure why we are importing stray dogs that don't have a home here. Any animals should be disease free and spayed or neutered immediately and quarantined if required
- Tough question because although I think we should adopt alberta dogs mine is from Mexico. I wanted a small dog
- If the border says it's ok why would Calgary figure the federal regulations aren't suitable?
- Don't know.
- Clean medical records (tested in Canada) and licensed.
- Checked for zoonose diseases, legality, health.
- - certificate that a veterinarian has examined the animal and declared it healthy
- certificates of age-appropriate vaccinations
- Healthy, appropriatley contained and well cared for.
- Health, location, not wild caught
- Checked for diseases, has shots, not dangerous animal, etc.
- Don't allow imported RESCUED dogs other than a singular purchase....we have enough dogs/cats at our own facilityies
- I think it's most important that these animals already have a home lined up before being brought in. If it is a matter of bringing them here to list them for adoption I think they should not be allowed as we already have so many animals here that need adoptive homes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Should not be bringing in dogs from other countries
- Current legal requirements.
- No endangered or at-risk species. No species known to carry disease. Limits on breeding and number of broods/female. Manage waste, noise, odour and debris. Mandatory inspections on exotic animal households. No dangerous animals in homes with children under 12.
- no birds, reptiles, or any exotic wildlife should be imported for the "pet" industry. These are wild animals that do not belong in someone's home.
- I would support importation of pet animals for humane adoption purposes, but not for commercial purposes. That said, the local animal shelters are full of pets needing homes and emphasis needs to be put on rehoming these animals.
- I feel that a moratorium needs to be in place until we have control of our own issue
- ANIMALS SHOULD NOT BE IMPORTED INTO CALGARY OR ANYWHERE JUST IN ORDER TO BE SOLD! PEOPLE SHOULD NOT MAKE A PROFIT OFF THE SALE OF ANIMALS THAT HAVE TO BE TRAUMATIZED BY AIR OR ROAD TRAVEL!! SUPER MESSED UP!!!!
- Specifics for clearance of the animal laid out and confirmed at both ends of transit (eg vet check on both ends). Exotics require more regulation.
- Totally against.
- Making sure the commercial owners are responsible and can take proper care of the animals.
- Cats and dogs should not be imported into Canada or Calgary
- None.
- I have no idea what is appropriate. I'd be concerned about the health of the animals and invasive species.
- ban them
- I think as long as no issues have come about with the system so far maybe leave it be...
- Only for the purpose of adoption, Non-profit, animal welfare.
- These dogs have usually been in at least a 30 day quarantine and neutered before you can adopt. I feel that most rescue outfits are much more self regulated than the majority of local breeders. They have to prove the dog is vetted and healthy prior to adoption
- Licensed, checked by certified vet and given clean bill of health before entering city. Not sure about having them spayed or neutered - to prevent improper breeding.
- make sure that pets inside of Calgary have equal opportunity to be adopted . I think we should work on our own issues rather than bring more in for the City to worry about.
- I am completely against the import of animals for the purpose of ADOPTION.
- The import laws for bringing an animal into Canada already address any issues. No need for more municipal red tape.
- Local animals should be prioritized for sale/adoption. Imported animals should only be accepted when there is a shortage of local animals.
- That they have had a health check and all shots before shipping.
- Stop bringing the man when we have too many to look after already

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None let the CRA rule apply
- Pure-breed animals brought to the city with intent of profiting should be taxed.
- Any animals that have been proven a detriment to local ecosystems should not be imported and/or sold.
- Health certification, business license.
- - Vet checked and tested for foreign diseases
- Health checks. Type of animal - whether or not it is suitable for our climate.
- Healthy including blood testing for diseases endemic to region they are from
- Make sure there is business license ... impose tax ...
- I think CBS has pretty stringent rules, and that they are probably mostly enough, although adding that the animals should be spayed/neutered is a good idea.
- Should not be an invasive species if let loose and left to multiply
- I do not believe we should import at all, too many strays and unwanted here already.
- None
- Most importantly, local breeders and local dog charities should be given priority. if there is a shortage then I don't see a problem with importation.
- Rescue animals from other countries/provinces should have been examined by a veterinarian, and fully vaccinated and dewormed prior to importation into Calgary.
- Nothing to add above responsibilities of CBSA.
- Imported animals can be rescue animals which are being given a second chance at a life they could receive in Calgary. I strongly believe in these animals being allowed into our city because they are being brought in by reputable organizations who have the animals wellbeing and security at heart.
- I think it should be limited. We have so many pets that need homes in Alberta and Canada. Plus animals coming from more tropical areas have diseases and parasites that local veterinarians are not as used to handling and treatment can be an unexpected cost for pet owners and increase risk to humans.
- Behaviour of dogs - sick and tired of aggressive "rescue" dogs being brought in and then poorly controlled by owners.
- Ensure animal health and welfare. Also type of animal of animal being imported. Restrictions on exotic animals.
- Animals must come from a reputable, certified breeder and not be wild harvested or at risk
- The animal should be in good health, be properly vaccinated when appropriate, and unless the animal is being imported specifically for breeding purposes should be spayed/neutered.
- Import orgs should require better veterinary examinations prior to being adopting, rather than accepting the vet certificates from their countries of origin. Quarantine for animals from countries with know zoonotic disease. These "rescues" should not be allowed to operate as non-profits.
- Healthy, vet cked, purchase bill.
- They should also not be permitted to possess endangered, at risk, or potentially invasive species.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Imported animals should have documentation showing a clean bill of health and once in Calgary, be quarantined to be sure there are no health or behavior issues. Also, rescue organizations should NOT be allowed to import dogs for adoption in Calgary.
- - Full veterinary inspection
- - Full health history available
- - Life history available (including info on the breeder and intermediary owners)
- Check the organization carefully.
- Lots of pets to adopt in Canada - however if bring into country need to be assured are free of disease and going to a good home and not for profit
- Spray and neuter need to be required. Also must have PROOF of vet checks.
- importing remained allowed. but but adhere to federal standards. A municipality shouldn't be stepping in.
- Animal importation should be outlawed.
- Vaccinated, proven good health, quarantine period
- Does this question refer to exotic animals? If that should be Federally legislated? If the question is referring to domestic animals from other countries, I think we have enough local animals that need to be taken care of without going to the expense of importing animals from other countries.
- Must be vaccinated and in good health,
- Clear and verifiable medical and behavior histories
- Unless it's a cat or dog we should not allow imported animals - those that are here can grandfathered but no more imports.
- Proper vet checks and medical records
- - Proper vaccination with adequate records
- - Veterinary exam within a set length of time
- Stop importing rescue dogs from other countries. It is an obscene waste of resources in a city where animals and people are going hungry
- Making sure the animal is in good health. Making sure the breed is not a threat to humans or local wildlife.
- The number of pets brought into Calgary should be regulated based on the number of pets available for adoption through local shelters. If there are many pets in Calgary needing a home, then we should not be importing pets.
- Should be free of diseases, we have enough homeless animals here why are we bringing in more, my heart goes out to these animals but others are be euthanized because they don't get homes.
- No opinion.
- Imported animals should already have a home that they are coming to.
- all animals must be quarantined, checked for health issues, vaccinated, spayed, neutered, they should be required to carry proof of being checked by a vet for all of that BEFORE transportation and then should be checked on arrival. restrictions on the type of animal imported should be in place

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It's complicated. I don't believe exotic animals should be imported for sale. I'd rather see animals rescued than sold. I'd rather see local animals adopted. However we don't have resources to deal with this.
- Animals that are imported by registered breeders or retail stores should already have many rules in place. If you are asking about rescue animals for adoption, I do not feel we should take out of province or country animals for fostering or adoption. Those animals should be euthanized locally.
- This would be difficult to enforce since they can go to another community then CALGARY. Impossible to trace. Work needs to be done with border patrol to put in controls (aggression assessment, health checks and traceable background)
- Being able to trace breeding practices and verification of the animal's proper feeding, watering and exercising needs are met
- Age, temperament, vaccines,
- They would have to meet all criteria/rules previously discussed.
- Safety of that animal and others who may be in contact. Ex saving it from death/suffering is a great reason to import, but maybe quarantine to ensure we are not bringing illness
- Not endangered
Not taken from the wild
Not likely to have undergone unnecessary stress or death on travel.
- Quarantene if necessary. Neutered if the breed is more feral.
- Certification of where the animal is coming from and again, healthy animals (should come with a health inspection certificate).
- Animals imported from shelters or rescue organizations from outside of Canada should be quarantined. In addition, a Canadian vet should evaluate each animal and feral animals, as well as dogs raised as livestock, should be evaluated by a trainer for temperament.
- They should be rescues and not carry disease.
- Calgary should not allow the import of any at risk, threatened, or endangered species. People bringing in dogs from Mexico or Asia should have to adopt local strays on a one-to-one basis.
- The same guidelines that already have to be met by the Canada Border Services Agency. Why would you change or soften them?
- All shots, spayed or neutered, and only in exceptional circumstances *there are lots of pets to be adopted from Canada. I do not believe we should allow the import of ANY exotic animals, and only exceptionally dogs and cats.
- They are from a rescue and going to a rescue. Or an owned personal animal travelling. None for personal resale or for slaughter!
- A health exam?
- they should be not carrying any communicable diseases. They need to have their vet check up to date and their shots if necessary.
- Inspected.
Quarantine period.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Recognized importer that is licensed to bring in animals.

- Health check
- Appropriate quarantine time, proof of vaccinations after arrival
- Should be licensed
- No imported animals in Calgary.
- History of animal- aggression, health, where it grew up, why it is coming all the way to Calgary?
- Vet checking before entering Canada, with all shots updated. Quarantine.
- -they are not endangered animals
- -animals are not smuggled
- -animals are healthy
- -animals come from a reputable source
- Don't know enough about this to comment.
- Where and who are they coming from.
- This is how I got my dog. I love him but really feel the importation and sales of animals should be regulated. The animals should be healthy. The business should be clear if it's a non profit or a business.
- There should be a quarantine period.
All rescues must be licensed and in good standing with regulators before being allowed to import animals. If medical concerns are noted with the animals the rescue or individual must pay for all necessary medical care.
- Create regulations to ensure the animals come in from reputable sources and the animal health and well being is the primary concern
- Animals should never be imported for their sale. For adoptions, animals should be treated for diseases and illnesses before being homed in Calgary.
- Proper vaccines
- If they pass the border that should be enough
- Ensure all of these animals have been fully vetted and vaccinated before entering Calgary (or Canada at all for that matter)
- Animals must be up to date on Canadian Vaccine requirements.
- Spayed or neutered. Not from a animals mill.
- Vaccination is a must, but also believe that tests should be conducted to ensure they are not bringing diseases into the area that are not already present.
- Same as domestic sales.
- Health checks for the arrived animals and the shelter importing them needs to ensure they get all their vaccinations and get spayed/ neutered. I think most do that anyway. I think city should basically be supportive of animals being rescued from kill shelters in other countries.
- That they have been 100% treated or examined for diseases. Should also be checked for identifiers to ensure they are not stolen and being resold for profit
- Not necessary to import animals for commercial purposes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the animals are being imported for humanitarian reasons and are to be adopted out by a recognized charity or non profit group it should not be considered commercial.
- Healthy breeding practices.
- Make sure they are disease free and maybe a home quarantine for a period.
- No displacement of local animals.
- Should be moving with the family
- Healthy and treated well
- All shots done, vet inspection.
- The animals need to see a vet that clears them of foreign illnesses that can make the other animals in the city sick. They must also be approved by the city of Calgary if they are not within Canada. If within Canada a standard vet check should be required within 30 days of arrival
- I do not think the city needs to meddle in this at all. Again, I do not believe there is any benefit beyond appeasing chicken littles, in over regulation. Let the market decide if people want to adopt homeless imported purse dogs, instead of buying one at [personal information removed] or a kijiji breeder.
- checked for illness
- Same as any other animal - CBSA specifies quarantines and health certificates already
- Health checks; dangerous dog checks; and behaviour assessment.
- I think that commercial rescues should be licensed and required to have health tested dogs (as per CBSA requirements). But, bringing adult and non-social dogs into the City should also require standards around training and temperament. That testing should be done City staff, and when dogs arrive.
- Health checks and already spayed and neutered. I don't believe we should be importing animals (rescues) from other countries for adoption we have enough here to fulfill the needs. Papered purebreds are a different case however.
- I trust the CBSA to implement the necessary regulations. I don't think Calgary needs any extra.
- The animals should be healthy and be unlikely to be adopted in their country of origin. They should also go through a behavioural screening.
- Obviously vaccinations and clear from disease but that's all.
- I don't have any problems with importing pets, as long as they aren't endangered or threatened species. As long as they have a documented clean bill of health from a veterinarian, I don't see any reason to stop the practice.
- Mandatory quarantine period. Mandatory vet check regardless of animal.
- Federal rules. How would the city even monitor this if not at the federally controlled point of entry? Regulate what you can control.
- For cats and dogs, registration and rules on who can sell commercially, and ensuring there are minimum training requirements, etc. Limits to the number of pet selling businesses - we already have an oversupply.
- Commercial imports for resale should not be allowed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Safe and humane treatment; screen for illnesses;
- Making sure they are healthy and that they don't fall under the banned species act
- I really wish we wouldn't. Okay for an individual to adopt an animal elsewhere and bring them home. But I would say no to rescues that import dogs to adopt out here. We have our own pet overpopulation problems and have no shortage of local adoptables.
- That they have all papers to prove it is from a credible source and the animal is up to date with shots
- The the agency that is actively importing animals to be sold in Calgary need to also be actively rehoming local animals as well
- I don't know enough
- I'm not convinced that there is a need import animals.
- Healthy animals with up to date vet records supplied with the animal to the new owner and to the City.
- Stop bringing pets into the Country for commercial purposes. Until we are able to end pet overpopulation, unwanted pets, homelessness in our own Cities and Provinces we should not be bringing in pets from other countries. Allowing this is being irresponsible and adding to the pet overpopulation issues
- Medical exam
- Animals should be fairly and humanely treated. Animals shouldn't be vicious.
- Health and vaccination inspections/records - from certified/qualified veterinary organizations or individuals whose credentials are recognized in Canada.
- No feedback.
- This should stop. The opportunity for disease and abuse of the animal is too high.
- Their origins should be clearly stated so that people know where the animals came from. They should be licensed.
- Full Shots and vet check documentation
- Licensed and a limit on the number of animals allowed
- No sure
- Health.
- No comment
- They need full veterinary exam prior to acceptance and depending where they are coming from, potentially a certain amount of days for quarantine.
- Health of animal, reputation of importing agency, intended use of animal, whether the animal would naturally occur in Canada (like we don't have many native monkey species).
- Registered charity or business with the city. Ethical care. Existing foster home or adoptive home for pets. How many homeless pets on the city - should be taken care of first before bringing in more.
- All animals should be in good physical and mental health.
All animals should be provided for and all of their needs met.
All animals should be free from disease and parasites.
Animals should be quarantined upon arrival.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Steps should be taken to ensure animals wellbeing during travel.

- All their shots are up to date, they aren't stolen, they are taken care of.
- That the animals are all vaccinated and free of disease.
- I'm not sure
- Feeding and health possibilities in a place like YYC (weather, relation to wild life), possibility of vet care in town
- That all pets have the necessary vaccines and be disease free prior to coming here and what country did they come from and age of dog. Purpose of dog coming into Canada and who is receiving them at other end.
- Imported from a licensed breeder or adoption agency to ensure proper treatment of the animals
- Not sure
- These owners should have to prove their vaccinations, that they are going to a loving home and not going to be abused.
- The same as the national standards seems like the obvious answer.
- No health risk and no animal abuse.
- I don't think we should be accepting dog and cat rescues from anywhere outside of the province.
- There are more than enough animals in Calgary and the surrounding area that we don't need to import more.
- They do not carry disease, they are in good health or quarantined and treated to prevent the spread of disease. Animals are to be sterilized.
- Proof of health, vet checked, ensure no illegal importing.
- Domesticated animals only that have been cleared as healthy by a veterinarian.
- They've been humanely bred.
- Same criteria as if the animal was not imported.
- I don't know enough on this subject to have an opinion. So education seems to be lacking on many subjects
- No animals should be imported to Calgary as rescues. The only imported animals should be those that have been obtained by single private sale or private ownership.
- Compassion. Provide medical care to needy animals instead of rejecting them.
- I am not sure that commercial animals means. I'm guessing pet stores? Maybe rescues. Either way it should mean a vet visit immediately upon arrival and any required quarantine, up to date on required vaccinations before travel to Canada even occurs.
- not familiar enough with this.
- No opinion
- Unsure.
- Healthy animals with homes waiting for them.
- quarantine for 7-10 days, vet exam, appropriate vaccines and deworming and blood tests ie heartworm tests
- quarantine, appropriate blood tests for contagious diseases, vaccines and deworming

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't like commercial imports, special adoption
- that import from puppy mills should never be okay. What are these puppy mills doing that makes them so easy to by-pass regulation sometimes? it's mind boggling. And in general, I think we should also never allow import of endangered animal species.
- Appropriate shots and vet care prior to coming
- Deal with local issues first, before trying to take on another city's issues.
- Laissez-faire. Calgary is too cold for most imported animals to thrive in the wild. There are currently way too many regulations.
- Disease free, quarantine period, non-invasive, non-poisonous.
- Health testing, especially for infectious diseases. Ensuring they are headed to a place they will be well cared for.
- The same criteria for when humans from other countries flee to Canada
- Not sure
- Passes under the agriculture guidelines. Health certified and making sure they are not forged. Quarantined minimum two weeks to prevent diseases that are not normally found in North America that are coming in from unscrupulous animal rescue groups from Korea, China, Turkey, Romania and Mexico.
- Animals should Fully vaccinated, a full physical exam and spayed or neutered unless It is a purebred Animal from a certified breeder.
- leave it to CBSA.
- They shouldn't be accepted at all. We have enough animals. Unless they are for education purposes or breeding as they may become extinct.
- Not enough information available to provide feedback on this question.
- Health checks, many are imported as we seem to have many animals in foster care or rescue agencies already. Not really sure why people bring animals in when we have many already needing homes.
- 100% need to be behaviourally evaluated. Quarantine (in a home preferably) to check for any diseases ect
- License
- Zero exotic animals from outside of Canada. Rescue dogs from other countries should be closely monitored by local animal patrol and rescue organizations. We have so many dogs and cats available here for adopting and rescuing.
- similar to those used by The Canada Border Services Agency and that all municipal regs are met. If not covered by either of those, then health checks and vaccinations.
- They should be from countries with excess stray dogs for adoption here.
- Physical examination for ticks, fleas, mange, illness etc. Quarantine for those who need. Regulation of foster homes for numbers, care and license for animals.
- Same as the CSBSA
- What criteria is there now?

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- What criteria is there now?
- We should not be importing strays, there are enough animals already in shelters here that need homes.
- Quarantine and health inspections before the animal is allowed in. Proper holding facilities when the animals arrive.
- Rabies, vaccinations, spay and neuter is possible.
- Freedom from disease - appropriate vaccination protocols have been followed. No exotic animals.
- Again--full, documented provenance. And whatever it takes to ensure full wellness for the animals.
- Registration
- Absolutely stop importing stray animals from other countries. UK takes in strays from Guatemala, Romania ect. USA takes in strays from UK, China, Mexico, ect. Canada takes in strays from UK, USA, Mexico, China, Egypt, El Salvador, ect. Ect.Ect. Who is helping our stray population born in Calgary?
- All records of animals.
- There should be enough proof from buyers that they have researched the local market and tried to secure the animal from multiple sources. Probably something in writing from the sources they have reached out to.
- This is not the jurisdiction of the municipality.
- None, already sufficiently regulated by CBSA. Cities should not be limiting mobility of its residents
- Rescues must be checked for any illnesses and major injuries. No other animals need to be imported unless they're exotic
- They must be vaccinated and vetted healthy before being sold.
- Vet certificate of health
- Inspected for care and adoption to valid and safe adoption
- They should be vet checked and immunized as well as tested for their behaviour
- Ensure they are healthy, not introducing diseases, etc. Ensure they have good homes.
- Animals only imported by pre-approved and reputable agencies.
- Make sure they are not an endangered species(exceptions to zoo obviously), they do not put public at risk, they would be checked for all foreign or native diseases before leaving and entering Canada
- All shots up to date
- None. I dont agree with importing dogs for adoption. There are enough shelters already at capacity.
- Not sure when this should ever be necessary, based on my comment above.
- Health and shots
- Spayed or neutered - all shots- imported as a commercial livestock - increased licensing fee
- Quarantine until cleared
- Humane practices
- They are healthy
- We should not be importing outside of Alberta.
- Brucellosis testing, tick disease testing from the USA.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No idea.
- Health check, UP to date vaccinations, microchipped, mandatory spay/neuter
- Not sure. We don't have enough dogs here already?
- Animals should be up to date on vaccines including Rabies. Should also be vet checked and health cleared for any contagious diseases or parasites.
- Should be a pet that could be reasonably cared for by the owner
- The standards of care of the organization attempting to import the animals should be high, and individuals importing animals should be able to ensure the city that the animals were ethically attained and care for properly.
- I believe the animals should imported for adoption only. With a strict limited length of travel, that is safe for them .
- The impacts to the environment if they were to get out and how they would effect native species.
- Unsure
- Same as federal
- understanding of disease vectors and potential of public endangerment
- None
- All vaccines up to date and paperwork showing where they are coming from with history of the animal.
- All animals show proof of Municipal Animal Licensing. All animals be neutered/ spayed upon arrival. All animals be microchipped. Limit number of animals allowed to be in care and control of one person.
- There are sufficient homeless dogs here--imports shouldn't be accepted. Rehabilitate them and rehouse them in country of origin.
- All animals are vaccinated.
- Animals be required to be quarantined for at least 6 months and each individual animal have documents similar to a passport that includes pictures and vaccination records. All imported animals should be licensed before being allowed in this country
- I don't know.
- No animal mills. Disease free.
- not sure
- Sprayed, neutered and a health inspection to make sure animal is healthy and hasn't been abused.
- They should be done do safely and be in good health
- heavily taxation to prevent it
- Health and safety concerns only
- Through vet check. Microchipped and licensed
- If it's for a rescue, it shouldn't have any restrictions or fees (minus maybe a basic health check to make sure it isn't contagious with something)
- See above regarding retail sale
- Quarantine until all shots are up to date and they have had a vet check up.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If the animals come from a licensed breeder, then breeders paperwork should be included when licensed here in Calgary, including history of dog/cat and vet info. Animals coming from a rescue group outside of Calgary, paperwork as to the reason the animal is being relocated, veterinary details.
- proof that they have the required documents to show they have been vaccinated etc...
- Proper paper work.
- There are so many animals needing homes here in Canada that I feel their should be a few for out of country animals and they must have strict vetting so they aren't introducing disease and viruses to our animals here.
- Just that they meet CBSA guidelines, and that's already taken care of by CBSA.
- Same as any other animal, follow the bylaws.
- Ethically bred or rescued, no factory dogs
- Vaccinated, mandatory human/dog training at a credited facility.
You need trainign to drive a car, i think mandatory training upon getting a dog is a must.
- I don't know.
- Not sure I understand this one. I rescued a pair of dogs from St. Louis MO 10 years ago - would they be defined here as commercial imports? My niece has rescued a dog from Thailand - is this a commercial import? I need to understand "commercial imports" better before answering this.
- I have no issues with the importing of animals BUT for adoption only!
- Not bring sick or hurt animals in.
- Only animals that would not pose a threat to Alberta's ecosystem should be allowed for import. All imported animals should be subject to testing for disease.
- Ensure the health and disease free status of the animal. Identifying where it came from.
- I don't think they should be sold. People are buying animals (cats, dogs) from countries with lower standards than ours, exploiting animals by bringing them here and selling them on kijiji. If someone chooses to import a dog for themselves, fine, but there is no need for commercial importation.
- Vet checks.
- Full medical and behaviour testing
- The animal is healthy and not being abused or exploited
- The city should only look to numbers of animals in homes. As well, they should grandfather any homes that are above any new limits imposed.
- medical/vet check, spayed and neutered before being adopted out, pass a temperament test
- that they are a rescue no other type
- No species endangered or native from other places should be accepted as pets, only for a matter of conservation or so.
- All should be vaccinated and neutered/spayed or have the intention of being neutered/spayed unless imported specifically for breeding
- Do we already have an abundance of that those animals in the available in the city that need re-homing (i.e. Dogs).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Quarantined and ensure they are not in the list for endangerment
- Where they are buying them from (credited institutions etc.). Why it is necessary to be brought in from outside the country. If it is at risk to escape and cause issues ie. Rats and mice
- There should be no importing of animals for placement with a rescue group nor a foster home. Any pet being imported should be for the individual importing and for the personal use of the importer.
- Stop looking for ways to expand government.
- There should be a standardized vet exam testing for certain diseases (based on where the animal came from) that must be completed.
A Behavior assessment would be good too
- Again this seems a worthwhile cause but the animals need to be healthy and there should be an expectation of homes for these animals. Our shelters are always looking for forever home they do not need more competition for space.
- Health evaluations on all animals
Quarantined until they are evaluated
- - huge issue with the importing animals from International countries when we have local animals that need to be adopted. I'm also concerned about disease coming in from the imported animals but am not sure you can do anything.
- Whatever is in place currently; perhaps there should be a quota for imports if the City is aware that current un-adopted animal rates are increasing.
- They should be spayed/neutered and have a clean bill of health.
- I definitely think Calgary should not import loads of animals from other countries. If animals are being abused elsewhere let's try to help educate. If animals are being eaten, that is none of our business.
- Not versed on The Canada Border Services Agency. Animals should be healthy (vet checked) and quarantined for a period to name a few.
- is there a potential/real negative interaction with the existing ecosystem.
- They should be properly vetted, spay/neutered.
- No animals should be imported from other countries.
We have a massive animal problem on Alberta's FN reserves, which should be addressed first.
- No abandoned pets or dogs from other countries are to be allowed in Canada. No strays to be imported. No pit bulls in the city.
- I know that many breeders import dogs in order to have good bloodlines in their kennels. I think breeders should be registered and an association should be overseeing their work.
- Make sure they have complete checkups so that these animals are not spreading disease animals must be licensed and a health check must be done
- No comment
- Common sense criteria.
- No diseases
- I don't have any thoughts on this matter

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- None.
- health certificate, if there is space and resources to foster or shelter.
- 1. Quarantine 2. full vet inspection / review with necessary lab work to rule out parasites, etc
- I adopted a dog many years ago that was rescued and brought up from Hurricane Katrina. She was the BEST dog ever!!!!!! I was happy to have given her a home!!!
- Necessary, no suitable local options
- The animal is not an at risk or endangered species. The animal is healthy. The buyer is knowledgeable about the animal, they have the correct food, shelter, etc. There is a follow up visit with the owners after they have had the animal for a period of time to make sure all needs are being met
- I believe that the appropriate quarantine time(s) should be followed, for both the safety of the animals and people. I think it's absolutely fantastic that we can bring dogs from Mexico and other countries, I have so many friends that bring dogs into their homes from other countries, share LOVE
♥☐
- I feel strongly that there are plenty of domestic adoptable pets here so the importation of "rescue" dogs from other countries by individuals as their means of earning an income, should not be allowed. My 8 yr old dog came from a rescue. It's a racket. Diseases can be imported, we don't want that!
- Those regulations are federal and NOT municipal so stay out of it
- Health and Safety. I do think we should help other animals in need. I don't think we should be bringing exotics in for sale purposes.
- I don't believe imported animals for sale or adoption should be permitted
- Imported animals should have to have all their shots and should be spayed or neutered and microchipped prior to coming to our city and that includes birds and reptiles
- Pass Full vet exam.
- They should at least have had rabies shots.
- Ensure that individuals/organizations have sufficient demand that their imports do not exceed the city's given demand for adoptions - although serving other countries is important, we need to prioritize rehoming pets that are already in our community.
- I don't know, I would say safety of the animal & disease control.
- I am not a fan of retail rescue. We have enough dogs in our own country that need good homes. I'm also concerned about the diseases that are being brought in with these dogs. I'd like to see some sort of quarantine period and mandatory health testing and/or vaccination program in place.
- Invasiveness, & human health and safety
- All incoming animals should be fully vetted and quarantined for a set period, before being released to the general population.
- Licensing or registration of every animal imported for sale or adoption. Business license for commercial importers of animals attached to animal care and welfare standards.
- Health check and follow up if animal is not 100% healthy.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Microchip
- Health and wellness check
- Ensure they have a adequate living environment and resources for each
- Up to date vaccinations, no history of aggression****
- Should not be allowed to be imported for sale or rescue. Ever. We have enough it's here for sale and for rescue. Dogs should not be allowed to be rescued from another country for them be put up for adoption here. If individuals want to do it on their own expense and keep the animal, fine.
- Allowed but full health check and shots and quarantine. Training depending on age..
- making sure no diseases are being brought in.
- Health checks and quarantine the animals for 30 days.
- For sale--NO. For adoption--YES. While we are already dealing with animal overpopulation, some of the places that animals come from do not have the same infrastructure. If we can help, we should.
- - Visual inspection, temperature inspection, vaccinations, paperwork from source, tests to ensure free of disease
- That they be quarantined until vetted and cleared.
- N/A
- Ensuring all quarantine, acquisition, and breeding guidelines/laws have been met as per federal and provincial legislation before the animals can be licensed or permitted for sale/adoption.
- Tired of all the animal rescue groups importing animals into our city. We should care for the existing rejected & homeless & abandoned animals we have on Canadian land. Suggest whoever is importing animal must provide proof there is actually a quality home already arranged for animal.
- I don't know
- They must be proven to be healthy and the owners must be able to demonstrate knowledge of the breed/care of the animal.
- I don't think any animals should be imported into Calgary for resale. If someone wants to purchase a pet from another country, they should be required to go and purchase the pet themselves and bring the pet back themselves.
- Vet check, isolation.
- Ensuring all legal requirements are met
- Quarantine until health can be confirmed by a licensed veterinarian. Proof of salability/adoptability so that overpopulation and/or termination are avoided.
- That they are registered and or licensed with the city of calgary
- Not allowed unless from a reputable breeder who can show that all dogs are vaccinated and healthy. Other diseases exist in other countries. Brucellosis is a concern.
- Sustainability of the species in their native habitat. Conditions of capture, transportation, and sale should all be animal-focused and cruelty-free.
- -Unsure. In some cases animals can be rescued from other countries, however they can also be smuggled for personal gain.
- Description of prior ownership if any.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I've never thought of this. I will be interested to see what comes of it. I don't believe we should be importing animals for sale or adoption, there are enough here.
- I don't believe dogs or cats should be imported to Calgary. We have plenty of our own unwanted animals.
- They need to be assessed and treated for issues, conditions and diseases prior to importing them into Canada/CALGARY.
- The standard of care being provided to the animals that are being imported (ie, not permitting unethical breeders), and whether or not the animal that is being imported is already available locally. Importing animals is not sustainable.
- As easily as possible for rescue groups to import animals. No fees to do so. Ensuring the rescue is legitimate and in good standing. That the animals are quarantined and given veterinary exams to ensure health and limit spread of disease
- confirmation that the type of animal is allowed in Canada, and that all required vaccinations have been given
- Business license, well maintained conditions for animals, restrictions on number of animals allowed to sell
- People should not be allowed to bring in dogs from outside of Calgary for rescue, etc. Calgary has an overpopulation of dogs.
- Free of disease fixed and have a home to go to. There are so many animals already needing homes here why are we bringing more here?
- They must be examined by a veterinarian, vaccinated, and spayed/neutered.
- Safety and likelihood of it becoming an invasive species
- they get licensed once they are with their final home/owner.
- This should be strictly controlled. I have a friend who brought in a registered standard poodle for breeding purposes and believe she had to jump through some hoops to do so. She should have to.
- Shots up to date, spay/neutered before or in writing that it will be done after arrival.
- Be spayed or neutered
- The animals must have access to fresh water at all times. The importer must prove the animal has been vet checked and has had food/exercise at a reasonable time period prior or during shipping that is applicable for the species. The origin of the animal needs proof of domestication (eg not wild)
- Rescue animals will need to show proof of having been spayed or neutered by the owner within a certain time period of adopting the animal.
- health and well fair checks of all animals by responsible and reputable groups before allowing them into the hands of those who will make money off the sell of these animals. Better background checks and filing of histories of those that do harm or distress to the animals not to do so again by law
- Just don't accept rescue animals from other countries. We've got plenty of our own to look after

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Restrictions on number of animals, based on what is already available for adoption in the municipality. Why bring in more homeless animals if our shelters are already full? Ensure imported animals are healthy.
- Rescue dogs and cats should remain acceptable providing valid disease testing and vaccinations are done. Pets coming from registered breeders to be with new owners should also be allowed.
- Ensure immunization, spay / neuter. Ensure we are not importing additional future stray / feral animal problems to Calgary. Today's charitable a t could be tomorrow's stray pet.
- I think the number of animals being imported for sale locally should be dependant on the numbers of animals available for adoption at agencies like the SPCA.
- We should never be importing animals for events or circuses. I am in complete disagreement with importing animals with the exception of from Uber populated countries where there cats and dogs fervently need to be removed from that country
- good vetting and coming into good homes - vaccinated
- No endangered animals should be allowed as pets. They should get licensed before being released.
- ensure animals are vaccinated/healthy
- Free of disease and proper papers when arriving in Canada. Also monitoring the number of adoptable animals already in the jurisdiction without adding extra stress of foreign animals.
- Medical screening by certified vet
- Require spay/neuter, required shots for import
- Individuals should not be allowed to import animals for commercial purposes.
- wild animals/exotics should not be imported to Calgary for sale. It's inhumane to have these animals as "pets" living outside of their natural habitats.
- Care of pets is very humane. Priority - pets coming from natural disaster areas
- We should not accept imported animals, period.
- Unsure
- Proper paper work/ background checks on sellers
- If the animals a imported legally, no further regulations by the city should be required.
- Ensure they will not be sold for the wrong reasons and ensure there will be no potential risk to the other animals, humans or the environment in regards to exotic animals.
I believe there should be minimal restrictions for your average domestics as long as it's coming from a ethical source/breeder
- All required vaccinations need to be up to date. If animal is not for breeding purposes, it should be neutered/ spayed to prevent further unwanted animals.
- Imported animals should only be allowed once all adoptable animals of that species in City shelters, private and public, have been homed.
- we should look at why they are being imported? Exotic animals for commercial gain with no care for the animals well being should be banned. Imported animals from rescue organizations who transfer

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

animals from high risk areas to Calgary are okay as they are working in the best interest if the animal.

- We should encourage local adoption.
- Not from puppy mill but can be accepted if puppy mill was shut down
- See the previous. Dogs and cats should have all shots/vaccinations required in Canada and the City of Calgary before entering.
- I don't think we should be bringing animals into Canada from other countries for adoption/sale - we have enough!
- Animals must be free of disease and in good health. They should only be brought in if there is a reasonable assumption that the animal will be adopted
- NO unless from a breeder not a puppy mill
- as long as they have the proper documentation proving spay/neuter/vaccination then that is not a problem.
- They should be licensed and sterilized as a requirement.
- quarantine for diseases? otherwise the same as for retail stores.
- COC should have a point of contact with CBA
- Commercial breeders not to be allowed within the City Limits. Prior to any animal being brought into the city it is to be spayed or neutered prior to sale.
- I do not believe the city is the appropriate level to deal with this issue.
But, mandatory quarantine to ensure transmittable diseases are not present, and foreign imports /rescues over 3 months of age should probably be temperament tested, especially in rescue/meat market type scenarios.
- Ensure the best interest of the animals are being met, opposed to the best interest of the sales of these animals
- n/a
- People should be able to bring in a single pet for their own private home, but shouldn't be importing multiple animals for re-sale. This is supporting puppy mill situations and Calgary already has many, many dogs needing homes.
- Selling pets, NO!! No commercial imports!! NO. Bring animals that are strays in other countries for adoption- I am torn on this one. They need homes but we have so many domestic dogs and cats already in Canada that need to be adopted.
- If the animal is coming from a legitimate breeder with all its health checks then there are reasons to allow it but we honestly don't feel we should be bringing in stray animals from shelters in the USA when there are so many unwanted animals in our own shelters
- I believe they should be coming from licensed breeders, with a family who already owns them, or to a registered rescue for assessment and adoption. Exotics should not be allowed.
- Consult with veterinary professionals on what are acceptable species to be kept as pets, in captivity, in a home, etc. What veterinary services, if any, are available for the animals in question- if none, we should not be importing them.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Source? -must be humane. I.e: not taken from wild

- Licensing vaccines spayed neutered
- Vaccinated and spayed/neutered prior to arrival in Canada.
- I believe dogs in and around Calgary should be finding homes first
- I believe Canada border services monitors this and animals being under municipal rules already in place is enough
- Clean and healthy, or at least plans to get there. Foster homes or adoption in place. I personally believe we should take care of our animals before bringing in anything from other countries
- No imports we have enough strays locally that need help
- They need to be severely limited. Far too many places are importing dogs to make profit while Canadian dogs suffer.
- The overall health of the animal. Must be in good health.
- that they should have all their vaccinations up to date.
- I don't like this practice. This is how diseases we never had here spread. There are enough local animals to adopt.
- I think the imported animal should be up to date on vaccinations and quarantined if any illness is present.
- Up to date on rabies and spay/neuter
- NA
- The animal is a rescue from elsewhere, there should be no fees. Rescue organizations are all by donations and volunteers. There are too many unwanted dogs in the world and rescues save lives.
- That vaccines be up to date, possibly temperament tests, and they are spayed or neutered
- They should be adequately vetted and vaccinated, proof of temperament from the vet as well, if sold or adopted they should have licensing proof upon pickup from the agency
- Ensuring the health of the animal is utmost.
- Is there a current issue with how it works now? It seems fine to me. So long as registering cat/dogs takes place and exotic animals that are permitted are clearly declared or whatever is necessary.
- the imported should have a permit and be limited on the number of pets they can import per year
- Shelters and rescues should have to follow all of the same laws as private importers do
- Health check.
- As long as vet checked I see no issue with this.
- Only licensed zoos should be able to import exotic and invasive species. Rescues for cats and dogs (and some farm animals) should have requirements that protect the public but not make it overly onerous.
- Make sure they don't have any communicable diseases
- Ensure these animals are not endangered or hunted for sport
- Animals should be seen by a vet before AND after importing, up to date vaccines and medications and behavioral consultation.
- Health check and quarantine period so no diseases are being spread.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Unknown
- Importing dangerous animals should result in confiscation and harsh fines/other punishments. Exotics should have a mandatory vet examination (owners expense) to make sure they are healthy.
- merging these last questions: program working with reputable rescues & allowing a free licence for a year. This would entice reputable rescues to get their imported dogs licensed right away. This would allow the city to then track problematic dogs, or problematic rescues.
- Full vaccination and temperament tests done by professionals holding CPDT
- Pet must be altered.
- I volunteer with a rescue and know the rules well. They are firm and steadfast, yet allow us to save lives and adopt healthy animals to Calgarians. The animals need to be healthy, vaccinated and altered, and if not proof of the vetting and alteration by the Calgary rescue. Commercial Sale-OUTLAW.
- Proper vet records.
- Some form of quarantine for health along with a longer foster period to ensure animals decompress from the stress of the move before being assessed to decide on appropriate home.
- Should be in good health, should have undergone and passed a behaviour assessment by a registered professional, should be spayed/neutered, microchipped and have all shots up to date.
- I don't know enough about how this works to speak on it.
- Fully vaccinated and in good health. They should also have an owner that is responsible for them.
- That they meet CFIA requirements.
- The animals are treated nicely
- I believed that all imports require to have a clean bill of health, and records to prove so.
- If a rescue is importing them and is authorized to do so, then I support it.
- Ensure it has had shots, spay/neutered, and doesn't have any diseases (like kennel cough) and that it cannot introduce new diseases into Calgary community (blood test to ensure no pathogens)
- Not allow strays from other countries
Appropriate vaccinations and healthy specimens from vetted provider
- They should be reviewed for any behavioral issues, cleared by a vet for proper vaccinations, and have some sort of interim license put on them for tracking purposes.
- Its none of the city's business. This is not your jurisdiction so don't start making it one! There are import rules in place and monitored and controlled by CFIA and CBSA. Let them do their job!
- If they fall within Alberta's law of non-prohibited animals and do not carry disease or illness that can be contracted by local wildlife.
- Proper vetting, quarantine and disease control
- If the animals are known to be aggressive, they shouldn't be accepted in Calgary.
- What would be the purpose of this? I think the question that should be considered here is what is the recourse if these animals do not meet the criteria? If they met the federal regulations how do you send them back? Where do they go? Do we become a mass euthanization city?
- Vaccines. Check for foreign diseases prior to entry such as heart worm etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Vet checks.
- I didn't know this took place so I wouldn't know where to start or what to say.
- -
- Dogs only. Vet checked, shots and sterilization completed before entry.
- -a licensed organization in Calgary must be responsible for neuter/spay and caring for the wellbeing of the dog so it is healthy and does not affect other dogs in the community (disease/aggression etc.)
- I think there should be regulations that any breeder or rescue organization have to follow. More so for the transport and pick up of the animal at the airport. I have personally witnessed rescue pick ups at the airport and its like a free for all. It's so unorganized and chaotic.
- Only that they do not bring contagious diseases.
- I don't believe we should be importing animals for sale or adoption. If so they should most definitely have a registered Charity.
- No opinion
- Health checks, quarantine periods, available placement
- Make sure they have a forever home ready before they arrive. Just Commonsense don't be cruel.
- Again, not the City's business.
- I haven't a clue about this area.
- why are we importing animals at all?
- What is the need to import animals?
- Import animals for commercial purpose & individual sale shall be baned. Import animals should be rescued stray animals for adoption & service animals . Animals are all lifes, which cannot be traded freely by anyone.
- Clean vet certificate, spayed/ neutered, shots up to date
- Healthy and not bringing any diseases in
- Disease free, health of animal.
- None
- Health check
Licensed
Spay or neutered
- 100% healthy, spayed or neutered, not vicious.
- I think dogs should be allowed if they are for a blind person or for someone in need. There are too many rescues bringing in dogs for profit from other countries and local shelter that support dogs found locally are at capacity and turning away animals.
- Not sure
- Animals should only be imported for adoption purposes to rescue them from life threatening situations. Pets have a much better chance at life in Calgary than other parts of the world so we should allow it as long as they are going into the care of a reputable animal rescue
- Not sure

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- As long as there is a foster or adopter for them when they get here, bring them in
- Vet checked
- Vaccinated
- Criteria should be restricted to who is importing and why. This is not something the city has the ability to monitor.
- Same regulation/certifications as for businesses as above.
- unsure
- Can a similar animal be adopted within the city or country? Could this animal endgame others? What is the purpose of the animal?
- Impact on rescue organizations- is the market already saturated
- A health check should be done. Personality and disposition rating done to determine potential for adoption.
- Individuals bringing in one animal for personal use. Special permission for registered breeding dogs. No "rescue" groups bringing in dogs from other countries.
- Up to date health/care records (vaccinations a must!) of the animal; Quarantine upon arrival; Training for the animal to see where he/she needs attention if any.
- up to date vaccination
- Should only be able to import rescued animals
- Not sure what we are talking about. Are they Alberta vet approved?
- Should only be rescue animals and healthy/vaccinated/vetted
- Health assessments with a fee to cover the cost.
- I believe that commercial imports (which is now every single import no matter who owns them, or whether they have belonged to that individual and just moved to our country). I would like to see a better definition before comment.
- All should be isolated for 30 days in a quarantine, not provided by the new owner
- just that the animal is healthy (will not spread disease) and will be going to a good home/be well taken care of.
- I feel if they are for a retail business to sell/adopt (since they are using this terminology now) that should not be allowed. If a shelter is bringing in dogs to help the homeless dog population in other countries that is ok or if a person is bringing a single dog in that is ok.
- Screening/vaccination history for disease prevalent in their home country
- Proper licensing to ensure animal care and safety
- Follow the Canada border services guidelines.
- Vet checks. Bill of health.
- ?
- That they have been health checked and not carrying disease NOTHING MORE
- It is fairly unnecessary in general to have imported pets in Calgary. However they should have to be quarantined and pass some sort of medical exam. Animals that cannot be cared for in the city should not be allowed

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- that the animal comes from a responsible breeder (backyard or kennel club) - importance should be on the production of happy, healthy animals, restricting access makes it easier for puppy mills to thrive as ppl struggle to find places to purchase
- I'm not sure
- -vaccination requirement (all possible)
  - vet records
  - vet letter, stating no outstanding illnesses (contagious)
- Thorough health check, possible quarantine time frame depending on country of arrival, have to update any missing vaccinations that are required in Calgary
- Ensure there are no contagious diseases.
- Should we really allow this? Do we not have enough local animals available that need a safe and loving home?
  - IF so, same rules as Cochrane Humane Society.
- No different than any other animal - if the CBSA people have ensured the animal is safe to enter the country why would the city need to do anything else?
- Inspection with a strict set of rules
- Animals must be in good health
- same as the federal regulations- all shots up to date, microchipped
- There is no exception
- Disease free and have a nearly guaranteed chance of adoption
- limit on number of pets in store
  - staff training/certification in animal care
- Quarantine the animals for a set # of days before being released into the public spaces in Calgary, each association should only be allowed a certain number of animals to be imported per year so that they are not over capacity.
- They should have all appropriate Health clearances, vaccines Etc
- NO DANGEROUS BREEDS. Adult pit bulls are coming without any history of prior incidents and aggression and are being adopted by unsuspecting people. Foreign dogs need to be quarantined. Parasites and diseases are rampant among street dogs.
- Leave it alone
- No comment
- After adopting a dog I found in Mexico I realized how many resources we have. I believe importing animals in need (high kill shelters, less fortunate areas) is necessary but not special breeds (designer dogs, etc) that are not in need. We have enough dogs in need here
- They should have a health check and should not be allowed if they can harm the natural environment.
- No animal should be imported that is a threatened species, or if released into our native environment, poses a threat to the natural fauna or flora.
- Complete wellness checks

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- If they are rescue animals, they should be accepted and handled accordingly if they have any ailments or diseases that need to be treated for. There should be no fee to import animals through rescues.
- Health/vet checks and quarantine where necessary.
- Animals should be tested for diseases. Animals should not be endangered.
- A check of the health of the animal
- I wouldn't want regulations that inadvertently limit the ability of rescue operations to bring dogs from other countries for adoption. I think Canada has good regulations around exotic and endangered animals already
- They are health checked to make sure they aren't carrying a disease. And make sure they aren't stolen etc.
- Immunizations should be up to date, animal should be neutered or spayed and in good health to ensure they are not transmitting any illness or disease. They should be checked to verify they are not aggressive or dangerous in any way. They should require licensing.
- Must be registered and approved rescues . No other imports other than rescues should be allowed commercially
- For agencies like mexpup or something - I feel that we have enough local animals that need help. if people would like to start an agency like this, there should be licensing of some kind to adopt out animals.
- Proper vet records
- Rescue animals only.
- Screening for infectious disease.
- Health and welfare of animals
- Importing animals for commercial purposes should be banned. For adoption should follow the same criteria CBA uses to assess health and then ensure responsible pet ownership once in the city through a mechanism of 1-2 checks after import.
- Proof of health, vaccinations. Some way to "register" keep track of the dogs as they are welcomed to the city and find their new home.
- I do not believe we should be importing animals from foreign countries. They bring in diseases. Our animals are not able to fight.
- This is already managed by the CBSA, the city should have no involvement in this other than to issue licenses to these animals.
- I have mixed feelings about importing animals. While I want to help the less fortunate countries with their issues, it can't be at the expense of resident animals. If imported, there should be a mandatory quarantine time in Canada.
- This is tricky because there are lots of rescue groups that could fall into this area and they do good work. I also am part of the equestrian sport and animals are imported regularly in a safe manner both for sale and to participate in competitions. I am not sure what rules are needed here.
- Transportation of such animals is adequate

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- deny exotics, and if you can't then, strict licensing and inspection of containment biennially, strict rules and proof of health and welfare from certified vet - if none of this then heavy fines that double each incident
- Show that the animal is better served by being brought into the city and could not be sold/adopted in their city/country of origin.
- Animals must be fully vetted and copies of health status provided upon arrival.
- Must be fully vaccinated and tested for contagions. Must undergo quarantine.
- Intent for sale, incident history of the animal and the importer
- Nothing that can cross contaminate humans ..... like SARS or Covid-19, for example.
- The only animals crossing Canadian borders should be those accompanying families immigrating or relocating to Canada, or animals used in competitions or shows
- They should come into the Humane Society first (at a processing fee charge), be checked by the animal specialist there to ensure they are properly vaccinated and healthy. At that time a multi year city license must be bought before the animal can be released.
- If they're imported by a breeder there should be fees attached, if they're coming from a rescue they should have proper vet checks.
- They should be held to at a minimum the guidelines and regulations of Canada Border Services and the welfare of the animal should be the priority not the seller or the buyer.
- Proof or reasonably acceptable paperwork that mirror some of the important guidelines regulated under CBSA.
- Animals have received the appropriate health checks, as in any animal import stream. Animals are not wild-caught.
- Health inspections, registration and licensing should be mandatory.
- I do not believe that animal rescue has borders. I think the Canada Border Services regulations are sufficient.
- Quarantine and medical screen to ensure animals are healthy.
- No importation by rescues
- If we are referring to rescue organizations importing animals, I believe the rescue should have to prove that they have the human and financial resources to properly care for these animals. Too many of these organizations are over extending themselves and the animals suffer for it.
- Importing of animals should be very limited there is too much of it that is only for profit. There are lots of animals within our own country that need help before we bring in more it also opens this up to diseases and other things that we do not currently have in Canada such as dog flu
- Those of the Border Services.
- Vet health checks, license/chip, proof of behaviour assessment
- Imported from WHERE? Is the big question! I myself have imported 2 dogs from Hungary from Top Breeders in that country. One was the [personal information removed] that came to Canada to retire and be my loving pet. Dogs from countries with Disease and lacking health Testing and shots NOT ALLOWED!

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Leave it to Border control. I don't understand the problem. Are you trying to limit puppy farm dogs or rescue groups that bring in animals that would otherwise be put down. I foster. It is a non profit. We help dogs. It is a great group. Encourage it.
- What really is the purpose? Are they also importing disease. There are enough animals here looking for homes.
- Should not allow this practice unless we run out of animals that need adoption
- Medical checks for diseases.
- I don't know. We have so many animals that require homes here... this is beyond my ability to comment. I don't know. I have never met a rescue dog from abroad that I didn't like. All dogs are created equally and should have the opportunity to live in a loving home.
- Should not be done illegally. Same as above.
- they should not be permitted in Canada due to putting our animals at risk of new diseases.
- Ensuring the animals have been checked by a vet prior to being transported to ensure no transfer of diseases
- Entirely depends on the animal.
- - All animals should be fixed, vaccinated and chipped.
- Please stop importation of pitbulls. Otherwise, imported animals should be up to date in all vaccinations and should be subject to a health check by a vet before they are admitted to the city.
- The same rules that are in effect for responsible pet ownership.
- As long as the groups are doing it properly nothing needs to change
- Stop bring in pets from other countries that bring in diseases that aren't in Canada to prevent introducing new diseases to our domestic pets.
- no imported dogs or cats as long as we have dogs and cats in shelters and rescues.
- Should not allow it. We have an abundance of dogs and cats looking for homes.
- This is an important thing to offer unwanted, neglected, abandoned pets. They should be properly vetted/health checked before, upon arrival and a follow up a few weeks after arrival. This would help regarding parasite detection and treatments too.
- Mandatory business licensing, veterinarian, bylaw, and potentially fish and wildlife inspections. maybe fine when they arrived in Canada, but what happens in the business? How are they cared for? I have seen some horrible conditions in my job. create rules for the businesses that are going to profit
- Imported animals must have current health records and immunisation records.
- If animals are being removed from their families and natural habitats for us, that needs to stop. We should not accept these animals.
- that they are healthy and that they are going to good recourse that are looking after them and getting them into good homes
- I don't know enough about this topic to opine.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The city should be following federal and provincial biological rules here for anyone bringing animals, reptiles, plants, fish or birds into Canada. No none native species should be allowed. Why is the city messing into this area?
- Reviewed and licensed for the use and purpose of the animals in question.
- I feel that animals being imported should be quarantined, also subject to a battery of tests before being able to be adopted out. I also feel that there should be a limit on how many animals can be brought in to Calgary per month/year.
- Again, making sure the animal is vetted and healthy, and that there is a place for them to go and live a healthy life (not in a kennel or tied to a tree, etc.) We don't need more stray animals in the city or surrounding areas, we have our own to look after, but I do understand dire situations.
- Any imported animals should be required to be spayed or neutered. This is NOT a commercial enterprise unless the animals are destined to be sold, and that can be regulated by having the importing agency registered. Commercial agencies should be licensed, but rescue agencies should not.
- No idea
- The animals should be maintained in safe, clean, and appropriate places. They should receive suitable food, and prospective owners should be able to demonstrate that they can care for them. Businesses should have a plan for animals that aren't sold.
- There should be paperwork showing that the animal was legally obtained, and health records showing they have no communicable diseases such as parvovirus or kennel cough.
- Health checked
- Proper health exams, vaccinations and licensing or permits for resale or adoption. Is there a good place for the animal to go? ie not held for weeks in small cages etc.
- Non venomous, non poisonous, non endangered
- Complete health assessment and registration
- must be proven healthy, and adoptable (behaviour wise). Must have fosters/proper homes available to house them on arrival.
- Not sure
- What is currently in place
- The health of the animal and the welfare of the animal and it's purpose here.
- quarantine and enviro assessment
- If there is a way to ensure that the animals are ethically sourced and treated during transit.
- Ensure that the animal does not carry any infections diseases.
- I don't think we should period for commercial purposes. Rescue is different.
- I am ok with import of tropical fish, reptiles or pocket pets based on demand. However, I am not a fan of ""rescues"" importing unwanted dogs from other countries. Some are sick or have lots of behavior issues. Perhaps a quota on the number of dog allowed and behavior tests would be adequate.
- MUST know where the animals came from; licensed, reputable breeders, health checks, etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- From their locale licensed and registered breeder/organization. Quarantine and health evaluation by local vet?
- rescues only, health checks, spayed/neutered
- Animals should be adopted prior to allowing transport to Canada.
- I think imported animals should be limited. Rescues are THE BIGGEST issue. Ethical breeders seem to follow guidelines
- Only registered animal rescue agencies should be allowed to import animals in the city from outside Canada. Breeder sales should not be allowed.
- No animals taken from the wild - - ever. ---only domesticated pets like cats or dogs - - maybe a pet rabbit.
- Vet cleared
- Lawfulness and sensitivity to adoption demand here in Alberta (ie when our shelters and pounds have many dogs to adopt I don't understand why we're accepting dog adoptions from far away countries)
- Animals deemed as ""rescue"" should be non-profit only. They should be screened more to protect the local pop. fr foreign disease.
Commercial imports also include animals for exhibition/breeding purposes. These should be allowed easier access to encourage quality breeding and outsourcing.
- Spay or neuter non endangered or invasive.
- That animals imported cannot be resold or rescued in the town of Calgary. Only canines and felines produced by an accredited business / breeder in alberta. Oh wait you gonna need to make a liscence for rescue and breeder and charge a tax fee , yes! Or charge a huge tax/ surchar o import resells..
- All imported rescues should be in quaratine for 30 days. Tired of rescue dogs being brought in carrying new diseases that affect local dogs. Should be utd on all shots before they arrive..and at least 14 days prior to arrival (for dogs over 16 weeks)
- Up to date vaccines. spay or neuter AND some form of behavior assessment BEFORE entering Canada
- Rabies check
- Minimum standard of vetting and documentation, limit number coming in at one time (no vans full of 30 animals driving in from L.A.), animals can't be pre-sold or pre-adopted to allow them to be fully vetted and temperament tested first
- Vaccinations should be up to date, and a home/foster should already have been arranged.
- Find appropriate care
- no opinion
- Full background info should be mandatory for animals coming into the country (ie: previously vicious dogs from kill shelters in the States coming across the border to Canada with no records).
- No imports from countries like Mexico, Asia or third world countries.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not be exotic or endangered. The animal to be healthy with up to date health records, and a vet check on arrival.
- none. why duplicate what is already in place
- They must have a valid health certificate and be fully vaccinated.
- They don't come from puppy mills
- I think we need to take into consideration the animals that are here already and that they are not euthanized and one is brought from another country
- - Must have complete medical history, ideally should be reviewed by a veterinarian upon entry.
- - Relevant screening for diseases/parasites found in the area that the animal is being imported from in order to minimize risk of infecting local populations.
- - Possibly enact mandatory quarantine period
- We do not need out of country animals. Unless for breeding purposes and then make sure they pay.
- purpose of use. example, a non-business should not order 30 hamsters.
- I believe they are doing just fine as is.
- The animals should be vet-checked upon arrival.
- Must be quarantined for a period of time to determine their health and ensure they're not carrying a virus, new owner must license the animal
- Any animal that is in need of aid should receive it and thus adoption animals should be welcomed if they can find a home in Calgary.
- Vet checks are required before sale and reports provided to the purchaser
- I don't think we should accept animals from elsewhere - we have enough pets looking for homes already from abandonment / at large with no one looking for them / surrender. Animal rescues should and be able to rescue from CHS and City Animal Services to keep it local.
- Animal health and designated use. If an animal exists domestically that would fill the role of the animal being brought in.
- Cites appendices must be followed
- I do not know
- No puppy/kitten mills.
Animals must be raised in healthy environments for them.
Animals must be up to date with shots and spayed or neutered.
- Import/Export is not a municipal responsibility.
- I think it's great that organizations rescue animals from places where they would otherwise suffer and be put down. It is important to ensure that these organizations work and communicate closely with the city to ensure the most ethical treatment.
- Health certificate, spay neuter before rehoming
- Ensuring that the animal will be appropriately cared for is a huge factor, and that the person responsible for it can be held accountable if they don't act in the animals or societies best interest.
- I am most concerned about zoonotic diseases (for example. rabies).
- Tested for diseases, well socialized and only rescues.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- savings lives is what is important. Our rescues also send dogs/cats to other countries to new adopters. If it saves lives, do it.
- reference Canadian laws.. there is some good info there. I am not a fan of importing rescues and dogs coming from unknown sketchy sources. Health checks are really important
- safety and disease standards, definitely spayed or neutered.
- Must be reviewed for safety of humans and not adversely impacting our existing wildlife balance etc
- need improved criteria here that should be monitored.
- That our shelters are empty. Start local first.
- Shots are up to date and the animals are not considered dangerous
  - - There are dogs here already
  - - Have brought sick dogs to off leash
  - - quarantine
  - - Burcellosis, Rabbies - testing
  - - Zoological diseases
  - - temperament - behaviour testing
- - quarantine
  - diseases
  - big outbreaks
  - false health certificates
  - supersolosis test -> not tested when they come in
  - Rabbies
  - Commercial - is that for profit? Pet vs. commercial
    - define that means
  - quarantine
  - health cleanliness
  - verification of health ceritificates
- Quota. If there are lots of animals that need homes in Canada, we shouldn't accept as many from abroad.
- Healthy animals
- up to date vaccination
- Should only be able to import rescued animals
- Not sure what we are talking about. Are they Alberta vet approved?
- Should only be rescue animals and healthy/vaccinated/vetted
- Health assessments with a fee to cover the cost.
- I believe that commercial imports (which is now every single import no matter who owns them, or whether they have belonged to that individual and just moved to our country). I would like to see a better definition before comment.
- All should be isolated for 30 days in a quarantine, not provided by the new owner
- The animal being brought in should be healthy.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- just that the animal is healthy (will not spread disease) and will be going to a good home/be well taken care of.
- I feel if they are for a retail business to sell/adopt (since they are using this terminology now) that should not be allowed. If a shelter is bringing in dogs to help the homeless dog population in other countries that is ok or if a person is bringing a single dog in that is ok.
- Screening/vaccination history for disease prevalent in their home country
- Proper licensing to ensure animal care and safety
- Follow the Canada border services guidelines.
- Vet checks. Bill of health.
- Confirmation from veterinarians on the sending side that they disease free.
- ?
- That they have been health checked and not carrying disease NOTHING MORE
- It is fairly unnecessary in general to have imported pets in Calgary. However they should have to be quarantined and pass some sort of medical exam. Animals that cannot be cared for in the city should not be allowed
- that the animal comes from a responsible breeder (backyard or kennel club) - importance should be on the production of happy, healthy animals, restricting access makes it easier for puppy mills to thrive as ppl struggle to find places to purchase
- I'm not sure
- -vaccination requirement (all possible)
- -vet records
- -vet letter, stating no outstanding illnesses (contagious)
- Thorough health check, possible quarantine time frame depending on country of arrival, have to update any missing vaccinations that are required in Calgary
- Ensure there are no contagious diseases.
- Should we really allow this? Do we not have enough local animals available that need a safe and loving home?
IF so, same rules as Cochrane Humane Society.
- No different than any other animal - if the CBSA people have ensured the animal is safe to enter the country why would the city need to do anything else?
- Inspection with a strict set of rules
- Fully vaccinated, Rabies included should be mandatory, a 2 week self- quarantine at a minimum for international animals with no public access
- Animals must be in good health
- same as the federal regulations- all shots up to date, microchipped
- There is no exception
- Disease free and have a nearly guaranteed chance of adoption
- limit on number of pets in store
- staff training/certification in animal care

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Unless they are rescues, cats and dogs should not be imported.
- Quarantine the animals for a set # of days before being released into the public spaces in Calgary, each association should only be allowed a certain number of animals to be imported per year so that they are not over capacity.
- They should have all appropriate Health clearances, vaccines Etc
- Fully vaccinated healthy animals must be licensed by non profit until adopted ( to keep track of). access to where animals are held ie conditions of home/shelter.
- -Check for disease
  - Determine whether the animals were obtained legally and ethically
  - Ensure that an accidental release of the animals would not have significant impact on native wildlife
- NO DANGEROUS BREEDS. Adult pit bulls are coming without any history of prior incidents and aggression and are being adopted by unsuspecting people. Foreign dogs need to be quarantined. Parasites and diseases are rampant among street dogs.
- Leave it alone
- No comment
- After adopting a dog I found in Mexico I realized how many resources we have. I believe importing animals in need (high kill shelters, less fortunate areas) is necessary but not special breeds (designer dogs, etc) that are not in need. We have enough dogs in need here
- Spayed and neutered animals only, checked if obeying and not aggressive.
- Existence of a health certificate, plan for care that is possible and appropriate qualification for the owner.
- Ensure they are not being used for entertainment purposes and that they will be treated well by those importing them. Do not allow exotic animals, or animals that would not normally experience Alberta's climate to be imported.
- They should have a health check and should not be allowed if they can harm the natural environment.
- No animal should be imported that is a threatened species, or if released into our native environment, poses a threat to the natural fauna or flora.
- Complete wellness checks
- If they are rescue animals, they should be accepted and handled accordingly if they have any ailments or diseases that need to be treated for. There should be no fee to import animals through rescues.
- Health/vet checks and quarantine where necessary.
- Animals being imported must be subjected to physical exam by a DVM. They should provide proof of health and deworming.
- Animals should be tested for diseases. Animals should not be endangered.
- A check of the health of the animal
- I wouldn't want regulations that inadvertently limit the ability of rescue operations to bring dogs from other countries for adoption. I think Canada has good regulations around exotic and endangered animals already

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They are health checked to make sure they aren't carrying a disease. And make sure they aren't stolen etc.
- Immunizations should be up to date, animal should be neutered or spayed and in good health to ensure they are not transmitting any illness or disease. They should be checked to verify they are not aggressive or dangerous in any way. They should require licensing.
- Must be registered and approved rescues . No other imports other than rescues should be allowed commercially
- For agencies like mexpup or something - I feel that we have enough local animals that need help. if people would like to start an agency like this, there should be licensing of some kind to adopt out animals.
- Proper vet records
- Rescue animals only.
- Screening for infectious disease.
- Health and welfare of animals
- //
- Health checks prior to import. Not imported for profit. Responsible organization importing and caring for animals prior to adoption.
- Importing animals for commercial purposes should be banned. For adoption should follow the same criteria CBA uses to assess health and then ensure responsible pet ownership once in the city through a mechanism of 1-2 checks after import.
- Proof of health, vaccinations. Some way to "register" keep track of the dogs as they are welcomed to the city and find their new home.
- I do not believe we should be importing animals from foreign countries. They bring in diseases. Our animals are not able to fight.
- I don't think that animals from outside of Canada should be brought here in huge transports for rescues to make money. There are enough animals within Canada that need homes.
- Ensure the dogs did not arrive from illegal puppy mills unless they have been rescued and are brought for adoption in Canada. They should be vaccinated and Spayed/Neutered
- icensed business...paperwork showing acquisition and ownership...pricing in line with three market...health records for the animal..current vet sign off
- This is already managed by the CBSA, the city should have no involvement in this other than to issue licenses to these animals.
- I have mixed feelings about importing animals. While I want to help the less fortunate countries with their issues, it can't be at the expense of resident animals. If imported, there should be a mandatory quarantine time in Canada.
- This is tricky because there are lots of rescue groups that could fall into this area and they do good work. I also am part of the equestrian sport and animals are imported regularly in a safe manner both for sale and to participate in competitions. I am not sure what rules are needed here.
- Transportation of such animals is adequate

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Must be tested to ensure not bringing in disease.
- deny exotics, and if you can't then, strict licensing and inspection of containment biennially, strict rules and proof of health and welfare from certified vet - if none of this then heavy fines that double each incident
- Show that the animal is better served by being brought into the city and could not be sold/adopted in their city/country of origin.
- Animals must be fully vetted and copies of health status provided upon arrival.
- Must be fully vaccinated and tested for contagions. Must undergo quarantine.
- Intent for sale, incident history of the animal and the importer
- Nothing that can cross contaminate humans ..... like SARS or Covid-19, for example.
- Bio-security, have the dogs been screened for diseases/parasites that are prevalent in the areas that they come from, i.e. heart worm. Health of the animal.
- The only animals crossing Canadian borders should be those accompanying families immigrating or relocating to Canada, or animals used in competitions or shows
- They should come into the Humane Society first (at a processing fee charge), be checked by the animal specialist there to ensure they are properly vaccinated and healthy. At that time a multi year city license must be bought before the animal can be released.
- I don't know enough about this to answer
- If they're imported by a breeder there should be fees attached, if they're coming from a rescue they should have proper vet checks.
- Proper vetting - limits on how many are brought in. Possible quarantine
- They should be held to at a minimum the guidelines and regulations of Canada Border Services and the welfare of the animal should be the priority not the seller or the buyer.
- Proof or reasonably acceptable paperwork that mirror some of the important guidelines regulated under CBSA.
- I think that there is no way for the city to control that. People just won't register the animal if they are more hoops.
- Animals have received the appropriate health checks, as in any animal import stream. Animals are not wild-caught.
- Health inspections, registration and licensing should be mandatory.
- I do not believe that animal rescue has borders. I think the Canada Border Services regulations are sufficient.
- Quarantine and medical screen to ensure animals are healthy.
- No importation by rescues
- If we are referring to rescue organizations importing animals, I believe the rescue should have to prove that they have the human and financial resources to properly care for these animals. Too many of these organizations are over extending themselves and the animals suffer for it.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Importing of animals should be very limited there is too much of it that is only for profit. There are lots of animals within our own country that need help before we bring in more it also opens this up to diseases and other things that we do not currently have in Canada such as dog flu
- that they are imported humanly and have their vaccinations up to date. If they legally came over the border to be adopted it should be allowed
- Those of the Border Services.
- Vet health checks, license/chip, proof of behaviour assessment
- Multiple health tests should be done for diseases not common in CanDa and the dogs should be quarantined until they are proven to be disease free
- Imported from WHERE? Is the big question! I myself have imported 2 dogs from Hungary from Top Breeders in that country. One was the [personal information removed] that came to Canada to retire and be my loving pet. Dogs from countries with Disease and lacking health Testing and shots NOT ALLOWED!
- Leave it to Border control. I don't understand the problem. Are you trying to limit puppy farm dogs or rescue groups that bring in animals that would otherwise be put down. I foster. It is a non profit. We help dogs. It is a great group. Encourage it.
- What really is the purpose? Are the also importing disease. There are enough animals here looking for homes.
- Should not allow this practice unless we run out of animals that need adoption
- Medical checks for diseases.
- I don't know. We have so many animals that require homes here... this is beyond my ability to comment. I don't know. I have never met a rescue dog from abroad that I didn't like. All dogs are created equally and should have the opportunity to live in a loving home.
- Exotic animals should not be allowed in the city.
- Should not be done illegally. Same as above.
- they should not be permitted in canada due to putting our animals at risk of new diseases.
- Ensuring the animals have been checked by a vet prior to being transported to ensure no transfer of diseases
- Entirely depends on the animal.
- - All animals should be fixed, vaccinated and chipped.
- Please stop importation of pitbulls. Otherwise, imported animals should be up to date in all vaccinations and should be subject to a health check by a vet before they are admitted to the city.
- The same rules that are in affect for responsible pet ownership.
- That they are healthy.
- As long as the groups are doing it properly nothing needs to change
- Humane treatment of animals.
- Published/registered plan of the life cycle of their stock including disposition of unsold merchandise.
- Quarantine

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stop bring in pets from other countries that bring in diseases that aren't in Canada to prevent introducing new diseases to our domestic pets.
- no imported dogs or cats as long as we have dogs and cats in shelters and rescues.
- Should not allow it. We have an abundance of dogs and cats looking for homes.
- This is an important thing to offer unwanted, neglected, abandoned pets. They should be properly vetted/health checked before, upon arrival and a follow up a few weeks after arrival. This would help regarding parasite detection and treatments too.
- Mandatory business licensing, veterinarian, bylaw, and potentially fish and wildlife inspections. maybe fine when they arrived in Canada, but what happens in the business? How are they cared for? I have seen some horrible conditions in my job. create rules for the businesses that are going to profit
- Free of disease, licensed and tattooed in advance of importation, filling a need that can not already be met within the city (eg. importing dogs from foreign shelters doesn't make sense when there are plenty of shelter animals in Calgary).
- Imported animals must have current health records and immunisation records.
- Rescue animals should not be allowed to be imported.
- If animals are being removed from their families and natural habitats for us, that needs to stop. We should not accept these animals.
- that they are healthy and that they are going to good recurse that are looking after them and getting them into good homes
- I don't know enough about this topic to opine.
- The city should be following federal and provincial biological rules here for anyone bringing animals, reptiles, plants, fish or birds into Canada. No none native species should be allowed. Why is the city messing into this area?
- Reviewed and licensed for the use and purpose of the animals in question.
- proof of good health, proof of ownership, proof of belonging to an organisation, plan for the animals (adoption etc)
- I feel that animals being imported should be quarantined, also subject to a battery of tests before being able to be adopted out. I also feel that there should be a limit on how many animals can be brought in to Calgary per month/year.
- Again, making sure the animal is vetted and healthy, and that there is a place for them to go and live a healthy life (not in a kennel or tied to a tree, etc.) We don't need more stray animals in the city or surrounding areas, we have our own to look after, but I do understand dire situations.
- Any imported animals should be required to be spayed or neutered. This is NOT a commercial enterprise unless the animals are destined to be sold, and that can be regulated by having the importing agency registered. Commercial agencies should be licensed, but rescue agencies should not.
- No idea

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The animals should be maintained in safe, clean, and appropriate places. They should receive suitable food, and prospective owners should be able to demonstrate that they can care for them. Businesses should have a plan for animals that aren't sold.
- There should be paperwork showing that the animal was legally obtained, and health records showing they have no communicable diseases such as parvovirus or kennel cough.
- Health checked
- Proper health exams, vaccinations and licensing or permits for resale or adoption. Is there a good place for the animal to go? ie not held for weeks in small cages etc.
- Non venomous, non poisonous, non endangered
- Complete health assessment and registration
- must be proven healthy, and adoptable (behaviour wise). Must have fosters/proper homes available to house them on arrival.
- Not sure
- What is currently in place
- The health of the animal and the welfare of the animal and it's purpose here.
- quarantine and enviro assessment
- If there is a way to ensure that the animals are ethically sourced and treated during transit.
- Ensure that the animal does not carry any infections diseases.
- I don't think we should period for commercial purposes. Rescue is different.
- I am ok with import of tropical fish, reptiles or pocket pets based on demand. However, I am not a fan of ""rescues"" importing unwanted dogs from other countries. Some are sick or have lots of behavior issues. Perhaps a quota on the number of dog allowed and behavior tests would be adequate.
- The same as importing any foreign species ... vaccinations, licensing, quarantining.
- MUST know where the animals came from; licensed, reputable breeders, health checks, etc.
- From their locale licensed and registered breeder/organization. Quarantine and health evaluation by local vet?
- rescues only, health checks, spayed/neutered
- Animals should be adopted prior to allowing transport to Canada.
- I think imported animals should be limited. Rescues are THE BIGGEST issue. Ethical breeders seem to follow guidelines
- Pose no risk to public, public spaces, prove sufficient space and resources for humane care, and their locations zoned appropriately
- Only registered animal rescue agencies should be allowed to import animals in the city from outside Canada. Breeder sales should not be allowed.
- that a full physical is done from health to blood work. a sychological assessment to make sure of aggression levels
- No animals taken from the wild - - ever. ---only domesticated pets like cats or dogs - - maybe a pet rabbit.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- We have enough homeless animals. No need to import more. Only accept animals that are moving here with their owner
- They should have all their basic mandatory tests done.
- Vet cleared
- Lawfulness and sensitivity to adoption demand here in Alberta (ie when our shelters and pounds have many dogs to adopt I don't understand why we're accepting dog adoptions from far away countries)
- Animals deemed as ""rescue"" should be non-profit only. They should be screened more to protect the local pop. fr foreign disease.
Commercial imports also include animals for exhibition/breeding purposes. These should be allowed easier access to encourage quality breeding and outsourcing.
- No wild caught only bred-in-captivity animals should be allowed to be imported into the city for sale. This should apply especially to parrots and cockatoos.
- Unsure of rules now. Can't say but definitely spay/neuter/vaccines/vet checks
- Spay or neuter non endangered or invasive.
- Only for personal use and should have to apply for importation.
- That animals imported cannot be resold or rerescued in the town of Calgary. Only canines and felines produced by an accredited business / breeder in alberta. Oh wait you gonna need to make a liscence for rescue and breeder and charge a tax fee , yes! Or charge a huge tax/ surchar o import resells..
- All imported rescues should be in quaratine for 30 days. Tired of rescue dogs being brought in carrying new diseases that affect local dogs. Should be utd on all shots before they arrive..and at least 14 days prior to arrival (for dogs over 16 weeks)
- Health certificate, much the same as now. If this is for commercial resale, again...health certified. Restriction should be put on "rescues" due to the increased risk of disease to our own animals. Perhaps animals coming in from rescues should have a quaranteen period to guarantee health.
- Up to date vaccines. spay or neuter AND some form of behavior assessment BEFORE entering Canada
- Rabies check
- Health testing/vet checks. Quarantine if the animal is ill.
- Minimum standard of vetting and documentation, limit number coming in at one time (no vans full of 30 animals driving in from L.A.), animals can't be pre-sold or pre-adopted to allow them to be fully vetted and temperament tested first
- Vaccinations should be up to date, and a home/foster should already have been arranged.
- Find appropriate care
- Insure they are vet checked
- no opinion
- Full background info should be mandatory for animals coming into the country (ie: previously vicious dogs from kill shelters in the States coming across the border to Canada with no records).

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No imports from countries like Mexico, Asia or third world countries.
- Documented clearance for health and communicable disease. Capability of importer to provide vaccination, vet care, humane care and shelter immediately.
- Not be exotic or endangered. The animal to be healthy with up to date health records, and a vet check on arrival.
- none. why duplicate what is already in place
- They must have a valid health certificate and be fully vaccinated.
- They don't come from puppy mills
- I think we need to take into consideration the animals that are here already and that they are not euthanized and one is brought from another country
- - Must have complete medical history, ideally should be reviewed by a veterinarian upon entry.
- - Relevant screening for diseases/parasites found in the area that the animal is being imported from in order to minimize risk of infecting local populations.
- - Possibly enact mandatory quarantine period
- We do not need out of country animals. Unless for breeding purposes and then make sure they pay.
- purpose of use. example, a non-business should not order 30 hamsters.
- I believe they are doing just fine as is.
- The animals should be vet-checked upon arrival.
- Must be quarantined for a period of time to determine their health and ensure they're not carrying a virus, new owner must license the animal
- Any animal that is in need of aid should receive it and thus adoption animals should be welcomed if they can find a home in Calgary.
- Vet checks are required before sale and reports provided to the purchaser
- I don't think we should accept animals from elsewhere - we have enough pets looking for homes already from abandonment / at large with no one looking for them / surrender. Animal rescues should and be able to rescue from CHS and City Animal Services to keep it local.
- Animal health and designated use. If an animal exists domestically that would fill the role of the animal being brought in.
- Cites appendices must be followed
- I do not know
- No puppy/kitten mills.
Animals must be raised in healthy environments for them.
Animals must be up to date with shots and spayed or neutered.
- Import/Export is not a municipal responsibility.
- I think it's great that organizations rescue animals from places where they would otherwise suffer and be put down. It is important to ensure that these organizations work and communicate closely with the city to ensure the most ethical treatment.
- health checks to be free from disease.
- Must be kept in quarantine for a month or more

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Health certificate, spay neuter before rehoming
- Ensuring that the animal will be appropriately cared for is a huge factor, and that the person responsible for it can be held accountable if they don't act in the animals or societies best interest.
- I am most concerned about zoonotic diseases (for example. rabies).
- Tested for diseases, well socialized and only rescues.
- Vaccinations and health checks completed.
- saving lives is what is important. Our rescues also send dogs/cats to other countries to new adopters. If it saves lives, do it.
- reference Canadian laws.. there is some good info there. I am not a fan of importing rescues and dogs coming from unknown sketchy sources. Health checks are really important
- safety and disease standards, definitely spayed or neutered.
- Have all confirmation of having received all needed shots, record of ownership, past and current. Record of having complied with all international/ federal laws.
- they are updated on vaccinations and disease free - taken to a local vet clinic or animal services to be tested
- Must be reviewed for safety of humans and not adversely impacting our existing wildlife balance etc
- need improved criteria here that should be monitored.
- That our shelters are empty. Start local first.
- We shouldn't accept imported animals until all adoptable animals are taken care of.
- Shots are up to date and the animals are not considered dangerous
- All imported animals should undergo home quarantine procedures until cleared by a qualified veterinary professional
- not diseased. Quarantined at the border for health and safety reasons. the animal should already have their vaccinations etc
- We should not be importing dogs and cats into our city period. We have millions euthanized in Canada, bringing them in from Mexico and the like by 'shelters' should be illegal. Only show breeders should be allowed to import.
- Import properly vaccinated and healthy animals.
- Domestic animals only and only if the owner is relocating to Calgary. Continue to require rabies certificates.
- All must be fully vetted and approved and healthy. All must be spayed and neutered prior to entering Canada
- Health check at the importers expense
- Do not import outside of the province. quarantine all animals coming in from areas rural or otherwise that are feral and for sure out of side of Canada.
Written assessment done by a trird party trainer with behaviour training before any dog gets places.
- Medical and behavioral assessment by a qualified person(s)
- Certificate of health. Include first year of licensing in the cost of purchasing the animal.
- Health history

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

Origin

- Appropriate vetting and paperwork to prove it: deworming, vaccinations, etc. Also a history of where the animal was before and what the environment was like.
- Health & temperament checks. Vaccinations. Exotic animals from the tropics should not be allowed in Canada.
- Ability to trace lineage and breeder of animal
If from a rescue then all immunization up to dates and no unspayed/neutered is allowed to enter unless have proven why necessary to be a stud
- Screening for transmissible disease.
- Vaccines, spayed/neutered, checked for diseases (URV, FIV, FELV, Parvo etc.) more serious diseases must be treated prior to entering the country.
- Consideration of the impact to local animals and environment. Is this a suitable climate for the animal
- health. that the animals already impounded in the city have been adopted out first instead of bringing in ones from outside the country
- Health
Behaviour/temperament
Origin
Vaccination history
Ability to thrive in climate (exotics)
- As long as the animals have been vetted and have received the appropriate vaccinations to enter the country, that should be sufficient.
- Importers should be qualified and licensed to assess animals and find proper homes.
- No animals are to be used for sport (fighting) or anything that will endanger them.
- -Check ups to make sure pets are being treated as the law states
-high licensing fees to detour importing animals
- Permits and licensing
I'm not familiar with the issue
- I've never liked the idea of animals coming into our country, given the fact we can't even take care of the ones we already have. I think that Calgary should not allow anymore adoption agencies that what to bring animals into Canada to be in business.
- Health and disease checks by a veterinarian specializing in the species in question, to limit the spread of diseases. Horses are imported all the time and quarantined/medically reviewed. It's a very reasonable and accepted process.
- health
behaviour/ temperament
origin
vaccination history
ability to thrive in climate (exotics)

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Precautions need to be taken to make sure there isn't infectious disease, or if there is, that the animal will be isolated and taken care of until it is cured. All animals should be treated humanely at all times.
- Quarantine the animals; permit or license to do so; thorough health exam
- check for diseases. DON't know.
- Animals should only be imported by animal rescues for "Adoption Only", be spayed & neutered, and not for any breeding.
- No exotic period.
- I believe there are enough unwanted animals in this city and yet there are so many rescue organizations that import them from Mexico, LA etc...Many come with behavioral and/or medical issues and could later cause expense to the adopting person or they become abandoned because of behavioral issues
- Working with the border services to ensure these animals would not pose any major risks to people.
- They are acceptable and appropriate pets. Not wild animals. That they are housed, fed, and cared for in a safe way.
- Quarantine period.
Require behaviour/temperament testing.
Business license/permit.
Require health examinations by a licensed, practicing vet.
- Common sense please...no endangered animals, no wild animals etc. Sale and adoption only if to/from reputable breeders/rescues. Must prove animal is not stolen, to be used as bait or other illegal purposes. Individuals allowed to bring in pet/show/breeding quality animals from reputable source.
- They should be heavily taxed ( e.g. 20% tax )to encourage people to adopt the many many local rescues that need a home , revenues should be used to help fund animal services.
- Leave it to Canada Border Services.
- Follow legal guidelines
- CBSA does a good job, leave it to them
- All animals must be up to date on vaccinations and spaying or neutering arranged.
- Health of animal; behaviour/temperament; Origin; Vaccination history; Ability to thrive in our climate (exotics)
- Quarantine if necessary. Verified humane sourcing of animals.
- Perhaps not be allowed to import non-registered (exception if they can be registered) dogs or cats, for example, if there are similar size animals available at local adoption agencies. Need to be registered upon arrival. Seems contradictory that our dogs get euthanized and we bring
- Animals have their vaccinations, be chipped, limited to an appropriate number of animals
- No predators
- Uniquely the well being of Calgarians, and not the self indulgence of "animal lovers". It is vastly easier to bring dangerous disease ridden animals into Calgary than export beef to other countries.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No comment.
- I don't agree with the practise of bringing in dogs and cats from other countries for adoption. There are too many dogs and cats int his country that need homes – we don't need more from anywhere else.

City of Calgary role regarding imported animals

- If cattle, the number, safety, quality of life, space. If domestic pets or those flown in, the same checks as The Heathrow ARC do.. A world renowned import, export area for animals flown in and out.
- Depending on the animal, neighbors should be informed of their presence. I.e. living in a building with a person who owns a large snake.
- It should be a joint effort between the city and province to ensure animal welfare is upheld.
- none
- Stop accepting large quantities of rescue imports from random places.
- See above.
- Allow them but put parameters in place to ensure they are safe.
- I am not sure there is anything that can be done on a municipal level. There should be a provincial responsibility however.
- I don't have much of information on this topic to provide my input.
- Charge people who have animals they shouldn't have. Provide humane care/rescue for the animals that are located.
- Protecting the health and safety of local domestic animals
- Spay/neuter
- no idea where to start. China is banning wildlife sales = Corona flu from snakes, Avian flu from birds, ebola = monkeys. Responsible laws. Rescue adoption as first option.
- Ensure they are not bringing in disease
- Health checks and quarantine
- Monitor, regulate, and enforce criteria for imported animals.
- Licensing. once they are here, the same way we do with other pets in Calgary.
- Mandatory quarantine would be good, but I'm not sure how you enforce it.
- existing adoptable pets be adopted out before importing animals
- Ban
- Not sure, sorry. Don't know enough about this to speak into it.
- follow up to see animal is safe and secure. and in a loving home
- See previous answer.
- It should be via the border, not the city.
- ensuring that animals are imported properly, and sourced responsibly
- Must register imported animals to ensure they are not from puppy mills
- Just maintenance of licensing and/or responding to complaints.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- It depends. In the case of a reputable breeder, the breeder should have the knowledge to ensure that the animals are healthy and vaccinated. If the animals are being brought in as rescue animals from other countries, CBSA should ensure this. Calgary just needs to regulate the sellers.
- None. Allow these organizations to operate.
- 100% oversight - same as domestic regulations.
- Work with provincial/federal associates
- No comment
- Ensure veterinary checks have been done in Calgary - not just their point of origin.
- Nothing, this is a National matter.
- Require rescues to provide proof of blood tests for foreign diseases. Brucellosis, heart worm etc. NO exception.
- Verifying certification of shots and quarantine.
- Helping with disease surveillance and perhaps minimizing import of exotics/non-native animals for pet-trade, as well as regular pets for sale when we have our own abundance of healthy, suitable strays/surrenders available for adoption.
- Licensing, documenting
- Until all the animal shelters and rescue groups are out of animals no animals should be imported as a pet.
- Not allow them. Encourage these organizations to pull from local shelters for resale
- Maintain database of imported animals and their owners. Licensing.
- Limit volume
- Ensure that spade / neuter of all pets being sold. History of the pet is available
- Proof of purchase adoption from registered charity or breeder.
- Ensure they don't end up in shelters
- License them, require health testing.
- As above, not qualified to answer.
- Verification of their health and vaccination record (same as CBSA does for animals imported to Canada from a foreign country)
- Ensure nothing unwanted comes in and that we can actually provide homes for them
- Require health records and quarantine of animals coming from high disease areas. It is better for the animals and for our public safety to have stricter rules about these imports.
- No exotics or animals taken from the wild to be pets, labour, or other uses.
- I'm not certain of how many animals are imported directly into Calgary so I will not voice an opinion.
- None.
- Little to no role
- Defer to CFIA rules.
Large imports for retail rescue purposes should be inspected after the fact for compliance with health safety and welfare requirements.
- I don't believe it is necessary to import animals for any reason.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- See answer above.
- I would discourage it, we have so many strays and unwanted animals here that I don't think that we need to be importing stray animals from other countries, that potentially bring back disease and potentially can infect our animals and introduce new strains of diseases we think we have eradicated.
- Restrict certain animals based on environment.
- Require vet certification of health
- None. Leave this at a federal, border services and agriculture Canada department level to manage.
- Ensure there are no diseases coming with.
- Seize illegally imported animals. Ensure animal welfare.
- Involved in the inspection and monitoring of who owns the animals and where they are.
- Monitoring what animals are coming into the city. Require all animals to be licensed, clear vet checks and required testing for disease depending on where they are coming from. All groups importing animals should have a business license and be inspected.
- Mandatory quarantine; health and behavioural checks in place.
- If animals are coming in, the City should be ensuring the animal has met all vetting requirements prior. No exceptions.
- None. I feel that this is CBSA's domain.
- none
- None
- - the city of Calgary should have staff who can do background checks on the importing of the animals and ensuring that all criteria is met
- None if it is already regulated by other jurisdictions. Once here then the regular rules and guidelines should be applied.
- N/A
- Prohibit them.
- Education +++
License rescue organizations / education / regulations for importing rescues
- Ensure they are disease free.
- we believe the City pound animals need to be considered firstly..our pounds should not have as many pets therefore imported animals need to be secondary...our City animals are just as important as the imported ones, if not more...let's take care of our own first!
- Limit the amount of animals that are allowed to be brought in due to their are many that need help in Canada.
- You need to know what animals are present in your city. You need cooperation of owners. Therefore you need a system that isn't financially punitive OR time sucking so it encourages participation. Education is key, and social pressure will manage poor pet owners.
- None.
- I believe Border Services already does everything necessary for this.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Making sure they are microchipped, licensed, have been vetted and negative fecals.
Can the City not post off leash etiquette posters at the parks? Dr. Sophie Yin has some beautiful illustrated ones. Do's and don't at the park.
- Ensuring rescues are committed to my above described suggestions.
- controlling rescue groups who bring hoards of dogs up here to "adopt " out for a price. Most have little or no health clearances.
- Groups who do this must require a business license because for some people that is how they make money. Mandatory quarantine, repeat testing, health testing and temperament evaluation.
- transportation of all animals including agricultural should be limited in the amount of time there should be regulations on temperature water and food.
- NA
- Open for each dog to be looked at individually.
- Contract between individuals that is consistent - maybe via an app?)
- The only things that the City of Calgary should do regarding imported animals is ensure that the businesses importing them are licensed, and that the animal is licensed as required.
- Imported animals from a reputable breeder overseas need to be licensed the same as animals born here. Generally they have health certificates and vaccination records. Rescue animals need to be quarantined and health checked before being allowed to enter the country and then need to follow bylaws.
- Ensure no exotic species are permitted within the city.
- No business licenses for imported animals except under restricted conditions. Such businesses must have regular inspections and keep records of origin and sales
- Follow federal law and consider the type of animal. Is the imported animal appropriate for urban living?
- City of Calgary should make it illegal or at the never least enforce adequate care and business practices.
- Monitoring imports, providing education and information as needed, and dealing with illegal animals as needed. I believe the City is acting appropriately currently, and I have no suggestions.
- Ensuring they are licensed and vet checked.
- Aside for ensuring public health, none.
- To ensure they come from reputable breeders only and that proper paperwork is filled out by the seller and buyer.
- Revoke business licences for complaints
- None, let CBSA handle it
- That the health check includes not only a check for vaccinations but also held certificates stating the dog is not carrying diseases like brucellosis, heartworms, or other worm diseases which are highly contagious and easily transmitted.
- If they are going to allow them. There should be a quarantine payable by the importer and supervised by a vet.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Rescues should not be permitted to bring in additional animals unless there are no animals available in the local shelters. It is becoming big business with more and more coming into existence.
- All Rescues should need to follow all of the rules that apply to good animal husbandry and animal welfare. Conditions should be monitored and if substandard they should be penalized accordingly.
- making sure the animal has been properly health checked and certified that the animal is healthy to prevent the spread of diseases.
- Protection of citizens.
Licensing.
Follow up if necessary.
- To ensure the animals being imported are healthy before being released into the general population.
- That the safety is paramount concern above anything else
- There's a difference between a pet owner moving here from the UK with the dog they've had for years versus someone bringing back a sick dog rescued off the streets of Mexico. The UK dog poses little risk. The Mexican dog should be health checked and quarantined at home for a period of time.
- I believe there are already enough animals in our shelters. Priority should be given to local animals
- I guess if they have passed through all the hoops to get here we can only license them.
- None specific to imported animals, this is a border security issue. Otherwise, they should be treated the same as locally raised animals.
- Policy development and enforcement
- Imported animals for what? Resale, including rescues? City should be enforcing the health of the population is safe from these imported rescues from high risk areas.
There are already safeguards and regulations for the importation of 1 pet from a reputable source.
- Minimal.
- Rescues should not be importing rescues internationally. We have enough dogs here that need homes and without adding new diseases to it.
City of Calgary should be ensuring rescues are under strict guidelines for importation.
- They must ensure the animal is healthy and not endanger the general public of both people and other animals
- We should not allow it
- Control of registration for organizer of imported animal and/or animal; ensuring banned animals are not admitted as a second line of check
- Ban the import of animals for commercial purposes. Ensure the import of animals for adoption is safe for the animals being imported and other pets.
- As long as proper health and documentation is there, it's not a city issue and resources can be focused on more important issues.
- Review at time of licencing
- don't allow them we have lots of animals that need a home.
- Don't let them in unless needed for film or short stay.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The city of Calgary should be able to reject animals that don't pass certain standards. I love animals but I wouldn't want to adopt one that was passed off as healthy and end up having to put it down because it was sick after spending money to own it.
- Better oversight. Exotics often have miserable lives; l: parrots, reptiles that grownup and are dangerous, gold fish, etc. Work with importers so exotic animals are registered. Report on the pet trade. Stats also.
- Not allow them.
- I don't think the city should have any role regarding import unless it is for breeding purposes. In which case, see question 9
- Strict licensing and regulation of businesses and/or individuals involved in importing animals from another country to be sold and/or adopted out in Canada. Those looking to make a quick buck adopting out sick or dangerous imported animals for hundreds of dollars would hopefully stop.
- Ensure animal has vet records approving health.
- Nothing
- make sure people who obtain animals and/or sell animals have a appropriate business licence, proper records of animal, and have clear guidelines to making sure the health of the animal is up to date
- if we have limited supply of adoptable animals here then the city can allow more in... specialty service animals should be except where needed....
- None
- The same as animals whom are here locally, health certification and rabies legislation but that's broader than Calgary
- More verification for rescue animals .. is there a home for them?
- Make sure they are well and disease free.
- To monitor imported animals that are deemed potentially dangerous, where they are being kept and ensure all safety precautions are being followed, as well as all the animals needs are being attended to, and make sure animal has clean bill of health, and animal has information micro chip implanted.
- Same as new pet owners Vet checks and cost of ownership to be owners responsibility.
- screening/licensing process; endangered? health risks?
- Border control of importing animals only.
- Only worry about the ones being brought in for resale and health checks that they are not bringing diceseces here
- I keep hearing the shelters are full and need people to adopt what we already have, why do we need to import ?????
- Enforce the rules
- I don't think animals should be imported for sale or rehoming.
- Not allow it, rescues must register with a City. We have enough of a pet problem with too many looking for homes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Leave it up to Border Services.
- Any imported animals should be quarantined and checked by a qualified vet and not released until it is proven there are no issues. The city should oversee this, if allowing imported animals (which I disagree with)
- Enforce a quarantine...although then people will just not license for the first months sadly
- Enforcing the above.
- If they are allowed in the country then they should be treated as any other animal in the City, although the owner should prove they are healthy before getting a licence.
- Ensuring local animals are housed first.
- NONE. Absolutely none other than ensuring that a contractor is hired to provide this service to pet owners and bill them accordingly! This is not a tax-payer service or responsibility!
- I worry sometimes that by law is contacted, in order to avoid talking to a neighbour about a concern. I think that by law should be focussed on animal cruelty cases, not a noise complaint because one neighbour won't talk to another or cat tolerate a normal level of noise.
- I don't know enough about it to give any recommendations
- They should only allow legitimate rescue groups who have a license to import dogs into Calgary not a breeder or backyard rescue
- Proof of vaccinations
  - Full vet check to ensure no diseases
  - Full temperament check to ensure not vicious and can be handled.
  - Six months quarantine to ensure no disease.
  - Rescue must take full responsibility if the animal injures someone or an animal.
  - Better yet...just say no. Revisit later.
- There is no need to import animals.
- None
- Regulating and enforcing policy to provide proper records
- Health and welfare of the animals. Making sure illegal animals aren't imported.
- Ensuring the safety of the public.
- Restrictions on limits unless is being brought here due to owners being transferred here. We have enough strays without bringing in international
- Restrict Some rescues and individuals that are importing animals only for profit and bringing unhealthy animals in
- Wow, not so sure. I am concerned about out of country dog rescues and the new diseases that we have never had before.
- I'm not sure the implications. If border services ensures standards then that would be sufficient.
- License them. Require a certificate of being legally obtained. Not be an endangered species unless imported by the zoo, say, for legitimate reasons.
- Only from qualified breeders. The city has many rescues and animals that need homes. They do not need to bring more animals for rescue from outside of the province

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- there are already federal regulations.
- All should be vetted with all vaccinations, all licensed as well, quarantined or fostered in homes without exposure to other animals until vetted and behaviour checked.
- Ensure animals must be licenced before being released.
- To heavily tax these dogs to fund programs to help local dogs that need rehoming
- Nothing different than what current role is.
- Unsure
- Ensure vaccines and spayed, not allow for profit from this practice (rescue only)
- Regulating animal welfare and public safety.
- Inspections
- No imports into the city limits.
- None its cbsa role.
- I believe the city should not expand into any roles regarding imported animals or licensing dog walkers.
- Mirror the Federal guidelines regarding imported animals. Bear in mind, this is a city, not a farm; certain animal species do not belong here.
- I do not know how the City could know whether or not an animal is imported and therefore can't imagine how they could have a role in this area.
- No outside Canada imported animals all other animals should have health documents from vets
- limit the kind of animals being imported in
- Nothing
- Required submission of copy of record/findings of each veterinary inspection conducted, or copy of record of euthanasia if any condition cannot/will not be treated.
- Don't let them in
- Shelters are no longer just 'saving animals' and are turning into big business. They should be regulated, inspected, licensed like any other big business.
- Health standards are met by CBA so I believe the city should have no role.
- No role
- Proper paperwork
- Verify veterinary requirements are met
- Reputable rescue organizations
- making sure diseases are not brought in with the dogs. Making sure that rescue for profit, fake rescue and dog flipping is not happening.
- I think that stats on the movement of animals in general, into our city and from where (us, Mexico, rural AB) and the numbers on surrendered and at-home animals (through CHS, AARCS, Pos Match etc) should be captured and made public. I think this would give insight into how to manage our dog pop'n
- Exotic animals should be banned.
- Licensing and final approval

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Regulated what kind of animals (dog fighting dogs and what kind of health) are coming in Keeping this register is important
- Cautious not to import pets with foreign diseases, vicious pets etc. Both Behavioural testing and health testing done at the cost of the business/rescue and provided to city officials to guarantee they are done and rules followed.
- Need approval before group embarks on journey to bring animals back. Limit number of animals and prove the animals will be provided and cared for without burden on current shelters
- I know rescue groups have good intentions for these animals. As Calgarians we need to know that our animals domestic or wild are safe. If the city is going to accept imports there should be paper work proving where the animal comes from and that it is of no danger to us.
- Rescue only
- Inspections and ensuring wellbeing of these animals, including safety for the public
- Ensuring all documentation is done regarding vaccines and doing a behavior test.
- Risk assessments of the animals temperaments as suited to a pet animal owned by a member of the general public. Temperaments should be assessed by qualified animal behaviorists
- They must be healthy and the Type of animal - not an endangered species or competitive species to our natural ecosystem.
- They should be sterilized if they are not indigenous to the area
- Making their licensed and healthy
- I don't believe the city has a role. I feel that's an area for border services.
- The City can stop the operation of a business by not granting zoning permission to run a "rescue" operation within its limits. It cannot regulate the acquisition of personal property. Dogs are, by common law, personal property; not within the City's legal jurisdiction.
- I think the city of Calgary needs to protect the people that buy these animals by requiring full vet clearance.
- No idea. Beyond my pay grade
- Help ensure the pets are safe and healthy
- Supervisory (ensuring the rules are followed) and mainly supportive
- Make sure people who want to have an imported animal have all the proper information.
- Stop the import of such animals
- limit non registered dog and cats being imported
- Upholding the law.
- To ensure animals coming in and going out meet the requirements. Maybe even have people get approved to be able to ship or receive animals to prevent any BYB breeders or puppy mills from continuing.
- License and inspect the business.
- Restricted tightly if we have animals available
- Veto power
- Ensure they are healthy before coming to Calgary

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Ensure animals entering the city do not carry disease. License them. Ensure they are in good health and spayed or neutered unless the owner holds a breeders license.
- see above.
Restrict, educate and ban for any and all purposes.
- Unsure.
- Place new rules before the animals can be adopted out, and enforce them
- Again, SURPRISE welfare checks on the animal, background checks on all parties involved AND a database accessible to the public to keep track and check on those people involved.
- They must be more compassionate and take any and all animals believed to be under undue stress or to be used for things like ritual sacrifice. Food animals need more compassion too. The driver may not care. Make them more responsible for the animals they transport.
- NONE
- regulating it!
- We should be proud to bring neglected and abused animals to loving parents here in Calgary.
- Before a person can buy or adopt an imported animal they should have to report to the city so the city can assess the animal at that level.
- Unsure/haven't done enough research on this
- I don't think we have much of an idea of how many animals are coming in from what countries & what their medical histories are, etc. Especially with COVID-19 exposes risks bringing unregulated dogs from Korean meat markets, etc. Time to get a handle on this before we import a disease or worse.
- None. We need less government involvement in our lives, not more.
- Do we have to allow it? Maybe stricter regulations if so
- not sure
- As long as they don't involve animals that we are not able to have controls on such as bears and such big animals and records are kept on the small dangerous creatures we sometimes have fondness for spiders and such as well as antivenom
- safety of animal and public
- Ensuring they have been properly screened before being sold or released to local owners.
- I don't believe the city should be responsible for any costs associated with imported animals. If someone wants an imported dog, it should be up to them and the agency to pay all fees, include spaying, and include a compatibility assessment before ownership changes hands. Then license them.
- Enforce the regulations strongly.
- Other than purebred animal importation by registered CKC or TICA breeders ( or other purebred animals registries)other retail importers and rescue animal associations should be regulated by city limits and bylaws.
- Work with CBSA to ensure no imported animals come to Calgary.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not your wheel house. Stay in your lane. It is far too easy to be swayed by animal rights activists. They do not have pets best interest in mind. You should work with the local kennel club in regards to pet ownership.
- We should be doing importing stray animals from our of country or city. We have enough animals in CGY to adopt, we don't need to import more.
- Health certificate required when applying for license.
- Unsure- none?
- Oversight for infectious diseases, protection of the animal and potential buyers
- Not sure.
- None of your business
- I'm not sure, perhaps ensuring that Canada's rules are being followed
- Ensure that all animals are licensed and in good health.
- Approval
- Importing animals is a business. These businesses should be licensed and have regulations in place to protect the animals coming in and the people and animals they could come into contact with.
- A more critical look at the condition of the imported animals. Awareness and wariness of diseases which are not prevalent in Canada, but are becoming more common due to the importation of dogs (Brucellosis, Canine Flu...) from the southern states or Mexico. Limit the number of imported animals.
- Stop the importing of rescue animals from foreign countries. I see this as unlikely so, Massively increase the fees for licensing and require permits to bring these animals into the city. We do not need more animals to be homed or abandoned.
- Ensure these animals are safe
- Limits
- Do not allow.
- Have animals vet checked. Spay and neutered
- If it's someone moving and bringing their pet with them, then, okay. Otherwise, no imported animals allowed as it brings in disease and we have enough here!
- Should not be allowed.
- I am not qualified to answer this question
- Seized at the airport, however i am not sure how cross-border entry could be stopped.
- Ensure all laws are followed, to ensure health and safety of the animals being imported.
- They must verify the paperwork to ensure the animals are not trafficked and are in good health so they don't introduce diseases.
- Ensuring they get homes or put into agencies that will ensure they get to a safe home.
- It is very nice to try to help animals such as Greyhounds, or Beagles who have been mistreated; but I think there should be some sort of limit in numbers. Those that bring them in should be licensed.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't think it should be the city's responsibility. The rules should apply to the person/group importing the animals.
- They should be banned.
- Utilize guidelines utilized by the Border Services
- Enforce the rules and guidelines and if it was up to me I wouldn't allow any amphibians or reptiles to come into the country.
- To determine the end use of the animal and then issue a license specifying that end use on that license. If found not be complied with, the animal should be removed from the ownership.
- I think the City should definitely try to watch businesses which sell animals and ensure they are meeting a good standard of care for those animals.
- Do not allow rescues to be sold for profit.
- same as any other animals - require them to be licenced etc
- See above
- None, unless the animal is to remain within the city. Then follow proper licensing requirements as with other dogs and cats. All other species are already controlled by the province or federal, no need for the city to also be involved.
- Trying to ensure animals in the city are safe, cared for humanely, and don't pose a risk to the people, animal populations, and environment
- Maintaining health standards of animals so as not to spread disease to existing population
- Take a strong stand & dis allow imported pets.
- We should not be a venue for the resale of imported animals. We have plenty of animals in need here.
- Highly regulate the practice
- None whatsoever.
- Monitor the process without trying to charge fees
- Limits to the number that can be brought in and the type of organization that is permitted to bring animals in. For instance a home based "rescue" should not be bringing in dozens of dogs that they do not have the space or experience to care for. Rescues should be fully licensed.
- I do not have an opinion
- I don't think the City of Calgary should play a role - it would be too hard to keep track of animals once they are in the city.
- As mentioned in the other slot, beyond the usual rules for other pets, just make sure that one getting out isn't going to upset our ecosystem. Treat them the same as every other animal.
- Nothing. That should be a federal responsibility.
- Personally, I think we have enough stray animals to re home locally ..
- I don't think the city of Calgary should be playing a role aside from supporting the CBSA to ensure their regulations and standards are being met.
- Not sure
- The City of Calgary should ban the import of animals for pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- City should have little to no role in this. It seems like a minor/non-existent problem that self-regulates.
- For international arrivals, registration upon importation, mandatory spaying or neutering unless the importer is a registered AKC breeder in good standing.
- None.
- Ensure animals imported into the city have appropriate vaccine records and have no contagious diseases that could spread to our pet or wildlife population. Ensure the animals have somewhere to be housed appropriately when they arrive and receive ongoing care from the importers
- Shouldn't allow exotic pets if endangered. Also people should have courses in understanding exotic pets.
- no opinion
- Rescues need to be limited on how many animals they can import and sell. Are there not enough animals in Canada to sustain rescue?
- Enforce no trade or traffic in wildlife. Enforce no sourcing animals from mills. Enforce source of the animal must be accredited (rescue facilitators included) and meet every standard for the physical and mental health of the animal. If by-laws do not currently allow for same they must be changed
- Limit importing animals for sale.
- none
- To license any organization that is importing these animals and proving laws for these organizations
- NONE.
- to ensure that the health of the animal is not going to be effected by Calgary living conditions. This cost should be to the importers or pet licensing... not to taxpayers.
- Make sure they are healthy and their welfare is being looked after
- Ensuring their health is up-to-date and they are registered and spayed/neutered.
- Don't import them in the first place!!
- The City does have a role in regulating imported animals. Animals need to be quarantined, licensed, have a health check etc before released. Licensing fee for the first year SB higher than for pets bought/adopted from CDN sources.
- Checking paperwork, charging import fees that can then be used to support our existing population.
- Ensure that these animals meet standards for health, vaccines, behaviour etc., but otherwise, these animals should be welcomed
- Well being of animals, not to make money like greedy idiots.
- Making sure there are homes in place for them.
- They need to be identified by microchip.
- To ensure that companies and individuals are caring for the wellbeing of the animals, and ensuring that diseases are controlled and treated properly.
- as above
- City shouldn't be doing it, but need to think about how to regulate it and keep the animals safe.
- Make sure the imported is licensed and reputable

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I believe in importing these animals to save their lives and give them a better life and home but they need to ensure these animals are healthy and not carrying a disease that can be passed on to other animals
- must be licenced (not just animal but seller as well)
- no role really
- Importation for commercial purposes should be banned. If it continues, animals must be given vaccines/antiparasitics etc. by a licensed veterinarian BEFORE they enter the province and have documentation to prove it. When arriving at the city, immediate vet inspection and licensing of each pet.
- Ban importation of animals to or through rescue groups. Should only be owned animals allowed. Enough rescue animals in Alberta, we don't need to import from other countries
- This should be a CBSA issue, the animals should be treated the same as all other pets if they have adhered to health and safety requirements of importing and transporting imported animals
- Education, people don't understand they may be supporting puppy mills, or that these dogs are potentially a health risk to our population. Also there should be strict rules on providing paperwork of tests done, parasite control applied, and vaccinations done.
- The safety of the animal and its impact on the city
- Ensuring the agencies are legitimate, licensed and living up to their responsibilities to the animals.
- License if dangerous or venomous
- Unsure
- There should be no role for the city other than that which they play with every other dog and cat in the city.
- Don't know.
- License and bylaw enforcement.
- No comment
- Follow the Canadian border service's set rules.
- Those businesses should not be permitted
- I haven't seen an option here, to not allow dogs at all in some of our more sensitive natural environment parks. Please note that Ottawa has such parks.
- Checks to ensure health and temperament of animals that are imported from out of country
- Must be preapproved by the city. Review on a case by case basis whether to allow the import
- Ensuring that the animal will be properly controlled and cared for. Limit the number of exotic animals for a single residence (eg. not allow 30 animals to be kept at a single residence.)
- Ensure they are not available in Canada first. Ensure they are licensed and disease free
- Only care when they're considered exotic and not being rescued.
- Stricter enforcement of numbers, quarantine period, vet/health checks and permitting with fines for non compliance
- Safety and well being of animals. Ensure that those importing and/or purchasing are reputable. Rescue animals need a different category.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The city should be protecting the animals who are from here first, and ensure the imported animals are not dangerous to the domestic animals.
- Should be subject to same rules
- All animals should be licensed upon entry and sale.
- Nothing.
- setting the limits and inspection of the support facilities. as well regular inspection.
- Enforcing rigorous standards and regulations on all businesses and individuals around the humane treatment, and legal sourcing of any and all imported animals.
- This is important. Not sure where they province and the country and the city all work on this matter
- This should be a Canada Border Services responsibility
- Ban imports of animals from out of country. Too many potential issues with diseases.
- They should not be allowed/confiscated. Why do we need to bring imported animals here? especially in light of recent virus issues, etc. This is 2020 not 1920.
- N/A
- Imported animals should not be permitted.
- Ensure they are well cared for and properly licensed.
- Enforce the above
- Minimal to none - occasional vet done health checks on big importers at maximum.
- The City of Calgary should ensure that reasonable regulations are applied as to the mental and physical health of these animals and in some way license and regulate animal rescue organizations.
- If this is handled by the border service, why does the City need to be involved? With proper paperwork that has been stamped/signed/approved by the Border service why does the city need to be involved?
- Assist rescue organizations logistically and financially. Screen and inspect commercial operations.
- Not sure
- Regulate it by the Importing groups have to have a license and document/ report the animals coming in. Including medical screenings
- None, its the responsibility of the Border agency and then the licencing etc for the owner.
- REJECT THEM
- To follow and enhance the guidelines of the the CBSA, such as ensuring that the local population of a pet animal (like a dog) is a priority over cause célèbre animals from another jurisdiction.
- Same as above, City needs to audit importer. They need to meet same guidelines as those retailers follow. City needs to question source of animals and ensure they are not being illegally acquired; that importer is reputable and meets certain standards in regards to acquisition/treatment of animals
- Licence only
- Importation of animals probably belongs within a Federal jurisdiction.
- None
- To check how they were caught and transported. Check above comment.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Should drastically decrease or eliminate importing of animals that is not for rescue placement purposes.
- Verifying the animal passes all import rules.
- Zero.
- Monitor provenance (no puppy mills), check for diseases, make sure they are going to a good place (not someone with too many animals already or a puppy mill).
- They should make sure the person bringing the dogs in are reputable, licenced and the dogs are not diseased.
- Work cooperatively with other jurisdictions to reduce the likelihood that animals are being exploited.
- Same as cats/dogs. Like game wardens or maybe should have game warden division.
- Greater regulation to ensure the welfare of animals and to help stop the problem of animal abandonment due to the sheer quantity of animals entering the city
- To simply make sure animals that are being brought in are healthy and going to places that will care for them in proper humane ways.
- That they are healthy.
- check on the health of the animal.
- Health checks
- Ensuring all are licensed and that those who are purchasing them have the capacity to care for the animal properly.
- Regulating the animals on coming into the City for adoption.
- Making sure the animal actually NEEDS to be a pet, most exotic animals should not be pets. Also, making sure the animal is spayed/neutered, and fully vaccinated.
- Not sure.
- Regulation, monitoring and enforcement
- Don't. Same as above.
- That they are registered with the kennel club and licensed
- As above. No imports from anywhere other than US with vet bills being what they are, our own Calgarian responsible dog owners do not need their animals getting sick from all the weird diseases being brought into our city
- Determine types appropriate animals that can be imported
- Provide licensing information and resources to importers, respond to reports of illegal import, track those that are licensed to import.
- N/A
- Nothing! This role is already being handled and no further bureaucracy is needed!
- Monitor and ensure rules are being followed
- -
- Rules that rescues must follow such as quarantine.
- ensure it does in fact meet the CBSA standards and rules and restrict rescues

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Maybe offer information or courses for new pet owners. What to expect, what they will need, how to care for pet.
- ensuring animals receive proper treatment and vaccines
- Ensuring that they are checked thoroughly to prevent import from mills.
- noted in the above question - licensed, inspected, regulated, health checks etc....
- None.
- I don't know
- ?
- See answers to number 10
- To ensure imported pets have met vaccine and other health regulations, are licensed, and already have a home to go to. They should not be imported only to end up in a city-subsidized shelter. It's not fair to them or the rescue groups already stretched thin.
- full health inspection and home/environment where the pet will reside.
- Getting them to thier families, making sure proper documentations are handled and had.
- Health certificates and licenses
- Reasons for importing need to be explained. If it is an unusual animal, potential buyers need to prove that they have the means to care for it. Animals may need to be quarantined .
- Refer to the last question. An active role.
- The same as TSA
- Provide more support to rescue foundations.
- Stepping in when a complaint or issue is brought to their attention
- Actually enforce existing laws
- I don't think import is a municipal issue, other than maybe providing information. I would like to see a better oversight over "rescues", and clearer distinction between licensed charities and privately run, for-profit animal sales (many of which import animals).
- Minimal.
- provide manditory Check ups to ensure the animal is in good health after it lands. Either a week or two after it lands
- Ensure breeders are registered so backyard breeders no longer exist. Imported rescues should have import quotas based on how many local animals are available province wide for adoption. IMO it is ridiculous that healthy local animals are being euthanized while dogs get imported and adopted.
- I think breeders should require a special license in order to breed animals that they intend to sell. They must not be allowed to sell animals to retail stores, but limit sales to individual citizens.
- Do not allow importing for rescue. Permits required for breeding.
- Ensure the people importing the animals are licensed and bring in only healthy animals
- I've no idea. Making sure they aren't going somewhere they'll be harmed?
- Restrict animals that may become pests if released
- verify CBSA's documentation and in particular that immunizations are up to date

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Screening to ensure that they aren't being imported from places that have diseases we don't. For example we don't have heart worm and several viruses here. Some rescues have infected whole communities of dogs with serious illnesses. Don't let that happen here
- Safeguarding
- As long as the animal is licensed and has past it's health checks it's not the cities business
- The safety of the public.
- Pro import for a purpose/from an ethical breeder elsewhere— no import for other countries' diseased, non-temperament-tested stray messes.
- Dogs should not be brought in by a third party for sale to Calgarians. We have many local rescue animals....mostly dogs and cats.
- Partnering with federal agencies to ensure the health and welfare of the animal being imported is prioritized and enforced after importation.
- Need to make sure they are taking care of ours locally before bringing more in to add to the problem.
- Limit
- No importation of any kind... none... stop all of it
- Licensing, inspection, monitoring
- not sure
- Oversight, why do we allow for imported dogs and cats from Mexico to come here when there are enough animals in our own city, province, and country that we should consider caring for first
- A check point.
- Limit rescues from importing so many
- Send them back where they came from.
- Ensuring they are sterilized before they are sold or adopted.
- Making sure the animals are not endangered or at risk and have all proper medical screening.
- Ensure the facilities that are bringing them in have the facilities and means to properly care for them. Ensure proper disease control.
- Quite frankly it's a hard one but maybe a rescue has to show a ratio of how many foreign vs how many canadian dogs they brought in.
- See #10
- None
- Make sure all animals are healthy and being well taken care of. Make sure they are going to a reputable place and they are all licensed and responsibility is taken by said importer for the animals.
- Education.
- Licensing them as other local pets
- Ensure animals are vaccinated and not bringing diseases into the Calgary dog population.
- Enforcing laws stopping the importation of animals.
- Mandatory licensing. Mandatory spay/neuter.
- Education of the public regarding animal care. This should apply to all animal ownership, imported or otherwise.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Control what is allowed to be imported. No endangered and no invasive species.
- Licensing, ensuring health criteria is met, monitoring the importing and exporting activities of the individuals in question
- Ensuring the animal is healthy.
- simply make sure they are licensed and healthy.
- Unless the City has a specific concern, stay out of it.
- They should defer to the expertise and advice of a qualified veterinarian.
- Ensure they are not going to negatively affect the health or safety of Calgary's current animal residents
- To confirm that they are healthy and are going to have a safe place to live until being adopted
- City should be involved to make sure that its citizens are safe.
- Restricting the import of non ethically bred stock. Ensuring that these animals are free from disease, and ensuring they are altered to help prevent them adding to pet overpopulation.
- That animals are brought in for the purpose of finding good homes and that they are not sold through pet stores or sold for illegal purposes
- Don't know enough to answer. Don't import animals for profit - particularly if the animals come from places like India or China or Thailand or any other place known for flagrant animal abuse or poaching animals for profit. Those practices are unacceptable we should not vote yes with our wallets.
- Some type of licensing program
- Keeping track animals are not going to animal fighting rings etc.
- None
- Regulation
- None allowed except from various countries where they need rescuing. Exotics have no need to be here, stick to basics. Why animals like a savannah monitor lizard are allowed here are beyond me.
- Making sure they are disease free and documented/licensed.
- Health checks
- Animals should be approved pets, not invasive or dangerous
- No different than other animals
- Restrictions. Regulations. Control stray, unhomeless pet numbers. These are people creating jobs for themselves...rescues are run poorly, dogs are mismatched to homes and problem animals are passed along to unsuspecting families. Stop the insanity. Its very poorly done currently.
- Nothing
- Unsure... Other than to prioritize local adoption.
- They are up to date on any required shots
- Consider the animals well being. Do not bring animals in that are very sick and put them through significant health care. If the animal is young and can be provided with a good life then it should be allowed. Priority should be to abandoned animals in the province first.
- I don't have enough knowledge to offer an opinion

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Engage with experts on the subject.
- Whoever is purchasing or rescuing the important animals they should provide proof that they have already tried to find an animal in Calgary already .
- Limit the number allowed. Make sure rescues are bringing in healthy animals
- I definitely think you should be monitoring it, Anything important can bring along with it diseases, etc. The SPCA seems to be very overwhelmed with the number of animals that are being given away as an afterthought definitely needs to be some kind of rules and limitations that are being monitored.
- I don't know enough about this topic to give an informed opinion
- To accept if they are from special breeders.
- Keeping track and following the animal during their lifetime
- Keep Calgarians safe
- Regulate, follow up with infractions
- Ensure they were sourced ethically
- Work with border screening agency and be a part of screening any animals along side border control and enforcing any bylaws necessary for that particular animal
- Not really sure how it affects the city tbh. It's between the importer/ retailer and the exporter/wholesaler
- prevent the introduction of infectious diseases such as rabies by testing/vaccinating imported animals. keep a digital record of imported animals.
- Keeping people accountable in importing pets that are healthy and rules are being followed.
- Monitor reasons so animals are not abused or used for fighting or puppy mills.
- The safety of the animal.
- I am not sure
- Regulate dangerous ones.
- Don't allow them in the city for retail sales. Imported rescue animals to be placed in responsible homes are the only ones that should be allowed. All others are removing wildlife from habitat to sell for their own profit. Heartbreaking to see Betas in tiny cups for weeks in pet stores, not natural.
- Major fines for violation of rules
- They should regulate it and protect the animals health and ensure animals are licensed and maintained.
- The city should keep abreast of trends in imported animals and act to protect those animals from abuse
- Treat it as a business and regulate it. It would be challenging as many animal importers are situated minutes outside the City of Calgary boundary. This would be a tough one to enforce.
- requiring some level of vet assessment/vaccines/quarantine if necessary to protect all of us from new disease. this could align with/defer to CBSA for as long as their rules cover the city's needs.
- Set rules around health and quantity
- The City of Calgary's role should always be keeping the safety and health of Calgarians foremost in mind. Again, respecting the rights of a few over the rights of the majority is NEVER acceptable.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- none should be provincially regulated
- Not sure.
- Minimal/none. A dog is a dog is a dog whether it comes from Balzac or Belize.
- Educate residents that import of animals is not allowed.
- Tighter regulations on the health of new animals being brought into Calgary (medical records & up to date vaccinations). A ban on all imports of adoptable animals.
- To grant permits to would be importers
- Ability to exclude animals that are imported legally but may cause harm to the people, pets, animals and plants of Calgary
- Regulation, tracking and health related affects.
- Registration
- Limited....the City should be more involved after the animal is imported...no need to duplicate services.
- d/k
- Support the shelters that are importing animals. Shelters know much more about the welfare of the animals and how to do it humanly.
- Regular spontaneous inspections to ensure welfare standards are being met. This should include the five freedoms.
- Ensuring that welfare standards are met at the importers end and during the transportation process
- Nothing.
- Should make sure that the animal is not a health risk.
- None
- Nothing, it should not be the business of the city aside from ensuring the animals are licensed the same as they are from breeders and shelter here.
- -importing animals who need to find safe homes should be a priority (e.g., animals who were abandoned, neglected)
- They should be able to say how many can be brought into our city that can reasonably be removed. They should also be able to license the importer and provide guidelines for operation and required care including Vet care.
- Take a stand and help to lobby for regulations.
- ... controls. Quarantine in a foster home before being made available for adoption, mandatory spay/neuter etc. Rescues that bring in animals from out of country should be "Licensed" as an animal importer and have strict protocols to follow.
- The should ensure that the animal is healthy and that the local businesses are not being damaged by this importation
- Mandatory license by importer
- Enforcing regulations around animal health and welfare.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Stopping the import of animals for sale, if the animal is coming in as a rescue the city should have a the rescue organization on file and someone responsible for the animal. And this should be checked to ensure the system and the animals aren't being abused.
- There needs to be guidelines as to what species of animals can be imported and the reasons they're allowed to import.
- This seems like humane society jurisdiction (provincial).
- License and track everything
- Charge more for licensing to discourage imported animals.
- Ensure that animals are properly cared for and do not put the public at risk.
- don't know
- Public awareness of regulations and an updated vision of the value of leaving exotic animals where they truly belong.
- Safety for the public & wildlife.
- Enforce the above criteria stringently.
- Not sure
- It should only be for strays, absolutely no import of specific breeds.
- n/a
- If someone imports them for $ don't let them do it
- All animals spayed or neutered. No endangered animals. No dangerous animals. Documented regulated breeders. Imported animals quarantined.
- Importation should not be allowed, we have animals enough to attend to already.
- Not sure
- The same rules apply for both imported animals and domestic animals.
- Same as other dogs and their owners
- Ensure not diseases.
- Be very careful. I am no expert but I can imagine a lot of later in time occurring problems.
- Importers should be licensed to place animals in the city. Health and temperament checks should be required.
- Make sure all people import are in good standing with the law including here in Canada and else where in the world and that all animals have been breed and not been wild-caught in other areas that may have looser laws on those issues
- I can't think of anything that wouldn't apply to other laws or non-imported animals.
- Not sure.
- Start an animal shelter for the world in nose Hill park, bring in 1.5 million cats and dogs and release them there.
- In the case of imported dogs and cats, ensuring that the bylaws around licensing are followed.
- Ensuring the animals will be treated well.
- Same as Border Services
- The city should ban the importation of dogs for adoption.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Ban the practice.
- City needs to know where all these creatures are so licensing very important.
- Seems like a federal issue to me because it has to do with border crossing and such.
- Regulate what is acceptable in Calgary, inspection system with effective penalties for infractions.
- Licensing and quarantine regulations.
- No comment
- The City should be tracking where the animals came from (bred or rescued), and ensure that they are not carrying disease.
- if animals are from another Rescue in another country with proper documents, being adopted by a person living in Canada, that is acceptable. If from a Rescue to a Rescue in Canada - acceptable also as lives are being saved.
- Perhaps an inspection process?
- Deny them entry into the city. If people want to save/rescue them, they should do so in the pet's country of origin.
- None. Treat them the same as other animals.
- Enacting and enforcing bylaws that keep it's citizens and their pets safe.
- Should be spayed or neutered, chipped and / or tattooed and registered with the city. If being sold too young to spay/neuter, then have that stuff pre-paid with reminder follow-ups and fines.
- Regulate the animals that are in the city in the first place, encourage people to complain if they see something suspicious or not allowed and then have animal control do something about it.
- Limit of numbers in one home/foster
- None
- Should be none of the city's business.
- They should have Segmented list of animals that show what is and what is not exotic pets and then have a data base . We only care about potentially aggressive , invasive and diseased animals that can cause a bigger issue.
- N/a
- They should have to immediately meet all requirements in terms of shots, they should be registered, and they should be neutered.
- Health monitoring.
- None, federal regulations should do
- Work with rescue agencies to support them and ensure that Calgarians adopting the animals know their responsibilities.
- The City should be monitoring the welfare and legality of imported animals, important that tgey are not depleting wild populations. Concerns about reef fish and other exotics.
- One of the biggest concerns is disease. I cannot imagine the city quarantining incoming animals, but we need to ensure that animals that come into the city are healthy. But then I wonder if there are cases of animals that come to Calgary in order to be treated and should they be accepted.
- Not sure other than ensuring there would be no danger to public if the animal were to get lose.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Sourcing (wild caught or not), legality, basic signs of health
- Should not import dogs, rescue or otherwise, from another country.
- Regulate?
- NO multi rescued dogs from other countries
- Current legal requirements
- Mandatory licensing and health/safety inspections.
- do not allow exotic animals in Calgary. we need to curb the rampant abuse of exotic animals; they belong in the wild. period.
- Very difficult needs to be a team effort with provincial and federal. Veterinarians need to have high level of input.
- They should not allow it for commercial reasons. Only people bringing their own pets over from other provinces or countries should be allowed to import their animals.
- Ensuring safety, spaying/neutering, and licensing.
- Not allow.
- Health and safety. Making sure the animals go to a responsible home.
- Prohibit them
- None.
- I don't know.
- i have no real comment to make.
- Stay out of it. The rescue sites need to be left to rescue. They go thru home inspections and meet and greets prior to allowing adoptions to ensure animals are placed in good situation. I dont know of any citizen breeders that do that!
- Limiting and restricting certain animals that might be harmful, carry harmful diseases or contagions, or if released/escape, would be detrimental to our ecosystem.
- i think the current laws are adequate
- None. It's already handled. Not our jurisdiction, so move on!
- Imported from where needs to be defined. if out of country none as should be done at the border. provincial importing is almost impossible to track unless permits are required.
- Take control and restrict the amount of animals in the city already
- just to be licensed if required
Less Municipal interference
- registration and ensuring the animal is spay or neutered
- Seizure of animals. Education to public about aggressively breeding animals that may take over an ecosystem.
- verification of health certification and issuing business licenses.
- Limiting intake if/when there already many local animals for adoption.
- Check on the welfare/health of the animal until it is sold. Not allowing dangerous or endangered animals to be imported.
- None

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Proper license ... pay a tax ...
- I think this is mainly a CBS responsibility
- none.
- should regulate a max number per year and only by special permit with registered organization.
- Ensure that they have been fully vaccinated. If not, they should be vaccinated on site, not have contact with other animals and quarantined until deemed safe.
- None
- The city should levy a fee to ensure responsible pet owners are involved in importing. A license should also be charged right away.
- Ensuring that Calgary's citizens and resident animals are reasonably well-protected from introduced diseases, nuisance animals, etc.
- Limited when compared to that of CBSA.
- Work with the organizations bringing in the imported animals to ensure the animals are healthy and free of any disease that could harm or transfer to other animals.
- Set bylaw and standards. Promote education.
- Sick and tired of ill-behaved "international rescue" dogs behaving like a nuisance (barking, biting, growling) and owners excusing this behaviour due to background of the dog. Limit aggressive dogs being brought in!
- Make have passed health and safety checks and are legal.
- Probably the purview and responsibility of provinces or federal
- The animals licensing should be obtained prior to the release of the animal. Their health checks should be verified.
- Stricker regulations and licensing of import organizations.
Individuals importing one animal are typically doing a great deal of investigation on the pets they are purchasing, and should not be held to the same standard as ""rescues"" who import animals for adoption from other countries
- Liscenced. Vet certificate.
- Strict regulations, monitoring, and enforcement.
- "Rescues" should be banned from importing dogs to be adopted out, there is little to no vet care or behavior assessments done before they are placed in a home. This practice is a cash cow for some rescues and should be stopped.
- Ensure that animals being sold by businesses are from reputable breeders (meaning, they are members of the Canadian Kennel Club), and that they are audited & inspected by both independent veterinarians and representatives of the CKC.
- To provide more info and resources to help make informed decisions.
- Good neighbours
- Spray and Neuter requirements.
- the city has no role here. This is federal level governing
- None. Leave it to Humane Society or AARCS.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- To ensure they are not bringing infections to local animals
- I think this is a national issue.
- None. Canada's food agency does this.
- regulate and enforce the rules. I'm ok with paying more taxes for that. Please no more vicious pitbulls from the US.
- Establish bylaws preventing this
  - - Control retail operations and regulate rescues and humane societies
- To regulate it and to disallow importing rescue animals
- Looking after 10).
- The city should be prioritizing the adoption of pets from shelters of the import of pets. There should be documentation that the imported pet is not aggressive and/or carrying any communicable diseases.
- I don't think at this time they should be allowed, we have lots coming off the reservations to start with, There should be a legal limit of how many you can even own. I know of one lady who has 12 chihuahuas and 4 or 5 Aussie's they are not all licensed she switches the license between the dogs!
- No opinion.
- I'm not sure where the guidelines should come from - maybe provincial.
- be able to restrict the types of animals imported and require licensing for importers and sellers and requirements for the state of the animals that arrive here
- The normal. They need to abide by city bylaws. There is no way to enforce.
- Health checked and if not for registered breeding programs, they should be spay or neutered. IF OUR CITY POUND OR SPCA IS AT OR NEAR CAPACITY, NO IMPORTS SHOULD BE ALLOWED.
- Work with border patrol and continue strong enforcement of aggressive animals.
- Beyond ensuring the safety and well being of the animals, let the market decide. We have enough nanny state government as it is.
- Make licence fees high for pets that are not from canada
- Have the right to refuse imports into the city.
- Not sure
- Only allow this that are handled humanely and not taken from the wild.
- Charges for owning protected/threatened/non-domesticated animals.
- Responsible pet owners should be required to report imported animals when licensing.
- Evaluate the temperament of these dogs for adoption suitability as a fee for service. Review that the animal was quarantined safely and that it has been cleared by a Canadian vet, again for a fee.
- Oversight and monitoring.
- The City's role should always be to ensure the health and safety of all residents, human and non-human, domestic and wild. Personally, I think importing animals should be discouraged. Throughout history, it has caused nothing but problems.
- The City should be in compliance with Canada in recognizing what is allowed and what is not.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- They should NOT allow any animals imported from outside the country (unless personal pets whose owners are relocating)
- Checking where they're coming from and going and that they're being treated properly.
- Nothing other than making sure the pet owners and adoption business comply with city bylaws.
- Ensure importer is licensed.
- Unsure
- Public safety - bylaws prohibiting endangered animals or animals that pose a reasonable threat to the public (large exotic animals, poisonous, etc)
- Ensure imported animals are meeting certain health standards
- No imported animals in calgary
- Must have a record. If the imports and aggressive then the agency can be held liable. For example if dogs from BARCS are always biting people then the company should be held liable and perhaps banned from importing.
- More Regulation
- -they are checked out
- Not sure. More information required.
- Probably in the licensing phase or before to regulate potential risks to calgary animals. Disease or viruses.
- Ensure their health and safety. Some of these non profits are shady.
- Regulate who is able to import the animals and from where. Assist with the quarantine
- To follow the provincial and federal requirements and up hold the city bylaws
- The city should ensure animals are protected and go into appropriate homes with the means to provide well for the animals in a species appropriate manner.
- Not sure
- None
- Ensure they've been properly better and healthy and that they're being brought here for reasonable reasons
- Ensure documents and medical checks and paperwork are in order. Medically safe to cross boarder and back ground checks done.
- Enforcing vaccines and health
- Ensuring that all animals are spayed or neutered. Not from a animals mill.
- Ensuring all requirements are met prior to the animal being allowed within city limits.
- Require vet checks, provenience of the animal. If it isn't a food animal, make sure it won't be used as one.
- Regulations prohibiting the import of any rate of endangered species would be good. As for rescues bringing dogs from kill shelters in other countries, there isn't a need for the city to do much. Rescues usually ensure the animals get their health checks, vaccines and spay/ neuter anyway.
- I do not believe we should be bringing in strays/rescues from other countries, not sure how the City would patrol this, many rescues are bogus and are only for profit

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Limit it because there are plenty cats and dogs available here.
- Make sure it is done safely and through the proper channels to ensure the well-being of the animals . We have a humanitarian obligation to accept animals from other countries similar to how we accept refugees . Canada is about giving hope to those who want a better life for themselves.
- Don't know
- I think airlines should be reporting animals flying in and rendering a report and instructions for the pet owners. I think the city should validate the quarantine if there is one and organize the health inspection or provide places for them to book.
- To make sure local animals come first.
- licensing
- Licencing, regular inspection of any animal shelters.
- Imported animals without Canada should see a vet within the first 30 days of entering the province to clear it of any illness. An animal imported from outside Canada should be quarantined until they are deemed healthy. Owner must report within 3 days of animals entering the country.
- Nothing at all.
- city of calgary is not the crown. bylaws are not legally enforceable
- None
- Quarantine...despite the animal...quarantine it for 90 days...and get the city vet to do a health check...should be the rule for any imported animal
- Not allow for it.
- As noted in #10 above, the City should take a role in the beginning with respect to training / temperament testing. I wonder if using a formal international test like the CKC "Canadian good neighbour" test would be beneficial as a base to rely on for this.
- The rescue organizations should be licensed and vetted and backyard breeders should be licensed and vetted. All pets should be sold with a veterinarian signed health clearance and confirmed spay/neuter for non papered animals.
- Not much.
- I think the city should ensure that these animals are healthy and meet behavioural requirements. I think these programs can be very important for animals in other countries that would otherwise be euthanized.
- I don't think the city should be involved.
- Just making sure they aren't bringing diseases in to the country, and making sure they are not endangered or threatened species.
- Ensure mandatory vet checks are done to ensure health of the animal.
- The city does not have a role.
- Working with other agencies, ensuring rules and regulations are created and enforced, education of residents.
- Imported animals for the purpose of re-sale and profit should not be allowed. The City should be able to remove those animals and adopt them out to suitable homes.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should be tested and all paperwork should show what this animal will be used for. It's healthy and will be properly cared for. No different than handing over a foster child to a stranger...
- Safety of the animals
- Verifying thw animal is in fact allowed in captivity
- Enforced quarantines, strict licensing, health and behaviour checks
- None
- They should be regulating and ensuring the companies and volunteer agencies that are bringing in homeless animals are taking care of homeless animals here as well
- I don't know enough
- Discourage or disallow.
- Dogs and cats are OK as long as they are healthy.
- Stop allowing it. Until we have our own unwanted & homeless pet issue under control, and then help neighbouring cities & provinces to do the same do not allow it. Then teach other countries how to solve these issues in their own backyards. Their is no need to import animals.
- Regulations in the medical exam.
- Ensure that animals are treated humanely and kindly.
- Business licensing (or equivalent for not-for-profits) that helps to ensure animals can be kept and trained until re-homing in adequate conditions.
- No feedback.
- Monitor where they are from and where they are going. What they are being used for. Ensure they have spay and neuter proof. Licensing.
- Maintain the bylaws. Act more appropriately when issues arise between neighbors. Follow up sooner.
- They should license them and only allow certain types.
- Nothing, They will want a Fee (Cash grab)
- This is managed federally the city doesn't need to step in at all.
- The city should be aware of where these animals are being sold and that it follows regulations to protect the animals
- Not sure
- No interference from the city is required.
- No comment
- See #10
- Maybe providing a list of reputable vets for examination of animals upon entry? Cost of using the vet would be the responsibility of the importing agency.
- Licensing, registering charitable organizations or businesses.
- Enforcing rules. Issuing fines when applicable. Educating and holding retailers to certain standards.
- Make sure they are going to good homes and aren't being used to fight, a breeding mill or food.
- I don't think the city needs to be involved at all, that is the job if the Border services agency.
- I'm not sure

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Guaranteeing that those animals are safe as the ones not imported.
- Many rescue organizations in Alberta are in it for the money. I donated $400. for a dog's surgery through [personal information removed] and did not receive a thank you or any receipt or acknowledgement. This dog was from Mexico. There are so many dogs that need homes in Canada. Why take other dogs??
- Ensure they are going to a safe place
- To ensure they are vaccinated and
- Responsible protection of animals and their rights.
- Inspecting and checking if an animal is sick or any harm is upon them and their paperwork is not fake and they are not illegally imported.
- Nothing.
- Lower the fees. $400 because my cat opened the door??
- Ensuring rules are enforced
- Regulate and enforce!
- Supplier should be identified on licensing form when applying for registration and tags.
- I think higher fees on imported animals to help promote/encourage adoption within our own city/surrounding cities.
- Same criteria as if the animal was not imported.
- Certifying owners. Making sure they are adapted before allowing an animal to be imported
- There are already too many dogs in shelters in Calgary due in part to the economy and irresponsible dog owners who do not spay/neuter their dogs. This city cannot continue to encourage more dogs when we cannot care for the ones already here.
- Ensure compassionate and humane treatment.
- That's a tough one considering there's an airport here. I guess ensure the person/ business importing the animal follows all municipal regulations and registers the animal. I am drawing a blank
On this one, sorry
- not familiar enough with this
- Ensure health checked to prevent spread of disease and that animals not landing in shelters because unable to find quality homes
- No opinion
- Unsure
- Limit the amount coming in, and to make sure the animals are healthy and are not abused and/or abandoned in the city.
- develop appropriate guidelines and restrictions
- enforce criteria
- it should be illegal
- That's a tough one... in the face of financial cuts, all of my suggestions require more manpower and resources. so you wouldn't listen anyways. I don't have any cheap or budget friendly solutions at the moment sadly.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Checking shots/care sis up to date
- Limit and register imported animals
- Minimal.
- Support federal and provincial legislation. Preventative measures to control diseased or invasive species (quarantine, vet checks)
- Require permits. Prevent the spread of illnesses through health testing.
- Ensuring healthy non vicious animals and more puppy mill situations occur
- We have enough dogs in Canada that need rescuing that we don't need mass importation of say Korean meat dogs. I have and show a rare purebred dog and one was imported from USA. That should be allowed.
- It would be almost impossible for the city to police incoming animals,from other countries so the city's effort should focus on education and promotion of the adoption of animals from Calgary or Alberta or Canada.
- Leave it to CBSA. Too difficult to administer additional rules at municipal level.
- To know about them and where they are and the purpose for having them and if they will impact our eco system
- Not enough information available to provide feedback on this question.
- All imported animals should be licensed and spayed or neutered.
- Monitor and see what the population is like. Who is adopting these animals. Do we already have a lot or rescues needing homes? I'm not too sure.
- Limits on importing. A special liscense to import to show they will work with a certified behaviourist to screen these animals and also that they will follow proper quarantine protocol
- Ensure the animals are healthy, safe to the community, able to survive here, and proper licensing
- Working closely with airport authority and border patrols. Banning importation of exotic and/or dangerous animals.
- safety and health of both the imported animals and the people and animals who live here
- None, no need for the city to get involved.
- See above.
- Monitoring ensuring they are not invasive species or don't have diseases that could harm local animals.
- If they are endangered species. Make it really hard for them to be brought here. For other animals such as dogs or cats, that's a federal law not municipal. The city should back off.
- If they are endangered species. Make it really hard for them to be brought here. For other animals such as dogs or cats, that's a federal law not municipal. The city should back off.
- Prevent it as a business. Only allow existing family pets to be imported
- Be able to do inspections at any holding/selling location at any time.
- The city should not have any role regarding imported animals aside from ensuring rescues and adoptive owners follow the law
- The City should be directly involved.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Not my area of expertise. Last line of defense?
- STOP IMPORTING STRAY ANIMALS. Why are we evening paying for pure breed animals to be brought over? There are so many Canadian breeders. How are we assuring safe breeding and proper care and handling of animal's when the breeding is happening over seas?
- Same as dogs that are not imported.
- Same as any other animal
- There should be enough proof from buyers that they have researched the local market and tried to secure the animal from multiple sources. Probably something in writing from the sources they have reached out to. City should check that these criteria are met.
- I do not believe this is a municipal jurisdiction.
- None
- They must get paperwork from the vet stating they are able to be safely transported and are healthy/do not pose a risk.
- It should limit imported animals, as it fuels poaching and illegal importation overseas.
- Should be involved in monitoring
- As above
- I don't think imported animals should be a priority because there are so many animals in Calgary that do not have homes that could be adopted
- Not sure if it's a good idea to spend city resources to regulate. Perhaps just have best practice guidelines for the importers to follow.
- Regulation of imported animals, ensuring humane treatment and regulating commercial transactions within the city.
- Most imported animals are native to their country for a reason and I believe should only be brought to facilities like zoos or shelters to better their chance at life.
- Ban it. There is no reason to import animals for adoption when there is so many strays on the streets and animal shelters at capacity
- Increase licensing fees - make sure there is a business license- limit the number of animals that are brought into Canada for adoption- our own animals need to be adopted before we import dogs etc from other cities
- None
- Health inspections and background check of humane practices
- ?
- Higher regulations. Value of life would also be nice.
- Welfare of the animals within city limits should be considered. Imported animals in transit or prior to sale or adoption should be inspected for shelter, food, water, overcrowding, temperature etc.
- Make sure they're safe.
- Thorough inspections
- Not sure.
- Ensuring the above criteria is met.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Enforcement
- Ensuring that all of the needs of the animals are being met, and that businesses in Calgary are not supporting the exploitation of animals in order to make a profit on mass sales.
- Don't know.
- Ensuring they are not abused, that all sales are ethical, and that the owners are going to be providing a proper home/environment for the animal.
- Unsure
- Same as federal
- it's currently federal jurisdiction so no role if the Feds do their job properly
- None
- Ensure citizens are safe
- If imported they should be able to prove they have homes here and be treated like any other yyc pet
- No role - the CBSA screens for vaccinations and after they have cleared customs, they should be treated the same as an animal who is not imported.
- Similar responsibilities to CBA
- None, this should be federal.
- Regulating within the City limits
- restrict exotic animals that should not be hunted for this trade and treated badly and doesn't survive in this environment
- Tighter controls to make sure the animal and people receiving these animals are equipped to care and provide for the animal.
- Idk ensure safety and health?
- tax on them
- Protect health and safety of people and Calgary animals.
- Ensuring that it is a benefit to have this animal and going to the people that will give it a better quality life
- I don't really see it as the city's job to be honest but I guess the airport authority falls there so, just make sure it's done safely, humanely, and that their destination is a safe and humane one (ie importing exotic animals for food seems wrong)
- That they be licensed
- See above regarding retail sale
- None.
- Ensure animal has up to date vet care. A reason why the animal is being imported into Calgary.
- we should import animals, that is how you keep the livestock genes healthy - inbreeding causes deformities, unhealthy animals etc...
- medical checks, check paper work,
- Encourage Canadian animal adoptions first.
- None. You have CBSA's number.
- Enforce the bylaws.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't know.
- I need to understand "imported animals" better in order to offer an opinion.
- I'm not sure honestly. Maybe to ensure that the rescue is legitimate? Would just love for the animals to be loved and treated well and safe.
- Not allow sick or hurt animals in. Limit numbers. Have to license and notify is selling.
- To reject at point of entry, any animal that is not eligible for import, and to test for disease any animal that is.
- Same as with domestic animals.
- This and the question above is beyond the scope of most lay-people. This is inter-jurisdictional regulations and laws when most people don't even know they are supposed to license their pets. At best I think the City could just ban private sales of animals.
- Don't let them be abused
- Follow up
- To make sure of the above
- Only as above
- Only allow rescues
- To ensure that any species endangered or native from other places are not accepted as pets, only for a matter of conservation or so.
- Regulatory body
- I think the city needs to consider the endemic animal population and if we need more of certain types of animals. The city also needs to consider if the animal is at an endangered or poses a potential threat to native species if it is introduced (i.e. Bees)
- Not much it should be federal
- Detailed rules and forms that must be filled prior to importing. Plus checks on these animals to make sure they are not lying on the forms.
- Safeguarding the health and welfare of our local pet population by restricting import by rescue groups
- Is this a solution looking for a problem?
- Keeping diseases at bay
- The City should enforce the same rules as local animals. Maybe they could be cared for by seniors in a seniors complex or daycare or elementary school.
- Keep infected and or sick animals away from the general populations until proven otherwise
- Tracking. Rescue groups should be given a limited number that they can import and that should be balanced against what they have worked to adopt locally.
- Adherence of individual/organization to submitting a health/healthcare, aggression, and spay/neuter check (if applicable) and holding the individual/organization liable if found at fault for non-adherence.
- Let them find loving homes.
- If an immigrant is importing his/her pet, they should follow the same regulations as locals

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- To ensure animals are healthy (vet checked), quarantined and handed over to reputable agencies/businesses.
- ability to deny import if there is a potential/real negative interaction with the existing ecosystem.
- Strengthen legislation to _prevent_ animals being imported.
- Fine the individual and have the owner pay to euthanize the animal.
- Not sure. I am mostly thinking of exotic animals..... but I am not informed enough to comment.
- Verify the above conditions are met
- Registration
- Ensure that diseases are not brought in from other countries that could hurt local dogs.
- I don't have any thoughts on this matter
- Same as for non-imported animals.
- Regulate numbers and allow only certified company's on foster out or shelter
- Limit number of imported animals so they don't end up in our shelters.
- Not sure...ensure licensing maybe?
- Reducing
- Check that animal has been imported in a safe and legal manner, they are not an endangered species and they are not carrying disease.
- The city should be accountable to the animals brought in to the city. Veterinarians we'll provide a follow up check after quarantine and the owners are responsible for safe housing, healthy food, socializing, licensing and tons of love!
- Please see to it that there is scrutiny around these importers activities and perhaps a dis-incentive to them rather than the charitable tax incentive. Are they licensed? Can they be vetted before setting up shop? Something has to be done. Its too lucrative. Rescues are the new puppy mills.
- None
- I don't believe imported animals for sale or adoption should be permitted
- None
- That all imported animals are accounted for and do have to pay unlicensed
- No comment
- Ensure the people importing them are licensed to do so.
- Impose limitations on imports when appropriate
- None, border control has it covered. Don't create extra cost and bureaucracy that is not needed.
- As it is today
- I don't believe it is necessary to import animals, since our shelters are already at capacity with unwanted animals
- Ensuring care and welfare standards are met for import businesses as condition of licensing.
- health check and follow up
- Ensure they have no health concerns adequately can provide for animal
have the training and resources required for the animal

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Controlling the quantity of ones allowed (as we already have rescues needing homes here, we dont need ones from other countries).
- Big one. Prevent rescue groups from rescuing dogs from other countries. Should not be allowed here ever.
- Checklist of the adopter of the pet on what should be done with regards to responsible pet ownership.. if imported then all paperwork presented to city to support responsibly.. importers have given clean bill of health when not healthy.. importers of pets need to take responsibility too
- I believe that if the amount of animals in care is already high then animals should not be imported until the animals in care have been taken care of.
- making sure no diseases are being brought in.
- Ensure the animals are not spreading disease.
- Ensure that importers of any kind are licensed and inspected.
- Ensuring the safety of the current yyc pet population and environment
- Communication needs to happen between the organization bringing in the animals and the City so license notices can be given out and the City has some idea of what is coming in.
- N/A
- Simply to provide a stop-check that the higher levels of government legislation have been followed. And, if not, that violators are reported to the applicable federal or provincial agencies.
- License required & proof of adequate safe clean accommodation.
- I don't know
- Beyond licensing, I'm not sure the City has much of a role to play in it.
- Discourage it
- Rules, regulations. Safety
- Business licensing
- Confiscate dangerous or sick animals
- Confirmation that the items in #10 have been completed.
- Regulation and seizure when not being provided healthy living conditions.
- Rules and regulations that protect the animals that are imported, the wildlife and the neighbourhoods. These rules need to be attainable
- License the owner and the animal to ensure proper care.
- -Ensure vaccinations, spayed/neutered
- Ensure the animals are healthy and free of disease.
- Ensuring the animals are checked and are disease free
- I believe that Calgary is responsible to ensure the sustainability of the industry it permits. I do not believe that animal imports should be permitted unless it is for sustainability purposes ie. importing wolves.
- Follow the rules the country already has in place. Enforcement ensuring new and invasive speicies are not imported... unless it is the zoo importing them.
- Not sure

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Support of cbsa rules and maintenance/oversight of business license etc.
- They should be banned.
- If the human society is full of animals needing adoption why are we bringing more animals in that need homes?
- There should be licensing and review of rescue organizations.
- only registered not-for profit or licensed business should be allowed to sell animals - bred or rescued.
- Strict guidelines to control the importation of any animal.
- None really, as most of these are imported by rescue organizations. They put all the money into everything the animal needs, before and after arriving.
- yes
- The City of Calgary should make reasonable rules but not be involved with the importation. I feel it would be better outsourced to a team consisting of veterinarians, agriculture/environmental experts who understand the needs of the animals first.
- They must pass a clean bill of health check before being imported and prove they have not come from puppy mills.
- grandfather those that are responsible now breeding here. No need to import exotics into the country.
keep proper/responsible breeding records for healthy populations. If they are professionals, educated and care truly about animal welfare it shouldn't be a problem
- See above
- Ensure restrictions on numbers and maintain health standards are meet.
- Nothing than the current bylaws
- See above.
- The City of Calgary should treat imported animals the same as those already in the city.
- Unless the animals are in certain distress or even danger we should not be importing any animals
- They are accounted for -
- Stay out of peoples business
- Make sure they get licensed and recorded to keep track of them.
- Same as above.
- Discourage
- No different role than local pets
- Unlicensed individuals should not be allowed to use their residence as a business for the purposes of breeding and selling the offspring.
- I don't think there should be a municipal role when importing animals.
- Unless it's a domesticated animal, the city should ban the importation of wild animals, and penalize people who do import wild animals as pets.
- Licensed within one month of arrival.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- State and set municipal bylaws to state no imported animals. We have enough in our shelters and on our reserves already.
- Monitor and restrict
- Depending on where the animal is coming .. the city should make sure all rules are followed
- Imported animals should be treated the same as domestic animals if they are deemed safe to enter the country by Canada customs.
- Ensure all imports will not present any potential danger in any way to people, animals or the environment if they're exotic.
Ensure all average domestic animals are coming from an ethical source and will not be inappropriately sold.
- Require proof of medical checks and vaccinations so illnesses are not brought in from abroad
- Ensure the health and safety of the imported animals.
- That once animals arrived are licensed, vaccinated, neutered/spayed or quarantined (if necessary)
- Ensuring that City of Calgary responsible pet ownership rules are met for all imported animals.
- Stop importing.
- They should require that all imported animals be imported by someone who has a business license.
- Support rescue agencies that are bringing in shelter animals for adoption.
- nothing
- if they entered the country with proper documentation, then they have obeyed the law and the city has no role in contradiction the country's law.
- To demand in any way possible that they are licensed and sterilized
- disease control
- COC should be making sure that CBA rules are not in contraindication to COC
- Prior to bringing a pet into the city, a perspective owner must obtain a license and to do so must demonstrate the animal has been spayed or neutered.
- None, I think this would be better handled at the federal level
- Ensure these procedures are humane, and for recreational enjoyment, opposed to negative reasons such as entertainment or butchering.
- n/a
- The city should be imposing strict fines on importing multiple animals for resale. This is a terrible situation and animals are suffering.
- Same answer as question #9.
- Make sure they are licensed and following the rules of responsible ownership
- I don't know what you can do. By the time you find out about them it too late. Fine threats or imprisonment are at least deterrents
- Ensure humane importation of appropriate species, ensure protocols/policies in place to prevent importation of disease.
- None
- Definitely limit amounts and have some sort of regulation or guidelines in place

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Nothing it is more a provincial or even federal issue
- Help limit it.
- N/A
- I believe we should help rescues as much as we can to re-home animals to good loving homes as much as we can.
- None.
- Stop them. It's a waste of money and resources.
- None, I believe that Border Services should enforce their guidelines.
- None
- NA
- ensure health records are with pets and pets are healthy upon arrival
- None, allow imports of rescue animals
- To ensure these animals are sold in good faith and have been licensed . Checking up on people or businesses than do volume importing to ensure in good faith (not for puppy /kitty mills/ dog fighting) adoption and sale paperwork should be able to be provided when asked for
- Licensing, regular vet visits required with proof. Proper training for handling is provided either by the city (for a REASONABLE cost) or provided proof of training from the consumer
- controlling it
- Simply make sure rescues are following the same laws and protocols as the rest of us
- Enforce the health checks, ensure they are legit, within reason obviously.
- Nothing.
- create reasonable rules that protect public and environment from disease and invasive species
- Making sure businesses dont sell endangered animals or stolen animals
- I feel we should limit the amount of imported animals allowed in Calgary due to the rise in surrendering animals to our shelters. Recently our shelters have had a spike in their population and this lead to them being overcrowded and ending up turning animals away.
- Health check and quarantine period so no diseases are being spread.
Must be or get spayed/neutered before being sold/adopted.
- Unknown
- Harsh punishments for those breeding exotic animals, exotics need specialized care and habitats, not providing for their specialized needs is animal abuse. All exotic animals should be liscensed and strictly enforced. Mandatory vet visits to make sure they're being taken care of properly.
- This would result in the mandatory renewal of the licenses by the new owners (unless adopted out of town) resulting in much higher licensing rates.
- The city needs to follow up on rescues importing animals. There is a lack of vaccinations, medical checks and health checks being done. Surprise visits to rescues asking for paperwork
- Limit people doing this for profit, but freely allow this for shelters.
- Regulate commercial animals being imported. It is unnecessary. As for rescue, Calgary needs no role, the Canada Border Services handles this job very well.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Animals should be properly assessed for any potential health issues, and they must be vaccinated and had their rabies shots etc. prior to coming to Calgary.
- Ensuring dogs are safe - medically & behaviourly before being adopted to general public
- Have a better relationship and/or more authority over rescue organizations that import animals.
- I hope the City is accepting of animals, and willing to help them get into loving homes, while holding sellers accountable for equitable practices.
- Help enforce CFIA requirements
- None, unless they would provide a way to get them imported. This is a free market treat it as such
- None. I fully support animals to be imported.
- If imported animals are already cleared for shots, disease and spay/neuter then I don't think city needs to worry. If Canada does NOT do those things then city should.
- The CoC's main concern should always be the safety of its current residents - human and animal. There should be some sort of program in place to assist these rescue groups who are saving animals, and simply trying to give them a better life. They should be healthy and safe before re-homing.
- NONE. PERIOD.
- To ensure that they're healthy before leaving CoC's care and being introduced to a new household
- Ensuring proper quarantine and disease control
- Incident based response. Any other assessment after the stress of travel/quarantine and the customs inspection would not be true.
- Require veterinary health certificates.
- Make sure they're not being brought in for food. Stronger rules and regulations should be made against backyard breeders.
- -
- None other than licensing.
- They should screen the organizations that are taking the imported dogs and ensure they have the financial means as well as space to take on imported dogs.
- To help regulate their arrival and make sure they are licensed immediately when arriving. Maybe there could be a fine or penalty of sorts. For rescue organizations, a temporary license could be provided to each dog. Then it gets transferred and renewed at adoption via the rescue.
- Simply helping to ensure safety.
- Not sure how we would be able to administer any regulations.
- No opinion
- Stay out of it.
- I don't know.
- to regulate it, to set limits, to restrict it
- Determine the need first before allowing them into the city.
- Ensure the Imported animals are for adoption and services for people with special need.
- None

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Quarantine animals if disease risk is high
- Assisting with information and helping with lost or adoption pets
- Knowledge they are being brought into the city.
Allows for licensing and health checks
- Stop it
- Not sure
- Not much of a role, as long as rules and due diligence of care are followed for the imported animal
- Not sure
- Immediate licensing. Rescues and fosters should be licensed
- Same as animals not imported
- I feel boarder patrol has it handled.
- None. That is already covered by Canada Border Services
- Not sure. More animal bylaw officers and visibility of warning signs for pet abuse or neglect so these issues will be reported by public more consistently and dealt with well
- I think this shouldn't be a municipal issue. Federal yes and maybe even provincial but not municipal.
- Any animal that has been commercially imported needs to have a special licence in case that animal is lost or abandoned
- Limit imported animals so rescued animals are front of mind
- Ensure business is a registered company.
- Somehow discourage importing strays from other countries.
- If a new animal, unknown to the city, is brought in then I feel that someone should provide details to the public so they are aware! Especially to those who are living near where the animal will be living!
- ensure they are not contagious and carrying diseases.
- Animals should be approved by Alberta vets. Not sure if this is enforced. Quarantine if not done until cleared to be in our ecosystems
- Healthy, vaccinated, vetted and from a rescue going to a rescue. I would rather see imported go through animal services/city pound, frankly. They manage their stuff incredibly well.
- Should be avoided until all local abandoned animals are rescued.
- See above
- Ensure that all animals are free from contaminants that may infect others. The cost to be minimal.
- Rescues need rescuing- it should be encouraged to import rescues.
- Only if it is a retail business for profit sale.
- None - CFIA issue
- Keeping animals safe.
- Follow the Canada border service guidelines
- The rules are good as they are.
- To make sure they are completely vet checked and are spayed or neutered

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't. I don't think you should be profiting off dogs, rescue dogs who would have been killed otherwise. SHAME ON YOU
- importance should be on the production of happy, healthy animals
- I'm not sure
- -ensuring the criteria is met.
-confiscation of the animal and fine if illegally imported.
- Be involved in process to bring them in to help protect the safety of animals and people already in Calgary
- None. Canada Border Services already regulates this.
- To help them find loving homes
- Strict regulation and monitoring that this is being done.
- No different than any other animal - if the CBSA people have ensured the animal is safe to enter the country why would the city need to do anything else?
- Depends what for. If it is for future sale of pets, it shouldn't happen. If it is for rescue purposes, OK.
- Make sure that all of the animals are under the care of a vet and are vaccinated when they arrive.
- none
- Origin of animals, proof that testing for diseases has been done, vet checks if necessary and destination of animals and proof of who is bringing them in.
- monitor them VERY CLOSELY
- If pets are being imported into Calgary by associations, these licenses or permits should only be given under the condition of a certain limit of animals should be allowed to be imported per year so that these associations are not overflowing.
- They should be verifying that the animals are healthy and not carrying any communicable diseases
- Stop them or at least quarantine them.
- None let it be federal but
- No comment
- Assisting border agents in what is needed to cross the border. I had to educate them on the requirements when crossing with my new dog. Assuring that they are properly vaccinated and not carrying contagious diseases
- It would be very hard most people will just sneak them in so just a heavy fine for not declaring them.
- Quarantine, limit dangerous and no endangered species except maybe for zoo breeding or expand their numbers.
- Importers must be licensed or regulated and all imports monitored in case of any disease or problems.
- I believe that there should be paperwork inspection and animal health checks to ensure no risk to our livestock, wildlife or pet populations
- See above.
- Not sure

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think they should be coordinating with border services to make sure exotic and endangered animals aren't being trafficked to Canada. Rescue dogs should be allowed to travel from other countries for adoption
- Be very tight on the restrictions especially if there are any concerns with disease we don't need to worry about our pets contracting something that may harm or kill our pets.
- Regulate type of animals that may be imported, ensuring animals are licensed and up to date on immunizations.
- Na
- Licensing adoption agencies and ensure regular inspections are conducted of their records and if they have facilities, their facilities.
- Ensuring that the animals are free from illness
- Not sure
- No clue to be honest. Not sure how one would go about enforcing any kind of restriction without creating an underground railroad of exotics or whatever.
- Screening for infectious disease
- Unsure
- that the animals are cleared.
- Curbing illegal trade and capture of animals for commercial purposes and ensuring animal safety and health once in the city.
- Ensuring that the facility and well being of the animals is managed appropriately and in best interest of the animal until final ownership is established.
- If they are imported I believe a quarantine should be mandatory.
- No involvement, issue licenses to the new owner or the rescue bringing them in.
- I imported a cat once from over seas, the cat had to have vet paperwork and be examined by a vet at the airport, is this still the process? Should still be the same if not.
- Registration of the imported animals so we know what is being imported and that the health and safety of animals is protected and the public is safe from the importing of restricted/banned species.
- Mandatory licensing, spay/neutering and making the sure the group bringing in the animals is registered and responsible.
- strict licensing and inspection of containment biennially, strict rules and proof of health and welfare from certified vet - if none of this then heavy fines that double each incident
- work with Canada Border Services Agency to ensure the above and that animals who are imported are receiving quality care.
- Ensure animals have been fully vetted before being transported to rescue organizations, foster homes, or buyers.
- Enforce my suggestions above!
- There should be guidance around animals eligible for importing, documentation requirements, and fines outlined for noncompliance.
- Nothing that can cross contaminate humans ..... like SARS or Covid-19, for example.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The only animals crossing Canadian borders should be those accompanying families immigrating or relocating to Canada, or animals used in competitions or shows
- As noted above. Need to ensure animal has proper vaccinations, is healthy and is not vicious. As well, it needs to be licensed.
- Checking the rescues have the appropriate paperwork, and collecting fees from those doing it for profit.
- Support rescue organizations! Compassionate action is a source of pride for many Calgarians, and the ambassadors have inspired so many to look after animals here AND in their countries of origin. City can check in that rescue groups provide health checks for the animals being brought into care.
- Ensuring animals are registered, provided adequate living areas, are in good health and are licensed.
- I do not think the City of Calgary should be concerned, as long as the imported animals clear a customs inspection then they should be accepted
- Quarantine and medical screen to ensure animals are healthy
- Rescue organizations should have to register with the city, and bylaw should be doing regular care checks on the animals in their care.
- I would like to see the import of exotic animals stopped and a cap on the number of animals that can be brought in by one individual person or company
- Treating them as any other pet. The adopter should be required to license the pet prior to taking possession.
- Free short term license for rescues that lasts until the animal is adopted. A program to ensure it is being done
- The CFIA is the one that needs to deal with Imported dogs. Would be hard for City of Calgary to keep track of all animals coming into Calgary as they can come in so many ways. It is Border Patrol that needs the training to shield Canada and our pet population from diseases we have not seen in years!
- Just to ensure the business importing are operating ethically.
- Strict regulations and guidelines. What is the purpose of the animals being imported. If I'm purchasing a pet in the U.S. because that's where the breeder is that should be allowed.
- Against it This brings in new diseases never seen by local veterinarians and we are already overrun with pets needing homes
- I don't know.
- I believe that all animals need loving homes.
- Should have an active role.
- i don't think the city has a role at all - it is the CBSA's responsibility.
- Requesting copies of medical records, birth records, where they are coming from (history)
- Again, depends on the animal
- Enforcing compliance with vaccinations and any other health protocols; preventing importation of illegal/protected species.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I'm not clear on what type of animals this includes but I feel the city should be able to restrict the types of imported animals and/or require all animals that come into the province to be registered and in accordance with our spay, neuter and vaccine requirements.
- Assuring dogs are licensed after they have arrived.
- stop imported cats and dogs from Mexico at the border and send them home.
- Not allow animals from outside of country and that includes rescues.
- As mentioned above. Their role should be as a support to legitimate rescues handling that process not taking it over.
- very clear understanding of CITES (convention on International Trade of endangered species). A collaborative working relationship with fish and wildlife in Alberta as well as provincial and federal counterparts. Many species that are brought in that are misidentified on paperwork and are protected
- I believe it is too late once they have arrived in Calgary. It's up to Border control to check the animals and their health and immunisation records.
- Remove the animal from the owner and give to a wildlife agency who might be able to rehabilitate the animal and return to their habitat. We need to do a better job of this.
- I do not think you should have to be controlling this. As the people are following Canada border services rules to bring the dogs here. Most are rescues that are trying to get them a good home that they would never have or they would die.
- I don't know enough about this topic to opine.
- The city should not be involved in this, there are other agencies that control this. The city of Calgary should support the other agencies' agendas for this line of activity and emphasize the hazards of such practices.
- The same as domestic animals with more stringent health checks required.
- I feel there should be a limit to the number of animals being imported into city. There are a lot of pets that are already here that do not have homes or are being rehomed. Accessive numbers of animals that are in limbo, which is unfair to the animals.
- Making sure they were vetted and brought over legally and they aren't going to end up taking up space at our local shelters/rescues. They need to have a place to go once they get here, whether it's a permanent adoptive home, or a foster home until that time comes.
- License and regulate any commercial agencies. Rescue agencies should not be licensed and to some degree they should be supported by the city due to the nature of their work. A Rescue agency is providing a very useful and valuable service to society.
- No idea
- I think the City should consider the care of these animals as if they were privately owned. The business should be responsible for the care and treatment of animals that it is selling, with oversight of the business by the City.
- With so much illegal trade in exotic critters that is unethical and hurting wild populations we need very strict controls on which if any animals can be allowed. If allowed, prove they are from an accredited breeder and the owners can properly care for the animal.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The city should ensure the animals were obtained ethically and should ensure that they are not bringing diseases into our city.
- Ensure they are healthy and have a good facility or home to go to.
- None
- Police all importers regarding health and placement of pets.
- should monitor organizations that import animals to ensure they have appropriate screening processes
- Limit wild animals as pets
- Regular pet regulations once Canada has accepted import
- Unsure
- regulation and monitoring
- Regulating the types and quantity allowed.
- Our duty is to the animal so wellbeing comes first
- A better control on the number allowed (it there an actual demand for these animals or is it just for profit?) and only accept animals who pass certain behavior and health tests.
- KNOW everything; how, what, when, where - medical check, licensing.
- Ensure that they are healthy and well treated.
- Enforcement of current laws.
- Id like to see imported rescues have much more control. The city should be doing visits with the SPCA. So many rescues are just glorified dog mills
- Wow - -that's a big question and I don't know the answer but you could ensure no wild animals are captured to be used as pets and respond to complaints. Communicate to the public - don't take animals from the wild and that includes fish. frogs, turtles, lizards snakes, big cats or other!
- Encourage the role responsible breeders play instead of penalizing them. The breeders, especially those who exhibit, are generally very selective about the quality of animals, but also the quality of the new owners.
Reduce unwanted breedings with assistance to spay/neuter, no for profit rescues
- No idea
- You mean domesticated animals...It's a provincial level ? Health concern must be addressed at provincial levels. The resale can be subject to huge surcharge/ tax (200)... this includes import rescue animal!!!!!!
- Stop importing rescues from outside Canada. There are lots in Canada.
- Setting regulations within the business, ensuring guidelines on the number of UNSOLD/UNADOPTED animals.
What happens if unsold etc?
- To make sure the animals are healthy
- Track what's happening to analyze the data. What breeds are coming in, why are those breeds coming in, where are they coming from, who is profiting, how often are they brought in, how many

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

are brought in (this includes rescues until such a time that we have a governing organization for rescues)

- I don't have an opinion on this.
- Sub contract a place that will rescue
- Make sure you know what is being brought in and why?
- No imports from countries like Mexico, Asia or third world countries.
- They should only be involved when animals are being imported in volume (eg. Rescues or Retail Rescuers)
- ensure they are treated well and are not sick
- As above
- - Providing health inspections to all imported animals at time of arrival.
- - Possibly enact mandatory quarantine period for all imported animals.
- We should stop and/or discourage all importation of pets unless for breeding purposes.
- enforce bylaws, fines.
- Nothing, the animals have already undergone clearances before arrival. There is nothing Calgary really can do that hasn't already been done. Its really overkill at that point.
- Other than licensing and ensuring the animal is being taken care of properly, The City of Calgary should have NO ROLE in people importing animals. If the animal is being taken care of properly, there should be no interference from the City of Calgary.
- I don't think it's any different from a domestic pet. It should have the proper papers and licensing as required.
- I believe the city has an obligation to it's citizens to have very stringent controls to protect people and other animals from either dangerous animals or sick animals
- Ensure they are safe and cared for.
- Enforcement of vet check
- For special bought pets - special licensing. I think the City should discourage bringing in strays from other countries again because there are enough local pets needing homes
- I think there has to be some monitoring and some information available on domestically filling the role that is being looked at.
- None
- Maybe regulate how the sales take place? Like it must be done by a business or charity and not an individual
- Ensure imports do not support abusive businesses.
The city should encourage the adoption/rescue of animals from organizations rather than purchasing.
- None
- The city should help and deal with imported animals with compassion, support and collaborate with these organizations to find those animals forever homes.
- Limits should be in place

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I certainly think the City should be aware of which animals are imported, and who is responsible for them. If an animal has the potential to be invasive, or dangerous then it should be tracked.
- I don't know.
- Know where the animals came from, who owns them.
- ensuring proper documents re: vaccinations, deworming etc...
- support Canadian law and request updated health checks in a fair time period ?
- ensuring they are spayed or neutered
- Strongly regulate!!!!
- it's like legal custodianship with all bases covered.
- Make sure they're legal - ie: not endangered, venomous, otherwise dangerous.
- Should be made aware of the animals brought in and who they have been adopted by
  - Home quarantine - 6 weeks
    - Stop it
    - Limits
  - Home quarantine
    - Stop it
    - Consequences needed
      - temperament
      - money spent
    - Business license required - verify if they are doing ""good business""
    - If city is a part, should be doing more to monitor these things
    - If it's too easy for dogs to come through, all rescuers will be using Calgary to move dogs through Calgary
      - Maybe license dogs
- Guidelines for kinds of animals. Criteria for illness levels. There should be rules about exotic animals.
- ensure they are not contagious and carrying diseases.
- Animals should be approved by Alberta vets. Not sure if this is enforced. Quarantine if not done until cleared to be in our ecosystems
- Healthy, vaccinated, vetted and from a rescue going to a rescue. I would rather see imported go through animal services/city pound, frankly. They manage their stuff incredibly well.
- Should be avoided until all local abandoned animals are rescued.
- See above
- Ensure that all animals are free from contaminants that may infect others. The cost to be minimal.
- Help the people who are going through the process. Things like this can be confusing
- Rescues need rescuing- it should be encouraged to import rescues.
- Only if it is a retail business for profit sale.
- None - CFIA issue
- Keeping animals safe.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Follow the Canada border service guidelines
- The rules are good as they are.
- To make sure they are completely vet checked and are spayed or neutered
- I don't. I don't think you should be profiting off dogs, rescue dogs who would have been killed otherwise. SHAME ON YOU
- importance should be on the production of happy, healthy animals
- I'm not sure
- -ensuring the criteria is met.
- -confiscation of the animal and fine if illegally imported.
- Be involved in process to bring them in to help protect the safety of animals and people already in Calgary
- None. Canada Border Services already regulates this.
- To help them find loving homes
- Strict regulation and monitoring that this is being done.
- No different than any other animal - if the CBSA people have ensured the animal is safe to enter the country why would the city need to do anything else?
- Depends what for. If it is for future sale of pets, it shouldn't happen. If it is for rescue purposes, OK.
- Limiting the spread of infectious diseases as much as possible.
- Make sure that all of the animals are under the care of a vet and are vaccinated when they arrive.
- none
- Origin of animals, proof that testing for diseases has been done, vet checks if necessary and destination of animals and proof of who is bringing them in.
- monitor them VERY CLOSELY
- If within their authority limit the import of animals as noted above. This may not work with exotic pets such as lizards or snakes, but maybe there are such organizations for those animals as well.
- If pets are being imported into Calgary by associations, these licenses or permits should only be given under the condition of a certain limit of animals should be allowed to be imported per year so that these associations are not overflowing.
- They should be verifying that the animals are healthy and not carrying any communicable diseases
- As long as non profits are ensuring animals care and feeding and mental health are good simply support group may providing free licenses until animal is adopted.
- Since the animals would be under municipal jurisdiction once they arrive, the City of Calgary should have a say in whether the animals are appropriate.
- Stop them or at least quarantine them.
- None let it be federal but
- No comment
- Assisting border agents in what is needed to cross the border. I had to educate them on the requirements when crossing with my new dog. Assuring that they are properly vaccinated and not carrying contagious diseases

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Same as #10.
- Require following of appropriate health regulations - passing a qualification to keep said animal with a plan for the care of the animal which is possible within city of Calgary boundaries
- It would be very hard most people will just sneak them in so just a heavy fine for not declaring them.
- Quarantine, limit dangerous and no endangered species except maybe for zoo breeding o expand their numbers.
- Importers must be licensed or regulated and all imports monitored in case of any disease or problems.
- I believe that there should be paperwork inspection and animal health checks to ensure no risk to our livestock, wildlife or pet populations
- This I am unsure about,
- See above.
- Not sure
- I think they should be coordinating with border services to make sure exotic and endangered animals aren't being trafficked to Canada. Rescue dogs should be allowed to travel from other countries for adoption
- Be very tight on the restrictions especially if there are any concerns with disease we don't need to worry about our pets contracting something that may harm or kill our pets.
- Regulate type of animals that may be imported, ensuring animals are licensed and up to date on immunizations.
- Na
- Licensing adoption agencies and ensure regular inspections are conducted of their records and if they have facilities, their facilities.
- Ensuring that the animals are free from illness
- Not sure
- No clue to be honest. Not sure how one would go about enforcing any kind of restriction without creating an underground railroad of exotics or whatever.
- Screening for infectious disease
- Unsure
- that the animals are cleared.
- Supporting those organizations that are importing animals as they are providing a service to the animals and giving them a better life.
- Curbing illegal trade and capture of animals for commercial purposes and ensuring animal safety and health once in the city.
- Ensuring that the facility and well being of the animals is managed appropriately and in best interest of the animal until final ownership is established.
- If they are imported I believe a quarantine should be mandatory.
- Ensuring the safety of the animals
- Having them registered and accounted for

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- No involvement, issue licenses to the new owner or the rescue bringing them in.
- I imported a cat once from over seas, the cat had to have vet paperwork and be examined by a vet at the airport, is this still the process? Should still be the same if not.
- Registration of the imported animals so we know what is being imported and that the health and safety of animals is protected and the public is safe from the importing of restricted/banned species.
- Mandatory licensing, spay/neutering and making the sure the group bringing in the animals is registered and responsible.
- Make sure they are up to date on their required vaccinations or titre tests, licensed.
- strict licensing and inspection of containment biennially, strict rules and proof of health and welfare from certified vet - if none of this then heavy fines that double each incident
- work with Canada Border Services Agency to ensure the above and that animals who are imported are receiving quality care.
- Ensure animals have been fully vetted before being transported to rescue organizations, foster homes, or buyers.
- Enforce my suggestions above!
- There should be guidance around animals eligible for importing, documentation requirements, and fines outlined for noncompliance.
- Nothing that can cross contaminate humans ..... like SARS or Covid-19, for example.
- The only animals crossing Canadian borders should be those accompanying families immigrating or relocating to Canada, or animals used in competitions or shows
- As noted above. Need to ensure animal has proper vaccinations, is healthy and is not vicious. As well, it needs to be licensed.
- I don't know enough about this to answer
- Checking the rescues have the appropriate paperwork, and collecting fees from those doing it for profit.
- I am not sure
- None
- Support rescue organizations! Compassionate action is a source of pride for many Calgarians, and the ambassadors have inspired so many to look after animals here AND in their countries of origin. City can check in that rescue groups provide health checks for the animals being brought into care.
- Ensuring animals are registered, provided adequate living areas, are in good health and are licensed.
- I do not think the City of Calgary should be concerned, as long as the imported animals clear a customs inspection then they should be accepted
- Quarantine and medical screen to ensure animals are healthy
- Rescue organizations should have to register with the city, and bylaw should be doing regular care checks on the animals in their care.
- I would like to see the import of exotic animals stopped and a cap on the number of animals that can be brought in by one individual person or company

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Ensuring reputable organizations are importing them. If the border agency let them in they should be allowed.
- Treating them as any other pet. The adopter should be required to license the pet prior to taking possession.
- Free short term license for rescues that lasts until the animal is adopted. A program to ensure it is being done
- Quarantine until the dogs are tested and proven to be disease free
- The CFIA is the one that needs to deal with Imported dogs. Would be hard for City of Calgary to keep track of all animals coming into Calgary as they can come in so many ways. It is Border Patrol that needs the training to shield Canada and our pet population from diseases we have not seen in years!
- Just to ensure the business importing are operating ethically.
- Strict regulations and guidelines. What is the purpose of the animals being imported. If I'm purchasing a pet in the U.S. because that's where the breeder is that should be allowed.
- Against it This brings in new diseases never seen by local veterinarians and we are already overrun with pets needing homes
- I don't know.
- I believe that all animals need loving homes.
- Exotic animals should not be allowed in the city.
- Should have an active role.
- i don't think the city has a role at all - it is the CBSA's responsibility.
- Requesting copies of medical records, birth records, where they are coming from (history)
- Again, depends on the animal
- Enforcing compliance with vaccinations and any other health protocols; preventing importation of illegal/protected species.
- I'm not clear on what type of animals this includes but I feel the city should be able to restrict the types of imported animals and/or require all animals that come into the province to be registered and in accordance with our spay, neuter and vaccine requirements.
- I believe the border agency covers this, and the City adequately limits the number of dogs in any house already.
- Assuring dogs are licensed after they have arrived.
- Work in concert with Humane Society SPCA with enforcement and investigation into above.
- The person importing them is responsible for them & the new owner must be identified with the animal's ID.
- stop imported cats and dogs from mexico at the border and send them home.
- Not allow animals from outside of country and that includes rescues.
- As mentioned above. Their role should be as a support to legitimate rescues handling that process not taking it over.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- very clear understanding of CITES (convention on International Trade of endangered species). A collaborative working relationship with fish and wildlife in Alberta as well as provincial and federal counterparts. Many species that are brought in that are misidentified on paperwork and are protected
- I believe it is too late once they have arrived in Calgary. It's up to Border control to check the animals and their health and immunisation records.
- Remove the animal from the owner and give to a wildlife agency who might be able to rehabilitate the animal and return to their habitat. We need to do a better job of this.
- i do not think you should have to be controlling this. as the people are following canada border services rules to bring the dogs here. most are recuses that are tring to get them a good home that they would never have or they would die.
- I don't know enough about this topic to opine.
- The city should not be involved in this, there are other agencies that control this. The city of Calgary should support the other agencies' agendas for this line of activity and emphasize the hazards of such practices.
- The same as domestic animals with more stringent health checks required.
- ensuring no animals with contagious illnesses are brought in; ensuring the welfare of the animals
- I feel there should be a limit to the number of animals being imported into city. There are a lot of pets that are already here that do not have homes or are being rehomed. Accessive numbers of animals that are in limbo, which is unfair to the animals.
- Making sure they were vetted and brought over legally and they aren't going to end up taking up space at our local shelters/rescues. They need to have a place to go once they get here, whether it's a permanent adoptive home, or a foster home until that time comes.
- License and regulate any commercial agencies. Rescue agencies should not be licensed and to some degree they should be supported by the city due to the nature of their work. A Rescue agency is providing a very useful and valuable service to society.
- No idea
- I think the City should consider the care of these animals as if they were privately owned. The business should be responsible for the care and treatment of animals that it is selling, with oversight of the business by the City.
- With so much illegal trade in exotic critters that is unethical and hurting wild populations we need very strict controls on which if any animals can be allowed. If allowed, prove they are from an accredited breeder and the owners can properly care for the animal.
- The city should ensure the animals were obtained ethically and should ensure that they are not bringing diseases into our city.
- Ensure they are healthy and have a good facility or home to go to.
- None
- Police all importers regarding health and placement of pets.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- should monitor organizations that import animals to ensure they have appropriate screening processes
- Limit wild animals as pets
- Regular pet regulations once Canada has accepted import
- Unsure
- regulation and monitoring
- Regulating the types and quantity allowed.
- Our duty is to the animal so wellbeing comes first
- A better control on the number allowed (is there an actual demand for these animals or is it just for profit?) and only accept animals who pass certain behavior and health tests.
- Licensing and policing.
- KNOW everything; how, what, when, where - medical check, licensing.
- Ensure that they are healthy and well treated.
- Enforcement of current laws.
- I'd like to see imported rescues have much more control. The city should be doing visits with the SPCA. So many rescues are just glorified dog mills
- ensure commercial entities have proven sufficient space and resources for humane care, and their locations zoned appropriately
- we don't want diseased or if the dog is highly aggressive to go to an average owner that can't deal with it as average owners could get other people, dogs or children hurt.
- Wow - that's a big question and I don't know the answer but you could ensure no wild animals are captured to be used as pets and respond to complaints. Communicate to the public - don't take animals from the wild and that includes fish, frogs, turtles, lizards, snakes, big cats or other!
- Help promote our AARCS and Humane Society so the people will go to them for pets and not "save" the rest of the world's animals when we have enough to choose right here.
- As long as pets have gotten the basic tests done, then I don't think the city should play another role.
- Encourage the role responsible breeders play instead of penalizing them. The breeders, especially those who exhibit, are generally very selective about the quality of animals, but also the quality of the new owners.
Reduce unwanted breedings with assistance to spay/neuter, no for profit rescues
- Not sure.
- Same as above plus licensing
- No idea
- Should not be allowed except for personal reasons. Canada has thousands of unwanted animals.
- You mean domesticated animals...It's a provincial level? Health concern must be addressed at provincial levels. The resale can be subject to huge surcharge/ tax (200)... this includes import rescue animal!!!!!!
- Stop importing rescues from outside Canada. There are lots in Canada.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I don't believe the role is any different that that of our own animals. quarantine period for rescue animals. health certification and documentation for people purchasing a dog from a breeder out of country.
- Setting regulations within the business, ensuring guidelines on the number of UNSOLD/UNADOPTED animals.
What happens if unsold etc?
- To make sure the animals are healthy
- Track what's happening to analyze the data. What breeds are coming in, why are those breeds coming in, where are they coming from, who is profiting, how often are they brought in, how many are brought in (this includes rescues until such a time that we have a governing organization for rescues)
- I don't have an opinion on this.
- Sub contract a place that will rescue
- Make sure you know what is being brought in and why?
- No imports from countries like Mexico, Asia or third world countries.
- Ensure safety for Calgary's pets from exposure to disease. Importer is responsible for costs and relocation.
- They should only be involved when animals are being imported in volume (eg. Rescues or Retail Rescuers)
- ensure they are treated well and are not sick
- As above
- - Providing health inspections to all imported animals at time of arrival.
- Possibly enact mandatory quarantine period for all imported animals.
- We should stop and/or discourage all importation of pets unless for breeding purposes.
- enforce bylaws, fines.
- Nothing, the animals have already undergone clearances before arrival. There is nothing Calgary really can do that hasn't already been done. Its really overkill at that point.
- Other than licensing and ensuring the animal is being taken care of properly, The City of Calgary should have NO ROLE in people importing animals. If the animal is being taken care of properly, there should be no interference from the City of Calgary.
- I don't think it's any different from a domestic pet. It should have the proper papers and licensing as required.
- Rescued animals should be allowed as long as they get the vet care they need.
- I believe the city has an obligation to it's citizens to have very stringent controls to protect people and other animals from either dangerous animals or sick animals
- Ensure they are safe and cared for.
- Enforcement of vet check
- For special bought pets - special licensing. I think the City should discourage bringing in strays from other countries again because there are enough local pets needing homes

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- I think there has to be some monitoring and some information available on domestically filling the role that is being looked at.
- None
- Maybe regulate how the sales take place? Like it must be done by a business or charity and not an individual
- Ensure imports do not support abusive businesses.
The city should encourage the adoption/rescue of animals from organizations rather than purchasing.
- None
- The city should help and deal with imported animals with compassion, support and collaborate with these organizations to find those animals forever homes.
- awareness. licensing.
- Have strict guidelines as to what can be imported and by whom
- Limits should be in place
- I certainly think the City should be aware of which animals are imported, and who is responsible for them. If an animal has the potential to be invasive, or dangerous then it should be tracked.
- I don't know.
- Know where the animals came from, who owns them.
- As above.
- ensuring proper documents re: vaccinations, deworming etc...
- support Canadian law and request updated health checks in a fair time period ?
- ensuring they are spayed or neutered
- Having received all confirmation for all needed shots, record of ownership, past and current. Record of having complied with all international/ federal laws.
- That they enforce the rules and entry requirements
- Strongly regulate!!!!
- it's like legal custodianship with all bases covered.
- Make sure they're legal - ie: not endangered, venomous, otherwise dangerous.
- We should ban them
- Should be made aware of the animals brought in and who they have been adopted by
- Oversee the transition between CBSA and when the animals have had a veterinary professional clearance to take them out of quarantine.
- license and registration upon arrival in collaboration with CBSA
- Shut down shelters importing animals
- Strict procedures with respect to vaccination and tendered contracted vets who examination imported animals on behalf of the city.
- I think importing is federal, not municipal.
- Nothing beyond licensing
- I don't know.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- Retail rescue bad but can you stop it or does it have to be federal. Import laws to bring in a dog are federally getting tighter
- Insuring all imports are going to people who understand the needs of that animal, as well as proper medical and behavior assessment given
- Oversight - proper treatment while in the care of the importer.
- They should set and enforce the regulations.
- Health & temperament checks, and vaccinations. The organization importing these animals should bear the expense, not Calgary taxpayers. Exotic animals from the tropics should not be allowed.
- All imported animals must be brought in Humanly and not an endangered animal
And not for resell!
- Nothing beyond the existing licensing, behaviour and quantity limits. It shouldn't matter where the animal comes from if it is cared for responsibly. Making it easier to get dogs from other areas would help with rescue efforts around the world.
- To ensure these organizations importing them have done their diligence and have safe practices for disease control and a plan for adoption.
- Ensure it is a safe and viable pet
- i dont beleive bylaws are laws that are lawfully enforceible.
- That they arrive in calgary safe and sound and are required to have care (such as an appointed vet) before the animal even arrives in calgary.
- Business licensing/permitting
- Continue to allow this. I have adopted dogs in the past from high kill shelters in the US and ones rescued from the streets in Mexico, all dogs were amazing and were a part of my family. Rescue knows no borders, every animal deserves a second chance at life
- Licensing of importers.
- Same as above.
- Close monitoring of the imported animals
High licensing fees
- They should all be licensed.
Bylaws should be enforced.
Fines should cover the cost of the program.
- Same answer as above.
- Whatever your role is for horses imported for competition, should be the same across the board.
- business licensing/permitting
- I don't know enough about this, but if having animals like birds, fish, and reptiles at pet stores impacts the environment they come from or their native populations or their are concerns about their treatment before they get to the pet store then their sale should be limited or banned.
- Business licensing/permit
- Wow big question. You probably know more than me. Check for vaccines, registrations, diseases, rabies etc.

Responsible Pet Ownership Bylaw Review

Verbatim Report: Public engagement

June 29, 2020

- The city should take cautionary measures as to what animals & why they're being imported. For example; ban animals such as reptiles where kittens/cats are being used for their consumption, ban gold fish who are discarded into our lakes & rivers.
- No exotic ever. Large fines imposed.
- That perhaps they be examined or tested for fitness, health and temperament. Again this will cost money that likely would be passed on to taxpayers. We can't afford this extra cost in this day and time
- Stopping animals from being imported if they are wild animals and inappropriate for individual ownership. Not supporting puppy mills.
- If City has allowed the animals in, they should be responsible for surrenders & seizures.
- Ensure all animals are treated humanely, are being brought up for ethical/legal purposes, and are not introducing any illness/pests to the area.
- They should discourage them if commercial.
- Reporting them to Canada Border Services. Don't make more jobs and cost us more money when something can and should be handled by Canada Border Services. Don't waste my money, refer it back to the Feds.
- Manage complaints
- policing the retailers to ensure the animals are treated well and get proper care.
- Ensuring that they receive vaccinations and will be spayed or neutered
- Business licensing/permitting
- Verification of humane sourcing. provide quarantine if necessary, costs charged to company importing animals.
- May have answered, mixed with Ques. 10. Should require registration so they know they have arrived and identify what they are.
- Believe this is more a provincial and federal jurisdictional role.
- Regulate.
- See above.
- Once accepted they are treated like any other animal. Otherwise no comment.
- Need to know where animals are coming from, when they are coming and need to know where they have gone.